L. W. Jordan Goes To Plainview

L. W. Jordan was transferred, effective the 15th of this month, as secretary-treasurer of the Western Farm Loan Association at Muleshoe to take over the management of two national farm loan associations at Plainview, with total loans of approximately 1700. Mr. Jordan has been assigned some special work in connection with the two associations at Plainview, which he expects to require about three or four months. At that time, he has another promotion awaiting him with the Federal Land Bank.

Mr. Jordan began work with the Federal Land Bank as a land bank appraiser in 1933, in which he served until July 1, 1937, when he resigned to become secretary-treasurer of both the Farwell and Muleshoe National Farm Loan Associations, with headquarters at Muleshoe. At that time, both of the associations were in class two with one of them insolvent. The total number of loans of the two associations was less than 800, with a total loan and tax delinquencies of approximately $150,000.00. After both associations were advanced to class one, they were finally consolidated in January 1939 and the names changed to the Western National Farm Loan Association. The total number of loans has been increased to about 1020 and all are paid up to date, excepting about thirty of the borrowers who needed a short time extension on installments that matured January 1, 1941.
