Fallout Shelter Survey To Be Made In County

An intensive survey by Hasie & Green Associates, Consulting Engineers of Lubbock, will get under way in the near future to determine the number and location of existing buildings that can be designated public fallout shelters, in accordance with minimum civil defense standards for the following 21 counties: Andrews, Coke, Crane, Crockett, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Irion, Loving, Martin, Mitchell, Midland, Nolan Reagan, Schleicher, Sutton, Sterling, Tom Green, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

Buildings to be surveyed must meet criteria as designated by the Corps of Engineers. These criteria are as follows:

1. A minimum protection factor of 20 (1/20 of the radiation on the outside is received in the shelter.)

2. 50-person capacity (10 Sq. Ft. per person with ventilation, 500 cu. ft. per person without mechanical ventilation).

3. 6½ ft. minimum headroom.

4. 1 cu. ft. per person for secured storage of emergency food, water, medical and sanitation supplies, radiation instruments and tools.

5. Three cu. ft. minimum per person fresh air plus 12 cfm per person recirculated and additional lighting and ventilation specifications.

Representatives of Hasie & Green and Associates will be visiting this area in the next eight weeks, according to word received last week by Co. Judge W. R. Bearce.

Joe Hearne Moore of San Antonio has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Moore, since his father has been ill. He returned home last week end when his father was removed to Santa Rosa hospital in San Antonio for surgery.

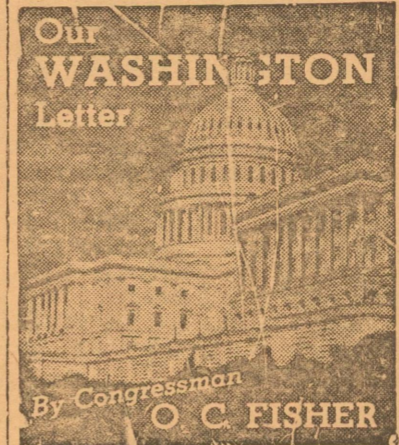

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Griffin of Kerrville, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Welty and Albert of Odessa, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lynn Doyle of San Angelo, and Mrs. Burnell Etheredge and Jackie of Irving visited the Claude Doyles over the week end. On Sunday their guests were also Mr. and Mrs. Lenorris Lacerfield of Odessa, Mr. and Mrs. Cramer Sofge, George Sofge, and Miss Mary Drier.

REAL ESTATE BUSINESS BETTER

Real estate transactions in Texas edged upwards a modest one per cent toward the end of 1961 as compared with the previous year, matching a similar one per cent increase nationally, it was reported this week by Benton Abstract and Title Co.

Based on an analysis of documents recorded in 23 major counties from Florida to California, the national survey was made by Stewart Title Guaranty Company of Houston, underwriter for the local firm.

Mrs. Glendon Aldredge and son Steve of Abilene, returned home Sunday after spending last week at the bedside of her father, George Williams. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Orr and daughter Kathy of Brownwood, is visiting Mr. Williams this week.

A sharply stepped-up drive to eradicate the deadly blowfly in Texas and the Southwest is under way. Spearheaded by voluntary donations from Texas livestock producers, the Federal Government now has a plan spelled out which, barring the unexpected, should get the job done.

Because the time element is so important, a transfer of $800,000 inside the Department of Agriculture has just been worked out, making that amount immediately available, along with the $1½ million raised by Texas ranchers, which should shortly put the eradication plans into high gear.

This money will be supplemented by an emergency $3 million appropriation by the Congress, which we hope will be included in the session's first supplemental appropriation bill, which will be acted upon right away. This will provide necessary financing thru the first crucial year of the program. Producers in the Southwest will be expected to make some additional contributions later on.

USDA's laboratory at Kerrville will hatch off the first sterile flies to be used in the drive. That plant can turn out 20 million a week, but a temporary facility, making use of an abandoned air force base, will soon be producing from 70 to 80 million of the sterile flies weekly—which scientists report will be adequate for the initial drive.

The extreme cold weather in the Rio Grande area, according to Dr. Frank J. Welch, assistant Secretary of Agriculture, made the eradication plan more certain of initial success.

The plan is to saturate the area paralleling the Rio Grande with the sterile male flies by plane drops, and keep it saturated during the wormy season. Based upon experience gained in Florida and the Southeast, where the blow fly was successfully eradicated, experts are eager to undertake the same mission in the southwest where, however, the problem will be much more difficult because of the infestation across the river in Mexico.

But experts now agree it can be done, through maximum use of all our efforts. It will take time and patience, but Dr. R. C. Bushland and his fellow scientists are on the warpath, and the deadly screw worm, which has plagued the livestock industry for generations, may, as a major menace, be on its way out.

I will never get over being impressed by the fact that in today's world we are able to see and hear outstanding authorities on unlimited subjects and with casual ease at that. I'm going to be able to enjoy this privilege as I attend the Texas Home Economics Association in Dallas on this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

More than 400 of us will meet, discuss, and hear discussed our favorite subject, "Home Economics Your Profession." On checking the pre-registration list I've found names of friends from years ago and from far away.

These reunions may turn out like a friend's homecoming on the event of a college football game. He said that his class mates had gotten so bald and gained so much weight that they didn't know him. Could be that they have changed so much that they wouldn't remember me.

Anyway, to go back to the opening sentence, check this list of people on the program and envy me. If you are interested, I'll be delighted to make a report when I get home.

Featured speakers for the Friday general sessions also will include Bill Moyers, associate director, Peace Corps, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Eugene R. Been, economist, Sperry and Hutchinson Co.; and George McKinney, rural development specialist, Texas Power and Light Co. Banquet speaker Friday night will be Charise H. Rutledge, manager, special services, Du Pont Co. The "home economist of the year" will be presented at the banquet.

Saturday speakers will include Dr. Ivan E. Danhof, professor, department of physiology, Southwestern Medical School, Dallas; Dr. Gladys Brown, clinical psychologist, Dallas, and Dr. H. Guy

Moore, pastor of Fort Worth's Broadway Baptist church, who will address the closing luncheon session Saturday.

A friend's note in a Christmas card said, in part, this: "When the world's apprehensions are amplified, shouldn't our small pleasures be magnified to compensate?" I agreed with the thought and offer my own parallel: As the area for our total destruction enlarges, shouldn't we be more careful of the small things which might prolong our lives?

Think these points over.

How Long Do You Want To Live?
Do you paw the ground while waiting for an appointment, a bus, the light to change? You do? Take off 10 years.

Do you run up and down stairs? Begin estimates for the installation of a new heart. Right now they are nearly all in use and in short supply. You'd better plan to get all the use you can out of the one you have.

Do you relax and enjoy the trip when you are a passenger? If you help the driver all the way, subtract 10 years.

Do you blow your top and sizzle like a percolator when things don't go to suit you? It's your blood pressure; enjoy it!

Do you manage with just a bare minimum of sleep every night? Watch it—you may have a chance to catch up on the sleep before you planned.

Do you eat what you like when ever you feel the urge regardless of calorie and vitamin specifications? Hospitals now have waiting lists; make your reservation now—but remember that hospitals are not especially known for their good food.

If you have said "No" to all these questions chances are that you don't belong to this generation at all.

Note: Somebody has asked these pert questions and given the flip answer but as usual—there is grim truth in the matter.

1962 CHEVROLET JOBMMASTER TRUCKS
built better...work longer!

When Chevrolet builds a truck, it builds a quality truck. This policy makes sense. Chevrolet trucks work a long time . . . cost less than many other makes to operate and maintain over the years . . . consistently bring a higher trade-in price . . . and, as a result, are bought by more people.
We invite you to come in and examine this quality closely and to take a 1962 demonstrator out for a good long test drive. Note the cab comfort, the good visibility, the smooth ride, the solid feel of its quality. Compare Chevrolet truck features with those of other makes. Then decide which are your wisest investment. We're sure it will be Chevrolet's.

- Note how this Chevrolet cab roof is made of two sheets of metal, instead of one, with a layer of felt in between as insulation against cold, heat and noise.
- A Chevrolet truck tailgate is sturdier because it has double-wall construction and strong steel chains in tough rubber casing to support it.
- Quality independent front suspension fights road shock more effectively than other types —provides more protection for the truck, load and driver.
- The standard 235-cu.-in. 6-cylinder Chevrolet truck engine has worked more miles than any other. There are nine more engines to choose from.

The events of the new year ushered in a century ago were to indicate to both sides that the war was going to be a long drawn-out affair. The North would become committed to the defeat of the Confederacy as the only way to preserve the Union and the South would become as equally determined to defeat the North in order to preserve its own way of life.

The year just ahead was to be a victorious one for both sides—the North would be favored in the Western theater and the South would emerge victorious in the East.

And 1862 would see the emergence of two military strategists whose names would not soon be forgotten—Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant.

At the beginning of the year there was little harmony to be found in either the North or the South between their respective political and military leaders. In the North, General George B. McClellan whom President Lincoln said has "the slows," was finally ordered by the commander-in-chief to start something at the earliest possible time.

And in the South, there was a difference of opinion between President Jefferson Davis and General Joseph E. Johnston which slowed down any concentrated action by the armies of the Confederacy.

The Union victories in the West began with the capture of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson by troops under the command of General U. S. Grant and soon it was said that the General's initials stood for "Unconditional Surrender." Then "Unconditional Surrender" Grant and Texan General Albert Sidney Johnston met at a place called Shiloh and the South lost its first great military leader when General Johnston was killed.

And a native of the South who had remained in the Northern army, General George W. Thomas, won another victory for the North when he successfully reached the Confederate line in Kentucky causing it to be pulled back into Tennessee.

Southern victories in the Eastern theater of operations were due largely to the brilliance of General Stonewall Jackson who defeated one Union commander after another in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia in spite of the fact that he was outnumbered by more than two to one.

Union activities in the East were concentrated in the Peninsula campaign executed by General McClellan in an attempt to capture Richmond. It was during the early stages of this campaign that Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston sustained a disabling wound, permitting the rise of General Robert E. Lee as a military strategist.

General Lee and his men inflicted such defeats on General McClellan and other Union commanders that President Lincoln was compelled to remove McClellan from his position as commanding general of the Union armies and thus began a desperate search for an officer to match the wits of General Lee.

As result of the search, the Union suffered defeats at Fredericksburg, Cedar Mountain, and again at Manassas before finally learning that "Unconditional Surrender" Grant was the man they were looking for.

Other important activities of 1862 saw pro-Union citizens of western Virginia meet in Wheeling and adopt a constitution which would bring them into the Union the following year as the State of West Virginia. And off Hampton Roads, Virginia, the USS "Monitor" and CS "Merrimac" fought an indecisive battle which ushered in the "age of the ironclads."

And a planned invasion of the North by General Robert E. Lee was turned back at a place called Antietam in the border state of Maryland.

In spite of the fact that the Confederacy seemed to be winning most of the more important battles, it was the North who occupied a sizeable portion of the South by the end of 1862.

Austin.—Candidates flooded this capital city as the filing deadline arrived. Politicians came to town to pay filing fees for state offices at both the state Democratic headquarters and the Republican camp. Thousand dollar fees were paid in many ways: One thousand one-dollar bills, one hundred ten-dollar bills, and varied contributions from friends of the candidates.

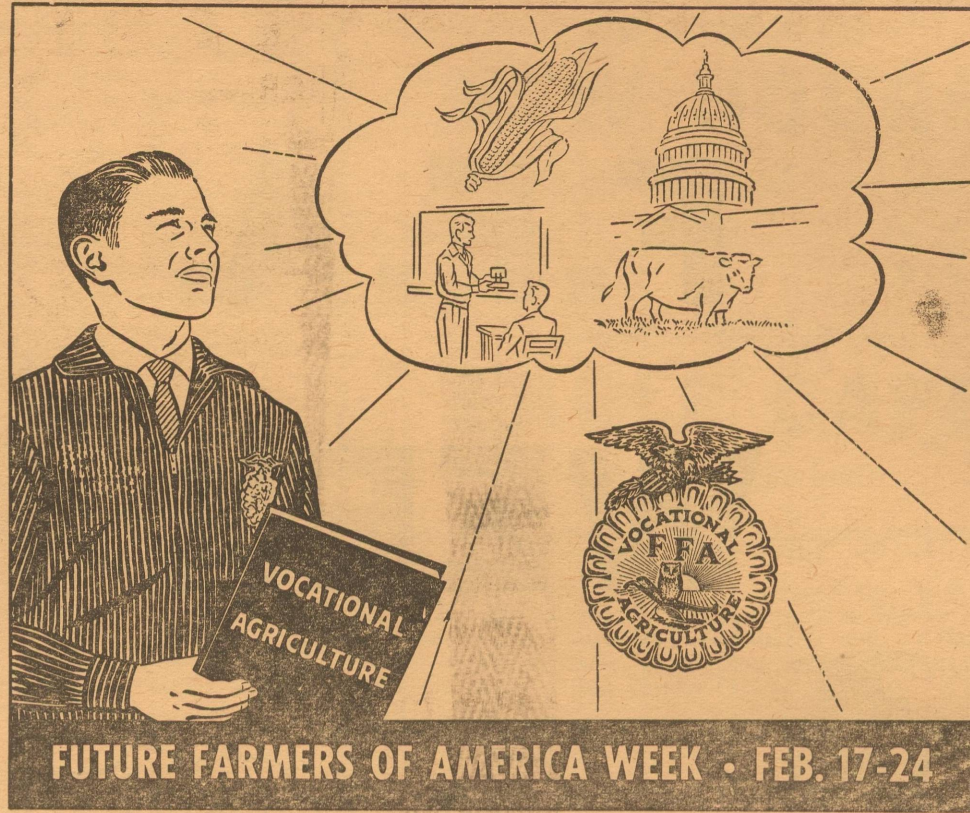

A former athlete brought a handful of ex-football stars along, to show that he had a sporting chance.

There were very few surprises at the State Democratic Executive Committee; gubernatorial candidates John Connally, Marshall Formby, Will Wilson and Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker had paid before the deadline; Don Yarborough was expected, and everyone know Gov. Price Daniel would show up after his TV announcement.

Austin Attorney Bob Looney arrived at the last minute to join Tom James, Tom Reavley, Waggoner Carr, W. T. McDonald and Les Procter in the attorney general's race.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA WEEK - FEB. 17-24

Keith Whitley, 27-year-old Stamford oil operator, decided to oppose Railroad Commissioner Ben Ramsey in the May primary.

Both Looney and Wheatley filed without paying, but plunked down their $1,000 fees by the Feb. 8 deadline.

Joe R. Pool, Dallas attorney, Charles H. Stevenson Jr. of Nueces county and rancher Phil Willis of Kaufman county, made the same sort of financial transaction as candidates for congressman-at-large.

Houston businessman Robert W. Hervey and Mitchell county district judge Eldon Mahon forfeited their right to run for congressman-at-large when they failed to follow filing with payment of filing fees.

Indicative of the expected turnover in both House and Senate is the Democratic line-up for lieutenant governor: Speaker of the House James A. Turman, Senators Preston Smith, Jarrard Secrest and Robert Baker, all are abandoning present posts to seek the state's second highest position. Gene Smith of Fort Worth is the only one-legislative candidate for lieutenant governor.

Republicans Rally
"Rebirth of the Republican party in Texas" has been widely discussed. It was quite evident when filing time was over that considerable progress had been made. If the party wasn't reborn; it certainly was revitalized.

Breckenridge oilman Jack Cox—former Democratic candidate for governor who announced for GOP months ago—got two opponents at the countdown. One was Amarillo rancher-publisher Roy Whittenburg, who polled 185,926 votes when he opposed Ralph Yarborough for the U. S. Senate in 1958. The other was Harry Diehl, Houston factory representative, who was one of the 71 who ran for Lyndon Johnson's senate seat last year.

Republican line-up for house and senate seats is imposing. Fourteen Republicans are campaigning for 10 of the 31 senate seats. And 74 republicans have filed for 70 of the 150 representative offices. Two already are members of the House. They are George Korkdas of Texas City and Kenneth Kohler of Amarillo. They seek re-election to offices they won in recent special elections.

Freeze Creates Food Shortage
Agriculture workers "frozen" from jobs by the recent freeze in the Valley caused a stir of activity in the commodity distribution division of the State Department of Public Welfare.

Division Director W. M. Herndon has just returned from two trips to the Valley to talk to county commissioners in Cameron, Zavala, Willacy and Hidalgo counties. There, the need for emergency distribution of government surplus foods is desperate.

DPW is distributing food for 5,000 in Cameron county, 4,000 in Willacy county, and 2,500 in Zavala county. Also it is adding 20,000 people to the program at Hidalgo county, which provides food for 600 needy people on a regular basis.

Most commissioners look for the emergency to end within 30 days, when business in that area is expected to improve.

F.F.A. WEEK

Feb. 17-24

Why FFA Week Is Observed During February

National FFA Week comes every year during the week of the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington. Although usually considered first as a great general, our first President, and an engineer, George Washington's first love was the farm he called Mount Vernon. There he was one of the first in the nation to practice contour planting, crop rotation, and other soil conserving methods. Probably no other man in America of his day spent more time seeking new agricultural information, either by experimentation on his own farm, or by correspondence with agricultural scientists in England. The title of this nation's first "scientific farmer" might be applied to Washington. It was more than a century after his death that many of the sound agricultural practices he advocated found general use. It is out of deep respect and admiration for George Washington, the farmer in whose progressive ways they seek to follow, that Future Farmers annually observe their National FFA Week at the time of his birthday.

Supervised Farming Programs In Texas

Future Farmers of Texas make a big business out of their laboratory experiences in vocational agriculture. Last year 43,645 FFA members in Texas cleared over four million dollars from 100,000 head of livestock, 41,054 acres of crops, and nearly a million head of poultry.

In the classrooms of over a thousand high schools in Texas, students study scientific agricultural practices as a part of their regular high school curriculum. When the school day is over, all is not finished for the vocational agriculture student, since he is responsible for his supervised project which is supervised by his vocational agriculture teacher. With money he earns from his project, using improved practices he has studied in class, the student launches into the very competitive field of agricultural production where he must use every managerial skill at his command in order to show a profit.

Purpose of FFA Week

National Future Farmers of America Week seeks to focus attention on the work of the Future Farmers of today, who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow.

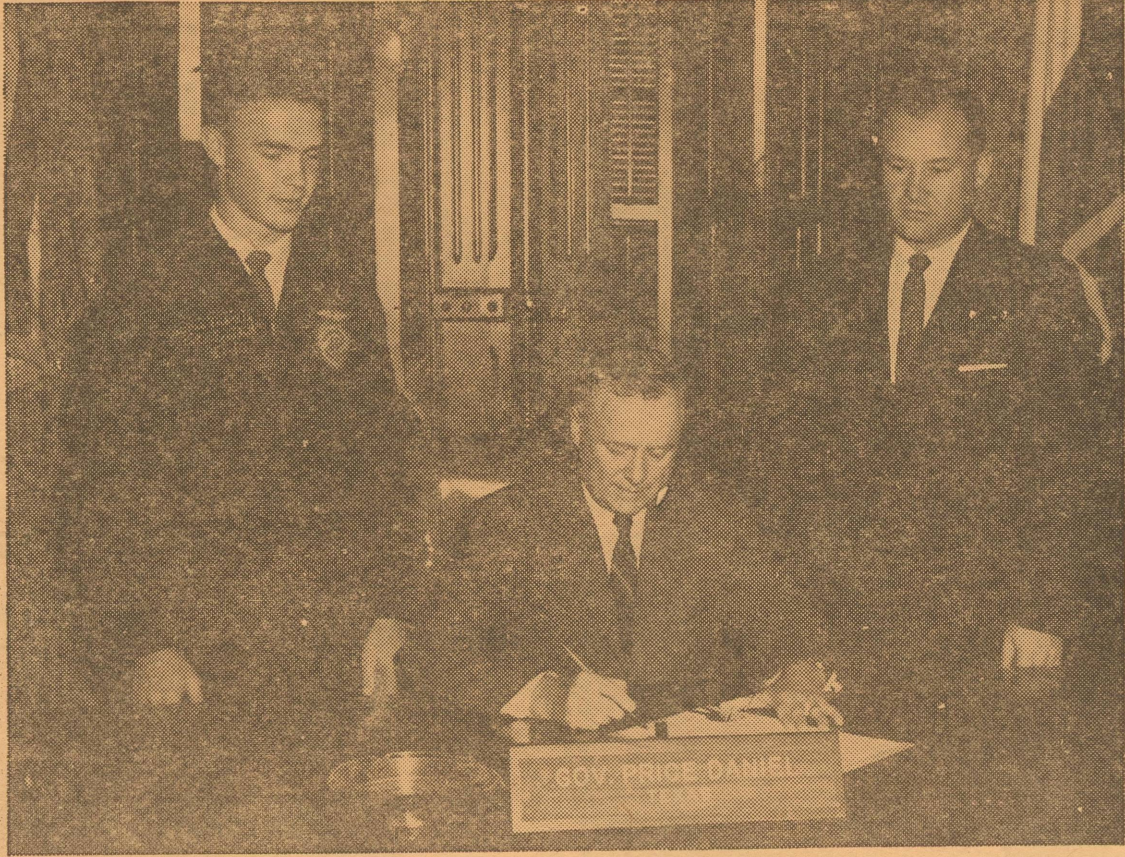

This nation must have a constant supply of NEW farmers every year to replace those who die, retire, or otherwise leave the farm. These must be men with EXPERIENCE and TRAINING, for the successful farmer today is both a scientist and a businessman; mechanic and a laborer, at the same time capable of leadership in the affairs of the community. Generally, they must be men who have begun farming at an early age, so that by the time they are ready to marry and start a family, they will be firmly established in a farming program that promises a GOOD future. Students of vocational agriculture study the sciences of animal and plant production, agricultural marketing, farm business management, farm mechanics, and other subjects needed to train them for the work of the farm or ranch.

By participating in their Future Farmers of America unit, they also learn the ways of effective leadership, and are encouraged to assume their responsibilities as good citizens in the further development of the communities in which they live.

The program of vocational agriculture and FFA is designed to increase the student's proficiency in farming, and thereby his future success. While not all students actually become full-time farmers or ranchers, most of them do find careers in some phase of agriculture. Many continue their studies through agricultural college. Their experiences in vocational agriculture and the FFA serve well to help them to success.

Voy J. Mitchell Cited As Airman Of The Month

Airman First Class Voy J. Mitchell, son of Jerome Mitchell of Eldorado and an administrative specialist with the 2005 Communications Sq of the Air Force Communications Service, was named Airman of the Month in the unit for January. The unit is stationed in Germany.

In recognition of Airman Mitchell's selection, Major Claude E. Harris Jr. in a letter to him said in part, "You are to be congratulated on your outstanding display of knowledge of your job, military subjects, and world events, and for your exemplary appearance and matters, all of which were of prime consideration in your selection for this award."

Airman Mitchell received a $25 Savings Bond, a three-day pass, an individually engraved plaque, and his picture was placed on the Sq Airman of the Month plaque.

Major Harris also wrote to Mr Mitchell here in Eldorado:

"It is with great pleasure that I inform you that your son Voy has recently been selected as 'Airman of the Month' for this squadron for the period of January 1962.

"Enclosed is a copy of the letter that we have presented to your son, outlining his accomplishment and the awards he will receive for this achievement. The winning of this award by Voy is indicative of the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow airmen. He was in competition with approximately one hundred other young airmen for this honor and his selection reflects much credit upon him. He has been an extremely popular airman socially, as well as maintaining a high degree of proficiency in his job assignment. In addition, as a result of his outstanding ability and performance, he has been selected for promotion to the grade of Airman First Class as of 1 Feb 62."

Voy J. graduated from Eldorado High school with the Class of 1958, and entered the Air Force shortly afterwards.

On The Screen . . . 'Hustler' Is Taut Drama On Sunday And Monday

His name is "Fast" Eddy, and he comes into New York from Oakland with a cocky grin, one suitcase and his collapsible pool cue. He's looking for Minnesota Fats, because "Fast" Eddy will never be satisfied until he has beaten the one man who is undisputed pool champ of them all.

"Just wait," a pool hall hanger-on tells the boy from out West. "He comes in that door each night at 8 o'clock. He'll find you."

At 8 p.m. in strides Minnesota Fats, massive and impassive in homburg and lapel carnation. They begin to play, and all other activity stops in the room.

"Fast" Eddy, played with talcum powder smoothness by Paul Newman in "The Hustler," which will show Sunday and Monday nights at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre, loses steadily and admiringly to the king.

Night turns to morning, and slowly but surely the king, played to stunning perfection by Jackie Gleason, begins losing to the younger man.

As he drinks, Eddy gets cockier and more sure. Minnesota Fats shoots on methodically. "I own the table," says Eddy at dawn. After 25 hours he also owns $18,000.

George C. Scott, the sneering prosecutor of "Anatomy of a Murder," gives Gleason the nod to continue with Scott's backing. "Stay with this kid," murmurs Scott. "He's a loser."

Gleason washes his face, puts his coat back on, adjusts the carnation. "Let's play some pool," he says quietly. As class tells, Newman finally loses.

Drunk, broke, discouraged, he turns his back on Myron McCormick, brilliant in the small role of Newman's backer, and falls into an affair with Piper Laurie, a crippled alcoholic who knows they are both born losers.

It's typical of this Robert Rossen production to find that Piper Laurie is an actress of tremendous power and ability, hiding all these years behind that Universal-International starlet name.

Driven by the desire only to get one more crack at Minnesota Fats, Newman takes to hustling games in shadowy pool halls. He blindly runs the table on one arrogant opponent, forgetting he should play it like a rube, and gets his thumbs broken by the boys in the back room.

Forced into an alliance with Scott, the big money man, he journeys to Louisville to play a game with a degenerate Southern millionaire as soon as his hands are well. The gentleman, played craftily by Murray Hamilton, insists the game be billiards, not pool. It's the turning point in "Fast" Eddy's comeback. And looming hazily and inevitably in the background is the showdown match with Minnesota Fats back in New York.

"The Hustler" is a must-see. It's one of the all-time greats.

Rossen's direction has the thrust of a scalpel with edge to match. Paul Newman's hustler is masterly for its surface passions and tensions, its steel-eyed truculence, if not for its depth. Piper Laurie is touchingly moving in an offbeat way in a role not too clearly defined to start with.

There is a cool brilliance in Jackie Gleason's excellent Fats and the power of the devil himself peers under the dark glasses of George C. Scott's gambler, the most cynically realized portrayal of all.

F.F.A. Opportunities And Responsibilities

By James Morris, President Texas Association, FFA

One of the fundamental purposes of the Future Farmer organization is to honor our rural opportunities and responsibilities. This is something we have all heard since we first entered the FFA organization. But do we really realize what opportunities every Future Farmer has, and what responsibilities rest on us and in the future?

We are offered many opportunities in our organization; perhaps more than most of us realize. First we should be proud and happy to have the opportunity of belonging to the FFA. In many countries in today's world, the young people are not given the opportunity of belonging to any type of organization; much less one that teaches leadership and citizenship, and builds youth for their future.

It is also our responsibility to see that the youth following us have the opportunity and freedom of being members of any organization they wish to enter. This opportunity and responsibility may be the most important of all, because it is the backbone of our nation. Without freedom of choice and education, America would not be the strong nation it is today.

We are also offered an opportunity to study whatever subjects we want in the free public education system of the United States. Our careers and lives for the future are not planned by the government or others. This educational opportunity is very important in the modern age we live in today. We can no longer be satisfied with just knowing how to raise our crops and livestock; we need to know how to raise them more efficiently and how to make a greater profit from year to year. It is our responsibility to take advantage of this opportunity of free education for all. If we do take this advantage, we are building for the future of agriculture and the entire nation.

The farm world has changed from one of production farming to one of many and various vocations. There are thousands of job opportunities in the field of agriculture for all Future Farmers. We not only need farmers, but men to process and distribute agriculture products. We need workers in research, engineering, public relations, journalism, medicine, and many other fields to round out the

The Future Farmer can choose almost any type of work and still connect it to the farm world. We should realize that with the specialized education we received in agriculture classes in high school, we are especially suited to fit all these vocational opportunities. It is the responsibility of every Future Farmer to study these vocations and see just where he fits into the agriculture picture. There is an opportunity there for him.

One of the greatest opportunities of all Future Farmers is that of building his leadership abilities.

Our organization, with its well-outlined objectives, trains the rural boy for this leadership. The participation of a Future Farmer in meeting from his local chapter through the National organization, the abilities he acquires in speaking and in parliamentary procedure techniques, and the self confidence these abilities give him will be invaluable.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Loden and Glenda went to Longview last week end and took their grandsons Chuck and Bruce Loden home. The boys had been visiting their grandparents for the last month.
