Emigration Bureau Organized by Railroad Companies Under State Charter.

Opportionment for School Purposes During Coming Year.

Special Telegram to the DAILY EXPRESS.

Austin, July 22.—To-day the representatives of several of the leading Texas railroads met at the raymond House to organize an emigration company under the charter of the Southwestern Emigration Company. The object is to induce emigration into Texas and build up the material interests of the state. The Company will not work in the interest of any particular railroad.

The following directors were elected: H. M. Hoxie, Geo. Noble, Hon. W. W. Lang, A. J. Fry, John Seely, W. H. Abrams, Col. Henry B. Andrews.

Lang was elected president and James H. Raymond, of Austin, treasurer. Other officers not elected.

Subscription books were opened and $29,000 subscribed.

Governor Roberts was present about an hour and gave a brief history of the state emigration laws.

To-day the state board of education made an apportionment of $782,000 for school purposes during the ensuing year.

The motion for a new trial in the Bane case was postponed until next Monday.

The republican executive committee failed to get a quorum to-day. They hope to have one to-morrow.

It is learned late to-night that Hon. W. W. Lang in view of his election to the presidency of the Southwestern Emigration company, has formerly withdrawn from the gubernatorial canvass. He will also resign as master of the state grange, and his letter of withdrawal will appear in a day or two.

FROM HOUSTON.

Mrs. Louis M. Grego, the Pluckiest Woman Heard from.

She Keeps Horse Thieves at Bay With a Shot Gun.

Special Dispatch to the DAILY EXPRESS.

Houston, July 22.—About two o'clock this morning three horse thieves were discovered in the stable attached to the residence of Mrs. Louis M. Grego, a widow, two and a half miles from town. She seized a double-barreled breech-loading shot gun, and taking a quantity of extra cartridges in her hand, started for the stable. Before reaching there she discovered two white men and a negro leading out the horses. She opened fire, discharging the gun at the foe. They returned the fire from a six-shooter. She kept loading and firing until they took to their heels and made off without their booty. She went to town for Mr. Hamilton Buchanan, her deceased husband's former partner, who came and made an examination, discovering a pool of blood and a handkerchief saturated with blood, but no trace of the robbers. Deputy sheriff visited the scene later without finding any trace to the thieves.

The horticultural and pomological exhibition opened last night and will continue another day on account of inclement weather. A heavy rain fell here all day to-day.

The Tunnel Disaster.

Jersey City, N. J., July 22.—At 8:40 o'clock last night workmen were trying to put the cylinder end of a pump in position over the shaft. It fell from a beam upon which it rested into the shaft, in consequence of which work had to be suspended until a diver could go down the shaft and find the cylinder, it being impossible to do so before this morning. Joseph Winburg, diver, went down the shaft, and at 9 o'clock found the cylinder, when work was immediately commenced to put it in position. Officers of company state if the cylinder end shall be placed in position without any further extraordinary delay, water will be taken out by a late hour in the afternoon, and bodies reached by early evening.

The Starving Doctor—Offer of Marriage.

New York, July 22.—Dr. Tanner complained of vertigo and sickness at the stomach this morning, but at noon he felt better. He received a letter from Dr. W. B. Lee, of Marion, Illinois, who says he himself has fasted 21 days, and another from a Philadelphia woman, who, pleading leap year privileges, offers him marriage. When last taken his pulse was 72, rather weak and more compressible than yesterday; temperature 98.5-5 and respiration 16. At noon he entered on the 20th day of his fast.

Murder Most Foul.

Memphis, July 22.—At 12 o'clock last night Annie Hardy, a colored girl 15 years old, was found by her parents on returning from church, with her jaw broken and several wounds on her throat, neck and breast, which looked as though they had been inflicted with a pickaxe. The girl had been sick for several days and died this morning from the effects of the wounds. No clue to the perpetrators of the bloody act.

Molire Maguires at Work.

Pottsville, Pa., July 22.—James Wood, aged 60 years, engineer of a stationary engine for the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, was murdered last night at Bull Run by masked men. Revenge seems to have been the motive, as the money Wood had with him was not taken. All the haunts of Molire Maguires have been turbulent for several days past. The murder was believed to be their work.

The Case of Whittaker.

Washington, July 21.—It will be twelve or fifteen days before any action in the Whittaker case is taken. It is pretty generally understood, however, that Gen. Dunn, in his review of court of inquiry, sustains the finding of the court that Whittaker mutilated himself. As Whittaker's friends desire a court-martial, in order that he may vindicate himself, one will very likely be ordered.

Postoffice Embezzlte.

Richmond, Va., July 22.—The postoffice embezzle here has not yet been settled. To-day bad been fixed for the sureties of postmaster Forbes to make good the deficiency in his accounts, but owing to the fact that a majority of his bondsmen are not residents, a further extension of time has been granted to August 4th in which to settle up. Applicants for the expected vacancy in the postmastership are numerous.

POLITICAL.

Missouri Democratic Convention—Platform Adopted.

Democratic State Conventions in Ohio and Vermont.

MISSOURI DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

St. Louis, July 22.—The democratic convention, after two recesses, reassembled at 7:30 p. m.

The platform reported by the committee on resolutions accepted and endorsed the principles embodied in the platform adopted by the national democratic party in June, 1880. It declares that the nomination of Hancock and English is a matter of earnest congratulation, not alone to the democrats, but to all parties irrespective of party; that it means strict and constitutional subordination of the military to the civil power, and that sectional asperities will disappear and an era of good feeling again return throughout the country. It congratulates the people of the state that the administration of the state government by the democracy during the last decade has increased her population, national wealth and means of social happiness; that institutions of learning are taking rank among the best in the union. It declares that the democratic party will ever encourage institutions of learning established by the state. It recommends the strictest practice of economy in every department of the state government consistent with the growth, development and necessities of the state, together with a most exacting accountability on the part of those entrusted with the custody and disbursement of public revenues. It recommends reduction of interest on state debt so soon as it can be honorably and legally done. It closes with a tribute to Gov. Phelps. The report was unanimously adopted.

Ex-Governor Willard P. Hall was made chairman, D. C. Kennedy secretary, with three assistants.

A motion to adjourn till morning was voted down, and Thomas J. Crittenden, Gen. Marmaduke and Hon. J. Hockaday, were put in nomination for governor.

After a brief speech of thanks by Col. Crittenden, and a pledge of hearty support for the nominee by Generals Marmaduke and Hockaday, the convention adjourned till 9 o'clock this morning.

The convention reconvened at Jefferson City at 9:30 o'clock this morning, and renamed nomination of a state ticket.

Col. Robert A. Campbell, of St. Louis, was nominated for lieutenant governor, and Hon. Robert Gray, of Carroll county, for judge of the supreme court.

The credential committee reported 635 delegates present, and no contests.

The committee on resolutions reported the following:

Resolved, That the democracy of Ohio heartily endorse the candidates of the national convention, and that we will zealously labor for the election of Hancock and English, and for candidates for state offices this day nominated.

Resolved, That the democracy of Ohio adopt as their own the national democratic platform.

Judge Wm. Long, of Tiffin, was nominated for secretary of state; M. R. Follette, for supreme judge; Judge Richard J. Janing, incumbent, clerk of the supreme court; W. J. Jackson, board of public works; J. J. Burns, incumbent, commissioner of schools; R. P. Ranney and John F. Follette, presidential electors at large.

VERMONT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Burlington, Vt., July 22.—The democratic state convention for nomination of a state ticket and two presidential electors at large, met here this morning. The convention numbered over forty delegates, being the largest ever held by the party in state convention. It was called to order at 1:15 by Hiram Airken, chairman of the state committee, who delivered a brief address. He then named as temporary chairman Col. A. Dickey, of Bradford, who took the chair amid applause, returning thanks for the honor conferred.

J. E. Stapleton, of Middleburg, was elected secretary.

B. D. Smalley, of Burlington, moved that the temporary organization be made permanent, which, after some opposition, was agreed to.

The roll was then called, and vice presidents and secretaries from each county appointed.

A state committee composed of one delegate from each county was selected by county delegates.

Other committees were also appointed.

A series of resolutions denouncing the increase in state taxes, and demanding a reduction of salaries of state officers, taxation of corporations, reformation of tax levies, abolition of free railroad passes to members of the legislature and judiciary were referred.

Edwin J. Phelps, was then unanimously nominated for governor.

The convention then took a recess until 2 p. m.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY AND WEEKLY EXPRESS,
Thursday, July 22, 1880.

Receipts by rail to-day were above the average, and receipts by wagons were very fair, in some kinds of country produce the demand far exceeds the supply. Poultry is very scarce now and eggs are also in better demand than supply.

Hides are in light receipt to-day, but prices are well maintained. One sale of hides was reported to-day at 11c, as they ran, which would bring the price on a strict selection above our highest quotations. News from New York and Boston shows a better demand by tanners, but there is no material advance in prices, and Texas hides do not appear to be in special demand.

Wool remains as at our last report. The buyers do not show any tendency to bolt the market, and competition is not active. The sale of eighty-one bales of the Henry Thompson clip at 24½c, is reported. In any ordinary season we could grade prices on a lot of this size, but it is impossible to grade prices now, as the buyers appear to be limited to a certain figure above which they will not pay, no matter how choice the wool may be. Seventy-five bags of wool were shipped by rail to-day.

The demand for stock sheep continues brisk, and Messrs. Chabot, Moss & Co. report large sales this week. Six hundred mutions were shipped by rail to New Orleans yesterday.

Mohair—Demand is active and in demand; $13.50 per head was paid for a lot of cows to-day.

Horses continue in demand for shipment to northern markets. Prices are strong with a rising tendency. Mules are also in good demand at better prices.

Mexican dollars were reported weak at 98 cts. to-day.

Corn, fodder and hay is in moderate receipt with a good demand at better prices.

Grain is in comparatively light receipt by wagons. The receipts of grain by rail to-day were three carloads of oats, one carload of wheat and four carloads of corn. There is a good demand and prices are firm.

Case of Abduction.

New York, July 22.—A Pittsburg special states that Salome Burkett, the young girl who was kidnapped by four men belonging to Boyd & Peter's circus, at Sharksville, in Somerset county, has been found, and S. C. Peters, A. D. Davis, H. Marks and Clark Wise, the men charged with the crime, yesterday had a hearing before Judge Hunton in Greensburg. Miss Burkett was put on the stand and testified to the outrageous treatment she had received, fully identifying the prisoners as part of the circus gang that had maltreated her. She is in a very deplorable condition. The case will be ferreted out to the bottom. Miss Burkett is a little country girl only 14 years old. The most intense indignation prevails in Greensburg, and threats of lynching the offenders are freely made.

Chicago Races.

Chicago, July 22.—The attendance at the trotting races to-day was very large, over 15,000 persons being present. The weather was warm and track fast.

The great event of the day was the meeting of St. Julien, Hopeful and Darby. St. Julien scored an easy victory in three straight heats.

First race—I. K. Dow stakes for 2:23 class $200 entrance, $1000 added, purse divided; Summary Wedgewood, 1, 1, 1; Lucy, 2, 2, 2; Mark Rule 3, 3, 3. Time, 2:22¼, 2:22¼, 2:22¼.

Second race—special purse of $2500, divided, for all trotters; St. Julien, 1, 1, 1; Darby, 2, 2, 2; Hopeful, 3, 3. Time, 2:17¼, 2:18¼, 2:16¾. The owner of St. Julien offers to match him against any trotter or pacer in the country for $5000.

PRESUMPTIOUS DEMOCRATS.

They Attempt and Accomplish Such Within Their Own Little Circle.

Evening before last, according to advertisement, an address was to have been delivered at the county court room by Maj. R. L. Russell, on Gonzales. The major had been solicited to speak on the occasion, but those who were so urgent to hear him were not polite enough to see that the room was lighted—aye, even to see that its doors were unbarred. So when the speaker appeared, there was quite a crowd assembled, but he turned away because they stood upon the sidewalk, and the place where he had agreed to speak had not been opened nor lighted. About half-past nine o'clock, however, the major passed by, and heard a noise in the court room, while a glimmer of light proceeded from a half-closed door. He thought to investigate, and, the impulse carried out, resulted in the discovery that about twenty persons had gathered, and speaking was going on.

John Walthall, Esq., had been called to the chair, and Jay Minter, Esq., elected secretary.

In a talk with an EXPRESS reporter, Minter says he opened the door about half-past nine o'clock, after which opening the meeting proceeded to transact the very important business, details of which follow.

M. W. Wolf, of Bexar, and J. A. Staton, of Castroville, addressed "the convention," as secretary Minter calls it, on "the political issues of the day."

Maj. Russell was probably attracted to the place by Staton's remarks, as Staton is quite forcible and eloquent when "wound up."

Maj. Russell was called on, and mentioned the trouble he had encountered in his efforts to find whereabouts he was going to speak, when he proceeded to deliver a good talk and one which would have been properly received by any intelligent gathering. He opposed the present governor, and showed up his many failures as an executive, but it was all to no purpose, as the "convention," as Minter calls it, passed the following resolution offered by him after Major Russell had concluded:

Resolved, By the democracy of Bexar county, in convention assembled, that we heartily endorse each and every official act of Governor O. M. Robert's administration, and that we use all fair and honorable means to secure his re-nomination and reelection.—Of those present, but one, Leo Turleton, opposed this foolish resolution, which was adopted.

Major Russell was then tendered a vote of thanks for his eloquent address.

Our reporter finds that Jay Minter, S. G. Newton, John Walthall, Simon Frank, J. R. Mason, Leo Turleton, T. T. Teel, W. H. Elliott, M. W. Wolf, J. A. Staton and Leslie Thompson, of Castroville, Calvin Brace, R. L. Graves, and a few others, attended this "convention," which was significant of nothing.

PROGRESS OF THE INTERNATIONAL RAILROAD

Cars Will Run to San Marcos by September First.

In a conversation yesterday with Capt. Hunter and Maj. Goodwin, of the International, this reporter was told that the work was moving ahead finely. Track laying has commenced, and by the close of the present month it is expected that Onion creek, twelve miles from the Colorado, will have been reached. The reporter received an invitation from the gentlemen to meet them at Austin on the 1st of September, and take a ride over to San Marcos by rail. The cut at Onion creek may delay the progress of the tracklaying a few days, though a large force of men is employed on the cut night and day.

Earthquakes in Manilla.

Madrid, July 21.—Terrestrial disturbances in the island of Luzon commenced on the 13th inst., and up to the 20th there had been repeated shocks of earthquakes, the third and last being most violent. The cathedral and barracks at Manilla have fallen, and troops are encamped outside the city. Two shocks occurred on the 15th inst., one of which lasted several seconds and the other forty seconds; eleven native have been killed and sixty-one injured. No Europeans have been hurt. The inhabitants of Manilla have fled to the fields. The earth has opened in several places, and jets of boiling water and showers of ashes are ejected. Some of the public buildings at Lagana and Cabacan have been demolished. All the volcanoes of Luzon are in full activity.

Telegraphic Brevities.

Little Rock, Ark., July 22.—Rudolph Fink, general manager of the M. & L. R. railroad, has resigned to accept a similar position on the Selma, Rome and Dalton railroad.

The city has defaulted in the payment of about $10,000 interest on its bonded indebtedness due in July.

Nashville, Tenn., July 22.—Yesterday afternoon John Houston, colored, attempted rape upon a six year old daughter of James Keahan, Jr., about six miles west of Shelbyville, Tenn. While in custody at Keahan's house last night, a party of masked men came and took Houston out and carried him a half mile down the pike and hanged him. The negro had been in the penitentiary.

Middleton, N. J., July 22.—On last Monday morning as Mrs. Sarah Accrolin, white, wife of a tenant on the farm of Wm. A. Conover, was walking along a path near the New Jersey Southern R. R. track, she was set upon by Geo. Carney, a burly negro, who dragged her into the woods and outraged her after she had fainted. The miscreant was captured last night and locked up, and narrowly escaped being lynched.

Rifle Shooting at Wimbledon.

Wimbledon, July 22.—In the competition for the Elcho shield to-day, shooting in the first range 200 yards, 15 shots each man, resulted in the following team scores: England, 563; Ireland, 567; Scotland, 537.

The Americans had team practice on Hounslow government range to-day. After a few preliminary shots to get all sights regulated together, they shot a full round at all three ranges, under exactly the same conditions they will shoot under in the match Saturday. Individual and total score at three ranges is as follows: Farrow, 300 yards, 73; 900 yards, 71; 1000 yards, 70; total, 214. Laird, 73, 73, 73; total, 219. Scott, 74, 74, 66; total, 214. Jackson, 68, 70, 65; total, 203. Hyde, 73, 65, 61; total, 199. Gerrish, 74, 66, 69; total, 209. Dudley, 73, 64, 67; total, 204. Brown, 75, 69, 71; total, 215. Totals, 586, 552, 542. Grand total, 1676.

The light at the longer ranges was very troublesome. At the 900 yards range Dudley and Gerrish lost several points by bullets accidentally shifting after their loading, but this has now been remedied.

The following is a comparison of to-day's practice shooting of the American teams with the scores of the English and Irish teams in the contest for the Elcho shield: Americans, total at all three ranges, 1676; Irish team, 1658; English team, 1538. Competitors for the Elcho shield had better light than did Americans. The Americans made 53 points more than was made in the contest for the Elcho shield by the British riflemen professionally selected recently for the forthcoming international contest.

MEXICO.

General Gonzales Elected—Attempt to Shoot Him—Pronunciamente.

Havana, July 21.—The French mail steamer from Vera Cruz brings advices from the City of Mexico to July 16.

Gen. Gonzales has been elected president by a large majority. An abortive attempt was made on the 13th inst. in Guanajuato to shoot Gen. Gonzales. While he was on the balcony receiving an ovation some person in the crowd fired a shot. Mr. Boche, who was also on the balcony and a servant who was crossing the room, were wounded.

A pronunciamento is reported in Sierras of Puebla, arising from the election squabble. If the report is true, the situation there is very serious. It is also reported that general Negrete, who is a professional pronunciado, has taken the field in Puebla, at the head of a small force. Government troops have been sent to redress these disturbances.

The report that a revolution had broken out in Mazatlan is confirmed. The collector of the porte pronounced, seizing the public funds. The federal troops have reoccupied Mazatlan and leaders of the outbreak fled to San Francisco with the stolen funds.

A difficulty has arisen between Gen. Corbo, federal commander in Sonora, and the government of the state. It is feared serious complications may come out of the affair, considering the American ideas of the governor.

Yanni Indians, a formidible tribe in Sonora, are also reported to be contemplating a revolt. Government and state troops united will be insufficient to subdue those Indians unless considerably reinforced.

Bellicose signs have appeared between government troops and state for possession of Guaaujulo, in the state of Oaxaca, but it is believed this affair will be arranged peacably.

The president has appointed a distinguished catholic priest to be judge of the supreme court. He has also appointed a commission to study the railroad question in its relation to agriculture and commerce, and with regard to the finances and government. French residents at the capital held a grand fete in commemoration of the fall of the bastile. A plague of locusts is destroying all the crops in the states of Labasco, Chiapas and Oaxaca.

Beartrending.

Meadville, Pa., July 18.—Last evening as the accommodation train which arrives here at 10:45 p. m., was passing Steamburg, near which place is a covered bridge, a German emigrant, aged about thirty-five years, whose name is unknown, stuck his head out of a car window, striking the bridge and completely tore his head off, scattering his brains both in and outside the coach. His wife, with two children, occupied seats beside him, and the anguish of the poor woman and children was heartrending to witness. Conductor Boynton brought the remains to the city, where the company kindly provided a coffin and cared for the unfortunates. No blame can be attached to the company. The family were destined for Waverly. A party of nearly $20 was raised here last night, and the widow and children, with the remains of the unfortunate man, were taken on early this morning.

THE EXPRESS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

The presidential campaign has now fully opened, and the present is one of the most important that has been known for a quarter of a century from the fact that the two giant parties which have existed in this country for that length of time, it is generally conceded, will engage in the death struggle. WEEKLY EXPRESS:

EXPRESS PRINTING CO

ACCORDING to the Quill, a rich silver mine has been discovered in Medina county. Particulars are not given.

THE republican mail throwing machine appears to have been laid up for repairs. Somehow it won't make its mud stick.

SUNSET COX says "Arthur is only what Conkling flung at the head of the administration, as you would fling a boot-jack at the head of an improper cat."

CONKLING has given up his trip to Europe, Logan is stamping in Illinois and Cameron is exhibiting signs of frakiness. A complete surrender of Garfield to the Grant crowd is alleged.

GOV. ROBERTS authorizes the Statesman to state that if he should be re-elected governor he would under no circumstances allow his name to be used as a candidate for the U. S. senatorship.

THE Austin Statesman says: "It is reported that Col. Darden will be a candidate for congress in the 6th district." This was reported some time ago, but we understand the colonel has "changed his mind."

THE phylo-psora nosode appears to be spreading among the cattle herds of Maryland. It made its first appearance in the year 1879, and has never been absent since. An official veterinary surgeon reports to the governor of the state that three-fourths of the dairies in and around Baltimore have the disease in a more or less serious form.

THE New York Post a disappointed in the Garfield letter of acceptance. It says: "He is neither courageous nor frank, only respectable and moderate; and we fear that his wonderful phrases will fail to give satisfaction to either branch of the party he represents or to stir the hearts of the people like the sounds of a trumpet."

THE council should take more prompt and decisive action in connecting with the water supply question than it shows a disposition to. Some of the hydrant water consumers are being put to very great inconvenience, and they ask relief as soon as it can be granted. Nothing will be gained by delays.

ACCORDING to Dunn & Co's commercial agency the failures for the first half of 1880 numbered 2,637, the liabilities amounting to $53,000,000. The liabilities of a similar character for 1879 were $65,000,000 and for 1878, $120,000,000. Stump orators of the greenback persuasion, whose greatest capital is hard times, may cut the above statistics out and paste them in their hats for reference.

THE colored people of Illinois met in state convention on the 21st inst., for the first time in the history of that state. This is all the evidence needed that the Sucker republicans are badly scared. Never before since the republican party got control there have they deemed it worth while to make any effort to rally the colored vote or bolster it up to their party through an independent movement of that class.

GROW, GALESHA A., has lately made a speech in which he declared that "if Garfield is elected a million bayonets will put him in his seat." "If Garfield is elected" says the St. Louis Republican, "he will get his seat by simply taking the oath of office, but if he is 'elected' as Hayes was, no amount of bayonets will put him where Hayes is. Mr. Grow will please take due notice thereof and govern his gab accordingly."

ST. LOUIS has a matrimonial bureau. All one has to do is to deposit a photograph with statement of circumstances, kind of partner desired, and a fee, of course, and in a short time the desired article, husband or wife as the case may be, is produced. The registration fee is $5, and $20 additional in case of success, with poor people, but when wealth is involved one per cent. on the amount advertised is charged. The "head of the bureau" says he is making a good living, with constantly increasing business, and he expects to make a good thing out of it.

THE Mason News Item of the 15th, thus refers to Col. J. H. McLeary: "J. H. McLeary, Esq., is a candidate for attorney-general. Col. McLeary, whilst a member of the lower house and of the state senate, was earnest in his efforts to obtain the necessary legislation for the well-being of his constituents, was bitterly opposed to land grabs and monopolies, and the voters of western Texas will do well to remember this at the polls. Further, he is a magnificent lawyer, a finished orator, and an accomplished gentleman in the true sense of the word, and the office he seeks would be honored by his incumbency. He has our hearty good wishes for his success."

THE greenbackers of Missouri held a convention on the 14th inst., and after much parade of grand intention and speeches of unusual pomposity, nominated the following ticket: For governor, Lonan A. Brown, of Howard county; lieutenant governor, H. F. Fellows, of Greene county; secretary of state, O. D. Jones, of Knox county; auditor, Dr. A. C. Marvin, of St. Clair county; attorney general, A. N. McGinnis, of Randolph county; supreme judge, Peter Bland, of St. Louis; register of lands, James A. Matney, of Buchanan county; railroad commissioner, J. B. Alexander, of Jackson county. Missouri being hopelessly democratic, the republican party stands in the relation of wet nurse to the greenbackers, and assists in getting up crowds and enthusiasm.

ROBERTS INDORSED.

A "public meeting of democrats" was held at the county court-room in this city night before last, and after listening to an anti-Roberts address, a resolution was adopted with but one dissenting voice, endorsing Gov. Roberts and his administration in every particular. It came about in this way:

A notice appeared in THE EXPRESS yesterday morning, announcing that Maj. Russell, of Gonzales, would address the democracy of this city on the issues of the day, at the courthouse at eight o'clock. At the appointed time, the courthouse was found to be locked and in darkness, it being claimed that the carrier of the key had not been notified of the meeting. Quite a number who expected to attend the meeting arrived and departed when they ascertained the situation, Major Russell being among them. At twenty minutes to nine the courthouse was closed, and the street and sidewalks in front of it deserted. Some time after nine o'clock, while on his way to his hotel, "Maj. Russell saw a light in the courthouse, and stepping in, found to his great surprise a "democratic mass meeting" in full blast, there being some twenty or thirty persons present, and by a rather remarkable if not suspicious coincidence, as far as we can learn, solid for Roberts almost to a man. Col. John Walthall presided, and Mr. J. Minter acted as secretary. Maj. Russell being called upon, addressed the meeting, and as soon as he concluded, Mr. Minter offered the resolution referred to above and it was adopted.

It was a brilliant idea for this handful of young attorneys and attorneys' office boys to manipulate the janitor of the courthouse, and by keeping it dark until it was considered no meeting was to be held, then take possession of the court-room at a late hour and pass resolutions in the name of a public meeting. San Antonio will doubtless feel proud of the display of genius. It was known Maj. Russell would make an anti-Roberts speech, and these young gentlemen saw an opportunity to so arrange matters as to cause him, if he spoke at all, to cast his political pearls—where they would not be appreciated.

No one has any particular objection to these young gentlemen amusing themselves and passing any kind of resolutions they may think proper, just so the public is not deceived as to the character of the meeting—the calibre, as it were, of those attending it, and for that reason, and that alone, THE EXPRESS makes the above explanation.

A FEW QUESTIONS.

Who can explain why it is that the opponents of the free schools and efforts to secure immigration to the state, are to a man solid for the old slexide, who now claims to be the especial friend of free schools and the immigration cause?

Why is it that all those who sustained the governor when he attempted to throttle the free school appropriation, on the ground that free schools were of secondary consideration when state government matters were under consideration, are now splitting their throats in shouting for his re-election, though he seems to have gone entirely back on his position at that time?

Or if Gov. Roberts has all the time been the great champion of free schools and earnest in his determination to perserve intact the credit of the state, why did he, when he thought the appropriation bill passed by the legislature appropriated more money than the state could pay, single out the school appropriation and the appropriation to pay the interest on the state debt, as marks for his disapproval?

Why did Gov. Roberts, the great champion of free schools and good state credit, after vetoing the appropriations for schools and to pay the interest on the ground that the revenues of the state would not meet all the expenditures contemplated in the appropriation bill, at the special session rendered necessary by his veto approve new and additional appropriations that run the total amount of the general appropriation bill about $200,000 in excess of the amount provided by the bill vetoed because the governor said the revenues were inadequate to meet its demands?

When, where, in what manner has the Governor practiced "economy and reform" not distasteful to him by the legislature? He has said he was for "economy and reform," and so has every other prominent man in the state, but what measures looking to economy and reform passed by the sixteenth legislature can be pointed to that did not originate among the members of the "minority?"

We have a great variety of questions to ask the champions of the old shalda, but do not desire to confuse them by asking too many at a time. It is information we are seeking, not assertions based on "check."

"THROUGH TEXAS."

A correspondent of the Boston Post is now contributing letters about Texas to that journal, and so far as we have read they are both instructive and amusing. The writer—Mr. J. Armory Knox—has a pleasing and sprightly style that cannot fail to hold the reader's attention throughout, and if his subsequent letters are of the same character as the first, Texas cannot fail to be greatly benefited by them. As a specimen of the writer's style and acuteness of observation, we append the following:

Our intention was to end the 3rd section of our ride at the ancient city of San Antonio, 250 miles west of Houston, the route being through the rich sugar and cotton lands of the lower Brazos river, and over the great stock range of the Guadalupe and San Marcos. For about fifteen miles the country is level prairie, with occasional motts or islands of timber on it. It seems strange that being so near a city more of this land is not cultivated. The only reason I heard given was that the soil was "angry," not notes good as in other parts of the state; yet the very native who advanced this as a reason showed me a field on which, the previous year, he raised three crops of potatoes, using no manure. In January he planted Irish potatoes and dug them in April. He then planted sweet potatoes which he harvested in time to plant Irish potatoes, sometime in September. The yield averaged about 150 bushels to the acre each crop.

They call this sorry soil! In the name of all that is profitable, may I ask what would satisfy these pampered Texans? If they had been farming down in Egypt in the year of plenty, when Joseph was laying by future, and lying for a corner in corn, I have no doubt they would have grumbled at the smallness of the yield, and would have claimed that, if it had not been quite so dry, or if they had had a little more rain, there might have been half a crop more.

Land that would be considered excellent in other and less favored countries, is here neglected, because there is so much better land to be found, probably a short distance off, and because that, in the state, there is such a wealth of this phenomenally productive land. There is no country of the same size on earth where there is so small a proportion of "poor or waste land." It is almost impossible, from figures, to get an accurate idea of the immense extent of Texas.

I once heard a man say, "Figures don't lie." I believe his statement, but, although figures could not lie even if they so desired, yet they do not tell the whole truth, when they get up into the hundreds of thousands, or rather, they do not convey the full compass of an idea to our finite minds. Comparison is the only way by which we can realize quantity.

From north to south Texas measures 670 miles, from east to west 826 miles. Inside her boundaries are 175,000,000 acres of land, or 270,000 square miles of territory.

Texas contains an area as large as France and Spain together. Take the states of Ohio, Maryland and Virginia; add to them the states of New York, Delaware and Pennsylvania; throw for good measure three in the whole of the New England states, and the area of all these states combined will not equal that of the great state of Texas.

It has more than 250 counties. Some of the larger counties—for instance Lampasas county for instance—are each as large as the state of Massachusetts. Within her borders are to be found an immense variety of products. The soil is exceedingly fertile. Cotton, corn, sugar cane, barley, and almost all the known cereals, grow side by side with the fruits of the tropics and the hardy plants of the more northern regions.

Texas produces nearly a million bales of cotton annually—more than a fifth of the total cotton crop of the United States—and has land enough, suitable for cotton, to produce five times as much cotton as is at present grown in the whole world. Texas, with her vast natural resources, her pasturage for millions of cattle and sheep, her immense extent of farming lands, and her countless riches in wires and minerals, is prepared to support a population even more dense than that of the most populous country in the world. This is not a mere statement, but a matter of calculation and figures. With a climate that allows of labor in the field all the year round; with skies of more than Italian softness, and with an atmosphere so pure that it is the luxury of a stranger's life to breathe it, is it any wonder that the native Texan is usually a large man, fond of speech and inclined to boastfulness? Considering his favorable surroundings, should we blame him if he does occasionally speak in italics, and swear in large capitals? Until a few years ago the outside world knew very little about Texas, and a great deal of that little was merely invented history and unsubstantial romance. Texas was formerly regarded as the home of the murderous Indian, and the refuge of the equally murderous criminals who had escaped from justice in the other states. Before the civil war when a murder was committed in the old states, or when a Sunday school superintendent appropriated funds from the bank of which he was cashier, newspaper accounts of such indiscretions invariably ended with the laconic announcement, "Gone to Texas."

They tell of a criminal in eastern Texas, who, thirty years ago, was under arrest for horse stealing. His lawyer told him that his case was a desperate one. "You will assuredly be convicted on the evidence," said he, "and my advice to you is to try and make your escape." "Escape! where?" said the horse-thief. "For heaven's sake, where can I escape to? Sure I'm in Texas now!"

In those days society in Texas was but little better than it is to-day in Chicago or Brooklyn; and there was good reason for the famous remark of Gen. Sheridan, that if he owned both Texas and the home of the father of lies, he would rent out Texas and live in the other place.

Now that Texas is opened to the world by railroads, ignorance regarding the great change that has taken place is inexcusable, yet there are intelligent human beings in the United States who still look upon Texas as the land of desperadoes and long-horned cattle.

I have given myself the task of attempting to dispel this dense ignorance by telling, in these papers, what I know of the advantages, disadvantages, peculiarities and atrocities of Texas.

HANCOCK AND GRANT.

How These Two Chieftains Helped to Make the History of a St. Louis Street—Their Weddings.

Globe-Democrat

One of the busiest streets to-day in St. Louis is Fourth. Millions of dollars change hands every day in the places of business fronting on its curbstones. There are many notable business houses and localities of interest upon Fourth street, among which it is only necessary to mention the Globe-Democrat office, the Planters' House and the Courthouse. It is, however, but a few years, comparatively, since this great highway of traffic was the site of the residences of the young aristocracy of St. Louis, who in those days had no thought of the great and prosperous city which was soon to spring up, and, tearing away their homesteads, erect in the place once occupied by them business blocks and grand marts of commerce. If they had thought of it, they would have bought more land.

Fourth street is historical. There lived in the years gone by the Harneys, the Dents, the Russels, the Bennets, and many other families, members of which have since arrived at distinction. Upon that street two of the most notable men of the country at present—Grant and Hancock—were married.

In those days Grant was regarded as of small account, while Gen. Hancock was extremely popular; in fact, the curled darling of St. Louis society. While old man Dent confidentially informed his friends that he had the most singular son-in-law in seven states, the Russels were immensely proud of the acquisition to their family of Lieut. Hancock. The Russels were very high toned people in those days; the Dents, while eminently respectable, were not of the class that wore claw-hammer coats every day, and there was probably no member of the family who was a good judge of extra dry.

A reporter of the Globe-Democrat dropped around yesterday in the office of John F. Darby, a gentleman who was living in St. Louis when the children of the forest were begging fipe out of De Sota, and requested him to refresh his memory in regard to those two notable marriages.

"I remember Grant's wedding well," said Mr. Darby. "Old man Dent met me on Third street and asked me to come around, as Julia was going to be married to a fellow named Grant. I knew Grant, and so when I got home I asked my wife if she wanted to go to a wedding. 'Whose?' said she. 'Julia Dent's,' said I, 'she's going to marry a man named Grant.' 'I spose we might as well go,' says she. It wasn't much of a wedding. A Methodist preacher performed the ceremony."

"Did they have a wedding tour?" asked the reporter.

"Well no; they didn't have any money, and the walking in those days wasn't very good, so they just staid at home."

"Where was the Dent residence?"

"Corner of Fourth and Carre streets."

"The way of it was," continued Mr. Darby "young Lewis Dent went to West Point as a cadet. He there became acquainted with Grant, and on one of his vacations brought the future President home to make a visit. He thus became acquainted with Julia, and they were shortly afterward married."

"Was Julia a handsome girl?"

"Well not particularly," said Mr Darby, stroking his chin reflectively, "not particularly."

"Fourth street was not very busy those days," remarked the reporter.

"No; all residences. Stay; there were a few shops near the Court house."

"You remember Hancock's wedding, also, do you?"

"I do, distinctly. It was a notable event in St. Louis society. The couple were married by Dr. Elliot. The Russells were Unitarians then. Nearly all of that sect were present."

"Where was the house?"

"On Fourth, between Walnut and Elm."

"The Russells were quite high-toned people then?"

"Yes, quite so; they were very genteel, no shoddy about the Russells."

THE CONGRESSIONAL QUESTION.

What "Cactus" Thinks of Public Sentiment in Guadalupe County.

GUADALUPE CO., July 21.

Editors San Antonio EXPRESS:

Not having noticed in your paper any expression of the probable preference of the people of Guadalupe county for congressional representative, and believing that such expression would be of interest to your readers and pleasing to all constituents who desire to free above the petit feeling of personal friendship alone, it becomes a duty to inform you that after having visited many parts of our county, and spoken with some of the most influential citizens, we find the general sentiment predominantly in favor of retaining the Hon. C. Upson. Some rumors prevail that Mr. Miller, of Gonzales, may possibly become a candidate, but that gentleman's warmest friends would like to believe that such a course will not be adopted by him, knowing it to be a suicidal policy for Mr. Miller, and one highly prejudicial to the best interests of our district. However, in any contingency, this county will be almost solid for Mr. Upson, as the only attempt at opposition is to be found in those having personal ends or personal friendships to gratify. It is satisfactory to see the glowing accounts from the western counties, but the services of Mr. Upson have commended him to all who have the good of our district at heart. CACTUS.

A Vast Amount of Check

Gainesville Register

Governor Roberts certainly has a vast amount of check to claim all the credit for the increased revenues of the state during his administration. The comptroller, who is supposed to be a disinterested and well informed party, says the increase in revenue is mainly due to the excellent system of laws for the collection of taxes passed by the fifteenth legislature, under Coke's administration. It is true unusual and unprecedented burdens have been laid on the mercantile and professional classes in the shape of occupation taxes under the advice of Roberts, but the great bulk of the revenue is derived from the operation of laws enacted before Roberts was dreamed of for governor.

Law-abiding Burnet County.

Burnet Bulletin.

The writer has been in this county now going on nine months, and he has yet to see a drunken man or a street fight in all that time, within its entire limits. Neither has a man been shot or killed, that has come to our knowledge, and we have means of learning a great deal that it is going on. Remembering the reputation that Texas has abroad, this state of affairs has not yet ceased to be a matter of astonishment with us. Old citizens tell us, that but a few years ago, Burnet county bore a terrible reputation over the state for lawlessness. As an illustration of the remarkable quiet that now pervades the county, Esquire Askew, the worthy justice of beat No. 4, not long ago informed us that he had not had a misdemeanor of any character before him in two or three months; that there was almost nothing for him to do as an officer. The great change must no doubt be attributed to the excellent peace officers with which the people have been lately blessed, as well as, to some degree, to the solid immigration that is steadily settling up these fertile valleys and stocking with cattle these grassy hills.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

St. Louis Republican.

When the Chicago convention presented its nominee for the presidency it was announced that he would take no notice of the criticisms on his relations with the Credit Mobilier and the De Golyer transactions—that he would make no statement about these affairs. This perhaps was well. It would have been a most painful thing to see the candidate of a great party for the presidency of the United States voluntarily taking the place of a culprit at the bar and in person entering a plea of not guilty to a charge of official immorality; and yet what we do see is pitiable enough. What Mr. Garfield avoids the mortification of doing in person, is done for him by his counsel. There is the charge—a charge coming from republican sources too—and it has to be met. Mr. Garfield's friends, therefore, enter a plea of not guilty, in his name, and then proceed to rebut the testimony against him—how? By presenting first, the culprit's own denial and attempted explanation made at Warren, Ohio, six years ago; second, by soliciting from his friends testimonials of his good character; and third, by showing that in the overwhelmingly republican nineteenth district, Ohio, he has been several times re-elected to congress since the Credit Mobilier affair was made public.

A weaker defence could not be imagined. As to Mr. Garfield's individual denial, what less could be expected of him? As to the testimonials to his general good character given by his friends, what less could be expected of them? And as to the third point in the defence, the indorsement of his constituents, it is the most unfortunate of all, for it places Mr. Garfield in the same attitude of Matteson of New York, Whittemore of South Carolina and Oakes Ames of Massachusetts, who also were indorsed by their constituents after having been expelled from congress for immoral conduct.

The Pay-As-You-Go Secret.

Gainesville Register.

Gov. Roberts has discovered and exemplified the secret of "pay as you go." To make the policy a success it is only necessary for some rich relative to will you enough money to enable you to meet all demands. Coke's administration turned over to Roberts a system of excellent tax laws that have increased his annual revenues nearly a million, and thus the o. a. is enabled to exclaim, "I pay as I go." He has not been compelled even to reduce the expenses of the government one dollar in the aggregate, and now points with pride to $761,948 02 idle money in the treasury, all willed to him by Coke and the fifteenth legislature.

A Lynching at Santa Fe

Santa Fe, N. M., July 17—James Donegan, the man who shot and killed police officer Grieger, on the morning of the 14th, was taken from jail at 3 o'clock this morning by a body of masked and armed men, who overpowered the jailor and deputy sheriffs, shot him several times and then hung him to a beam in an alley close to the jail. The jailor and deputy sheriff testified before the coroner's jury that they were compelled to open the doors at the point of the pistol, and did not recognize any of the mob. The sentiment of better citizens condemn the deed, and there is no question should any of the mob be discovered severe punishment would be meted out.

The land embracing the head waters of the San Saloman creek, being survey No. 273, containing 640 acres, made on the 17th day of January, 1872, for Francis Rossy, by virtue of duplicate certificate 29,540, issued in place of colony certificate No. 515, third class, for 640 acres of land, issued by John O. A Disputed Marriage.

N. Y. World.

Marlborough, N. Y., July 9.—A curious case of disputed marriage has just come to light in this neighborhood. The Saugerties Telegraph published in June the marriage of Lester Burton, of Pine Grove, Ulster county, to Miss Anna Schoonmaker, of Binne Mountain, Duchess county. Burton returned to Saugerties a few days ago, after an absence of three months, and when his attention was called to the marriage notice he declared that it was utterly untrue. Miss Schoonmaker, or rather the supposed bride, asserted, however, that the marriage as announced had taken place. Burton admits that he paid addresses to Miss Schoonmaker between December, 1879, and March of this year. He says it was rumored last spring that he was married to the young lady, and his friends joked him about it. At one time he jestingly admitted the marriage, but never supposed the matter would be thought of seriously. A curious feature of the case is that the Rev. Mr. Scudder, of Red Hook, Cutchess Co., who Miss Schoonmaker says married her to Burton, for some unexplained reason made no record of the marriage and furnished no marriage certificate at the time. Miss Schoonmaker applied to Mr. Scudder about two weeks ago for a marriage certificate, and the clergyman gave it to her on her statement that he had performed the marriage ceremony between her and Burton. The young man called upon Mr. Scudder this week, but Mr. Scudder did not recognize him, although he thought he remembered Miss Schoonmaker. Burton says he was never in Red Hook until he called upon Mr. Scudder, and he claims that on March 22, the date of the alleged marriage, he was in another place. The matter will probably come before the courts, as it is understood that the friends of the young lady have engaged ex-attorney general Schoonmaker as her counsel, while Mr. Carroll Whitaker has been retained by Burton. Each of the parties in the case are young, intelligent and respectable.

FOUGHT WITH FURY.

A Battle in the Dark with Desperadoes

Wytheville, Va., July 17.—Last night a very bloody affair took place in Russell, in which two young gentlemen named Gilmer were very seriously shot, and two of their assailants probably fatally wounded. The two Gilmers are excellent young men, about twenty and twenty one years of age. They were residing on the farm of their sister, Mrs. Taylor, and taking care of the same for her. The Gilmer boys were informed that a gang of desperadoes were coming that night to destroy the property. They called in their brother and a white man and a colored man to help them guard the place. Thomas Gilmer and the white man stationed themselves at one point and Marcellus and Tot Gilmer stationed themselves at another. The black man was stationed at the stable. The desperadoes came up and set fire to the stable, which the colored man gave an alarm. Two of the gang, which is supposed to have consisted of five in all, ran in the direction of Marcellus and Thomas Gilmer, who were coming up at the call of the colored man. They met the two desperadoes and called upon them to halt. Instead of halting the latter began to fire upon the Gilmers with pistols, the Gilmers returning the fire. During the encounter Tot Gilmer was shot twice in the breast, one shot penetrating his left lung. He was also shot in the thigh, and his condition is supposed to be dangerous. Marcellus Gilmer was shot through the upper lip, the ball passing on and lodging in the back of his head. Since the difficulty three men have been arrested and committed to jail who were connected with it, but the two men who shot the Gilmers have not been caught. They are said to have fled towards Smyth county. One of them, named Jim Settle, is said to have been raised in this county. The other is named Wm. Robinson.

THE DRIVER WAS DRUNK.

Mount Washington the Scene of a Sad Accident—One Lady Instantly Killed and Five Injured.

Glen House, N. H. July 12.—A terrible accident, caused by a drunken driver, occurred on the carriage road, from Glen House to the summit of Mount Washington, this afternoon, about a mile below the Half-way house. One of the six-horse mountain wagons, containing a party of nine persons, the last load of excursionists from Michigan to make the descent of the mountain, was tipped over, and one lady killed and five others injured. Soon after starting from the summit, the passengers discovered that the driver had been drinking while waiting for the party to descend. They left this wagon a short distance from the summit and walked to the half-way house, four miles below, where one of the employers of the Carriage Road company assured them there was no bad places below that, and that he thought it would be safe for them to resume their seats with the driver, who was with them. Soon after passing the half-way house, in driving around a curve too rapidly, the carriage was tipped over, throwing the occupants in the woods and on the rocks. Mrs. Ira Chichester, of Allegan, Mich., was instantly killed, her husband who was sitting at the other side being only slightly bruised. Of the other occupants Miss L. L. Tomsley, of Kalamazoo, Mich., had her left arm broken and received a slight cut on the head; Miss Josie Bernard, of Kalamazoo, was slightly injured on the head; Miss E. Mellen and Mrs. O. Ferguson, of Rome, Mich., and Miss Emma Lamb, of Howell, Mich., were slightly injured. Miss Emma Blackman, of Kalamazoo, escaped without any injuries. The injured were brought at once to the Glen House. Lindsey, the driver, is probably fatally injured. Mrs. Vanderboen, of Chicago, received slight internal injuries.

Will Advance Discount.

London, July 21.—The Times, in its financial article this morning, predicts that the bank of France will advance its rate of discount to prevent the exportation of gold.

Why the King of Burmah Gets Tipsy.

From the Globe.

Mandalay revolutionary ideas are anything but connected in the popular mind with the temperance movement. An expression of dissatisfaction with the existing order of things seems always to have been of late years accompanied with a very serious tendency to drink in high quarters. Simultaneously with the news of the late abortive attempt of the Nyoungoke prince came a telegram to say that King Thee Baw had commenced a heavy drinking bout in the Golden palace. "Not that the Lord of all the White Elephants" is at all a merry boon-companion. He broaches not a cask out of light heartedness, but rather flies to the brandy-bottle to drown dull care. In this he strongly resembles his famous, or rather infamous, predecessor, King Tharawadi, who took his wine badly. He went positively mad with drink, and would stab a minister or slice off a favorite's head like an Ivan of Russia when thus disposed. When it had got abroad in Mandalay that the great man had called for stimulants every one's head at the court shook upon his shoulders. Half the barbarities of this monster were committed when under the influence of brandy; and every insult to the British flag was prompted by a draught of this Dutch courage. When in this state he put to death the favorite queen of his brother Phagyidau, whom he had deposed, and tortured out of this world the ministers of the old regime; so that it was with a profound sigh of relief that every Burman, high or low, heard in the summer of 1845, that his drinking days were over, and that the Pagan Man had taken his place.

The late king of the Mendon-Min stands out favorably among the recent sovereigns of Burmah as an example of sobriety to an intemperate court. He is said to have had a strong predilection for cock-fighting; but even this exhilarating pastime seems never to have tempted him to take a glass too much.

BREVET QUEENS.

Marriages of Kings to Their Mistresses.

(Translated from the French.)

One of the marriages which Europe will hear of before long is that of the emperor of Russia with the princess of Dolgorouki. It is no secret to any body that as soon as the period of mourning for the Empress Marie is past this marriage will take place. The wedding will be followed by the abdication of Alexander II., and that will make it an act of considerable importance to Russia. Already the Princess Dolgorouki is looking about in Italy for a pretty place, where she will live with her royal spouse, though, of course, they will pass a good part of their time in Paris. "Paris," once wrote Victor Hugo to the peace congress at Geneva, "is the property of humanity. It belongs to everybody, as did in other days Rome and Athens." That is true, and the prince of Wales used the same idea when in 1871 he piquantly said to London: "The emperor of Germany ought to know better than to bombard Paris. If Paris is dear royal, where will kings go when they want to amuse themselves?" France and Paris must always remain the great resource of royalty dispossessed of its thrones, and of monarchs who throw their kingly cloaks away from them. The czar will find here an august company of majestic and blameless.

The marriages of kings with their mistresses have not been uncommon in our times. The union of King Victor Emanuel with the Countess Rosina de Mirafiore remains in all our memories. Leopold I., of Belgium was secretly married to the Baroness de Mayer, and she had a villa at Laeken. The bed room was marvellously furnished, and had the machinery of a theatre. Touch a spring, and you turned day into dark night without closing the windows. Of these brevet queens, the most remarkable in our day was the Countess Danner. On the 7th of August, 1850, the king of Denmark, Frederick VII., predecessor of the present king, married her in the chapel of the Chateau of Frederecksbourg. She was born in 1815, and came from a family of the middle class in Copenhagen. Her name was Louise Christina Rasmussen. The king created her the Countess Danner. She behaved very well in the royal palace, and her name is still honored in Denmark. At the death of the king she made a long tour through Italy, where she indulged in her passion for the arts. She had a chateau in Denmark, which was a veritable museum, and was the rendezvous of all artists. Frederic VII. had sufficiently good precedent in the family for making Louise Rasmussen his wife. Frederic IV., during the life of his wife, and without a divorce from her, married the Countess Sophie Reventlow. He gave her ducal arms, and he placed on her brow the royal diadem the morning after the death of the queen and before her remains had been deposited in the tomb. The marriage of Frederic IV., although supposed to be a secret, was known by everybody. The queen warned it from his own lips. One day the queen was sitting with the king before the windows of the chateau of Rosenberg, when the countess passed in her carriage.

"Who is that woman?" asked the queen.

"She is my wife," replied the king.

"Your wife? And what am I?"

"My queen!"

The Queen's State Ball.

London World.

There was a very large and brilliant gathering last Wednesday at the queen's ball, for which 200 more invitations than usual were issued. No other ball in England can attempt to vie with this one; the size of the rooms, the diamonds of the ladies, and most of all the immense variety of uniforms, help to make a very brilliant and gorgeous kaleidoscope. Although slight mourning was required, no casual observer could have detected it at the fact. And one may be pardoned for inquiring what constitutes slight mourning. Is a black dress with a poppy tree literally growing up it, the long green leaves trained up the skirt and culminating in large pink poppies, mourning? If so, her grace the duchess of Manchester, in this extremely beautiful dress, was clad in the mitigated insignia of woe. For the most part, however, the ladies were white, as they should do when they are to mingle with the scarlet of the guards and other regiments. Flowers, ghosts of flowers, were worn. There were two dresses whose entire fronts were covered as thick with water lilies as a pond, but without the leaves. To make up for this there was another gown which seemed to have collected all the leaves that the other fair ones had discarded—some of them being about a foot long. As for the bequets, they were of abnormal size, one, indeed, composed of roses surrounded by lily-of-the-valley, being far more eccentric than beautiful. In charming contrast to all the begarlanded frocks was the exquisitely simple toilet of the Princess of Wales, who never looked more graceful nor more charming. It was composed of clouds of tulle, the upper cloud sprinkled with silver, but so slightly and finely that the silver was only visible to those in close proximity to her royal highness. The corsage was pointed back and front and edged with a silver fringe. Round the shoulders were bunches of brilliants. A collarette necklace on a broad band of black velvet, a cascade of diamonds depending below it, and a magnificent tiara completed by far the most bewitching toilet of the evening. Peas in July are nothing compared with the diamonds displayed. Never on any previous occasion do I remember such a show. To glance down "Duchess Row" was to make your eyes literally wink. The coronets of the Duchess of Manchester, Westminster, Marlborough and Cleveland were positively stupendous in size, and made me think that "uneasy," indeed, must be "the head that wears a crown." I think for size the Duchess of Westminster's carried off the palm, the stones in it being as big as hazlenuts. In addition to her tiara, the Marchioness of Hamilton wore a broad ceinture of diamonds in leaves and flowers which was very beautiful and original. If one were, however, to attempt to chronicle the names of those ladies whose jewels were remarkable, it would be a never-ending task. The grandes dames looked their best and made a great show of beauty. The professional beauties, of whom there were three present, were nowhere, and passed almost unnoticed among the brilliant crowd. They were not drawn into the magic circle, and for once must have felt rather "out in the cold."

The Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Connaught "who wore peach-colored satin took part in the dancing. The Princess, with Capt. Oliver Montagu for her partner in a waltz, was as light and graceful as any young debutante. An interesting rumor circulated about the Duchess of Connaught must be entirely without foundation. She also waltzed with grace and evident enjoyment.

A Benefactress.

Just open the door for her, and Mrs. Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the nursery. Of this we are as sure, that we will teach our "Suzy" to say, "A blessing on Mrs. Winslow" for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking, and teething siege. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup relieves the child from pain, and cures dysentery and diarrhœa. It softens the gums, reduces inflammation, cures wind colic, and carries the infant safely through the teething period. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less—as we have never seen Mrs. Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for Children Teething." If we had the power we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the infant race. Sold by all druggists. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Fine and Beautiful Cakes.

The splendid cakes at the banquet last evening were furnished by Harnisch & Baer, whose skill has gone abroad as confectioners and cake-makers. The large mammoth cake at the head of the table was certainly fine. Not only fine, but beautiful and most attractive, and admired by all the guests. Founded upon the main cake was a harp, of gelatin, in the centre of which was a shield, bearing, above, the words with clasped hands, illustrative of the tie of friendship between the Mexican and American nations, and underneath the clasped hands the words, "United States." Resting above the harp were the American and Mexican eagles, in gilt, very beautiful. It was indeed a work of art, and proved the taste and skill of Messrs. Harnisch & Baer, who will ever be remembered by the gentlemen who managed the banquet with feelings of satisfaction.

"Democratic

TREVINO BANQUETED.

Leading Citizens and Officers Pay Honors to the Distinguished Mexican General.

An Occasion Upon Which There Was Truly a Feast of Reason and a Flow of Soul.

A grand banquet was tendered General Geronimo Trevino at the Casino last evening by the citizens of San Antonio, which proved to be the most pleasant and agreeable affair of its kind that has been given in this city in many a day. All that was in the power of its managers to do, had been done to enhance its success, and render the occasion a pleasant one to the distinguished gentleman in whose honor it was given. Two rows of tables, crossed at the farther end from the entrance door, were spread with all manner of viands, wines, fruits, nuts—in fact, nothing lacked to please the taste, while the arrangement was truly fascinating to the eye.

The hall had been arranged for the occasion with great taste and propriety. The stage represented a summer scene and flower garden, just above it at the end of the hall being a wreath within which was a shield bearing the name of Gen. Trevino. The rear of the hall was festooned with U. S. flags, the star of Texas nestled in their folds. Upon the right side of the hall was observed the American flag, with the name, "Mexico," upon a shield encircled by evergreens, and upon the left the banner of Mexico, and another shield with the name of our own country upon it. The sides of the hall were profusely decorated with evergreens and flowers, and the banners of the two republics crossed, at proper intervals.

Gen. E. O. C. Ord and Gen. G. Trevino occupied seats at the head of the tables. To the right of Gen. Ord sat Gen. Cabada, Gen. Trevino being upon his left. Next, to the right of Gen. Ord, came Col. W. R. Shafter, then Lt. Col. Gutierrez, of the Mexican army, then Mayor French, of this city, next, Dr. Ornelas, Mexican consul at this place. There were also present of the distinguished Mexican gentlemen who accompanied Gen. Trevino to San Antonio, Col. Nicanor Valdez, Capt. E. Tapia and Col. Pablo Ortega, aifd officers of the U. S. army, and citizens, as follows:

Col. H. G. Brown, Lieut. W. T. Howard, Gen. B. C. Card, Major C. M. Terrell, Dr. J. R. Smith, Capt. E. B. Penrose, Lieut. A. M. Raphall, Col. J. S. Mason, Gen. T. M. Vincent, Lieut. J. C. Ord, Dr. M. K. Taylor, Dr. F. Middleton, Lieut. Daugherty, Thomas Sweeney, Dr. George Cupples, Capt. J. W. Cloud, James Callaghan, Robert Chilton, I. P. Simpson, Charles Scalbaugh, Lieut. Wilhelmi, Dr. John Herff, E. H. Terrell, Capt. Digges, Philip Cross, Mr. Wentworth, Fred Wolff, U. B. Andrews, J. S. Lockwood, P. B. Freer, F. Groos, W. H. Maverick, Sam Schram, A. B. Frank, T. J. Devine, G. W. Brackenridge, Hon. C. Upson, A. Belknap, R. Grenet, Frank Grice, Dr. F. Herff, Louis Berg, Jesse Bell, Sam Maverick, R. B. Adams, A. J. T. Beauregard, J. H. Kampmann, A. F. Wolff, Adolph Berg, Mayor J. H. French, J. P. Newcomb, A. Siemering, L. A. Heil, A. W. Gifford, and Gen. H. B. Bee.

The repast having been enjoyed most heartily, the "toasting period" was inaugurated by Col. H. B. Andrews, who offered the following:

Our guest, Gen. Geronimo Trevino. His courage and patriotism have won honor and distinction in his own land. His sense of justice and love of law and order the respect and esteem of his country. His social and private virtues have secured a reward in the hand and heart of one of America's fairest daughters.

Gen. Trevino made a feeling response to the beautiful sentiments of this toast. He rejoiced that the day was at hand when international difficulties as between America and Mexico would be no more, and when we would be, sister republics that we were, also the best of friends. He spoke of the efforts of Gen. Ord to improve the relations between the two countries, and remarked that the hand of an allwise Providence would operate to cement the countries in bonds of love and mutual interest.

The next toast was, The two republics. Their unity of purpose and interest must induce them to keep step and time in the march of progress. No narrow stream can separate either their commercial or friendly relations.

Dr. Ornelas, Mexican consul at this city, responded to this toast. He spoke of the love he had for his own country, and of his devotion to its people. This gathering was one of friendship, and to show that regard which was merited for one of the great soldiers of Mexico—the hero of an hundred battle fields. It was a delight to him to have one of his distinguished fellow countrymen thus honored, and it afforded him much pleasure to be made to realize the feelings of friendship that were being engendered between the two nations. The Mexicans, he said, were learning to admire as more and more the better they learned to know us. No material interests had occasioned this assemblage,—simply feelings of respect and regard. He rejoiced that the black wall of prejudice which had so long separated Mexico and America was fast crumbling to its fall, and that more than social relations were being brought about between the two nations, whose natural and relative positions intended them to be good friends. He concluded his very eloquent and appropriate remarks by offering a toast "to the two governments, and a demolition of that black wall of prejudice."

A toast was then offered "the army—the best evidence of the appreciation in which it is held is the regard, esteem and confidence which the people of Texas entertain for the commander of this department and the officers under him."

General Ord responded in his peculiarly happy way. The gentleman who offered it had remarked that it was a new toast. He did not think so. He could not better reply than by giving his ideas of the business of a soldier, for when he started out from college with his pretty uniform, he happened to pass by a "seedy" individual who "took him down about seventeen feet" by the remark, "I pay you." The General said he thought over the remark, and concluded that the "seedy" chap did help to pay him for his service, or a part of what he ought to earn, and he then concluded that one of the chief duties of a soldier was to bow to the majesty of the people. He had endeavored to be guided by this principle from that time on as far as was practicable. Since his sojourn in Texas he had found that duty, principle and pleasure were in peculiar accord, and concluded by offering a toast "to the people of of Texas."

The fourth toast was, "Our representative in congress, Columbus Upson, whose fidelity, zeal and energy in all measures for the interest of his state and district entitle him to the confidence and approval of his constituents."

Col. Upson responded, being received with cheers as he arose. He remarked that it would hardly be in good taste to review his brief career in congress on this occasion. So far, however, as his duties related to our national relations with Mexico, he would speak. When in congress, he had supported a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to form a national and commercial treaty with the two countries, and it was his earnest desire to realize the provisions of that resolution. He regarded it the duty of the representatives of the American people to bring about more cordial and friendly relations between the two republics, and it afforded him pleasure to declare, in the presence of the distinguished representatives of the Mexican people present, and in the presence of his own people, that he would do all that he could as a representative in the American congress to bring about the most cordial, friendly and intimate relations between the two governments. He represented a district which bordered on the Rio Grande a distance of about 900 miles, and it had been his interest and business to watch events on that border and study the relations existing between the two countries. What was most needed was tranquility and protection—safety to property and person—which could be obtained by the co-operative powers of the two governments. He longed for the day when bands of steel would unite Texas and Mexico in a bond of social love and commercial prosperity, and then would come that development which would make both countries great, wealthy and powerful nations. He referred to the wonderful richness of Mexico, and said that only development was necessary to make her one of the greatest and most powerful nations of the earth. He trusted that Mexico and the United States would unite their efforts, and strive until they became the model republics of the world.

Gen. Trevino presented the following toast.

San Antonio—The connecting link between the past and the present. In former years, a haven of refuge and security, to-day, a living and bright example of prosperity and hospitality. Destiny has made her the gateway to reach the rich harvest in the commerce of Mexico.

In the absence of mayor French, alderman Newcomb responded to this toast. His remarks were eloquent and appreciative, and most apropos.

The sixth toast was, "Our civil officers—when honest, faithful, zealous and able, they afford ample security to person and property."

This was responded by Judge T. J. Devine. Before an assemblage of such distinguished gentlemen, anything relating to the mere duties of civil officers might seem commonplace, but the Judge said he felt proud of the civil officers of Texas, where he had resided for well-nigh fifty years. He paid a high tribute to the civil officers of this state for their zeal and earnestness in the discharge of their duties, and did not agree with those who stigmatize Texas as a lawless state because the murderer Currie and probably one or two others had escaped the punishment they merited. Such escapes would occur in any state. In Texas, the law was enforced with due rigor, and above, all none of her officers high in position had ever had venality justly imputed to them. He concluded his very sensible remarks with the sentence, "and may the peace and prosperity of the two republics, Texas and Mexico, flow on forever, as long as the river that divides them flows onward to the sea."

A toast, "The press—the poorest investment for the proprietors and the best for the people," was responded to by Frank Grice, of THE EXPRESS, briefly and to the point.

"The ladies—none deserve our praises more, none need them less," was responded to by Charles Scalbaugh.

A toast was offered "to Dr. George Cupples, an old resident of San Antonio, and one whose long life has been heroically devoted to the amelioration of his fellow-citizens," and was responded to by the veteran physician eloquently and in a most appropriate manner.

A toast, "Western Texas," was answered by Judge Siemering, who spoke of the vastness of the section and the great necessity of its population and development.

The following toast was offered:

To President Diaz, the present, and Gen. Gonzales, the future president of Mexico.

Some four years ago, or more, it was my pleasure to meet the compatriots of our honored guest while they were private citizens residing at Brownsville, the present president of Mexico, Gen. Diaz, and Gen. Manuel Gonzales, the president elect. Under their leadership, and with their statesmanlike views, the prosperity of Mexico is assured. With Diaz, Gonzales and Trevino in the councils of that nation, she will march along with our republic to demonstrate to the world that governments of the people, by the people and for the people, are no longer an experiment, but an assured success. We drink to the health of the soldier, the patriot and the statesman, General Porfirio Diaz, the President of the United States of Mexico.

The health of Gen. Hamilton P. Bee was then drunken, when Gen. Bee arose, and feelingly spoke as follows:

"It is very pleasant to me to enjoy the privilege of joining with my fellow-citizens in this appropriate and brilliant testimony of regard for Gen. Trevino. It is especially so that it gives me the only public opportunity I had to bear testimony to the kindness and protection that I have personally received from our distinguished guest. I have enjoyed the acquaintance, and to some extent this friendship for twelve years, many of which were years of war and revolution. I well remember a banquet somewhat like this in Monterey, in 1866, given to Gen. Trevino and others on the eve of their march for the interior in pursuit of the French army at which I was an honored guest. It was the first occasion for two years that the flag of their country had waved over its own people, for the veteran soldiers of France, fresh from Solferino and Magenta, had swept over the whole of Mexico. From city to city, from every important village in the republic, the flag of Mexico had fallen back. His honored chief, the immortal Juarez, had had been obliged to yield to the advance of the conqueror until even the Rio Grande, the very confines of the republic, were reached, but during the memorable retreat, for three years he carried with him (as the Ark of the Covenant was carried of old) the flag and the seal, the symbol that where he rested his wearied head, that there was the republic of Mexico, the eternal enemy of empire and monarchical institutions in his land.

I well remember the change that came over the nation when the necessities of Napoleon III required him to withdraw his troops from a hopeless and iniquitous task; in a moment, as it were, the people realized that the soldiers of France were not invincible, and from the cave, the valleys, the plains and the forests, rose up the sons of Mexico, who, though allowing their enemy to hold their cities, gave them no more room than the range of their guns; and it was but a few hours after Gonzigros, with his French troops, had left Monterey, that Escobeda with thousands of his people came in rapid pursuit. Amongst them was our gallant guest, and then it was that the glad people, relieved of the mailed hand of their oppressor, with a patriotism worthy of any people in any time, contributed their means and their efforts to prepare their sons for the field. Time does not allow me to relate the incidents of a campaign of 1200 miles by that gallant band of citizen soldiers, who, amidst every difficulty and deprivation bouyed up alone with their love of liberty and their homes, never faltered until at Queretero. The brave, the accomplished, the noble Maximilian, sealed with his blood to stone for the mistake of his life, and her valiant sons found their precious reward, in their country, freed and forever redeemed by their devotion and sufferings. In all this work our guest here his part—it was a conspicuous part, and ever since his name has been enrolled on the scroll of fame, as one of the saviors of his country.

These are deeds, gentlemen, which endear men of all nationalities who love liberty to each other, and we are proud to illustrate it to-night.

Time will not permit me to follow the career of Gen. Trevino through the eventful years of war and trouble in his distracted country since then, but ever faithful to his sense of duty, he enjoys to-day the reward most endearing to the patriot, the confidence and the love of his people. I ask this appreciative and brilliant audience to join me in saluting with our best wishes Gen. Trevino and his fair bride, the daughter of an honored and esteemed general, and to hope that this alliance, as entirely without political significance, may render the relations between our countries more cordial in their personal sense and by nearer acquaintance make us better friends."

Gen. Trevino then arose and addressed the gentlemen assembled as follows:

I regret that I cannot understand all the toasts offered and happy remarks made this evening, but I feel assured from your demonstrations that they were friendly and that the mutual interests of our two countries have been considered. May the result be to the benefit of mankind. I know that some of your American gentlemen feel jealous toward me for having won the precious treasure which I shall bear away with me,—my beloved wife, but it must not be forgotten that God in His wisdom controls human destiny. It has afforded me great satisfaction, and is a source of much pride, to have heard the expressions of kindness and regard for my precious wife." He trusted the event of his marriage would tend to promote the friendly relations between the two countries, and that all cause for disagreement would be removed. Like Gen. Ord, he was ever ready to serve his country, but longed for the time when absolute and perfect peace would reign, when reason would supplant the sword.

Col. Andrews offered a toast "to Mrs. Bertie Trevino," and took the liberty to respond himself. It was the happy effort of the evening.

Mr. H. Grenet, who had superintended the banquet, and to whom its success was due, was also toasted. Mr. Grenet made the response.

The reporter hereupon left the gay and happy scene, to "write it up." Comment is unnecessary. The banquet was decidedly a most pleasant affair.

AFTER VICTORIA.

Mexican Troops With Authority to "Cross the Rubicon," Hunting the Apache Chief and His Band.

The following telegram was received at headquarters yesterday. It indicates that the Mexicans have made up their minds to settle Victoria's fate:

HEADQRS. DIS'T OF THE PECOS, (in the field,)
FORT DAVIS, TEX., July 20, 1880.

A. A. General, Department of Texas, San Antonio, Texas:

Colonel Valle, of the Mexican army, reports from Carizo, Mexico, July 13th, received here the 18th, that he would take the field on the 14th, with four hundred and seventy men, against Victoria and his band of hostile Indians; a force of one hundred and twenty cavalry was then following the trail of the Indians towards Eagle springs. He has authority, obtained from Washington to cross into the United States.

I have communicated with him relative to disposition of troops in this district, giving him assurance of my hearty co-operation. The troops are now moving westward toward Viego pass, Eagle spring, Quitman and Carizo mountains from here, and from the Guadalupe southwestward in the same direction between the Corundus and Carizo mountains. I expect to be in the vicinity of Eagle spring about the 22nd, and will be able to communicate with you by telegraph from that point.

A Good Ordinance Spoiled.

At the meeting of the city council last Tuesday, alderman Maverick, for the petitions and ordinances committee, presented an ordinance prohibiting huxters from purchasing by wholesale from country peddlers on the market plazas, and in the public markets, until after market hours. The council amended the ordinance, making it apply to the whole city, and rendering it useless and killing off its enforcement. To show the necessity of this ordinance, or one of its nature, it may only be mentioned that last Tuesday morning a certain party purchased all the eggs, by the lot, which were brought to the Military plaza market by country people. Wednesday morning the purchaser sold those eggs on the plaza for 25 cents per dozen. He paid 12½ Chickens, turkeys, butter—in fact, all country produce that market-going people seek, is bought up by these huxters, who force the people of this city to pay double the actual value of their family supplies. The ordinance above referred to was intended to stop the practice and protect the people, but it simply makes the matter worse, and can never be enforced. This opinion is asserted by alderman Maverick and others.
