Door Opened For Peron

The SDN Column

The Scurry County Library Board is concerned (perhaps alarmed would be a better word) about space problems at the library building, which is located on Twenty-third Street between College Avenue and Avenue T, just north of City Hall.

"We're having to store periodicals in the garage and still there is not enough room for people who come to the library to read, do research or just browse," said Mildred Tracey, chairman of the Scurry County Library Board, as she and Mindy O'Banion, a board member, outlined some of their problems.

They have taken their troubles to the commissioners court, and, following a more recent conference with County Judge Preston Wilson, they are seeking expressions from local citizens concerning a proposal to enlarge the library building. They apparently have done their homework, and they can cite specific needs and shortcomings of the present library facilities.

Fact of the matter is, the library is one of the most used facilities this county has, excepting possibly U.S. Highways 84 and 180.

"Judge Wilson suggested that we try to get an expression from the public on our problem," said Mmes. Tracey and O'Banion.

So, they have asked us to publish a sort of ballot for a few days, with a request that persons interested fill it out, sign it and mail it to the commissioners court, or leave it at the library. You will find it on Page 2 of this issue of the newspaper.

The library people are not in a contest with those who are pushing for the livestock barn and jail projects, but just hope to get the ball rolling toward an expansion of facilities for the library. First, they would like to get the services of an architect to give them a better idea of what is needed and how it could be provided. There is plenty of room for expansion on the library property, and the present building is fine so far as it goes. It just doesn't go far enough.

Anyway, we promised to bring this to the attention of our readers and we hope that you will respond by filling out one of the ballots, or questionnaires, and turning it in.

The county library here has an excellent reputation regionally and state-wide, and the traffic it attracts attests to its local popularity.

In making its own study of needs, the library staff made a use survey during the month of June, which always is the lightest month of the year for library services. They found that something over 3,600 persons made use of the Scurry County Library that month. It is considerably higher most months, especially during the school term. It could get much heavier if there was more room, the board members assure us. — WACIL McNAIR.

Farm Bill Yanked Off HouseFloor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battered farm bill, bound for a veto in its current form, has been yanked off the House floor by backers who hope to shape it more to the administration's pleasure before trying it again Monday.

Compromise efforts may include a sharp cut in the bill's lifespan from four years to just two or perhaps even one year, Agriculture Committee Chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., said after the House stopped voting on the bill Thursday.

Without this bill, the 1970 Agriculture Act will die on Dec. 31 and farm programs will fall back on old permanent laws that stirred heavy criticism of governmental policies toward growers of America's food and fiber. Programs of food stamps for millions of needy people, and projects of foreign donations and sales through food-for-peace activity, all due to expire, would be continued through this bill.

During three days of increasingly bitter debate, sharp divisions developed in the House.

A coalition with urban forces fell apart amid charge and counter-charge over whether big labor did or didn't support this or that amendment. Longtime advocates of subsidy reforms began carrying the day with proposals to close what they termed giant loopholes that benefit the wealthy at the expense of the taxpayer.

Planetarium Director Is Employed

Mickey D. Schmidt, planetarium director in the Lamar, Colo. school district, has been employed as planetarium director at Western Texas College, Dr. Ben Brock, vice president and academic dean, has announced.

Schmidt, a native of Kansas, has taught astronomy courses in the Lamar planetarium and at Adams State College in Alamosa, Colo. He has also been employed at the Fort Hays Kansas State College Museum at Hays, Kan. and the House of Yesterday Museum and J.M. McDonald Planetarium at Hastings, Neb. In addition to writing a monthly article for Yesternews, a publication of the House of Yesterday, he was a participant in a weekly television program in Hastings.

Schmidt has developed more than 20 prepared planetarium programs from grades 1-6 as well as several programs for various secondary school courses such as homemaking, woodworking, biology, chemistry, English literature, history and Spanish. He is currently preparing planetarium programs for preschool through high school and for college level students.

With a major in biology and minor in education, Schmidt received a B.S. degree from Fort Havs Kansas State College in 1966. His master's degree in science education was earned at Adams State College in 1972.

Schmidt and his wife, Joan, have two children, 5 and 3 years of age.

The Schmidts are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Light Rains Fall In Area

Light rainfall peppered down intermittently over the Snyder area this morning, and forecasts held out hopes for more moisture tonight and Saturday.

It was mostly drizzle, but heavy overcast during the morning offered a promise of more during the day.

The official gauge at the Snyder Water Treatment Plant had logged .09 inch at 7 a.m. today. There were some reports of heavier showers, but for the most part unofficial measurements were in the .10 to .15 range.

President Has A 'Restless Night'

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon experienced a "restless night" and is continuing to suffer chest discomfort from a viral pneumonia condition for which he is being treated at Bethesda Naval Hospital, the White House said today.

The report was given by Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler from the hospital auditorium in a 11:30 a.m. briefing, the first word about the President since he entered the hospital Thursday night.

The President was examined this morning by his doctors.

He was reported to have a light breakfast.

His temperature was still said to be running at 101 or 102 degrees.

When the President entered the hospital, Ziegler said he was expected to remain there for at least a week.

During that time, Ziegler said, the President "will carry on his necessary work at the hospital while resting and recuperating."

A professor of medicine at Georgetown University, Dr. Sol Katz, was called in to join the White House doctors on the case.

Dr. Katz said that the President is "moderately ill," described him as "the perfect patient," and said he expected the hospital stay would be between seven and 10 days.

Nixon was described by his White House physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, as "champing at the bit," and wanting to do more. The doctor said it had been a battle to get the President to agree to go to the hospital.

Moore Insists Nixon In Dark

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyer Richard A. Moore testified today that John W. Dean III said six weeks before being fired from the presidential staff that he intended to tell the truth about the Watergate affair.

Moore said Dean, who was then White House counsel, told him around March 15 that perjury had been committed by campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder during the original investigation into the wiretapping.

Even before that, around March 1 or earlier, Dean told him that G. Gordon Liddy had proposed bugging and kidnapping as campaign tactics prior to the Watergate raids, Moore told the Senate Watergate investigating committee.

But Moore stuck to his statement that, so far as he knows, President Nixon was unaware of the Watergate cover-up until Dean told Nixon about it March 21.

Moore said he himself, despite what Dean had told him, believed until March 19 that the wiretapping was an unauthorized adventure by men who had $100 bills in their pockets and enjoyed playing James Bond.

He said it was not until Dean told him that Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was demanding blackmail money that he realized that the White House might be involved.

It was at that point that Moore said he urged Dean to tell the President. He said Dean was "happy and excited" the evening of March 20 when Nixon agreed to see him the next day. It was on March 21 that Dean says he told Nixon there was a "cancer growing on the presidency."

Campora Resigns

By ROBERT D. OHMAN
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Hector J. Campora and his government resigned today and set the stage for the return of Juan D. Peron to the presidency he lost in a military coup 18 years ago.

Campora, Vice President Vicente Solano Lima and the Cabinet signed their resignations at Casa Rosada, the presidential palace in downtown Buenos Aires, and transmitted them to Congress for action later in the day. Approval was considered certain.

Then Campora drove to the suburban home of the 77-year-old Peron to tell him the news.

"He didn't say anything," Campora told reporters afterward. "He wished us well and said goodby with his usual affection."

The expected chain of events includes elections in 40 days, certain to be won by Peron and his projected running mate, Ricardo Balbin.

Balbin, 68, lost three presidential elections as candidate on the Radical Civic Union party. He spent more than a year in jail during Peron's tenure 1946-55.

Raul Lastiri, president of the Chamber of Deputies and son-in-law of Peron lieutenant Jose Lopez Rega, will serve as interim president.

Campora, who had been in office for only 49 days, has been identified with moderate Peronists who feel that only Peron himself can unite the Peronist movement. The movement has been split between moderate and leftist factions.

Some leftist factions viewed the new events as a sign that Argentina would have a more conservative government of old guard Peronists who would seek to weaken their stance. There was no immediate reaction from the military men who turned over power to Campora's civilian regime May 25 after nearly seven years of armed forces rule.

Campora has put younger officers at the head of the armed forces, retiring some of the leading anti-Peronist generals and admirals.

Campora, a 64-year-old former dentist, has long been a protege of Peron.

In an emotion-charged speech to legislators, Campora recalled that he and Solano Lima had campaigned on the slogan, "Campora to government, Peron to power."

"We always meant to make that promise good," he said.

New Trial Is Denied Hurd

Judge Wayland G. Holt, judge of the 132nd District Court, overruled a motion for a new trial for James Robert Hurd in a hearing this morning.

Motion for the new trial had been filed by Hurd's attorney, Dan Barber of Colorado City. At the conclusion of the hearing this morning, Judge Holt formally sentenced Hurd to "not less than two years and not more than life" in the state penitentiary, the sentence imposed by a jury which convicted Hurd of murder. He had been charged with slaying Elizabeth Goodlett last March.

Barber was appointed to serve as Hurd's attorney for his appeal of the verdict after the court was advised that he was without funds.

Moyer Sentence Argued

AUSTIN (AP) — Dist. Atty. Bob Smith asked the jury today to send former state Rep. Hudson Moyer to the penitentiary for five years for stealing postage stamps.

"We're concerned about the very foundations of our society, the integrity of our government," Smith said in arguing on a sentence. The jury held Moyer guilty Thursday.

Responding to an emotional appeal by defense lawyer Roy Minton who said the jury should consider Moyer's three children, Smith said, "You can't decide this case on the effect it will have on three children.

"You've got to think of the thousands and thousands of youngsters in this state on whom this case will have a significant impact in the future."

Ervin Asks Nixon To Change Mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Watergate committee today predicted the panel will vote to subpoena White House documents it wants if President Nixon doesn't release them voluntarily.

Nixon said Thursday that he was willing to meet with Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the committee chairman, but has no intention of backing away from his refusal to give the committee the documents.

Ervins, in a television interview today, also urged Nixon to change his mind and testify personally before the committee.

The agreement on the Nixon-Ervin meeting was announced hours before Nixon entered Bethesda Naval Hospital for treatment of viral pneumonia. No date was set for the meeting.

Ervin said that when he meets with the President to discuss the documents he will do so alone, will take no notes and won't say later what happened in the meeting except as to how the issue was decided.

The committee chairman said he believed the President might be persuaded to change his mind about releasing the documents despite a White House statement that Nixon is firm in deciding to hold on to them.

Asked if he would vote to subpoena the White House to turn over the notes, letters, and other papers the committee seeks, Ervin replied, "Yes, I would ... I believe the entire committee would vote to do so."

Ervin was asked if he has an opinion, based on evidence presented so far, as to who in the White House was involved in covering up the Watergate wiretapping affair. His reply was one of the strongest appeals so far to the President to come forward and testify.

Good Adverse Neutral

She just can't say 'No'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what's the matter with me, but I just can't say no. I go with the kind of guys who can talk me into anything. I am only 18, and I can't even remember all the guys I've gone all the way with. Some of them I didn't feel a thing for. I just didn't want to hurt their feelings.

My parents think I'm a "good" girl because I don't stay out late.

I am not dumb, and I am nothing special to look at. I am just average, but I would like to stop giving in to one guy after another. Can you help me? CAN'T SAY NO

DEAR CAN'T: You need counseling. Get in touch with your Family Service Agency [if you can't afford private counseling]. They can help you straighten out your thinking. Or check your phone book for the Mental Health Clinic nearest you and ask for an appointment. [P. S. I'd like to hear from you after you've followed these two leads. God bless you.]

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion that would give great hope to cancer victims. Most of them make a habit of reading the obituaries with apprehension and fear.

It would, I believe, give them courage and confidence if families would allow obituaries to read: "Mr. X died at the age of 72 of a heart attack. He underwent cancer surgery 20 years ago."

Is there any reason this can't be done? NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: Your idea is great for those who have survived cancer surgery. But how do you think it would affect persons with heart conditions?

DEAR ABBY: I had a very irritating experience recently at a family gathering. One of my aunts greeted me with, "I didn't recognize you because you got so fat!" [And she said this in front of a lot of people.]

As one who has always been heavy, I am very sensitive about my weight and I found this very embarrassing. I feel that such comments are as rude and uncalled for as making fun of a cripple or an otherwise handicapped person.

My family tells me to drop the matter because my aunt is elderly and should be excused. I maintain that age is no excuse. What is your opinion? BURNED

DEAR BURNED: Age could be an excuse. However, since no one can insulate himself against possible hurtful remarks, your only defense is to a. avoid those who are inclined to make them; b. develop a thicker skin; c. try to reduce your "problem."

DEAR ABBY: My husband has earned a Ph.D. in psychology, and it took him 10 years of hard work to do it.

Recently at a party a woman said, "My brother in law is a doctor—a REAL one." I felt like I had been slapped in the face.

Why do some people think that unless a person is a medical doctor, he isn't a "real" one?

I am angry with myself for not having set that woman straight, but what could I have said?

Please print this, Abby, so others won't make the same mistake. GALLED IN GALVESTON

DEAR GALLED: You could have said, "My husband is also a 'REAL' doctor. He's a doctor of psychology." [P. S. Ignorance is no mistake.]

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Dollar Higher

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened slightly higher on European money markets today with the help of support buying by the central banks. But trading was described as hesitant.

The dollar closed slightly higher in Tokyo—at 265 yen, up from 264.935 at the close Thursday—after the Bank of Japan bought about $10 million.

The West German Bundesbank also was supporting the dollar, helping it to rally in opening bids to 2.3925 marks, up from 2.3880 at Thursday's close.

The dollar also improved at the opening of the Zurich market. It was quoted at 2.87125 Swiss francs after closing at 2.8550.

The dollar was also up in early trading in London, with the pound selling for $2.54175, a slight rise from $2.5441 at the close Thursday.

In Paris, however, the dollar eased both in interbank commercial trading and on the free market.

15% Hike Seen On Food Items

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices for certain food items could rise by as much as 15 per cent under the soon-to-be-announced administration Phase 4 anti-inflation program, a spokesman for the nation's food chain stores says.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are among items for which prices are expected to rise sharply, Clarence G. Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, told a House subcommittee Thursday.

Adamy's projections are partly backed up by the chairman of the Cost of Living Council, who says that price increases are inevitable even if businesses absorb some of their increased costs.

"The notion that prices will be expected to be stable after the freeze in the short run ... seems to me not to accurately reflect either agriculture information or this data on industry," says Chairman John T. Dunlop.

Dunlop based his forecast on what he called a great deal of "unused cost justification" remaining in the system.

According to Dunlop, prices will rise when big businesses start passing on to consumers some of the increased costs that they were entitled to but declined to pass on under Phase 3.

Much of the Phase 4 program already has been prepared and probably would be announced next week, Treasury Department sources say.

Dunlop said a preliminary analysis of eight nonfood industrial sectors showed that company costs increased by 5.4 per cent during Phase 2 and 3, but that prices went up during the first four months of 1973 by an average 1.2 per cent.

Industries analyzed were steel, paper, glass containers, rubber, cotton textiles, autos, dairy products and processed fruits and vegetables, Dunlop said.

Probe Set On Nixon's Residence Expenditures

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee plans to investigate $1.3 million worth of security installations at President Nixon's private residences — apparently without any comparable figures from past presidencies.

The General Services Administration already has told another House panel that no statistics are available for security expenditures at the private homes of the late Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson, John F. Kennedy or Dwight D. Eisenhower, and said that it would be almost impossible to develop the data.

Controversy has flared in recent weeks over expenditures on the Nixon residences. Reported outlays increased several times as the White House and then the General Services Administration updated their figures.

"We fully recognize the need to provide extensive protection for the security of the president," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex. "However, it is essential that expenditures made in the name of security be reasonably related to that purpose."

He said his House government activities subcommittee would hold hearings at a date yet to be set.

A House appropriations subcommittee under Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., held hearings on the same subject June 27. Steed expressed approval of the expenditures.

The General Services Administration reported it had spent $703,367 on installations and equipment at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., residence and $626,202 for the same purpose at his Key Biscayne, Fla., compound. The agency also reported operation and maintenance expenditures of $554,321 at Key Biscayne. No similar figure was given for San Clemente.

Administrator Arthur F. Sampson, asked how these sums compared to previous presidential residence requirements, said:

"There just aren't any statistics available. We have tried. We have been requested by the White House, we have been requested by the press continuously to try and find what was spent for LBJ, Kennedy, Eisenhower, and we have not been able to do that."

Expenditures for such items as landscaping and a new heating sytem at San Clemente have been questioned.

The Secret Service says the landscaping primarily was to restore grounds to the condition they were in before being dug up for security installations. The agency said the old heating system at Sam Clemente was unsafe.

The security expenditures are made under three sections of law that authorize the Secret Service to protect the president, direct other federal agencies to assist the Secret Service in that task and enable the GSA to make security installations on private property.

The law sets no limit on how many houses a president might accumulate. Even a retired president is entitled to protection at as many residences as he might choose.

Ransom Asked For Getty's Grandson

ROME (AP) — Police searched today for oil billionaire J. Paul Getty's 17-year-old hippie grandson after the youth's mother reported a ransom demand which she said may have been a hoax.

The teen-ager, J. Paul Getty III, had not been home for two weeks. He has been an habitue of Rome's hippie hangouts and has occasionally been seen selling homemade jewelry to tourists.

The boy's mother, who is divorced from J. Paul Getty Jr., said she had a telephone call Thursday from a man who told her, "We have kidnaped your son. Get the money ready for the ransom. We will call you later."

She said the man did not give any ransom figure.

"I think the phone call was some sort of joke," she commented.

Mrs. Getty said she had not known of her son's absence because she had been on a holiday until Thursday. The caretaker at her apartment said he hadn't been worried because the youth "used to come home late, and he didn't have what you would call a regular life."

At the senior Getty's mansion outside London, an aide to the oilman declined to comment on the kidnap speculation. Asked if the 80-year-old Getty knew of his grandson's disappearance, the aide replied, "I can say nothing at this time."

Mrs. Getty, the former actress Gail Harris, told authorities that her son seldom stayed away from home for any long period of time.

About 50 kidnapings have been reported in Italy in the past two years, and only a few of the kidnapers have been caught. An industrialist was released last February after a payment of a record ransom of $2 million.

Blaze Continues In Office

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) — A stubborn fire continued to burn out of control today in a building housing 56 million files on former servicemen.

The blaze, which became a day old shortly after midnight, gained momentum Thursday night as it spread from the uppermost floor of the Military Personnel Record Center down to the fifth floor. Portions of the roof collapsed.

Six firemen, who were among members of 20 suburban St. Louis departments fighting the blaze, suffered smoke inhalation and eye irritation. No other injuries were reported.

Officials of the General Services Administration said that arson may have been the cause and the FBI was investigating.

Jeffery P. Hillelson, regional administrator of the GSA, said there had been 12 fires of suspicious origin in the building during the last six months.

The sixth floor housed service and medical records on more than 20 million Army and Air Force servicemen, mostly on those who served during the two world wars.

The job of reconstructing destroyed military records "will be the largest reconstruction job we've ever had," according to Walter W. Stender.

'Pressure' Stories Delayed

AUSTIN (AP) — Stories a state welfare investigator promised to tell a House subcommittee about undue "pressure" to shut down Artesia Hall were delayed today by a review of his previous testimony.

His information, John Lindell said Thursday, would be "the other side of the coin."

The subcommittee's questions for the first day and a half of hearings have focused on how Artesia Hall, a Liberty County school for children with behavior problems, was able to get a state license.

The state closed the school June 28 after the director, Dr. Joseph Farrar of Houston, was indicted for murder in the death of a 17-year-old girl who swallowed rat poison. He was charged with withholding medical aid for 24 hours.

In testimony Thursday, Lindell, an assistant director in the social services division, accused Rep. John Whitmire, D-Houston, of seeking publicity, instead of the truth, about the licensing of Artesia Hall.

Whitmire fired questions at Lindell so fast he often had no time to reply, interrupted his replies with comments such as "Well, you don't say" and "What do you know" and reminded Lindell once that he was under oath.

Artifacts Need Constant Care

The new Scurry County Museum on the Western Texas College campus is becoming a reality to the citizens of Snyder. With building construction moving swiftly, attention must be focused on other aspects of museum preparation.

Mrs. Nelda Bills, chairman of acquisitions for the Museum, reported that extensive, time consuming work must be done on the restoration of museum artifacts. Having no permanent storage or working facility, the immense job of cleaning, painting and properly displaying each item becomes a chore. Much time and effort will be reduced when the building is completed and the staff will have the entire basement for repairs and maintenance.

Presently, Mrs. Bills and other volunteer workers are trying to decide how far restoration on each article will go. This depends entirely on the display used. To exemplify the point, Mrs. Bills brought out two coffee pots dating from the pioneer days. One was to be used in a chuck wagon scene and the other as a kitchen utensil. Naturally, one was left tarnished while the other must be cleaned and shined repeatedly. Mrs. Bills added that artifacts of metal are the hardest to restore because of the rust process of the material.

Before any item can be considered for restoration, however, a lengthy acquisition procedure must be completed. A complex filing system is required for each item with detailed cards on the donor or lender as well as the history of the piece. After these cards are alphabetically and - or numerically filed, a work sheet must be filled out in duplicate and transferred into a permanent ledger. This job is complicated with research and intensive study to catagorize the article in a definite period of history. The best means of verifying the actual age of the item is to find the patent date stamped on a visible area of the piece. Unfortunately, this is impossible to locate many times and library research is necessary to estimate its actual age.

Commenting on the museum building, Mrs. Bills stated that the three destructive forces of materials; people, light and atmospheric changes must be constantly controlled to keep the items in proper condition. The new building will remain a constant temperature, with only a five degree variance of humidity. Special lights to filter out ultra violet rays must be installed to decrease deterioration. Careful handling of these articles may be compared to the field of cross contamination in surgery.

Books and paper articles need special consideration also in a museum surrounding. Authors of the mid 1800's began using wood pulp paper, with high acidity content, instead of the older rag bond paper. It is imperative to arrest the deterioration of this wood pulp paper by proper storage facilities. Every article must be wrapped in acid free tissue and plastic bags to assure safe keeping. One half of the 16,000 square foot building is designated as work rooms and storage to enable the workers to adequately store the priceless artifacts.

SLIGHT OVERHAUL — This young Indian brave is receiving special treatment from Mrs. Nelda Bills, chairman of acquisitions for the Scurry County Museum. He is in dire need of a new paint job and hair piece. Many tedious hours of painting, polishing and cleaning are required on each museum item before it is viewed by the public.

Mickey Mouse Visits Center

NEW YORK (AP) — Lincoln Center will show Walt Disney films for a month this summer. This coincides with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the company by Walt and Roy Disney in 1923. It is the first time the Disney Studio has opened its vaults and archives to an outside organization.

There will be screenings three times daily at Alice Tully Hall, with most of the more than 30 movies being shown only once. Four programs will consist of animated shorts.

Disney animators will conduct a three-day symposium on the art of animation. These sessions will be free and open on a reservation basis.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP NEWSFEATURES

Q. — I recently bought a saber saw, the first one I have ever owned. I work mainly with plywood and must be doing something wrong, as every time I cut through it with the new saw, there is a slight chipping of the surface at the start of the cut. How can I avoid this?

A. — Two things can cause that problem — starting the cut after the saw blade is placed against the wood, and keeping the good side of the wood face up. Or, to put it another way, always start the saw motor before the blade touches the wood and always place the plywood so that its good side is facing the floor.

Q. — You recently gave a couple of ways in which spilled alcohol can be removed from a wood floor. I have another that I have been using for 45 years and have found successful. Also, it is very simple. Just rub aromatic spirits of camphor on the spot with a clean cloth. It is good because it not only takes out the stain but also restores the color of the wood.

A. — I haven't tried it, but it sounds logical because camphor is sometimes used to remove certain spots from wood furniture. Many thanks.

Q. — Is there any difference between glazing compound and putty? I have to replace several cracked window panes and have always thought that putty was the material used to keep the panes in place, but I read some instructions recently that called for the use of glazing compound.

A. — The substances are very similar, but glazing compound usually costs a little more and is less inclined to dry out than putty. Also, either glazing compound or putty is used principally to keep out the elements rather than to hold the panes in place, although it does play a small part in doing that. What holds the panes in place are glazier's points, bits of metal inserted into the frame and pressed against the glass.

Q. — Settle a dispute. I have always washed walls from the top downward. My husband says they should be washed from the bottom upward. Who is right?

A. — Sorry. Your husband is right. When walls are washed from the top, dirty water streaks down onto the unwashed surface. When walls are washed from the bottom first, the same streaking occurs when you reach the upper part of the wall. But streaks are easier to remove from a just-washed surface than a dirty one.

Q. — Why is cigar ash sometimes recommended for rubbing off white marks from a table top?

A. — Because it is a very mild abrasive. For the same reason, toothpaste may be used. However, either of these products will work only if the marks are not very severe. In stubborn cases, a stronger abrasive must be used.

Cooked dry beans freeze well. For best quality, cook beans until barely tender — freezing, like cooking, softens them, says Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Burglars Hold 'Open House'

COLLEGE STATION—Some doors and windows invite burglars to "open house."

"Home burglaries are increasing as part of the general increase in the nation's crime rate," Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, noted this week.

"Suburbs are being hit hard, and the more affluent naturally take the brunt."

Tough door locks are one "key" to protection, the specialist said.

"A dead bolt lock is the very minimum protection for the home.

"Dead bolt locks often snap into a locked position automatically when the door is closed. They shouldn't require double locking from the outside.

"These locks can't be forced open readily and can't be jimmied or pried open, but it's possible to saw through a dead bolt unless it has a built-in hardened-steel rod.

"Segal-type locks have two dead bolts that move vertically into metal hasps—they are far superior to the standard snap lock or even the dead bolt lock," Miss Bradshaw explained.

She also cited chain locks for providing good protection.

"Some chain locks are key operated—a key from the outside releases the chain. These are handy for those who lock up as they leave and for families with members who wish to retire and lock up before arrival home of other members who can use a key.

"Key-operated cylinder locks can be picked by an expert, but good ones from $10-$50 offer more security. Check to see if it's possible to fit a new cylinder into the present lock."

For windows, the specialist recommended key-lock window latches "which offer the best protection—providing the key is out of reach to anyone who might break a window pane. Also good are wedgelocks, as they're more resistant than switchlocks," she concluded.

HAIR FASHION IMPRESSIONS — The AMP cut is the high-voltage fashion cut for the stylish woman who is not quite ready to give up her long tresses for the fall and winter months of 1973-74. This power filled style is developed by a special short cut on the front and top. For easy upkeep of the short top section and the longer sides and back, a professional permanent wave is a must. Martha Has A Secret Hideway

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Martha Mitchell may have a secret hideaway in the South, but friends here won't say where it is.

"I'm sorry I can't tell you, but I promised Martha I would not tell where she is," said Mrs. Ray West, a close friend.

Mrs. West said she had spoken with the wife of the former attorney general but could not elaborate.

Mrs. Mitchell said she was staying at an undisclosed location in the South while her husband, John N. Mitchell, testified before the Senate Watergate Committee.

LOT OF GROCERY MONEY RIDES ON THAT ROLL!

Uncertainty Prevails In The World Of Money

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Poets and dramatists might enthuse over the excitement of uncertainty and the pleasure of the unexpected, but when the subject is money nobody listens to them.

Were he alive today, for example, William Congreve would never hold an audience of brokers if he continued to maintain that "uncertainty and expectations are the joys of life," and "security is an insipid thing."

Brokers, and anyone else concerned with money, are looking today for that insipid security, and they're not finding it. They fear the unknown, which is the chief ingredient of the future. They've had enough of the unexpected.

But when you survey the world of money, from children's allowances to international payments, you find more imponderables than perhaps ever before in recent history. Uncertainty is pervasive.

In domestic affairs, more than 200 million Americans await word on the nature of Phase 4 controls, and ponder the possibilities also of a recession later in the year.

Despite this chance of recession, nobody in an official capacity is prepared to guarantee that prices will fall. They really can't, not when it is impossible to determine if supply will be sufficient for demand.

A growing fear is that restraints might become counterproductive and cause shortages that would inevitably put pressure on prices.

The food supply especially is in question. Americans won't go hungry, but ominous news about packing plant layoffs and of price-frozen farmers destroying livestock, suggest that spotted shortages are imminent.

What about the price of clothing? Shortages seem to be growing in both cotton and wool markets. Will Phase 4 restraints be sufficient to keep prices from rising even more sharply? Who knows? And at what cost?

Housing is becoming one of the biggest question marks. Will consumers raise their savings level sufficiently to keep mortgage lenders supplied with loanable funds? A 1 per cent savings rise means $10 billion. Will it be available?

The stock market, which cannot tolerate much more uncertainty than is already inherent in the nature of that business, flutters occasionally when it sees a glimmer of light, but otherwise it broods about its uncertain future.

Like a garden plant, the market for stocks needs lots of sunshine. In recent weeks, however, the financial district streets have been fogged in. Brokers are concerned not only about external unknowns but about the future of their industry itself.

Abroad, the buying power of the twice-devalued dollar has continued to fall in relation to the currencies of other trading nations. And not only is its future cloudy, but its current condition is declared to be mysterious.

Why, ask United States and foreign central bankers, should an already undervalued currency continue to fall? And since they who should have the answers ask questions instead, is there any wonder that confidence should ebb?

Watergate, the all-purpose alibi, is offered in explanation. The ability of any government to keep its restraining or guiding hand on so many elements of the economy is limited, they say, particularly when its power is undermined by scandal.

Old-timers know that this sad configuration of events isn't permanent. Like a kaleidoscope, events have an uncanny way of reassembling into a brighter picture almost overnight.

It is, in fact, a maxim of Wall Street that when things look darkest the sun is about to shine. But until then the old courtroom maxim, "the uncertain is counted as nothing," doesn't apply. It counts as a negative.

Remarks A Libbist Tires Of

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that an active women's liberationist gets tired of hearing:

"Why don't you go chain yourself to a fire plug?"

"Gals like you are worse than Dracula. All Dracula ever wanted was blood."

"Listen, Dora, you're not really interested in freeing women. You're really just interested in crucifying men."

"I happen to know that you are making more than $10,000 a year as a legal secretary, Dora. That doesn't exactly put you in the martyr class."

"Why don't you go sit on a flagpole and yell your message to the four winds?"

"I hate to disagree with you, Dora, but I've lived with your father for 40 years, and I've never felt persecuted in all that time."

"A smart woman doesn't need a liberation movement. All she needs is the right man to operate on."

"When a woman has to shout for what she wants, she has already lost the battle."

"Dora, why do you keep insisting men can't stand the thought of having to work for a woman? That's how most men spend their entire lives. All they ask is the right to pick the woman."

"Dora doesn't have to worry about being regarded as a mere sex object. That's the last thing any normal man would think of her."

"Why don't you go down in a scuba suit and whisper your tale of woe to the little fishes?"

"Dora, you know in your heart that you'd be happier if you were married to a husky truck driver who kept you in the kitchen barefoot and expecting."

"The worst damage you dames do is to make ordinary, cheerful housewives discontented with their lives. You make them wonder whether they are wasting their time running a home, raising kids, and making a good husband happy with his life. There is no finer career on earth than that—and you try to make it sound like it's a raw deal to womanhood."

"As a girl watcher, I sure do approve of one part of your program—the doing away with bra wearing. Have you given any thought to carrying that program a step or two further?"

"I'm a male chauvinist pig, lady, and after listening to your speech all I am moved to say is, 'oink, oink'."

Junior Editors' Quiz on WATER MOCCASINS

QUESTION: What is a water moccasin?

ANSWER: The water moccasin is a poisonous reptile closely related to the copperhead. Like the copperhead, it is a poisonous pit viper and differs little from rattlers. It has pits between eyes and nostril, sensitive to heat. This helps the snake to find and strike at warm-blooded prey. The copperhead is an upland snake, while the water moccasin lives in the swamps of the southern United States.

The water moccasin is a larger, heavier and more vicious snake than the copperhead. The body is about 4 feet long, reddish brown with black markings and a spotted abdomen. The popular name for this snake is cottonmouth because this species has a cottony white lining in its mouth. When it opens its mouth, it creates a startling appearance. It feeds on fish and frogs. The young are born alive like mammals. Many of the other reptiles reproduce by laying eggs. The water moccasin is only dangerous to man if it is disturbed. It has no warning rattle.

Veteran receivers and center John Fitzgerald also reported to Landry.

Regular center Dave Manders was a holdout and said "I've had no contact with management lately."

"Our quarterback position has come back to exactly the same situation we were in several years ago when both quarterbacks were competing for the No. 1 job," said Landry.

Blues Win, 3-2

The Blue All-Stars shaded the Red All-Stars 3-2 in a Farm League playoff game here last night.

Ralph Hernandez, the Blue pitcher, did a magnificent job, allowing only one base hit. Robert Dupuy, Red catcher, got the only hit off him in the 3rd inning.

In that same inning the Reds took a 2-0 lead on the single combined with an error. It was short-lived, however, as the Blues scored two tallies in the 4th to tie it up and one in the 5th to win.

The Blues collected seven hits. Ronnie Myers stroked two singles while Jeff Kincaid, Hector Barbosa, Vonnie Voss, John Donelson and Ralph Hernandez each hit a single.

In the 4th, the Blues got their two runs off singles by Hernandez and Kincaid, combined with a walk and an error.

In the 5th, Barbosa reached first on an error and scored on back-to-back singles by Voss and Donelson.

John Igo was the losing pitcher, but he did a creditable job.

The Blues put men on base in every inning, and so did the Reds.

Miller Is In Lead By One Stroke

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Writer

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Johnny Miller took a one-stroke lead over Bert Yancey and a two-stroke advantage over Tom Weiskopf today after 45 holes of the British Open Golf Championship. Weiskopf, who went over par only once in the first two rounds as he went nine-under and built a three-stroke lead over Miller and Yancey, took a double bogey 6 on the 427-yard ninth hole.

Miller, meanwhile, made the turn in 32, and was 10 strokes under par.

Yancey birdied the par 3 eighth and was nine under par as he started on the back nine.

Jack Nicklaus, who started the day five under par, was four under after bogeying the ninth and was six strokes off the pace.

With the third round over the par 36-36—72, 7,064-yard Old Course of the Troon Golf Club being played under wet conditions, Miller carded four birdies and five pars on the front nine.

Miller, who won the U.S. Open when he turned in a fantastic 63 on the final round, kept pressure on by making a birdie on the par 4, 481-yard 11th hole, located next to a railroad track. That put him 11 under and gave him a three-shot lead.

Arnold Palmer got his game together after 76 in the second round and shot a 70. That made a 54-hole total of 218 for the man who set a British Open record of 276, 12 under par, when he won here in 1962.

Lee Trevino, winner of the last two British Opens, took three bogeys in a string of four holes on the back nine and finished with a 73 for 221.

Jai-Alai In Newport?

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The Rhode Island Horse Racing and Athletics Commission has begun discussions on plans for licensing ja -alai gambling in Newport.

A city-wide referendum to establish the sport here, along with pari-mutuel betting, was decisively approved by voters Tuesday.

John F. Capaldi, chairman of the commission, said Wednesday that at least one commission member will travel to Florida, probably next week, to see jai-alai enterprises in operation there.

Woolley Gets Old Job Back

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Galveston Ball head football Coach Joe Woolley had his job back today but not all his old coaching staff.

Woolley, dismissed earlier this year as head coach after admitting he altered the transcripts of two student-athletes, was reinstated following a controversial 4-3 school board vote Wednesday.

Seven assistant coaches resigned in the wake of Woolley's reappointment, some saying they could not work under him.

After a lengthy investigation, the board placed Woolley, Athletic Director Bob Bledsoe, Richard Streiff, director of the district's guidance center, and former assistant principal Lynn Nix on one year's probation.

Bledsoe and Streiff retained their positions and Nix was reassigned as a teacher in the district.

Ball Principal Jim Watson was criticized in the report for allegedly not reporting discovery of the changed transcrips sooner. Watson, however, retained his position and was given a vote of confidence by the school board.

ROBINSON SPARKS ORIOLES' VICTORY

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Brooks Robinson may be one of the steadiest glove men in baseball, but he's driving Earl Weaver nuts with his roller coaster act at the plate.

"Every time I want to bench Brooks, I don't," the feisty manager of the Baltimore Orioles said Thursday night. "I put him in the lineup and look what happens."

What happened was that Robinson, who's been having his woes at bat this season, smacked a pair of run-scoring singles, the second one a tiebreaker in the eighth inning to lift the Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

In the rest of the American League, Boston beat Texas 5-2, the New York Yankees clouted Kansas City 10-3, Detroit edged California 7-6, Oakland swatted Milwaukee 8-4 and, in a twin-night doubleheader, Minnesota beat Cleveland 8-4 before the Indians came back to gain a split with a 7-4 victory in the second game.

Red Sox 5, Rangers 2

Boston's Luis Aparicio became the eighth player in the history of the game to bat 10,000 times. And his 10,000th was a single that helped build a rally against Ranger bonus baby David Clyde. The big run, though, was Tommy Harper's tie-breaking homer in the fifth.

Yankees 10, Royals 3

"Surprise, surprise!" Johnny Callison laughed after hitting his first home run of season to help the Yanks whip Kansas City. It was, indeed, a surprise — mainly that it hasn't come a lot sooner. Callison has averaged 15 homers in his 15 big league years, so this one was a long time coming. "I think it was due," he said. "I almost stopped and asked for the ball."

Tigers 7, Angels 6

Dick Sharon and Duke Sims drew ninth-inning walks and gave Dick McAuliffe a chance to bat with two out in the bottom of the ninth for Detroit. He came through with a tie-breaking single to dump California.

A's 8, Brewers 4

Ray Fosse's ninth-inning homer triggered a four-run Oakland rally that sent the Brewers down to defeat. After the shot, the A's loaded the bases and Reggie Jackson beat out an infield single for a run before Deron Johnson hit a single for two more.

Twins 8,4, Indians 4,7

Jim Holt's tie-breaking single in the sixth carried Minnesota to a victory in their first game with Cleveland.

The Twins had a 4-2 ninth inning lead in the second game. But in the ninth, Rusty Torres walked, John Brohamer, John Lowenstein and Oscar Gamble singled for two runs, Lowenstein scored on a Ken Sanders wild pitch, then Dave Goltz took the mound for Minnesota and was nailed for George Hendrick's second two-run homer of the nightcap that carried the Indians to their split.

Agency Shop To Top Labor Demands In 1975

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Standing and cheering, unanimous Texas AFL-CIO convention delegates have declared that the agency shop will be labor's top demand of the 1975 Legislature.

Agency shop contracts, now illegal in Texas, require non-union workers to pay the union that represents them a fee equal to the dues paid by members.

The delegates also heard a speech Thursday by farm labor leader Cesar Chavez, who accused the non-AFL-CIO Teamsters Union of hiring "goons" to beat up men, women and children on picket lines in California's Coachella Valley.

Besides launching labor's agency shop drive, the convention:

—Voted to withhold support from congressional candidates who do not endorse revision of the Hatch Act to allow greater participation in politics by federal employes.

—Called for an "all-out effort to organize the unorganized" with more AFL-CIO field men to help union organizers.

AFL-CIO President Roy Evans, who is locked in a close fight for re-election with the federation's secretary-treasurer, Harry Hubbard, sounded the call for the agency shop.

"Each delegate should know our full influence and every effort we have will be put into passing this bill... We must cut out the hanky panky. We are laying it on the line: This is our demand of the political establishment of this state," Evans said.

When he called for the vote on whether to approve the agency shop campaign, delegates stood and cheered.

An agency shop bill was approved by the House Labor Committee during this year's legislative session but died without floor action.

The convention also voted to fight any attempt to include in the new state constitution a "right to work" provision that would outlaw labor-management contracts making union membership a condition of employment. Such contracts are now prohibited by state law, but laws are easier to change than the constitution.

Tight security accompanied Chavez' speaking appearance.

The balcony of Municipal Auditorium was cleared, and an armed deputy sheriff stood guard. Other deputies stood in the wings of the stage. Doorways backstage were barred to all but authorized persons.

Chavez said that grape growers in the Coachella Valley signed contracts with the Teamsters within hours after their contract with the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers expired.

He said Charles Colson, a special counsel to President Nixon, "prevailed on" the American Farm Bureau Federation in November to invite Teamsters president Fred Fitzsimmons to address the bureau convention in Los Angeles the following month.

"We suppose it was at that time that the deal was cut to destroy our union," he said.

Chavez contended that when the UFW began a boycott of Coachella Valley grapes and set up picket lines to protest the Teamsters contract, the Teamsters hired "300 goons, men who specialized in beatings, and paid them $67.50 a day."

One group of goons attacked about 200 pickets with baseball bats and other weapons, sending 20 to the hospital, Chavez said.

"They did not discriminate—they beat men, women and kids just the same," he said.

Chavez said the grape boycott is succeeding and has cut the price of grapes to the growers by 50 cents a box each week.

"We'll be damned if we'll let the administration and the Teamsters and the growers stop us from having a free union," he said.

Dr. George Willeford, state Republican party chairman, issued a statement during the convention criticizing it for inviting only Democratic politicians and officeholders to address it.

"I cannot believe that the apparent AFL-CIO course is to become a 1974 campaign arm of the Democratic party," Willeford said.

"This surely can't be totally reflective of the rank-and-file Texas union member, who quite properly views himself free to make his own political judgments, sometimes in behalf of individual Republicans, most notably Richard Nixon," he said.

MacGraw, McQueen Are Wed

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Justice of the Peace Arthur Garfield laid down his golf clubs and picked up his Bible to marry movie stars Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen under a spreading cottonwood tree.

It was the second marriage for both. Miss MacGraw, 34, is best known for her role in "Love Story." McQueen, 43, has starred in such action thrillers as "Le Mans" and "The Great Escape."

The two were married Thursday in a simple ceremony in a city park by Garfield, who was summoned in the middle of a golf game. The only other persons in attendance were McQueen's two sons, Terry, 14, and Chadwick, 12, and Miss MacGraw's 2-year-old son, Joshua.

Miss MacGraw divorced her husband of 3½ years, producer Robert Evans, last month. McQueen was divorced from his wife of 14 years, the former Nellie Adams, in 1970.

Garfield was playing golf when he was informed his secretary was on the line with an urgent call.

Be still

"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom," Psalm 90:12.

The wise man is at home
wherever he may be;
And Nature is one realm where
he's completely free,
And in the world of books he somehow does belong,
While ever among people he moves amid the throng,
So it's God's own touch of wisdom that makes a pathway light,
And the man who always bears that flame can only banish night.

Eighty-two members assembled for the ground-breaking ceremonies, including these charter members: Brian and Louise White, who along with Dewey and Patty Lester, Leonard and Martha Broach, Wilmer and Geneta Richards and Mrs. W.R. Sanderford met in the East Elementary School until the present building was completed. The Rev. Dan Humphreys is pastor of the church.

Hill Rules On JCs' Tuition

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Junior colleges can charge non-residents of their districts higher tuition than residents but would lose their state aid money if they do, Atty. Gen. John Hill ruled Thursday.

Hill's opinion, which has the force of law unless reversed by the courts, went to Dr. Bevington Reed, state commissioner of higher education.

The attorney general said state law requires junior colleges to charge the same tuition as tax-supported four-year colleges as a condition for receiving state aid, a major part of their budgets.

"A public junior college which charges a greater tuition of a Texas resident than that authorized ... is disqualified just as is one which charges a lesser tuition," Hill said.

If a district chose to sacrifice its state aid money by charging non-residents higher tuition, it could even establish different charges for students living in other junior college districts and for those who do not live in such a district, Hill said.

Man Give Out Too Much Info

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Kenneth Albert put a "For Sale" sign on his car and parked it outside the store where he worked.

Most of the telephone calls he received about the car were the usual questions — about the radio, the stereo and other extras.

Later, Albert received another call saying: "Next time, lock your car and I won't steal your tape deck."

Eleven On Raft Using Reason

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The six men and five women crossing the Atlantic on the raft Acali "have overcome their frustrations, aversions and frictions" by exercising intelligence and reason, the organizer of the expedition reports.

"Everyone criticizes among themselves; that is part of the experiment. However, all respect each other," Mexican social anthropologist Santiago Genoves reported by radio.

Genoves organized the three-month trip to study the origins and effects of friction among men and women of different nationalities and cultures in an isolated environment. The 11 persons aboard the raft are from 10 countries and a woman, Maria Bjornstam of Sweden, is the captain.

The raft, 36 by 20 feet, sailed May 12 from Las Palmas in the Canary Islands. Its destination: the Yucatan Peninsula 5,000 miles away.

The Acali is expected to pass the island of Barbados, completing two-third of its voyage, July 16-25. The crew has asked for a variety of supplies to be delivered from Barbados, ranging from fish hooks to ice cream and wine.

Genoves' radio reports to the Mexican government television station that financed the trip gave this account of life aboard the raft:

The day starts at 7 a.m. After cleaning what they call their "floating home," the crew breakfasts on fruit juice, fresh eggs preserved by a chemical formula, and ham, bacon or Spanish sausage.

Daily chores include cleaning oil lanterns, recharging the radio batteries, checking the radio antenna, tending the sail and calculating the distance covered and the speed of the craft, which is powered only by the sail.

Lunch is at noon and supper before dark. The day ends with a "social hour" of singing, conversation and stories from the various countries. Bedtime is about 10:30.

The crew, most of whom are married to people not on the raft, take frequent psychological tests probing their dreams, likes and dislikes, appetite and sexual attitudes.

Genoves said: "Competition linked to the success of the expedition—competition between women and men, men and men and women and women—have appeared."

Front Kicks Up Showers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cool front pushed deeper into Texas today after kicking up thundershowers and at least one tornado.

During the night there were widespread showers and occasional thunderstorms across the state's midsection, with heavier concentrations in North Central Texas.

By this morning, with the forward edge of the cooler air running from around Houston to Midland, the moisture began drying up. There were still occasional showers or light rain, however, from the Panhandle southward into parts of West Texas, including the Big Bend country, and near the Upper Texas Coast.

While the turbulence was most threatening, state police spotted a tornado in Haskell County north of Abilene, but it disappeared without inflicting damage.

Temperatures climbed into the 90s ahead of the weak front Thursday afternoon and the highs reached only the 80s in its wake.

By this morning the readings ranged from 65 degrees at Texarkana and 66 at Dalhart and El Paso up to 79 at Palacios on the coast.

Official observers looked for a low pressure center over Northern New Mexico to kick up more thunderstorms over most of the Texas Panhandle. Partly cloudy and more hot weather was in prospect for the rest of the state.

Directors Blast EPA Proposals

HOUSTON (AP)—The Environmental Protection Agency's plan to curb auto pollution in the Houston area drew fire from two sides Thursday.

Pamela Giblin, chief counsel for the Texas Air Control Board, told a news conference the federal plan was a $123 million blunder that would bring back prohibition days.

The Houston Chamber of Commerce issued a statement which said the EPA plan would cause a complete paralysis of all business and industrial operations.

One of the EPA's proposals would freeze gasoline deliveries to service stations at 1972-73 levels in the 13-county Houston-Galveston air quality region.

"EPA would now have us drive across the county line for bootleg gas instead of bootleg booze," Miss Giblin said. "We are concerned not just with the people who will have their lifestyles disrupted but with those who may well have their livelihood disrupted."

Miss Giblin said the EPA plan, scheduled to go into effect Aug. 15, would cost too much money for too little reduction in hydrocarbon pollution.

She said the federal controls would require $123 million in initial expenditures plus $46 million annually to maintain.

The Houston Chamber filed its statement with the EPA.

Chamber Board Chairman Bernard Sakowitz said the regulations would have catastrophic effects on one of the most dynamic regions in the nation. He and other chamber directors urged the EPA to delay implementing the regulations.

The directors said in the statement "For the government to propose a regulation of such far-reaching consequences without any effort to calculate the cost of resulting social and economic disruption is of such dubious morality to be subject to challenge."

In addition to limiting gasoline sales, the EPA plan would forbid construction of parking lots without an EPA permit, prohibit construction of any plant which would emit any hydrocarbon wastes, control loading activities in ports, and require cities and counties to set aside express lanes for buses and carpool vehicles on major thoroughfares.

HID TWO YEARS IN CHURCH BELFRY — William W. Hughes, Sr., of Leesburg, N.J., surrendered to police last Monday night after hiding out for two years in a church belfry. Hughes said he jumped bail on larceny charges and hid in the church tower of the United Methodist Church in Leesburg, foraging for food at night. (AP Wirephoto)

Officers Scour Woods For Thief

SILSBEE, Tex. (AP)—FBI agents and other peace officers scoured this piney woods region today for a lone, long-haired robber who stole $5,500 from the Silsbee State Bank.

Police said the man, in his late 50s with shoulder-length gray hair brushed back, limped into the bank Thursday, produced a pistol and a note then limped out with the cash.

DO THE "ROMAN COLLARS" LABEL THEM CATHOLICS?

Episcopalians and Roman Catholics and Presbyterians and Baptists and Methodists . . . these and countless other denominations exist because of the differences between men.

It's the similarities between men that produce Christians.

Episcopalians are proud of both their differences AND their similarities to other denominations. You can call them anything you like. They're Protestant because their forebears were among the leaders of the Protestant Reformation in 16th-Century England. But the word "Catholic" means "universal, whole, or complete" . . . and, certainly, Episcopalians are proud to embrace all the traditions of Christ's "universal church."

In short, they don't feel that heaven is reserved for those who agree with the Episcopal viewpoint. They say, "There's only one God. Let's share." OK?

By the way, would you believe that the "backward collar" was not a Roman Catholic invention? It was introduced by a priest of the Church of England, parent of the Episcopal Church in the United States. He devised it as a mark of identification during his ministrations to the London Dock area.

Maybe, if you got the whole story from your nearby Episcopal minister, you'd find that some of the differences in the Episcopal faith would help you appreciate the universality of the Christian religion. Think about that.

There is a Way

But it is not the way this man has been going. He forgot to read and heed the word of God, "Wealth maketh many friends; but the poor is separated from his neighbor." Pro. 19:4. His bank account is bulging but his troubled heart is empty. His earth is without form, and void, and darkness is upon his face. Jesus told us, "A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Pro. 18:24. It isn't by way of wealth, fame, or fortune, but by the way of God. To this man and to all of us He is constantly repeating the most glorious invitation of the centuries... "Take My Hand." The strong hand of a warm friend pressed upon his shoulder will help but what this man needs is to seek the counsel of a minister and join up with the forces that work for a better world through Him.
