Operation Screwworm Control Now Under Way

Texas multi-million dollar screwworm program is under way. It was launched Wednesday morning, February 14, when male screwworm flies were air-dropped over Hays county.

The release—first of its kind in the Southwest—was timed to coincide with a meeting of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation in Austin. More than 400 livestock producers and sportsmen from Texas and adjoining states attended the kick-off meeting. The fly release climaxed the efforts of thousands of stockmen and sportsmen who have worked on the program for many weeks.

Three local committeemen from this county attended the Austin meeting: Gerald Hartgraves, Howard Derrick, and Carrol White.

C. G. Scruggs, president of the SAHRF, said the program involves the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Texas Animal Health Commission, Texas A&M College and the research foundation. He reported that contributions by stockmen and sportsmen now totaled approximately $1,400,000. An intensive drive will be continued, SAHRF officials said, until the $3 million goal is reached. Scientists, capitalizing on freeze-out of overwintering screwworms in January believe there is an opportunity for lowering—if not totally eradicating—screwworms from Texas this year.

The program will follow the pattern of the successful eradication effort in Florida and the Southeast. Millions of artificially raised male screwworm flies, made sterile by exposure to radioactive material, will be released in the overwintering area in South Texas and in a "buffer zone" along the southern border of the state. A giant screwworm producing plant will be constructed in South Texas with an expected capacity of 50-75 million flies per week. Facilities at Kerrville Lab will eventually produce 20 million flies each week. Dr. S. Gartman, who has charge of the Kerrville fly facilities, will head operations at the new plant.

Release of sterile flies is only half the job, they said. The remainder is up to the stockmen. If maggot infestation is found, stockmen are asked to remove 10 from the bottom of the wound and report to their county agent for a positive identification.

Stockmen are asked to remove worms from the bottom of the wound and send to the Animal Disease Eradication Division, P. O. Drawer 800, San Antonio, Texas. These worms will be identified and if screwworm larvae are found, sterile male flies will immediately be flown to the stockman's property and will be released by air drop.

This is very important for all stockmen to remember! Your cooperation is very essential to the eradication of the screwworm.

A packet with vial of alcohol and questionnaire and tube, self addressed requiring no postage is available at the county agent's office. Your name on the questionnaire is essential so planes may make an accurate drop on the place where the outbreak is occurring.

Coaches And Trackmen To Ft. Stockton Meet

EARL BARNETT

A track meet is to be held this Saturday at Fort Stockton. Coaches Earl Barnett and Douglas Jung plan to leave late Friday with a group of local track boys, which

Post Script

The Mikeska Gin processed the last bale of the 1961 cotton crop some time during the past week end. This week finds the gin office locked up and no one around except two hands who were cleaning up around the gin machinery. As near as we could figure out from ticket stubs lying around, the last bale was no. 5413.

This, then, is the figure for the 1961 cotton crop, unless some had their ginning done outside of the county, and it seems that very little, if any, Schleicher cotton was ginned at Wall this year.

On Tuesday everyone who could do so was hovering near his T.V. and radio set, keeping up with the program of Astronaut Glenn as he made his three-orbit trips around the world in about 4½ hours. Not until the news came that he had landed safely did anyone relax.

It was a great feat and everyone rejoices over its success.

Building going on:

A new carport and outdoor storeroom is being built onto the Pomp Watson house near the Baptist church, now owned by Fred Smith.

An enclosed entrance room is being added to the front of the West Side Church of Christ. Lee's Drive In on the Angelo highway is being enlarged.

People moving:

Ray West to Palmer West house; E. L. Carlman to Alma Sauer house; Duwain Sauer to E. S. Mattocks house; Elmer Little to Elder house; G. H. Wood to Tom Alexander house.

Today, February 22, is the 230th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

George Washington might have lived and died on the wrong side of the Atlantic if an English ship had not gone aground in the Potomac River in the 1650's.

Serving as mate on the ship, reports World Book Encyclopedia, was John Washington, the great-grandfather of George. By the time the ship was repaired, he had decided to marry and settle in Virginia.

Washington had little money when he arrived in America. But within 20 years he owned more than 5,000 acres of land, including the land that later became Mount Vernon.

The ancestral home of the Washingtons in England was Sulgrave Manor, in Northamptonshire. In 1914 the British government bought the house to celebrate 100 years of peace between Britain and the United States.

Other interesting facts about Washington:

The first test of federal power, the Whiskey Rebellion, came while Washington was President. In 1794 he sent troops to crush the uprising by Pennsylvania farmers who refused to pay a federal tax on whiskey.

George Washington sympathized with the taxpayer even as he recognized the need for taxes. In his Farewell Address, Washington lamented, "... no taxes can be devised which are not more or less inconvenient and unpleasant..." Washington had only seven or Austin.—A new major amendment to the draft regulations which will affect thousands of draft-age men has been explained by Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director.

The new amendment, authorized by Presidential executive order, creates a new draft classification immediately.

The new classification is I-Y. Men found not qualified by the armed forces for military service under current physical, mental, and moral standards, but who are considered to be qualified to serve in time of war or national emergency declared by Congress will be placed in the new class.

Previously these men were placed in Class 4-F. Only men not qualified for any military service will be placed in Class 4-F hereafter.

A large number of the state's 240,000 4-Fs will qualify for the new Class I-Y, Colonel Schwartz predicted.

The new classification permits ready identification, day by day, of men who are considered to be qualified and available in an emergency, and thus facilitates more rapid mobilization of manpower in case of need, the state Selective Service director said.

Miss Edmiston Winner Of Bausch, Lomb Award

GENELLE EDMISTON

Throughout the United States, educators recognize the annual Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award as evidence of superior scientific aptitude.

In announcing Genelle Sue Edmiston as the 1962 winner, Principal Frank G. Kemble of Eldorado High school said, "These Awards are especially significant. Today, everyone realizes the importance of the study of science in our secondary schools. The Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award provides appropriate recognition to senior students with the highest scholastic standing in science subjects."

Miss Edmiston, who also won the Betty Crocker Homemaker award in the high school recently, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Edmiston.

The Science Award—handsome bronze medal—is presented at graduation in more than 7,500 schools. Since its introduction in 1933, there have been 154,000 winners. Surveys have revealed that more than 30% of the winners have been encouraged by the Award to follow scientific careers. The Bausch & Lomb Science Award and Scholarship Programs have been officially approved by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Austin.—Texas newsmen quizzed seven candidates for governor at a session of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, and fanned early-season campaign sparks.

Gov. Price Daniel took the center position, weathering attacks from nearly all the other candidates, both Democratic and Republican. All candidates took part except John Connally and Edwin Walker.

A little fire even developed between the three Republican candidates. Harry Diehl of Houston said Jack Cox of Breckenridge was "not a Republican—just a conservative candidate."

But two days later, Diehl withdrew from the race, leaving Roy Whittenburg as the only Republican primary opponent for Cox.

Don Yarborough and Marshall Formby attacked the Daniel administration as "tired" and "lacking vigor". Daniel came back with a recital of his five-year accomplishments in education, industrialization and other fields.

Will Wilson's approach was that Daniel's entry collapsed the Connally bandwagon by splitting Vice Pres. Lyndon Johnson's organization, and that the only way to get an uncontrolled candidate was to elect Wilson.

Candidates got in more punches in answering tough questions posed by nine newsmen. All of Daniel's opponents made the Governor's unprecedented four-term try a central issue. In the course of questions, Daniel came out for a two-term limit, but with four-year terms for governor instead of the present two.

Friendless Insect

A big-hatted crowd of ranchers gathered at an Austin hotel to get more facts on the stockman's dream, the elimination of the screwworm.

There was no one there to defend the insect.

Ranchers learned from Floridians how that state was swept free of this costly scourge by a dramatic program. Florida ranchers covered the state with sterile male screwworm flies thus wasting the female flies' single mating period. First airplane distribution of flies in South Texas started the day of the Austin meeting.

Texas stockmen are raising $3 million by voluntary contributions to match an equal amount of Federal money put up by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The screwworm cost Southwestern ranchers an estimated $40 million a year in losses.

Livestock Raisers Get Helpers

A committee of five legislators held its first meeting after hearing plans of the Southwest Animal Health Research Foundation.

Speaker James A. Turman appointed Representatives Ray Bartman of New Braunfels, Steve Burgess of Nacogdoches, Stanley Boyesen of Yoakum, Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio and Gus Mutscher of Brenham to assist the SWAHRF in planning its attack on the screwworm fly.

GOP Primaries Under Fire

State Democratic committeeman Walter Sterling opened another argument in the inter-party battle when he accused Republicans of dodging their responsibility by not holding a primary in every precinct in the state.

Sterling and the State Democratic Executive Committee question the legality of a Republican primary nominee who has not been voted on by every Republican. Executive Director Clyde Johnson said, "The Republicans should not be able to avoid legal and financial responsibility in these primary elections."

Republicans countercharged that Democrats failed to hold primaries in 24 counties during the 1960 special election. But Johnson promised the party will "follow the law as usual" and hold primaries in all 254 counties this May.

VALENTINE PARTY

The Junior Sunday School group were given a Valentine party at the educational building of the Methodist church on Wednesday, Feb. 14.

The room was decorated with valentines, cupid, candles and red roses. Games pertaining to the valentine theme were played.

About 20 young people attended with their teachers, Mrs. Jim Martin, Mrs. Wiley Hight, and Mrs. Bill Hubble.

For refreshments, individual heart-shaped cakes iced in white, were served with red lemonade.

Farmers of the Eldorado-Divide S.C.D. are continuing to apply conservation practices to conserve soil and water on their farmland. Since June of last year 11 District cooperators have had terraces constructed on their farmland. Three district cooperators have had diversion terraces constructed to protect cropland.

Since the beginning of the Eldorado-Divide S.C.D., terraces have been one of the major permanent type practices applied. As of January 6, this year, 604 miles of level closed end terraces were constructed. These terraces were constructed on approximately 24,000 acres of cropland in the district. Approximately 410 more miles will be needed to terrace the remaining 16,000 acres of cropland.

The construction of terraces has always been somewhat of a problem due to the fact that contractors to do the work are not always available. This however, has not stopped some progress from being made in constructing needed terraces. Farmers have used a number of different methods to build their own terraces and also construct terraces for other cooperators of the district. Some of the implements used with their tractor include disk plow, Texas terracer, terrace disk attached to tractor, grader blade attached to foot pieces on planters, factory made whirlwind terracers, elevating grader, and home made whirlwind terracer.

The continued benefit of any soil, water and plant conservation practice can be attained only when the practices are maintained to needed specifications.

This is especially true with level closed end terraces. Terraces can only hold water up to the lowest point on the terrace ridge or end closure. Terraces with adequate height and base width without the necessary end closures will hold very little water. Water spilling around terrace ends can cause gullies to form, also water lost could be used to grow crops on the area above terraces. Water lost through improper terrace and end closure maintenance can drown out or prevent crops being grown in lake areas.

Water has always been one of the major items in good crop yields throughout the whole world. Some parts of the world get too much water while others barely get enough. The latter is true of this part of the country. By applying and maintaining the needed mechanical practices to conserve soil and water, along with the needed agronomic practices and good farming, the best yields possible can be attained.

The rainfall that will be received during 1962 is still anyone's guess. The amount received and when it is received will effect this year's crop yield. The amount of water that is held on the land where it falls is dependent on how much of the needed conservation practices have been applied and maintained. It is still not too late to construct the needed terraces on cropland or maintain old terraces. Diversion terraces to protect cropland from excess water can be constructed most any time of the year since they are usually on rangeland.

For assistance in planning or applying the needed soil, water and plant conservation practices on any agricultural land contact the supervisors of the district or the Soil Conservation Service technicians assisting the district.

Court Of Honor For Boy Scouts Held Last Monday

We Americans have a great heritage that costs us not a cent personally. But if we want to preserve this heritage we must become personally involved. We must add something too, in fact, ourselves. We must give of ourselves as well as take for ourselves.

No other national heritage so naturally and effectively produces this kind of personal involvement than our own Boy Scout program. It bridges the gap between the youth and the adult. Scouting can obtain the active participation of adults who never had the opportunity to be Scouts themselves. This dedication of time and effort to the Scouting program is indeed a small price to pay. In fact it is one of the soundest investments we will ever make.

It is worth it in terms of our country and its future. The youth of today will determine what the future will be.

We witnessed some of our future in action last Monday night as some of our local Boy Scouts received new ranks and merit badges at a Court of Honor conducted in the Memorial building by J. B. Morris, the Scout executive of San Angelo.

Mickey Pennington, Mike Hale, Claude Mills, Kenney Phelps, Lonnie Gibson and David Nixon were presented with their tenderfoot badges in a tenderfoot investiture, a very impressive ceremony conducted by Mr. Morris.

Gary Derrick, Chris McCravey and Robert Ramos were presented with their second class badges by Walter Donaldson, assistant scoutmaster.

Chris McCravey and Jerry Stigler received merit badges for soil and water conservation. Chris also received a merit badge for leather craft. Merit badges were presented by troop committeeman Buster Hale. The troop also received the National Camping award and a round-up award for recruiting new Scouts.—Scout Reporter.

The program followed and was under direction of Leonard Kent, president of the chapter this year. Invocation was given by Mike Sudduth, after which the opening ceremonies were given by chapter officers. Herman Walker introduced guests.

Texans To Oppose Mourning Dove Bill

Austin.—Texas sportsmen will oppose the passage of HR9882, introduced by Congressman Joseph E. Karth of Minnesota. This resolution would amend the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, to prohibit the hunting of mourning doves.

H. D. Dodgen, executive secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission, has written to Texas members of Congress and to members of the Commission, pointing out that the mourning dove population in the nation during the last two years increased sufficiently that U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service increased the bag limit from 10 to 15 birds per day, and possession limit from 20 to 30 birds. He says that in the 1960 hunting season, some 450,000 Texas hunters bagged in excess of 14 million birds.

The Resolution offered by Congressman Karth provides that "notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior shall not allow the hunting, taking, capturing, killing, possession, sale, purchase, shipment, transportation, carriage or export at any time, of mourning dove."

The mourning dove has been the principal game bird of Texas for a good many years. In Minnesota, however, it is considered a song bird and the killing is prohibited under state law. This is true in a number of states, particularly in the Middle West. The bird being migratory, many of those harvested in Texas come from nesting grounds throughout the Middle West.

Texans may express their attitude to their Congressmen in Washington, according to Mr. Dodgen.

Bill Works, game warden here in Schleicher county, pointed out that passage of the bill would adversely affect hunting here in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Hight and children attended the funeral Saturday at London for Mr. Marion Hight, an uncle of Wiley's. They then spent Saturday night and Sunday with Wiley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hight at London.

Mr. and Mrs. David Holden of Chickasha, Oklahoma, visited here recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Holden.

Among those from out of town attending the Lavelle Meckel funeral were Mrs. W. R. Hicks and Willie Ruth Meckel of San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Nicks, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Johnson of Sonora.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam McGinnes visited their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Low at Lamesa over the week end.

Mrs. C. H. Lester of Lubbock visited her son, Bill Lester and family from Thursday until Monday when she returned home. Also visiting in the Lester home last Thursday were Mrs. Lester's aunt, uncle and cousin, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pritchett and Miss Mariet Robinson of Colorado City.

Mr. and Mrs. Cam Smith of Ft. Worth visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin McAngus and family over the week end. Becky had been visiting her mother-in-law, Mrs. C. C. Smith, in Lincoln, Ariz., for the last month and Cam met her here.

On The Screen . . .
'Greyfriars Bobby' Is On
Tonight And Tomorrow

If you want a brief respite (it takes only an hour and a half of your time) from missile rattling, Berlin curtains and 50-megaton bombs that will leave your heart warm and your eyes moist, then try "Greyfriars Bobby," the new Walt Disney film which is showing tonight and Friday night at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre.

Photographed in the beautiful Technicolor greens of Scotland, the picture is the true story of a century-old happening: how a town adopted a dog when the pet refused to leave the graveside of his master.

To keep the plot moving, Donald Crisp and Laurence Naismith portray two old crochety rivals who pretend their hearts of stone can't be melted by a mere dog. Even the kids in the audience, who may not be able to understand everything through the Scottish brogues, know Disney won't let too many reels go by before the melting begins.

This film is all Disney and only the Disney studio could have turned it out. In the first place, Disney and his staff have a way with animals that no other film-maker seems to be able to attain.

Donald Crisp as the keeper of Greyfriars' Kirkyard, Laurence Naismith as the kind-hearted dining room owner, Alexander MacKenzie as Old Jock upon whom Bobby lavished his canine love and others of the human cast are fully satisfactory in their roles.

But it is the little terrier who turns in an incredible job of "acting." A year ago, he was a stray roaming the streets of a small town in northern Scotland. He was rescued by the daughter of a police sergeant who paid a $1.70 licensing fee. He was chosen for the film because of his very close resemblance to the original Greyfriars' Bobby, who had a statue erected in his memory in the churchyard.

If Disney set out through "Greyfriars' Bobby" to melt hearts, he has succeeded admirably. Sophisticates may sneer, but Disney knows what he is doing. There should be enough audience tired of sex and violence to give this very human story about a dog a good reception.

This true story could have turned out to be a piece of over-cooked whimsy, but Robert Westerby's screen play from Eleanor Atkinson's book of the same name does not overplay sentimentality while director Don Chaffey has steered the film with a nice balance of fun and potential tear-jerking.

The film is thoroughly permeated with the flavor of Scotland, and the scenery appears so authentic that one can almost smell the heather.

All in all, it is fine family-type entertainment.

The CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL

We wish some Civil War firearms expert would solve the mystery we dug up for ourselves while visiting our in-laws in Uvalde over the Christmas holidays.

Old Fort Inge, a frontier outpost occupied both before and after the Civil War by Union troops, is not far outside the city limits of Uvalde and we go there almost every time we're in the city. This time we dug around inside the foundations of one of the old rock buildings and came up with several brass buttons from Army uniforms, two or three round lead bullets and a dozen or more cylindrical-shaped bullets we took to be the Harper's Ferry type expanding bullet used extensively during the War.

But when we got back home, we compared these bullets with reproductions of .54 and .58 caliber Minie balls sent us by the Coforth Export Import Company of Philadelphia, and noted that the cases found at Fort Inge, though of the same shape and design as the Minie bullet, are a little smaller and have a small lead extension protruding from the base of the projectile.

We also checked our copy of Schuyler, Hartley & Graham's Illustrated Catalogue of Arms and Military Goods published in 1864 and recently reprinted by Norm Flayderman, the antique arms collector of Greenwich, Connecticut, but failed to find the bullets mentioned there.

The Minie bullet, commonly referred to by Civil War soldiers as a "minie ball," was developed by French Army Captain Minie and was a cylindrical conoidal projectile with an iron cup in the base. The explosion of the powder charge drove the cup into the base of the bullet causing it to expand and fill the grooves of the rifle bore.

Prior to the outbreak of the Civil War, U. S. troops were armed with rifles of three different calibers—.54, .58, and .69—all using round balls. But the Harper's Ferry Armory adapted Captain Minie's idea and "minie balls" were made to fit all three calibers. The .58 caliber was the most commonly used bullet during the War and it is estimated that 95% of all the bullets fired were of the general minie type.

In the early days of the War, both the North and South used many obsolete small arms. The South used flint lock smooth bore muskets made almost 50 years before, and smooth bore percussion muskets like the 1842 caliber .69 were used longer in the South than in the North.

One of the proofs that Stonewall Jackson's wounds at Chancellorsville on May 2, 1862 were inflicted by his own troops was that a spherical caliber .69 smooth bore musket ball was found in his right hand. This unrifled weapon was not used in the Union Army but was used extensively in some units of Confederate divisions.

The smaller .54 caliber ammunition was not as common as the other two sizes, but the muskets of this size were rifled and new rear sights installed on them to take care of the new "minie balls." The round balls were then used as cannister shot for exploding shells used by Union artillery, but the .54 caliber musket prevailed in the Southern force until the end of the war.

The superiority of the new Minie bullets over the old round balls made cavalry charges obsolete and impractical because of their accuracy, range and ease of loading, and even artillery in the open field was forced back such a distance from its target as to be ineffectual.

Anyway, we still don't know what kind of bullets we have, but are sure they are of Civil War vintage and were left at Fort Inge by Union troops when they abandoned the post in 1869.

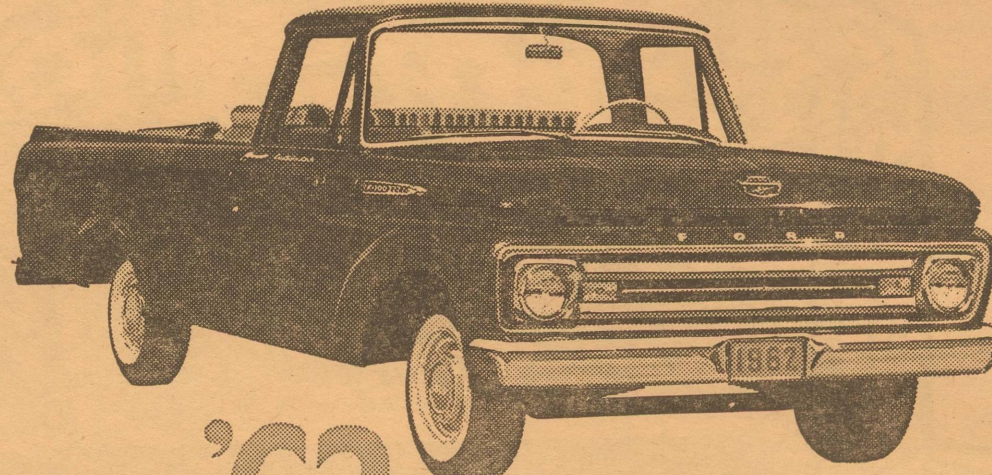

Most of the relics left at the old fort were picked up years ago, many of them by Bill Evans, an 86-year-old bachelor who now spends his nights looking after former vice-president John Nance Garner.

Bill Evans has been our friend for many years and we went over to take a look at some of the things he picked up at the old fort. Most of it was out on loan to the Garner museum, and unfortunately we were not able to see it because the museum was closed.

While in Uvalde, we stopped by to see another old acquaintance, J. Gordon Baylor, the grandson of Colonel John R. Baylor who invaded New Mexico with a group of Texans in 1861 and proclaimed that all of New Mexico below the 34th parallel as the Confederate Territory of Arizona.

WHAT?
BUILD A PICKUP TRUCK
SPECIALLY FOR TEXAS?

YES SIR—THE '62 FORD!

IT STARTED IN TEXAS—when Ford engineers drove Texas roads and ranches, talked to Texas truck owners. And it wound up with lots of fine things for you in the '62 Ford!

The wheelbase is long—114 easy-riding inches (122 for 8-foot bodies). There's less front overhang, more road stability. The ride is smooth. Easier springing makes the ride as soft as a Texas drawl! The frame is strong—to beat twisting of high-crowned Texas roads.

The savings are BIG. You save now with the lowest prices of any leading make.* Save on gas with Ford's modern engines, Six and V-8. Save on oil—go 4,000 miles between changes. Save on tires with Ford's I-beam suspension that keeps front tires tracking true.

Come try the '62 Ford—the pickup built for Texas, built in Texas!

Colonel Baylor was long ago given by Grandson J. Gordon to the Texas collection at Baylor University. The belt and buckle are a prominent part of the regalia worn by Colonel Baylor in the portrait that now hangs in the Alamo. The buckle depicts a Texas star surrounded by the initials J.R.B. and is one of two such buckles made from silver taken off an Indian following a fight near Weatherford prior to the Civil War.

Colonel Baylor killed the Indian who had leaped on the colonel's horse, took the silver ornaments from his hair and had two buckles made—one for himself and the other for his brother, George W. Baylor. The second buckle also bears the Texas star and is surrounded by the initials G.W.B.

That second buckle is still worn by Tom Baylor, brother of J. Gordon Baylor and also a grandson of Colonel John R. Baylor. Tom Baylors is foreman of a ranch in Mexico.
