N. Korean president reported dead

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Defense Ministry said today President Kim Il Sung of North Korea apparently has died or that a power struggle was under way in the Communist nation. There was no confirmation from North Korea.

Early today, the Defense Ministry said North Korean loudspeakers along the demilitarized zone announced Kim had been shot to death.

Lee Ki-baek, South Korea's defense minister, later told members of the National Assembly that North Korean loudspeakers along the DMZ began to broadcast eulogies to Kim on Sunday afternoon, followed by statements saying he was dead, according to news reports.

"Judging from all such circumstances, it is believed that Kim has died or a serious internal power struggle is going on there," Lee was quoted as saying by the state-run radio and the Yonhap News Agency.

A portrait of the 74-year-old North Korean leader adorned with white flowers was observed at one point along the buffer zone today, Lee was quoted as saying. The two countries have been bitter enemies since the peninsula was divided in 1948.

North Korean diplomats sharply denied the reports of Kim's death. In the Chinese capital of Peking, the first secretary at the North Korean Embassy, Kang So Yong, said: "We know that President Kim Il Sung is working and healthy in North Korea. That story is completely made up by somebody. It is not true."

North Korea is one of the world's most closed nations, and few foreigners are allowed inside. Its borders are tightly controlled on both sides.

U.S. military officials in Seoul said they could not independently confirm the South Korean report, and that conditions were normal at the truce village of Panmunjom, where meetings between the south and north are held.

The state-run Korean Broadcasting System said North Korean announcement had been heard at six points along the western sector of the DMZ.

There was no explanation why North Korea would disclose such information over DMZ loudspeakers, which normally are used for propaganda broadcasts.

"TERRA NOVA" CONCLUDES — The last local performance of "Terra Nova" at Western Texas College is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in the Fine Arts Theatre. The play is based on the journals of a doomed expedition of explorers to the South Pole. In the scene below, Wilson (Jamie Cofer), Scott (Jeff Milburn), Oates (Jim Miller) and Bowers (Bret Dillon) discuss suicide as relief from the agonies of frostbite, fatigue and hunger. At right, Scott wrestles with his conscience and a vial of morphine beneath the spectre of rival Norwegian explorer Amundsen (Jim Rainbolt). Tickets to the performance are priced at $5 for adults and $3 for students. (SDN Staff Photos by Noble B. Young)

Public comment sought on FM 1611

County residents will have an opportunity Tuesday to air their views on the proposed extension of FM 1611.

A public hearing to determine the fate of the proposal is set by the Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the district courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse.

The hearing is part of the process required before the proposed western truck loop around the city can be constructed.

If the state elects to proceed with the project, the county will be required to provide a right-of-way--a provision which could result in land condemnation action.

State officials with the highway department's Abilene office met with county commissioners on May 12 to determine if the county wished them to proceed with the plan. Some 30 county residents attended that session.

In response to the proposal, the court split 2-2 on a motion to accept the state's minute order for the project.

A vote from County Judge Preston Wilson was required to break the tie, a decision he held off making until the following week.

In a special called session, Wilson voted against a motion by Pct. 2 Commissioner Duaine Davis to reject the minute order. Before a group of some 20 citizens, Wilson then broke another 2-2 tie when Pct. 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. moved to accept the order.

With the affirmative nod, state officials made surveys of the area and wrote a deed describing the road's path. Last month, the date for the public hearing was set.

On Sept. 25, commissioners accepted the highway department field notes and drawings of the area. The court also hired J.N. "Joe" Montgomery with the firm Austin-Foster Appraisal Associates of Abilene to appraise the needed right-of-way.

Although court members accepted the appraisal during their Nov. 3 meeting, they have not released this figure.

Tuesday's session is scheduled to allow public comments from county residents.

Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design of the road will be displayed at the public hearing.

As proposed, the highway will extend FM 1611 south from FM 1607 for approximately 1.8 miles.

Imported oil

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. oil imports average 5 million barrels a day, the highest level since 1981, according to a Harvard University study released today that called for a $10-a-barrel tariff to reverse the trend.

The rising dependence on imported fuel poses a renewed threat to the country's energy and national security, asserted the study, by Harry G. Broadman and William W. Hogan, of Harvard's Energy and Environmental Policy Center.

Hurt by fall

David Mainka, 24, an employee of Texas Electric Service Co. was undergoing treatment at the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room at 11:30 a.m. Monday after falling from a TESCO pole.

Scurry County EMS staffers transported Mainka to Cogdell after being called to the scene shortly after 10:30 a.m.

The accident occurred near 30th St. and Ave. E, where TESCO crews were working replacing drop lines.

Reportedly, Mainka fell some 10 ft., landing on his back.

The extent of his injuries were not known Monday morning.

Donor records likely to fall

The previous donor record for a Scurry County blood drive is 193 pints, and workers hope to easily surpass that mark Tuesday as a special "M*A*S*H" drive is conducted.

Attendants from United Blood Services of Lubbock will be dressed like U.S. Army medics and the site for the drive will be the Snyder National Guard Armory.

It is hoped as many as 300 donors might be counted. In anticipation of this, the drive hours have been expanded. Donors may give from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Also as a special incentive, door prizes will be given away all during the day and every donor may choose from a variety of gifts provided by UBS. Gifts offered include a T-shirt, a cap, a mug or a "slug-a-mug."

The door prizes, donated by local merchants, will be given away every 45 minutes with all donors eligible.

Merchants donating gifts include Snyder Drug, Suits Us, Travis Flowers, Toys Galore, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy, Merle Norman, Anthony's, Art Style Beauty Salon, Hastings, Bar-H-Bar, Hallmark and Sunnyside.

Inmate lawsuit names county sheriff, other

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong is preparing an answer on behalf of Sheriff Keith Collier to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed in Lubbock federal court by Scurry County Jail inmate Danny Dell Way.

The 34-year-old Way has been held here in lieu of bond set at $5,000 since a Scurry County grand jury indicted him in October for one count of possession of a controlled substance.

He is also under indictment in Erath County (Stephenville) for three counts of manufacture of a controlled substance with bonds set at $500,000 on each of those charges.

Way was picked up here Sept. 21 when he returned to an east Snyder residence he had rented.

Police had seized chemicals and lab equipment allegedly used for the manufacture of amphetamine from the residence. The house's contents came to police attention after neighborhood children told their parents they had found a white powder while playing in the house.

In his petition filed in federal court in Lubbock — naming both Collier and Erath County Sheriff David O. Coffee as defendants — Way alleges that he was denied legal counsel upon his arrest in Snyder and for the seizure of his property in Stephenville.

Armstrong is to reply to that allegation via a written brief to be submitted to Judge Halbert O. Woodward in the next 30 days.

Rotation diet is used by millions, but does it work?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Since its introduction as a way to help Nashville melt a million pounds, Dr. Martin Katahn's Rotation Diet has spread to other cities and even abroad.

He's sold a million copies of his book, "The Rotation Diet," and supermarket chains have joined the bandwagon. But does the diet work over the long term? And if so, why?

A small crew of researchers at Vanderbilt University, where the diet was first tried, is working to trace as many users as possible to find some answers.

It's too early to tell whether the nation's "rotators" are keeping the fat off for extended periods.

Katahn, a Vanderbilt psychology professor who developed the diet following his own lifelong effort to slim down, is confident that they are losing significant amounts of weight and keeping it off.

Whatever the results, the bearded, bespectacled Katahn is becoming a wealthy man.

"I've got over 10 million people doing it. I've accomplished something that every nutritionist and physician dreams of," he said in a recent interview. "I will make millions."

Grocery stores and other sponsors are soaking up extra business and publicity through community rotation efforts in more than 1,100 communities across the country. Similar campaigns, in which the diet is distributed free and weigh-in stations are set up in stores, are planned to begin in January in Canada, England, New Zealand, Australia and Bermuda.

In addition, U.S. Air Force commissaries have asked to particiate on bases worldwide. The same goes for U.S. Army bases in Germany.

The diet sets day-by-day calorie-intake schedules, lasting three weeks per rotation, for men and women dieters.

For a woman, it allows 600 calories daily for three days, then 900 calories a day for the next four days, then 1,200 calories daily for the following seven days, then three more days of 600 calories, followed by four days of 900 calories and, to conclude the rotation, a week of what Katahn calls "maintenance."

That's means the dieter eats as much as he or she feels is needed, without overeating.

For a man, the rotation adds 600 calories a day to the allowance for women.

The diet is outlined in Katahn's best-selling book, which is being translated into Italian, Yiddish, German, French and Portuguese.

Book sales are whipped up by an unusual marketing strategy of getting communities involved in en masse dieting.

About 2,500 stores in the United States flag the allowed foods.

Stock prices fall broadly on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell broadly in early trading today, the first session since the latest development in Wall Street's continuing insider-trading scandal.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off by 7.31 points to 1,866.28 at 10 a.m., a half-hour after the opening bell.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 11-to-4 margin, with 830 stocks lower, 299 higher, and 325 unchanged. Volume on the Big Board came to 23.68 million shares.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced after markets closed Friday that one of the market's best-known arbitragers, Ivan F. Boesky, had agreed to pay $100 million to settle Securities and Exchange Commission charges of insider trading.

Boesky also agreed to plead guilty of a felony count, which carries a penalty of up to five years.

Dear Abby

Sexually Active Teens Must Be Responsible About Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In regard to "Scared," the 15-year-old girl who was in love with her 17-year-old boyfriend, you are way off base. Who are you to say that if a boy doesn't use birth control, he doesn't love her — he's just using her? How do you know if he loves her or not? Maybe the parents of those teen-agers are separated or divorced and those two young people need someone to be close to — someone to love.

I agree, they need to use birth control if they have sex, but instead of coming down so hard on them, you should have told them to go to Planned Parenthood — then given them your opinion about adolescent sex. Abby, they're not children — they're teen-agers in love, striving for their independence. True, they need to have responsibilities with their independence, but for you to tell them they are immature is wrong.

Advice from elders is not usually heeded when teen-agers are put down for their actions.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: You do not say in which paper you read my column, but apparently my reply was edited sharply due to space shortage. This was my reply to "Scared" (age 15) who had sex regularly with her 17-year-old boyfriend without any kind of protection:

DEAR SCARED: First, a boy who uses no protection when he's having sex with a girl doesn't "love" her — he's using her. And a girl who would permit it is a child in a woman's body. Sex is for mature people who can handle parenthood should they accidentally have a child. You obviously don't qualify.

The best birth control is self-control, but for me to tell you that you have no business having sex is useless because you already know it, and are not about to stop because I said so. You can either go on as you are and end up pregnant — which you surely will — or you can tell your mom that you are sexually active and want to go on the pill. Or you can go to a family planning clinic on your own and learn to protect yourself from an unwanted pregnancy or the possibility of a venereal disease. I do not approve of sex for children your age, but if you choose to continue, then you must protect yourself.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the 15-year-old girl who has been having sex with her 17-year-old boyfriend without using any kind of protection: When I was 16, I did the same thing and ended up pregnant. After our son was born, my boyfriend and I got married. Six weeks later we got a divorce. I would be a senior in high school this year, but I had to quit to raise my baby. Now I'm 17 with a 4-month-old baby, no husband, no job and no education.

Don't end up like me. Do yourself a favor and get protection. You can get something over the counter, or go to Planned Parenthood, or go to a doctor other than the family doctor and get on the pill.

You've got your whole life in front of you. Don't mess it up.

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I found a sympathy card that I had addressed and stamped three months ago to send to a friend on the death of a family member. I feel terrible to think that it has not been sent. Now I am wondering if I should mail it at this late date. Or do you think it would open an old wound after all this time?

YEA OR NAY?

DEAR YEA: Send it. The wound is neither "old" nor closed after three months. Sincere sympathy expressed at any time is appreciated.

Majority wouldn't choose baby's sex if possible

NEW YORK (AP) — A boy or a girl? If Americans could choose the sex of babies, nearly three-quarters would refuse the opportunity and let nature take its course, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

Overall, the poll of 1,464 adult Americans found strong resistance to choosing the sex of babies, a choice now possible because of advances in "test tube" fertilization.

Asked what they thought about parents being able to choose the sex of babies, 49 percent in the Media General-AP poll said it was a bad idea and 29 percent said it was good. Twenty-two percent weren' sure.

When asked, "If you were able to choose the sex of a child, would you choose a boy or a girl?" 27 percent of the respondents said they would choose a boy, 16 percent said a girl, and 57 percent had no preference or were unsure.

Among men, 30 percent said they would choose boys and 12 percent would choose girls. About one-quarter of the women also wanted boys, and 20 percent wanted girls.

Respondents were also asked, "If you were given the opportunity to choose the sex of your child, would you take the opportunity to do so, or not?" When the question was phrased that way, 72 percent said they would not do it, 21 percent said they would, and 7 percent were unsure.

In January, what was apparently the first sex-selected test-tube baby was born in Louisiana. The boy, Justin Spencer, was the product of in vitro fertilization, in which eggs were extracted from a woman's ovaries, fertilized with a man's sperm in the laboratory and implanted in the woman's womb. This "test tube" fertilization is done when the couple cannot conceive by natural means.

In Justin's case, doctors used a technique that allowed them to collect sperm with predominantly male chromosomes, thus increasing the chances that the baby would be a boy. Doctors say the technique is about 70 percent effective.

"If it wasn't going to complicate things, I wanted a boy," said Phyllis Spencer, the baby's mother. "There are more girls in the family, and we definitely wanted a boy, you know, to carry on the name."

In the Media General-AP poll, 13 percent of the respondents who preferred boys to girls echoed Mrs. Spencer's feelings about carrying on the family name, while 16 percent said they preferred boys because they already had girls.

Twenty-eight percent said they preferred boys because they understand or like them better and 15 percent said boys are easier to raise. The rest cited other reasons.

Among those who preferred girls, 31 percent said they liked girls better, 25 percent said they already had boys, and 18 percent said girls were easier to raise.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,464 adults across the country Sept. 8-17. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

PAC is developing talent bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the rate they're being elected to Congress, women will reach parity with men in the year 2396. But the Women's Campaign Fund doesn't intend to wait that long.

It's lining up hundreds of aspiring women in congressional districts likely to turn over in the next decade. When the seats come open, so will the doors of the new women's Talent Bank.

"We cannot hope to beat the 410-year rate without recruiting more women to run for these open seats," says Stephanie Solien, executive director of the fund, a political action committee. "Half of the women in Congress today were first elected in open seats. Yet in 1984 and 1986, women ran in less than 40 percent of open seats."

The fund's non-profit research arm, the Women's Campaign Research Fund, has mounted a 10-year drive to locate, motivate and train women to run for Congress. Women now hold only 23 of 435 seats, and three of the four who won contests this month did it in open districts where incumbents had retired.

The candidates of the future are on the lower rungs of the leadership ladder, serving as community volunteers and city council members and state legislators. They may never have thought about running for Congress. They haven't caught Potomac fever — yet.

Hanukkah begins on December 26

By The Associated Press

It happened more than 2,000 years ago, but Jews around the world still celebrate the event every year, usually some time in December.

This year, Hanukkah begins the night of Dec. 26.

It was in the year 165 B.C. that Judah Macabee and his followers defeated three Syrian generals and recaptured and rededicated the temple at Jerusalem.

The Jews had been ruled by Syrian invaders under King Antiochus IV, who commanded them to worship "foreign" gods and burn a sacrifice to Zeus on a Jewish altar in Jerusalem.

Instead, Mattathias Macabee, a Jewish priest, fled to the mountains with his five sons and led a three-year rebellion that eventually overthrew the Syrians. The Macabees ruled until 37 B.C.

Symbol of the holiday, known as the Feast of Lights or Feast of Dedication, is the menorah, a candelabrum with branches for nine candles, lighted in increasing numbers during the eight days of Hanukkah. The menorah symbolizes the story, as related in the Apocrypha, that after cleaning the temple of Syrian idols, the Jews found only one small cruse of oil with which to light their holy lamps. But somehow, the cruse provided oil for eight days.

The holiday is also marked by frying food in oil, with the "latke," a pancake made with grated potatoes and onions, a popular delicacy.

It is also traditional for the children to receive little gifts each day of the holiday and for contributions to be made to the poor.

Children spin dreidels, four-sided tops that contain the acronym for the Hebrew words for "a great miracle happened here."

Henry VIII became king of England in 1509 upon the death of Henry VII.

Maryland enacted North America's first laws of freedom of worship in 1649.

Your Birthday

Nov. 18, 1986

In the year ahead you may periodically experience some unexpected changes. They will be to your ultimate benefit, even the ones that start out dismally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Financial conditions are a trifle unpredictable for you today, but don't gnash your teeth. What you drop in one area, you will pick up in another. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your enthusiasm regarding a cause you are promoting is contagious. However, it might not be strong enough to sway everyone to your side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Early in the day you may think you need help from others in order to be successful. Actually, you'll be far more effective if you operate independently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a good time to invest in new enterprises that are along lines unfamiliar to you. Stick with what you know best.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If there is something important you want to do today, try to get away from people who always tell you how everything should be done. You'll perform better in seclusion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If necessary today, clarify your remarks so that meanings you didn't intend won't be read into them by a short-tempered pal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Should you find yourself in a financial pickle today, even if it's of your own making, seek outside aid. You stand a good chance of receiving help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to be a successful entrepreneur today, knowledge and facts are essential. Charm, wit and one-liners will serve only as door openers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today's assignments might be more trying than usual because your real interest could be focused on something totally unrelated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A rift between you and a friend can be patched up today if you show a willingness to make amends. He or she isn't apt to make the overture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An important objective can best be achieved today by taking the most direct route. Set aside clever tactics until another time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, in competitive sports, don't be overawed by your opponent's flash and dazzle. You can win by totally concentrating on your own abilities.

SHS students win first, second

Teams from Snyder High School took first and second places in their division at the third annual Computer Science Contest held Thursday at Western Texas College.

Teams were divided into two divisions according to the size of the school. Contestants were given eight problems to be solved by the computer. The team completing the most problems was declared the winner, Britt Canada, contest director, said.

The Snyder team of Hayley Vineyard, Jeff Adams and Jugnesh Bakta took first in their division. Second place went to the team of Terri Glasscock, Bryan Thrower and Joel Smith.

The second division consisted of teams from Grady and Stanton high schools. First place was awarded to a team from Grady, with the second and third places going to teams from Stanton.

Judges for the event were Christine Pointeau of Snyder, Heath Blassingame of Colorado City and Torben Marcussen of Australia, all students at WTC.

Chemical spill closes highway

SPRING, Texas (AP) — Several drums carrying poisonous chemicals fell off a truck this morning, forcing the closure of several miles of Interstate 45 north of Houston and sending several people to area hospitals, authorities said.

Five ambulance workers and four Montgomery County sheriff's deputies were taken to area hospitals as a precaution after being exposed to the chemicals, said Spring Volunteer Fire Department dispatcher Allen Sims said.

KPRC-TV also reported than one of their cameramen also was sent to the hospital as a precaution.

The 18-wheel truck, carrying 50-gallon drums filled with chemicals, was involved in a minor accident about 2:30 a.m.

Fans gather for final concert

By THOMAS KOROSEC
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Some recalled how the sound would break the drudgery of a Texas farm day, blowing away the Depression-era dust with a swing beat and a twangy lyric.

Others remembered two-stepping at dance halls in prairie towns and cities across the Southwest — places where the Crystal Springs Hop was king when the steel guitar hummed.

Fond memories and a few tears welled up Sunday as eight men in white hats and steel-blue blazers — Bob Wills' Original Texas Playboys — took the stage and struck up on hits like "San Antonio Rose," "Take Me Back to Tulsa" and "Steel Guitar Rag" for one last time.

Originators and chief practitioners of Western swing music, the Playboys closed a 51-year history of concerts, movies, record-making and radio shows.

For the audience, the two-and-one-half-hour sold-out performance at Fort Worth's Will Rogers Auditorium was wrapped in nostalgia.

"This is something you lived all your life," said Harold Sanders, 55, whose memories of the Playboys date to the late 1930s and a family homestead outside Wichita, Kan.

Sanders recalled his father breaking from work on an oil lease at 12:30 p.m. to tune in the Texas Playboys' half-hour radio show on KVOO in Tulsa.

"I guess I remember my father most — I lost him six months ago," said Sanders, who wept openly during the show. "It brings back memories of us, of him.

"I feel sad to think the Texas Playboys will be no more, I feel very deeply about it," he said. "I know this is a bit like a funeral but I hope the music never dies."

Betty Stapler, 50, remembered telling her parents in small-town Hamlin that she would be spending the night at a slumber party, only to skip out with her girlfriends and drive 20 miles to Texas Playboys' dances.

"That was around '50 and my parents were strict Baptists. They didn't allow dancing," Stapler said. "I went to a lot of 'slumber parties,' so to speak, and I danced every dance."

James Robert "Bob" Wills, the band leader who died in 1975, "was kind of a handsome man," she recalled. "But it was the music and the way he worked the crowd — he could entertain me, and I loved it."

James Baker was 17 years old in 1935, the year he started going to Fort Worth's long-gone Crystal Springs, an open-air dance hall.

"Well, yeah, that is where you met the girls. In those days you could go out and pick you one out and go dancing," he said. "Bob Wills was everybody's favorite band. Sometime they would double-band with Milton Brown, he was out of Fort Worth. Man, was that something."

The dance hall closed, but not before Baker and his late wife took spins around the dance floor to make her memory hang with him at Sunday's performance.

"You'll find a lot of people here with memories," he said.

Before the show began, scores of fans made their way to the Bob Wills Museum, which opened last year in the Stockyards.

There they strolled thoughtfully past framed record albums, photographs, and a collection of Wills' saddles before settling in front of a video screen showing Wills movies — pictures like Wyoming Hurricane, billed on a poster as "Rip roaring Rangers versus rustlers. Rough riding and romance."

One step closer to the moon

By James Jacoby

You could build a ladder to the moon if you had a rung for every contract that has been made because of a defender's panic.

Today's deal features a normal competitive auction. Although South based his opening bid on minimal values, which shrank even more when his spade king was devalued, he still competed with three hearts. His objective was to get the opponents to three spades (where they would likely be set), but his partner suddenly donned rose-colored glasses and bid game. Mind you, the play for game would be reasonable if declarer's spade king were a club or diamond king.

How can you distinguish a game try from simply competing? When your suit has been raised and the opponents compete further, to make a game try you must bid a new suit. Bidding one higher in the agreed-upon trump suit is merely competitive. The exception occurs when the rank of the opponents' suit is immediately below yours. Since there is no artificial try for game available anymore, the presumption is that bidding higher invites game.

Now let's look at a defender's panic. Declarer drew three rounds of trump and played a spade to his king. West took the ace and now imagined that South might have started with three little diamonds. So he played the diamond ace, unfortunately netting the jack from East. West needn't have panicked, since he should have realized that East must have K-J alone of diamonds and therefore the only chance for setting four hearts would be to find East with the club queen. But instead of playing clubs, West played another diamond, and school was out.

Rev. W.N. Otwell describes days as fugitive from state

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Rev. W.N. Otwell said he became a modern-day Paul Revere during his five weeks as a Texas fugitive and crisscrossed six states to warn people of the government's attempt to encroach on religious freedoms.

Otwell slipped away Oct. 6 from the Austin courtroom where he was ordered to appear for refusing to license his church-operated boys' home in the Fort Worth suburb of Forest Hills.

Otwell told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that while the judge banged his gavel to begin hearings on the issue, he was heading toward the Rio Grande Valley.

Otwell said he stayed in Alamo, near McAllen, with a supporter.

"We kept pretty quiet, but I preached there," Otwell said.

He later crossed into Mexico at Cuidad Miguel Aleman for dinner.

Meanwhile, State District Judge Paul R. Davis of Austin issued an arrest warrant for Otwell.

After learning of the arrest bulletin, Otwell drove to Shreveport, La., which would become his fugitive headquarters.

From there he traveled to preach at locations across the country, including Indianapolis, Ind., Eastpoint, Ga., Oklahoma City, Los Angeles and Ardmore, Okla. His travel money was supplemented by various supporters.

In Indiana, Otwell preached at Rev. Greg Dixon's Indianapolis Baptist Temple and spoke at the Coalition for Unregistered Churches.

But in Georgia, Rev. Robert McCurry, pastor of Calvary Temple, canceled Otwell's appearance there, fearing a police stakeout.

Otwell made television appearances on Pat Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network and on a show that featured Western movie heroine Dale Evans and evangelist Jerry Falwell, telling the nation why he refused to seek a license for his boys' home.

After the program, taped in a Los Angeles suburb, he wandered lost through the maze of freeways there, missing a scheduled preaching appearance.

"I got lost in all that traffic and never made it," Otwell said. "I turned the wrong way on Wilshire Boulevard, then got on the freeway and ended up in Chinatown. I didn't know where I was."

Otwell then flew to Oklahoma City, taking a circuitous route to avoid Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Driving south from there, Otwell and his son, Randall, were injured when they stopped to help victims of a three-car accident on Interstate 35. A man who was flagging traffic was killed when a passing car plowed into the wreckage, knocking the Otwells into a ditch.

"He (the man flagging traffic) hollered 'Look out,' and I saw headlights coming toward me," Otwell said. "That's all I remembered until I woke up in the emergency room."

Otwell was knocked unconscious and suffered facial bruises.

Thinking the accident a sign from God to avoid Texas, Otwell then journeyed to Ardmore, Okla., where supporters from his church came to a hotel to greet him.

But Otwell said he grew tired of moving from state to state and decided to come back and resolve his conflict with the state.

Before surrendering in Fort Worth, Otwell drove from Oklahoma to Shreveport.

On Nov. 10, Otwell was booked, fingerprinted and told Fort Worth authorities he was ready to go to jail.

But Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox argued for his release, and all charges and fines were dropped after Otwell agreed to cease operating his boys' home in the Fort Worth suburb of Forest Hills.

"I think Mattox was arguing for his political life," Otwell said. "If they had thrown me in jail, he might as well hang up his political hat."

AIDS hospital to lure victims to Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas is expected to lure many patients with the deadly Acquired Immune Deficiency Snydrome because the state has the only AIDS treatment and research institution between both coasts, a doctor says.

"Texas will become a focus for people with this disease because they have nowhere else to go," Dr. Peter Mansell, medical director of the Institute for Immunological Disorders in Houston, says.

Mansell, who has spent almost five years researching AIDS and treating people who have the disease, says the only evaluation centers for the disease in the United States are on the East and West Coasts and at the Houston facility.

Mansell's remarks came at a Texas Department of Health conference on AIDS aimed at mobilizing Texas communities to combat the epidemic through education about its prevention and social effects.

Experts at the conference last week estimated that AIDS cases will increase to 275,000 between now and 1991. There are now 27,500 AIDS cases reported nationwide, including 1,704 in Texas.

Few AIDS patients survive longer than 22 months after diagnosis of the disease, the experts said. AIDS is transmitted sexually and through contaminated blood, but not by casual contact, they said.

HAS THIS EVER HAPPENED TO YOU?

Auto Accident?

Even a minor fender-bender can cause whiplash, spinal misalignment, pinched nerves, and muscle spasms, which, if undetected and uncorrected, can make your body susceptible to arthritis, joint degeneration, disc degeneration or other serious problems.

Most Insurance Plans Cover Chiropractic.

Following any auto accident, no matter how minor, it is important — and makes good common sense — to get a chiropractic checkup.

We offer free consultation and spinal function test. If x-rays and treatment are indicated, automobile, liability, no-fault, and/or group health insurance usually cover the costs in full.

Back To School! Part II

The Texas State Teachers Association in your town and this newspaper want to be partners with parents in helping kids learn more. Here is Part two of a seven-part series.

Healthy bodies and alert minds are valuable learning tools of children. This week, TSTA members recommend the following to mentally prepare students for school.

Your own reactions and attitudes will go a long way toward determining how your child feels about school. Help your child look forward to school. Talk about it in a friendly way so your child will think of it as a happy place.

Discuss school activities, school friends, new experiences and new things to learn.

If your child expresses doubts or fears, don't pass them off. Try to answer all questions in a positive, reassuring way and let the child know that there will be friendly people at school to help on those first uncertain days.

Listen to your child. Consider what he or she has to say carefully. Try to avoid stringing together an endless line of "NOs." It is good to add "do this instead." Offering a substitute activity promotes a positive view of life.

Avoid discouraging a child about a weakness at any age. Don't use belittling terms. Instead talk proudly about strengths and realistically about weaknesses.

Practice the best route to take to school or the bus stop.

Find out the teacher's name and be sure your child knows it, too.

If possible, visit the school building with your child before the first day and explore the school grounds so they are familiar to your child before school starts.

Proudly display your child's accomplishments within the home. This includes everything from a five-year-old's artwork to a teenager's merit badge.

Give your child options to make their own decisions whenever you can. And most of all, give your child all your love and encouragement to succeed in school.

Probe that snared Boesky widening

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 10 Wall Street professionals were subpoenaed last week in the inside-trading investigation that led to a $100 million penalty against Ivan Boesky, The New York Times reported today.

Normal relations endorsed

By The Associated Press

Some of the Americans who were held hostage in Tehran for 444 days endorse President Reagan's steps toward normal relations with Iran, but several caution that swapping arms for hostages could undermine U.S. efforts against terrorism.

The United States should renew diplomatic relations with Iran, but not "in the context of bailing out individual hostages," said Moorhead Kennedy Jr., who was the third-ranking diplomat at the U.S. embassy in Tehran when it was seized in 1979.

In a speech Thursday night, President Reagan said that the United States, in a policy reversal, had sold some arms to Iran, but "did not trade weapons or anything else for hostages."

Reagan said the United States could move cautiously to re-establish relations with Iran if the Iranians end their alleged support for terrorism and move toward peace in their war with Iraq.

Bruce Laingen, who was the charge d'affaires at the Tehran embassy when it was seized, backed Reagan and said the American public "needs to get over its hang-up about Iran."

"A long-term objective, and a very important one in the Middle East, is to find some basis, in time, for resumed relations with the government of Iran," Laingen said.

Proponents of renewed relations with Iran have no shortage of economic, political and strategic reasons to cite. The nation of 45 million people, with an increasingly influential emigre community in the United States, borders on the Soviet Union to the north and the oil-rich Persian Gulf to the south.

"It's an important country, whether you like it or not," said Richard Queen, a former hostage who works at the State Department and says relations eventually have to be restored.

"Given their need for arms and foreign exchange, there is no doubt that there's some opportunity for a relationship to be re-established, and I think that's long overdue," said Kennedy, executive director of the Council on International Understanding.

But with lingering memories of 52 American hostages spending 444 days in captivity in Tehran, Reagan's initiative brought an emotional backlash from Democrats in Congress. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, for example, said the United States should not be doing business with a country that "took our diplomats hostage and used them to humiliate this country."

The former hostages themselves were more forgiving of the Iranians, but worried about the effect on terrorism.

Barry Rosen, a former hostage who is now assistant to the president of Brooklyn College in New York City, said, "The idea of exchanging arms for hostages is a contradiction of American counterterrorism policy."

He said the administration was naive to think it was dealing with moderates in Iran because, "They all see the United States as the Great Satan."

Headquarters are to be demolished

DALLAS (AP) — Neighborhood groups are complaining about the proposed demolition of the building that has served as Dr Pepper's headquarters since 1947 to make way for a new development.

"It's a shame. It disappoints me," said Scott Chase, president of the Greenland Hills Neighborhood Association, south of the Dr Pepper site.

The art deco-style landmark featuring the "10-2-4" clock and distinctive Dr Pepper sign will be transformed into a mixed-use development that will include office buildings, hotel facilities and a major retail mall, according to Harbord Cos., which owns the 29-acre site.

Harbord purchased the property from Dr Pepper in August 1985 for between $20 million and $25 million. Since the sale Dr Pepper has leased the site. The lease will expire in 1990.

A construction date for the new development has not been set.

Chase said the building and the clock sign in front do not have official historic status.

"If it were historic we wouldn't tear it down," said John Albers, president and chief executive officer of Dr Pepper.

The sign was retained in preliminary plans for the new development, Albers said.

Earlier last week, Albers said Dr Pepper and Harbord were negotiating whether his company would have its offices within the new development or move. Albers said that if the company were to remain at its present site, it probably would occupy a new 12-story office building.

Dr Pepper recently acquired Seven-Up, and the majority of Seven-Up management is moving to Dallas.

Tom's Marine carries Kero-Sun heaters

Cool mornings and evenings are here and winter is just around the corner. Now is the time to start thinking about the Kero-Sun portable heater.

Efficiency is the key word in describing a Kero-Sun heater. These portable heaters give out instant heat for only pennies an hour. And since the Kero-Sun uses only clean-burning kerosene fuel, you get over 30 hours of warmth on less than two gallons of fuel. That means more pennies in your pocket.

Tom's Marine is the exclusive carrier of Kero-Sun heaters in Snyder, and Tom offers many different models of heaters to choose from and can help you find one to suit your needs.

All Kero-Sun heater models have been tested for combustible by-products. They can be operated continuously with complete safety. They burn with no soot or smoke and for complete peace of mind, every model is equipped with a unique shut-off device which instantly puts out the flame in the event of a tip-over.

Another feature of the heater is the push button lighting system. Press a button and a battery powered electric igniter automatically starts glowing right above the heater's wick. Each heater comes complete with batteries and a fuel syphon pump for easy filling.

With all these features: easy to start, clean operation, advanced safety features, no chimney installation, long running, easy to fill, economical kerosene fuel and extremely simple maintenance, what could be a better way to help keep your home warm this winter?

If you are looking for a garage door opener, Tom's Marine is the place to go for sales and service of the ever popular Genie Garage Door Opener. They also carry parts, transmitters and receivers.

Let Tom Machen and David Cunnington of Tom's Marine set you up for the chilly autumn and cold winter ahead with a Kero-Sun heater. They also have all the accessories for the Kero-Sun heaters if you are in need of parts.

NOT LOOKING FORWARD TO COLD WEATHER? Tom's Marine is ready to help keep you warm with a Kero-Sun heater tailored for your needs and easy on your pocket. Tom's Marine carries a full line of Kero-Sun heaters and Genie Garage Door Openers. (SDN Staff Photo)

Three wounded in Killeen standoff

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) - A police officer and three others were wounded when a man armed with a shotgun began firing at random in a neighborhood in this Central Texas city.

The unidentified man was taken into police custody early today after SWAT team members fired tear gas into the house where the man was hiding.

Killeen Police Capt. Jim McCarroll said the incident began when two officers were sent to the neighborhood to investigate a report of a person firing a shotgun.

Officer Jeff Fohler, one of the first two officers sent to the scene, was taken to Scott & White Hospital in nearby Temple for treatment of a gunshot wound, but was released a short time later, McCarroll said.

McCarroll said Fohler was struck by two buckshot pellets because his bullet-proof vest absorbed most of the shotgun blast.

The others, including two men and a woman, were taken to Metroplex Hospital and Darnall Army Community Hospital.

Treatment of lung problems

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was recently diagnosed as having emphysema. I had a drain inserted to remove fluid from the pleural cavity. There was no infection, so I received no antibiotics. There's no new liquid forming, but enough was left in so I'll probably have to have another drain. Is this the most appropriate treatment?

DEAR READER — Not for emphysema. Emphysema is a form of chronic lung disease characterized by a loss of the feathery air sacs within the lungs, where oxygen and carbon dioxide pass between the bloodstream and the air.

In the normal lung, there are billions of these tiny air sacs. The thin linings of the sacs provide an enormous surface area for the diffusion of gases. In emphysema, these air sacs coalesce to form larger sacs that are less efficient for gas exchange because of decreased surface area. In addition, emphysema patients have difficulty exhaling stale air because the abnormally large air sacs do not empty; there is a bottleneck where they meet the smaller bronchial tubes.

In effect, emphysema causes an overinflation of the lungs, so that patients cannot expel used-up air and replace it with oxygen-rich air. Treatment usually is directed toward improving the mechanics of breathing (with exercises), reducing spasm of the bronchial tubes (opening the tubes widely to enhance exhalation) and increasing the amount of oxygen in inspired air (by administering oxygen from a machine).

Pleural effusion — the presence of liquid in the chest cavity — is not ordinarily a part of emphysema. Obviously, with fluid present, lung tissue is compressed and shoved aside. Therefore, breathing becomes more difficult. Emphysema patients, who already have trouble breathing, will have further reduction in breathing capability if there is fluid in the chest cavity — as there may be with heart failure. However, the presence of a pleural effusion usually indicates another disease or late complication of emphysema.

Although pleural effusion can sometimes be "medically" drained using diuretic drugs (kidney stimulants), surgical drainage with a tube or catheter is preferable when there is a large amount of fluid. The drainage will improve breathing and can be lifesaving, but it is not, strictly speaking, a treatment for emphysema.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, LIVING WITH CHRONIC LUNG DISEASE. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Tax law changes proposed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government proposed a series of changes in tax rules for businesses and individuals in an effort to boost the amount of money that flows into the coffers of the cash-short nation.

The Treasury Department said late Sunday the tax reform is part of proposals by the government to "break the vicious circle in which the public finances are immersed as a result of the inflationary process."

"Inflation deteriorates the tax collection and tends to perpetuate the deficit position of the public finances," it said.

Under the proposals, the maximum tax rate on businesses would be gradually lowered from 42 percent to 35 percent and from 55 percent to 50 percent for individual taxpayers.

The department said the tax erosion was most noticeable in the rules that permit businesses to deduct the full amount of their interest payments in figuring out their tax burden.

Tax collections from business income, it said, plunged from nearly 2.9 percent of the gross domestic product in 1980 to an estimated 1.6 percent this year. Gross domestic product is the value of all goods and services produced by the economy.

As a result, the statement said the Treasury proposed limiting the deduction to the amount of interest paid after adjustment for inflation. Permitting the full deduction of interest payments, it said, has encouraged companies to take on more debt.

"These modifications represent a structural change of great importance," the statement said.

The tax change, it said, would be phased in gradually over four years and be fully in place in 1991.

The department also proposed changes in depreciation allowances for fixed assets purchased by businesses and deductions for raw materials.

GOP backs English as official language

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Hispanic Republicans are puzzled by the state party's lack of response to their offers to help in recent campaigns, according to the leader of the Republican National Hispanic Assembly.

"We did not have one single time when the Republican Party of Texas called on us for anything," Jose Aceves of El Paso told the State Republican Executive Committee Saturday.

"Is it possible that the Republican Party of Texas is talking out of both sides of its mouth?" he asked.

Aceves spoke to the committee before it voted to back the move to make English the official language of the state and nation. He said his group opposed the resolution as unnecessary.

No committee members spoke against the resolution, although several voted against it in an unrecorded voice vote. The vote had been postponed in August until after the November election.

Committee member Holly Decherd of Austin said the resolution is a way to make the nation "united with one language." She said other nations, particularly Canada, have had difficulty coping with two languages.

State GOP staff members said the resolution approved Saturday calls for amendments to the Texas and United States constitutions to make English the official language.

Roy Ontiveros of Dallas, an official with the American Ethnic Coalition, spoke in favor of the resolution, saying, "For the sake of unity ... English should be the official language."

If English is designated the official language, the requirements for bilingual ballots and other official documents could change.

In his speech to the committee, Aceves said Gov.-elect Bill Clements' campaign worked well with the Republican National Hispanic Assembly, but the state party did not. GOP attorney general candidate Roy Barrera Jr. could have been elected "with proper support and cooperation from the state party," according to Aceves.

"We reached out and made several efforts to work with the Republican Party of Texas ... only to be put off and get no results," Aceves said.

The remarks sparked a defense from Strake:

"In my opinion, there has been nothing but openness and a forward attitude of invitation and welcome, cooperation and a spirit of full participation in the Republican Party of Texas by the people of Hispanic descent," he said, drawing applause.

Candidate asks for vote recount

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A Democratic candidate who lost a seat in the Texas House by 19 votes said she wants a recount in a hard-fought race apparently won by a Republican for the first time since the turn of the century.

The difference between Janey Lack and Republican Steve Holzheauser is seven-hundredths of 1 percent. Of 25,779 votes cast in the District 32 race, Holzheauser received 12,899 votes to 12,880 for Mrs. Lack.

Mrs. Lack filed a petition with the secretary of state's office Friday afternoon asking for a recount. Her petition included a deposit of $1,210 to cover the costs. The recount is expected to be conducted this week.

Pilot project teaches sex education

HOUSTON (AP) — A pilot project that teaches sex education is the first of its kind in a school district where officials are concerned with the increasing number of teen-age pregnancies.

Several hundred sixth-grade students at three middle schools in the Houston Independent School District are taking part in "family-life education" courses. The voluntary, 12-week course includes sex education.

Such courses had been taboo in the district except for general disucssion in health classes. But earlier this year, school board members approved the courses after expressing dismay over the pregnancy rate among teenagers.

At the district's Kay Ongoing Education School, a campus for pregnant teens, the number of students increased from 302 in 1981 to 453 in 1985, officials said.

School officials say more younger students are becoming pregnant. Two fifth-graders attended the Kay campus last year.

Eventually, district officials hope to expand the new courses to all schools.

Many of the lessons center on decision-making and the consequences. Sexually transmitted diseases, including acquired immune deficiency syndrome, also are discussed.

Teachers in the new sex education program say the youths ask plenty of questions.

"No question is dumb," said teacher Barbara Meadoughs, citing one of the rules of the class.

The subject of birth control is discussed at all three schools — Welch, Williams and Marshall middle schools. Ms. Meadoughs said she tells the students the best method is abstinence because it is 100 percent effective.

Hillside serves area for several years

Hillside Memorial Gardens, located on the Colorado City Highway, has been serving Snyder and the Scurry County area for many years.

Hillside Memorial Gardens is a perpetual care cemetery governed by the State Banking Department. The one price you pay for perpetual care is the only one you ever have to pay. There are no yearly dues necessary for the upkeep of the property.

The staff at Hillside Memorial Gardens is committed to serving your best interests. W.C. and Greg Graves will be glad to help you with any of your pre-need planning. Everyone plans for the future in one way or another whether with savings or insurance to take care of something that might happen. Why not prepare for the inevitable? Making the decision to purchase a Family Memorial Estate plan now insures that the decision is made together and one is not left to make it alone. Statistics show that these decisions are made 67 percent of the time by widows and children and 33 percent of the time by husbands.

The purchase of a Family Memorial Estate plan can also be a savings plan because the deed is the equivalent of a paid up insurance policy.

Lots at Hillside Memorial Gardens are reasonably priced and they offer a Pre-Need Financial Plan of only 20 percent down and small monthly payments without interest or carrying charges. If the only time you have is on the weekends, Greg can be contacted at 573-5864 and will be glad to help you anytime.

Granite and bronze memorials are available at Hillside Monument Works and Greg goes to great lengths to see that the finished product is one that pleases the family members and reflects the individualism of the loved one for whom the monument has been created.

The staff at Hillside realizes that they provide an important service to the community and work hard to maintain the trust and confidence of the people. They will be happy to counsel with anyone at anytime concerning their present or future needs. Peso devaluation hurts businesses

HOUSTON (AP) — The peso devaluation and its devastating effects on Mexico's economy also are making life difficult for some Houston merchants who had lucrative businesses catering to the Mexican buyer.

Those merchants have learned during the past four years to depend less on travelers from Mexico, prompting some to turn their attention to American buyers.

For Mahmud Yusuf, the effects of Mexico's economic problems hit home one day back in September 1983 when Mexican banks were nationalized. He was in Rome on a business trip for Copperfield, an exclusive men's clothing store he owns in the Galleria.

At the time, the store depended on Mexican customers for 80 percent of its business. When Yusuf heard the news, he called his store to see if business had been affected.

"They said it was like someone had stopped the flow," he said.

Yusuf and other Houston merchants still speak fondly of the days before the drastic peso devaluation when Mexican tourists spent freely on their trips to the city.

Tar Heels forcast as best cage team

by The Associated Press

A highly regarded group of freshmen may have lifted North Carolina into the No. 1 spot in the preseason college basketball poll, but Coach Dean Smith is afraid the Tar Heels might be overrated.

"The expectations come from recruiting writers," Smith said after learning that North Carolina is No. 1 in the Associated Press poll. "By March, I hope we do get some help from our freshman group. We need some help from one or two of them immediately."

Six-foot-10 J.R. Reid was one of the most hotly recruited freshmen in the nation, and he will be joined by veterans Kenny Smith, Jeff Lebo and Joe Wolf. Scott Williams and Pete Chilcutt are two other freshmen who could help the Tar Heels, who lost Brad Daugherty, Steve Hale and Warren Martin to graduation.

"The key to our team is Joe Wolf's and Kenny Smith's leadership," Smith said. "Those two young men are tremendous players, and if they can stay healthy ... we will play well in March.

"I don't see how we can possibly be better than we were last year, but I think that may be true of everybody else."

The Tar Heels received 35 first-place votes and 1,215 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, while Louisville, which eliminated North Carolina in last year's NCAA tournament in the regional semifinals, received 22 first-place votes and 1,196 points.

The Cardinals, 32-7 last season, return only two starters from their national championship team, junior forward Herbert Crook and center Pervis Ellison, voted the most outstanding player in the NCAA tournament as a freshman.

Indiana and Purdue were third and fourth, respectively, topping the list of four Big Ten Conference schools in the Top 20. The Atlantic Coast, Southeastern and Big East conferences had three teams each.

Indiana, which returns three double-figure scorers - including senior guard Steve Alford - from last season's 21-8 team, received two first-place votes and 956 points. Purdue, 22-10, matched Indiana's first-place vote total and had 935 points.

Two other teams received first-place votes, No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas, which had two, and No. 6 Georgia Tech, which had one. Nevada-Las Vegas had 901 points, while Georgia Tech finished with 770.

Oklahoma, Kansas, Navy and Iowa rounded out the Top Ten.

Oklahoma and Kansas, both members of the Big Eight, received 684 and 645 points, respectively, while Navy, anchored by 6-11 center David Robinson, had 560, and Iowa, another member of the Big Ten, had 531.

Kentucky led off the Second Ten just as it did in last year's preseason poll. The Wildcats went on to a 32-4 record and a No. 3 ranking in the final poll.

Following Kentucky in the Second Ten were fellow Southeastern Conference members Auburn and Alabama.

Sampson, Wiggins ignite Rockets to win over Cavs

by The Associated Press

The Houston Rockets are celebrating the return of Ralph Sampson and the return of Mitchell Wiggins' jump shot.

Sampson, who missed the defending Western Conference champions' first six games, played 27 minutes on his still-tender left ankle Sunday night and contributed 11 points, six assists and three blocked shots as the Rockets defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 134-106.

Wiggins was the offensive star, however, hitting 13 of 18 field-goal attempts and scoring a career-high 30 points, 19 in the third quarter. He went into the game hitting 38 percent of his shots.

"It's a new dimension with Ralph back there taking pressure off the shooters," Wiggins said. "The guards haven't been shooting that well, but we've been stressing it in practice. I'm just glad I got out of my shooting slump."

In other NBA games, it was Washington 124, Indiana 111; Philadelphia 103, Los Angeles Clippers 90; Portland 124, Utah 103; and Los Angeles Lakers 113, Sacramento 111.

Wiggins, who was 1-for-10 from the field against Dallas last Wednesday, was 8-for-10 in the third quarter against the Cavaliers.

The Rockets forced 30 Cleveland turnovers, leading to 37 points, and collected 21 steals, six of them by center Akeem Olajuwon, who also scored 24 points.

Lakers 113, Kings 111

Magic Johnson got 34 points and 12 assists, including a 12-foot jumper with one second left, giving Los Angeles its 31st consecutive victory at home against the Kings.

Derek Smith led Sacramento with 26 points.

Bullets 124, Pacers 111

Moses Malone had 38 points and 21 rebounds, leading a 67-46 rebounding advantage for Washington over Indiana.

Jeff Malone added 25 points for the Bullets, who led 31-18 after the first quarter, then saw the Pacers rally for a 52-51 edge in the first minute of the second half. But Charles Jones' only two baskets of the game triggered a 37-17 spurt that gave the Bullets an 88-69 lead after three periods.

Wayman Tisdale had 24 points and Clint Richardson 20 for Indiana.

Last-second shot sinks WTC

It was a great shot or a lucky one, depending upon which team you were rooting for. Either way, Chris Herrmann's 45-foot, desparation hook shot at the buzzer was a winning one.

His shot, and teammate Tracy Guy's 30-footer six seconds earlier, snatched victory from the jaws of defeat in the truest sense as Hill College defeated Western Texas here Saturday night, 74-71.

The loss spoiled what may have been the best performances of the season by Western's Amos Jones and Igor Gojanovic. Jones scored 16 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. A number of his points came off the offensive board.

Gojanovic, a 6-7 freshman from Switzerland, was a positive force for the Westerners in the waning moments. He scored a go-ahead, 70-68 basket on a nifty assist from Alvin Lee with 1:13 left, then got a key rebound at the other end when Hill's Gerald Peoples missed a would-be tying shot. He also provided a three-point, 71-68, advantage with 13 seconds left when he hit the front end of a free throw situation. Unfortunately, he missed the back end.

A year ago, it wouldn't have mattered. With the introduction of the three-point line this season, however, it was crucial.

Hill took the ball and tied the game on Guy's 25-foot jump shot with six seconds to play. Western had a chance to keep the game out of overtime, but John Lewis was called for traveling with just one tick left on the clock.

The ball was inbounded at mid-court to Herrmann, and the 6-0 sophomore hooked a right-handed shot over and around two Westerners. The ball sailed cleanly through the hoop as the buzzer sounded, leaving WTC players and fans stunned.

"I told my kids after they game that Hill deserved to win. Anytime you let a team get that opportunity it can happen," said WTC Coach Phil Spradling. "We never should have given them a chance to be that close near the end of the game.

"We're still not playing to our capabilities. We get a lead but we're not building on our lead. We have a lot of young guys. Alvin Lee and John Lewis were really the only ones we had out there that had much playing time at all last year. We have a lot of learning to do," said the coach.

Lee led all scorers with 21 points. Jones had 16 and Lewis 13. Gojanovic added 9.

Lee, an all-conference, all-region player, had only a handful of points at halftime.

"Alvin wasn't hitting and we depend on him quite a bit. The kids really count on him. They expect every shot he takes to go in," said Spradling. "But we have to realize that everybody has a bad night and somebody have to pick up the slack."

Jones did his part in that regard.

"Amos is our most improved player. He is happy playing basketball and he is happy winning. He plays to win. He did a good job on the boards for us. I think all of his points came on rebounds," said the coach.

Carlos Reynolds punched in 16 for the Rebels, who are 4-1 on the season. Marcos Finley had 12 and Raymond Penny notched 10.

The contest was back-and-forth most of the way. Hill worked up a 25-16 lead but Western came back on a three-point play by Kevin Kendrick and baskets by Jones and Lee. Harvey Marshman's free throws tied the game at 27-27 with 6:43 and Lewis put the hosts on top 29-27 via the fastbreak. Hill rallied, however, for a 40-36 halftime lead.

Western's biggest advantage came midway through the second half when Lee got hot and Western got its break going. The score had been tied at 48 with 14:09 left, but Western led 57-51 at about the 10-minute mark.

The Rebels stayed close via the free throw line, though, and went back in front 60-59 with 7:10 left.

Western, 2-2, will take to the road now for a series of games which keep the club out of town until Dec. 8. WTC plays in the McLennan Tournament at Waco on Nov. 21-22, at Cisco on Nov. 24, in the Odessa Tournament Nov. 28-29, at Levelland on Dec. 1 and Angelo State on Dec. 4.

Patriots work miracles to beat Rams

by The Associated Press

New England Coach Raymond Berry already believed in miracles and now Rams Coach John Robinson has reason to believe in rookie quarterback Jim Everett.

Trailing 28-23 with three seconds left and the ball on the Los Angeles' 25-yard line, Patriot quarterback Tony Eason threw a pass up for grabs in the end zone.

Patriots' receiver Stanley Morgan jumped high in a group of Ram defenders to tip the ball, and Irving Fryar slipped through and made the catch in the corner of the end zone for a 30-28 victory Sunday.

"It's called a 'Miracle Right,'" Berry said.

"I was just trying to stay in the end zone," said Fryar, who'd lost two fumbles earlier in the game but also caught a 6-yard scoring pass from Eason midway through the fourth quarter to pull the Patriots to within 28-23.

"Stanley tipped it but I didn't see that. I just got there and it was in my hands," Fryar said.

The final outcome spoiled what was an outstanding NFL debut by Everett. The rookie threw three touchdown passes to rally Los Angeles from a 13-0 deficit in the second quarter.

Elsewhere it was Chicago 13, Atlanta 10; Detroit 13, Philadelphia 11; Pittsburgh 21, Houston 10; Miami 34, Buffalo 24; New Orleans 16, St. Louis 7; Cincinnati 34, Seattle 7; Green Bay 31, Tampa Bay 7; New York Jets 31, Indianapolis 16; New England 30, Los Angeles Rams 28; Dallas 24, San Diego 21; Los Angeles Raiders 27, Cleveland 14; and Denver 38, Kansas City 17.

The Redskins play tonight against the San Francisco 49ers in Washington.

Everett replaced Steve Dils and connected on scoring throws of 34 yards to Henry Ellard and 24 yards to Barry Redden as Los Angeles pulled to within 16-14 by halftime.

Then, after Redden scored on an 11-yard run to give the Rams a 21-16 lead 5:45 into the third quarter, Everett threw a 20-yard scoring pass to Ellard early in the fourth quarter for a 28-16 lead.

Everett, the former Purdue star acquired by the Rams from the Houston Oilers early this season, completed 12 of 19 throws for 193 yards and was not intercepted by the Patriots, who came into the game with the NFL's second-best pass defense.

The victory gave the Patriots an 8-3 record and kept their first-place hopes alive in the AFC East. They trail the Jets by two games. The Rams are 7-4, a half-game behind San Francisco in the NFC West.

Giants 22, Vikings 20

New York, 9-2, took a half game lead over Washington - at least temporarily - when Raul Allegre kicked a 33-yard field goal with 12 seconds left for a victory over Minnesota.

Jets 31, Colts 16

Speedy Wesley Walker caught three touchdown passes and established a career-best with 12 scoring receptions as New York extended its winning streak to nine with a victory over winless Indianapolis.

Ken O'Brien, the league's leading passer, was 20-for-35 for 237 yards, but his performance was inconsistent. Rookie Jack Trudeau set a Colts' mark with 57 passes, hitting on 27 for 359 yards.

Bears 13, Falcons 10

Chicago's offense sputtered in the first half, going 24 minutes without a first down, before quarterback Mike Tomczak directed two third-quarter drives to beat Atlanta.

The Bears' defense held the Falcons without a first down for the first 23 minutes of the second half, allowing the offense to get on track.

The Bears, 9-2, lead Minnesota by three games in the NFC Central.

Broncos 38, Chiefs 17

Denver maintained its position atop the AFC West as running back Gerald Willhite scored three touchdowns, including a 70-yard punt return, and the Bronco defense forced two Bill Kenney fumbles to set up first-quarter touchdowns to beat Kansas City.

The Chiefs were trying for a share of the AFC West lead this late in the season for the first time since 1971. The victory improved the Broncos' record to 9-2 and increased their lead to two games over Kansas City and the Los Angeles Raiders, both 7-4, in the AFC West.

Raiders 27, Browns 14

Jim Plunkett, who is nearing 39, threw three touchdown passes as the Raiders beat Cleveland for their seventh victory in eight games.

"Jim throws the ball well," said Dokie Williams, who caught two TD passes. "He takes more chances than anyone else would probably take."

Plunkett gave the Raiders the lead for good by throwing a 46-yard touchdown pass to Williams after just 2:30 of play.

The Browns' Bernie Kosar completed only 15 of 34 for 188 yards, coming off a 32-of-50, 401-yard effort against Miami last Monday night.

Sacked Pokes nip Chargers

SAN DIEGO (AP) - A dozen sacks of Cowboys quarterback Steve Pelluer took Dallas Coach Tom Landry to the edge of despair before two fourth quarter touchdowns lifted his spirits and kept the Cowboys' playoff hopes alive.

"Our season was based on winning today," Landry said of the Cowboys 24-21 victory Sunday over the San Diego Chargers. "We were born again. We were almost dead."

Down 21-10 early in the fourth quarter, Dallas appeared headed for its third straight loss and all but mathematical elimination from the NFC playoff hunt.

A defensive beating aside, Pelluer scored the winning touchdown on a 2-yard bootleg run with 1:37 left.

"I was really afraid of this game. (The Chargers) were coming in 2-8 and they were loose. It almost ended up a nightmare," Landry said.

With five games remaining, the Cowboys are 7-4, two games behind the NFC East-leading New York Giants. The 8-2 Washington Redskins host San Francisco tonight.

Overshadowed by the loss was the performance of Chargers rookie defensive end Leslie O'Neal, who decked Pelluer five times. The dozen sacks tied an NFL record.

"It's easy to forget when you lose," said O'Neal, the Chargers No. 1 draft choice out of Oklahoma State.

"This is most I've ever been hit, including college ball," Pelluer said. "My left side is pretty sore right now."

Pelluer's beating had one benefit. The third-year pro was intercepted five times last week in Dallas' loss to the Los Angeles Raiders. On Sunday, none of his 33 pass attempts was picked off.

The Cowboys scored the first of 14 fourth-quarter points after defensive back Michael Downs blocked a San Diego punt, giving the Cowboys a first and goal at the Chargers 2-yard line.

Three plays later, running back Herschel Walker scored from the 1 to pull Dallas within four, 21-17, with 7:26 remaining.

The winning drive opened on the Dallas 39-yard line with just more than two minutes left. Pelluer threw three straight completions to move the ball to the Chargers 2, then scored on a first-and-goal quarterback keeper.

"The defense stubbed its toe on that last drive," San Diego Coach Al Saunders said. "We played as hard as we could for 60 minutes but lost to a team playing an outstanding game."

The Cowboys had to withstand a final challenge by San Diego. After the Chargers recovered a Tony Dorsett fumble on their 10-yard line, San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts drove the Chargers the Dallas 37. A 55-yard field goal attempt by San Diego's Rolf Benirschke with 1 second left was wide left.

"The objective was to get into field goal range. We needed about 10 more yards. Time really just ran out on us," said Fouts, who returned to the lineup after being sidelined the past three weeks by a concussion.

Fouts threw second-half touchdown passes of 28 and 4 yards to tight end Kellen Winslow while completing 22 of 41 passes for 275 yards. Tim Spencer's 7-yard touchdown run in the second quarter accounted for San Diego's other score.

Dallas had taken a 10-7 halftime lead on Pelluer's 68-yard TD pass to rookie wide receiver Mike Sherrard and Rafael Septien's 33-yard field goal.

Sherrard, a rookie No. 1 draft pick out of UCLA, had four catches for 115 yards.

Aggies upset; Tech tumbles

by The Associated Press

Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said last week's game will go down in Razorback history.

It became history today when the No. 17 ranked Razorbacks put away memories of Saturday's 14-10 upset of No. 7 ranked Texas A&M.

Now the Hogs are preparing to make more history Saturday against Southern Methodist in Dallas with new hope at reaching the Cotton Bowl for the first time in 10 years.

With their victory over the Aggies, the Razorbacks thrust themselves back into the SWC title picture along with Texas, Baylor and the Aggies.

The Aggies still have the SWC lead with a 5-1 record and could clinch a share of the title Saturday when they host Texas Christian.

Baylor and Arkansas have 5-2 records and Texas is 4-2.

Baylor and Texas meet in Waco this weekend while the Razorbacks try to keep alive slim Cotton Bowl hopes against the Mustangs.

Houston, 1-8, plays its final road game under retiring Coach Bill Yeoman at Lubbock against Texas Tech, 6-4 and trying to get a bowl bid for the first time since 1977. Rice hosts Air Force in a non-conference contest.

"We have to go play the Mustangs in Dallas and whatever happens, happens," Hatfield said.

The Razorbacks stacked their defense against Aggie quarterback Kevin Murray's passing, although Murray almost pulled the game out in the fourth quarter.

"It was a great game," Hatfield said. "It will go down in history. It was as fine a defensive effort as I've ever been part of.

"I told our players Monday that if they are made out of what we recruited them for, they would find a way to beat Texas A&M."

Murray had not thrown an interception in 159 attempts, but Nate White's third-quarter theft Saturday set up the game-winning 10-yard touchdown run by Razorback quarterback Greg Thomas.

Thomas hit 11 of 14 passes for 112 yards.

Murray had 85 passing yards going into the fourth quarter and finished with 21 completions on 35 attempts and 180 yards and a seven-yard touchdown pass to Keith Woodside.

Murray rallied A&M from deficits of 17 points against Baylor and 11 points against SMU, but he had no more tricks when he threw incomplete to the right corner of the end zone with 28 seconds left in the game.

In other games Saturday, Baylor repelled Rice quarterback Mark Comalander a the 1-yard line on the final play of the game for a 23-17 victory; Texas broke open a close game in the third quarter en route to a 45-16 victory over TCU; and SMU beat Texas Tech 13-7.

Texas punter Alex Waits alertly scooped up a bobbled snap at his own 5-yard line and punted 66 yards, setting in motion the Horns' 19th straight victory over TCU.

Waits said Tal Elliott centered the ball too soon.

"Tal thought I had called for the snap but I was looking at the ground and looked up and here came the ball."

Texas Tech, 6-4, already assured of its first winning season since 1978, lost six turnovers to SMU, but still hopes for a bid to the Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La.

"I think it is as it was before," Tech Coach David McWilliams said. "The bowls will have to make that decision."

SMU led Tech 13-0 in the fourth quarter, ignoring the threat of new NCAA investigations brought on by allegations by a former player that he was paid to play for the school.

"To have stuff like that thrown at you and still get ready to play, shows this is a special team," SMU Coach Bobby Collins said.

Baylor, which hopes to return to Rice Stadium New Year's Eve to play in the Bluebonnet Bowl, came within inches of a possible loss to the Owls.

Comalander thought he scored on the game's final play, which would have tied the game, setting up a game-winning extra point attempt.

Bowls firming up; Fiesta lands Miami

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) - The Fiesta Bowl offered the top-ranked Miami Hurricanes just what they wanted - prime-time exposure and the biggest challenge possible.

No other bowl could make the same offer, so the Hurricanes decided to accept the Fiesta deal, Athletic Director Sam Jankovich said.

That doesn't necessarily mean the top-ranked Hurricanes will play in the Tempe, Ariz. game. The deciding factor for the Fiesta Bowl was its willingness and ability to give Miami an escape clause, Jankovich said.

The Hurricanes, 10-0, will meet Penn State, the only other unbeaten and untied major college team, in Tempe Jan. 2 at 9 p.m. EST if Penn State beats Pitt in its season finale Saturday.

The Fiesta originally was scheduled for the afternoon of Jan. 1, but bowl officials decided to switch to prime time the following day for a national title game. They obtained permission from NBC, which will televise the game, and still must get the approval of the NCAA.

None of that will be necessary, however, if Pitt pulls off the upset and Nebraska beats Oklahoma this Saturday to win the Big Eight title. In that case, Miami would rather stay home and play Nebraska in the prime-time Orange Bowl game Jan. 1, also on NBC.

Another major bowl berth is at stake Saturday when Ohio State and Michigan meet for the Big Ten title. The winner goes to Rose Bowl to face Pac-10 champion Arizona State. The loser will become the first Big Ten team to appear in the Cotton Bowl.

The Citrus Bowl reportedly will pit Auburn against Southern California, while the Gator Bowl will pit Clemson and Stanford.

The Orange Bowl, while still hoping for a Miami-Nebraska pairing, lined up the Southwest Conference runner-up as a backstop, provided it is Texas A&M or Arkansas.

Game begins : will they run or won't they

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thinking aloud can be a risky business for ambitious politicians, but three potential presidential candidates are doing some very public musing these days.

Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York suggests it's time for an introspective stroll. Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas wonders aloud whether he might resign his seat. Sen. Joseph Biden Jr. of Delaware agonizes publicly over the conflicting pressures of becoming a committee chairman and running for president.

What's going on? Is this trio just playing the quadrennial presidential tease? Or do these three politicians have an unusual habit of thinking aloud, tossing out options at a time they honestly don't know which they will choose?

The presidential tease is a time-honored act.

The public unfolding of Cuomo's thinking about the presidency does demonstrate a trend.

There was his declaration that if he ran for a second term for governor in 1986, that would rule out a run for president in 1988. "You can't do both," he said.

AP analysis

But when he announced for re-election he refused to rule out a presidential bid. "I have no plans to run for the presidency," said the New York Democrat. But when pressed to flatly rule out a presidential campaign, he replied, "I'm not God."

Now that he's been re-elected, Cuomo says, "Maybe this weekend I'll go for a walk."

And what would Cuomo think about on his walk?

"I'll say, 'All right, what's next? What's happening on the national scene? What role should I be playing?'" the governor said.

Dole is less coy about his presidential ambitions.

Another landslide victor on Nov. 4, Dole said that while he was disappointed by the GOP loss of its Senate majority, he took comfort in the fact that Republican Mike Hayden defeated Democrat Tom Docking in the race for governor of Kansas.

"I wouldn't want to give up my seat if Docking was going to appoint some Democrat, which I assume he would," said Dole.

The election results propelled Biden into the majority and when Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., decided to take the chairmanship of the Labor and Human Resources committee, Biden was in line to head the Judiciary Committee.

That's a high visibility committee — and a post that a Democrat with Biden's presidential ambitions might covet.

But the senator mused about his new power and responsibilities as a mixed blessing.

"If I run for president, I'm going to have to make some very tough decisions about what my voting average is going to be and whether it impacts on my ability to be a good chairman," Biden said.

Can he do both? "If it turns out I can't do my job and run for president, then I'll stand up and say straightforwardly that I can't do the job," he said.

Strides made in creating new varieties

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas' state flower, the bluebonnet, will soon be available to backyard gardeners in new, easy-to-grow varieties that come in different colors, according to researchers at Texas A&M University.

Researchers say they have resolved the problem that gardeners have had for years because they could not get the hard seeds to sprout.

Specially treated bluebonnet seeds that sprout easily are under cultivation on a South Texas farm, growing in three colors — deep blue, light blue and a newly developed white blossom, Parsons said.

A&M extension service agent Jerry Parsons said white bluebonnet transplants will go on sale this month in San Antonio area nurseries for the first time.

"I'm absolutely thrilled, and I will be an early customer," said Lady Bird Johnson, former first lady who turned her passion for wildflowers into a national growth industry.

Bluebonnet research is largely financed by a grant from the Worthington Hotel in Fort Worth. Parsons named the newly cultivated, light blue bluebonnet the "Worthington."

A pink bluebonnet has been developed and researchers are on the trail of a bluebonnet strain that will bloom indoors at Christmas time.

"Can you imagine how crazy Texans will go over that?" said Parsons. "Texans lose their minds over bluebonnets."

It wasn't until state horticulturists dreamed of planting a Sesquicentennial flag out of bluebonnets that serious research got under way at A&M in 1982. To grow designs out of bluebonnets, they needed seed guaranteed to sprout, as well as white and pink flowers seen only rarely in the wild.

Some of the research involves a maroon-colored bluebonnet that would match A&M school colors, according to Parsons.

"It's out there, and it's going to come from the pink," Parsons said. "Can you imagine the demand?"

Today, 20 acres of white bonnets are sprouting on the LaPryor farm of W.O. Moerbe, who said he expects to harvest 6,000 pounds of white seed by late spring.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS

You are hereby notified of the opportunity to request a public hearing and/or submit written comment concerning operating permit application No. R-5037A and construction permit application No. PSD-TX-702 by Mobil Producing Texas and New Mexico, Incorporated to modify their Salt Creek amine treating facilities near Clairemont, Kent County, Texas. The proposed location is seven miles northwest of Clairemont. The proposed modified facilities will emit the following air contaminants in amounts significant enough to require a Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) permit review: sulfur dioxide (SO_2). In addition, the proposed facilities will emit: sulfur trioxide and hydrogen sulfide. No other pollutant emission increase will result from this modification.

The Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board (TACB) has determined that the proposed modification will not violate any state or federal air quality regulations and will not have any significant adverse impact on soils, vegetation or visibility. He, therefore, has made the preliminary determination to issue these permits.

The degree of PSD increment predicted to be consumed by the proposed facility and other increment consuming sources in the area is as follows:

	Averaging Time	Maximum Increment Consumed (ug/m^3)	Maximum Allowable Increment (ug/m^3)
SO_2	3-hour	188.0	512
	24-hour	72.5	91
	Annual	9.3	20

A copy of the administrative record, including all materials submitted by the applicant and additional information, are available at the office of Mrs. Debra J. Barber, Regional Director, Texas Air Control Board, Abilene Regional Office, at Commerce Plaza Office Building, 1290 South Willis, Suite 205, Abilene, Texas 79605, telephone number (915) 698-9674 and at the Texas Air Control Board at 6330 Highway 290 East, Austin, Texas 78723. Interested parties may inspect these materials during regular business hours (8-5, M-F) and submit written comments and/or request for hearing to the Executive Director of the TACB. Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a hearing from the Board. Requests for hearing must be in writing and shall state the nature of the issues proposed to be raised in the hearing. Comments should be limited to the air pollution aspects of the proposed project and should not concern land use aspects which are beyond the jurisdiction of the TACB. All air pollution related comments received in writing by December 18 (enter date 30 days after final publication of this notice) will be considered by the TACB in making its final decision on these applications. All comments will be available for public inspection at the TACB office in Austin.

Commissioners okay airport aid resolution

County commissioners Monday unanimously approved a resolution asking the state legislature to restore and increase state airport improvement funds to assist airports throughout the state.

The resolution asks that federal airport funds be channeled through the Texas Aeronautics Commission and that the commission's Financial Assistance Program for airports also be restored.

Texas ranked 38 out of the 50 states in assistance to its airports.

In other action, City Manager John Gayle presented information concerning the city's ambulance service. Funded jointly by both the city and county, the service is now projecting to lose some income next year due to cutbacks in Medicare payments.

Commissioners are expected to consider an increase in subsidy payments to the service during the Nov. 24 session.

FM 1611 due public hearing

then turn east for some 1.9 miles to intersect with the Big Spring Hwy. and FM 2763 (the road which runs due south of Western Texas College). The section which runs east to FM 2763 will require some 100 ft. of right-of-way.

If ultimately built, a western loop would be created, linking the Lubbock Hwy. north of the city to both the Big Spring and Colorado City Hwys. to the south.

Supporters of the project say the western bypass would redirect truck traffic away from the downtown square.

Environmental assessments and other information about the project are available at the resident engineer's office on the southside of U.S. Hwy. 84.

County residents will have an additional 10 days following the meeting to submit written statements to the department's Abilene office.

Some 30 to 45 days after statements are received, highway officials will release their final decision on the proposal, noted W.R. Walker, a representative in the Abilene office.

If final approval is given by the state, state officials will provide the deed to county commissioners who will then make an offer to the property owners — the heirs of Wade and Harrie Winston.

Should they accept the offer, work can be contracted and begun.

Property owners have indicated a provision in a will which deeded the property to them will prevent them from voluntarily selling the property, however.

If the offer is rejected, county officials must initiate condemnation proceedings in 132nd District Court to obtain a right-of-way across the property. This would require district court officials to appoint three members to a special commission to decide the property's value.

Officials from the state department would then meet with the commissioners and the owners to accept or reject the commission's findings. If any party disagrees to the amount, the case could go before a district court jury.

Obituaries

Julie Ezell

BIG SPRING--Services for Julie Ann Ezell, 8, daughter of John and Jo Ann Ezell of Coahoma, were to be at 4 p.m. Monday at Nalley-Pickle-Welch Rosewood Chapel. Burial was to follow in Coahoma Cemetery. She died at 4 a.m. Saturday at a Big Spring hospital following an illness.

She was a third grader at Coahoma.

She is also survived by a brother, John Ed of the home; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Smith of Snyder, her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ezell of Snyder; and her paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Carrington May of Ezra.

William Prather

CLUTE–Services for William Frances Prather, 81, of Clute were held Saturday at the Lakewood Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Donald Hintz officiating. Burial followed in Restwood Memorial Park.

He died last Thursday at Brazosport Memorial Hospital.

Prather was a retired electrician and a member of the Temple Baptist Church and I.B.E.W.

Survivors include his wife, Bertha Mae Prather of Clute; one son, John Prather of Austin; six daughters, Frances Nell Owens of Bracketsville, Iris Speed of Richwood, Reba Windle of Alvin, Patricia Kessner, Helen South and Dana Henderson, all of Clute; three brothers, Raymond of Plainview, A. P. of Snyder, and Bob of Midland; four sisters, Leona Davis of Carlsbad, N. M., Bertha Davis of Hobbs, N. M., Rosa Lou Edwards of Odessa and Callie Mae Floyd of Snyder; 20 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Soviet emigres return to America

NEW YORK (AP) — Homesick emigres who decided to move back to the Soviet Union after 10 years in the United States sensed almost as soon as they arrived in Moscow that they'd made a "stupid" mistake.

"When I got off the plane, four Soviet officials met me and told me what to say and said, 'Throw the (American) passports on the floor,'" Faina Gonta, 40, said Sunday night after returning to American soil. She said she refused.

"One of the officers told us it would be a good idea if the eldest son joined the army right away," Mrs. Gonta said at John F. Kennedy International Airport. "We saw life for us would be better in the U.S."

The Gontas said Sunday they were happy and lucky to be back after only six days in Moscow.

Mrs. Gonta, who has lived in the United States for 10 years, said she returned to her homeland with her husband, David, their two teen-age sons and Mrs. Gonta's mother because of "nostalgia and my memories and chasing after a dream that never existed."

In the Soviet Union, she said after returning to the United States, "I grew up with a lot of girlfriends. My relatives were always friendly. In the United States we didn't have any relatives or any friends, and you missed all of that."

She described their decision to go back as silly and "stupid. Nobody should sell everything, and now we are empty. But I'm still happy, no matter what. I'm strong. I'll try to make it. I didn't realize we had so many friends."

Weekend has two accidents

Two minor traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Saturday.

Involved in the first — at 3:05 p.m. in the 3700 Block of College Ave. — were a 1984 Chrysler driven by R.E. Weber of Colorado City and a 1983 Pontiac driven by Isabell Rios Huddleston of 401 29th St.

The second mishap was reported at 10:43 p.m. in the 2100 Block of 42nd St.

Involved in it was a 1985 Ford driven by Stacie Robbins of 2701 30th St. which struck a parked 1973 Chevrolet owned by Joey Withers of 2107 42nd St.

No injuries were reported in either mishap.

Alcohol-related arrests reported

Police logged eight misdemeanor arrests over the weekend — all alcohol-related.

Four adults were jailed for public intoxication while three individuals under the age of 21 were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol.

One man was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

House carpet burned by fire

Units of the Snyder Fire Department were dispatched to a minor house fire Friday afternoon.

Firefighters were called to the Kathy Fletcher residence at 324 ½ 29th St. at 12:43 p.m. They discovered carpet near a bathroom heater on fire.

Damage to the apartment — owned by Vera McLanahan of Snyder — was said confined to the bathroom.

Smoke from a barbeque pit prompted a fire report at 4:29 p.m. Sunday.

Neighbors apparently called firemen to the George Gann residence at 407 20th St.

McDonald's has Welding Machines and Supplies

McDonald Welding Supply has gained a reputation for service, and for good reason. The staff at McDonald Welding Supply comes early and stays late. This is especially important to the area's busy oil fields, and this is why so many companies have depended on McDonald Welding Supply for their supply needs.

The firm serves an area bounded by Sweetwater to Loraine to Colorado City and Big Spring and back to Snyder. The Company has three 18 foot bobtail trucks for delivery to farms, businesses and well locations.

In stock at McDonald Welding Supply is the Miller and Lincolin Welding equipment line, which includes small engine drives and electric machine for farm and home use. They also have a large stock of smaller welders. They vary in size and can fit in the rear of a foreign truck as well as a two-ton truck. In addition, they carry Victor and Uniweld welding and cutting equipment and Walton vises.

If you need steel for oilfield fabrication, you can find exactly what you need at McDonald Welding Supply. The firm has a complete line of Milwaukee heavy duty electric drills and grinders. They have Williams hammer wrenches and heavy tools.

Safety equipment of all types is stocked including goggles, first aid kits and refills, hard hats, liners and fire extinguishers. This popular business also stocks chains, cable, tubing and chain hoists. They have recently added a complete line of Grade "8" Hard Bolts and Nuts in sizes from 5/16 to 1 ¼. Blocks as well as all types of pulleys may be added to the list.

The available list of supplies is almost endless, just ask for it. Stop by and see Gayle or Jack McDonald and the staff at McDonald Welding Supply, 1110 College Ave.
