By U.S. Senate...

Indexing Is Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, adopting one of the most sweeping tax changes in modern times, is supporting automatic annual reductions in personal income taxes to offset the "bracket creep" caused by inflation.

The "indexing" provision, approved on a 57-40 vote Thursday, is supported in principle by half the House and by President Reagan, though he tried to keep it off a tax-cut bill this year.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., would adjust personal tax rates, the $1,000 individual exemption and the standard deduction to offset inflation, starting in 1985.

For example, if inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index was 10 percent in 1984, the following year the exemption would be raised to $1,100, the $3,400 standard deduction for a couple would be increased to about $3,750 and all rates would be reduced 10 percent.

—The Senate approved a new incentive for savings to help the troubled homebuilding and savings-and-loan industries. It would allow a person to earn $1,000 in tax-free interest from a special new savings certificate at a cost of $8.7 billion to the government from 1982 through 1985.

—The House, by a 354-63 vote, approved a $136 billion military authorization bill giving Reagan most of the money he wants to rebuild the nation's arsenal. The measure goes to a conference with the Senate, which passed a similar $136.4 billion version in May.

—The Senate Intelligence Committee is looking into allegations of financial misconduct against CIA Director William J. Casey. Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said several senators have "expressed concern" about Casey's status following disclosure of suits accusing him of financial improprieties.

—Sandra Day O'Connor, President Reagan's nominee for the Supreme Court, was spending her fourth, and probably last, day courting members of Congress. She was to meet today with Sen. John East, R-N.C., a staunch anti-abortion activist who says he will oppose any nominee who agrees with the 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

—House Democratic leaders, reacting to "a growing public outcry," are trying to preserve the $122 minimum monthly Social Security benefit that Congress has voted to eliminate. Majority Leader Jim Wright introduced a resolution Thursday aimed at encouraging a House-Senate conference committee to retain the benefit. The House Ways and Committee says about 1.5 million current recipients would have their benefits reduced unless the minimum benefit is retained.

In Lebanon...

Israeli Jets Strike Again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel pounded Palestinian strongholds in Beirut and southern Lebanon from the air and sea today in the heaviest anti-guerrilla action since its 1978 invasion of the southern border area. Police said more than 50 people were killed, but a radio station the death toll was over 100.

Israel said its warplanes destroyed the headquarters of two Palestinian guerrilla movements in Beirut, and that all the jets returned safely to base after the first raid on the capital in more than three years.

The Palestinians disputed the claim that headquarters were destroyed and said one Israeli jet was downed.

The wail of ambulance sirens echoed in the streets of Beirut as police reported more than 35 deaths in the capital and 15 in the port city of Sidon and the oil terminal area of Zahrani, 25 miles south of Beirut. It was the fifth Israeli air strike in Lebanon in a week.

But the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said more than 100 people in the teeming neighborhoods around guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat's command headquarters in the Sabra camp and the neighboring Chatilla camp were killed and more than 350 injured.

Friday update

Lunar Eclipse Visible

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The heavens' biggest cheese, from the vantage point of Earth, was eaten away for several hours early today.

Most Americans had a good chance of viewing the partial eclipse of the moon that began at 11:25 p.m. EDT Thursday and lasted until after 2 a.m. today, the National Weather Service here said.

Viewing conditions appeared "to have been pretty good in the Northeast, the southern third of the country, along the Pacific Coast and in the northern Plains," the weather service said.

"Thunderstorms in central sections, the desert Southwest and the south Atlantic region would have impaired viewing in those areas."

A lunar eclipse occurs when the Earth casts a shadow on the moon. This eclipse removed from view about 55 percent of the moon's surface.

Although less common than a solar eclipse, lunar eclipses still will number 28 before the end of the century.

Dockers Strike Looms

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 40,000 Baltic coast dock workers today scheduled a potentially-crippling port strike for next Thursday in their bid for improved working conditions.

The strike threat appeared to add new urgency to the debate on social and economic reforms under way behind the closed doors of an emergency Communist Party congress.

The strike call, threatening what could be the most serious labor protest in Poland since a nationwide warning strike in March, came from the port workers' branch of the independent Solidarity labor federation.

Legislators Doing Well

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says legislators are doing so well with the five special session topics he gave them that he might add some other summer reruns to the schedule.

"A day does not go by where we do not talk about adding to the call," Clements told reporters Thursday, adding, "I wouldn't be surprised to see it opened up to a few particular items."

The special session opened Monday with lawmakers facing a list of items unresolved in the regular session, including congressional redistricting, a Medical Practices Act, "fine tuning" the Property Tax Code, abolishing the state property tax and a water trust fund.

Clements said only the Medical Practices Act seems to be "really stuck."

Snyderites To Compete In Scurry Co. Rodeo

Tonight and Saturday night's action at the Raleigh Lights Scurry County Rodeo at the Coliseum will feature many more Snyderites than in the previous two nights.

Top cowboys in the International Rodeo Association standings who will be in competitions tonight include Tom Walker, seventh in all around and second in calf roping, from Norman, Oklahoma; Randy White, fifth in calf roping, from Okmulgee, Okla.; Kent From, number nine in saddle bronc riding, from Sidney, Nebraska; Wayne Walker, third in calf roping, from Chandler, Okla.; and Phillip Hogan, 15th in calf roping, from Van Buren, Arkansas.

In Thursday night's rodeo standings, Jon Kreder of Wright City, Missouri made 72 points in bareback bronc riding. Kreder is fifth in IRA bareback riding standings.

Jesse Doss of Big Spring was high man in tiedown with 9.7.

There was no score for the night in saddle bronc riding.

Larry Sanders of Fort Worth took the steer wrestling event with 4.8.

Jennie Hinton of Snyder took the barrels in 15.07 for the best time of the evening.

Jerry Skaggs and Mark Fanning, Remona, Okla., had the best time in team roping with 5.8.

Two Albuquerque men tied with 69 points each in the bull riding event. High Scoring riders were Claudio Baca and Dave Canada.

Rodeo action will continue at the coliseum tonight and Saturday with performances beginning at 8 p.m.

Lubbock Pilot Charged With 'Drunken Flying'

A Lubbock pilot apparently lost over the community of Colorado City was released from the Mitchell County jail after buzzing the town early Thursday morning and flying under a 14-foot interstate overpass.

According to Sheriff Wendell Bryant, the 37-year old pilot was released Thursday afternoon after paying a fine for a Class C misdemeanor public intoxication charge filed against him in connection with the early morning low-flying passes.

"We kind of followed him on the ground and radar kept track of the plane whenever it was high enough in the air to be picked up," Bryant said. "That airplane would drop in and out of radar and was spotted a few times by the Fort Worth radar.

"At one point, he flew in front of a truck stop, but customers lost sight of him when he went behind a building," he said.

"I believe my deputies said he was lost or something and had trouble getting his bearings," Bryant said. "Whoever thought you (the sheriff's department) would arrest a drunk pilot in an airplane."

Sheriff's department officials said that in addition to buzzing the town, the pilot also flew his rented 1979 Cessna II Skyhawk 172 under the Lasky Road overpass on Interstate 20. The overpass has a clearance of 14.2 feet.

According to Bryant, the pilot got a ride back to Lubbock with another pilot who came to Colorado City to pick up the aircraft owned by a Houston firm.

The buzzing was first reported about 12:06 a. m. but the pilot was not taken into custody until 1:42 a.m. when he landed at the Trulock Ranch Airstrip, formerly the city airport.

Relatives Of Man Sought

A 50-year-old man died at about 5 a. m. this morning after he came to the emergency room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, apparently after being stricken with a sudden illness.

Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway and peace officers were trying to locate relatives. The man's name was being withheld until next-of-kin could be notified.

The body was taken to Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

The SDN Column

Keeping tab on our neighbors: Danny Hukel of the Gatesville Messenger passed along this comment on on "average."

"Average is what failures claim to be when their families and friends ask them why they are not more successful.

"Average is the top of the bottom, the best of the worst, the worst of the best.

"Average means being run-of-the-mill, mediocre, insignificant, an also-ran, a non-entity.

"Being average is a lazy person's copout; it's lacking the guts to take a stand in life; it's living by default.

"Being average is to take up space for no purpose; to take a trip through life but never pay the fare; to return no interest for God's investment in you.

"Being average is to pass one's life away with time, rather than pass one's time away with life. It is to kill time rather than to work it to death.

"To be average is to be forgotten once you pass from this life. The successful are remembered for their contributions, the failures are remembered because they tried, but the average is just forgotten.

James Roberts came up with this story confirming that things are not always what they seem.

A young mother looked in the bedroom one evening and saw her junior executive husband standing silently by the baby's crib looking thoughtfully. In his face, she read his wonder and admiration. She went to him and softly took his hand in hers.

"Dearest, a penny for your thoughts," she said.

He turned to her and looked at her with wonder in his eyes.

"I can't understand it," he said. "How on earth can the manufacturer make a crib like this for $49.95?"

Lynn Brisendine of the Brownfield News says a U. S. Treasury Dept. Textbook on Thrift reveals that 100 average men can start their productive life at 25. At age 65, one is wealthy, four are well-to-do, 54 are not self-supporting and 36 have died.

At age 75, 33 of the 100 are still living, and of these three are entirely self-supporting and 30 are dependent.

Q.—Can you tell me something about the remainder of a story in the July 15 SDN about a son being ticketed for borrowing a car?

A.—Yes. A paragraph got cut off at the end of that story, which made it unclear. The person involved was the son of a police chief, and the car he was "borrowing" was a police car with full equipment. He was ticketed by a policeman and "grounded" by his father.

Hearing Is Held On Federal Funds

Scurry County Commissioners met at 10 a. m. today for a required hearing on budgeting of federal revenue sharing funds for the coming year, but they had the session to themselves.

The commissioners had discussed earlier the possibility of putting the revenue sharing funds in the hospital budget, but subsequently decided to shift some funds from the precincts to the hospital and use the revenue sharing funds in the precincts.

This will facilitate bookkeeping for the federal funds, said Jay Massingill, county auditor.

The hospital had asked for $250,000 from the county and its allocation will come from tax funds. The hospital levy will amount to some .96 of one cent. The county expects to receive around $226,000 in revenue sharing funds.

County commissioners have another meeting set for Monday morning, but payment of routine bills is the only item on the agenda.

paul harvey

"But what is he going to do for blacks?"

At the NAACP convention in Denver, before and after the president spoke, the distilled essence of that organization's leaders' challenge was, "What is he going to do for blacks?"

President Reagan said he was offering them and all of us more independence from government, not more dependence on government.

And you'd think everybody would applaud that.

They applauded President Kennedy when, in his inaugural address, he said essentially the same thing: "Ask not what your country can do for you--but what you can do for your country."

Mike Royko said it: "When somebody screams he's being cheated because he's no longer getting something for nothing, that's not 'need,' that's 'greed.'"

Yet here is Jesse Jackson threatening that "Demonstrators will go across the nation like a plague..."

Here is the widow of Martin Luther King saying she is "ready to march again," to revive "massive militant action..."

And Benjamin Hooks, normally a temperate and responsible leader, saying that President Reagan's programs threaten "hardship, havoc, despair and suffering" among blacks.

Rarely in history has our nation enjoyed less social ferment than right now; it's sad to see some seeking to pull us apart again.

It is not comfortable to look back in our nation's history to the time when white persons dominated black persons.

And lets face it there are still some whites accustomed to dominate.

And there are still some blacks willing, for a price, to be dominated.

That price has been the perpetuation of misnamed "social welfare" by taxpayers.

In recent decades, blacks themslves have become taxpayers, have become leaders--elected and appointed.

And yet, from the ranks of the habitually oppressed come the neo-slaves of 1981, determined to remain dependent.

And there are new carpetbaggers abroad in our land, parasitic organizations getting rich in the name of helping the poor.

And their strident voices intimidate timid politicians.

Ever since Spartacus, the slave owner has feared the freed slave--not because he will return to fight--but because he may return to compete!

American blacks, great-grandchildren of slaves, under this administration, have an unprecedented opportunity to unshackle themselves and join the mainstream of the American power structure.

Freedom at last--for any daring to be free.

Pentagon Says More Funds Needed In 1983...

House Okays Defense Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House approval, President Reagan is virtually assured of the $136 billion he wanted next year to begin rebuilding the nation's arsenal. Now the Pentagon says it may need even more money in 1983.

John Beach, plans director for the Pentagon's comptroller, acknowledged Thursday that an increase in the administration's projected defense budget for fiscal 1983 is possible. But he said a decision was premature because Congress has not yet completed action on the 1982 budget.

By a 354-63 vote Thursday night, the House approved the $136 billion military authorization bill for 1982 and sent the measure to a conference with the Senate, which had passed a similar $136.4 billion version in May.

After seven days of debate on some 50 amendments, the House-endorsed bill would allow the Pentagon to set aside in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 about $52.4 billion for purchase of ships, planes, combat vehicles and other weaponry, $63.3 billion for operation and maintenance expenses and $20.2 billion for research and development work.

The total exceeds by nearly $25 billion the amount authorized for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, and is within $400 million of the money the administration said it needed to begin rebuilding the nation's military might.

The authorization money would push the total 1982 defense budget to about $220 billion, including funds actually spent during the year.

Defense officials, meanwhile, have said Reagan's projected $254 billion defense budget for fiscal 1983 may fall some $2 billion to $10 billion short of what is needed to pay for vast increases in military buildup programs. The $254 billion estimate was made only a few weeks after Reagan took office Jan. 20.

"General discussion about a possible increase" already is under way, Beach said.

"We won't decide until about November or December" whether a 7 percent "real growth" in the defense budget for fiscal 1983 will be necessary, he said. By real growth, he meant in addition to inflation.

A recent Pentagon internal memorandum suggested that the planned 7 percent real growth in defense spending over the coming five years "does not permit the services to implement all the programs planned earlier."

The memo suggested that the target may have to be raised to 9 percent.

The House, meanwhile, spent nearly half of Thursday considering — and then rejecting — amendments by liberal members that would have forced Reagan to identify $8 billion in wasteful military spending and would have prevented the Selective Service System from acquiring the Social Security numbers of draft registrants.

Instead of requiring the $8 billion in wasteful spending to be cut from the Pentagon budget, the House voted unanimously to require Reagan to report by Jan. 15 on ways to increase efficiency in the Defense Department. The amendment also would require the president to describe the implementation of any cost-saving recommendations by the General Accounting Office.

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y., failed by a 289-125 vote in his effort to remove provisions that could require young men to give their Social Security numbers when they register for the draft and make registration lists available to military recruiters.

Weiss and others contended that the right to privacy was at stake. But opponents said a system of cross-checking those who signed up with the names of young men enrolled in Social Security was needed to make the year-old registration program work.

In a bit of symbolic support to the ailing U.S. auto industry, the House voted 231-187 to adopt an amendment that would bar the Pentagon from buying foreign-made light trucks, vans and other non-combat vehicles unless a suitable U.S. product was not available. The measure was introduced by Reps. Elwood Hillis, R-Ind., and William Brodhead, D-Mich.

New Airline Service Starts

DALLAS (AP) — Passengers for the maiden flight of Muse Air Corp. were treated to champagne bubbling from a fountain and classical music.

But no smoke got in their eyes, said Lamar Muse, who banned smoking on all his airline's flights.

As they boarded the 7:20 p.m. sold-out flight, passengers were reminded to "extinguish all smoking materials" by stewardesses.

"I hope no one had a nicotine fit," said Muse at the end of Wednesday's 50-minute flight. The former president of Southwest Airlines, was ousted in a power struggle in 1978.

"Southwest made me a helluva lot of money and I'm grateful to them for that, no matter what else happened," Muse said. "Now we have to beat them, and it won't be easy."

He's starting small, but with a good base.

Muse Air sold $37.5 million worth of common stock last March, and got a $57 million line of credit with banks in Dallas and Chicago.

And McDonnell Douglas has volunteered $17 million in credit to help him buy four new Super 80s.

Muse says his funds, including $9 million in working capital, can last 17 weeks even if he doesn't make a penny. The company's 28 weekday flights and 34 weekend runs would have to be an average of 49 percent full to break even.

"We know there will be some lonely planes at first," he said. "That will give our crews plenty of time to learn how to provide service."

Muse Air has a 20-minute turnaround time set for its shuttling planes, and some industry watchers wonder whether the crews can pull it off.

"They probably will fall behind at first," he said. "We hope they will get better as they go along."

A Muse Air ticket to Houston is $40 regular, $25 for early morning and late evening — the same price charged by Southwest Airlines.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Personal achievements are likely today, but your greatest benefits are apt to come from situations where partners are involved. Think "We."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Situations which have either been unproductive or unprofitable may take a big turn for the better today. Be prepared to react.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Concentrate on cementing better bonds with friends today and, somehow, that which you've been hoping for will be realized in surprising ways.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Regardless of how situations begin today, don't let them obstruct your belief in a positive outcome. In the home stretch you get luckier and luckier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be tempted to screen some information from view today when dealing with friends, but you'd be wise not to. Success comes from being open and frank.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Both today and tomorrow, positive strides can be made in areas affecting your career and finances. You'll recognize your opportunities and know what to do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is not a day to delegate important matters. Your luck and success come today when you assert your positive personal touches.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your intuitive perception pertaining to financial or commercial matters is quite good today. Pursue situations where you feel luck and the odds favor you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your actions will win you points with friends today because you'll focus more on their attributes than their shortcomings. They'll see you in the same light.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of being intimidated by adversity today, it will tend to stimulate you to try harder. Major achievements are well within your reach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to shrug off negative thoughts, whether your own or those of others. You're geared to think "win" — and you will.

Newspaper Petitions For Candidates' List

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — A Bryan newspaper Thursday asked a state district court to order the immediate release of the names and qualifications of candidates for the presidency of Texas A&M University.

Lawyers for Harte-Hanks Texas Newspapers Inc., owner of The Eagle, contend the school has failed to comply with a June 16 state attorney general's opinion "solely for the purpose off delaying the disclosure."

The request for the writ of mandamus was filed in 85th District Court.

"If we can bounce around for about 30 days we'll be all right," said Harvey R. "Bum" Bright, chairman of the Texas A&M Board of Regents, when asked about the newspaper's action.

Bright, of Dallas, said he expects a replacement for Dr. Jarvis Miller to be hired by Sept. 1. The regents fired Miller last July.

A spokeswoman for Judge Tom McDonald said a hearing date had not been set.

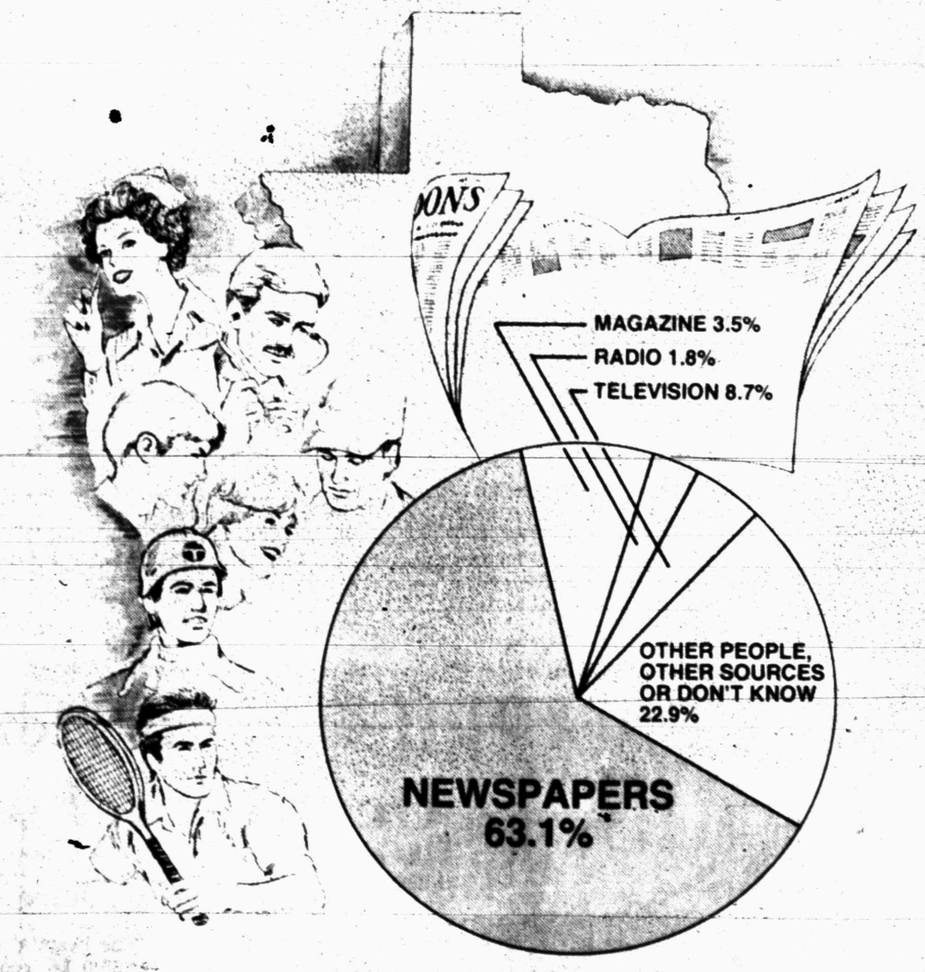
63 out of 100 Shoppers Look to the Daily Newspaper for Advertising when they are Ready to Buy



Today's Texan looks to the daily newspaper for advertising information when he or she is ready to buy goods and services.

A recent study by Belden Associates of Dallas revealed that over five million, or 63 percent, of all Texas adults prefer the daily newspaper for advertising information when they are ready to buy — over five times as many as those who prefer radio and television combined for advertising information.

Mr. Advertiser, if you want to expose your message to the greatest number of potential buyers — when they are READY TO BUY — the daily newspaper is your effective way to reach the total Texas audience.

Four spades is a good contract. If South doesn't have to lose a trump trick he has no problems at all, but the defense starts with East winning the spade lead and returning the 10 of trumps.

South plays his ace and West plays a low club. Now there is a sure trump loser and two possible diamond losers in addition to the spade that has already gone down the drain.

There is a simple way to play the hand. South can lead a club to dummy. Take the trump finesse and eventually lead a diamond to dummy's ace and a second diamond back to his queen. This play will hold his diamond losers to one if East has the king. It also won't work this time. West holds his majesty.

How about squeezes, pseudo-squeezes, end plays, etc.? They just aren't going to work, but there is a way to make the contract. It is to make all your small trumps on ruffs and leave East to use his trump trick to ruff his partner's good diamond.

Lead a club to the ace and ruff a club. Cash a high spade and ruff the other high spade in dummy. Ruff another club. Now lead a diamond to the ace and ruff dummy's last club with your last low trump. Lead a diamond and wait to score your final two tricks with the king-jack of trumps.

Cherry Molds Are Refreshing

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

EVENING REFRESHER Cherry Molds Coffee

CHERRY MOLDS

Their flavor has gusto.

17-ounce jar whole unpitted dark sweet cherries in heavy syrup
Crystallized ginger, rinsed in hot water to soften
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup sugar
¾ cup ruby port

Drain cherries well; reserve syrup. Add enough water to the syrup to make 1 cup. With the tip of a swivel-blade vegetable peeler, pit cherries; stuff each cherry with a piece of ginger the size of the pit. Distribute cherries evenly in the bottom of six ½-cup molds or 6-ounce custard cups; refrigerate. In a medium bowl, sprinkle gelatin over water; let stand to soften gelatin — a matter of minutes. In a small saucepan heat cherry syrup until it begins to boil; pour over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. Stir in port. Chill, stirring occasionally, until slightly thickened; ladle over cherries. Chill to set. Unmold. Delicious served with a sauce of partly melted vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

Landing A Job In This Tight Recession Market

Recession job seeking campaigns can be just as productive as those conducted during good times if the job-seeker fully understands the marketplace, says Recruiter Don Rehner.

In his recent book, Recession Job Seeking, Rehner warns the employment-seeker of the major problems encountered during a downturned economy.

First, potential employers are much less disposed to pay employment andor placement fees to acquire the staff needed, preferring to hire direct and cut out any middle-man commissions or fees.

Bacause of this, and the heightened competition from a greater number of persons seeking positions, it is an excellent idea to prepare a careful campaign for presenting your credentials to the decision-makers on a direct basis.

Second, such a campaign has as its cornerstones a few very basic, most important, components, the combination of which serves to produce an effective program of finding the job you want.

Even before undertaking a resume, assess yourself as critically as possible. Write down everything you have accomplished in your present or prior jobs so you are completely conversant with the package you are trying to sell—you.

Once that's out of the way, start your winnowing process, go through the items jotted down, checking off the entries most important to painting the picture of competance you want projected.

Rehner suggests using three check marks for the absolutely important items, two for those of medium importance, etc., or use numbers to weight the items.

Then, choose the format best suited to present this background in your resume. Example, if you've been with the same employer for 15 years and have moved steadily forward, you may have a more effective resume if you begin with your first position and work up to date.

Or, if you have four separate positionsemployers, a reverse chronology may better highlight your upward mobility by starting with your present position and working back to your career's beginning.

Consider your resume as your sales brochure; if you do it yourself, make certain you tell it as it is, don't add things that can't be substantiated.

Use great care in looking professtional on paper—don't use odd-ball combinations of typed style, color of paper and ink, in order to stand out from the crowd; your resume may not be considered because it fails to look well-done.

Pick your targets carefully, selecting th type of company or prospective employer to maximize your success factor.

Be sure to pinpoint recipients as finitely as possible, e.g., don't send a Marketing VP your resume if your're after an accounting position.

Rehner's 48-page book tells how to prepare prospective employer's lists; the whys and hows of resume preparation; lists professional associations offering assistance for little or no charge; offers examples of cover letters designed to ge interviews; and even includes insights on effective use of the telephone before, during and after the interview has been conducted.

Bullet Proof Car Business Improves

Editor's Note: Nearly bankrupt this time last year, a San Antonio company that bullet-proofs cars is in the middle of a boom. Recent assasination attempts are credited for increasing business.

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The shootings of President Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul II have increased the business of a San Antonio company that bullet-proofs cars for wealthy clients throughout the world, company officials say.

"I think basically business is on the upswing having to do with the two recent assassination attempts on the Pope and President Reagan," said Ron Kimball, manager of the automobile division of Safeguard Security Services, Inc.

The president and the pope were seriously wounded in separate attacks earlier this year. Both survived.

Kimball said SSI has grown into the largest firm of its type in the United States since it was rescued from bankruptcy a year ago by Sigmor Corp., the nation's largest independent gasoline distributor.

Sigmor owner Tom Turner Sr. bought SSI because he wanted a subsidiary to construct bullet-proof glass "kiosks" to house employees in his chain of Shamrock service station-stores. The Kiosks can stop a .357 magnum bullet fired at point-blank range and already is credited with foiling robbery attempts in Turner's stores.

In the space of a year, SSI's bullet- and bomb-proofing services have rapidly expanded because of demand primarily from governments and individuals in the Middle East, Latin America and West Africa, said Kimball, a former agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Now SSI says it is putting money into research into light-weight ballistics materials that could be used to protect human beings subject to robbery or terrorist attacks, or who work on off-shore oil rigs or in the vicinity of nuclear reactors.

SSI completely refurbishes an average of five vehicles a month, at $50,000 apiece and up, to provide protection against grenades, bombs and bullets up to and including 7.62 NATO ammunition.

Company director Ed Stackpole demonstrated for a reporter a new Chevrolet Caprice completely lined with bullet proof materials and glass, a siren, an intercom system allowing passengers to speak with people outside without unlocking the doors, gun portals, concealed tear gas cannisters and with the ability to lay smoke screens and oil slicks.

Stackpole said the automobile was reworked for a "West African tribal chieftan" at a cost of more than $55,000.

Nearby sat a red Ford Good Times Van being built for "a president," but he would not identify which country, and a completed Chevrolet Suburban bound for a Latin American country.

In another section, workmen had just taken saws and cut a brand new $24,000 Cadillac Seville exactly in half at the middle.

"We're going to put in an extra section for a bar and television set," Stackpole said.

SSI officials say their light-weight polycarbons — tested at their own indoor firing range — are as effective at stopping bullets and bombs as steel and weighs one-third the weight of steel. They turbo-charge and super-charge the engines and install overload springs to make the cars as swift and maneuverable as factory models.

"Evaluation of armor has just begun in the last four to five years," said Dan Call, a salesman who travels selling the anti-terrorism services to wealthy potentates. "Studies have shown that 80 percent of the terrorist attacks take place while people are enroute in their automobiles."

SSI officials said none of the passengers was killed in five terrorist attacks on their vehicles in Central America.

The SSI officials showed pictures of a late-model automobile that withstood 34 rounds of .45- and .30-calliber bullets, an ax and a sledgehammer with no harm to a sub-minister of defense in El Salvador.

They also displayed a photo of an automobile with its outer metal blown away by a bomb thrown against it in Guatemala. But they said a Guatemalan minister inside the car escaped with his life because of their bullet proofing materials.

"In the most recent attack in January in Guatemala, the man had gotten out of his van and they started shooting at him. He got back in the van and was okay," Call said.

SSI officials also are planning an armored vehicle with sophisticated electronic gadgetry for the Houston SWAT team and are discussing building troop carriers. But they emphasize that their services are for defense of life only and are not considered to be offensive weapons.

They add that they can create a space in the vehicles where weapons can be concealed.

"If you want it to hold a bazooka, we'll arrange for it, if there's room. We design secret compartments. It's a real James Bond deal," said Sam Riklin, a publicist for the firm.

Riklin predicts with continued experimentation that in the future material could be created "as thin as a shirt and nothin will hurt it except a bazooka."

SSI now employees 50 workers at its assembly plant in Northeast San Antonio, and Riklin predicted the work force could double in the next five years.

The first jail sentence for a traffic violation — five days for speeding — was imposed in 1904 on a motorist convicted of driving 20 miles per hour.

Grandma's Gay Lifestyle Makes Relatives Unhappy

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful man, but when I married him I acquired a gay mother-in-law. She has a live-in girlfriend who not only shares her home but her bedroom. (Double bed.)

The problem is that we have moved out of state, and when we come back to visit her, we are expected to stay at her home. We have small children, and I don't want to expose them to this unnatural lifestyle.

My husband says the children will be oblivious to his mother's living arrangements, but I am not so sure. He is also afraid that his mother's feelings would be hurt if we stopped staying with her. How should this delicate matter be handled?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: If you don't make an issue of your mother-in-law's living arrangements, your children will probably think nothing of it. But if they question it, a non-judgmental explanation is in order: "It's a fact of life that some men sleep with men, and some women sleep with women."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Not long ago you published a letter from a man whose wife had left him. He commented on your defense of divorce. You said, "It's more important to save people than marriages."

Abby, I totally agree. I am 16 years old and lived nine years of my life listening to my mother and father fight every night. I used to lie trembling in my bed, praying they wouldn't kill each other.

Now, three years after the divorce, our family is much better off, although it took a lot of courage on my mother's part to finally go through with it. She had to figure out how to support herself and two children on one income, and debated if maybe it wouldn't be better for us kids if she stayed with my father and put up with his abuse.

I personally feel that she made the right decision. It hasn't been easy for her. She has to work two jobs to make ends meet, but our household is so much happier.

HAPPY IN IDAHO

DEAR HAPPY: Thanks for the reassurance. Many of my younger readers wrote to say they feel the same way about their divided families.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I wish you'd please keep reminding people that their friends and relatives are in a hospital to get well — not to entertain visitors.

I just got home from a 10-day stay in a hospital and I'm glad I had the good sense to tell my friends and relatives I would appreciate it if they didn't come to visit me. Nobody got mad. In fact, they thanked me for my frankness.

My hospital roommate acted so pleased when people came to see her by the dozens, but after they left, the poor thing was exhausted because she really wasn't up to having company. She later told me she really didn't want company but didn't want to hurt their feelings. I'll bet she had 50 visitors every day.

Abby, tell your readers to ask their hospitalized friends and relatives if they honestly want visitors before popping in for a surprise call. A card or telephone call would be so much more appreciated by most folks.

ON THE MEND IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR ON: Well said. And while we're on the subject, I wonder why everyone thinks a "No Visitors" sign on the door means everyone except him?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Is my husband crazy, or am I? He has worn glasses for years, and says when he takes his glasses off, he can't hear. Do you think he should have his head examined?

MOLLY IN GREELEY

DEAR MOLLY: Not necessarily. But it wouldn't hurt to have his ears examined.

Unidentified Witness Testifies...

Wood Grand Jury More Secretive

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Government attorneys have grown even more secretive as a massive investigation into the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. draws nearer a solution.

Since the Justice Department in Washington took control of the investigation from the local U.S. Attorney's office last December, virtually no information of an official nature has come out of the two-year investigation.

That policy became even more apparent Thursday when prosecutors moved a grand jury session into the old post office building in an effort to conceal the identity of a secret witness who spent two hours testifying.

The unidentified heavy-set man matched the physical appearance of Jerry Ray James, the former prison-mate of key suspect Jimmy Chagra. James has been granted a conditional release from prison, placed in the Federal Witness Program and granted immunity to testify as a key witness in the Wood investigation.

However, federal authorities used walkie talkies in an effort to keep news repoters from seeing the witness, refused to confirm whether it was James and covered him with a suit coat before driving him from a basement parking lot in the back seat of a stationwagon.

New Mexico Gov. Bruce King in April granted James a conditional release from prison as a witness in the investigation of Wood's killing. He allegedly told federal investigators that Chagra told him he (Chagra) arranged to have Wood shot on May 29, 1979, outside the judge's San Antonio apartment.

Federal authorities later revealed that they had recorded conversations between Chagra and James late last year and early this year at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., where James was transferred after last year's New Mexico prison riot.

Chagra, a high-stakes gambler from El Paso, was scheduled for trial in Wood's court at the time the judge was shot from ambush. He later was convicted of narcotics-related continuing criminal enterprise and sentenced to a 30-year prison term without parole.

Until Thursday, all the other known grand jury sessions had taken place on the third floor of the federal courthouse, now named for the slain judge.

But Thursday's unannounced meeting was conducted at the downtown post office building in the fifth floor bankruptcy courtroom while two FBI agents stood guard in the hallway.

Tight-lipped prosecutors were seen going in and out without commenting to reporters who discovered the meeting and staked out both entrances to the courtroom.

The grand jury apparently convened at 9 a.m. for the ultra-secret session about six blocks from where it usually meets.

The jurors, appearing particularly camera-shy and surprised to find reporters at the new location, left the building with their usual no comment at 11 a.m. They began drifting back around noontime, but apparently never reconvened in the afternoon before departing the building for the day.

FBI agents and a uniformed security guard remained in the hall talking on walkie talkies most of the day.

About 1:40 p.m., a full two hours after the grand jury session apparently broke up, reporters spotted a heavy-set man in his 40s, well dressed and clean-shaven, as he was whisked from the bankruptcy court down a flight of stairs and into the FBI office located on the fourth floor. Cameramen later saw the stationwagon, driven by a federal marshal, leaving the underground garage with the witness covered by a coat.

Earlier, Assistant U.S. Attorney LeRoy Jahn was seen going down the elevator with a large stack of blue-colored folders, pads and pens apparently used by the grand jurors.

Neither Mrs. Jahn nor her husband, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn, would comment on the purpose of switching the meeting site. The Jahn husband-wife team and Assistant U.S. Attorney John Emerson have been housed at the FBI offices and have presented evidence to the grand jury the past seven months.

FBI Director William Webster said last winter that the investigation was nearing a solution and that "we know the players."

Despite predictions of indictments as early as March, however, no one has been charged in Wood's death.

Spraying Started Too Late...

Fruit Flies Continue To Threaten Cropland

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — As the Mediterranean fruit fly expands its turf, agricultural experts say the battle to save the state's produce industry from the insect may already be lost, despite aerial spraying of pesticides.

Five helicopters took off early today, trying to bring the program back on schedule after mechanical problems during the first three days curtailed spraying. The aircraft were to remain in the air until after sunrise.

The fruit fly, which attacks 200 varieties of fruits and vegetables, has moved to within 20 miles of San Francisco and within 40 miles of the rich farmlands of the San Joaquin Valley, officials said.

The area considered heavily infested with maggots rose to 175 square miles Thursday, and critics charged that a lackluster performance by helicopter crews spraying the insecticide malathion has brought California and its $14 billion agricultural industry to the brink of disaster. In the first three days of spraying, 25 square miles were sprayed.

"If they've fouled up for over a year, they're certainly not going to eradicate it now," said entomologist Terrance Allen, who headed the medfly eradication effort last year.

"It's a matter of time before we'll be picking up Mediterranean fruit fly in the San Joaquin Valley, Santa Barbara Valley, (and) Imperial" Valley, Allen said, naming the famed farm areas further south of the infestation.

"It even has a chance to go into northern California, into Oregon and maybe Washington," he said.

Allen claims that Gov. Edmund Brown waited too long to order aerial malathion sprays. He said he was demoted to a lesser state government job because of his advocacy of stronger action against the pest.

Allen's opinions were echoed by Frank Gilstrap, a Texas A&M University entomologist and member of the California Medfly Technical Advisory Committee. He charged Thursday that failure to spray by air when the heavy infestation was discovered in June was "absolutely unconscionable."

Accidents Keep Officers Busy

Lerena Lecroy Turnbow of Snyder was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Thursday afternoon for minor injuries she sustained in an accident at 1500 37th at 5:10. The vehicle Ms. Turnbow was driving, a 1979 Buick, was in collision with a 1981 Buick driven by Ocie Alvin Turner of Abilene. Officer Don Whittenburg took the accident report.

Whittenburg also worked a hit and run at 1208 ½ 25th at 2:59 p.m. Thursday. Involved was a legally parked 1978 Ford owned by Irma Sanchez and a vehicle which left the scene.

Another hit and run at 11:13 p.m. at 1509 Ave. T involved a legally parked 1976 Dodge van owned by Timothy J. Craig and a vehicle which left the scene. Officer Tony Pantoja took the report.

Early this morning, police took a report of a woman taking several pills after having an argument with her common law husband. The woman was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Snyder firefighters extinguished a combine (threshing machine) fire Thursday at 1700 College Ave. at 5:30 p.m.

Countries Could Default On Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is increasing danger that poor countries with high oil bills could default on their debts, throwing the world banking system into chaos, a top-level panel of international bankers has warned.

"There are default risks in international lending," the panel said in a report published by the International Monetary Fund. "In our judgment, these risks are increasing."

The IMF has estimated that by the end of this year 87 poor countries which must import their oil will be $418 billion in debt, some of it caused by having to borrow to make interest payments on old loans.

The panel said that because of volatile oil prices, high interest rates and slow economic growth, pressures on debtor nations to repay loans quickly "may become so acute so as to be politically or socially intolerable."

DON NEWBURY

Newbury To Speak At Local Church

Dr. Don Newbury, president of Western Texas College, will speak at 6 p. m. Sunday at First Christian Church.

Dr. Newbury, who took over the post at WTC last April 1, is a well-known speaker as well as educator.

He holds degrees from Howard Payne University, the University of Texas at Austin and North Texas State University.

He served as assistant director of college information and instructor in journalism at Howard Payne University, as director of college information and instructor of journalism at Sul Ross State University and as director of communications for the Tarrant County Junior College District (Fort Worth) before coming to Snyder.

VBS Set At Church In Hermleigh

HERMLEIGH—Vacation Bible School has been scheduled for July 20-24 at the Central Baptist Church in Hermleigh.

Children from age 3 through the 6th grade are invited to attend. The time will be from 3:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. daily.

The United States and Spain signed the Treaty of San Lorenzo in 1795, and Spanish troops withdrew from the Mississippi Territory shortly afterwards.

Jungle Risks Not New To Missionaries

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — Missionaries and pilots training in this tiny Piedmont village to spread the Gospel around the globe are accustomed to the risks of jungle life and the hazards of remote dirt airstrips.

But they are facing a new danger that seems to be surfacing with increasing regularity — terrorism.

"We always tell our people to relay the message that we will not be blackmailed," says Martin Huyett, executive director of the Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, the branch of Wycliffe Bible Translators that transports linguists to dozens of nations around the world.

"That is, we will not pay if one of our missionaries is taken hostage."

JAARS, located in the piney forests on the outskirts of Waxhaw, seems isolated from the dangers facing missionaries who fan out across the globe. About 275 missionaries live in JAARs housing at its training center and in homes around Waxhaw.

JAARS provides a training ground for flights by linguists, and it stays in radio contact with missionaries and pilots through an international network of ham-radio operators.

Terrorism was not a major problem for the linguists of Wycliffe, which has about 4,500 workers worldwide — including about 2,000 in Third World areas — until recently.

But the problem was demonstrated in March when Chester Bitterman, 28, a linguist and graduate of Columbia Bible College in South Carolina, was shot to death by terrorists in Bogota, Colombia.

Bitterman, who had moved to Colombia with his wife and two daughters 18 months earlier, was taken captive when guerrillas abducted him and said they would kill him unless Wycliffe linguists left Colombia. He was killed after being held for six weeks.

Since that time, Ecuador has ordered linguists out of that nation, saying their work has become too controversial.

JAARS and Wycliffe officials are reluctant to talk about terrorism, but they staunchly maintain that it has not affected their efforts to translate the Bible into every language.

"We will continue to do what we have been doing, and that is help people everywhere get the word of God," Huyett said in an interview. "We always clear our work with a country's government and go through the proper channels. When we've done all we can, we're in God's hands after that."

Translating the Bible into another language is a lengthy process that sometimes requires linguists to live in a native country for 10 to 12 years.

Animal Rights Issue Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promoters of animal rights are trying to gain national attention by supporting a move in Congress to look into the welfare of livestock on the nation's farms.

A group calling itself People for Ethical Treatment of Animals quietly demonstrated outside the Agriculture Department's headquarters building on Thursday and planned to continue its vigil today.

Andrea Posner, one of the organizers, said the group — which calls itself PETA — is a non-profit organization which operates entirely in the Washington area. However, she said, similar groups are working on behalf of animal rights in many other parts of the country.

About a dozen PETA followers erected a large banner on Washington's mall near Agriculture Secretary John R. Block's office. It said: "Animals Have Rights — They're Not to Experiment On, Eat or Wear."

The group is supporting a resolution introduced recently in Congress by Rep. Ronald M. Mottl, D-Ohio, which seeks to establish a 16-member committee to look into "the impacts of intensive farm animal husbandry," it said in a statement.

Specifically, the group is angered over remarks Block made last Friday in a telephone interview with a group of farm broadcasters.

Block was asked for his reaction to Mottl's legislation.

"I really don't think that the animal rights issue is a very big issue or a very important issue," Block said. "I think it's an issue on the periphery of all the important problems we have in the world today and in this country.

"I can't take it very seriously. If it becomes much higher visibility, I might become concerned. But I think by and large our livestock producers are very humane in their approach to it, and responsible."

Block added that some states have laws that protect livestock against inhumane treatment and that the matter probably should be approached on a state-by-state basis.

"I just can't see the federal government trying to get into everything and regulate everything in this country," Block said. "We're supposed to be moving away from this, not toward it."

An aide, John Ochs, said Block did not plan any further elaboration and noted that his remarks last Friday were not new, that Block "for years" has felt that way about the animal rights issue.

Reaction by major farm organizations has not been on a large scale, so far.

The National Cattlemen's Association, for example, told its members in a recent newsletter that it and other groups "have been discussing possible methods of dealing with this issue" for some time.

"This issue may become a legislative problem, but it would be a mistake for the livestock industry, in a major (public relations) campaign, to call more public attention to the alleged problem at this time," it said.

Harry Chapin Is Killed In Truck-Car Accident

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Chapin, the pop balladeer who sang about extraordinary moments in ordinary lives and used his fame in the fight against world hunger, has died in a highway crash at age 38.

He was a poet, a guitar player, a moviemaker and a writer for Broadway, the singer of the hit songs "Taxi" and "Cat's in the Cradle."

But he also was "kind of a social worker-songwriter" who "did a lot of reaching out and supporting people who were less fortunate than himself," said Kathleen Dwyer, one of about 300 fans who lingered Thursday at a park where Chapin was to have given a free concert.

Chapin was alone Thursday in a blue 1975 Volkswagen Rabbit when he passed a tractor-trailer on the Long Island Expressway. The truck collided with his car, and the car burst into flames.

The truck driver cut Chapin's seat belt and pulled him through a window. Chapin was rushed to Nassau County Medical Center in East Meadow, where he was pronounced dead. No charges were filed against the truck driver, officials said.

Although Chapin was badly burned and suffered internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said he had suffered a heart attack and died of cardiac arrest. The spokesman said there was no way to tell whether the heart attack came before or after the accident.

Chapin was driving from his Long Island house to New York City on business, said Guy Thomas, a publicist for his management company.

Chapin was the son of a jazz drummer, Jim Chapin, who worked with bandleaders Tommy Dorsey and Woody Herman. Harry Chapin, born Dec. 7, 1942, in New York's Greenwich Village, learned to play the trumpet as a child before taking up the guitar.

Chapin and his brothers Tom and Steve formed the Chapin Brothers folk singing group. He attended the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs and Cornell University, then returned to singing.

In addition to recording 11 albums, Chapin wrote, edited and directed a documentary film, "Legendary Champions," which was nominated for an Academy Award in 1969, and wrote a 1975 multimedia Broadway show, "The Night that Made American Famous," for which he got two Tony nominations.

If They Strike...

Postal Workers To Be Arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, saying a postal strike would have a "significant detrimental impact on this nation," is threatening to bring criminal charges against postal workers who walk off the job when their contract expires next week.

Echoing the hardline approach taken by Postmaster General William F. Bolger, Assistant Attorney General D. Lowell Johnson said Thursday in a statement that a law barring strikes by federal employees "is designed to prevent and punish" walkouts.

Bolger has said strikers would be fired and could be barred from future government employment.

No progress has been reported in negotiations with the two largest unions, the American Postal Workers Union and the National Association of Letter Carriers, which represent about 500,000 of the 600,000 unionized employees. The current three-year contracts expire at midnight Monday.

Dan Driscoll, a spokesman for the postal workers union, said the Jensen statement is "no surprise. It is part of the whole campaign.

The New York electric subway was opened in 1904.

Low blood sugar confusion

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Local doctors had me on Librium and Valium for 12 years. Thank God I am off all drugs now. I was being treated for symptoms related to low blood sugar. I had a three-hour glucose tolerance test eight years ago which was as follows: fasting, 98; half-hour, 146; 1-hour, 208; 2-hours, 122; and 3-hours, 80. I have read that a drop of 50 or more in one hour is a sign of hypoglycemia. Although the test should have been continued to five or six hours, I had no symptoms during the test.

According to my studies, the rise indicates a delay in the release of insulin and a delayed reaction of the adrenals in producing adrenaline to keep the blood sugar normal.

I know hypoglycemia is a stress disease and that overconsumption of refined carbohydrates and alcohol can affect it. What about smoking, exercise and excitement? These too stimulate the adrenals.

DEAR READER — In the first place, your glucose tolerance test does not show any sign of hypoglycemia. Second, the abuse of the diagnosis of low blood sugar has been so great that the American Medical Association issued a position on its requirements for diagnosis. These include a significantly low blood glucose level at the time symptoms are produced. Since you did not have an abnormally low glucose level and did not have symptoms, such a diagnosis is not warranted.

I presume your doctors thought so, too. You didn't mention what your symptoms were but your treatment suggests that your doctors thought you were a person who released excess adrenaline because of stress in your life or stress reactions and not because of a low blood sugar.

Adrenaline release will produce sweating, palpitation, tremor and anxiety whether the adrenaline release is triggered by a low blood sugar or simple anxiety. That is part of what causes all the confusion.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to help you sort this out. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Incidentally, eating relieves the symptoms of an adrenaline reaction whether or not you have a low blood sugar level at the time.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 25 years old. Two years ago I found out I have only one kidney. It seems I was born with just one. I can't help but wonder if one kidney didn't deteriorate through the years. If that is the case, will the same thing happen to the one kidney I have left?

I found out about my having only one kidney about four months after the birth of my last child. The thought scares me to death. I can't bear the thought of one day living on a kidney machine. I have to know why I just have one kidney and if the same thing will happen to my remaining kidney.

DEAR READER — It is rare but some people are born with only one kidney or with one kidney so small that it is of no significance. In that case, the one remaining kidney is almost always enlarged to be big enough to do the function of two kidneys.

I am sure you are such a rare case and you need not worry that your remaining kidney will disappear. You will need to take special precautions to avoid urinary tract infections and take good care of your one kidney.

GO GET'EM COWBOY -- Fort Worth cowboy Larry Sanders didn't have the fastest time in the tie-down calf roping event at the Raleigh Lights Scurry County Rodeo last night, but he did top the field in steer wrestling. Sanders is ranked fifth in the IRA standings in steer wrestling, eighth in all-around and 14th in calf roping. (SDN Staff Photo)

India's Criticism Did Not Prompt U. S. Arms Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — India's criticism of U.S. plans to sell F-16 jet fighters to Pakistan did not prompt a U.S. decision to postpone talks with India about a nuclear cooperation agreement, the State Department says.

Assistant Secretary of State James L. Malone was scheduled to be in New Delhi Tuesday and Wednesday to discuss the future of the 18-year-old agreement under which the U.S. supplies fuel for an American-built reactor at Tarapur.

School in Greenland is compulsory until the age of 14. Courses include kayak handling and sewing furs.

OBITUARIES

Butler Rites

Services for Willie Butler, 69, of Sweetwater, are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at McCoy Funeral Home Chapel of Memories. The Rev. Larry McAden of Calvary Baptist Church in Snyder will officiate. Burial will be at Sweetwater Cemetery.

Butler, a retired service station owner, died at 7 a.m. Thursday at Rolling Plains Memorial Hospital.

Survivors include his wife, Georgia; three daughters, Doris Hodges of Sweetwater, Mary Beth Lutz of Taylor, and Judy Kay Hill of Snyder; three sons, Gerald of Sweetwater, Stanley and Joe, both of Lubbock; five brothers, T.J. of Abilene, Alpha of Fort Worth, Oliver of Snyder, Clarence of Hamlin, and Melvin of Azle; 17 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Rep. Wilson Likes Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charlie Wilson, D-Lufkin, is happy with a redistricting plan drawn up by the Texas Senate that would take 100,000 voters from a Republican area of Montgomery County out of his district.

"I kept Conroe. That I like. And Cut 'N Shoot. I've always liked Cut 'N Shoot," said Wilson. The 27,000 residents of Montgomery County still in his Southeast Texas district are in a traditional Democratic stronghold.

"It doesn't make them sad either," Wilson hastened to add about the Woodlands area of south Montgomery County who will no longer be represented by him if the Senate remapping plan holds up.

"Many people around in there have expressed the wish they could be represented by a Republican. They will be much happier with their representation under this bill," he said, grinning.

Most of them, Wilson added, have been placed in the 6th congressional district of Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station. Gramm is a Democrat but has voted with the Reagan administration so consistently that some Democratic loyalists have asked that he be booted out of the party.

For every 60 feet men dig down, the earth's temperature increases about one degree.

LlewellynWeds

MARLOW, England (AP) — Roddy Llewellyn finally has gotten married, but not to Princess Margaret.

With more than 1,000 spectators jammed into All Saints churchyard and the surrounding streets, Llewellyn was married Saturday to Tanya Soskin, a fashion designer and travel writer.

Llewellyn, 33, is a landscaping designer for weathly Londoners. For eight years, he carried on a highly visible romance with the 51-year-old princess.

Margaret, the divorced younger sister of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, is on a tour of Canada with her daughter and did not attend Llewellyn's wedding.

Dallas Blacks Applaud Plan

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dallas blacks who want their own congressman rose Thursday and applauded Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, author of a Senate plan that gives them their wish.

Senators were scheduled to take a final vote today on Wilson's statewide congressional redistricting plan, to which they voted preliminary approval Wednesday.

Al Lipscomb of Dallas, a speaker for the Coalition for Minority Representation, urged the House redistricting committee Thursday to issue a similar plan.

He asked the blacks accompanying him to stand and applaud Wilson, who was at the House hearing. After the applause ended, Lipscomb said, "Contrary to what you might believe, there will be no crosses burned on your lawn."

Character actor Sidney Greenstreet's first movie was made in 1941 when he was 61 years old. It was "The Maltese Falcon."

Meet Rotan Again Tonight...

Leaguers Outlast Tourney Foe

By Dwain Pape

ROTAN -- A game-winning single by left fielder Roman Reyes in the bottom of the eighth inning lifted the Snyder Little League All-Stars to a 7-6 come-from-behind victory over the Stonewall-Kent All-Stars here last night.

The loss eliminated Stonewall-Kent from the tournament, while Snyder's All Stars advance to meet undefeated Rotan at 8 here tonight. A Rotan loss would put both teams back on the field at 8 Saturday. Should Snyder lose tonight, Rotan would automatically take the tourney championship and represent the area in further Little League playoffs.

Two Snyder errors in the first inning helped Stonewall-Kent take a 2-0 lead. The margin extended to 5-0 in the second when Ike Mitchell singled and Dale Matlock walked, and Jim Arnold doubled them home. Arnold later scored on a throwing error.

Snyder bought back one run in the bottom of the inning when fist baseman Kyle Guerry walked, moved to second and third on wild pitches, and scored on a Mark Velasquez single to right centerfield.

Stonewall-Kent set up its final run in the fifth when Randell Courtney hit a Texas League single into short right center. He moved to third on a pair of wild pitches, and scored on a ground ball by Vasquez, 6-1.

Snyder's boys rallied in the bottom of the fifth to tie the game. Hale led off with a double, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on centerfielder Kenneth Pickering's grounder to third, 6-2. Roman Reyes' grounder to second forced Pickering out, but Danny Gambol pinch hit a single to right to move Reyes to third. Next up Steven Mack slapped a shot to second baseman James Adams, but his throw to the plate was not in time to catch Reyes, who came across with Snyder's third run.

Vasquez fanned the next batter for the second out, but Long countered with a clutch single to left, scoring Gambol and Mack for a 6-5 talley. The score deadlocked when Guerry knocked a grounder past the shortstop to score Long.

Both teams got runners aboard in the seventh inning, but neither could push them across. Stonewall-Kent was then shutdown 1-2-3 in the eighth before Snyder sacked up the victory.

The All-Stars got rolling when Velasquez singled and moved to second on a throwing error. Hale also singled, sending the runner to third, and Reyes followed with the game winning shot, which pushed Velasquez across.

British Open Proving Tough For Everyone

SANDWICH, England (AP) - Since the British Open golf championship began in 1860, there never was a first day like this.

Nobody broke par.

Jack Nicklaus, a three-time champion, shot 83 - his worst round in 20 British Opens - after hearing that his son Steve had been charged with drunken driving back in Ohio.

Tom Watson, defending champion, predicted the title may be won with an unprecedented total of 6-over par.

And amid all the high scoring in the shifting winds, 51-year-old Arnold Palmer lost an argument with officials over a free drop and probably was robbed of a share in the lead.

The 6,829-yard Royal St. George's links lived up to its reputation as a terror for golfers unfamiliar with the hump-backed fairways, invisible bunkers and winds that blow in from Pegwell Bay.

Only two of the 153 players, Vicente Fernandez of Argentina and Nick Job of Britain, made par 70. They shared the lead, with six men one stroke behind them - Johnny Miller and U.S. Amateur champion Hal Sutton of the United States, U.S. Open winner David Graham of Australia, Isao Aoki of Japan, Simon Owen of New Zealand and Tony Jacklin of Britain.

All the top players had predicted the course would be difficult, but probably none of them expected it to be as tough as this. The pins were awkwardly placed, the wind differed from hole to hole and the greens were slow.

At the center of the drama was the tragic figure of Nicklaus, who has never finished outside the top six in the last 15 years.

Few of the 19,000 fans who lined the undulating fairways knew of his family worries. All they saw was a great golfer making a mess of hole after hole. At the turn, with one birdie and five bogeys, he was at 39, four over par.

But worse was to come. On the first five of the inward nine he had four double bogeys and a bogey.

Watson double-bogeyed the first hole after twice hitting into heavy rough. He finished with 73. That left him three strokes off the pace.

League Sets 7:30 Meeting

Snyder Girls Softball Association will hold a meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Towle Park Barn.

Purpose of the meeting is to elect officers for the 1982 season.

Anyone interested in girls softball is urged to attend.

Duran Slated Against Gonzales In Cleveland

ORWELL, Ohio (AP) - Roberto Duran stepped away from what Carl King - son of fight promoter Don King - calls "the actual place of work" - a boxing ring on the second floor of King's Boxing Camp barn.

"I'm all right," he said in Spanish, making his way across the barn's plywood floors and into the showers Thursday.

There were no cheers and no boos. A small group of local fans gingerly approached the Panamanian boxer for autographs.

Two days ago, Duran arrived here from New York. Thursday, he was getting the feel of things. Six rounds of sparring were under his belt, and he appeared to feel good about a post-workout bout with reporters and a camera crew which posted him in front of a grain harvester and Ohio corn fields for a filming session.

Duran is to face Nino Gonzalez Aug. 9 in Cleveland in a 10-round junior middleweight fight.

"He's OK," said Simon Smith, a Panamanian policeman who has been Duran's sparring partner for five years and who helped Duran work up a heavy sweat.

"He has to get his weight down a little, that's all."

Smith and Luis Resto, a New Yorker, had worked Duran into his characteristic reverie of "bings," "bams" "ee's" and other gutteral sounds that the boxer uses in the ring.

At 30, Duran is still one of the winningest fighters ever. He has a 72-2 record. Duran admitted he's been virtually inactive since he became ill and quit in the eighth round of a welterweight title fight against Sugar Ray Leonard in New Orleans last Nov. 25.

But he's still obsessed with Leonard, and he sees his fight with Gonzalez as a stepping stone to a Leonard rematch.

"I'll fight Leonard anytime he decides to fight." Duran said. "He must give me a return fight."

The 21-year-old Gonzalez, from Bayonne, N.J., is 24-1.

Spinks' Bout Set Saturday

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Michael Spinks is the favorite in his World Boxing Association light-heavyweight title bout against champion Eddie Mustafa Muhammad Saturday, but he says that doesn't mean a thing once they get into the ring.

"I respect any man that has two fists that would hit me," Spinks said. "I'm not going to stand in front of him and let him hit me."

Spinks, rated the No.1 contender by both the WBA and the World Boxing Council, finally gets his chance to step out of his older brother's shadow in the scheduled 15-round bout at the Imperial Palace on the Strip. The fight will be televised by ABC.

"It's the biggest fight of my career," he said. "I don't know if it's the toughest opponent, but it's the biggest fight. I'm going for all the marbles."

Spinks' brother, former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, will be at ringside, the younger Spinks said. He said his controversial sibling's well-known brushes with the law had not distracted him.

Michael, now 16-0 with 11 knockouts, was in his seventh professional fight on the undercard at the Las Vegas Hilton in February 1978 when Leon scored a split decision over Muhammad Ali to win the undisputed heavyweight championship.

In the 1981 NFL draft of college players, 54 defensive backs were chosen, the most for any position.

Strike Negotiations May Move To Washington

NEW YORK (AP) - The Reagan Administration, billing itself as the voice of the American people, has stepped into the major league baseball strike following another day of fruitless negotiations in which each side rejected proposals made by the other.

Shortly after the club owners rejected Thursday night a union proposal that the entire issue be turned over to final and binding arbitration, U.S. Secretary of Labor Raymond Donovan invited both sides to his Washington office today.

"I firmly believe Mr. (Marvin) Miller and Mr. (Ray) Grebey will be in Washington at my office tomorrow (Friday) and we'll take it from there," Donovan said in an interview with Enterprise Radio late Thursday night. He called the walkout "a strike against the American people, from one point of view," and said he would "try to be the voice of the American people I think has been missing at that (bargaining) table."

Frustrated after five weeks on strike, the players association offered the arbitration route as a possible solution to the walkout, now in its 36th day. The strike, which began June 12, has canceled 419 games, nearly 20 percent of the full major league season, and forced postponement of the All-Star Game last Tuesday night. But the Player Relations Committee, bargaining arm of the owners, turned down the arbitration idea.

Donovan said that Miller, head of the players' union, and Grebey, chief negotiator for the 26 major league club owners, "will be at a meeting in my office separately for conversation" and added that he was "still optimistic that over the weekend they'll be able to get this thing back on the table."

"I think Washington would provide a better atmosphere for the talks," said federal mediator Kenneth Moffett. "Several things can happen in Washington. For one thing, we can get away from this press business. I don't like the two sides reading all the papers across the country before showing up to bargain each day. We've been negotiating in a fishbowl."

In 1967, China exploded its first hydrogen bomb.

Lloyd Leads U.S. Contingent

CHICAGO (AP) - Wimbledon champion Chris Evert Lloyd heads a team of Americans who begin competition for the Wightman Cup today against a British team led by Virginia Wade, veteran of more than 20 years of cup matches.

Pairings for the match in the International Amphitheatre were to be drawn this afternoon.

Lloyd, at 26 the world's top-ranked woman player and three-time Wimbledon champion, is teamed with Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger, Pam Shriver and Rosie Casals.
