SCHOOL ELECTION BRINGS OUT LESS THAN THIRD VOTERS

It goes without saying that everyone is interested in our school system, but when it comes to voting, less than one-third of the potential electorate were interested enough to go to the polls last Saturday.

About 900 ballots had been ordered and only about 230 were used.

Nevertheless, those who did vote gave overwhelming approval to the proposition of changing the name of the county-wide district to "Independent." The vote on that matter was a landslide endorsement of the request made by the trustees. 205 voted in favor of changing the name, while only 23 were registered against.

In the election of two trustees Bill Lester, led with 202 Fred Case, followed with 152 Eldon Calk, third with 137

Henderson New Head Of School Board

Also on hand was the newly elected member, Fred Case. The other three board members are Henry Moore, Henry Speck, and Jim Martin.

As A Favor To Yourself . . .

Carry Personal Health Information In Your Billfold

Of course this won't ever happen to YOU, but—

Suppose you were many miles from home—a stranger in a strange community, and you were involved in a serious car accident and—

Suppose you were unconscious when you were removed from the wreck and rushed to the nearest hospital . . . the officers and doctors went through your pockets and located your billfold.

What information would they be looking for?

First they would want to get your name and home address, and the name and address of your next of kin.

But some additional information would be of great value to the strange doctor who was examining you. Such as . . .

The name, address, and phone number of your family physician. Your blood type.

Things you are sensitive or allergic to.

The American Medical Association has approved a card of this type and they recommend that you provide yourself with one, fully filled out, and carry it in your billfold.

In their March meeting the Home Demonstration County Council became interested in this matter and decided to promote it as one of their projects. They ordered some 500 of these cards and they now have them ready for distribution.

So now it is up to you to provide yourself with one of them.

Of course, YOU are a careful driver and you don't intend to have any wreck, but you never know when some durn fool is going to run into you.

Post Script

Hot-topping of the new Merton road entry was under way this week. Ford Allen of Sonora has contract for this job, along with the six-mile link in Reynolds and extension of the Bailey Ranch road.

Warm, almost summery weather has caused a number of people to plant gardens, mow lawns, and tune up air conditioning equipment for the hot weather ahead.

Trees are leafing out again after being nipped by the freeze of a few weeks ago.

All of these are signs of the late springtime here in Schleicher county.

Zela Baker says that they are going to shut up shop and take a vacation once the income tax deadline, April 16, is past.

Les, Zela and Raymond Hall have been working night and day at their accounting offices now for weeks, completing income tax forms for their many clients, and they have been forced to put in a lot of hours on Sundays, too.

Since April 15th comes on Sunday this year, the taxpayer has one more day of grace—the deadline is actually Monday, the 16th.

We know they will breathe a sigh of relief when Tuesday morning arrives and we wouldn't be surprised to find their office deserted.

Anyway, I'm glad it is their job and not mine.

Commissioners Set Pool Season Ticket Rates

At their meeting Monday, the Schleicher County Commissioners Court set the season ticket rates for the swimming pool to be applicable this summer.

The Court authorized Civil Defense to store emergency rations in the basement of the court house and the Memorial Building along with use of the basements of the two buildings for radiation shelters.

It was ordered that the County Attorney be authorized to institute condemnation proceedings for the purpose of securing F. M. right of way and channel easements thru land owned by E. Otto Williams.

The Court accepted the low bid of $3,240.20 from Southwestern Fence Co. for 10 miles of 1047-12-1/2 ga. Sheffield wire and 10 miles of 2 point 12-1/2 ga. barbed wire.

Gabriel Mata was employed to construct 1 1/2 miles of R.O.W. fence on F. M. 2084 at $450 per mile.

The Commissioners voted to enter into an Oil and Gas Lease Contract with Superior Oil Co. on Schleicher County's half interest in minerals in Gaines county land, at $17.50 per acre for a five-year period.

The Senior class will operate the Etheredge Texaco Station all day this Saturday. The class is raising money for their trip to be taken in May to Bandera, San Antonio, and other points.

Schleicher Wildcat
Abel & Bancroft and Delhi-Taylor Oil Corp., Midland, will drill a 6,800-foot Ellenburger wildcat in Schleicher County, 7 1/2 miles north of Eldorado and two miles south of the Neva West (Canyon) and the same distance west of the Huldale (Strawn) field. It is the No. 2-A Blaylock.

Location is 1,950 feet from the north and 1,990 feet from the west lines of 68-TT-TCRR.

It is a replacement for the firm's No. 1-A Blaylock, 1,980 feet from the west and 1,950 feet from the north of the same section, which has been junked and abandoned at 300 feet after failing to recover lost drill collars.

Fred C. Elliott is recognized as a student of cotton and makes it his business to keep up-to-date on changes that affect the industry, being recognized by industry and his outstanding ability in the production field.

Through his establishing a 7-step cotton that is recognized in every county in the state, the yield of Texas cotton has constantly been raised from 134 pounds to 348 pounds of lint per acre in 1961.

Mr. Elliott will discuss the all important subject of cotton varieties as related to the soils of Schleicher county.

C. F. GARNER
Associate Entomologist
Texas Extension Service

Mr. Garner is a member of the Texas Pest Control Association and the American and Texas Associations of Economic Entomologists. New Babies

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Atchley of Lynn Haven, Va., are the parents of a baby girl born on March 23rd, weighing 6 lbs. 8 1/2 oz., and named Cynthia Ann. There are two other children in the family, Charley 4, and Karon 2.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams of Eldorado and Mrs. Sue Atchley of Abilene.

Local cotton producers will study varieties most productive for the county this coming Wednesday, April 18.

The cotton producer has a wide choice of selecting seed for planting. His success in production may be influenced considerably by the variety he selects for planting. Choice of variety is influenced not only by production potential, but also by disease tolerance, suitability for mechanical harvesting, earliness of maturity, quality of fiber, etc.

Result demonstrations conducted locally and on record in the county agent's office offers conclusive proof that yields do vary greatly with the variety planted as to maturity, quality of fiber, yield and the most net income.

Mr. Fred Elliott, cotton work specialist, will head a group of specialists, to be in Eldorado on April 18 in the auditorium of the Memorial Building at 2:00 p.m.

Defoliation, new insecticides and mechanization will also be discussed.

It is the desire of the crops committee who secured these men who work every day with problems of the cotton industry, that all cotton producers will be present.

Estimated income from cotton in 1961 was $918,730.

C. Sauer Outstanding Conservation Farmer In Local S.C.S. District

Clemens Sauer, Eldorado farmer has been selected as outstanding conservation farmer of the year in the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation district. He is to receive a plaque and also to be nominated in the Save the Soil and Save Texas, Fort Worth Press awards program.

Clemens, like his father, Otto Sauer, has been a long time advocate of returning large amounts of residues to the soil. This year he applied cotton burs to one of his fields to add organic matter to the soil. All planned mechanical practices have been applied, such as level closed end terraces, field diversions and all crops planted on the contour.

Clemens has been a cooperator with the local soil conservation district since December, 1952. He still has other conservation plans for the place such as range seeding, and balancing his livestock with the kinds and amount of forage he has in order to improve the condition of his native range.

The main objective Clemens has in his conservation plan is to operate in such a way that he makes the most effective use of the rainfall that he gets on his place. He is fully aware of the fact that "it's the rain you keep that counts."

Conservation And The Population Explosion

By KATHY KINSER

(Essay written in conjunction with Fort Worth Press state-wide "Save the Soil and Save Texas" program. This essay placed 3rd in the local contest sponsored by the Eldorado-Divide Soil Conservation District and was mailed to the Fort Worth Press to compete in state-wide contest.)

In recent years the total population of the United States has risen quite noticeably; however, in the coming years an even greater rise is expected. With this rapidly increasing populace the United States faces a problem that has confronted man over the ages, the problem of feeding the hungry millions.

Is our land rich enough to produce food for the hungry millions. For years it has provided for us, we say. This is true, but it does not necessarily mean that for the coming years it will grow enough food to feed our increasing population. Each new crop reduces the mineral content of the soil. At this rate, what will be left in 10 years?

As the rate of consumption increases, the capacity for production of food decreases. If we are to have enough food for all of the people, we must take certain measures to conserve the richness of our soil. We must grow crops which will enrich the soil and develop ways in which the crops may be made suitable for human consumption. Also farmers should put into use methods of farming which help preserve the rich topsoil. We should concentrate on these conservation measures if we are to have enough food for the coming generations.

Our obligation to the future generations compels us to act now to preserve our rich soil. Our high standard of living depends on this soil. If we are to maintain our standards, we must act now.

Home Demonstration Agent's Column

By MRS. VIDA KREKUCW

I visited with a friend recently who, as head of a college Home Economics department, and last summer spent three weeks in Russia. She was appalled at the hard work done by Russian women. She told me:

"Women clean the streets, care for the flower gardens in the many well planned parks, drive buses and trolley cars, lay bricks, stone, and run heavy machinery. They are given three months off before their children are born, and get pay during that time. At the age of three months the child goes to a state nursery where his well being physically, and later his education, becomes the responsibility of the state. The child's condition is checked more closely than in many cases in our own country."

Who was it complaining about doing the Monday washing on her new push button machine.

Occasionally we are forced to think on some of the realities of life which are far from happy thoughts. One such area is concerning the community improvement committee of the Program Building organization during the month of April. This committee is undertaking the job of giving every adult and high school aged boy and girl in the county a medical information card, billfold size, which, in case of an accident, would give valuable information to a medical staff.

This story illustrates the point. Not long ago a friend was involved in a car accident, hurt seriously, but not rendered unconscious. On arrival at a hospital the first move on the part of a medical attendant was to give an antibiotic to fight infection. The man involved is highly allergic to all drugs of this kind. He said later that he saved his own life by being able to prevent a routine dosage, which would have been fatal to him.

The medical information card is designed to prevent trouble of this kind. The card covers personal information as doctor's name, kin, insurance, existing diseases, allergies, all vaccinations, dates of any surgery and all special instructions.

The American Medical Association prepared the cards; your own doctor has given his approval of the information contained on the card.

When a member of the distribution committee gives you your card, give it your sincere attention. Then—fill it out and put it in your billfold. May it never, never have to be used.

Why The Soil Conservation Law Was Created:

"Agriculture had come to the point where efforts of individual farmers and ranchers struggling to improve their own income did not add up to the greatest good for them as a group nor for the nation—therefore, the Government enacted legislation directing the establishment of national programs. The Government accepted two responsibilities: (1) To assist farm and ranch families in finding security and a good standard of living. (2) To maintain the nation's agricultural plant and its production at a level high enough to supply abundantly the needs of all the people."

The local district program, which is the land owners' program, is intended to give the reader a clearer and more detailed understanding of the soil and water conservation problems in the district and what local district supervisors believe needs to be done about them.

Participating in this district's program is voluntary, and assistance will be given only at the request of operators. Cooperation to landowners will be extended through a plan of conservation operations worked out by the land owner and the board of supervisors with the assistance of agricultural agencies and incorporated into a cooperative agreement.

Soil, water, and plant conservation is a problem for each and every farmer and rancher, but the individual, acting alone, cannot provide adequate safeguards without cooperation from his neighbors and the general public. It has been proven that single measures of soil saving are inadequate. Therefore, plans are made with the firm idea that only a coordinated attack using every appropriate weapon would suffice. Mechanical practices alone will not do the job—they need to be supported by the proper vegetative methods.

Supervisors recognize that land cannot be misused without effects which will reach far beyond the user to all society. The responsibility of land ownership increases with every step in agricultural progress. The right to own property carries with it the duty and responsibility to conserve and care for the land.

A large part of the cropland in this district has been in cultivation for a short period of time. Very little has been abused to the extent that it is beyond repair. However, a lot of our range lands show more evidence of mistreatment. The district's aim is to profit by the mistakes of the older settlements and begin acquainting, pointing out and practicing conservation measures to help our good soil and our good ranges from making any further decline.

A sincere effort has been made in the district's program to point out the most glaring faults, and submit some remedies for correcting them. Supervisors feel that if all farmers and ranchers would get a copy of the district program, and study it, it would greatly benefit them personally, help their land, their community and the district as a whole.

On The Screen . . .

'The Comancheros' Is On At The Eagle Drive-In

"The Comancheros," which is showing tonight and tomorrow nights at the Eagle Drive-In, stars John Wayne in the wide-screen movie in color. He's the Texas Ranger out to bring back playboy Stuart Whitman, fleeing the law after killing a politician's son in a duel. The plot sweeps from early-day New Orleans to the West Texas of the era.

Whitman, in a role originally earmarked for Dean Martin, helps Wayne bury a Comanche-killed family out on the lone prairie, and then bends the shovel over Wayne's head to make his escape.

Wayne doesn't have too long to brood because when he gets back to Ranger headquarters his orders are to disguise himself as a Comanchero (white men who sell fire-water and rifles to the Indians) and locate the outlaws' headquarters, and aid in running down the gun-smuggling activities of the Louisiana border Comanches.

Along the way he bumps into Lee Marvin, a half-scalped badman who only wants to fight and drink fifths of whiskey. In a too-short sequence he measures up as the year's top villain.

As Wayne also crosses paths again with Whitman, a Comanche rain interrupts their trek to the gallows in the outlaw camp. Whitman escapes again—but this time he returns leading the Rangers to Wayne's rescue, a trifle that wins him full acquittal and a Ranger badge.

Whitman, who shows so much rugged personality that he may be rated the next John Wayne, winds up with a lush and exotic beauty named Ina Balin in his arms. She plays the daughter of the renegade chief (Nehemiah Persoff) but is found on the right side when the Indians and Renegades meet the Whites in their most spectacular battle.

The spirit if not the fact of Roy Bean of Langtry is voiced by Mr. Buchanan as a Roy Bean of the circuit court. When adjudicating a murder charge against Mr. Whitman, he says, "No way to do this legal and honest. Being sensible Texans we're going to be illegal and dishonest. Case is dismissed."

'Back Street'

Fannie Hurst's lugubrious tale of thwarted lovers, "Back Street," which has withstood the inroads of three decades, will be seen Sunday and Monday nights at the Eagle Drive-In. The current version is the third, is in color, and stars John Gavin, Susan Hayward, and Vera Miles as the newest members of the triangle.

While Ross Hunter's current production is true to basic material of the Hurst novel, there are some minor changes which are indicative of the changing scene since the 1900-1920's of the original to the present day.

The first version in 1932 with John Boles as the international banker and Irene Dunne his lady love who was kept on a back street of his life and Doris Lloyd as the wife, was set in Cincinnati, Ohio, with a lot of emphasis on the Germanic people and customs.

There's been a lot of name changing, too. Rae Schmidt became Rae Smith in the second version, vintage 1941, when Margaret Sullivan was the patient Griselda relegated to the back street by Charles Boyer. The cad who didn't do right by the lady was known as Walter Saxel in the novel and in versions one and two. The name in the third version is now Paul Saxon and he's the heir to a department store chain.

Cincinnati has been changed to Lincoln, Neb., but the New York and European backgrounds are still used. In the novel and two films, the "back street" lady had no means of support other than the handsome cad who loved her on a part-time basis.

Miss Hayward, however, as the new Rae Smith, has worked herself out of that, if not morally, at least geographically and financially. She's a successful fashion designer and eventually a partner in a high fashion firm.

Also added is a violent death for the wife and eventually the husband, when the former wrecks the car. The newest farewell death-bed scene is done in person instead of the two principals on opposite ends of a telephone wire.

Fannie Hurst of Hamilton, Ohio, and St. Louis, Mo., already had it made in 1930 when "Back Street" first appeared.

Miss Hurst is still around at a doughty 72, writing a bit and crusading heavily for welfare causes.

Daughter of a St. Louis shoe-factory owner, Fannie obtained college degrees in St. Louis and at Columbia, New York, using Manhattan as a curious kind of classroom. She took jobs as a sales girl in a department store, a waitress and a steam laundry worker to acquire background experience. This probably made better publicity than anything else as Miss Hurst and her typewriter usually manipulated rags to riches by Chapter II.

The mile relay foursome (Richard Self, Lynn Meador, Ray Ballew, Jim Runge) also broke the old record of 3:33.6 set by Sonora in 1961 with a new time of 3:31.4. Jim Runge, who anchored both relays, also set a new standard in the 440-yard dash with a time of 50.3, breaking his own record of 50.7 that he set in 1961.

Others who placed first for the Eagles were Mikel Jurecek in the shot put and Pete Logan the high jump. Donnie Holden was second in the shot put and Pete Logan 3rd. Jim Runge tied for second in the high jump with three other boys. Richard Self placed 5th in the broad jump and Donnie Holden was 6th.

TELEPHONE CALL FROM GERMANY

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dannheim's daughter, Mrs. Dale Peterson (Wanda), called her parents from Frankfort, Germany, last Saturday night. Mrs. Peterson and two children, Allan 6 and Eric 3, accompanied Captain Peterson to Frankfort where he is attending an instrument school.

Their home is in Toranto, Italy, where he is stationed. After this week, when he completes his schooling, the family plan to spend another two weeks vacationing in Germany.

RANCH WOMAN OWNS PRIVATE GAS WELL

Mrs. Lottie Bolt, who lives on a ranch near Junction, has the unique distinction of owning her own private gas well. She and her daughter, Mrs. Tom Owens, who also lives on a ranch between Barnhart and Big Lake, have been guests of Mrs. V. G. Tisdale this week. Mrs. Bolt is a sister of the late V. G. Tisdale.

Several years ago, an oil company drilled a well on Mrs. Bolt's ranch and brought in a weak oil and gas well. But since there were no further developments, the well was abandoned.

Since Mrs. Bolt was using gas from the well in her large ranch home, she decided to buy the oil company's interest in the well. She did so; thus she has no gas bills to pay each month.

Mr. and Mrs. George Long were at market in Dallas over the week end, and their store was closed Monday and Tuesday.

Named To All-District Basketball Team

Jim Runge has been named to the first all-district basketball team by the coaches. Runge, along with Finn Watkins of Big Lake were unanimous choices to the first team. Van Miller and Carl Montgomery of Ozona, and Roy Adams of Big Lake were also named to the first team.

Runge, a senior in EHS and a 3-year letterman, averaged 21 points per game and scored 37 points in his last game against Sonora, while the Eagles won 66-58.

Mrs. W. N. Ramsay reported that this is National Library week and urged everyone to visit the library.

The executive board announced that Mrs. Edwin Jackson has been appointed as president for 1962-63, taking Mrs. W. O. Alexander's place since she resigned.

Mrs. Jackson reported that the State Convention of Federated Women's Clubs will be held in San Antonio May 8 through the 10th.

Mrs. Arch Mittel was leader of the program which was on religion and brought the inspirational thought.

Mrs. L. L. Watson talked on "Religion in the Space Age," and Mrs. W. N. Ramsay discussed "Religion in Character Education."

Editorial Comments From Our Neighbors

Consistent Newspaper Ads Are Best "Trade At Home" Appeal
Community newspapers are usually advocates of various "shop at home" drives.

As a local business, the newspaper certainly has a stake in any stimulation of local trade and the building of a better center.

However, as businessmen and as realistic observers, most publishers know very well that general publicity given to "shop at home" drives can not succeed unless the advertising of individual retailers offer consumers some specific benefit for keeping their business at home.

For stimulating trade activity in a community an organized effort can never substitute for the advertising effort of the individual merchant who offers at a good price a dress, an automobile, a power tool, or a hen.

People everywhere shop with an eye to personal benefit. They are not impressed by appeals to community loyalty when local merchants fail to make it known that they are competitive with distant shops.

No one just shops for the sake of shopping. They go to a certain store to buy certain items. They go to Chicago to buy a coat at Marshall Field's, or to Atlanta to buy a suit at Rich's, or to New York to buy a dress at Macy's.

Great retail centers become great because the persistent advertising of particular stores made them attractive centers of trade. And always in smaller cities where retail activity attains vigor, the real cause is local merchants who know that persistent, specific promotion by the individual store is the most powerful "trade at home" appeal. —Junction Eagle.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

About 30 young people met at Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kemble's after church last Sunday night for fellowship. Frank O'Banion was in charge of the program. Rev. Christy Moore gave a reading and all joined in for a sing-song with Terry Phelps at the piano.

Mrs. Kemble served refreshments to those present.

Austin.—John White, State Commissioner of Agriculture, injected a bright note in the Billie Sol Estes investigations when he predicted, "I am confident that the grain storage picture is going to come out all right."

He and his men completed inventory of grain in elevators Estes owned at Lemesa and Levelland. They assured receipt-holding farmers that their grain is there.

The State's responsibility lies in supervision of elevators where farmers store their grain and then borrow money against their warehouse receipts.

White suspended the licenses of five grain elevators in which Estes has an interest, and sent his men to check the contents against warehouse receipts. Then he announced temporary warehouse license suspensions on Hale County Grain Company and Southwestern Grain, Inc., both in Plainview.

W. L. Cooper of Plainview, operator of one of Estes' large grain storage facilities, is also listed as operator of these two warehouses.

State Securities Commissioner William M. King said his investigators are checking evidence which would tend to show Estes has violated the Texas Securities Act.

Employment Hits New High

Unusually mild weather aided employment in the state to reach a record high for February. Texas Employment Commission announced 3,346,900 jobholders that month as compared to 3,330,100 in January and 3,312,300 for February of 1961.

Warm weather was favorable for construction workers, agricultural employees and other outdoor workers, and helped reduce the number of unemployed from 239,900 to 189,900. The commission predicts an even better employment picture by mid-April, if prospective manpower needs reported by employers hold true.

Council Defends System

"How do you deal with the extremely aggressive, hostile student?" asked Dr. James A. Turman when the Texas Youth Council conferred with members of the Texas Citizens Committee of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Youth Council's executive director referred to criticism from the committee's vice chairman, Mrs. Edmund P. Williams of Corpus Christi, who earlier had called the barbed wire fence around Gatesville's Mountain View School "the only one of its type outside Nazi Germany."

Dr. Turman said two such security units in California are fenced. He joined council chairman Robert W. Kneebone in informing the committee that Gatesville inmates include 387 boys who have committed serious crimes—45 convicted on murder charges.

The citizens committee proposed a statewide study of community services for delinquent children, which the Youth Council said it would welcome. However, it already has retained a prominent authority, Dr. Austin McCormick, to survey the five detention institutions it oversees.

State Archives Open

Invaluable historical documents which tell the story of Texas' history have finally found a safe and permanent home. For more than a century they have been placed and misplaced in various temporary quarters.

Now they are housed in the $2,500,000 Texas State Library and Archives Building adjacent to the State Capitol. Prior to the April 10 dedication researchers and librarians had been collecting and classifying the precious documents in a quonset hut in North Austin.

Gov. Price Daniel, whose hobby as a Texas historian is almost an avocation, started urging the Legislature to approve an archives building in 1957. Appropriately, he made the dedicatory address at the opening ceremony.

A special exhibit will be on display during April. It will include William B. Travis' letter from the Alamo, the Texas Declaration of Independence, five treaties of the Republic of Texas and other memorable papers.

Farm Bureau Representative

Texas Farm Bureau appointed Charles H. Huff of Taylor as its new legislative director. Farm Bureau President J. H. West said Huff will move to Austin soon, to replace Bob A. Lilly.

The new director is well-seasoned in Capitol contact work. He served as full time assistant legislative director during the regular and special sessions of the Legislature last year.

MR. ADVERTISER . . .

Here Is Why Your Local Newspaper Ad Provides Greatest Return For Your Dollar

When you place your advertisement in your local, home-town newspaper, an unexpected telephone call or visitor will only delay your message, NOT LOSE IT FOREVER!

Newspaper Advertising DOESN'T INTRUDE . . . It Goes Where It Is Invited! People buy newspapers because they want all the news. They are as much interested in the advertising columns as the news columns because advertising is the news of what is available in goods and services at the stores they know. There are no gadgets to turn off the advertising in newspapers. Nobody wants it turned off. Every survey ever made shows that people prefer to have the newspaper they buy contain advertising BECAUSE THE ADVERTISING IS NEWS!

The newspaper is there all day and far into the night. It is there for the whole family to read. AND THEY DO! They can refer to your ad a day later, a week later, or a month later.

It is there to be read at the time and under the circumstances when reader asks to be informed. It is there for the housewife to tear out the ads and take them with her when she shops. SHE DOES!

There are no dials to turn on. There is no problem of turning the dial at just the right time. There is never a question about whether the advertiser's message gets to the reader. Local newspaper advertising goes where it is invited. It sells because it is read at your customer's convenience.

The CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL

By DAYTON KELLEY
Mary Hardin-Baylor College
Belton, Texas

The Civil War would not have been the same without the likes of John Henry Brown, newspaperman, historian, politician, soldier, and mayor of Dallas from 1884 to 1886.

Brown, who never rose above the rank of major in the Confederate Army, was a delegate to the Secession Convention at Austin in 1861, a member of the Committee of Public Safety appointed by the Convention, and served as chairman of a committee to write a "declaration of causes" of secession.

During the War, Brown served on the staff of friend Brig. Gen. Ben McCulloch until the latter was killed at the Battle of Pea Ridge and then he transferred to the staff of Brig. Gen. Henry McCulloch, General Ben's brother. After the War he went to Mexico along with thousands of other Confederates, but returned to Texas in 1870. In 1871, he moved to Dallas and the following year was elected to represent Dallas county in the state legislature. Perhaps one of his most important public services was his work on the present constitution of Texas.

His work on newspapers in such towns as Austin, Galveston, Victoria, and Belton had made him aware of the necessity of setting down the facts that could be learned from the early pioneers who were still around, and after the War he wrote several monumental volumes of Texas history including "History of Texas, 1835-1892", "Indian War and Pioneers of Texas", and a little paper-bound "History of Dallas County."

We were recently reminded of Major Brown's contributions to Texas and the Confederacy by a letter on display at the Central Texas Area Museum in Salado which he wrote just 98 years ago this week to his friend Col. E. S. C. Robertson who was home on sick leave at the time.

The letter, which is on loan to the museum from the Robertson family, was written from Bonham on March 25, 1864. Though the letter speaks mostly of the men of the unit to which both Brown and Robertson belonged, it nevertheless is interesting because of its reference to the Red River campaign which the Federals had just launched in an effort to open the way into Texas in order to supply cotton to the textile manufacturers in New England.

Major Brown expresses hope that the campaign will be unsuccessful and that the spring will see renewed activity on the part of the Confederate high command that will keep Texas free from the threatening invaders.

The letter is on display in the Confederate alcove of the Museum amid dozens of other items of a Confederate uniform, Confederate currency, and an amnesty oath signed at Brenham on July 29, 1865 by Thomas E. Woods.

The major's letter has been conveniently "translated" and neatly typewritten, making it easier for visitors to read. Evidently a legible hand was not among Major Brown's many attributes.

But as long as we're erecting monuments and paying special tribute to the heroes of both Texas and the Confederacy during the centennial years of the Great War, we think somebody ought to do something to insure that proper credit is given to Major John Henry Brown.

It must have given Major Brown a great deal of pleasure when his expressed hope that the Federal invasion via the Red River would be turned back when Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks was defeated by Confederate forces under Maj. Gen. Richard Taylor at the Battle of Sabine Crossroads on April 8, 1864, thus bringing the Red River Campaign to a halt.

We read up on this little-known campaign that lasted only from March 12 to May 20, 1864 in the Johns Hopkins University publication entitled RED RIVER CAMPAIGN by Ludwell H. Johnson and were surprised to learn that this was one of the most destructive campaigns of the War. We were also surprised to learn that the Texans in the Battle of Sabine Crossroads were commanded by Camille Armand Jules Marie, better known as Prince de Polignac. The Texans found his name so hard to pronounce that they referred to him fondly as Prince "Polecat."

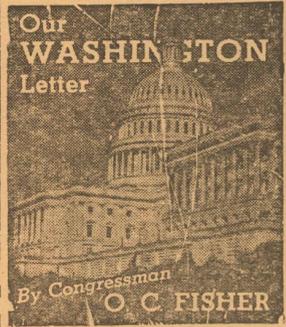

Footnote to recent story: Two years after General Stonewall Jackson plagued the Federals in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, the area was ordered burned by General U. S. Grant. The order was carried out by General Philip Sheridan whose campaign has long been neglected by historians. Now this important Union activity is clearly and completely detailed in Edward J. Stackpole's SHERIDAN IN THE SHENANDOAH, a valuable contribution to accounts of the War in the Eastern Theater.

And General Turner Ashby, the cavalry commander who underestimated the strength of Union forces in the Shenandoah resulting in the defeat of General Jackson at Kernstown—the only defeat suffered by Jackson throughout the campaign—is successfully captured in the pages of KNIGHT OF THE CONFEDERACY, the Naylor Company's publication by Frank Cunningham.

BUSINESS AS USUAL FOR ESTES FIRM AT FT. STOCKTON

Business as usual was the situation this week at Fort Stockton Implement Company, only local firm directly controlled or affected by the financial difficulties of Billie Sol Estes, the Pecos industrialist under investigation by federal and state agencies.

Contrary to many of the rumors afloat here on the week-end, there have been no large scale layoffs or changes of operation in the Fort Stockton firm, which is managed by W. B. Duncan, former owner who sold out four years ago to Estes and remained as manager.—Fort Stockton Pioneer.

Marketing orders for turkeys will be voted on by growers between June 18 and June 22, according to an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman. It would be the first nationwide marketing order, if approved.

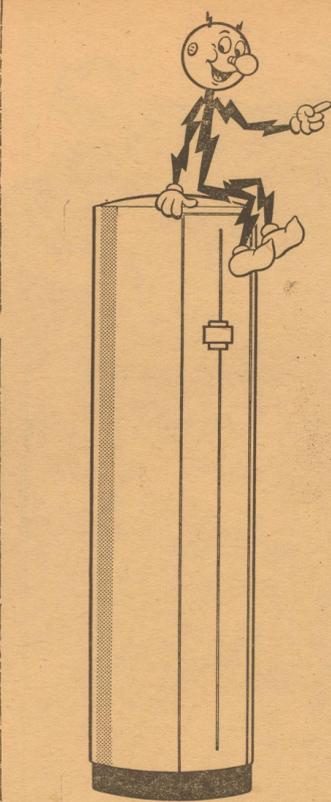

But most of the turkey growers in Texas want no part of this form of control and regimentation. They prefer to take their chances on the open market, as they have been accustomed to do. At least, every indication points that way.

The theory of marketing orders is to raise prices farmers receive for the commodity by placing limitations on the quality and the quantity that may be purchased by handlers and processors. Such controls would be paid for and administered by the growers. But all enforcement would come under the Secretary of Agriculture.

Those who produce as much as 3,600 pounds of live turkeys annually may vote in the June referendum. But farmers who slaughter their own birds may not vote unless they produce and slaughter at least 100,000 pounds of turkey a year or unless they slaughter at least 5,000 pounds annually for other persons.

Last year turkey prices slumped 25% when 108 million birds were produced, 20% more than the previous year.

This gave rise to the idea of imposing the marketing orders. If adopted, the order would allow a 60-man advisory board of pro-
