To Discuss African Move...

US, Allies Meet In Paris

PARIS (AP)--The United States and four European allies opened talks today on how to bring stability and security to Zaire and other pro-Western African nations. American transport planes landed in Zaire, meanwhile, ferrying Moroccan troops to Shaba Province to replace French troops there.

France called the Paris meeting in the wake of the recent Shaba invasion by exiled Lunda tribesmen opposed to President Mobutu Sese Seko. Also attending are Britain, Belgium and West Germany, which like France built up huge African colonial empires in the 19th century and still have extensive economic, cultural and political links with their former colonies.

France rushed 600 Foreign Legion paratroopers to Shaba last month to help drive out the Lunda rebels. Belgium also dropped paratroopers to help defend its former colony.

A U.S. Air Force Starlifter cargo jet carrying about 70 Moroccan soldiers stopped for fuel early today at Kinshasa, the Zairian capital. The 3,600-mile airlift from Agadir, Morocco, on Africa's northwest Atlantic coast, to Shaba in south-central Africa began Sunday.

American military sources, who asked not to be identified, said they believed other flights-- carrying 1,500 Moroccans in all--may be bypassing the capital and flying directly to a Zairian air force base at Kamina, 150 miles north of the Kolwezi mining center, the target of the rebel invasion.

The Moroccans are the nucleus of a Pan-African peace force which France is sponsoring as the West's answer to Soviet-backed Cuban troops in Africa. France expects the force also to include contingents from Senegal, the Ivory Coast, Togo, Gabon and the Central African Empire, all former French colonies.

The French government, which is committed to giving military aid to more than a dozen African countries, would like the other Western powers to endorse the idea of the Pan-African force and to promise their material help for any future operations by such a force. The French want the Americans in particular and the other former colonial powers to acknowledge that they have a special responsibility for the security and economic development of the countries.

Quake Rocks Asia

MOSCOW (AP) - A strong earthquake rocked the southern part of Soviet central Asia today, Tass reported, but it said damage was slight and there were no casualties.

Tass said the quake measured eight on the 12-point Medvedev Scale at its epicenter north of the town of Gazli. The town was destroyed by a 9-point quake a in 1976, but Tass said stronger materials were used in rebuilding and they took quake in "excellent" shape.

The quake was also felt in Bukhara, Samarkand and Tashkent, Tass reported.

Poerner Confident

By The Associated Press

John Poerner says he's not worried about the one last hurdle that remains for him to continue as a member of the powerful Texas Railroad Commission.

Poerner came back from a second-place finish in the May Democratic primary to top aging political campaigner Jerry Sadler more than 2-1 in Saturday's runoff election.

The former state representative next faces Republican James W. Lacy, 53, of Midland, in November. Poerner said he will now turn his attention to that campaign, "which I am confident I can win."

Ex-Sen. Montoya Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, a member of the Senate panel that investigated the Watergate scandal, died today from what hospital officials said was liver and kidney failure.

Montoya, 62, a Democrat from New Mexico, entered Georgetown University Medical Center May 4 complaining of stomach discomfort.

His family was with him when he died this morning.

Liberals Take Lead

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The ruling Liberal Party candidate, Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, took a narrow lead today over his Conservative challenger in one of the closest presidential elections in Colombian history.

The Conservative, Belisario Betancur, 56, had claimed victory by 200,000 votes earlier in the day, and his supporters roamed the streeets of Bogota shouting, "We won! We won!"

But with 90 percent of Sunday's vote officially counted this morning, the 62-year-old Tubay Ayala, a former ambassador to Washington and the pre-election favorite to win, held 1,866,009 votes against 1,832,102 for Betancur.

Carter For Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today told senators leading the fight for labor law revisions that he remained committed to the legislation, which he called "both needed and moderate."

The Senate, returning from a week-long recess today, faces continuation of a Republican-led filibuster on the legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, who attended the 10-minute meeting with Carter in the White House Cabinet Room, planned this afternoon to file the first motion to limit the debate, setting up a vote on that cloture petition Wednesday.

Carter said he called the meeting "to reaffirm my own commitment to passing labor law reform." He said the bill was "constructive for the future well-being of employers and employees."

Family Together

CHICAGO (AP) - After a four-year battle with Soviet bureaucracy, Tim Loos has brought home his wife, Nina, and her 6-year-old son, Jerrick.

"I am very happy. I am very happy. We shall be friends. We shall be friends," the 30-year-old Nina said Sunday as she embraced her American in-laws at O'Hare International Airport.

"She's the way I pictured her, full of life," said Mary Loos of Wilmette, Ill. "She's a very bubbly person," added her husband, Henry. "I think he made a good choice. I'm sure he did."

'Da' Big Winner

NEW YORK - "Da," an attempt by playwright Hugh Leonard to come to terms with the memory of his father, captured four major Tony awards, including best play, while "Ain't Misbehavin'" a tribute to composer-lyricist Fats Waller, is named best musical of the 1977-78 Broadway season.

On Way To 2nd Billion Barrels...

Scurry Ranked Second In 1977 Oil Production

Scurry County is well on its way to producing its two-billionth barrel of oil, but gave up its No. 1 position among Texas oil producing counties in 1977.

Statistics complied by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, show that Yoakum County produced 74,354,617 barrels of oil in 1977 to take over first place. That left Scurry County in second place with 70,745,781 barrels of oil produced for the year.

State-wide figures show that oil production declined last year throughout the state. The downward trend continued despite another year of production at or near the maximum effective recovery rate in nearly all fields.

The output for the state, still ranked as the nation's No. 1 oil producer, was just over 1.1 billion barrels in 1977. But last year's production was almost 51 million barrels below the all-time peak production year of 1972.

Scurry County now ranks fifth in cumulative oil production among Texas counties. Only 10 counties have produced a billion barrels or more, and Scurry County achieved that plateau in 1973.

Scurry County's cumulative total stood at 1,443,352,109 barrels at the end of 1977.

The all-time leader is Gregg County, the first Texas county ever to produce two billion barrels of oil. Its cumulative total at the end of 1977 stood at 2,596,793,663 barrels. The only other Texas County ever to produce two billion barrels or more of oil is Ector, which had a total of 2,135,90;0,495 at the end of 1977. In third place is Andrews County with a cumulative total of 1,850-192,429 barrels and in 4th place is Rusk County with 1,599,322,900.

Following fifth place Scurry County are Crane with 1,221,245,826, Harris with 1,194,610,013, Brazoria with 1,088,141,076, Yoakum with 1,069,042,174 and Gaines with 1,047,-937,231.

For the past year, Ector County ranks third behind Yoakum and Scurry with 62,364,428, Gaines is fourth with 58,859,385, Hockley is fifth with 48,992,268, Greg is sixth with 47,235,684, Andrews is seventh with 46,904,788, Pecos is eighth with 43,076,484, Wood is ninth with 38,309,096 and Refugio is 10th with 35,-859,779.

Blast Claims 7th Victim

GALVESTON (AP) - Joyce Taylor, 24, died today in a Galveston Hospital of burns received during a series of explosions at a water front oil refinery at Texas City.

She was the seventh victim of the blasts that rocked the facilities at the Texas City Refining Inc. plant in the predawn hours of May 30.

Two workers and a security guard were killed when two 55,000 gallon gasoline tanks erupted and fire spread rapidly to other storage facilities nearby.

Three others died later of burns.

Ms. Taylor, an operator-clerk with the refinery, had been in critical condition with burns on her arms and face.

Panel Extends ERA Deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House civil and constitutional rights subcommittee today voted 4-3 to give states another seven years in which to decide whether to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., subcommittee chairman, said the full Judiciary Committee, of which the subcommittee is part, would take up the extension within a few weeks. He said supporters of the proposal have 17 votes on the 34-member committee, one short of the required majority, but, "I think we'll do it, all right."

Full committee approval would send the proposed seven-year extension to the House floor. An extension proposal has also been introduced in the Senate, but no action has been taken there.

Refugees Begin Strike

CHICAGO (AP) - About 20 Chilean refugees have begun a hunger strike to protest the disappearance of several people under the military junta in the South American country.

A spokesman for the refugees said Sunday that similar strikes will take place in several other U.S. cities and 19 countries. The spokesman said the refugees in Chicago will continue their strike until the junta releases some information concerning the missing person.

Top Court Clears Way For Little Extradition

WASHINGTON (AP)--The Supreme Court today cleared the way for New York authorities to return Joan Little to North Carolina.

Apparently rejecting arguments that Miss Little's life would be endangered in North Carolina's custody, the nation's highest court turned down a request that her extradition be postponed until her lawyers could file a formal appeal.

Miss Little now faces return to a North Carolina prison to finish serving a term on a breaking and entering conviction and possible additional time on escape charges.

Miss Little, who is black, became the focal point of civil rights and women's rights activists in 1975 when she stood trial on charges of murdering a Beaufort County, N.C. jail guard.

She said the guard, Clarence Alligood, attempted to sexually assault her and that she stabbed him with an ice-pick in self-defense.

She was acquitted after a two-month trial that attracted international attention but was later imprisoned on an unrelated breaking and entering conviction.

Last Oct. 15, Miss Little escaped from the North Carolina Correction Center for Women near Raleigh.

She was arrested in Brooklyn last Dec. 6.

In asking the Supreme Court to block her extradition, Miss Little's lawyers argued that "there is a plan or conspiracy on the part of various officials of the state of North Carolina to murder her should she be returned."

North Carolina officials have denied that there is any such conspiracy.

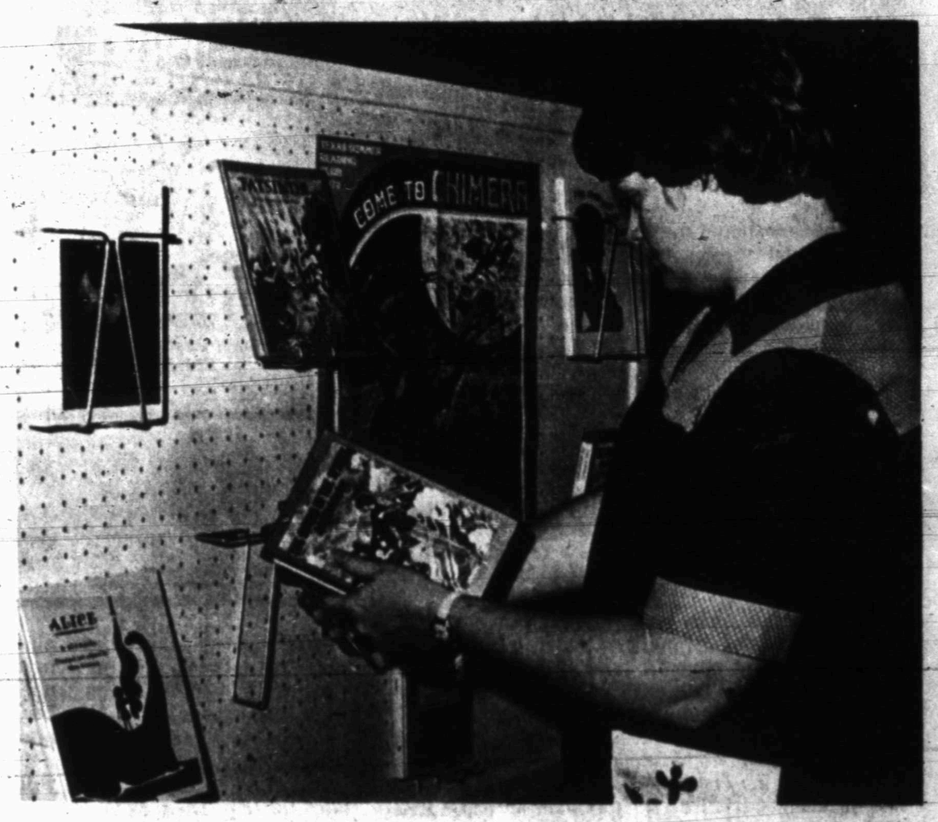
In other actions today, the Supreme Court:

—Agreed to decide whether evidence can be used against criminal defendants when the government fails

—Voted 7-2 to leave intact a lower court's decision that struck down a New Hampshire law because it named only girls, and not boys, as potential victims of statutory rape.

—Upheld a tax return check-off system used by Minnesota for public financing of state election campaigns.

—Left intact the obstruction of justice conviction and two-year prison sentence of Herbert Fineman, former speaker of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives.



DISPLAY ARRANGED — Sharon Sumruld, a librarian at the Scurry County Library, arranges a display in preparation for the upcoming Summer Reading Club in which the library will participate. The reading program is for youngsters between the ages of six and 14. The program begins June 15 and continues through Aug. 15. (SDN Staff Photo)

Scurry Library Plans Summer Reading Event

Youngsters between the ages of six and 14 may participate in a summer reading program sponsored by the Scurry County Library, reported librarians.

In the reading club, children will be presented a certificate of recognition from the Texas State Library after they have read 10 books by different authors. The program is designed so that participants will read books at their own age level.

The theme of this year's reading club is designed to appeal to children's imagination, and spotlights imaginative literature available in public libraries, said local librarians.

Participating in the program are 24 libraries in a 32-county-wide area served by the Big Country Library System.

396 Claim City Tax Exemptions

A total of 396 property owners in the city of Snyder made applications before the June 1 deadline for tax exemptions on property taxes allowed for persons 65 years old and above.

L. E. Griffin, city tax assessor-collector, said these exemptions, which were approved by the city council in April, will involve about $22,000 in tax money.

Government taxing agencies are permitted to grant exemptions up to $3,000 in valuation to senior citizens. The county and Snyder Public Schools previously had granted this exemption.

Those qualifying for the exemption were required to make application by June 1 for the 1978 tax roll and hereafter applications must be made by May 1, according to the ordinance adopted by the council.

Property owners 65 years old and above must make application each year to take advantage of the exemption.

Thailand Opens Narcotics Court

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - The Thai government has opened its first narcotics court to try to reduce a growing backlog of drug cases.

Ask Us

Q - In a town the size of Snyder, with three pizza places, three chicken places, three Mexican food places and two steak places, etc., to its credit, is there some way the Chamber of Commerce could persuade a fish restaurant such as Long John Silver to come to Snyder?

A - The chain food service organizations almost always have their own criteria which must be met for new outlets. We understand that someone inquired about a Long John Silver franchise here several months ago and was told our population was not quite up to their minimum. As for the Chamber of Commerce, it does not solicit additional retail and service establishments, but does furnish information they request when they decide on their own initiative that they are interested in Snyder.

olympics come high

Los Angeles delegates seeking to hold the Olympic torch six years from now had best take a careful look at the price tag.

At the latest meeting in Athens, Los Angeles was told it has provisionally been awarded the Games for 1984 provided it signs a contract to abide by International Olympic Committee rules.

There are a couple of sticky clauses - first, the IOC will control the Games, and, second, Los Angeles will be totally repsonsible for the cost. And the cost can be mighty high as can be confirmed by Montreal, host city in 1976.

Montreal originally budgeted $124 million for its Olympic Games, assuming the bill would be covered by gate receipts. When the whole shebang was over, the cost totaled $1.5 billion and Montreal's deficit was $1 billion.

Costs could soar even higher in Los Angeles. It has been estimated that security alone would total $7 million.

Those from Montreal who have been through the experience advise Los Angeles delegates to devise a prudent budget and make sure it's written into the contract.

Los Angeles should not let itself be overwhelmed by the haughty pronouncements and the lavish style of Olympic international leaders.

The 1984 Games would be a wonderful thing for Los Angeles - but not at any cost.

surprise packages

The very short-term future is likely to hold some surprises for consumers.

According to the Economics Department of McGraw-Hill, an estimated 14 percent of all sales in 1981 will be accounted for by new products, either unknown today or so changed as to be considered new.

The prediction turns up in a survey of projected research and development expenditures by business. Companies report planning outlays of $34.5 billion during the current year, with 33 percent going into development of new products.

The survey sees continuation of the trend through 1981, with the consequences showing up as innovations in consumer products. The total new-product market by then will be an estimated $269.6 billion.

It appears to be a case of what we don't know now turning out to be very profitable for some of us later.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - "There are no villains and there is nothing especially sinister in what anybody is doing," says noted writer Herman Wouk. "There is nothing evil about it. It's just the way the balance-sheet mind works."

Wouk, best known as the author of "The Caine Mutiny," is talking about a phenomenon that has turned book publishing into an industry dominated by a few powerful corporations, most of them conglomerates.

Wouk expressed his fears about the future of the publishing business in recent testimony before a Senate subcommittee. Three days later, Joseph D. Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, voiced similar concerns.

In a speech before the Association of American Publishers, Duffey referred to the fading of a revered tradition of independently owned book publishers, succeeded by "the growing conglomeration of publishers, moviemakers and television companies."

Some examples of the frightening trend that also disturbs several influential members of Congress:

CBS, Inc., which controls one of the nation's three television networks, also owns two publishers of hardback books-Praeger and Holt, Rinehart & Winston - and two paperback producers - Fawcett and Popular Library.

RCA, Inc., which controls another network. NBC, numbers among its many subsidiaries three publishing houses-Random House, Knopf and Pantheon.

Gulf & Western Industries owns Paramount Pictures, producer of material for both movie theaters and television, as well as Simon & Shuster and Pocket Books.

Time, Inc., best known as a magazine publisher, also owns the Book-of-the Month Club and three book publishers - Viking, Penguin and Little, Brown, as well as interests in television production companies and cable TV.

The issue has become a matter of concern in government circles because the application of federal anti-trust laws may be required to discourage further industry concentration.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee that heard Wouk's testimony, is studying the problem. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Aria., has called for a major federal study of economic concentration in the industry.

Representing The Author's Guild, Wouk explained that "it is the nature of a conglomerate" that subsidiaries acquired by the corporation "shall show not only a profit, but a certain fixed-policy margin of profit."

That balance sheet discipline can be valuable in marketing many goods and services, he concedes. But "publishing is something very special" because books with the greatest social, artistic and literary value often are not commercial successes.

Because many publishing houses now are tied to firms with large investments in the motion picture and television industries, there is increased pressure to produce popular "blockbusters" that can generate extra profits for the parent company.

"Publishers may find themselves relegated to the role of suppliers of raw material to satisfy the insatiable demands of the visual media for the new and dramatic," warns Duffey.

There are other potential dangers as well. Conglomerates with a broad range of economic interests may exert subtle pressure on their publishing houses to discourage production of books that might offend influential politicians, potential business allies and other powerful interests.

Wouk even fears that if the country ever again faces a "blacklisting" or "McCarthy" era, corporate officers will be especially reticent to publish books dealing with "the controversial, the difficult and the unpopular."

Unless the recent trend is halted: the current flurry of concern may have arrived too late to preserve the valued independence of an industry especially crucial to the dissemination of ideas in a free society.

at wits end

Have you seen where the new Cadillacs are offering a digital trip computer on their dashboards?

It's an instrument panel which you program like a computer just before you start the trip. Then, as you drive, you press you a function button and instantly, the lights illuminate to reveal your average speed for the trip, how many miles before you need gas, how long you've been on the road, how many miles to your destination and what time you will arrive.

Boy, if that little goodie were a standard part of family compact cars and station wagons, it would be the greatest boon to parents traveling with kids since they started selling tranquilizers over the counter without a prescription.

Think of it! An instant answer to all those long-playing mouths in the back seat. "When do we get there? When we gonna have lunch? How long is it going to take? How many more miles?"

Of course, it's the same old story. The expensive cars have all the children's features that should be in the economy cars. Like the limousines with their sliding glass panel that throws the back seat into a pit of silence and spares the driver the agony of sound.

Everyone knows the economy cars need the twirling bucket seats where a mother can whirl around and give the kids a rap without standing on her knees and impaling herself on the head rest to reach the bratee.

They need the electric windows that are controlled by the cockpit crew so that you don't have a child's tongue curving around your no-draft.

Economy cars should have the electric locks on all the doors that keep the adults in the front seat in control, especially when you stop for gas and discover you have to drive through the homemade fudge and the gift shop to check it out.

Of course, it's understood that the digital computer would have to be set with a few different responses to a car carrying children. But if we've come this far, it may not be too crazy to imagine that someday, station wagons would come equipped with standard buttons on a panel that would illuminate the following answers just by touching the button:

Are we lost? (Yes or no.)

Miles covered per day. (You're not going to believe this.)

And maybe just one button that stays lit all the time that reads, "YOU SHOULD HAVE GONE BEFORE YOU LEFT HOME."

time to cool it

NEW YORK (AP) - A jobless rate of 6.1 percent, such as occurred in May, generally suggests that we're a long way from full employment. But it may be the best rate that can be achieved for the time being.

The reason is inflation. With a rate of 7 percent for the entire year now a possibility, the Carter administration has little choice but to turn its attention toward the restraint of wages and prices.

In other words, it must cool things, and when an economy is cooled it hardly provides a warm environment for unemployed workers. In fact, it could mean that some who are now employed might lose their jobs.

What the economists now are saying is that we can't have our cake and eat it. That is, we can't hope to lower unemployment substantially while trying at the same time to reduce the rate of inflation.

There comes a point, they say, when efforts to employ more workers puts upward pressure on prices, the reason being that the workers newly hired may be of marginal ability and thus among the least efficient.

The shock to the administration and others is that the point of interaction has come while the jobless rate is still so high. Some authorities had hoped to push unemployment under 5 percent.

But there is evidence now that a further decline in joblessness would automatically result in higher prices, an eventuality no politician can ignore. Higher prices affect everyone; unemployment doesn't.

For the time being, therefore, it seems likely that "full employment" isn't the 4 percent we had envisoned, but about 50 percent higher than that. Is something wrong with the measuring stick?

The suggestion is strong, and some economists swear that a 6 percent jobless rate today is equal to a 4 percent rate 10 years ago. Today's jobless rate is exaggerated, they say.

While explanations differ somewhat, the most common assertion is that the work force, now at 100 million for the first time, has become swollen with people who are other than primary breadwinners.

Women are the most numerous addition to the work force, and some of them are not wholly dependent upon this income received. Some might even seek employment for reasons such as personal fulfillment.

While there is nothing to be criticized in such behavior, say those who study the statistics, the effect is to so enlarge the work force that the increase in jobs isn't sufficient to lower the jobless rate.

At the same time, they explain, there has been a growth in unemployment benefits, making it easier for an individual to bide his or her time while waiting for precisely the position desired.

Theoretically, therefore, we may be closer to "full employment" than is realized. Employers might now be accepting the least efficient workers, adding to their production costs and therefore to prices.

Rig Count Up Slightly

Permian Basin oilfields had 282 rotary rigs in operation last week, a gain of six over the previous week, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's survey.

However, the count last week represented a decrease of four from the corresponding week in 1977.

Eddy County, N.M., was the leader in Basin drilling activity, with 33 rigs going. Pecos County was the leader on the Texas side of the Basin with 24 rigs running, the same as in Lea County, N.M.

Scurry County had only one rotary rig in operation last week, compared to three the week before. The count for other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order; Borden 5 and 4; Dawson 6 and 6; Fisher 4 and 5; Garza 3 and 3; Howard 3 and 2; Kent 4 and 3; Mitchell 3 and 2; Nolan 1 and 1; Stonewall 3 and 2.

Alan: "North wants to be in a grand slam if South has two aces and the king of trumps. He can't find this out by normal bidding methods but modern experts have at least two ways to get to the grand slam safely."

Oswald: "Which way do you favor?"

Alan: "I favor a modification of the grand slam force. The bidding in the box shows North asking for aces by means of Blackwood and then bidding six clubs. Five notrump in that spot would ask for kings. This bid of a new suit asks partner to bid seven if he holds two of the top three trump honors."

Oswald: "It certainly works here and is simple enough so that any established partnership can use it. Let's formalize it."

Alan: "OK. A partnership using this convention agrees that if a player who uses a Blackwood four notrump follows up with a bid of six in an unbid suit, he guarantees all the aces and asks his partner to bid seven with two of the three top trump honors."

Fashion And Beauty Tips

With a tiered dress or one with lots of detail, try tying your espadrilles behind the ankle for a neat look.

Touch up a soft, pretty silk blouse with a silk bowtie.

Be sure to replace natural silk sponges used to apply foundation often. Clean cosmetic tools preclude infections.

Take a terry kimono anywhere by adding a belt, some jewelry and a scarf — and snaps so it stays shut.

Try on shoes in the afternoon when your feet may have swollen due to summer heat before buying them. That way you'll know if you can bear to wear them when the day wears on and the temperature rises.

Dog's Instinct Saves Puppy

TOLLESON, Ariz. (AP)- Guided by his instinct, Goldie, a 2-year-old Doberman Pinscher belonging to John Urosevic, has saved the life of one of her newborn pups.

Urosevic said Goldie gave birth to six puppies rather easily, but the seventh was delivered upside down and tail first. It didn't move.

Goldie grabbed the puppy by the hindquarters and began shaking it vigorously. "We thought she was mad at the pup for causing her so much pain," Urosevic said.

Goldie finally released the pup, but then she began gnawing on its chest. After a few minutes, the puppy began squirming and breathing.

Urosevic's veterinarian, Dr. L.J. Chernow, said, "Apparently the puppy was not breathing at all. The mother gave it her own form of artifical respiration."

AFTER GATHERING ye rosebuds, scatter them on a cool floral print sundress for summer. These red roses bloom on a cream background of a cotton-blend border print with elasticized bodice and shoulder ties. By RT.

By Runoffs...

Political Tone In House Or Senate Unchanged

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

Incumbent legislators generally fared well in Saturday's Democratic run-off primary, and there was little in the outcome to change the political tone of either the House or the Senate.

In a Senate run-off, Rep. Bob Vale of San Antonio, a Mexican-American with a liberal voting record, downed attorney Phil Hardberger for the seat now held by Sen. Frank Lombardino.

Lombardino, a conservative businessman and ex-policeman, was defeated in the first primary, May 6.

Vale's opponent in November will be Dr. B.B. Markette, a Republican.

Former Rep. E.L. Short of Tahoka, defeated for re-election in 1976, made a comeback by winning the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat now held by Kent Hance of Lubbock, a congressional candidate.

Short downed Don Workman of Lubbock, a Texas Tech regent, and will run against one-term Rep. Joe Robbins, R-Lubbock, in general election.

If Vale is elected in November, the Senate will tip in a slightly more liberal direction but will remain largely conservative.

One theory for Workman's defeat was his abstention from a Texas Tech regents' vote on locating a proposed medical school. The school went to Midland, and Workman lost rival Ector County to Short, 3,055 to 1,942.

Rep. Leonard Briscoe of Fort Worth, a cigar-loving black businessman, was picked off by Reby Cary, director of minority affairs at the University of Texas at Arlington.

Tarrant County districts were realigned by federal courts in late winter, giving blacks an additional seat. It was won by Bobby Webber, a nursing home owner who ran a hard race against Briscoe in 1976. Webber defeated Roy Brooks in the run-off.

Two black representatives from Dallas who frequently were in the limelight last session defeated challengers in the run-off and are home free in November.

Rep. Sam Hudson, who starved himself for several weeks to protest the slow movement of his bills from House committees, defeated Wes Pool, 1,312 to 1,028. Pool's father was the late Congressman Joe Pool.

Clay Smothers, the House's 1977 "Rookie of the Year," defeated auto worker Charles Rose, 1,503 to 1,357 in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas. Smothers, a conservative black, became well-known in the House for his opposition to abortion, busing and the U.S. Equal Rights Amendment.

Neither Hudson nor Smothers has a Republican opponent.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, who sponsored the bill that eliminated the requirement that voters sign their ballot stubs, downed Homero Canales, also of Alice. She took a 10,314 to 7,943 victory in counties once dominated by the George Parr political machine and has no Republican opponent.

She said she thinks repeal of the stub-signing requirement might have helped in her race.

"People just felt easier about voting," Ms. Glossbrenner said.

Former Rep. Chester Slay of Beaumont lost a comeback attempt to Bo Crawford, dean of students at Lamar University. Crawford will face Republican Robert Wortham of Beaumont in the general election.

Rep. Hector Uribe, Brownsville, defeated Frances Morales, also of Brownsville.

Other results, by district:

21 - Larry Wilkinson, Rosenberg optometrist, defeated Ken Valka, Missouri City lawyer, and will meet Republican Tom DeLay of Wallis in the November election.

32C - Lanny Hall of Fort Worth, a former aide to U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright, defeated Jack Clark and will face Mike Brinkley, a Republican, in November.

72d - First term incumbent Robert Valles defeated Mike Graham, 2,590 to 2,295. Both men are from the El Paso area.

73 - Jay Gibson, Odessa, defeated H.D. Baggett, also of Odessa. The Republican nominee is William B. Duff.

85 - Al Edwards, Houston, defeated Gerald Womack and is unopposed in November.

88 - El Franco Lee, Houston, defeated Norma Watson and is unopposed in the general election.

Mental patients' rights

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Five years ago, I got very depressed over the sudden death of my sister in an airplane crash. I was so upset I had trouble eating and sleeping.

When I told my psychiatrist about this, he made arrangements for me to be admitted to a psychiatric hospital for a few weeks. At the time, I went along with the plan because it seemed to make sense.

Looking back, however, I realize I made a big mistake. Within the past two months, I have applied for three registered nursing positions. Each time, I was rejected because I had to provide a history of my psychiatric hospitalization on the job application.

I would rather do a different job. Nursing is so hard on my legs. But I am trained and need the money.

There is only one other hospital in our small city with an intensive care unit. I am going to apply there, but this time I am going to avoid the problem by leaving the psychiatric history section of the application blank. Then I'll have a better chance of getting a job.

DEAR READER — Maybe. But you will also have a better chance of losing it if the truth is ever discovered.

Do not despair. There is a way to handle this problem. Yours is, after all, a concern shared by many; one out of every 1,000 Americans is or has been a mental patient.

The American Civil Liberties Union suggests that former mental patients who must reveal their psychiatric pasts on applications attach to each form two or three letters from qualified psychiatrists. To withhold psychiatric information when specifically asked might be considered perjury.)

The letters should state that the psychiatrist has found after personal examination that the applicant is mentally healthy, that his or her chances of rehospitalization or recurrence of mental illness are no greater than for any other adult, and that the individual is fully capable of performing the job.

If you want to read more about this issue, my source of information is "An American Civil Liberties Union Handbook, The Rights of Mental Patients, 1973."

If you take this advice and are rejected a fourth time, don't rush straight to a lawyer. Not yet.

First, consider other possible explanations for your inability to land a job in an intensive care unit.

What reasons were you given when you were turned away? Did they say there was a job freeze or that they needed a nurse with more recent technical expertise? These explanations may be valid.

Weigh the evidence. If you discover, for example, that you do not have adequate technical experience to be an intensive care nurse, obtain the necessary updated training or apply for another kind of nursing job.

But if the evidence points to job discrimination, contact a lawyer and fight for your rights. This discrimination is illegal and unjust.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Gas Pricing Bill Costly For Independents

HOUSTON (AP)-- A study group for Texas independent oil and gas operators says clarification of the proposed extension of natural gas price controls to intrastate markets will lead to years of litigation and administrative confusion.

The state issues policy committee of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association adds, however, it already is clear the basic compromise of the natural gas pricing bill approved by House-Senate confer-ees would be substantial and costly for independent producers.

The committee's report was submitted Sunday at the opening sesson of the trade group's 32nd annual meeting.

Attached to the report scheduled for consideration Tuesday is a proposed resolution reaffirming support of the concept of natural gas price decontrols and describing as counter-productive any legislation which would thwart attempt to approach deregulation objectives by first extending controls to the intrastate markets.

The policy group headed by Bruce Anderson, Houston, also said the conference committee compromise includes at least 16 different classifications of gas production established for pricing control, with additional categories currently under consideration.

"The producer will find considerable need for legal, engineering and geological advice to help him determine in which of the categories his production falls and whether he is or will be eligible for price upgrading in any producing circumstance," the report said.

Jack Allen, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said Sunday the potential of the compromise for expanding regulations is like outer space.

"If the compromise is adopted by the House and the Senate it will take months to develop regulatory language at the administrative level," the Perryton operator said.

"We won't know where we stand on anything."

Allen added that the compromise bill could reduce independents to the level of utilities.

"Independents are concerned about survival if we have this bill," he said. "We can't exchange short term price gains for long term controls."

At its annual meeting two weeks ago, the national grade group headed by Allen termed the compromise bill "a blue-print for disaster leading to less gas, not more."

Tribute Paid To Kennedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A governor, a movie star, and hundreds of friends gathered on the 10th anniversary of Robert F. Kennedy's assassination to praise the slain senator and rededicate themselves to his spirit.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. told a crowd of some 300 people Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church that the country has changed since Kennedy died.

"In the last 10 years, the spirit this country has missed is the heroic spirit of Robert Kennedy," Brown said.

He urged Americans to "reach into our own hearts and find that spirit of daring."

Actress Shirley MacLaine, sometimes near tears, praised Kennedy's role in politics and his "gentle spirit" in personal matters.

Miss MacLaine, a delegate to the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, spoke of Kennedy's murder.

"He forgave even those who reviled him and was struck down by an assassin's bullet at the height of his glory," she said.

Kennedy was shot in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, moments after winning the California primary in the 1968 presidential race.

His convicted assassin was Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, a Jordanian who refuses to discuss his motives. Sirhan is serving a life term at Soledad in Northern California. He will become eligible for parole in 1985.

Miss MacLaine brought many in the audience to tears when she quoted a passage from Shakespeare that Robert Kennedy had recited at a tribute to his slain brother, President John F. Kennedy.

The passage read: "When he dies, take him and cut him out in little stars and he will make the face of heaven so fine that all the world will be in love with night."

TAC To Weigh Request

AUSTIN (AP)-- Southwest Airlines' request to add Amarillo and Beaumont-Port Arthur will be considered in a Texas Aerounautics Commission TAC hearing Aug. 28.

TAC hearing examiner Robert Cross set the hearing date today during a pre-hearing conference with Southwest and attorneys for Braniff Airways, which opposes its competitor's bid to serve Amarillo.

Braniff attorney W. B. West said his company did not object to Southwest's proposed service to Beaumont.

Southwest is asking for authority to fly between Amarillo and Dallas, Austin, Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Harlingen and Beaumont-Port Arthur.

The intrastate carrier's proposed schedule out of Beaumont would include flights to Dallas, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa and El Paso.

Fiery Crash Fatal To Five

DAYTON (AP) - A fiery one-car crash claimed the lives of five Highlands residents early Sunday, and investigators are still puzzled as to the cause of the mishap.

Investigators said the car was still on the roadway where it apparently turned over and caught fire about 4:15 a.m. on Interstate 10 at the Trinity River bridge in Chambers County east of Houston.

The victims have been identified as Robert Rice, 37; Debbie Faubion, 23; Brandon Rice, 7; Shane Faubion, 5; and Wendy Faubion, 4.

Snyderite Gets Degree At ASU

SAN ANGELO - Donna Marie Pemberton of Snyder was among 276 students who received degrees during spring commencement at Angelo State University.

She received the bachelor of music education degree with a major in music.

DUCKING WEATHER — Recent rains have swelled the pond in Towle Park outside of the fence surrounding it. Apparently the ducks consider the water line to be the boundary of their territory because they had no scruples about ducking under the partially submerged fence this morning to enjoy the water on the other side.

Potted Plant Is Taken By Police

A potted plant of an illegal nature was confiscated early Sunday morning by officers of the city police department.

As officers entered an Ave. I home in response to a disturbance call, they spotted what reports state was a marijuana plant and seized it. The incident was entered in police records as occurring about 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

No arrests were made and no charges have been filed, reports show.

Other reports, however, show that officers were kept busy during the weekend investigating seven minor traffic accidents.

The first mishap occurred Saturday about 6 p.m. at the Rainbow Market. Involved in it were 1978 GMC pickup driven by Mary Harrell and a parked 1971 Buick owned by Lena Hernandez.

A pedalcycle and a car were in collision at 6:38 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of 13th St. and Ave. O. That mishap involved a 1977 Pontiac driven by Larry Boulware and a pedalcycle operated by George Guzman.

Guzman, reports indicate, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

Later Saturday, two cars collided in the 4200 block of Denison. A 1973 Chevrolet driven by Lon McMillan was in collision with a 1976 Ford driven by Toby Neves. That mishap took place about 10:30 p.m.

Shortly before midnight, Brady Cobb was involved in two mishaps, according to reports.

The first mishap involved his 1974 Pontiac and a brick border surrounding the Mt. Olive Baptist Church. Damage to the brick fence was estimated at $75.

Only minutes later, reports show, Cobb's Pontiac was involved in a collision with a 1972 Toyota driven by Paula Faye Cobb. Only minor damages were reported to the cars.

A 1967 Chevrolet driven by Jimmy Grimes and a 1973 Cadillac driven by Kim Huddleston were in collision in Towle Park. Reports log that accident at 6:12 p.m. Sunday.

At 9:49 p.m. Sunday, a parked vehicle owned by Martin Gresler was struck by a car which allegedly left the scene of the collision. The mishap occurred at Rainbow Market.

Truck Burns On Highway

Extensive damage was reported to a 1977 Chevrolet pickup truck that burned early this morning.

Firefighters were alerted to the blaze about 2:40 a.m. Monday. The truck, they reported, was owned by Bill McKissick of Andrews.

The fire occurred approximately 19 miles south of Snyder on the Big Spring highway.

County Court Levy Probated

The original $200 fine and 30-day jail sentence levied against Roberto M. Rivas last week in county court was set aside and probated.

Rivas received a 180-day probation to a misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana. The sentence was probated late Friday afternoon.

Killings Are Still Unsolved

BEVERLY HILLS, Mich. (AP) - A New York psychic and a university team specializing in cult murders were used last year in attempts to solve the slayings of four Oakland County youngsters, authorities have revealed.

None of the efforts was successful and the man thought to be responsible for the killings is still at large, said state police Lt. Robert Robertson, head of a task force probing the deaths.

Narcotics Agent Dies In Accident

KERRVILLE (AP)—A Texas narcotics agent died early today in a one-car accident north of Kerrville, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported.

Officers identified the agent as Sgt. James Lewis Dalrymple, 43, of Austin. They said Dalrymple's car left U.S. 290 and struck a tree about 22 miles north of Kerrville.

Death Rate Is Higher In NYC

NEW YORK (AP) - Government health records indicate that the death rate in New York City is 16 percent above the national death rate, the National Health Education Committee says.

The committee - a group of citizens and physicians that tries to inform the public on health issues - concluded Sunday that one reason for the higher death rate in the city was a lack of adequate screening programs for high blood-pressure, a leading contributor to heart attacks and strokes.

Jarvis Initiative May Start National Movement

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

LAGUNA HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Tax crusader Howard Jarvis says his initiative to cut California property taxes 7 billion a year will start a national movement to cut taxes and the power of bureaucrats.

"This amendment doesn't solve all the problems in the world, but it's going to send a message around the world," the 75-year-old tax gadfly told a cheering audience of 500 supporters Sunday in the affluent Orange County suburbs south of Los Angeles.

"In the last few days I've talked to people in radio interviews in Michigan, Oklahoma, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Arizona and Utah, and they're going to introduce this amendent."

The polls say the vote in Tuesday's primary election will be between 55 percent and 70 percent in favor of Jarvis' Proposition 13. In some suburbs where assessments have been raised recently, majorities of 4-to-1 or more are predicted.

An Associated Press survey last week found property tax reform is an issue in 39 of the 50 states. Legislators in more than a dozen states already have acted on the issue, although the scope of the changes varies widely. Proposals include market value reassessments, rebates, exemptions for owner-occupied homes, help for the elderly and doing away with property taxes altogether.

The amendment, which Jarvis put on California's ballot by collecting 1.5 million voter signatures, would limit annual property taxes to 1 percent of market value. Currently, they range from less than 1 percent in some rural areas to almost 3 percent in some urban areas.

It also would roll back assessments to 1975 figures and then allow increases of no more than 2 percent a year except when property is sold. Assessments in some areas have doubled recently.

The effect of those limits would be to cut the average property tax bill in California 57 percent, or from $1,400 to $600 for the average California family, whose home is now appraised at about $60,000.

That would cut property taxes revenue for schools, cities and counties from $12 billion annually to $5 billion, and by some estimates it would require laying off some 300,000 of California's 1.4 million state and local government workers.

Critics, led by Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., say the Jarvis initiative will cut government programs for the poor. But Brown, who faces a re-election campaign this year, says if that is the will of the people, he will cary it out without increasing other taxes.

"I will vote no on 13," he told a rally of Democratic supporters in Los Angeles on Sunday.

"I think it will not provide the relief that people think it will. If it passes I will try to minimize the impact. We will all have to make do with what's available," he said.

Tot Saves Family

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)-- James Rackemann is only 2 years old but he is already a hero.

Fire officials credit the toddler with saving his family Sunday after fire broke out in their west side home.

Fire Lt. Donald Graston commended the child for "discovering the fire and alerting the rest of the family to the danger."

Four members of his family were injured escaping from the house, but firemen said none of the injuries were serious.

Helen Gaddie, 70, the tot's grandmother and owner of the one-story house said James, who was asleep in his parent's bedroom, probably was awakened by the fire's smoke or heat, which she said was intense.

The little boy's screams wakened his parents, Gene and Cheryl Rackemann, who grabbed him and escaped through the bedroom window. Mrs. Gaddie and James' 7-year-old brother, Christopher, escaped through a bathroom window.

1929 Model J Brings Top Price

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - A 1929 Duesenberg Model J selling for $180,000 to a Denver bidder was the top car sold at the three-day James C. Leake Antique and Classic Car Auction.

More than $5.2 million was bid for some 450 cars during the three-day auction that ended Saturday.

The Duesenberg was sold by Tom Barrett of Scottsdale, Ariz., to Zac Vrinkeroff of Denver.

Four-Forward Offense...

Sudden Change Meant Disaster To Sonics

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - To veteran Bobby Dandridge and rookie Greg Ballard, it was just a last-minute offensive change for Washington. To Seattle, it spelled disaster.

Using three forwards and at times a four-forward offense, the Bullets blew out the Seattle SuperSonics 117-83 Sunday to tie the National Basketball Association championship series at three games each.

The final game of the 1977-78 season will be played Wednesday night in the Seattle Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 22 in a row.

Guard Kevin Grevey unknowingly injured the wrist of his shooting arm in Game 6 Friday and it stiffened on the plane ride home from Seattle. Suffering, he finally went into the hospital late Saturday night, but Coach Dick Motta, who did not fly with his team, didn't learn about the injury until Sunday morning.

"It looked like we would have to scratch him (Grevey) because it swelled up and was bothering him," said Motta after the game. "Luckily, I had discussed it with Bobby, the idea of using him at guard previously, because Dennis Johnson Seattle guard and highscorer is so tall."

However, Grevey started and tried to play, but was replaced after six minutes by guard Charley Johnson with the Bullets down 11-7. In the second quarter, Motta replaced Johnson with rookie Ballard.

The lineup change put forward Dandridge at the guard slot with Tom Henderson and Ballard along the front line with two veterans, forward Elvin Hayes and center Wes Unseld. In the second half, Mitch Kupchak, normally a forward who sometimes plays at center, replaced Unseld in that lineup.

"It was a combination of me going to guard and Greg coming in," said Dandridge of the late second-quarter explosion which moved the Bullets from a 1-point lead with 5:21 remaining, to 47-35 at halftime.

From then on, with a lot of help from their much-maligned bench, the Bullets kept building on their lead until they surpassed the previous high point differential in an NBA final, 34, when Boston defeated St. Louis 129-95 on April 2, 1961.

"That's the real Bullets," said Motta. "We played like that against San Antonio and Philadelphia (to reach the finals). I was wondering when we would get a good one.

"Next Wednesday's game should be one hell of a game."

Seattle Coach Len Wilkens said: "This was the worst game we've played in a long time. We were totally out of sync. We relied too much on 1-on-1. We didn't play well. We didn't generate anything.

"The Bullets didn't do anything different. I don't think they can play four forwards against us. All we had to do was use our heads, but we were totally out of sync again and we got further behind."

Bowsher Takes It Easy, Beats Texas 500 Heat

COLLEGE STATION (AP)--After the first victory of his career, 21-year-old Gary Bowsher had some advice for veterans A. J. Foyt, Bobby Allison and others.

"This race is 500 miles and as hot as it is, and as punishing as the track is on cars, you have to take it easy," Bowsher said after taking an easy victory over Bay Darnell in Sunday's Texas 500 stock car race. "Those guys are chargers. They want to be up front all day.

"I knew Foyt and Allison were faster than me. But I wasn't gonna race with them. I wanted to finish."

Bowsher did, some seven laps ahead of Darnell, whose Camaro overheated and blew up while he was dueling with Bowsher for the lead. Bowsher's Ford had overheating problems of its own, but the Springfield, Ohio driver who has been in competition since he was 16, was determined he would finish.

"I wasn't worried as much about Darnell as I was the overheating. I knew I could outrun him, but I was gonna take it easy with the car until the last few miles. I thought it was going to go right down to the wire."

The Bowsher - Darnell duel was one of the few on the track the last half of the race as the 90-degree afternoon and a spate of wrecks took their toll on the 38 starters. Only nine were running when Bowsher got the checkered flag.

Foyt was one of the first out, retiring after three laps with a broken engine.

Early leaders Terry Ryan and Joe Ruttman parked with mechanical failures. Pole position starter Tom Williams sputtered along to finish 12th, some 112 miles behind Bowsher.

Allison, who ran away with the middle stages of the race and once had a two-lap lead, nursed his overheating Matador in fifth, although 16 laps in arrears.

Six cars were written off just eight laps into the race when a chain reaction pileup turned into a holocaust.

Edwards Ends His Sparkling USC Career

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - Clancy Edwards will be at the AAU Track and Field Championships this week in Los Angeles, but he won't be competing as a collegian.

Edwards closed out his incredible collegiate career Saturday, supplying 20 points personally and helping win another 10 as the University of Southern California won its 27th NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championship in the meet's 57-year history.

Carner Has 'Unbelievable' Round To Win

TORONTO (AP) - Jo-Anne Carner called her game "unbelievable," Hollis Stacy called hers "outrageous" and Donna Horton White said her final three holes made her "feel ill."

That was the way the final round of a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament went Sunday at the St. George's Golf and Country Club.

The 39-year-old veteran from Lake Worth, Fla., shot a course record 64 Sunday over runnerup Hollis Stacy.

Hunter's Patience Finally Rewarded

TORONTO (AP)--Billy Hunter insists that patience is the most important virtue in managing a major league baseball team such as the Texas Rangers.

Picked by many to be in the thick of the battle for the West Division title in the American League, the Rangers have found themselves struggling to stay above the .500 mark. But the potent Texas offense came to life Sunday as the Rangers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 9-5 to capture the finale of the three-game set--having dropped Friday's opener 3-1 and Saturday's contest 4-3.

"I just keep telling myself that things will turn around eventually," Hunter said after the Rangers took advantage of starter Dave Lemanczyk's wildness to rough him up for six runs in the first two innings, as his record dropped to 1-9.

Al Oliver was the hitting star for the Rangers, driving in four runs with a single and double. Juan Beniquez hit a two-run homer in the seventh, his third of the season, to account for two others.

"I hit a few holes today," said Oliver, who, along with fellow newcomers Bobby Bonds and Richie Ziske, is being counted on to produce much of the club's offense. "I've been hitting the ball hard all year, but often it's been at someone."

After Lemanczyk walked the bases full to open the game, Oliver delivered two runs with a sharp single to right. After a Bonds' sacrifice put runners at second and third, Ziske delivered Bump Wills with a ground out.

Texas added three more in the second on Mike Hargrove's RBI double and Oliver's run-scoring double to left-center.

Hunter juggled his batting order again Sunday, posting the third different lineup card of the series.

Andy Bean Picked Good Weekend To Go Fishing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - A weekend ago, Andy Bean passed up the Atlanta Classic golf tournament to go fishing.

This past weekend, he was back on the PGA tour--and he landed a big one.

Burning up the front nine, Bean finished with a fourth-round 66 Sunday for a 5-stroke victory in the $300,000 Kemper Open, only his second win in three years on the tour.

"You might say I got off to a fast start," said Bean, whose sizzling final round gave him a 15-under-par 273 for the tournament and the $60,000 first place check.

With his muscular 6-foot-4 frame, Bean gets off some of the longest drives of any pro golfer. But he credited his putting --"I think I'm probably one of the better putters on the tour" for his seven birdies on the final 18 holes at Quail Hollow Country Club.

Starting the day with a 9-under-par 207, one stroke behind third-round leader Alan Pate, Bean fired birdies on the second, third and fourth holes, then eagled the par-5 fifth hole.

"I think that's the first time I've ever jumped right off the ground," Bean said.

From then on, the rest of the field could only look helplessly at the leader boards.

"If someone had put some heat on him, he might have shot 62 or 63," said Andy North, who roomed and played with Bean at the University of Florida and was paired with him Sunday.

"He was going for 60 after about the sixth hole. You know you're in trouble when you're playing with someone who's taking about a 60."

North and Mark Hayes finished in a tie for second at 278, but there was little suspense down the back nine.

"You hate to admit you're playing for second place with seven or eight holes left," said Hayes, "but that's what Andy North and I were doing."

Bean, 25, said his respite from the tour a week earlier helped him prepare for the Kemper, even though he played little golf during his week off.

Alan Pate, although losing his third-round lead, finished high enough in the money here to avoid losing his PGA tour card. He tallied a 74 in the final round to finish with an 8-under par (288) and a check for $9,525 - more than twice as much as he needed by the end of next week to retain his tour privileges.

Before Sunday, his career earnings in two years on the tour totaled $528.

Arnold Palmer, who faded from a second-round lead to wind up 10 strokes in back of Bean at 283, finished with a flourish nonetheless. He knocked in a 25-foot chip shot from the fringe to birdie the final hole.

PGA Rescinds Exemption Rule

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)--PGA tour officials, seeking to avoid a lengthy court battle, have rescinded a rule that would have lifted the lifetime exemptions from tournament qualifying of golfers who no longer meet PGA performance standards.

The lifetime exemptions, until 1970, came automatically with a victory in the U.S. Open or PGA Championship tournaments. Twenty-five players currently have such exemptions, and one of them, veteran Al Geiberger, feels PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman's suspension of the new rule was the right move.

"I think it was the right thing to do--the only thing to do," Geiberger said Sunday at the Kemper Open. "In my opinion, they weren't accomplishing that much by lifting the exemptions. It was more the principle of the thing than the number of players that were affected."

Beman's announcement Saturday, subject to approval by the PGA tournament policy board, appeared to resolve a suit filed in a Texas court by 12 golfers with lifetime exemptions, including Sam Snead, Gene Sarazen and Julius Boros. The PGA rule lifting their exemptions would have taken effect next year.

Geiberger, whose lifetime exemption came from a 1966 victory in the PGA, said he would have joined in the suit if he had not been ill at the time it was filed.

Geiberger is currently free from tourney qualifying rounds not only on his lifetime exemption, but also on a 10-year exemption for winning the 1975 Tournament Players Championship and for being in the top 60 in all time money winnings.

Geiberger said he also felt the PGA should honor the exemptions because "in two or three years' time, the situation will take care of itself."

"Golf is a unique sport," he added. "It's one of the few where an athlete who is past his prime is still of great value to a tournament. He's not letting down a team if he does poorly, he's only letting down himself. A tournament would have to have a Ben Hogan, for example.

"Nobody tells you when to quit. You're your own judge of that. You just hope you know when your time comes up."

Zell Gaston Earns Honors In Missouri

Zell Gaston, a former Snyderite, has received A-1 ratings in district mixed quartet and state mixed quartet music competition at the high school he attends in Pleasant Hill, Mo.

In addition to his other honors, Gaston won his high school's best actor award, participated in the state math team, and lettered in drama and choir. He also is a member of the student council.

Gaston also received an A-2 rating in district solo music competition, was named to the superior honor roll, was elected football captain and sports the best running time on the football team, his mother reports.

Gaston is the son of Rev. and Mrs. John Zell Gaston. Rev. Gaston is a former Presbyterian minister in Snyder and for several years operated the Snyder Pastoral Counseling Center.

The family moved to Missouri last December.

Sewage disposal in the Atlantic Ocean from the New York City area alone now totals 14 million tons a year, according to National Geographic.

Youth Rescues Mother

FRUITLAND, N. M. (AP)--A 14-year-old Navajo boy helped save a woman being swept along by the rushing waters of the nearby San Juan river, then discovered she was his mother.

San Juan County sheriff deputies said the youth, Willard John, and two other teenagers, Priscilla Jim, 13, and Leo Hoskie, 15, were crossing a bridge Saturday when they saw a body pass beneath the structure.

Priscilla ran for help while the other two rode their bicycles along the river for almost a mile trying to catch up with the woman.

Leroy Duncan of Farmington joined the two teenagers, and the three waded into the river and pulled the woman to shore.

"It wasn't until I was face to face with her that I realized it was my mother," Willard said. "I was surprised and scared. When I first entered the water I was only thinking about trying to save the woman."

Deputies said Rose Marie John, 39, was treated at the San Juan Medical Center and then transfered to the U.S. Health Service hospital in Shiprock. A hospital spokesman said Sunday that Mrs. John was in stable condition.

"I didn't talk to my mom and she didn't talk to me," who speaks in broken English said through an interpreter. "I was just hoping she would be okay. I had just seen her in the afternoon."

Mrs. John was dazed by the incident and unable to tell officers how she ended up in the river. However, Willard said later that "some drunken people pushed her into the water," but did not elaborate.

State police said they were not investigating the incident, but Navajo police said they were looking into it. Willard and his mother live in this Indian community near the Navajo reservation.

Thousands Jogging...

America Is On Run

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

America is on the run.

Thousands of people have turned to jogging as an alternative to traditional exercise programs and the number of runners is still growing.

In 1974, the National Jogging Association had 3,500 members; last year, it had 10,000 members. Today, says Bernard L. Gladieux Jr., editor of the group's newsletter, "We've got 25,000 and we're going strong."

Jogging is an aerobic exercise. It requires the use of a lot of oxygen over a relatively long period of time. That helps put the circulatory system in shape.

It is sometimes hard to tell where jogging ends and running begins. Most experts, however, agree that the main difference is speed. If you are going a mile in seven minutes or less, you're running. If it takes you more than seven minutes, you're jogging.

Jogging is NOT for everyone. If you are over 30, you should check with your doctor before you begin any exercise program. If you're over 40, take a treadmill test to make sure you're in shape.

Joggers can face several physical problems including pulled muscles, nerve irritation and shin splint, a tearing or stretching of the tendons which produces pain in the lower leg.

"The most insidious problem of all," said Gladieux, "is the overuse syndrome." It strikes people who run too long, too fast and too often and occurs because the body tissues do not get enough rest. If you start suffering, consider changing your schedule. "Someone who runs seven miles every day might be better off running 15 miles every other day," Gladieux said.

You also can lessen your chance of trouble by doing a series of long, slow stretches before and after you jog.

The only equipment you need for jogging is a pair of shoes, although many people buy special clothing as well. You don't necessarily have to spend a lot of money; the jogging association recommends a shoe that sells for just under $20.

The main thing to remember, Gladieux said, is to get a shoe with plenty of cushioning in the heel. Look for shoes with soles of a tough outer layer of rubber and a softer midsole that runs the full length of the shoe. Soles should be flexible, but the section under arch should provide firm support. The sole should be about half an inch thick and both the arch supports and the uppers should be smooth, soft and non-irritating.

Make sure the heel is wide and stable and provides a slight lift - about half an inch - similar to the lift given by heels in street shoes. What is known as the toe box - the space for the toes - should be rounded and about one inch deep.

Further information on jogging is available from the National Jogging Association, 919 18th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Baptists Meet At Westbrook

The Mitchell-Scurry Baptist Association will meet Tuesday evening at the Westbrook Baptist Church.

The evening meal will be served at 6:30 p.m. by the host church and the executive board and WMU will meet at 7:15 p.m.

The association meeting will begin at 7:45 and will include a discussion of summer mission opportunities and a new Sunday School curriculum. The Rev. I. L. Whetsell, chaplain at the Baptist Geriatric Center in San Angelo, will bring the evening message.

Too much caffeine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a niece who is in a mental hospital and she comes home for five-day visits twice a month. While she is home she drinks tea and coffee several times an hour using a heaping teaspoon of instant coffee and a heaping teaspoon of sugar with about one half cup of tap water and the balance milk or half and half. While she is home she uses three-fourths of a 10-ounce bottle of instant coffee besides the tea and smokes about a package of cigarettes a day. She also takes tranquilizers in the hospital.

Is it harmful to consume so much coffee with her medication? What effect can it have? She is very nervous. She also drinks coffee all day in the hospital, buys the coffee herself and drinks it with tap water without milk or sugar.

DEAR READER — I never cease to be amazed at how many people have living habits that are so detrimental to their health situations. Coffee and tea both contain caffeine. Caffeine is a stimulant to the central nervous system. A person who drinks as much coffee as you describe in this case could very well be extremely nervous on the basis of an excess consumption of caffeine alone. In fact, to put it bluntly, I think most of the country would be a lot more tranquil if they would slow down on the amount of coffee they drink each day.

The caffeine in the coffee and tea has exactly the opposite effect of the tranquilizers your niece is taking to calm her nerves. She might not need so much medicine if she would eliminate coffee and tea entirely. Cigarettes are such a well-known health hazard that I don't think I need to mention those again this time.

To give you a better idea of what coffee, tea, colas and such drinks that contain caffeine do to a person I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-1. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If your niece just needs something to drink she might try water but if she just craves the taste of coffee there is no reason she couldn't use decaffeinated coffee.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have two little grandsons age 5 and 3 and their daddies love to tickle them to the point they can hardly stand it. They hold them down and won't let them get away. The other night the 5-year-old wet his pants. I have told them not to do it but they just laugh at me. I have heard it can cause them to stutter but they just say it is an old wives tale. Is it harmful to do this or am I being an overly sensitive grandma? I'd appreciate your comment on this.

DEAR READER — I think you're just a normal grandmother concerned about her grandchildren. However, rest easy. There isn't any evidence that tickling the children, even if it gets them very excited, has any bad effects at all. Just be thankful that the daddies love your grandchildren enough to play with them and give them a reasonable amount of their time.

It sounds to me like they're developing a good relationship with their fathers which will help them in their total mental health as the years go on. The situation you described to me then is really good, not bad, and you should count your blessings.

Your Birthday

June 6, 1978

Some very worthwhile changes that will contribute to your seeking a sturdier foundation of knowledge will occur this coming year. Your effort will prove to have long-lasting and extremely beneficial rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Not only is this one of your better problem-solving days but you'll also be able to follow through on remedies that occur to you at this time. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something of value you've earned and are entitled to but has been frustratingly delayed should be in your hands today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A good time to appraise that new project you've been thinking of undertaking. Today you'll reflect upon it in a sober and practical manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In a competitive situation where you're seeking an advantage, play your ace-in-the-hole. Today no one can trump it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're easily able to solve problems today that others find insurmountable. Speak up if you find yourself confronted by a confused individual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) With the assistance of another, you can achieve an ambitious objective today. He or she will possess that necessary know-how you've long sought.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll do well today if you base decisions on the most practical aspects of the issue and not those which are only hopes or desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're up to meeting and overcoming difficult challenges, especially where your work or career is concerned. Persistence is your watchword.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something of consequence can come from a social encounter you'll experience today. Be extra-attentive if one who is older is involved.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The most important matters on your agenda today are domestic ones. Any issues that affect the family should be given top priority.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friend you'll be associating with needs some sincere solutions to her present dilemma. You can best help by leveling with her.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Profit from your past experiences if you find yourself in a familiar situation today. What worked previously will do just as well now.

Kooky Clothes For a Comical You

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Have the clothes designers gone mad or am I crazy?

When my husband looked at a recent fashion magazine, he burst out laughing and said if I ever dressed in the absurd fashions of today, he would send me to a shrink.

We would appreciate your personal opinion on the latest fashions.

CONNIE AND JOHNNY

DEAR C. AND J.: I agree with you! It's my view that the new clothes are designed for women with no breasts and no hips, who stand 6 feet tall and weigh 105 pounds.

Furthermore, this year's styles are intentionally kooky in order to make milady's last year's clothes look completely outdated.

Me? I'm wearing what I think looks good on me—regardless of how old it is. And if I need something new, I'll have it made!

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of two small children, I cannot understand how anyone could leave their children for three days without leaving a number where they can be reached. Yet I know they do.

Abby, please inform your readers that whenever parents leave their children in the care of another, a signed document should also be left, which should read as follows:

To Whom It May Concern:

This authorizes _____ (baby-sitter) _____ to give permission to any doctor, nurse or hospital to provide normal or emergency medical care as they deem necessary in the best interest of my child (ren) _____ (names and ages).

Sincerely,

Parent (s) and/or Legal Guardian (s)

Without such a document, many doctors, nurses and hospitals cannot provide medical care for these children.

Please publish this in your column; you may help to save some young lives!

MRS. C., HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR MRS. C.: Consider it done.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is always looking for dirt in somebody else's house. The minute she walks in, she looks in the corners for a speck of dust that might have been overlooked.

I have even seen her open closets, cupboards and drawers.

It's a habit. She looks behind the davenport, under rugs, and once I saw her look behind somebody's washing machine.

The minute she leaves, she says, "My, she's a terrible housekeeper." Or, "Not a trace of dirt—she must have just cleaned."

What is the matter with a person like that?

CURIOUS IN LINCOLN PARK

DEAR CURIOUS: People who are constantly searching for flaws, imperfections and signs of "dirt" around others, do so in order to avoid seeing their own. Pray for them.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.
