HEADED FOR TAMPICO

Hurricane Gains Speed

By GARY GARRISON
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Infant Hurricane Fern, born in the track of two of history's great hurricanes picked up speed in a dash for the Mexican coast today.

The hurricane, with only one day's life behind her, promised to go ashore near Tampico, Mexico early tonight.

Fern's gale winds neared the Mexican Coast and the Weather Bureau warned residents of the Tampico area to prepare for hurricane force winds.

Fern was taking the line of Hurricane Inez, a mammoth storm that boiled ashore at Tampico on Oct. 10, 1966, killing 65 persons and leaving 84,000 homeless in Mexico.

Fern's peak winds held steady at 85 miles an hour, only 10 m.p.h. above minimum hurricane force.

The storm's only threat to the Texas Coast lay in possible offshoot rains.

At 11 a.m. CDT Fern was centered near latitude 22.8 north and longitude 96.2 west, about 105 miles east northeast of Tampico.

The Weather Bureau said heavy rains would continue through Wednesday in Mexico's Tamaulipas State, already hard-hit by flooding from Hurricane Beulah's record downpours this month.

Storm watchers said small craft south of Port Isabel, Tex., to Tuxpan, Mexico, should remain in port.

Tides up to six feet will accompany Fern's center when she hits the coast, weathermen said.

Gale winds and tides up to five feet were anticipated from 80 miles below Brownsville to Tampico in the hurricane's northeast quadrant, the most destructive part of such a storm.

The Weather Bureau at New Orleans said Fern's small but deadly center probably would move inland between Tampico and the mouth of the Soto La Marina river tonight.

Such an entry would put Fern's peak force more than 200 miles south of Brownsville, the point of entry for Fern's predecessor, Hurricane Beulah.

Fern sprang to hurricane force Monday at the point where Beulah made her turn and headed for Brownsville, and a billion-dollar date of destruction with South Texas.

Fern, however, was hewing to the course of Inez, a big storm that came into Mexico after 18 days of life.

Rivers and streams around Tampico's rich farmlands already were swelled to the brink by offshoot rains from Beulah.

Exhibits For Fair Are Due Wednesday

Activity is due to pick up considerately tomorrow at the Scurry County Fair Grounds in Towle Memorial Park.

Entries in the fair will be received at the Towle Park Barn and at the National Guard Armory beginning at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The agricultural and homemaking exhibits will be in the barn, while the art show and flower show will be in the armory, which also will house the inside commercial exhibits.

Exhibits in all divisions and classes must be in place and ready for judging by 9 a.m. Thursday, the official opening day of the fair.

Those who wish to enter exhibits in the fair should bring them out sometime Wednesday afternoon, said L. M. Dawson, president of the Scurry County Fair Association.

Buddhists Threaten More Fire Deaths

By BARRY KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — His election as president validated, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu seemed firmly in power today. But one young Buddhist nun burned herself to death and militant Buddhist sources threatened 110 more fiery suicides in their anti-government campaign.

Premier Nguyen Cao Ky appealed to the Buddhists to stop demonstrating and return to their pagodas. Spokesmen for the militants replied that demonstrations would go on until the government met their demands.

Politically ambitious Buddhist leaders want Thieu, a Roman Catholic, to rescind a charter he signed in July recognizing a moderate sect as South Vietnam's mother Buddhist church.

The report of suicide volunteers came from the An-Quang pagoda, headquarters of Thich (Venerable) Tri Quang, the militants' leader.

Tri Quang, in the sixth day of a protest vigil in front of Independence Palace, where Thieu has his office, said he was sorry that the Buddhist nun had killed herself. He said he would have stopped her if he had known of her plans.

But Tri Quang added that if the government does not rescind the charter there was a possibility of more self-immolations.

Eleven Buddhists resorted to self-immolation in a violent campaign Tri Quang led last year to topple the Thieu-Ky military government. Ky, now vice president-elect under Thieu, put down the disturbances with troops.

It was not certain whether the suicide of Le Thi Cuc, 20, in the center of Can Tho, the largest city in the Mekong delta south of Saigon, was related to the Buddhist protests.

Authorities said she set herself afire to protest the Buddhist charter but other sources said the nun's superiors had not given their approval for her action.

Last Thursday and again Saturday, 1,000 monks and nuns marched on the palace to demand that the charter signed in July be thrown out. Another 300 marched last Sunday.

Thieu insists that the charter problem is an internal Buddhist affair that they shouldn solve among themselves.

CITY, COUNTY INVOLVED

Planning Panel Set

Final steps in establishing a city - county planning commission was taken last night at the regular meeting of the Snyder City Council.

The planning commission is a requirement of Farmers Home Administration to enable the Union - Fluvanna Water Authority to receive a grant for constructing a water distribution system.

The four county commissions, Marion Dabbs, Earl Sneed, Thayne Mebane and Bill Hairston, met with the city council and advised that they already had approved county participation in the planning commission and had appointed themselves as four members. The city approved a resolution establishing the commission and Mayor M. L. Broman and councilmen R. C. Patton, Herbert Reed and Marshall Erwin, the total in attendance at the meeting, were named as the city's four of the eight-man commission.

Then, in a brief meeting of the planning commission Mebane was elected chairman and Broman was elected secretary. The commission then authorized its chairman to apply for funds to make the water and sewer survey of rural areas of the county as required by the FHA before the Union-Fluvanna Water Authority receives final clearance. Tentative approval of a $187,000 grant and a $222,000 loan for the Union-Fluvanna project had been announced some three weeks ago, but the grant was contingent upon a water survey of the county. Funds for such surveys are available on the basis of 50 cents per capita in the areas surveyed, in this case, all of Scurry County except the area inside the corporate limits of Snyder.

In other business the council agreed to renew its contract with Pritchard and Abbott, tax valuation engineers, for one year at the current rate of four cents per $100 in value accounted for by the firm's work. A two-year contract was discussed, but councilmen decided to seek the one-year contract because negotiations involving the county and Snyder Schools and valuation engineering firms are being pursued with the hope that a better rate can be obtained if more than one taxing agency uses the same service. If these negotiations are successful city councilmen indicated they would be interested in joining the group.

United Fund Drive Gains

Scattered reports were coming into the United Fund Campaign headquarters this morning and the tempo is expected to quicken as report sessions are called in various divisions of the drive.

The total had reached $7,378 this morning and most of this was accounted for by two divisions, the pattern division and the public school division. And the pattern division had many more reports due. Other divisions in the drive had scarcely scratched the surface in their canvass work, based on current reports of funds and pledges actually received at campaign headquarters.

The campaign has a goal of $39,605 to support six participating United Fund agencies.

Intense Storm Batters Northwest

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An intense storm battered the Pacific Northwest with heavy rain and gale-force winds today.

The storm produced gale warnings for a stretch of coast that included portions of Washington, Oregon and California. Gusts up to 78 miles per hour buffeted Portland, Ore., and Salem, Ore., had gusts to 61 m.p.h.

Showers and thunderstorms soaked an area from Washington and Central California inland to Montana. Hail pelted Crescent City, Calif., during a night thundershowers. Wind associated with the large storm system ranged up to 55 m.p.h. from Oregon and Central California to Southern Idaho and Northern Utah.

Boating accidents cost five lives along the Northern Pacific Coast. Two were dead from storms in the state of Washington.

Aside from the storm centered in the Northwest and a possible threat to the Lower Texas Coast if Hurricane Fern switched course in its march through the Gulf of Mexico toward the Northeast Mexico Coast, skies were generally clear from the Southwest and the Dakotas eastward to the Atlantic. The exceptions were a few thundershowers in the Southern Rockies and at the southern end of Florida.

Fresh Red Unit Appears In South

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American infantrymen searched the scrub landscape of the central highlands today for a fresh North Vietnamese regiment that suddenly appeared in the area where enemy troops have tried to cut South Vietnam across the middle.

About 500 U.S. soldiers, two-thirds of them airlifted reinforcements, hunted elements of North Vietnam's 95B regiment, normally a force of about 2,900 men. The Red troops wore new uniforms and fired late-model weapons, indicating they were either re-equipped or had slipped into the South while U.S. attention was diverted last month to the Communist bombardment of Marine defenses along the demilitarized zone.

As the Americans spread out into the flat, dry highlands, small battles, assaults and new Red shelling were reported in all major war sectors of South Vietnam. But the U.S. Command said there was no significant contact with the enemy.

South Vietnam's Buddhist-government clash took a new turn when a 20-year-old Buddhist nun burned herself to death in the first such suicide by fire in the current, politically motivated Buddhist protest movement.

The North Vietnamese force in the highlands seemed to be part of a unit eased into South Vietnam by way of the Ho Chi Minh trail. The trail skirts the demilitarized zone from North Vietnam through neighboring Laos and Cambodia—far to the west of the infiltration routes guarded by the Marines on Con Thien and nearby camps.

The quick American decision to send additional troops to the highlands reflect the U.S. Command's concern about the area, where U.S. air cavalrymen were previously able to drive off Red attempts to run a battle line across the country's mid-section.

Fighting Monday about 23 miles south east of Pleiku accounted for 33 North Vietnamese killed, the command said. Only one American was reported lost in fire fights, supported by U.S. artillery and air strikes.

More Troubles Awaiting Wilson

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

SCARBOROUGH, England (AP) — Plagued by the recurrence of an old spy scandal and his foreign secretary's noisy dispute with newsmen, Prime Minister Harold Wilson faced more political embarrassment today at the hands of rebel members of his own Labor party.

A long feud over the government's stern management of Britain's economic crisis could boil into a major row when Chancellor of the exchequer James Callaghan asks party endorsement for Wilson's wage-price freeze and other deflationary measures.

Wilson's government is under no obligation to take orders from Labor party conventions but an adverse vote could damage the prime minister's prestige just when he and Callaghan feel sure that economic recovery, lower living costs and higher output are within sight.

Right now, unemployment has reached nearly 600,000, a 27-year peak, and is expected to go higher. A revolt by left, right and center Labor factions appeared certain since leaders of big unions controlling the votes of millions of members already have resolved to protest Wilson's stiff economic medicine.

The party rebels are asking for an end to deflation, which they say has weakened the nation's economy and worsened its overseas competitive position. They want further cuts in military spending overseas, an extension of government control over investment at home and abroad and a return to Labor's longtime commitment to insure full employment.

Another of Wilson's problems centered on the exuberant Foreign Secretary George Brown, who got himself involved in a noisy hassle with newsmen about midnight Monday. Brown complained bitterly that photographers have been plaguing his wife and himself.

The incident was the latest in a series involving Brown at home and abroad in recent months and some observers suggested that it raised again the question of Brown's political future.

Tells Fear Of Lynching

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Black Power advocate H. Rap Brown's attorney argued in court today that his client might be lynched if extradited to Maryland.

Brown faces charges of inciting to riot and inciting to arson in Cambridge, Md. He is free on bond pending court action on extradition proceedings.

Attorney William Kunstler of New York opened a bid to block extradition in Alexandria Corporation Court today.

Brown was not present.

A federal judge who placed him on $10,000 bail restricted his movements except for court appearances.

Another of Brown's attorneys, Philip J. Hirchkop of Alexandria, told a newsman Brown did not appear in court because there was a legal question as to whether he was required to appear.

Kunstler, in his opening statement on a habeas corpus writ, said Brown's arrest in Virginia was illegal because it took place on federal property.

He also said, "extradition to Maryland would have the effect of subjecting him to possible lynching or judicial lynchings."

'Cancer-Fighter' Is Here For Fair

The newest "cancer-fighter" in town has arrived for the citizens of Scurry County to visit this week, Mrs. A. D. Dodson, President of the Scurry County Unit, of the American Cancer Society announced today.

The Cancer Mobile Exhibit Van has arrived to display the relationship of cigarette smoking to cancer.

The truck will be located near the display barn during the Scurry County Fair and will be open the same hours as the other displays. Volunteers of of the American Cancer Society and members of the local board will man the unit.

The exhibit is one of a fleet now on Texas roads, being displayed at shopping centers, fair grounds, near schools, conventions and factories. Each truck contains a two minute slide presentation called "To Smoke or Not to Smoke," which is particularly addressed to non-smokers.

The truck also features a series of color reproductions of photo-micrographs made by a pathologist, showing cancer cells in various stages of growth. A continuous tape transcription explains the photos comparing cancerous tissue to normal tissue and pointing out the relationship of cancer's warning signals to growths in various parts of the body.

Cigarette smoking constitutes one of the most urgent health hazards in America today, it is believed by ACS scientists.

Mrs. Dodson said since over 4,500 teenagers a day become regular smokers . . . and since 140 people a day are dying of lung cancer (10 times the rate of only 30 years ago), the epidemic of lung cancer must be faced squarely through hard-hitting public education. The new fleet of mobile exhibits is the latest effort by the Texas Division, American Cancer Society, to reach Texans with the facts.

Already an average of 4,000 persons per location of the trucks have visited the exhibits, taking home the free literature and studying the many panels, Mrs. Dodson said. "This unique American Cancer Society exhibit is an attempt to better inform the people of our area about the hazards of smoking and the importance of the annual check-up.

"I hope everyone will take time to visit the display during its time here."

Secessionist Capital Is Under Siege

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Enugu, capital of secessionist Biafra, was reported surrounded by federal troops late Monday while Czechoslovak-built fighter-jets bombed strategic targets in the city.

Federal forces say their troops have been fighting in the outskirts of Enugu since Saturday but one Nigerian officer said Biafran resistance was strong.

Violence Erupts In Truck Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A trucker was shot in the leg, and more than a dozen windshields were smashed today on the heels of word that dissident steel haulers are rejecting a tentative settlement with the Teamsters Union.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said James A. Cartusight, 27, was shot while driving along U.S. 20 near Fremont. He was hospitalized.

Police at Somerset on the Pennsylvania Turnpike said 10 to 12 windshields were smashed along the same stretch of road where 24 were smashed Monday. No one was hurt.

Daniel M. Berger, attorney for the striking independent haulers, said the men are turning down by a 9-1 vote the tentative agreement reached with the Teamsters in Pittsburgh Friday.

"The sentiment among the men is to continue the protest until they get what they want," said Berger.

Between 10,000 and 20,000 truckers who own their rigs have joined the eight-state wildcat strike, aimed at prodding the the union to reopen contract negotiations with the trucking firms.

The main drawback to the agreement reached Friday night in Pittsburgh is the lack of a guarantee for penalty pay for time spent waiting to load and unload, said Berger.

The truckers also want a 6 per cent increase to 79 per cent in their share of hauling costs.

Rig Collides With Draw Bridge

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP)—An offshore drilling rig named the Mr. Cap banged into the Port Arthur Pleasure Pier draw bridge and closed it to traffic Monday.

Officials said the bridge, 250 feet long, will be out of commission indefinitely. Its east side was left sagging dangerously.

Shipping accidents have damaged the span frequently but in the past it usually has been readily repaired. The ship channel remains open.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I thought I was capable of handling, but I found out otherwise.

My husband (I'll call him Pat) told me in considerable detail about an affair he had had with a friend of mine. (She is also married.) I was hurt beyond words as I love my husband very much, and was always a true and faithful wife. Pat says it's all over with now, he is only human and he's never stopped loving me.

I have honestly tried to forgive and forget. I've never brought this up to Pat, but should I be expected to socialize with this woman and her husband as tho nothing happened?

I told Pat once that I didn't want to go out with these people and he became very angry with me. In order to avoid arguments, I seem to be forced into being with this couple more and more, and it hurts me to even look at her. I have prayed for my feelings to change about her, but it's been a year and I still feel the same. What should I do?

STILL BROKEN-HEARTED

DEAR BROKEN-HEARTED: Tell Pat that you are "only human," too, and for him to expect you to socialize with this woman is asking too much, so the answer is NO!

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to Kenny less than a year and I couldn't want a better husband, but we have one problem that seems to be getting worse. Like last night Kenny and I were out with another couple and the other man asked me to dance. Now I love to dance, but Kenny doesn't dance at all. He won't even try. Well, I danced one dance with this other fellow and Kenny sulked all evening. When we got home we had a big fight about it. Abby, I hate fights, but I think Kenny is being very unfair. Do you mean to tell me that I should quit forget about dancing with other men because my husband doesn't dance?

LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: Yes, if Kenny doesn't dance, refuses to try, and your dancing with other men provokes fights. It's unfair, I admit, but you knew Kenny didn't dance when you married him.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the worried teen-age girl who "hated" her father because she found a filthy paperback book in his car:

You should have given your father a chance to explain. Perhaps he knew nothing of it. Someone might have ditched it in his car just to get rid of it. Or it could have been planted there as a joke.

Or your father may have thrown it on the floor himself in disgust. I am an elderly woman, and not unsophisticated, and I had the following experience:

I bought some paperback books to read on my vacation in Palm Springs. One was written by an author I had enjoyed before, but after I read a few pages I was utterly appalled at the filth. I was then confronted with the problem of disposing of it without being connected with it in any way.

I wouldn't put it in the waste basket for fear the maid or housekeeper would think it was my taste in literature.

I actually fretted over the disposal of that blasted book until I got home, not wishing to be caught with it. Once safely home, I wrapped it in several thicknesses of newspaper and carefully placed it in the middle of the trash can, so even the trash collector wouldn't find it.

Sincerely,
WAS ALSO WORRIED

Green Thumb Talent Is Displayed

"Some of my friends say I have a green thumb."

Thus Mrs. F. A. (Lillie) Green, 1104 Twenty - sixth Street explained the luxuriant growth of flowers in her flower bed in front of her home.

Included among her flowers are seven blossoms of the unusual coxcomb or Prince Feather flower. What makes Mrs. Green's Prince Feathers especially unusual is the huge growth which they have attained. One of the flowers is as big as a basketball. All of them resemble red velvet.

She said she planted the seeds in May of 1966 and "they came up volunteer this year." She thinks the unusual flowers grew big because the seed sprouted in rose beds that are watered more than the other flowers.

"I may enter them in the Fair," said Mrs. Green. She added that she and her husband attended the Fair at Lubbock last week and "didn't see any Prince Feathers as large as the ones in their front yard.

Mrs. Green also raises "lots of Ivy" and she has a rubber plant in her living room.

Mrs. Callaway Service Set

Mrs. Claude Callaway, 75, wife of a former state representative and Foard County Judge, and mother of a former Scurry County peace officer and tax office deputy, died Monday in Quanah hospital following a long illness.

A resident of Crowell, which had been the family home since 1928, Mrs. Callaway was a native of Wylie. Her husband served in the legislature in 1947-48 and was county judge of Foard County for six years. Her son, Dan Callaway, is now sheriff of Foard County. He formerly was on the Snyder Police Force and was chief deputy in the Scurry County Tax Office when he returned to Crowell several months ago.

Surviving, in addition to the husband and son, are two daughters, Mrs. J. V. Fuller and Mrs. T. N. Stephens, both of Richardson; a brother, Mike Willis of Wylie; two sisters, Mrs. Charlie Pruett of Sweetwater and Mrs. A. C. Moore of Wylie; nine grandchildren and four great - grandchildren.

Funeral service will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Crowell Methodist Church, with Rev. D. D. Dennison of St. Paul's Methodist Church, officiating. He will be assisted by the Rev. Ernest McGaughey, pastor of the Crowell Church, where Mrs. Callaway was a life member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Burial will be in the Crowell Cemetery, under direction of Womack Funeral Home.

TARC Meet At Abilene

Vocational rehabilitation was the main topic discussed Saturday at a meeting of Region 3 of the Texas Association of Retarded Children.

Max Errol of the Texas Education Agency, spoke at the morning session of the meeting, which was held in Abilene. His job includes vocational rehabilitation for all types of disabilities.

Errol said that 25 per cent of the case load in vocational rehabilitation is in the retarded group. In the first year of the program, he said three retarded people were employed. Last year, 1,600 were employed. Abilene State School had more youngsters rehabilitated last year than any other state school.

Region 3, which includes Retarded Children's Associations in Abilene, Brown County, Scurry County, San Angelo and San Saba, will sponsor a regional summer camp next year. Existing facilities of other organizations will be used. The camp probably will accommodate from 60 to 70 retarded campers in the 12 to 24 year old group.

Watches As Husband Shot

DALLAS (AP) — Archie Hamilton's wife was a horrified witness as a holdup man shot him repeatedly at an East Dallas gas station Monday night.

Two bandits entered the office at the station where Hamilton works and one pulled a pistol. He kept on firing even after Hamilton, 24, yelled, "Don't shoot! You can have the money!"

Hamilton was taken to a hospital with wounds in his chest, abdomen and left arm. Attendants said his condition was serious.

Mrs Hamilton, an expectant mother, was waiting in the family car with the couple's five-month-old baby and their son, 3.

Her wounded husband darted outside to the car. As his wife backed the vehicle out and swept past the robbers, the gunman hit the left side of the automobile with another bullet.

Police arrested three men in a car across town an hour later. They said one carried a pistol stolen from the parked car of a city officers last week. All three were held for investigation.

Tragic Day Relived By Bus Driver

WATERLOO, Neb. (AP) — It started out like any other Monday for Thomas McMahon, 28, a social studies teacher at Waterloo High School.

He picked up the yellow school bus and began his usual morning run west of town. He picked up two members of the Charles Smith family, swung south for two children of the Robert Mattox family, then headed east for the two young daughters of the Lloyd Jensens.

Then he swung the 52-passenger bus up another county road to the farm home of the Dwight Claytons, where seven of the Clayton children climbed aboard.

A quarter of a mile down that county road, tragedy struck.

A Union Pacific freight train sliced into the bus, killing four children and injuring the rest.

At his home several hours after the crash, McMahon kept asking "How did it happen? How did it happen?"

"I stopped at the crossing," he recalled. "I looked the other way and started across. I didn't see or hear anything until the rear end started sliding ... not even the motor ... I didn't see or hear a damn thing ... it's just inexplainable ..."

McMahon, the father of two children, said the sun was "just glaring on the windshield." A state patrol statement said McMahon told them he was blinded by the sun.

"Those kids never had any pain," he said. "They were gone when I got out of the bus. I told the other kids to lie down and keep quiet, but they were all excited. Nobody came for what seemed like hours. I tried to keep the parents out. I didn't want 'em to see 'em."

First arrivals at the scene said McMahon was going through the wreckage looking for the children and trying to help them.

McMahon was taken to an Omaha Hospital for an examination and administered a sedative before returning to his home.

Killed in the accident were Ronald Clayton, 12, and his brother David, 9; Marla Joy Jensen, 8, and Sherri D. Smith, 11.

All four had brothers or sisters among the nine other passengers, all of whom were injured—but none seriously.

Beulah Damages Several State Parks

AUSTIN (AP) — Goose Island, Bentsen-Rio Grande, Falcon, Goliad and Lake Corpus Christi state parks sustained damage from Hurricane Beulah, the Department of Parks and Wildlife reports.

Goose Island and Bentsen-Rio Grande were hardest hit, the department said Monday. The former was cut in two and lost about 20 trees. Only the roof of the ranger's residence in Bentsen-Rio Grande was above water at the height of the flooding.

Lack of dissolved oxygen aggravated by pollution, high tides and flooding rivers caused the fish kills along the upper Texas Coast, the department said.

Dale Carnegie Alumni Celebrate With Banquet

Sixty - four Dale Carnegie graduates and their spouses turned out Saturday night for an informal banquet.

Warren Quinlan of Midland was the main speaker, and short addresses were heard from Joe Sliva of Abilene and Wayman Cooper of Big Spring. Quinlan is West Texas Director for Dale Carnegie, while Sliva is area representative and Cooper is district governor of the Dale Carnegie Alumni Association.

Doug McGlaun, president of the Carnegie Class here, was master of ceremonies.

Several humorous skits were presented by members of the graduated class to depict highlights of the course. Headliners on the show were L. E. Griffin, city tax collector; Ed Dickerson, district manager of The Western Co.; Mrs. R. L. Grimmett, and Susie Rasco, a high school student from Ira.

The class was labeled an "unprecedented success," with 44 of the starting 46 qualifying for diplomas.

Sliva has announced that the new class he is enrolling will be filled sooner than he expected. This is due to the overflow from the last class and keen interest shown by people of Snyder and surrounding area, he said.

The Dale Carnegie course is being sponsored again by The Snyder Daily News as a community service. For information on the new class, Sliva may be reached at the newspaper office, HI 3-5486, or Box 949 Snyder.

County Court Pleas Heard

Several guilty pleas were heard in County Court last week.

Two Lubbock men, William Thompson and John F. Johnson, pleaded guilty to charges of malicious mischief and unlawfully carrying arms. Both received probated sentences on the mischief charge, and both were handed $100 fines plus court costs for the other charge. The probation, for one year, is for a sentence that provides for a $100 fine plus court costs and 60 - days in jail. The offenses occurred June 11.

Jack Armstrong of Hobbs, New Mex. received a $100 fine plus court costs and a 60-day jail term after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. The offense occurred Sept. 23. The jail term portion of the sentence was probated one year.

A charge of driving while intoxicated also was filed against Albert Guzman for an offense that occurred Sept. 26. He was handed a $100 fine plus court costs and 30 days in jail after pleading guilty. The fine and jail term were probated one year.

Billy Tim Atwood received a $25 fine plus court costs and a 30-day jail term after pleading guilty to driving while his license was suspended. The offense occurred Sept. 23. The jail term portion of the sentence was probated for one year.

Sidney Montgomery entered a guilty plea to a charge of aggravated assault on a female Sept. 23. He received a $100 fine plus court costs and a two-month jail term. The fine and jail term were probated one year.

Road Group Delays Meet

The fall meeting of U. S. Highway 180 - Mexico 45 Association scheduled for October 6 and 7 has been postponed until November 3 and 4 in Hobbs, N. M.

This postponement will allow members to participate in a tourist conference set for Las Cruces, N. M., on Oct. 6 honoring former Mexican President Miguel Aleman.

Speakers for the Association meeting in Hobbs will be announced at a later date. Reservations may be made through the Executive Secretary's office at P. O. Box 910, Carlsbad, New Mexico, 88220.

Raise Opposed By Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration spoke out Monday against a proposed postal pay hike.

Charles Schultze, director of the Budget Bureau; and John Macy Jr., chairman of the Civil Service Commission, testified at a Senate hearing there is no justification for giving postal workers a higher pay raise than other government workers. A House committee has approved a 6 per cent hike for the postal workers and a 4.2 per cent hike for other federal employes.

[illegible] no rational basis [illegible] for discriminatory treatment, even temporarily, between postal employes and all other personnel, military and civilian, Macy said.

The House Education and Labor Committee voted to name the Job Corps' conservation centers around the country the Civilian Conservation Centers, or CCC. This would revive the initials of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal program, the Civilian Conservation Corps, which sought to put unemployed young men to work on conservation projects.

Forty per cent of the Job Corps enrollees are in conservation centers.

In other developments in Congress monday:

—The House Rules Committee delayed further consideration of a picketing bill, sought by labor leaders, which would permit picketing of a construction site by union members involved in a dispute with one subcontractor.

—State and Defense Department officials said they regarded as a threat to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a House foreign aid amendment that would bar American military transactions with countries whose ships carry cargo to or from North Vietnam. Their comments were before a Senate-House conference committee seeking to iron out differnces between the House and Senate on the foreign aid bill.

Support For Peking Fades

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Turmoil stemming from Mao Tse-tung's attempts to purge his enemies in mainland China has chilled the annual campaign to seat the Chinese Communists in the United Nations.

"It makes one a little uneasy backing a government when one doesn't really know who is running it," said a representative of an Eastern European nation that usually gives Peking strong support for taking over the seat held by the Nationalists.

The Red Chinese leaders' habit of lashing out without warning at friends as well as foes has also dampened support.

Some of Mao Tse-tung's staunchest backers in both Asia and Eastern Europe have come under bitter propaganda attack or been subjected to Red Guard violence in recent months, causing uncertainty if not resentment toward China.

The coolness toward Peking's candidacy has been reflected in the policy debate in the General Assembly.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko dismissed the issue with a single sentence of half-hearted recommendation.

The same perfunctory endorsement came from Britain and France failed to even mention Chinese representation.

Weather Still Unfavorable

Austin (AP) — For the second week in a row unfavorable weather conditions have slowed cotton harvest in Texas, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Monday.

In the Rio Grande Valley and South Texas the main activity was cleaning up after Hurricane Beulah.

Other areas of the state received rains caused by Beulah that helped fall grasses and seeded acreages of small grains.

Where tender lush growth was available the armyworms were causing damage ranging from minor to serious.

The norther that moved across the state at mid-week slowed maturity of all crops and slowed growth of some grasses.

Sorghum harvest advanced to 55 per cent completion, compared to 60 per cent at this time last year.

some 800 feet several years ago, but this failed to solve the problem. Mayor M. L. Broman said the city would need more information, especially engineering appraisals, before any action could be taken.

After considerable discussion the council in a split decision, voted to approve a request by J. D. James that he be permitted to remove sidewalk at his residence in the 3000 block of Denison Avenue. The request said his was the only property on the block with a sidewalk and that removal would make the property conform to other residences on the same street. Councilmen Herbert Reed and R. C. Patton voted to grant the request, while Councilman Marshall Erwin, noting that he "just can't vote to tear up good sidewalk," voted against it.

No action was taken on another question involving residential sidewalks. Attorney Dan Cotton said that Clay Mullins, 3004 Beaumont, had removed sidewalk in front of his house without a permit, believing that sidewalk to be on his own property and under his personal control. The council indicated that more study would be given to the question before a decision is reached.

The council passed on first reading an ordinance granting Snyder Community Antenna Television, the local cable com-

WOMEN

Housewives Prove Best As Temporary Workers

EDITOR'S NOTE — The hiring-out of temporary workers has become big business in the last decade, and the ranks are largely made up of housewives. During the summer, students invade the temporary market, but with fall appoaching, it's time for the woman who wants temporary work to start preparing. Here are some tips on what the temporary job market has to offer her.

NEW YORK (AP) —Housewives, who have cornered 85 per cent of the temporary work in the United States, have proved themselves more desireable than single women in the field.

That's what Richard Essey, president of the Association of Temporary Personnel Contractors, says.

"The organizational ability which the housewife develops in raising children are very practical and transferable qualities which enable her to adjust rapidly to new surroundings and take new responsibilities in her stride. She is also more apt to be a neat housekeeper at her desk.

"If more housewives knew this, they would have more confidence in seeking their first temporary job," says Essey.

"Confidence is what they primarily need. And confidence is often based on knowing how to best present themselves in the current temporary job market — and also on knowing a bit about the temporary job market of 1967."

This year the temporary personnel industry in the United States will pass the one billion dollar mark. It has experienced a 700 per cent increase in the last eight years, according to the Stanford Research Institute. During this period companies expanded and diversified the kind of help they were renting, and many new kinds of jobs opened.

"This has far - reaching effects upon the way in which a housewife seeking a temporary job should present herself," says Essey. His association is the country's largest.

First, she must decide whether she primarily wants quick money, a glamor job or a job in a specific field of interest.

If it's to be quick money, she must appraise her skills. Most personnel contractors test stenographers and typists before sending them out. Many also give free brush-up courses in typing, shorthand, comptometer. Some have the complete course free from the beginning. To decide whether or not this is worth her while, the housewife must balance the comparative pay in her area against the time to be spent training.

If she has a special interest—whether it be fashion, fabrics, music, theater, public service—she should be able to get a job in this field if she presents herself properly. First she should make a list of all the education and work she has done, including voluntary work and hobbies, and not overlooking an education that was completed 20 years ago.

In approaching a temporary personnel contractor, she should be specific about the field in which she primarily wants to work. If he cannot place her, she should not give up, for chances are another one can.

Often a housewife's primary problem is one of hours. She can only work afternoons or wants to be home when the children get home from school. Personnel contractors can often place such women, because businesses that are growing rapidly are highly adaptable.

"Appearance is also important," says Essey. "Especially with today's fashions. Brightly colored stockings, dresses well above the knees, and mod clothes may be acceptable once you have proved your efficiency. But the woman who dresses conservatively is likely to make her appearance count for more when it comes to job hunting."

While the most common job catagories are open to secretaries, typists, clericals, bookkeepers receptionists, switchboard operators, key punchers, comptometrists and calculators, varied and special assignments have been increasing rapidly as industry expands into new areas.

One of these new areas is the packaging of complete office procedures and company projects, which vary from sales testing a new product to undertaking the transfer to computerization.

Among the facts which a woman should know about temporary assignments:

Temporary job contractors never charge a fee to the employe.

The only deductions they make are the compulsory ones . . . such as income tax, social security, unemployment compensation.

She is an employe of the temporary contractor.

She need not accept every assignment offered her.

Officials Plan For Sulphur Lease Sale

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas officials are considering a mid-December sealed bid sale of sulphur leases on university lands.

The announcement said tracts that individuals wish to have considered for the sale should send in their lists by Oct. 23. Final decision on the sale will be made at the Oct. 27-28 regents meeting.

Rev. William Steele To Address DCCW In Angelo

The annual convention of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women will be held in San Angelo, the city of the diocese, October 10-11, 1967. The theme of the convention will be "From the Old to the New." Headquarters and meetings will be at the Hotel Cactus, one block south of the Sacred Heart Cathedral.

Mass the first day will be at the Cathedral at 11:15 in the morning. It will be a concelebrated Mass with Bishop Thomas Tschoepe principal celebrant. All attending priests are invited to participate in the Mass. On Wednesday the Mass will be offered in the Crystal Room, Hotel Cactus, following the workshop on Church Commissions. This Mass will be celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Andrew Marthaler, who will illustrate the changes which have taken place in recent years following Vatican II.

Workshops will be conducted in English, with the Organizational and Service Workshop also in Spanish. The workshops will be repeated so that everyone may have opportunity to hear discussions by the Commission Chairman and their helpers on each phase of the work of our D. C. C. W.

The women of St. Ambrose Church, Wall, will preside over coffee tables each morning. Luncheon on Tuesday is being arranged by the Sacred Heart women, on Wednesday by St. Joseph's and St. Mary's societies of San Angelo. The social hour and banquet will be hosted by Holy Angels members, also of San Angelo.

Speaker for the banquet will be the Rev. Wm. D. Steele, Houston, who will address the gathering on the subject "Is the Church Really Necessary?" Father Steele comes from the Galveston - Houston diocese where he is vocation director. He also serves as Moderator of the Council of Religious Women for the diocese.

In his address Father Steele will raise questions as to the value of the Church in relation to the whole of God's creation, the precise function of the Church in the modern world, why the Church is concerned with internal problems, and what the women of the DCCW can do to make the Church a better Church.

Father Steele was born Aug. 31, 1929, in Texarkana, Ark. After graduating from Bishop Byrne high school in Port Arthur, Tex., he entered the seminary in 1949.

On May 26, 1956, Father Steele was ordained to the priesthood. For the first seven years of his priesthood he was assigned as assistant pastor in his home parish of St. James in Port Arthur.

After being assigned as Diocesan Director of Vocations in June, 1963, he assumed his new duties on Sept. 6, 1963. Since then he has been working full time at the post.

At the present time Father Steele is moderator of the Council of Religious Women for the diocese. He is also a member of the diocesan Commission for Christian Unity and the author of "The Church Today," a weekly column in the Texas Catholic Herald, diocesan paper for Galveston-Houston. In addition Father Steele is treasurer of the National Conference of Diocesan Vocation Directors.

Mrs. Brown Will Judge Art Show

Mrs. Woodlief Brown of Abilene will judge the art show at the third annual Scurry County Fair, it was announced today.

The art show, one of the major features of the fair each year, is held in the northeast room of the National Guard Armory.

Mrs. Brown, who holds a bachelor of arts degree in art from the University of Texas, has studied under Simon Michael, Claudia Betti and other noted artists. She is first vice president of the Abilene Fine Arts Museum and service on the fine arts committee there.

Entries in the art show will be accepted at the armory between the hours of 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Wednesday. All pictures must be original, framed and ready to hang and must not have been shown previously. Pencil, Pen, Pastels, Commercials, water color and prints may be matted. Each entry must be the work of the person exhibiting and the work must be completed.

There will be two divisions, one for adults and one for students, from 6 years up.

DMZ DIALOGUE

With Nation 178 Years Old Negro Takes Oath As Justice

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Monday, when Thurgood Marshall took his seat on the U.S. Supreme Court, would have seemed tremendous at some other time, for Marshall is the son of a sleeping-car porter and great-grandson of a slave.

Just 14 years ago it is unlikely any president would have dared to name a Negro to the court which then still clung to its 1896 ruling that segregation, making Negroes second-class citizens, was constitutional.

But 13 years ago there would have been no reason for a president to hesitate. It was on May 17, 1954 that the court abandoned its old opinion and declared that segregation is by its very nature unconstitutional.

It was Marshall, more than any single man in America, who made possible this victory, which threw open the gates of the nation for the Negroes, although the gates are still far from wide open.

If at that time Marshall had been appointed to the court no doubt Negroes all over America would have looked upon him as a saint, the hero of their race. But those 13 years have been a long time in Negro America.

Marshall is a man dedicated to reason and justice under law which is no longer enough for the Negro extremists who have sprung up since 1954, screaming violence and preaching "Black Power" without ever saying what they have in mind.

This American society, often hypocritical about democracy while preaching and proclaiming it, has had to melt its religious and racial bigotry a step at a time.

The nation was 47 years old before the first Catholic—Roger B. Taney, who later became a chief justice—was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1836. Five more Catholics have been on the court since.

The nation was 127 years old before the first Jew, Louis B. Brandeis, was made a justice in 1916. Since then four other Jews have been appointed to the court.

And Monday, with the country 178 years old, Marshall was the first Negro given a seat beside the other eight justices.

Marshall went to work for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as chief counsel. By then the NAACP had decided to fight that old 1896 segregation decision, step by painful step.

The long grind went on. In case after case, winning as he went, Marshall got the court to knock out various forms of segregation, as in interstate buses and graduate schools.

But the court still wouldn't declare all segregation wrong. To get the court to do that, Marshall had to take his final, most tremendous move with a case involving segregation in public schools. And he won in 1954.

In the years since, then, Negroes' demands for an end to discrimination in every walk of American life intensified.

Thanks to the victory Marshall won they were now free to agitate peacefully and demonstrate in front of the very police officers who, before 1954, would have shut them up fast, jailed them, and no doubt wrecked their spirit.

As white America yielded slowly, or refused to listen, the Negro extremists moved in, appealing not to Negroes' minds but to their emotions, whipping many into a mood of desperation, irresponsibility, and riots.

Marshall, who looks to a future orderly America, said when sworn in as a justice: "I am greatly honored. Let me take this opportunity to affirm my deep faith in this nation and its people and to pledge that I shall be ever mindful of my obligation to the Constitution and to the goal of equal justice under law."

For a statement like that, the Negro extremists are probably calling him Uncle Tom without having brains enough to realize that if it hadn't been for his victory 13 years ago they wouldn't dare open their mouths now.

Junior Editors Quiz on PENGUINS

QUESTION: Where did the name penguin come from?

* * *

ANSWER: Penguins, like other birds, are warm-blooded, which means they must maintain a very high body temperature. Yet they live only in the colder parts of the southern half of the globe, many on the shores of the Antarctic Continent, the world's coldest land area. The reasons they manage to survive are hanging on two little penguin coat hangers at the upper left of the drawing. First, we see an inner coat of blubber an inch thick; then an outside coat of fine satiny feathers which secrete a special kind of oil. With this amount of insulation, cold is no problem.

The penguin inherited his name from a large bird, the auk, which is now extinct. This bird had a big white patch on his head and was often called a penguin, as pen in the Welsh language means head and gwyn, white. The great auk stood upright, could not fly and in this way resembled a modern penguin. Because of this resemblance, the name penguin was adopted for our modern bird.

Douglas Turns Age To Advantage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Involve yourself in your time—as awful as that time may be," said Melvyn Douglas. "What else is there?"

Time, the enemy of all men, can be a particularly bitter foe of actors, whose fame and fortune are often dependent on their faces.

But at 66 Douglas has turned his age to his artistic advantage.

In the 1930s he was Hollywood's masculine symbol of debonair sophistication. Lately he has been featured in a series of "old man" roles.

His portrayal of an elderly rancher in "Hud" won him an Oscar in 1964. On Oct. 17 he will star on the CBS-TV production of "Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night," in which he plays a man placed in a home for the aged by his children.

Does he harbor any inner resentment at being assigned these snow-haired roles?

"No indeed," he responded with crisp realism. "It would be ridiculous for me now to do anything else."

As debonair of spirit as ever, Douglas takes aging as a normal human process and makes no attempt to camouflage it in himself.

"When was hardly out of my teens," he recalled, "I used to have to play a new part every week on the stage in Chicago. They ranged in age from 18 to 70. I took pleasure in going to the theater early and spending hours making myself up to look gray and haggard."

One of the most active and experienced performers in the entertainment field, Douglas has appeared in some 70 films, 150 stage roles, and numerous television plays. Among his theater hits were "A Free Soul," "Tonight or Never," "Inherit the Wind," "Waltz of the Toreadors" and "Time Out for Ginger."

And many an aging matron's heart still thrills at the memory of his romantic charm in such films as "Theodora Goes Wild," "The Gorgeous Hussy," "As You Desire Me," and "Ninotchka."

Throughout his career Douglas has taken an active part in politics and liberal causes, starting at a time when few Hollywood stars did so. He is married to Helen Gahagan, a former actress who served three terms in Congress as a Democratic representative from California.

Doug also served as a private in World War I, and in World War II, after enlisting at the age of 42, he rose from private to major.

"Looking back," he said, "I feel I might have been happy in the fields of sociology and psychological therapy, if I hadn't loved acting so much.

"The most important thing, I believe, is to fulfill your own potentialities—without hurting others, if possible.

"You must involve yourself in your own time. I never let my work hamstring me. I have always liked to do things that are interesting and provocative.

"Fear, insecurity and illness—these are the things that defeat most people. But there is no simple prescription for whipping fear. You must find that within.

If I can live the rest of my life some kind of health—and with joie de vivre—I'll be as happy as any person can be."

Who Can Predict Consumer Whims?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American consumer fooled a lot of economists in 1966 by cautiously banking his money instead of spending it. Partly as a result of this a six-year expansion sputtered this year.

Now the consumer has been regaining his confidence for about nine months and forecasters cite this as evidence the purse strings will continue to loosen and that consumer demand will contribute to inflation.

The logical question to ask at this point is why the confidence of forecasters seems unshaken after they so badly misread consumer habits and intentions in 1966?

This is a critical question because some arguments for a tax increase are based on the expectation of renewed consumer buying. The answer, however, is anybody's guess, for two opposing trends are involved: short-term thrift and long-term extravagance.

At a meeting today of the National Industrial Conference Board, a nonprofit education and research organization, discussions showed that the consumer mind is at a very critical junction and must decide whether to follow the long-term trend to spend or the short-term tendency to save.

Prof. George Katona, who surveys buyers intentions at the University of Michigan, commented that despite growing inclinations to buy, "uneasiness and apprehension continue to prevail among many American consumers."

If this is so, what will the consumer do when faced with the definite prospect of continuing price increases and high interest rates, and the likelihood of higher taxes?

This question cannot be answered with certainty. What is certain is that some very critical decisions are being made right now by the consumer. Will he bank or will he spend?

Early in 1966, when the consumer cut back his purchases, he put increasingly more of his take-home pay into savings. By early this year the rate rose to 6.5 per cent of his take-home pay.

Many economists, including those in decision making positions, failed to see this turn. Many, in fact, thought they'd never see such a high percentage, but the rate still is over 6 per cent.

What makes this consumer thrift over the short term perplexing is that it occurs within a 20-year trend toward deeper and deeper debt. Americans have used credit in a way that earlier generations would have thought sinful. They owe more now than they ever did.

Each year since 1946, a conference board study shows, the size of household debt has risen. In 1946 it was only $35.1 billion. It is now coming close to $400 billion and rising as fast as ever.

The greatest amount of this, well over $200 billion, is in homes. But about $100 billion of it consists of consumer credit bills.

There are two distinct and opposite forces pressing today on the consumer mind: the desire to be thrifty and the desire to have things that borrowed money will buy? Which way the consumer?

World Series Set Wednesday

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's Jose Santiago and St. Louis' Orlando Cepeda may share a dinner table tonight, but when Wednesday comes it'll be like the old westerns.

Fenway Park won't be big enough to hold them both in the first game of the World Series, and one will have to get out—Santiago by way of the showers or Cepeda by way of a strikeout or some such harmless maneuver.

The showdown won't come at high noon—it'll be shortly after 1 p.m.—but when it does occur it'll be a very important one because Santiago and Cepeda are very vital to their teams.

Santiago will be Boston's opening game pitcher while Cepeda is the Cardinals' primary slugger.

They are not unfamiliar to each other, these two. Both are from Puerto Rico, Santiago from Carolina and Cepeda from Guaynabo.

"Orlando? I've pitched against him in winter ball," Santiago said after going through a 30-minute workout Monday. "He's a good friend of mine. Maybe I'll take him out to dinner. But I'll be trying to get him out in the game."

At the same time, Bob Gibson will be trying to get the Red Sox out as the Cardinals' starter.

He was given that job Monday by Manager Red Schoendienst, who also named Dick Hughes and Nelson Briles for the second and third games.

Manager Dick Williams of Boston will counter with 22-game winner Jim Lonborg in the second game and possibly Gary Bell or Lee Stange in the third.

If the Red Sox are to upset the experts and win the Series—just as they upset everyone and soared from ninth to first in the American League this year—those pitchers will have to muffle Cepeda's guns.

National League pitchers did very little muffling during the season, and Cepeda is considered a cinch to be named the league's Most Valuable Player.

After battling for the batting title with a .340-plus average much of the year, the 30-year-old first baseman settled down to a .325 mark, socked 25 homers and led the league with 111 runs batted in.

Santiago, on the other hand, was an unheralded right-hander until the last two weeks of the season.

Then, suddenly, he won three games in five days—two in relief and one as a starter—and was called on by Manager Williams to pitch the opener of the crucial two-game, season-ending series with Minnesota.

He responded with another victory, and Williams reacted by naming him his Series starter.

Over-all this season, the 27-year-old veteran won 12 games and lost four and compiled a 3.72 earned run average.

Gibson, whose right leg was broken by a Roberto Clemente line drive in the middle of the season, recovered sufficiently to record a 13-7 mark with a 2.98 ERA.

The 31-year-old right-hander is the only Series veteran among the Cardinal starters. In St. Louis' 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees in 1964, Gibson won two games, lost one and set a Series record with 31 strikeouts in 27 innings.

The man Gibson must fear most is Carl Yastrzemski, like Cepeda an overwhelming choice for the MVP award.

In the last two games of the season, the Boston left fielder made it very plain that Fenway Park certainly was not big enough for both him and the Twins, and there never was any question of who was doing the getting out.

In his last six at-bats—two in Saturday's 6-4 victory and four in Sunday's 5-3 triumph—Yaz rapped six hits and drove in six runs, putting the Red Sox into the Series and himself into the role of Triple Crown winner.

He batted .326, drove in 121 runs and slugged 44 homers, the same number as Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew.

Yastrzemski and the rest of the Sox, except Santiago, took Monday off to recuperate from their wild celebration Sunday night.

They returned to Fenway for a scouting report meeting and a 90-minute workout today.

The Cardinals flew into Boston Monday night and had a night's sleep before getting their first look at the park today.

The line-ups the two starting pitchers will face will show nothing new.

Boston will have Jerry Adair, recovered from a Sunday spike wound, at second, Dalton Jones at third, Yastrzemski in left, Ken Harrelson in right, George Scott at first, Rico Petrocelli at short, Reggie Smith in center and Russ Gibson catching.

For the Cardinals, it'll be Lou Brock in left, Curt Flood in center, Roger Maris in right, Cepeda at first, Tim McCarver catching, Mike Shannon at third, Julian Javier at second and Dal Maxvill at short.

After playing here Wednesday and Thursday, the teams take Friday off before continuing in St. Louis Saturday, Sunday, and if necessary, Monday. If needed, the last two games will be played in Boston next Wednesday and Thursday.

Cokes Stops Foe—TKO

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Proving convincingly his right to the world welterweight boxing championship by stopping Charley Shipes in the eighth round, Curtis Cokes says he may give lightweight king Carlos Ortiz the next shot at the crown.

Cool and devastating, the 30-year-old Cokes knocked Oakland's Shipes down in the fourth and sixth rounds Monday night before referee Jack Downey called a halt after one minute and 37 seconds of the eighth when Shipes went down the second time in the round.

"I didn't go for a knockout, was trying for a decision," Cokes explained in the same calm manner which marked his fight in the Oakland Arena.

"I figured I got behind in the first couple of rounds and tried to pick it up."

The champion, from Dallas, Tex., who weighed the same 145 as did Shipes, first decked the Californian in the fourth with a right to the head followed by a left.

"When I nailed him for the first knockdown, I felt then I could handle him," Cokes declared.

Asked about future plans, he said manager Dave Lord was considering a bout against Ortiz in Puerto Rico. Lord quickly added the price would have to be right.

At the same time promoter Don Chargin of Oakland and Los Angeles said he has proposed either an over-the-weight bout in Oakland against middleweight Andy Heilman or a title shot against Indian Red Lopez of Los Angeles.

DUNBAR IN FIRST

3-AAA 11's See Action Friday

Lubbock Dunbar stands alone at the top of the District 3-AAA grid heap following its 9-8 victory over Sweetwater last week. The Ponies are alone in the cellar.

Every team in the district sees action this week. Snyder opens league action with Lamesa coming here Friday night for its first district test. Elsewhere, Lake View will be at Brownfield while Levelland is at Sweetwater. Dunbar will try to protect its lead with Littlefield providing the challenge this week.

On the area scene, Hermleigh hosts Forsan, Lueders invades Ira and Gail is at Whitharral while Hobbs enjoys an open date.

Sweetwater, the pre-season favorite in 3-AAA, lost to Dunbar on the final play of the game when the newest member of 3-AAA came through with a field goal to pull off an upset.

Favorites in this week's action are Dunbar, Snyder and Sweetwater while the Lake View - Brownfield affair is considered to be a tossup.

A limited slate of games involving local teams also is on tap this week. The junior varsity will be at Lamesa Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. battle. Travis 8th will play Sweetwater here Thursday at 7 p.m. Travis 9th will be at Sweetwater for a 7:30 p.m. clash Thursday. Junior 8th and 9th grade teams both have the week off.

Grid Club Sets Weekly Meet Tonight

The Snyder Quarterback Club will hold its regular weekly meeting at 7:30 p.m. today (Tuesday) in the high school cafetesie, according to an announcement by Jerry Rice, president.

He said members will hear a scouting report on Lamesa — this week's foe of the varsity. Other coaches in the school system will give accounts of games involving their teams last week.

The Snyder - Lamesa clash in Tiger stadium at 7:30 p.m. will be the first district game for both teams.

The Tigers suddenly jelled a week ago Friday and appeared to hold the advantage over Class AAAA Big Spring, although the Steers escaped with a 7-3 verdict. The showing against the heavier squad definitely stamps the Bengals as strong contenders for the 3-AAA crown. Lamesa and Snyder both will be taking 0-3 records into the affray Friday night.

Game tickets can be secured at the school administration building of at the gate on the night of the game at the rate of $1.50 each.

Váldez To Run Pony Attack

DALLAS (AP) — Eddie Valdez, a junior college transfer, will be starting quarterback for Southern Methodist against Minnesota Saturday and sophomore Rob Floyd will be his backup man.

Both of SMU's top quarterbacks, Mike Livingston and Inez Perez, are very doubtful players because of injuries. Livingston was hurt in the Texas A&M game and Perez in the Missouri game and neither has been able to work out since.

Coach Hayden Fry said flanker Jerry Levias, tackle Terry Mary and defensive lineman Rufus Cormier have returned to work and are expected to play. They have been nursing injuries. Levias, key man of the offense, has a bruised instep.

Army's cross country captain is Paul DeCoursey of Monticello, Ind.

Southern Cal Grabs Top Spot In Poll

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California became the new tenant in the room at the top of The Associated Press college football poll this week, replacing Notre Dame, whose lease suddenly ran out.

The Trojans, who added an impressive 21-17 victory over Michigan State last Saturday to one over Texas the week before, moved from second to first as the Irish, upset 28-21 by Purdue Saturday, fell from first to sixth.

Southern California picked up 20 first-place votes from the writers and broadcasters who voted and gathered a total of 428 points, counted on the basis of 10 for a first-place vote, nine for a second etc.

Houston, which clobbered Wake Forest 50-6 Saturday, advanced from third to second place, 39 points behind Southern California. The Cougars were named first on 10 of the 46 ballots, but appear to have been hurt in the voting by the three-year probation imposed by the NCAA in 1966 for recruiting violations.

One Texas voter didn't list Houston anywhere on his ballot because of the probation, which prohibits the club from appearing in a televised game or in a postseason bowl.

UCLA, with six first-place votes, climbed from fourth place to third, 21 points behind Houston. The Bruins crushed Washington State 51-23 Saturday.

Purdue gathered nine first-place votes and jumped from 10th place to fourth on the strength of its triumph over Notre Dame. The boilermakers are only 14 points behind UCLA.

Georgia, which beat Clemson 24-17, remained in fifth place and was named No. 1 on one ballot. Following Notre Dame is seventh-place Nebraska, which beat Minnesota 7-0 Saturday.

Colorado, idle Saturday, fell from sixth place to eighth and Alabama remained in ninth place after beating Southern Mississippi 25-3.

The only new team in the poll is Texas Tech, which replaced Texas by beating the Longhorns 19-13. Texas was eighth last week.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-etc. basis:

1.	Southern Cal (20)	428
2.	Houston (10)	389
3.	UCLA (6)	368
4.	Purdue (9)	354
5.	Georgia (1)	293
6.	Notre Dame	165
7.	Nebraska	141
8.	Colorado	114
9.	Alabama	73
10.	Texas Tech	47

Negroes Boycott Olympic Games?

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — There is a chance U.S. Negro athletes will decide to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games, Negro track star Tommie Smith said Monday.

Smith, a sprinter who owns or shares nine world records, said whether Negro athletes decide to sit out the games probably will be influenced "by the events which occur in our society.... from now until the games."

He said that "if such a boycott is deemed appropriate, then I believe most of the black athletes will act in unison.

"I have not made any precise open appeals to black athletes to boycott the games. I, as an individual, cannot tell another black competitor that it is his duty to forget a goal he has sought for himself," he said.

LADY GOLFERS TEE OFF TODAY

The annual Ladies Golf tournament began at Snyder Country Club this morning with contestants teeing off at 9 o'clock.

Club pro Charlie Bruce said play would consist of 18 holes of medal play today and tomorrow for a 36-hole total.

Entry fee was $3, and flight assignments were made on the basis of handicaps.

First round results will be listed tomorrow, and tourney winners will be announced following Wednesday's round.

Many Called, Few Chosen

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Minnesota Twins' coach Billy Martin confirmed Monday tht he had heard Kansas City owner Charles O. Finley might be interested in Martin as manager of the Athletics, but said he has had no contact with Finley.

Martin acknowledged that Finley had talked to former Twins' Manager Sam Mele about the Kansas City managerial post, and that Mele had recommended Martin for the job.

However, Martin said Monday night that's where the matter stands.

"I have said," Martin elaborated, "that I would like to manage someday, if the right opportunity came along. But I'm not out soliciting a manager's job.

"Many people thought I was disappointed when Cal Ermer became the Twins' manager this season. Nothing could be farther from the truth. I am happy as a coach for the Twins, and I want my job as long as they want me.

"But I think anyone would like to have his own club, and someday the right opportunity may come along for me. I know it would have to be a good offer."

Minnesota President Calvin Griffith said Monday that he assumed Martin, Jim Lemon and Early Wynn would return as Twins' coach in 1968.

SCHOOLBOY GRID RATINGS

Ennis Replaces Dumas As No. 1

DALLAS (AP) — Only two newcomers were noted in the Dallas News Texas schoolboy football rankings this week as all top-rated teams except Dumas of Class AAA either held their places or advanced.

Grand Prairie edged Mesquite 19-17 to gain the 10th spot in Class AAAA, where Carrollton Turner dropped out on the heels of a 13-13 tie with Dallas Hillcrest.

Abilene Cooper was idle but easily held onto No. 1, Port Arthur stayed No. 2 and Brazosport No. 3, while Dallas Bryan Adams advanced from sixth to fourth.

Dumas was whipped 33-14 by Amarillo of Class AAAA and that tumbled the Demons from second down to 10th in Class AAA. Ennis stayed at No. 1, Wichita Falls Hirschi replaced Dumas in No. 2 and Rockdale arose from fourth to third.

Class AA had few changes with Jacksboro, Daingerfield and Brady continuing as 1, 2, 3. Bishop went from No. 7 to No. 6 after smashing Rockport 48-6 but Plano fell from sixth to eighth although beating AAA Greenville 16-15.

Tidehaven was a new team in Class A, taking over 10th. James Bowie, which had been No. 6, fell out when crushed 53-0 by New Boston. Seagraves rolled on as No. 1, Spur remained No. 2 and Archer City No. 3.

The rankings:

Class AAAA—Abilene Cooper, Port Arthur, Brazosport, Dallas Bryam Adams, Odessa Permian and San Angelo (tied), Victoria and Longview (tied), Spring Woods, Grand Prairie.

Class AAA — Ennis, Wichita Falls Hirschi, Rockdale, Lake Highlands, Nacogdoches, McKinney, Brownwood, Odessa Ector, Carthage, Dumas.

Class AA—Jacksboro, Daingerfield, Brady, Bastrop, Mineola, Bishop, Phillips, Plano, Decatur, Denver City.

Class A—Seagraves, Spur, Archer City, George West, Clifton, Santa Anna, Keller, Three Rivers, Troup, Tidehaven.

Dark Seeks Mound Power

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alvin Dark has indicated that one of the first tasks to receive his attention as manager of the Cleveland Indians will be strengthening the bullpen.

Dark said Monday after he had signed a two-year contract as the Indians' manager succeeding Joe Adcock, that the biggest change he has seen in baseball is the importance of the bullpen.

He cited relief pitcher Stu Miller as the man who won the National League pennant for the San Francisco Giants in 1962 when Dark was their manager.

"All of your pennant winners have a stopper," Dark continued. "In 1962 we had Miller and last year the Dodgers had (Phil) Regan.

The bullpen has been one of the Indians' weaker points for a

Big Wrestling Card Set Tonight

An attractive program is in prospect tonight as the Scurry County Coliseum inaugurates its first event with a wrestling card.

The grand opener pits Thunderbolt Patterson, a giant Negro grappler with an unorthodox style, against Dory Funk Jr., who hopes to use Patterson as a springboard to a world's championship match.

The Patterson - Funk match will be the first feature of a double main event. The other headliner pits the Masked Medic against Jose Lothario. The Medic has never been unmasked in 10 years of wrestling, and he is the master of the deadly sleeper hold. Jose is one of the greatest Mexican stars ever to come from south of the border.

A special event will match two girl wrestlers, Evelyn Stevens, the Texas Ladies Champion, and Jean Antone. Both are noted for their speed and aggressiveness.

The Lawman, a 6-5 245-pound grappler, tangles with Tiger Joe Blance in the curtain raiser at 8:15 p.m.

A sell-out crowd is expected to be on hand for the first event to be held in the new Coliseum. Tickets cost $1.50 for ringside seats, $1.25 for general admission, and $1 for children under 12 years of age.

WE CAN TAKE ACTION

Firm Conviction

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Snyder Daily News is sponsoring a Dale Carnegie course as a means of training and developing community and area leaders. This article is one in a series written by Warren Quinlan, director of the Dale Carnegie Training Program in West Texas.)

By WARREN QUINLAN

Less than a centruy ago, an individual's judgment was vital to his self-preservation. Self-reliance and self-sufficiency were vital necessities for survival.

Most of the services and luxuries taken for granted today—supermarkets, fire and police protection, and even medicines — were non - existent. The strength of one's conviction often was the difference between living and dying. Rubber stamp personalities had no place in the pioneer spirit.

Fear is nature's way of telling us to get busy. If you had met Helen a few years back, at the time her husband died and she was left with two small children and no concrete means of support, you would have sympathized with her misfortune. Everyone felt sorry for Helen except Helen. She had a reserve of courage, and life had given her a test.

Her opportunity appeared when she became aware of an acute need in the county government of her community. Even though she had no political experience, she was convinced she could apply her natural abilities in administration and accounting. One evening she sat alone and took an inventory of her assets and liabilties, and the price she would have to pay to achieve her goal.

To qualify herself, Helen returned to school and in a period of two years completed six related courses. Between classes, she studied the duties and complexities of the public office she sought. She talked with persons in the community, seeking their opinions. In spite of well-meaning friends who attempted to discourage her from campaigning for this office, she forcefully pursued her objective. Three months before the election, Helen filed her candidacy and the odds were 100 to one the incumbent would be reelected by a four or five to one majority. Everyone thought Helen had drilled a dry hole, except Helen.

When a woman wears a dinner dress, she doesn't always eat. When she wears a riding dress she doesn't always ride, and when she wears her political dress LOOK OUT . . . she's ready for action. She talked with conviction because she was convinced.

When she discussed the inefficiencies of the incumbent administration, she reinforced her thinking with a plan which would eliminate the problems. The leaders in the community listened to Helen and evaluated her plan. Friends may not give you pull, but they can give you a push. And Helen was pushed. She unleashed her convictions at every opportunity. Her opponent never recovered from the "mental hurricane" of Helen's conviction and preparation.

Helen didnt lose by a four to one margin. Her margin of victory was 1,550 votes. She listened to other viewpoints but she "acted on her own."

She didn't conform to the refuge of fear. She made lemonade from a bitter lemon, and became a community leader, by acting on her convictions.

We should take an inventory of our convictions — in church, office, home throughout the city — by taking action and allowing ourselves to be trained by harnessing our convictions with forward thinking.

Racing experts agree that Buckpasser's greatest race came in the 1966 Flamingo. He beat Abe's Hope after being seemingly beaten a few yards from the finish line.

SORT CLOTHING — Church women of Scurry County are busy sorting clothing for shipment to flood victims in South Texas. The basement of the First Baptist Church is a beehive of activity as the volunteer workers rush to prepare articles for shipment by Wednesday.

Supplies Gathered For Flood Victims

Churches of Scurry County are cooperating in a project to provide clothing, furniture and food to flood victims in South Texas.

Headquarters for the aid project is the basement of the First Baptist Church where articles are being prepared for shipment to McAllen.

Dr. A. B. Lightfoot, pastor of the church, said that flood victims especially need furniture, bedding, and pots and pans. Clothing and money also can be used, he added.

Anyone having articles to contribute may take them to the Baptist Church. Fluvanna Baptist Church is donating the use of a truck to carry the items to South Texas. The vehicle is scheduled to leave Snyder sometime Wednesday.

Swirling floodwaters in the wake of Hurricane Beulah left thousands homeless in South Texas. The response to the call for help has been tremendous, according to church officials, who said similar projects are underway across the state. Red Cross and Salvation Army units are directing relief operations in the disaster areas.

Center Dedicated

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — The $1.3-million Rabb Graduate Center at Brandeis University has been dedicated.

Short Course In Welding Set Here

An oxy - acetylene welding short course for adult farmers will be held Oct. 9-12 under the sponsorship of the Snyder High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to Bill Hood, superintendent, and Billy Bob McMullan, teacher of vocational agriculture.

Charles H. Yeates, welding specialist with the Vocational Argiculture Division the Texas Education Agency and the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A&M College, will be the instructor for the course. He is headquartered at Texas A&M College.

Yeates holds a BS degree from Texas A&M College in Agricultural Education. Yeates taught vocational agriculture and farm shop for a period of 15 years. He also taught automobile mechanics, electricity, electrical and acetylene welding and woodworking in the Jasper County vocational school. He has had two years experience as a draftsman, and two years experience as a welder.

"Many oxy-acetylene welding short courses in various parts of the state have been taught by Yeates and all have met with outstanding success," according to Hulan Harris, area supervisor of vocational agriculture, Big Spring. Arrangements for the adult education shortcourse in welding and in other fields are made through Harris' office.

CHARLES H. YEATES

The short course at Snyder is scheduled to begin Oct. 9 at 7 p.m. in the vocational agriculture building.

During the dates the short course is in progress, Yeates will be available to assist farmers with individual problems and to provide on-the-farm instruction, according to McMullan.

Farmers interested in attending the short course should write or call the superintendent of schools, Bill Hood, or McMullan. An entry fee of $10 will be charged. Oxy-acetylene welding short course certificates are to be presented to each enrollee who attends all the training sessions.

Yeates stated that the short course will be adjusted to wishes and interests of farmers enrolled but that he expects to cover such subjects as safety in oxy-acetylene welding, factors controlled by the operator in oxy-acetylene welding, choosing adjusting torch flames, types of welding rods, preparation of joints, distortion, cutting and hardsurfacing.

Smoking Now 'Out'

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Donald T. Frederickson, head of the city Health Department's program to curb smoking, said hero figures shown smoking should not be allowed on children's television and radio programs. He said in a recent radio interview that the change in habits of heroes is needed to make smoking "no longer the 'in' thing to do, but the 'out' thing to do."

POLICIES, PERSONNEL SHIFT

NASA Changes Spotlighted

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Last week Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., the No. 2 man in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the possibility of landing U.S. astronauts on the moon in this decade is decreasing rapidly.

On Monday, NASA announced that Seamans resigned as deputy administrator effective Jan. 1.

The reason given was "personal reasons," the same that has been put forth many times for personnel shifts that have occurred since the Apollo 1 fire killed three astronauts last January.

In some cases, a man has been replaced because NASA or the contractor employing him felt the job could be done better by someone else. In other cases, the men felt it was time to get out of the Apollo program. One or more of these reasons were cited:

1. The program is lagging far behind schedule, leaving, as Seamans noted, only a slim chance to reach the moon by the 1969 goal.

2. Pressure has been heavy on NASA and contractor officials because of the fire.

3. Congress cut heavily into the NASA budget request for this fiscal year, forcing cancellation of some programs and jeopardizing others. As a result wholesale layoffs are occurring in the aerospace industry.

Insiders say Seamans probably resigned for a combination of these three reasons.

He has a reputation as a capable official since joining NASA in 1960, leaving a post as chief engineer of the RCA missile and electronics and control division. He has been deputy administrator for nearly two years.

Seamans has fought hard beside Administrator James E. Webb to build a sound base for exploring space beyond the Apollo moon landing. Now, because of the Apollo fire and the deep budget paring, many of their dreams have been dashed or delayed.

Since the fire, NASA has made numerous high level personnel changes at its centers in Huntsville, Ala., Houston, Tex. and at Cape Kennedy. The agency has been criticized by some congressmen for not making any shifts in top personnel at Washington headquarters. Some suggested that Webb should resign.

North American Rockwell Corp., prime contractor for the Apollo spacecraft, has completely overhauled the management of its space division, including two key changes last week. A board of review that probed the fire criticized NASA and North American, for poor management, negligence and sloppy work on the capsule in which the astronauts died.

NASA and North American initiated a $75 million effort to improve the spacecraft. The first craft slated to be manned was to have been delivered to Cape Kennedy next February.

Last week NASA said it was discussing with the company a revision of the delivery date, possibly until May. With a minimum four-month checkout at the cape, that would put the launching date off until at least next September. That's 19 months after the first manned Apollo was to have flown.

But even without the fire, Apollo would be in trouble, especially in two areas: development of the massive Saturn 5 rocket that is to be the moon booster and of the lunar module that two astronauts are to ride to the surface of the moon.

The first Saturn 5, a 363-foot-tall monster, sits on its launch pad here, scheduled for an Oct. 24 or later blastoff that could determine how much work is required to make it ready for a lunar trip. NASA is going all-out on the maiden flight, firing all three stages—two of them previously untried—to hoist an unmanned Apollo ship 10,000 miles into space and then driving it back into the atmosphere at lunar return speed.

Administrator Webb said that going to this all-up concept reduces the chance of success on any single launch but improves the chances in the over-all string because the whole team and the whole system are tested on each flight.

This maiden launching is nearly a year behind schedule.

The lunar module has serious problems, mainly with leaks in its engine sections. Originally scheduled for a first launching into earth orbit last May, it now is set for a January liftoff aboard a Saturn 1 rocket.

Delay after delay have left an uneasy feeling among space workers at Cape Kennedy and elsewhere. Many are relatively idle. Thus, some seek employment in other industries such as aircraft.

Also unsettling is the budget cut—more than half a billion dollars out of NASA's request for $5.1 billion.

Webb said recently that 20,000 firms that work for the space agency are laying off 4,000 employes a month, primarily because of the fund cutback. He said 100,000 persons of a one-time peak of 400,000 already have been laid off, with the possibility this figure might reach 200,000.

NASA itself, which has about 30,000 employes, has not been seriously affected yet. But the agency is tightening its belt, and personnel reduction is expected at all centers.

Most seriously affected by the budget cuts were plans to send unmanned probes to land on Mars in Project Voyager and the Apollo applications program.

Dead Girl's Diary Records Long Struggle To Survive

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl's diary despairingly foretold the fatal end to an incredible two-month struggle to survive a plane crash on a snow-shrouded California mountain last March 11.

The diary was found with the bones of Carla Corbus and her mother, Mrs. Phyllis Oien, near the recked plane Sunday by a deer hunter.

Still missing is Alvin F. Oien, a Portland, Ore., hotel owner and Carla's stepfather. The diary reported that he started walking out from the stormy mountain five days after the crash to seek help.

On the 50th day after the crash, April 30, Carla expressed the bite of despair with this note:

"I hope you are happy, search and rescue. You haven't found us yet."

She wrote that the day was her 16th birthday.

The diary's last entry, dated May 4, after entrapment for 55 days 6,000 feet up on a craggy mountain side, told the ordeal of melting snow: "Today is a bright and drippy, drippy day. We are completely soaked."

There was nothing more to tell or how much longer Carla and her mother survived after the 55th day.

A search team combed the area for the remains of Oien as his eldest son, Alvin Jr, 32, criticized Civil Air Patrol search procedures.

"If the Civil Air Patrol were organized properly, they would have been found," said Oien, who had spent 107 days searching for the plane.

CAP officers were not immediately available for comment.

The three were flying from Portland to San Francisco to visit Alvin Jr., a DC8 copilot for Delta Airlines.

There was no indication what caused the crash of the single-engine craft at the 6,000 foot level on storm-covered Bully Choop Mountain in the Trinity Range 25 miles west of Redding and 200 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Both the mother and daughter made entries on the margin of an airman's Guide booklet. The woman wrote in script and the girl printed.

The first entry said, "Plane on left side in snowbank. Fuselage broken. Door ajar. Windows on right side broke as well as windshield."

An undated note listed the following injuries:

"Al, cut on chin. Three cuts on forehead. Right arm broke, pain with vertebrae. Crushed ribs on right side."

"Phyllis delirious for one day. Broken left arm. Sore right hand, bruised left leg, cut and broken left ankle. Both feet frosted the first night. Nose bruised.

"Carla, hurt back, left kidney. Sore right ankle and cut on left knee."
