Danger Of Blast Fading At Plant

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A Nuclear Regulatory Commission official said today a dangerous gas bubble inside the disabled Three Mile Island nuclear reactor "is showing dramatic decreases in size." He also said the fuel temperature was dropping and releases of radiation were being confined.

"I think it's safer than yesterday," said Harold Denton, chief of operations for the NRC.

As area residents jammed local banks to withdraw money in the event of an evacuation, Denton briefed reporters on the bubble shrinkage and temperature decline, saying there is still some risk, but adding he did not believe evacuation was "warranted."

"I didn't expect such a rapid change, that's the reason I want to take a close look at it," he said of declining bubble measurements.

If the bubble were entirely removed, he said, "there is no major hydraulic obstacle to a shutdown." However, he added that he did not want to say the bubble was entirely gone at this point.

The dangerous bubble, made up of hydrogen and oxygen from chemical decomposition within the reactor core, was being "bled" by letting the gas dissolve in the constantly circulating cooling water and then allowing it to escape from the water outside the reactor. Denton said engineers would continue to follow this technique.

His report confirmed a report by an official of Metropolitan Edison, which runs the facility, that the danger of an explosion caused by the bubble had been substantially reduced over the past 24 hours.

Denton also said radioactive releases from the plant have been confined, based on monitoring in 37 locations in the area. It was not immediately clear if that meant no radioactivity was being released, as the company claimed.

Denton said the bubble had shrunk as low as 50 cubic feet from a high of 1,800, remarking, "I don't want to be stampeded into concluding that the bubble is actually this small ... (but) I think it's certainly reason for optimism."

He also said that the temperature inside the nuclear fuel core had dropped, and that there were now just two fuel elements, out of 177, with temperatures of more than 400 degrees. The risk of an explosion begins if the zirconium rods reach 1,500 degrees, when they react with the water.

Denton also revealed that the NRC has ordered that operators at seven similarly designed nuclear power plants inform federal officials within 10 days on what steps are being taken to avoid a crisis like that at Three Mile Island.

Before Denton's briefing, spokesman George Troffer of Metropolitan Edison told The Associated Press that as of 4 a.m., the bubble was measured at 210 cubic feet. He said that at 6 a.m. it was down to 190 cubic feet and at 9:45 a.m. it was 47 cubic feet. At one point Troffer told The AP the bubble was "gone," but he later acknowledged it still existed.

The average bubble size recently had been about 600 cubic feet, but it had gone as high as 1,800 cubic feet.

"There are no problems left. We're not emitting any radioactive gases," Troffer said.

Troffer issued his statement even though on Sunday, John Harrington, another utility spokesman, said the company was told by the White House "that all releases would be given out by the NRC."

Meanwhile, officials firmed up contingency plans for a precautionary evacuation of about a million residents.

Schools remained closed and the governor extended his advisory that pre-school

At Least 34 Killed In Series Of Fires

By The Associated Press

At least 34 people, most of them elderly, died in fires that raged through boarding homes in Missouri and Pennsylvania.

In Ohio, a fire apparently started by a prisoner forced the evacuation of most workers from the Dayton Safety Building today and sent at least 41 persons to the hospital.

Officials say 25 were killed today when fire destroyed Straughan's Wayside Inn in the southeastern Missouri town of Farmington. Farmington Fire Chief Bob Oder said 13 bodies were taken from the burned building and another 12 were inside.

Bodies were found in the hallways and at the doors of the home. Officials said many were trapped when the roof collapsed.

"It's a total loss," a firefighter said of the home.

Oder said 37 patients and one attendant were in the red granite, single-story building when the fire broke out at 5 a.m. in the kitchen area.

Spokesmen for local hospitals said at least five persons — including one fireman — were admitted for treatment. The extent of their injuries was not known immediately.

Firefighters from six companies brought the fire under control after two hours.

In Connellsville, Pa., a three-story frame house burst into flames Sunday and nine of 12 residents were killed. Two others were seriously injured.

Officials said all the dead were elderly except for a 30-year-old male resident, James McCormick.

Assistant Fire Chief Leland Williams said the fire started in the basement, where five persons were killed as they slept. The flames spread quickly, he said, and blocked the two basement exits — a door to the outside and a staircase to the first floor.

Four other residents, pronounced dead at Connellsville State Hospital, were found on the first and second floors, firefighters said.

"The fire started by the one door and moved across the ceiling to the stairway," said Williams. "They really didn't have a chance to get out."

Debt Limit May Force Default

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States could be unable to pay its bills after tonight — including some $8 billion for Social Security checks already in the mail — unless the House votes to raise the nation's debt limit, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said today.

In a letter to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Blumenthal warned that unless a pending debt-limit bill "is passed by the House and signed into law by the president today, the United States of America could default tonight."

Default, the Treasury secretary said, would mean:

— "Approximately $8 billion of Social Security wire transfers and checks, already mailed, will not be honored."

— Some $3.3 billion in Treasury bills maturing Tuesday "will not be paid when due."

— Other checks presented for payment starting Tuesday "will not be paid." These, he said, include civil service and railroad retirement benefits and veterans' benefits.

O'Neill told reporters that "it's a real serious crisis. Lord only knows what would happen" if the legislation were not passed.

The Democratic leader blamed Republicans who want to balance the federal budget for holding up House action "purely for political reasons."

"The United States has not defaulted on any of its debt obligations since the founding of the republic," Blumenthal said in the letter.

He continued: "The full consequences of a default by the United States are impossible to predict and awesome to anticipate. Denigration of the full faith and credit of the United States would have incalculable effects on the domestic money markets and on the value of the dollar in exchange markets."

The debt limit measure has been held up by disagreement over a proposed amendment to require a balanced federal budget.

A vote on the bill — this year's first major battle over deficit spending — was expected today when Republicans try to bring up a stringent balanced budget amendment.

The old debt limit of $798 billion expired Saturday, throwing the government into a fiscal crisis and raising the possibility that there might not be enough money to cover Social Security checks scheduled for delivery Tuesday to 35 million Americans.

Treasury Department sources, who asked to remain anonymous, raised the possibility of the government being able to pay its most pressing bills by shifting available funds from accounts where they were not urgently needed to those where the need was greater.

Democratic leaders were counting on the prospect of the government not being able to pay its bills to help pressure Republicans into passing the bill without the amendment.

The Democrats argue that adding the Republican amendment would further delay enactment of the bill and force the government to begin defaulting on its financial obligations as early as Tuesday.

The Republican-backed amendment would require three-fifths majorities in both houses of Congress to raise the debt limit to pay for unbalanced federal budgets starting with fiscal 1981, the budget year beginning Oct. 1, 1980.

New Report Hinted In Fire Deaths

Reports surfaced here today that the air tanks worn by three Lubbock firemen who died fighting a fire March 25 did not contain carbon monoxide, but city and fire department officials refused to comment.

City Information Officer Vaughn Hendrie, acting as spokesman for the fire department, announced Wednesday that Larry Tucker, Kenneth Haggard and Eddie Swafford possibly died from beathing the poisonous gas from their air tanks.

He said then that reports from a Dallas firm testing the dead men's safety equipment indicated that carbon monoxide somehow had gotten into the tanks. The finding contradicted reports from Micro-Environmental Laboratories, Inc. in Lubbock, which stated the tanks did not contain the gas.

Hendrie would not say today whether the department had received new findings which showed no carbon monoxide in the air bottles.

Hendrie, however, would not deny such reports, adding, "I'm not confirming it either."

Deputy fire chiefs Wayne Mahaffey and Horace Anglin, when asked about new findings, also refused to comment on whether the department has now learned carbon monoxide was not in the three tanks.

Picket Lines Up In Area

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Stalled negotiations in contract talks with two different labor organizations resulted in strikes Sunday and this morning against about 15 area contracting firms and four motor freight trucking lines.

Contracts expired Saturday between the Teamsters Union and the trucking industry and between Local 1253 of the Laborers International Union of North America and area contractors.

H.R. Bundock, spokesman for the affected contractors, said this morning that the disagreement between "contractors and common labor" had, as of this morning, affected about $15.3 million in construction work in the area and that about 320 workers were on strike.

He said that 12-15 construction jobs were being picketed this morning.

He also said that "we had been told that there would be support from other locals from over the state, but that's not confirmed."

Included in what union sources said were 75 companies being struck by the Teamsters are four city freight lines — T.I.M.E.-DC, Inc., ICX Express, Inc., Yellow Freight System, Inc., and Santa Fe Trail Transportation Company.

Hugh Shurtleff, president of T.I.M.E.-DC, said that all major truck companies throughout the country except for small local operations are shut down. He said that on Sunday the trucking industry closed down "as a defensive means."

Both the freight terminal and the general offices of T.I.M.E.-DC, which employs about 150 persons in Lubbock, have been struck and are essentially closed, according to Shurtleff.

Bob Hutchins, terminal manager of Santa Fe Trail, said that the company is "pretty much shut down." He said that if the Teamsters "hadn't struck, there might have been a lockout."

The trucking industry declared a nationwide lockout Sunday against about 300,000 Teamsters following strikes that resulted from contract disagreements.

Jack Roland, branch manager for Yellow Freight here, said that the company is conducting a minimum amount of business. He said that only management and office personnel are currently working.

The officials from Yellow Freight and Santa Fe Trail both said that strikers have been picketing since early Sunday morning at those two facilities. They said that all of their drivers are union members and all are observing the strike.

Hutchins said the company is not now considering bringing in independent drivers.

According to Hutchins, Santa Fe Trail may close its doors later today.

Roland said that all negotiations between Teamsters and the trucking industry will be on the national level.

Spokesmen for the parties involved in the local dispute between laborers and contractors disagree on the source of conflict in the contract talks.

According to Abel Gonzalez, international representative for Laborers International, the laborers want to retain the agreements of the contract that just ex-

Companies Lock Out Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unionized trucking firms began complying today with an industry-ordered nationwide lockout of 300,000 truckers after the Teamsters union launched a limited strike in a contract dispute snagged on President Carter's inflation guidelines.

The shutdown is expected to affect a major portion of the nation's over-the-road freight business.

Although estimates of the impact on the economy vary substantially, industry executives have predicted that product shortages and manufacturing plant shutdowns would begin within a week and that a "serious economic crisis" could develop within two weeks.

Many trucking firms, anticipating a strike, made early shipments of orders before the Teamsters ordered a walkout at midnight Saturday.

Initial indications from the federal government were that serious economic disruptions would not develop for a few days.

Trucking Management Inc., the bargaining arm for more than 500 major trucking firms, ordered the shutdown Sunday, just hours after union pickets went up at selected trucking companies. In a lockout, employers refuse to allow their employees to work.

TMI spokesman Norman Walker said reports today from the field indicated that most, if not all, of the group's member firms were complying with the shutdown call. He said TMI members repre-

Conflicting Reports Forces Silencing Of Operators

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — In an effort to head off a credibility crisis caused by the persistent flurry of conflicting reports, the Carter administration has gagged the operators of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

Paul Critchlow, press secretary for Gov. Dick Thornburgh, said late Sunday that his boss had expressed concern to senior White House officials "from day one" about "the waves of conflicting stories affecting the public mood."

Less than 24 hours earlier, Critchlow had declared: "The company statements are out," referring to the power plant operator, Metropolitan Edison Co.

Key officials of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission were reluctant to discuss the new setup, but John Harrington, a Met Ed spokesman, insisted that the orders had come direct from the White House, on White House stationary.

According to Harrington, Met Ed was instructed "that all releases would be given out by the NRC."

One Met Ed public affairs official, who insisted that his name not be used, said he was so angry at "the violation of First Amendment rights" that he was considering filing a lawsuit.

"I don't think they have a right to tell us to keep quiet. But this is an emergency — so maybe they can tell us to shut up," he added.

Painfully aware of how the verbal confusion has eroded public confidence, President Carter himself took note of the new ground rules during a visit here Sunday, proclaiming: "I will be personally responsible for thoroughly informing the American public about this particular incident and the status of nuclear safety in the future."

The difficulties began in the first hours following the accident. Thornburgh didn't learn of last Wednesday's 3:53 a.m. incident for four hours.

At 2 p.m., Lt. Gov. William Scranton III told reporters: "The situation is more complex than the company first led us to believe. Metropolitan Edison has given you and us conflicting information."

By that time, according to NRC operations chief Harold Denton — who also is Carter's personal representative on the scene — the communications gap was already a major issue.

"I guess the problem really started (Wednesday) when they held a news conference in the morning and I held one in the afternoon, the focus of which turned to how different the two statements were," Denton said in an interview Sunday.

Asked to comment on the gag order, Denton didn't confirm or deny its existence. "There have been discussions back and forth. I don't know that they've been ordered. Let's just say that they've demurred to us."

As part of the stepped-up effort for better communications, the NRC public affairs staff spent much of Sunday setting up an official press center at Middletown Borough Hall, about three miles from the plant site.

Met Ed officials said they would hold no more news conferences. There was even a half-hearted attempt at claiming the new procedures were Met Ed's idea.

For five days, Met Ed information had consistently been more optimistic than NRC's. On several occasions, it turned out to be dead wrong.

In those first days, most of the soon-to-be controversial remarks came from Jack Herbein, a company vice president. "We're very disturbed about the company statements. The White House has confronted Herbein," Critchlow said on Sunday. "The company statements are out."

Thornburgh was visibly relieved, saying "We can now look to one source for the basis of our information ... a trustworthy source."

FBI Checks Sabotage Rumors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says it has been unable to confirm any rumors of attempted or threatened sabotage against the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania.

Otis Cox, an FBI duty officer, said Sunday that the agency's Philadelphia office has been looking into "around a half dozen rumors" concerning threatened or attempted action against the plant.

"We have no active investigation of any violation," he said. "All the rumors have been checked out and so far there is nothing positive."

The rumors originated with calls from private citizens to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Cox said. The NRC turned over the names of the callers to the FBI for questioning.

The NRC said in a statement Sunday that its representatives at the plant "were informed at 10:45 p.m. on March 31 that there would be an attempt to sabotage the facility during the night."

The NRC said the FBI and Pennsylvania State Police were informed of the incident.

Control Area Remains Cool, Calm

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — If a nuclear reactor is the heart of a power plant, its control room is the brain.

President Carter, wearing yellow booties and accompanied by his wife, journeyed into the brain of Three Mile Island's disabled number 2 reactor on Sunday. There were no outward signs of crisis despite the nuclear accident that threatened to force mass evacuation.

The control room, the size of an indoor tennis court, is about 100 feet from the reactor. To reach it, Carter and his aides climbed three flights of steel stairs inside the cement block-house known as the control room tower.

All visitors, Carter included, wore yellow plastic booties against possibly radioactive dust on the floor. They also wore radiation dosage meters to measure their exposure.

But in the control room, according to Ronald Williams of Metropolitan Edison Co., the radiation level was "almost zero" on Sunday afternoon.

The thought of a nuclear power plant control room in the midst of a nuclear accident conjures up images of blinking lights; intense, hurried conferences, and jangling telephones.

That was not the scene confronting Carter, whose Navy training included nuclear engineering studies, and a group of officials and reporters.

There were dozens of lights — none blinking — on a 50-foot semi-circular control panel. But the atmosphere appeared calm. The president was briefed by James Floyd, superintendent of the reactor operations, who was dressed in shirtsleeves. Other officials kept watch over dials and lights on the panel.

One telephone was off the hook, and a hand-lettered sign explained why: "NRC Line Leave Open."

It was a hot-line to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Another hand-lettered sign on a door leading into the control room gave evidence that all was not ship-shape. It said: "Please do not put wedge in door. The door is coming apart on bottom."

According to Robert Arnold, vice president of General Public Utilities, the firm that runs the plant for Metropolitan Edison and several other utilities, the control panel examined by Carter gave information about water storage tanks and the indicator for the emergency core cooling system. These are vital elements in keeping the reactor under control.

Someone working at Three Mile Island evidently has a proper sense of the absurd.

Deaths By Tornado Decline In 1978

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer people died in tornadoes last year than normally do, although more twisters struck the United States than usual, the government says.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Sunday that 788 tornadoes hit the country in 1978, an increase over the 28-year average of 667 per year. The storms claimed 62 lives, a sharp drop from the average annual death rate of 111. The agency issued the report as the tornado season in the United States approaches.

Nuclear Bubble Presents Numerous Problems

HARRISBURG, Pa.. (AP) — Emergency safety procedures for the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant fill three 2-inch thick yellow loose leaf binders.

One would search those pages in vain for what to do when a bubble becomes trapped inside the reactor roof.

"It is not a standard assumption ... We've not rigorously analyzed the situation previously," Harold Denton, the head of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's reactor operations chief, told reporters.

The unanticipated and potentially dangerous bubble sent engineers and physicists scurrying to the computer to recalculate how to shrink it.

One problem was that all measurements of the bubble were indirect: the bubble was hidden inside the 56-foot high pressure cylinder that encloses the reactor and its cooling fluid, and could not be measured directly.

On Sunday, Denton and plant officials said the bubble was being gradually reduced in size as dissolved gases from the bubble were coaxed from the reactor's cooling water in another part of the coolant system.

Nevertheless, the bubble posed the following dangers:

—Its hydrogen gas was being gradually enriched with oxygen from chemical decomposition inside the core. Officials worried that if the mixture got too oxygen-rich, an explosion could occur.

—Its size was being held relatively steady by the relatively constant temperature and pressure inside the reactor vessel. If the pressure dropped, the bubble might expand downward and expose the nuclear fuel, causing a danger of overheating.

—Some of the more radical plans for removing the bubble posed dangers of their own. For example, one plan to blow the bubble out with a burst of coolant entailed the risk of the bubble entering the coolant pumps and freezing a pump.

—Venting the bubble to the air outside the reactor vessel but inside the thick-walled containment building would raise the concentration of hydrogen in the building. Officials worried that this mixture, which already had plenty of oxygen, might be explosive if it became too hydrogen-rich.

In the worst possible case, an explosion in the reactor vessel might precipitate a core melt-down, the hypothetical super-disaster in which radioactivity spreads to a wide area. But officials said this was unlikely.

In another hypothetical scenario, an explosion in the reactor vessel could blow its top off. Denton said this probably would not burst the containment building, but it could severly complicate the problem of cleaning up the radioactivity inside.

In still another scenario, a hydrogen explosion in the reactor building could burst its walls, releasing radioactivity directly to the air.

However, instruments monitored by Metropolitan Edison Co., operator of the plant, have shown that the four-foot thick concrete walls of the reactor building withstood one such hydrogen explosion already. This earlier explosion occurred some 10 hours after the Wednesday morning accident, and apparently did little damage.

Catholic High School Teachers Negotiate

CLEVELAND (AP) — Representatives of Roman Catholic high school teachers, authorized by the educators to call a strike, say they will seek further negotiations with the Cleveland Catholic Diocese over a teacher salary increase.

The 235 members of the Cleveland High School and Academy Lay Teachers Association in four northeast Ohio counties voted overwhelmingly Sunday to reject the diocese's latest salary offer. A union spokesman said if there was not progress at the bargaining table, a strike would probably be called within a week. The teachers want a $1,000 annual raise. The diocese says there are a total of 316 high school teachers in the four counties.

Teller Rips Reactions To Accident

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — The physicist known as the "father of the H-bomb" has blasted the governor of Pennslyvania and newsmen for their reactions to the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

"Media coverage of the Harrisburg accident has been like someone getting up in a crowded theater, waving his arms, and crying out 'There is no fire ... yet,'" said Dr. Edward Teller.

The Stanford University physicist said Saturday that Pennslyvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh overreacted by encouraging an evacuation that could have resulted in panic and injured or killed more people than any radiation released from the plant.

Teller made his comments Saturday before the Environmental Task Force on Nuclear Energy Centers at the University of Texas Marine Science Lab here.

The "nuclear scare" created by opponents and those working under a "profit motive" has prevented many persons from taking advantage of X-ray technology and other similar medical treatments, said Teller.

Teller, credited in 1951 with breaking the bottleneck that inhibited development of the hydrogen bomb, insisted that the potential risks of pursuing nuclear power are worth the rewards in inexpensive energy.

"There was no damage (at Harrisburg) except to the pocketbook," said Teller, who estimated the cost at $100 million. And he said those living near the plant are not in danger.

"It is clear that the emergency systems worked and prevented a major emergency," said Teller.

The Pennsylvania governor advised Friday that pre-school children and pregnant women within five miles of the plant be evacuated because of the new release of radioactivity.

But Teller said, "there is no possibility" of future outbreaks of cancers in the residents living near the site, because of the small amounts of radioactivity that could have escaped and then been "blown around by the wind."

Even after the "biggest" nuclear accident "yet," no human life was taken, said Teller.

"It is a remarkable testimony to the safety of reactors. Regulated big reactors have not harmed the life of health of any person in any way," said Teller. "There are rumors ... but not proof."

He said nuclear plants are safe, clean and the cheapest form of energy.

Teller said the nation has four nuclear power alternatives. It can continue in the same direction with independant companies designing solitary plants; develop nuclear parks where several reactors would be built to concentrate efforts and expertise; build reactors on floating barges or bury reactors 200 feet under the surface where he said they would be "fantastically safe."

Simulator Used To Aid Decision

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Technicians at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory are using a simulated nuclear reactor to help officials decide what to do about a gas bubble in the crippled reactor at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

The laboratory's equipment is similar in most respects to a pressurized water reactor, such as the one in Harrisburg, except it contains no nuclear fuel. Instead, it uses electrically heated rods to simulate a reactor's core of uranium-filled fuel rods.

There were concerns that the bubble of mostly hydrogen gas might become explosive if too much oxygen mixed in. There were also worries that the bubble might expand and expose the nuclear fuel, causing a danger of overheating and a possibly disastrous melt-down of the core.

GARCIA-MITCHELL 300
IF YOU CAN OWN ONE SPINNING REEL, THE 300 SHOULD BE IT!
The Mitchell 300 is the standard of excellence against which all others are measured. And with good reason. The 300 is the most solidly engineered reel made. Two spools—each with different line capacity—more than double its versatility. Smooth, "Constant-cycle" gear train, tungsten carbide guide, one-spot lubrication, corrosion-resistant finish, new Teflon drag and oilite bushings. It all adds up to make this the one reel every angler should have. Left-hand (301) model, too.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Too Big Around 'Waste'

A NATIONAL network of a dozen federal-state agencies known as regional development commissions currently stands as a monument to the hypocrisy of the self-proclaimed economizers in our state capitals.

Created by a pair of federal laws enacted in 1964, the commissions generally have failed in the ensuing 15 years to accomplish their stated mission: To foster economic development, with special emphasis on the creation of new jobs.

Instead, the commissions have become a haven for high-salaried patronage appointees who preside over programs crippled by political abuse, waste and inefficiency.

The commissions are funded jointly by the federal and state governments.

WASHINGTON'S SHARE to date totals about $4 billion, with approximately $3.5 billion of that amount going to the biggest and perhaps best-known of the agencies, the Appalachian Regional Commission.

That commission's dubious expenditures of public funds in the past include $1.2 million for a "Hall of Fame" for track and field stars in West Virginia and 42,000 tax dollars for expansion of a boat marina in New York.

The legislation authorizing the commissions expires in September, and President Carter was inclined initially, he said, to oppose any renewal of the agencies' mandate.

But the country's governors lobbied hard for White House support of the commissions and the Carter administration caved in. Carter relented and authorized creation of three new regional commissions.

But a While House memo that inadvertently became public included the President's handwritten personal opinion: "I consider the regional commissions to be a waste of time and money."

LIKE THE governors, however, critics say Carter has used the commissions as a patronage backwater for erstwhile campaign workers who now enjoy salaries of as much as $47,500 to $50,000 annually.

Furthermore, most of the commissions' expenditures are for inconclusive studies, consulting fees and administrative costs —but not for economic development.

The proposed federal budget for FY 1980 includes $358.6 million for the Appalachian Regional Commission and slightly more than $74 million for the other 11 agencies.

However, politicians at both the state and federal levels could demonstrate their newfound commitment to spending restraint by simply allowing the regional commissions to die peacefully this year.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

Aye For An Aye

AUSTIN—Texas legislators still have a couple of months of mop-up operations ahead of them but they've already disposed of this session's major legislation.

They have put behind them, for example, the issues of conjugal visits for prisoners, the size of beer bottles, legalizing bingo and renovation of the governor's mansion.

All that's left of any consequence are such matters as the state budget, tax relief, school financing and constitutional amendments.

Truth is, this 66th Texas State Legislature will not go down in history as one of landmark proportions, thus reflecting the public mood that we need a chance to catch our breath and hitch up our pants.

That's not to say its impact won't be subtly profound by the time it adjourns in late May. It's just that, except for a little personal feuding here and there, this Legislature has been rather humdrum.

GOV. BILL CLEMENTS, as the state's first Republican governor except during Civil War Reconstruction, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby are still circling in the manner of two boxers sizing one another up.

House Speaker Bill Clayton—who rounds out the Bill, Bill and Bill triumvirate in state government—is watching the two closely as he seeks his own opening for political advancement.

The Capitol Press Corps, after a decade of constant warfare with Govs. Preston Smith and Dolph Briscoe, so far has had excellent relations with the new governor.

Clements is "good copy." He is holding regular press conferences. He is blunt-spoken. He's always quotable.

Lobbyists, on the other hand, are smarting under Gov. Clements' latest rebuff. He doesn't have time to see all of them, he said in an appearance before them the other day, and therefore has decided he won't see any of them on an individual basis until after the Legislature adjourns.

CLEMENTS GENERALLY gets good marks for the quality of the staff he has assembled, my soundings during a two-day visit here showed.

On the other hand, smaller-than-expected revenues from the state sales tax during the first half of this fiscal year have cast doubt on the governor's call for a $1 billion cut in taxes.

Don Rives, Lt. Gov. Hobby's executive assistant, reminded me that sales tax collections grew by only 5.6 percent during that period, whereas a 13.7 percent increase had been expected.

"We're in a hell of a shape," Sen. Tom Creighton said at a Finance Committee meeting where Hobby warned that the Legislature may run out of money before it can finance the general appropriations bill and other spending proposals.

Comptroller Bob Bullock is reluctant to raise revenue projections, which he must certify before the Legislature can spend, in the face of warnings of a nationwide recession later this year.

Speculation is rife that the governor and legislative leaders will agree on a one-year budget plan. This would necessitate a special session next year to deal with the second-year of the biennium when the financial picture is a little clearer.

TWO ITEMS OF special interest to Lubbock have been approved in recent days.

The House agreed the state should pick up at least part of the cost of residency training programs in teaching hospitals. The Senate unanimously okayed converting Lubbock Municipal Court into a court of record.

If the House concurs, traffic ticket abuses here will be curbed, county courts-at-law will be unclogged and City ordinances will be more easily enforced.

Gov. Clements publicly questioned whether the state should pay up to $15,000 for each post-graduate physician taking residency in a teaching hospital, but supporters are confident he'll sign the bill if it passes the Senate.

THEY POINT OUT that objections to the state funding center around misguided arguments that Lubbock and other cities promised to provide teaching hospitals at no cost to the state if medical schools were built.

The fact is that the communities have provided the hospitals and still would be paying the hospital costs if the House-passed bill becomes law.

The state merely would be picking up the educational costs for training doctors, an obligation state taxpayers should have been shouldering all along.

Two Can Play The Name Game

WASHINGTON—Definition. Hegemony: leadership or predominant influence exercised by one state over others, as in a confederation.—American College Dictionary.

National Review has admitted it into its vast vocabulary. The Air Force Association, which publishes deep studies on air-weapons, calls it Russia's world policy.

At Harvard, Russian Research Center Director, Professor Richard Pipes, defines a "hegemon" in Soviet terms: "...one who enjoys a monopoly on violence within his imperial realm and who, therefore, without direct administration or occupying, has the authority to insist on his will being done on any issue of interest to him, and the capacity to apply coercion, if other means of persuasion should fail."

MANIFESTLY, THIS describes the USSR, but I wonder why two cannot play the same game. There would be marked differences between the American and the Russian ways.

Dictatorship based on domestic violence a la Russe, the U.S. will never have, unless the Underworld takes over, but an "authority to insist on our will" is within our capacity.

We had a life-and-death authority over Russia for some five years after 1945, the period of our atomic bomb monopoly.

It was then, as Churchill proposed, that we could have ordered Russia out of the eastern satellites, back into Russia proper, on pain of our doing to Red military headquarters in East Germany just what we had done to Hiroshima.

LATER, THE opportunity rested with President John Kennedy. In 1962, he did assert it to the point of forcing Russian weapons-carrier ships to do a 180 degree turn in mid-Atlantic and return to their ports.

Kennedy in that time was on his way to leading an American hegemony, first by the successful intimidation of Russia which he accomplished: next by asserting his country's will over NATO which was in no position to disregard White House orders.

Those years, 1945 and 1962, were long ago, and we let the opportunity for world supremacy pass us by. We know that Russia made use of the opportunity which we had declined.

Defense Sec. Harold Brown cogently observed that Russian agriculture, Russian technology, Russian government were no match for our own. The only sector in which Russia could compete with the U.S., said Brown, was in the military field.

So Russia concentrated there, outspending us by as much as 40 percent in the development of armed forces, and practicing hegemony by ordering Cuban troops to Africa, by arming weak Marxist regimes from the Persian Gulf, and as far away as Afghanistan, and quite recently moving Red Navy units to the coast of Vietnam.

Can't we play the same game? Carter, turned hegemon, could send idle European units against the Cubans. He could bring half the world to its knees with starvation if he made a weapon of our grain harvests.

He could call upon both Israel and Egypt for auxiliaries. The President could, by economic measures, make a huge satellite out of Red China. He could dip into Latin America for manpower. He could recruit many legions of tough fighters from the whites who are being driven from their lands in Rhodesia and South Africa.

He could send Moscow the message: "Hegemony, anybody?"

Sylvia Porter:

Shoppers Can Monitor Prices On Their Own

WITHIN THE next few weeks, a nationwide program to monitor prices across the country will be launched by labor and consumer groups—a so-called "price-watch" campaign voluntarily undertaken by you, the American public.

Memories of "WIN!"—the program for a vast voluntary effort by America's consumers to whip inflation before it took off on its most vicious spiral in 1974-75 by keeping tabs on prices and rewarding businesses that helped hold down prices with buying orders while punishing businesses which ignored the guidelines by shunning them.

"WIN" was a sound concept, for it recognized the enormous power you, the American consumer, wield in the marketplace.

But it was sabotaged almost from the day it was proposed in the fall of 1974 by the premature slogan "WIN" (Whip Inflation Now) with accompanying buttons and hoopla.

IT WAS then murdered by bitter infighting for power within the White House itself before the eyes of an unbelieving group of concerned citizens representing the broadest cross-section of the American public ever assembled. The new President, Gerald Ford, never really knew what hit him.

Now, many of the leaders who were part of that "WIN" committee are back in this "price-watch" campaign, being spearheaded by the AFL-CIO and another coalition of consumer, environmental, senior citizen, minority and other labor groups called COIN (Consumers Opposed to Inflation in the Necessities).

These organizations plan to send their members into local stores, gas stations, supermarkets, doctors' offices, etc., at least once a month to keep tabs on the prices of a selected group of foods and services.

THE PRICE-watchers probably will focus on the four basic necessities: food, energy, housing and health care. (Most city families spend nearly 70 percent of their incomes on these essentials, and prices in these areas have risen more rapidly than for non-essentials.)

The groups affiliated with COIN will funnel the information they gather to the Federal Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS), which administers the wage-price guidelines.

COWPS has been helping the price-watch organizers to devise standard forms and reporting procedures.

"THE PROGRAM will help us to keep track of rises in fees and prices and see if they are cost-justified," explained an economist with COWPS.

Labor and consumer organizations have rather contradictory reasons for launching so ambitious a price-watch drive. On the one hand, they want to help the administration enforce its voluntary guidelines.

But on the other, they believe their price-monitoring will prove the guidelines are unfair, unworkable and ineffective—and they contend that COWPS, with only 230 employes and feeble powers of persuasion, is helpless to curb inflation.

In fact, in a recent letter to AFL-CIO members asking for their support of the price-watch campaign, Leo Perlis, director of the union's department of community services (and an original member of the pre-doomed WIN committee), wrote:

"While employers believe it is their patriotic duty to enforce the government's wage guidelines, there is hardly anyone to enforce the government's price guidelines.

"So prices, rents and profits are going up while real income is coming down. And the Council on Wage and Price Stability is powerless to do much about it...But with a bit of organization, consumers can help themselves and, perhaps, the government's program."

UNION MEMBERS last participated in government efforts to watch price increases during President Nixon's program of mandatory controls, so they have experience in organizing such programs.

COIN spokesman, Roger Hickey, told my associate, Brooke Shearer, "The price-monitoring system will verify that the guidelines are not sufficient.

COIN also plans to sponsor a two-day national "teach-in" on inflation, designed to provoke national debate on economic policies. (About time!) It's tentatively set for Washington, D.C., June 21-22.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Progressive Case Is Regressive

WASHINGTON—Let me sort out, if I may, some of the issues that have become entangled in the matter of the Progressive magazine and its temporarily suppressed article on "How a Hydrogen Bomb Works."

The case provides a melancholy example of a thoroughly irresponsible press and a remarkably witless bureaucracy.

The case hit the front pages when the Justice Department, in a panicky misjudgment of cause and effect, rushed into a federal court in Milwaukee to obtain an injunction against the magazine.

The object was to prevent publication of an article worked up by freelance writer Howard Morland.

From what we know of the article, Morland had worked from unclassified material in the public domain, from his own research at atomic installations and from other sources.

IT IS NOT contended that he stole any government material.

For reasons that baffle understanding, the Progressive's own editors sought governmental review of the article in advance of publication.

The cynical thought cannot be dispelled that the editors hoped to provoke precisely the magnificent bonanza of publicity the Justice Department has now given them.

In any event, that is the only benefit to any party that can now be perceived.

Let us assume for the sake of discussion that Morland, by some stroke of intuition and deduction, had come up with designs and drawings that no other outsider had divined.

He had in fact figured out how an H-bomb is triggered.

He and his editors, by some bizarre process of rationalization, supposed that publication of these drawings, which would teach scientists in various nations how to manufacture atomic weapons, would promote their own pacifist desire to halt the proliferation of atomic weapons.

THIS IS a screwy line of reasoning, but we are asked to accept it.

Very well. So perceived, the editors' insistence on publishing the piece, over the violent objections of government scientists, has to be seen as a staggering exercise in irresponsibility.

We may all of us doubt gravely that a spy from, say, Israel or India or South Africa would have been much impressed by a freelance piece in the Progressive if the government had not gone to court.

But the editors' irresponsibility goes beyond the damage they might do to the national security.

They have performed an act of consummate disservice to their brothers of the press who are fighting a battle against prior restraint censorship.

BECAUSE OF this H-bomb affair, we may wind up with a Supreme Court decision that will place judges in our press rooms in new and disturbing ways.

As a matter of law, the key case is the Pentagon Papers case of 1971 (Times v. U.S., 403 U.S. 713). There the Court refused to prohibit the New York Times from publishing purloined documents having to do with the war in Vietnam.

But under a different set of facts—and a different piece of statutory law as well—there is no reason to believe today's Court would dissolve the temporary injunction just granted in Milwaukee.

On the contrary, there is every reason to believe that all of the justices, save possibly Brennan, would side with the government in favor of suppression.

In the Pentagon Papers case, Justices White, Stewart and Marshall indicated that if a statute provided for prior restraint injunctions in matters involving the national security, it would make a big difference to them.

IN THE Progressive case, they have precisely such a statute in the Atomic Energy Act.

Recent months have seen some dismaying decisions in this whole area of the courts and the press.

Judges are imposing gag orders in criminal trials. The Supreme Court, while generally protecting our rights to publish information, increasingly inhibits our power to gather information.

From our point of view in the press, it is a most unhappy situation. The Progressive is making it worse.

Valerie Harper Campaigns For ERA

SEATTLE (AP) — Valerie Harper may be without a television show, but the star of "Rhoda" is not without a cause.

MISS HARPER

Miss Harper has been involved with political issues such as support for the United Farmworkers and the Hunger Project, and has campaigned for clean air and racially integrated television commercials.

"It's not that I'm suddenly jumping up and getting into it," she said. "I've always been involved."

Miss Harper, in Seattle to appear at a "speakout" for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment on Saturday, said: "Personal conduct is not touched by ERA. Men opening doors for women and who does the cooking are not addressed in it, it just makes the law equal for men and women."

President's Son Eyes Congress

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — Northwest Georgians will have to wait until next December to find out whether they'll get a chance to vote for another Carter.

CARTER

President Carter's 31-year-old son, Jack, says he'll wait that long before announcing whether he will run for the congressional seat representing that section of the state.

If he makes it to Capitol Hill, with his father down the street at the White House, Jack Carter says he believes he could still maintain his independence.

"I don't think that I am duty bound to vote as my father tells me. Carters are just not naturally agreeable as a group." he said.

Shah Considering Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, a man without a country since the revolt in Iran, is reportedly considering settling in Argentina.

The newspaper La Nacion said Sunday that friends of the deposed monarch had contacted govenment officials concerning the move. Government sources refused to comment on the article.

La Nacion said President Jorge R. Videla was consulting other nations to test international reaction before deciding whether the shah would be allowed to move here.

The shah and his family have spent most of their exile in Morocco since leaving Iran on Jan. 16. The royal family flew to the Bahamas on Friday and is expected to stay about three weeks.

The revolutionary government in Iran has said it will ask the government of whatever nation the shah settles in to extradite him to Iran to be tried for alleged crimes against the nation.

Ali Says Image Helped Sell Tickets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Muhammad Ali says his image as a cocky, clowning fighter was mostly just that — an image.

"All my bragging was imagination, because it sold tickets," the three-time winner of the world heavyweight boxing crown said Sunday night.

"The image I presented is one of the clown, the big mouth. I said I am the greatest, I am the prettiest. It was true, but I used imagination — that's why I am what I am today."

Ali spoke at the Kennedy Center at an intiational opening to a two-week children's series called "Imagination Celebration 1979."

He was presented a plaque from the Kennedy Center in gratitude for what he has done for children, including many benefit bouts. The award was presented by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Several childrens groups will perform during the festival, all of it free under the sponsorship of the center and the U.S. Office of Education.

Prince Visits British Columbia

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — Prince Charles is in town for a 2½-day visit that will include inspection of Pearson College, one of three world colleges that England's heir apparent presides over as president of the International Council of United World Colleges.

The prince arrived Sunday on a flight from Singapore. Following his visit, he plans to travel to Yellowknife, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa. He is scheduled to leave Canda next Saturday.

High Times Over

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

COOPER CITY, Fla. (AP) — From where he sat, Bill McGhee had a good view of this Fort Lauderdale suburb, but after 48 hours in an 8- by 8-foot shed atop an electrical pole, he was glad to have his feet back on terra firma.

McGhee, 35, made the marathon pole-sit on Friday and Saturday to raise money for the high school band he directs. From his perch, he not only pulled in $5,000 for the group's trip to a Mexico City music festival later this month, but was the first to spot a fire at a nearby carnival and alerted firefighters. The Friday afternoon blaze was doused after damaging a few concession stands and carnival vehicles.

McGhee got along with a sleeping bag, chemical toilet, coffee pot, radio and television set. Food was hoisted to him in a wicker basket.

But he isn't eager to repeat the ordeal.

12 Former Constituents Find Passman Innocent

MONROE, La. (UPI) — Otto Passman, the former Louisiana congressman touted as feeble by his attorneys, bolted like an athlete to the courtroom door once he finally was acquitted of the conspiracy and tax evasion charges that subjected him to 366 days of indignity.

The 90-minute verdict Sunday night by 12 of his former constituents ended four weeks of trial for Passman, the only congressman ever to stand trial in the South Korean influence-buying scandals. He was indicted by a federal grand jury in Wasington on March 31, 1978, for allegedly conspiring to accept $213,000 from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park. The trial was moved to Passman's home town because of his ill health.

But as soon as U.S. District Judge Earl Veron read the verdict Sunday, Passman jumped from his seat and had to be restrained by defense attorney Camille Grave, who gave him an affectionate bear hug.

"The congressman was really kind of shaken," Gravel said later. "As a matter of fact, I think he lost control."

But Passman, 78, who broke down and wept bitterly earlier in the day during Gravel's impassioned closing argument, composed himself outside the three-story federal courthouse and said he was glad to be free at last.

"I haven't been bitter in my life," Passman said. "I don't harbor any malice.

"I can say now that I am completely innocent."

Stunned government prosecutors refused comment on whether north Louisiana partisanship played any role in the nine-man, three-woman jury's quick decision.

"We obviously weren't able to convince the jury beyond a reasonable doubt," said chief prosecutor David Scott. "We can't comment on the speed because we don't know what (the jury) considered."

But Gravel admitted the trial may have been won last year, when he coaxed federal officials to shift the case from Washington to Passman's home town because of the aging excongressman's bad health. Throughout the month-long trial, Passman gulped tranquilizers to calm his frazzled nerves.

"I just think Congressman Passman in this case was much better off being tried in Monroe with a jury of his peers than he would have been anywhere else in the country," Gravel said. "I never had any really strong feeling that we would lose this case. I did feel it was possible the case would get to the jury and hang up."

The five-count indictment alleged Passman, who was the powerful chairman of the House Subcommittee on Foreign Operations from 1955 until his reelection defeat in 1976, accepted $193,000 from Park and in return used his office to pressure both Korean and U.S. officials to use Park as preferred sales agent in rice transactions.

Park earned $9 million in commissions and said he kicked back about 10 percent to congressional friends like Passman. But Passman denied receiving any money from Park.

The government's case was based on Park's testimony, buttressed by his diaries and financial ledgers. But Gravel carefully scrutinized the documents, pointing out numerous discrepancies. He painted a picture of Park as a desperate man who would say anything to please Justice Department lawyers in order to obtain immunity from prosecution and to protect his multimilliondollar holdings in the U.S.

Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, who triumphantly flanked Passman outside the courtroom Sunday, shocked government prosecutors earlier by saying he had a heretofore unknown meeting with Park in 1976 during which the South Korean denied ever giving any money to Passman.

Edwards said he never before mentioned the meeting, which took place in the Louisiana Superdome, because Justice Department attorneys never asked him about it.

"He kept quiet about it," prosecutor Morris Silverstein argued to the jury. "He uttered not one word to his friend Otto Passman. I guess Edwin Edwards felt he still owed Otto Passman more when he came into this courtroom. It is for you to determine whether that testimony is credible."

Survivors Of Fire Seek $2.9 Billion In Damages

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Trial begins today in the first of several suits to test claims of $2.9 billion in damages stemming from the May 28, 1977 fire at the Beverly Hills Supper Club that killed 165 persons and injured 50 others.

U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin will preside over the proceedings, expected to last up to two months, in the suit brought by more than 250 survivors of the victims against Union Light, Heat and Power Co., supplier of power to the Southgate, Ky., night club.

ULHP officials were on the premises following a 1970 fire at the club and during various remodeling and expansion projects.

The owners of the supper club, the 4-R Corp. and its principals, Richard Schilling Sr. and his four sons, were released from further liability in the case after an out-of-court settlement of $3 million was approved by Campbell County Circuit Judge John Diskin March 23. Diskin is reviewing litigation jointly with Rubin.

As part of their settlement, the Schillings agreed to be available to testify for the plaintiffs in further litigation against other defendants.

There are more than 1,000 defendants, including hundreds of insurance firms and product manufacturers. The first trial will determine whether there is liability of the part of ULHP.

Terminal boxes, conduits, wires and other elements of the electrical system torn out of the ruins of the supper club will be introduced as evidence.

Some experts who investigated the fire attributed its cause to the electrical system. Their testimony is expected to take up most of the trial.

Rubin, designated special judge to hear the case by the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, is expected to bring his entire staff to the Covington courtroom for the duration of the trial.

Tribe, Troops Reach Cease-Fire Accord

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Rebellious Turkoman tribesmen reached a cease-fire agreement with government forces today in the northeastern Iranian town of Gonbad-e-Qabous, where bloody street battles over the past week reportedly have killed dozens, government radio said.

Sporadic shooting had been reported earlier in the day, but the town of 60,000 people was said to be quieter after the cease-fire was announced locally at 4 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EST).

Announcements appealed to the warring sides to abandon their trenches and strongholds so that bodies of dead and wounded could be removed.

The revolutionary government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini prepared, meanwhile, to take the first steps toward establishing an Islamic republic in Iran. The government claimed overwhelming approval of the concept in a two-day referendum over the weekend.

Despite Khomeini's landslide at the polls, the revolution he heads still faces serious challenges from the Turkomans and other autonomy-minded ethnic minorities, who make up about a third of Iran's 36 million people.

Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, head of Khomeini's provisional government, on Sunday threatened "decisive and necessary" action by the army Tuesday to disarm the Turkomans in Gonbad-e-Qabous if they did not observe a cease-fire with government militia forces by 3 p.m. today.

The tribesmen, seeking local autonomy and land redistribution, have been fighting gunbattles with the militia for the past week and have seized local police stations. At least 50 persons are believed to have been killed and more than 100 wounded.

Almost all the town's shops were reported to be closed, and most citizens were remaining inside their homes.

The Turkoman rebellion followed an uprising of Kurds in the western province of Kurdistan three weeks ago. The Kurds, like other minority groups, saw a chance for home rule in the wake of the national uprising that crippled the army, which the shah had used for years to put down the aspirations of the minorities.

Besides their long-standing demands for greater political autonomy, the Kurds, Turkomans, Baluchis and Arabs are Sunni Moslems and fear the domination of Khomeini's Shiite sect, the religion of most Iranians.

Church-State Fight Headed For House

AUSTIN (AP) — A potential church-state separation fight hits the House floor this week — a sign that sponsors of a bill to increase tax dollars for church colleges probably have their votes already lined up.

It's considered bad manners to risk "cutting up" other representatives with a potentially unpopular special interest vote unless you know you can pass your bill.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, will ask the House to approve a Senate-passed bill raising state "tuition equalization grants" to students at private colleges, most of them church-related.

Grants now are $600, and Nabers' bill would raise the maximum grant to half the amount it would cost the state each year to educate a student at a state college.

Nabers' hometown also is the home of Howard Payne College, a Baptist institution. Another supporter of higher tuition equalization grants is Gov. Bill Clements, a former trustee of Southern Methodist University.

In this case, the special interest lobby is Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas (ICUT), which won passage of the present tuition grant law in 1971.

Senators passed the bill three weeks ago, 25-6, after a mini-filibuster in which Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston asserted, "You are subsidizing the churches at the expense of the taxpayers." He claimed the bill would add $50 million to state expenditures over the next two years.

Both legislators and other observers believe special interest legislation has fared better this session than it has for several years. Lobbyists, they say, are taking initiatives rather than simply trying to maintain the status quo.

The House spent most of its time last Wednesday and Thursday on lobby-initiated bills.

Cyclist Dies In Collision

Robert Leo Witcher, 18, was killed near Cotton Center Sunday when a truck and the motorcycle he was driving collided.

Hale County Justice of the Peace Jean Marr pronounced Witcher, of Cotton Center, dead at the scene at 6 p.m., according to Department of Public Safety reports. Jerry Harris of Cotton Center, driver of the truck, was uninjured.

DPS reports indicate the accident occurred about 4:45 p.m. Harris was making a U-turn on Farm Road 179 and that Witcher was traveling north on FM 179 when the vehicles were in collision, reports show.

Services for Witcher will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in Cotton Center with the Rev. Jerry Becknel, pastor, officiating.

Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Woodland Cemetery in Rosebud.

The Temple native was an automobile mechanic, attended Idalou High School and was a member of the First Baptist Church in Floydada.

Jury Selection Opens Trial

Jury selection began today in 137th District Court in what evidently could be a landmark trial concerning the use of hypnosis in identifying a defendant.

Gary Lynn Vester, 20, of 601 Quirt, is on trial for murder in the shooting death a year and a day ago of Robert Rios Rivera.

A woman who was with Rivera when he was killed in the early morning hours of April 1, 1978, is scheduled to testify that her memory was enhanced by the use of hypnosis on three occasions after the killing.

She told police two men came up to the car where she and Rivera had parked in a field east of Loop 289 off E. 19th St. and that they shot Rivera in the head and raped her.

Vester was charged in the case in February, and the second man, Charles Walter Hill, 29, of 3604 Zenith, was charged with murder in the case last week.

Attorneys had said the case will be a "first impression" case at the district court level because there are only two other cases on record, both of them federal cases in the 1960s, in which hypnosis was used to identify a defendant.

Presiding Judge Robert C. Wright ruled after a hearing of pretrial motions last Friday that the testimony of the woman is admissible.

Attorneys Grady Terrell and Mackey Hancock are defending Vester.

The case is being prosecuted by Assistant Criminal District Attorneys Rick Howell and Mark McBride.

United-Union Talks Expected To Resume

CHICAGO (AP) — Contract talks are scheduled to resume Tuesday in Washington between United Airlines and a machinists union whose strike has grounded the nation's largest air carrier.

United has said it is laying off all pilots and flight attendants during the strike, which began at 12:01 a.m. EST Saturday.

The airline, which carries an average of 130,000 passengers daily on a system connecting 110 cities, has canceled all flights at least through April 9.

Li'l Mam'selle Fashions Assure Entry Into 'A Beautiful Spring'

"We know you'll thrill at what you discover for Easter and for spring . . . at Li'l Mam'selle!"

"And we'd love to have you come in now and browse, for after all, the current selection is the most gorgeous presentation we believe we've ever been privileged to assemble at Li'l Mam'selle for the happy and active season related to Easter."

Long Dresses

There is an extremely nice selection at this time, including long dresses, casual and street apparel, the popular straight-leg jeans and tops to coordinate, and the prettiest ever in Easter dresses for the little girl.

Select with confidence that the fashion, quality and price is right at Li'l Mam'selle, whether the selection involves shorts and tops for girls and juniors, coordinates, blazers, jackets, vests, skirts, pants, etc., presented in colors and in summer whites.

Now in its eighth year, Li'l Mam'selle is located at 2147-A 50th St. (in Oakwood Center) and continues to specialize in up-to-the-minute fashion in quality lines, taken pride in stocking even the often hard-to-find sizes.

New lines are added to the already-extensive stock as need and fashion dictates.

Gift wrapping is available, and Li'l Mam'selle welcomes Visa and Master Charge purchases.

Setting The Mood

A trip to Li'l Mam'selle most certainly will put one in the Easter and vacation mood, as not only is the stock superb, but the dedicated and friendly staff has a genuine welcome awaiting.

They have chosen "the best of the new" in fashion, all in good taste, and they thoroughly enjoy seeing customers find just the item for which they have wished . . . at Li'l Mam'selle.

Ola Hamilton, longtime staffmember, is the very capable and friendly manager of the shop. Opal Jones, owner, is on the job, together with longtime staffmember Monta Beasley.

The stock continually has been expanded and upgraded under this ownership, management and staff.

And it is a friendly place in which to browse, visit and shop!

"Let us at this Oakwood Center store help you enter into a new season with apparel that pleases; the task has been made easy and economical at Li'l Mam'selle."

American Equipment & Trailer Firm Considers Needs Of Area's Industry

American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., 3707 Quirt Ave. in Lubbock, can well be proud of its policy and its record of serving industry (as well as serving the rancher, farmer, trucker, contractor and all).

In keeping with its alertness to area needs, American Equipment & Trailer stocks to meet today's (and tomorrow's) demands.

A very good example of this consideration is the line of Clement trailers stocked, with emphasis on the dump units that "dump with wheels on ground" for better stability. Truly, this is the aerospace trailer design.

Kept In Stock

See the 30 ft., 34 yd. units in stock right here in Lubbock, with other models available.

"If the need in your own industrial operation calls for a trailer with top stability, elimination of washboarding, cleaner dumping, strong arm top rail, wide-angle draft arms and decreased wind resistance, then let us introduce you to the 'Bonus Loader' dump trailers from Clement. Check with us, too, for the wide range of options to suit your hauling needs, such as the third axle, air-ride, air-lift unit, etc."

American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., is proud to include Clement among its quality products made available to area customers.

Galion Bodies

Galion body and hoist packages are another of the industrial lines for which American Equipment & Trailer is distributor.

By any comparison, Galion passes the test! Excellent for over-the-highway aggregate hauling, ideal for construction and batching work and for hauling and spreading stone, sand, gravel and other aggregates, the entire Galion body and hoist unit is manufactured and warranted by Peabody Galion. Featured are flared box-type side braces to give better side support and greater strength without added weight, reinforced double-acting tailgate that hinges top or bottom for greatest flexibility, and a four-position valve that offers two lowering speeds to allow lowering of a heavy load gently, or an empty box quickly.

Koenig Popular

Another fine product stocked by American Equipment & Trailer is the famous Koenig Serv-All Service Body with features that command respect.

With Koenig, you get additional usable storage space with the new full-height vertical rear door, and the storage area also includes galvanized steel adjustable shelves and dividers. All in all, it is designed for utility and years and years of rugged service. The Serv-All is manufactured with an electrically welded one-unit steel body. All edges are either rolled or formed for strength and safety.

Protection against theft is featured, as you can lock all your tools and other stored materials with tamper-proof paddle handle latches that come with weather protected cylinder locks.

'Known' Lines

Included in the large line-up of equipment at American Equipment & Trailer are other well known brand names . . . such as Midwest farm bodies, Tulsa winches, PD cranes, Wilson livestock and grain trailers, Great Dane refrigerated trailers, Bendix-Westinghouse air brake equipment, Michigan fleet gasoline tanks, tank installation kits, Henderson bulk bodies and spreaders . . . and more.

Region-Wide

American Equipment & Trailer not only has large facilities in Lubbock, but also at 610N. Grand in Amarillo and at 1400 West Overland Trail in Abilene.

Holiday Salon Of Beauty Staff Presents Pre-Easter Specials

Yes, with such highly qualified staffmembers arranging money-saving specials at this time of year, one should surely take notice . . . and call now for appointment!

"To help in your preparation for Easter and related spring activities, and to help in your awareness of the quality synonymous with this salon conveniently accessible in southwest Lubbock, a number of specials have been arranged.

The following prices are posted by staffmembers Kaye Rebber, Peggy Tooke, Lou Cox and Elsie Borden. One also is invited to call for specials and services afforded by the independent operators in the salon, including Bonnie Jackson, Hazel Cagle, Estella Loya, Carol Becker and Joann Fannin.

Staffmember specials include:

Frostings, regular $30, priced at $22.50 until Easter!

And Uniperms, regular $32.50, at a drastically reduced $22.50, too!

For Men, Women

"Let us make you over . . . a new 'you' . . . is the invitation of the staff at Holiday Salon of Beauty specializing in style cuts for both women and men.

Call 795-8276 now for appointment or details of the several expert services afforded at the 4935 Brownfield Highway Salon.

The fact is:

For really outstanding hair and beauty care, check any week with the specialists at Holiday Salon of Beauty, all inviting and earning one's trade and confidence.

At this time of year there are stepped-up demands for beauty attention, and the best hairstyles are in order, beginning with the proper cut.

And when the expertise at Holiday Salon of Beauty is coupled with the special low pre-Easter prices, then one finds it oh-so-easy to enter into the spring mood, beautifully and economically!

"You'll like the Holiday Salon of Beauty, long in Lubbock but in recent years at its present easil-reached address, modern in every respect and affording the convenience of off-street parking with plenty of space available.

Durability, Beauty, Cost Seen Among Arcadia Man-Made Stone Advantages

"Most likely you have observed and admired the use of Arcadia Stone in homes, businesses, yards or institutions in your neighborhood or community, wherever you live within the area.

"We at Arcadia Stone Manufacturing Co., 1922 Ave. E, phone 744-6640, Lubbock, invite your visits, inquiries and inspection. We would consider it a privilege to give a free estimate in your own situation."

"Indiyiduals and contractors alike, throughout the region, have voiced enthusiasm for Arcadia Stone. This is no surprise, for after all, can you imagine a lightweight and durable man-made stone at a fraction of the cost of some other materials, and available in seven decorator colors?"

Full details of the product and services are available at Arcadia Stone Manufacturing Co., home-owned and home-operated by Jim Haynes who has constructed beautiful homes throughout the area, together with construction of fireplaces utilizing Arcadia Stone.

Arcadia stone has been used for exceptional beauty and warmth in numerous area situations . . . commercial and residential. It can be used wherever stone or masonry veneer is desired. It can be used to veneer complete homes or to enhance the quality of one's present residence.

Enduring Investment

Arcadia Stone is an enduing investment, whether for attractive fireplaces, for beautiful wall and floor tiles, for stepping stones, even the very popular exterior use on metal buildings. Or interior walls for offices, as another practical and functionally-beautiful usage.)

Arcadia Stone is ideal for other interior ornamental work such as walls, arches, columns and planters; it affords the attractive way to add a distinctive new look to the home's interior.

The Lubbock firm has its own installation crews, or one can purchase the stone for "do-it-yourself" projects.

Adds Special Accent

Adaptable for either inside or exterior use, Arcadia Stone is flexible; it can be used on any sound surface including metal, wood, block and even sheetrock. It can add architectural beauty to shopping centers, commercial and professional buildings.

Maybe it is an entryway, a bath or a kitchen . . . or exterior landscaping and fences . . . whatever the situation, Arcadia Stone is an attractive accent.

Stock Trailers, Manufactured Locally, Available From Hale

"Did you realize that the very best in stock trailers are manufactured right here on the South Plains, in Lubbock, and made available in numerous models to meet every need and preference?"

Where is all this?

At Hale Manufacturing Co., Inc., at its Idalou Highway location just northeast of Lubbock, where a large selection of both new and used stock trailers continually is maintained.

Providing trailers for area needs, with stock trailers, jackknife units and all, Hale is proud to introduce and to keep in stock units to meet the specific need of the buyer.

Two-Horse Units

See the two-horse trailer featuring walk-through door at the front, new A-frame tongue, the spaciousness of 6 ft. 6 in. headroom, and all deluxe features standard. Each unit is comfortable, safe and easy to pull, and each is equipped with a safety lighting package.

Jackknives

The 500 Series jackknives are another most popular offering, available in lengths from 16 ft. to 30 ft. Such features as cross gates, escape door, four-wheel electric brakes are standard, and options are available. (Hale's safe, secure and convenient jackknife hook-up was designed by Bill Hale and through the years has proven itself to be among the best. It eliminates the need for costly landing gear. Get full details; see it at Hale.)

In Lubbock since 1956, Hale maintains a distribution center, retail sales, assembly plant and service-parts headquarters at its facilities on the Idalou Highway just northeast of Lubbock (Rt. 7, Box 429, phone 806-765-8956.)

Stan Howle, Lubbock native and with Hale for nine years, is manager, understanding trailers and area needs and preferences.

Service Department

A full service department is maintained, with service on all trailers, whether they were purchased from the firm or elsewhere.

Brake and light sales and installation are available, as is repainting.

Check the following that are among the features standard on every Hale trailer, adding up to Hale value:

A quality vinyl acrylic finish is applied to every Hale trailer. Before the finishing coat is applied, each trailer is smoothed and thoroughly cleaned. Then a primer coat is applied followed by the vinyl acrylic finish. Color selection is from nine beautiful standard colors. Two-tone or special paint colors are available on request.

The tongue of 3-inch heavy-wall pipe construction and features positive Locking Bulldog coupler and easy-to-operate Bulldog Jack.

The heavy duty all-welded primary frame features heavy 3-inch by 3-inch angle iron with secondary cross members of 2-inch by 2-inch angle iron.

Tongue and grooved flooring spans the width of the trailer for utmost in strength and safety.

Heavy seven-leaf springs are designed to give the carrying capacity demanded of a stock trailer.

"May we have the pleasure of your visit, inquiry and inspection?"

Easter, Mother's Day, Graduation Considered Fully At Christmas Shoppe

Some months ago it was announced that The Christmas Shoppe in Cactus Alley had expanded to specialize in gifts and decor items for each holiday season throughout the year.

Arrangement of a "Jan's Holiday Corner" on ground level of The Christmas Shoppe enabled grouping of these items, increasing the already-extensive and already-appreciated services of the unique shop.

Now, when planning Easter, when thinking ahead to Mother's Day and to Graduation, one should discover personally just what is included in the expanded Christmas Shoppe now open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., Thursday, Fridays and Saturdays weekly.

Specifically For Easter

For Easter, choose from the quality selection of stuffed animals including bunnies, ducks, chicks (some of which are musical);

And so-pretty Easter baskets.

Porcelain eggs, too, and those gorgeous Anri wooden collectible eggs, cystal eggs, even fabric eggs to be personalized with embroidery (a week notice is necessary for the embroidery orders).

For Mother's Day, Too

Music boxes, designed and selected especially for Easter and Mother's Day, are stocked.

There are live plants, too, great as gifts or for enhancing the decor of one's own home.

Select from the many puppets . . . string puppets from Mexico, and the famous United States lines such as Possum Trot, Princess Soft Toys, etc.

Fine wood carvings from Bethlehem include "The Last Supper" and a fine goblet with the Last Supper carved into it.

There are collectors thimbles that start at $1 up to $26, likely a most appreciated gift of remembrance for Easter.

For Graduation, the Christmas Shoppe has a good stock of telephone rest music boxes, termed the neatest ever by teenagers. (You'll like these, for a certainty.)

Jan and her staff are happy to announce that the shop has been able to secure the Hummel Figurines by Goebel; these will be arriving in September, but one is invited to call to get your name on the list for your next collectible (We also have the information you need to join t e Hummel Collectible Club.)

"Jan not only stocks in a discriminating and customer-considering manner at the unique shop at 2610 Salem Ave., but she is happy to personally shop for you in the world's markets for particular items of your choosing. She is glad to aid in securing unusual items, related or not to the stock of The Christmas Shoppe, on a special order basis. What a service!"

The entire staff, including Jan, Ellen Snyder, Candy Schaudies and Diane Snyder, is most adept in rendering the customer services one appreciates . . . in every season.

"Wouldn't now be a great time to utilize the advantages of The Christmas Shoppe, for Easter, for Mother's Day, for Graduation? Remember, the shop now occupies both upstairs and downstairs quarters at the east entry of Cactus Alley, just south off the Brownfield Highway at 2610 Salem Avenue in Lubbock."

W.M. Smith Electric Stocks Vertical Hollow Shaft Motors

W.M. Smith Electric Co., 1911 Clovis Road in Lubbock, again makes news!

Thoroughly in keeping with its history of providing the products and services in its field, to best accomodate area industry and enterprise, Smith Electric takes pride in its latest announcement:

Vertical hollow shaft motors from Leroy Somer are now available and stocked.

Not just another "standard" motor, its features include higher thrust capacity, drip-proof enclosure with ventilating openings designed to minimize entry of rain and particles so that this type of motor is suitable for outside applications in relatively dry climates or sheltered locations;

End brackets are rigid grey iron castings machined with precision; the stator is of welded construction and consists of electric steel laminations, heat treated to improve interlamination insulation and to reduce iron losses.

The stator winding is carried out with synthetic enamel coverd wire, with the stator wire fully insulated from the core and between phases to give a true Class F system.

Consider the other superior features, too, that include 1.15 service factor, robust welded steel frame, heavy construction (compare weights), cooler motor, large double-gasketed conduit box for easy and safe connections, permanently installed lifting lugs, and extremely quiet operation.

"All of these features give you greater hp output and longer motor life" is the observation and promise of Smith Electric and Leroy-Somer.

Select from sizes of 40 hp to 200 hp., with units kept in stock at W.M. Smith Electric Co., 1911 Clovis Road.

GE Starters

Attention also is directed to the full-voltage combination starters, with sizes 1 through 5 in stock, from General Electric and stocked by Smith.

Features of the panels in brief, include reliable motor protection, modification selection, choice of narrow or wide case construction, wide variety of applications (great for irrigation pumping and may be used for oil well pumping and other uses);

Tamper-proof handle, wiring diagram and heater selection table mounted inside door; extra space, neoprene gasket to seal out dust, sand, rain and snow; large mounting bracket, threaded conduit hub, interchangeable fuse clips, dependable contactor, pilot devices with special conveniences, and other features that the folks at Smith Electric would appreciate explaining for your own benefits and application.

Other Products, Lines

(See the Smith folks, too, for the entire Chicago Pneumatic Equipment Division compressor line, Campbell-Hausfeld compressors and accessories, Gardner-Denver and Kellogg-American units; and the SECO overhead traveling bridge cranes, and for crane and hoist components and parts bearing the respected trademarks of Dresser Industries, Detroit, Wright, Demag and David Round.

Motors

W.M. Smith electric is distributor for three major lines of electric motors: General Electric, U.S., and Baldor, in all sizes.

Furthermore, the firm has parts for everything it sells, offering service on everything sold, also.

A staff of qualified mechanics and trouble shooters is maintained at all times.

Wire-in and installation of irrigation motors is another area-appreciated service provided by the company.

Personal Interest

Pick-up and delivery is provided, and service men are on call day or night. Facilities in the shop enable prompt attention and repair in any emergency need.

H.J. Witcher is manager of the West Texas operations of the company, opening the Lubbock office back in 1952! Steve Witcher is sales manager; O.D. Faulkner is parts manager; and Jim Cadzow is foreman.

These men know their products and business, and they welcome the opportunity of assisting you in your own industrial or farming operations with one or more of the many services and products for which the firm has become well known throughout the region.

Remember, sales and rentals of motors and generators is a popular service offered, as is repair and installation of electric motors, controls, rectifiers, pumps, transformers, etc., machine and metalizing, dynamic balancing and other services.

MONTEREY FURNITURE PROMISES REVELATION IN VALUE

Monterey Furniture Offers Top Lines At 'Low Overhead' Price

For furniture with style and craftsmanship, for proven savings, for convenience and still other benefits....it is Monterey Furniture in Lubbock!

Located in the heart of southwest Lubbock (on south side of Monterey Center) Monterey Furniture actually is a warehouse showroom, passing on to its customers the multiple advantages enabled by such a concept and operation.

Only first-line merchandise is stocked, and all is uncrated and placed on the floor upon arrival; none is stored in a warehouse elsewhere in the city.

All furniture is in good condition, all is selected for its quality and fashion...for lasting value.

No "seconds" are involved.

"It is a low-overhead type of operation, with the consequent savings passed on to you, the customer," is the word from Hal Rowe, manager since back in 1972.

Savings Emphasized

Monterey Furniture affords delivery service, but points out that "you can save by picking the items up yourself." Such consideration is one of the many reasons Monterey Furniture has been heralded region-wide as a store catering to the customer who appreciates savings, integrity and selection.

Brands To Trust

"Name" lines are noted throughout the large stock...such as Basset, Riverside, Lane, Kroehler, Sealy, Morning Glory, and more.

Furniture is the only business of the store...there are no appliances stocked.

Of course, mirrors and accessories, pictures and numerous decor items are stocked.

And rockers include the big ones that are so desired and practical.

Wide Selection

Many items available are open stock.

One is invited to browse and even compare quality, style and prices, "proving to yourself that Monterey Furniture affords most for the money" with furniture for casual or elegant living.

Financing plans are available, as is layaway.

Monterey Furniture is open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, with extended hours to 9 p.m. on Thursdays.

"For a first-line selection in a warehouse showroom type of operation, Monterey Furniture can open a whole new world of value and convenience. May we have the opportunityof proving it..to you?"

Stormaster Shelters Explained Key Consideration For Family

It is the season of the year when protection during windstorms or tornadoes comes into focus as an item of prime importance.

Weather reports, sightings of stormy clouds, even building destruction within a short drive of most anywhere on the South Plains can underscore the importance of the above statement.

So, consider this:

"Have you given your family the consideration of a Stormaster Shelter? If not, we invite full inquiry."

"In Lubbock and area, the Stormaster underground shelter protection can be speedily and easily secured by consulting with the Stormaster specialists at 3406 62nd St., phone 792-5977, who season after season have served most admirably, and who have been proven time after time.

Stormaster shelters are built right; they serve a definite need in the unsettled spring weather conditions of the South Plains; and they are backed with the professional understanding and integrity of their builder, Homer Ries.

Ries, the only authorized Stormaster builder in the South Plains and Panhandle, prides in the Stormaster and in its construction. A graduate in engineering, he appreciates the needs of the area and the quality of Stormaster. Mrs. Ries is a native of Lubbock; he is a longtime resident and both are graduates of Texas Tech.

Stormaster is not new in underground protection; it has been in business for over two decades in the Oklahoma City and Dallas areas.

The Stormaster unit is not pre-fab.

It is built in a choice of two sizes, 6 ft. by 8 ft., and the more popular family-size 8 ft. by 10 ft., with construction taking about three days, depending on the weather, of course, and involves digging the hole, setting forms, pouring cement, finishing with paint, benches and electrical outlet.

All concrete work is a one-pour operation with six-sack cement reinforced with paving mesh — no cold joints. It is guaranteed not to leak or seep. It is painted inside and outside and comes complete with seats, vents, electric box and special Stormaster doors.

Safety Factor

(The doors are so constructed that children may enter unescorted.) The extra-strength plywood door covered with galvanized metal is attached to a heavy steel frame which is embedded in the concrete. This waterproof door was designed especially for this shelter.

Stormaster construction qualifies for Title I financing.

For full information check now with Homer or Mrs. Ries at Stormaster of Lubbock, 3406 62nd St., phone 792-5977. If there is no answer, please keep calling, day or night. Part-time office help is on the job as well as Mr. and Mrs. Ries.

FOR LEADERSHIP IN HEALTH FOODS — Dee Justice and mother, Connie Gregory, owners-operators of the Well Body Shop in southwest Lubbock, relate a host of new situations (Grand Opening, prizes, 'auction' of pictured juicer, tremendously expanded stock), inviting visits there to discover just how very much the customer is being considered at the unique store in Security Park.

Expanded Juice Bar, Added Products, New Features Told At Well Body Shop

"Are you one of those already acquainted with the benefits of the fantastically-stocked Well Body Shop, Inc., at B-12 in Security Park, 3602 Slide Road, phone 793-1015?

"Whether a new customer, one who has heard of us but who has not yet visited our unique store, or if you are one of our already-satisfied customers, there is exciting news at this time:

(1) Well Body Shop is cooperating with participating merchants in Security Park for a "Grand Opening" extravaganza beginning April 9, with a free trip to Acupulco, Mexico, as grand prize. One is invited to register at the Well Body Shop.

(2) In conjuction with the celebration, Well Body Shop is conducting a auction-type opportunity for bidding on a valuble Phoenix Juicer, with bids accepted during celebration and with highest one getting this juicer.

Enlarged Juice Bar

(3) The so-popular Juice Bar is being expanded as an "extra consideration," and with new menus now printed listing 25 drinks available there!

Actually, there is so much going for the Well Body Shop that enumeration is difficult; so why not come on out and see for yourself.

Discover, as example, the honey ice cream and the milkshakes, each without sugar, and the fresh orange juice, fresh carrot juice, high-energy drinks, too, with protein powder, yeast, etc.: the blended fruit drinks, the highly acclaimed "Smoothie" with protein and lecithin and even yogurt, etc. . . . and the children's Super Kid drinks that are nutritious but still money-saving.

(A lot of folks are finding it fun, convenient and nutritious to come by for a drink at lunch, with maximum of 227 calories.)

But even exciting as is the Juice Bar, there is more at the Well Body Shop!

Such as the sprouting seeds to be grown indoors for fresh vitamins and proteins . . . a complete, natural food ready in three to seven days, easy and fun!

And the Arrowhead Mills all-organic foods from Hereford, all whole grain, beans, flours, whole wheat spaghetti and elbow pasta, artichoke spaghetti, locally baked fresh wholewheat bread;

A good selection of herbs including teas, capsules, herbal combinations and powders; even a good book selection!

Juicers and grain grinders are stocked for sale, and the management at Well Body Shop offers further service of grinding fresh flour, rye, rice, corn meal, soy, etc. (This stone grinding saves more of the grain, it is noted.)

Bulk foods are stocked in bins as further convenience and opportunity for saving.

"Doesn't all this sound like a tremendously attractive and beneficial store? It is!"

Metro Tower, thrusting upward 20 stories from 1220 Broadway, has become the convenient and prestigious address on the South Plains!

With 15 floors already occupied, announcement has just been made that two more floors, the fifth and sixth, have reached the completion stage and now are available for tenants. Provided is a selection from single office space to seven-room suites!

(Three more floors presently are in process of renovation, reports owners Gaut & Gaut Investments.)

El Paso Wholesale, Lubbock Division, Serves All Year Long

"Mr. Retailer, are you aware of the multiple benefits of knowing and patronizing El Paso Wholesale Company Lubbock Division?"

"We feel that our firm has made the past year more profitable and certainly more convenient for retail firms throughout the region, ultimately saving for the consumer. Continuation of this service is pledged in the new year that we trust will be most bountiful for each of you, our friends, neighbors and cherished customers."

Selling wholesale only, the El Paso Wholesale Company in Lubbock is the city's complete wholesale firm.

Customers include grocery and hardware stores, auto supply houses, service stations, toy stores, sporting goods stores, etc.

Located at 206 23rd St., phone 747-1841, in Lubbock, the El Paso Wholesale Company Lubbock Division carries and stocks a full selection of hard line merchandise.

From time to time partial lists of the products have been published on these pages of the Avalanche-Journal, and readers have noted that the products and brand names are ones that can be appreciated, together with the completeness of this wholesale firm.

Among the benefits area merchants find foremost at El Paso Wholesale Company Lubbock Division, aside from the selection, is the freight situation.

Doesn't it make sense that savings are enabled through the regions by virtue of the big-stock Lubbock warehouse that features faster, shorter delivery transport? Let this Lubbock wholesale firm prove it to your own benefit with products such as:

Guns by Remington, Marlin and H. and R.; ammunition from Federal and Remington; and gun accessories such as Outer & Hoppes solvents and gun cleaning kits.

C.B. radios by Midland and Cobra, and the Fuzzbuster radar detector, plus Mr. CB accessories and Antenna Specialists antennas.

Of course there are lots of quality housewares, including Corning Ware and Pryer, Nordic Ware and Rubbermaid.

Among the many appropriate items for young birthdays are toys by Fisher-Price, Mattel, Playskool, Tonka and Marx.

In the electronics field, select from television sets by G.E., Midland, Hitachi and Sony; and stereos by Soundesign and Hitachi; plus miscellaneous items including eight-track and cassette recorders, walkie talkies and TV video games.

Quality cameras and supplies include Polariod and Kodak cameras, projectors and film, and accessories such as camera cases, viewers and film reels.

Sporting Goods

Diversified sporting goods item include...for the fishing enthusiast there are the famous lines of Diawa Garcia, Zebco, Mr. Twister, Fleck Lures and Mepps.

And there are Daisy and Crossman BB guns and Huffy bicycles.

Small appliances are stocked in abundance, including coffee makers by Norelco, Mr. Coffee and Proctor Silex; and pressure cookers from Presto and Mirro Aluminum; and Hamilton Beach, Waring, G. E. and Sunbeam appliances, together with such lines as Dazey, Munsey, West Bend, Oster and Rival.

Hardware is not neglected, either, and includes Stanley Tools, Black & Decker power tools, Crescent wrenches and Nicholson files, Peerless and Hancock Gross plumbing supplies.

In the personal care category, there are hair dryers by Gillette, Clairol, Conair and Sunbeam; and hairsetters and make-up mirrors by Clairol, Gillette, G. E. and Hamilton Beach, and WaterPik, too.

Automotive items include Hollywood and Cal custom accessories, Fram Filters and Autolite tune-up accessories; and Rubbermaid, Lifeline and Roberk automobile accessories.

And more!

By ELLEN NIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

The effects of the Three Mile Island radiation accident rippled through the nation, as the governor of California sought a federal order to shut down a power plant and anti-nuclear protesters sent a cry of "No Nukes" across the land.

Some nuclear opponents saw some good in the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

"I think Harrisburg was a very bittersweet incident," said Mark Haim, a leader of Missourians For Safe Energy. "We are all saddened by the fact that radiation has been released. We are all saddened that people are being exposed to this radiation. I think it's waking up America."

He said 10,000 signatures had been gathered on petitions seeking a new study of a planned nuclear plant in Reform, Mo.

As officials worried over the nuclear reactor at the Pennsylvania plant, agencies in nearby states kept their eyes on radiation monitors and gathered samples of air, water and raw milk for tests.

Protesters marched several miles to the Winthrop home of Massachusetts Gov. Edward J. King, a nuclear advocate, after a demonstration Sunday on the Boston Common. There, they delivered a petition demanding an end to nuclear power operations in the state.

About 300 demonstrators went to the Pilgrim I nuclear plant in Plymouth, Mass., on Sunday, where "minor confrontations" with police were reported. No arrests were made.

Outside the Rhode Island Statehouse, about 250 demonstrators called on Gov. Joseph Garrahy to take a strong stand againt construction of a proposed atomic plant in Charlestown.

And Massachusetts Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti said Sunday that he had "talked constantly over the past four years about the potential for precisely the type of accident that occurred in Pennsylvania ... and found no responsive ear in the industry."

In California, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. called on the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to order the shutdown of a nuclear plant near Sacramento that is a virtual duplicate of the crippled reactor at Harrisburg.

"There is significant uncertainty about just what happened in Pennsylvania, how much of it was human error and how much was mechanical," Brown said Sunday. "I get the impression that it's lucky the impact wasn't worse that it was."

Both the Rancho Seco facility near Sacramento and the Three Mile Island plant were designed and built by Babcock & Wilcox Co. of Lynchburg, Va.

Babcock and Wilcox also designed Florida Power Corp.'s Crystal River plant, and the utility sent scientists and engineers to Harrisburg. A spokesman said it would be "virtually impossible" for Crystal River to have a problem like that at Three Mile Island.

Pro-nuclear forces in Texas worried about the accident's effect on a vote scheduled for Saturday on a planned nuclear plant project.

Austin voters are to decide if they want to keep their 16 percent interest in the $2.07 billion South Texas Nuclear Project.

"If they (anti-nuclear forces) had gone out there and put a wrench to that valve they would have picked that day to do it," said John Rogers, who is heading the campaign for the nuclear project.

"It would take a political genius to pull this one out. I've never been involved in a situation where we don't have any control, where the opposition has the lead story on CBS, NBC and ABC television ..." he said.

Georgians Against Nuclear Energy asked that the Hatch, Ga., nuclear plant be shut down as a safety precaution. The group claimed the plant has a "C" safety rating from the federal government and said conditions were like those that preceded the nuclear accident in Pennsylvania.

Plant spokeswoman Leslie Lamkin said the plant complies with NRC standards, and added: "Our people report everything on the site, even very, very minor things ... An awfully lot of plants got a 'C'."

Seniority Systems Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said, in effect, today that otherwise legitimate seniority systems that perpetuate effects of past racial bias do not violate any federal law.

The court, which ruled two years ago that such seniority systems do not violate a 1964 civil rights law, left intact a decision barring minority workers from using an 1866 civil rights law to sue Ryder Truck Lines Inc.

Using the Supreme Court's 1977 ruling as a guide, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last May that the 1866 law could not be used by blacks working for Ryder in Charlotte, N.C., to attack the company's seniority system.

In other action today, the high court:

—Ruled 6 to 3 that the Federal Communications Commission lacks legal authority to rrequire cable television operatorrs to set aside channels for public access.

—Ruled 7 to 2 that even though the Internal Revenue Service violated its own rules in obtaining taped conversations in a bribery case, the tapes could be used constitutionally at the defendant's trial.

—Left intact court rulings in a New Jersey case that a union local under court order to boost minority membership may not turn away whites who want to transfer into the local.

—Let stand an appeals court ruling that struck down a series of court-ordered racial quotas in a discrimination suit brought by black employees and unsuccessful black job applicants against J.P. Stevens Co. at its Roanoke Rapids, N.C., facilities.

—Left intact an appeals court ruling that New York City's practice of prohibiting non-union printers from bidding for most city printing jobs promotes the city's interest in advancing collective bargaining.

The Ryder controversy dates back to 1973, when six black employees sued the trucking firm, the Teamsters union and the union's Local 71.

The suit, filed on behalf of all blacks working for Ryder in Charlotte, alleged that the company and unions had engaged in illegal racial discrimination.

In 1975, U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan ruled that Ryder, a national firm with headquarters in Jacksonville, Fla., and the unions had discriminated against black workers in Charlotte by effectively freezing them out of jobs as over-the-road drivers.

Until 1971, all of Ryder's long-haul drivers out of Charlotte were white.

When the 1973 suit was filed, the company-union seniority system barred workers transferring to over-the-road driver jobs to keep their company seniority intact.

The rule had the effect of "locking in" blacks to lesser-paying jobs such as in-town driving and loading-dock work.

By the time Judge McMillan ruled, the seniority system had been modified to allow transferees to keep their seniority privileges.

The judge's ruling, however, cited the discriminatory effect of the former seniority system — and ordered Ryder to give long-haul driver's jobs and back pay to nine black employees and pay back wages to three others.

In addition, McMillan ordered Ryder to fill all future supervisory vacancies in Charlotte with qualified blacks "until the percentage of blacks in supervisory positions approximately equals the percentage of blacks at the terminal."

The 4th Circuit court initially upheld McMillan's ruling, but after the Supreme Court's 1977 decision, it reconsidered the case and struck down all the relief McMillan had ordered.

The Supreme Court, in another case involving the trucking industry and the Teamsters union, had ruled that an "otherwise neutral, legitimate seniority system does not become unlawful under (the Civil Rights Act of 1964) simply because it may perpetuate pre-act discrimination."

The ruling was a significant blow to the civil rights movement, but it still left open the possibility that successful challenges could be mounted under the 1866 act that outlaws racial discrimination in employment.

After studying the Supreme Court ruling, the 4th Circuit ruled that if black workers did not have a legal right to sue under the 1964 law, they also did not enjoy the right to sue under the older law.

Begin Given Lukewarm Reception By Egyptians

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin arrived to a low-key welcome in Cairo today as Arab foes of his peace treaty with President Anwar Sadat began punishing Egypt.

The Egyptian government greeted the first Israeli prime minister to visit their capital with strict protocol and little warmth. Vice President Hosny Mubarak headed the welcoming party and Sadat stayed home because Begin is not a chief of state.

There were no cheering crowds at the airport, no signs praising Begin or Israel, none of the pomp and emotion that greeted Sadat when he went to Jerusalem in November 1977 to begin his dramatic peace crusade.

The state-controlled media, which had campaigned against Begin during the volatile peace negotiation, did little to drum up interest in his visit.

Begin said he was visiting Cairo "to open my heart to every man, woman and child in Egypt" and to convince them the Jewish nation wants lasting peace after four wars with the Arabs. He also hopes the visit will help persuade Israeli opponents of the treaty that Egypt and Israel really are at peace.

"I am very moved by this," Begin said of his welcome.

One of the first things he saw when he stepped off his blue-and-white jetliner was an honor guard dressed in World War II-type German uniforms and led by goose-stepping officers. This was not a deliberate affront to the Polish-born Israeli, whose entire family were killed by the Nazis. The honor guard was outfitted with new uniforms last year, when peace was still highly uncertain. But it did seem to underline the fact that Egypt would rather have had Begin come at a later date.

After reviewing an honor guard and chatting briefly with Mubarak, Begin was driven to a Cairo guest palace, the same building Sadat used as a command center during the 1973 war with Israel.

Both the press and public are opposed to Begin himself, chiefly because of the tough bargaining that led to peace.

Said Abdel Moneim Taher, an engineering student: "From the day I was born, I have been brought up to distrust Begin — his terrorist background, his high and mighty ways. I shall not cheer or clap for him, you can be sure. But I might go out on the street to try and see him in the flesh."

Firms In Area Hit By Strikes

pired, but they want a seven percent pay increase, which would be within President Carter's wage guidelines.

He said that the contractors want to lower the pay scale and don't want to continue to pay insurance and pension benefits.

According to Bundock, however, "the hassle here is not necessarily wages. The basic thing is the lack of service on the part of the union."

He said the union "is unable to furnish us with qualified people. We would feel the wages are not prohibitive if the people were qualified."

Bundock said the the local laborers union does not represent labor. "As far as our industry is concerned, the percentage of people in the union is so small relative to the amount of people doing that type of work."

He said that the Associated General Contractors, with whom the union had the previous contract, notified the union in December 1978 that it was withdrawing its bargaining rights. "Since we withdrew our bargaining rights we don't act in an official capacity," he said.

Thus, each contractor has been meeting individually with the union to settle contract disputes.

Bundock said individual meetings with contractors and union have been taking place for about six weeks "to resolve this so there wouldn't have to be a strike." He said that both sides have currently reached "an impasse."

Frank Fuller, executive secretary of the AGC, said that "the majority of general contractors who are members of AGC were dissatisfied with the contracts negotiated" in previous years. "So it was decided that individual contractors should meet and decide each one for himself."

Said Gonzalez, "Instead of wanting to negotiate, some contractors want to wait and see what the others want to do."

"They are trying to get rid of the laborers," he said. "By refusing to negotiate, they think they can break the union."

Bundock said that the contractors have offered the union a 90 day period during which unqualified laborers would be hired at a lesser pay rate. He said that rate would then be adjusted when the worker "has learned enough" to warrant an adjustment. "It would be in keeping with the ability of the person hired," he said.

Bundock also said the AGC offered to bring employees into AGC insurance program from the union program. Fuller said the insurance would essentially be hospitalization.

The contractors were offered a "proposition" by the union "where they might retain the contract as is, but there would be an agreement where wages would be adjusted as warranted by the cost of living," said Bundock.

"But that would automatically make it a two-year contract. Through that provision, it would be obvious that we would stay in contract with the common laborer for over a year."

The contractor said he doesn't know if the labor organization has the support of the other unions yet. He said that "anyone who got on the job before the picketers came can finish the day, so we don't know if they're supported or not."

Mike Elas, who was striking at 10th Street and Avenue H, said that all the unions were backing them at that construction site.

At the strike sites surveyed this morning, only one or two men at each location were picketing in the chilly early morning temperatures. Most of the men interviewed said they knew that no contract had been signed, but didn't know the particulars of the dispute.

Said David Cervantez, " I don't know too much about it — just that we don't have a contract. I hope we quit as soon as possible."

Bundock said he didn't know how long the negotiations would be stalled, but said that with the "possibility that the strike will expand, it could have a major impact."

Said Gonzalez, "I believe if they'll meet with us, we might come to an understanding sometime this week."

children and pregnant women and young children keep their distance. Civil Defense officials estimated that 50,000 persons have left the area.

State government was open as usual, but the governor said there would be generous leaves granted for "absentees."

Scientists working to cool the reactor had been concerned that oxygen would mix with the hydrogen in flammable proportions, inside the reactor dome. Also, there was a danger of increasing the hydrogen concentration in the containment building, prompting an explosion and subsequent release of radiation.

If the bubble kept growing inside the reactor vessel, it could expose the uranium core — a remote chance that could trigger the worst possible catastrophe, a melt-down. In a melt-down, the core melts, burns through the reactor vessel and sinks into the ground, releasing radioactivity that at its worst would contaminate thousands of square miles.

While the risky work continued at the island on the Susquehanna River, officials worked on precautionary evacuation plans covering a million residents in four surrounding counties.

"We are in a position now that we can respond to any forseeable change," said Thornburgh, who visited the plant with President Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, on Sunday.

Carter, wearing a badge to measure radiation and plastic bags over his shoes to protect against any possibly contaminated dust, spent about 10 minutes inside the control room.

Carter, who was trained in nuclear physics in the Navy, later spoke at a town hall in Middletown. Hundreds lined the streets and cheered when he arrived. He said the safety of citizens was paramount and an evacuation would be "strictly a precautionary measure."

"If it does become necessary, Governor Thornburgh will ask you and others in this area to take appropriate action to ensure your safety. If he does, I want to urge that these instructions be carried out calmly and exactly," Carter added.

There were these other developments:

—In Harrisburg, the Harrisburg Hospital and Hershey Medical Center asked for help from the military to fill in for workers who apparently had left.

—In California, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. asked federal officials to temporarily shut down the Rancho Seco nuclear power plant near Sacramento. The plant was designed and built by Babcock Wilcox Co., of Lynchburg, Va., the same firm that constructed Three Mile Island and Brown said he was worried the facilities might share "a serious generic defect."

—The accident fueled a wave of anti-nuclear protests. In Indiana, protesters chanted, "Hell, no, we won't glow."

—In Washington, Gary Hart, D-Colo., chairman of the Senate subcommittee with responsibility over nuclear power matters, said he would recommend that the NRC order that seven reactors with similar design to Three Mile Island operate at reduced power until it could be determined if there was a design flaw.

Siamese Twin Boys Die In Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — After clinging to life for 12 days, Siamese twin boys born to a Fridley, Minn., couple are dead.

The twins, who were born March 21 and died Sunday, were joined from the navel to the mid-chest area. Doctors, who were considering how they might separate the pair, said they could not determine whether the twins shared a common heart because of the way they were joined.

Grenades Jolt U.S. Embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Unidentified terrorists today attacked the U.S. Embassy in Beirut with rocket-propelled grenades as Arab opposition to the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty intensified.

The embassy building was damaged and the top of the flagpole blown off, sending the U.S. flag tumbling to the ground, but there were no casualties, embassy officials said.

They said they did not know who was responsible.

"We have some shrapnel and it appears we were hit by rocket-propelled grenades," the spokesman said. The attack occurred at about 7:45 a.m. CST and the rocket launchers apparently were fired from an area just east of the embassy in the Ain Meisseh neighborhood of predominantly Moslem West Beirut.

The embassy overlooks the Mediterranean Sea, facing north and east.

"I came up from the basement," the bewildered embassy official said. "None of us have been allowed outside to see what happened".

A Palestine Liberation Front official said in a weekend interview that U.S. targets would be attacked and that U.S. interests in all parts of the world faced days of "hellfire and brimstone."

Virtually every state in the Arab world, with the exceptions of Oman and Sudan, moved to isolate Egypt as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin visited Cairo.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Jordan, the United Arab Emirates and Tunisia led an exodus of Arab ambassadors from Cairo Sunday, in accordance with a vote by a conference of Arab foreign and economy ministers in Baghdad last Saturday. Other Arab ambassadors were expected to follow soon in protest against the March 26 signing of a peace treaty with Israel.

Mercury Skids To 26 On Plains

A-J News Services

Arctic air brought freezing temperatures to Northwest Texas today, as torrential rains and flash flooding continued to plague the Mississippi Valley region and 5 inches of snow fell in central and eastern Wisconsin.

Residents in portions of East Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana began cleaning up the debris left by a series of tornadoes Sunday and early today. The threat of twisters still faced northern Louisiana, southeastern Arkansas and central Mississippi early this afternoon.

Temperatures sank below the freezing mark over much of the South Plains this morning in the wake of a slow-moving cold front that triggered heavy thunderstorms in southern portions of the state.

Lubbock escaped the freeze — the official low here this morning was 34 degrees — but heavy frost occurred over much of the city.

Fifteen of 28 reporting stations in the area recorded temperatures of freezing or below this morning.

The lowest temperatures were at Dimmitt and Olton, where the mercury fell to 26. It was 27 at Muleshoe and the Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge and 28 at Littlefield.

Temperatures were expected to be rather chilly this afternoon, with highs only in the upper 50s, but forecasters predict a gradual warming trend beginning Tuesday.

Afternoon highs should be back in the 60s Tuesday and in the 70s by midweek. No significant precipitation is indicated through Friday.

The Lubbock area should escape a freeze again Tuesday morning, since a low in the mid-30s is predicted.

Elsewhere in the state today, thunderstorms that dumped as much as 2 inches of rain per hour erupted along a line from south of Lufkin to near Houston and southwestward to near Eagle Pass.

Some of the heaviest rainfall was near Uvalde and Eagle Pass. Another line of heavy storm activity formed from El Campo to Galveston, with strongest activity in the Rosenberg area.

A half-hour later, several marinas on the south shore of Lake of the Pines were heavily damaged by a second twister.

No injuries were reported from either storm.

Widespread flooding was reported in southeastern Missouri, northeastern Arkansas and western Tennessee today after thunderstorms dumped as much as 8 inches of rain in some areas.

West Memphis, Ark., reported 3 inches, western Tennessee was soaked by 3 to 6 inches and as much as 8 inches fell in parts of Missouri.

A flood warning was in effect today in western Kentucky, and flash flood watches were in effect for the rest of Kentucky and parts of Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Indiana and Illinois.

Heavy rainfall in southeast Missouri caused extensive flooding along small streams and drainage ditches, forcing the evacuation Sunday of up to 150 families, authorities said.

The National Weather Service said rains of 5 to 8 inches throughout the Missouri Bootheel forced streams from their banks and flooded roads. Extensive flooding of urban areas was reported in Dunklin and Pemiscott counties in addition to New Madrid, the NWS said.

In the western portions of the Bootheel, the St. Francis River was expected to crest today at 4 feet above flood stage at Fisk and at 8 feet above flood stage at St. Francis. The river was expected to crest Tuesday at Lake City 6½ feet above flood stage.

Cleanup operations continued today in a tornado-stricken area of Barren County, Ky., while other sections of the state kept an eye on rivers being fed by heavy rains.

State police installed roadblocks to keep sightseers away from the Poynters Lake Community, five miles from Glasgow, where a twister killed a child and injured 14 other persons Saturday.

The state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services said it had opened its center in Frankfort as a precautionary measure because of the threat of flooding, and state police reported several rural routes in western Kentucky were covered by water, but no major highways were reported flooded.

A tornado watch was in effect today for portions of northern Louisiana, central Mississippi and southeastern Arkansas.

Labor Department officials met within hours of industry's announcement to plan what steps, if any, the administration would take. Administration officials indicated they probably would wait several days before deciding whether to seek a back-to-work order.

"We strongly believe that the best way to resolve this dispute is through the collective bargaining process," Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said after the meeting.

Early Cancer Detection, Treatment Important

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is the first of five installments of questions and answers on cancer. They are distilled from the latest available scientific knowledge on the disease by two cancer specialist physicians and two professional writers. The series is written by Paul M. Levitt, Elissa S. Guralnick, Dr. A. Robert Kagan and Dr. Harvey Gilbert.)

Can a person have cancer without being aware of it?

Yes. Since a cancer can take years to develop, a person may not be aware of the cancer until it begins to interfere with the normal functions of the body. But even before the appearance of pain, which is a late symptom of cancer, there are painless symptoms that may indicate the presence of a cancer in the body.

What are the symptoms or warning signs of cancer?

Change in bowel or bladder habits.

Unusual bleeding or discharge.

Thickening or lump in the breast or elsewhere.

Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.

Obvious change in a wart or mole.

Nagging cough or hoarseness.

The American Cancer Society says that if any of these symptoms persists for more than two weeks, see a doctor immediately.

How important is early detection of cancer?

The old saying that a stitch in time saves nine can be applied to cancer. If the original cancer site is detected early enough, the cancer can be removed or destroyed before it travels to nine other sites, or even more. Very few cancers, however, are detected early enough to be cured.

Is cancer easy to detect?

In the late stages yes, in the early stages no. But since cancer kills when it is far advanced, every doctor hopes to achieve early detection. But no simple test exists to discover a cancerous cell. Why? Because, with trillions of cells in the body, it is virtually impossible to locate one that is cancerous. The disease can be detected only after a cancerous cell has taken root and produced billions of cancerous descendants.

First In A Series

How does a doctor detect cancer?

The first step is for the doctor to record and analyze the patient's medical history. Because cancer is so difficult to detect in its early stages, a medical history may provide the doctor with clues that will lead to a tentative diagnosis. Cancer of the stomach, for example, may exhibit early warning signs, such as indigestion, nausea, heartburn, gas.

The second step is for the doctor to give the patient a thorough physical examination, including a careful inspection of accessible body cavities.

Is cancer easy to detect under a microscope?

No. Sometimes cancerous cells look so much like normal cells that the pathologist cannot decide whether they are cancerous. For this reason, cytology, biopsy, and bone marrow tests are only as good as the sample of tissue and as the pathologist who looks into the microscope.

To probe or not to probe?

In order to decide how far to probe for cancer, the doctor must determine how much physical injury he is willing to allow and how much discomfort the patient is willing to endure. When tests are recommended, the patient has every right to ask the doctor to justify them.

Large-scale operations conducted for nonspecific diagnostic purposes (exploratory surgery) are disparagingly called fishing expeditions. Once common, they are now frowned upon.

Staging operations, which are performed only when a cancer is known to be present, are not to be confused with exploratory surgery. In a staging operation, the surgeon performs a series of biopsies on various organs and lymph nodes to determine how far a cancer has spread.

Should the patient seek a second opinion?

Yes, if he wishes to do so. But the doctor has probably already sought the advice of other doctors. In recent years, cancer specialists (oncologists) have tended to favor a team approach to diagnosis and treatment.

When will the patient know if his cancer is gone?

This question, perhaps the most important to cancer patients, is the most difficult for doctors to answer. Everyone thinks that after the first few weeks of treatment the doctor will know whether the patient has been cured. But only time will tell. The longer a person is free from symptoms, the greater the prospects that the cancer is completely gone.

Generally, the doctor can tell in four to six weeks whether a cancer is responding to chemotherapy, and in one to two years whether surgery or radiotherapy has been effective.

What does cured mean?

A cancer is considered cured if after treatment the patient remains free from symptoms for five years. But just as an infection may appear to be cured only to recur, so too may a cancer appear to be cured only to recur. And just as one infection may be cured only to be followed by a different, unrelated infection, so too may one cancer be cured only to be followed by a different, unrelated cancer. For this reason, doctors talk about cures in terms of years: a five-year cure, a six-year cure, a 10-year cure.

What can the patient do to help himself?

There is very little the patient can do to help himself physically: but he can help himself mentally in the following ways:

•By participating in group discussions;

•By inviting help from the hospital social workers, who are there to assist him;

•By seeking moral support from his family;

•By affirming life;

•By returning to work. Patients often think that they cannot work, when they can;

•By becoming as active as possible in hobbies and sports;

•By maintaining normal relationships;

•By talking openly about the cancer.

Are there instances when the treatment is worse than the cancer?

Yes. Surgery may alter the body radically; radiotherapy and chemotheropy may sicken the body. Unless survival is an end in itself, a patient may wish to refuse treatment that threatens to destroy the quality of his life. Since one person's happiness may be another's hell, every patient must judge for himself whether treatment is desirable.

Isn't cancer the No. 1 killer?

No. Heart disease kills more people each year than cancer. In the United States, heart disease accounts for approximately 38 percent of all deaths, while cancer accounts for approximately 19 percent.

Cancers of the lung, colon-rectum, and prostate account for approximately 55 percent of all cancer deaths in men.

Which individual cancers do women most often die from?

Cancers of the breast, colon-rectum, and lung account for approximately 46 percent of all cancer deaths in women.

Leukemia, the most common form of childhood cancer, accounts for approximately 52 percent of all cancer deaths in children under 15.

Are cancer deaths on the increase?

Yes. Since people are living longer than ever before, since pollution is widespread, and since cancer is a disease of old age, it is not surprising that cancer deaths are on the increase. In particular, cancers of the lung, pancreas, and kidney are killing more people today than they did twenty years ago. But deaths from childhood cancers, lymphomas, and cancer of the stomach are on the decline, as are deaths from cancer of the cervix.

Do men or women have the higher cancer rate?

Between the ages of 20 and 40, women suffer cancer more than three times as often as men. Between the ages of 50 and 60, men account for more cancers than women. In total, however women account for more cancer cases than men.

Do whites or non-whites have the higher cancer rate?

For whites under 65, the cancer rate is slightly higher than for non-whites. For whites over 65, the cancer rate is slightly lower.

What age group does cancer most often strike?

The highest cancer rate occurs in the age group of 65 and older. The second highest rate is in the age group 50 to 65. In children and young adults, cancer is rare. In adults, cancer kills one out of five people; in children, cancer (usually leukemia) kills one out of 28 of all those who die under the age of 15.

What does cancer cost in dollars?

When a cancer patient is hospitalized, the average length of his stay in the hospital is sixteen days at a total cost of about $400 a day ($6,400). There are approximately 1.5 million cancer patients hospitalized each year. The cost: $9.6 billion. This figure does not include doctor bills, outpatient treatment, therapy, and time lost from work. The total cost is well over $30 billion.

Watergate Judge Speaks Out On Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge John J. Sirica says if Richard M. Nixon had been convicted of Watergate crimes in his courtroom, Sirica would have sentenced the former president to prison.

The 75-year-old Sirica, a senior judge on the U.S. District Court here, said Sunday that Nixon should have faced a trial and courtroom cross-examination.

Sirica presided over many of the formal Watergate trials and other related court proceedings in the mid-1970s.

He has written a book about Watergate, which is to be published this month.

Interviewed on CBS' "60 Minutes," the judge said Nixon resigned from office because he faced impeachment or indictment, not because "politicians got him."

Twenty-five or 50 years from now, the public may feel that "the politicians ran the president out" of the White House, Sirica said.

"That is not the case," he said. "He resigned, No. 1, because he was going to be impeached, and he knew it, or he was going to be indicted."

Had Nixon been convicted in his courtroom, the judge said, "I would have sent him to jail but I don't know what sentence I would have imposed."

On the White House tapes, Sirica said he regretted not permitting the tapes to be broadcast "because I think if the public ever hears those tapes, if the time ever comes when they're released and played so everybody can hear them, they won't have any doubt in their mind whatsoever about his participation in this matter."

The magazine reported Sunday that Jaworski rejects the assertion of Nixon's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, that she accidentally erased part of the tape.

In his soon-to-be published memoir, the former special prosecutor maintains that only Nixon had access to the tape and the recorder when an erasure could have been made. "And only he knew what was on the tape and what portion might be incriminating."

SHRINE OPENED

TOKYO (AP) — The birthplace of the Chinese philosopher Confucius was opened to foreigners Sunday after restoration of relics "seriously damaged" on orders of the radical "Gang of Four," China's Xinhua news agency reported. The shrine at Qufu , in Shandong Province, was restored, Xinhua said, under the policy of "clearly distinguishing between appraisal of historical figures and the preservation of historical relics."

Heart Disease Top Killer

Isn't cancer the No. 1 killer?

No. In the United States, heart disease accounts for approximately 38 percent of all deaths, while cancer accounts for approximately 19 percent.

It may be better at age 50 to have cancer of the vocal cords than to have a serious heart attack. The first is curable, the second is not.

15 leading causes of death: United States, 1975

Cause of Death	Number of Deaths	% of Death
1—Diseases of Heart	716,215	37.8
2—Cancer	365,693	19.3
3—Stroke	194,038	10.3
4—Accidents	103,030	5.4

Other & Ill-defined Causes	240,655	12.8

Which individual cancers are the most curable?

Bladder	Lip	Skin (melanoma)
Breast	Lymph nodes	Testes
Cervix	Penis	Thyroid
Eye	Prostate	Uterus
Larynx	Salivary gland	Vulva

NM LAW CHANGED

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico's new death penalty law, which becomes effective July 1, replaces the gas chamber with lethal injections and provides that people convicted of a capital crime will receive a second trial to determine punishment. Gov. Bruce King signed the law Friday, replacing one that was ruled unconstitutional in 1976.

Smuggling Of Birds Being Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators are looking into what sources say may be a widespread and lucrative business of selling stolen and possibly smuggled cockatoos, parrots and other imported "exotic" birds.

Aside from the criminal aspects, the birds are posing a threat to the vast U.S. poultry industry because of the possibility of spreading exotic Newcastle disease, which is highly-contagious, into flocks of broilers and egg-laying hens.

The Agriculture Department, which handles import and other regulatory programs aimed at preventing the introduction of foreign diseases that affect animals and plants, is alarmed that exotic Newcastle could decimate poultry flocks at a time when increased production is wanted to help offset soaring retail prices of red meat.

According to federal sources, who asked not to be identified, the department's Office of Inspector General, the Justice Department and the U.S. Customs Service are involved in investigating various aspects of thievery, possible smuggling and other violations involving birds.

The investigations were disclosed after USDA announced last week that it has "temporarily halted" exotic bird imports through commercially operated quarantine facilities that normally operate under department certification.

More than 80 of these establishments were shut down immediately by the order. Normally, birds are shipped to the private facilities and have to spend time in quarantine to make sure they are not diseased.

The businesses shut down handle an estimated 95 percent of the birds imported by U.S. dealers and others. However, three import centers operated by USDA in Clifton, N.J.; Miami, Fla.; and Honolulu will continue to operate.

The department's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, which calls itself APHIS, said the closing were necessary because of recent outbreaks of exotic Newcastle disease in California, Florida, Arizona and Nevada.

Frank J. Mulhern, administrator of APHIS, said investigations "suggest that serious problems exist" in some of the private quarantine facilities.

"Stronger security measures must be taken to deal with the risk involved in importing birds from around the world," he said. "If this cannot be achieved, the only alternative would be to prohibit the importation of such birds."

Mulhern added that exotic Newcastle disease "appears to be reaching worldwide epidemic proportions" and that since last October the disease has been diagnosed during quarantine in 24 groups of birds from 12 different countries. Only 15 groups were found diseased in all of the preceding year.

The order does not apply to commercial shipments of birds now on their way to the United States or already in the privately owned facilities.

Although solid figures were not available, one department estimate showed that about 350,000 of the birds entered the United States through the commercial import facilities last year.

One of the sources said that the business is growing rapidly, particularly in some areas — including California — where "it's something of a status symbol" to have a foreign bird or two in the home.

DR. LAMB

Fibroid Tumors

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate your discussing fibroid tumors. I have a friend who had them in the uterus and all she had was a D and C. I had another friend with the same thing but they removed her uterus. Now I've been told by a my gynecologist that I have a fibroid tumor. He will do an operation and remove it with the uterus and the ovaries. He wants to take out the ovaries because I'm over 50. Are fibroid tumors cancerous? Do they grow? How are they started? At this time I feel good and don't have any pain. Is it necessary to have the operation?

DEAR READER: The reason tumors are called fibroid is because they are hard, fibrous tissue. Sometimes they are called myofibroma, which refers to the fact that they have tissue in them related to muscles in the uterus. In any case, the simple, uncomplicated fibroid tumor is not cancerous. That's one reason dontors don't get too upset about them as long as they aren't too large and aren't causing symptoms.

Your friend who had a D and C (a type of examination) apparently didn't really have any symptoms and the doctor checked to make sure she didn't have a disorder that needed additional treatment.

If the fibroid tumor is too large and is causing pressure on another organ, the doctor may decide to remove it. Also, some small fibroids, depending upon their location in the uterus, can cause excessive or frequent bleeding. That also is an indication for removal. The decision really has to be made on first-hand knowledge of how large the tumor is, where it's located and what symptoms it's producing. Your doctor is in the best position to know these things, in your case.

Yes, fibroid tumors often grow, although since they are not cancer, they don't spread. The main effects, again, are pressure symptoms and bleeding.

Nobody knows how fibroid tumors are started, just as we really don't know how cancer starts. This is true of many tumors, both malignant and benign. We know many factors contribute to such problems, but often we don't know the real cause.

You didn't comment on whether or not you've gone through the menopause, but since you're over 50, it is reasonable to presume you either have or soon will. Under those circumstances, if a woman does have a hysterectomy, many doctors feel it's a good idea to remove the ovaries as well.

If the ovaries aren't functioning, about all they do at that point is provide a possible source of ovarian cancer. It isn't a real common cancer, but when it does occur, it is often not detected until it has already spread. So why leave something in the body that can't help and may harm the person?

Since you are at the menopause age, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Austin Voters Facing Nuclear Decision

AUSTIN (AP) — Pro-nuclear forces in Austin fear a fallout of concern radiating from a crippled nuclear plant near Harrisburg, Pa., may melt down support at the polls for the largest nuclear project planned for Texas.

"Something like 36 percent of the voters were undecided. It is hard to sell the undecided when something like this is happening," said Betty Himmelblau, a city council member and proponent of the nuclear project.

Austin voters will decide Saturday if they want to hold onto their 16 percent interest in the $2.07 billion South Texas Nuclear Project.

And that balloting could chart the future course of the nuclear power industry, buffeted by the storm of controversy brewing in Harrisburg.

Project proponents fear the crisis in Pennsylvania could not have come at a worse time.

"If they (anti-nuclear forces) had gone out there and put a wrench to that valve they would have picked that day to do it," said John Rogers, who is running the campaign for the Texas project.

"It would take a political genius to pull this one out. "I've never been involved in a situation where we don't have any control, where the opposition has the lead story on CBS, NBC and ABC television ...," he said.

Taxpayers are being asked to spend $215.85 million in addition to the $160 million already approved for the plant under construction at a site about 70 miles southwest of Houston.

There are four propositions on the Austin ballot. The first would give the city authority to borrow money to pay for cost overruns at the project. The second determines whether the city should sell its 16 percent interest.

Proposition three asks whether Austin should borrow $33.9 million to build a coal or lignite fueled generating plant. And the fourth would give the council the power to use revenues from selling the city's interest in the project for building a coal or lignite plant.

City Councilman Richard Goodman planned a news conference today to push for a coalition between pro and anti-nuclear forces to work toward approval for a lignite-fired plant.

Anti-nuclear groups in the Texas capital are sponsoring 30-second radio spots that make pointed references to the Harrisburg situation.

Before the Harrisburg incident both sides confidently predicted easy victories. But now, the pro-nuclear Committee For Economic Energy is almost conceding defeat.

Austin voted against joining the project in 1971, the voted in favor of it by 207 votes in 1973 at the height of the Arab oil embargo. In 1976 Austin voters overwhelmingly turned down pulling out of the project and then turned down a proposition to sell half its interest in a January referendum.

The 2,500-megawatt project originally was scheduled to begin producing power in 1980, but the completion date has been pushed back until sometime in 1982.

Husbands Won Over By Wives' Behavior

By CATHERINE MARSHALL

The letter I was about to answer posed an all-too-familiar problem:

"I married a skeptic, a man who had no Christian background. At first this meant little to me since I thought I could change him. That hasn't worked. We've been married 11 years and have three boys. The boys and I go to church, but I cannot get my husband to go. Inevitably our sons are going to count Christianity 'a woman's thing' of lesser importance since it doesn't matter to their father. How clearly I see what blessing and happiness could be ours as a family if we could live together in Christ.

"Tell me — how can I pray? What can I do?"

MRS. MARSHALL

Having never been married to a skeptic, I could scarcely answer my correspondent's question from personal experience. But I could share with her the experience of friends. Their advice is surprisingly consistent.

Treena Kerr, wife of television's Galloping Gourmet, Graham Kerr, is an especially articulate representative of this group. Four years ago Christ delivered Treena from the pit of drugs, alcoholism and a disintegrating marriage. Soon after that she was given clear-out instructions about how to relate to her husband.

"Put a golden zipper on your mouth," she was told. "Say not a word to Graham about what has happened. No Bibles or religious books or tapes lying about the house. Pray secretly. Don't go rushing to religious meetings — not yet."

One night as Treena was reading her Bible in the bathroom, one verse seemed written in fire: "...you wives, be submissive to your husbands, so that some, though they do not obey the word, may be won without a word by the behavior of their wives." (I Peter 3:1, RSV).

Treena was excited to see in print the verification of the golden zipper instruction that she had been given directly. But, she thought, that behavior of their wives suggested another dimension.

"Tell me, Lord," she asked in prayer, "what behavior of mine will get that result?"

"I chose you as a woman, the reply came. Being a woman is a glorious thing. But it doesn't mean to be in competition with your husband. Put him first. Putting someone else first is love in action. Love him with My love. Set yourself to do what pleases him and leave the rest to Me."

What pleases him.... That can vary so much from man to man. If he prefers freshly-brewed coffee rather than instant, then take the time for it. Make his favorite dessert. Dress up just for him. Give him some undivided attention. Find special ways to help him carry his responsibilities.

In Treena's case it took just three months for her prayers for Graham to be answered.

"During most of that time," she told me, "Graham was reading Chinese philosophy, his latest passion, and watching me with increasing curiosity. Over and above kicking booze and drugs, the changes in me were so obvious — no temper tantrums, fewer arguments, my stridency ebbing out. So finally Graham began to ask questions. Only then was I given permission to unlock the zipper on my mouth."

Whereupon the born-again experience of the Galloping Gourmet became front-page news across the nation.

Here, then, is the capsuled advice of these friends of mine who once were married to skeptics, but now know the joy of a home unified in Christ:

1. Claim for your situation that great promise, I Corinthians 7:14 (1), and

Grand Jury Probe Of Bullock Closed

AUSTIN (UPI) — Saying it's up to the Legislature to protect taxpayers' money, a district attorney has closed the books on allegations of misconduct by Comptroller Bob Bullock.

A six-month Travis County grand jury investigation of Bullock's office ended last week without indicting or exonerating the comptroller, who is threatening to sue a previous grand jury for its eight-page blistering report that fueled the most recent investigation.

The previous grand jury on Dec. 29 issued a report castigating Bullock for destroying airplane flight logs and thwarting investigations of alleged use of state planes for political purposes and pleasure trips, and "lavish spending" by the comptroller's office on everything from expensive hotels to plush office furnishings.

But the most recent grand jury ended its term Thursday without even mentioning Bullock. And District Attorney Ronald Earle, saying allegations of misconduct must be judged at the ballot box and not in a courtroom, closed the inquiry.

Earle said he had no plans to recommend the Legislature consider any law changes to cover alleged misuse of state equipment and employees — such as jaunts to New Orleans in state airplanes — for which he said he could not justify indicting Bullock.

"Protecting the taxpayers' money is the mission of the Legislature — not this office," he told reporters."This office can't redress all of the supposed areas where people might disagree as to what's proper and what's not.

"This office is not the proper place to come if there's no evidence of a crime."

Earle, who drew criticism from the previous grand jury for failing to present more evidence in connection with the allegations against Bullock, said people unhappy with the actions of state officials should not expect prosecutors to indict officeholders for sins that are not crimes.

Mennonite Land Slated For Auction Tuesday

SEMINOLE (UPI) — Two years ago, a group of settlers purchased a 6,400-acre ranch they hoped would provide a living for hundreds of fellow Mennonite immigrants from Canada and Mexico. Now the land is up for auction.

"I sure hate to see this happen," said Peter Bergen, a spokesman for the settlers who had banked on the arrival of other Mennonites and the economic transfusion they would provide.

"We worked long and hard for that land, but now there's just nothing we can do about it."

The land is scheduled to be auctioned off Tuesday in what will be the legal affirmation of a conclusion the settlers reached nearly two months ago when they defaulted on a $225,037 land payment.

Staggering land interest payments that developed when the second wave of immigrants was barred from entering the United States, weather problems and the failure to secure water rates on all the acreage led to the Mennonites' inability to make a Feb. 15 land payment.

However, the default actually affected only a small number of the settlers since most members of the religious group — accustomed to self-reliance and the practice of a fundamentalist religion — had left the 10-section 70 Ranch southwest of Seminole months ago.

About 650 of them live in the area of the ranch and hope to stay if Congress passes legislation this year to make them permanent residents. A few months ago, their hopes to stay in the U.S. seemed in jeopardy, but now virtually all the family heads have found jobs that will ensure them and their dependents permanent resident status.

The Lamesa National Bank and Dennis Nix, a Lamesa farmer who sold the Mennonites the land, officially forclosed on the land in February.

Seminole attorney John Shepherd, who has represented the Mennonites in the past, said the auction Tuesday is the legal way for Nix to reclaim his land.

"The deed of trust serves as a mortgage," he said, "and when a payment is missed, the note is accelerated. The bank can call in all the outstanding debt instead of just the one missed payment."

But he said that also applies to a potential buyer and the payment must be made in cash Tuesday. Shepherd said the Mennonites will be paid the amount over the original cost if the land can be sold above its original purchase price.

If there are no buyers Tuesday, a second auction could be scheduled in May.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A1093 ♡J98 ◇AQJ954
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have several choices—you can rebid your diamonds, raise hearts or introduce your spade suit. Our choice would be to bid one spade. We believe that a good four-card major should always be shown at the one-level, if possible. While this bid is, technically, not forcing, the odds are that partner will bid again. And if he does not, you probably have missed nothing.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ98753 ♡A ◇QJ102
Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—Despite the fact that the hand could be a misfit, chances for slam are excellent. Your spade suit is virtually self-sustaining, and as little as one diamond honor in partner's hand might make twelve tricks a laydown. The way to flash the slam signal to partner is to jump shift to two spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK765 ♡KQ7 ◇AQ4 ♠J3
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—You have a find hand, but partner has announced a hand that is strong only in terms of distribution. In high cards he cannot have much—certainly not two aces. While it is tempting to make one try for slam in the hope that partner has the right hand, you have no safety at the five level. Therefore, pass and settle for what appears to be a sure vulnerable game.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J2 ♡A54 ◇Q1096 ♠K1053
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ◇	?

What action do you take?

A.—Resist the impulse to bid two no trump. You have a hand that rates to take at least four tricks on defense against a diamond contract, and partner has opened the bidding. The opponents are in deep trouble, and you must not allow them to escape unpunished. Double.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K642 ♡Q743 ◇Q765 ♠8
Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—When partner opens the bidding with one club and we have only enough for one response, it is usually our desire to introduce a four-card major if we hold one. Here, however, we are perfectly placed if we respond one diamond. That gives partner the opportunity to show a major at the one level, but also leaves him free to raise diamonds if he holds a minor two-suiter.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ7 ♡65 ◇K92 ♠AQ982
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—You have 14 high-card points and a balanced hand. You gain nothing with this type of holding by temporizing with a bid of two clubs. Your most descriptive response, showing your distribution and stoppers in the unbid suits, is a jump to two no trump.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ97653 ♡107 ◇KJ ♠82
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Thus far, you have promised partner no more than a rebiddable spade suit and about 7 points. In actual fact you have a strong playing hand, which is improved by the fact that you hold two key honors even though you might be off two fast club tricks, and our recommendation is to simply bid what you think you can make—six spades. The drawback to a cue-bid of five diamonds is that it will tip off the opponents to your club weakness. They might not lead a club on a less revealing auction.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ1083 ♡94 ◇AJ105 ♠J5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	4 ♡	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	5 ♡	Dble.	Pass
Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—It is clear that your side has the preponderance of high cards, and that you have all three side suits, well under control. Obviously, the opponents are relying on distributional holdings to produce most of their tricks. To prevent declarer from scoring more tricks on a crossruff than is his right, lead a trump—and another as soon as you regain the lead.

Calculators Help With Math Classes

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Calculators and computers must begin to play key roles in mathematics education in American classrooms, says a Syracuse University professor.

Howard Johnson, associate professor of mathematics, teaches an innovative course he hopes will make teachers more aware of the technological value of the calculator as a classroom tool as early as elementary school.

"What we want to do is make the fullest possible use of calculators," he says. "By 1980 the number of calculators in the American home will rival the number of television sets and refrigerators. We have to be ready to use that technology and make the children able to function well in that society."

In the not too distant future, Johnson says, the repetitious kind of classroom calculations which occupy teachers and students today, using pencil and paper, will be done totally on calculators.

"For example, we spend a lot of classroom time with basic computational skills like addition, subtraction, working with whole numbers and fractions. These are already increasingly done, outside the classroom, with calculators. If this is so, why are we spending all our time in the elementary school curriculum teaching repetitive exercises with paper and pencil?"

Far from advocating doing away with the basics, Johnson says the basic arithmetical skills should be learned early and well. Once learned, however, they should not be repeated endlessly, varying only the size of the numbers used in problems.

"If a student can multiply one and two-digit numbers, and has understood the concept of multiplication, of what use is it to continue repeating the problems into four-, five-and six-digit numbers when the basic concept remains the same? And when calculators can do in seconds what it could take the student an hour to achieve? We can put that time to much better use."

Judicious use of calculators in the classroom, starting in the primary grades, frees the teacher for other instruction. "Students can learn how to determine when an answer is reasonable — and how to approximate an answer — and move along to other mathematical concepts which are becoming necessary skills in a computer-calculator society," Johnson says.

His course, which attracts a moderate number of teacher-candidate students from the Syracuse University School of Education, emphasizes how calculators can be used to best advantage in the classroom.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Did you know that for $12.50 you can buy a realistic-looking, inflatable, plastic torso of a person to place in a passenger seat when driving alone or in a chair when not at home?

I've seen several of these silent partners that are being sold for protection for women living alone.

Save your money. For a few bucks more you can get a full-sized model that you can prop up at the breakfast table, watch TV with, or use to fill in at a dinner party. They're called husbands.

Granted, they're not as believable as the inflatable models, but they come in a variety of sizes, stay pressurized, and are self-cleaning.

I don't mean to imply that the inflatable-men manufacturers aren't on the right track. Frankly, there is still a need for a male presence. I have found that in making a major purchase like a car or furniture, salesmen will not pay any attention to you unless a man is along. (This in spite of the fact that my husband releases the hood every time he thinks he is releasing the emergency brake.)

Single people going out to dinner will be assured of getting a table away from the wall with a male figure along. And you don't have to listen to his whining about how dancing is a fad like the hula hoop and mood rings and will eventually go out of style.

They'd be wonderful to play bridge with or sit on the beach with (they wouldn't burn), and on a vacation they would fold to envelope size in your luggage right next to your plastic raincoat.

You could toss 'em into a playpen and give the children a feeling of warmth and security that they have a Daddy who plays with them, use them for throw pillows for lonely wives who can curl up with them on a winter evening by the fire (not too close to the fire), and send one to his mother on Mother's Day to show her you care.

A friend of mine, being practical, decided to buy an inflatable plastic torso and put it on the passenger side of the car so it would look like a licensed driver while her teenager was learning how to drive.

Retired Persons Return To School

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — As a teacher, Jim Walter couldn't have it any better.

"Can you believe it? Applause! It really threw me the first time it happened," Walter said.

But it happens at Trinity Retirement Home where Walter teaches an introductory course in humanities once a week. Walter, 33, is less than half the age of his youngest student. His oldest student is 95.

The class is part of Sinclair Community College's effort to serve older citizens who can attend state institutions tuition-free after they reach 60.

There are 28 students in Walter's class and attendance is high despite some of the ailments that afflict the elderly residents.

It doesn't bother Edna von Bargen that her eyesight is failing. Nor does it bother her that she is beginning college at the age of 95. What matters to her is that she's learning.

Miss von Bargen, who graduated from high school in 1902 and taught school for 36 years with no college training, said: "People come to visit me from my hometown and wonder why I'm going to college now.

"I'm basically a nosy person so I want to know more. I'm learning a lot in this course.

"They ask me, 'How can you go to school if you can't see?' I tell them, 'I can see through my ears.' I'm enjoying everything I've heard."

For some students, such as Elnora Dunlap, the course is a trip down memory lane. She and her husband visited Rome and Florence some years ago and saw the Renaissance paintings being talked about in her class.

"I just eat this stuff up," Mrs. Dunlap said. "It's like I'm in Italy all over again."

Employers Consider Job Reforms

By BETTY YARMON

NEW YORK (WNS) — Bored with your job? Tired of how you spend your working days? Why not suggest to your boss some of the job reforms being instituted these days by enlightened employers all across America — reforms that may well be applicable to where you work?

1. Production lines are being redesigned, to cut down the layers of supervision, increase diversity and reduce the isolation of line workers. Some workers now decide how fast to run their production line and when to shut it down for a rest period. In other plants, workers move from one job to another from day to day; in a few spots, office and production teams shift jobs on rotating schedules.

2. Jobs are being reconstructed so that individual workers get clearly defined areas of responsibility under what is called the "whole-job" concept. In a reverse of traditional American industrial efforts to break down each job into its smallest component parts, more and more workers now assemble the complete product, not just one part, to heighten their sense of accomplishment. In some plants, employees work as a group, to meet weekly objectives they themselves set.

3. There is a shift away from the hourly pay rate to an annual salary, with bonuses often related to productivity. Profit-sharing plans are being set up for lower-level workers and promotion is being speeded up where warranted.

4. Workers are meeting with management on job-related problems. As a refinement, some companies are inviting workmen into the classroom so they can be involved in solving problems and contributing their know-how.

5. Factories and offices are being made more attractive physically, with walls often broken down so that everyone and everything are out in the open.

6. The dullest and dirtiest jobs are being automated. In that context, sociologists are beginning to check which jobs seem to involve the most drudgery with the least job satisfaction. (One such list, offered by Roy Walters, head of a New Jersey management company: assembly-line worker, elevator operator in push-button elevator, typist in office typing pool, bank guard, copying-machine operator, keypunch operator, highway toll collector, car watcher in tunnel, file clerk and housewife.)

7. Time off is being given for errands.

It is all part of a revolutionary move these past few years to try to make jobs more pleasant by adding interest and incentives to work that has become monotonous and frustrating.

Not that American employers have suddenly become altruistic. Rather, this move undoubtedly results from an alarming drop in productivity, which has forced employers to look to solutions other than closer supervision and tighter discipline, or improved benefits and working conditions, in the effort to combat rising rates of costly absenteeism and turnover.

In seeking out the causes of this declining productivity, industry has become aware that the strains in our society are in part responsible, among them:

- a growing questioning of establishment institutions in many areas of life, business included;
- changing lifestyles generally;
- a distaste for the treadmill, particularly among young workers, but which affects their elders as well;
- rising educational levels and a failure of jobs to match these levels, bringing on serious underemployment.

Whatever the reasons, businesses all over America are instituting changes coming to be known as "job enrichment." While these innovations in the main are directed toward assembly-line manual jobs, to provide blue-collar workers with benefits previously enjoyed only by higher-level workers, the move reaches into white-collar ranks, too.

Just where all this will lead is anyone's guess. But there is general agreement that business and industry will never again be the same.

As for us workers, more and more of us seem determined that work need not be the unhappy fact of life it has been for generations, and that with a little extra thought and consideration, we can all look forward to our time each day on the job.

NOW Plans Meeting

The Lubbock chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) will hold a public meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation, 2420 15th St.

Marie Tedesco, a professor at Texas Tech University, will be the special speaker. Her topic will be "Herstory."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the third grader who wanted to give out 23 invitations to her birthday party when there were 29 in her class:

Bless you, Abby, for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let her give out the invitations at school unless everyone in the class was invited. (You said, "The pain of having been left out will remain with those six who were uninvited long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.")

You are so right, Abby. I'm 29, and I still get pains in my stomach when I recall how one popular girl in my sixth grade class invited everybody but me and another girl to her Halloween party. She gave out printed invitations, then, the day before the party, she must have realized that we knew about it and felt hurt, so she "invited" us, but told us the wrong time!

My mother hurriedly made me a costume and dropped me off at the girl's house. I kept ringing the doorbell for the longest time. When nobody answered, I walked home crying.

Painful Memories

Dear Memories: I received a surprising number of letters from others who also had some painful memories:

• • •

I remember when a girl in my class had a sweet-16 party and I wasn't invited because I wore a heavy brace on my leg as a result of polio.

I'll never forget this heartless girl telling me to my face that she really liked me, but didn't invite me to her party because there would be dancing and I wouldn't have a very good time sitting and watching everyone else dance!

J.W.D., Chicago

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column certainly jogged some unhappy memories of my school days. When I was in the eighth grade, a girl in my room had a birthday party and invited everybody in the class but me and another girl. Her party was held on a Friday night and I skipped school that day because I was so humiliated I didn't think I could face my classmates without breaking down in tears.

That was 53 years ago, but I remember it as though it was yesterday.

Celia in Cleveland

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let a student pass out invitations to a party. I am a retired schoolteacher who frequently had to fight the same battle with some of my students' mothers. You would not believe how insensitive some people could be!

Some kids would have parties and exclude all the Jewish kids ... or the black kids ... or the Indian kids.

Small wonder some of those youngsters grew up to be bigots. They were carefully taught at home that anybody who was "different" was inferior. Thank heavens things are different now.

Former Teacher: S.D.

DEAR ABBY: When I was in fifth grade, we moved out of state and I had to change schools. Being very shy, I didn't make friends very easily at my new school, so when the popular boy in the class had a party, he invited everyone except me and a very fat boy. I felt terribly hurt.

One of the kids in our class liked the fat boy, and refused to attend the party unless he was invited, too. The fat boy in turn said HE wouldn't go unless "the new kid" (me) was invited. So as it turned out everyone in the class went and had a good time!

S.L. in Illinois

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from the woman who was disgusted with stupid television commercials: She asked, "What ever happened to those wonderful free samples companies used to send out to acquaint people with their products?"

Well, I know what happened to several cases of free samples that should have been delivered but weren't.

They were taken home and kept in the family.

Disgusted

Dear Disgusted: If you are absolutely sure of your facts, the person responsible for delivering those free samples should be reported.

... the Beautiful way to Your Perfect Figure Pat Walker's

Fay Burton's True Story

When people I'd worked with for 23 years started calling me Fat Fay, I just laughed it off. After all, they were right—I weighed 166 pounds, and my size 16 clothes were getting a little tight.

Mother and me in 1975, before Pat Walker's.

But my doctor didn't think my weight was funny. He said the problems I was having—tension headaches and back pains—wouldn't get better till I got thinner. His recommendation: go to Pat Walker's.

I took his advice and, using money from my grocery budget, began treatments on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit. It was easier than I thought it could be. I didn't have to change clothes or ruin my makeup or hairdo. And I didn't have to share a treatment room with anyone.

The change that came over me was fantastic. Not only did my weight start going down, but my whole mental attitude improved. If I sometimes felt tense or anxious, I knew all I had to do was go to Pat Walker's to feel relaxed again.

I'm happy to report that I've reached that goal—I now weigh 125 pounds! When I go shopping, it's for size 7's.

I can't imagine what shape I'd be in today if I hadn't taken my doctor's advice. I do know that, at 41, I have a new lease on life...and now, instead of that nickname, I get whistles and compliments.

Local Woman Reports Assault

Police this morning were looking for a man who allegedly kidnapped a 26-year-old Lubbock woman shortly before 10 p.m. Sunday and forced her to perform oral sex.

The woman said she was approaching her car, parked behind a doughnut shop near the Texas Tech University campus, when she saw a man in her vehicle.

Reports indicate the man, thought to be about 25 years old, jumped out of the vehicle armed with a knife and forced his victim inside the car.

The woman told police her abductor ordered her to undress as he was driving her car east of the city on a dirt road. She said she did as she was told, and that the man then made her perform oral sex.

Reports state the man drove the woman back to the doughnut shop, and then drove off in the victim's car. The vehicle was later found in the 2200-block of 18th Street.

The woman said the man told her he was from Long Beach, Calif., and that he was wanted by the law.

In other activity, a 29-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 1 a.m. today after he allegedly went for a gun while in confrontation with a city policeman.

Officer Guadalupe Garza said he was off duty and at a convenience store at 40th Street and Avenue A when the suspect drove up to the store's gasoline pumps.

Apparently angered over having to pay for the gas before using the pumps, the man entered the store and reportedly said to the attendant, "How am I supposed to know how much gas to pay for before I put it in? Can you tell me how much gas the damn thing is going to hold?"

Garza, who was in civilian clothes, told the man if he had a complaint he should contact the store owner. Reports indicate the man's reply to Garza was, "You want some —? I'll give you some —."

Garza said in his report that the man appeared to be reaching for a gun. The officer quickly pulled his service revolver, informed the irate customer he was a policeman and ordered the man to put his hands on the counter.

Garza said he found a .357 magnum pistol tucked in the man's waistband. The suspect was booked into the county jail.

Joe Rios, 23, of 916 E. Rice St., and Gilbert Loera Ortiz, 21, address unknown, told police they were shot at by someone who drove up next to their car about 8 p.m. Sunday in Mackenzie Park.

They said someone in another car also threw a beer bottle at them, striking Ortiz in the cheek. Rios received a cut on the temple, possibly from flying glass, according to reports.

Police said they could not get a good description of the men's attackers. Ortiz and Rios were taken to separate Lubbock hospitals, where they were treated and released.

About 30 minutes later, police were again called to the park where Leon Salinas, 25, of Route 9, Box 266, Lubbock, told them someone had tried to murder him.

Salinas said he was standing at a park exit when three Mexican-American men drove up and one of them fired a gun at him. The bullet struck Salinas in the left shoulder, but he was not seriously injured, reports indicate.

Lonnie Morin Jr., 20, of 2717 Emory St., said someone tried to kill him about 2:40 p.m. Sunday while he was traveling south on Avenue A. He said that an 18-year-old Mexican-American man drove up beside him and fired two shots into his car door.

Morin, who was not injured, told police he recognized the man as the same person who shot at him and his girlfriend last Christmas. No arrest had been made by early today.

An 18-year-old man, who allegedly pulled a gun on a cab driver about 2:50 a.m. today, was arrested after a brief foot chase with a city policeman.

Billie Mullen Draper, 48, told police the man got into his cab in the 1700-block of Parkway Drive and asked to be driven to a residence in the 2300- block of 25th Street.

The man allegedly threatened to pistol-whip Draper after the cab driver requested a deposit on the fare. Reports indicate Draper ordered the suspect out of the cab.

The man, reports state, got out of the vehicle and pulled a long-barreled revolver just as a police patrol car drove up. The gun-wielder reportedly ran, but was caught by the officer in a nearby vacant field and transported to the county jail.

Two Texas Tech students Sunday morning were released from county jail, where they had been taken earlier following a high-speed chase by university and city police about 1:30 a.m. just east of the university.

Lubbock police arrested the 21-year-old driver of the pickup truck for driving while intoxicated, evading arrest and reckless conduct and issued him 18 traffic citations after the incident, which ended in an alley in the 1900-block of 16th Street.

The driver was released to the custody of his attorney and the passenger was out on bail.

Reports show that a Texas Tech police unit pursued the pickup following its collision with a sports car on the university campus. The pickup's occupants failed to stop at the accident scene.

As a Tech police car pursued the pickup at a high rate of speed, a Lubbock police unit joined the eastbound chase on Main Street. Reports show the pickup, with the police units in pursuit, ran a red light at Broadway and University Avenue.

Officers said the driver then made an illegal turn onto 14th Street from University Avenue and ran the stop sign at 14th Street and Avenue X.

Officers said the vehicle then headed west down an alley in the 2400-block of 15th Street; cut through a nearby service station, running over two gasoline pumps; went down 15th Street, a one-way street, the wrong way; and almost collided head-on with the Lubbock police unit.

The chase continued with the pickup heading east on 16th Street, bouncing off several curbs and running another stop sign and two red lights. Police said the driver was forced to stop in an alley in the 1900-block of 16th Street after the pickup's headlights failed.

Officers estimated $4,000 worth of damage to the two gas pumps that were run over during the incident.

Burglars took more than $3,000 worth of household goods from two residences in the 1900-block of Fourth Place sometime late Saturday or early Sunday.

Minerva Alcorta of 1906 Fourth Place said the thieves removed $2,270 worth of property from her home, including a portable color TV, stereo and kitchen utensils.

John Rios of 1910 Fourth Place said the burglars stole $1,075 worth of goods from his place, including a set of golf clubs, jewelry and clothing.

Ricky G. Rangel of 2108 28th St. said someone carted off $1,085 worth of stereo equipment from his home sometime between 5:30 and 11:15 p.m. Saturday. He told officers it was the second time in two weeks that his residence had been broken into.

Thomas Allen Jr. of 3825 53rd St. reported that thieves took $844 worth of tools and tapes from three vehicles that were parked at his home sometime between 8 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Katherine Graves, who had been hospitalized since Tuesday, returned to her apartment at 1802 Sixth St. Sunday to find that someone had made off with $487 worth of household items.

Everett Mayhall of 2626 Ave. K, rear, told police a black female entered his house late Saturday and stole his $150 TV set.

Mayhall, who is disabled, said the woman told him she was going to take the TV, they began arguing and that the woman picked up the TV, telling him that if he tried to stop her she would hurt him.

Mayhall said he went to a neighbor's house to call police and that when he returned, the woman and the TV set were gone. He described the woman as between 26 and 35, tall and thin.

Patty Hearst, Husband Honeymooning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newlyweds Patricia Hearst and Bernard Shaw, her former bodyguard, are honeymooning today in a secret spot after a gala wedding that capped five years of national attention for the kidnapped coed turned convict.

The couple boarded a private Lockheed jet Sunday night, hours after a double-ring Episcopalian ceremony in a flower-bedecked chapel on the Treasure Island naval base in San Francisco Bay.

"I've never seen Patty so happy. Don't you think it's about time?" said Janey Jimenez, a federal marshal who befriended Miss Hearst during her bank robbery trial.

Miss Jimenez was one of more than 300 guests at the mid-afternoon wedding under cloudless skies. The ceremony came two months to the day after Miss Hearst, 25, was released from federal prison on a presidential commutation of her seven-year sentence.

The guests, many in expensive furs, crowded the simple chapel for the traditional ceremony, which began with the wedding march and ended with "I do." But no rice was thrown and guests said neither the couple nor their families shed any tears.

Shaw, 33, is a divorced San Francisco police officer who met his bride while moonlighting as her bodyguard and proposed while she was behind bars. She has decided to keep her own surname while adding his — Patricia Hearst Shaw.

The bride stepped from a polished black limousine to the applause of spectators crowded around the chapel with nearly 100 reporters and photographers who were barred from the ceremony and reception.

The bride, smiling broadly, said nothing to reporters who shouted questions at her. But her mother, Catherine, said after the ceremony: "It was wonderful. I've waited five years for it."

The new Mrs. Shaw wore a bare-shouldered white gown of silk organza, satin and French lace. Around her neck hung an heirloom from her grandmother — a white gold and diamond pendant on a strand of pearls. She carried a lily-of-the-valley bouquet.

The mustachioed Shaw wore black tails, satin-striped trousers and a striped cravat.

The bride's maid of honor was her girlhood friend, Patricia Tobin, whose father is president of the San Francisco bank Miss Hearst was convicted of robbing with the Symbionese Liberation Army terrorists who kidnapped her in early 1974.

After the ceremony Sunday, the millionaire Hearst family threw a three-hour reception at a nearby Navy community center. Waiters poured from magnums of Taittinger French champagne and guests nibbled on a buffet dinner including chilled oysters.

The base, accessible only via the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, was chosen for the wedding because no one can get past sentries at the gate without a pass. The family also hired private security guards, and chartered 18 black limousines to carry many of the guests to and from the celebration.

Shaw, who makes about $20,000 a year, and his unemployed wife have said little about their plans for the future. Friends say they will live in his home in San Mateo County, south of San Francisco.

Police Finally Catch Young Joy Rider

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A Lubbock policeman became suspicious Sunday afternoon when a vehicle which appeared to be lacking a driver pulled up beside his patrol car.

However, the officer later learned it wasn't magic, but the work of a 14-year-old boy, all of 4 feet 6 inches tall, who decided to go joy riding.

Police also learned the 80-pound driver of the large Oldsmobile is a hard little man to bring down. In fact, impossible. Police, who chased the juvenile over much of east Lubbock, finally had to rely on the mother's touch.

The confused policeman, in his report, said he was at Fourth Street and Zenith Avenue when the car pulled up. "I couldn't see any driver, but I did observe several small children in the vehicle," he said. The passengers in the car were later learned to be two girls, ages 10 and 13, and two 7-month-old babies.

The officer said that shortly after observing the oddity, he stopped the car and was getting out of his patrol unit to talk to the diminutive driver, who was walking towards him. But apparently the youth decided not to give up so easily.

"Before I could get out of my vehicle (the youngster) turned and ran back to his car and locked the doors," the frustrated policeman said. The fun was just beginning when the boy sped off on East Fourth Street, the officer tailing behind with his emergency lights on and siren blaring.

Another patrolman joined in the pursuit, and the officers attempted to stop the Oldsmobile in the 100-block of Redbud Drive, but again the 14-year-old proved too much for them.

Reports show the youngster was traveling in excess of 60 miles per hour in 35 mph zones during the chase.

However, the joy ride seemed to be at an end when the juvenile failed to negotiate a turn at E. 16th Street and Quirt Avenue and ran into a stop sign.

Police, by this time, were not surprised when the boy jumped out of the car and ran away. "The officers could not catch him," a report states.

However, after questioning the young girls in the car, officers learned the name of the elusive driver. They contacted the boy's mother, who brought her son to the police station. Police, after several hours of work, finally had their man.

It was later learned that the boy had sneaked the car keys from his father's pocket.

Police gave the father a citation for allowing a minor to drive an automobile.

Jurors Resume Deliberations

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jurors who have reported some progress but no verdict spent their fourth day today studying charges against three ex-policemen accused of civil rights violations in the death of a teen-age auto theft suspect.

The federal court jury resumed deliberations at 9 a.m. after a weekend recess that followed three days of deliberations on four weeks of evidence in the trial of Danny H. Mays, Norval Wayne Holloway and Paul Danford Dillon.

Before the panel recessed Friday, jury foreman J.T. Taylor told U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals the panel was making progress in the case despite the fact that no verdict had been reached.

"Oh yes, we're making progress," Taylor said Friday in response to a question from the judge.

The former policemen are on trial in the Feb. 8, 1977, slaying of Randall Alan Webster, 17, of Shreveport. The youth was killed after a police chase of the stolen van he was driving.

Mays, 32, was accused of causing Webster's death, conspiring to obstruct justice and lying to a federal grand jury. He faced a possible life sentence if convicted.

Holloway, 29, was charged with planting an unloaded pistol on Webster's body in order to cover up the circumstances of the youth's death. He also was indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice and lying to a grand jury.

Dillon, 38, was accused of lying to police investigators and a grand jury, and with conspiring to obstruct justice.

Prosecutors claim Mays was pistol-whipping the suspect when the officer's gun discharged, killing Webster. The government alleges the policemen at the scene then conspired to plant a "throw-down" pistol near Webster to justify their claims the teen-ager was shot in self-defense.

The jury had received the case Tuesday.

Vigil To Protect Eagles Underway

LONDON (AP) — Volunteers began a two-month vigil Sunday to protect two pairs of rare golden eagles that flew south from their usual haunts in the Scottish Highlands to the scenic Lake District of northwest England.

The Royal Society for the Protection of Birds says it hopes the golden eagles, which have majestic eight-foot wingspans, will breed at the new site. The society organized the vigil because two pairs of eagles that ventured into the Lake District some years ago lost their eggs to nest-robbers.

A spokesman says there are only 300 pairs of golden eagles left in Britain. He said the eagle population has been decimated by pesticides and insecticides, which make their eggs infertile.

Pioneer Of 'Clear' Radio Keeps Drivers Informed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When Charlie Douglas got his Road Gang together he had the highways to himself from Canada to Key West, and he knew where he was going. Now there's a detour ahead.

Douglas, 45, pioneered the all-night radio program aimed at the truck driver. From his cramped booth at WWL radio, he beams country music, road conditions and down-home chit-chat to drivers all over the United States and Canada.

Weather reports are given along interstate highways, rather than by region; the music is heavy on Red Sovine, and commercials are for water pumps, CB radios, truck stops and other truck services.

Dedications are to drivers "bob-tailing back from Buffalo," or "at the house," or "out of Dothan and heading for the barn."

But if proposed changes in federal regulations go through, his signal will reach only to about Columbia, S.C., and Springfield, Ill. — not bad by most standards, but pretty puny for WWL and the rest of the nation's two dozen 50,000-watt clear channel stations.

The "clears" were created in the 1930s to make sure that everyone — even those back in the hollows or out on the plains — could listen to radio. But recent surveys have shown that only a few thousand people would be out of reach of another station now if the range of the clear channel stations was curtailed.

One of the proposals would cut back the range of the clear channel stations and add new stations in the areas they once served.

"According to their figures, they can only add another 125 stations without expanding the dial," Douglas said. "If they raise it to say 1800 on the dial, they can add 700. But that would make an awful lot of radios obsolete.

"And there's an economic factor in operating a radio station, too. I used to live in Rainbow City, Ala., and we didn't have a radio station. There was no way that town could support a radio station. And there are a lot of places like that."

His major concern, he said, is the truck driver at whom his program is aimed.

"If you're in any of the 43 states we get into, and you're going to be driving six or seven hours, you can just punch us up and stay with us," he said. "Maybe you'll run a mile or two where we'll fade, but we'll be right back. That's one of the things they like about us.

"You can stay with us and find out what conditions are like on down the road; you can be pretty sure you'll hear the tune you requested or the tune your wife requested for you, maybe win a contest, maybe get an emergency message."

During his nine years with the Charlie Douglas Road Gang, he's relayed many emergency messages to truckers hundreds of miles away — one of the services he feels a clear channel station can provide.

Douglas was born in Miami, but his family moved to Ludowici, Ga. — population 600 — when he was an infant. The town figures prominently in his country yarns, some of which he has recorded.

"We lived all over the South, but that's the place I feel warmest about," he said.

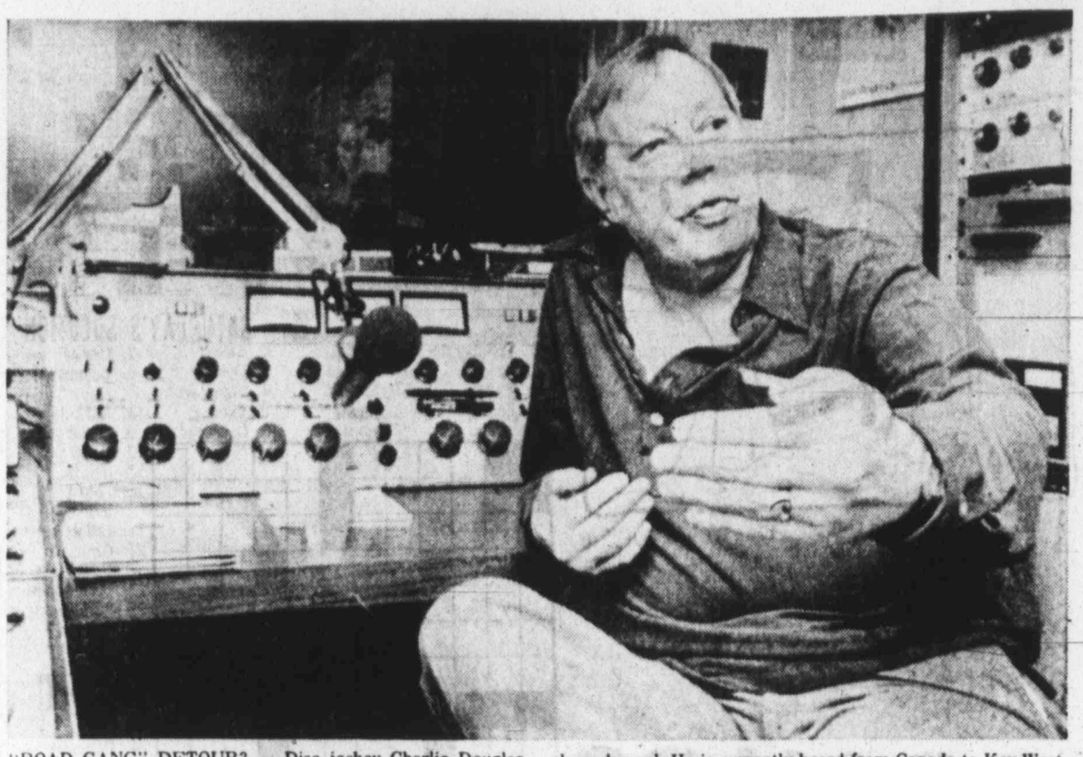
In his youth, Douglas drove log trucks for his father, but that's the only kind of truck he'd ever operated until quite recently. The idea for an all-night show aimed at an audience of truck drivers was a calculated shot at an unexplored market.

"A lot of 'power' stations were playing country music, and if the truck driver was around, he could listen," Douglas said. "We turned it around and aimed it at the truck driver, and if anyone else is around, they can listen."

When Douglas came to WWL, the station's night commercial spots were largely unsold. Now they're sold out, he said.

Douglas said that since he started the driver-oriented program, 76 stations have started similar shows.

"When I approached WWL with the idea of a program aimed at the owner-operator, they said they'd give it a six-month trial," Douglas said. "We've been doing it nine years."



"ROAD GANG" DETOUR? — Disc jockey Charlie Douglas sits at the controls at WWL-Radio in New Orleans from where his "Road Gang" show is broadcast nightly over a 50,000-watt clear channel. He is currently heard from Canada to Key West but new federal regulations on clear channels could cut into his giant audience. (AP Laserphoto)

Residents Of Village Tour Fire Station

By KIM PALMER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LAKE RANSOM CANYON — Wearing grins of pleasure and casting glances of pride, residents of this small village about seven miles southeast of Lubbock on Sunday toured their recently completed "building of love" — the Lake Ransom Canyon Volunteer Fire Station.

The $60,000 facility sparkled for its guests. Chief Diane Whitaker explained that several men spent Saturday night laboriously polishing the two booster trucks housed in the station in anticipation of Sunday's dedication.

The station, which also boasts a meeting room for the department's volunteers, is a brick, modern-looking structure with lots of windows. It sits at the entrance of the 500-member community on a spot barren two years ago.

Then, dreams were all the burgeoning community had.

"We started from scratch and really didn't know that much about firefighting," Mrs. Whitaker said of her department as it was a few years ago.

But Lake Ransom Canyon residents, along with other individuals and companies from surrounding communities, contributed time, labor, money and material to complete the structure, which was started about a year and a half ago.

"We're proud of our accomplishment," Mrs. Whitaker said. "And it shows that people can do anything they want to do if they want to do it."

Until February 1977, the community residents depended on units from Lubbock and Slaton to respond to fire calls. And according to Mrs. Whitaker, precious time was lost waiting for other firefighting units to arrive at the scene of a community fire.

So, "because we felt like it was silly to sit here and wait for some other department to get here," a department was formed, she said. The volunteers now total 27, half of whom are women.

"Although we couldn't completely handle every situation, there are some things we could be doing," Mrs. Whitaker said. Mrs. Whitaker and her volunteers have responded to 21 fire calls since the department was organized two years ago. None of the calls have been serious enough to require the assistance of outside departments, she said.

All novices at firefighting, Mrs. Whitaker and her volunteers meet twice monthly for early morning training drills. The group lacks only six hours of training before it receives full certification by the state as a firefighting unit.

POPE TO MEDIATE

ROME (AP) — Papal mediation between Chile and Argentina on the simmering Beagle Strait territorial dispute is expected to begin at the Vatican this week. The Chilean delegation arrived Sunday and Argentina's delegation was due in Rome today in an effort to settle on ownership of lands at the tip of South America.

Vote-Buying Trials To Begin

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Jimmy Wilson, who contends he was cheated out of victory in last November's 4th Congressional District race, says the chances for his challenge may rest on results of vote-buying trials scheduled to begin here today in U.S. District Court.

"I think the House Administrative Committee is waiting to see what comes of these cases," said Jimmy Wilson of Vivian, who has charged that he lost because votes were bought for Claude "Buddy" Leach.

Wilson, a Republican, filed his challenge with the committee after Claude "Buddy" Leach, a Leesville Democrat, beat him by 266 votes — 65,583 to 65,317.

Leach says if any votes were bought, he didn't buy them and neither did any of his campaign people.

Accusations of vote-buying triggered a federal investigation involving about 100 FBI agents. A federal grand jury in Alexandria, after hearing over 70 witnesses, indicted eight Leesville residents.

The indictments carefully refrained from specifying for whom the votes allegedly were bought. Assistant U.S. Attorney John Lydick said those facts would come out at the trial.

Although one of the eight was placed on probation for admittedly paying two women $5 each to vote for Leach, federal officials have been close-mouthed about the investigation.

"We feel that the identity of the people who supplied the money to buy the votes is going to come out this week," said Wilson. "My personal opinion is that these people who bought the votes are not going to take the rap for people who set up the whole thing. There will be a whole lot of plea bargaining going on. There already has been."

The maximum penalty for vote buying is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

With that possible punishment as a lever, federal investigators have been applying pressure for information and apparently winning some plea bargain deals.

The first trial on the docket charged Ella Bowman with five counts of vote buying. Al Gray, her lawyer, said the prosecution offered her a plea bargaining deal but said he wanted immunity.

"They're giving everybody immunity — people who sold their votes, people who testified before the grand jury. They said to others, 'We don't believe you. We are going to indict you because you didn't cooperate'."

Kickback Case May Be Retried

DALLAS (AP) — Prosecutors say they hope to decide this week whether to seek a new trial of five persons accused to taking part in a kickback scheme to obtain computer leases from Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

U.S. District Judge Sarah Hughes declared a mistrial on Friday after the jury said it was hopelessly deadlocked. The trial lasted six weeks and the jury deliberated for four days.

"I don't feel like action (the mistrial) was any kind of endorsement of this kind of business activity. I feel like the jury did its best, as evidenced by the amount of time they spent and I congratulate them," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jay Ethington, who said he will explore the possibility of a new trial this week.

The case centered on the testimony of retired Bell Vice President Ray Acker and an unidicted co-conspirator, Joel McQuade, both of whom testified Acker received about $2 million in kickbacks for giving McQuade bid information.

Acker pleaded guilty to charges of federal income tax evasion and is awaiting sentencing. McQuade, who was granted immunity from prosecution, claimed he served as a broker between Bell and a company owned by Barlow and Wadsworth and another firm owned by Palmer.

Tech Students To Plan Park

Texas soon may have a new state park and a group of Texas Tech University students will help with its planning during a two-week course at the TTU Center in Junction this summer.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has agreed to permit a team of Texas Tech students to develop plans for a park site four miles south of Junction. Students ultimately will develop a master plan of data maps and documents to be presented to the commission, which may use all or portions of it in making a presentation to the Texas Legislature for approval.

According to project instructor Lawrence B. Zuercher of the park administration and landscape architecture faculty, the class is unique in that it calls for an interdisciplinary design team from architecture, landscape architecture, wildlife management, park administration, journalism, civil engineering, archeology, history and geology areas.

Husbands Influenced By Wives' Behavior

know that it always has been God's plan to save the entire family: Jeremiah 31:1 (2).

2. Put a golden zipper on your mouth.

3. You are to get out of the way, so that Christ can work. This means no criticism of your married partner. Love him (or her) witth the love of Jesus. Ask Him to show you ways to give your husband (or wife) joy — and He will. Thus Christ will become good news to your home rather than a divisive factor.

4. Be patient. Tiny tree seedlings and woodland ferns growing in the crevice of a craggy rock have been known to split it. Not even a rocklike skeptic can finally withstand the generous, joyous love of Jesus.

Shari Tells Secrets Of 'Dumb' Stunts

By SHARI LEWIS

It always makes you feel good when you can do something that no one else can do — even if that "something" is dumb!

Ask your friend to hold his arms out stiffly to the side, parallel to the floor. Place a book in one of your friend's hands and then say, "I'll betcha you can't transfer that book to the other hand without bending your arms, either at the elbow or at the shoulder." Most likely, your friend won't be able to do it — and then you will! Here's how:

You hold your arms out in that same position with the book in one hand — and you transfer it to the other hand by putting the book down on a table. (Bend your knees, if you must!) Then turn your body around so that your other arm is facing the table. Bend your knees, tilt your body (keep those arms stiff) and pick up the book in your other hand.

Or you can challenge your friend to put his pointer finger where the other pointer finger cannot touch it. When your friend gives up, you simply take hold of your right elbow with your left pointer finger. No question about it — your right pointer finger will not be able to touch the left one!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: What is the difference between a counterfeit $5 bill and an angry rabbit? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Stolen Cheese Shipment Would Make Big Pizza

NEW YORK (AP) — Someone is going to have to come up with at least 45,000 pounds of pizza dough, gallons of sauce and tons of pepperoni, sausage, peppers or other extras to use up 40,000 pounds of mozzarella cheese.

He stopped off at Morgan's Old New York Grill on Manhattan's lower West Side to rest up from the long drive last week, but when he went back to the truck four hours later, the 18-wheeler, with 700 cases of cheese valued at $250,000, was gone.

"We put about 12-13-14 ounces of cheese in a big pie," said Ricardo Gimenez, who runs a pizza parlor on Manhattan's East Side. He figured that the missing truckload would be a little too much for his operation since he only uses 300 to 400 pounds in a week.

"That much would last more than a year," he said. "They'll have to sell it or it'll spoil."

Using Gimenez's recipe of 14 ounces of cheese and about 16 ounces of dough for each pie, the stolen cheese would yield 45,714 medium pies, with an extra two slices from an eight-slice pizza. If you only put on 12 ounces, you could stretch that to 53,333 pies, with two to three slices left over.

On top of that, Gimenez figures he puts about 10 ounces of sausage, pepperoni or whatever on each pizza. With the pizza with 12 ounces of cheese, that works out to 533,333 ounces, or 33,333.3 pounds of spicy sausage.

Policeman Mike Medina said he was not sure whether the theft was a planned effort or whether someone did it on the spur of the moment when they spotted an unattended truck with its motor running.

"But I've never heard of mozzarella cheese being a hot item in 13 years on the force," Medina said. "Maybe somebody wants to get into the Guinness Book of Records with the world's biggest pizza."

As for the largest pizza ever baked, the Guinness people say it measured 25-feet, 1-inch in diameter, 494 square feet in area and weighed 1,200 pounds. It was baked at the Pizza Inn, Little Rock, Ark., on Sept. 4, 1974.

Serum May Aid Mountain Climbers

NEW YORK (AP) — The danger of frostbite, eye and lung damage may be reduced among high-altitude mountain climbers by the infusion of blood serum, according to Medical World News.

Rowdyism Growing On Campus

By RICK HAMPSON

AMHERST, Mass (AP) — "Even up until around 11 o'clock it was quiet, and then, Boom!, they started pouring in...I couldn't believe the number of lacerations we had to handle that night."

An Army medic recalling Vietnam? No, just University of Massachusetts Health Center orderly Michael Hart talking about a Saturday night on campus.

University Police Chief Robert Joyce had heard there was a new wave of rowdiness on American campuses; it did not prepare him for what happened on one weekend last fall.

In the space of 57 hours his men answered more than 180 emergency calls and arrested 29 people — most of them drunk — on charges ranging from larceny and assault to disturbing the peace.

After the action died down it was estimated the vandals had cost the university and the people who pay its bills $15,000, one-tenth of the campus vandalism tab for all last year.

Who is to blame?

Everyone accuses "a small minority of students," and some also point to lax discipline, outsiders and alcohol.

Whatever the cause, random violence — a problem big-city high schools have been dealing with for years — has suddenly moved onto some of the nation's better quads and greens.

—In North Adams, a mill community in the Berkshires of Massachusetts, police describe state college dormitories and student apartments as "animal houses." Student-police tension peaked when a fake land mine was tossed at a police cruiser, causing the officer to crack up his squad car.

—About 500 students gathered at the University of Nebraska one night and began heaving things, such as a vending machine, into a bonfire. Police arrived and fighting broke out; 17 persons were arrested.

"The '60s saw the death of the doctrine whereby colleges acted in loco parentis, in place of and with the authority of parents. Nothing has arisen in the '70s to take its place."

Also, some schools are getting more resident students from welfare or working-class neighborhoods with high crime rates and racial tensions, and, in some cases, Brown said, "violence came with them."

Trouble is not limited to those schools, however. At Wellesley College, a prestigious institution for women outside Boston, a student dance at Tower Court residence hall was ended early one night last fall by a fist fight.

Much of the trouble is caused by drunken non-students, referred to by a UMAss spokesman as "people who consider UMass a good place to go for an exciting weekend."

Some people argue that not everyone should go to college, saying that those who are forced to do so may rebel by fighting and drinking and destroying.

The rowdiness will abate when students themselves get fed up, UMass Chancellor Bromery said.

Physicians Learning To Write

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The teacher is an Alameda grandmother. The lesson is penmanship. The students — as frustrated readers of their prescriptions can appreciate — are doctors.

Some of the doctors at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center first questioned the "dignity" of taking lessons in a subject their children were learning in grammar school, says Virginia Miller, the teacher.

"So I upgraded the program for them. I used technical medical terminology in the writing manual. One exercise was filling out prescriptions."

Kaiser recruited Mrs. Miller in response to new regulations of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals requiring that all medical records "shall be legible and readable by the majority of the professional staff."

A college instructor in business office procedures and a grandmother, Mrs. Miller says her own handwriting isn't so great either, but she knows how to improve it for others.

When a story on the pilot project, which began last fall, appeared in a medical magazine, Mrs. Miller was "deluged with phone calls and letters. Some doctors wrote me from as far away as Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

"Poor handwriting may be dangerous to your wealth, and that's no joke," she says. "A recent business journal says 79 percent of businesses lose money because of poor handwriting."

Doctors have no worse handwriting than any other group of professionals, she maintains. It's just that they do more writing.

"A lawyer has his briefs typed. But a doctor's report, under the law, has to be handwritten and signed. His prescriptions have to be handwritten. An average hospital doctor sees 80 patients a day and has to write the diagnosis and treatment for each one. No wonder some of their handwriting turns scribbly."

And there's one other area where handwriting is improving, too. "You should see how my writing's improved," Mrs. Miller says.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It may come as a surprise to you tomorrow when somone who usually doesn't pay you too much attention is extra-nice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone older or more experienced may point out a direction for you tomorrow, and bring you new hope toward getting something you'd like to have.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Continue to give your responsibilities top priority tomorrow. You will receive more satisfaction in achievement than through frivolous outlets.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have a good chance to sell those ideas or plans you've been trying to promote. Your approach tomorrow will be creative and practical.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A friend is going to jump into the picture tomorrow and show you how to get something you've been wanting badly. Listen to him, though the way may not be easy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have a chance tomorrow to make a big hit with one who doesn't know you very well through your willingness to be cooperative and helpful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) That little extra push you've needed to put you out in front of the pack will be forthcoming tomorrow. You'll cross the finish line first after all.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you allow experience to guide you tomorrow, everything should come out just the way you want it to in the romance department.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Involvements where you share a material interest should be given full attention tomorrow. Worthwhile gains will come of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The timing will be good tomorrow to make a request of someone who doesn't grant favors easily. This person will be in the right frame of mind and will come through for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tomorrow is a good day to clean out those closets or to tackle the attic. You may even discover a few valuable misplaced or forgotten items!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A social gathering could bring you together with someone who has been hard for you to reach. Use this opportunity advantageously.

Luke 12:53-59; 13:1-3 The Living Bible

53 A father will decide one way about Me; his son, the other; mother and daughter will disagree; and the decision of an honored mother-in-law will be spurned by her daughter-in-law."

54 Then He turned to the crowd and said, "When you see clouds beginning to form in the west, you say, 'Here comes a shower.' And you are right.

55 When the south wind blows, you say, 'Today will be a scorcher.' And it is.

56 Hypocrites! You interpret the sky well enough, but you refuse to notice the warnings all around you about crises ahead.

58 If you meet your accuser on the way to court, try to settle the matter before it reaches the judge, lest he sentence you to jail;

Vietnam Army Using U.S. Military Tactics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Intelligence officials are finding that Vietnam's war in Cambodia seems to be a mirror image of the U.S. ground war in Vietnam.

Only this time the Communist Vietnamese army's role is reversed from what it was in its long and successful fight to drive out American troops and conquer all of Vietnam.

U.S. analysts, sifting intelligence information from many sources, say the Vietnamese army that invaded Cambodia late last year appears to be bogged down against elusive and stubborn Cambodian soldiers using guerrilla tactics.

Reports indicate that the Vietnamese army, led principally by northern officers who fought the Americans, is being forced to rely heavily on drafting men to sustain its forces in Cambodia and increase its defenses in the north against China.

To a greater extent than in the past, draft age South Vietnamese youths and veterans of the old Vietnamese army are showing up in refugee camps outside Vietnam, said intelligence sources who asked not to be identified.

The Vietnamese command is said to have shifted at least the equivalent of a division, or about 10,000 men, from Cambodia to North Vietnam because of China's recent attacks.

The U.S. analysts said Soviet ships, including a navy amphibious landing vessel, helped in this redeployment by hauling Vietnamese military landing equipment from Saigon to ports in the north.

The number of Cambodian soldiers still fighting for the ousted Pol Pot regime is uncertain, but they are described in intelligence reports as putting up a surprisingly effective resistance against an estimated 100,000 Vietnamese soldiers in Cambodia.

The Vietnamese reportedly have organized about 5,000 to 7,000 Cambodians, who previously had fled their homeland, into battalions with Vietnamese advisers down to the company level. But the refugee Cambodian troops are said to have been held out of the fighting so far. Their main role inside Cambodia appears to be political.

The Pol Pot Cambodian guerrillas seem to have enough ammunition and weapons, reportedly in jungle caches, to carry on a hit-and-run war against the occupying Vietnamese, the sources said. They said China has been sending in some supplies by sea.

U.S. intelligence specialists said they found it an ironic turnabout that the Vietnamese army is using sweeps and other tactics against the Cambodians similar to those used by the Americans against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese during their Southeast Asian war.

Reports tell of these conditions:

—Vietnamese troops hold towns and cities, but most of the country is a no-man's land, with the Cambodians staging "pin-prick" forays out of the jungle.

—Vietnamese troops conduct sweeps to clear the roads during the day; the Cambodians mine the roads and bridges at night.

—The Vietnamese are trying to organize Cambodian villagers into militia, a move reminiscent of U.S. efforts to create a South Vietnamese popular force.

—Serious food shortages may be developing in Cambodia; the peasants are caught in the middle with both sides confiscating their rice.

Some reports suggest the Vietnamese may be reaching the end of their ability to use U.S.-made military equipment captured from the South Vietnamese army when Saigon collapsed four years ago.

For example, American-built helicopters have virtually stopped flying because they are out of commission for lack of spare parts and maintenance, sources said.

Refugee Boat Overturns

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — A boat carrying 223 Vietnamese refugees who were refused permission to enter Malaysia sank and 104 people aboard drowned, a United Nations official said today.

The official, a member of the U.N.'s High Commission for Refugees, said 119 other people aboard the craft survived the sinking Saturday and were taken to a refugee camp.

There was no immediate explanation for the delay in reporting the accident.

The U.N. official said the boat landed Saturday near Mersing, 250 miles southeast of Kuala Lumpur on Malaysia's east coast, but authorities refused to allow the refugees to land and a Malaysian navy boat towed it out to sea.

Other sources said police opened fire to scare away the refugees.

The U.N. spokesman said the 119 survivors, rescued by islanders, were housed at a refugee camp where about 5,000 other Vietnamese await resettlement in other countries.

Police sources said only two bodies — a woman and a girl — have been recovered.

More than 500 Vietnamese refugees have died off the Malaysian coast in similar accidents in recent months. About 52,000 Vietnamese refugees have landed in Malaysia, which has said they are not welcome.

Invading Forces Step Up Attack

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Tanzanian forces stepped up their war against President Idi Amin today with an air attack on Jinja, Uganda's second largest city, and renewed shelling of Kampala, his capital, after apparently pushing his Libyan defenders back, diplomatic sources reported.

Residents of Jinja, 50 miles east of Kampala, said three fighters made a brief bombing run over the city but missed their apparent target, the local army garrison. Instead, their bombs fell near the Libyan Arab Uganda Bank, doing little damage and causing few casualties, the sources said.

The Tanzanian air force made its first attack of the five-month-old war on Sunday, cratering the main runway of the international airport at Entebbe. But Ugandan exiles in Nairobi expressed surprise at the raid on Jinja. Some of them suggested the attackers were Amin's Libyan allies threatening the Ugandan troops at Jinja, who the exiles said had refused to go into action against the invasion force of Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles.

Diplomats in Nairobi said the shelling of Kampala, the Ugandan capital, resumed early this morning and at least five artillery shells landed on the city. They said an oil storage tank was hit and a pall of black smoke rose from the industrial area on the eastern side of the city.

The Tanzanian guns shelled Kampala for three days last week. By the weekend diplomats there reported the Libyans had pushed the invaders back at least 12 miles from the city, out of artillery range. But anti-Amin Ugandans said it was "only a matter of time" before a final assault was launched against the city.

Residents of Kampala reported by telephone that Libyan ground forces, who have taken over the brunt of the Ugandan capital's defense since the virtual collapse of the Ugandan army, exchanged artillery fire with the Tanzanians for an hour southwest of the city Sunday afternoon.

Diplomats in Nairobi said the Tanzanian attack on the Entebbe airport, 21 miles south of Kampala, may have put the field out of action temporarily since Tanzanian artillery damaged another runway last week.

This could delay the arrival of Libyan arms and troops for Amin. He has other airfields at Nakasongola, 63 miles north of Kampala, and at Gulu and Arua, farther north, but their distance from the capital makes them less desirable landing points for Libyan reinforcements.

The diplomats said the Tanzanian MiG-21s came from a base near Mwanza, 155 miles to the south across Lake Victoria. The strike was believed to be in retaliation for an attack Thursday by a Libyan bomber on Mwanza. It was not known how many planes made the attack, but none was reported downed.

The official Yugoslav newspaper Politika reported from Kampala that 600 more Libyan troops had been landed at Entebbe despite the Tanzanian shelling of the airport, increasing the Libyan force supporting Amin to an estimated 2,600 men. Western military observers say they are getting only limited help from the remnants of Amin's army.

The invasion force has been estimated at 7,000 Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles, although some estimates run as high as 20,000.

Amin and Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere have been enemies since Amin ousted President Milton Obote in a military coup eight years ago and Nyerere gave Obote asylum. Amin's army seized 710 square miles of northwest Tanzania last October and Nyerere ordered a counter-offensive that drove the Ugandans out and then moved into southwest Uganda with the declared goal of overthrowing Amin.

Libya's Moslem leaders have been Amin's chief supporters because he, too, is a Moslem and because of his loud support of the Arab cause against Israel.

Conservative Party Members Renew Death Penalty Call

LONDON (AP) — The assassination of Conservative Party planner Airey Neave by Irish terrorists has renewed pressure to revive the death penalty in Britain and made it an issue in the general election campaign now under way.

Neave, the Conservative spokesman on Northern Ireland, was murdered by a time bomb as he drove out of the House of Commons parking lot on Friday. He was an advocate of the death penalty for Irish terrorists who kill in their campaign to bet the British out of Northern Ireland, and both the Irish Republican Army and the Irish National Liberation Army, an ally of the IRA, said they were responsible for his murder.

His death stunned Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher and her party as they were preparing to begin campaigning for the national election May 3 brought on by the Labor government's defeat in a confidence vote in Commons last Wednesday.

The Young Conservatives, the party's youth organization, demanded restoration of capital punishment for terrorist murderers.

George Gardiner, Conservative member of Parliament for Reigate, wrote in the Sunday Express: "Speaking personally, I would gladly see every man and woman found guilty of causing death by an act of terrorism stood up against a wall and shot."

But Norman St. John-Stevas, a Tory leader in Commons, said it would be "unbalanced and ignoble to change the convictions of a lifetime ... in the emotional impact of a personal tragedy." If capital punishment comes up in Parliament, he said, "I will vote against a penalty which is practically ineffective and morally degrading."

Parliament abolished the death penalty in 1965 although opinion polls through the years have consistently shown a large majority of the public in favor of it. The last two persons hanged in Britain were Peter Anthony Allen and John Robson Walby, both executed on Aug. 13, 1964, for a murder earlier that year.

"I do not believe that in the Irish context, above all, the death penalty is the answer," Home Secretary Merlyn Rees said in a radio interview Sunday. "It would have no affect at all, and Irish history shows this."

The home secretary is responsible for law and order. Rees ordered a security review after the assassination and round-the-clock police protection for top lawmakers of all parties.

Bhutto's Lawyers Ask For Stay Of Execution

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Lawyers for former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto appealed to Islamic justice today, asking the high court in Bhutto's home province for a temporary reprieve from the death penalty.

Mohammad Shafi Mohammadi, a lawyer from Bhutto's Sindh Province, asked for a stay of execution while he challenges the death sentences handed down on Bhutto and four other men for conspiring to murder a political foe.

The Pakistan Press news agency said Shafi filed his case in Karachi with the Shariat bench of the Sindh high court, the section of the judiciary that hears civil cases and judges them by Islamic law.

Another lawyer for Bhutto, Abdul Hafeez Pirzada, argued that the case against Bhutto does not hold up under the law of Islam, which was adopted as the national legal standard Feb. 10.

Under the Islamic law, he said, a person cannot be sentenced to death solely on the basis of the testimony of a codefendant, and Bhutto may have been denied due process of Islamic law.

The Lahore high court, which found Bhutto and four members of his secret police guilty of conspiring to murder former parlimentarian Ahmad Raza Kasuri, listened to the testimony of two other men accused in the crime and pardoned them both.

Bhutto's fate may still ultimately rest with President Gen. Mohammad Zia Ul-Haq, who can reject or accept pleas for clemency. But Zia is not bound by any time limit for consideration of the appeals.

Many observers agree that it is unlikely Zia would set an execution date while a top-ranking Chinese military delegation is in Pakistan. The delegation is scheduled to leave Wednesday.

"Theoretically, a condemned prisoner should know his fate within seven days of appealing. But the fact is there are hundreds of condemned prisoners in Pakistan who have awaited action on mercy appeals for years," said one legal expert.

District Coaches Say MHS Best

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The last time Monterey lost a baseball game this season, the local taverns were selling green beer in honor of St. Patrick's Day.

Its been a month since the Plainsmen have tasted defeat, and as the 4-AAAA season begins this week, Monterey will carry a nine-game winning streak into the start of loop play.

Monterey concluded the nondistrict action at 11-3. Right behind were Lubbock High (10-4) and Coronado (10-5).

However, since the district season doesn't start until Tuesday, the coaches helped pass some of the time Sunday by talking about the upcoming 4-AAAA race.

Plainview coach Ed Moore: "I really don't know anything about the district. This is just my first season here and it's a rebuilding year for us. The key for us will be how our pitching. Since I haven't seen any of the other teams play, I really can't say who the team to beat will be."

Lubbock High coach Bart Hernandez: "The teams to beat will be Monterey and Coronado. Monterey doesn't have the individual stars they had last year, but I feel that their tradition and those kids just used to winning might be enough to get them through. We'll see what were made of this week as we play both Monterey and Coronado. I think its going to be a three-team race among the Lubbock high schools."

Hereford coach David Ashby: "In my opinion, I just feel that Coronado and Monterey are going to decide the district race. Coronado has everybody back, but Monterey has the tradition. Monterey has Bobby Moegle and his kids always play for him. For us to have a shot at this thing it's going to take a couple of sore arms by Coronado and Monterey. We're going to show up, but we don't have an abundance of talent."

Monterey coach Bobby Moegle: "I would have to say that Coronado is the team to beat. We just have two kids returning, while they (Coronado) have both pitchers and six starters back. They also have speed and offensive power. We've improved, but they have the experience on their side. They just have all the credentials Coronado coach John Dudley: "I would have to pick Monterey simply because they've won it (the district title) so much. I think our chances are good. Of course, the thing we've been telling our kids is that we have the opportunity to win it. But we haven't yet. Monterey has more momentum than us right know.

"We started off well, but then got into a lull. Now, I think we're coming out of it. I think it's going to be a three team race. You can't count out Lubbock High.

Tom 'Terrific' In Heritage Win

"I played about as well as I can," Sneed said thoughtfully. "I can't conceive shooting a lower number on this golf course.

"And Tom (Watson) beat me by five shots.

"It's unbelievable. The score Watson shot, the way he played all week, is unbelievable. He shot the lights out."

He did, indeed.

Watson, the front-runner all the way, needed only a final round of par 71 to win the Heritage Golf Classic by a comfortable five strokes and, in the process, set a tournament scoring record for the Harbour Town Golf Links, a demanding layout Watson ranks among the great courses in the country.

"It's always a thrill to win a tournament," he said. "It's doubly thrilling to win on a golf course you love. It's triply thrilling to win with a record."

The record was his 270 total, 14 shots under par and one better than the old mark Jack Nicklaus set on this resort island off the South Carolina coast in 1975.

It was Watson's 12th American triumph — plus two British Open titles — and his first of the season.

He collected $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and took the lead in the season's money-winning race, which he won the past two seasons, with $145,965.

Perhaps more importantly, it put him in great shape for the Masters two weeks away and his next start.

"Winning breeds confidence," he said. "My confidence is high. My swing is good. But you know me. I'm a perfectionist. There still are things to work on."

"The way he was playing, and with that huge lead, it didn't figure that he'd shoot a high enough number that even a 66 would catch him," Sneed said.

He shot the 66, 5 under par in the sun and wind of the final round, and took second at 275 — a score good enough to win most of the previous Heritage tournaments.

But even that 66 didn't put him in contention. It was a walk in the park, a stroll through the woods for Watson.

"It isn't easy to play with a big lead," said Watson, who opened the final round with an 8-shot lead. He admitted, however, "no one put any pressure on me. The only pressure I felt I put on myself."

It was four shots back of Sneed to Tom Kite and Mike Morley, tied for third at 279 — nine shots off the pace. Morley shot a 70, Kite 71.

Lanny Wadkins, who beat Watson last week in the Tournament Players Championship and was in second place through the first three rounds here, faded to a 75 and was well back at 282.

Defending champion Hubert Green shot 75-284. Lee Trevino was 75-286 and Arnold Palmer, who won the first Heritage in 1969, had his best tournament of the season with 75-289.

"If he'd been putting a lick, he could have shot 125 for the first two days," said U.S. Open champ Andy North who played with Watson.

Lubbock Christian Divides With DBC

Southpaw Robert Goins stymied Lubbock Christian College after the first inning Sunday, allowing Dallas Baptist to post a 6-3 victory and salvage the final game of their four game Texas Athletic Conference series with the Chaparrals.

LCC won the opener 8-3 as fresman Chris Cook notched his third victory of the season. The second-game setback, however, knocked LCC from a share of the loop lead as Texas Wesleyan whipped Midwestern State 3-1 and 5-0 in Fort Worth Sunday.

That makes next weekend's TWC-LCC matchup extremely important as LCC will enter with a 6-2 record, a game behind the 7-1 Rams.

The Chaps, now 23-13, broke in front in both games, scoring twice in the first inning of each tilt. In the opener, Richard Bowles walked, stole second, went to third on LBobby Doe's bunt single and scored on Steve Brigante's infield grounder. Later in the frame, Kenny Toney drew a bases-loaded walk to make it 2-0.

Doe singled in 2 more runs in the fourth, Toney singled in a run in the fifth and Bowles plated 2 more with a fifth inning single. Leslie accounted for the final run in the sixth with a single after Brigante had singled and stolen his 21st base of the season.

Cook allowed only 5 hits, but gave up three walks and hit a batter–but was in trouble in only two frames, the fourth and the seventh when DBC scored all of it's runs.

Goins, now 3-3, was touched for Brady Brashear's one-out double, Brigante's RBI single and Leslie's RBI triple in the top of the first, but rebounded from that point and only six other Chaps reached base after that.

Kevin Smith, who was 4-for-4 in the nightcap, hit his second home run of the year leading off the second and then drilled a bases loaded double to kayo Chap starter Noel Delgado (2-2) with two

Choosin' Up Sides

WHILE SITTING IN my den the other night waiting for Jill St. John to call, I happened to glance at some recent bulletins from the National Football League office. Most of it was pretty dry stuff, statistics and the like, but a list of the current members of the pro football Hall of Fame at Canton caught my eye. There are some household names in that bunch, for sure.

The list is divided into two sections, or eras. The old-timers who played mostly before 1952 (before television) are on one side of the ledger, with the modern gridders on the other. That makes sense, because the game has undergone such a drastic change in the last 20 years. And while Jim Thorpe is just a name to most fans, many have seen — on the tube or in film — Frank Gifford and Jim Brown in action.

Glancing over the list of old-timers, it doesn't take long to pick a backfield of distinction. Try Sammy Baugh at quarterback, Red Grange and Thorpe at halfback and Bronko Nagurski at fullback! Line up those fellers in the old Chicago Bear T-formation and I'll match them against the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Russian Army in a doubleheader.

They probably never would need to pass, but if they did, Baugh could throw to the immortal Don Hutson.

Those were the days of iron men, soft leather helmets and daytime football games.

PICKING AN ALL-EVERYTHING team from the list of modern pro greats is not that easy. A guy who goes around claiming that Johnny Unitas was better than Bart Starr could lose a few teeth. Some of those Green Bay fans still take their sport seriously.

And how about the glut of talent at running back, where one must choose between Gale Sayers, Lenny Moore, Ollie Matson, Hugh McElhenny, Marion Motley, Jim Taylor, Gifford and Brown? Toss a coin, because there is no way you could come up with a loser.

Still, if a choice must be made, I would wager all my rubles on a backfield with Bobby Layne at quarterback, Sayers at tailback, Brown at fullback and Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch at the flanker position.

Sayers is the easiest pick in the bunch, in my humble opinion. Gale may have been the greatest runner of all time, combining leg strength with speed and elusiveness. He had the courage to run inside and the ability to weave through a broken field. He was something very special.

THE BIG HASSLES are at quarterback and fullback, where any choice is liable to meet strenuous opposition. But I like Layne over other greats such as Unitas, Starr, Otto Graham, Y.A. Tittle, Norm Van Brocklin and Bob Waterfield because of the intangibles.

Call it leadership, if you must, but it goes beyond that because all of the great quarterbacks had that quality. Layne had a charisma and confidence on the field that was unique. He was at his best in the toughest situations and may have been the best fourth-quarter player in history, as his coach, Buddy Parker, claimed.

Fullback is another tough selection and I wince at picking the controversial Brown over Taylor, Motley or Joe "The Jet" Perry. Big Jim never was my idol, on or off the field. But Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, who saw him at close range throughout his career, says Brown's size and speed and running ability made him a marvel.

If someone wants to replace Brown with Motley, a human tank who could run through that famous brick wall, or Green Bay's gutty Jim Taylor, I ain't gonna fight about it.

HIRSCH, MY PICK at flanker, was a legend in his own time, but a good case could be made for Lenny Moore of the Colts. Lenny and Johnny U were a pretty good fourth-quarter combo, too.

Fine receivers abound, as always. The Hall of Fame includes Lance Alworth, Raymond Berry, Tom Fears, Dante Lavelli and Pete Pihos. Put "Bambi" Alworth at the wide spot, just for kicks, and let the burly Pihos play tight end. That would give any secondary multiple nightmares.

The Hall of Fame has some defensive backs who probably could handle even that assignment, however. Three former Detroit Lion stars — Jack Christiansen, Yale Lary and Night Train Lane — would be a good place to start. Add either Emlen Tunnell or Larry Wilson and you've got it made.

Looking at the final lineup on paper, you wonder how a team with those guys could ever lose. But they were, after all, mortals. Layne and the Lions didn't always take the title, and the Packers were not invincible with Starr and Taylor.

'Old Lady' Carner Gets Win

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — In an era when age 30 is considered past prime for athletes, JoAnne Carner, a few days shy of 40, is a rarity.

"I've never felt younger," said Mrs. Carner after surviving a five-way playoff Sunday to capture the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Mesa Verde Country Club.

The $22,500 first prize propelled her into the LPGA money lead past Nancy Lopez, who saw a 2-stroke lead disappear over the last six holes.

Miss Lopez, gunning for her third 1979 victory, faltered at the end by bogeying four of the final eight holes for a round of 75, her worst of the tournament.

"The golf course beat everybody," said Mrs. Carner, who fired a closing round of even-par 71, then defeated Higuchi on the second overtime hole after the other three had bogeyed the first extra hole.

"I never dreamed I'd be sitting here," she said afterward, clutching a bouquet of roses as she met with reporters. It was her second tour victory of 1979 — upping her earnings to $61,300 — and 23rd title since turning pro in 1970.

After trailing by four strokes much of the week, her 2-foot par putt ended the nationally televised drama. Miss Higuchi, needing a 6-foot putt for par, slid the ball past the hole for a bogey.

Miss Stephenson rallied with a 71 Sunday, while Misses Higuchi and Young had closing 73s. All collected $9,675.

"I felt like crying after that putt. I don't know how it stayed out," said Miss Lopez, who won nine tournaments last year as rookie and set an LPGA record of nearly $190,000 in earnings.

After starting the day 2 over par and staying in front with 10 consecutive pars, she lost her putting touch and ran into the string of bogeys.

Mrs. Carner, first to finish among the leaders, watched as the challengers struggled. "I knew there were many critical putts to be made," she said.

Chris Evert Lets Fly With Overhead

Evert Back On Track

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — The situation was ideal for Chris Evert to avenge a pair of recent losses, regain some confidence and present herself with a wedding present. It all worked perfectly.

Miss Evert, who says she's at her best when she only has to get up for a match or two, completed a triumphant weekend Sunday by rallying for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Djanne Fromholtz in the championship match of a women's $200,000 tennis event at Rancho La Costa.

"When everything's on the line, I always seem to produce my best tennis," said the 24-year-old Miss Evert, who is playing her final competitive match prior to her April 17 marriage to British tennis pro John Lloyd.

"I have played five of these four-player matches, and I've never lost one. I can usually get up for two matches; I can't always get up for six matches."

Miss Evert earned her berth in Sunday's championship match by beating Tracy Austin 6-1, 7-5 on Saturay. Miss Fromholtz followed with a surprising 7-5, 6-1 triumph over favored Martina Navratilova.

Miss Evert had lost to Misses Austin and Fromholtz in the preliminary rounds of the recent winter tour championship in New York, prompting many to believe that her upcoming wedding was affecting her game.

Miss Evert, who will retain her surname after the marriage, disproved that theory. But the $100,000 first prize she collected Sunday didn't come easy.

Miss Fromholtz, who earned $50,000 for finishing second, looked like a winner when she captured the first set easily, took three of the second set's first four games, and scored the first two points of the fifth game.

But Miss Evert abruptly turned the match around at that stage, coming back to hold service for the first of nine consecutive winning games.

Miss Fromholtz finally won a game, but that only made it 4-1 in the second set. It was just a temporary delay, as Miss Evert easily held service and then broke at love to complete the two-hour match.

At one point, Miss Fromholtz had held service in six straight games, allowing a total of only six points, but Miss Evert broke in five of the final six games served by the 22-year-old Australian.

"I didn't push her at all early; I was just going through the motions," said Miss Evert. "Early in the second set, I got a little annoyed. I thought I was gutless. I hit the ball a lot harder after that.

Parker Having Red-Hot Spring

By United Press International

Parker, the Most Valuable Player in the National League last season, drove in four runs with three hits, including his seventh homer, Sunday to lead the Pirates to a 4-3 exhibition victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Parker raised his spring training average to .458 and his RBI count to 18.

Phil Garner also hit a two-run homer in the second inning for the Pirates whie pinchhitter Arturo DeFreites and Ken Henderson homered for the Reds.

In other exhibition games, the New York Yankees edged Detroit 4-3 in 10 innings; California downed Los Angeles 7-4; Montreal nipped Houston 3-2; Texas downed Kansas City 6-1 and the Chicago White Sox outslugged Toronto 10-7.

Also, the New York Mets topped Philadelphia 5-1; Oakland downed Chicago 9-8; Boston beat St. Louis 9-6; San Francisco defeated Milwaukee 5-3; Cleveland beat Seattle 7-3 and Atlanta edged Minnesota 3-2.

Chris Chambliss' 10th inning single scored Jay Johnstone and enabled the Yankees to snap a four-game losing streak with a victory over the Tigers. Roy White, who took some batting instruction from hitting coach Charley Lau prior to the game, tied the score at 3-3 with a pinch homer in the ninth inning. 3

Willie Mays Aikens, who entered the game when Rod Carew was ejected in the fourth inning, hit a two-run homer in his first at-bat and Chris Knapp scattered four hits over seven innings to lead the Angels to a victory over the Dodgers. A sellout crowd of 41,674 turned out for the contest. Derrel Thomas hit a 5wo-run homer off Chris Knapp in the third inning.

Tony Solaita and Dave Cash drove in runs in the 10th inning to help the Expos beat the Astros; Johnny Grubb's two-run homer helped the Rangers beat the Royals and Jorge Orta's two-run triple paced a 13-hit attack that carried the White Sox to victory over the Blue Jays.

Steve Henderson and Lee Mazzilli hit home runs and the Mets collected seven extra base hits to defeat the Phillies; Mitchell Page's double capped a four-run eighth inning against Bruce Sutter that carried the A's to victory over the Cubs; George Scott's bases-loaded single highlighted a five-run fifth inning which enabled the Red Sox to defeat the Cardinals and Darrell Evans seventh inning homer lifted the Giants to victory over the Brewers.

Fidrych Gives Arm Workout

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych says he's feeling no pain after firing off three innings in a spring training workout.

Fidrych gave up four hits and two runs to the Triple AAA club and admitted his control had been off.

outs in the third, giving DBC a 4-2 advantage.

The Chaps struck back , however, as Bowles doubled to open LCC's third and. After getting two outs, Leslie singled for a run and Toney followed with a single, but Doe lined to center ending the threat.

Stan Baker's sacrifice fly got DBC a run in the fourth and the Indians, now 17-15, 1-7, got an insurance run in the fifth when Chuck Stafford drove in Smith on a bunt single.

The Chaps threatened in the seventh as pinch-hitter Scott Wolf walked to lead off. Then, with two outs, Brashear doubled to deep center, but Steve Cargil, running for Wolf, stumbled rounding third and held there. Brigante then lined to left, where Smith made a diving catch to end the game.

LCC faces a busy non-conference schedule this week, hosting Panhandle State (7-6) today and traveling to Abilene Tuesday for a 1 p.m. twinbill with Hardin-Simmons.

MHS Pick Of District

They're the only ones who have been able to beat Monterey. The way the district race is divided in half, any team in the district can get hot and knock anybody off."

Of course, to put things in perspective, in 20 years as head coach at Monterey, Moegle has guided the Plainsmen to 17 district titles.

For you baseball trivia buffs, the last time Monterey didn't take home the loop crown was when you could still buy a can or pouch of your favorite chaw for around 40-cents. That was 1976.

Dawkins' Foul Shot Gives Sixers Win

As Philadelphia Takes Lakers In Thriller

By United Press International

Darryl Dawkins admits he was feeling the pressure.

"I'll tell you, that was the toughest foul shot I've ever had to make in my life," Dawkins said Sunday, referring to the shot that gave the Philadelphia 76ers a 112-111 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers.

Dawkins responded well to the situation by completing a three-point play, but there really shouldn't have been any pressure in the first place. Philadelphia owned a nine-point lead with 1:38 left, then allowed the Lakers 11 points on five turnovers.

When Jamaal Wilkes made two free throws, suddenly Los Angeles led. It was only then that Dawkins scored and drew a foul by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"I don't think I fouled him," contended Abdul-Jabbar, who poured in a game-high 38 points to go with 15 rebounds and seven assists. "I was reaching just like he would be reaching. I don't see how a foul could be called there."

With the win and Houston's loss to Cleveland, the Sixers moved into third place in the overall Eastern Conference standings, one-half game behind San Antonio.

The loss left the Lakers percentage points ahead of Kansas City for third place in the Western Conference and a half-game up on Denver and Portland. Los Angeles felt bad about coming so close, only to miss a chance to improve its standing.

"I keep playing until the buzzer rings," he said. "To me, the game isn't over unless we're 20 or 30 points ahead with a minute left."

In other games, Washington beat Denver 105-89, Cleveland handled Houston 114-105, Portland defeated Milwaukee 109-107, San Antonio nipped Boston 112-110, Phoenix ripped Detroit 116-105, San Diego topped New York 126-116, Seattle beat Golden State 102-97 and Atlanta clipped New Jersey 109-98.

Bullets 105, Nuggets 89

Elvin Hayes scored 30 points to help Washington push Denver out of a first-place tie in the NBA's Midwest Division. David Thompson's 34 points led the Nuggets. In addition to the loss, the Denver squad received more bad news when it was learned that star forward George McGinnis would be lost for the rest of the season with partially torn ligaments in his ankle.

Cavaliers 114, Rockets 105

Campy Russell scored 25 points and Austin Carr added 22 for Cleveland. Moses Malone and Calvin Murphy paced Houston with 24 points.

Trail Blazers 109, Bucks 107

Maurice Lucas scored 14 of Portland's last 17 points to extend his team's winning streak to four and snap Milwaukee's four-game winning streak. Tom Owens scored 21 and Mychal Thompson 20 for the Blazers. Junior Bridgeman scored a season-high 37 points for the Bucks.

Spurs 112, Celtics 110

James Silas hit a 20-foot jump shot to lift San Antonio to its second victory in the last nine games. Boston dropped its fourth straight and eighth in a row to the Spurs. San Antonio's George Gervin led all scorers 2ith 34 points. Bob McAdoo led the Celtics with 28.

Suns 116, Pistons 105

Clippers 126, Knicks 116

Lloyd Free scored 28 points and Nick Weatherspoon added 24, helping San Diego keep its playoff hopes alive. Ray Williams had 22 points for the Knicks.

SuperSonics 102, Warriors 97

Dennis Johnson scored 24 points. Seattle beat Golden State for the first time this season and maintained its two-game lead over Phoenix. But the Sonics also lost team captain Freddie Brown with a broken ring finger on his left hand. He is not expected to return to the lineup for three weeks. Robert Parish scored 21 to lead Golden State.

Hawks 109, Nets 98

Dan Roundfield scored 31 points and Atlanta posted its 14th straight home victory Bernard King and John Williamson paced New Jersey with 16 points apiece.

Vienna's New United Nations Center Has Office Space Available

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Despite years of campaigning by the Austrian government and a request for transfer of some U.N. units by Secretary General Kurt Wadlheim, about one quarter of the available office space will be idle when the new United Nations Center is opened here in September this year.

But unlike three years ago when officials were dismayed at the prospect of having empty offices in the center — which Austria leases at the annual symbolic rent of one schilling (8 cents) — officials now completely downplay the idle capacity.

At the present stage, the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency needs accommodation for some 1,500 employees, the U.N. Industrial Development Organization, also headquartered here, has a staff of 1,200, and personnel in Vienna of the U.N. Relief Agency for Palestine Refugees numbers 250.

At the request of the U.N. chief executive and with the approval of the U.N. General Assembly some smaller U.N. units have been earmarked for transfer to Vienna from either New York or Geneva.

The fact that all major U.N. organizations headquartered elsewhere will not be moved to Vienna has apparently ended a controversy that has existed mainly between the Swiss and the Austrians.

The agencies scheduled to move into the center here include the U.N. Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation, the United Nations Coordination and Planning Office, the International Narcotics Control Office and a few other small units, such as the one of the U.N. High Commissioner for refugees, already based in Vienna.

While a few years ago government officials privately vented their anger at having to canvass for users of the office towers provided free of charge, the official explanation today is that free office space is being held in reserve for expansion.

As he toured the complex with newsmen, Chancellor Bruno Kreisky said recently he was very satisfied with the center.

"We would have been ridiculed elsewhere had we not built a center that allows for natural staff expansion," Kreisky said, referring to an expected growth in the U.N. bureaucracy.

The chancellor also stressed the importance of the center for Vienna as capital of neutral Austria. He added that the greater influx of foreigners would boost tourism and enhance Vienna's image as an international meeting place.

While construction and credit costs were earlier estimated to total 12.8 billion schilling, builders later said overall outlays will only amount to between 9 and 10 billion schilling ($660 to $740 million.)

Built on what used to be woodland along the Danube, the U.N. complex is designed on a hexagonal ground-plan and has in its center a conference building which houses a total of nine conference halls.

Around this conference building are grouped two office towers, Y-shaped in the ground plan. These are connected with two other towers. The unit for common services, available to all U.N. tenants, comprises another two Y-shaped towers and will provide facilities such as store rooms, archives, printing shops, computer center, restaurants and telephone exchanges.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Suffers Broad Loss

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a broad loss today, weighed down by energy worries.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 8.84 at 853.34.

Analysts noted some relief over the latest news from the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., where an accident occurred last week.

Company officials said today that a dangerous gas bubble in the plant's nuclear reactor had all but disappeared, and preparations were being made for a final cool-down.

But analysts said that the incident, whatever its outcome, posed new problems for the nation's energy plans, since it seemed likely to lead to added constraints on the use of nuclear power.

Among other issues with links to the nuclear-energy industry, J. Ray McDermott was down ⅞ at 18¼; Westinghouse lost ⅜ to 18¼; Kerr-McGee fell 2¾ to 48¼, and General Electric dropped ¾ to 47¼.

Coal stocks, meanwhile, were strong for the second straight session. Eastern Gas Fuel rose ¾ to 20 and Pittston ¼ to 22¾.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .51 to 56.62, and the American Stock Exchange market value index lost 1.75 to 177.95.

'Upcoming Downturn' Delayed

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — In it's effects, it is as real an economic factor as rising prices or falling productivity or an oil shortage.

It pervades our consciousness, affecting consumer buying and government policy.

But we really know so very little about it. It is ever present, which can be proved by the consequences. But it belongs to the future, too. We are constantly referring to it as something to come.

How do we deal with the phenomenon that bedevils us every day of the week known as the "upcoming downturn" in the economy. Is it just a fear, a forecast, a cliche? Whether it is any of these, it remains powerful.

For well over a year it has been upcoming, but it has not come. And now we suspect the reason for the delay is that it has forced changes in present economic patterns that keep pushing it off into the future.

People have been buying up a storm, using credit when they run out of cash. Why not, they ask, when prices will be higher tomorrow? And besides, they add, when the recession comes we can't think of buying.

The impact on government policy is even more pronounced, leading to restraint by the Federal Reserve and voluntary price-wage guidelines, increasingly sounding like lasoos, by the White House.

Business has also reacted to the upcoming downturn. The Federation of Independent Business found a growing number of members expecting sales to fall, earnings to be cut and general business conditions to erode.

The longer the upcoming downturn is delayed, proclaim the forecasters, the worse the downturn is likely to be. But some of them too have been affected. They wonder: Will there be a downturn?

Sindlinger & Co., a market research firm, had been outspoken about a downturn. Now it suggests the economy might merely ricochet, never dipping or rising enough to be classified as either recession or boom.

Some economists have remained unperturbed. Albert Cox, president of Merrill Lynch Economics, this month raised odds of a "deeper and later recession by yearend" to 35 percent from 30. He lowered odds on "sharply lower growth but no downturn" to 20 percent from 15.

But a few bank economists have been observed planting hedges in their forecasts. Off the record, one this week confessed he has abandoned his roll as forecaster and now considered himself a spectator.

Analysis

Economist, government official, consumer, businessman — the forecast of an upcoming recession has affected them all. Some of the resulting actions have lessened the prospect; others have promoted it.

Whatever their various responses, however, they have implemented them in an effort to deal with something that nobody can prove will come, and which in fact has already been delayed a full year.

Based on a cursory examination of past economic cycles, any forecast of an upcoming recession is likely to come true if held firmly and long enough. Expansion and contraction is the regular economic life cycle.

When an expansion lasts as long as this one, a full four years, you find some reassured that it can't be long now before the recession ups and comes, and others wondering if they've miscalculated.

It's going on right now, but that's not the important issue. What really means something is not whether the expectations are or are not fulfilled, but merely that they were made.

The very expectation is the reality — as real, as measurable and probably as important as many other economic events, past, present and future.

Girls Discover Relationship

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Megann Larsen and Susie Freshour, both 21, have known each other casually, even attending the same high school, but it was not until recently that they became aware of their true identities.

When they were about 3, they did live together in the home of Bartha Freshour, a foster parent. Soon Megann was adopted by the Ray Larsens. Susie, who had a heart murmur (which was eventually corrected by surgery), remained with Mrs. Freshour.

The adoptive parents were advised by an adoption agency not to to tell the twins that they were sisters. For many years they followed the advice, but Mrs. Freshour finally told Susie about her sister in 1975, swearing her to secrecy.

Recently Susie invited Megann for dinner. "I asked Momma why Susie would want to talk to me," Megann said. "That's when Momma told me Susie was my sister."

New Jersey High Court To Hear Live-In Suit

Thaddeus Kozlowski, who has the same last name as his former lover's husband, says he promised to support Irma only while they lived together.

"We wasn't bound together by any written or spoken agreement besides hope for the future," court papers quote the 59-year-old Kozlowski as saying.

Superior Court Judge Bertram Polow ruled last July that a contract existed between Irma and Thaddeus Kozlowski, and that Mrs. Kozlowski, now 65, was entitled to support until her death.

Kozlowski appealed, saying there was no evidence to prove an agreement ever existed.

Mrs. Kozlowski "let the one man off the hook that had the obligation to support her and her child for life — her husband, Geherd Kozlowski," said Thaddeus Kozlowski's lawyer, Terry Kassel, in a brief.

"Now she seeks to impose a spousal obligation upon the defendant — a man who never made that commitment and has no legal obligation to support her for life," the lawyer said.

Michael Markenson, Mrs. Kozlowski's attorney, said the fact that she "performed for 15 years is sufficient to support the inference that she intended to continue to perform for her lifetime."

The couple met in 1962. She was 48, married, and the mother of two children. He was 42, married, and the father of two children.

He said he loved her, court papers say, and insisted they live together. He then supported her, while she did the housework and shopping, and acted as a mother to his children.
