Trustees probe tax district's growth pattern

Snyder school trustees approved the proposed budget for the Scurry County Appraisal District, but not before expressing concern about the district's continued growth and cost of operation.

Meeting with Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler, trustees targeted most of their questions at the collection function. The appraisal district is financed from pro-rata contributions of participating agencies in Scurry County, and the amount of tax dollars collected by the Snyder schools results in the school district financing some 85 percent of the $335,510 appraisal district budget, a slight increase over the 1984 budget of $355,187.

The district performs both appraisal and collection work, but the college district and county taxes are collected by the county tax office. The appraisal district will cost the school district $178,755 next year.

Trustee Mike Reed asked, "When is the budget going down?"

Peveler described the budget as "bare minimum" and cited the increased work load of his office. Peveler said the district has one less employee this year and that the office had just completed a required reappraisal of real property.

Peveler said all agencies are experiencing higher levels of collections "because of things that have never been done before."

Trustees also questioned Peveler about the appraisal district's recent decision to purchase a computer mapping system.

School Board President J. D. Hinton said it appeared that the city would derive the maximum benefit from the mapping system while being paid for by the appraisal district of which the school district pays 85 percent. "Why should the Snyder ISD pay for a computer to be used by the city?"

Peveler assured the board that the appraisal district would obtain benefit from the mapping system in the area of appraisal. Peveler said his board had determined that the city or any other enity would be billed for services rendered by the mapping system.

Peveler said much economy had been achieved in his office, but that the economy had been overshadowed by an increased work load.

At the end of the discussion, Supt. Bill Hood complimented Peveler and his office for the efficiency of the operation.

Peveler said his board takes a conservative approach to operation of the district. "I ask you to consider the members who serve on our board and then look to find a more conservative board anywhere," Peveler said.

Peveler said reappraisal notices were mailed to property owners last week. A board of review hearing is scheduled for July 25.

In 1980, the first year of appraisal district operation, the total budget was $179,668. In 1981 it was $252,281 and in 1982 it grew to $392,634. In 1983 the amount was $377,037.

SHS track approved

Two bids, one for a new track at Tiger Stadium, gained unanimous approval of the Snyder school board of trustees Tuesday night.

Following the regular July meeting which lasted 2½ hours, trustees then went into executive session to discuss employment of a business manager. No action was taken as a result of the closed session, but it is hoped that a replacement for retiring business manager Doug Flynn can be named within the next two weeks.

In addition to the polyurethane track, the board also approved bids for the purchase of microcomputers to be used in the instructional program. Computer Case Inc. was the low and successful bidder in the amount of $44,516. Radio Shack was the only other bidder.

The bid for renovation and expansion of the track was awarded to Royal Athletics Industries in the amount of $199,855. Rekontan Sports Corp. was the other bidder with a figure of $230,455.

The contract calls for work to be completed within 120 days of the contract being signed. The track calls for a new base and surface, which will be red in color, and expansion to eight lanes. A curb and fence will be moved in order to enlarge the number of lanes.

Five resignations were accepted by the board. These included Dixie Briggs, fourth grade at Northeast; Patricia Byerly, high school business; Judy Crawford, junior high communicative arts; and Andrea Mason, first grade at Central.

Twenty-one new teachers were hired. These include Penny Bane, volleyball and PE at high school; Caddye Claborn, sixth grade at Central; Rebecca Cottrell, fifth grade at east; Meloney Early, kindergarten at west; John Gary, PE at Central; Marvin Genuchi, physical science at high school; Linda Gutierrez, resource at junior high.

Rudy Gutierrez, bilingual third grade at Central; Jo Ann Ham, sixth grade at North; Freddie Harrison, English and coach at junior high; Nell Henry, kindergarten at East; Kathy Howell, kindergarten at West; Sam Huffman, industrial arts at junior high; Aleta Long, first grade at Central; Brant Myers, science and coach at junior high; Kenneth Parker, sixth grade at Northeast.

Julia Puente, Bilingual kindergarten at Central; Phyllis Smith, business at high school; Debra Tate, second grade at north; Marc Wauson, business at high school; and Susan Whitaker, kindergarten at Northeast.

Also approved was a leave of absence for Carolyn Martin, 4th grade teacher at North.

Trustees also revised the school policy on athletic physical exams to conform with UIL recommendations. The new policy requires a physical exam at the seventh and ninth grades. In other grades on-

2 die in train, tanker collision

McBEE, S. C. (AP)—An Amtrak passenger train collided with a gasoline tanker truck today in downtown McBee, killing two people and setting off an explosion that forced evacuation of part of the area, authorities said.

The truck exploded after the 7:30 a.m. collision at a crossing, located near two gasoline storage tanks, officials said.

According to Amtrak spokeswoman Marci Larson in Washington, the train was No. 82, the Silver Star, en route from Tampa and Miami to New York.

Ken Branam, minister over at the First Baptist Church says he he's sentimental--he misses the windchill factor.

Things have been known to get hot when preachers get in the pulpit. Branam once prepared a beautiful sermon describing the plight of the poor. He pointed out that it is a charitable duty of the rich to share their wealth with the poor.

After the service, a man in the audience asked Branam if he had gotten his message across.

"Well, it was a partial success," he said reflectively. "I convinced the poor."

If you happen to be one of those men who like to wear white socks, you are painfully aware that you are scorned and persecuted. Folks who wear white socks with dress slacks or suits have been described as "tacky."

Now the fashion experts are on the side of white socks. According to those in the know, white socks will be in this fall. Dark suits and white socks will be the rage--even more popular than white tennis shoes with formal wear.

What we're looking forward to is the day of the "nude" sock. Maybe the holes won't show.

On appraisal values...

Review board to meet July 25

Some 19 Scurry County taxpayers appeared at the Scurry County Appraisal District offices Tuesday for a chance to discuss the new appraisals of their oil producing properties.

Taxpayers were first asked to review their values with representatives of Thomas Y. Pickett of Dallas before seeking relief from the review board. Only one taxpayer appeared before the review board and received what the chief appraiser called an insignficant decrease of $300,000 when compared to county oil values of $2.2 billion.

The same format will be used for a board of review for local values (non-oil). A recent notice of reappraisal sent to county taxpayers have resulted in numerous calls and complaints to the appraisal district.

Taxpayers with questions are asked to come to the office before the July 25 board of review to have questions answered by appraisal district staff members. Taxpayers who still have questions may still appear before the review board which is composed of Harold Lacik, Ross Carroll and Walter Stirl.

Peveler said the recent reappraisal of real estate is the first major one in three years, and the state requires a reappraisal every four years. Older homes were the most affected, Peveler said.

Ask Us

Q.--Last week you reported that there is a charge for making a directory assistance request outside of your own area code. Who charges for that, Southwestern Bell or AT&T?

A.--We still are confused. To us it's still the telephone company but officials in the know say the directory assistance charge is from AT&T.

In Brief

Drought prompting sales

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Unable to feed their herds on parched pastureland, West Texas cattle ranchers lined up for a half a mile to sell thousands of head of livestock at the weekly Abilene Auction in what some cattlemen called the largest turnout in recent years.

"It's just a disaster, is what it is, for farmers and ranchers," said Waddell Strain, co-owner of the auction barn. Strain estimated that "we'll have over 4,000 head of cattle today (Tuesday) — the most we've had in several years."

If so, that would be more than double the number sold each of the last two Tuesdays. Last Tuesday, 1,800 head of cattle and calves were sold, and 1,978 were auctioned Tuesday, June 26.

Strain said the dry weather has created hard economic times that are leaving cattlemen "out of water and out of feed."

Thomas Hyde, of Sweetwater, and his wife waited in line for more than two hours along Interstate 20 with a trailer full of cattle.

Saudis to cut production

VIENNA (AP) — OPEC ministers agreed today to make no changes in their oil prices and basic production quotas. Saudi Arabia, however, said it would temporarily cut its output to make room for more oil sales from financially pressed Nigeria.

Saudi Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani said Tuesday his country was producing about 4.7 million barrels per day.

The Saudi concession will allow Nigeria to boost oil production above its current quota of 1.3 million barrels per day to 1.4 million in August and 1.45 million in September, according to conference sources.

With that exception, the oil ministers agreed to retain present prices and to continue limiting production in hopes of reviving a depressed market, Gabon's oil minister, Etienne Guy Mouvagha Tchioba, said.

Seek woman in tot's death

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who allegedly used a 2-year-old boy to shield herself from a gunman was charged with involuntary manslaughter and injury to a child after the youngster died, authorities say.

Police were searching today for Edna Denise Cole, 22. Bond was set at $20,000, the Harris County district attorney's office said Tuesday night.

Investigators also were looking for the gunman.

Shaun Givens was playing in front of his home Monday evening on the city's north side when Ms. Cole walked behind him and picked him up, neighbors told police. A shot then was fired, striking the child in the abdomen and grazing the woman's wrist.

"I heard a shot and came out," said the boy's mother, Virginia Givens, 20. "I just don't know what to think. An innocent child who hasn't done anything to anybody is dead."

De Lorean defense to begin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years after federal agents targeted John Z. De Lorean in a "sting" operation, prosecutors rested their case in the automaker's drug trafficking trial, with defense attorneys proclaiming "the government case has fallen apart."

De Lorean stood by silently Tuesday as his attorneys confidently predicted victory, saying they would ask Thursday for acquittal on grounds of insufficient evidence but were prepared to call "a lot" of witnesses if the motion were rejected.

Federal appeals court refuses new drug trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has for the third time denied Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra a new trial on his drug trafficking convictions.

Chagra, who was acquitted of conspiring in 1979 to murder a federal judge in San Antonio, Texas, is serving a 30-year prison sentence for those drug convictions.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said Tuesday it could find "no abuse of discretion" by U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions. That judge, without hearing any evidence, denied Chagra's motion last fall for a new trial on his two drug convictions.

Tuesday's hearing was Chagra's third trip to the 5th Circuit; his conviction was upheld in 1982 and he was denied a rehearing last year.

In this latest motion, Chagra challenged a photograph of himself that the prosecution had introduced. He was pictured with "one Robert Piccolo, allegedly an important underling in the continuing criminal enterprise headed by defendant Chagra."

But the court noted that Chagra's trial lasted about two weeks and involved the testimony of dozens of witnesses.

So his association with Piccolo was only one of many that indicated Chagra was a 'kingpin' in "a continuing criminal enterprise," the court said in a 54-page opinion.

Chagra doesn't deny any association with Piccolo, the court said; rather, he only challenges witnesses' identification of Piccolo in the photo.

Besides, the judges added, government evidence establishes that Chagra did associate with a person referred to as 'Pic'.

Chagra, of El Paso, also was tried in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1983 in connection with the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. outside his San Antonio home on May 29, 1979.

New tax deposit system increases interest

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas can get about $500,000 additional from its daily tax receipts under a new rapid deposit system announced by Comptroller Bob Bullock.

"Taxes paid anywhere in Texas today will be drawing interest in the state treasury tomorrow," said Bullock Tuesday.

Bullock said a cooperative effort between his department and Treasurer Ann Richards will result in motor vehicle receipts and other tax receipts from the state's largest counties being picked up daily by a commercial courier and delivered to the treasury the following day.

"It takes about three and a half days for the mail to deliver this money to Austin," Bullock said. "After expenses for the couriers, we'll be earning almost $500,000 in added interest under this new system."

Paul Harvey

A professional newsperson without feeling is uncivilized.

A newsperson with feeling is vulnerable.

Ernie Pyle reported on the GIs of World War II with much feeling until eventually he was overwhelmed by it.

He said, "I think if I see one more dead body I'll go nuts."

It was but days after he said that that he stood up in a foxhole.

Two subjects are too heavy for me: Cruelty to children and cruelty to animals.

Admittedly, I avoid these subjects whenever I can. Sometimes I can't.

I hope we are becoming less calloused, more civilized. I hear of many heretofore inveterate hunters racking their guns.

I hear of 2 million Americans in 400 organizations urging consideration for the rights of animals.

Yet, in our medical laboratories 71 million animals each year die, usually sowly, frequently in agony.

Please do not write to me about the debt we humans owe to animal experimentation. My own wife's life was once saved by a serum developed from animal experiments.

All I've said is that I "hope" we are becoming more civilized and that where it is possible to update animal experiments with something better — we will.

We can.

One researcher at Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, is using rat cells in lab experiments which formerly required live animals.

Researcher David Miletich says such methods are "cheaper and more precise" than when live animals are used.

Congress recently funded a study on alternatives to animal research.

The Johns Hopkins Center for Alternatives to Animal Testing is coordinating 22 separate projects directed toward that objective.

Already the Draize test in which cosmetics and industrial products were placed directly into the eyes of lab rabbits, frequently causing much suffering — that test has been supplanted by an alternative method developed at Rockefeller University, using cells rather than live animals.

Results from the cell tests are more uniform, more reliable.

At Duke University physical and chemical changes in the body are reduced to mathematical equations and thus many experiements which formerly required live animals are now simulted by computer.

The Humane Society of the United States estimates that alternative methods could save up to 80 percent of the animals now being killed in research.

Under sustained pressure, medical science is moving in that direction.

Dear Abby

Readers Disagree on Sweet Smell of Hunting Success

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from the Oregon deer hunter who said the hunters in his area used Tabu perfume to attract deer. I am sure it's possible because I live in Louisiana and do a lot of duck hunting. In our salt water marsh are mosquitos second to none when it comes to lust for blood. The only truly effective mosquito repellent used by duck hunters in these parts is a product made by Avon called Skin-So-Soft.

If you think I'm making this up, come to New Orleans and look around in the sporting goods stores, and you'll see Skin-So-Soft on the shelves right next to the commercial insect repellents.

LOUISIANA DUCK HUNTER

DEAR HUNTER: I believe you. But read on for a letter from a reader who didn't buy the Oregon deer hunter's story:

DEAR ABBY: So Tabu attracts deer? And Intimate attracts pheasant, and Wind Song attracts fish? Come on, Abby.

I live in Wisconsin, and every November deer hunters come from all over the country during the deer-hunting season. What a bunch!

Every year at least one Wisconsin farmer loses a cow or a pig to a hunter who can't tell the difference between livestock and game. (I suspect many of these "hunters" take nips from a flask in the field to "keep warm.")

However, the serious hunters in this area do use a special scent to disguise the human scent, which is highly threatening to the deer.

The scent they use smells like a combination of skunk and rotten meat! Believe me, it smells nothing like Tabu or any other perfume!

That Oregon deer hunter who comes home smelling of Tabu reminds me of this deer hunter story:

Dear hunter berating wife: "For crying out loud, you forgot to pack my extra socks, and I had to wear the same pair for 10 days. They've been sweated up, frozen, then thawed all in the same day, and I have the most horrible blisters on my feet from walking on them for eight hours a day. I was out there hunting hard for 10 miserable days trying to put meat on our table. How inconsiderate!"

Wife: "The extra socks are in your gun case, dear."

DISGUSTED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR ABBY: We had my husband's relatives as houseguests recently. As they were leaving, John (my husband) said to them, "Even though Dolores (that's me) said it was a lot of extra work for her, we certainly enjoyed having you, so please come again."

Abby, I never said it was "extra work," and if John was trying to be funny, I failed to see the humor in that remark. Now his relatives probably think they were a burden. They were not!

What should I have said or done? And what should I say in the future, as John has made similar remarks in an attempt to be funny?

PUT DOWN

DEAR PUT DOWN: First tell John privately that you refuse to be the butt of his so-called jokes, and if he pulls that stunt again, you will deny it, leaving him to admit that he was either lying or joking.

They play like champs

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Here is a simple little hand from a world championship of some 25 years ago. Benito Garozzo, West, and Pietro Forquet, East, were playing against American opponents. In the Italian bidding methods, the opening bid of two clubs described a hand with five or more clubs and minimum opening-bid strength (12-15 high-card points). East responded with two diamonds, and South needed no encouragement to immediately bid four hearts.

Garozzo opened the king of clubs, on which East contributed the deuce. In their discarding methods this would be either a singleton or the lowest of three cards. Since Garozzo did not think it likely that South would leap to four hearts with J-10-x of clubs in his hand, he promptly shifted to the spade king. He then continued with the queen. Forquet, East, overtook the second spade with the ace and returned a third spade, allowing his partner to ruff and set the contract.

It is safe to say that many defenders would not have been up to Forquet's play of overtaking the queen of spades to give his partner a ruff. And yet it is quite logical. If Garozzo had originally held more than two spades, he would have played a spade lower than the queen on the second round of that suit. That's what Garozzo would have done. Would you, dear reader, have done the same?

Can new medicine grow more hair?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 36-year-old man and I am going bald. I have heard of a blood-pressure medicine that helps promote hair growth when applied to the balding areas. Could you give me the name of the drug and more information about it?

DEAR READER — I hesitate to mention it because the rush that a few doctors have experienced when identified with the procedure has been too much for them to handle. One doctor got more than 1,500 phone calls when he tried to get volunteers for his study. The rush for treatment for hair loss, compared with people's willingness to change their lifestyle to avoid illnesses, tells you that people are more interested in their appearance than they are in their health, at least in many instances.

The medicine you refer to is minoxidil (Loniten tablets). It was developed by Upjohn to treat high blood pressure and is very effective for that purpose. Doctors noticed that about 80 percent of their patients taking the medicine for two months or more had an increase in hair growth, called hypertrichosis.

Women were not too pleased with this side effect because it usually appeared first on the face. It is one thing to lose a little hair but quite another for a woman to have too much facial hair. The increased hair growth was also accompanied by increased skin pigmentation and coarsening of facial features.

Fortunately, the changes were not permanent and disappeared after the medicine was discontinued. But bear in mind that these same undesirable features may occur if you use the medicine to try to grow or increase growth of hair on the scalp.

The next step was to develop a lotion that could be applied to the scalp directly. Those studies are still in progress, but some early reports show favorable results, although the question of side effects, such as what happens to the face, are not available yet. So it is a promising area of research and at least suggests that something may be done to help control some forms of baldness at some point in the not-too-distant future.

Meanwhile, there are things you can do to minimize hair loss, particularly by hair care. I have discussed the various aspects of baldness or hair loss in The Health Letter 12-6, Hair Care, which I am sending to you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem that I am very self-conscious about. I am a 21-year-old male who leads a very normal and active sex life. But when I was 8 years old I lost my right testicle to cancer.

This problem causes more embarassment than anything else. I was wondering if some type of prosthetic device or surgical technique could correct the abnormal appearance.

DEAR READER — From your description, your sex life seems unhandicapped. One testicle is really quite enough to provide for normal sexual development and normal fertility. When you lose one at an early age, and often even later, the other testicle tends to enlarge to compensate for this. And congratulations on being cured of your cancer. You are very fortunate.

Yes. You could have a plastic replacement inserted into your scrotum. One of the astronaut candidates I examined at the beginning of the space program had one. See a urologist and ask him about it. Although someone might tell you to live with it, such minor surgery is "instant psychotherapy" and may well improve your self-image.

PUC chief backs rule

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas industries blow off a lot of excess steam that could — and soon should — be used to generate electricity and save Texans millions of dollars, the Public Utility Commission chairman says.

The PUC on Tuesday enacted an emergency-basis rule that requires electric companies to team with private industry to generate power.

The new rule encourages "co-generation" of electricity, which means using byproduct power produced by steam already used in industries' manufacturing processes.

PUC Chairman Alan R. Erwin says cogeneration offsets the need for building so many new power plants, and that means millions of dollars in savings for both utilities and their customers.

Erwin says that industrial heat is now being wasted in many cases and should be turning turbines to make power for local electric companies.

Under the new rule, which would have its biggest impact on the heavily industrialized Gulf Coast, utilities wanting to build a new generating plant must first prove that sufficient co-generated power is not available elsewhere.

"Most of the utility cost increases we're seeing are due to massive construction programs under way for which ratepayers usually are being asked to pay," Erwin said.

The PUC staff is already trying to cancel permission for Houston Lighting and Power Co. to build a $2 billion lignite plant. The staff says the power it would produce can be bought from private industry.

The rule could also spell trouble for Dallas-based Texas Utilities Electric Co.'s Comanche Peak nuclear plant project.

Marianne Carroll, a PUC staff attorney, said the rule could subject Comanche Peak's second unit to delays or even cancellation.

The co-generation policy applies to all utilities with incomplete or planned power plants, Erwin said, adding that "Comanche Peak is going to have to prove itself efficient."

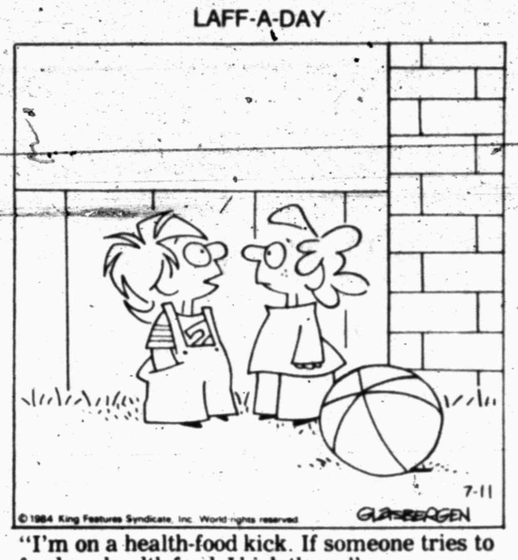
Texas Utilities Vice President Eddie Watson said the Dallas company has "no baic problems" with the emergency rule, which will be in effect until a permanent rule is adopted.

Within the company's service area, however, Watson predicted that industry-generated power "will produce a very negligible amount of what we need."

The new rule also requires utilities to pass excess co-generated power over their lines to other electric companies that need it.

Erwin estimated that in Houston, about 2,000 megawatts of excess power could be produced by local industries and shipped to other places such as Dallas.

LAFF-A-DAY



"I'm on a health-food kick. If someone tries to feed me health food, I kick them."

The Olympic Peninsula — a part of Washington state's northwest corner — is believed to have a geologic origin different from that of the rest of North America, according to National Geographic. Some geologists think the peninsula was born as part of an offshore oceanic ridge, then swiveled into its present position during a massive tectonic shift.

ASTRO•GRAPH

Your Birthday

Bernice Bede Osol

July 12, 1984

This coming year you may enter into more partnership arrangements than usual. Several will work out great, but one may turn out to be more of a hindrance than a help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's not worth hurting your mate's feelings in order to get your way. Each will be happier if you lean over backwards to be understanding. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In situations where others are depending upon you today, take your responsibilities seriously. Do all within your power to see they aren't let down.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have a disagreement with a friend today, try to resolve it between yourselves. Don't put other pals in a position where they're forced to take sides.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons with whom you may have to deal today might not measure up to your expectations. Strive to be self-reliant rather than dependent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to go around with a chip on your shoulder today, because you're bound to run into someone who is prepared to knock it off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Occasionally we feel the need to treat ourselves to luxuries, but this is the wrong day for such expenditures. New debt won't bring you comfort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Associates will resent being dealt with in a condescending manner today. Forego one-upsmanship and treat everyone as your equal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of raising a ruckus, it's best that you go off by yourself today if you feel those with whom you work are against you. Time heals differences.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Spend your time with old pals today, rather than with new acquaintances, so you won't be in the uncomfortable position of being a stranger in a crowd.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Goals and ambitions will not be fulfilled today by hoping that circumstances will take care of themselves. Solid effort is needed to reach the top.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your viewpoints could be so rigidly fixed today that you'll fail to recognize the very facts that can help you. Try to be objective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Life doesn't owe you a free ride today, even though you may believe otherwise. Expecting more than you deserve invites disappointment.

Small Texas town hit by white-collar scandal

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — This small North Texas town, a stone's throw from the birthplace of Dwight D. Eisenhower, is the target of a federal drug investigation of white-collar cocaine use that has snared several prominent residents and produced scandal, rumors and suspicion, residents say.

"Everyody's a target," said Barbara Davies, owner of The Feed Store restaurant. "I think people are pointing fingers at anyone who's prominent. They're pointing fingers like crazy."

U.S. Attorney Bob Wertham of Beaumont said federal agents are dealing with "a major case" that is expected to spread to traffickers of cocaine throughout Northeast Texas and Oklahoma.

"There are a substantial number of white-collar participants. The number is growing on a regular basis," Wortham said.

Six prominent Sherman residents, including the former school board president, who said he used cocaine at a charity ball in April, pleaded guilty to assorted drug charges on Tuesday.

Three men pleaded guilty to assorted drug charges on Monday, and more than a dozen Sherman residents are under investigation by a federal grand jury for trafficking cocaine in this city of 30,000 near the Oklahoma border about 70 miles north of Dallas.

Sherman is a normally quiet community, adjacent to Denison, site of the two-story white house where the the nation's 34th president was born.

Barrett Keith Brown, who resigned his school board post June 29, told a federal judge in Paris Tuesday that he had used cocaine at the Women's Service League Charity Ball in Sherman on April 28.

Brown also told U.S. District Judge Robert Parker that he had used cocaine repeatedly after the ball. Earlier, he had admitted in a letter to the school board that he had used the drug.

Brown pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine and was released on a $5,000 bond. No sentencing date has yet been set, but he faces up to one year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

Meanwhile in Tyler, east of Dallas, five other Sherman residents pleaded guilty to assorted drug-related charges.

Those pleading guilty included Tom Beavers, warehouseman for Dealers Electric Supply, who was charged with knowledge of the distribution of marijuana and possession of usable quantity of marijuana; Gene Mathis, network analyst for GTE, who was charged with using a telephone for distributing cocaine and conspiring to distribute cocaine and marijuana; and Terry Skipworth, owner of Skipworth Construction, who was charged with the knowledge of the distribution of cocaine.

Mike Wilkerson, an independent electrical contractor, was charged with conspiring to distribute marijuana and the distribution of cocaine committed by using of the telephone. Leonard Tuley was charged with conspiring to distribute marijuana and using the telephone to commit the alleged distribution.

All six, including Brown, agreed to waive grand jury indictments and plead guilty.

Authorities said at least a dozen others are targets of the spreading investigation.

Colleges vote against NCAA television plan

CHICAGO (AP) - After 32 years of determining which teams played college football on TV on which Saturdays, the NCAA has been banished from the television business - at least for the time being - by members who voted to take matters and revenue into their own hands.

By a 66-44 vote Tuesday, the football-playing institutions of Division I-A voted down a hastily arranged, one-year NCAA plan that would have replaced one killed recently by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"My own gut feeling is that it came down to there being too much uncertainty and too little time," said NCAA President John Toner. "The vote also tells me that there was no way to keep everyone - and I mean everyone - together in one group."

But waiting to pick up the pieces, as well as most of the revenue, was the College Football Association, which claims 63 members, including most of the traditional powerhouses, or the Football Television Planning Committee, a coalition that enfolds the CFA as well as the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences.

The consensus among athletic directors attending the special meeting was that the coalition would likely emerge as the pivotal bargaining agent in the fall television picture.

The CFA already counts most of the traditional conference powers such as Alabama, Georgia, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas, as well as independent powers such as Notre Dame and Penn State among its number, and the inclusion of the Big Ten and Pac-10 would add enough key television markets to make the group almost as strong as the NCAA had been.

"This clearly demonstrated our inventory is a powerful show," said Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky and chairman of the CFA's television committee. "There's no way of knowing for sure if the coalition will come through, but it's been our position that would be the No. 1 choice."

The CFA and coalition groups set Thursday as the deadline for formal commitments from institutions that elect to participate in their respective plans for 1984. Before Tuesday's the vote on the NCAA proposal, CFA members voted 60-0 with three abstentions to commit to either the CFA or the coalition plan.

The CFA plan would not guarantee any national appearances and would limit any school to no more than four in the upcoming season. It also would grant some "exclusivity" to national networks on Saturdays - similar in many ways to the NCAA plan which the courts found to be in violation of federal antitrust laws.

The CFA also plans to turn over about 4 percent of its revenues to the NCAA to continue administering football-related programs, Singletary said.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said he expected conference members to make a decision on whether to join the coalition "within 24 hours."

Had its proposal succeeded, the NCAA plan still would have required approval from U.S. District Judge Juan C. Burciaga, who originally ruled that the organization had violated federal antitrust laws.

NL pitchers handcuff AL in All-Star Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - In the twilight zone, the All-Star clock turned back 50 years. Only it wasn't Hubbell but Valenzuela and Gooden, and the victims, disappearing quickly into the dusk, weren't Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin, but Winfield, Jackson, Brett, Parrish, Lemon and Davis.

"I heard over a loudspeaker what was going on," said Dave Winfield, the top hitter in the major leagues. "What could we do?"

Not much, as the National League took advantage of power pitching, power hitting in the form of home runs by Most Valuable Player Gary Carter of Montreal and Dale Murphy of Atlanta and the lengthening shadows Tuesday to record a 3-1 triumph over the American League in the 1984 All-Star Game.

It was the 12th victory in 13 games for the NL and its 20th in the last 22 - a dominance symbolized by the pitchers Tuesday night.

Five NL hurlers struck out 11 batters, five AL pitchers fanned 10, and the combined 21 strikeouts eclipsed by one the record for a nine-inning All-Star Game set in 1968.

But what had both teams and a crowd of 57,756 at Candlestick Park buzzing started in the top of the fourth inning.

With Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela pitching, New York's Winfield, hitting .370, stepped up to lead off the inning.

Winfield went down swinging at a fastball.

"I was the one who started it," Winfield said.

Next up was Reggie Jackson, the slugger for the California Angels. He fanned on a half-swing.

Up stepped Kansas City's George Brett, whose home run in the second inning accounted for the AL's only run. Brett was called out on strikes, looking at a Valenzuela screwball.

Valenzuela, second in the majors in strikeouts but a late replacement for injured Joaquin Andujar on the NL roster, gave way to 19-year-old rookie Dwight Gooden, the strikeout leader, to start the fifth. Different pitchers, different batters, but same results.

Lance Parrish of Detroit struck out swinging.

"It was not my best day," said Parrish, who had fanned against starter Charlie Lea of Montreal in the second.

Detroit's Chet Lemon struck out swinging.

Next was Alvin Davis and history. The Seattle Mariners' rookie, pinch-hitting for AL pitcher Jack Morris, went down swinging on a 2-2 count.

The six consecutive strikeouts by Valenzuela and Gooden brought the record set singlehandedly 50 years ago to the day by Carl Hubbell against future Hall of Famers Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in the 1934 Game.

"All we were thinking about was Hubbell's record," said NL Manager Paul Owens of Philadelphia.

Cowboy workouts open with 'scrap'

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - A brief scrap between center John Fitzpatrick and defensive tackle Bryan Caldwell marked the Dallas Cowboys' first "two-a-day" practice sessions in full pads Tuesday.

"It's like the first robin of spring," said Head Coach Tom Landry of the Fitzpatrick-Caldwell altercation. "It means training camp has officially opened."

Fitzpatrick is a 6-foot-3, 285-pound free agent from Purdue, while Caldwell, a 6-foot-4, 248-pounder from Arizona State, was the Cowboys' third-round draft choice in 1983 but missed his entire rookie season with a knee injury.

There was no winner declared in Tuesday's bout, team officials said.

No injuries were reported Tuesday, and the 100-plus players in camp will resume workouts Wednesday morning.

GOOD PITCHING -- Snyder's All-Stars got some fine pitching for the second night in a row at the Area I Little League Tournament going on in Rotan. Tommy Lane hurled a three-hitter in Monday's win over Rotan while Willie Garcia (above) took Hamlin 15-5 with Tuesday's five-hitter. The Stars play again Friday in Rotan at 8 p.m. (SDN Staff Photo)

Snyder All-Stars race past Hamlin crew 15-5

ROTAN -- Snyder All-Stars opened the throttles for nine first-inning runs here Tuesday, then held on to take the checkered flag against Hamlin in second-round action of the Area I Little League Tournament.

The 15-5 victory earned Snyder a berth in Friday's 8 p.m. championship game. Hamlin and Rotan will play Thursday at 8 to determine the other finals berth. Rotan kept alive by eliminating Stonewall-Kent in Tuesday's other game, 14-10.

No tournament games were scheduled for this evening.

Snyder took control early Tuesday. After getting Hamlin three up, three down in the first half of the opening stanza, the All-Stars used a combination of four hits and five walks to build a 9-0 advantage.

Marcus Greene and Willie Garcia drew walks off of Hamlin starting pitcher Phil Ponder before Tracy Braziel stepped up to deliver a run-scoring single. Randy Morris then slammed a two-run shot, giving the All-Stars a 3-0 lead. Ponder continued to struggle, and walked Kevin Holt.

Hamlin eventually got an out - the second of the inning - when Jason West bounced one to the short stop. Snyder also scored on the play, however, making the game 4-0.

The All-Stars came right back as Charles Guynes cracked an RBI single. Jason Taylor followed with a walk and Tommy Lane hit into a fielder's choice that sent Guynes across home plate. Greene then walked for the second time in the inning and Garcia followed with a three-bagger that carommed off the centerfield fence and brought in three runs.

Hamlin retaliated in the third inning when Garcia - Snyder's starting pitcher - began having control problems. Hamlin came up with four runs on four hits, cutting the advantage to 9-4 temporarily.

Snyder responded with three runs of its own however, and the game was never in doubt afterwards. Hamlin added one more score in the fourth while Snyder chalked one in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Garcia, who quickly regained form and went the distance, gave up just five hits and struck out five over six innings.

Snyder's third-inning success began when Taylor and Lane walked and came in on a single from Greene. Holt later singled Greene home.

Errors aided in all three of Snyder's other runs. Lane scored in the fifth inning after rapping a base hit to get aboard. Holt reached on a fielder's choice in the fifth while West reached on a single. Both also later scored.

Hamlin committed two physical errors, but was hampered with several mental mistakes as well. Snyder was charged with one error.

Suspect foul play in disappearance

HOUSTON (AP) — Although authorities suspect a key witness in a Texas prison investigation staged his own disappearance, the state attorney general says he assumes "foul play" was involved.

The witness, James Rodney Pitts, mysteriously vanished July 2, the day after the attorney general's office announced he would be the main witness in an investigation of alleged mishandling of prison construction projects.

Pitts, 37 and a former construction superintendent for the Texas Department of Corrections, also agreed to pay the state $25,000 for contracts that his Palestine, Texas, construction company allegedly obtained illegally.

A bloody, bullet-riddled van belonging to Pitts was found July 3 in a roadside park near Madisonville, about 95 miles north of Houston.

"I am going to assume that some foul play has come to Pitts until I am notified otherwise," Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox told the Houston Chronicle's Austin bureau. "I know it is the view of the sheriff down there — and a number of other people that are investigating the matter — that Pitts has voluntarily gone somewhere, either in hiding or has left for one reason or another."

Mattox said he may be willing to renegotiate the agreement and resolve any problems.

"If it's one of needing to have protection for his own safety, of course we will attempt to resolve that. If there's a problem with the agreement we've structured with him, we would be willing to restructure that," Mattox said.

Madison County Sheriff Ed Fannin has said he believes Pitts is still alive because at least seven people saw a man matching Pitts' description walking along Interstate 45 shortly after his deserted van was found.

Authorities also said Pitts cashed a $2,000 check at Elkhart State Bank in Elkhart about 12 hours before the van was found.

But Pitts' wife, Rosalie, said she is not sure her husband is living and thinks authorities aren't looking hard enough for him.

Dave Richards, Mattox's executive assistant, said Pitts' testimony was not damaging enough to warrant foul play.

"What we are saying is the allegations were not that grave, in the perspective of the TDC," Richards said. "We had no indication from him that he had any knowledge of grave or serious kinds of crimes of the sort that would trigger any kind of retaliation. There are allegations that are much more serious about TDC."

For the first time since 1979, the gross national product is rising in the seven major industrial nations — indicating both a general recovery and the interdependence of global economies.

Air bags or seat belts are to begin in '87

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to order air bags or automatic seat belts in new cars beginning with some 1987 models, but will let automakers off the hook if enough states pass mandatory seat belt laws, according to administration sources.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole was said by aides to have struggled to develop a plan that would be accepted by all sides in the 15-year-old controversy. But advocates and critics of air bags agree no matter what the proposal is, it likely will be challenged in court.

Even though the proposal had yet to be formally announced, consumer and auto-safety advocate Ralph Nader already was criticizing it as "a snare and a delusion."

"It postpones for several more years needed safety protection in cars and carries with it a high vulnerability to auto industry lobbying later this decade," Nader said.

A news conference was scheduled for today to provide details of the new regulations.

Administration sources, speaking on the condition that they not be identified by name, said the rules include a requirement that air bags or a safety harness that automatically wraps around a car occupant be phased in beginning with the 1987 model cars. All cars would have to be equipped with the devices by 1990.

But the administration provided the automakers, who have fought federal requirements for passive restraints for many years, with a way out by saying the requirement would be waived if states representing three-fourths of the population enact laws requiring the use ofseat belts.

One source said that the rules also would relieve the automakers of having to equip cars with the passive restraints if they meet certain government crash protection standards without restraints.

General Motors Corp., for example, has been developing interior designs — so-called "friendly interiors" — on some model cars that the company claims could meet government crash protection requirements without either air bags or a seat belt.

The proposal also was expected to call for a continued campaign for passage of mandatory seat belt laws similar to the one recently enacted in New York state, and possibly to include incentives for states that enact such laws.

Spokesmen for the big three automakers — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — declined to comment on the reported proposal, saying they would make their response known after the rules were announced.

One industry representative, speaking on the condition that neither he nor his company be named, said, however, that the automakers' strategy will be to push hard for enactment of mandatory seat belt laws in enough states to circumvent the federal passive restraint requirement.

Patients are spending about the same amount of time in community hospitals today as they did 20 years ago, but the average costs have increased more than eight times, according to the Health Insurance Association of America. It says the average cost to the hospital was $38.91 per patient day in 1963. By 1982, it had risen to $327.40 per patient day.
