Precedent Setting Decision . . .

Texas High Court Upholds Wife's Suit For Injuries

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)— In a precedent-setting decision, the Texas Supreme Court today upheld lower court rulings that a wife may sue her husband for divorce and personal injuries at the same time.

Without writing a new opinion, the court said it could find "no reversible error" in a San Antonio Court of Civil Appeals decision in favor of Dorothy Mogford of Menard County.

A district court in Menard considered Mrs. Mogford's divorce suit against Lorenzo Mogford at the same time it heard her personal injury suit against him. The court granted the divorce as well as $20,000 for personal injuries in 1979.

Mogford appealed, citing the common law doctrine that one spouse may not sue another spouse for injuries.

But the appeals court said that doctrine "has for some time been in retreat in this state."

"A woman is no longer viewed as an appendage of her husband. She is an individual, with rights and duties of her own and not merely chattel of the male," the San Antonio court said.

Mogford also contended a divorce court is without power to consider a personal injury claim in a divorce action.

But the appeals court said a district court has jurisdiction over both divorces and personal injury cases where sizeable money damages are sought.

It said a plaintiff may join as many claims as he or she has against a defendant into one suit, and "The courts favor the avoidance of a multiplicity of suits."

The court said evidence was presented that Mogford often kicked his wife of 31 years on the legs and ankles and pushed her go the ground and against the house "with great force."

"Testimony shows that she was whipped with a rope, bailing wire and other instruments and that she feared for her safety. At times, appellant (Mogford) threw rocks and sticks at appellee (Mrs. Mogford) until she cried," the San Antonio court said.

Mrs. Mogford was 54 at the time she sued for divorce, her husband 56. The couple lived on a 320-acre farm in Menard County and raised seven children.

Local Financial Firms Report New Records

Snyder financial firms set new records for both deposits and loans in their reports at the end of the second quarter of 1981.

Deposits reported as of the close of business on June 30 by the three local banks and two savings and loan associations totalled $167,849,873. This eclipsed the previous all-time high of $165,849,283 which was set March 31 this year.

Loans on the mid-year report also hit a new high mark at $98,798,433. The previous record for loans here was $89,209,673, which was set at the close of the fourth quarter of 1980.

Increased business and industrial activity, largely associated with oil exploration and production in the area, was credited with sparking most of the gains.

Bank deposits, at $118,271,921 were at a record level, as were bank loans at $59,599,944. The bank figures topped previous highs set the first quarter this year.

First Federal Savings and Loan reported deposits of $21,342,262 and loans of $12,795,179.

Snyder Savings and Loan had deposits of $28,235,690 and loans of $26,403,310.

First National Bank listed deposits totalling $11,039,299 and loans of $8,481,983.

Snyder National Bank had deposits of $57,594,622 and loans of $24,266,961.

West Texas State Bank reported deposits of $49,638,000 and loans of $26,851,000.

Chamber of commerce officials were pleased with this year's July 4th celebration, as preliminary figures indicated that it at least "broke even" financially. There is quite a bit of expense involved in this annual event, but most people figure it is well worth it.

As usual, there was conflicting comment about the celebration. Some said the crowd was smaller than usual, others thought it was "about par," while others thought there were more people than usual. A Kiwanis Club member said that organization sold more hamburgers than in past years, considerably more than last year.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, said he heard one complaint that the fireworks display was "not as good as it was last year." This comment caught his interest because the display this year was exactly the same package that the chamber bought for last year's display.

Sometimes there are situations that offer no logic. Like the youngster who could not understand why mothers don't like for children to go out in the rain without any clothes on. "When we go out with our clothes on, Mother gets mad because our clothes get all wet. When we go out in the rain with no clothes on, she yells at us to get inside right now and get some clothes on." How's that for a perfect example of a no-win situation?

A newcomer to the city marveled at the participation in the July 4 event and was even more impressed when he saw a group of people busy in the park the next day. They appeared to be raking up trash and debris. This must be an exceptional community to have people pitch in and help clean up the park in such a manner, he thought.

Then, on a closer look, he determined that they were manning metal detectors, not rakes. Lost coins, jewelry, etc., from the day before had lured them to the park.

Budget For Appraisal Office OK'd

The board of directors of the Scurry County Appraisal District last night approved a budget of $291,037 for operation of the district's office during the coming year.

The budget includes $114,000 for salaries, $80,000 for appraisal service, $15,000 for computer programs, $8,000 for computer rent, $10,000 for legal service, $9,000 for office rent, with the remainder going for supplies, travel, etc.

Except for the approval of routine current bills for payment, the budget was the only item on the agenda for the meeting.

John Reed, chairman, presided over the session. Other members of the board attending were Kenneth Wilson, Pete Hester and Ross Blanchard.

Aliens Count In Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — As many as 2.3 million illegal Hispanic aliens may have been turned up by the 1980 census, according to American Demographics, a magazine specializing in population studies.

The Census reported that the nation's hispanic population grew by 5.5 million between 1970 and 1980. The magazine's July issue said that only 3.2 million can be attributed to natural increase.

For Peaceful Purposes...

U.S. Will Continue To Supply Nuclear Data

NEW YORK (AP) — The Reagan Administration plans to announce that despite its commitment to halt the spread of nuclear weapons abroad, it will be a "clearly reliable and credible" supplier of nuclear technology for peaceful purposes, The New York Times reported today.

The newspaper said the policy is on an eight-point list of guidelines submitted to the White House by the State Department and is expected to be issued prior to a summit of seven industrial nations in Ottawa beginning July 20.

Quoting administration officials who have seen the guidelines, The Times said principal points include strong reaffirmation of the goal to stop the spread of nuclear weapons; a determined effort to reduce motivation of other countries to obtain nuclear weapons and emphatic support for the 1968 Nonproliferation Treaty, by which nuclear powers agreed not to help others make or acquire nuclear weapons, and the 1967 Treaty of Tlatelolco, Mexico, which established a nuclear-free zone in Latin America.

Q.—Why does the hospital have only private rooms on the new surgical floor?

A.—Cy Miller, hospital administrator, says all patient facilities in the new wing are private rooms. Approximately 99 percent of the demand is for private rooms, and the new wing was constructed with this in mind.

Reagan's Desk Full Of Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has much work to do in the next four weeks if he hopes to clear his desk before his summer vacation.

He is accomplishing things. Reagan has won House approval of his efforts to reduce budget increases by dint of his political persuasiveness. On Tuesday he named Judge Sandra D. O'Connor of the Arizona Appeals Court to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court,

But pressing in on him are decisions on such topics as the MX missile and a manned bomber, extension of the Voting Rights Act and the Clean Air Act, and a new immigration policy.

In addition, he is anxious for Congress to finish work on his tax-cut proposal before the beginning of August. He also faces stiff opposition on his proposal to sell radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

None of the major issues on Reagan's agenda must be decided upon in a few weeks.

County Salaries Are Discussed

Scurry County Commissioners began work Wednesday morning on the 1982 budget and met with two taxpayers who asked that salaries be maintained at the present level.

Meeting with the commissioners court were Mary Dulaney and Jeanne Bullard, both local property owners.

Commissioners said they would begin the budget preparation by first setting salaries. The court said a five to seven percent increase had been discussed, plus the possibility of a longevity raise.

Precinct 3 Commissioner B. J. Bartels suggested the longevity program so that a veteran employee doing the same job would be compensented more than a new employee.

Mrs. Dulaney objected to the longevity and across-the-board pay hike proposals. She suggested a combination of longevity and merit pay.

"What is needed," Mrs. Dulaney said, "is an overall policy for department heads to follow so that they will have a way to get rid of deadwood. The present system rewards incompentency and the taxpayers are fed up."

Mrs. Dulaney asked the court to forego any salary

Deregulation Helps

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study by the Civil Aeronautics Board concludes the deregulation of the airline industry has helped to keep fares down and is providing better air service for most travelers.

The report by the board's office of economic analysis comes at a time when the Reagan administration is intent on getting the government out of the airline regulating business ahead of schedule.

The administration wants to close the CAB in October 1982 instead of 1985, as currently is required by law. The CAB has proposed closing its doors as early as January 1983 if some of its functions are shifted to the Transportation Department.

Equal Treatment Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Companies from Texas and other states are being forced to pull out of Canada because of nationalization of the energy industry, but Canadian companies get preferential treatment in the United States, complains Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas.

A recent attempt by Seagram's, the Canadian liquor company, to take over control of Conoco energy company is a prime example of the advantages that foreign investors have over Americans, Collins said.

To give American investors "an even break" in their own country, the Dallas Republican has introduced a bill to make it harder for foreign companies to take over American industries.

Reaganite Defeated

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Democrat Wayne Dowdy says a heavy turnout by blacks was "very, very helpful" in his slim upset victory in a congressional race over a Republican who was backed publicly by President Reagan.

Unofficial returns today in Mississipi's 12-county 4th Congressional District gave Dowdy 55,512 votes to 54,486 for Republican Liles Williams, a spread of 1,026 votes.

Hunger Striker Dies In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Joe McDonnell, the fifth Irish hunger striker to starve himself to death in two months, died before dawn today in the Maze Prison at the start of his 61st day without food.

The death of the 30-year-old Irish Republican Army guerrilla halted a Roman Catholic mediation attempt that looked as if it might be about to break the deadlock between the British government and the guerrillas.

Sources close to the IRA had stressed that if McDonnell died before some form of agreement was reached, the hunger strike demanding that guerrillas be treated as political prisoners would continue "for the foreseeable future," with the prospect of more deaths.

The news of McDonnell's death was spread through Catholic districts by the ritual banging of garbage-can lids and blowing of whistles. Youths hijacked a bus and two trucks and set the bus afire, causing the Belfast Transport Authority to withdraw all buses from Catholic West Belfast.

There was no fighting, in contrast to the fierce rioting that erupted in Catholic areas after the deaths of the other four hunger strikers in May. But violence was feared during three rallies and a half-day business shutdown strike in Belfast this afternoon which the IRA organized before McDonnell's death to "keep up the pressure on the streets."

Seven more men in the prison outside Belfast were fasting and an eighth was expected to join the strike in McDonnell's place today or Thursday. Sinn Fein, the outlawed IRA's political front, said more than 100 of the 600 guerrillas of the IRA and its splinter groups in the Maze have volunteered to take the places of those who die.

The bidding needs some explanation. North-South had an excellent auction to the "virtually" laydown small slam in hearts. North's raise to three hearts was game forcing and setting hearts as trumps. North and South then each cuebid their minor suit aces. After South subsided in four hearts, North with 16 high card points decided his hand was worth one more move. His five heart call asked South to bid the slam if he had first or second round control in the unbid suit, spades.

The drawback to this bidding is that the opponents also hear the bids and can surmise what North and South have for their scientific auction. West, who remained silent during the bidding with his 6-5 distribution, came to life at his last turn with an imaginative Lightner double. This lead-directing double, the Lightner double, which asks for an unusual lead is almost always made by the partner of the opening leader. In today's hand West, the opening leader, was able to draw the proper inferences from the auction to reverse the Lightner procedure.

West knew North's five heart bid asked South for a spade control. When South accepted the invitation, West knew that South had a second round spade control. If declarer had a void or the spade ace, he would be obligated to bid five spades over five hearts as a grand slam could still be laydown. Six hearts by South showed either a singleton or the spade king. West had the king so he knew South had a singleton. East, therefore, had the spade ace and an entry for the club ruff.

The opening spade lead was won by East's ace and he quickly figured out West's ingenious reason for doubling and gave him that club ruff.

Sometimes science can be too revealing.

ABWA Meets

Marsha Krenek, RSVP Director, spoke to American Business Women's Association members last week about widowhood. Mrs. Krenek is aware of the problems which come to older citizens and the solutions, many of which are found through her organization and the Senior Center here in Snyder. But widowhood can pose problems for younger people as well. Some communities have volunteers which work with widowed people, but a sponsor has yet to be found in Snyder for such a group.

If a sponsor could be found, says Mrs. Krenek, the RSVP volunteers could help. Such a group would help a widowed husband find day care for his children, get financial advice for a widowed woman, help people know what support the widowed person needs and learn how to talk to someone newly widowed.

Nursery Closes In Abilene

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A state district judge has closed a day care center temporarily after a complaint that children were exposed to marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

The temporary restraining order granted Tuesday by Judge Billy John Edwards closed Mary's Nursery pending the outcome of a hearing July 16.

The Texas Department of Human Resources filed a motion to close the nursery permanently after state investigator Don McWhorter said he and a state licensing representative found a "hash pipe" containing what appeared to be the burned residue of marijuana on a bedroom end table when they visited the center last month.

The investigator went to the nursery after receiving a complaint that marijuana was being smoked around the children.

McWhorter also reported finding "some partially smoked, hand-rolled cigarettes, ashes and a small amount of green leafy material believed to be marijuana" in a butter dish in a bedroom of the center.

When he showed the pipe to nursery operator Betty Hawkins, the investigator said, she told him "she had never seen it before and didn't know who it belonged to."

McWhorter said 11 children ranging in age from 18 months to 9 years were in the nursery when he visited.

No criminal charges have been filed in the case because the state agency's main interest is in closing the center.

STITCHIN' TIME

Make designer jeans

By Joanne Schreiber

Aren't you tired of going around with someone else's initials on your jeans? Why should you give some rich designer all that recognition - to say nothing of all that cash?

Your own initials are enough. You can make your own jeans from a standard pattern and machine-embroider your name, your initials, or any symbol you like on the pocket or pockets. You'll be sure that the jeans fit, and you'll have your own jean identity.

With the new computerized sewing machines, you can stitch alphabets and all sorts of decorative designs. Here, Vicki Hastings, educational coordinator for the New Home Sewing Machine Company, shows off the jeans she made for herself. You'll see her initials, V H, on the front pocket, and an attractive daisy design on the back pockets. The initials were done completely automatically with New Home's "Memory 7" alphabet stitcher. This machine can memorize seven different pattern combinations and repeat them until it is reprogrammed.

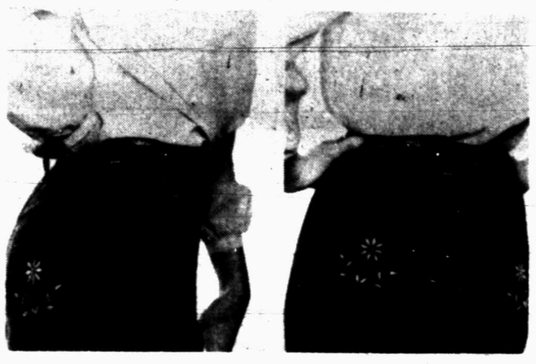
The daisy design uses three different stitches: A triple stretch stitch for the stem, two units of a single design for the flower center and a single design for the leaves and petals. The machine sewed the number of units programmed, locked off the threads, and stopped automatically.

You needn't be afraid of the multi-layer stitching required for jeans. These new machines do more than make pretty stitches. Most of them have lower gears to give extra needlepower, so it's possible to stitch through as many as 12 layers without skipping stitches or breaking the needle. The toughest part of a pair of jeans is the double-folded hem with the flat-felled side seams, and the new mchines can stitch that easily.

When sewing jeans, use a heavy 14 or 16 needle. For top stitching and design work, use buttonhole twist such as the Suisse brand long-staple polyester twist. A metal zipper guarentees heavy duty wear.

Use pre-shrunk denim, or throw your fabric in with the jeans load to preshrink and soften the new material. Depending on your fabric cost, you can make your own designer jeans for $12-$15, thereby saving at least $25 over the $40-plus cost of name-designer jeans.

It's time to start stitching - when your own initials are enough.



MAKE AN INITIAL INVESTMENT in your own jeans - make your own and put your own initials on the pocket. You'll save plenty over the cost of name-designer jeans.

Winning Way

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—A boat used primarily for sport fishing does not usually require high speeds, unless one is in a fishing contest.

"Sportsmen here are placing more emphasis on speed in fishing boats to increase their chances of winning. The first one out to his favorite fishing hole has an advantage," says Jim Porter, Inca Marine Products.

Inca makes Marlex polyethylene fuel tanks for bass boats. The tanks are 20 percent lighter in weight than the aluminum tanks they replace.

Officers Here Join In Oilfield Theft Battle

The Scurry County Sheriff's Department is helping promote a new campaign to combat oilfield thefts in the state.

The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and Texas Ranger Captain Bill Wilson recently announced that a "hot line" center had been established at Wichita Falls. The phone number for collect calls is 817-723-1114, amd it has been set up on a six-months trial basis.

Gene Wright of Gilmer, head of TIPRO's task force on oil field theft, said TIPRO "decided it is high time we start making some positive steps toward eradication of the problem." He estimated that he had lost $60,000 worth of equipment to thieves last year.

Wright said thieves could carry off a wellhead in 15 minutes, or drain 40 barrels of crude oil and be gone in 10 minutes.

New laws increasing the penalty for stealing oil field equipment and requiring detailed records on the sale and exchange of used oil field equipment should help, said Wright. However, he said, "If you've got oil field equipment to get rid off, you can find somone to buy it."

Wilson said Texas Rangers already spend 20 percent of their time on "oil field-related thefts. It's not our No. 1 priority, but it is a high priority."

Wilson said the biggest problem is identifying equipment as being stolen equipment.

Wright said that in addition to having to pay for equipment that is stolen, it also takes a long time to replace some equipment. He said the thefts raise the cost of doing business, "and it's got to be the consumer who ultimtely pays for it."

Gospel Group In Concert Tonight

The Cruse Family, gospel concert and recording group, will appear in concert tonight at 7:30 at First Baptist Church.

The closely-knit family of 10 was named Best Mixed Group for 1977 and 1978 in the gosepl music industry. They are recipients of two Dove Awards, the highest award in gospel music, and their "Transformation" album was selected best contemporary album of 1978.

Their impressive list of personal appearances includes Praise Gathering '78, Christian Artists Seminar, PTL Club, Grand Ole Opry and guest appearances on numerous syndicated series.

The Cruse Family has recorded 14 long playing albums in the past 10 years.

Their concerts feature a variety of solo, group and instrumental styles.

Everyone is invited to attend the concert tonight and there will be no admission charge. A free-will offering will be taken.

The church nursery will be open for children age 3 and under.

An electronic bagpipe has been invented, says Jim Scott, an exporter of Scottish paraphernalia. He said electronic pipes have a black box instead of a cowhide bag and batteries that adjust pitch and volume. However, he won't be selling the new pipes. Many of his customers would consider them heresy, he said, noting that an earlier attempt to market plastic bagpipes failed.

For Supreme Court Justice. . .

Sandra O'Connor Faces An Easy Confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — With praise from both ends of the political spectrum, Sandra D. O'Connor seems headed for easy Senate confirmation to take "her place in history" as the first woman ever on the U.S. Supreme Court.

From the moment President Reagan's choice of the 51-year-old Arizona appeals judge was announced Tuesday, senators applauded her legal credentials as "brilliant" and "eminently well qualified" and hailed Reagan's fulfillment of a campaign pledge to appoint a woman justice.

Republican leaders promised to heed Reagan's request for swift confirmation "so that as soon as possible she may take her seat on the court, and her place in history." It may be September, however, before hearings begin.

Public opposition came from the fundamentalist group Moral Majority and the National Right to Life Committee, both normally Reagan allies, which bitterly questioned Mrs. O'Connor's record on abortion and vowed to try to defeat the nomination.

At a news conference in Phoenix, Mrs. O'Connor declined to answer questions on abortion and other substantive issues pending the confirmation process.

But deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said she is truly against abortion, and Reagan said he was "completely satisfied" on the matter.

Mrs. O'Connor was the only candidate whom Reagan interviewed personally to replace Stewart Potter, who retired last Friday, and become the 102nd justice in the Supreme Court's 191-year history. "One of the reasons Reagan was attracted to her was when he looked at the total woman," said deputy White House chief of staff Michael K. Deaver. "She had not been an activist on either side. She had taken a moderate position."

Congressional sources, however, said Sen. John East, R-N.C., who is leading the fight for anti-abortion legislation that may ultimately be tested on constitutional grounds before the Supreme Court, would assail Mrs. O'Connor's votes on the issue in the Arizona Legislature.

East was considering announcing his opposition to the nomination, perhaps today.

The prevailing sentiment in the Senate, though, was positive.

Praise came from senators as divergent in their outlook as Democrats Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Joseph Biden of Delaware, Alan Cranston of California and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona and Republicans Orrin Hatch of Utah, Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Goldwater lashed out at critics of Mrs. O'Connor's positions on abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I don't buy this idea that a justice of the Supreme Court has to stand for this, that or the other thing," he said. "And I'm getting a little tired of people in this country raising hell because they don't happen to subscribe to every thought that person has."

Kennedy said he was "extremely pleased," and Hatch, a noted opponent of legalized abortions, said he was "elated" that a woman was chosen.

Thurmond, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee which will consider the nomination before it goes to the full Senate, said: "I will do everything I can to help."

Biden, senior Democrat on the committee, said Mrs. O'Connor "seems to be eminently well qualified for the position."

Cranston, the Senate's lone Democrat, called her "a brilliant legal scholar with considerable legal experience" and said Reagan had taken a "major step in the battle to eliminate sex discrimination."

In his nationally broadcast announcement of "the most awesome appointment" a president can make, Reagan said Mrs. O'Connor was not selected just because she is a woman. He called her "a person for all seasons."

Tuesday night, however, in a speech to a Republican fund-raising dinner in Chicago, Reagan said that as soon as Stewart told the White House about his retirement plans in March, "we began a search for a highly qualified woman who would serve this nation well."

One source close to the White House had said earlier that Reagan was determined to find "another Rehnquist" — a solid conservative young enough to serve for two decades or more.

Handbook To Be Published . . .

Many Ideas Available For Texas Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handbook with 101 entries? Not another edition of the Son of a Son of 101 Aggie jokes!

Nope.

The handbook of 101 ideas that will go out in Texas shortly is from the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission.

Sesquicentennial means 1½ centuries, and the pamphlet has 101 suggestions for community projects that towns and cities across the state can come up with to commemorate the 150th anniversary since Texas became a republic in 1836.

The celebration, in 1986, is still five years away, but the commission counsels that there's no substitute for an early start.

To help communities get off the mark, the commission will soon make available its handbook of ideas — ranging from strewing roadsides with wildflower seeds, as Nacogdoches is doing, to collecting oral histories and folk tales as special projects for high school students.

Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Dallas, says the state commission has already met two of its goals.

The commission, chaired by State Rep. Chris Victor Semos of Oak Cliff, has a commitment from the U.S. Postal Service to issue a special Texas stamp in 1986. And it has picked, through a statewide contest, a winning design for the logo that will symbolize the Sesquicentennial.

"As a member of the Texas Congressional Sesquicentennial Advisory Committee, I'm happy to see all these preparations moving forward and to help in whatever way I can," Mattox said.

The handbook can be ordered from the Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission, P.O. Box 19860, Southeast Station, Austin, Texas 78760.

By following the guidelines in the handbook, a community or county can be designated a Texas Independence community or county.

"The greatest good of the Sesquicentennial celebration could be the drawing together of a broad cross-section of a community in the creation of something special--a new awareness of our unique history, a renovation, a festival, or any of the many worthwhile projects suggested by the commission," Mattox said.

Here are some of the suggestions for community projects to be found in the "Community Handbook to Organization":

— print a special Sesquicentennial edition of the local newspaper, involving the local historical society, public library and public schools.

— hold a special old-timers' community reunion during 1986.

— hold a contest to design an official community flag of the Sesquicentennial.

— begin a downtown revitalization project. So far, 25 communities have indicated their intention of doing this with the help of the "Texas Main Street Project," a pilot effort to rejuvenate within the context of historical preservation.

— encourage the publication of local high schools of oral history and folklore magazines.

— plan a community folk crafts school, where mini-courses in folk crafts could be taught by others in the community with mastery over skills like canning, making brooms or lye soap, and whittling.

Open Barrel Race Slated Here Monday

Kellye Elrod On Honor Roll

Kellye Elrod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Elrod of Snyder, is listed on the honor roll for the spring semester at Texas Woman's University in Denton.

To make the honor roll, a student must make a grade point average of 3.3 or higher for at least nine credit hours of course work.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev attended a meeting of the United Nations' General Assembly, and the session dissolved in disorder Oct. 12, 1960. When the United States' ambassador spoke on Eastern Europe and the Philippines' ambassador endorsed his remarks, the Russian leader took off his shoe to pound the table while he heckled.

Is the majority moral?

The Supreme Court has said we can have it as we want it, that we can legislate morality by "contemporary community standards."

If your community does not want to tolerate a morality it does not have to.

But is the majority moral?

The "do your own thing" ethic of the last two decades evolved to fill a vacuum. Churches had equivocated, parents talked one way and acted another, schools taught moral value neutrality.

So a generation without an anchor drifted downwind.

Then along came the election of a born-again Christian president in 1976 and an even more dramatic impact by "moral majority" voters in 1980 – re-raising the possibility that our nation's silent majority is bigger than the vocal minorities who have been running things, the possibility that there is in fact a moral majority.

Century Three Foundation, Oak Brook, Ill., is trying to get Americans to think about it.

George Gallup, the professional pollster, has demostrated an intense interest in this Century Three project.

George Gallup is aware that his hit-and-run questions measure "initial thought," rearely "deliberate thought."

This Century project involves workshops wherein citizens consider a moral code for their own community.

Founder Art Melvin insists that attendees are not "indoctrinated," merely informed.

Philosophers, historians, theologians, psychologists, scholars of all ages and from every discipline have generally agreed that no society can long endure without a living body of beliefs.

But we need a moral standard to guide our value judgments.

If religion used to provide tha moral standard, its guidelines have been blurred and adherence to those guidelines has been diluted.

From central government we will never get – would never want – a superimposition of religion.

So the Supreme Court, wisely, has left it to each community to decide for itself such questions as pornography in publications and in entertainment media.

Century Three workshops amount to a Gallup Poll in depth.

Attendees from a full range of backgrounds are given a chance to explore their own thinking and thus communicate local opinion to local lawmakers.

It is the most logical approach yet to seeking and describing community consensus on moral matters.

Deliberation frequently distinguishes what we "want to do" from what we "ought to do."

And 14 years experience with these workshops indicates that Americans want to do what they ought to do – when they think about it.

GEORGE JONES

Liquor Problem Plagues Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Award-winning singer George Jones, the ex-husband of fellow country music stylist Tammy Wynette, is again suffering from a drinking problem, his manager says.

Paul Richey, Jones' manager, said Tuesday that Jones has canceled his personal appearances for the next month.

Richey told a reporter by telephone that Jones, 49, was hospitalized for exhaustion for about four days last week in Beaumont, Texas.

Asked if Jones was again suffering from a previously highly-publicized drinking problem, the manager said, "Yes."

Jones' drinking problem was a focal point of a made-for-television movie in May, "Stand by Your Man," based on Miss Wynette's autobiography.

Richey said he talked with Jones by telephone Tuesday, but would not say where Jones was staying. He said Jones was not under a doctor's care.

"You can't tell much about a person over the phone," Richey said.

Jones, a 28-year country music veteran, was married to Miss Wynette, "the First Lady of Country Music," from 1969 until they divorced in 1975. They have been singing partners since the late 1960s — even after divorcing.

Jones, of Florence, Ala., was treated for alcoholism last year during a month's hospitalization in Birmingham, Ala. He has said that he nearly died because of his drinking.

During the past year, he has won several awards for his throbbing hit "He Stopped Loving Her Today." The song earned him top male vocalist honors from the Country Music Association, the Academy of Country Music and in a readers' poll conducted by the Music City News, a Nashville-based country music publication. He also won a Grammy award for the song.

Some of his other big hits include "She Thinks I Still Care" and "The Race Is On."

His hit duets with Miss Wynette include "Golden Ring" and "Near You."

SS Woes Not As Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are accusing the Reagan administration of exaggerating the plight of the Social Security system and demanding larger benefit cuts than are necessary to help balance the federal budget.

"I'm sorry to have to say the administration in the last 48 hours has been conducting a campaign of political terrorism, describing a basically sound social services program as on the verge of going broke," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

"It is not," he asserted.

Moynihan and other Democrats charged that the administration wanted to cut Social Security benefits for future retirees to help balance the budget by 1984.

"That is false, absolutely false," Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker told the Senate Social Security subcommittee Tuesday.

Astronaut John Glenn orbited the earth three times on Feb. 20, 1962.

Man Sentenced To Three Years

Alvin Joe Porter was sentenced Monday to three years in the Texas Department of Corrections after entering a guilty plea to aggravated assault upon a peace officer. In that incident, Porter hit Officer Robert Harbin in the head with his fist.

Sir Christopher Wren, the great English architect, laid the first stone of the present St. Paul's Cathedral in London in 1675. A church which had stood on the site since the 13th century was destroyed in the Great Fire of London in 1666. The last stone on the new building was not put in place until 1710 by Wren's son, but the entire building was finished under the direction of one master mason.

In Newborn Infants . . .

Test Can Detect Problem

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A simple test that can save an infant from a lifetime of deformity and mental retardation has detected 106 cases of hypothyroidism in just over a year.

The State Health Department, following orders from the Legislature, set up the screening program, which also checks newborns for two other rare conditions, galactosemia and homocystinuria, in February 1980.

Hypothyroidism — also called cretinism — is the absence of a thyroid gland or the gland's failure to function properly. Without screening, its presence can't be detected until symptoms begin to appear about three months after birth.

It takes about $20 worth of medication a year to keep hypothyroidism under control and enable an infant to grow up normally, says Lois Brown, coordinator of the department's Newborn Screening Program.

"A child with untreated congenital hypothyroidism soon shows signs of cretinism — stunted growth and mental deficiency. With treatment, a baby can develop into a productive member of society. Without it, the future prospects are dismal at best," Mrs. Brown said.

The department said hypothyroidism occurs in one in 4,000 births, galactosemia in one in 88,000 births, and homocystinuria in one in 264,000 births.

Since the screening program began, six cases of galactosemia and one case of homocysinuria have been detected.

The health department has conducted a screening program for another cause of retardation, phenylketonuria (PKU) since 1966, detecting 217 cases, all treatable with a special diet.

Hypothyroidism is the biggest cause of retardation found by the screening program.

Screening is done with a simple blood test. Blood is taken from an infant's heel on a special filter paper that is sent either to the department or to a private laboratory certified by the department. The department's laboratory here processes about 40,000 blood samples a month.

If any of the conditions are found, the baby's physician is contacted by telephone or mail for follow-up tests.

Once a condition is confirmed by further evaluation, treatment starts.

"Birth of a baby with hypothyroidism is an unsettling experience for the parents," says Dr. Allan Frank of Austin, who has two babies with the condition under his care. "... We reassure them that it is a treatable problem — some problems are not."

In some cases, however, parents are frightened and reluctant to get treatment for their children.

"Often, we find it necessary for the nurses to visit with mothers and convince them to take babies in for treatment so the babies will be normal. It is sometimes necessary to convince them that there is no stigma to having a baby with hypothyroidism, that it is just an imbalance which can be corrected with treatment," Mrs. Brown said.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Do you know what to do?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Last week my husband and I were dining out when a horrible thing happened. The man at the table next to ours collapsed. He turned blue in the face. An emergency team arrived quickly but it was horrible to see him lying there on the floor in the restaurant and no one knew what to do. I keep thinking that I should have been able to do something, but I am not sure what to do if such a thing should happen again. I don't know whether he had a heart attack or just choked. What should a person like myself do in a situation like that?

DEAR READER — Ideally you should be trained in advance so that when an emergency occurs you can do something right. I am surprised that no one tried to revive him, if that is the case. He may have just had a large bolus of food, such as a piece of meat, in his throat that blocked his airway. In that case the Heimlich maneuver would have helped.

You do that by standing behind the victim and encircling your arms around his upper waist. Put your fist in the pit of the stomach, just below the rib cage and put your other hand on top of your fist. Now pull upward and inward sharply. The sudden compression forces the diaphragm upward and compresses the lungs. The air rushing out of the lungs will pop the food out of the windpipe like popping a cork out of a bottle.

You need to check with your local Red Cross and Heart Association. They often sponsor courses for the public to learn how to deal with such problems, including sudden heart arrest or artificial respiration for drowning victims. Your fire department may also offer training.

Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-4, Save a Life: Heart and Lung Arrest, to give you more particulars. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is important to follow the ABCs in such an emergency. That means, A for airway — keep it open; B for breathing — maintain respiration at 12 times a minute; and C for circulation, which involves compressing the chest to keep the blood moving. I think all adults should know how to do these procedures. Such procedures can and already do save thousands of lives each year.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if my problem has anything to do with a vasectomy that I had 23 years ago. During the last year I have noticed that my testicles have become much smaller and seem to be soft. They are about half as big as they used to be. It is difficult to tell as the change has been very gradual. There has been no change in my sexual desires. If anything, it is stronger than in my younger days. I'm 57 now.

DEAR READER — It is common for a man's testicles to get smaller as he gets older, with or without a vasectomy, so I doubt the change you have noticed has anything at all to do with your vasectomy. If it were the cause, you should have noticed a significant change about 20 years ago and not just now.

The decrease in size that you have noticed isn't necessarily related to sexual desire or performance. But the change may be an indication of a change in hormone balance, which supports the well-known fact that there is more to sex drive than hormones.

Mexican Aliens Found Following An Accident

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP) — Thirteen illegal Mexican aliens stuffed into a 1973 auto were arrested Monday after the vehicle was involved in a minor accident on the Kansas Turnpike, authorities said.

Lyon County Sheriff Daniel Andrews said a Kansas Highway Patrol trooper, responding to an accident report, found eight of the aliens and ordered their car impounded. Andrews said there were three men, two women and three small boys — two 2-year-olds and a 1-year-old — inside the car's passenger compartment.

About an hour after the car was towed to a parking lot at the Lyon County Jail, an officer leaving the jail heard noises coming from the trunk of the auto. He opened the trunk and found five more men crammed inside.

"If we hadn't heard them knocking, they'd have been in there all morning," Andrews said.

Officials Have Stopped Filing Antitrust Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials, acknowledging that the Reagan administration has created a "more favorable atmosphere for mergers," have virtually stopped filing major new antitrust suits.

Since March, when Assistant Attorney General William Baxter became chief of the department's antitrust division, only four antitrust suits have been filed, according to department records.

Those four cases involved price-fixing charges against highway pavers in Kansas and Tennessee and resulted from investigations begun by the Carter administration.

"There's no question that businesses see a more favorable atmosphere for mergers and acquisitions," said one Washington lawyer who specializes in antitrust law.

"I'm having to restrain the enthusiasm of some of my clients (for mergers) by reminding them that even if the government isn't likely to sue them, private firms still can," said the lawyer, who asked not to be identified.

Baxter agreed. "In many senses, there is a more favorable atmosphere for mergers," he said.

The staff of a Cabinet-level task force has recommended that the White House drop an antitrust suit against the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., but Baxter has vehemently opposed halting the litigation. A final task force recommendation has not yet been completed, but a decision is expected soon.

If the case is dropped, "I think you'll see widespread resignations in the antitrust division," said a department staff attorney who asked not to be identified.

Many conservative economists contend that the antitrust laws, based on concepts of the 1890s, are now hindering the ability of American firms to compete in world markets.

Baxter said Tuesday that the small number of antitrust suits filed since he took office should not be taken as an indication that additional cases won't be brought in the future.

He said he didn't think the number of cases filed "is greatly significant. The work here tends to be reactive; it responds to what corporations do."

Baxter said it was possible his predecessor, Sandy Litvack, "pushed to get the decks cleared before he left. I simply haven't had many recommendations from the staff."

The Reagan administration's filing of four new antitrust suits since March compares with 25 filed by the Carter administration during the comparable period in 1977 and 14 brought by the Nixon Justice Department during the same period in 1969.

Letters To The Editor

To The Daily News:

Last week, we had a fire at our house. Two men were passing in a pickup and saw the fire. They climbed upon the roof and with a garden hose were putting the fire out.

We don't know them, but want to thank them, the Snyder Fire Dept. which came right out, our neighbors who helped so much. What could have been a great loss to us was saved because of the wonderful people who helped.

To The Daily News:

In behalf of a group of senior citizens, I wish to send a big "Thank You" to Jake and Jean Smith who took two van loads of seniors who seldom have a chance to get out of town on a visit to the State Park near Colorado City for a wonderful day's outing. A fine lunch was provided by the Senior Center.

Harvey and Laura Greenfield helped provide fishing equipment for the group.

Raymond and Annette May parked their mobile home there to add to the comfort of the folks and they also selected a site for the delicious picnic lunch which included iced drinks and cold watermelon.

Thanks for a memorable 4th of July outing a bit early. Again, I'll say Snyder is a great place for the senior citizens.

Dear Abby

If It's a Grand Tour They Want, Send 'em Home!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about people who are invited to your home for the first time, rave about how beautiful the room in which they are being entertained is, then ask to have a "grand tour" of the rest of the house?

Sometimes I don't even have time to make the beds because I work outside the home. (I'm lucky to get the living room area cleaned up in time for company, let alone the bedrooms and baths.)

This is very embarrassing for me, Abby. I could never do this to someone else. But what should I do when this happens to me?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: There are two solutions. Anticipate the request for a grand tour and 1) have the place reasonably picked up to minimize the embarrassment; 2) counter emphatically with, "Sorry, another time; the other rooms aren't ready for the grand tour just yet."

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man check up on his wife to be sure he knows exactly where she is every minute? Do you think he suspects that she's playing around?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to know where she is while he's playing around.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 39 years to a man who thinks he knows everything. Please settle this. How much energy is consumed when an electric light is left on for 15 or 20 minutes, compared to turning it off and then turning it back on again?

I have always turned the lights off when leaving a room, even though I know I will be turning them back on in 15 minutes or so. My husband insists that energy-wise, I'd be ahead just to leave the lights on. He says turning them off and on wastes more energy than leaving them on. Who is right?

ME IN LINDEN, N. J.

DEAR ME: You are. The energy used in switching a light off and then on again is so insignificant that it hardly matters. But there are just so many hours' life in an electric bulb, so you would be ahead to turn off the lights when you leave the room. (Now can somebody tell me why light bulbs don't last anywhere near as long as they used to?)

DEAR ABBY: I'm leaving for college in the fall, and I've been somewhat downhearted because my parents have talked of selling our house, which has been my home all my life. (My father built it.) I finally saw the light when I read the letter signed TAX POOR AND IGNORED. She was the daughter who blamed her parents for selling their big home and moving into a condo too small for the usual Easter dinners, with no room to keep the grandchildren overnight. She said such parents were "selfish and inconsiderate."

Well, my mother doesn't owe me one damn thing! I owe her my life, and after raising a family, she deserves a break. I've had one for 18 years.

GRATEFUL IN SALEM, VA.

Water Deliveries Increase In June

Although the Colorado River Municipal Water District delivered slightly less water to cities in June than for the same month in 1980, there was a substantial gain in total deliveries both for the month and for the first half of the year.

In June, the district pumped 1,840,374,000 gallons of water to all its customers, an increase of about 72,000,000 gallons, or up 4.10 percent. Of this amount, the cities took 1,618,895,000 gallons, about 2,000,000 gallons or .11 of one percent less than in June of 1980. On the other hand, oil and industrial deliveries reached 221,479,000 gallons in June, an increase of 74,000,000 gallons, or 50.30 percent.

For the first half of the year, the cities drew 6,705,809,000 gallons, down about 77,000,000 gallons, or 1.13 percent, and the oil companies 1,200,357,000 gallons, up 31.02 percent. Practically all the gain is represented in draws by SACROC, Monsanto and Sharon Ridge Units. The cities could be down in July, because in this month last year, there was a month-long string of 100-plus degree temperatures, and the district set an all-time record delivery total of 2,263,407,000 gallons.

During June, Big Spring used 262,624,000 gallons, down 9.26 percent; Midland 406,760,000, up .16 of one per cent; Odessa 821,365,000 gallons, up 3.60 percent; Snyder, 112,735,000 gallons, down 3.63 percent, and Stanton 15,411,000 gallons, up 15.08 percent.

Baseball Players Unified, But Is That Good?

by The Associated Press

The player union's executive board has met, the club owners will meet, the National Labor Relations Board hearing continues and the baseball strike is now in its 27th day, with no end in sight and the All-Star Game all but left for dead.

Marvin Miller, the union's executive director, said following Tuesday night's meeting in New York - which lasted more than four hours and was attended by at least one player from each of the 26 teams - that the players were as unified as ever.

"As you who have been involved in strikes know, as time goes on you get more militant, solid and stronger," said Miller. "That has happened here without any question. That's not always good. It makes it more difficult to get a settlement.

"What was acceptable in April and May is not acceptable in June or July."

What is not acceptable to the players right now is management's plan for compensation to teams losing free agents. The dispute has been over what free agents, and how many, will be subject to compensation by professional players rather than amateur draft choices, and how the compensation will be determined.

The club owners will meet Thursday in New York with their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey, and other members of the Player Relations Committee. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn will also attend the session, at the owner's invitation. It's the first such meeting for the owners since the strike began June 12.

Meanwhile, Kuhn testified at Tuesday's NLRB hearings that player salaries are escalating at a rate exceeding the one he quoted in a speech to club owners last December, when he cited projections by the certified public accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney which said the average salary would reach $320,000 by 1983.

"I think they're low," Kuhn said of those estimates. "I think the salary has gone up faster than their estimates."

The Players Association has filed an unfair labor practices charge against the owners, claiming they have not bargained in good faith and seeking to force the clubs to make public their financial records. Chief administrative law judge Melvin Welles is hearing the case and will decide whether to seek an enforcement order requiring the clubs to comply.

Local Pullers Stock Up On Trophies At Annual Event

Tommy Patterson led Snyder pullers in hauling off top honors in the West Texas Tractor Puller's Association Tractor Pull, held at the rodeo grounds here last Friday and Saturday.

The annual pull was sponsored by the chamber of commerce, with volunteer aid from the WTTPA members.

Patterson, aboard "Ole Yeller", cranked out first place prizes in both the 5800 and 6200 Open four-wheel drive (4WD) classes. He won the 5800 Friday, edging second place finisher Jesse Allen, also of Snyder, by a scant one foot. Saturday, Patterson had a full pull to win the 6200 class over Bill Blackwell, who pulled 196-1.

But Patterson was just one local puller who copped top trophies. Eldon Kirkpatrick also picked up honors. He won the 9500 Modified Tractor class and took second in the 7500 Modified Tractor division.

Larry Lee, whose wife Brenda won the Powder Puff event, claimed first place in the 6200 Economy Tractor event, third in the 5500 Economy Tractor class, and fourth in the 5500 Modified Tractor class. Dale Shifflett won first in the 15000 Field Stock Tractor class and third in the 5000 class, while E.E. Shifflett placed first in the 15000 Field Stock class.

Another local winner was Curtis Stipe, who won the 5500 Economy Tractor class by four-feet, four-inches over Vega's Lee Wagner. Stipe placed third in two other classes, the 5500 Modified and the 6200 Economy.

Other first place finishes were brought in by James Van Meter of McAdoo in the 5500 Modified class, Darren Brooks in the 5000 Field Stock class, Ruben Almaguer of San Saba in the 7000 Super Stock class, Dusty Davis in the 7500 Modified class, and Stan Blagrave of Ackerly with a full pull in the 9000 Super Stock division.

The two-day event was complimented by a barbecue lunch for pullers and their families, hosted by the Lees. Approximately 90 attended.

Wagner was one of the top out-of-town pullers. The Vega, Tex., resident placed second in three divisions: 5500 Modified, 5500 Economy and 6200 Economy, and third in 7500 Modified. Other pullers also made good showings, including Snyder's David Johnson, who took second in 5000 Field Stock and fourth in 7000 Field Stock, and Royce Patterson of Snyder, who came away with a fourth and a fifth place, and two sixths.

Cited as principle figures in coordinating the event were Bill Warner, chamber manager; Dee Wenetschlager, Board of County Development secretary; Nancy Fletcher, chamber secretary, and Brenda Lee, secretary of the WTTPA. Others included Larry Lee, president of the WTTPA and Kirkpatrick. Announcing the show was Don Smith of Clovis, N.M.

Cowboys Trying To Sign 10 Remaining Draftees

DALLAS (AP) - Training camp for the Dallas Cowboys begins next week, with only four of 14 draft picks contracted to the club by late Tuesday. But the team's player personnel director Gil Brandt says that "We've signed a few on the doorstep as they arrived and I wouldn't be surprised if we do that this time around."

Offensive lineman Howard Richards and the National Football League Cowboys are still apart - and the distance that must be traveled before the team's top draft choice can report to training camp next week may best be measured in dollars, not miles.

"I'd say we are getting a little closer," Brandt of negotiations with Richards.

"But the fact remains you can't bring a Howard Richards in and pay him more than you're paying some other players on your team. The teams that have done that sort of thing in the past are the ones with the problems," Brandt said Monday. "Our (veteran) players know that there is a pay scale here that assures them we're going to maintain an overall fairness."

Richards' agent, Jim Steiner, points to base salary as well as the amount of the signing bonus as the problem areas.

"We're inching along right now," he said from his St. Louis office. "Whether Howard reports next Sunday (when camp is set to open) is something I can't answer right now. I'd have some concern if he doesn't, but you have to stand up for what you believe in."

Asked just how far apart he and the Cowboys are, Steiner said, "We're not as far apart as, say, the distance between St. Louis and Dallas. More like the distance from Atlanta to Dallas."

The four draft selections already inked all are lower-round picks.

"We're close to signing several people," Brandt says. "Draft picks this year are asking for considerably more money than those in recent years. What has happened is that the market has become very competitive. The players are looking around at what everyone else is doing, and they're getting smarter, looking for the best percentage deal they can make with an agent.

"And everyone knows the TV money is supposed to double next year when new contracts are signed, so that's playing a part in everyone's thinking."

A league rule prohibits a rookie from reporting to camp without a contract.

Partnership Slated This Weekend At Country Club

One hundred and 28 golfers are expected to congregate at Snyder Country Club this weekend for the Earl Fish Memorial Golf Tournament. The 64-team, two-day partnership is one of the top annual golf tournaments in the area.

Price Courter, golf pro at the club, noted that there are still several spots available for those who wish to enter. Interested parties should contact the Pro Shop at 573-7101 as soon as possible. Entry fee is $120 per team.

Format is low ball, stroke play. Golfers will be put into divisions based on handicaps for Saturday's play, and will be flighted for the final 18 holes. The 36-hole test will be sidelighted by a buffett dinner, band and entertainment Saturday evening.

Oilers Wrap Up Teenage Crown

The Oilers knocked off the Buffs 8-2 last evening to officiall wrap up the local 1981 Junior Teenage League championship. The 14-1 Oilers are the defending state champions, and will host the Regional Tournament at Moffett Field on July 27-30.

Charlie Bollinger took winning pitcher honors last night, giving up only three hits, a double to Steve Parker and a pair of singles to losing hurler Jimmy Cain.

William Cotton led the Oilers batsmen with a double and a single, while Bollinger and Todd Pollard cracked a double each. Eddie McClure hit a single.

The Oilers will pick up three players for the regional meet. They will be Cain, Bobby Velasquez and Jimmy Velasquez, all of the Buffs.

The Buffs finished the season with an 11-4 record.

Ellenberger Sentenced For Convictions Today

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) - Former University of New Mexico basketball Coach Norm Ellenberger, who still vows he's an innocent man, faced sentencing today for convictions on 21 counts of fraud and making false public vouchers.

The flamboyant former coach who was as well known for his courtside antics as his winning teams, could receive maximum sentences of 18 months in prison on each of the 21 counts, all fourth-degree felonies.

Sentencing was set for today by District Judge Phillip Baiamonte after a seven-man, five-woman district court jury returned the guilty verdicts Tuesday. The jury found Ellenberger innocent on one count of fraud over $2,500, a third-degree felony carrying a maximum penalty of three years imprisonment.

"I don't like it," Ellenberger told reporters when asked about the guilty verdicts as he emerged from the courtroom. "This is not right. It isn't right. It is wrong, this is an absolute wrong."

He and his attorney, Leon Taylor, said they would appeal.

Ellenberger, 48, was indicted by a state grand jury in May 1980 on 12 counts of making false public vouchers, one count of fraud in excess of $2,500 and nine counts of fraud in excess of $100.

Swimmers Reap Gold

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - U.S. men swimmers made a clean sweep of gold medals on the first day of the 11th Maccabiah games. Among the women, two Israelis and one Mexican carried off the top swim prizes.

Chris Weissman captured the gold medal for completing the men's 100-meter breast stroke in 1:06.68, fellow American Eric Kaufman finished 8:40 in the 100-meter men's back stroke to win his gold medal.

Plucknett Pops Discus Record

STOCKHOLM (AP) - Ben Plucknett of the United States shattered his world discus record with a mighty toss of 237 feet, 4 inches, while Sebastian Coe narrowly missed breaking the world 1,500-meter record at an invitational meet.

In 1975 Cable TV Was Struggling To Expand

Wiring America II: The Programming Parade With Laserphoto By TOM JORY Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — 1975. Cable TV is unworthy competition for the networks. A company named Home Box Office is struggling to sell pay-TV movies and sporting events. Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier are fighting in Manila.

Enter a satellite orbiting 22,300 miles above the equator and three cable operators — in Florida and Mississippi — willing to pay about $100,000 for earth stations to receive satellite signals.

In its first two years, operating via a microwave tower atop New York's Pan Am building, HBO has gained about 57,000 viewers.

It is Sept. 30. Ali beats Frazier in the "Thrilla in Manila" as HBO looked on. In New York. In Pennsylvania, In Florida. In Mississippi.

It was HBO's first satellite program, and suddenly, a national cable network was possible. Cable operators were offering programs not found on network television.

Within a year, HBO, a Time Inc. subsidiary, added 200,000 subscribers. And when the Federal Communications Commission the following year lowered the cost of earth receiving stations, cable took off.

Today, HBO serves more than 6 million homes.

At the same time, more than two dozen cable networks have grown up, including all-news Cable News Network, all-sports Entertainment and Sports Programming Network and ethnic-oriented channels like Black Entertainment Television and Spanish International Network.

"In Columbus we went from four channels to 30, and filled all of them almost immediately. Now, we don't have enough channels there," says Gustave M. Hauser, whose Warner Amex Cable Communications Inc., has used the Ohio capital as a cable innovations test market.

There is family entertainment — for example, the Home Theater Network concentrates on G and PG films — and adult-oriented fare.

Two networks, Escapade and Private Screenings, offer R-rated adult movies. Penthouse magazine will join the soft-core competition this fall with the Penthouse Entertainment Television Network.

Such offerings and the nudity and violence in uncut movies shown on other cable networks have upset some legislators. In Utah, a new law makes it a crime for cable companies to distribute anything defined as "pornographic or indecent." HBO and four cable companies are challenging the law as unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, some companies offer parents lock boxes to keep their children from viewing programs they deem unsuitable.

A result of the boom is that cable is chipping away at network TV, whose ratings fell about 7 percent last year. The major networks and Public Broadcasting Service are entering the race to fill the upwards of 100 channels cable operators plan to offer.

ABC's Alpha Repertory Television Service, billed as "the first nightly cable television service devoted to the performing and visual arts," premiered in April. CBS Cable will debut with "Twyla Tharp and Dancers," produced expressly for the new service. PBS' Public Subscriber Network proposes a "grand alliance" with major cultural institutions for programming to begin in 1983.

Cultural fare seldom did well in the ratings that propel commercial network programming. It remains to be seen whether it can succeed on cable.

An irony is that cable has cast doubt on the future of PBS, which traditionally has provide programming not geared to mass audiences.

New cable services are usurping public television's traditional role at a time when federal subsidies are being cut.

Dockworkers In Poland Stage Hour Walk Out

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Dockworkers in major Polish ports walked off their jobs for a one-hour warning strike today, demanding improved living and working conditions, a Solidarity union spokesman said.

The spokesman, reached by telephone in the port city of Szczecin at the East German border, said the strikes began without the traditional wail of sirens or other dramatic acts. The workers planned to stay at their posts through the work stoppage.

The brief strike threatened to be only the first in a series of blows to Poland's crumbling economy at a crucial moment — less than a week before the July 14 opening of a reforming party congress viewed with alarm by the Soviet Union.

Solidarity employees at LOT, the Polish government-run airline, are on strike alert and plan a four-hour warning strike Thursday, demanding the right to name the airline's new director. Airline management said the strike would cause serious disruption in foreign flights and cancel many domestic flights.

Miners in Silesia are threatening to cut coal production in half unless the government ensures that food supplies "will be no worse than in other places in the country," a Solidarity spokesman said. He said miners' families have rationing cards, but nothing to buy with them.

The labor troubles are certain to embarrass Poland's Communist leaders in the eyes of their restless Soviet allies.

The dockworkers dropped their chores at 10 a.m. today in Szczecin, Gdansk, Gdynia, Kolobrzeg and Swinoujsice, all on the Baltic Coast.

A spokesman for the Solidarity chapter in Szczecin, Jan Kaska, said the economic effect of the one-hour work stoppage would be "symbolic, it would be nil, because let's face it, one hour means nothing for a port of this size."

The dockworkers are demanding a "dockers' charter," guaranteeing workers rights and improved working and living conditions. They contend the government has failed to implement past agreements regarding the charter.

Representatives of the dockworkers negotiated late into the night in Warsaw with Minister of Maritime Economy Stanislaw Bejger in a futile attempt to head off the protest, Warsaw Radio said.

increases this year, noting that a 14 percent pay hike was granted last year.

Mrs. Bullard said she objected only to elected officials granting themselves a raise. Mrs. Dulaney also said she opposed raises for elected officials.

Commissioners said they were considering a longevity program in order to attract and retain qualified employees. With regard to raises, commissioners said raises granted employees in the past have been far below the inflation rate.

Precinct 1 Commissioner Eldon Perry said the court had discussed a uniform personnel policy, and that the idea does have merit and could be considered again.

Wednesday's meeting lasted for three hours and no decisions were reached.

However, commissioners will return at 9 a.m. Thursday to continue work on the budget.

The 1981 budget is $9.3 million and about 60 percent of that total is the hospital budget. Of the total budget about 51 percent represents salaries.

Federal Officials Order Tests For Reactors

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Federal officials, concerned that the steel fuel containers in some older nuclear reactors may be more vulnerable to cracks than anticipated, have ordered 44 plant operators nationwide, to test the toughness of their reactor vessels.

A severe overcooling and repressurization accident involving a weak vessel in one of the pressurized-water reactors could cause the reactor vessel — which contains the radioactive fuel rods used to produce heat and electricity — to crack like a hot glass jar thrust into cold water, officials of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission said in interviews this week.

Operators of the pressurized-water reactors also were directed to review cooling control systems, according to Thomas Murley, director of the NRC's safety division. NRC researchers in Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Washington were assigned to study the problem, he said.

The NRC is particularly concerned about 14 older plants, including the Maine Yankee reactor in nearby Wiscasset, Murley said. Also on the list is unit No. 1 of the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa. That is the companion unit to the No. 2 reactor that was shut down following the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident on March 28, 1979.

No immediate corrective measures were ordered, although Murley said some steps are likely to be taken within a year. However, a dissenting NRC safety engineer has urged that some older plants be shut down pending the study.

The phenomenon that has caused concern is known as "pressurized thermal shock" and has long been a concern of nuclear scientists.

If a crack breached the 8-inch-thick steel wall of the vessel, allowing the cooling water to escape, it could cause the fuel to overheat. Fuel rods then might melt through the vessel into the plant's concrete containment building, very likely causing a release of radioactive material into the atmosphere, Murley said.

The order was issued last month after a June 11 meeting in Washington during which NRC officials discussed overcooling accidents in California and Florida and the discovery that steel in the Maine Yankee reactor in Wiscasset was aging more rapidly than anticipated.

Almost half the city of Montreal was destroyed by fire in 1721.

Advocate Is Now On Trial

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Jiri Gruntorad, member of Czechoslovakia's human rights movement, is on trial for anti-state activity, Czechoslovak emigre sources said.

Gruntorad, whose trial started Monday, was jailed last month for publishing "subversive" pamphlets and faces three to five years in prison if convicted, the sources said.
