WHAT SO PROUDLY THEY RAISED — Pampa High School students have begun a new tradition--the waving of a new green and gold victory flag. With the words "Fighting Pampa Harvesters" written on it, the flag was raised high Friday night as the Harvesters beat Perryton 34-0. The flag was presented to the football team by Vice Principal Carl Dwyer at a recent pep rally.

Nixon Calls For Reform Of World Money System

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called today for "thorough-going reform of the world monetary system to clear the path for the healthy competition of the future."

In an unusual appearance before the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, Nixon pledged that the United States would "not turn inward and isolationist."

He asked a similar pledge from other nations as he said that monetary reform must embrace international economic affairs, including trade and investment opportunity as well.

Nixon told the representatives of 124 member nations that "as the danger of armed conflict between major powers is reduced, the potential for economic conflict is increased."

Nixon's appearance diverted some of the attention from a growing debate over the future leadership of the IMF as it starts the long process of shaping a new financial system.

U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz added new fuel to the debate Sunday, telling newsmen that the United States opposes re-election of IMF Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer because it wants a "fresh outlook" and a younger person in the job.

Schweitzer, a 60-year-old Frenchman who has headed the IMF since 1963, said only a day earlier that he wants to remain in his post despite U.S. opposition. Unless he is named to another five-year term by September 1973, he must step down.

As finance ministers and central bankers and their aides gathered at the Sheraton-Park Hotel here, they were met with some of the tightest security in the history of IMF meetings.

Nixon administration spokesmen said the extra security was ordered by Nixon to protect the government officials from any possible terrorist acts.

For Nixon, today's will be the first meeting with the official who directed the monetary order he struck down in August of 1971 by suspending the U.S. guarantee to redeem dollars for gold.

In the past year, Nixon occasionally has mentioned that the United States wants not another patching of the monetary system but fundamental reform, more in tune with modern worldwide economic conditions.

Schweitzer had said earlier that he did not understand the U.S. opposition, since, he said, Nixon himself had praised the realignment of currency-exchange rates a year ago as one of the world's most historic monetary agreements.

IN SACRAMENTO

22 Die As Jet Crashes Into Ice Cream Parlor

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "It took one wall where the 17 kids were and just pushed it," one witness gasped after a burning plane slashed into an ice cream parlor jammed with children and their parents, killing 22 persons.

Authorities said one entire family of four died in the crash Sunday along with at least 10 children. Twenty-six others — mostly children — were injured when the private plane catapulted across a highway shortly after takeoff and hit Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor.

The pilot of the Korean war-vintage jet fighter survived and was quoted as saying, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!" as he was pulled from the wreckage.

Describing the scene at the wall where the 17 youngsters had been sitting, Dave Thorton said, "They were all in a big pile. It just pushed them." He ran to the crash area from a nearby bowling alley.

A 12-year-old girl in the shop crowded with about 100 persons said she thought it was "a gimmick" to accompany the serving of a special ice cream sundae. "Then everyone started screaming and running."

Don McClusky, a management trainee working at the store, said a birthday party group of 17 persons was seated at the table at the front window and had just been served with ice cream, candy and favors when the plane crashed through the wall beside them. Most of the dead were found in that part of the store.

The crash occurred as the F86 Sabrejet was taking off from Sacramento's Executive Airport after participating in an air show. The plane had been converted to civilian use.

Witnesses said the plane appeared to lose power in the takeoff. It crashed on an old levee barrier at the end of the runway and hurtled across a four-lane highway.

The craft burst into flames about the time it hit three autos parked by the front entrance to the ice cream parlor. Two of the autos were rammed with the burning plane through the front of the building.

Twenty of the dead were tentatively identified as customers in the store. Two others had been seated in one of the autos crushed by the jet.

Coroner George Nielsen said some identifications might be delayed because the fingerprints of children usually aren't on file.

He said he had few calls from parents, possibly because some of the parents were among the hospitalized.

The pilot was identified as Richard Bingham, 36, of Novato, Calif., general manager of Spectrum Air.

Bingham was listed in satisfactory condition with fractures at Sacrmaento Medical Center.

A witness said a man with a pair of wire cutters ran to the blue and gold jet — risking the flames — and cut the pilot loose.

The witness told newsmen the pilot was crying and saying over and over again, "I'm sorry! I'm sorry!"

Heat from the crash charred paint on parked automobiles 60 feet away. The impact knocked over mannequins in windows at the other end of the block.

Witnesses gave contradictory accounts of when the fire started, but several said that the wings — which contain the fuel tanks — were severed from the rest of the craft as it roared toward the ice cream parlor.

All of the other stores in the plush shopping center were closed or had just one or two persons each inside.

"There was an explosion with a ball of flames. It was just huge. It was bright orange and yellow with black smoke around it," said Barbara Fine, who was in a fabric store behind the ice cream parlor.

Hundreds gathered around the shopping center — held back about 100 feet by police lines — as rescuers pulled debris and bodies out of the store.

The operation continued for hours. The covered bodies — many of them small figures — were put in ambulances and quickly moved from the scene.

State Solons May Consider Brake Law Bill

State Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa informed the News shortly before noon today that Gov. Preston Smith plans to open up consideration of revision of the trailer brake law bill during the special session currently underway in Austin.

Rep. Cates said the current bill needs to be revised "more in line with reality."

A bill for revision co-sponsored by Cates is already in the House hopper, he said.

The current bill requires alteration of most trailers in use, whether for boats, cotton, farm use and so on.

The provisions of Cate's bill would exempt farm trailers, semi-trailers and fertilizer trailers from many of the provisions if operated only in daylight hours.

Among the alterations that would be exempted would be the use of red reflectors, tail lamps, clearance and identification lamps and flashing emergency lamps.

These would be exempted only from those trailers operated only during daylight hours.

The proposal would also revise the bill passed last session to remove the brake requirements from all trailers up to 10,000 pounds and from farm trailers and semi-trailers up to 15,000 pounds as long as they meet the braking requirements of being able to stop within 50 feet when moving at 20 miles an hour, Cates said.

This would affect only those trailers purchased after Jan. 1, 1973.

U.S. Asks UN To Adopt Pact Halting Terrorism

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Declaring the need is urgent, the United States called today for a global conference early next year to adopt a treaty cracking down on international terrorism.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers presented a proposed antiterrorist treaty, and asked the United Nations to convene the special diplomatic conference, as part of a nine-point "decisive" action program to clamp down on terrorist deeds crossing national boundaries.

The treaty proposed by the United States would deal with murder, kidnaping or other serious crimes against civilians which are committed for political purposes by foreigners in a country which is not their political target.

"These actions would mark a major advance in the struggle against international terrorism," Rogers told the 132-nation U.N. General Assembly as it opened 2½ weeks of general debate.

"Surely it is in the collective interest of every nation represented in this hall to arrest the growing assault on international order with which we are all faced...."

Rogers cited seven specific recent examples of what he termed "demented acts of terrorism" which are disrupting international society.

They ranged from the killing of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics by Arab extremists to the murder by mail campaign against Israeli diplomats and the hijacking of a commercial airliner in Sweden by Croatian nationalists.

The Arab-African nations came close to keeping the terrorism issue off the 92-item General Assembly agenda altogether in a debate running far into the night Saturday.

The world body finally decided to discuss "measures to stop international terrorism" — a U.S.-backed item proposed by Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim — by a vote of 66-27 with 33 abstaining. It defeated by a 10-vote margin, 57 to 47, a Yemeni bid to put off the item until next year.

G.O.P. Asked To Name Nixon Campaign Donors

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, describing President Nixon's administration as one "bought lock, stock and barrel by the special interest," is drumming a demand that the Republicans name the donors of what he calls a $10-million secret campaign slush fund.

The assertion that big business and special interests dominate the Nixon government has become a central one in McGovern's Democratic presidential campaign. He made it his text again today after pressing it from Brooklyn to Billings Sunday.

"If there was ever an administration that was bought lock, stock and barrel by the special interests of this country, it's the Nixon-Agnew administration," McGovern told more than 700 persons at a $50 fundraising luncheon in New York.

At home in Sioux Falls, S.D., McGovern called that the principal issue of the 1972 campaign. He addressed an airport rally where, police said, 2,500 persons showed up. Aides sold 1,500 tickets to a $25-a-plate dinner.

Day after campaign day, McGovern is reciting his litany of charges against the administration on that point: the ITT case; the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. loan guarantee, approved by Congress at administration urging; the alleged advance tip-off the grain exporters about U.S. wheat sales to the Soviet Union—which he called "the foulest deed of all."

Yard Contest Judging To Be Made Oct. 7

Judging of Pampa's most beautiful yard contest will be made Saturday, Oct. 7 by judges from the Pampa Garden Club.

The city will be divided into six areas, as follows:

(1) All homes west of Hobart and north of Rham.

(2) All homes between Hobart and Mary Ellen and north of Foster.

(3) All homes east of Mary Ellen and north of Harvester.

(4) All homes between Harvester and Mary Ellen and north of Foster.

(5) All homes between Cuyler, Barnes, McCullough, and Foster.

(6) All homes between Foster, Rham, McCullough, Barnes, and Cuyler.

In order to make judging easier, nominations by friends and neighbors will be helpful. A coupon appearing on page 2 of today's Pampa Daily News may be filled out and mailed to Beautiful Yard Contest, P.O. Box 1942, or a postcard will be sufficient in making nominations.

Residents may nominate their own yards and may send in as many nominations as they care to make.

Appropriate plaques in recognition of first, second, and third place winners will be presented at one of the chamber's membership luncheons.

Reds Stick To Own Proposal On Viet Peace, POW Release

HANOI (AP) — North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong reasserted Sunday to a delegation of Americans in Hanoi to escort home three released fliers that remaining pilots in capitivity will be freed only when an agreement is reached to settle the war.

In a 90-minute informal discussion attended by this reporter, Dong told antiwar activists Cora Weiss, David Dellinger, Rev. William Sloane Coffin and Prof. Richard Falk that a framework for negotiating a settlement to the war has long been available.

That was the seven-point proposal put forward by the Provisional Revolutionary Government, the Viet Cong, that calls for the total withdrawal of American forces and the formation of a coalition government.

Dong said he wanted to stress the importance of the Sept. 11 clarification statement put forward in Paris by the Viet Cong delegation head, Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, on a three-party coalition government for South Vietnam.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam would be excluded under this formula, but Saigon would be allowed to name anyone else to one-third of the government, the Viet Cong another third. The final third would be comprised of Catholics, Buddhists, exiled South Vietnamese in Paris and others.

The greying, wiry North Vietnamese leader told the delegation that the pilots should be released and that it would be a good act.

He asserted that President Nixon was aware of the necessity for a settlement first before their freedom and that there was no misunderstanding.

The premier said he felt that despite this Nixon was following a policy that delivered pilots into North Vietnamese hands and the number was increasing.

Dong insisted that North Vietnam wants to release all captured pilots and that moment would come when there was positive response to the proposals already tabled for a settlement.

Mrs. Weiss, cochairman of the committee of liason with the families of the servicemen detained in North Vietnam, told this reporter Sunday that the prospect of a meeting with the premier was one reason for the delay in leaving Hanoi for the United States with the three released pilots.

Another reason for the delay, she said, was that the delegation had a responsibility to make contact with other pilots still detained.

Dong declined comment on the meetings between U.S. presidential aide Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, adviser to the Hanoi peace delegation in Paris, on the grounds of promised secrecy.

In a long discussion on the war, Dong referred to Americans who thought they could have defeated North Vietnam with armaments and politics and who had imagined for years that the Hanoi government would not survive. Those people are still waiting for the end just as they waited in 1964-1968, he said.

The premier admitted that much of his country was devastated and that his people had made many sacrifices, but he said their minds were lucid and hearts proud, they knew the reasons to fight and that to win the war meant winning peace, independence and freedom.

A delegation member brought up offers by some American peace activists to serve as hostages against U.S. bombing and to interpose their bodies between bombs and the Vietnamese people.

Dong said it was difficult to comment because the gesture of those people was obviously from their hearts. His people could only show respect and admiration but as a people who were realistic they had to give serious thought to those proposals.

His own personal view was that the battlefield for those in America who opposed war was in America and that the battlefield for his people was in Vietnam.

53 Prominent Philipinos, Including Congressmen, Arrested In Manila

MANILA (AP) — Fifty-three prominent Filipinos, including two provincial governors, six members of Congress and seven newspapermen, have been arrested in the Manila region since martial law was proclaimed over the weekend, the presidential palace announced today.

Press Secretary Francisco Tatad provided the first official confirmation of the arrests over the single television channel still operating. All but selected media outlets have been closed and news being sent abroad is censored.

Tatad spoke as the island nation awaited details of far-reaching reforms planned by President Ferdinand E. Marcos' government to create what it described as a "new society."

Marcos said he was assuming martiap law powers and reorganizing his government to block an insurrection threatened by Mao-oriented Communists and to improve conditions for the masses who live in acute poverty.

In his announcement, Tatad said four of the prominent persons detained had subsequently been released.

Among those still under detention were Sen. Benigno Aquino Jr., a leader of the opposition Liberal party, an outspoken critic of Marcos and a possible candidate for the presidency in 1973 elections; Sen. Jose Diokno, member of the civil liberties union; and Sen. Ramon Mitra, another prominent member of the opposition.

A palace official said the announced arrests covered only the Greater Manila area, suggesting that more have been made in the provinces.

Announcement of the detentions confirmed speculation that had been sweeping Manila during a news blackout that followed proclamation of martial law.

In lightning moves, Marcos closed down all but one of Manila's 15 daily newspapers, shut six of the city's seven television stations and nine of the major radio stations.

He has also issued a series of "general orders" aimed, the palace said, at saving the republic from Communist rebellion and creating a "new society."

The measures resulted in:

—Closing of all but selected media outlets and censorship of news sent abroad.

—A temporary ban on Filipinos travelling abroad.

—National control of airlines and sky marshals aboard all planes to thwart possible hijacking.

—Closing of all schools for a week.

—The death penalty for illegal possession of firearms, the start of disarming the many private armies and security forces in this country.

—A ban on all public demonstrations, rallies and labor strikes.

The government has also promised a thorough reorganization to root out "corruption, incompetence and uselessness" and a crackdown against crime syndicates.

McGovern, Laird Exchange Accusations On POW Issue

By Associated Press

Three American prisoners of war in Hanoi suddenly have become an issue in the political campaign, amid accusations and counter-accusations by Sen. George McGovern and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

Sen. McGovern said Sunday the Nixon administration was "playing politics" with the three prisners who apparently have been released by North Vietnam to an anti-war group in Hanoi, but have not yet left the North. He blamed the administration for the delay.

"So I call on Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and I call on the President of the United States to let these three men come home just as quickly as possible," the Democratic presidential nominee said in New York.

Laird earlier had charged that the North Vietnamese were using the families of the prisoners—families of two of the prisoners went to Hanoi with the anti-war group—as "propaganda tools."

But after McGovern's criticism of the administration, Laird issued a new statement, saying: "It is a despicable act of a presidential candidate to make himself a spokesman for the enemy." He added that McGovern "knows very well just who it is who has delayed the return of the three American officers ..."

The three Americans are Maj. Edward Elias of the Air Force, Lt. Mark L. Gartley of the Navy and Lt. Norris Charles of the Navy. Relatives of both Charles and Gartley are in North Vietnam.

Vice President Spiro Agnew starts an extended week-long campaign swing with an address before the National Defense Transportation Association in San Antonio, Texas, today. He will also be in Illinois, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky this week.

Sargent Shriver, the Democratic candidate for vice president, shook off a cold and fever to visit an ethnic picnic in Pittsburgh Sunday where he said, "We want people to be proud of where they came from."

PRPC Assembly Set

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission will have a general assembly at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Amarillo.

All official representatives of the PRPC will be guests of the commission for the dinner at Villa Inn Restaurant.

Two Clubs To Install Officers At Banquet

The Pampa Optimist Club and the Opti-Mrs. Club held their annual joint installation in a banquet at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Optimist Club building.

Les Hudson, lieutenant governor of Zone 4 from Amarillo, was the installing officer.

Clifford Scott was presented the Optimist of the Year award, chosen by a secret ballot.

Mrs. George Massie received the Opti-Mrs. of the Year award. Presentation was made by Mrs. R. W. McPhillips, Jr., past president. The award is also chosen by secret ballot.

The Life Membership award was given to George Massie, with Robert Jones making the presentation.

Incoming Optimist officers installed at the banquet are R. W. McPhillips, Jr., president; T. V. Lowrance, vice president; John Maxwell, vice president, and Newt Secrest, secretary-treasurer.

Directors are Robert Jones, Melvin Davis, Monty Michael, Warren Smith, Cliff Scott, Leon Peeler and Jim Tucker.

Jones is the outgoing Optimist president.

Incoming officers for Opti-Mrs. are Mrs. Lloyd Summers, president; Mrs. Earl Kyle, first vice president; Mrs. Jane Skinner, second vice president; Judy Becker, secretary, and Mrs. John Maxwell, treasurer.

Directors are Mrs. Clifford Scott, Mrs. Newt Secrest, Mrs. R. W. McPhillips, Jr., and Mrs. Leon Holmes.

Mrs. Massie is the outgoing president.

Special guests were Babe Ruth Queen Lisa Watson and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Watson, and the Young Texan nominee, David Timothy Lanehart and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lanehart.

The banquet, served by the members of Hep Kat Club, was attended by 110 Optimists, wives, Opti-Mrs. and guests.

The 50 members of the Lamar Elementary School "Red Blazers" presented the program under the direction of Sue Higdon, choir director.

Domestic Fights, DWI Busy Police

Drunken drivers vied with domestic fights for weekend prominence in the police incident reports with the driver of a green pickup truck tipping the balance for the DWIs.

He first tried to drive into the corner of a local department store on Perryton Parkway, then tried a number of times to drive into the front door, according to what witnesses told investigating officers.

They furnished a description of both the driver and the vehicle.

A woman in a highly intoxicated state called officers and reported that someone had beat a hole in the oil pan of her car. According to the report, officers found a damaged pole, broken curb and broken state highway sign. From this point they followed a trail of oil to the woman's car where they found comparable damage to the vehicle.

COMPETE IN FINALS--Five Panhandle youngsters earned the privilege of competing in the United National Playday Finals at Fort Worth Oct. 7. Points were accumulated during six playdays in the past six months to qualify for the national finals, climaxed by the High-Point Finals in Amarillo. On the horse is Kim Anderson, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Day of Clarendon. The others are, left to right, Jody Freeman, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Freeman of Pampa; Christel Atchley, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Atchley of Lefors; Kelly Freeman, 12, and Tod Freeman, 8, children of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Freeman of Pampa.

Poll Shows President Leads Sen. McGovern By 39 Points

NEW YORK (AP) — A new poll conducted jointly for Time magazine and The New York Times shows President Nixon leading Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern by 39 points — 62 to 23 per cent.

Moreover, the President has overtaken McGovern even among registered Democrats, 43 to 40 per cent, according to the survey released Sunday. It was conducted by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., between Aug. 25 and Sept. 12.

The 39-point over-all margin represents an 11 percentage point increase over a parallel Yankelovich survey taken a month earlier which showed Nixon ahead by 28 points — 56 to 28 per cent.

Meanwhile, McGovern aides disclosed the results of a private national poll showing the Democratic contender had whittled the Nixon lead from 34 points to 22 points in the past few weeks.

McGovern campaign director Frank Mankiewicz said Sunday that the poll was based on telephone conversations with 1,500 persons nationwide, all of whom had been interviewed in depth earlier.

The Times said there was an indication in the Yankelovich survey that McGovern may have narrowed Nixon's lead during early September but the shift was so small that it could have been accounted for by sampling error. n

In the Time-Times poll, 2,329 registered voters in the 16 largest states were interviewed by telephone. The states account for two-thirds of the total electoral vote.

Over-all, the poll showed Nixon ahead among virtually all age groups, social classes, income levels, nationalities and regions.

The Gallup poll gave Nixon a 52-43 per cent lead among 18-to24-year-old voters because of an "enormous" lead among Southern youth. But it said McGovern was leading among the young in the East and Midwest and neck and neck among young voters in the West.

Houston Plastic Surgeon Slain In River Oaks Home By 'Robber'

HOUSTON (AP) — A prominent Houston plastic surgeon currently under indictment for murder in the death of his first wife was bound and gagged here Sunday night, then shot to death in fashionable River Oaks home by an intruder who repeatedly described himself as a robber.

Dr. John R. Hill was shot three times in the chest, left shoulder and right shoulder by a man who forced his way into Hill's home, tied up Hill's mother and 12-year-old son, and waited for the physician and his third wife to return from a trip.

An attorney for Hill, Richard Hayes, who represented him in a prior murder trial, charged after the slaying that he thought the robbery was a coverup and that the slaying could have been an assassination.

Homicide Lt. L. E. Gunn said Hill's son Robert told him the man forced his way into the Hill home about a half-hour before the doctor's return and after tying up the son and his grandmother simply waited.

When Hill and his wife, Connie, 32, arrived, the intruder met them at the door and again announced that he was committing a robbery, Gunn said he was told. Mrs. Hill managed to spin and get away. She ran to a next-door neighbor and when they returned, Gunn said, they found the bound and gagged Hill bleeding on the floor from multiple gunshot wounds. He was dead when an ambulance arrived. The intruder escaped.

Hill's first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, died in March of 1969. The first Mrs. Hill was the daughter of a wealthy Houston family and a nationally-known horsewoman.

After repeated autopsies it was ruled that Mrs. Hill died of a massive infection, but the exact cause of the infection was never determined.

Violent Deaths Drop 40% Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas violence made a radical downturn last weekend, with the number of deaths down almost 40 per cent from the previous weekend period.

The Associated Press began its regular weekend violent death count at 6 p.m. Friday and included fatalities through midnight Sunday.

The count stood at 15 early today, including eight motor vehicle fatalities, six shooting deaths and one drowning. A large majority of the deaths occurred in the Houston and Dallas areas.

The previous weekend, a total of 38 violent deaths were counted.

Fred E. Stell, 13, of Houston was shot to death Sunday when a gun his 15-year-old brother was holding discharged. An investigator for the Harris County Sheriff's department said the shooting was an accident. Dr. John B. Hill, Houston plastic surgeon scheduled to go on trial for murder Nov. 6 in the death of his wife, was found shot to death Sunday night just outside the entrance to his home. Detectives said two pieces of luggage near Hill's body indicated he was either leaving or entering the house when he was shot.

Lottis D. Harris, 34, of Dallas was killed Sunday when he lost control of his automobile and crashed into a bridge abutment.

Opal Stanley Hughes, 54, of Paris was killed Sunday in a two-car accident 12 miles west of the Northeast Texas city. The accident occurred on U.S. 82.

Jimmy Collins, 21, was shot to death Sunday in Houston as he rushed his injured brother to a hospital. Officers said young Collins' car was curbed on a Houston street by his father, Ardell Collins, 45, who then shot his son. The elder Collins was charged with murder.

Charles E. Taylor, 23, of Houston and James W. Guyton, 24, of Galveston were killed Sunday in a two-car crash on Interstate 45 north of Galveston. Investigators said Taylor was northbound and that Guyton was driving south in a northbound lane.

Wayne Majefski, 4, a child from the Dallas suburb of Garland, drowned Sunday when he fell in a private swimming pool in Dallas.

William Oliver Olsen III, 16, of Spring was killed Friday night when his car collided with another in the northwest section of Harris County. Two Houston men in the second car were injured.

Phil Simmons Jr., 24, of Dallas was shot and killed Saturday at a residence. Dallas police sought a woman in connection with the shooting.

John Alec Turney, 19, of Houston was killed Saturday when his car blew a tire and struck a guard rail. The accident occurred in Houston.

Clifford L. Shows, 27, of Victoria was killed Saturday night when his car veeered off the highway and hit a tree.

Chou And Tanaka Open Talks In Red Capital

PEKING (AP) — The rising sun flag of Japan flew at Peking for the first time in 27 years today as Prime Ministers Chou En-lai and Kakuei Tanaka opened talks that will begin a new era in Chinese-Japanese relations.

Negotiations between the premiers of the new China and the new Japan began around a horseshoe-shaped table in Peking's Great Hall of the People shortly after Chou greeted Tanaka at a sparsely attended but cordial airport ceremony.

Tanaka and 51 aides including Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira arrived by special jet for a six-day visit during which they will formally recognize the People's Republic. This is expected to precipitate a break in Japan's long-time relations with Nationalist China on Taiwan.

The Japanese arrival, reminiscent of U.S. President Richard Nixon's summit visit last February, was under a bright autumn sky. The Chinese raised the Japanese flag on an airport flagpole half an hour before Tanaka's plane touched down.

The rising sun flag was pulled down in Peking by the Japanese at the Japanese surrender in 1945.

Theft Is Prank

An exhaustive investigation into the reported theft of a television set from a room at Coronado Inn produced a quick solution to the crime...and a tired, unlaughing detective.

Pranksters had taken the set to the scene of a wedding Saturday night as their idea of a joke to play on the wedding couple.

No decision had been made at press time whether they would be charged or whether payment of damages would close the case.

Nature Provides a Living For Man Wise in Its Ways

PINE SWAMP, Md. (AP) — It seems he has always been up there somewhere, alone in the mountains, scratching the land for food, stalking wild game with a silent footfall and fly casting for trout in the rivers and streams glistening in the deep, dark valley below.

He accepts the sunshine and the snowstorm with the same equanimity, and through the years his name has evolved from Elmer to Wildcat as the mountains and rivers have slowly revealed their secrets to him and abided his presence.

Familiar as the dogwood in early spring and the green mountain laurel in winter, the 71-year-old recluse runs the woods with his dogs and the antique double-barreled shotgun that his grandfather gave him when he was 14.

Born Elmer Fazanbaker, his name is now simply "Wildcat" to those who know of his solitary existence — a tribute, perhaps, to his uncommon wisdom of the ways of the deep woods that he calls home atop rugged Big Savage Mountain.

His home is a little valley surrounded by rolling green meadows and a pine swamp in the hollow. There are cows in a nearby pasture, a family of rabbits living under the two-room tarpaper house, three hens, a rooster and an assortment of dogs.

Once a farm, now it is the home of a hunter, not a housekeeper.

A small vegetable garden out back provides "onions, beets, cucumbers, cabbage and tomatoes."

"The onions is comin' up real nice," he says, explaining that they were properly planted when the points of the new moon were down, thus assuring that they would grow.

But his favorite food is "old Mister Coon."

"If you had all the coons this old gun had, you wouldn't have to worry no more," he says proudly, displaying his shotgun which is now nearly bare of blueing.

But whether it be coon, rabbit, groundhog or squirrel, he prepares them the same.

"You soak whatever you got in a pot of salted water overnight. Then you boil it, stuff it with onions and roast it. I tell you, it's good eatin," he says.

There are tales of the way he can disappear in the brush as silently as a tree frog; of the lost hunters he has led out of the woods when the nights were as black as the inside of a pocket; and of creeping up on wild game and catching it with his bare hands.

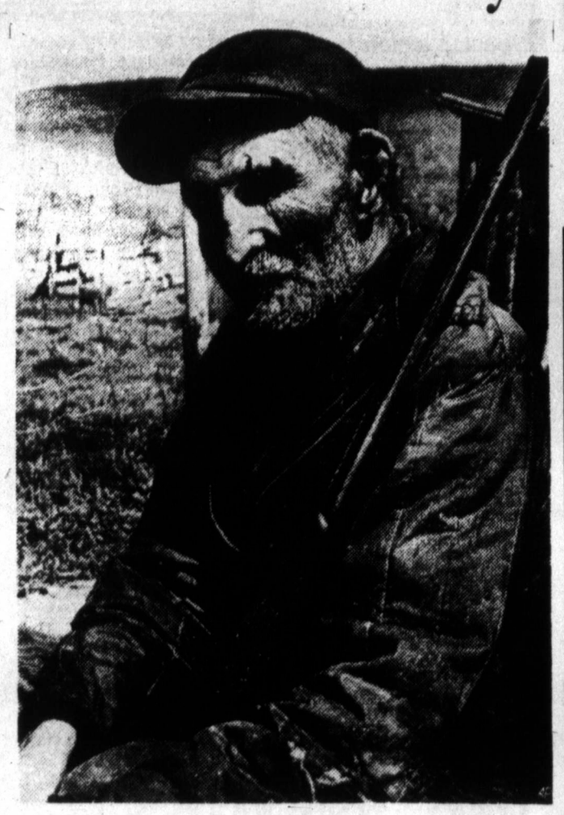
Not far from the deserted farm that he calls home is a stand of three pines in a hollow.

That is where he was born. He calls it "the old home place" and he often walks there and looks around.

It burned to the ground many years ago.

Tim Doolan, a wildlife officer with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, says "Wildcat is a naturalist, only he doesn't know it.

"What he's learned about the ways of the forest could fill a book, only a lot of what he knows he probably considers a secret. It's like telling someone where your favorite fishing hole is."



SOLITARY WOODSMAN — Known simply as "Wildcat," this 71-year-old recluse ekes out a living in the Maryland woods by hunting, fishing and growing a small garden.

N-Power Plants Said Far Less Of Health Threat To Mankind Than Poverty And Poor Housing

HOUSTON (AP) — An environmental health authority says nuclear power plants are far less of a health threat to mankind than poverty and poor housing.

Nuclear power reactors emit "essentially no radiocctivity," said Dr. Merril Eisenbud, professor of environmental medicine at the New York University Medical Center.

Eisenbud recalled in an interview that he and a colleague wrote a paper 10 years ago noting that coal-fired power plants actually put more radioactivity into the air than nuclear plants. He said the radioactive material is in the coal.

Asked to name what he considered the greatest environmental threat to man, Eisenbud named poverty and substandard housing.

He said these two things have improved little over the aqualid conditions described by Charles Dickens in the early days of the Industrial Revolution.

"Maybe the message I ought to bring to places like House and Dallas is, for God's sake, don't let your cities decay like we have back East," he said.

Eisenbud, who also spoke at a environment symposium, urged scientists to communicate more with the public— and not just among themselves—to help allay the public's fears and superstitions about radiation, either natural or man-made.

He said that while other countries proudly advertise radioactive spas, radioactive mineral water and even radioactive air and sands, Americans retain an unnatural fear of radication in all forms.

He said the U.S. Atomic Emergy Commission has not tooted his own horn enough about its "really remarkable" safety record.

"In the first 40 years of this century, we took about two pounds of radium out of the earth and managed to kill about 200 people with it," he said.

"Since 1942, the AEC has produced the equivalent of millions of towns of radium and there have been only six deaths in the ensuing 30 years, and the last one 11 years ago."

He said there now are about 700 reactors in the world and 200 in this country, mostly in power plants. He said there has never been a death in this country's nuclear power plants from the ractors themselves.

The Egyptians first tamed and domesticated wild cats.

Careers Can Still Be Built in Engineering

By ERNIE HOOD

Young people should not shy away from engineering and scientific careers because of the current drop in opportunities.

Geoffrey H. Moore, the Labor Department's Commissioner of Labor Statistics, reports that "Engineering and science have been among the fastest growing occupational fields in recent years and our projections show that requirements for engineers and scientists will continue to increase rapidly during the 1970s."

Moore said engineering growth will result from industrial expansion to meet the increasing population's demand for goods and services, from development of complex industrial products and processes, from continued growth in research activities and from greater emphasis on occupational safety and environmental improvement.

The commissioner also reminds students that new college graduates seeking careers as elementary and secondary teachers during the 1970s may find keen competition for jobs and schools placing greater emphasis on their academic work. Some prospective teachers will have to find employment outside of teaching, he says.

Bureau of Labor Statistics projections indicate that if past trends continue in the study and work patterns of college students, the number of qualified elementary and secondary school teachers may significantly exceed demand.

Women will be particularly affected and should consider opportunities in fields not traditionally thought of as women's occupations.

The Commissioner calls particular attention to a BLS publication called Occupational Outlook for College Graduates, a 258-page publication which reports on employment opportunities for nearly 100 professional and related jobs, and says it will be of great help to those enrolling in college and university next fall.

The book is designed to be a convenient source of vocational information for college students, counselors, and college placement officials. Job descriptions in the book cover:

—nature of the work.
—employment outlook through the 1970s.
—educational and training requirements.
—earnings.
—places of employment.

Known as Bulletin 1681, the publication is available at $2 a copy from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, or from any of the following regional offices of the Bureau of Labor Statistics (make checks payable to the Superintendent of Documents):

Readers put teeth into dentures issue

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I can certainly feel for that widow with dentures who is worried about how men would feel about a woman if they knew she wore dentures. I am 34, divorced, and just got mine. I am well-adjusted in other areas, but I dread meeting a fellow I might like, and then having to tell him I wear dentures.

Your advice to keep her mouth shut won't help her much. If she becomes romantically involved with a man, I am sure they will do more than just hold hands, and he will surely learn the truth if they do any passionate kissing.

I hope you hear from men telling you how they feel about a woman with dentures because this is my problem, too. "G" IN BROOKLYN

DEAR G.: My dental consultants assure me that dentures can be made so realistically that their presence will be undetected during the most passionate kissing. [Unless you get a kiss that will cause you to drop your teeth, which is highly unlikely.] But please read on. . . .

DEAR ABBY: In my 84 years I have never heard it suggested that a man's emotional responses to a woman might be affected by her wearing dentures!

I refer to your column in the Columbus Citizen: If that woman signed "Feeling Low" is concerned lest the man in whom she is interested would find her less attractive if he knew she wore dentures, she should put him to the test as soon as possible. If there is a remote chance that his attitude proves to be as she fears, the sooner she finds out what a jerk he is, the better. Yours truly,

WARREN CHADBOURNE, GROVE CITY, O.

DEAR WARREN: Your letter will bring joy to the hearts of many a lady who smiles thru her dentures. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: That letter about dentures took me back to when I courted my second wife. She told me she had something to "confess" before we married. Then she said, "I wear false teeth, dear."

I replied, "That's all right, sweetheart. So do I."

Then she smiled and said, "Yours are obvious, and before we're married I think you ought to fix yourself up with some that don't clack." [P.S. I did]. GRAMPS

DEAR ABBY: You told that widow with dentures that the man who marries her should be glad he won't have any more dental bills to pay. Whooaa, girl.

Even tho her dentures may fit perfectly now, mechanical teeth do wear out. And one's mouth and jaw formation changes, requiring new dentures. Theoretically dentures should be changed every five years—like an automobile, to adjust to muscle changes. And don't forget breakage!

"DOC"

DEAR ABBY: Some lady wanted to know how men felt about women who wore false teeth. I have had lots of experience along that line as I am 80 years old and have had five wives. [Four died and one divorced me.] The last four had false teeth when I married them and I didn't think a thing of it. I am going with a lady right now who has false teeth, and it doesn't make any difference to me. I really think I prefer women with false teeth because they talk less. "HAVE FALSIES [TEETH], TOO"

DEAR ABBY: Tell the gal who's sensitive about her dentures not to worry. They won't keep the guys away.

I married one with china clippers and a padded bra because I thought all the rest of her was real. Too late I found out she was also false-hearted. That blew it!

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Our old friend Eric Jannersten of Sweden has written a book entitled, 'The Art of Guessing Right at the Bridge Table.'"

Jim: "His theme is that your opponents will help you guess right if you pay attention to their bids and plays."

Oswald: "The first hand in the book shows how you should pay attention to their bids and the opening lead."

Jim: " 'A' and 'R' in our code word ARCH, which stands for Analyze the lead and Review the bidding, convey the same message."

Oswald: "South analyzes that eight of hearts lead is the top of nothing. He plays dummy's 10 and lets East hold the trick with his queen. East shifts to the six of clubs."

Jim: "Now is the time to review the bidding. It is possible that East opened the bidding without the ace of clubs. Possible, but most improbable. East may also hold the club queen, but you don't need a lot of club tricks. What you need is to play the right club now. You hop up with the king of clubs and it holds."

Oswald: "Now you are ready for the mopping up. You can try to collect seven diamond tricks, but you don't need them so you simply play a diamond and duck in dummy. The best the defense can do is collect this diamond trick; the heart trick already won and two clubs but you are sure of your contract."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

Tuesday, SEPTEMBER 26

Your birthday today: Your tendency is to going it alone, and rationalizing whatever you do. Today's natives have bold courage, a strong attachment to their homes.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Let others do the pushing and rushing. Spending drifts into splurging. Concessions are needed for peaceful home life.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: It seems time to act, settle pending negotiations, but actually, the conditions for a clearer definite result do not exist.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Your accounting is indicated as shaky at best. Where you hold or manage other people's money, exceptional care is needed.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: It is difficult to shield your loved ones from the frustrations of today's events, or rather, from your reaction to conditions.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: More work is required persuading people to go along with your plans than in any other activity. Overdo nothing, spare your strength.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Take time to check your health care habits, diets, and the like, make appropriate changes. Social contacts involve expense.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Peace is somewhat more a balance between opposing factors than usual, has to be enforced. Family affairs tend to be expensive.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: What the trouble is may be a mystery—you've just got to be attentive and gentle with those you love.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Let others have the same free speech you claim for yourself—letting their remarks go unnoticed puts you above the competition.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your money has half a dozen places to go, including a couple you hadn't thought of. Loved ones have schemes involving you.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Rushing in to direct what seems an improvement won't do—there are factors beyond ready view. Be clear and explicit.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Care in any travel is essential. You have little resistance to overcome, but little assistance in whatever you attempt.

Chicken is a marvelous meat for the picnic basket, so delicious yet so economical. When cooking chicken for a picnic, do not cool it at room temperature, the National Broiler Council adivses. Put it in the refrigerator to chill quickly as soon as cooked. If traveling some distance, be sure to pack chicken in an insulate container or ice chest to keep it fresh longer.

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. W.K. wanted to remove airplane glue from a wool blouse and, as I have done various types of cleaning, except for clothes, do believe that a "thinner" would dissolve the glue and not harm the wool. I have used it to "cut" many things and have never had it damage cloth. I would advise her to try the thinner on wool before she proceeds to use it on her blouse. Airplane glue dries so hard that it will require more than a drop of anything and a lot of patience. If the thinner is used, remove it just as soon as the glue is dissolved. If water will not harm the fabric it is good for such removal. I do hope this helps.

—BILL

DEAR MRS. W.K, and other readers — The Consumer Service of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture recommends acetone for the removal of airplane glue. Do remember it is FLAMMABLE and POISON. Any such strong solvent must be first tried on similar material or a spot on the garment that does not show. Mrs. W.K. said her blouse was wool but there are many synthetic fabrics that acetone must never be used on. If the fabric is friendly to it, sponge spot with the acetone, let it dissolve the glue and, if the material will wash, wash in warm suds and rinse. ALWAYS test first.

—POLLY

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have a new knit acetate dress that acquired a very peculiar odor after I wore it only a couple of times. I washed the dress with a cold water soap and hung it outside to dry all day but still the odor remains. In fact, it is stronger than before and the dress cannot be worn again unless some reader can help with a suggestion as to how I might remove the odor.

—SHARON

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns the dressing rooms in stores. We go in to try on a dress and there is not even a hanger to hang your own dress and bag while you are trying on their dresses. I have resorted to cramming my own dress on the usual corner shelf, putting my bag on the floor and trying to keep my eyes on it while getting a new dress over my head.

Cowboys Win 23-14 Despite Lack Of "Edge"

NEW YORK (AP) — "We didn't have any edge," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "We really didn't put it in there except when we had to."

But what the Cowboys did have Sunday was the New York Giants as the opposition—and what the Giants had was mistakes, enough of them to provide Dallas with a 23-14 National Football League victory.

One was an interception by Chuck Howley of a Norm Snead pass that paved the way to a 13-yard field goal. Another was a Charlie Evans fumble, recovered by Lee Roy Jordan, that set the stage for an eightyarder by Fritsch.

Still another was a "missed" interception by Pete Athas on a Craig Morton pass, this permitting Fritsch to get yet another field goal, that one from a Dallas-record 54 yards out.

But what probably hurt more than anything was a blown opportunity to tie the game in the waning moments of the first half.

With Dallas leading 10-7, Snead directed the Giants from their own 35-yard line to the Cowboys' 12. On third down, Snead looped a pass to a wide-open Evans inside the five-yard line—enough for the first down-but the running back dropped it.

So the Giants apparently had to settle for a 19-yard Pete Gogolak field goal—but New York was penalized for illegal procedure when the teams lined up.

That forced Gogolak to try again from the 24—a spot where Yankee Stadium's baseball infield joins the outfield grass—and Gogolak's kick sailed wide to the left. "I didn't concentrate as much as I should have on the second field goal and I was coming off the grass and this didn't help either," Gogolak explained.

Starting from their own 23 with the opening kickoff, the Cowboys marched across the field with Calvin Hill chewing up 43 yards on eight carries and Morton completing two clutch third-down passes. The drive ended with Walt Garrison plunging over from one yard out.

And with 8:14 to go in the game, Dallas took over on its own 20 following a punt, Hill and Garrison ate up the ground yardage and Morton again connected on some key passes to set up his two-yard scoring toss to Lance Alworth with two minutes remaining.

"If we're winning like we are now when Roger Staubach comes back," Landry said of his injured quarterback, "we may still go with Morton. Staubach will have to win his job back. Morton is getting better and better as he regains his confidnece."

The Giants' two touchdowns came with lightning suddenness. In the second period, Snead, who took over at quarterback when Randy Johnson suffered a mild concussion, rifled a pass to Rich Houston. He gathered it in at the Dallas 39 and outlegged two defenders for a 55-yard touchdown play.

And with the Cowboys ahead 16-7 and the Giants buried on their own six-yard line in the opening minutes of the fourth, Snead faded back and Houston flew down the right sideline.

The New York wide receiver had Herb Adderley beaten by five yards when he hauled in the pass on the Giant 36 and sped to the 94-yard touchdown.

Game Film Scheduled

High-light of the weekly meeting of the Pampa Booster Club tomorrow night will be the showing of the film of the Pampa Harvester win over Perryton Friday.

The meeting gets underway at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria and Harvester head coach Buddy Williams will show and narrate the game film after usual club business is conducted.

All Harvester fans and supporters of all Pampa athletics are urged to attend the meeting.

The weekly report from the Shocker and junior high coaches is also on the agenda for the gathering.

Joe Willie Has Had Better Days Throwing

"I know it sounds dumb," Joe Namath grinned, "but I've had better days throwing the ball."

If he has, the Baltimore Colts are probably quite happy they weren't around then, 'cause they were around Sunday when Namath demolished them to lead the New York Jets to a 44-34 National Football League victory.

"It wasn't my best day," Namath deadpanned after rolling up an incredible 496 aerial yards and six touchdowns. "Sometimes I threw it short, sometimes I was long and sometimes where I wanted to be."

His first three touchdowns covered 65 yards to Eddie Bell, 67 to John Riggins and 28 to Don Maynard, followed by three to Rich Caster involving plays of 10, 79 and 80 yards respectively.

The six touchdowns fell one short of the NFL record and the yardage—achieved on just 15 completions in 28 attempts—was third best in the league's history for one game.

In Sunday's other games, Buffalo stunned San Francisco 27-20, New England stung Atlanta 21-20, Cleveland topped Philadelphia 27-17, Dallas defeated the New York Giants 23-14, Miami mauled Houston 34-13, Minnesota mangled Detroit 34-10, Cincinnati slipped past Pittsburgh 15-10, San Diego dumped Denver 37-14, Oakland beat Green Bay 20-14, Washington swatted St. Louis 24-10 and Chicago tied Los Angeles 13-13.

In tonight's nationally televised game, the Kansas City Chiefs take on the Saints in New Orleans.

Johnny Unitas didn't exactly have a dismal day quarterbacking the Colts, despite being thrown for losses six times. He still managed to complete 26 passes, a Baltimore record, for 332 net yards, including touchdown strikes of 40 yards to Sam Havrilak and 22 to Tom Matte.

Don McCauley also scored two Colt touchdowns, one on a one-yard plunge, the other on a 93-yard kickoff return, and Jim O'Brien had field goals of 13 and 32 yards while Bobby Howfield had one of 14 yards for the Jets.

Running back Jim Braxton's second touchdown of the game with less than two minutes to go gave the Bills the points they needed to defeat the 49ers but it was O.J. Simpson and Don Croft who played the key roles.

Familiar Names Win

The familiar names were back in the saddle in auto racing during the weekend, including millionaires Richard Petty, Bobby Unser and Jackie Stewart.

And, though he didn't get to victory circle, old-timer Joe Leonard won his second consecutive United States Auto Club driving championship.

Unser, the world's fastest driver on a closed course, won the Trenton 300 for Indianpolis-type championship cars, Stewart captured the Canadian Grand Prix for the second straight year and Petty did what he has been doing for years. He bided his time and knocked everybody off during the late stages to win a 262-mile stock car race at Martinsville, Va.

Grier Jones Wins Tourney

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP)-- Dave Marad, who had just blown his first big chance to win a title on the tough pro golf tour, gave a rueful little shrug of his shoulders and said:

"I guess I got a little careless.

"I had that big lead and I was out there thinking about $20,000 and a year's exemption and everything that goes with being a winner."

That was on the 10th hole of the water-logged Crawford County Country Club Sunday when the longshot struggler had a five stroke over Grier Jones.

Jones, however, made up five strokes over the last seven holes, forced a playoff and beat Marad on the second extra hole for the $20,000 first prize in Robinson's Fall Golf Classic.

Jones, who had won the Hawaiian Open earlier this season, got a second life when Marad three-putted for a bogey on the 72nd hole.

Jones had a three-under-par 68 in the final round on the damp and sogy course while Marad had a 69 as they tied at 273.

Jim Colbert was third with a 67 for 275. Labron Harris, the 1971 winner, and Mac McLendon were at 276.

No Room In Al Race For Negative Thinking

Forget the games behind column. Don't even look at the games remaining column. Those numbers can lead to negative thinking and with 10 days to go in baseball's American League East championship chase, there's no room for negative thinking.

There's nothing negative about Boston's numbers today. The Red Sox hold a one-game edge over Detroit after whipping the Tigers 7-2 Sunday. Third place Baltimore remained 2½ behind, defeating Milwaukee 4-3, and the fourthplace New York Yankees closed to within three games of the top by sweeping a doubleheader from Cleveland, 5-4 in 11 innings and 8-3.

In other American League games, Oakland reduced its magic number for clinching the West to five. The A's split a doubleheader with Kansas City, losing 4-2 before winning 2-1. Chicago topped Texas 7-4 and California edged Minnesota 2-1.

In the National League, New York nipped Philadelphia 2-1, Montreal edged Pittsburgh 2-1, St. Louis topped Chicago 2-1 in 10 innings, San Diego beat Atlanta 2-1, Cincinnati walloped Houston 10-2 and Los Angeles shut out San Francisco 7-0.

Managers always look at the bright side of things. So, Detroit boss Billy Martin, one behind with eight to play, said, "I like our position very well."

And Jim Palmer, whose 100th career victory kept Baltimore alive, 2½ back with seven left, said, "We've got to win all of our games ... but we can do it since we play Boston three times at home."

And New York manager Ralph Houk saw a good omen in the Yankee attack that produced 13 runs in the double-header sweep against the Indians. "If we can start scoring runs again, we can have some fun. We know we have to win practically every day and we can't worry about what the other clubs do."

The man with the most right to optimism is Boston Manager Eddie Kasko, whose team has hung on doggedly to the lead. The Red Sox have been out of first place only one day since Sept. 7 when they took over the lead. Kasko, however, remains non-committal.

"Of course anything can happen," he said, "but it looks like it's going down to the last three." That would be Boston's wrapup series at Detroit Oct. 2-3-4.

Boston jumped on Detroit's Woody Fryman for four runs in the first inning and that was a good enough cushion for retread Luis Tiant, who has emerged as the ace of the Red Sox' staff.

A Mississippi linebacker who is blitzing the passer with third down and 20 yards to go, commits a personal foul against an LSU player nine yards behind the line of scrimmage. The passer is thrown for a 6-yard loss.

The official should:

1. Award LSU an automatic first down.

2. Penalize Mississippi 15 yards from the spot of the foul.

3. Penalize Mississippi 15 yards from the spot where the ball was snapped.

Answer: Number 3. Penalize Mississippi 15 yards from the spot where the ball was snapped.

Rule: (10-2-1-a-1) Fouls by Team B behind the neutral zone before a change of team possession shall be penalized from the previous spot.

PRO CHARTS NBA

4---Philadelphia 76ers

NBA—Atlantic Division

1971-72 finish: W 30, L 52—3rd place

PROSPECTUS: Philadelphia missed play-offs for first time since 1963. This year looks worse. Billy Cunningham, the heart and soul of Sixers, was awarded to Carolina of ABA in appeals court. Without him, new Coach Roy Rubin had better start building as quickly as possible. Guard Hal Greer's best games are behind him. There's no top-notch center to cope with the many super pivots in NBA. And club has failed to sign No. 1 draft pick Fred Boyd, a 6-2 guard. Rubin is used to building teams. This one is a classic case.

FORWARDS: Bill Bridges, a 10-year vet, excel boards. He averaged 13.2 after mid-season trade for Jim Washington and will have to pull out all stops to take up slack now. John Block (8.5) is a pleasant addition from Milwaukee in Wali Jones' trade. Block, 6-10, will score more now but needs to be more consistent than with Milwaukee. Al Henry, a flop as a rookie, showed he can play but is at best a No. 3 forward. Rating: C.

CENTER: Sixers got a 17-point average from 6-9 Bob Rule after November trade with Seattle. He is agile and a good outside shooter, but not a natural center. Dennis Awtrey failed to impress when used. Rating: C+.

GUARDS: Hal Greer (11.8) has played more regular season NBA games (1,084) than anybody. He can still score coming off the bench. But there's no young Greer elsewhere. Kevin Loughery (12.4) and Fred Carter (13.6) are adequate, while Dave Wohl (8.1) is coming off a good rookie year and will get better. Given the ball more with Cunningham gone, Loughrey and Carter can become better scorers. But even with him they ranked 15th in defense. Rubin wants and expects better defense and guard is the most likely place for it to develop at first. Rating: C+.

PREDICTION: Rubin was a miracle worker at Long Island University. On paper this club should win more than the 30 it won in '71-'72 if he were there. But he isn't. Getting the other Sixers to play to their potential is Rubin's chief task. He may do it—but not this year. Fourth in Atlantic.

That Grain Deal Fails To Excite Many Voters

It is questionable how many Americans who do not themselves have economic or political stakes in the matter understand, or even want to, much about the controversy over the massive U.S. grain sale to the Soviet Union.

As an election-year issue, it may well be of the type that generates more noise in Washington than it does votes across the country for either side.

And as it has developed, it is exceedingly complex even for election-year Washington. Very, very briefly, it involves:

—The complaint of some growers who sold early and low that they were cut out of the later higher wheat prices by not being informed of the impending Soviet purchase.

—The question of whether the export subsidy paid out by Washington to make usually higher-priced American grain competitive on the world market was manipulated to provide an additional windfall for grain export houses, which already were the major beneficiaries of the U.S.-Soviet deal.

—Personalities, relationships among Agriculture Department officials and exporters, and the shuttling of some individuals between jobs in the two areas, that may have worked to the improper advantage of the grain dealers.

Under the complex circumstances, congressional probers may never come up with a reasonably clear answer to the $750-million question of who got how much out of what thanks to whom. But they can certainly be counted on to keep the probing going until November.

If the details of the grain controversy are pure politics 1972, it involves a basic problem—private enrichment at public expense—that is as old as government relief.

Profit from public position has been taken for granted in most societies and eras, including that earlier Europe from which our own concepts of government for the people are in large part derived. It has never, however, had a place in the American theory of government and we can at times go to frenzied extremes to prevent its more obvious practice.

Considering only the problem of personal interests, prominent businessmen tapped for government service have undergone grueling examination, often by members of Congress themselves not above a few conflicts of interest, and before confirmation have been required to shed valuable holdings as some sort of tangible pledges against self-enrichment.

A much more subtle temptation to cultivate private interests is the opposite situation, those individuals of modest means for whom government service can open the way to lucrative private employment. The Defense establishment, uniformed and civilian, has long been a prime source of new talent for industry and the grain controversy now discloses a somewhat similar executive cross-fertilization involving the Agriculture Department.

At its most innocent, the practice creates special relationships that work to the advantage of certain individuals or firms. Less innocently, it invites deliberate favoritism toward prospective future employers and influence peddling.

All of which goes against the grain of responsible government.

McG Figures 'Odds'

Every little bit helps in an election campaign, too. Thus a group called Americans abroad for McGovern is trying to enlist the draft-dodger vote in Canada, reports the National Observer.

That would amount to about 10,000 votes. The group is also wooing the non-draft dodging american vote in Canada and hopes to win about 75 per cent of it. (According to the State Department, some 250,000 U.S. citizens are living and working north of the border.)

As for the draft dogers, apparently all they have to do is swear that they intend to return to the United States some day to live in order to qualify for absentee ballots. The biggest job facing McGovern workers in Canada is convincing the expatriates they won't be arrested if they apply at a U.S. consulate.

Otherwise, they figure their candidate "will inevitably" get the draft-dodger vote, says the Observer.

It's not exactly something to crow about.

Boiling Won't Nix Caffeine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Our parents lived in the southern part of Mexico, the Yucatan state. Early in the morning they prepared a big pot of coffee—just plain ground coffee. They never knew about instant coffee and that pot full of coffee was kept near the fire for many long hours. They used to invite everyone coming to the house to have a cup of coffee. The coffee was always slowly boiling. Our people never complained about the caffeine in coffee.

You may have noticed that in the packer's directions for preparing coffee, they say never boil the coffee. We presume the reason has something to do with the flavor. What we would like to know is by boiling the coffee for a long time before drinking it, say 15 minutes or more, can this eliminate the evil effects of caffeine and make the coffee harmless? We must say, by the way, that we seldom drink black coffee. It is usually half or one-third coffee and the rest boiling milk. We don't think much of "caffeine free" coffee and would rather have our own method to make it free ourselves, if that is possible.

Dear Reader — There are three main ingredients in coffee. The caffeine which is a drug and belongs to the same group of drugs as amphetamines commonly called "speed," caffioles responsible for the flavor and tannin, which imparts a bitter taste to coffee. The caffeine and caffioles go into solution just below the boiling point and the tannin enters solution at the boiling point or above. You're correct then in assuming that the directions not to boil the coffee is to protect its flavor. Continued boiling will not eliminate the caffeine. Therefore, the actual coffee that you described contains caffeine and if it has been boiling for hours without added water to dilute it, it can contain a great deal of caffeine.

The habit in Mexico of drinking coffee with milk (cafe au lait) as you described it of course dilutes the coffee a great deal. It decreases the caffeine content in a single cup to about one third the amount obtained in a normal brew, assuming that you used one third brewed coffee and two thirds boiling milk. The caffioles which impart the flavor to coffee are usually harmless. Decaffeinated commercial coffee products then contain caffiole and tannin and usually have no significant effect on the body, unlike caffeine.

Caffeine stimulates the nervous system and the heart and increases the resting heart rate, as do all nerve stimulants. It has the opposite effect of tranquilizers. In susceptible people it can cause irregularities of the heart. Caffeine causes the stomach to increase the amount of acid pepsin juice it produces and may cause indigestion, "burning of the stomach" and it can irritate the bowel, particularly in individuals who are susceptible to irritable colon or nervous colon. Individuals who have trouble utilizing ordinary coffee usually tolerate the decaffeinated products very well.

Things You Will Not Find In Either Party Platform

By PAUL HARVEY

Unfortunately, our country is not so altogether well-off as the Republicans profess it to be.

Fortunately, it's not nearly so bad off as the Democrats say.

But it is imperfect.

And some essentials, vital to improvement, are not included in the platform of either party.

Why do you suppose?

We are going to scan the platforms of both political parties for comparison purposes, but mostly to show that four planks--which are important to our future well-being and may be essential to our survival as a nation--are not to be found in either platform.

Voters have some choices:

—Democrats propose more money for the poor, a guaranteed floor under every family's income. Republicans oppose any guaranteed income, urge work incentives instead.

—Democrats say busing of schoolchildren must continue; Republicans say it must be stopped, if necessary by amending the Constitution.

—Democrats call for immediate withdrawal from Indochina, subject only to the release of prisoners. Republicans call for a Vietnam settlement which will ensure for all Vietnamese the right to choose their leaders.

—Republicans oppose legalizing marijuana and the Democrats say nothing about that.

—Democrats urge federal health insurance and Republicans are opposed.

—Democrats want federal control of guns; Republicans prefer to leave that issue to the states.

Those are the apparent differences; the less conspicuous differences are detectable in the records, the statements and the lives of the candidates themselves.

But four important planks are not to be found in either platform. I believe a confidential conversation with either nominee would reveal each to have strong views on all--but consider them "too hot to handle" publicly. Consider them:

Continuing and increasing immigration, legal and illegal, compounds our chronic problems of congested cities, unemployment and welfare. But with so many Americans having family roots overseas, no politician dares resist that onrushing tide.

Population control. The consensus of sociologists, economists and history is that our nation cannot support a pyramiding population even for two more generations--but no political party dares object.

Income tax laws which require taxpayers to employ tax computers are asinine. Every ex-commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service concedes the absurdity of this indefensible complexity--yet never while "in office."

And what party--what national office-seeker dares object to the government's continuing practice of spending millions of the taxpayers' dollars to crusade against smoking while spending millions more of the taxpayers' dollars to subsidize the growing of more tobacco? Nobody.

"Sometimes," as the cynics say, "in professional politics, a man must rise above principle."

It's called "political ambivalence" or "expediency," never--but never--"hypocrisy."

H.L. Hunt Writes

VIETNAM "PEACE PLAN

The "peace" plan which President Nixon has offered the North Vietnamese would be disastrous for South Vietnam and other Southeast Asian nations.

The plan essentially involves a cease-fire, with the opposing forces retaining the territory they occupied at the time of the cease-fire. In exchange for the return of our prisoners of war, all U.S. troops would withdraw within four months.

This proposal would legitimize communist aggression in the South. Any territory which the North Vietnamese had conquered would remain in their hands, giving them a secure foothold in the South. The Nixon plan makes no provision for free elections for the people in the conquered territory and in effect withdraws our support for President Thieu, who has valiantly tried to defend his people against communist invasion.

If this "peace" plan were accepted, the communist forces would only have to wait until U.S. troops were completely withdrawn, and then resume their aggression. The South Vietnamese are valiant fighters, but they would be up against not only the North Vietnamese but their Soviet and Red Chinese allies. The "peace" plan contains no provision that these other communist powers cease aiding the North Vietnamese.

North Vietnam has thus far rejected the plan, apparently still convinced that it can win an outright military victory. But they could decide at any time that it would be more advantageous to accept the cease-fire. If our government holds to the terms it has offered, the cease-fire would amount to an abandonment of our South Vietnam allies and of the rest of Southeast Asia.

Dallas DeWeese, Editor
THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS
Pampa, TX 79065

Dear Mr. DeWeese:

Your editorial entitled "The Zip Code Racket," appearing in the Pampa Daily News of Sunday, Sept. 10, 1972, has reached my desk, and I have read it with much interest.

As the Director of Communications & Public Affairs, Southern Region, U.S. Postal Service, I respectfully offer to you the enclosed press release on the ZIP Code. I commend it to you.

Even the Associated Press, on whose survey your editorial is based, must, I believe, recognize that there is another side to the ZIP Code matter, their conclusions on the evidence of their nationwide test notwithstanding.

The great surge toward mechanization of present-day post offices with high-speed, sophisticated, electronic equipment would, in fact, be utterly useless without the ZIP Code. The task of moving 85 billion pieces of mail annually in this country could simply not be accomplished without the ZIP Code anymore than the telephone company could do its job without the use of eleven digits on a long distance phone call.

Your Pampa Postmaster Carl V. English knows the value of ZIP Code. Dedicated Postal Service officials at the Amarillo District Office, headed by District Manager Joseph W. Jackson, and your neighboring postmaster C.T. Davis at Amarillo and their top-level management people likewise well know the ZIP Code story.

If we in the Postal Service have failed to get the proper message to the public through the medium of the public print, then please accept my letter and the enclosed press release as a belated effort to rectify our shortcomings.

LEROY V. GREENE

Memphis, Tenn.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mr. Greene's press release defending the Zip Code was published in The News Friday, Sept. 22.

600 Pounds of Non-Earth

According to Dr. John Wood a staff scientist at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory, there are now on earth some 600 pounds of moon rocks and dust, taken from seven different sites on the moon.

Most of the lunar material has been brought back by manned Apollo missions, the balance by Russian Luna robots.

Six-Hundred pounds is more than a quarter of a ton—"an astonishing amount," says Wood.

And astonishing it is, especially for anyone whose memory goes back more than 10 years.

Inside Washington

Behind the Terror in Uganda: The Sinister Hand of Qaddafi

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON--Two berserks are at the bottom of what is transpiring in strife and terror-wracked Uganda.

The voice is black racist President Idi Amin's, but the hands are the hands of Libya's fanatical Colonel Muammar Qaddafi.

A secret Qaddafi pledge of $50 million to back Amin's dictatorial rule triggered the whole series of xenophobic and barbarous events that have horrified the world-- the disappearance and slaying of thousands of Ugandans; the sudden termination of relations with Israel, with whom Amin had been on warm terms; the equally abrupt expulsion of some 50,000 Asians, many of them born in Uganda, and the dispossession of their homes, businesses and other property; the maniacal message to UN Secretary General Waldheim (copies of which were sent to Prime Minister Golda Meir and Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat) glorifying Hitler's slaughter of 6 million Jews.

Qaddafi had a direct voice in all of these frenetic aberrations. They are his way of waging war against his two ferocious hates--Israel and Britain.

The Libyan strongman is in constant and close touch with the black racist Uganda strongman. In addition to the promised $50 million subsidy, being paid Amin in monthly installments, he has also received a number of glittering personal gifts from Qaddafi, among them an expensive Italian automobile and some showy jewelry.

How He's Doing It

A fanatical Moslem, Qaddafi is unable to vent his venomous animosity of Israel because Libya is too distant and militarily too innocuous to strike directly at Israel. So he is vicariously waging a jihad (holy war) by fee-handed spending of Liby's $2.5 billion annual oil income to underwrite the Black September killers, the Al Fatah and others who are enemies of Israel or willing to be for a price.

Against Britain, Qaddafi is warring vindictively in Libya and anywhere else he can get in a telling blow-- such as complaisant Uganda.

In Libya, extensive British oil holdings and concessions were curtly expropriated and very little compensation offered. So far, this grab has not paid off because Britain tied up the oil by legal proceedings and other barriers.

In waging these maniacal vendettas, Qaddafi is also bent on furthering his own consuming ambition to make himself top leader of the Arabs and a domineering world figure.

To intimates, the bloodthirsty Libyan zealot makes no bones that his dream is to out-Nasser Nasser.

With a $2.5 billion oil income and an unlimited supply of easy-to-buy accomplices, Qaddafi apparently believes he can realize his grandiose goal. Time will tell.

It is also running out on him and Amin.

Powerful forces in their countries are out to get both of them.

Covert Dissenter

While Sen. Mc Govern is feverently wooing Jewish voters, a home state political protege is taking a very different stand.

Rep. James Abourezk, D-S.D., strenuously running for a Republican- held Senate seat, not only did not echo McGovern's vehement denunciation of the Arab terrorists' murder of the 11 Israeli Olympic athletes, but refused to sign a circulated statement of condemnation.

Abourezk, like McGovern a militant leftist, has not explained his tight- lipped silence-- in striking contrast to his usual volubility on public matters.

Serving his first term in Congress, Abourezk, 41, is a close ally of McGovern and long- time supporter. It was at the latter's urging that he ran for the House in 1970, and this year for the seat of ailing Republican Sen. Karl Mundt, who is not seeking reelection.

You Figure It Out

The longer the Presidential campaign goes on, the more perplexing and incomprehensible is sen. McGovern's stand on major issues.

Take the Vietnam war. Everyone presumably knows he is against it. But when it gets down to important details, such as the return of U.S. POWs, nailing down just what he does advocate is like trying to find a needle in a haystack.

Following is his tortuous record on this crucial matter:

Initially, the South Dakota radical declared he would withdraw all U.S. forces from Southeast Asia within 90 days after his inauguration. But when this produced a storm of outraged charges that he propsed to abandon U.S. POWs to the mercy o of their Communist captors, McGovern quickly backtracked.

He switched, saying that within 90 days after he entered the White House "every American prisoner and every American soldier would be home."

This glib flip-flop caught him on a new hook.

Newsmen wanted to know how he could guarantee that all POWs would be released as he so flatly claimed; also whether he would withdraw all U.S. troops "before the prisoners were freed by Hanoi."

Again McGovern resorted to what has become characteristic double-talk.

First he averred that all U.S. troops would be withdrawn "only if we had an understanding the prisoners would be released."

"Does that mean," a reporter asked, "that you are backtracking on your previous declaration of unconditional withdrawal; that you would pull out all U.S. troops within 90 days after inauguration regardless of the

"Absolutely not," asserted McGovern. "I'm standing flatly by what I said."

"There seems to be some contradiction there," pointed out a newsman. "How do you explain it?"

There is no contradiction," snapped McGovern. "I would take care of the problem by announcing a definite timetable for withdrawal of troops."

"Would that include the POWs? Would there be an agreement on their release?"

"I would try to get such an agreement worked out," asserted McGovern. "Idon't think it serves any purpose to state exactly what procedure."

At that point, the newsmen gave up. Obviously, the candidate was talking out of all sides of his mouth and it was futile to try to pin him down.

Big Electoral Lead Predicted For Nixon

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — NEA's first nationwide survey on the prospective electoral count for the 1972 presidential election shows President Nixon presently holding 462 votes to Sen. George McGovern's 27, with 49 in the doubtful list. It takes 270 to elect.

The survey, conducted by telephone and sampling the judgments of political experts within the many states, is the first of three this year. The last of the series will come late in the campaign.

This first check gives Nixon on nine of the 10 most populous states, with only heavily Democratic Massachusetts in McGovern's column. In the 1968 election, Nixon split the 10 evenly with Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Nixon here is given all 11 of the Old South states. Their total of 130 electoral votes is just five short of half of the 270 needed for victory. The McGovern forces believe they have a strong shot at the 26 in Texas, but observers in the state continue to question that judgment. Also, Arkansas has never gone Republican in modern times, but it is clearly tipped toward Nixon at this stage.

The President likewise is awarded all eight Mountain states, four of the five in the Plains tier and four of the five on the Pacific rim.

California, with its prize of 45 votes, is considered a possible pickup for McGovern. He has strong cadres of dedicated workers there. It is a volatile state, and it went only narrowly for Nixon in 1968. But it is widely agreed he is leading there today.

Oregon and Washington often are mentioned as McGovern prospects, but NEA's check did not produce supporting evidence. Hawaii, with just four votes, is supposed to be his, but reports from the state say Democrats are so badly divided it must at least be rated doubtful today.

McGovern people think they might get Nevada (three votes) in the Mountain group, yet word from there is that the senator's proposed defense cuts, plus GOP claims that he would slash atomic energy outlays, are hurting him badly.

Nowhere among the eastern and midwestern big states (excepting always Massachusetts) is McGovern ahead today. New York (41), Pennsylvania (27) and Michigan (21) have to be judged salvageable, since Humphrey won them all in 1968. Right now, however, New York is bad news for McGovern, with even parts of New York City described as "murderous" for him. The busing issue and a possible rightward shift make Michigan better Nixon territory than four years ago. Democrats in Pennsylvania are organizing well but McGovern needs a spark to make crucial gains.

New Jersey is strongly Nixon today. Maryland, which went for Humphrey, is the President's now, with Democrats saying the McGovern campaign is in awful shape.

In New England, frequently Democratic Connecticut is borderline, with a good chance McGovern may get it. His Rhode Island situation is so bad no one in either party quite believes it. It is classed as doubtful because its basic Democratic bent is so strong.

Appraisers in Illinois (26 votes) give Nixon roughly a 25-point edge and think it may be widening. They find the ethnic groups, mostly Catholic, markedly alienated from McGovern. One observer sees Nixon a "real solid winner" in Illinois. He leads also in Ohio (25) today, but there the combined labor-Democratic organization effort is coming together and could give the President trouble. He won Ohio narrowly in 1968.

Wisconsin and Minnesota often are claimed for McGovern, but my instate sources say he is seriously overrated in Wisconsin and, though improving, is still too far behind in Minnesota to be given that state now. Missouri is another rising McGovern prospect, but he doesn't have it yet.

Moscow Pet Market Offers Variety

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — "He eats everything — meat, fish, cheese . . .," said the woman as she tirelessly recited the virtues of a fuzzy mongrel puppy dozing in her arms.

"He loves children, gets along with other animals. Ah, you should see his mother — a real beauty. Long hair, and what eyes. Come on, only 15 rubles. Maybe 13?"

The woman told the prospective buyer this was the last puppy of a litter of eight Scottish Spitz and that she had sold the other seven for much higher prices that morning.

The man explained he already had a ferocious, gray tomcat which probably wouldn't take to a frisky puppy, thanked the lady and walked off. Soon the lady and the big-eyed puppy lured another passerby and began the same routine.

It was a sunny Sunday at the "Bird Market," which Chekhov described at the end of the last century as "that little bit of Moscow where animals are so tenderly loved, and where they are so tortured."

Early every Saturday and Sunday, Muscovites gather at the sprawling, open-air bazaar in a central residential district to buy and sell pets. The bazaar has moved further away from the city center since the last century, but it is still known as the "Bird Market" for the hundreds of pigeons, canaries and parakeets on sale.

In Chekhov's day, Muscovites came to the market to observe an old Russian belief, rooted in the Russian Orthodox faith, that to release a captive bird would bring good luck. Today many shoppers still buy birds, but few let them go.

And now, besides the birds, the market affords a wide range of other pets: from guppies to goats, spaniels to snails, baby chicks to roosters.

A state pet store, Zoomagazin No. 4, stands at the entrance to the market and charges fixed prices for the pets and pet food on sale there. But the buying and selling in the lots, stalls and patches of park surrounding the store is strictly free enterprise.

Soviet authorities sometimes try to break up similar free-enterprise markets in such commodities as clothing, stamps, books or records. But the pet market goes on undisturbed, apparently because it is a humane and relatively efficient means of providing pets to people who want them and relieving the surplus others may have.

If the family cat has a litter, the owners may take the kittens to the pet market and sell them at a tidy profit rather than drown them or abandon them.

"I'll take a ruble for her," said an old woman of a scruffy, brown-and-white kitten in a cardboard box. Others sellers offered shopping bags and baskets full of puppies, kittens, hamsters, rabbits and white mice.

FOR SALE — Dogs, cats and a wide range of other pets, from goats to guppies, skylarks to snails, are available at Moscow's "Bird Market," a sprawling, open-air bazaar where Muscovites gather on weekends to buy and sell pets.

"They're as big as dogs," said a small boy admiring a row of plump brown and gray Siberian hares sleeping in the sun at their owners' feet. Most of the hares probably would end up in stewpots rather than as family pets. One woman poked the animals' fleshy haunches, bought two and stuffed them into a vinyl carry-all.

Just downwind of the hares stood a gauntlet of fish sellers, portable aquariums hanging from leather straps slung around their necks. Others had guppies or goldfish or brightly colored tropical fish in jam jars.

Worry Clinic

By George W. Crane, Ph. D., M.D.

Heed Velma's expose of church music! Alas, many choir directors and even clergymen pick strange hymns because of their lyrics. Or to let the choir "show off" its melodic pyrotechnics! Instead, use the winning hymns below!

CASE U-596: Velma V., aged 26, is a high school music teacher.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I guess I must apologize to you.

"For I also serve as choir director in our local church.

"We have a splendid volunteer choir of 35 voices.

"And I have been using the typical choral arrangements that have been prepared for churches.

"But we haven't received the enthusiastic support of the congregations that I felt our singess deserved.

"Then I read in your 'Worry Clinic' that the chief purpose of church choirs is to resurrect the childhood altruistic moods and lofty emotions of the congregation.

"You thus said that strange choral arrangements actually hamper the clergymen by not reviving those old religious emotions.

"Well, at our State Fair a popularity poll of humns was conducted.

"First choice went to 'How Great Thou Art,' with 'In the Garden' rating second.

"Third place wnt to 'The Old Rugged Cross' with 'Amazing Grace' coming in fourth.

"So the next week our choir sand one of those numbers and the audience overwhelmed us with praise!"

CHOIR PSYCHOLOGY

The true pragmatic (practical) test of a choir's effectiveness is how well it can polarize the attention of the congregation.

And then revive lofty childhood emotions linked with familiar hymns.

Too many fancy choirs still try to "show off" via melodic pyrotecnics to prove they attended Music College!

Yet we psychologists have long stressed the vital fact that the tempo and even the lyrics are not the basic purpose of church music.

For those are like the bones of a human skeleton.

What makes a skeleton dynamic and appealing is the flesh-and-blood personality wrapped around that bony skeleton.

Same goes for music!

At the outset, strange music leaves children (and adults) unmoved.

But after long exposure to the same melody in the same type of emotional setting, then that song will revive that same emotion!

Its later presentation to an audience may then produce tears or happy feelings or religious idealism or patriotic enthusiasm, etc.

The French Marsellaise thus has had to be banned at times to prevent the French from too militant behavior.

Our church choirs deserve trememdous praise and support for their volunteer efforts and many hours of choir rehearsal time during the week.

So it is a tragedy for their efforts to be largely furstrated by the choice of ineffective hymns and strange choral arrangements!
