East 1st grade to be switched into new wing

East Elementary first graders are now scheduled to move into the new classroom addition at that campus as they return to class following the upcoming spring break.

Currently there are three first grades at East comprised of some 65 students.

Construction work for the four-classroom addition is essentially complete, according to East Principal Bob Travis.

Snyder school board members now plan an inspection tour of the facility at noon Wednesday. Assuming the work is deemed satisfactory, Travis said the first graders will be relocated as classes resume March 12.

It was hoped the work would be done in time to relocate the students after the Christmas break. Bids were let for the project last July 1.

At one point, the use of temporary and moveable classrooms at East was considered until the work was finished. At the beginning of this school year, it was decided this would not be necessary and these classrooms were located at North Elementary.

With the expanded classroom space, Travis said the plans are to move a bilingual class into one classroom now used by first graders and to add computer instruction into a second.

For the time being, he said, a third vacated classroom will be used as a study area. "It's really a place we'll hold in reserve until we see how enrollment is for next year," he said.

In addition, he said it is possible the fourth classroom in the new addition will be used for kindergarten students next year. "We've been running large kindergarten classes this year, and it's possible this space will help us out there."

Plans to enlarge the library at the East campus are still in the planning stages, Travis said.

This summer, tentative plans are to remove one of the library walls, expanding it into what is now classroom space.

The low bidder for the four-classroom addition was D.D. Johnston Construction Co. of Big Spring. A construction cost of $175,575 was figured.

The classroom structure is connected to the main building at East by a covered walkway. It is located south of the school's west wing.

It has been constructed of concrete block with a brick outer shell. The roof at the addition is the same type as the one in place at Snyder High School. It consists of a "foamed in place" polyurethane material which comprises the top layer.

The roof's lightweight and insulating capabilities are pointed to as its strong features.

Design for the addition — which was described when first proposed as a "bare bones" structure — was completed by John Gary, a Big Spring architect.

Two restroom facilities are located at the center of the four classrooms. In addition, cabinets have been added to each classroom.

The total structure involves some 4,080 sq. ft. The low bid figured a cost

Volcker tells governors...

Federal deficit should be cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker told the nation's governors today that the federal deficit should be cut $50 billion a year to extricate the nation from an economic gridlock.

Volcker also said President Reagan's call for a $100-billion down payment on the deficit is "not very impressive" if the changes come toward the end of the three-year period.

Volcker's position put him in step with the proposal before the National Governors' Association winter meeting, which calls for deficit reductions of $143 billion over the next three years and $460 billion over five years.

Volcker applauded the governors' attack on the deficit although he did not endorse the proposal before them today for final adoption. Questioned about what level of deficit reduction is needed, Volcker said:

"The figure I have thrown out is an annual rate of $50 billion. If you have a $100-billion program heavily weighted to the third year ... it may not be very impressive if very little is done in the first year," he said.

The resolution is being voted on today.

Reagan gave the governors little encouragement that changes might be made this election year when he met with them at the White House on Monday.

"He very clearly stated that 1984 is not the year to start a major campaign against the deficit. It has to wait until after the election," said Florida's Gov. Bob Graham, a Democrat, after meeting with Reagan. "That's a very serious mistake."

"The governors ought to build a fire under the president and build one under Congress as well to try to prevent them from waiting until after the election," said Michigan Gov. James Blanchard, a Democrat.

Urging adoption of some budget proposal, Illinois Gov. James Thompson, the group's chairman, said the governors "should keep the prod there."

Reagan told the governors he wanted to stay the course with his hope for a $100 billion down payment on the deficit over the next three years, to be negotiated with the Democratic leadership of Congress this year.

On Monday, the president told the governors he might consider new taxes — after massive new cuts in federal spending. While Wall Street surged Monday, thinking this was a new signal of willingness to raise taxes, Reagan aides rushed to deny "any new signals" were being sent.

"He says after all the spending cuts that should be made are made, if there was still a deficit that was considered harmful, he would consider raising taxes," Thompson said. "He clearly means that to follow in that one-two order. So he's not talking about a tax increase this year ... His route would be a fairer tax code rather than simply raising rates."

The governors have been united in the desire to cut the deficit, but divided over how it should be accomplished. Delaware Gov. Pierre S. Du Pont IV said a constitutional amendment limiting the growth of federal spending was needed.

The Democratic governors, unhappy with their reception at the White House, said Reagan did not seem to listen to their arguments for action now. And they said budget director David Stockman and other administration officials gave every indication that big budget changes are being readied for the first year of a second Reagan term — provided he wins the November election.

CHOSEN MR. AND MISS — These two sophomore students were revealed Monday as the new Mr. and Miss Trailhand for Western Texas College. The pair were named by a popularity vote of students. Chosen were Danny Hunter of Roscoe and Veda Hunter of Sweetwater. (SDN Staff Photo)

'Trailhand' pair revealed Monday

Two sophomores at Western Texas College were named Mr. and Miss Trailhand Monday at halftime ceremonies for the WTC Westerners final home basketball game of the season.

Winning from a field of 10 candidates were Danny Hunter, an agriculture law major from Roscoe; and Veda Hunter, an elementary education major from Sweetwater.

They were chosen by a penny-a-point vote of WTC students. Funds raised from the project go to Phi Theta Kappa honor society, which sponsored the contest.

Hunter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie J. Hunter of Roscoe. At WTC, he is student body president and president of Phi Theta Kappa.

In addition, his honors include serving as parliamentarian of the student senate. He was named to the dean's list as a freshman and was listed in Who's Who Among America Junior Colleges.

Owens is the daughter of James and LaVerne Owens of Sweetwater.

Her honors at WTC include serving as a cheerleader the past two years. She has also been a nominee for Miss WTC and was named campus favorite. She is treasurer of the student senate.

In high school, Hunter was named Mr. Roscoe High School and most likely to succeed while Owens was a cheerleader and homecoming queen nominee at Sweetwater.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Before marriage a girl has to kiss her man to hold him. After marriage she has to hold him to kiss him."

It's near the end of the month, and if you happen to be one of those trying to stretch your paycheck a few more days, then you'll be happy to hear that Joanna Carson has been spared the trauma of making ends meet.

You understand, the ruling is only a temporary settlement, but Mrs. Carson says she's "satisfied" with the temporary agreement.

Joanna, extranged wife of TV's Johnny Carson, is seeking a settle of property in the divorce proceedings. We hope the ole gal can survive on $35,000 per month.

Her attorney called the support agreement a victory for the rights of women to control their own destiny. Shoot, on $35,000 a month anyone can be in control. The judge also approved a property settlement giving both Carsons $2 million in a 50-50 split of liquid assets.

Mrs. Carson had to prove her monthly needs to the court. It includes $6,000 for security, $5,000 for household help, $1,400 for groceries, $10,000 for upkeep of two New York City apartments, and $5,000 for department store bills.

What a relief....we were afraid she might have to step down to only one apartment.

Some folks expect something for nothing. A case in point is 9-year-old Wendy Potasnik of Indiana who is suing the Cracker Jack Corp. because she found no prize inside her box of carmel corn.

In her complaint, the plaintiff claimed the company advertised a free toy in each box. "However, there was none in mine. I feel since I bought their product because of their claim, they broke a contract with me."

Wendy's mom testified that it was a very upsetting experience to her daughter. "She was so sad-faced."

Poor Wendy. If she gets so upset over Cracker Jacks, think how she'll react to real life. We sure hope her teacher doesn't forget milk break some afternoon.

Band members earn top rating

Superior ratings were given Saturday to nine soloists from the Snyder High School Band in UIL solo and ensemble contests conducted at Abilene Christian University.

In addition, 30 SHS band members — many who had already won in solo events — were part of ensemble groups also given superior ratings.

Sixteen Junior High School band students also earned the first division ratings in solo or ensemble competition at ACU.

Solo winners at the high school level were Laura Shifflett, Teresa Waller, John Zalman IV, Sheila Martin, Ray Canales, Sonya Adams, Connie Ray, Lesa Barkowsky and Phillip Hagar.

For the ensemble division, participating band members earning the superior ratings were Anne Deavers, David Jackson, Mitch Jones, Mike McCravey, Robert Caldwell, Mike Cline, Donny Cook, Arthur Puente, Laura Shifflett, Jeff May, Sean Kennedy, Kevin Pruitt, Sonya Adams, Lesa Barkowsky, Phyllis Whitfill, Carolyn Alvarado, Dedra Crawford, Darren Jackson, Sheri Sturdivant, Eva Fuentez, Darren

Q. — Once the Texas Low Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority finds a dumping site in Texas, who's going to run it?

A. — State agency officials say the staff of the authority will be the facility managers and probably the operators. Several current staff members have experience in different types of nuclear facilities. However, they note a site operating staff has not been hired. Regarding this, they say the authority will either hire staffers or contract with a private company.

In Brief

Court says no to aid cutoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a victory for the Reagan administration, ruled today that the government may not cut off all aid to a college because it practices sex discrimination in a particular program.

By a 6-3 vote, the court gave a narrow interpretation of a 1972 federal law banning sex discrimination at colleges that receive federal aid.

The justices said the law mandates that funds be cut off only for the specific program that receives the federal aid.

Bell bonded hike is denied

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell, which scurried to the courthouse after the Public Utility Commission denied an immediate $280 million rate hike, today is deciding whether it will look for another courthouse.

Local

Elderly driver injured

A 73-year-old Snyder man remains in Cogdell Memorial Hospital Tuesday as a result of injuries suffered in a one-vehicle traffic accident Sunday afternoon.

The mishap occurred as the area was experienced heavy snowfall and snow-slicked roads.

According to investigating DPS highway patrolmen, Hollis A. Randall of 119 24th St. was taken to the local hospital by private vehicle after his 1982 Buick skidded off Highway 208.

The accident occurred some five miles south of Snyder around 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Investigators attributed the mishap to water and ice on the highway during the Sunday afternoon snowstorm.

Liquor violation charged

Snyder police Monday afternoon jailed a 62-year-old Snyder man on charges of illegal transportation of alcoholic beverages in a dry county.

Police say investigators witnessed a sale of alcohol at an east Snyder location around 4:24 p.m. Monday and arrested the suspect in possession of a bottle of liquor at 4:30 p.m. The illegal transportation charge was then filed.

The suspect was transferred to the Scurry County Jail Tuesday morning and was released from custody after posting bond on the misdemeanor charge.

2nd, 6th grade visits set

As Public School Week is observed in Snyder, parents and friends of elementary-age children are invited to join them for lunch or breakfast at the schools on specific days.

Wednesday is to include visits for grades two and six, followed Thursday by visits for grades three and five.

The cost of adult lunches during the week is $1.50 Adults may join the children for breakfast also at a cost of 95 cents.

Pre-school age children will be charged the regular student price of 85 cents for lunch and 50 cents for breakfast.

Softball board to meet

The board of directors for the Snyder United Girl's Softball Association will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Home State Savings.

The meeting was been called by board president Roy Bennett. He urges all directors to attend.

BCD meeting is at noon

A noon meeting was planned Tuesday at the Snyder Country Club for the Board of County Development.

An update on a BCD-sponsored advertising campaign featuring Snyder and Scurry County was to be offered.

Seek amendment...

Prayer efforts renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although it faces a tough fight on Capitol Hill, a proposed constitutional amendment to permit prayer in public schools may have the best shot at winning congressional passage of any of the so-called New Right social issues long embraced by President Reagan.

That appears to be the consensus of prayer amendment backers, and some opponents as well, as the Senate prepares to take up the measure and House sponsors plan an all-night talkathon to dramatize their support for it.

To date, none of the social legislation advocated by Reagan and congressional conservatives in their 1980 campaigns has won congressional approval. Those issues include school prayer and anti-abortion amendments and prohibitions against school busing.

Now, with the 1984 campaigns well under way, conservatives are joining forces and focusing their energies on winning last-ditch approval of the prayer amendment.

The Senate is expected to begin debate on school prayer later this week. Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., a 1988 presidential hopeful, is personally leading the charge — although the proposal faces a determined liberal filibuster.

"He's trying to set the agenda for social issues. And on this one, there's more support than on the other issues," said Tom Griscom, a Baker aide. He said some national surveys have showed that as many as 85 percent of the American public supports a return of voluntary prayer to schools.

Debate could tie the Republican-run Senate up for weeks, but Baker has expressed optimism that he'll be able to eventually muster the vote necessary votes to choke a filibuster threatened by Senate liberals.

The amendment requires two-thirds votes in both chambers before it could be offered to states for ratification.

Reagan has made the prayer amendment a top legislative priority, telling Americans in a radio address last weekend that the prohibition on prayer in schools is "intolerance against genuine religious freedom."

Republican House sponsors of the measure have enlisted an all-star lineup of sports personalities to dramatize their support for Senate approval and to try to force a House vote. They also plan an all-night session to coincide with the start of the Senate debate.

Scheduled speakers at a planned GOP forum supporting the prayer amendment include Washington Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs and kicker Mark Moseley, former Baltimore Colt halfback Lenny Moore, former New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams tackle Rosey Grier and Meadlowlark Lemon of the Harlem Globetrotters.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on constitutional rights, where the measure is currently bottled up, says he will hold "in depth" hearings on the measure if it wins Senate approval. He concedes the school prayer amendment is popular in Congress and he expects its approval, at least in the GOP-run Senate.

Heart trouble can be detected early

HOUSTON (AP) — A device which uses lasers to take pictures of internal organs may help detect heart disease a decade before a patient is in danger of suffering a heart attack, an official at the University of Texas Health Science Center says.

Equipment at the Positron Diagnostic and Research Center is capable of showing doctors early stages of artery blockage, Dr. Lance Gould, the center's director, said Monday.

"We hope to be able to detect heart disease five to 10 years ahead of time," Gould said in an interview. "All coronary disease can be reversed if we see it early enough. Most of the time, the ones we see now are advanced cases."

But with such early warning, doctors will be able to prescribe drugs to reverse heart disease "before something terrible happens," Gould said. "This is twice as sensitive as anything we currently have. We hope to make a major step forward in diagnosis."

The $10 million center is the only facility of its kind in Texas and the only one in the world capable of handling large numbers of patients, Gould said.

The center includes a cyclotron, tomographic camera and an imaging laboratory.

Although the three parts of the center rely on each other, the showpiece is the tomographic camera — a 6-foot-diameter doughnut-like circle of electronics that uses lasers to take pictures of a patient's organs, then feeds the images into a computer where doctors can view them in cross-section or from all sides just like holding the organ in one's hand.

The three-man crew of the U.S. space laboratory Skylab II made a safe splashdown in the Pacific Ocean after a record 59 days in orbit in 1973.

Cranston tries to stay afloat

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Sen. Alan Cranston, once considered a likely challenger to the front-runners for the Democratic presidential nomination, is struggling hard just to keep afloat in today's primary election.

The voting here will determine whether Cranston lingers on among the eight Democratic contenders, and campaign sources said the Californian may drop out unless there is some strong reason to believe he might make a comeback.

"He's a realist," said one campaign official familiar with Cranston's thinking. "In the Senate, he was known as the vote counter. Cranston is not one to let a losing fight linger on."

Publicly, Cranston insisted Monday that he will fight on and campaign in Maine where Democrats meeting in caucus Sunday will begin to choose delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

"I intend to go on to Maine regardless of what happens here or fails to happen here (in New Hampshire) Tuesday," Cranston told a group of supporters. "We have a strong organization in Maine."

Earlier, Cranston had said: "We take the campaign from week to week. Right now, it's New Hampshire, next week's it's Maine, and we will see where we are."

Cranston finished fifth in the Iowa caucuses with 9 percent of the vote eight days ago.

Since then, his sources of funds have largely dried up, according to campaign officials.

Dentist's malpractice lawsuit ready for trial

DALLAS (AP) — Jurors have been selected to hear a $4 million lawsuit filed against an oral surgeon in the death of a teen-ager who went into a coma as he was being prepared for having his wisdom teeth removed.

Vikram Bajaj, 18, went into a coma on June 26, 1981 and died 10 days later in a hospital. Bajaj had graduated with honors from an Arlington high school a month earlier.

His parents filed the suit against Dr. Paul Edward Menton. The trial began Monday.

In court papers, the dentist claims the death was related to the teen-ager's use of a prescription drug.

Menton, 42, and his two dental assistants contend that before his scheduled surgery, Bajaj did not tell them he was using prednisone, a drug prescribed for treatment of a facial cyst.

The Dallas Morning News reported Monday that much of the testimony will center on an inquest by Tarrant County Medical Examiner Dr. Nizam Peerwani that caused perjury charges to be filed against Menton.

At issue in the inquest was an Oct. 8, 1981 affidavit in which Menton claimed a blood pressure monitor was used during the anesthesia procedure.

Family is suing charter service

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A $11.5 million lawsuit has been filed by the family of a television station employee who died in the Nov. 26 crash of a twin-engine plane near Midland Regional Airport.

Ed Monette, 26, and five other KOSA-TV employees were returning from covering high school football games in Fort Worth and Wichita Falls on the chartered plane. Also killed were the pilot and a man who helped KOSA employees at the game.

Monette was an assistant engineer at the station.

The lawsuit — filed last Wednesday in state district court on behalf of Monette's parents, wife and three children — alleged that Midland oilman Richard Gaddy, who owned the plane, and Texas Western Aviation, which chartered the flight, were negligent in entrusting the pilot, Keith Elkin, with the aircraft.

The suit said Elkin lacked "sufficient flying experience and skill to safely fly the aircraft under the existing circumstances."

Preliminary findings by the National Transportation and Safety Board indicated Elkin might have tried to abort a landing and that an engine might have stalled before the craft crashed near a runway.

Autopsy reports also indicated Elkin suffered a form of heart attack sometime before the crash.

Gaddy told the Odessa American on Monday that Elkin "had the highest rating that could be acquired by a commercial pilot."

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

There's a period in a child's growth where everything he picks up goes directly into his mouth.

It's a tense time for a mother who must appear miraculously at the right time to snatch whatever from his hands and save him from devouring a lampshade or the stair treads.

With most children, the phase is a temporary one. They will baste everything with saliva and reduce it to bite-size for a period of three years ... tops. Then, they judiciously begin to examine the item, smell it, and determine whether or not it's edible.

Then, there is a group of children who never outgrow it. I am the mother of one of them. At the age of nine, he ate three soaps shaped like strawberries. At age 11, he ate a green apple and didn't even realize it was a candle until he spit out the wick. One evening in his 16th year, we were at a friend's house having dinner when I looked up to find him eating a cork coaster.

"What are you doing?" I asked.

"Eating a cookie." he said. "It's not too bad."

"I'll get her recipe," I said tiredly.

Ironically, children who hang onto this appetite for non-edibles never seem to suffer any ill effects. My son has consumed enough baking soda (stored in the refrigerator to combat odors) to turn him into a statue.

He came in the other night and like a magnet went to his free-throw line in front of the refrigerator and with both hands pulled both the freezer and the refrigerator doors open.

"Don't eat the film in the freezer," I said. "Your father is saving it for vacation."

His eyes caught the glass carafe filled with red liquid. In typical boy fashion, he whipped off the cap and hoisted it to his lips and began to drink. At the same time, his eyes went to a hummingbird feeder just outside our kitchen window. He stopped drinking. "Wait a minute," he said. "Is that hummingbird drinking the same stuff I'm drinking?"

I nodded.

"You could have told me it was nectar," he said, wiping the sticky liquid off his lips. He is 28 years old.

A friend of mine came by and when I told her the story she said, "That's nothing. I gave a party the other night and one of the guests dipped her hand in my potpourri and started popping it into her mouth. She thought it was Trail Mix."

"How old was she?" I asked anxiously.

"38."

Parents can aid mental development of babies

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Today, many parents are concerned about their infant's mental development. There is talk of the "superbaby" — the bright, advanced child — and the use of such things as flash cards to promote early reading and mathematical skills.

But few children will turn out to be true geniuses, says Robert McCall, a child psychologist who specializes in infant and early child development.

He is a senior scientist at the Boys Town Center near Omaha, Neb., and is the author of "Infants: The New Knowledge About the Years From Birth to Three."

A parent cannot make a "superbaby" out of any child by training alone; intellectual skills, like athletic prowess, require both training and natural ability, he explained in an interview.

However, he said, there are things that a parent can do to help a child's mental development.

As to the use of flash cards, McCall said that while flash cards "in and of themselves are not good or bad," it's better for parents to respond to their children, rather than trying to stimulate them.

"Studies of children who do learn to read and calculate very early show that their parents spent a great deal of time engaged in good, old-fashioned play. They responded to their babies' actions, played a variety of mental and social games, and provided different experiences and opportunities," McCall said.

He said histories of very precocious individuals showed that their parents were intellectually oriented themselves and spent a lot of "baby only" time, doing things with their infants.

McCall noted that roughly half of the parents of these precocious individuals said they had not planned programs and been deliberate about encouraging their child's development, while the other half did have a deliberate strategy.

"But in either case," he added, "the parents provided an enormous amount of 'baby only' and 'child only' time. They did not just throw toys at the babies."

McCall said the relationship between a parent and a child came first, and from that relationship came the opportunity to encourage and teach.

He offers these guidelines for parents:

—Take your cues from your child. "That means first you have a good time, both of you. If your baby is not interested in doing whatever you're doing, stop it, try something else. Skip it until tomorrow. If the baby continues not to be interested in whatever games you want to play, forget it."

—Respond to your child. "Imitate your baby, the silly gurgles, or sticking the tongue out. Imitate the baby's sounds. That's the kind of accepting thing that they will be responsive to, and that kind of response promotes a love and attachment relationship which is probably the most crucial element in early mental development, personality and sociability."

McCall said in many respects, a parent is a baby's best toy.

"From what the research tells us about what an infant is sensitive to, is attentive to, responds to, you, the parent, are ideal. You have physical characteristics that babies like to look at. You make sounds. Your mouth moves when a sound is made, so there is a connection between sight and sound. You're fascinatingly variable. You can imitate. So that you really are a 'supertoy'," he said.

Finally, he said, parents shouldn't be overly concerned if their child doesn't fall within the suggested guidelines for development, although they should check with their baby's doctor if they have any questions or worries.

McCall said in general, "There is a little relationship in the normal population between anything a baby does that we know of during the first 18 months and how early they do it and the child's later mental ability."

Plan ahead for overseas medical care

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a half million U.S. travelers required hospitalization or services of a doctor while visiting foreign countries last year, according to a company that gathers information about Americans who get sick abroad.

"Illness or accidents while traveling can be expensive," says Tom St. Denis, president of the company, Health Care Abroad, a Washington-based travel health insurance firm. "When it comes to traveling overseas, Americans tend to disregard the risks and don't plan for the potential costs.

"When you pay for medical treatment, it's not like paying a hotel bill," he points out. "Personal checks or credit cards — even those 'accepted worldwide' — may be rejected by foreign hospitals. Many doctors require payment in cash, and hospitals commonly ask for deposits. And if you can't pay the final bill, hospitals may withhold your passport until the expenses are met."

Contrary to what many Americans believe, St. Denis adds, the highest risks of foreign travel are simple illnesses, not dramatic accidents.

"The debilitating effects of travel are a major factor in overseas illness," he says. "Changes in food, a stepped-up schedule and the excitement of travel are all great strains on your body. That's the catalyst if not the cause of most overseas illness."

To encourage better travel health planning, the U.S. Department of State advises Americans to check their insurance coverage before leaving this country.

According to James E. Ritchie, consular officer in the Citizens Emergency Center at the State Department, "It's not unusual for Americans to go abroad and run into these types of situations. A lot of them try to be wise about traveling, but they don't think about getting sick."

Medicare and most of its supplementary programs don't cover foreign hospitalization, St. Denis notes. Blue Cross covers its policyholders to some extent but only if they get an itemized bill printed in English, something that requires a special request in many countries.

Other insurance policies vary widely in their coverage and services to Americans getting sick or injured abroad.

So how do you avoid high risk, high costs and serious dangers while traveling abroad?

"Simple planning," says St. Denis, who offers these tips to would-be travelers:

—Visit your doctor before going abroad; make sure you are healthy enough for the trip and that you have all necessary vaccinations.

—Check authoritative medical information sources about any public health problems prevalent in the areas you will visit. One such source is "The Worldwide Health Forecast," a toll-free hotline, at 1-800-368-3531. Others include the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., and New York Hospital's International Health Care Service in New York City.

—Information on health care regulations and customs in foreign nations is available through those countries' U.S.based tourist bureaus. In some countries, hospitals only treat travelers on referral from a local doctor. In others, diplomatic agreements set a ceiling on the cost of health care to foreign visitors.

—While traveling, you can reduce the effects of jet lag by eating lightly during the journey, avoiding alcoholic and sweetened beverages, wearing loose-fitting clothing, occasionally walking around the aircraft cabin and sleeping at least three hours after reaching your destination.

—Seek a doctor or hospital at the first sign of illness, no matter how mild your symptoms.

—After returning home, check immediately with your personal physician if you feel any symptoms of illness. Some major "travel illnesses," including malaria, may manifest themselves only after you are back in this country.

Rehm addresses Plainview EH'ers

The Plainview Extension Homemakers Club met Feb. 21 at the Northeast Community Center with 10 members and two guests present.

Kathy Roberts opened the meeting by introducing guest speaker, Wendell Rehm, who gave an informative talk on the recent changes in traffic laws.

President Pearl Waller called the meeting to order for a brief business session. Roll call by Jean McQuery was answered with what we like about winter. Maxine Grimmett gave the treasurer's report and council report was given by Virginia Humphrey, council delegate.

The meeting was closed with a prayer. Refreshments were served by hostess, Jean McQuery. Lucky lady gift was given to Maxine Grimmett because it was her birthday.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Jim: "Second place in the Reisinger went to a team made up of three current world champions and three former ones. Their top pair was Mike Becker and Ron Rubin. Mike is the son of columnist and old friend B. Jay Becker, who was my father's partner on many occasions, including the 1936 Spingold. Mike's brother Steve now shares B. Jay's column. Ron Rubin wanted, at one stage of his career, to be an actuary, but he became a successful stockbroker instead.

"In today's hand Ron sat South. He doubled Edgar Kaplan's one diamond. My father did the best he could to upset them by jumping to four diamonds, and Edgar kept up the pressure by bidding five.

"Ron doubled and, after considerable thought, Mike bid five hearts. Now it was Ron's turn to huddle. Finally he produced a five-spade call. Now came a typical Becker action in accordance with his father's principle that slams are fine but plus scores are better. He passed five spades. Six would make if all three trumps weren't in the West hand, but five became a winner when exactly that happened.

"It was a clear Becker win when Jacoby's and Kaplan's teammates, Root and Pavlicek, got to the good six-spade contract but had to lose a club and the queen of trumps."

SNACKTIME FARE
Cookie Rounds & Tea

COOKIE ROUNDS

Updated from a butterscotch refrigerator cookie recipe of the 1940s and given by request.

2 cups well-stirred all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼-pound stick butter, cut into 8 equal pats
1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 large egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts

On wax paper stir together flour, baking soda and cream of tartar. In a medium bowl cream butter and sugar; beat in egg and vanilla until blended. Stir in flour until blended. Stir in walnuts. Pack firmly into 3 empty 6-ounce containers (from frozen juice concentrate); cover tightly with saran and chill until firm — several hours or overnight. Work with 1 can at a time and keep others chilled. Remove can bottom and use it to force out dough. With a sharp knife cut each roll into 20 rounds — each about ⅛-inch thick. Place, a few inches apart, on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned — 8 to 10 minutes. Makes 60 cookies, each about 2½ inches in diameter.

Dear Abby

Unwed Mother Chose Sex, Accepts Responsibility

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "No Regrets in Missouri," who found herself pregnant and unmarried, chose not to have an abortion. Instead she gave up her baby for adoption.

I am also pregnant and unmarried, but I am going to have my baby and raise it alone if necessary. The father of my child wanted me either to have an abortion or to give up the child for adoption, but I would not consider either alternative.

I realize there is a long list of childless married couples who are praying for a child, but there is no way in God's world that I would give away my baby.

I was raised to accept responsibility for my own actions, and since I chose to enter into a sexual relationship, I now accept the responsibility that goes with it.

I know that raising a child will not be easy, but my child will never have to wonder what kind of woman his biological mother was, where she is, and all the questions that plague most adopted children. Sign me ...

NO REGRETS IN IOWA

DEAR NO REGRETS: You don't say how old you are or how you intend to support yourself and your child, but you sound like a very determined and together young woman. I wish you luck. An unwed mother who chooses to keep her child and raise it alone (if necessary) will need luck in abundance.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: In recent years the subject of adoptees who have searched and found their birth parents, and vice versa, has become a popular one. We would like to know: After the adoptive child had been reunited with his biological parents, (a) how did the adoptive parents feel? (b) How was the relationship between the adopted child and the parents who raised him affected? (c) Were the adoptive parents and the birth parents genuinely happy to meet each other?

These questions are of valid concern to my wife and me, as we have three adopted children who one day might want to find their biological parents.

We hope your readers will respond honestly so that we and other adoptive parents will know what to expect.

CURIOUS IN FLORIDA

DEAR CURIOUS: I, too, am curious. Readers?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago I read a letter in your column from a reader who claimed that dogs in Holland do not bark because other dogs have never taught them how.

Ah, were that so! Unfortunately, dogs in Holland bark just as much as dogs in other parts of the world. I know. For three years I lived next door to two dogs who must have been training day and night for the Olympic gold medal in barking.

We recently returned from a visit to Holland. While there we stayed with friends who had a Great Dane who should have been named "E.F. Hutton"—when he barks, people listen!

Baker confesses to mass killings

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A "publicity shy" bakery owner has confessed to killing 17 women over 10 years, the worst mass murder in Alaska history, and the death count could go even higher, a prosecutor said.

Robert Hansen, 44, made the confession in "bits and pieces" over the past week before pleading guilty Monday to four murders along with theft and weapons violations, said Victor Krumm, a state district attorney in Anchorage.

Superior Court Judge Ralph Moody immediately sentenced Hansen to 461 years in prison and a life sentence, Krumm said. Alaska does not have a death penalty.

Hansen was charged with four killings because authorities located only that many bodies, Krumm said. Two bodies were found by hikers and the other two were discovered after being unearthed by bears.

"Seventeen may not be the end of it," the prosecutor said late Monday. "We feel from what we've learned that there might be more bodies out there."

Krumm said Hansen, who was charged last fall with the kidnap and rape of a 16-year-old prostitute, "knew we were on to him." He pleaded guilty to spare himself and his family a "drawn-out" ordeal as police tried to tie him to the disappearance in recent years of a dozen dancers from Anchorage's red-light district, Krumm said.

Police grilled Hansen every day since last Wednesday, threatening to charge him with murder each time a body was discovered.

"Mr. Hansen is publicity shy, so rather than go through that," he gradually admitted the killings until the list stood at 17, Krumm said.

"Apparently he has less problem killing the women than talking about it later," the district attorney added.

Thin but belly bulges

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the last 10 years I've been underweight, but my stomach is very large. I'm 5 feet 5 inches tall and weigh about 105 pounds. I'm 62 years old and I'm afraid to gain weight because it might make my stomach even larger.

For the last five years, I've been exercising every morning for about a half-hour. The exercises include about five minutes of jumping rope.

When I mentioned my problem to my doctors, they couldn't give me any answers. One suggested that exercising might even enlarge my stomach.

I've never had any children. I have normal bowel functions and no other problems. I'd appreciate any suggestions.

DEAR READER — I certainly don't want to encourage you to lose weight. Despite being thin, you might indeed have some extra fat in your abdominal cavity.

Some people are more prone to a large abdomen because of large intestinal organs. You have to think about the role of the spine in causing the abdomen to appear enlarged. As the vertebrae decrease in size and a person loses height, he or she will have a shorter abdominal cavity. This forces the abdomen to enlarge to accommodate the intestinal organs.

The other possibility is that you need to work on your exercises and posture. Even though you exercise regularly, if you don't work your abdominal muscles, you won't decrease the size of your abdomen. Jumping rope will not use your abdominal muscles, particularly if you're good at it. Neither will walking running on a flat surface.

You have to do sit-ups and modified leg-lifts. I also recommend stretching exercises to strengthen the back. Don't forget voluntary contractions of your abdominal muscles. I'd concentrate on these types of exercises for the best effect.

All of these are discussed in more detail in the Health Letter 17-12, Winning the Battle of the Bulge, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me something about a disease called acromegaly.

DEAR READER — Acromegaly is caused by too much growth hormone from the anterior pituitary gland at the base of the brain. If too much growth hormone is produced before puberty or before the long bones are fused, an individual may become a pituitary giant.

If the long bones already have fused and calcified when the excess growth hormone is produced, acromegaly occurs. The hands become large and spade-like, the feet, face, ears, nose and jaw also enlarge. Fingers and toes may enlarge. The individual also may notice he needs a larger shoe size and is no longer able to wear his ring.

The physical characteristics are typical enough in a well-developed case that, in most instances, the doctor would suspect the disease simply on seeing the patient.

Jackson ad is televised

NEW YORK (AP) — The commercial Michael Jackson was making when his hair caught fire will be shown on network TV tonight during the Grammys show, but already it has made its public debut.

The ad was unveiled in New York on Monday and was being broadcast on the MTV all-music cable network Monday night.

It shows Jackson coming onstage for a concert with fireworks exploding from flashpots behind him. During the last of the five shootings of the scene Jan. 27, the singer suffered burns of the scalp when flaming material fell on his head.

One of the earlier shots is used for the commercial, in which the Jacksons sing Michael's hit "Billie Jean" with new lyrics to promote Pepsi Cola.

Barroom rape...

Woman stands by story

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A young mother spent six grueling hours on the witness stand, admitting she lied to welfare workers, denying she plans to sell her story, and calmly standing by her testimony that she was raped and jeered by strange men in a strange bar.

The 22-year-old woman remained calm Monday despite intense cross-examination by three different defense attorneys, displaying the same composure she showed when she first took the stand Friday.

Six men are charged with aggravated rape in the case, in which the woman alleges she had gone into Big Dan's tavern in nearby New Bedford last March 6 to buy a pack of cigarettes and was repeatedly raped on a pool table while onlookers cheered.

Daniel Silvia and Joseph Vieira, both 27, are being tried in an afternoon trial. Victor Raposo, John Cordeiro, Virgilio Medeiros and Jose Medeiros (no relation), all 24, are being tried in a separate morning session. The trials were split to avoid the use of possibly incriminating statements by some defendants against co-defendants in the same trial.

The woman, a mother of two, has testified that two men actually committed the alleged rapes. Defense attorney Kenneth Sullivan pointed out Monday that she originally told police she stopped counting after being raped by six men.

She firmly rejected the suggestion she plans to capitalize on the case by selling her story to a publisher and appearing on television. "I was offered to sign contracts, and I refused them," she said.

And, she said her $10 million civil suit against the bar owners was not a matter of money. "I'm suing them for the principle that they were wrong," she said.

Under Monday's cross-examination, the woman admitted she delivered drinks to two of the defendants while they played pool. She identified the two as Raposo and Cordeiro, pointing them out in the courtroom.

She also admitted she accepted welfare payments for three years even though she was ineligible. She has not been charged with any crime involving the welfare payments.

The woman, meanwhile, held firm to other parts of her story:

— She denied she asked to dance with one of the defendants.

— She denied she told the woman at the bar she was having emotional problems and hadn't had sex with her boyfriend for several months.

Regan's remarks anger farm-state governors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John Block has come in for plenty of criticism lately, but he was out of the line of fire as farm-state governors unloaded on another Reagan Cabinet member: Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan.

The governors, members of both parties, were perturbed at Regan's insinuation during a White House meeting that farmers in financial trouble were poor businessmen and had bought trouble by speculating on farmland.

According to at least five governors present at the Monday morning session with Regan and other top administration officials, the treasury secretary also sought to minimize the problem of farm debt by saying farmers get tax deductions for the interest they pay.

Regan's comments were in response to a question during the closed meeting from Iowa Republican Gov. Terry Branstad about the squeeze on farmers caught between high interest rates and low commodity prices.

"His response to my question was that they (farmers) thought they were going to make some money buying land in an inflationary economy and basically ... tough luck," Branstad told reporters.

"I thought it was a very insensitive response. Some of these farmers are good producers who are victims of the times," he said.

A spokesman for Regan, who spoke only if not identified by name, said later that Regan was only trying to point out that the government cannot be responsible for the financial problems of any business owner — farmer or otherwise — who gets too deeply in debt.

Branstad and other governors sounded off later in the day at a meeting of the National Governors Association agriculture committee. Block, who was a guest for the session and has been under fire himself for the stinginess of this year's commodity programs, was forced to defend his Cabinet colleague.

"He's not as close to (farmers) as I am, there's no question about that," Block said in response to criticism of Regan. "I think he has a reasonably good understanding of agriculture."

And in areas where Block has needed help, particularly on matters involving trade and export credit, Regan "has been a very good ally of ours," Block said.

Reach agreement in custody of death tapes child

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An attorney representing the state says it was in the best interest of convicted killer Sherry Wolf's child to limit communication between mother and daughter and place the little girl in the custody of her grandparents.

In an out-of-court agreement, Melanie Ann Staton, 4, was placed in the custody of her maternal grandparents, Leonard and Genelle Pyle of Harlingen.

The little girl was the centerpiece of a highly-publicized murder trial involving her mother and natural father last fall.

Prosecutors said Melanie saw her father, Billy Staton, bludgeoned to death and was used as bait in the murder plot involving Mrs. Wolf, her husband, Paul Wolf, and an accomplice.

Mrs. Wolf, 21, was sentenced last September to life in prison for her role in slaying Staton who tape-recorded his own death. Her murder conviction has been appealed.

Staton carried a tape recorder concealed under his shirt the last time he went to the Wolf home in La Feria July 16, 1982. He was attempting to gather evidence that the Wolfs were violating a court order that allowed him visitation rights, testimony at the trial revealed.

Paul Wolf, 21, was convicted of killing Leticia Castro, Staton's fiancee, who was waiting in the car the night of the murders.

Another man, Glenn Henderson, a friend of Paul Wolf, pleaded guilty to Miss Castro's slaying and also received a life prison term.

The custody agreement, signed Friday, terminates Mrs. Wolf's parental rights and gives Staton's brother, Gilbert, and his wife, Margaret, the right to visit Melanie. The Statons had sought custody of Melanie through the courts.

The agreement enjoins Mrs. Wolf from communicating with her daughter except through a third party psychologist or psychiatrist. Melanie is to receive semi-annual therapy, the agreement states.

"The child saw her father being killed and we still don't know what affect witnessing this murder will have on her," said Gustavo Garza, Cameron County Assistant District Attorney, who represented the state in seeking the termination of Mrs. Wolf's parental rights.

Garza said the state does not ordinarily try to separate children and parents, even parents convicted of homicide.

"But this case is unusual because testimony during the criminal trial showed that Melanie was present and witnessed the murder of her father," Garza said.

"From listening to the tape it appears that the child was used as bait, as a distraction, to set up Billy Staton so that the others could come from behind and kill him," Garza said.

Moments before he was struck, Staton was promising his daughter a picnic and trip to the beach. On the tape, sounds of crying are heard after Staton was struck.

New salary $1 annually

NEW YORK (AP) — Mikhail Baryshnikov, artistic director of American Ballet Theater since September 1980, will carry on at a new salary — $1 a year.

Under the arrangement, the 36-year-old dancer who defected from the Soviet Union in 1974 will pursue projects which interest him outside the company, including performing with other companies and making movies. But he stays in charge of American Ballet Theater operations.

The ballet's spokesman, Robert Pontarelli, said Monday that the executive committee accepted Baryshnikov's proposal that he remain artistic director without contract indefinitely.

N. H. voters trek to polls

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire voters, playing their traditional and often unpredictable role in presidential politics, went to the polls today with one survey indicating Sen. Gary Hart had pulled even with acknowledged front-runner Walter F. Mondale.

The poll, conducted Saturday through Monday for ABC News and the Washington Post, showed the former vice president and Hart, the Colorado senator, each with 30 percent support. It surveyed 446 Democrats and independents who said they were sure to vote today.

Placing third was Sen. John Glenn with 14 percent. The Rev. Jesse Jackson had 8 percent. Based on a rolling three-day average, the poll has margin of error of plus or minus 6 percent.

The poll indicated a dramatic movement of support toward Hart, who placed second in the Iowa party caucuses last week. On Sunday, an earlier ABC News-Washington Post poll showed a seven-point lead for Mondale over Hart. An even earlier ABC-Post poll had showed Mondale with a 14-point lead.

In line with state tradition, the 27 voters of Dixville Notch, a tiny mountain hamlet, cast their ballots at midnight, with Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina receiving 3 votes and Mondale getting 2 votes from Democrats. Hart and former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew had 1 each

On the Republican side, President Reagan had 15 votes, while Hollings had 5 write-ins.

Most New Hampshire polls open at 9 a.m. or 10 a.m., EST, and close anywhere from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Nationwide, a new CBS News-New York Times poll showed Mondale far ahead among those who said they were likely to vote in a Democratic primary or caucus.

That poll, released Monday, showed Mondale with 57 percent, followed by Jackson with 8 percent, Glenn and Hart with 7 percent each, former Sen. George McGovern with 6 percent, Hollings with 2 percent, Cranston with 1 percent and Askew with less than 1 percent.

Glenn, of Ohio, whose standing in the New Hampshire polls plunged after his disappointing fifth place finish in the Iowa caucuses last week, insisted Monday that he's in the race to stay and predicted he would rebound and win the nomination.

Reagan had only token opposition in the contest for the state's 22 delegates to the Republican National Convention. He also might be a factor on the Democratic side where supporters were urging voters to write in his name.

The Democrats also will send only 22 delegates to their party convention out of a total of more than 3,300.

But the numbers aren't what matters in this primary. It's a test of whether Mondale can solidify his status as front-runner in a conservative state that has been rough on such leaders in the past as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and George Romney.

People in this state are proud to remind visitors that since 1952 no one has been elected president who didn't first win the New Hampshire primary.

Jackson moved to an emotional close of his New Hampshire campaign as he tried to overcome the impact of allegations he had referred to Jews as "Hymies," a term found offensive by many Jewish people.

After saying for nearly two weeks that he could not remember using the term, Jackson appeared Sunday night at a Manchester synagogue and admitted he had used the term in a private conversation.

The day after his admission, Jackson still was being questioned about the incident. At a rally in Littleton, a questioner in the audience who identified himself as a Baptist minister, as is Jackson, asked the candidate if he shouldn't withdraw from the race.

Jackson replied that he would not pull out. "If there is anyone amongst us that can throw a stone based on perfection, the rock will stay on the floor," he said. "Even Baptist ministers can't claim perfection."

Appearing on ABC-TV's Nightline Monday night, Jackson said he regretted the remark. "It was an unfortunate off-color remark in private conversation, and I was astounded at the attention that it got."

Billfold reported missing

Snyder police detectives are investigating two misdemeanor theft reports filed Monday — one involving a billfold reported stolen.

Merle M. Williams of 3103 Austin Ave. called police at 10:48 a.m. and reported the theft of her billfold containing personal papers and a small amount of cash.

She said it had apparently been taken from her room while she was a patient at Cogdell Memorial Hospital between Monday and Friday of last week.

L.R. Warren of 1405 31st St. filed the day's second theft report at 12:26 p.m. He told investigators that a barbecue pit had been stolen from a rent house he owns at 3009 Ave. N.

No value was estimated for the missing pit and it was thought to have been taken during the past several days.

In other action, city officers jailed one suspect for public intoxication Monday evening and a second for criminal mischief involving a tire slashing incident reported Sunday.

Man praises pet tarantulas

KENMORE, Wash. (AP) — Looking for a neat, quiet pet that can take care of itself while you're on vacation? Has Allan McKee got the critter for you!

Sure, it takes a little time to warm up to a tarantula. Why, McKee himself used to have trouble sleeping with just one in his house. But now, as proprietor of Al's Tarantula Ranch, he routinely shares his home with 3,000 to 5,000 of the giant spiders, in various stages of development from egg to adulthood.

The tarantulas live in what was Fran McKee's sewing room until her husband, who also works as a telephone company technician, launched his venture. That happened when his mother-in-law brought a Mexican Red-leg tarantula for the McKee's daughterr.

McKee said in a recent interview that he was "terrorized" at first, until he learned, he said, that the spiders' bite is roughly like a bee sting and is dangerous to people who are also allergic to bee stings. Now he sings his pets' praises.

"They are easy to care for ... don't make a mess, eat modestly (live crickets) and, because they don't need water, you can go away on a vacation and not need a pet-sitter."

And they've got staying power, he says — tarantulas have "been on earth for an estimated 360 million years."

Now admit it, can you say all that for man's best pal?

Jones isolated for protection

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bexar County Jail administrators say Genene Jones has been assigned her own cell because of fears that other inmates might try to harm the nurse, who has been convicted of murdering a baby with drug injections.

Ms. Jones, 33, was transferred to San Antonio this week for a pre-trial hearing on another charge accusing her of injuring a month-old boy with a shot of a blood-thinning drug.

"I worry about how the other inmates will treat her," said Ms. Jones' court-appointed attorney, Royal K. Griffin, after Monday's hearing.

"They don't need the same burden of proof that you and I and a judge and jury need," he said. "They just assume she's guilty. She needs to be segregated."

Jail administrator Paul Bailey said the vocational nurse had been put in a "single cell" in a "safe section" of the jail.

"I talked to her attorney and we're very sensitive to his concerns," Bailey said. "Inmates usually don't like other inmates who are accused of harming children in any way."

Ms. Jones was convicted two weeks ago of murdering a 15-month-old girl with shots of the powerful muscle relaxant succinylcholine at a Kerr County pediatrics clinic in September 1982.

She will be tried next on a Bexar County indictment that contends she injected young Rolando Santos with an overdose of heparin, an anti-coagulant, at Medical Center Hospital in January 1982.

State District Judge Pat Priest granted motions Monday allowing the defense access to some evidence gathered by the district attorney's office, but put off ruling on defense motions asking for the indictment to be quashed and for a venue change in the trial.

Ms. Jones' murder trial was moved from Kerrville to Georgetown because of extensive publicity, but Griffin said the judge wanted to wait to decide on the venue change until he ruled on all other motions.

"One of the dangers about a community being highly politicized is that the people on the jury have to go back and live in that community," Griffin said. "The pressure to convict is enormous here."

When asked if he thought the coverage was extensive enough in San Antonio to warrant a trial move, he gestured to the pack of reporters and cameramen surrounding him and said, "Just look at you all now."

Bexar County Chief Deputy District Attorney Nick Rothe, who helped prosecute the murder trial in Georgetown, said Monday that the Santos case presented some problems.

"I believe it will be more difficult to try," he said. "We started our investigation a year and some months after the fact. But heparin is not nearly the subtle drug that succinylcholine is. Succinylcholine is much harder to pin down."

Rothe said he received a "very comprehensive" epidemiological study Monday from the national Center for Disease Control, which was undertaken to determine if a "common denominator" linked a string of unexplained infant deaths and illnesses at Medical Center.

The painstaking review concerned scores of medical records from the hospital's pediatrics intensive care unit, where the boy was injured and Ms. Jones was employed, Rothe said.

The prosecutor refused to disclose any details from the lengthy report.

Ms. Jones has been sentenced to 99 years for the murder of young Chelsea Ann McClellan, and also faces seven other child injury charges in Kerr County.

She would not talk to reporters Monday, but joked with a handful of friends who sat in the front-row courtroom benches.

Stocks rally after comments

By the Associated Press

In statements that set off a rally on Wall Street, President Reagan told the nation's governors he might support tax increases if a "harmful" budget deficit remained after Congress made the spending cuts he wants.

Reagan still emphasized he would stay with his plan for a "down payment" on the deficit this year, currently under negotiation with Congress, the governors said after meeting with the president Monday.

But investors were encouraged by new signs of flexibility from Reagan on the deficit, and the report of statements set off a late surge on Wall Street that sent the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 industrial stocks up 14.86 points to 1,179.96 by Monday's close. The index had soared 30.47 points on Friday.

Dusters look to open with Cisco

While Thursday's outcomes could possibly rock the boat slightly, it appears Western Texas College's Dusters will be facing Cisco in the opening round of the Region Tournament, scheduled for March 6-7-8 in Midland.

The tournament is listed as the 5th through the 7th on some schedules, but will actually begin on the 6th, Dusters Coach Joe Cushing informed this morning.

Regardless of Thursday's games, the Dusters will receive the second seed from the Western Junior College Athletic Conference (WJCAC). Odessa will be No. 1, Howard No. 3 and Amarillo No. 4.

Expected results in the Northern Junior College Athletic Conference (NJCAC) would leave Cooke County No. 1, McLennan No. 2, Cisco No. 3 and Ranger No. 4.

If no upsets occur to change the NJCAC standings, the Dusters will reportedly take on Cisco at 4 p.m. in Chaparral Center on Tuesday (March 6). Howard will meet McLennan at 2, Amarillo will face Cooke at 6 and Odessa will test Ranger at 8.

More details, including ticket prices and the time schedule of the March 7 semifinals, will be released later this week.

Western to host playoff contest

Western Texas College's Westerners, win or lose in their final game with Frank Phillips on Thursday, will host a Western Junior College Athletic Conference playoff game here Saturday, it has been learned.

The top two teams in the WJCAC advance automatically to the March 8-10 Regional Tournament while the other eight teams go into a two-game playoff. Under the eight-team playoff format, the four teams with the best records are hosts in the first round. Western, 10-7, will be assured of that role since NMJC, Clarendon, Frank Phillips and NMMI all have 10 or more conference losses.

Tickets for all college basketball playoff games will be $2 for adults and $1 for students. Prices were set by the WJCAC and no passes can be honored, according to Western College Athletic Director Dave Foster.

Students and Senior Citizens, who are admitted free during the regular season, will also be required to purchase tickets for the playoff because of the WJCAC ruling.

Neither the time of Saturday's game or the opponent will be known until after the final regular season conference games Thursday night.

Scrimmages over now; first contest Friday

Snyder baseball team came up with a good showing in its final scrimmage and is set to open the 1984 season Friday in Fredricksburg.

The Tigers, who edged Abilene High here 8-7 Monday, will step up to the plate at 9:30 against Austin Lanier junior varsity in the Fredricksburg Tournament.

Snyder scored its eight runs on 11 hits, including home runs by Justin Webb and Willie Greathouse. Webb also rapped a double and Eddie McClure and Chris Sanders knocked two hits apiece.

"Chris has been the surprise in our scrimmages," said Coach Albert Lewis. "He is 8 for 18 and that is super for a sophomore. We have seen Midland Lee's best pitcher and Lubbock High's best and Abilene's best twice and half of our hits have come off of them so I've been real pleased with our hitting so far."

Abilene had six hits but benefitted from seven errors. Some errors could be attributed to the fact that the scrimmage was held on the practice field instead of Moffett Field which is still undergoing renovations. Moffett Field is expected to be ready for the March 15-17 Snyder Tournament.

Tragedy struck the Tigers Monday when pitcher William Cotton was hit in the left eye with a batted ball.

"The ball took a bad bounce and hit him in the eye during the second inning. We took him out but when we got into pitching trouble later he said he wanted to go back in. He came back in the top of the seventh and struck out the first two batters and got the other to ground out," said Lewis. "I've got to hand it to that young man. He has a lot of heart."

The area around the eye began causing the athlete problems later in the evening however. He was taken to the emergency room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital for x-rays but was not kept overnight. He was back in school today.

In addition to Cotton, Paul Tate pitched one and a third innings and Jimmy Cain went three.

"We were okay with our pitching. We ran out of gas a little but that was because we threw so much on Saturday," Lewis said, referring to Snyder's double scrimmage with Lubbock High and Dunbar.

Other teams entered in the Fredricksburg Tournament are Kerrville Tivy, New Braunfels Canyon, Austin Anderson, Austin Reagan and San Antonio Southside. The three-day meet actually begins Thursday though Snyder does not play until Friday.

'Ready for regionals...'

Dusters blast Amarillo, 76-52

Western Texas College's women huddled center-stage on the Scurry County Coliseum floor, then gave the old "D-U-S-T-E-R-S" yell after their game with Amarillo here Thursday.

"That was to show they are ready for regionals. We've got one more game (Frank Phillips) and we're showing everybody we're ready for that and for the Regional Tournament," said Coach Joe Cushing.

Amarillo knows the Dusters are ready. Western Texas played to near perfection here, sending the Lady Badgers scurrying for home with a 76-52 defeat.

The win clinched at least a second place tie in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference (WJCAC) for the Dusters, who improved their record to 25-7 on the season and 10-3 in league play.

Western concludes the regular season Thursday in Borger against Frank Phillips and can win second place outright with a victory there. The Dusters will be playing in the Regional Tournament in Midland on March 6-7-8.

Amarillo drops to 8-5 in conference play. The Lady Badgers, who host South Plains on Thursday, will also be attending regionals.

Amarillo concentrated on WTC's inside game in the first half but the Dusters were able to find success along the perimeter with sophomore Mary Nell Clayton and freshman Rhonda Hoelting.

Hitting mainly from outside, the Dusters outscored Amarillo 16 to 4 in a seven-minute stretch of the first half for a commanding 27-12 advantage. Western enjoyed a 39-24 lead at intermission, then got quick buckets from Karen Kuykendall and Clayton to go up by 21 points - 45-24 - early in the second half. When Amarillo eventually pulled within 15 again, Renvy Evans, Lyndy French, Tina Gordon and Clara Campbell bagged back-to-back points to turn away any thoughts about a Lady Badgers' comeback.

Campbell, who had been covered up by Amarillo's zone defense in the first half, found the ball more frequently in the second half and put in 10 of her 12 points on the night.

"It was just like you'd draw it up. In the first half Amarillo packed the zone and we shot well outside just like you need to do. That opened up the zone and we were able to go inside in the second half," said Cushing.

For Clayton, it didn't seem to matter. The 5-9 talent from Roby hit from inside and outside to rack up 29 points. She hit 12 of 18 for the night and on two of the misses went to the line for freethrows. She also had a three-point play and came away with nine assists for the evening.

Campbell, 6-2 from Dallas, had 13 rebounds and five blocked shots in addition to her dozen points. Hoelting notched 10 points and recorded six assists and three steals, and Evans scored 8 points and had six rebounds. Kuykendall also had six boards and scored 6 points.

For the game Western was 34 of 66 from the field for 52 per cent. Amarillo was just 19 of 60 for 32 per cent.

The Lady Badgers, now 20-10 for the season, got 18 points from 6-2 sophomore Machelle Whitehead. Connie Coffman added 12 points.

Freethrows the difference as AC edges Western, 53-52

Mike Sanders aced a pair of freethrows with four seconds left here Monday, propelling Amarillo College past the Westerners of Western Texas, 53-52 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play.

Western got off a final shot - a 30-footer by sophomore Richie Fells - but it missed the hoop as Amarillo players jumped up and down in celebration.

The game-winning freeshots were not unique for the Badgers, who are the leading freethrow team in the WJCAC. Statistically, the Badgers were the more accurate team from the line, and realistically, that's what Monday's contest came down to.

"We had plenty of opportunities to win the basketball game. We just didn't hit our freethrows," said Western's Coach Barry Davis.

There really wasn't more to be said. Western went to the line for three one-and-one attempts in the final five minutes and missed on all of them. Amarillo was 11 of 12 in the second half and that was the difference.

"We've just got to forget this and get ready for Thursday," commented Davis, whose Westerners travel to Borger to play Frank Phillips in their final regular season contest.

Western, now 18-10 on the season and tied for fourth place in the WJCAC with a 10-7 record, plays Frank Phillips at 8 p.m.

Amarillo, which ironically trailed most of the game Monday, improved to 22-8 and 11-6.

Western trailed only once before Sanders' game-winning freethrows, although the contest was tied several times. The Westerners jumped out to a 17-10 advantage, but Amarillo rattled off the next 10 points to take a brief lead. Davis' bunch came back for a 25-22 halftime advantage as Eugene Lewis, Anthony Smith and Fred Johnson canned the final three buckets of the half.

Amarillo tied the game several times during the second half, but Western took control 42-37 when Richie Fells went to the line for three freethrows - two on a one-plus-one situation and another when Amarillo's Greg Merritt was flagged for a technical foul. The lead stayed between three and five points until Smith went to the line with 60 seconds to go in the game.

The 6-1 freshman missed the freethrow and Ignatius Lott rebounded for the Badgers. Lott later scored, cutting Western's lead to 52-51 with 45 seconds left to play. Western then inbounded the ball and got it across the midcourt stripe, calling time with 31 seconds to go.

The Westerners ran the clock to 18 seconds before Lewis was fouled. He stepped to the line but was unable to convert, and Lott again came down with the rebound.

Lott passed to Sanders, who tried to drive inside for the foul or the score. He was successful as Victor Spencer fouled him in an attempt to prevent the easy two-pointer. Sanders hit the freethrows with four seconds left, giving Amarillo the win.

Amarillo, also the WJCAC's leading field goal shooting team, blazed the hoops for 64 per cent on the night, 21 of 33. Western shot 21 of 42 for 50 per cent. AC won the board game, 23 rebounds to 16 for Western.

Amarillo got 16 points from Wes Bolden - 10 in the first half - while Lott had 15 and Andrew Kennedy added 14. Sanders put in the other 8.

Fells' 15 points, five rebounds and seven assists paced Western Texas. Larry Banks had 12 points and five rebounds. Lewis scored 9, Spencer and Smith 6 each and Fred Johnson 4.

"We've got to pick ourselves up and be ready to play Thursday," said Davis. "It's not like this game meant the difference in making it to regionals. We're disappointed with the loss, but we're not going to wallow in the mud over it. We don't have the time."

TOUGH LOSS -- Amarillo College's Mike Sanders dropped in two freethrows with four seconds to play here Monday, giving the Badgers a 53-52 win over WTC's Westerners. Western, 18-10, will conclude its regular season schedule in Borger Thursday. The Westerners have already earned a host berth in the upcoming WJCAC playoffs. See articles above. Jack Bryant will keep your septic tank in good operation

If your house's sewage disposal needs are served by a septic tank, then there are a few facts you need to know about.

When septic tanks are not cleaned periodically they get full of solids which then flow out of the lateral (drain) lines, clogging the perforated joints. Solids may even clog sewer lines from the house, causing the sewage to back up in the house.

At this point, the solution is either to clean out drain lines (which is not always successful) and clean the tank; or to lay new lines and clean out the tank.

When you have septic tank trouble, the least worry is the inconvenience it causes; and valuable carpet could be ruined when the lines back up.

Why not save all this expense and worry by maintaining your septic tank properly? Septic tanks should be pumped and cleaned at least every two years and chemicals should be put in to dissolve solids. Chemicals by themselves usually don't work properly if the tank is already full of solids.

If your tank runs over the lid, you can be sure it needs cleaning. Likely the perforated joints are already clogged up.

The good part of all this is that Jack Bryant and his Septic Tank Cleaning Service can save you money. He is able to do this by using a larger tank truck, since cost is determined by the number of loads hauled.

Jack Bryant can keep your septic tank operating properly. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-2447.

JACK BRYANT'S septic tank cleaning service can save you money by offering this larger truck for fewer loads. Give him a call at 573-2480 or 573-2447.(SDN Staff Photo)
