Nixon Is Campaign Issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is becoming a campaign issue, but ironically it is the Republican presidential contestants who are stirring the embers of Watergate and invoking the memory of the resigned president.

President Ford is, in effect, campaigning against the man who appointed him vice president, as he talks of his efforts to restore trust in the White House.

And Ronald Reagan has been speaking highly of Nixon's foreign policy, "whatever else you may think about him." In the early days of the primaries, when he was losing to Ford, Reagan suggested that Ford would have to cope with Democratic efforts to revive Watergate.

Ford strategy now is to try to make a political plus out of the scandals and what he describes as the restoration of trust. His standard campaign speech asks for votes on the basis of the "restoration of trust in your presidency," among other things.

Less than a month ago, Ford said he was purposely avoiding mention of Nixon, believing that Watergate was best forgotten. He still avoids the name, but not the issue. "In August of 1974 there had been a shocking series of scandals in the highest offices in our lands," Ford said, campaigning for the Michigan presidential primary Tuesday. "And the American people had lost a lot of confidence in their government and the net result was that we had to restore that confidence.

"The Ford administration has been open, it has been candid, it has been forthright, and I can look every American in the eye and say that we worked at the restoration of confidence and the strengthening of integritiy in the White House," he said.

Reagan, hammering at Ford foreign policy, has been saying that Nixon's was better. "Whatever you may think of the previous president, he had a foreign policy aimed at peace and I think it was working," the former California governor said in Flint, Mich., last Friday.

"He was the strategist at that time. Now someone else is the strategist at the State Department," Reagan said. That someone else, by Reagan's account, is Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, a major target for the challenger's criticism.

Kissinger was appointed secretary of state by Nixon after serving as White House adviser on national security. Kissinger said in an NBC-TV interview broadcast today that he would not perfer to remain in his post after the November election.

Reagan's praise of Nixon's foreign policy led to questions about the political fiture of the former president. Reagan said history will determine that. "I would not rule out whether he will ever become a viable political force....He obviously is not now."

Later, Reagan said he hadn't meant there would be a role for Nixon in any administration he headed. "I would not see a place for him in my administration," Reagan said. "...I have ruled him out."

So has Ford. But neither Republican contestant has ruled him out as a topic in their battle for the 1976 nomination.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, May 17th, the 138th day of 1976. There are 228 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that racial segregation in public schools is unconstitutional.

On this date:

In 1966, Congregationalists from Connecticut founded Newark, N.J.

In 1792, the New York Stock Exchange was founded.

In 1875, the first Kentucky Derby was run at Louisville, Ky.

In 1940, the Nazis occupied Brussels, Belgium in World War II.

In 1961, Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro offered to exchange prisoners captured in the Bay of Pigs invasion for U.S. heavy tractors.

In 1974, six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army were killed in a gun battle with Los Angeles police. Kidnaped heiress Patricia Hearst was not among those killed.

Ten years ago: Joe Bonnano of the Costa Nostra, who supposedly had been kidnaped 18 months earlier, surrendered to federal authorities in New York.

Five years ago: The union of railroad signalmen tied up the U.S. rail system in a strike over wages.

One year ago: Thailand formally expressed indignation that the United States had used a base in Thailand in the military action to rescue the merchant ship Mayaguez from Cambodians.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, a New Jersey Presbyterian minister who was a member of the Continental Congress, Reverend John Witherspoon, declared: "...the cause in which America is now in arms, is the cause of justice, of liberty and of human nature."

Quake Hits Wide Area Of Soviet Central Asia

MOSCOW (AP) — A severe earthquake struck a wide area of Soviet Central Asia today and caused "serious damage in a number of places," officials reported.

The three largest cities in the region — Tashkent, Bukhara and Samarkand — reported no casualties and virtually no damage, but communications were cut with the town of Gazli and some other small communities that received the brunt of the quake's force.

The earthquake, centered in the sparsely populated Kulzhuktau mountain range some 300 miles west of Tashkent, was much more powerful than the one which devastated parts of northern Italy early this month.

The Tass news agency said "prompt measures are being taken to eliminate the aftermath of the quake and to give relief to the quake victims."

The jolt had a force of 9 on the 12-point Soviet Medvedev scale.

In Washington, the U.S. Geological Survey reported the tremor reached 7.2 on the open-ended Richter scale, which would be "several times bigger than the Italian earthquake in terms of energy." A quake with a reading of 7 on the Richter scale is capable of widespread, heavy damage.

The Italian quake, in which more than 900 are known dead, registered between 6.5 and 6.9 on the Richter.

Seismology officials in Tashkent said Gazli, which has a population of about 8,000, was unreachable by telephone and the Tashkent seismic station said communications with Gazli were cut off when the quake struck.

Residents and visitors to Tashkent told friends in Moscow by phone they felt the tremor but there was no apparent damage in the city, which was devastated by a quake 10 years ago. Buildings in Tashkent were heavily reinforced in the rebuilding after that quake.

A duty officer in the Bukhara mayor's office said the only sign of today's quake there were cracks in some buildings.

The first official report came over Moscow radio some six hours after the tremor was recorded. Tass later issued two brief items on an urgent basis, mentioning victims for the first time. The Soviet press usually plays down natural calamities, so the report of heavy damage and victims hinted at the seriousness of the situation.

The quake was centered about 1,500 miles southeast of Moscow and 530 miles south of the super-secret Baikonur space center.

Moscow radio said that on the Medvedev scale, Gazli suffered a force of 8. It said a force of 5 was felt in Tashkent and 6 or more in Samarkand and Bukhara to the west.

The central Asian quake struck at 9 a.m. Tashkent time, the hour when residents would be arriving at school and work, according to the broadcast. Tashkent's population is nearly 1.6 million. Samarkand has a population of 299,000 and Bukhara 139,000.

Gazli, named as the community that suffered the biggest tremor, has a population of 7,800 according to 1970 census figures. Officials said communications with the village were severed.

The Tashkent seismic station, reached by telephone, reported the earthquake "was undoubtedly connected" with one that struck the same general area April 8. The intensity was the same, officials said.

Injuries and damages were minimal from the earlier tremor, it was reported later, because seismologists had forecast it five days before and warned residents.

There was no indication of any warnings about today's quake.

According to the report by the U.S. Geological Survey, today's quake hit at 7 a.m. local time (11 p.m. EDT Sunday).

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater.

BY DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM PANEL

Anderson Elected Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic party's platform committee today elected Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson as permanent chairman and began a final series of hearings on issues facing the nation.

Anderson's election came after Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island stepped down as temporary chairman because of criticism stemming from a statement he made about ghetto life.

"I thought I should not bring that issue and that controversy to the remaining days of the work of this committee," Noel said. He received a standing ovation from committee members when he announced his withdrawal from consideration as permanent chairman.

The panel will hear four days of testimony from some 85 witnesses, including politicians, union officials and civil rights leaders.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a presidential candidate, was scheduled to testify, along with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and the party's chairman, Robert Strauss.

Jimmy Carter, the frontrunner for the nomination, canceled his appearance to campaign in California, a committee spokeswoman said.

Others on the witness list include former U.N. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan, consumer advocate Ralph Nader, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, and representatives of the Urban League and National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

AFL-CIO President George Meany urged the party to adopt economic programs that would give voters a choice between prosperity and Republican policies that he said foster unemployment.

In prepared remarks, the labor leader said, "The economic choice confronting America in this election year is between a continuation of the disastrous 'trickle-down' economics of the past seven years ... and the creation of a balanced, full-employment economy built on mass producing power, full production and general prosperity."

House Democratic leaders will present the platform panel Tuesday with proposals that sponsors say aim for full employment and balanced economic growth. The proposal is being delivered by Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts.

The government's "major priority must be to keep the economy expanding, with jobs for all who are able and willing to work, with stable prices and with reasonable interest rates," the proposal says.

The program calls for 3 per cent unemployment by 1981 and keeping inflation below 6 per cent per year. The latest jobless rate stood at about 7.5 per cent.

On taxes, the proposed platform says: "We intend to make a concentrated effort to eliminate or modify the numerous and costly special deductions by high-income groups which are causing large losses in revenues."

On this year's federal budget, the platform proposes that spending be increased to create more than one million jobs while the deficit is reduced to $50 billion rather than the anticipated $76 billion.

EVE OF CRUCIAL MICHIGAN PRIMARY

Kissinger Spoils Reagan's Favorite Campaign Issue

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

One of Ronald Reagan's favorite campaign issues may have lost a bit of its edge on the eve of his crucial primary contest with President Ford in Michigan. Democrat Jimmy Carter says, meanwhile, that victory in the Maryland primary is not crucial to his campaign.

Republican challenger Reagan has made Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's conduct of foreign policy the basis for attacks on Ford. Now, Kissinger has indicated he will quit even if Ford wins in November.

In an interview on NBC's "Today" show, Kissinger said he would prefer not to remain in office if Ford is elected to a full term.

Kissinger's comment came as Ford returned from a weekend trip through his home state of Michigan, where the primary is crucial for the President. Ford has lost five of the last six primaries, and a loss in his home state would deal a severe blow to his chances.

The Democrats also have primaries on Tuesday. Front-runner Carter is the target of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., making his primary debut, in Maryland and of Rep. Morris K. Udall in Michigan.

In Baltimore, Carter said today that a defeat to Brown in Maryland's primary would not be a fatal blow to his bid for the nomination.

"It would be better to win but a loss to Gov. Brown would not be seriously damaging," the former Georgia governor said. "Brown will have to go all out to win in California as I won in Georgia."

In Detroit, meanwhile, Udall demanded that Carter and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young apologize for Young's statements accusing the Arizona congressman of supporting policies of the Mormon Church relating to race.

Udall said his parents were leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) but that he rejected the church's doctrine on race 30 years ago. "I paid the price of doing so in my own family and among my friends," he said, adding that Young either "deliberately distorted the record or he doesn't care whether he did or not."

The Mormon church denies blacks the rank of priest, which is given to every other faithful male member.

Young was quoted as calling Udall "a man from Arizona whose church won't even let you in the back door." To Udall's apology demand, Young responded: "I haven't got a damn thing to apologize for" and called Udall "the biggest crybaby in the political campaign."

Schools Studying New Transfer Plan

Due to possible crowded conditions in some of the elementary schools, the Snyder Public Schools today begin a study of a plan which includes relaxing the rigid attendance zone boundaries for the elementary districts. This would enable parents to request student transfers to schools in other attendance zones.

Parents interested in participating in the experimental assignment-transfer plan may pick up the necessary student transfer form at any elementary school beginning today. The form must be returned to the school to which the student is seeking a transfer on or before Friday, May 28. Parents requesting transfers will be notified before Aug. 1 whether the experimental plan will be implemented for the fall term.

The board of trustees gave its approval to the experimental transfer plan last week and details of handling the transfer requests have been worked out with the elementary principals.

Once the requests are all in, school administrators will study the figures to determine how they will affect the load at the various elementary schools and ultimately reach a decision on whether the plan will put into effect.

Mrs. Dillaha Dies Sunday

Giscard In US On Goodwill Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who streaked across the Atlantic in a Concorde jet, told President Ford today: "The France of 1976 is as much committed to the struggle in defense of liberty as she was at your side two centuries ago."

Ford welcomed Giscard on his Bicentennial visit to the White House with a 21-gun salute and an honor guard of U.S. servicemen holding the flags of the 50 states whipping in the wind. An Army band played marching music.

Thousands of spectators ringed the back fence of the White House to watch the ceremony.

Giscard set the tone for his six-day visit by evoking memories of the longstanding alliance between France and the United States. He expressed gratitude for the role this country played in defense of French liberty.

"The French people have not forgotten," he declared.

Ford, in turn, thanked France for having sent "its sons as well as its treasure to help an infant republic win its independence."

Giscard is the first French president to come to the United States since Georges Pompidou in 1970.

The French president arrived at the White House from Andrews Air Force Base, where he landed after a three-hour, 37-minute flight from Paris aboard a Concorde supersonic jet.

His also was to meet with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Giscard's plane landed at 9:48 a.m. EDT under heavily clouded skies. Thousands of Washingtonians turned out to see the arrival.

The flight presaged the start of commercial Concorde service from Paris and London to Washington's Dulles International Airport, scheduled to begin a week from today unless court orders intervene.

Security at Andrews was heavy. Secret Service men were stationed at several places, and Air Force guards armed with rifles patroled on bothsides of a fence that kept onlookers off the runway.

GISCARD D'ESTAING
...Streaks to US

It was the first trip to the United States by the Concorde in two years. Two days from now a federal appeals court hears arguments aimed at banning the fast but noisy aircraft from landing in scheduled service at Dulles and Kennedy International Airport in New York.

Environmental groups oppose the plane because of its noise and because they say it damages the earth's ozone layer, which screens out damaging rays from the sun. But Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. has ruled that Air France and British Airways each can operate the Concorde on two flights a day into Kennedy and one flight daily into Dulles for 16 months.

Despite U.S. regulations requiring Giscard's plane to fly at subsonic speeds over the continental United States, the jet streaked so fast across five time zones its touchdown at Andrews was earlier than its departure from Paris — measured by local times.

In effect, the plane beat the sun across the Atlantic during the 3,600-mile flight.

As steps were driven up to the plane, the sun broke though the clouds, and the crowd applauded as the the French president and his wife alighted. Giscard wave briefly.

Lebanon War Toll Over 19,000

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslems and Christians fought one of the most savage rocket and artillery duels of the 13-month-long civil war late Sunday and early today.

Police reported 221 persons killed and 383 wounded overnight, pushing the war's death toll to more than 19,000.

Hospitals issued urgent appeals for blood and said the wounded were being placed on bare floors.

Scores of high-rise apartment buildings were ablaze in downtown Beirut and the suburbs.

On Sunday, about 50 moviegoers in a Moslem area were killed or wounded as they walked out of a theater and into a mortar battle. A spokesman at Barbir hospital said 34 bodies were brought there but some of the victims might have been killed elsewhere.

The over-all death toll included journalist Edouard Saab, editor of the French-language newspaper L'Orient le Jour, who was fatally wounded by a sniper bullet as drove his car in Beirut.

A police spokesman said the Moslem and Christian militias fired more than 1,000 rounds of Soviet-made rockets and 155mm artillery shells in the duel.

Police said fighting continued for a sixth day for control of ski resort villages on the edge of the Christian enclave on Mount Lebanon, 20 miles northeast of Beirut.

Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat was meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

In Beirut, Christian President Suleiman Franjieh announced that he had made no commitment to resign quickly and turn over the government to Elias Sarkis, elected by parliament 10 days ago with Syrian backing.

Moslem leftists had made Franjieh's resignation a key condition for ending the civil war.

Libyan Prime Minister Abdul Jalloud arrived from Damascus where he met with Assad and Arafat. Jalloud conferred here with Moslems leaders in another mediation effort.

HIGH SCHOOL PROM—The annual Junior-Senior Prom for Snyder High School students was held Saturday night at the Scurry County Coliseum. A large group was on the dance floor in the coliseum arena.

Calley Is Wed

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Former Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr., once convicted of murdering civilians in Vietnam, has married the daughter of a Columbus jeweler.

Calley, 32, met Penny Vick, 29, several years ago in one of her father's stores. They were married by candlelight Saturday at St. Paul United Methodist Church, the first marriage for both.

Five years ago, Calley was convicted of the murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians. He was sentenced to life imprisonment, a sentence later reduced to 10 years.

The conviction was reversed in 1974, only to be reinstated later by the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The U.S. Supreme Court recently refused to hear an appeal of that decision.

Calley is on parole and military authorities say he will remain free unless he violates parole.

Report Urges US To Back Vietnam Entry Into UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should support the admission of a unified Vietnam into the United Nations and take other steps to reach a reconciliation with Indochina, a Senate staff report recommends.

The report also found that 131,000 Indochina refugees have been resettled in the United States in the year following Communist takeovers in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee on refugees, released the report Sunday.

For many refugees, hope "has faded into feelings of frustration, failure, lonelines and general depression," the report said. But it added, "Despite the chaos of the evacuation," there has been "substantial progress" in the resettlement program.

On the diplomatic front, it urged President Ford to name a special envoy "to promote the normalizing of relations with Vietnam."

"We must finally take some real steps in moving from a position of hostility and neglect to a policy of reconciliation and normalization," Kennedy said in a statement.

"We simply cannot ignore American interests in a part of the world where we were once so heavily involved."

The report said normalization of relations with Vietnam is needed to resolve many "outstanding humanitarian and related problems resulting from the war" and to promote stability in Southeast Asia.

America should stress its need for information about U.S. military and civilian personnel still considered missing in action, the report said.

The United States should "drop its policy of hostility toward the presence of Vietnam" in the United Nations, it said.

Last year, the United States used its veto in the U.N. Security Council twice to bar the separate admission of North Vietnam and South Vietnam.

"Since then, both Vietnams have taken important steps to unify the country," the report said. "There is good reason to believe that a unified Vietnam will, in the weeks ahead, apply for admission to the United Nations." It urged against a third U.S. veto.

Cancer Treatment Beneficial

CHICAGO (AP) — Veterans Administration researchers say a new technique for destroying cancer tissue with heat has produced beneficial results in 21 patients.

The technique uses radiofrequency radiation to produce heat of up to 118 degrees in cancerous tissue, the researchers said. They said the principle is roughly similar to that used in microwave kitchen ovens.

Other researchers, using different techniques, have also reported some success in using heat to cause tumors to shrink or disappear.

The experimental technique was described in the May 17 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Harry H. LeVeen and associates at the VA hospital and Downstate Medical Center of the State University of New York in Brooklyn.

Dr. Lawrence B. Hobson, a VA medical research official, noted that the LeVeen technique is experimental and its long-term effectiveness has not been studied.

The LeVeen technique causes cancer tissue to become considerably hotter than surrounding healthy tissue, the experimenters said. Because tumors have an inadequate blood supply, cancer tissue is not cooled as quickly as normal tissue, permitting the higher heat buildup.

The 21 patients studied had a variety of cancers, including lung, head and neck, and intestinal, the researchers said.

Most were treated surgically after radiofrequency radiation and LeVeen said that by the time of the operations, the cancers either had shrunk or had disappeared.

Panel Asking JD For FBI Assassination Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee is asking the Justice Department for FBI "assassination files" that may shed more light on American attempts to assassinate Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., a committee member, said Sunday that staff members discovered the file's existence "in just the last week or 10 days."

"Atty. Gen. (Edward H.) Levi has been written, asking that those files be produced, and also asking why on earth we were not told about them," Mondale said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Committee staff members said later that they have seen an index to the files, but not the files themselves. The index reveals that the FBI knew about CIA plots against Castro, they said.

The Senate aides said the files were discovered by committee investigators probing the actions of the CIA and FBI before and after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The Warren Commission's ignorance of CIA plots to kill Castro has been cited repeatedly as a major flaw in the investigation which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin.

The Senate aides said the index also indicated that the bureau was aware of a plot involving an agent code-named AM LASH against Castro that lasted into the Johnson administration.

AM LASH was receiving an assassination device from a CIA officer on Nov. 22, 1963 — the same day that Kennedy was killed in Dallas.

The Senate intelligence committee, which spent 15 months probing U.S. intelligence agencies, recently issued a lengthy report calling for tighter congressional control over their activities.

In the latest of a series of supplemental reports, the panel said Sunday that the military spying on American civilians has been "greatly reduced" since 1971, but continues in some instances.

The Navy has done most of the spying in recent years on antiwar groups at bases in Charleston, S.C., and San Diego and Long Beach, Calif., the report said. Military agents have also continued to spy on American civilians living near bases in West Germany and Japan, it added.

The latest incident was last year when a Navy undercover agent joined a group counseling dissident sailors in Charleston, the report said.

Two Snyder Motels Make Mobil Guide

TraveLodge and the Purple Sage in Snyder have been honored for the second consecutive year with listings in the "Mobile Travel Guide." The motels received their quality rating after being inspected by an impartial, trained inspector, who is employed by a completely independent organization. The inspector's findings are reported to an editorial board of the organization, which has instituted a set of standards for listings and ratings.

Over 20,000 restaurants, hotels, motels and resorts are listed and rated on a one-to five-star basis in the seven volume "Mobil Travel Guide," which has been compared by travel experts to the famed Guide-Michelin.

Each of the seven regional editions provides valuable information on local history, sightseeing, amusements, sports, and recreation facilities, in addition to the star-rated food and lodging listings. Also included are regional road atlases and detailed maps of major cities, special auto-tour routes, and helpful advice to travelers.

The 1976 "Mobil Travel Guide" books are available at the Purple Sage and the TraveLodge, as well as at Mobil service stations, bookstores, and magazine outlets.

Brownies May Earn New Badges

Brownie Girl Scouts grow so soon into Junior Girl Scouts! To help them prepare for Junior ways, the Program Committee of the West Texas Girl Scout Council, has given the 3rd grade Brownie troops of the Council the option to earn Brownie-sized badges. There are five this first year: Be A Discoverer, Be a Ready Helper, Safety-Wise, Be a Friendmaker, and Out-Of-Doors.

The Out-of-Doors Brownie Badge has as its purpose: to learn about the out doors and camping skills the Brownie will need as a Junior Scout. It was earned first by ten Brownies at Lamesa.

According to Brownie Troop 21 of Colorado City leader Ann Gregory, the first badge they earned, Be a Discoverer, was a lot of fun, especially doing Requirement No. 4. "We grew popcorn where it was visible between clear glass and paper towels; also beans, sweet potatoes and flower seeds."

Most popular of the five Brownie Badges is Be a Ready Helper because the Scout enjoys doing things for her self and others. Brownie toops in Abilene, Big Spring, Merkel, Snyder, Sweetwater, Haskell and Roscoe have had fun playing hostess and helper.

Some troops have been working on all five badges including Troop 130 of Sweetwater, leader Mrs. Ron Mason; Troop 219 of Snyder, leader Mrs. Pearline Stewart, and Troop 12 of Abilene, leader Mrs. B.D. Click.

Girls wear their badges on the right side of their Brownie uniform beneath troop numerals. As a Junior Girl Scout they may be transferred to the badge sash.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "Any bridge player worth his salt knows that the way to play a long suit is to play a high card from the short hand first."

Jim: "It takes an expert to know when to reverse the normal correct procedure. South wins the spade lead with his king and decides to go after clubs. After all there are six probable tricks there. If he starts by leading his queen he will get a rude shock when West shows out on the second club."

Oswald: "Expert South gets that same shock but he has allowed for that and given himself an extra chance. He has led a club to dummy's king and come back to his own hand with the queen."

Jim: "He would look mighty silly if East had shown out, but that was most unlikely. Now, when West showed out he was able to lead a diamond, finesse dummy's jack and wind up with three clubs, five diamonds, one spade and his three notrump.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know when a card is considered played from dummy.

The answer is that when declarer touches the card with evident intent to play it is played. In other words he is not allowed to finger it and put it back. But if he has just touched it by accident or in an effort to reach some other card, then the card so touched is not played.

Dr. Lamb

One man in four has peptic ulcer

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing about my husband to see if you have any suggestions about his ulcer. I guess he is what you'd call ulcer prone since he's had recurrent attacks of duodenal ulcers now during the past 10 years. He is 47 and has a good job. There is a certain amount of pressure with it since it is an executive position and he has to make lots of decisions. The first time he had an ulcer he took very good care of himself and did all the things the doctor told him to do. He took his medicine regularly and the ulcer healed. He still tended to have an acid stomach but he got along rather well for several months until he had a recurrence. He must have had six or seven attacks of ulcers during the past 10 years. He has never had to be hospitalized for any of them but he is very uncomfortable.

I have read some of your comments in the paper and wonder if he should be using coffee at all. He hasn't given up cigarette smoking either and I have tried to tell him that it was important. During his attacks he never uses any alcohol but in between times he has his usual cocktail every evening and sometimes quite a few at parties.

He complains of pain in the pit of his stomach when he has the ulcer and the pain is relieved by eating something. He usually keeps some antacid tablets next to the bed in case he wakes up at night with a feeling of burning in the stomach. Any recommendations you have would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Peptic ulcers are quite common in our stressful society. About one out of four men eventually have one, and it's true that they do tend to recur. Your husband's story is fairly typical. One doesn't have to be an executive to have an ulcer, but it seems to help. Manual laborers and farmers are less likely to have them.

The exact mechanism of why a person has an ulcer isn't known, but they are associated with an increased production of acid digestive juice by the stomach. Coffee, tea, colas and such beverages do stimulate the stomach to produce more acid digestive juice. Alcohol has the same effect, perhaps even worse. Cigarette smoking seems to decrease the ability of the digestive juices in the small intestine to neutralize the acid digestive juice from the stomach.

Most of these ulcers are in the duodenum, the first part of the small intestine just outside the stomach itself. For a more complete description of what ulcers are and where they are located and what to do about them you can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 1-5, Ulcers – Duodenal, Stomach. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Stress does seem to be a major factor in ulcers. Perhaps that's why men have more ulcers than women now. There was a time when we were a less industralized society that women had more ulcers than men.

Most individuals who are successfully treated for a peptic ulcer learn to decrease their psychic stress. That doesn't always mean that the stress is related to the job either. It can be associated with family situations and the stress may be at home.

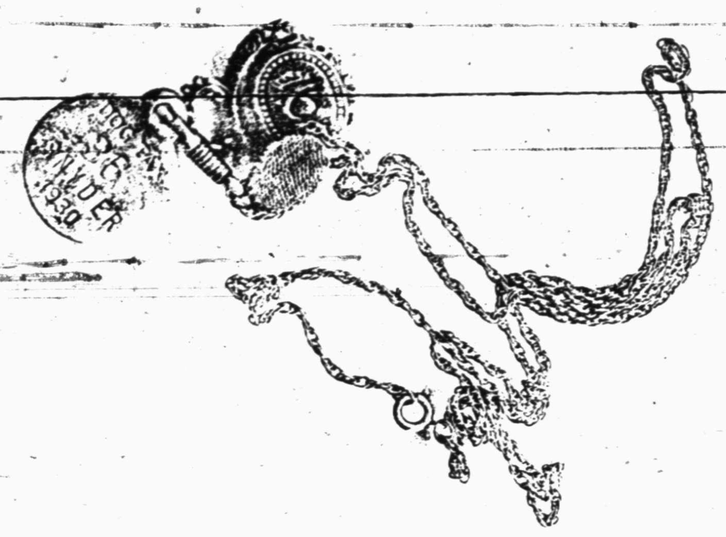
1930 Dog Tax Tag Is Unearthed Here



DOG TAX TAG—S.A. Taylor Jr., who recently moved from Snyder to Lubbock, has dug up two dog tax tags that were issued by the City of Snyder in 1930. A city ordinance passed in 1929 states that any dog seen on the streets of Snyder without a dog tax tag would be killed. Taylor is the son of former County Judge Sterling Taylor.

During this bi-centennial year of 1976, people have become interested in relics of the past.

Thus it was no surprise that S.A. Taylor, Jr., who recently moved to Lubbock, became interested when he tilled up two old dog tax tags in the backyard of "the old family home" at 2208 Twenty-seventh Street. His parents, former County Judge Sterling Taylor and his wife, moved into the house in 1927.

Anyway, Taylor dug up two old dog tax coins and got to wondering if the City of Snyder required dog tags in 1930. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Ted McMillan, checked with officials at city hall and discovered the City of Snyder passed a dog ordinance in 1929. It stated that any dog seen on the streets of Snyder without a dog tax tag would be killed.

The tag Taylor dug up reads: "Dog Tax, 36, Snyder, 1930."

Taylor owns a barber shop located next door to Louise's Coffee Shop just off the downtown square, but is in the process of moving it to Lubbock.

Taylor dug up two of the dog tax tags, and he also found several old coins.

Oakland's Speed Stops Rangers

OAKLAND (AP) — Speed has replaced power as a means of victory for the Oakland A's.

Pinchrunner Larry Lintz scored the winning run on a wild pitch in the seventh inninng as the A's edged the Texas Rangers 3-2 at Oakland Coliseum Sunday. The victory prevented the Rangers from sweeping the series after they won 6-4 in 12 innings Saturday and 4-3 in 10 on Friday.

"We have won at least half our games with speed this season," Manager Chuck Tanner of the A's said."It gives the other pitcher something else to worry about."

Steve Barr, the loser in Sunday's game would certainly agree with Tanner.

With two outs in the seventh inning, Phil Garner singled, and Lintz ran for him. Barr attempted to pick Lintz off first, but threw the ball wild and Lintz went to third base. He scored on a wild pitch.

Earlier in the game Bill North tripled and scored on a balk by Barr which also could have been the result of North's threat to steal.

Manager Frank Lucchesi of the Rangers admitted that base-running can be a factor in winning baseball games.

"Maybe it's psychological, but it does keep the pitcher from concentrating on the batter. The A's may have more speed than any team in the American League."

Lucchesi found a bright spot in the weekend series, however. "Any time you beat Oakland two out of three in their park, you have to be happy."

Vida Blue survived a shaky start Sunday to pick up his third victory of the year. He gave up four hits in the first, including a two-run triple by Jeff Burroughs.

The A's tied the score with two runs in the fourth. North tripled and scored on the balk, then Joe Rudi singled and eventually scored on a single by Billy Williams.

The A's, now 15-15 for the season, open an eight-game road trip at Minnesota tonight. Mike Norris, 0-1 will pitch for Oakland against Joe Decker, 2-3, of the Twins.

Elocutionist Wins Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eugene Cashman deals in futures for a living and in his avocation — horse racing — his future is now.

Elocutionist, purchased by Cashman as a yearling two years ago, came off the fastest pace in Preakness history Saturday and won the 101st running of the 13-16 mile classic by 3½ lengths as heavy favorites Bold Forbes and Honest Pleasure faded in the Pimlico stretch.

"There's a great correlation between buying a yearling and making a commodity deal," Cashman said Sunday, following a virtually sleepless night. "A lot of research and study is involved. You just don't buy something and hope it turns out all right."

The 54-year-old Cashman, one of world's leading commodity dealers in soybeans at the Board of Trade in his native Chicago, has been involved in racing since the early 1960s.

Two years ago, he made the rounds of the various yearling sales and purchased some 60 horses for about $1 million.

A difference of opinion between Cashman and his trainer, Paul Adwell, at the Fasig-Tipton Co. of Kentucky summer yearling sale, was settled by an unscientific toss of a coin.

But since the flip decided whether Cashman purchased Elocutionist or Bold Forbes, the Kentucky Derby winner, it didn't violate Cashman's theory on buying yearlings. He was interested in both horses, and Adwell said either would be a good buy.

Although Elocutionist, who was purchased for $15,000, had won eight of 11 previous career starts and never had finished out of the money, he was allowed to go off as a 10-1 shot in the Preakness.

Most of the 62,256 fans and the racing experts had expected Bold Forbes and Honest Pleasure, the beaten Kentucky Derby favorite, to dominate the six-horse field with a wire-to-wire duel as they did in Kentucky.

But this time, with both Honest Pleasure and Cojak giving chase, Bold Forbes sizzled through the first three-quarters of a mile in 1:09, one-fifth of a second faster than the track record for that distance, and the pace took its toll.

Although they lost, the Bobcats outhit the Tigers, 10-7. Lisa Thompson socked a triple and two singles for the Tigers while Debbie Orona, Audra Blackard, Connie Davis and Nancy Hernandez each hit one single.

Tornadoes Trip Tigers; Playoff Begins Tuesday

The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes spoiled the Snyder Tigers' chance to win the District 3-AAA baseball crown with a 6-3 victory here Saturday afternoon.

As a consequence, the District race ended in a three-way tie between Snyder, Lamesa and Brownfield. The playoff will be this week. Snyder, which lost two coin flips after the game, will tangle with the Tornadoes again at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Lamesa. If they win, then they host Brownfieldat 5 p.m. Friday.

If Lamesa wins, they visit Brownfield at 5 p.m. Friday. Brownfield won the first coin flip and drew a bye in the playoffs.

Valente Garza twirled a 6-hitter at the Tigers Saturday, and Snyder Coach Speedy Moffett is expecting the left hander to start again Tuesday.

Bobby Beard started on the mound for the Tigers, but gave way in relief to Gary Greenlee in the 5th inning.

Lamesa scored one run in the 2nd frame, another one in the 4th, three in the 5th and one in the 6th. Snyder got two tallies in the 3rd and one in the 6th inning.

Larry Arrendondo doubled for the Tornadoes in the second and scored on two successive errors.

For Snyder in the 3rd, Randy Gressett walked and Mitch Mackey, designated hitter, singled. A throwing error let Gressett in, and Kelly Ragland sacrificed Mackey in with the second run of the inning.

Lamesa regained the lead with three tallies in the 5th. Their three runs resulted from a walk to Ray Delgado, a single by Mark Hughes, an error and another single, this time by pinch hitter Amando Morales.

Tony Lewis reached first for the Tigers in the 6th on a fielder's choice. He advanced to second when Alvin Ollison walked, and he scored on a single by Kyle Sikes.

Lamesa got its last run on back-to-back singles by Josh Robinson and Valente Garza combined with a fielder's choice.

Snyder left six men stranded on base. Bobby Doe tripled after two were out in the 5th inning, but his teammates couldn't drive him in.

"We've been making too many bad plays," said Coach Moffett. He said the Tigers made a lot of mental mistakes.

"We should have been loose, but we tightened up in our last two games," the veteran mentor declared. "If we play ball we can win it," he concluded.

Moffett said right hander Ricky Beard would probably draw the pitching assignment tomorrow.

"Super Mex" Wins In His Home State

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The madcap Mex is back, a winner again, hugging cops and caddies and scorekeepers and drawing suspicious glances from a puzzled swan.

"You don't know how happy I am," bubbled Lee Trevino. "I'm still in shock. I thought I'd lost the tournament. I really did."

It was classic Trevino.

Squandering a three-shot lead, Super Mex rode a "crazy kick" to a clutch birdie in a head-to-head duel with Mike Morley and won the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation by a single stroke.

Trevino closed with a 3-over-par 73 on the Trinity River course he contends is "the toughest in the world when the wind is blowing."

It blew a little Sunday.

His 72-hole card of 68-64-68-73—273 was seven under par and netted him $40,000. More importantly, it broke a 14-month victory drought and provided him a cherished goal: victory in his beloved Texas.

Moments after Morley, a non-winner, put the finishing strokes to a 69 for 274, Trevino tapped in a short par putt to secure his first title ever in his home state.

He hugged his caddy. He hugged a Mexican cop. He headed for a scorekeeper, then hugged his silver trophy.

He thanked anyone vaguely connected with golf, overlooking only a swan watching warily from Crampton's Lake, so named for Bruce Crampton's assorted misfortunes therein.

Then, finally, grinning from ear to ear, he exclaimed: "I want to to thank everybody. To hell with it."

Trevino opened the sun-splashed final round 10 under par, three shots ahead of Miller Barber, five ahead of Morley and Don January, six ahead of Tom Weiskopf and seven in front of Marty Fleckman.

All but Morley shot themselves out of contention while Trevino, with the first of two double bogeys, was floundering to a 3-over-par 38 on the front nine. Morley fired a 34. The race was on.

"I thought I had a chance," Morley said later.

Incredibly, Trevino took a second double bogey, at the par 4 12th hole, and suddenly Morley had a one-stroke lead.

"To tell you the truth, I was kind of relieved," Lee admitted. "The pressure had now reverted to Mike ... I'm not the greatest golfer in the world when I'm way ahead. I play too conservatively."

An errant 3-iron to the par 3 13th cost Morley a bogey and, moving into range of the national television cameras, it was simply Trevino vs. Morley at six under.

The tell-tale shot came at the 16th, a picturesque par 3 which Homer Blancas birdied six years ago to beat Trevino in a similar duel.

"The ball hit on the fringe, took a crazy-looking kick dead left. It stopped about 10 feet from the cup and I made it for a birdie," sighed Trevino.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN — How do you decide where you're going to take your business? Most consumers never really think about the qualities they want from the merchants they patronize.

But our Consumer Protection Division attorneys and other consumer experts say there are many variables that can make one store a better place to shop for certain individuals than another might be. That's because people want and need different things when they shop, and the right place for one person might be the wrong place for another.

The best way to decide is to comparison shop when you have enough time to do so. That means reading newspaper ads and going around to several stores. If you are shopping for a major item which you will replace only a few times, such as a washer or refrigerator, you should always check at several different places for the best product, service, and guarantee for the lowest price.

If you're shopping for such items as groceries, which must be purchased constantly, you might comparison shop at different places, then select one where you feel you get the best deal overall. But you should continue to check ads and should shop around occasionally to make sure that the store continues to be the best place for you to trade.

Of course, when you need to buy a major item in a hurry, or when you are unable to shop around, it's best to trade with reliable merchants where you know you will get satisfaction.

There are other times when reliability is equally important, if not more so, than price. Trading with merchants with good reputations for reliability, who stand behind their products or services, is a good idea if you are not knowledgeable about what you are buying. For example, few consumers know how to make valid comparisons between television sets so it's important to deal with a merchant who won't sell you a set that has proved troublesome.

There are several ways to check a merchant's reliability. Our attorneys suggest that you contact the Better Business Bureau in your community to determine whether a business has had justifiable complaints from dissatisfied customers. You should also find out how long the firm has been in business, and ask friends or relatives what they know about its reputation. What sort of guarantees and return policies does the business have? If return or exchange of unsatisfactory products is allowed, it's usually a good sign the merchant has confidence in his merchandise.

The services offered by a business can also affect the prices of its products. More special services usually mean higher prices, but many consumers find they are worth the extra cost. Charge accounts and credit, free parking, gift wrapping, repair service, free delivery, installation, staff advisors such as interior decorators — all of these can add to the prices a store must charge to make a reasonable profit. Only the individual consumer knows if these services are important enough to him to justify generally higher prices.

If you have a consumer complaint, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Prison Site Of Early Squash Games

NEW YORK (AP) — London's Fleet Street Prison was the site of the earliest games of squash racquets, according to Roland Oddy, squash director of the Manhattan Squash Club.

In the early 1880s, debtors in prison relieved their boredom by bouncing balls off the walls of prison corridors and cells with a primitive wooden paddle.

URW Talks To Resume Today

CLEVELAND (AP) — With their strike against the Big Four tiremakers nearly four weeks old and no settlement in sight, the United Rubber Workers are faced with a dwindling strike fund.

URW President Peter Bommarito said strike benefits for the 60,000 strikers at Firestone, Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal are being cut from $35 to $25 effective this week and nearly $1 million is being transferred from the union's general fund to the strike fund.

Talks with representatives of the Big Four resume today after a weekend recess.

Union leaders decided against striking a fifth firm, General Tire & Rubber Co., after contracts with that company expired Saturday.

When extended negotiations with General representatives failed to produce agreement by the midnight deadline, union leaders huddled for about an hour, then came up with an announcement that the 2,400 General Tire workers would stay on the job at plants in Akron and in Waco, Tex., under terms of the old contract while talks continued.

They said the extension could be terminated on five days' notice by either side.

A URW representative said General Tire came up with a new offer about two hours before the deadline. However, spokesmen said both sides had agreed to a news blackout on the talks and neither would discuss details.

Bommarito said the fund transfer will leave about $3 million in the general fund to cover operating expenses.

The union has said it is concentrating on the Firestone talks in Cleveland to set a pattern for the industry.

4 Firemen Killed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four firemen responding to a four-alarm blaze at a restaurant were killed Sunday when they fell through a floor and were trapped in the rubble.

Fire Lt. Charles Schretzman said the fire erupted in the basement of the Barson Overbrook Restaurant and Delicatessen shortly after noon and was declared under control about two hours later.

About 20 employes and customers were evacuated without incident.

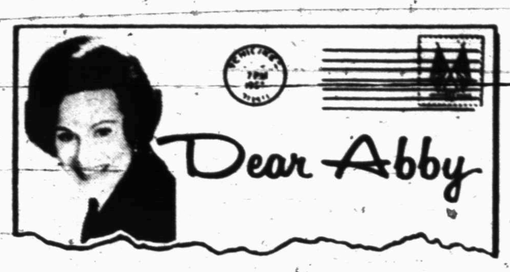
Fire officials said the victims were among the first group of firemen to arrive at the scene. They had walked about 20 feet inside the restaurant when the floor gave way. Rescue and recovery crews were driven back when the roof of the building began to collapse.

A construction crane was brought in to remove portions of the roof as Mayor Frank Rizzo and his brother, Fire Commissioner Joseph Rizzo, directed operations.

The dead were identified as Richard Innacone, 29, David Steward, 52, Bernard McSloy, 32, and Aloysius Welsh, 49.

Cause of the blaze was under investigation, but officials said they believed it started in basement refrigeration units. Damage estimates were not available.

It was the first time city firemen were killed on duty since Aug. 17, 1975, when eight firemen died in a blaze at the Gulf Oil Co. refinery in south Philadelphia.



Don't Blame All Kids For Faults of Few

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N. Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: I have to comment on your recent reply to a letter complaining about the "no children" request on wedding invitations.

The sad part is that the great majority of today's children are undisciplined, ill-bred, ill-mannered, uncivilized, noisy, rude, destructive, dirty little horrors whom even their parents don't want anything to do with. When they become teenagers, they add dirty clothes and filthy living habits to their repertoire. If their own parents can't stand them, why should others have to put up with them?

That's what two decades of liberal, modern upbringing and education have accomplished!

It is not entirely the fault of the young people; the parents will have to share the blame for allowing them to grow up like animals and permitting the kind of educational system we now have.

HERBERT E. GORDON: S. EASTON, MASS.

DEAR MR. GORDON: The dictionary defines a "jeremiad" as "a lamentation, a lugubrious complaint." You've delivered a beaut. You conspicuously ignore some admirable qualities and praiseworthy contributions of today's young people while stigmatizing all of them for the acknowledged faults of a few. And I object!

DEAR ABBY: After 14 years of marriage, Howard asked for a divorce. I had a feeling that he had been fooling around, but then nobody's perfect.

He said he fell in love with a woman he had met at work. She is 44 and divorced. Howard is 38.

I told Howard I wanted to meet the woman, and if I thought she was good enough for him, I'd sign the papers.

Well, I met her and she was a mess, so I told Howard that I wasn't going to sign any papers so he could marry THAT. I didn't forbid him from seeing her; I just let the affair burn itself out. Sure enough, in three months it was dead as a doornail.

Now Howard is thanking me for being so sensible. Maybe other women with the same problem can use my solution.

SMART MAMA

DEAR SMART: What will cure some patients will kill others. All generalizations are worthless, including this one.

DEAR ABBY: May I second your excellent recommendation to NERVOUS WRECK, whose bull-headed husband refused marriage counseling, was walking all over her and was teaching her son to do the same.

We had a similar situation at our house. I finally sought counseling alone because my husband not only refused to go with me but also tried to talk me out of it.

Several sessions with a psychiatrist relieved my depression, and at the doctor's suggestion I signed up for a course in assertiveness at a nearby mental health clinic.

Well, Abby, our marriage is on an entirely different footing now. In counseling I was treated as a rational, sensitive person whose feelings are important, and I came to view myself that way.

Because I changed, my family's reactions toward me did, too. They found that I would firmly reject disrespectful attitudes and actions and that I demanded my rights in any situation.

My husband now seems like a different man, and we are both 100 per cent happier. As for me, I'm...

NO LONGER A WRECK

DEAR NO LONGER: Thank you for supporting my constant recommendation to "get counseling." To some it may sound like a broken record. To others, a cop-out. But the mental health clinics across the nation continue to provide life-saving support for troubled people at a price everyone can afford to pay. If your marriage is in trouble and your mate refuses counseling—go alone!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Woman To Begin Career As Cop

DALLAS (AP) — Three days before her police officer husband died of cancer last January, Sandra Maxey, 30, sat next to him in his hospital room and told him she had been accepted as a police recruit.

"I knew you could do it," he told her. The next day he went into a coma and died 48 hours later.

On June 3, Mrs. Maxey, mother of two, will graduate from the 17-week cadet training course and will begin her career in law enforcement.

Mrs. Maxey said she first applied to the Dallas Police Department in 1972, about a year after her husband, Robert, joined the police force. But she withdrew the application after she became pregnant with her second son.

"It was something I had always wanted to do and, after my husband's death, the work helped keep me going," she said.

Abducted Girl Found Safe In New Orleans

By KEVIN McKEAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 4-year-old Indian girl abducted by a man she knew only as "Joe" two weeks ago in Dallas was to be reunited with her mother today.

Police predicted a few court hassles, however, before the mother, Linda Moore, could return to their Dallas home with her daughter Nicole.

Nicole was last seen by playmates being forced into a station wagon near her apartment complex May 3. She turned up Sunday dazed but apparently none the worse for wear near a downtown medical center.

"That's her! That's her!" an ecstatic Miss Moore exclaimed, hugging and kissing the picture shown her by police shortly after she flew in early today.

But the mother spent the night without seeing Nicole, who remained legally in the custody of the welfare deparment. The child was kept at an undisclosed location pending a juvenile court hearing today.

Nicole, wearing boy's clothes and with her formerly long brown hair shorn by her abductor, was found by puzzled officers who thought at first she was a boy.

A note on a paper napkin was pinned to her clothes. It advised, "My name is Nicole Moore. I am from Dallas. For Jesus, help me get home."

A quick check with Dallas police revealed the kidnaping to New Orleans officers.

"He didn't hurt me," a yawning Nicole said hours later of the man she said lured her away with promises of a puppy, a cat and a swim. The coroner's office said she was in good condition.

Police said they do not know how the man and bright-eyed child eluded an FBI and Texas dragnet to travel 500 miles to this port city.

Nicole remembered riding at times in a car, and at other times in a truck. She said she also was sometimes left with a woman whose name she didn't know.

She said Joe was neither a family member nor a friend.

"He said he take me away cause I was a pretty girl," Nicole said.

But she said she was scared of Joe and several times hit him when he refused to take her home.

Police said a court order would have to be obtained in Dallas and delivered to New Orleans assigning custody to Miss Moore.

An intensive search was mounted after the girl disappeared and volunteers searched dense areas and river bottoms fearing she had been killed. An anonymous donor and the child's school, the Montessori Creative Learning Center, raised a $1,500 reward.

Miss Moore, a beautician, had sobbed uncontrollably and hugged friends, neighbors and family members before flying to New Orleans.

"I went to church today and prayed, 'Please help me, God. I'm so desperate,'" she said.

Family members said the mother had a premonition the girl might be found Sunday.

"We believe in miracles," one explained.

Showers Fall In Texas

By The Associated Press

Warm air flowed damply from Mexico into Texas today, spreading occasional showers into the Rio Grande Valley. A few showers also fell farther north in West Texas.

Skies were mostly clear in other parts of the state and temperatures were generally mild to unusually warm.

Most of the forenoon showers centered around Eagle Pass, Cotulla and Laredo, also extending across the border into Mexico. Another patch of moisture dotted the extreme west part of the state from close to Marfa toward Sanderson, and there were occasional showers in the area from Seymour and Mineral Wells to near Fort Worth.

Clouds dwindled elsewhere as remnants of a weak cool front broke up after pushing across the state Sunday into South Texas.

Warming weather was promised in most areas along with showers here and there in West and South Texas and clear skies elsewhere.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 74 degrees at Del Rio on the Mexican border down to 42 at Amarillo and Dalhart in the Panhandle. Sunday's top marks reached as high as 90 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Grand Jury May Probe Breakout

DALLAS (AP) — That raid on the Piedras Negras, Mexico, jail by two Americans to free drug prisoners may come under scrutiny by a federal grand jury in San Antonio, according to a lawyer involved in the case.

One of those charged last week by in connection with the raid was William Hill. His lawyer, Mike Aranson, said:

"We were discussing his case because he had been summoned to appear before a federal grand jury in San Antonio next week when the (U.S. Customs) agents came into my office and arrested Hill.".

Federal officials in San Antonio would not comment on the possible grand jury investigation.

Hill, 32, was charged with violations of the Munitions Control Act for exporting guns into a foreign country without proper authorization. He was released on a $1,000 bond.

Hill and former Marine sergeant Don Fielden have said they were the two armed men who entered the Piedras Negras jail just across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, Tex., March 12 and freed the American prisoners.

Fielden, 31, an unemployed Dallas truckdriver, was charged last week with violating neutrality laws by taking unregistered weapons into Mexico. He posted a $5,000 bond.

Fielden said the raid was financed by Dr. Sterling Davis, a Dallas psychologist whose son was in the prison on Mexican charges of possessing over 160 pounds of marijuana.

The Mexican government asked on Friday that the 14 prisoners released in the raid be returned to complete their sentences.

With the exception of Sterling Davis Jr., all of the escapees were released when they returned to this country because there were no charges against them here. Davis is now in the El Reno, Okla., federal penitentiary for parole violation.

The extradition request does not cover Fielden and Hill because they have not been convicted of a crime in Mexico. Mexican officials say, however, arrest warrants for the two have been issued in that country.

A U.S. State Department spokesman has confirmed the extradition request and said the request was passed to the U.S. Justice Department.

In Dallas last week, Mexican Asst. Atty. Gen. Salvador Del Toro said the released prisoners "are not heroes; they are criminals, nothing else. And we hope the U.S. government sees fit to send them back to serve their just terms."

TV Emmy Show Will Emphasize Entertainment

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences hopes less will mean more at its 28th annual Emmy Awards tonight.

Academy officials, embarrassed by a steady decline in the show's TV audience over the past five years, have streamlined the program and are guessing that by presenting fewer awards than in years past they will attract more viewers.

The emphasis instead will be on entertainment at the Emmy presentations, which will be nationally televised from the Shubert Theater beginning at 9 p.m. EDT on ABC-TV.

Mary Tyler Moore and John Denver are the hosts and entertainment will be provided by George Burns, Lola Falana, John Sebastian, Marvin Hamlisch and 24 dancers.

Actually, the academy is handing out more awards than ever this year but tonight's telecast covers only those for the top nighttime and sports programs and individual writing, directing and acting honors.

Awards for daytime and craft categories were presented in separate ceremonies last week. No date has been set for news and documentary awards — indeed, they may not be handed out at all because of a continuing controversy over the categorizing and judging procedures.

Much interest will be focused tonight on "Rich Man, Poor Man," the ABC mini-series which garnered a record 23 nominations. Nine of its actors are up for Emmys and the show itself is nominated for best limited series, competing against "Upstairs, Downstairs," "The Law," "The Adams Chronicles" and "Jennie: Lady Randolph Churchill."

In the competition for best actress in a comedy series, Mary Tyler Moore finds herself competing against two actresses who used to be supporting players in her cast, Valerie Harper of "Rhoda" and Cloris Leachman of "Phyllis." Also nominated are Beatrice Arthur of "Maude" and Academy Award winner Lee Grant of the short-lived "Fay."

Among the prominent nonnominees this year are three former Emmy winners — Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapelton of "All in the Family" and Robert Blake of "Baretta." A foul-up in the mail prevented them — and a number of other well-known actors — from being entered on the Academy's preliminary nominating ballot.

Academy officials said they encounter this problem with a few people every year but admitted they suffered a public relations disaster because so many big names were involved this time. They plan to explain the mishap during the show tonight.

Also on tap is a tribute to the late Rod Serling, featuring clips from some of the many television dramas he wrote.

NEIGHBOR OFFERS CONSOLATION—Sherri Bullard, as "Neighbor Woman," consoles Sarah Coleman, "Mother of the Groom," in a scene from the Snyder High School state championship one-act play, "Blood Wedding." The play will be presented for the hometown audience tonight on the SHS stage. Curtain time is 8:45 p.m.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

John Travolta is "Vinnie Barbarino," the leader of the gang on the ABC series, "Welcome Back Kotter." He plays an incorrigible "sweat hog" in the New York City classroom of Gabe Kaplan. It's not a hard part for John to play, since he was something of a cut-up himself during his school day in suburban New Jersey. But that's where the similarity ends! John did not finish high school. The kind of education he was looking for wasn't to be found in books. He wanted to be a scholar of acting rather than of literature, and, at the age of 22, he is already a veteran of six years in the business.

MAURICE: Have you ever thought about changing your name?

TRAVOLTA: No. No. My father would kill me.

MAURICE: What made you decide to become an actor?

TRAVOLTA: My mother, probably. She was an actress, director, drama teacher. The flow was all there so about the age of 12, I got stabbed with it. And I wanted to do it.

MAURICE: How would you describe yourself? What are you really like?

TRAVOLTA: For the first time in my life, I'm actually thinking about who I am.

MAURICE: Do you think you might have deprived yourself of a normal teenage life?

TRAVOLTA: No, I don't think so. I've enjoyed the past 5 years tremendously. It was just fuller than any high school teenager life could have been. And for the next five years, I'm back in high school again.

MAURICE How do you react to seeing your face in magazines?

TRAVOLTA: I love to walk by and say, 'hi John.'

MAURICE: How do you think you might react to adverse publicity?

TRAVOLTA: I figure it this way. If I leave a vacuum to fill, they're going to fill it with something. So the best thing to do is to tell them something instead. And tell them the truth. if they ask for it. If you tell them enough information, I feel like there is going to be some sort of truth coming out of it. But if you don't and keep quiet and when they ask questions you don't answer them, they're going to make up stuff about you. I think that's probably what they do.

MAURICE: At the age 15, you decided to leave school. Do you remember making that decision?

TRAVOLTA: I remember it very clearly. I was dreading it. It was August and I was enjoying doing a show. I remember calling my father the opening night of the show, "Bye Bye Birdie." I said, 'Dad please, please let me out. I can't take anymore.' And I told him I'd go back to school in a year if it didn't work out. He said he'd call me back. Before the curtain went up he called me up and told me it was a deal. It was like a weight lifted from me. It was great.

MAURICE: Are there moments when you wish you had continued?

TRAVOLTA: No! If I wanted to I could go back to school. There is no big problem.

MAURICE: When you were a kid, did you go to the movies? Who were your favorite stars?

TRAVOLTA: I guess when I was really young, like 7 or 8, my favorite film was "Yankee Doodle Dandy". James Cagney was my favorite star.

MAURICE: Did the kids in New Jersey make fun of the fact that you wanted to go into the theatre?

TRAVOLTA: No. The reason why they never did is because I never did anything in school. They never knew that I was interested. It was always outside of the schools. It was in community theatre or dramatic groups, not in school. I hated the idea of doing things in school.

MAURICE: Are your friends basically actors and actresses?

TRAVOLTA: Now they are. It's pretty hard for them not to be. That's who you are around all the time.

MAURICE: In school, were you the class clown?

TRAVOLTA: I was. I was the worst. I went to a predominantly black school. I used to come into school singing, 'I'm white, and out of sight.'' Things like that. I used to make wise remarks like I do on the show.

IN ALLEGED GUN PLOT

El Salvador's Third Man Held On $3 Million Bail

NEW YORK (AP) — Bail was set at $3 million for El Salvador's military chief of staff after his arrest in an alleged plot to sell $2.55 million in Tommy guns to "underworld buyers" — at least one of them a U.S. Treasury agent.

Col. Manuel Alfonso Rodriguez, No. 3 man in the military government of the Central American republic, was arrested at a Westchester County motel late Saturday night.

In Washington, El Salvador's ambassador, Francisco Bertrand Galindo, said Sunday his government had no connection with the alleged conspiracy. But he said he would secure a lawyer for Rodriguez today.

"We think he is innocent," Galindo said. "We are not sure but we think so."

Two other men from El Salvador and three U.S. citizens were also arrested in the alleged plot and held in lieu of bail ranging from $300,000 to $1 million. A seventh man was sought, authorities said.

U.S. Atty. Robert Fiske Jr. said Rodriguez, who ranks behind the president and the defense minister of El Salvador, was among those who went to the Holiday Inn at Mt. Kisco, N.Y., Saturday night to collect a $100,000 down payment for the 10,000 submachine guns to be purchased by unidentified mobsters.

Rodriguez' role in the plot, Fiske said, was to sign a certificate seeking State Department permission to buy the guns from a Bronx exporter, falsely attesting that the guns were for export to El Salvador.

The guns were never to have left the United States, Fiske said, and Rodriguez was to get a $75,000 payoff for his part in the deal.

Fiske said the conspirators had plans to fill "larger multimillion dollar orders if the initial venture proved successful." No guns were ever actually delivered, he said.

Fiske said the $100,000 payment at the Holiday Inn followed a series of meetings beginning March 1, held at Mt. Kisco and in the Bronx.

Among those attending the various meetings was an agent for the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Fiske said.

The Americans accused in the plot were Frank G. Alvarez, 55, of Dix Hills, N.Y., Latin Amrican marketing director of an exporting firm; Robert Michaelson, 45, of Plainview, N.Y., who runs an importing firm in Great Neck, N.Y., and Irwin Tobocman, of Manhattan, a food broker.

All three were held in $300,000 bail at their Sunday arraignment.

Others arrested were Raymond Geraldo, 48, a native of El Salvador now living in Fort Lee, N.J., and Miguel D. Celis, 39, of El Salvador, said by Fiske to have been Rodriguez' emissary in the gun deal.

Bail was set at $1 million for Celis and $500,000 for Geraldo.

Authorities said they are looking for Dominick Caglianese, identified only as living on Long Island.

VISITS HERE—Navy Petty Office Third Class Todd Coy has been visiting friends and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Coy, 3501 Houston Avenue, while on a 30-day leave. CYCLAMATE BAN STAYS

Few Alternatives To Artificial Sweetners

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The government's refusal to lift its ban on the artifical sweetener cyclamate leaves the calorie-conscious consumer with few alternatives.

The only other artificial sweetener on the market, saccharin, also is under study as a potential health hazard and natural sugars such as those in corn syrup have just as many calories as the powdered, table variety.

The Food and Drug Administration banned cyclamates in 1969 after questions were raised about the possibility of a link between the synthetic sweetener and cancer. Studies since then have failed to prove or disprove the danger theory, but the FDA said last week that it did not want to take any chances and would not rescind its ban.

Cyclamates are about 30 times sweeter than sugar. Saccharin, in use for almost 100 years, is 300 times sweeter than sugar, but some people claim it leaves an unpleasant aftertaste.

A 1971 report linked saccharin to possible cancer in rats and a year later the FDA imposed limits on its use, designed to make sure no one consumed more than one gram a day. A committee organized by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences reported earlier this year that a lengthy study failed to provide conclusive evidence of danger.

The FDA is awaiting further research and no final decision on saccharin is expected before next year. Meanwhile the restrictions remain.

According to the U.S. Agriculture Department, Americans consumed about 5 million pounds of saccharin last year, down 10 per cent from 1974. That translates into 750,000 tons of sweetness.

On a per capita basis, U.S. saccharin consumption worked out to a sugar sweetness equivalent of seven pounds. In the same year, per capita sugar consumption was just about 90 pounds, down from 97 pounds in 1974.

High prices and calorie-counting encouraged Americans to search for alternatives to granulated sugar. Corn sweetener prices generally have declined recently and consumption is up — about 27 pounds per capita in 1975, compared to 18 pounds in 1974.

Nutrition experts at the Food and Drug Administration say table sugar has about 15 calories per level teaspoon, about 3½ grams.

Americans Lead World In Race Relations

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Eldridge Cleaver has been quoted as saying the American people "are several generations ahead of the rest of the world" in race relations.

Cleaver said in an article Sunday in The Sacramento Union that black people in white-ruled South Africa and Rhodesia have more freedom than blacks in dictatorial Uganda.

"Everywhere I've gone I've found that the whole sticky, problematic question of race relations is much more evolved and progressive in the United States than anywhere else," Cleaver said.
