In Brief

Fire fatality

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 7-week-old baby died and a woman was hospitalized in critical condition today after they were trapped in a closet of their burning apartment, officials said.

Fire officials said today the fire was started by a 7-year-old boy who was playing with a lighter on a sofa.

Mattie Walker, 42, was babysitting the two children when the fire broke out about 9 p.m. Thursday in the second-floor apartment. The boy, Emmitt Ward, was dead on arrival at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center.

Ms. Walker suffered smoke inhalation and was in critical condition today at John Peter Smith Hospital.

Firefighters found Ms. Walker and the baby unconscious in the closet, where they apparently had taken refuge from the fire.

Israeli withdrawal could be delayed as violence erupts

JERUSALEM (AP) — After one of the bloodiest days since the signing of the Israel-PLO accord, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has warned there could be a delay in the start of the Israeli withdrawal from the Gaza Strip.

Thirty-four Palestinians, including a 10-year-old boy and two 12-year-old boys, were injured in the violence Thursday, hospital officials said. Army radio said the military has sent reinforcements to Gaza.

Thursday's unrest came a day after the army killed guerrilla leader Imad Aqal in an ambush. Aqal, 23, was commander of Izzedine el Qassem, the military wing of the Muslim fundamentalist group Hamas that is waging a violent campaign to derail the Israel-PLO peace talks.

to kill Israeli soldiers in retaliation.

A commercial strike was underway for a second day in Gaza to mourn the death of Aqal, who topped Israel's most-wanted list for killing 11 Israeli soldiers and four Palestinians suspected of being informers.

He was regarded as a hero in Gaza, especially among youths, for his success in eluding capture for two years. He often disguised himself as a Jewish settler, wearing a skullcap and driving cars with yellow Israeli plates.

Masked activists burned tires on main roads throughout Gaza

In a leaflet, Hamas threatened this morning, while preachers announced plans for further demonstrations later in the day, Arab reporters said.

Yeltsin threatens to deprive mudslingers of free TV time

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin threatened today to withdraw free television time from political candidates who engage in mudslinging or who badmouth his proposed constitution.

Thirteen parties competing for political power began taking to Russia's airwaves this week in advance of parliamentary elections Dec. 12. Yeltsin summoned party leaders to the Kremlin today to spell out campaign rules.

It's the first taste most Russians have had of Western-style campaigning.

"I would like each candidate to advertise his own program and not sling mud at others," Yeltsin said.

Yeltsin told the candidates to stick to their platforms or "the free time will be taken back from you."

The free air time is available for all the parties, including Communists, nationalists and Yeltsin supporters. Some have shown a real knack for mudslinging, accusing rivals of being alcoholics, closet Communists or worse.

"This shouldn't happen in the new Russia," Yeltsin said.

Yeltsin's chief spokesman Vyacheslav Kostikov suggested some of the political commercials are aimed at provoking Yeltsin into banning them and making him look undemocratic.

Both of Russia's major television stations have set aside a total of 13 hours apiece of prime-time viewing for political advertising.

As for criticizing the draft constitution, that's taboo too, Yeltsin said. "I would like you not to touch it," he said.

Yeltsin's draft constitution, which also will be put to the popular vote Dec. 12, calls for a strong presidency, strong central government, and strong guarantees of private property and personal freedoms. Hard-line groups who want to slow or stall Yeltsin's reforms oppose it.

Tonight...

City square lights to be illuminated

Snyder merchants began their annual after-Thanksgiving Two-Day Sale today and will kick off the Christmas shopping season in style tonight with the annual lighting of the city square.

The ceremony, set for 6:30, will be brief and businesses have been asked to stay open until the lighting to allow people to shop.

Pat Cunnington, who is in charge of tonight's lighting, as well as the Dec. 11 "Celebrate Christmas" lighted parade, said this year merchants along the square will be decorating the tree in front of their shops.

"We've received a lot of support from the merchants," said Cunnington.

Some music is planned this evening. It will be live or recorded, primarily depending upon the weather.

"We realize it will be cold, but we hope a lot of people will come out for the lighting," Cunnington said.

Businesses, organizations, churches and other groups are also reminded that they have less than a week to enter a float in this year's lighted parade. The deadline to enter is Wednesday, Dec. 1.

It is not necessary to have a float ready by the deadline, but entry forms must be complete.

Forms are available at the chamber of commerce, 2302 Ave. R.

As yet, only a handful of floats have been confirmed, although Cunnington has promises for two more.

The parade will be held around the square on Dec. 11.

First place traveling plaques will be awarded for best theme, best use of lights and most unique float in the parade. All float entries must have lights.

Freezing temperatures make for treacherous Thanksgiving

By The Associated Press

Snowstorms that paralyzed sections of the country turned Thanksgiving travel into anything but a holiday, and some would-be feasters had to wait a day for their turkey dinners.

Treacherous weather claimed at least 14 lives Thursday. American Airlines' rebound from a crippling strike was hampered by storms in northern Texas that canceled flights at its main hub at Dallas-Fort Worth.

Snow and freezing temperatures were forecast again today as travelers continued their journeys and others made their way to shopping malls for the unofficial start of the Christmas shopping season.

Turkey dinner with the family was postponed for many in the Upper Midwest who were stopped in their tracks by more than a foot of snow.

In Bismarck, N.D., the Salvation Army put off serving its annual feast and Meals on Wheels program also postponed deliveries after a record 23.5 inches of snow accumulated.

Robin Stanton, a clerk at the Comfort Inn, said the motel had about 30 stranded travelers from as far away as Winnipeg — in Manitoba, Canada — and Denver.

Kameran Ali of the nearby Perkins restaurant said stranded travelers were "pretty down" about having to eat Thanksgiving dinner on the road.

"They seem like, 'Why couldn't it come a week later?'" Ali said.

A mixture of snow and rain made traveling treacherous on many Oklahoma roads and at least five people were killed in traffic accidents.

Slick roads were blamed for two accidents in Wisconsin that killed three people. Two Minnesota traffic deaths also were blamed on icy roads.

In New York City, the cold didn't stop thousands of people from lining Broadway for the 67th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

As she does every year, Ruth Williams Walker invited everyone — no questions asked — to turkey dinner at her modest home in Uniontown, Pa., an economically depressed coal town.

That meant she and her two daughters served up 23 turkeys, 30 pounds of sweet potatoes, huge [illegible] cheese, potato salad and greens, gallons of cranberry sauce, 15 pies and 96 lemon tarts.

Had Churchill been warned of Japanese bomb attack?

LONDON (AP) — Three days before Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, British intelligence intercepted a "Most Secret" message from Japan that in retrospect seems to hint at imminent hostilities.

The message was among a few dozen documents released Thursday, the first of Winston Churchill's wartime intelligence files from 1941 and 1942 to become public. The rest of the 1,273 files go on view today.

Public records officials said the files leave open the question of whether Churchill knew Japan was going to attack the main U.S. base in Hawaii.

Two authors this year revived speculation that Britain's World War II leader knew the attack was coming and kept quiet in order to pitch America into the war.

The secret files of British intelligence are being opened under Prime Minister John Major's policy of lessening official secrecy. Historians hope they will shed new light on the war.

One document showed that Churchill knew of mass deaths in Nazi concentration camps in 1942. Jewish groups have long claimed that Britain knew more than it said about the death camps operated by the Nazis during the war.

None of the documents referred directly to Japan's carrier-borne aircraft attack on Pearl Harbor in the early hours of Dec. 7, 1941. About 2,400 Americans died in the attack. Nineteen ships and 120 aircraft were lost.

But one may have been hinted at a step toward war. The message, dated Dec. 4, 1941, and marked "Most Secret," was an order from the Japanese foreign minister to the ambassador in Washington to burn secret documents and codes.

"None of the intercepts obviously indicate that British sources were aware in advance of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, although it was clear that Japan was about to enter the war," the Public Records Office said in a statement.

But it added, "Historians making a detailed examination of all the relevant material might draw a different conclusion."

In a recent book, "Betrayal at Pearl Harbor," authors James Rusbridger and Eric Nave claimed that Britain had cracked vital Japanese codes and was able to intercept naval signals which alerted them to an imminent attack on Pearl Harbor.

Nave, who died in July, was an Australian cryptanalyst who broke important Japanese codes before and during the war.

The report on German police activity dated Sept. 26, 1942, included a breakdown of deaths in the Nazi camps for August.

"Report on deaths in German prison camps during August reveal the following figures," the report stated.

"Niederhagen 21; Auschwitz 6,829 men, 1,525 women; Flossenburg 88; Buchenwald 74."

The report referred to a request for 1,000 Auschwitz prisoners for railroad work, and said they couldn't be sent because of a "ban" — apparently a quarantine — on the camp.

"It appears that although typhus is still rife at Auschwitz, new arrivals continue to come in," added the report, which Churchill read.

Alfred Nobel endowed prizes in 1896 for outstanding achievemnns in physics, chemistry, medicine and physiology.

Astro-Graph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Saturday, Nov. 27, 1993

Something you've always treated as a hobby could be put on a paying basis in the year ahead. However, it may require someone with marketing expertise to get it out to the public.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today if you have to perform some distasteful assignments, make every effort to see they are done properly. If not, they will have to be reworked and could be even more distasteful. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There could be a good reason for it today if companions resist your methods and procedures for doing things. Before getting miffed, see why they're opposed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your probabilities for achieving your objectives today look very good. The problem is you might go after something you think you want, only to discover you don't once you've attained it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be intimidated today by rank or trappings of power. Just because someone has a title, it doesn't make this person automatically smarter than you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things should work out rather well for you today, but they might not be optimum or exactly as you desire. Be grateful for anything that puts you on the plus side of the ledger.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today is a day of give-and-take. If you want concessions from others, you must be prepared to make compromises and concessions yourself. Nothing is apt to move until you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friction with coworkers is a possibility today if the duties and responsibilities aren't equally distributed. Each should see how much he/she can do, not how little.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A friend won't appreciate it today if you make light of his/her problem. This matter is extremely serious as far as your pal is concerned, so treat it with understanding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do the best you can today, but don't expect things from yourself you know you can't deliver. If your expectations are unrealistic, it will dilute your effectiveness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to be an effective salesperson today, your presentation must be sincere. You're not likely to have any luck selling things or ideas in which you don't believe.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If something should be readjusted in an a business arrangement you recently made, don't let too much time elapse before correcting it. The calendar isn't your ally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be consistent in your methods and procedures today if you hope to achieve your objectives. Doing things in fits and starts may look impressive but will prove to be unproductive.

Dear Abby

Sister Still Regrets Not Going With Brother Down the Aisle

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is the first time I have ever written to you, but I felt I had to share my experience for "Confirmed Bachelor," who wrote saying that he was gay and that at the time of his sister's wedding, he was not invited to any other family gatherings because others disapproved of his "lifestyle."

When I was 18, I was asked to be a bridesmaid at my brother's wedding. At the time, I couldn't afford to buy the required dress, so I declined.

My brother and I have grown even closer over the years. It is now 20 years later, and I realize I made a terrible mistake by not being in his wedding, as it must have hurt him. I can't change the past, but I can tell "Confirmed Bachelor" that his sister must love him dearly to ask him to "give her away" since their father is deceased.

He should consider it an honor to have been asked, and he should go to the wedding and give his sister away out of his love and respect for her. I guarantee he won't be sorry — and he won't be like me, looking back and wishing he had...

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: I recently heard again from "Confirmed Bachelor." He said he decided to go to his sister's wedding and accept the honor of giving the bride away since their father was deceased.

He said he was cordially accepted by all in the wedding party with the exception of the groom — but in the end, his new brother-in-law thawed out, and a good time was had by all.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single mother of two children. I have a full-time job that is very uncertain. There have been rumors that my place of employment may go out of business. Many employees have been laid off. I also deliver newspapers, beginning at 3 a.m., seven days a week, rain, snow and holidays.

Newspaper carriers have to provide their own transportation and pay for their own supplies. If a customer fails to pay for his or her newspaper, the carrier has to pay for it.

Most carriers of morning papers are hard-working, conscientious workers, delivering about 250 newspapers in the wee hours of the morning, in order to get the paper to subscribers between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m.

Abby, restaurant servers, hairdressers, luggage carriers — even doormen — receive tips from their customers, but very few newspaper carriers ever get tipped.

Perhaps if you run this, it will be a gentle reminder to those who otherwise would never give it a thought. Thank you.

SINGLE WORKING MOM

DEAR WORKING MOM: A "reminder" can't hurt — but how about enclosing a modest "happy holiday" card (with a return address) in your newspapers?

DEAR ABBY: I have a question nobody else seems to know the answer to, so I decided to ask you. (Or maybe one of your readers can provide the answer.)

I understand that the tomato is classified as a fruit, but it's always found in the vegetable department. Can anybody tell me why?

JONATHON IN VANCOUVER

DEAR JONATHON: Although botanists classify tomatoes as fruits and the tomato is defined as a fruit in Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, it is commonly thought of as a vegetable because it has more of an "acid" than "sweet" taste.

Dear Abby's new book, "Where Were You When President Kennedy Was Shot?" captures touching memories of shock, despair and emotion. To order, call (800) 913-ABBY, or write to Abby's Kennedy Book, Andrews and McMeel, P.O. Box 419242, Kansas City, Mo. 64141. Include $6.95, plus $2 for postage and handling. Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 75 and have an enlarged prostate. My health is good, I'm active sexually and in sports. An operation is in order but has been postponed partly because of procrastination and mostly because of fear of unfavorable results regarding sexual activity. What alternatives are there?

DEAR READER: Traditionally, men with enlarged prostate glands required surgery to open the passage leading from the bladder. As the prostate enlarges, it progressively affects the ability to void urine. Frequency, dribbling, nighttime urination, and diminished strength of the stream are the initial symptoms, usually followed by urgency and increased frequency.

Eventually, blockage of the bladder opening may occur, causing extreme discomfort, a backup of urine and kidney damage. Therefore, untreated prostatic enlargement may have serious consequences.

In the past year or two, a new drug (Proscar) has been marketed to shrink prostatic swelling, relieve symptoms and enable men to avoid surgery. Ask your urologist about this. Proscar is not appropriate for everyone.

For example, it should not be used if prostatic cancer is suspected. (This condition can be diagnosed by a blood test and special examinations.) But it certainly is a boon to many men with benign prostatic overgrowths, an inevitable result of the normal aging process.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "The Prostate Gland." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a feeling of weakness and fatigue all the time and feel that my nerves are affecting my life. I awaken at about 4 o'clock in the morning and eventually feel better as the day goes on. My doctor has prescribed Sinequan, and I don't know why I'm taking it.

DEAR READER: Weakness and fatigue often reflect serious undiagnosed physical ailments, such as anemia, hidden infection, hypothyroidism or cancer. Therefore, it's mandatory that you undergo a full medical examination — as well as blood and X-ray tests — to discover the cause of your symptoms, which may not have an emotional basis.

Sinequan (doxepin) is an antidepressant. Your doctor evidently believes that your listlessness is caused by depression. He may be correct — if you have undergone the medical evaluation that I mentioned and it was normal.

However, I urge you to review your symptoms — again — with your physician, especially if the Sinequan has not been effective within a two-week period. You have a right to know how your doctor arrived at his conclusions and why he prescribed an anti-depressant.

Williams angry at Disney chiefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robin Williams wants to have a word with the Walt Disney Co. over what it's doing with his words.

Williams was the voice of the Genie in the 1992 animated hit "Aladdin." He contends the studio broke an agreement not to use the Genie voice to sell merchandise from the movie.

Williams said it is too late for him to sue, but he might avoid working for Disney. He has also appeared in the Disney films "Good Morning, Vietnam" and "Dead Poets Society."

"We had a deal," the actor said Wednesday on NBC's "The Today Show." "The one thing I said was I will do the voice. ... One deal is, I just don't want to sell anything — as in Burger King, as in toys, as in stuff."

Disney executives refused to comment.

Look at it differently

By Phillip Alder

When playing bridge, you think about bids and plays. But sometimes you must also enter the mind of an opponent and ask yourself what he is thinking. That is true on today's deal, taken from the latest issue of the French magazine Bridge Plus.

To test yourself, look only at the North and East hands. Against four spades, your partner leads the heart seven: queen, ace, four. Plan the defense.

As the editor, Gilles Queran, says, your three-heart bid has a lot to commend it opposite a passed partner. It doesn't hurt to mix up your pre-empts because the opponents will find it more difficult to read the cards.

You can see three potential defensive tricks. But if South has his three-spade bid, your partner must be looking at a Yarborough. Therefore, you must assume partner has led a singleton. Was your plan to return the heart jack at trick two, asking partner to switch to a diamond after (hopefully) ruffing? Then, knowing partner started with only one spade, did you exit with a minor?

Good, but not good enough against an expert. South will ask himself: "Why didn't East play a third heart at trick four, hoping West could ruff with a higher spade than dummy's 10?" The answer is obvious: East knows that West cannot ruff higher than the 10. South will win trick four in the dummy and take two spade finesses to pick up your Q-J and make his contract.

The solution? Ask for a club switch by leading the heart three at trick two. South will think you are angling for a ruff and will cash the spade ace: one down.

Trial date set

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Michael Jackson has still more reason to sing the blues — a trial date has been set for a lawsuit that accuses him of stealing songs.

Reynaud Jones and Robert Smith, both of Gary, and Clifford Rubin of California, claim that parts of three Jackson tunes were taken from songs they wrote and gave to Jackson for him to hear.

The songs involved in the lawsuit are "The Girl is Mine," "Thriller," and "We Are the World."

Trial was set for Dec. 7 in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles, said Douglas Grimes, a lawyer for the three men.

Jackson lawyer Robert H. Rotstein would not comment on the lawsuit.

Tigers host Big Spring in non-district contest

The Snyder Tigers continue their 1993-94 basketball season Saturday afternoon with a non-district meeting with Big Spring at SHS.

The Tigers are 2-1 coming into the fray, including a 44-40 loss to Class 3A's No. 4 Brownfield Cubs on Monday.

In Monday's contest, Jon Patrick and Adria Sneed tied for SHS scoring honors with 11 points each.

Big Spring, led by returning All-District 3-4A cager Wes Hughes, and starters Tyrone Banks and Torbin Lancaster, is the pick to claim the loop crown this season.

Action begins at 2 p.m. with the JV contest. The varsity tilt follows at 3:30 p.m.

The Tigers will host Seminole Tuesday, then will compete in the Dec. 2-4 Denver City Tournament.

Cowboys 'Lett' win slip away

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys had this one wrapped up. All they had to do was stand back and watch the football as it spun like a top in the sleet and snow.

But a sliding Leon Lett touched the ball and gave Miami another chance with three seconds to play. The Dolphins cashed in.

The wild ending began when Pete Stoyanovich's 41-yard field goal attempt was blocked by Jimmie Jones. Lett touched the ball after it had passed the line of scrimmage and Miami's Jeff Dellenbach recovered at the Dallas 1.

Stoyanovich nailed the winner through the snowy mist from 19 yards out, giving the Dolphins a wild 16-14 victory and the NFL one of its weirdest finishes ever.

Lett's lapse ranks among the biggest gaffes in the history of professional football, among them his own Super Bowl blunder in January when his hotdog play allowed Buffalo's Don Beebe to catch him from behind and stop a sure touchdown.

Most of the Cowboys were yelling for everybody to stay away from the ball when Lett came charging after it.

"My eyes just got as big as saucers when I saw the live ball," Dellenbach said. "I thought the game was over. That play was definitely a coaching mistake on their part.

"When I saw the ball rolling around, I thought that someone from Dallas had to touch it, so my first thought was to look around for someone to shove into it," Dellenbach said. "But then that guy came charging into the damn thing."

"I've been around a lot of football games but I've never seen one end like that before," said Dolphins coach Don Shula, who has coached 486 NFL games.

"It's a mistake. We all make them," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson, who called this the most disappointing defeat of his life. "That's part of this game. There were hundreds of mistakes made in this particular game. It's hard to feel good about anything right now."

"We don't assume anything. We go over these things," said Dallas special teams coach Joe Avezzano. "But there's no way we can go over it every day. I can't do them every day, but we do talk about them."

The frozen crowd at Texas Stadium sat in shocked amazement and the Cowboys went from celebration to confusion. As for the Dolphins, they piled on each other as if they had just won the AFC championship.

"I thought it was all over when Pete got blocked, but at least our people had the knowledge to get down there and recover it," Shula said. "You don't ever give Stoyanovich a second chance."

Lett hid from his shame afterward as teammates fetched his clothes from the dressing room and he slipped away without a word.

Michael Irvin said the Cowboys were already celebrating victory, sure that the blocked kick had snuffed the Dolphins' final drive that began at the Miami 30 with 2:16 remaining.

"I thought we had won the game. I grabbed Troy (Aikman) and we were hugging. Then they said they had the ball," Irvin said.

Dallas defensive end Jim Jeffcoat said the team was devastated.

"Every one you lose is tough, but I've never lost one like that," he said. "We're still not totally sure what happened."

Jeffcoat said the Cowboys tried to console a distraught Lett.

"I told Leon things happen and you can't let that affect you," Jeffcoat said. " 'You're going to have a great career, and things like this are just going to happen.' "

"Whatever happened, I hope he's got his head up because we lost as a team," said guard Nate Newton said. "There are no individual losers."

Rookie Kevin Williams caught a touchdown pass and returned a punt 64 yards for a touchdown as Dallas apparently had the game in hand.

But fate reached out again to Lett as Miami raised its record to 9-2 while Dallas dropped to 7-4.

"It was just a situation where you back up and leave the ball alone!" Cowboys linebacker Ken Norton said. "I couldn't believe it. Nobody could."

The game was played in the harsh conditions of a 5-degree wind-chill factor. It was the first time it had ever snowed during a Cowboys' regular-season home game in Texas Stadium.

Williams gave Dallas a 14-7 halftime lead when he skated across the frozen turf 64 yards for a touchdown on a punt return with 27 seconds left. Williams eluded four tacklers and celebrated the touchdown with a one-knee slide into the snow-covered end zone.

The Dophins received second-half field goals of 20 and 31 yards from Stoyanovich before the wacky ending.

Miami struck first when Keith Byars broke two tackles at the line and outsprinted cornerback Kevin Smith 77 yards for a first-period touchdown. Byars dove into the end zone with Smith hanging on.

McElroy's TD return paces Aggies in 18-9 win over UT

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The eighth-ranked Texas A&M Aggies taught Texas something about returns in their 100th meeting.

Freshman Leeland McElroy tied an NCAA record with his third kickoff return for a touchdown of the season, a game-breaking 100-yarder, and the Aggies rode several other big plays for an 18-9 Thanksgiving night victory.

The victory, A&M's record 23rd straight against Southwest Conference foes, means the Aggies will return to the Cotton Bowl for the third straight year as the league's champion.

"Even the fans seemed to be a little bit quiet, but that changed after Leeland's return," Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "When Leeland took off, it seemed to lift the entire stadium."

The Aggies (10-1, 7-0 SWC) beat the Longhorns (5-5-1, 5-2) for the ninth time in 10 games. A&M won its 19th consecutive home game before 74,748 freezing fans at Kyle Field, where the Aggies are 50-3-1 since 1985.

Texas kicked two early field goals to lead 6-0, but upset hopes were tarnished midway through the second quarter when McElroy became the fifth NCAA player to return three kickoffs for TDs in a season.

McElroy took the ball 2 yards deep in his end zone, broke between blocks by Wilbert Biggens and Detron Smith to get into the clear, then sidestepped and outran Texas kicker Scott Szeredy to the end zone.

But the Longhorns, 21-point underdogs, were within striking distance until the 5:55 mark of the fourth quarter.

Facing fourth-and-1 at the Aggie 2-yard line, backup defensive back Dennis Allen intercepted Shea Morenz's pass.

The Aggies then zoomed downfield on Rodney Thomas' 54-yard run and hit a 20-yard field goal by Terry Venetoulias with 53 seconds to play to end the Longhorns' disappointing season.

"We had them fourth-and-1 and that's it, game over. One yard and we had them. That's kind of the way the whole season has been," said Texas tackle Blake Brockermeyer.

Texas coach John Mackovic said the play was his call.

"It was an option play where the quarterback could run, pass or pitch the ball," Mackovic said. "The quarterback decided not to toss it but passed instead and it just didn't happen. I call the plays and I accept the responsibility."

That wasn't the first time the Texas offense stalled in a key spot. But Mackovic can't take all the blame — the Aggies' "Wrecking Crew" defense deserves plenty of the credit.

The Longhorns had first-and-goal at the A&M 10 midway through the second quarter when they settled for Szeredy's 42-yarder. The drive stalled behind two penalties and Steve Kenney's excellent coverage on Longhorns receiver Lovell Pinkney in the end zone.

Texas got to A&M's 20 on its next series, but third-down pressure by Aggies nose guard Lance Teichelman preceded a 37-yard missed field goal by Szeredy.

After McElroy's electrifying kickoff return following Szeredy's second field goal, Morenz completed a 40-yard pass to Jimmy Hakes to the A&M 36. That play set up Szeredy's 48-yard field goal and gave Texas a 9-7 lead with 1:36 left in the half.

But the Aggies came right back before halftime.

Corey Pulliam completed passes of 30 yards to Hill and 31 yards to Tony Harrison and completed the drive with a 14-yard TD pass to Harrison.

The Longhorns were penalized before the extra-point try and Hill ran in the 2-point conversion for a 15-9 halftime lead with 12 seconds left.

Lady Tigers begin play at tournament

WOLFFORTH — The Monterey Lady Plainsmen defeated Littlefield, 61-55, in Thursday's opening round of the Frenship Turkey Classic basketball tournament, setting up this morning's meeting between Monterey and Snyder.

Snyder, 2-1 on the season, drew an opening-round bye. The Lady Tigers were to have tipped off against MHS at 9 a.m. today.

"We scrimmaged Odessa High," said Snyder coach Steve Qualls, "and we stayed pretty close. Odessa beat Monterey Tuesday, so we're pretty confident we can play with them."

Monterey was 5-2 heading into this morning's game.

In other Thanksgiving day action at the tourney, Sudan topped Lorenzo, 63-41, Frenship ripped Lubbock High, 54-23, and Lubbock Coronado downed Odessa High, 64-49.

Today's matchups include Lubbock High vs. Odessa at 10:45 a.m. and Littlefield vs. Lorenzo at 2:15 p.m. in consolation quarterfinals, and Winters, which also received a Thursday bye, against Coronado at 12:30 p.m. in a winner's bracket contest.

A win by the Lady Tigers in this morning's game would have them play Sudan at 4 p.m. in the championship semifinals. A Monterey victory would pit the Lady Tigers against the Lubbock High-Odessa High winner at 5:45 p.m.

Chicago downs Detroit, 10-6

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Just call the Chicago Bears road warriors.

The Bears shut down Barry Sanders and the Detroit Lions to win their third straight road game and hand Detroit its second consecutive loss.

"We had to win these three road games, and we did," Chicago defensive tackle Richard Dent said. "Now we have to beat Green Bay. Our goal has always been to get our destiny into our own hands, and now we've done that."

Before Detroit, the Bears' road show had been victories at San Diego and Kansas City. In all three games, Chicago (6-5) came from behind.

The Lions (7-4) have lost their last two games and will fall into a tie for the NFC Central lead with Green Bay if the Packers defeat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday.

Sanders, the NFL's leading rusher, suffered a partial tear of the medial collateral ligament midway through the third quarter and will miss 3-5 weeks. The sprain will not require surgery, said Dr. David Collon, a Lions' team physician.

It was the Chicago defense that won this game. The Lions finished with 230 yards, five more than the Bears. But the Bears defense, led by Dent and Trace Armstrong, had five sacks, two interceptions and recovered two fumbles.

"We did our job, the special teams made some plays, and the offense moved the ball a little for us," Dent said. "That's how you win."

Even before he was injured, Sanders was never much of a factor, gaining 63 yards on 16 carries. Neal Anderson led Chicago with 68 yards on 15 carries.

Are unbeaten strings that extend over several seasons a thing of the past in major college football? By all indications in recent years, the answer is yes. No one in the modern era has come close to Washington's record 63-game unbeaten skein. It's been more than 35 years since anyone has even put together 40 in a row.

Clinton's invisible adviser steps briefly into the limelight

By Jill Lawrence
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many a Thanksgiving traveler owes something to Bruce Lindsey, even if they don't know it.

He's the short, neat, mild-looking guy with glasses who's always hovering near President Clinton. The one whose name rarely makes it into the photo caption, and that's just the way he's wanted it.

Clinton blew Lindsey's cover this week when he said his Arkansas buddy "had a lot to do with" bringing the American Airlines strike to an end.

The public mention — the first from Clinton, according to Lindsey's wife — could signal Lindsey's emergence as an out-front player. At any rate, his subterranean profile was briefly visible above ground.

Until recently, Lindsey held the double title of White House personnel director and senior adviser. With most jobs filled, he's dropped the first but kept the second, which has always better reflected his central role in the administration's affairs.

His White House quarters are closer than anyone else's to the Oval Office. He's been traveling with Clinton as candidate and president for two years, delivering good news and bad, heading off crises, controlling damage. Just last week, he accompanied Clinton to the West Coast.

"He's like a family doctor," said longtime friend Skip Rutherford. "He diagnoses most of the problems before the world even knows they are problems. And he solves most of them before they ever become problems."

It was Lindsey, a labor lawyer, who called the White House shots on the American strike. He talked to both sides and decided Clinton should talk to them. The president's reassurances clinched the deal, just in time to avert airport chaos over the holidays.

And just in time to get Lindsey himself home to his wife and two [illegible] he'd booked to Little Rock.

Lindsey, a pianist with a jazzy red sports car, has known Clinton and supported his career since the 1970s. When Clinton ran for president, Lindsey went through the rough times with him — not only physically but emotionally.

In New Hampshire, during Clinton's bleakest hours, Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., called to find out who was with the candidate. Told it was Lindsey, he said, "Everything's fine, then."

Lindsey's formal title was campaign director, but that barely began to describe what he did. He was a window on Clinton's habits, whereabouts, thoughts and feelings. He was keeper of the schedule, watchdog of the photo op, wry commentator on the campaign and the candidate.

Asked once about Clinton's claim that he had lost a seemingly impossible amount of weight in one campaign week, Lindsey deadpanned: "Different scales, different cities."

Lindsey's family never moved to Washington. He lives in a room in a Georgetown house and has seen his wife, Bev, only twice since September, when she became director of the state Department of Arkansas Heritage.

Those who know Lindsey best say he's doing exactly what he wants to be doing, and enjoying it. "The most telling thing is that he's kept a sense of humor," says his wife. "He still laughs and has fun."

Australia's native animals decimated by imported critters

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The colonization of Australia drove aborigines off their hunting grounds, but they weren't the only victims of contact with the outside world. Native animals and plants have been crowded out, too.

Rats, mice and cats accompanied the first Europeans to the once-isolated continent in the late 18th century. English colonists nostalgic for home then imported foxes and rabbits to hunt, which escaped and thrived in the wild.

Pigs, goats and horses brought in by farmers got away and multiplied, roaming the Outback in small herds.

Most of these new species flourished in an environment free of their natural predators. Some brought new diseases.

As a result, Australia now has the world's highest extinction rate of mammal species, according to the World Wide Fund for Nature.

Thirty species of Australian mammals and birds have died out, along with at least 100 plant species. Another 178 plant species and 57 species of birds, mammals, reptiles, frogs and fishes are endangered.

Australian wildlife experts held a summit this month to map out a campaign to fight back against introduced species — a war they know they can never win.

Science won't find a "magic bullet" to kill feral animals, once-domestic breeds that are now wild, said Peter Wilson, acting manager of the natural heritage conservation division of the National Parks and Wildlife Service.

"We're not looking at eradication. The scientists are telling us that is not feasible in most of the critical species that are causing the most impact on agriculture and wildlife," Wilson said.

Current efforts to control a [illegible] focus on a mixture of neutering and birth control as well as trapping, hunting, poison baits, and attempts to develop diseases that kill only certain species.

The impact of feral animals on native wildlife and agriculture has been catastrophic, Wilson said.

Australia has 3 million domestic cats, but some 12 million feral cats are believed to be loose, compared with 44 million in America, the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service says.

Studies show that the average domestic cat kills about 25 native animals a year, indicating that the nation's domestic cats alone could be wiping out 75 million animals each year.

Cats kill any animal up to their own size, including 100 species of native bird, 50 types of mammals, 50 kinds of reptiles, and numerous frogs and insects.

Rabbits descended from 24 bunnies brought to Victoria in 1859 by the now notorious Thomas Austin have spread over half of Australia. They nibble plant shoots below ground level, depriving native species of forage and causing erosion and soil damage.

Australians have fenced, bulldozed, poisoned, trapped, and shot rabbits, and tried biological warfare in the 1950s, releasing a South American rabbit disease among the Aussie bunnies, with limited success.

Making the best of a bad situation, the Akubra Hat company makes the popular wide-brimmed Outback hat out of rabbit fur felt.

Feral goats in Australia cause tremendous damage to ground cover through overgrazing. Australians have reduced the goat population by rounding up herds, butchering them according to Muslim dietary law, and shipping the meat to the Middle East.

Australia is now the only county in the world with wild camels, the descendants of dromedaries brought to the desert interior as pack animals. Some 31,000 now roam around Alice Springs and some are rounded up for export to the Middle East as racing camels, and to help replenish the genetic lines there.

Los Angeles was founded by Spanish settlers in 1781.

Freezing rain, sleet hit Texas; storm warning now cancelled

by The Associated Press

Texans fighting their way to the mall today for the busiest shopping day of the year may have to slosh through some cold, wet weather. Of course, indoors is the place to be under such conditions.

[illegible] and eastern portions of the state ro-

ous this morning. Temperatures were in the teens and 20s at 5 a.m. with some wind chill factors in the single digits.

Temperatures ranged from 9 degrees at Dalhart to 40 degrees at McAllen.

Statewide, the cold snap will be one for the record books. Low temperature records were broken Thursday at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, Corpus Christi and Amarillo, the National Weather Service reports.

At Midland, the temperature dropped to 15 degrees this morning, establishing a new record low, according to the NWS.

Winter storm warnings that had been issued for the northeast and east-central portions of North Texas were cancelled by 10:30 a.m. Freezing rain and sleet was expected today in parts of the region.

Highs are expected in the lower 40s in the west to the middle 30s in the southeast. Lows tonight will be from the lower to middle 20s.

Light rain and drizzle was falling generally east of a line from Laredo to Austin to College Station this morning.

The forecast for South Texas calls for the clouds along with the freezing rain and drizzle to decrease from the west during the day. Skies should be clear to partly cloudy across much of the area tonight.

Highs today will range from the upper 30s into the middle 40s. Lows tonight will range from the teens across the Hill Country to the mid-30s over the lower valley.

Skies generally were clear this morning across West Texas, where temperatures were in the teens and 20s.

The forecast calls for sunny skies today and clear skies tonight. The highs will range from the 30s [illegible] far west and along the Rio Grande. Lows will be in the teens and 20s.

The weather definitely took its toll Thursday on North Texas. Dallas police reported more than 60 accidents by early evening. In Fort Worth, about 100 accidents were reported within three hours of the wintry weather hitting.

A five-vehicle wreck in Mesquite hospitalized an off-duty Dallas police officer. No traffic fatalities were reported.

Texas Department of Transportation officials dispatched crews to sand bridges and overpasses, which freeze faster than roadways. Officials also warned travelers to stay indoors, if possible.

"If you don't have to go anywhere, don't. If you have to go out, the best thing to do would be just to slow it down," said James Black, of the Dallas office of the Department of Transportation.

Black offered a few tips for [illegible] conditions: allow plenty of space between cars, don't slam on the brakes, and "use plenty of caution and plenty of good sense."

In one of the more unusual weather-related incidents, a trucker driving on a highway outside Texas Stadium — which hosted a snow-marred game between the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins — lost a load of Christmas trees.

The inclement weather was also causing problems at airports, where many flights were either delayed or canceled.

Criminal investigation into baby swap slated

WAUCHULA, Fla. (AP) — A criminal investigation could begin next week into claims by a nurse's aide that the 1978 swap of two baby girls was intentional, authorities said.

Inconsistencies have arisen in the story told by Patsy Webb about the switch of Kimberly Mays and another baby nearly 15 years ago.

Webb, who worked at Hardee Memorial Hospital in rural Wauchula in 1978, had denied knowing anything about the switch of babies born to Barbara and Robert Mays and to Ernest and Regina Twigg.

But Webb said Tuesday that a doctor at the hospital gave the order to switch the babies, exchanging Kimberly for the Mays' ailing baby. Webb said she refused to switch the newborns but found them switched when she went to work the next day.

The reason Webb offered for the switch is contradicted by medical records.

Webb said the switch was made because Mrs. Mays had cancer. "They wanted her to have the good baby because she didn't have long to live," she said.

Mrs. Mays died of ovarian cancer in 1981, but her medical records show she wasn't diagnosed until June 16, 1980. Mrs. Mays' obstetrician said Thursday she had no sign of cancer at the time of the birth.

U.S. diplomat said kidnapped

SAN'A, Yemen (AP) — An American diplomat has been seized by unidentified abductors in the Yemeni capital, police sources said today.

Haynes Mahoney, the United States Information Service station chief in Yemen, was grabbed after he left a British Airways reception Thursday night, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

U.S. Embassy guards and diplomats reached at home by telephone on the Muslim sabbath refused to discuss the incident.

Acquaintances said Mahoney's relatives in San'a have not been harmed.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said today she had no information on the kidnapping.

The police sources said that the kidnappers took Mahoney to [illegible] vince about 100 miles to the southeast of San'a.

In 1850, the slave trade was forbidden in the District of Columbia.

Holiday shopping sales should turn out ok for stores

by The Associated Press

The nation's retailers have weathered a long, tough year. And now comes the really hard part: the Christmas shopping season.

As stores open today for the traditional start of the season, they'll be trying to lure choosy, budget-minded shoppers with bargains, special services and bonuses. Retailers know they may have to struggle to bring in sales.

But the economy has strengthened and consumers are signaling their willingness to relax and spend a little. Chances are the season will turn out better for many stores than it appeared a few months ago.

Most of the gifts are likely to be bought in the last 10 days before Christmas, but shoppers will still pack the stores this weekend. Some got a jump on the season on Thanksgiving, as Kmart opened its stores.

Many retailers were also opening earlier than usual today with special deals for early shoppers. Some department stores offered plush toys at reduced prices for shoppers spending a specific amount, and others supplied gift wrap and other services.

But what consumers really want are discounts, and they'll get them. The recession made markdowns a way of life for stores, and price cuts are built into their holiday budgets.

Predictions for how the season will turn out have become a Christmas fixture, partly because the holidays are no longer the guaranteed money-maker they once were. Christmas 1992 was the first good holiday season for the retail industry in four years.

But the accounting and consulting firm Arthur Andersen said after surveying consumers that Americans are very confident and three-quarters will spend the same or more than they did last year on gifts, giving retailers a robust season.

Andersen competitor Deloitte & Touche found that consumers, for the most part, were not worried about higher taxes.

But America's Research Group, a consumer research firm, says 40 percent of Americans are uneasy about the economy and will spend less on gifts this year.

Regardless, consumers will be playing a cat-and-mouse game with retailers, delaying their spending and forcing nervous storeowners to cut prices even further.

Retail analysts who were pessimistic about the season during the summer, following months of disappointing sales, now are more upbeat. Salomon Brothers Inc. analyst Jeffrey Feiner said the so-so business that has prevailed until now should strengthen late in the season.

Edward Johnson, whose Johnson Redbook Service is closely-watched barometer of retail sales, predicts sales will be up 10 percent overall, maybe even more.

Hundreds mourn youngster killed

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Hundreds of Egyptians chanted anti-terrorist slogans today outside the funeral of a girl killed in an failed assassination attempt on the prime minister.

The body of Shaima Abdel-Halim, 12, lay in a coffin draped in a green cloth covered with sayings from the Koran, Islam's holy book.

She was killed and 21 people wounded when a car bomb exploded outside a school Thursday as the motorcade of Prime Minister Atef Sedki passed. The prime minister wasn't hurt.

At the funeral, Minister of Education Hussein Bahaa-el-Din broke into tears when the girl's grandmother screamed at him: "What has she done to them? What is our mistake? We have nothing to do with this."

"Terrorism is the enemy of God," mourners chanted outside the downtown Omar Makram mosque.

The crowd also shouted "Omar Abdel-Rahman is a terrorist," referring to the blind sheik considered the spiritual leader of Islamic radicals fighting to topple Egypt's secular government.
