Pakistan Agrees To Hijackers' Demands

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Only minutes before the threatened execution of three American hostages, Pakistan agreed today to a demand by three plane hijackers to release 55 political prisoners, the Syrian news agency said.

The hijackers, who seized the Pakistani airliner 11 days ago and flew it first to Afghanistan and then to Damascus, had also threatened to blow up the plane, themselves and more than 100 hostages unless their demands were met by 11 a.m. EST.

They set a new deadline of 7 p.m. EST for fulfillment of their request, diplomatic sources said.

The sources, who refused to be identified, said that after the Pakistan agreement negotiations began to establish the identity of six of the 55 whose release was demanded by the three hijackers.

Earlier in the day, the hijackers had labeled the three Americans CIA agents and said "be prepared to collect their bodies." They made the threat in a letter dictated to Pakistani authorities from the plane at Damascus airport. The letter was released by the official Syrian news agency, SANA.

The Americans have been identified as Frederick Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa, a lawyer; and businessmen Craig Richard Clymore of California and Lawrence Clifton Mangum of New York City, who reportedly lives in Spain. A U. S. Embassy official in Islamabad, Pakistan, said "we have no idea how they (the hijackers) could have come up with the deduction that they're CIA agents.".

In Washington, the White House refused to discuss the threatened executions.

The hijackers already killed one hostage — a Pakistani diplomat last Friday.

Pakistan President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq sent an "important, urgent" message to Syrian President Hafez Assad after the threat to shoot the Americans was issued, a Pakistani spokesman said. The contents were not disclosed.

Immediately after the hijackers' threat, Syrian troops and police moved closer to the green and white Boeing 720. Some crouched in the bushes on both sides of the auxiliary runway where the plane was parked. A half dozen dashed under the fuselage of the plane. Later all were pulled back to foxholes.

Observers said the Americans were singled out apparently in an effort to get the Reagan administration to put pressure on Pakistani authorities to meet the demand.

'Windfall' Tax Break Pursued

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen, pointing to independent oil producers' role in expanding domestic energy production, are calling again for them to get a break when it comes, to the "windfall" tax.

"They have a proven track record that they are serious about using additional profits to help solve the energy crisis," Rep. Kent Hance said. "We should be providing incentives and encouragement for them to continue this amazing record."

Hance, a Lubbock Democrat, and Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican from Hunt, introduced a bill Wednesday that would exempt from the windfall tax the first 1,000 barrels pumped daily by an independent producer.

The exemption also would apply to royalty owners.

A similar bill was introduced earlier this year in the Senate by both Texas senators.

Among the 179 congressmen signed on as cosponsors of the House measure were 19 members of the almost solidly pro-oil Texas delegation.

The only Texans not sponsoring the bill were Rep. Bill Archer, a Houston Republican who had introduced a similar proposal, and Reps. Mickey Leland of Houston and Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio.

Both Leland and Gonzalez are Democrats from inner city districts who generally follow a course different from the rest of the Texas delegation on energy issues.

In the last congressional session, the exemption passed the Senate but did not survive a House-Senate conference committee.

Loeffler said the exemption would insure an increase in domestic oil production and promote more wildcat discoveries.

"If we are serious about returning energy self sufficiency to its status as one of this country's highest national priorities, we can take a step in the right direction by cutting out some of the disincentives for increased domestic production by individuals and private landowners," he said in a statement.

Hance noted that independents drill 90 percent of the exploratory wells in the United States and discover 75 percent of domestic oil.

He said the bill was introduced as a backup position because it appears that President Reagan does not plan to recommend any major changes in the windfall tax on domestic oil production.

The West Texas congressman earlier had called for the repeal of the windfall tax, imposed under former President Jimmy Carter to claim part of the revenue headed for oil companies as a result of price deregulation.

In a statement accompanying the bill, Hance added that most royalty owners depend on their royalty income for "day-to-day living."

Employees OK Pay Cut

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International Corp.'s employees have agreed to take a pay cut, a move the airline's officers insist is the first step toward returning the airline to profitability.

Braniff's machinists joined the company's other union employees Wednesday in approving the 10-percent pay reduction and profit-sharing proposal.

Panel Hears Alligator Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Over-protected" alligators are attacking cattle and chewing up dogs in his part of Texas, says Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Parker told the Senate Natural Resources Committee on Wednesday Southeast Texas is "up to its ears" in alligators. "They have no natural enemies ... other than man."

He said the state had banned the hunting of alligators eight years ago, because they seemed on the verge of extinction.

"They have been over-protected in Jefferson, Orange and Chambers counties," said Parker.

House Approves Prisons Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members have approved and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing three new state prisons, after hearing a colleague promise the inmates would not be enjoying a "Hilton Hotel."

The House members agreed on a $35 million emergency appropriation to build the three penitentiaries to house 2,880 inmates, part of a crash program to alleviate severe prison overcrowding.

Researchers Link Coffee To Cancer

BOSTON (AP) — The multibillion-dollar coffee industry says its studies show no link between coffee and cancer, but a Harvard study indicates that people who drink a cup or two a day are nearly twice as likely as non-drinkers to get cancer of the pancreas.

Cancer of the pancreas is the fourth most common fatal malignancy in the United States.

The Harvard researchers cautioned that although they found a strong link between coffee drinking and the cancer, there was no proof coffee causes the disease. They stopped short of advising people not to drink it.

The researchers found no association between tea drinking and pancreatic cancer, suggesting that caffeine — the stimulant in coffee, tea and some colas — was not a factor.

The pancreas, a gland located behind the stomach, produces digestive juices and contains cells that make insulin. Because cancer in the pancreas is often advanced by the time it is spotted, the chances of survival often are poor.

About 20,000 Americans die of the disease each year, and the American Cancer Society says that less than 10 percent of the victims survive for five years.

The Harvard researchers found that people who drink up to two cups of coffee daily have 1.8 times the risk of pancreatic cancer as non-drinkers. Those who drink three cups or more face a risk 2.7 times greater than non-drinkers.

The coffee association estimates that the average American over age 10 drinks two cups of coffee a day.

Records Set By Oil, Gas Leases

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Oil and gas lease sales by the University of Texas Sytem broke all records Wednesday, said James L. Powell, chairman of the board of regents.

Leases on 249 tracts, made up of 83,000 acres, went for $52,882,000, an average of $634.62 per acre.

Powell said this topped the September 1980 record of $44,191,500 and exceeded last year's per acre price of $339.30.

The highest individual tract, in Winkler County, went to Supron Energy Corp. of Dallas for $2.7 million.

Powell noted that since the lease sales began in 1936 a total of $391,154,438 in bonuses has been paid the university. He said there are now 6,532 producing oil wells and 340 producing gas wells on university lands.

All bonuses and royalties go into the Permanent University Fund, which is shared by the University of Texas System and the Texas A&M System. The Permanent University Fund now totals $1.378 billion.

Ask Us

Q.—Shouldn't a turndown by the six taxing jurisdictions have been sufficient to keep the appraiser and appraisal board from getting new offices?

A.—The appraisal board is charged with the responsibility of providing offices for the appraiser and his staff. They did confer with governing bodies of the taxing jurisdictions concerning a change in office facilities. However, they were not "turned down" by five of these, and the sixth voted to go on record that they were not in favor of moving the appraiser's office at this time.

New Hospital Facility Ready For Service

The new emergency room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital will be put into use at noon Friday, according to Cy Miller, hospital administrator.

Entrance to the new emergency room will be on the north side of the new wing under the covered driveway. This will be the first facililty to be used in the new wing, which now is in the last stages of completion.

Sirens Get Second Test

Sirens in Snyder's new emergency warning system will get their second test at 7 p. m. today.

The new system, which includes seven huge sirens, was installed recently to provide the means for warning local residents of emergency situations.

The first test was conducted a couple of weeks ago, and henceforth, there will be a test at 7 p. m. on the second Thursday of each month. This schedule corresponds to training sessions of the Snyder Fire Department.

The SDN Column

One of the latter day facts of life which we suspect would have astounded the founders of this country was pointed up this week in a story out of Austin.

An "expert" told state senators that no matter how they draw lines for new legislative districts, they are certain to be challenged in court.

The legislature is charged with the responsibility of redistricting after each federal census to assure that population of the various districts and other factors are compatible.

This chore is assigned to the legislature, remember. But these comments remind us that much of our "legislation" is being handed down by court decree these days. Some of us are growing weary of this, and when enough people become fed up with it, look for a constitutional amendment to evolve. And don't be surprised if it does some wing-clipping in the federal judiciary system.

Meanwhile, city and chamber of commerce officials from the smallest hamlet to the biggest metropolis are keeping their fingers crossed as they await the final report on the 1980 census. Some of them hope that preliminary figures will be adjusted upward, while others hope the the preliminary report will hold firm.

Snyder's preliminary report of 12,671, representing an increase of nearly 13.5 percent over 1970, may not be as high as some were expecting, but we are not complaining. The preliminary figures also show nearly 16,000 in the immediate Snyder area, which includes everything within the corporate boundaries plus the fringes that for most practical purposes are actually a part of Snyder.

Having experienced several censuses, our personal prediction for Snyder in 1980 was around 13,000. If the preliminary figure holds up, we missed it by 329.

Noting that the price of postage stamps is going up, Bill McClellan said it is a shame that it won't do a person any good to lay in a supply in advance.

That is where postage differs from other commodities. If you know a few days in advance that coffee or some other grocery item is going up, you can buy ahead and save money. You can even buy ahead on such things as airline tickets when it becomes obvious that a price increase is coming.

But postage stamps are different. If you buy up a bunch of 15-cent stamps before the price goes to 18 cents, they merely make you add three more cents to each stamp.

The only way you can beat the postage rate increase is to get a lot of your outgoing mail ready and take it to the post office the day before the increase goes into effect. In some cases, of course, that would be like having to drink up all of your advance coffee ahead of the day of the increase.

Court Urges Return Of Minerals Under Roads

The Scurry County Commissioners Court has adopted a resolution urging the Texas Legislature to return mineral rights under highway right-of-way to those who owned it when the right-of-way was acquired by the highway department.

The state put up for bids recently the mineral rights under a number of major roads in the state, including segments of U. S. 84 and U. S. 180 in Scurry County.

The resolution adopted by Scurry County Commissioners notes that the right-of-way was acquired by the state acting through the commissioners' court and county judge and was paid for with county funds. Moreover, the resolution continues, the deeds began with the notation "Highway Right-of-Way Deed," and that it was not the intent that these deeds convey the minerals under the right-of-way.

"After 40 years, claim to the minerals under said tracts has been asserted by the State of Texas," the resolution says.

The resolution requests that the legislature take whatever steps are necessary "to remove the cloud from the mineral rights under the highway system of Scurry County caused by said improper claim."

It asks specifically that State Sen. Ray Farabee and Rep. Larry Shaw join the effort "in protecting the people of Scurry County against this improper claim."

The leases offered in Scurry County were bid in by Chevron, on behalf of SACROC Unit owners, who own the adjoining leases, but several other companies submitted bids.

words and actions

Former Nixon Attorney General John Mitchell, seeking to reassure people upset over "right wing" rhetoric early in the administraton, suggested that they "don't listen to what we say; watch what we do." It's good advice for observers of any political government. A great deal of what Reagan himself is saying sounds very good. What some of his cabinet-level appointees seem to be doing is not so reassuring.

A couple of weeks ago Education Secretary Terrel Bell scrapped a controversial set of proposed mandatory bilingual education regulations, for which he won praise from most people and shrieks of agony from a few interest groups. Now it seems apparent that he isn't opposed to bilingual education per se but only chose to make a public example of those particular regulations. He recently told six representatives of the National Association for Bilingual Education that he plans to "go the last mile" to ensure that federal funding for present bilingual education programs remains at the present $200 million level or higher.

Bell is also quietly encouraging states to continue bilingual programs, and assuring them that the federal government will continue to contribute to their maintenance and expansion.

The objections to bilingualism are legion, ranging from its sheer cost to the almost certain fact that bilingual programs actually harm those they are intended to help, by retarding their ability to function and prosper in a society that is still English-speaking. Whether through appeasement of special interest groups or conviction, Bell seems to be committed to this expensive and harmful program, though not to so onerous a version of it as was outlined in the regulation he vetoed.

This is a common pattern in Washington. Public officials often criticize programs in public and continue to fund them when special interest groups start to howl. Usually the continued funding doesn't rate much media coverage. It takes persistent digging to unearth all these unnecessary programs. Continued public pressure is needed to cause government to trim a few pennies.

senility outmoded

We used to call it "consumption." It started with coughing, ended with spitting blood—and death.

Then we renamed it "tuberculosis," discovered a remedy, and TB has all but been obliterated from the civilized nations of the earth.

Similarly—we used to call it "old age."

We would say that he or she had become "senile"—that he or she "died of old age."

Now we have discovered that much of what we considered "senility" or "dementia" is in fact "Alzheimer's disease."

And there is something we can do about it.

The degenerative manifestations of "old age" have included memory loss, disorientation, confusion, perceptional difficulties, speech problems.

Now we have learned that those are not necessarily symptoms of "old age"; they may instead be symptoms of Alzheimer's disease and may affect people as young as 40.

I know of a man 55 who is struggling to hang onto his executive position because he can no longer read with comprehension and has difficulty even signing his name.

As the illness progresses, he will be unable to find the bathroom in the home in which he has lived for 30 years.

Eventually, he may not recognize members of his own family.

Finally, he will become a "vegetable."

Heretofore, this patient has been considered "senile," a victim of hardened arteries.

Actually, only 20 percent of such dementias result from hardened arteries. More than half are Alzheimer's disease—a progressive, degenerative, organic brain disorder.

It is a major health problem which has gone untreated because we gave it the wrong name, assumed it to be a normal result of aging.

Now that Alois Alzheimer has given it a name and now that there is a national association devoted to its diagnosis and treatment—we are developing a counterattack.

Diet, drugs and altered lifestyle may someday reverse the damage done to the brain by this disease.

As of now, all that's known is that careful use of drugs can lessen agitation and depression, improve sleep patterns. Proper nutrition is particularly helpful.

Also recommended is keeping mind and body active with exercise, hobbies and activities.

Understand, geriatrics—the understanding of aging—is a relatively young medical specialty.

But research on aging is accelerated by advances in related sciences. And if the quantity of life for the elderly cannot yet be appreciably expanded, the quality of life can be.

The mental deterioration of one member of the family can disrupt the whole family. Correspondingly, the control of symptoms can be helpful to family relationships.

commentary

donald f. graff

There are some things about his new job that President Reagan is not going to like.

One of them is on his desk right now in the form of a select commission report on immigration policy. It is a new look at an old problem, a 453-page tome, two years in the compiling, that among other things calls for the expenditure of additional federal dollars to deal with an influx of illegal immigration that it finds "out of control."

It's timing could not be more exquisite — in the midst of the new administration's Operation Budget Trimming.

How many dollars is not specified, but it would take quite a few to get even a good start on a recommended strengthening of the border control with more personnel, more helicopters and planes, more sensor systems and other surface equipment.

This is only one of the ways the commission would have us begin addressing a national problem of dimensions correctly noted as vast. Illegal aliens currently resident in the United States are estimated to number from 3.5 million to 6 million (other studies go as high as 12 million).

The continuing flow has created "an underclass of workers," fearing deportation and at the mercy of unscrupulous employers. The most devastating impact of the violation of immigration law may be the disregard it breeds for minimun wage, occupational safety, public health and other U.S. laws. "Illegality," as the commission puts it, "breeds illegality.

None of this is by any means news. The problem of illegal immigration and the inadequacy of the understaffed immigration system and arbitrary, outdated laws under which it operates are well-known and much-advertised.

Neither has the commission come up with much new in the way of answers to the problem. In addition to tighter border control, it recommends better identification of all workers in the United States, legal action against employers hiring undocumented workers, an increase in legal immigration ceilings and an amesty for illegal residents now in the country once more effective immigration control measures are in effect.

Much of this has been proposed and discussed before — notably worker identification, which suggests a national identity card and could pose a civil rights issue. And so have the additional questions the would-be answers raise.

The commission, noting that most illegals come from countries of high unemployment, acknowledges that the problem is fundamentally economic. Is there any realistic prospect of bringing it under control until the economic disparity between the United States and its neighbors ceases to be so extreme?

Would even a massively and expensively expanded Border Patrol be up to the task given the expanses to be guarded and the human numbers involved? "Border" usually means the 1,500-mile one with Mexico where the problem is most intense. But the commission observes that "probably... less than half" of the illegal immigrants are of Mexican nationality. As many or more come from the Caribbean, South America and Asia.

And given even limited success in controlling this most sensitive border, what would be the effect on U.S.-Mexican relations, improvement of which is a priority item for this administration? Much more limited efforts in recent years have exacerbated national sensitivities.

What about refugees? The commission would specifically exempt them from tightened control. But it is not always easy to tell who is fleeing from political oppression and who from economic desperation. Take Haitians as a currently tragic case in point.

Cost, when you get right down to it, is among the least of the obstacles in dealing with illegal immigration and thus of reservations to this report.

President Reagan does have one advantage in dealing with it. it is the work of not his but his predecessor's administration — the 16-member commission included four Carter Cabinet members. He is free to toss it out and start all over, with his people and his way, if he is so inclined.

But he has no such option with the problem of illegal immigration for at least the next four years. It goes with the presidential territory.

Billy Beavers of Dallas visited Mrs. Rachel Lassiter and Adala Drennan last Friday. He is the grandson of the late Mrs. Leora Davis, a former resident of Hermleigh. He refers to Mrs. Lassiter as his West Texas grandmother.

The Needlecraft Club met last Tuesday with six members attending. They were Oleta Jackson, Elree Baremore, Rachel Lassiter, Rella Young, Dorthy Martin and Adala Drennan. Visitors during the day were Clara Tate, Sallie Tate and Gayenelle Green.

Mrs. Martin visited her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Martin, in Midland last Wednesday. She and daughter, Mrs. Linda Thurman shopped in Abilene Saturday. Little April Martin of Snyder spent Tuesday night with her grandparents, the Anson Martin's.

The Thursday Canasta Club met last week with Rachel Lassiter as hostess. Attending were Norma Hess, Frances Thompson, Verda Johnson, Bernice Glass, Dean Wemken, Elsie Stahl, Mrs. Young, and Oma Houston. Substitute playing were Emma Cain of Sweetwater, Gayle Stahl, Verla Mason and Mrs. Lassiter. High scores were won by Ms. Thompson and Ms. Houston.

Little Jodie McClain of Rotan spent the week-end with her maternal grandparents, the Marvin Hanson's. Their daughter, Mrs. James (Mary Carrole) Naizer and Leann of Clyde, visited them on Saturday.

Open house was held last week in observance of Public School Week. Approximately 100 attended and the remodeled library was a special attraction. An interesting program was presented by the first and fourth grade students. Special guests attending were James and Georgia Davidson, Roy and Lillian Cox, Victor and Irene Beinhauer, Rene Jordan, Belinda Foster and Tom Shelburne. Cookies and punch were served to guests.

The Masonic Lodge of Hermleigh had a pancake supper for members, their families and friends last Monday evening in conjunction with Public School Week. After the meal, Harley Bynum showed films which were narrated by Glenn Polk.

The Grand Lodge of Texas is sponsoring an essay contest on Americanism that is open to all high school seniors. College scholarships totaling $12,000, which was appropriated by the Scottish Rite Masons, will be awarded to the winning students. The top boy and girl will each receive $3,000. The second boy and girl will each receive $2,000 and the third place boy and girl will each receive $1,000.

Bill Jordan gave the benediction, after which a short period of visitation was enjoyed.

Word has been received of the sudden death of Max Kimzey, who suffered a massive heart attack. he is a former resident of Hermleigh and youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Major Kimzey. He is survived by his wife, Ann, a brother, Floyd Kimzey of El Paso, Bob Kimzey of Big Spring, and J.W. (Dub) Kimzey of Hermleigh. The service is to be in Albuquerque, New Mexico and the burial in Dallas. The J.W. Kimzeys and son, Greg, are flying to Alb. Wednesday afternoon.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Mayes over the past week were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barrock of Spokane, Washington, formerly of Fairbanks, Alaska. Mr. Mayes and Mr. Barrock worked together when the Mayes lived in Fairbanks.

Green firewood should be allowed to dry for six months before using. It should be stacked loosely for air circulation with the bark side up.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The Professor looked over dummy and remarked, "There are so many ways to make this contract that I had best guard against as many bad breaks as possible. I'll be awfully embarrassed if I go down."

The student who was dummy got up, walked to where he could see the professor's hand, took a quick look at the West hand also and thought that with spades not breaking and all finesses wrong, the Prof might well be embarrassed.

The student gave a start when the Prof led the diamond ten from dummy at trick two and ruffed it with the ace of trumps. The queen and jack of trumps were played next with dummy's king overtaking the jack. Now the Prof ruffed dummy's queen of diamonds; entered dummy with the king of clubs, led dummy's nine of trumps to pick up the last adverse trump and went after spades. He ruffed out West's jack with dummy's last trump and made the last two tricks with the ace of clubs and his fifth spade.

The Professor had used a dummy reversal to be able to bring in six trump tricks instead of the mere five that were there if he had drawn trumps to start the proceedings.

Cigarette Shortage In Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says smokers in Poland are experiencing a cigarette shortage, partly because the nation's tobacco industry can't afford paper to make them.

A report Wednesday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said the shortage "is particularly acute in Silesia and on the Baltic coast."

Poland's output this year is expected to total 87.5 billion cigarettes, compared with an expected demand for 95 billion, the report said. Through February, production was 2.4 billion cigarettes less than last year's pace.

"The Polish tobacco industry attributes the decline to a lack of materials and fewer working hours," the report said. "Because of a severe shortage of foreign exchange, the tobacco industry has been unable to import cigarette paper, packing materials and filters."

Domestic cigarette paper and aluminum foil have been substituted, but that has caused "a decline in productivity and product quality," the report said. "The Polish tobacco industry does not plan to introduce any new products this year, and only small amounts of cigarettes will be imported, mostly from Albania."

Dear Abby

Talk About Weather Will Break the Ice

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: There is this interesting-looking gentleman I see on the train on my way to work every morning. I have a feeling that we share a mutual interest in each other, but I don't know how to break the ice. I keep waiting for him to say something to me, but what if he doesn't? I'm afraid this man will walk out of my life without my having met him, and I will have missed a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Please advise me in your column, as I'm sure a lot of other people face this problem daily.

J.B. FROM BROOKLYN

DEAR J.B.: For openers, smile pleasantly, and say, "Good morning. Isn't it cold (or windy, or slippery, or beautiful) out?"

And if your interesting-looking fellow traveler has a mutual interest in you, he will take it from there. And if he doesn't — well, at least you tried.

DEAR ABBY: For the last two years I've been dating the sweetest girl in the world. We've talked of marriage, and I believe she's the kind of woman I want to be the mother of my children. I'm approaching 30 and have never been married. My problem is this: I still find myself very much attracted to other women — not emotionally, but physically.

I have had a variety of women in the last two years, and must admit that I still enjoy the adventure and excitement of the hunt.

Of all my married friends, not one has said he wouldn't cheat on his wife if the right opportunity presented itself. So should I marry this girl because I love her, or refrain from marrying her because I love her and don't want to tie her down to a possible philanderer?

LOVINGLY RELUCTANT

DEAR RELUCTANT: If you consider yourself a "possible philanderer," you're not ready to make a commitment to forsake all others. Give her a break and break it up.

DEAR ABBY: I am 32 years old, never been married, but I have been living with a 51-year-old man for four years. (I'll call him Frank.) Frank gave me an engagement ring and promised to marry me, but he finds one excuse after another to avoid it. He is married but has been legally separated from his wife for 15 years. Since he probably will never marry me, I want to make something of myself, so I started back to school to get my high school diploma. Frank hides the car keys so I can't get to school. He's even locked up my clothes and shoes so I can't go.

He is a college graduate himself and makes $55,000 a year. He's given me a wonderful home, I've never had to work, and he buys me whatever I want. But, Abby, I want a high school diploma so I can get a decent job and leave him. Living with a man is not what I want. I want a husband — which reminds me, he rations sex. It's Saturday night only, and I want more than that. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: The longer you stay with Frank, the more difficult it will be to break away. (You're almost a prisoner now.) Inquire about getting a high school diploma by mail. It's possible. And tell Frank frankly that it's marriage you want, and if he doesn't deliver, it's bye-bye.

Dedication At Ranch Museum

LUBBOCK—There will be a gathering at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University. The dedication of the D. Burns Memorial Barbecue Pavilion honoring the first chairman of the Ranching Heritage Association Board of Overseers is open to the public free.

The pavilion was planned as a memorial to Burns who, before his death in 1977, hoped for such a facility, similar to the one used on the Pitchfork Ranch where he was manager for 23 years.

Dr. Lauro F. Cavazos, president of Texas Tech University and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, will make the dedicatory address and Mrs. Burns will Respond. Also on the program will be John R. "Rich" Anderson, chairman of the RHA Board of Overseers, and RHA President Harold "Bo" Brown. The Rev. Robert D. Nicholson, pastor of the Lubbock First Presbyterian Church, will pronounce the benediction.

The dedication will take place by the pavilion on the grounds of the David M. Devitt and Mallet Ranch building, which serves as a visitor center at the 12-acre outdoor exhibit.

Burns was a descendant of Columbus Burns, the first white child born in what is now DeWitt County. Another of his ancestors, Crockett Cardwell, is credited with putting together the first big herd of cattle, 1,800 longhorns, that went north after the Civil War.

Burns was a director for many years of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, director and lifetime member of the Texas Hereford Association and director and honorary vice president of the American Quarter Horse Association. He was a judge for many national livestock shows and was a director of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth.

FINE ARTS EXHIBIT—"Blue Dome Mountain," one of a series of mixed media works on exhibit in the WTC Fine Arts Gallery, is shown here by John Gibson, art instructor at the college. The new exhibit will remain in the gallery through March 20 and the public is invited to see the display with no admission charge.

Paintings By Millie Giles On Exhibit

Mixed media paintings by Millie Giles of Denton have gone on display in the Fine Arts Gallery at Western Texas College and are to remain through March 20.

Ms. Giles holds the master of fine arts degree from North Texas State University and is a part-time instructor at Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth. She was a teaching fellow at North Texas State from 1977-79.

She has been named director of the Chautauqua National Exhibition of American Art this year. She has been a member of the Chautauqua Art Association since 1975.

Works by her husband, Rob Erdle, were featured in the WTC gallery last fall.

The 11 works being shown now are done in watercolor, acrylic and pencil. The artist has a special interest in blending these three media, working on heavy drawing paper rather than on watercolor paper to enhance the effect.

The WTC Fine Arts Gallery is open each weekday and there is no admission charge.

Sexism Fatal To Frenchman

PARIS (AP) — The woman pulled the trigger and got life while her lover was sentenced to the guillotine, demonstrating once again that sexism works in the woman's favor in France when the death penalty is involved.

Yves Maupetit, a 31-year-old escaped convict, and Jeanine Terriel, a 49-year-old ex-prostitute, were convicted last week of murdering a farmer and a married couple they encountered while Maupetit was on the run.

The prosecuting attorney asked the death penalty for both. The jury of nine men and three women deliberated for 7½ hours, an unusually long time for a French jury, then sentenced him to die and her to life imprisonment.

House Advances Nuclear Waste Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill to permit dumping of nuclear wastes on state-owned property has been given tentative House approval, with legislators planning a final vote on Thursday.

That would return the measure to the Senate, which already has approved the bill but would be required to OK amendments added by the House.

The bill would permit permanent disposal sites in Texas, but only on land the state owns.

Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, the sponsor, said Texas is the 13th largest producer of nuclear waste in the nation, generating 2,163 cubic meters each year, with hospitals and medical researchers generating almost two-thirds of that amount.

Permanent disposal sites in Washington, South Carolina and Nevada are shutting down or restricting the amounts of out-of-state waste materials they will accept. Texas had three licensed temporary storage companies two years ago, but two lost their licenses, and the third announced last week it was getting out of business in April.

"Our hospitals are on the verge of having to stop all their nuclear medicine," said Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas.

The bill would require operators of disposal sites to chip into a "perpetual care fund" to guarantee the sites would be maintained safely after they are filled in and covered.

More legislation might be needed because the bill says only "public entities" specifically designated by law can be licensed to operate waste disposal sites. No such entity has been designated yet.

The House adopted an amendment by Agnich, 77-63, that says a person must prove he or she definitely will be harmed by a disposal site before suing the site's operator.

Agnich said the amendment was needed to prevent "all kinds of harassment suits."

The House rejected three amendments by Rep. Bob Ware, R-Fort Worth, that would have kept the act from applying to oil well service companies such as the Western Co. of North America, owned by H.E. "Eddie" Chiles of "I'm mad" radio commercial fame.

Bock said of Ware's second amendment, "This is another Western Co. amendment, and I'm mad, and I move to table."

Bock said oil well servicing companies that use nuclear materials already were "taken care of" by the bill.

House members also tabled, 82-59, an amendment by Rep. Mary Polk, D-El Paso, requiring the Texas Department of Health to inspect all shipments of nuclear waste before they head for the disposal sites.

"All you are doing is telling the Health Department to do something they are doing anyway," Bock said.

"I do not believe the agency on their own will do this," Ms. Polk said.

Return to doctor for pain

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor feels I am going through "the change" since my periods have become quite irregular during the past year. I can no longer have intercourse with my husband without pain. I saw a gynecologist and he said everything looked OK and a gel should help. Well, Vaseline has not helped and I continue to have pain. Would you suggest another visit with a gynecologist? Could I possibly have a more serious problem?

DEAR READER — Of course you should return to your doctor if you are still having a problem. There are many things that can cause pain and he will want to examine you again.

It is common for a woman to lose normal lubrication when there is a decrease in female hormones with the menopause. The tissues may change as a result, becoming more easily infected with a variety of bacteria, or just more easily damaged or irritated.

When a lack of hormones is the problem, hormone replacement may be in order. In some cases a hormone cream will work locally and produce very good results. But you do need to know what the problem is before you can hope to treat it properly.

While Vaseline is a very good lubricant for the skin and as my readers know I recommend it as a moisturizer, it is not a good lubricant for your purposes. Most women prefer K-Y lubricant for this purpose. If lubrication is all you need, making the change may be all that is necessary.

You will want to know more about the menopause, how it affects your hormone levels, your regularity and other effects. These are discussed in The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Many things attributed to the menopause are really caused by other problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We have read on numerous occasions that we should not use excessive amounts of white sugar. As retirees we sit at the breakfast table for an hour or so and I will have two and a half cups of coffee and cereal with a banana. I use a spoonful of sugar for each cup and a half a teaspoon for the half cup and the same for the cereal. This is three teaspoons, or about one ounce of sugar. In a year that is 365 ounces or 23 pounds. Just what amount is excessive?

DEAR READER — It is a mistake to look at one food item alone without considering the entire diet. Sugar, honey and concentrated sweets are foods. You could call them the purified calories extracted mostly from sugar beets, cane and corn (syrup). The purified carbohydrates are the same two single sugars found in all fruits, vegetables and cereals that provide energy for your body.

So sugar is not harmful or a poison or any of the other exaggerated claims often made about it. Sugar is food. The main problem with sugar is that it provides unwanted calories without the additional vitamins, minerals and bulk that your body needs. Also, because it is purified, its rapid absorption can sometimes cause swings in blood sugar levels and it may increase a tendency to cause dental cavities.

The average American uses about 100 pounds of sugar a year so your 23 pounds doesn't seem excessive. The coffee may be more dangerous than the sugar you are using.

At least 22 animals eat sagebrush, according to a U.S. Forest Service study. In much of the West, it is the primary food and preferred winter forage for pronghorn antelope and mule deer. The pygmy rabbit builds its home where sagebrush forms a protective cover and uses the plant as its only source of food. Sagebrush provides food and cover for sage grouse, pheasants, Brewer's sparrow and the vesper sparrow.

Close Vote Expected On Package Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It will be next week before the Senate State Affairs Committee shows its hand on a bill designed to expand small parcel delivery service in Texas.

A close vote is expected.

The committee postponed a decision Wednesday after hearing more than two hours of testimony, much of it concerning small Texas communities would be hurt or helped by the alternative to parcel post service,

"If the 'brown giant' is allowed to operate throughout Texas it will cause irreparable damage to our transportation system, particularly in small communities," said Steve Dawkins of Trailways Inc., Dallas.

"The people of Texas have told us they want and need package delivery service that reaches every corner of the state, service that is economical and dependable, service that is not limited to pickup points along major highways," said Tom Hardeman, Dallas district manager of United Parcel Service whose brown trucks serve many larger cities in the state.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said his bill would make it clear that the Texas Railroad Commission has the authority to license and regulate carriers of small parcels within a specific area. The commission has held it can regulate motor carriers only along specified highway routes under specific arrival and departure times. His bill applies only to packages under 50 pounds.

Hardeman said failure to pass the bill would mean "Texas will continue to receive something less than the service available to people in 46 other states."

"This bill would create a special situation in Texas favorable to UPS and unfavorable to regular carriers," said Phil Robinson, representing several motor freight lines.

"If this bill is passed motor carriers would have to abandon the concept of serving all the small areas of the state and concentrate on the cream of the business, the urban areas, where UPS operates now," said Johnny B. Rogers, representing TEX-PACK a group of 10 independent express carriers.

Joe Kilgore, Austin, said UPS was not asking the Legislature to grant it the right to operate in Texas "only the right to a hearing before the Railroad Commission as to whether this service is needed by the public in Texas."

"Most of our schedules now don't carry enough passengers to cover operating costs," said Dawkins of Trailways. "If you decrease the package revenue many of our routes are going to become unprofitable."

New Fathers Talking More

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — New fathers today are talking more about participation in the daily care of their infants, but when diapers are wet, it's still Mom who does the changing, says a Texas A&M University researcher.

Dr. Candida Lutes, associate professor of psychology, conducted a study of parental attitudes toward their babies both before and after birth. She and graduate student Jacquyn Walters also studied infant behavior at birth and its implications for parenting.

The expectant fathers, she said, expressed a great deal of interest in their babies. They said they planned to change diapers, bathe and feed baby, Dr. Lutes said.

But after baby was born, most of the fathers did not perform at the rate they had anticipated, she said.

"Checking back with the parents after the baby was two months old, we found that 81 percent of the fathers were changing wet diapers and that 68 percent were changing dirty diapers. Some 53 percent of the fathers were feeding baby in the day and 32 percent were doing the job at night. Only 23 percent of the fathers were actually bathing baby," she said.

"On the other hand, 100 percent of the mothers were doing the primary care jobs. Prior to birth, many more fathers said they would do them," Dr. Lutes said.

The one activity in which fathers and mothers reported equal time spent with the baby was in social interaction — playing and talking, she said.

"Prior to the birth of baby, mothers and fathers didn't correlate all that well on expectations of what the baby would be like. But after the baby was born, post-testing showed that they agreed pretty well on what the baby actually was like," she said.

Dr. Lutes said the findings indicate that men aren't socializing with infants as much as women do before marriage. They don't know what to expect or what the child will be like because they haven't been that involved with infants, she said.

"They seem to pick up the skills of baby care pretty fast once the baby is born, but they also seem to drop out on the actual care," she said.

Benson Is Honorable Mention All-American

Lloyd Benson, standout 200 and 400 meters runner as a junior and senior for Snyder High School, has made honorable mention All-American honors at Odessa College.

Benson, who transfered to Odessa from Abilene Christian at mid-term, placed sixth with a 440-yards time of 49.1 in the National Junior College Athletic Association National Indoor Meet, held in Champlain, Ill., last weekend. He had run a 48.5 in the semi-finals.

He also ran the third leg on the 440 relay team, which placed second in the meet. Odessa won the NJCAA Indoor team title with 64½ points.

Benson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Benson of Snyder, is slated to compete in a relays at Fort Worth this Saturday. He will also be trying to qualify this spring for the NJCAA Outdoor Meet, to be held May 21 and 23 in San Angelo.

Coach Asks For Meeting; Optimistic Of Future

By BILL MCCLELLAN

Larry Dunaway, amidst unsupported rumors that he had been relieved of his duties as men's basketball coach at Western Texas College, hopes to clear the matter up in an as yet unscheduled meeting with the board of trustees.

"It is extremely unfortunate that someone made a statement to the press with out verification of it," he said this morning, speaking of a radio broadcast aired yesterday which said sources indicated Dunaway had been relieved of his post. "It hurts from a lot of different ways; both personally and from the school's standpoint.

"From my knowledge, Dr. (Don) Newbury informed me the board is concerned with some questions they are not clear on (concerning Dunaway's conduct during the season). I think they have very little information, or perhaps they have been mis-informed. Therefore, I have requested to meet with the board concerning these questions."

A meeting to discuss the questions had not been scheduled as of this morning, though Dunaway did say that Dr. Newbury, WTC president, felt a meeting was called for when the two talked Tuesday.

In the meantime, Dunaway plans to continue with business as usual.

"The program is in great shape for next year as far as I'm concerned," stressed the coach. "We should have a strong nucleus of kids back; recruiting is going very well at this time. We've already got four commitments from kids that are some very good ballplayers.

"I have every confidence that after the (proposed) meeting with the board, any questions they have will be clarified and worked out and we can get on with the business of having a great year next year."

Western Texas concluded the season with a 15-14 record, 6-10 in conference play under the first-year coach.

"Although we didn't win as many games as we would have like to have won, it was more than most people thought we would. I've had many members of the faculty and administration tell me this is the nicest, best group of basketball players that the program here has ever had - as evidence of our basketball team having the highest grade point average of any team in the conference," he pointed out.

"From a program standpoint I think we're in very good shape and I'm very proud of our kids both on the court and in the classroom. We're going to continue to recruit and attack things as normal."

Dr. Newbury, reached this morning by telephone in his office at Fort Worth, said "I did not ask for his resignation nor did I tell him that he had been terminated", and added, "Because this is a personnel matter, I'd rather not discuss it any further."

SHS Will Host Fourth Annual Golf Tourney

Three schools representing District 2-AAAA make up the strength in the fourth annual Snyder Classic Golf Tournament, to be held at Western Texas College Golf Course tomorrow and Saturday.

The field includes last year's state-qualifying squad, Lamesa, as well as Andrews, Pecos and Snyder from loop 2-4A. Other schools include Colorado City, Seminole and possibly Coahoma.

Shotgun starts will tee-off both days of the tournament at 9 a.m. Eighteen holes will be played each day.

Snyder will chose a team from Devin Donelson, Jay Eiland, Jim and Joe League, Steve Neeley and Steve Gressett, according to Coach Mackey Greene. Eiland, a sophomore, is a returning letterman and has been leading the Tigers in most of their meets this season. Donelson, a senior, lettered two years ago.

Coach Greene indicated that he might field a second team or allow several players to compete as individuals. Among those could possibly be senior lettermen Kris Seale and Barry Blackmon, who were involved with basketball playoffs through Tuesday of this week, and freshmen Lawrene McCown, John Sullivan and Jerry Bowen.

Tournament favorite would have to be considered Lamesa, noted the coach.

"They were fifth in state last year and have done real well this spring," he said. "They won the Lubbock tournament and came in second at Big Spring to a real strong Abilene Cooper No. 2 team. They would be the pre-tourney favorite and Andrews would be next. Then the rest is up for grabs."

Snyder travels to Fort Stockton on March 20, opening District 2-4A competition. Tee-off time will be 11 a.m.

Tigers Enter Lobo Event

MONAHANS – Snyder High School diamondmen join seven other area schools - including four others from District 2-4A - for the 14th annual Monahans Baseball Tournament here today.

Snyder takes on a team which many coaches pegged as the pre-season favorite, Fort Stockton, in the late game at 7:45.

In other first-round games, Pecos and Kermit were to battle at 1, followed by Andrews and Alpine at 3:15. Seminole and host Monahans take the field at 5:30.

Victor of the Snyder-Fort Stockton clash will play again at 7:15 Friday against a Seminole-Monahans victor. Losers vie at 2:45 Friday.

Saturday's action begins at 11 a.m. with a game to detemine the seventh place winner. Consolation will be held at 4, followed by the third place contest at 1:30. The championship game will be held at 7 p.m.

Arkansas To Test Mercer As...

NCAA Hoopfest Gets Underway Today

by The Associated Press

The road to Philadelphia begins tonight when the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 43rd annual basketball tournament gets underway in such far-flung outposts as Providence, R.I., and Los Angeles, with in-between stops at Dayton, Ohio, and Austin, Texas.

Four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty will see first-round action tonight - No.16 Brigham Young, No.17 Wyoming, No.18 Maryland and No.20 Arkansas - while the other 16, led by top-rated DePaul, drew opening-round byes and swing into action over the weekend.

Tonight's lineup sends BYU (22-6) against Princeton's Ivy League kings (18-9) and Georgetown (20-11) against James Madison (20-8) in the East regional at Providence and Wyoming's Western Athletic Conference co-champs (23-5) against Howard (16-11) and Kansas State (21-8) against West Coast Athletic Conference winner San Francisco (24-6) at Los Angeles in the West regional.

The other half of the 48-team draw pits Maryland (20-9) against Tennessee-Chattanooga (21-8), the Southern Conference representative, and Creighton (21-8), winner of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, against St. Joseph's, Pa., (22-7) of the East Coast Conference in the Mideast regional at Dayton.

In the Midwest regional at Austin, Arkansas' regular-season Southwest Conference champs (22-7) meet Mercer (17-12), the Trans-America Conference tourney survivor, while Southland Conference titlist Lamar (24-4) faces Missouri (22-9), the regular-season Big Eight winner.

The first round continues Friday night at four other sites. In the East at Charlotte, N.C., Houston meets Villanova and Virginia Commonwealth goes against Long Island. The West shifts to El Paso, Texas, with Fresno State-Northeastern and Idaho-Pittsburgh on the schedule.

Friday's Mideast action will be at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where Boston College meets Ball State and Alabama-Birmingham faces Western Kentucky. In the Midwest at Wichita, Kan., Wichita State plays Southern and Kansas tackles Mississippi.

Second-round action is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday with the regional championships March 19-22 at Atlanta, Salt Lake City, Bloomington, Ind., and New Orleans. The final four is March 28-30 at the Spectrum in Philadelphia.

Blankenship Cops State Mention In College Gymnastics

STEPHENVILLE -- Tarleton State University gymnast Pam Blankenship, sophomore from Snyder, has been named the Texas Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, Division III Gymnast of the Year.

Blankenship was awarded the top Texas honor after she placed first in Class III state competition. She recorded a 33.05 all-around score at state after winning the uneven bars and balance beam, and taking second in vault and floor exercises.

For Blankenship, the award was the final payoff after a year of hard work to come back from an ankle injury.

"I lost a lot of workout time after the injury," said Blankenship, who had been favored at state but twisted an ankle and had to settle for fifth place. "I was upset with my finish at state and set my goals to be the best this year."

She began gymnastics in ninth grade and was a member of the Snyder High School gymnastics team before coming to Tarleton.

"I knew that I wanted to stay in gymnastics," she said. "I'm really surprised that I was named Gymnast of the Year, though. I've always thought of gymnastics as a team effort, so I'm really pleased and humbled to be honored this way."

FSU Players Are Hit With Charges Concerning Theft

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Six Florida State University football players, including All-America noseguard Ron Simmons, face charges that they drove up to a local department store and loaded stolen stereos and televisions.

Five of the players were arrested Wednesday. The sixth, star running back Sam Platt, turned himself in at 12:45 a.m. today, Tallahassee police spokesman Barry Bumgarner said.

All of the players were charged with being accessories after the fact to grand theft in connection with $27,000 worth of merchandise allegedly stolen from a Maas Brothers department store here, police said.

Bumgarner said Platt consented to a search of his room and police recovered a television set allegedly stolen from Maas brothers.

So far police have recovered $10,000 worth of loot allegedly stolen by a Maas employee, Robert Harris. Police said Harris, a former teammate, gave the merchandise to the players who lived in his apartment complex. Harris also was arrested.

"They allegedly went driving up to the loading dock where this guy worked and helped him unload the stuff," said Bumgarner.

Arrested Wednesday were Simmons, 21, of Warner Robbins, Ga.; Ken Lanier, 21, a senior offensive tackle from Columbus, Ohio; Tommy Young,

Dribblers Meeting

Parents who have daughters registered for Girls Little Dribblers are urged to attend a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Scurry County Boy's Club building.

The meeting is being held to inform parents and guardians of workout schedules, playing dates and other details of the upcoming season.

"We realize some people plan to attend the circus at 8, so we will try to get through quickly," said David Lunsford, association president.

Drake Among The Beaten...

Georgia Leads Charge

by The Associated Press

The Georgia Bulldogs, laden with heavily recruited schoolboy basketball superstars, know they have one weakness - the lack of what has come to be known as an "aircraft carrier," the towering center underneath the basket.

The talent of such blue-chip recruits as Dominique Wilkins, Vern Fleming and Terry Fair carried Georgia to 18 victories this season, but the fact that none of them are taller than 6-foot-7 is conceded to be the reason it lost 11.

So when the Coach Hugh Durham's Bulldogs met Old Dominion Wednesday night in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament, they stressed rebounding and came away with a 74-60 victory.

"We knew rebounding was one of their strong suits," said Fair, who scored 15 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as Georgia won the battle of the boards 47-43. "We came out ready to play."

In other first-round games, Minnesota bounced Drake 90-77, South Alabama beat Texas-Arlington 74-71, Toledo tripped American University 91-83 and Texas-El Paso nipped San Jose State 57-53. The home team was the winner in each case.

The first round continues tonight with Connecticut at South Florida, Duquesne at Michigan, North Carolina A&T at Duke, Temple at Clemson, Alabama at St. John's, Holy Cross at Southern Mississippi and Rhode Island at Purdue. On Tuesday, Dayton edged Fordham 66-65 in double overtime.

Wilkins, the Southeastern Conference's leading scorer with a 23.8 average, led Georgia with 21 points, and the acrobatic 6-6 forward also pitched in underneath with 12 rebounds.

Old Dominion shot only 28 percent in the first half and never caught up after trailing 32-20 at intermission. Leading Monarchs scorer Ronnie McAdoo scored only two points in the first half before finishing with a team-high 18.

While Georgia won with its small front line, 7-3 Randy Breuer and 6-10 Gary Holmes both scored 21 points as Minnesota, a 1980 NIT finalist, defeated Drake. The Gophers led by as many as 21 points in the second half before Drake, led by Lewis Lloyd's 28 points, cut the lead to eight before falling back again.

Rangers Rap NY Yankees

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Al Oliver's double and Buddy Bell's single drove in three runs in the fifth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 4-3 exhibition baseball victory over the New York Yankees Wednesday.

Oliver's double off Mike Griffin scored Bump Wills, who had walked. Then Bell's single to center brought home Mickey Rivers, who had singled, and Oliver.

The Yankees, trailing 4-1, rallied for two unearned runs in the ninth on RBI singles by Dennis Werth and Lou Piniella. With two on and two out, Tucker Ashford grounded out to Texas pitcher Dave Rajisch.

Rick Honeycutt, who allowed one run in the first three innings, gained the victory. Tommy John, the Yankee starter, allowed one unearned run in three innings and took the loss.

Both teams are 1-1 in exhibition play.

Wasted Water: Vital Resource Lost Down Drain

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The national faucet is leaking. Billions of gallons of water are being wasted and no one even knows how much is going down the drain.

"Water is wasted wherever it's used," says William Sharp, a conservation expert at Pennsylvania State University. There is waste in the home and at the factory. In the city and on the farm.

Consider:

—Because of leaks, 40 percent of the water delivered to Boston every day is lost. New York City doesn't know how much water it loses; many of its buildings, including residences, have no meters.

—A pinhole leak in a bathroom faucet can add up to 170 gallons of water lost in 24 hours. That's enough to fill six to eight bathtubs.

—Agriculture is the biggest user of water. Three times as much water is withdrawn from the system for irrigation as for manufacturing. Experts say that up to 30 percent of the water could be saved, but many of the conservation techniques are expensive and difficult.

It is even impossible to determine what is waste and what is not. "One person's waste is another person's livelihood," says Dr. Robert A. Clark, associate director for hydrology of the National Weather Service. Water that is "wasted" at one irrigation project may eventually find its way into streams, to be reclaimed later on.

Everyone agrees, however, that waste — in one form or another — is a problem, and, says Sharp, "The problem's going to get worse."

Figures from the U.S. Water Resources Council, an independent agency which coordinates water development and planning programs, show that in 1975, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, the country used about 400 billion gallons of water a day.

Actually, the word "used" is a little misleading, according to Wanda Phelan, a spokeswoman for the council. About two-thirds of the "used" gallons were returned to the water system through recycling programs or other means. The amount of water really consumed was only about one-third of the total.

Water usage varies, but on the average, Sharp says, a four-person household uses 225 gallons a day. Here's where it goes:

—Flushing the toilet: 100 gallons.

—Bathing and showering: 80 gallons.

—Laundry: 35 gallons.

—Dishwashing: 15 gallons.

—Cooking and drinking: 12 gallons.

—Bathroom sink: 8 gallons.

—Miscellaneous: 5 gallons.

According to Sharp, most families could cut the 225-gallon consumption figure by 25 percent — or 56 gallons — without making any real sacrifices.

Each flush, for example, uses four or five gallons. Inexpensive devices — a water-filled plastic bottle in the tank, for example, can cut that amount by up to 1¼ gallons. Water-saving toilets cost little more than conventional toilets and use only 3½ gallons per flush.

A typical shower head gushes at the rate of four gallons per minute. A five-minute shower — about average, according to Sharp — uses 20 gallons. A 10-cent flow restrictor cuts the gush to three gallons a minute. Specially designed shower heads, available from $8 to $10, reduce the rate to two gallons a minute.

A bath can use more or less water than a shower. "It all depends on how long you stay in the shower and how full you fill the tub," says Sharp. A full tub holds 20 to 30 gallons.

Leaky faucets cause a lot of waste. A steady stream of water, bigger than a drip, but still tiny, means a loss of 970 gallons a day — more than four times the average family's consumption.
