THE HOG MARKET

TODAY'S QUOTATIONS.

Choice pigs	5.50@6.00

Receipts of hogs were lighter today than the Friday runs for the past three weeks. At the opening of the market three cars were in, 242 head, but two more cars arrived in good season, and including those driven in made total receipts for the day around 450, against 588 for last Friday, and 113 for the corresponding day last month.

The market changed for the better over yesterday's slow unsatisfactory trading.

The quality of hogs was no better than on yesterday, but there was a good demand from local packers, and as outside buyers sent in for a few hogs, competition was strong, with trading active, and the supply sold out shortly after the opening of the market at steady to strong prices.

The top today was $6.15 for 76 averaging 202 pounds, with the extreme range of prices $5.60@6.15, and bulk of sales around $5.85@5.90.

HORSES AND MULES.

To L. Reinman, of Wolford & Reinman, Little Rock, Ark., belongs the honor of buying the first load of mules sold from the new stables at the Fort Worth stock yards. These mules were 1,200 to 1,400-pound animals, and are intended for railroad work. The price was not given, but Cook & Simmons, who sold them, and Mr. Reinman, the purchaser, both seemed satisfied.

Wolford & Reinman are big operators at Little Rock. They have bought over $100,000 worth of mules from Cook & Simmons alone since the first of January. They have been getting their mules from St. Louis and Kansas City, but experience has taught them that the Texas mule is better for their work, and now they prefer this market.

"Texas mules stand our climate better," said Mr. W. H. Thompson of Little Rock, who accompanied Mr. Reinman. "They go right to work, and don't have to be acclimated. They suit us better than Missouri mules, and we are coming to Fort Worth for what we want."

Cook & Cimmons got in a load of mules today from G. S. Neely, Moodie, Tex.

W. E. Barry goes east today, in the interest of the Fort Worth horse and mule market.

AROUND THE STOCK YARDS.

E. Kile of Cushing, O. T., had on the market today 79 hogs, averaging 213 lbs., that sold to Swift & Co. at $6.05.

W. H. Harrison of Belton sent in one double deck of 231 sheep, averaging 93 pounds, which sold at $3.50.

K. H. Heffington of Mill Creek, I. T., marketed today one load of hogs, and 69 averaging 184 brought $5.90, with 12 107-pound pigs at $5.60.

W. Moore, a large and well known shipper from Weatherford, O. T., had on today's market two loads of hogs. Seventy-six head averaging 202 pounds, sold to Billups & Belt of Waxahachie and topped the market at $6.15, with 59 averaging 218 at $5.85, and 28 134-pound pigs at $5.75, which sold to Armour & Co.

The commission firms have taken up the matter of getting a better rate from Northern New Mexico, and have signed and forwarded a petition to J. H. Sweet, general freight agent of the Pecos Valley and Northeastern railroad, for a through rate on live stock from Roswell to Fort Worth. At present freight rates are so high that they are shut out of this market. A great many hogs are raised in that country, that would come to Fort Worth if a rate could be obtained, putting this market on a level with others.

PROGRAM FOR THE CARNIVAL.

An Event That Will Be Worth Coming to See.

The Fall Festival, or Carnival, is an entertainment got up by the businessmen of Fort Worth to draw the people of the surrounding country to this town, and to afford them pleasure while here. Other cities have their annual fairs. It is proposed to make this Fall Festival a regular entertainment. There will be various amusements and sights that will be worth coming a long way to see, and the special rates offered by railroads will prove a further inducement for outsiders to pay us a visit. Excursion rates of $1 for the round trip have been granted by all roads for a radius of 100 miles for the Fall Festival and low rates for longer distances every day during the event.

Miss Carrie Keller has been chosen queen, and preparations for the coronation will proceed at once. Promptly at 7 p. m., Monday, Oct. 5, the queen, attended by her maids of honor, will enter the royal court, and after the coronation a program will be given by the different shows. The entire plaza will remain in a comparative darkness until the queen is crowned, when she will press the button and turn on fifty arc lights and over one thousand incandescent lamps.

There will be parades every day, commencing with the arrival of King Priscus at high noon, Tuesday, Oct. 6, accompanied by the military Elks, Knights of Pythias, etc. On Wednesday come the Red Men, Maccabees, Eagles and the flower parade.

Thursday is circus day, and the patriarch militant I. O. O. F. and A. O. U. W. will all give parades. In the evening the flower parade will be repeated with the addition of all the mounted and costumed attaches of the Forepaugh-Sells show and gilded parade wagons.

Friday, Oct. 9, will be United Labor Day, and the parades will excel those of Sept. 7 in numbers, and each union will have a float. The illuminated allegorical night parade, merchants and societies' display, it is thought, will excel anything heretofore attempted.

It is the intention of the committee to have plenty of colored fires and fountain fireworks mounted on wagons in the parade, one at or near the head, one in the center, and one at the end, to keep up a continual exhibition during the entire line of march. No rockets will be fired. On this night those who desire to do so are asked to mask and form a division in the parade.

The military will be prominent in all the parades; Capt. Brigton C. Carter and the Fencibles, Col. Cecil A. Lyon, Capt. O. Paget and his Dallas company are expected to take part in the program of the week. Ladies are working upon the Battle of Flowers, Continentals on ponies, Brownies on donkeys, and many beautiful pony rigs, all to be in the children's division of the flower parade.

Automobile enthusiasts are inviting their friends who own machines in Paris, Dallas, Waco, Sherman and other near-by cities to join them in putting on an automobile division. The packing houses have requested that they be assigned a division.

Fourteen floats are being prepared by fraternal orders, fifteen floats by merchants and manufacturers and ten by labor unions.

The line of march will be up Main and down Houston streets.

The Stadium will consist of a series of high class vaudeville and circus acts, consisting of burlesque black face team in a comical boxing match, the musical team of Holmes and Waldon, Lorenzo, the Dutch juggling butcher; Martin and Ridgway, in a comedy wire act; Zelvardo, novelty gymnast, on the whirling ladder, closing with Dare-Devil Castellane, who loops the loop on a bicycle. This show will be given at 4 p. m. and 9 p. m. daily.

Of the other shows and attractions there will be "Sidonia," in a comedy wire act, the Weber family of five acrobats and Woodson, the magician.

Negotiations are pending for the Nocona (Tex.) Ladies' Military Band. The diving children and the Ferris wheel are already in the city.

APPLES RAISED IN TEXAS.

The man who can't do things has been pretty numerous in Texas. He came here early and he was successful in making the world believe that Texas was wholly unfit for anything except raising cattle and hell. Others came after him, and when they gave a fair trial to general crops they found that the earth produced as well here as in other states, and then they raised bigger crops and less devilment than the old-timer thought of. Since then we have got to growing nearly everything we need to eat ourselves and for our cattle and hogs to eat. But it was a fixd superstition that apples could not be raised in Texas. That was the dead-line.

Like all other I-can't men, the can't-raise-apples man has had his day. Texas is now raising good apples. They are not produced on a large scale, but the fact that the men who have gone into the business experimentally have succeeded, is good enough evidence that this fruit can be produced on a commercial scale.

We quote from a late paragraph in a newspaper:

"Tilghman Graham, who is in charge of the agricultural and horticultural World's Fair collecting bureau at Fort Worth,—exhibited on the streets specimens of apples from the Erath county country, which were said by fruit men to be as fine as could be raised anywhere in the country. The varieties included Ben Davis, Mammoth Black, Arkansas Black, Winesap, Missouri Pippin, Limbertwig and Mammoth Blacktwig. Shipments from along the Rio Grande road included three varieties of apples from John Fink and three varieties of pears from Miss Lalier of Grayson county; specimens of pears and apples from Ben H. Wilson of Hood county, Duchess pears, seedling peaches, pomegranates and Japanese persimmons from Frank Fitzgerald of Brown county; seven varieties of apples from J. R. Ellis of Erath county; Keifer pears and Japanese persimmons from W. W. Kirkpatrick of Comanche; Loy and Jonathan apples and Henrietta peaches from Mrs. Charles C. Rancier of Comanche."

This is enough. If these men can raise apples, it is certain that others can. It is not possible that the scant strips of land on their farms are the only ones in Texas that will raise good apples. When a test is made, intelligently and persistently, it will be found that there are millions of acres of land in Texas that can raise as good apples as are grown in Missouri or Arkansas, and these states are now considered the best in the world for apples.

The man who sings I-can't in Texas is now an age behind his time.

TARRANT COUNTY OLD SETTLERS.

The Tarrant County Old Settlers association meeting begins today at Grunewald park, and will last three days. At 1 o'clock the first day dinner will be served. Mayor Powell will deliver the address of welcome at 10 o'clock. Col. Henry Holloway will make the response.

The first address of the afternoon will be made by Ben Deering. The principal musical feature will be a number on the piano by a woman who gave the first music lesson in Fort Worth, or Tarrant county, for that matter.

On the first night the young people will be given a dance.

Saturday the election of officers will take place at 10 o'clock, after which an address will be made by Captain B. B. Paddock. At 2 o'clock Colonel H. S. P. Ashby will speak to the audience, giving them many interesting reminiscences of the pioneer days of this county. He will be followed by several others who will also make short addresses.

Saturday afternoon will be devoted exclusively to songs and music and at night another opportunity will be given the young people to trip the light fantastic.

The last day being Sunday, the exercises will be devotional and the principal address will be delivered by Rev. Luther Little, pastor of the First Baptist church, the hour yet to be determined by the committee having the program in charge.

Colonel Harris asks that all those who will attend and bring baskets to have them properly labeled so that the committee will know what disposition to make of them when the reunion ends.

GAY TIMES IN FORT WORTH.

The Street Show and Fall Carnival in Fort Worth Oct. 5th to 10th inclusive, will be one of the most gorgeous street shows ever held in a Texas town. The association is composed of public spirited Fort Worth citizens, who have left nothing undone to make these five days a continuous round of pleasure. The cost to the visitors to take the whole show in will be so small that none will feel it. The leading merchants of this city are sending out invitations to their friends and customers in this county to come and spend a day in pleasure and sight seeing. We call attention to the ads of these firms in this week's Citizen.

The Religious Column

BY REV. J. R. GOODE.

I'm a pilgrim, and I'm a stranger,
I can tarry, I can tarry but a night;
Do not detain me, for I am going
To where the fountains are ever flowing.
I'm a pilgrim, and I'm a stranger,
I can tarry, I can tarry but a night.

Of that city to which I journey,
My Redeemer, my Redeemer is the light;
There is no sorrow, nor any sighing,
Nor any tears there, nor any dying.
I'm a pilgrim, and I'm a stranger,
I can tarry, I can tarry but a night.

There the sunbeams are ever shining;
Oh, my longing heart, my longing heart is there;
Here in this country, so dark and dreary,
I long have wandered, forlorn and weary,
I'm a pilgrim, and I'm a stranger,
I can tarry, I can tarry but a night.

The oldest religious newspaper in the world is the Christian Observer, of Louisville. It is a Southern Presbyterian paper, and is ninety years of age.

Dr. Byron H. Dement resigned the care of Twenty-second and Walnut Street Church, Louisville, to accept the professorship of Hebrew and Homiletics in the theological department of Baylor University, Wago. He succeeds the lamented Dr. R. N. Barrett.

Says the Pacific Baptist: A recent issue of a certain paper that calls itself religious was almost entirely devoted to attacking and vilifying a man whom the editor hates. Yet the editor calls himself a Christian man, but how he will meet the Lord at judgment, and have him to point to just that one issue of the paper, is a solemn thing to think about.

We see the statement that some members in a certain church which had had no prayer meeting for some time took steps to establish one. The church, however, voted that those who attended the meeting must pay the expenses of the light, fuel, etc. We have all heard of the meanest man, but it seems to us that this church takes the cake for the meanest church.—Baptist and Reflector.

Isaac Watts, who wrote in 1719 "O God, our help in ages past," is the real founder of our hymnology. Just what Luther was to the Germans, Watts was to the English churches, with this difference: While the German Christians eagerly and instantly welcomed Luther's hymns, the English folks waited nearly half a hundred years before Watts' hymns were in common use. The Baptist church, of which Benjamin Beach was pastor, where afterwards Spurgeon ministered, was divided over the question of hymn-singing, a "minority finally taking refuge in a songless sanctuary."

I was walking along one winter's night, hurrying towards home, with my little maiden at my side. Said she: "Father, I am going to count the stars."

"Very well," I said, "go on."

By and by I heard her counting: "Two hundred and twenty-three, two hundred and twenty-five. Oh, dear," she said, "I had no idea there were so many."

Ah, dear friend, I sometimes say in my soul: "Now, Master, I am going to count the benefits." Soon my heart sighs, not with sorrow, but burdened with such goodness, and I say to myself: "I had no idea there were so many."—Mark Guy Pearse.

There are so many readers of The Citizen directly interested in the Tarrant County Baptist association work that as missionary in charge, I will use the religious column to speak to them a few earnest words in regard to the work.

It is my mission to sell or distribute, as occasion requires, Bibles, testaments, religious books of various kinds, and tracts on religious subjects; also, to carry the gospel message, by house to house visiting, into homes out of touch with religious influences.

It is my purpose, within the next two months, to visit every community in the county, in an effort to enlist the cooperation of some of the best workers, by acquainting them with the work, thus enabling them to prepare the way for a more thorough and effective canvass of the community later on than would be possible by unaided effort.

It will be my purpose, as a rule, to canvass the prairie districts in dry weather, and the sandy lands in the rainy season, so you see I can't make dates for visiting very far ahead, but I will gladly give churches without pastors preference for Sunday work.

I want, for the next two months, to spend every Sunday with some church, but of course it will be understood that this must be in co-operation with the pastor and sympathy with his work.

While this is a Baptist mission, planned and sustained by the Baptist women of our county, yet it is intended in its scope to go beyond denominational lines, and, as far as possible, carry a blessing into every home in the county.

Brethren, give me, in our Master's name, your co-operation and your prayers, that a great work may be wrought in our county during the year.

J. R. GOODE,
Colporteur.

A BIG BUSINESS.

Things are moving so fast on the North Side, that it keeps even the North Fort Worthite humping to keep up with the improvements. An idea can best be formed of the rapid growth in houses, and the beautifying of the houses already built, by spending a short time in the office of the Waples-Painter Lumber Co., seeing the loads of lumber and kegs of paint leaving. It is really surprising, and a glance over their books shows a business for the past year, apparently big enough to cover the lumber and paint business for both the Fort Worth, and this county, too. The manager stated that the people out in the country seemed to be trying to keep up with North Fort Worth in building, judging by the way they were coming after lumber and paints. This firm is mighty well pleased with its business in North Fort Worth.

San Angelo Standard: A great deal of milo maize is being harvested in San Angelo now, the heads being cut off and sold separate from the stalks, which are left to produce another crop and finally find their destiny in the form of fodder. The heads bring from $10 to $12 per ton, make excellent horse, cattle and chicken feed, and yield the grower from $15 to $25 per acre, according to quality of soil and cultivation.

RAIN WAS GENERAL.

Extended Over the Whole of North, East and West Texas.

The rain that began falling in Fort Worth Monday night, increased on Tuesday and Wednesday, and gave the ground a good wetting. It was welcomed by wheat raisers and cattlemen, but farmers with cotton to pick were not so well satisfied, for it beat out and injured a good deal of the open cotton.

The rainfall extended as far north as the Territory line, and as far east as Louisiana. It was reportd as far west on the Texas and Pacific as El Paso, Midland and Colorado City. At Abilene the rainfall was 4.10 inches. Heavy rains are also reported i Runnels, Brown, Erath and Parker counties; northward to Clay, and northeastward to Grayson and Lamar; eastward to Anderson and Harrison.

The Panhandle country got a good share, as heavy rains were reported to have fallen all along the line of the Denver road, as far up as Texline. The following are a few towns of reported heavy rainfall: Abilene 4.10 inches, Corsicana 2.30 inches, Dallas 1.16 inches, Fort Worth 1.29, Henrietta 1.62, Palestine 1.52, Paris 2.20, Sherman 1.50, Waxahachie 2.90, and Weatherford 1.56.

Congressman Stephens of the Panhandle district announces that at the coming session of congress he will offer a bill for the opening by the government of a strip of land in the Red River bottoms just across the border between Texas and Oklahoma, to settlement by homesteaders. The tract comprises 280,000 acres and is said to be the richest land in that part of the Oklahoma country. This land was reserved by the Federal government when the other sections of the territory were thrown open to settlement in 1901, and ever since that time efforts have been brought to bear upon the secretary of the interior and others of the government officials to permit its allotment also. The land was reserved as pasturage lands and was not subject to entry.

NEW IDEAS ON CORN.

Importance of Breeding Corn for Special Purposes is Emphasized.

[illegible], Ill., Sept. 23.—That corn may be bred for special purposes is the opinion of Dr. Cyril G. [illegible] of Illinois Experiment Station. The results of further [illegible] on the [illegible] field. These investigations [illegible] to establish the following:

1. The kernel of corn consists of six [illegible] observable and distinctly different parts, which are known as (1) the tip (2) the hull, (3) the horny gluten, (4) the horny starch, (5) the white starch, (6) the germ.

2. The tip cap covers the tip or base of the kernel and comprises only about 1.5 per cent of the grain.

3. The hull is the very thin outer coat. It comprises about 6 per cent of the kernel, contains a lower percentage of oil (about 4 per cent) than any other part of the kernel.

4. The horny glutinous part (aleurone layer) beneath the hull surrounding the germ comprises from 8 to [illegible] of the grain (being more in high protein corn), and it contains 35 to 45 per cent of protein, [illegible] of the corn kernel.

5. The starchy part is the chief part of the corn and back of the germ, the latter being considered [illegible] of the kernel). This substance contains [illegible] per cent of ordinary starch, [illegible] abundant in low protein corn and rich in starch it contains [illegible] of protein (more in high protein corn and less in low protein corn) and contains a greater total amount of protein than any other part of the kernel.

6. The white starchy part ocupies the center of the crown end of the kernel and usually partially surrounds the egrm. It comprises about 25 per cent of the kernel (less in high protein corn and more in low protein corn.) It is poor in protein (5 to 8 per cent).

7. The germ ocupies the central part of the kernel toward the tip end. It comprises about 11 per cent of the kernel (more in high oil corn and less in low oil corn). The germ contains from 35 to 40 per cent of corn oil or from 80 to 85 per cent of the total oil content of the corn kernel.

8. High protein corn contains a large proportion of the horny parts (both of the horny glutinous part and the horny starchy part), and a correspondingly smaller proportion of the white starchy part. The horny parts comprise more than 60 per cent of high protein corn and contain about 80 per cent of the total protein content of very high protein corn.

9. The value and reliability of the method proposed in previous bulletins by which any farmer can select high protein corn (selecting for a large proportion of horny parts) by a simple mechanical examination of the corn kernels has been fully confirmed by the results which have been subsequently obtained and which are now reported in this bulletin.

10. The value of the method proposed for picking out high oil seed corn by selecting for a large proportion of germ is also fully established.

11. The degree of correlation existing in the corn kernel between the percentages of germ and protein is very slight and is frequently entirely absent, consequently the proportion of germ in the corn kernel is not a reliable index of its protein content.

12. The composition of the different products obtained from corn by hominy mills, as well as by other factories, serves greatly to emphasize the importance of breeding corn for special purposes.

REPORTED TO BE GLANDERS.

Outbreak of a Disease at Texarkana That is Feared.

What local veterinary surgeons pronounce glanders has made its appearance in the vicinity of Texarkana. A horse belonging to Robert McMickle, colored, was killed and the carcass burned by order of County Judg Watlington, after the surgeons had made a careful examination and pronounced the animal sick with glanders. This disease has made its appearance in that locality twice before in the past six years, but has never spread to any very great extent. In consequence, the alarm among horse owners is not as great as it might otherwise be.

"Talk about obstinate cattle feeders," remarked a trader to the St. Joseph Stock Yards Journal, "I know of a man in Missouri who has a big drove of cattle on hand that averaged around 1,800 lbs. a month ago. During the high time of last year he was offered $7.25 for the lot; but, thinking the market was going higher, he held onto them. He has been holding on ever since, and the Lord only knows when he will cut them loose."

STEAM PLOWS COMING.

Kansas Wheat Farmers Cannot Secure Enough Help to Put In Product.

Topeka, Sept. 26.—The first of the new steam plows are coming into service on the wheat farms of this state this fall. The farmers who have been gradually expanding their holdings of wheat land have found it almost impossible to keep farm labor enough to have the land plowed and planted in the fall. Agents for steam plows have been busy several weeks among the farmers and it is believed that the plows will be generally used within a few years.

Farm labor has been so scarce this fall that the introduction of steam plows has been an easier task than it would have been in former years. A majority of the harvest hands who came into the state in response to the call for harvesters moved northward with the harvest and the supply of laborers now available is insufficient to meet the increasing demands of the wheat raisers. Every visitor to this city from the wheat belt tells of the desire of the wheat growers to increase their acreage next year if they can get men and teams enough to plow and plant the ground.

T. B. Gerow, state free employment agent, will make an effort to ascertain the acreage of the wheat seeding this year. His annual report, to be issued within a few weeks, will contain statistics in regard to the amount of help used in the counties in the harvest and the number of acres of wheat harvested and replanted. He is receiving calls every day from farmers in the wheat belt who need men and teams. Those who ask for the assistance say that it will be impossible for them to get their wheat land seeded this fall if they do not get the help required in a short time. The wages they offer are almost as good as those paid in the harvest, and the work of seeding will last until cold weather makes it impossible to work the ground.

Mr. Gerow says that the farmers who cannot get the men and teams are beginning to find out that the expense of the steam plow, which turns over twenty acres of land in ten hours, is something that must be borne if they expect to raise wheat this year.

AGRICULTURAL FAIR IN ALASKA.

One Was Recently Held at Dawson, Which Was a Big Success.

The Yukon Agricultural and Horticultural society has just brought to a conclusion its first fair at Dawson. Though not far from the Arctic circle, the Yukon society is said to have made a successful exhibit. The following account will seem to many readers as incredible as a fairy tale, but it is set forth as sober verity by that reliable newspaper, the Boston Transcript:

Across the Yukon from Dawson one farmer is harvesting sixty-five acres of oats with all the modern appliances, while his crops of wheat, barley and potatoes are very large. Another farmer at Selkirk claims that he is making larger profits from a hundred-acre farm than his father is on a good farm of a thousand acres in Wisconsin. Doubtless both Americans and Canadians are represented in these operations, but farther down the Yukon, where it is all American territory, the agricultural opportunities ought to be as good or better than in the region immediately around Dawson. It seems to be almost conclusively demonstrated that the valley watered by that wonderful stream has wonderful possibilities, aside from mines, forests and fisheries, and these are all 'velvet,' for agricultural resources entered very faintly into the plans and expectations of those who originally started out to exploit that vast region.

A report comes from northern Indian Territory, that blackleg is very prevalent in that locality and that cattle are dying off very fast. The report is brought by a Joplin farmer who has just returned from the locality in question. He says that the fatalities are occurring very rapidly and that stringent measures must soon be pursued to stamp out the disease, else a wide area in which cattle are being fed by the thousands will be involved.

BUSINESS IN SEPTEMBER

INCREASE IN RECEIPTS OF CATTLE AND HOGS.

Sheep Show a Falling Off—Cattle Are Lower, but Hogs Show a Slight Gain Over August.

The month just closing has brought in more cattle than any other, except June, since the stock yards were opened. The run of hogs is more than double the August run, and largely in excess of the run in July. Sheep have fallen off considerably. The figures for September are here given:

Cattle	44,238
Hogs	10,058
Sheep	2,439

The run for August makes the following showing:

Cattle	36,697
Hogs	4,621
Sheep	4,333

This shows an increase for September of 7,541 cattle and 5,437 hogs, and a decrease of 1,894 sheep.

Receipts by months:

	Cattle.	Hogs.	Sheep.
January	19,157	9,841	489
February	13,135	9,022	855
March	17,870	15,077	2,432
April	30,203	19,611	29,363
May	40,668	10,709	40,041
June	47,021	16,232	24,415
July	34,913	7,065	5,991
August	36,697	4,621	4,333
September	44,238	10,058	2,439

For the year the total receipts are:

Cattle	283,904
Hogs	102,236
Sheep	110,358

The trade has fluctuated but slightly, and it is evident that this is one of the steadiest markets in the country. Cattle at the end of the month are lower than at the beginning, and hogs are even. Specifically, good fat steers are 10 to 15 lower, and light thin 20 to 30 lower. The average cow is 25 lower, though good quality cows and heifers have not suffered much, and a really prime cow would sell nearly as high now as a month ago. Calves are 25 higher. Bulls are steady to higher. Good quality feeders are about steady, others 10 to 15 lower.

Hogs are about on a level with the opening of the month. The market advanced up to about the middle of the month, when a decline set in, and it has been slowly sinking for two weeks. This movement is still going on.

The month has seen the opening of the horse market at the stock yards, with such success as to guarantee the future of that branch of the business. Though the horse and mule barns are not yet completed, stock has been set in and the stalls in the sheds are occupied. The opening sale was well attended, and the prices bid were entirely satisfactory to the sellers.

WHO MAKES THE PROFIT?

Though Cattle and Carcasses are Low, Beefsteak is High.

Eaters of beef are wondering who is making the money on the sale of their steaks. They know they are paying as much now as they paid a year ago, when cattle on the hoof were 50 per cent higher. Somebody started the cry that the packers were getting all the money, buying cattle at half their worth and selling at double their value. To this proposition the National Provisioner says:

The American meat packers have to stand all sorts of abuse, and to answer or to ignore all sorts of foolish or untruthful statements. The following is a sample of that class of it which comes from a source which should know better:

"T. H. Matkin, the well-known livestock man, has just had an experience with the beef business which has put him to thinking, and which he submits for the consideration of the public.

"At this time one year ago he bought a carload of fine cattle from Abe Sandusky, of Indianola. The cattle weighed 1,600 pounds each, and he paid $8 a hundred for them, selling them in Chicago for $8.40 a hundred. He has just had another load of similar cattle from Mr. Sandusky, bought at the same time of year, and weighing about the same—1,600 pounds each. He paid Mr. Sandusky $5.15 a hundred this year and sold them in Chicago for $5.40, exactly $3 less on the hundred than he sold the same kind of cattle at about the same time a year ago.

"That would not seem an extraordinary circumstance, as prices vary that much and more from year to year; but the extraordinary part is that the Chicago meat trust is disposing of those same cattle when dressed at 1 cent a pound more than they did a year ago."

The item is taken from the Danville, Ill., News of Sept. 9. The prices obtained for the cattle are admitted, because they are doubtless correct. The statement, however, that the packers are now selling beef at 1c. per pound more than they did last year is a senseless untruth. Any butcher could have told the editor better, and any cattleman should not need to be told so. In its issue of Sept. 6, 1902, the National Provisioner quoted prime native beeves at $8 to $8.85 per 100 pounds alive. On the same date Western dressed beef was selling at 11c. to 11½c. in the carcass. In its issue of Sept. 5, 1903, live beef is quoted at $5.15 to $5.50 per 100 pounds, and Western dressed beef at 7¾c. to 8½c. per pound. The live prices are for native steers and the dead prices for native beef. Beeves are averaging 3c. lower on the hoof than last year this time, and carcass beef is more than 3c. per pound cheaper now than then. In the face of the above commercial facts, how can one seriously assert that beef is 1c per pound higher now? If the cattlemen are getting less for their beeves, the packers are getting relatively less for their carcass stuff. The packer who pays $5.40 per 100 pounds for live beef has to sell the product at 9c. per pound to get his money back, and that is assuming that the steer dresses 60 per cent. of his live weight, which only the primest beeves do. The selling of beef in the carcass at 8½c. for good straight beef is making the butcher a present of ½c. per pound under wholesale cost. Such facts should please the public, but they bear heavy upon the beef slaughterer.

COLD STORAGE EGGS.

How They Are Tested and Kept Fresh For Months.

New York Tribune: Cold storage of eggs is one of the greatest conveniences of modern times, giving housewives eggs in abundance at a season when there would otherwise be an egg famine, and enabling the produce merchant to control the market the year round. Before this was done there was no certainty of obtaining fresh eggs except in spring and early summer, and speculators were continually arising to "bull" the market, a process which often met with abject failure. "No sooner was the market cornered than hens all over the country began laying," said an unfortunate speculator. "And there was no possible way of controlling the hens," he added, sadly. Today the price of eggs are definitely controlled by the cold storage houses.

The demand seems to be always equal to, if not greater than, the supply. It is estimated that every five years the consumption of eggs doubles, and only the success of cold storage keeps down the prices. In cold storage houses eggs may be kept for an indefinite time as fresh as if they were just laid. The secret of success in this matter lies in careful sorting and packing of the eggs in a uniform temperature.

An old picture in the Dresden gallery represents a Dutch housewife "testing eggs," and shows that the method in use today was in vogue more than 100 years ago, except for the substitution of a strong electric light for the ancient oil lamp. The interior of the egg is examined by the glow of light which shines directly through it. If a perfect ball of rosy red is found floating in clear liquid in a clear shell, the egg is fresh. If there is a slight vacuum at one end it is fresh enough for ordinary use, but not quite so fresh as the first one. Evaporation has set in, but for cake-baking and for many purposes this egg is better than a perfectly fresh one.

Finally when the egg has decomposed the yolk sticks to the shell; it is stale and unfit for use, though it may not be odorous. Eggs which this test shows to be practically fresh laid may not have been in the barnyard for months, while those that have not been properly stored will not bear "candling," though they may have been laid only a few weeks.

The cold storage houses begin to store eggs in the month of February and stop storing after the month of June until cold weather comes again. In the hot, sultry weather of August eggs, like all other perishable products, spoil easily, and are usually unfit for storage purposes by the time they are brought to market. The first eggs to reach packing houses come from the far South. In March the middle states and those near by send in their eggs for storage. In April and May eggs from the North and Eastern states reach market in great quantities. Before the end of June there are often a thousand carloads in market to be stored for the dull season "when hens will not lay."

At these packing houses the temperature is kept at 30 deg. Fahrenheit by means of pipes through which brine circulates, exactly as steam does in modern houses. The secret of storing eggs successfully consists in keeping them at only 2 deg. below freezing point, in surroundings of spotless cleanliness and in sorting those that have begun to be stale from those that are strictly fresh.

Southern Pacific Causes "Rice Revolution."

Houston Post: "Carrying Coals to Newcastle," is an old saying, but "Carrying Rice to China" is a newer one which has just been originated with the Southern Pacific railroad, for General Passenger Agent T. J. Anderson, on request, has just shipped to the Flowery Kingdom a quantity of Southern Pacific Cook Books, and the disciples of Confucius will be taught the two hundred different American ways of cooking rice, therein contained.

Mr. Anderson received a letter from a Chinese merchant of Hong Kong, requesting these recipes for cooking and preparing rice, the art of which has all along been conceded as exclusively the Jap's and Chinaman's own, but it seems the spirit of Americanism and American ideas has overspread the Orient, and this latest is an evidence of the deadly blow which has been struck at the altars of Confucius and the dethronement of the sacred traditions of thousands of years. China is the greatest rice consuming country of the world, but the contact of American influence evidently had wrought a "rice revolution," the far-reaching effects of which cannot be foreseen. The next thing, Germany will b sending to America to learn how to manufacture beer, and Sunny Italy for the best way to prepare spaghetti.

The Southern Pacific is about one of the biggest advertisers in the United States, but it looks this time as if its efforts in the art of publicity were about to batter down the impregnable Chinese wall and show the yellow Celestials how to cook even their own native staple food.

RUN OVER BY A RABBIT.

A peculiar accident occurred on the Cattwright ranch near Terrell, last Friday. Mrs. T. S. James went to the field of her husband to accompany him while picking cotton. While sitting down a jack rabbit came running at full speed and struck her with such force that she was rendered unconscious for some time and had to be carried home. The rabbit was stunned by the collision so that it fell at Mrs. James' feet and was killed before it was able to recover from the shock of the concussion.

CATTLE IN CUBA.

Consular Report.—One of the principal industries in Cuba formerly was cattle raising, and while in 1899 but very little cattle were on the island, statistics show that 288,324 cattle were imported during 1900; in 1901, 368,793; and in 1902, 267,281. A GREAT FORAGE PLANT.

ALFALFA THE MOST PERFECT OF ALL CROPS.

It is Good for Cattle, Horses, Sheep, Hogs, or Chickens—Its Blooms Make Honey.

Philip Eastman of Topeka, Kan., writes:

Alfalfa, the wonderful forage crop of the Middle West, knows no such thing as drouth. Failures in the yield are not reckoned on by the farmers. No hay grown is so nutritious as alfalfa, and with its three to five cuttings a year, its great tonnage, its fattening qualities for stock, its value as a food for honey bees and its unrivalled excellence as a feed for dairy cattle, it is looked upon as a product that every farmer must have.

Alfalfa roots go to water in almost every section where it is grown. A field once well started does not need replanting for twenty years or more. An acre cut four times in a year has yielded six and one-half tons of alfalfa hay. Some fields are mown as many as six to eight times in a year. In Kansas and Nebraska thousands of head of beef cattle are fattened on alfalfa every year. In Colorado sheep are fed alfalfa in the winter and made ready for the spring market. In many of the Middle Western states, where the dairy industry has made great strides during the last few years, alfalfa has been largely responsible for the increase in dairies and creameries.

The roots of alfalfa plants have been followed in many instances from thirty to sixty feet. Plants from two to four years old have roots from six to ten feet long. Alfalfa roots are found coming through the top of a mining tunnel in Nevada, 129 feet below an alfalfa field. With such roots the plant is a deep and gross feeder. It requires three or four years for the plant to reach its prime, and in many instances fields a quarter of a century old have shown no decrease in the yield or quality. The plant obtains its food far below the feeding ground of other plants, leaving the surface store for shallower feeders. When the deep boring roots die and decay, they enrich the soil with their own fertilizing ingredients and also leave openings through which air and moisture penetrate. The plant is a most valuable fertilizer and subsoiler as in a well set field five years old there will be found from ten to thirty roots to each square foot for each plant five feet below the surface.

The profits from alfalfa are large. Reports of profits for a season of $840, $68 ad $94 an acre have been recorded. The seed from one crop is often sold, and a 58 acre field has been reported as having earned for the owner $5,800 in a year. At Kearney, Neb., a field of twenty two acres yielded 1,000 bushels of seed, and the hay was sold for $350, a profit of $1,350 on the field. Dairy cows have made returns of $12.50 a month when fed on alfalfa. One record is of a herd of twenty calves, bought at $18 each, fed from August to December unlimited alfalfa and rations of corn, and shipped to market. They averaged 1,191 pounds each and sold on an average of $59.55, a profit of $34.35 a head, less the cost of shipping and selling. These twenty head in less than five months left a profit of $687 to pay for the alfalfa hay fed to them. The calves averaged in weight 409 pounds when bought, and gained on an average 791 pounds a head.

Experiments have shown that alfalfa is worth $8 a ton for four tons to feed 4-year-old steers, or $32 an acre. Four tons are worth $10.50 a ton to feed 2-year-old steers, or $42 an acre. Four tons are worth $16 a ton to feed yearlings, or $64 an acre. Four tons are worth $20.66 a ton to feed hogs and lambs, or $82.40 an acre. Professor Vorhees, chemist of the New Jersey Experiment Station, has determined that there is $71.15 worth of nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid (commercial fertilizers) in one acre of alfalfa plowed under for a fertilizer.

In California and Colorado the greatest tonnage of alfalfa is raised by irrigation. In Kansas and Nebraska the largest yields without irrigation are harvested on "second bottom" lands without irrigation quite as well as with irrigation. Each year the acreage is being increased.

H. D. Watson of Kearney, Neb., is one of the most extensive and most successful alfalfa growers in the West. He has a ranch of 2,500 acres of alfalfa. Before Mr. Watson went West he was an editor in the East. He published a paper in Massachusetts. He went to Nebraska for his health in 1888. Mr. Watson had been successful as a publisher, and he took $250,000 with him to Kearney. Mr. Watson had never experienced a Western boom. He did soon after he went West. He woke up one morning to find that the boom had ended as all booms end, and he had lost everything. At the age of forty-five he faced the world without a dollar. He had been accustomed to luxury. He was offered a large sum to go to New York and become the editor of a publication. He decided the he would stay in Nebraska. He had been brought up on a farm in the East, and until he was twenty years old he knew only farm work. He decided to make farming on a large scale pay.

Mr. Watson pinned his faith to alfalfa. He began a revival among the farmers around Kearney. They had planted corn on their land for years, until the land was worn out. Mr. Watson borrowed $150,000 and began. He was to pay 5 per cent interest annually. He has since been offered $100,000 for his equity in the venture. He succeeded, and he taught the farmers about him to succeed. Near him lived a man who had become discouraged and was going "back East." Mr. Watson induced the man to let him plant twenty-two acres to alfalfa for him. The man didn't care what was done with the land; he was through with it. That was in 1896. In 1900 the same land yielded a profit of $1,350. The man who was discouraged did not go back East. He stayed in Nebraska.

The purple alfalfa blossoms hold a nectar from which bees produce the best grades of honey. Many apiarists assert that an alfalfa field is superior to clover and buckwheat for bees, and that the grade of honey produced by bees feeding on the blossoms of alfalfa is of the finest; that an alfalfa field is superior to clover quality and most perfect flavor. The extensive fields of alfalfa in the prairie country has resulted in many apiaries where a few years ago the honey industry was impossible, and therefore unthought of.

Chickens thrive on alfalfa. The leaves are valuable for the coloring they give the eggs. Chickens and hogs can eat alfalfa at will, but horses and cattle are fed uncured alfalfa only in limited quantities. Horses and cattle, if allowed to eat greedily in the fields, are liable to "bloat." The stomachs of the animals swell and death results in a short time. Alfalfa hay is fed to cattle and horses from the stack without danger.

In most cases alfalfa thrives best on bench lands in a sandy loam, with a porous subsoil. It is successfully grown, however, on poorer soil, and even in clay, provided the roots are able to penetrate the subsoil. Before alfalfa is sown the land should be thoroughly disintegrated by one or two grain crops. In the fall the land should be given a deep plowing, and in the spring should be carefully pulverized with the harrow and clod crushed. The seed should not be sown until the danger of severe frost is past. Young alfalfa cannot withstand a severe frost. The sowing can be done with a grain drill, and care must be taken that the seed is not buried more than two inches. With a drill about twenty pounds of seed to an acre is necessary. If sown broadcast thirty pounds will be necessary. The making of the hay requires no small amount of skill. Care must be taken to prevent the first and second crops, each season, from moulding in the stack. The hay must be cured sufficiently to keep it sweet and not allowed to become too dry, as the leaves will shed in handling. The alfalfa may be cured in the windrow if it can be put into the stack immediately when it is ready. Often it is raked quite green into the windrows, being allowed to cure somewhat and then being put into small size cocks and allowed to stand until ready for the stack. Alfalfa does not make a safe pasture for sheep or for cattle, but horses and swine can graze upon it with safety. Alfalfa hay makes the best of feed for cattle and sheep, and they thrive on it. A ton of alfalfa hay a day will feed one thousand sheep.

FAT ALFALFA HOGS.

A correspondent of the Colorado City Stockman writes: "Out some 5 or 6 miles south of Roswell my attention was attracted from the car window to an alfalfa farm of I suppose 160 acres. This farm joined the railroad. There was, I suppose, 500 hogs in sight grazing on that alfalfa, all fat and slick, from a sucking pig up to a 300-pounder. I was informed by a gentleman who lives in Roswell, who was on the train, that the owner of the farm and hogs fed them nothing but alfalfa, and marketed them off the grass."

Autumn... Store News

It has become a recognized fact that the best advertising is simply store news; and news, to be worthy of the name, must be fresh and convey information. Such news we shall give you every week; facts of interest, and no statements that cannot be substantiated.

These first days of October you will find this store in full fall attire. We direct your attention to our ladies' ready-to-wear section, where you will find Dame Fashion's latest dictates. MONTANA RANGE GRASS INJURED.

Belated Verdancy Threatens the Supply of Winter Feed.

Chicago Live Stock World: "Considerable anxiety is being expressed regarding the injury frost has done to corn, but it isn't a marker on the havoc the same agency has played with the grass on the range," said Sam Scott, who has just returned from Northern Montana. "The whole range is green yet and as several severe frosts have occurred much of the winter supply of feed is more or less ruined. The cattleman is in a quandry. He cannot market his cattle for the reason that they are too thin, while if he leaves them on the range under present conditions they will likel exist only in skeleton form by spring time."

"This belated verdancy is serious. Never before has it been known. The season is so far advanced that thorough curing of the grass seems impossible, and when frozen in the green stage it is practically worthless for feed. It looks as though the big range outfits will go through a crucial test during the coming winter."

Cheap Rates to the Panhandle.

For the purpose of enlarging the public's knowledge of the true conditions holding in Northwest Texas (the Panhandle) "The Denver Road" has put in effect round-trip party-home seekers rates to points along its line. These rates are upon a basis of one fare for the round trip for parties of five or more persons traveling together on one ticket, and carry the privilege of stop-overs at pleasure at all points north of and including Vernon, Texas; passengers being allowed a limit of 30 days in which to return.

In view of the fact that the Panhandle is enjoying the most rapid growth of any section of Texas, for which there is ample reason, this move upon the part of "the Denver Road" is a wise one and will doubtless result in the splendid agricultural and business opportunities of that section becoming better known and appreciated within a very short period of time. This section of Texas abounds in resources, and land, being still available at very low prices, is now being rapidly taken up.

Special Rates via the M. K. & T. Ry.

SOMEWHAT IMPROVED

A More Favorable Aspect Noted in Laredo Conditions.

THREE MORE CASES.

Dr. Guiterras Says There Being but Above Additional Cases Wednesday Causes the Outlook to Be Better.

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 1.—The yellow fever situation in this city is beginning to assume a more favorable aspect, which is probably due to the good work done by Drs. Guiterras and Tabor, who are indefatigable in their efforts to stamp out the scourge.

The official report for Wednesday shows that there are three new cases and no deaths. Two cases have been reported as suspicious.

The total number of cases to date is thirty-nine, while there have been three deaths. The above figures come from Dr. George R. Tabor. Dr. G. H. Guiterras, the United States marine hospital expert, expresses himself as feeling more hopeful of the situation when Wednesday's work showed only three genuine cases.

The state and federal force are now completely organized, and the work of caring for the sick moves like clock work. The house to house canvass of the city continues, and the sanitation of all premises is being looked after as well as the cases of fever attended to. Some of the cases recently reported are now convalescent.

Dr. Tabor received a telegram from a physician in Houston, volunteering his services. The telegram stated that he had read in the press reports that Laredo was sadly in need of medical assistance. Dr. Tabor was somewhat surprised at this, as Laredo is well represented, an aggregation of the best medical talent that can be had now being there. Dr. Tabor further stated that the physicians now here have the situation well in hand, and he does not anticipate any further spread of the disease.

An effort is being made to exchange visits with the health officials at Nuevo Laredo. Drs. Garca and Trevino will probably come over, and then Dr. Tabor and either Dr. Guiterras or a representative of his will go to the other side and make an investigation over there.

It is all-important that the fever be stamped out in Nuevo Laredo before it can be stamped out in this city.

Dr. Tabor received the following telegram from the county judge of Duval county:

"Nueces county officials refuse to let trains into the county of Duval. We have been tied up for twelve days, and citizens growing desperate. We are out of food, and now appeal to you for relief. We must have something to eat, and if you cannot open this line of railroad the citizens will take matter in their own hands. Answer at once. S. H. WOODS.

"County Judge Duval County."

Dr. Tabor immediately telegraphed the Nueces county authorities stating that unless provisions were permitted to be forwarded to Duval county he would make an appeal to the governor.

Business is at a standstill on account of the existing conditions, and many houses are suffering great inconvenience because of employes leaving suddenly to run away from the fever.

AT OTHER PLACES.

Five New Cases at Nuevo Laredo, One Death at Monterey, Two at Victoria

Laredo, Tex., Oct. 1.—Conditions in Nuevo Laredo are practically unchanged. Five new cases of fever were reported Wednesday night and two deaths, which occurred late Tuesday night. The two cases which proved fatal were those of Juan Trevino and Juan Flores, two firemen, who were in the employ of the Mexican National Railroad company. According to good authority the conditions in Nuevo Lerado are improving as compared with existing conditions a week ago. However, it is stated that the authorities there are failing to screen the patients, thus neglecting to use one of the most potent preventive measures to stamp out the disease.

Advices from Monterey state there has been one death from fever there, that of William Lucas, an employ of the smelter. The physicians are divided in their opinion as to the diagnosis of the case, some claiming it was genuine yellow jack and others maintaining it was dengue.

There were but two deaths from yellow fever at Linares Tuesday and no new cases reported. The total number of patients is but sixty-seven, as compared with about 400 of two weeks ago.

Conditions at Victoria, Mex., according to an official bulletin, show there are eighteen cases with two deaths. The authorities are gradually stamping the disease and are being favored in their work by a falling temperature.

NOT COMING.

Ex-President Cleveland Will Not Make a Southern Trip.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Oct. 1.—In response to an invitation to visit the Branch Normal college, colored, here in the event of a southern tour by him, former President Grover Cleveland has written as follows to Professor Isaac Fisher, principal of the college:

"The reports in the press, indicating that I intend soon to pay a visit to the south are entirely without foundation. I have had no such intention, though I know that I would enjoy such a trip. If it were true that I were to come into the state of Arkansas I do not know anything I would rather do than pay a visit to your school."
