Would Entertain Tax Increases...

Reagan Abandons Pledge To Balance Budget In 1984

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although abandoning his pledge to balance the federal budget in 1984, President Reagan "would at least entertain" proposals to raise taxes in 1983 and 1984 if needed to reduce the federal deficit, administration officials say.

But at a Republican fund-raiser in New York on Friday, Reagan dismissed suggestions that he would bow to congressional pressure and increase taxes instead of making further cuts in federal spending.

"We made a commitment to the American people and we're going to keep it," he said. "Your tax reduction will not be rescinded; it will not be delayed; and it will not be reduced."

"We're going to keep on asking the Congress for more spending cuts until we get government costs down to within government revenues," Reagan said. "Maybe it'll take a little longer than we planned, but we're not retreating one inch."

Nevertheless, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Friday that Reagan would at least entertain" proposals for higher taxes at a later date if they appear necessary. But he said Reagan "does not look with favor on tax increases in 1983 and 1984."

"I do not want to see any change" in the tax cuts Congress passed last summer, Speakes quoted Reagan as telling congressional Republicans. "Nor do I wish to see any tax increases."

And Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told reporters that the president wants to see how close Congress can come to reducing deficits through spending cuts before he considers higher taxes.

"Later he is willing to discuss further tax increases if need be in order to get toward a balanced budget (in 1984)." Regan did not say how much later.

Congressional sources said Friday that they believed Reagan might still consider up to $45 billion in tax increases in 1983 and 1984.

That would be twice as large as the $22 billion, three-year plan the president called for in September but far less than the $84 billion plan advocated by some Senate Republicans.

Reagan told the GOP fund-raiser that high interest rates and an unexpectedly swift decline in inflation have cost the government revenues, but that won't "cause us to push the panic button."

"We came to Washington with a plan," he added. "The plan is on track even though the train is a little late leaving the station."

Prior to his meetings Friday with Republican congressional leaders, Reagan spoke of his pledge to balance the budget in 1984.

"We're going in that direction," he said. "I never said anything but that it was a goal. The eventual goal, whether it comes then or whether it has to be delayed or not, is a balanced budget."

At the same time, he conceded there have been "changes in the estimates" of economic performance in recent weeks.

Administration officials have cited the declining economy to explain the budget problems. "A very serious problem has developed and no one can figure a way out of it," said one administration source who asked not to be identified.

Regan said the president told the congressional delegation that "with the change in the economic climate and the changes taking place in spending and the like, we probably will not be able to achieve a balanced budget in 1984."

But he said Reagan "insisted that we had to be on a path that would lead toward a balanced budget...as quickly as possible."

He also said he thought the administration could hold the 1984 deficit to something under the deficit for 1981, which was $57.9 billion.

Senate Republicans who attended the meeting said they thought the president might be receptive to tax increases in 1983 and 1984.

"In my opinion, the president is willing to consider future revenue enhancements in 1983 and 1984 of a significant nature," said Senate Republican leader Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

Speakes later told reporters that Baker had a "correct impression." He said the president "is willing to entertain what has become known as revenue enhancement," namely tax increases, although his preference would be spending cuts instead.

Senate Republicans and some administration officials, principally budget director David A. Stockman, have been urging three-year tax increases of up to $80 billion to help balance the budget.

AIRSTREAMERS VISIT—When Airstream Trailer Clubbers hold a rally, they are likely to come from all over. Among those on hand for the rally here this weekend were, from left, Gilbert Griffin of Grandfalls, formerly of Snyder and past president of the West Texas unit; Hughie Adams of Plainview, president of the Plains unit, and Emmett Askins of Snyder, president of the Big Country unit. Trailer Rally People Converge On Coliseum

By late Friday, upwards of 40 units had gathered for the WBCCI Trailer Rally on the parking lot of the Scurry County Coliseum. The rally, which began Friday, was to continue through Sunday morning.

Activities planned for the visitors included tours of the Northern Electric plant in Snyder and a catered supper in the coliseum Friday night.

Saturday's activities featured a tour of the Scurry County Museum at 10 a.m., a tour of the Diamond M Museum at 1 p.m., and a puppet show by the First Baptist Church at 7 p.m. The rally will end with a devotional by Rev. Ken Coffey of the First Christian Church, Sunday morning.

The rally is sponsored by the local unit of the National Association for Airstreamers. The event attracted mostly association members from around the West Texas area. Emmett Askins of Snyder, president of the local Big Country Unit of the association, said they were expecting around 60 trailers for the event.

In addition to area trailer clubbers, the event also attracted some members from across the nation. Henry Simpson, president of Region 9 of the club, and his wife Mary made the trip down from Oklahoma City to join the festivities.

George R. Morgan and his wife Priscilla, made it through from N. Huntington, Pa, for the event. Morgan is the third vice president for the national organization.

Wales and Doris Ingram of Richmond, Va. were driving home from the west coast when they dropped in on the rally. Ingram is the past president of the Virginia unit of the club.

Weekend update

Fire Ant Invasion

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says there's little that can be done now about the fire ant invasion, but he promises an all-out war — perhaps including an aerial assault — next spring.

"If we attempt to treat the ants now we would just be throwing money away. The most cost-efficient time to treat the ants is during the spring when they are most active," Brown said Friday.

The ants, which can inflict painful stings, are dormant when temperatures drop below 65 degrees. Brown said the chemical used on the ants must be used while the ants are active.

Grain Blast

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A grain elevator explosion Friday critically burned five people in this East Texas city, authorities said.

The blast at the grain facility owned by Del-Mar Industries Inc. was reported shortly after 3:30 p.m. CST, said fire department dispatcher Lynn Joyner.

Four of the five men were carried from Longview to Dallas Friday night by two helicopters. They were transferred to the burn center at Dallas' Parkland Hospital, said Mary Corley, a nursing supervisor at Good Shepherd Hospital here.

The SDN Column

Art Feinsod sounded like he really had a beef when he called on the telephone the other day.

"I want to protest," he growled.

Expecting the worst, we asked what type of complaint he had.

"I just read the paper and saw where a truck ran into a church. I thought we (Purple Sage Motel) had a monopoly on buildings getting hit by vehicles."

That is a clue as to the kind of week it was in and around Snyder.

The First Assembly of God Church wound up with a big truck in its front door early Wednesday morning, and that evening a high pressure gas pipeline ruptured and caught fire southwest of town, causing even more excitement.

The pipeline blaze got more immediate attention because it was visible for several miles. Many Snyder residents thought the Monsanto plant was on fire, and then when they realized it was much closer to town, they thought it might have been a plane crash.

Fortunately, there were no serious injuries in either incident.

Hazel Hanback says she was especially interested in our recent column about unusual names of cities, and she passed along one she encountered.

"I was flying from Atlanta to Montgomery, Ala., and a man in the seat next to me said he was going to Slap Out, Ala., a place 20 miles north of Montgomery," Mrs. Hanback said.

"After commenting that it was an unusual name, I asked for the story of its orgin. He said the place consisted of a filling station-grocery store and a post office, and that the ranch people and sharecroppers of the sparsely populated area came there for certain provisions instead of driving into Montgomery, but the proprietor would so often slap his thigh and say, 'I'm slap out,' that everyone began saying, 'I'm going to Slap Out.' Now, mail comes there addressed to Slap Out because nobody remembers the official name of the place."

A lot of our cities and towns with more conventional names got them from wherever their first settlers came from, dating back to Colonial times. There is a New London, Texas, and another in Connecticut, where, incidentally, yours truly put in some time at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy once upon a time.

And did you know there is a Fluvanna County in Virginia, and Arkansas has a town called Dermott?

Cotton Crop Is Moving To Gins

Scurry County's 1981 cotton crop is beginning to move out of the fields.

Gins which had found little demand for their services until the past few days were beginning to operate full blast, and the pace was expected to continue to increase, provided the weather cooperates.

By the end of this week, the eight gins in Scurry County had processed more than 6,000 bales. Most of them reported that they expected the volume to increase substantially during the coming week and some were already operating "around the clock."

The Inadale Gin has been ginning on a 24-hours-per-day schedule for several days, and the Snyder Co-op Gin had put a night crew into service during the past week.

Although most observers were hesitant to speculate on the ultimate total, the crop this year is much better than that of 1980, and earlier had been compared with the record 1979 crop. However, weather conditions in October caused some damage and delayed the beginning of harvest operations.

The bale eount by gins at the end of the week:

Museum Receives Foundation Gift

The Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College has received a collection of prints, posters and mixed media works through the Martin S. Ackerman Foundation of New York City, Sharon Sutton, director, has announced.

The gift was made on behalf of several donors under a gifts-to-museum program started about five years ago. These donors include Albert Finney, noted English actor.

Participants in the program in the last few years have included Texas Christian University, the Art Museum of South Texas, and the Victoria Campus of the University of Houston. Participants in the program are from such diverse places as the University of California at Los Angeles Grunewald Center, the High Museum in Atlanta, Ga., and the Indiana University Art Museum.

The materials given to the Scurry County Museum will be displayed at unspecified times in the future, Ms. Sutton said, and are currently available for persons interested in seeing them.

The Scurry County Museum was selected as a participant through Terrell Hillebrand, director of the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston. The Blaffer Foundation has made traveling exhibits available to the museum and will be sending the Golden Age of Painting exhibit here in May.

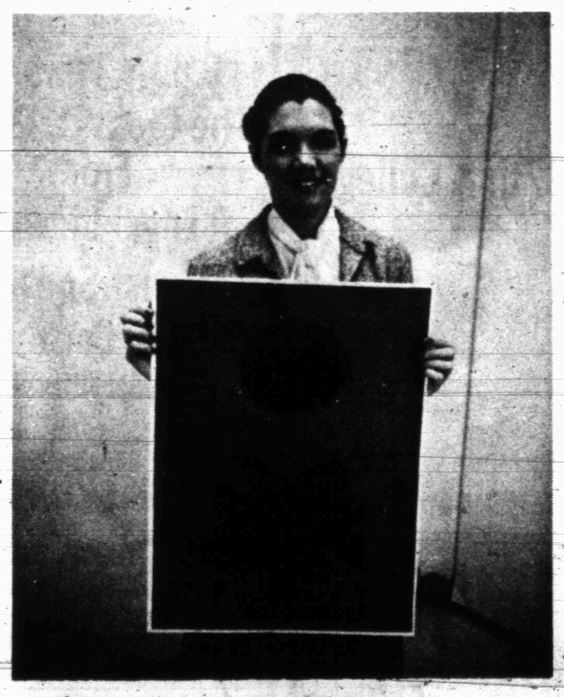
Water Suit Funds Voted

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Legislative Council unanimously approved Friday a $190,000 grant for New Mexico's defense in a water rights lawsuit brought by El Paso, Texas, saying no amount would be too great to spend on the landmark case.

"To show the state of Texas that we mean business, I don't think the $190,000 is a drop in the bucket to where we would go," said Sen. Joseph Gant, D-Eddy, in urging fellow legislators to support the request.

The lawsuit involves El Paso's challenge of a New Mexico regulation that prohibits the export of ground water across state lines.

The regulation is blocking El Paso's plans to drill wells in southern New Mexico.



MUSEUM GIFT—Sharon Sutton, director of the Scurry County Museum, displays an Adolph Gotlieb lithograph titled "Grey on Black" which is included in a new collection given to the museum recently.

Ask Us

Q.—After moving here from the Northeast, we were shocked by the great distances the Snyder High School football team travels for its games. Wouldn't it be easier on the team and more economical to play teams closer to Snyder.

A.—Yes, and it would be easier on the fans, too. But there simply are not enough schools of comparable size in this area to get games close by. The University Interscholastic League, which governs high school competition in Texas, lines up the conferences, or districts, and teams in the same district must play each other. The UIL classifies schools for competition on the basis of enrollment so that teams will not be outmanned.

Snyder School Rolls Fluctuate

If activity in area oilfields reminds oldtimers of the "boom days" of the late 40s and early 50s, there are other factors that tend to confirm it.

Local school officials report that enrollment figures this fall indicate that there is considerable movement of pupils in and out of the district.

Figures compiled by the administration show that a normal week will see a change of more that 50 students. Usually, there is a net gain, but not always. However, overall figures continue to show enrollment this year above the 3,500 mark.

The total stood at 3,508 Nov. 6, compared to 3,475 a year ago.

For example, enrollment figures for the week ending Oct. 9 show that 32 new students enrolled that week, while 21 students withdrew, resulting in a net gain of 11 students for thwe week.

The following week, there were 33 new students and 20 withdrawals for a net increase of 13 students. But for the week ending Oct. 23, there were 25 new students and 31 withdrawals for a net decrease of six.

All grades are involved in the movement, with the lower elementary grades having slightly more turnover than the higher grades.

In Amarillo...

Rape Investigation Bogged Down

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Detectives say they have no simple, fast or easy solutions to the brutal Halloween slaying of an elderly Catholic nun and say it may be January before they make any progress in the investigation.

Tests comparing fibers found on Sister Tadea Benz' gown and sheets with those taken from a Cuban refugee were negative, said Amarillo police Capt. Jimmy Davis.

Police have been questioning the refugee, who was arrested in the attempted rape of a 21-year-old woman on Halloween.

However, Davis said other fiber tests are continuing.

The 76-year-old nun's body was found in her convent room on Nov. 1. She had been beaten, stabbed and raped repeatedly and strangled, police said.

"There's no quick or easy solution," Davis said. "We're looking at maybe Jan. 1 just to eliminate some things and start to work on some others."

Detectives, using a revolutionary new laser device which can detect fingerprints on materials traditional procedures cannot, discovered a partial print on the wooden handle of a knife found in the nun's bedroom.

Police have been trying to compare the partial print with those of 47 Cuban refugees in Amarillo.

However, Police Chief Jerry Neal said Catholic Family Services had refused to provide investigators with records of other Cuban refugees. Neal said the records may be protected by a federal privacy law.

"We'll just try another route," said Neal, who has said that 24 of the Cubans brought to Amarillo by the private relief organization have been arrested for various crimes since their arrival.

Investigators said they also drew a blank when they questioned under hypnosis a 77-year-old woman thought to have been the victim of a beating and rape.

Davis said the woman had not been raped and doctors now think she may have been injured in a fall.

"The hypnosis didn't tell us much, and we now think it's because she had nothing to tell," Davis said. "We still are not assuming anything one way or another."

Davis said anything in the nun's room that the killer might have touched is being examined by the FBI's crime lab in Washington.

He said all the evidence will be examined there first before being subjected to the laser. He said the evidence will have to be treated with chemicals before it can be scanned by the laser, and investigators don't want to risk damage to evidence before it is thoroughly examined by the FBI.

Crochet Classes Are Scheduled

Beginning and intermediate crochet will be taught in a continuing education course starting November 11 at Western Texas College.

Classes are to meet from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays through November 25, a total of six hours of instruction. Fees will be $15 per person.

Beginning students are to purchase supplies at the Needlepoint in Cogdell Center in advance of the first class meeting, while intermediate students may bring supplies already in use or purchase new supplies.

Dorothy Woolsey will be the instructor for the class, which will be limited to 15 students. Minimum enrollment is 10.

To reserve space in the class, students must call the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240. Registration will be held at 6:15 p.m. on Nov. 11 in the lobby of the Learning Reseource Center.

Joe Fowler Buys Insurance Agency

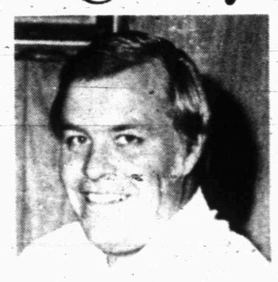
Joe Fowler has purchased controlling interest in the Sullivan-Stanfield-Fowler Insurance Agency in the Snyder Shopping Center.

He said the firm will continue to operate "as is" and that the name will remain the same, at least for the near future.

Guy Sullivan, founder and head of the agency since 1956, will continue to maintain an office in the same building where he will deal in health and accident insurance.

Fowler joined the firm in 1976, coming here from Pasadena, Tex., where he was operating his own insurance agency. However, he was not new to Snyder, having graduated from Snyder High School in 1961 and married the former Donna Shearer, also an SHS graduate.

Following graduation from high school, Fowler attended North Texas State University, and then was employed briefly in Albuquerque, N. M. He then joined Halliburton and remained with that firm for four years at Rankin. He went from Rankin to Pasadena, where he was employed by Colonial Pipeline, and in 1969 joined Floyd West and Co. as an insurance adjuster. He opened the Joe Fowler Insurance Agency in Pasadena in 1971 and operated it until he returned to Snyder in 1976.



JOE FOWLER

The Fowlers have two sons, Jimmy Joe, a freshman at Texas Tech, and Jeffery, a junior at Snyder High School, and a daughter, Lezli, a third grader at West Elementary School.

Fasting diet is unwise

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a friend who is on a diet. He eats no food at all and just drinks water for two weeks. After 10 days he is still OK. As you don't recommend unsupervised diets, could you please comment on what the effects could be?

DEAR READER — That is very foolish. Anyone who has listened to the news about the fasts in Ireland should know that you can die from such a practice if it is continued long enough.

At the beginning of a fast, as you are describing, the body will lose a lot of normal body water and wash out needed body salts. That causes weakness and a tendency to faint. It also causes severe fatigue.

The person may not have an excessive appetite as you would imagine. The hunger center seems to be shut off because of the chemical derangement of the body. The loss of water and salt makes a person think he has lost a lot of weight — and he has, but it is water, not body fat. He is like a wilted plant that has dried up from lack of water.

During the fast a person will lose about a half pound of muscle and a half pound of fat a day, plus water. We know that because the protein that comes from the muscle and is used for energy releases nitrogen in the urine. By measuring the nitrogen we can calculate how much protein was used for energy.

The Health Letter number 16-2, Dangerous Dieting, which I am sending you, explains this.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Eventually the fat is gone and the person starving will have used a lot of muscle. He will begin to look like the skeletons from the concentration camps. Because of the low protein in the body, water will start to accumulate causing the swollen limbs and belly.

Fat can deposit in large amounts in the liver causing liver damage as well. The total picture is pretty grim. Now, two weeks will not do all of this but it is dangerous and particularly so if a person has any underlying medical problem. It is far better to decrease your calories a little, increase your exercise and lose weight slowly. You are more likely to keep the body fat off that way, too.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On the topic of caffeine, I am surprised that you have not recommended Postum as a substitute for coffee or tea. Mr. Post of cereal fame invented it because he felt people who worked for him drank far too much coffee and there should be a healthy substitute. I enjoy a pint thermos of Postum at my desk job, made with a spoon of sugar and some milk. It bridges the gap from breakfast to lunch quite nicely.

DEAR READER — I used to drink it as a child. It certainly does not cause the problem posed by consuming too much caffeine. Some people might not like the idea of a sweet drink — coffee, tea or Postum. The milk is good as a source of protein and calcium.

I would suggest that many people might prefer to make their Postum drink with far less than the amount included on the label, but that is a matter of taste. It is sometimes hard to find Postum but many stores still carry it.

VA Compensations Will Be Hiked

The Veterans Administration has announced increasing compensation amounts for approximately 2.3 million veterans, along with 240,000 surviving spouses and about 83,000 children of deceased veterans in November, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer said.

The increase and other improvements in veterans benefits are the result of a law signed by President Reagan on October 17. It provides for an average 11.2 per cent increase in VA compensation rates for service-disabled veterans and dependency and indemnity compensation for surviving spouses and children of spouses.

VA officials said the increased amounts will not be reflected in the regular November checks but will be reflected by supplemental checks issued shortly after the first of the month. The full amount of the increase will be included in the single monthly check beginning in December.

The rate boost means an increase from $54 to $58 per month for a veteran with a disability rated at 10 per cent. A veteran with a 50 per cent disability will receive $328 a month, up from $291, and a veteran with a 100 per cent disability will receive $1,130 a month, up from the current $1,016.

The legislation also permits VA to guarantee, for the first time, graduated payment home mortgage loans and increases to $32,000 the assistance the agency may provide to certain disabled veterans for adapting their residences for their special needs.

Information about veterans programs may be obtained by contacting Dever's office in the Western Texas College administration building.

Dear Abby

Fly-by-Night Boyfriend Needs Pinning Down

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm 70 and have been a widow for two years. My husband owned a tavern and we both worked there. Lou, a regular tavern customer, started coming around to see me right after my husband died, and we really got stuck on each other. Lou is 55 and knows my real age, but says he doesn't care about the age difference — he loves me anyway.

Now the problem. I fix him supper every night, but this love affair doesn't seem to be going anywhere because Lou has to be home every night by midnight. He says he lives with his sister, who's 62, and his mother, 83, and they need a man in the house. I've never been to his house or met his mother and his sister. He says they're kind of weird and not very sociable.

Abby, I just sold my tavern and I want to get married and travel some. Lou doesn't want me to go with any other men.

What should I do? Lou says I should give him more time. How much time should I give him?

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Until tomorrow. Tell him you don't care how "weird" his mother and sister are, you want to meet them anyway. And if he doesn't arrange a meeting pronto, kiss him goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 12-year-old girl, and our family just recently moved from a big city to a small town in the country. We really do love our home in the mountains.

The only thing that bugs me about our new home is that hunting is the name of the game here. Everybody hunts deer and elk. My dad is the only man in town who has any respect for wildlife. These animals don't hurt anybody, Abby. They're actually afraid of people. When I look out the window and see those beautiful deer walking across our property, then think of all the hunters out looking to kill them, it just makes me sick!

We sit in our house and hear gunshots every day. The hunters around here don't care about anything else. They shoot at anything that moves — or whatever chases their target away. That's why so many dogs have been killed around here. I'm scared to leave my dog out during the day. Abby, how can people kill such beautiful wildlife?

DISGUSTED IN SEQUIM, WASH.

DEAR DISGUSTED: I don't know, but I've heard that hunters actually do a "kindness" by killing those beautiful animals swiftly with a bullet — otherwise they would die of starvation or overexposure. It may be true, but I still can't buy it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going out with the same wonderful guy for five years, and he absolutely refuses to go to bed with me! We are both over 21 and we love each other, so this doesn't make any sense to me.

We are planning to marry, and he wants to wait until we are married, but I feel that sex is such an important part of marriage we should make sure we can get along in bed as well as we do out of bed. Abby, I am not a dog; I'm an attractive part-time model.

I am sure he's not gay — he just has these old-fashioned ideas. Please tell me what to do.

WAITING PATIENTLY

DEAR WAITING: Keep waiting. And thank your lucky stars for your wonderful old-fashioned guy. If you really love each other, you'll get along fine in bed. And should there be some kind of sexual dysfunction, there is always Masters and Johnson.

World WarAce Recalls Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — The old flier put on his hearing aid and remembered how it was to go to into the Great War with only 90 hours of flight training — and end up shooting down 13 of the Kaiser's aircraft.

George Vaughn, 84, downed more aircraft — 12 planes and one balloon — in World War I than any other living American. He arrived at Kennedy Airport on Friday along with eight other aces and the last surviving member of the famed Lafayette Escadrille.

After getting reacquainted at a reception, the old fliers boarded a jetliner headed for Paris and an Armistice Day reunion with 31 other former aviators, both friend and foe, in a tribute led by the president of France, Francois Mitterrand.

Joining Vaughn were Douglas Campbell, 85, of Cos Cobb, Conn., the first American serviceman to down five planes and win the title of ace; and Carl Dolan of Honolulu, at 85 the last surviving member of the Lafayette Escadrille. The Escadrille was a group of American volunteers who flew with the Allies before the United States entered the war.

"I was in college and said to my buddies, 'Let's go over and save France,'" Dolan said with a laugh. He is not an ace, since six of his eight dogfight victories were unofficial.

They were also joined by Robert Todd, 84, of San Diego, who destroyed five German planes before he was shot down and captured in 1918.

The men described history's first great air battles as personal duels in which men were more important than machines and pilots got close enough to see the color of their foes' scarves.

They discussed the relative merits of Sopwith Camels, Spads and Nieuports and recalled comrades killed weeks before the armistice on Nov. 11, 1918.

And they showed their age: Ernest Hoy, 86, of Toccoa, Ga., checked out of a hospital and arrived in a wheelchair. Kenneth Porter, 84, of Queens, who downed five enemy aircraft, limped a bit.

Eyes that once spotted enemy planes while they still were specks in the sky now require spectacles, and hands that gripped the throttle shake a bit.

But "they're survivors," said retired Air Force Col. Rick Glasebrook, a military historian. "Something keeps them going. You can see it in their eyes."

In World War I, the flyers said, the pilot's job was simpler yet more difficult than today.

"Then, all you had to do was fly the plane and shoot the guns," said Vaughn. "The big difference was what we didn't have — parachutes, wheelbrakes, instruments, radios.

"Now," he added, "everything is written down, prescribed and settled beforehand. I don't mean today's pilots aren't great, but now it's all in the technology."

Vaughn got his first kill in June 1918. "I didn't see the fellow (the German pilot) and he shot my tail full of holes before I knew he was there. He thought he'd gotten me and flew away. But I followed him and got him."

Campbell shot down the first German plane he ever saw on his first battle flight — which lasted 4½ minutes from takeoff to landing, and came after he had completed only 50 hours of flight training.

"Back then, we used to get within 100 feet of 'em. Now, you can shoot down another guy without ever seeing him," Campbell said. "Radar tells you where he is, steers you to him, tells you when to shoot at him and whether your rocket hit him."

Raymond Brooks of Summit, N.J., Duerson Knight of Rossmoor, Calif., William Thomson of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., and Donald Paton of Palm Beach, Fla., rounded out the party of pilots headed to Paris.

They said they were looking forward to meeting German pilots with whom they might have fought. But what does one say to a man who was trying to shoot you down 63 years ago?

"You laugh about it," said Vaughn. "You slap him on the back, buy him a drink and laugh about it."

WTC Joins Colleges In Observing SpecialWeek

Western Texas College will be joining other community colleges through the state in observing Texas Community College Week Nov. 15-21.

Gov. William P. Clements has designated the week as Texas Community College Week, urging all Texas citizens to be cognizant and supportive of this "excellent public source for quality, low-cost, post-secondary education."

Texas Community colleges are exemplary institutions, considered among the nation's leaders, the governor's proclamation states, contributing to the cultural and intellectual environment through the endeavors of their faculties in sharing their talents and knowledge.

"These colleges are located within commuting distance of more than 90 percent of the state's population," the proclamation continues. "More than one-half million persons annually enroll for credit and non-credit classes in the 60 Texas Community Colleges. The colleges bring educational advancement within the reach of all persons and segments in the community through specialized programs and services such as those for physically handicapped and educational and economically disadvantaged students."

Police Report Labeled Hoax

An assault-robbery-kidnapping report Friday night turned out to be a hoax, the police department reported.

A man reported that he had been assaulted and robbed of $3,000 and that a three-year-old child had been kidnapped. Police took the man to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment of some minor injuries and in questioning him further learned that he had been in a fight with another man over a woman and that there had been no robbery or kidnapping.

No charges were filed in the case.

A theft was reported by Netha Roggenstein, who called police at 11:05 p. m. Friday and told officers two checkbooks, a drivers license and $1 were missing from her car parked at Strayhorn Motel.

Police also jailed two persons on public intoxication charges Friday night.

Vandalism Found At Ira Schools

The Scurry County Sheriff's Department is investigating a criminal mischief complaint at Ira Public Schools and a robbery report.

Officers were called to the Ira School late Friday night to inspect some vandalism. They reported that obscenities had been written on doors to the school gymnasium and on bleachers at the football field.

A man reported to officers that a sum of money had been taken from him at gunpoint as he was leaving a local car lot late Friday. Officers said they had learned that there had been a dispute between two men over an alleged debt, and that the case was still under investigation.

Veterans Day November 11

Veterans Day 1981 marks the fourth anniversary of the return of the observerance to November 11 and the tradition honoring the unknown soldier at Arlington on the 11th day of the 11th month.

From 1971 to 1975, Veterans Day was observed on the fourth Monday in October in compliance with a 1968 law that changed most national holidays to Mondays, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer said.

In 1975, Congress responded to a public feeling that the November 11 date was too significant too abandon.

Effective in 1978, and on the 60th anniversary of the World War I armistice, a law was passed returning the holiday to November 11.

With the return of the observerance to the armistice date of that "war to end all wars," this year's observerance is a means to pay tribute to the 1,081,000 Americans who have died in the defense of their country in all American wars since 1776 and to the more than 30 million former servicemen who served during both war and peace, Dever stated, adding, "More than half of the men and women who have worn their country's uniform in wartime are still alive. Of a total of 38,924,000 war participants, going back to the earliest days of the nation, 25,789,000 are still living."

Schools Plan To Immunize

Snyder Public Schools will conduct a program for measles immunization to comply with recent directives of the Texas Department of Health.

Several outbreaks of measles have occurred this year in different parts of Texas. Because of the serious nature of the outbreaks, the Texas Board of Health adopted revisions to the measles immunization requirements the past July.

These new rules became effective Sept. 1 and require all students through grade 12 to be immumnized with measles vaccine. An additional rule required that the dose of measles vaccine must have been received after Jan. 1, 1968. The immunization requirements apply to all students entering, attending and-or transferring to public, private or parochial schools.

Exclusions from the rules are allowed on an individual basis for medical contraindications and religious conflicts.

On Monday, Nov. 9, the Snyder Schools will send letters of explanation and the necessary forms to parents of children now enrolled in high school whose health records indicate a need for the required measles immunization.

The Snyder Independent School District, in conjunction with the Scurry County Health Unit, will provide and administer the measles vaccine free of charge on the date to be established in the near future.

Three Enter Guilty Pleas

Three persons entered pleas of guilty in the 132nd District Court, Thursday.

Johnny Ramon Gonzales pled guilty to charges of possesion of a controlled substance. He was sentenced to spend 2 years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Don Odell Williams entered a guilty plea to charges of burglary of a habitation. Williams drew 10 years probation for his offense.

The other guilty plea was entered by Larry Wayne Martin. He pled guilty to charges of possesion of marijuana, more than 4 oz. Martin was sentenced to 5 years probation.

The Honorable Wayland G. Holt presides over the 132nd District Court in Snyder.

Defector To Return Home

LONDON (AP) — A 20-year-old Romanian soccer play who twice changed his mind about defecting will return home today, British authorities said.

Gheorghe Viscreanu asked for asylum in Australia after defecting last month during the Junior World Soccer Cup games. He agreed to return home when Romanian officials assured him he would not be punished and was put aboard a plane for London.

In 1966, heavy rains caused two days of landslides which killed 400 persons in Rio de Janeiro.

Wins Post By Only One Vote

ISMAY, Mont. (AP) — Ray Shipman won the mayoral election by a solid percentage, but if one voter had switched at the last minute, it would have cost him the election.

Shipman won with three votes, while Berdette Askin ran second with two.

This eastern Montana community, has 17 registered voters.

The Glenn Toombs Family wishes to thank all the many friends in Scurry County and the surrounding area for your cards, flowers, calls and visits over the past month and during our loss. Your love and prayers mean so much. God bless you.

Scurry County Museum Will Be Conducting Membership Drive

The Scurry County Museum will be conducting a membership campaign throughout the month of November and extends an invitation to the public to tour the building during open house programs planned for Nov. 8, Nov. 15 and Nov. 22.

Members of the Museum Association's board of directors will serve as tour guides at each open house, and will be showing visitors through the storage and work areas on the lower level as well as through the permanent exhibit gallery and the multipurpose exhibit areas on the main floor.

"We want Scurry County people to feel at home in the museum and we need their support to carry on the programs planned by the museum," Sharon Sutton, museum director, said. "We will try to answer any questions visitors have about the building, the operation of the museum or whatever else they might like to know during these open houses planned on Sunday afternoons to give visitors ample time to take a leisurely tour."

The Scurry County Museum building contains 14,000 square feet and was constructed at a cost of $369,400. Open house for the structure was held on Aug. 2, 1974, when the building was completed, and dedication ceremonies were held during the Bicentennial and the county's Centennial celebrations in 1976.

The building is located on the campus of Western Texas College, but its operations are directed by a board of directors, Ms. Sutton explained. She has served as director of the museum since Aug. 1, 1976. A native of Michigan, she came to Snyder from Texas Tech University where she had received her master of arts degree in museum management.

Every membership is important to the museum, Ms. Sutton stressed.

"Funds from membership fees, memorial gifts and donation are used to pay for our exhibits, school tour programs, the cost of restoring and preserving items in our collection, the supplies and equipment for our work shop, the insurance we are required to carry, and the programs we present to the public.

"The museum is grateful to the Scurry County Commissioners Court for the funds it has allocated ($21,800 for 1982), but this does not cover all of our expenses. That money goes for salaries and does not cover day-to-day operating expenses. WTC owns and maintains the building itself and pays the salary for the museum secretary, Doris Byars."

Persons interested in becoming Museum Association members are invited to send dues to the museum at Box 696 or to call the office for information at 573-6107. An individual membership will be $15 per year under a new schedule set this year, with family memberships $25. Donors who contribute $500 or more will be recognized with a plaque on the Donor Wall in the museum lobby. Membership offers several advantages, including discounts on items purchased in the museum gift shop and on tickets to special events, discounts on fees for workshops sponored by the museum, special invitations to previews of new exhibitions and a subscription to the museum newsletter. Perhaps most important of all, they can know they are taking an active part in preserving local heritage.

The museum is open each weekday and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. on Sundays without admission charge. It will be closed from Nov. 26-29 for the Thanksgiving holiday.

By BILL McCLELLAN

MONAHANS -- Monahans Loboes cashed in on a pair "unearned runs" to take a lead here Friday night, then fought off a fiesty Snyder squad to win 33-23 in District 2-AAAA grid action.

The Loboes conclude their season next week against No. 9 ranked San Angelo Lake View, while Snyder tries to repay a debt to Fort Stockton.

Monahans was benefitted by two blocked punts - one for a touchdown - which was to ultimately determine the difference in the contest. A little trickery from the Tigers put Snyder on the boards first, but the blocks gave the hosts a 14-7 halftime lead.

The second half was pure offense as neither team was able to stop the other, making the contest an exciting and enjoyable one for the fans.

Snyder caught the Loboes napping from the start of the ballgame as [illegible] old sleeper play. The play, which took Snyder from its 21 to the Monahans 4, was set up on a two-yard run by Mark Shaw. Snyder returned to the line slowly, but quickly fell into place and snapped the ball without a huddle. Parham, left alone after the ensuing play, was still split wide. He took Beck's toss and rambled to the Monahans 4-yard line before being dragged down. Two plays later Raymond Jeffrey scored from a yard out, and with 10:43 still left in the opening period Perry Echols tacked on the conversion.

Snyder stopped Monahans on its first offensive possession, and took over again, but a fumble on first down put the visitors in a hole they couldn't get out of. On fourth, Chad Peterson's punt attempt was blocked by Danny Tarango. The ball bounced at the 13-yard line and Gary Nawl was there to scoop it out of the air and carry it on in for Monahans' first TD. Mike Campbell's conversion kick with 7:04 left tied the game at 7-all.

Neither team was able to sustain a drive for the rest of the first period but the [illegible] Snyder was unable to gain a first down near midfield, the Tigers elected to punt again. This time Randy Roark got past blockers to [illegible] recovered it at the 19.

It took the hosts eight plays to cash in on the gift, but with 7:09 left in the half quarterback Monte McGuire [illegible] goal from inches away. Campbell's kick was good.

Monahans threatened again late in the half as McGuire teamed with Merv Scurlack for a 16-yard pass to the Snyder 42. The Loboes reached the Tiger 22 before a delay penalty pushed them back. Snyder then stopped them on a fourth and nine.

Both teams scored on their opening drives of the third quarter. Monahahans took the kickoff and marched 57 yards in eight plays with 6-4, 220-pound back Ricky Boysaw doing most of the work. The scoring play came with 9:18 left as McGuire hit Scurlark on a 28-yard pass and run. Campbell booted the PAT.

Snyder showed its character in retaliating with a touchdown of its own. The Tigers drove 68 yards in 12 plays, scoring on a 2-yard run by Jeffrey with 3:56 to go in the quarter. Snyder set up to boot the extra point, but executed the fake for two points as holder Darryl Boone passed to Shaw.

The drive was highlighted by runs of 16, 3, 6, 11, 2, 8 and 2 yards from Jeffrey, and a 12-yard pass from Beck to Parham.

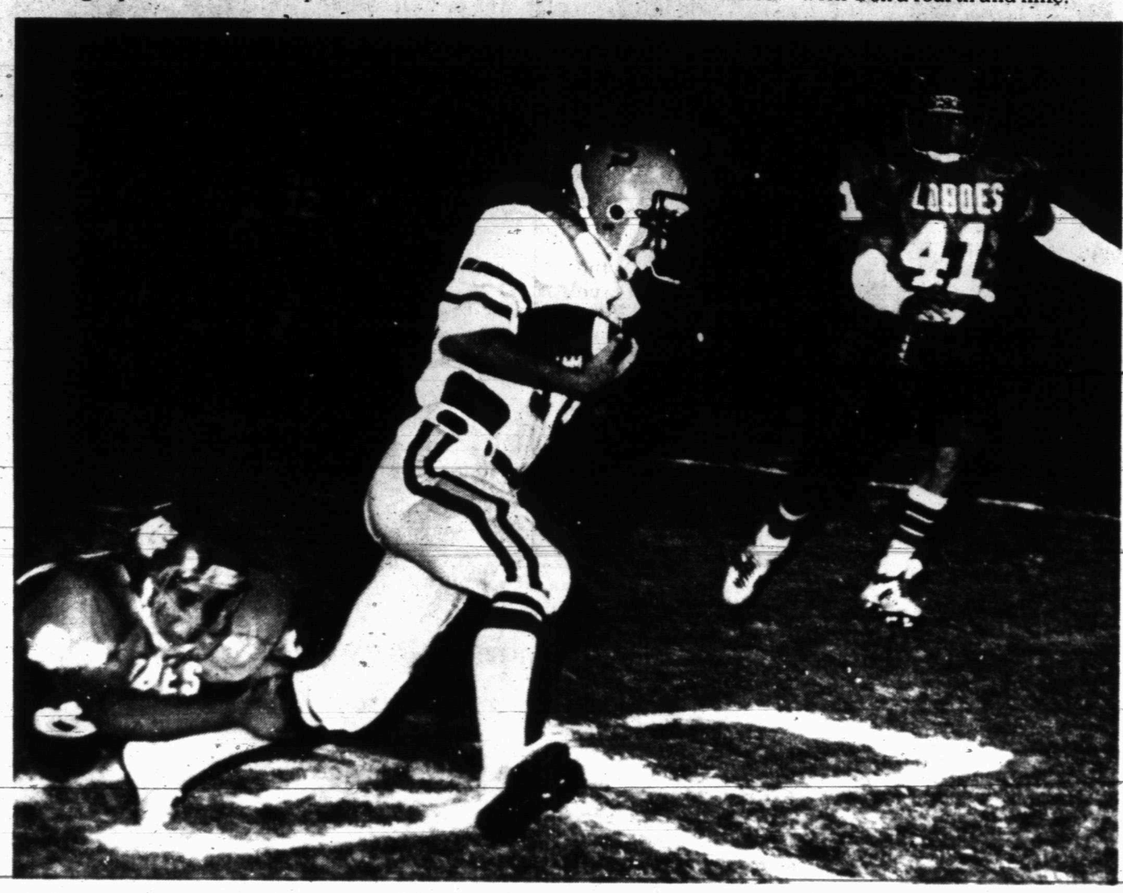
Monahans didn't let up either, however. The Loboes scored just one minute and 41 seconds later on a 5-yard run by McGuire. The key to the 74-yard drive was a 59 yard run by Boysaw, who broke through the Snyder line on a third and two play and rambled to the Tiger 7 before Parham ran him down. Monahans tried a two-point conversion after the TD, but McGuire was cut down short of the line.

Monahans added its final score with 5:22 to go in the [illegible]. The Loboes pushed the ball 86 yards in 10 plays, scoring on a 1-yard run by Mike Starnes. Campbell's kick failed. The march was aided by a 20-yard pass from McGuire to Tarango, a 20-yard run from Scurlark, and 26 yards on two rushes by Boysaw.

Snyder closed out the scoring with a 76-yard, 7 play drive. Two pass plays, 7 yards from Beck to David Miller and 12 yards from Beck to Shaw, teamed with a pass interference penalty to put the Tigers at the Monahans 46. On the next play Snyder executed the delay screen pass to Jeffrey. A Lobo defender tipped the pass but it went through into Jeffrey's hands and the senior found running room for the distance. Beck hit Parham for a two-point conversion pass, ending the scoring with 2:27 left.

Snyder never punted in the second half, but did turn the ball over to the hosts on a fourth down play that didn't convert. After banging their way 59 yards to the Lobo 14, the Tigers were unable to gain a first down and Monahans took over.

Snyder plays its final game of the season at home Friday, looking for a turnabout against Fort Stockton, the team which defeated the Tigers 57-0 last year.



SNARED -- Snyder's Casey Peterson is snared by a Monahans defender as he reaches the 30-yard line in District 2-4A football action played Friday night. Peterson had 54 yards on 12 carries while teammate Raymond Jeffrey had 91 yards and three TDs on 22 rushes and a 46-yard pass completion. Monahans won the contest, 33-23. (SDN Staff Photo)

Byerly Pleased With Effort; Looks Forward To Panthers

Snyder Coach George Byerly wasn't exactly overwhelmed with glee at his team's 33-23 loss to Monahans Friday night, but he wasn't in the dumps, either.

"Our kids never let down. I think we were more excited about playing this one than we've been all year long. Those blocked punts hurt us, but we showed a lot of character, I thought, in playing hard for the whole game."

After Snyder scored first, Monahans took advantage of two blocked punts to go ahead 14-7 in a defensive-minded first half. The second two quarters was anything but defensive however, as both offenses had several long drives.

"We knew Monahans had a tremendous offense. They do so many things well we were just unable to stop them," said Byerly. "We knew going in it was going to be tough."

Monahans has only one loss on the season, a 21-14 defeat at the hands of No. 5 ranked Andrews.

"I would like to say that the players and the coaches appreciate the people that made the trip from Snyder last night," he said of the approximately 50 Tiger followers. "I was told by a former Monahans head coach though that our kids deserve better support for the effort they put out. Hopefully we'll get that support for our final game against Fort Stockton next week."

Fort Stockton humiliated the Tigers 57-0 last year, and it's no secret Snyder is eager to play the Panthers.

"I wouldn't call it revenge. It's just that I'd think we have a lot of incentive for next week. It's a matter of pride," said Byerly.

Kick-off time next Friday is 8 p.m. at Tiger Stadium.

Cat Teams Stop Lamesa 8th Grade

Snyder eighth grade football teams concluded their 1981 seasons with victories here Thursday evening, topping Lamesa.

Snyder Black rallied from a scoreless first half to defeat the Tors 22-0. Tony Romero got the Cats on the scoreboard with a 60-yard run. Mike McWilliams ran over the two-point conversion on a quarterback option.

Later in the second half Patrick Malone broke free on a 20-yard TD run.

Snyder's final points came on a 5-yard run by Romero, followed by a two-point conversion run by Jackie Anderson.

Snyder Black finished the season at 3-2-1.

Snyder Gold defeated the visitors 21-6. Jimmy Hunter scored Snyder's only TD of the first half on a 10-yard run, giving the game a 6-6 halftime look.

Snyder added eight more points as Todd Pollard recovered a Lamesa fumble in the end zone and Justin Webb ran over the two-point conversion.

Final points for the gold team came on a 20-yard pass from Ricky Hunter to Jimmy Velasquez. Velasquez also booted the one-point conversion.

The Gold team ends its season at 5-2.

SLIPS OUTSIDE -- Monahans' Monte McGuire turns the corner to get past Snyder tacklers and pickups up six yards on this carry Friday night. McGuire came up with a couple of key runs and pass plays to aid his Loboes in a homecoming victory over the Tigers. See related story. (SDN Staff Photo)

CAN'T BREAK FREE -- Borden County's Sammy Williams (20) is hauled down by a Highland player after getting outside during Friday night's Coyote-Hornet game at Gail. GAIL -- Highland's Hornets scored with 21 seconds left in the game here Friday night to dodge the teeth of the Borden County Coyotes and remain undefeated, 36-30.

Highland takes on Trent next week in an effort to secure the District 2-A Six-Man title. A loss to the Gorillas would leave Highland, Trent and Borden County tied for the crown with one loss apiece. Borden travels to McCaulley next Friday to wrap up its season, barring the possible three-way tie and coin toss.

"We played well offensively," said a downcast Coach Randy Roemisch. "Defensively we didn't have the game we had last week against Trent. We had plenty of effort. Our kids were trying hard."

They had 77 yards passing in the fourth quarter and a lot of it was in that final drive. Our kids were in the right position (on the pass patterns), we just didn't turn around and get the ball."

The lead changed sides of the board eight times - with almost every score - here as an underdog but determined Coyote bunch fought to overcome the highly-touted Hornets.

Highland scored first, gaining a 6-0 lead as Dwayne Hyde cradled in a 32 yard pass from Petty. The PAT failed.

Borden came back quickly. Mike Peterson scored on a 1-yard run and Jr. Benavidez booted the two-point conversion to gain a short-lived lead for the hosts.

Highland's Harrold Light took the ensuing kickoff 80 yards to put the Hornets back on top. Evert Wilson kicked the conversion.

Borden tied the game before halftime on an 18-yard run by Jym Rinehart. The PAT try failed, leaving the score at 14-14.

Rinehart was the leading ballcarrier in the contest, rushing for 214 yards on 32 carries.

Every score in the second half saw the lead change owners as Borden took over in the third quarter on a 27-yard field goal by Benavidez.

Highland answered with a 10-yard touchdown run by Light and a followup kick by Wilson, 22-18.

Again the Coyotes retaliated, scoring on a 40-yard run by Rinehart and two-point conversion from Benavidez to take a 26-22 lead into the final period.

The Hornets, defending loop champions and now 9-0 in the 1981 season, regained the advantage as Light broke free on a 50-yard scoring scamper. The conversion failed, leaving the visitors with a two-point lead, 28-22.

With two minutes left in the game, the Coyotes called Benavidez's number again and he came through with a four-point, 29-yard field goal for a 30-28 Borden County lead.

Highland refused to give in, however, and went to the pass in a final-thrust effort. With 21 seconds left in the game Monte Richburg carried over the winning points from a yard out on fourth down to keep the Hornets alive in their quest for a Six-Man state title.

The loss snaps a six-game winning streak by the Coyotes and gives them a 6-3 season record heading into next week's game with McCaulley.

"I just hope the kids don't get too down over this loss," Roemisch added. "We've still got one game to go."

District 2-AAAA

While Andrews sat back patiently and viewed the situation, District 2-AAAA football moved closer to the completion of another season Friday night.

Andrews, all but has the district championship tucked in its back pocket and needs only a win over Sweetwater to march into the playoffs, was idle this week.

In other games, No. 9 ranked San Angelo Lake View topped Odessa Ector 14-0, Monahans defeated Snyder 33-23 and Sweetwater trimmed Fort Stockton 8-0, and Pecos upended Lamesa 34-6.

The final week of regular action will pit Fort Stockton at Snyder, Monahans is at Lake View and Ector is at Lamesa, in addition to the Andrews-Sweetwater game, to be held at Sweetwater. Pecos concluded its season with the win over Lamesa.

Cardinals Win; Bulldogs Fall

HERMLEIGH Hermleigh's Cardinals crushed McCaulley 68-42 here Friday night to find its second win in District 2-A Six-Man competition.

The Cardinals close out their season next week at Grady, while McCaulley tests Borden County, a 36-30 loser to Highland.

Hermleigh got four touchdowns each from Kenny Riley and Dennis Jones, and one from Davy Peterson.

Scoring for McCaulley were Mike Brown, Doby Morgan, Larry Benavides and Todd Jeffrey.

Both teams are 3-6 for the year. Hermleigh is 2-3 in district play; McCaulley is 1-4.

Elsewhere, Trent kept some playoff hopes alive by romping Ira 54-6. Should Trent defeat Highland next week, the Gorillas, Highland and Borden County would end the season in a three-way tie, necessitating a coin toss to determine the 2-A representative.

Ira closed out its season with a 1-9 record, 0-6 in district play. Mickey Elam scored Ira's only TD on a 54-yard pass play.

Richard Beaver scored four touchdowns for the Gorillas and Gregg Beasley scored three.

Perkins Snaps Record As...

Dusters Defeat Ranger

Western Texas College's Dusters sacked up their second win of the season here Friday night, defeating Ranger Junior College in roundball action at the high school gym, 63-46.

The contest was highlighted by an individual effort. Lubbock sophomore Dorcas Perkins snapped her own blocked shot record of 7 in a single game by slapping away 8 of Ranger's attempts. Perkins, 6-2, had broken Shari Teal's 1980-81 record of 6 blocked shots in a game earlier this week with Cisco.

The Dusters now begin a lengthy road trip which starts with a [illegible] game in Weatherford on Monday.

Freshman Vicki Teal, sister of the former WTC standout, led in other individual honors with 14 points, 12 rebounds, 7 steals and 4 assists. Sophomore Valorie Wells also scored 14 points, and added 9 rebounds, 2 steals and one blocked shot. Perkins had 12 points, 8 rebounds and 3 steals.

Western Texas played strong defense to take a 32-16 halftime lead, then strolled on in for the victory - rather lethargically, thought Coach Joe [illegible]

"[illegible] had a mental let-down in the second half [illegible] Ranger score more [illegible] than they should [illegible] said the coach. "It's hard, particularly for these freshmen, to keep playing hard when the [illegible] got a big lead. We've got to learn that we can't let up."

Cushing was elated about WTC's first-half defense, but the offense was a different book.

"Again we had problems shooting the ball from the field," he said. "Out of eight guards we had 23 points, and [illegible] had eight of those. We're just not shooting the ball well from outside. It's going to hurt us later on when people start zoning us if these people don't wake up. We shoot the ball well in workouts, but we haven't in our games."

The Dusters hit 24 of 69 attempts from the field and were 15 of 29 from the floor. A key to the outcome was in rebounding, where WTC out-muscled the visitors 48 to 28.

Holmes By TKO

PITTSBURGH (AP) - When Larry Holmes crumpled to the canvas from a thunderous right by Renaldo Snipes in the seventh round, it conjured up visions of a $10 million payday with Gerry Cooney going down the drain with him.

But Holmes reached way down into his champion's heart to survive the one-punch knockdown and recorded a disputed 11th-round knockout over Snipes Friday night to keep his World Boxing Council crown.

"I wasn't thinking about the money," said Holmes, recalling his thoughts after being knocked down for the third time in his career. "I was just thinking about getting out of the ring without getting hurt and with my title."

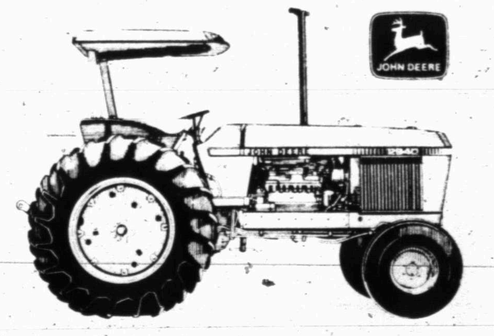
ALL GOOD DEALS MUST COME TO AN END
IT'S THE LAST MONTH TO BUY A NEW 40- TO 80-HP JOHN DEERE TRACTOR AND EARN $500 OF JOHN DEERE MONEY. AND YOU'LL SAVE ON FINANCE CHARGES



All good deals must come to an end. So buy a new 2040, 2240, 2440, 2640 or 2940 Tractor before November 20, 1981, and you'll still qualify for $500 in John Deere money you can spend for goods or services at our store. And, no finance charges will accrue on purchases until March 1, 1982.* The same finance waiver offer applies to new implements purchased with the tractor.

But a good deal isn't all you get with a John Deere 40- to 80-hp tractor. You also get a tractor with outstanding lugging ability, tough drivetrain and "extra" features like closed-center hydraulics that get jobs done faster.

So get in on a good deal now. You'll save.

Pro Football Roundup...

Passing Is Key For Many NFL Teams This Year

by The Associated Press

Return with us now to those days of yesteryear when the fledgling American Football League filled the air with passes every week, threatening to permanently remove the foot from football.

The AFL fought the pro football war in those days with a bombs-away air attack that left ground games looking stodgy and old fashioned. Eventually, as it always does, the pendulum swung back and running backs resurfaced in most places. But old habits are tough to change and some teams with AFL heritages cling to the pass as the best route to take from one end zone to the other.

There are, for example, the Cincinnati Bengals and San Diego Chargers, a couple of first-place teams who use the passing game every chance they get. The Bengals and Chargers collide Sunday in one of this week's more intriguing National Football League matchups and, in some ways, it promises to be a peek at the past.

Elsewhere Sunday, American Conference pairings match Cleveland at Denver, Miami at New England, the New York Jets at Baltimore, Oakland at Houston and Pittsburgh at Seattle. In the NFC, Atlanta plays at San Francisco, Detroit visits Washington, New Orleans goes to Los Angeles, the New York Giants play Green Bay at Milwaukee, Philadelphia visits St. Louis and Tampa Bay plays at Minnesota. Chicago plays at Kansas City in an interconference pairing.

The Monday night game offers another interconference matchup with Buffalo at Dallas as the league completes its 10th week of action.

The Bengals have ridden the strong right arm of Ken Anderson to first place in the AFC Central Division, one game in front of Pittsburgh and two up on Cleveland and Houston. Anderson is ranked second among conference passers with 15 touchdowns and 2,148 yards gained this season. His main targets are rookie wide receiver Cris Collinsworth and tight end Dan Ross, each with 38 catches and four touchdowns, tied for 10th best in the conference.

Right behind Anderson in the AFC quarterback rankings is San Diego's Dan Fouts, a member of the exclusive 4,000-yard passing club. The only other quarterbacks to top 4,000 yards in a single season are Joe Namath and Brian Sipe. Fouts could be on target to hit that plateau again, with a league-leading 2,730 yards including 19 TDs so far. Tight end Kellen Winslow with 45 catches and wide receiver Charlie Joiner with 41 are Fouts' top receivers.

The Chargers are locked in a tight battle atop the AFC West, tied for first place with Kansas City and Denver.

The Chiefs slipped back into the tie by losing 22-20 to the Chargers last week and will try to bounce back against the Bears, basement-dwellers in the NFC Central.

The AFC passing leader remains 38-year-old Craig Morton of Denver, who has thrown for 2,048 yards and 17 TDs with a completion percentage of 61.5. He will work this week against Cleveland and Sipe, who must solve a Bronco pass defense ranked No.1 in the league.

Minnesota and Tampa Bay, tied at 5-4, stage a first-place showdown in the NFC Central race. The Vikings have won the division in seven of the last eight seasons; missing only in 1979 when Tampa Bay dislodged them.

The Bucs won the season's first meeting 21-13 with reserve Steve Dils replacing injured Tommy Kramer at quarterback for Minnesota and throwing 62 passes. Kramer, recovered from early season injuries, will be on the case for the Vikings this time.

In other races, Dallas and Philadelphia are tied for the NFC East lead at 7-2 with the Eagles on the road in St. Louis Sunday and the Cowboys hosting Buffalo in the Monday night game. The 6-3 Bills go into the weekend one-half game behind Miami (6-2-1) in the AFC East. The Dolphins will be at New England, where they've lost five straight times. San Francisco (7-2) has a two-game lead on Atlanta (5-4) and the Falcons can narrow that gap in their showdown Sunday.

At least three reserve quarterbacks will be thrust into starting roles. Scott Brunner replaces banged-up Phil Simms for the New York Giants against Green Bay. Dan Pastorini gets his first start for Los Angeles, replacing benched Pat Haden against New Orleans. John Reaves gets the start for Houston against Oakland with ex-Raider Ken Stabler hurt.

The weekend's most significant personal achievement could come in Seattle, where Pittsburgh's Franco Harris reaches for a major milestone.

If Harris can gain 58 yards, he will become the third man in NFL history to reach 10,000 yards for his career, joining the legendary Jim Brown (12,312), and O.J. Simpson (11,236).

PUBLIC NOTICES 010

NOTICE OF HEARING BEFORE THE TEXAS WATER COMMISSION ON AN APPLICATION TO APPROPRIATE PUBLIC WATERS OF THE STATE OF TEXAS

No. 4155

Notice is given that CITY OF LUBBOCK, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, Texas 79457 applicant, seeks a permit pursuant to S11.121, Texas Water Code, and Rules 156.02.05.001 et seq. to build and maintain Justiceburg Dam creating a 115,937 acre-foot capacity reservoir on South Fork, Double Mountain Fork Brazos River, tributary of Brazos River, Brazos River Basin, about eight miles east of Justiceburg, Texas and 21 miles southeast of Post, Texas in Garza and Kent Counties, Texas, to use 200 acre-feet of water per year for five years from South Fork, Double Mountain Fork Brazos River at the project site for construction of the dam; to use 35,000 acre-feet of water per year from Justiceburg Reservoir for municipal purposes; to use the reservoir for recreational purposes, and; secondarily use 21,000 acre-feet of water (sewage effluent created from the municipal use of water) for the irrigation of 10,000 acres of land in Lubbock and Lynn Counties, Texas, all being more fully set out in the application. Application No. 4155 was accepted for filing on October 5, 1981, and a hearing thereon will be held by the Commission in the Stephen F. Austin State Office Building at 1700 North Congress Avenue in Austin, Texas, on December 3, 1981, at 10 o'clock a.m. Any person who intends to offer prepared testimony at the public hearing shall prefile the testimony with the Chief Clerk of the Commission not less than five days prior to the hearing, and shall serve copies of prepared testimony on the applicant, the Executive Director and Public Interest Advocate of the Department of Water Resources and all other persons who have filed written protests or written requests not less than eight days prior to the hearing. The Commission may authorize the late filing of prepared testimony upon a showing of good cause and extenuating circumstances. Any person who desires to receive prepared testimony shall file a written protest or a written request with the Commission not less than eight days prior to the hearing. Those opposing the granting of this application may appear at the hearing and/or, not less than eight days before the hearing date, may file written protests with the Commission and serve copies on the applicant with proof of service to be provided to the Commission. Written protests shall contain the name and address of the protestant, an identification of the pending application, the basis of protestant's interest, location of protestant's diversion point(s) or property, if applicable and any amendments or adjustments to the application which would result in a withdrawal of the protest. The written protest will be noted by the Commission but will not be considered as evidence since the right to cross-examine is absent. No protestant will be admitted as a party to the proceeding unless the protestant complies with Commission Rule 155.04.00.001 which requires a justiciable interest and actual or representative presence at the hearing. Due to the technical nature of the hearing, it may be advisable for the protestant to have an expert witness, such as an engineer, available at the hearing. Persons desiring further information in connection with this application may contact George V. Basham III, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Mary Ann Hefner,
Chief Clerk
Texas Water Commission

A Special Thanks

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, a memorial or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a floral piece, if so we saw it there. Perhaps you were not there at all; just thought of us those days. Whatever you did to console our hearts, thanks for your help along the way.

Everyone Will Pick Up Tab On Clean-Up Work

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter who you are and no matter how far you live from Harrisburg, Pa., you'll be helping foot the bill for cleaning up after the billion-dollar nuclear accident at Three Mile Island.

The accident happened March 28, 1979, and the plant still sits — idle and dangerous — with eight feet of radioactive water on the floor.

Even after it's decontaminated, the damaged reactor may never produce electricity again.

Whether the cleanup money comes from utility bills, stock dividends, taxes or — as is likely — a combination of the three, all Americans will be dunned for decontamination costs.

Already, the federal government has spent $12 million on radiation research at the disabled plant. Another $19 million is budgeted for this year.

Now Congress must decide whether to endorse a Reagan administration recommendation to spend $100 million more for cleanup. Congress is also weighing legislation that would force utility companies nationwide to contribute to the project.

General Public Utilities Corp., owner of the crippled Three Mile Island plant, is warning that without government help it will go bankrupt. Utility analysts have told Congress that GPU's bankruptcy would shrivel capital investment in electric utilities and cripple the entire industry.

Not everyone buys that argument.

"It's a game of nuclear chicken. Who's going to be the first to blink, the Congress or GPU?" said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., who opposes federal cleanup aid for TMI. "If we blink because of their threat, we end up picking up part of the tab that belongs squarely on the shoulders of the utility industry."

Markey and other opponents of federal aid for TMI believe utility companies would produce the money to buoy GPU if there were no possibility of federal help.

And the plea for federal funds is particularly galling to lawmakers who were forced to cut job training projects and the school lunch program this year under the Reagan administration's austere spending program.

"It's a budget-busting bailout of a privately owned utility," said Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., chairman of the House energy conservation and power subcommittee.

The Reagan administration continues to spout its rhetoric about the magic of the marketplace while it quietly spends millions of dollars to save the nuclear industry from the verdict of the marketplace."

Utility executives claim that some federal responsibility for nuclear accidents was implied when the U.S. government offered financial incentives to build nuclear power plants. Opponents of federal aid note that the utilities have never shared their profits with the government.

In addition, the utility executives say the Energy Department and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will benefit from research and development conducted during cleanup at the plant.

"The federal government spent $12.8 billion in 1979 dollars from 1950 to 1979 to encourage the commercial use of nuclear power," Louis T. Austin Jr., nuclear task force chairman of the Edison Electric Institute told Congress [illegible] The nuke [illegible] demonstrated that neither the efforts of the federal government nor the electric utility industry were sufficient to avoid the (resultant) loss. We both have an underlying responsibility to learn from the experience and assist in decontaminating the facility," Austin said.

But in the Republican-controlled Senate, where approval of federal cleanup money is expected, Democratic opponents say manufacturers of nuclear hardware should help pay for cleanup before the government steps in.

"Companies like Westinghouse and Babcock & Wilcox who make the reactors and profit handily from the nuclear program haven't been asked to come up with any of the funding," Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., said.

The EEI, which represents 200 utilities, has pledged [illegible] cleanup. To make it easier for EEI members to collect that money from ratepayers, the organization has asked for legislation making the contribution mandatory.

So far, the cleanup of TMI is estimated to cost about $1 billion, but further delays could escalate the cost. GPU has exhausted its $300 million in available nuclear insurance money to vent gas from the plant and prepare for chemical decontamination.

To produce an additional $700 million, Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh has proposed a funding plan endorsed by President Reagan.

Under Thornburgh's plan, the utility industry and the federal government each would pay $190 million, while GPU would pay $245 million and the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey would con[illegible]

Critics, pointing to the Reagan administration's promise of only $123 million, predict that the governor's plan will sputter for lack of funds — a suggestion that infuriates Thornburgh.

"This is not an excercise for bean counters. What we have accomplished is that the president of the United States now acknowledges that TMI is a financial priority," Thornburgh said in an interview.

"I cannot tell you the exact dollar amount of what the federal government will eventually pay, but I have to take the president at his word when he tells me he considers this a national problem and pledges his help," Thornburgh added.

Braselton Family To Sell Town In Georgia

BRASELTON, Ga. (AP) — The Braselton clan has been in charge of things around this hand-me-down town for more than a century, but no heirs are interested in keeping up the tradition.

So Braselton, Ga., pop. 500, the whole works, is for sale. Price: $14 million.

That takes in all family properties, including Braselton Brothers Shopping Center, a 60,000-square-foot covered mall with a hardware, supermarket, general store and furniture shop; the Braselton Banking Co. across the street and, not far away, the 970-acre Braselton Industrial Park.

The hamlet was founded in the foothills of northeastern Georgia in 1876 by William Harrison Braselton, whose descendants have run it ever since.

Braselton Brothers Inc., a family corporation, owns about 85 percent of the town, including 1,200 acres of land and the businesses. Also included in the $14 million package are 800 acres of family property along Interstate 85 outside the city limits.

Today there are five family members involved in the corporation, said Herbert Braselton, a city councilman.

"First, there's H.F. — he's 82. Then there's J. Lewis — he's the mayor. He's 80. There's Herman H., 77, and H.B., that's me. And I'm 61. Then there's Henry. He's 53.

"There's no son in the crowd except for mine. I have an 18-year-old, but he's going to Emory University and wants to be a doctor. Except for a few daughters, and none are interested, there's no one in the family to take over the businesses."

Since 1915, the people of Braselton never have failed to elect a descendant of the town's founder as mayor. At the moment, all five city councilmen are Braseltons.

"We've made a lot of progress here," Herbert Braselton said, pointing to the new million-dollar sewage treatment plant and water system scheduled for expansion within the next three months.

Herbert Braselton said he and his brothers plan to stay in town after the sale and remain involved in the businesses — perhaps as managers.

"Anybody who buys a new business would rather have someone with some first-hand knowledge around. So, if the buyer so desires, we'd like to keep a hand in things," he said.

Herbert Braselton said the price is negotiable.

"We'll just have to sit down and decide what all of this is worth when a buyer is found. We may want to go up, and we may want to go down."

News of the sale came as something of a shock to two residents — Betty Sweatman and Shirley Donnelly. "We don't know what our future holds," Ms. Sweatman said.

Republicans File Lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Eight Republicans filed a federal lawsuit Friday challenging the constitutionality of a redistricting plan for the Texas House of Representatives that plaintiffs contend is gerrymandered against Hispanics, blacks and Republicans.

The plaintiffs — including two Mexican-Americans, a black and two Republican legislators — asked a three-judge special panel to ban elections under the plan they argue violates the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and the Civil Rights Act.

The suit also asks that the court declare unconstitutional the plan adopted Oct. 28 by the Legislative Redistricting Board because it "impermissibly divides communities and units of interest," and that it order another "suitable plan" be adopted.

The plaintiffs said the plan divided Baytown in to three districts for the first time and made "similar illegal divisions" in Bexar, Dallas and other counties.

"Many of the districts in the plan are not compact and contiguous and there is no rational basis for the deviations and splitting of community interest," the plaintiffs said.

The plaintiffs are Louis Terrazas of San Antonio, former co-chairman of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Bexar County; W.E. Tucker, identified as a black Travis County resident; Linda Allison Frederick of Dallas County; D.J. Phlips of a Travis County; State Rep. Ed Emett, R-Harris County; State Rep. Bob Davis, R-Dallas County; and Isaac Olivares, a Hidalgo County resident.

Terrazas said all the plaintiffs are Republicans.

Gov. Bill Clements, Secretary of State David Dean, Attorney General Mark White, State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle and State Republican Chairman Chester R. Upham were named as defendants in the suit.

"The plan has unconstitutionally diluted the votes of minority voters in this state," the plaintiffs said.

Sparkle City Squares Plan Annual Festival

Committees working for the Sparkle City Squares' 10th Annual Festival are shifting into high gear with last-minute plans for the event scheduled for Nov. 14 in the Scurry County Coliseum, according to Bob and JoAnn Stewart, general chairmen.

The Square and Round Dance Festival sponsored by the local Sparkle City Square Dance Club will be open to the public, and spectators are invited with no admission charge. The balcony sections of the coliseum will be available to all those interested who do not want to join the dancers on the main floor of the building.

In the past, attendance at this event has reached as high as 500, and officers of the club this year are optimistic about a high. Dora White, treasurers. P. I. and Betty Youngkin are again heading the decorations committee. Richard and Leda Beck will direct operations of the refreshment group for the after-dance snack. Ray and Carolyn Reeder are in charge of door prizes.

Orval and Marge Mathis are directing publicity. The Buchanans and the Atkinsons are also in charge of registration for registration. Invitations have been sent to many clubs in the West Texas-New Mexico area and also to hundreds of individual square and round dance enthusiasts.

Other committee chairmen for the dance festival include Harold and Genelle Buchanan and Ray and Betty Atkinson, co-chairmen of arrangements; Ned and the afternoon and evening sessions. Club officers will be assisting with this activity and greeting guests.

Other club members assisting at the festival will be James and Lynda Beaver; Dorothy Brown, Jim and Frances Burkett; Joe and Beverly Copeland; Kay Copeland; Joe and Betty Doan; Jane Donaldson; A. Z. and Kathleen Glover; Roy and Juanita Hanson; Paul and Peggy Harris; Pat and Jo Hensley; Bryan Jagoe; Ben and Netta Jarrett; Virdie Kimbro; R. J. and Leona Kubena; Owen Miller; Larry and Wanda Smith; Jeff and Margaret Stubblefield; Bo and Nellie Womack; Stanley and Juanita Wright; Van and Barbra York; Tony Whittenburg and Buster and Jean Taylor.

A New Jones On Scene

In November, 1972, the Sparkle City Square sponsored their first Big Counry festival and callers for the even were Jon Jones of Arlington and Sleepy Browning of Jayton. Nearly years later on Nov. 14, the group again is planning its big dance even and once again featuring callers Jones and Browning. There is just one difference. This year, the Jones member of the team is Vernon Jones, Jon Jones' son, who was a very young teenager when his father first appared in Snyder.

Vernonr Jones, a building contractor in Arlington, is fairly new in he square dance calling game, having four years of experience. He says he actually grew up square dancing, being taken to his first dance when he was just three weeks old.

He has never taken square dance lessons and learned the beginning fundamentals of calling through a friend and from listening to his dad all those years while goin with hi family to square dances.

He calls regulrly for the New Whirlers Club of Arlington and the Fort Worth singles. He is caller for his own club, the Vee Jays of Fort Worth. He records for blue Star records. His latest single is "More Than I Can Say." Jones is a member of th North Texas Callers Association.

In 1804, England mobilized to resist a possible invasion by Napoleon Bonaparte's troops.

Takes Vacation In Poor Village

EL CASCO, Mexico (AP) — This poor Mexican farming village is where Roger Belisle takes his vacation as often as twice a year, travelling 2,000 miles from his home in Bloomington, Minn., to get here.

On his first visit to his wife's hometown a dozen years ago, he was appalled at the conditions in this place where she grew up.

"There was no electricity or running water. There were dirt floors in the adobe homes and no glass or screens on the windows," Belisle says.

Medical care was virtually nonexistent. The nearest hospital was 125 miles away and people had to travel 30 miles to the nearest clinic. Parasite infestation was rampant. Nutrition was poor. Babies were dying "from the simplest of problems," Belisle said.

So, with his wife Eva, he makes his pilgrimages in a roomy station wagon, stuffed to the brim with new and used clothing and other necessities. "We bring bandages, aspirin, vitamins and other essentials to help the villagers," said Belisle.

Belisle, who was studying biomedical engineering at the University of Minnesota, took additional courses and was able to pass the necessary tests to become licensed to practice medicine in Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Bart Aaron Haley

Sharon Elaine Strickland Weds Bart Aaron Haley October 10

Sharon Elaine Strickland became the bride of Bart Aaron Haley in a double ring ceremony in the auditorium of the [illegible] church on Saturday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m. Rev. Ken Branan, pastor, officiated.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle Dean Strickland of 319 35th Street in Snyder and the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Mick Haley of Vinita, Okla.

The church altar was decorated with a 15 branch candelabra flanked on each side by 20 spiral caldelabrum entwined with greenery and burgundy and pink flowers. The aisles of the church were marked by pew markers consisting of votive candles, greenery and pink bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal length gown. The Queen Anne neckline and bodice were encrusted with reembroidered lace accented with seed pearls and irridiscents. The full bishop sleeves had appliques of lace inside and were cuffed in the same lace. The basque bodice formed a "V" point at the centerfront and the bouffant skirt had a scalloped overlay of knit lace. On each side scallops had a white satin bow and twelve rows of lace ruffles. Twelve rows of lace ruffling swept into the train. The skirt and train were edged in a crystal pleated ruffle.

The matching walking length veil was attached to a bandeau of reembroidered lace and had a scallop of the 12 lace ruffles.

The bride carried a cascade of white silk rosebuds, carnations, azaleas, and baby's breath with burgundy and pink rsebuds accented with picot streamers.

For the traditional something old, the bride wore her grandmoter Tharp's gold wedding ring; something new was her wedding dress, veil, and a string of pearls, a gift from the brdegroom. She wore a blue garter and also carried pennies minted in the years of the couple's birth.

Teresa Strickland, sister of he bride, served as maid of honor. Matrons of honor were Vickie Boley of Clarendon, sister of the bride; Angela Kruger of Snyder; and Christie Necessary served as junior bridesmaid.

Each wore burgundy formal length gowns of polyester knit with separate capes of sheer polyester [illegible] long stem, pink silk and wore burgundy gypsophila barrettes accented with baby's breath in their hair.

Mandy Matthews of Ketchum, Okla., niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She wore a floor length organdy dress, fashioned like the other attendants.

Candlelighters were Jarod Matthews of Ketchun, Okla., nephew of the bridegroom, and Christie Necessary.

The bridegroom wore a grey ascot with a pleated shirt wing coil collar and ascot tie. He wore a white silk rosebud boutonniere accented with pink and burgundy gypsophila and baby's breath.

Mark Haley of Pryor, Okla. served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Mark Strickland brother of the bride, and Randy Gressett, both of Snyder.

Jarod Matthews served as junior groomsmen. They wore grey ascot tuxedos with pink ruffled shirts and bow ties. Their boutonnieres were pink silk rosebuds. Jim Matthews of Ketchum, Okla., the bridegrooms's brother-in-law, served as usher along with the groomsmen.

Holly Green registered guests from a table featuring a framed engagement picture of the couple.

Judy Neill at the organ and Kristi Neil at the piano provided nuptial music. Kathy Watts of Midland and Mark Hotmann of Abilene, were the vocalists.

"If" was played while the grandmothers were seated as the mothers were ushered in the "Theme from Ice Castles" was played.

"Nadia's Theme" was played as the candles were lit.

Before the bridegroom and attendants entered, Kathy Watts sang "All My Life." The wedding march from the "sound of Music" was played as the bridegroom and attendants entered. As the bride was escorted by her father, the traditional wedding march was played.

Mark Hotmann accompanied himself on the guitar as he sang "My Sweet Lady" after the bride was given in marriage. Miss Watts sang "The Lord's Prayer" after the rings were exchanged. [illegible] Song" during the lighting of the memory candle. Rev. Branam presented the newlywed couple to the congregation and they exited while Mrs. Neill played the traditional wedding march.

The bride's parents hosted the reception in the garden room of the church. The bride's table was laid with a white cloth with a white lace overlay. The centerpiece was a three candleabrum decorator in pink carnations and red roses. Jo Beth Stephens of Snyder served the four tiered wedding cake which was trimmed in pink and burgundy rosebuds topped by a bride and bridegroom decorated in the bride's colors. Melissa Kruger of Ozona served punch from the crystal bowl.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a floor length beige cloth and was centered with a chuckwagon. The cake was in the shape of a University of Oklahoma emblem and as decorated in the traditional red and white colors. Brenda Matthews of Ketchum, Okla., sister-in-law of the bridegroom served the cake. Vickie Haley of Pryor, Okla, sister-in-law of the bridegroom served coffee from a silver service.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a navy blue dress trimmed in white piping and a corsage of pink and burgundy roses. After a wedding trip to Arkansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma, the couple will reside in Colorado City.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Vinita High School, Vinita, Okla. He is presently employed by the First Baptist Church in Snyder and is in his last semester as a petroleum technology major at Western Texas College.

Out-of-town guests were from Oklahoma, Lubbock, Hamlin, Big Springs, Ozona, and Abilene.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearshal dinner at a local restaurant.

American Computer Eases Company Operation

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — An American computer is making it easier for regular customers to run a tab with their taxi drivers in London and to be billed monthly.

London-Wide Radio Taxis recently ordered a Honeywell small computer system to automate dispatching and billing operations in the company's West London control center.

All incoming telephone calls are handled automatically by a microcomputer-based system. Through a communication system in each cab, a driver is given his assignment and details of the finished jobs are stored in the computer for automatic accounting. Monthly statements are then prepared for drivers, showing details of their earnings, while invoices are automatically produced for credit account customers.

CHILI SHELLS

An interesting new main dish to take the place of one made with meat or fish.

8 ounces small or medium macaroni shells
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
Salt and pepper
4-ounce can whole peeled green chilies, drained
¾ pound jack cheese, coarsely grated

Cook macaroni according to package directions. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk, adding salt and pepper to taste; keep hot. Slit the chilies in half lengthwise and crosswise; do not remove the seeds; cut into about ½-inch wide strips. Spread half the macaroni in a buttered shallow 2-quart baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches). Sprinkle with half the cheese. Arrange the chili strips over the cheese. Top with the remaining macaroni and cheese. Pour the hot sauce evenly over the top. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until bubbling hot — about 20 minutes. Let stand 5 or 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT--Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burk of Snyder announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Ginger, to Jake Banks, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Banks of Sand Springs. The couple will be married December 5 at 6 p.m. at the First Christian Church in Snyder.

Americans Make 7 Million Calls

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans made more than 7 billion calls last year from some 1.5 million public telephones located across the nation, according to Bell System officials.

The latest development in public telephone service is a coinless system under which users can charge a call to their phone company credit card or call collect.

Helen Hayes made her stage debut in New York on Nov. 22, 1909.

Susan Tolbert Marries Lonnie Blackard

Mrs. Lonnie Lewis Blackard

Susan Elaine Tolbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tolbert of Snyder, married Lonnie Lewis Blackard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Blackard of Snyder, in a double ring ceremony October 16 at 7 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church. The Rev. David H. Robertson officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza and taffeta featuring a round neckline edged in lace and pearls. the bodice also had a lace applique and featured pearls. The skirt had three tiered ruffles edged in lace. The gown had long sleeves of organza and lace appliques attached. The fingertip length organza veil also featured lace flower appliques and lace trim. The bride carried a boquet of brown and apricot roses of silk and cream colored streamers.

For somthing old the bride carried a Bible belonging to the brigroom's mother; she borrowed pearls from her mother; somthing new was her dress and she wore the traditional blue garter. She also carried pennies minted in the year of the birth of the bride and bridegroom.

The church decorations featured two seven candelabra decorated with leather leaf greenery and baby's breath. A memory candle was placed on the altar and surrounded with greenery and baby's breath.

Mrs. Betty Watts, organist, and Mrs. Mary Williams, soloist, provided the wedding music which included "Longer", and "The Eyes of Love."

Becky Bigham of Snyder served as maid of honor. She wore a apricot frost dress with spaghetti straps and a sheer floor length cape. She carried a fan with brown and apricot roses for her bouquet.

Max Drum of Fluvanna was the best man.

Diane Tolbert of Snyder, sister of the bride, was the flowergirl. Bridesmaid was Kelly Tolbert of Snyder, sister of the bride. She was dressed the same as the maid of honor.

Scott Crenwelge of Snyder was the groomsman. Ushers were Johnny Reed, Joe Key, and Mark Davis.

Ringbearer Blair Williams of Snyder wore a brown western tuxedo.

The bridegroom, best man, groomsman, and ushers wore tuxedos of western style with pleated white shirts and bow tie.

Candlelighters were Cindy Tolbert, sister of the bride, and Andra Blackard, sister of the bridegroom. They wore same style as the maid of honor.

The reception followed at Wesley Hall. The bride's table featured a lace tablecloth over brown with crystal and silver appointments. The three tiered cake had apricot roses and green leaves. Brown and apricot roses served as the centerpiece. Melanie Halfman, Valerie Drum and Linda Key presided at the table.

The bridegroom's table featured a beige lace tablecloth over brown. Devil's food cake and coffee were served from crystal and brass appointments. Stacy Reed and Sherette Perry presided at the table. Cindy Koonsman registered guests.

Sally Hatter and Carl Strelecki passed out ice bags.

After a wedding trip to San Angelo the couple now resides in Hermleigh where they farm.

The bride graduated in 1979 and from Western Texas College in 1981 with emphasis on general business. The bridegroom graduated from Snyder High School in 1979 and attended Western Texas College.

COME FOR DESSERT
Lime Cream Cake-Coffee

LIME CREAM CAKE

3 large eggs
2 teaspoons (about) grated lime rind (from 1 small lime) 1/4 cup fresh lime juice
1 and 1-3rd cups granulated sugar
Lime-flavor sponge cake baked in a 10-inch angel cake pan 1/2 cup (1 quarter-pound stick) butter, cut into pats 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
1-3rd cup confectioners' sugar

In the top of a double-boiler, whisk together the eggs until yolks and whites are blended. Whisk in the lime rind, lime juice and granulated sugar; add the butter. Stirring constantly, cook over simmering water that does not touch double boiler top until as thick as mayonnaise — 20 to 25 minutes. (Makes 1 1/2 cups.) Cover and chill. Cut the cake into 3 layers; sandwich together with the lime mixture, using 1/2 cup for each layer. Whip the cream until stiff, adding the confectioners' sugar; fold in the remaining 1/2 cup lime mixture; use to cover top and sides of cake. Store in the refrigerator.

Information Available In Investigations

WASHINGTON (AP) — States are permitted to obtain information from federal tax, Social Security and other records to help solve parental kidnappings and child custody cases under a new federal regulation.

The new rule was published Tuesday in the Federal Register by John A. Svahn, director of the Office of Child Support Enforcement and commissioner of Social Security.

It will allow states to use the federal Parent Locator Service in parental kidnapping and child custody cases. Jim Brown, a spokesman for the federal agency, said an estimated 50,000 to 100,000 cases a year are expected.

State agencies using the system can get people's addresses from records kept by Social Security, the Internal Revenue Service, the Department of Defense and other agencies.

Until now, the Parent Locator Service was restricted by law to locating absent fathers or mothers to make them pay child support.

Check Words

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A quick check of a few words can determine if a dictionary is up-to-date.

Waldenbooks, one of the nation's larger booksellers, suggests checking to see if these words are included: frag, black hole, quark, preppie and laser.

Dial A Devotional 573-8801

Short Stories Make Comeback

COLLECTED STORIES. By Frank O'Connor. Knopf. 704 Pages. $20.

THE MAHARAJAH & OTH-ER STORIES. By T. H. White. Putnam. 228 Pages. $12.95.

The short story has been hard-pressed to find outlets for some years now, but it does seem to be making a comeback of sorts.

Not so much in the magazines where it used to flourish, but in collections — nice, thick collections. The book publishers have put out fat editions of stories by such as Ray Bradbury, John Cheever and Irwin Shaw — to name a few — in the past couple of years, and that's just grand.

A readership eager to dine on the shorter literary efforts by leading novelists obviously exists, and the publishers, to their credit, are moving in the right direction to fill a need that was long neglected.

Two collections recently published are by Frank O'Connor and T. H. White. The O'Connor book is a hefty volume that contains 67 stories by the Irish master, along with an illuminating introduction by Richard Ellmann. The White book is smaller in scale containing 16 stories by the author of "The Once and Future King," and a short but a bit too laudatory introduction by Kurth Sprague.

Of the two books, the O'Connor collection is by far the superior. The man wrote like a dream about themes that are as vividly fresh today as they were when the writer first put them down years ago. The bulk of the White stories, unfortunately, do not stand the test of time. They are often whimsical in tone and what might have entertained a reader years back seems a bit faded now. "The Spanish Earl," for example, deals with a boy who thinks he is a dog. It's a mildly interesting conceit, but it suffers from too much tinkering and the ending is terribly contrived.

White writes well enough, as may be seen in "A Rosy Future, Anonymous" when he sums up a young girl with, "Her hair was done in the fashion of last year's films, and her cheap dress was of the same date: not because she had no eye for the mode, but because she could not afford to buy clothes often." But the story itself is brittle and the ending, again, contrived. His collection is welcome, but probably best suited for those who like to deal with literary relics.

O'Connor's prose is of the clean, direct sort. He uses words sparingly, but those he uses are choice. In "The Cheapjack" he sums up a man with "He wore a bowler hat and a stiff collar the hottest day God sent, because no matter how sociable he might be, he never entirely forgot his dignity."

In a bittersweet tale called "The Drunkard," a 10-year-old boy says of his father, "He was very good at tea, but too heavy in the hand for anything else; the way he cut bread was shocking." In "Androcles and the Army," O'Connor tells of a circus strong man who "was one of those sad powerful men whose tragedy is that they can't have a little disagreement in a pub without running the risk of manslaughter."

O'Connor's stories make a person glad he can read.

Insurance FACTS
by Tom Deffebach

YOUR Independent Insurance AGENT

Premiums for term insurance, unlike those for whole life, commonly increase periodically. The increased premium usually reflects the rising probability of death as age increases. This is why it costs a 25-year-old relatively little to buy term insurance. However, by the time a policy holder is 60, premiums will have risen dramatically. What is the best sort of insurance for you? That is a matter to carefully discuss with your insurance professional. Policies that automatically convert from term to whole life within designated periods of time at constant permiums, may be worthy of consideration.

Multi-lines of insurance are handled at The Deffebach Agency, 3201 College, 573-5611. Come in and discuss your needs with us. Business property, casualty, automobile, liability, fire and theft policies can be arranged from our office. We are centrally located to all areas of the city. AWACS Objective

The Senate's 52-48 vote not to block the AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia is a personal victory for President Reagan, who campaigned hard to convince undecided senators and came from behind to win his first foreign policy test.

The Senate's vote, which reverses a stunning 301-111 anti-AWACS vote in the House, will permit the Saudis to buy five Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft and airborne tankers and equipment to upgrade the F-15 fighters sold during the Carter administration. Both President Carter and President Ford supported the AWACS sale.

The Saudi oil fields are of strategic importance to the United States and to the West. We hope the sale will help defend the fields and strengthen the Saudi leadership. AWACS will not defend them from terrorist attack.

Every victory implies a defeat. Israel, which campaigned hard against the sale as a vital threat to its security will be seen by some as having been defeated in its attempt to dictate U. S. foreign policy. The president himself made the AWACS a test of sovereign authority. But there will be those who gloat that the Israelis have been put in their place.

We condemn such speculation as ugly vindictiveness and runs in the face of mutual respect with which both sides approached the debate. President Reagan made it clear that the AWACS must not be used against Israel and that any violation of the agreement will mean immediate cancellation. This must not be forgotten. If the Saudi's new weapons are used against Israel, the U.S. must face the situation and come to the defense of the Israelis. Our commitment to Israel's survival is more important that the terms of any military deal.

Now that the vote is over, it is time to mend fences and to look toward the peace process. The Camp David agreement was stalled by the deadlock over the Palestinian autonomy issue, and struck an unexpected blow by the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. But Camp David is not dead.

It must now move forward. The place to begin is in Saudi Arabia, a nation which shunned Camp David. The Saudis, heartened by the show of U. S. support in the AWACS sale, must pressure the Palestinians to come to terms with Israel, in return for concessions on Palestinian autonomy.

"Reports of my demise have been wistfully exaggerated."

Last Tuesday's vote on the constitutional amendments may serve as a good argument for breaking Texas up into smaller states.

It seems that the big city folks don't want West Texans to insure the future by long-range water planning. It's the second time in less than 10 years that the Houston folks have killed a water proposal.

We need to remember Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby when he decides to run for higher office. Hobby is certainly the one we have to thank for the last couple of water amendment defeats.

We wonder how the rest of the state would like it if West Texas and its petroleum resources were kept from the remainder of the state.

In the view of too many in metropolitan areas of the state, West Texas is merely a vast waste-land, good for only coyotes and rattlesnakes.

However, not all the blame can be placed on the city slickers. It seems that many of us in West Texas are too busy to vote.

In Scurry County, only 8 percent of the qualified voters turned out last Tuesday, and of those who voted, one precinct had more voters than the other three combined.

Inflation and taxes have been on the minds of many folks, but to keep everything in perspective, it might do to show just where inflation has carried us in the last 100 years.

A feller down at Galveston has come up with the figures to show what his father spent on expenses as a sharecropper in the late 1880's.

Food and sundries: beef hine, 3½ cents a pound; coffee, 10 cents a pound; flour, $7 per 300 pounds; cane syrup, 35 cents a gallon; piece goods, 15 cents a yard; work shoes, 50 cents pair; beaver hat, $1.75; candy, 5 cents a pound; sugar, 4 cents a pound; chickens, 10 cents each.

Labor: $1 day; with mule, $1.25; fuel--coal oil, 20 cents a gallon; medicine: $10 for doctor to deliver baby; income--$35 per bale of cotton (500 pounds); transportation--new wagon, $45; horse, $40; mule, $45.

Sounds good except for that $1 per day labor and $35 per bale cotton.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Americans have a better chance to redress their grievances against the federal government thanks to a little-noticed new law.

In the past, federal agencies were often able to run roughshod over individuals and small businesses, secure in the knowledge that most citizens could not afford to take the government to court. No matter how strong their case, most people found the cost of litigation was simply too high; so, they gritted their teeth and went along.

But that's not the case anymore. The Equal Access to Justice Act, which took effect Oct. 1, requires federal agencies to pay the legal fees of citizens who take them to court (or to an administrative hearing) and win.

There are some restrictions. The law covers only individuals with net worths of less than $1 million and companies with net worths of less than $5 million. It does not apply to criminal actions or cases against the IRS unless the taxpayer paid all disputed taxes before going to court.

Neither does it apply to cases in which the government can demonstrate that it had a "substantial" belief that what it was doing was correct.

This act may do much to "get government off the backs of the people," as the Reagan campaign promised. Woe be it to any federal agency that has to try to explain to Congress why it is paying out large sums in legal fees to citizens who have successfully challenged its action in court.

President Reagan recently assured a gathering of the nation's police chiefs that the fight against crime was a national priority that would receive all possible federal aid.

One of the most important services that the federal government provides to local law-enforcement agencies is the FBI fingerprint lab. A law-enforcement agency sends in a suspect's fingerprints and—according to what we have seen on television—the bureau almost instantly wires back whether that individual has a criminal record.

That's how it works on television. But in real life it takes the FBI an average of 27 working days to run a fingerprint check (although it can work faster in an emergency).

In the past this service was used not only by law-enforcement agencies but also by banks, defense contractors and state and local governments to make security checks of prospective employees.

The FBI wanted to do better and requested money to increase it staff and upgrade the computers used in the fingerprint operation. But the Reagan budget cutters refused.

So, the FBI compromised. Now it will run fingerprint checks only for law-enforcement agencies in an effort to cut the processing time to 15 working days. After a year the bureau will resume the pre-employment checks but will charge users $15 or so per examination; the money will be used to hire more employees.

But the prospect of a police department's learning within hours whether it has captured a fugitive from the most-wanted list will remain only the stuff of TV and movies.

Sean Donlon, Ireland's ambassador to the United States for the past three years, is returning home to head his country's diplomatic service. Donlon, who became known here as both a wit ad a keen observer of the Washington scene, left behind the following observaton on the difference between Republicans and Democrats.

"Democrats give away their old clothes; Republicans wear theirs. Republicans employ exterminators; Democrats step on bugs. Democrats eat the fish they catch; Republicans stuff 'em and hang 'em on the wall. Republican boys date Democratic girls (they plan, of course, to marry Republican girls but feel they're entitled to some fun first).

"Republicans tend to keep their shades drawn, although there is seldom any reason why they should. Democrats ought to but seldom do. Republicans always sleep in twin beds—some even in separate bedrooms. That's whay in the last analysis there will always be more Democrats."

Judith Gladson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Gladson, was invited to join Alpha Phi Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music sorority, at Southwest Texas State College.

The second norther of the season brought a mixture of sleet and rain to the Snyder area.

The city council changed the hours for enforcement of the parking meter ordinance here from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. to 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Bill Lee, owner of Canyon Courts and a director of the U. S. Highway 180 Association, announced that designation of the U. S. 180 route all the way from Fort Worth to the Grand Canyon in Arizona had been approved.

25 YEARS AGO

Approximately $600 in cash and checks was missing after burglars blew the safe at Stevenson's Sunbeam Cash Food Store at 25th and Ave. K.

Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors approved prizes up to $75 for a Christmas parade to be held downtown.

President Dwight Eisenhower won re-election in the general election. However, Scurry County favored Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic Party candidate, by a vote of 2,603 to 2,250.

G. Edward Bolger was elected president of the Scurry County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, and Joe Williamson was elected Crusade Chairman.

30 YEARS AGO

Von Roeder Seed Farms moved its store from down town to new, larger quarters three miles west of town on the Lamesa Highway.

A Western Electric Co. crew of 45 began stringing wire and cable for the new dial telephone system in Snyder.

The city ordered 100 stop signs to be placed at street intersections.

County commissioners voted to advertise for bids for paving 50 miles of county roads.

Dr. H. C. Powell Jr., who came here from Leggett, began work as director of the city-county health unit.

at wits end
by erma bombeck

I was really interested in the recent survey McCall's magazine did among 100,000 teenagers who said what they wanted most from their parents is more advice.

Let me get this straight. Are they saying that just because they slam a door on your lips they still want to hear what you've got to say?

What a fool I've been. I thought when my kids hummed the theme from "Dragnet" during my lectures or drove off in the car while I was explaining my philosophy of life, they just didn't care.

We've been on an understanding-children kick for almost 20 years now. I don't think there's a mother alive who does not understand children's fears, their legal rights, what motivates them, their sensitivities and their concerns. It's been a Camelot of ask-not-what-children-can-do-for-their-parents-but-what-parents-can-do-for-their-kids.

God forbid a parent should swim against the tide, but let me tell you where most parents are coming from. The No. 1 complaint we get from kids is, "You don't trust me." Wrongo. You don't trust US.

You don't trust your parents enough to tell them the truth and have us believe you. You don't trust us enough to risk our disapproval of anything you do. You don't trust us to pull from our experience and youth and understand what you're going through.

You don't trust us enough to share what you're feeling. You don't trust us enough to follow advice that we give you on pure love.

You play games with us. Pretend evidence. Cate that lie. Where did we real ly go and with whom.

We fear you. Does tha surprise you at all? I shouldn't. We're afraid i we're too strict or to dogmatic, we will lose yo to peer pressure, drugs someone else's libera mother...or the open road.

Two minds meetin from two generations i difficult at best. Both mus compromise. If we talk to much, we're a nag. If w don't talk at all, we don' care.

If we come too close t your life, we smother you If we keep too great a distance, we lose contac altogether.

Probably the only op timism I got out of th survey was a 17-year-old who acknowledged, "It's tough to be a parent. I le my Mom ramble on and on when she's giving me advice about something, bu once I get past the lecture I usually can filter out a piece or two of good advice."

Ask yourself what did your mother get out of it and you'll just begin to understand what parents are all about.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Your Birthday

November 8, 1981

This coming year it behooves you to get more involved in activities that are both physical and mental. Your skills will develop proportionately to your interests, and help widen your circle of friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today your creative and artistic aptitudes may not be up to their usual heights. This may not be the time to tackle esthetic projects. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a giving person to begin with. Today, your generosity could exceed reasonable limits. Let someone else pick up the tab for a change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your friends will enjoy your company today and they'll appreciate a brief visit. Keep your eye on the clock, however, so as not to wear out your welcome.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be friendly with members of the opposite sex but not to the extent of possibly arousing the jealousy or suspicions of your mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The advice you have to offer outsiders will be constructive and helpful. However, when giving counsel to those you love, you may be too close to see the problem.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Enjoy fun, competitive situations for what they are. Don't make winning so important that it makes you look bad to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Members of the opposite sex find you most appealing today, but be careful you don't become involved with someone who's off-limits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be on yur best behavior socially. Poor manners or tactlessness will leave a bad lasting impression that will be hard to erase.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will be favorably today if you just act naturally. Putting on airs will be a veneer they will easily see through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can't be expected to be knowledgeable about all topics, so don't pretend to be an expert on something on you are not. Others will respect you for your candor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Make this a day devoted to pleasurable pursuits, rather than business or commercial matters in which you may not be lucky anyway.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Making commitments or promises will come easily today, but fulfilling them may be another matter. Be careful about what you agree to.

Bernice Bede Osol

November 9, 1981

This coming year you could be luckier than usual in ventures or enterprises that are artistic and imaginative. If you feel you have a moneymaker, talk to the people who can help you bring it to market.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Responsibilities you failed to attend to may press you for completion today. Even though they're distasteful tasks, get them out of the way now. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid groups or cliques where you may run into someone who has caused you problems in the past. This individual may still have a chip on his shoulder.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those days when you're not likely to work too well under pressure. Schedule your time so that things won't be left to the last moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) New ideas about which you are hopeful should not be discussed prematurely, especially to people who lack your imagination and vision.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Trying to be a nice guy is admirable, but today you must be careful not to be too easygoing or complacent in business or money matters.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When negotiating matters of importance on a one-to-one basis, be realistic about your expectations. Striking a bargain may be tough.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make an extra effort at this time to keep pace with your duties and responsibilities. Once you fall behind, they'll pile up and be difficult to manage.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be in a rather lighthearted mood today, but you may select companions who are dreary or too serious. They could take the edge off your fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Basically you are persistent and tenacious when it comes to achieving important goals, but today you may back off if things don't come easily.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Beware of a tendency to put down the ideas of others just because you didn't think of them first. Be supportive of those with good suggestions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to be on your guard today and tomorrow in matters relating to business or finances. This is not a good time to make commitments without adequate research.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though your intentions are for the good of all concerned, let companions or associates share in the decision-making process today. Don't be pushy.

SNYDER, TEXAS

Cynthia Pherigo, John Mitchell Wed

Cynthia Ann Pherigo, daughter of Thomas B. Pherigo of Snyder, and John F. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Mitchell of Odessa, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony October 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Colonial Hill Baptist Church. Dayton McCarter, uncle of the bride, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long ivory dress of crinkled texture polyester and cotton voile with stand up collar and yoke inserts of polyester lace. Sleeves were inlaced with ruffle cuffs. The gown also featured a button placket front with gathered waist, flounced hem with ribbon [illegible] wore a juliet cap of tulle trimmed in lace and an ivory veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, highlighted with antique blue and white ribbon on top of her mother's Bible.

Church decorations consisted of two baskets of silk roses with greenery, and a heart shaped 17 candle candelabrum.

Vicki Highfield of Killeen served as matron of honor. She wore a sky blue dress with jacket and carried a bouquet of blue carnations with greenery and blue and white ribbon [illegible]

Garry Cowley of Odessa was the groom's man.

Mrs. Earl Watts provided the wedding music which consisted of "Twelfth Of Never", "This Our Wedding Day", and the traditional wedding march.

The bride presented a long stemmed red rose to her mother, her new mother-in-law, and Mrs. Robert L. Walker, Sr.

For somthing old the bride carried her mother's white Bible which had also been used by her mother and sister for their weddings; something new was [illegible] something borrowed was the veil from Mrs. Jack Morris and diamond earrings from Mrs. Jim Nunn. She also wore a blue garter made by Mrs. Dayton McCarter, the bride's aunt.

The reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was centered with a tall globe of blue silk roses with greenery and baby's breath. A lace table cloth over blue covered the table. Punch was served from a crystal punch bowl.

The two tiered wedding cake was trimmed with blue roses and ribbons and [illegible] wedding bells. Teresa Morris and Susan Nunn presided at the table.

A blue cloth covered the bridegroom's table. The chocolate cake was prepared by Mrs. Robert L. Walker, Jr. Coffee was served from a silver coffee service.

Buffi Highfield, the bride's niece, registered guests.

After a wedding trip to Big Spring the couple now resides in Odessa.

The bride graduated from Snyder High School, attended Western Texas College and is a day care instructor. The bridegroom graduated from Abbeeville High School in Abbeeville, Ala., and is employed in Odessa.

Pill Popping May Be Needed

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — If there is a leak of radioactive iodine from the Sequoyah nuclear plant, families living nearby might be ordered to start popping pills to protect themselves.

Beginning in December, the state Department of Public Health will begin giving out potassium iodide pills to about 7,000 families within a five-mile radius of the plant, officials said Monday.

In case residents inhale radioactive iodine, the pills are intended to prevent their thyroid glands from absorbing the substance, which could cause cancer or the formation of knots in the gland.

The advice on when to take the pills would come from the governor.

One of the heaviest days of air fighting took place over Britain in 1940 as unprecedented masses of German aircraft attacked London. The Royal Air Force claimed to have shot down 185 German aircraft that Sept. 15, but the figure later was revised to 60.

Garden Clubs To Host Annual Fall Meeting

District VIII, Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., will hold its fall meeting Thursday in the Scurry County Museum on the Western Texas College campus.

Delegates and members from the 37 clubs within the district are expected to attend. There will be members from as far away as Del Rio and Ozona to San Angelo, Coleman, Cross Plains, Abilene, Stamford and Breckenridge.

Registration and coffee will begin at 8:30 a. m. Thursday in the museum, with Mrs. Tommy Davis and Mrs. Forrest Fox as co-chairmen.

An executive committee meeting also will be held Thursday at 8:45 a. m. in the museum.

"Black Gold" will be the theme for the District VIII meeting. District Director Mrs. E. A. Park of Abilene will preside. Business will consist of adoption of a budget and election of nominating committee members.

First Assistant Director Mrs. Lee Graves of Ozona will present the program "Keys to Success," with emphasis on "Principles of design in Flower Arranging" which will be presented by National Flower Show judges from District VIII.

Pre-convention activities will begin at 6 p. m. Wednesday with a "Dutch treat" dinner at The Shack. Entertainment will be a visit to the Diamond M Museum, which is within walking distance of The Shack.

Also attending the meeting will be the Second Assistant Director Mrs. F. E. Boyd of San Angelo, and the Third Assistant Director Mrs. Glenn Sutton of Ozona.

Hurricanes and their western Pacific and Indian Ocean counterparts — typhoons and cyclones — may grow to be more than 500 miles in diameter.

Ira Baptist Church Sets Revival Services

Revival services are scheduled to begin at Ira Baptist Church with a worship service Sunday at 11 a.m., followed by dinner on the grounds, according to Mike Brown, pastor.

Those leading the services will be preaching evangelist Riley Hamilton and singing evangelist Larry Sinclair. Services will continue through Friday night and will include a morning Bible study at 10 a.m. and worship at 7 p.m. each evening.

Special emphasis for each night will be: Sunday--old fashioned night; Monday--pack the pew night; Tuesday--Sunday School night; Wednesday--God's family night; Thursday--children's night: and Friday--youth night.

Hamilton is the pastor of the Fairview Baptist Church in Levelland. Upon gradaution from high school in 1972, he joined the Air Force and served until he was honorably discharged in 1976. He graduated from South Plains College in Levelland with an AA degree.

Sinclair is a music evengelist from Ft. Worth. He was handicapped by a bout with polio at the age of 2½. Before entering music evengelism on his own, he was involved with the Followers, an evangelistic singing group.

Motorcyclist Captures Comrades On Canvas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Simon Garcia, dressed out in the black leather "colors" of the San Jacinto High Rollers Motorcycle Club, looks menacing with his flowing mane, mustache, scruffy salt-and-pepper beard and a metal cross pinned through his left ear.

But "Guss," as he's known by fellow motorcycle riders, also has an aesthetic nature.

He is an artist who has captured on canvas his impression of the "Easy Rider" types seen breezing through the Texas Hill Country on their weekend "runs."

Garcia, 44, who rides a big Harley Davidson, contends people who bother to look beyond the Hollywood stereotype of leather-jacketed motorcycle club members might be surprised at what they find.

The retired Air Force senior master sergeant says he typifies the kind of person belonging to the Gypsies, Dragons and Texas Travelers motorcycle clubs — family organizations not affiliated with the more notorious gangs such as the Bandidos and Hell's Angels.

"Most of them are professional people and some own their own businesses," he said.

During the week Garcia is a senior graphics designer at Southwest Research Institute and is graduating next month from Incarnate Word College.

But on the weekend, he is "Guss," roaring on his cycle along some road en route to some new adventure which he later may commit to canvas. His club also makes runs for charity, including an upcoming motorcycle ride to benefit the "Toys for Tots" campaign.

Dozens of motorcycle club members from this area, many of them subjects for Garcia's paintings, are expected to roll into town in full colors this weekend to open his one-man motorcycle art show at the university's Fine Arts Building on Sunday.

Known as "Canvas Run," Garcia's senior art project will be on display Nov. 8-25 featuring acrylic canvases, brilliant watercolors, pencil sketches and one crayola, depicting the many motorcycle trips he has taken through South Central Texas.

His "big bike," painted on its gas tank, will be parked inside by his gallery of works.

"Bikers are just ordinary folks," Garcia said. "But some people don't feel that way. They see somebody going around on two wheels and immediately say he's an outlaw.

"But bikers are caring individuals and their personalized bikes give them an opportunity to feel free, to smell the trees and the flowers, go places where people in the metal cages of cars can't go. Bikers enjoy everything — their senses are keenly aware and their freedom gives them ability to accept rich comradeship. I want to celebrate that."

Among his works is a painting of "Fat Richard," whom Garcia described as "looking very menacing, very intimidating, but a real soft cuddly guy. He just liked to play it up."

Fat Richard was shot in the back and killed while helping a proprietor remove two rowdy "rednecks" from an establishment several months ago, Garcia said.

Garcia also displays a painting he did of national president Ronnie Hodges of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club and another Bandido, which Garcia said depicts "togetherness."

One watercolor is called "Happy Rider" and is Garcia's impression of a typical motorcyclist.

"I feel good when I put it (cycle colors) on. I'm apart from the everyday work environment — a special person. It's almost like an alter ego. It looks kind of Hollywood, but we have a lot of fun — not like drunk and falling down — but the overall feeling is fun, togetherness, dance. You are free. You leave everything behind. You're out in the country and you appreciate life and nature, while a lot of people just don't take the time."

Garcia said many of the motorcyclists he captured on canvas were "surprised" but were also pleased with his paintings.

"I'm proud of my painting and I think they are proud of me," he said.

Garcia said his art show would be the first such display in San Antonio.

Stanfield PTA Sets Program

The Stanfield PTA has scheduled a talent show for Tuesday night at the school.

Admission price will be $1 for adults. Children will be admitted free.

There will be a cake auction during intermission, and everyone is invited to attend.

Clubs Slate Joint Meeting

Members of the Honey Dos and Patchwork Squares Extension clubs will have a joint meeting on Tuesday morning, Nov. 10, at 9:30 a.m. in the foyer of the colliseum annex building. The main order of business will be the merger of the two clubs and election of officers for 1982.

All members are urged to be present and are reminded that they should bring an antique item for "show and tell" program. Women interested in becoming a member of an extension club are invited to attend this meeting.

Living Room For Coffee

NEW YORK (AP) — To avoid having guests sit too long at the dinner table, take coffee into the living room at the end of the meal.

It is less tiresome for guests that way and more enjoyable, advises one of Manhattan's professional party-givers.

Displays 'Stuffed' Animals

DALLAS (AP) — Corny dogs, cotton candy, whizzing, whirling midway rides, the motorized statue of Big Tex booming "Howdy, folks!" and waving his mechanical arm — these delight most children at the State Fair of Texas.

But not Steve Runnels. At age 5 he fell in love with the ancient death on display in dioramas at the Museum of Natural History in Fair Park.

And now — 30 years later — he is still at odds with popular taste, still fond of the old exhibits many find boring or a waste of the museum's precious resources.

Intended to be timeless, they are going out of style. Intended to be repositories of the past, the exhibits may be passing.

Runnels is the museum's "birdman" — the curator of ornithology. His beloved dioramas of dead Texas animals posed among hand-made trees with colored wax leaves, water-colored plaster rocks, dried grasses and glass ponds have lost their power to astound. They seem old-fashioned, as indeed they are.

The modern nature museum's dioramas are descended from 18th century curios cabinets.

"Science was brand new then, and everyone had their little collections, and it was kind of a Barnum & Bailey circus situation," Runnels said. "They had these glass-fronted cabinets — curio cases — with jars full of two-headed calves, or parasites found in somebody's body, things like that.

"The more garish the things were, the more exciting they were to the people."

The first nature museum in the U.S., the Peale Museum of Natural History, opened in Philadelphia in 1802. Its original collection — bottled snakes, mostly — grew, the museum moved to New York City and became a pioneer of "sculpture taxidermy," the modern way to "stuff" animals.

(They aren't stuffed. A mounted beast is actually a skin stretched over a man-made form.)

The public, Runnels says, is much more sophisticated now than it was when the Dallas museum opened in 1936, or even when he was a boy in the 1950s.

"We didn't have a television then, and I'd never seen anything like these animals," he said. "I was amazed. I just couldn't get over it.

"Now, we look at nature shows on TV, and we ask more and more for our senses. The museum has to struggle to keep up, to stay relevant."

Visitors who are accustomed to seeing moving pictures of live animals tend to be somewhat underwhelmed with the dead "real" thing displayed in the museum, he said.

They notice the old-fashioned style and bad painting in some of the background pictures, the thin layer of dust lying on the glass pond in the raccoon case, the fading colors in the display of Dallas waterbirds at White Rock Lake as it looked before it was dredged and the brushy little islands destroyed.

"The 1950s and '60s brought a new way of doing things in communication — technology, films," said Richard Pearson, production director at the huge Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. "The 'show-and-tell' method of exhibits just weren't doing it any more. People expect more — more content, more entertainment, a very quick message. They want something to happen very quickly and then they'll be gone."

The Field has responded by using more and more "specials" — traveling shows — and the Dallas museum is beginning to do the same.

"The stuffed animals are still popular, sure. Some people love them," Pearson said. "But it's a function of economics what kind of exhibits you have. We find it easier to generate donations with these special exhibits."

Not everyone cares for the specials.

Runnels loves his beasts too well. He takes public slights personally.

"The present direction of museums is away from the diorama," he said. "One of the criticisms we get is that we don't change enough. Someone walks in here and says, 'I've seen that before.

"I want to take these people and tell them, 'You've never really looked!' So many people don't know we made these leaves, or those flowers. It's like having the hand of God. Only God can make a tree — and I can."

The exhibits, like the building in which they are housed, are the result of patient craftsmanship, thousands of hours of painstaking and often tedious labor now rare because of costs.

"You couldn't build something like this today," Runnels said, his gesture taking in the museum's wood-paneled walls, intricately frescoed ceiling, and the Italian marble stair with its art deco banister and newel posts of stainless steel.

It was ultra-modern architecture when it was built by Works Progress Administration workers in 1936, but its wealth of detail marks it now as an anachromism, a thing out of its time.

Loving labor expended on a diorama also seems to be of another era. Building a single exhibit can take as long as five years from original conception to final execution.

There are field trips to the site that will be reproduced in the museum as faithfully as is humanly posssible.

Hundreds of photographs are taken. Latex or plaster casts are made of rocks, trees, and even very small plants like the candelilla, living rock cactus and yucca in the mountain lion group.

The artist who is to paint the background on the curved stretch of canvas behind the mounted animals sketches the site in pencil, then tries to paint it as it looks at the precise hour the exhibit is supposed to show.

The collecting and mounting of the animals is only one part of the process, but its arcane science and precise art make it seem particularly time.

Most of the large animals in the Dallas museum were mounted by Jonas Bros. in Denver, one of the nation's oldest taxidermy companies.

"We do not do as many museum mounts now as we used to," said Chuck Meacham, foreman at Jonas Bros. "This is the bottom of the museum era. All of the major museums have their completed work, and what little is done now is maintenance of the existing diorama."

The Denver Museum of Natural History says it is the only U.S. museum that still has large-mammal taxidermists on staff.

FALN Is Hispanic Terrorist Organization

DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

On April 4, 1980, a resident of the Chicago suburb of Evanston noticed nine Hispanics in jogging suits trotting in and out of a van parked on a tree-lined, lakefront street. She called police, who found the joggers heavily armed and an arsenal of arms and explosives in the van.

The nine, along with two men arrested earlier that day in a stolen truck on the Northwestern University campus, were members of the Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion National — the FALN — which since 1974 had planted bombs in the name of Puerto Rican independence in New York, Chicago and other American cities.

The six men and five women included the group's masterminds — Carlos Alberto Torres, number one on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted List, and his wife Marie Haydee Beltran Torres. Authorities also seized documents which led to FALN safe houses in Jersey City, N.J. and Milwaukee, where they found plans for bombings, political kidnappings, and disruption of the 1980 Democratic National Convention.

Authorities exulted that they had broken the FALN, one of the few political terrorist organizations to have operated in the continental United States. "We've decapitated its leadership" said an FBI official.

But decimating the leadership and eliminating a terror group are different things. A point underscored last month when remnants of the Weather Underground, including the long-sought Kathy Boudin, surfaced in a burst of violence that left two policemen and an armored truck guard dead. It led investigators to begin probing their links with the Black Liberation Army.

The FALN's Evanston 11 have been tried, covicted, and sentenced to 50 years and up. Another widely sought fugitive, Oscar Lopez-Rivera, is serving 55 years after being arrested in 1979 for a routine traffic violation.

But law enforcement officials, while suggesting the FALN is regrouping, acknowledge that it's anything but dead. In the barrios — in East Harlem, the South Bronx, Chicago, it's constructing a new infrastructure from people whose identities authorities can only guess at. And the jailed leaders, like organized crime figures and European terrorists before them, are believed to be issuing orders from prison.

Nor has Puerto Rican terrorism stopped. Bombs exploded this year at Penn Station and Kennedy Airport in New York, for which an apparent FALN offshoot called the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance claimed responsibility. Alfredo Mendez, a member of the Evanston 11 turned state's witness, testified at Lopez-Rivera's trial that plans were afoot to kidnap President Reagan's dancer son Ron and ransom him for the freedom of the FALN prisoners.

"We're comfortable with the people who are in jail. We know who they are," says Kenneth P. Walton, second-in-command of the FBI's New York office and chief federal officer on a joint FBI-New York Police Department anti-terrorism task force. "We know there are more out there but we don't know who they are or what their strength is."

Most FALN members are relatively well-educated second generation mainlanders — "neo-Ricans." "They are less in awe of Americans because they have lived among them," says Ruben Berrios, president of Puerto Rico's Independence Party, "They suffer to a lesser extent the colonial complex that afflicts the Puerto Rican on the island."

Local police attribute more than 100 explosions since 1974 to the FALN. The FBI puts the figure at precisely 62 bombings that caused five deaths and 81 injuries and $3,547,494.70 in property damage.

Most of the bombs have been placed at night in unoccupied government buildings or the headquarters of major corporations. Four deaths occurred when when a bomb exploded at historic Fraunces' Tavern in New York during a busy lunch hour in 1975. The fifth, for which Haydee Torres was convicted, came in a daytime explosion at New York's Mobil Oil building in 1977. One more death — not yet officially counted by the FBI — came when a bomb the Puerto Rican Armed Resistance claims to have set exploded last May in a men's room at Kennedy Airport.

FALN members consider themselves guerrillas at war with the United States. According to law enforcement sources, they operate in cells of from six to 12, and usually know only members of their own cells. Authorities say the group has no more 100 members and probably fewer.

Little is known about their internal operation. An intensive screening process has prevented law enforcement penetration and only Mendez among the captured members has talked. In the early years, several leaders, including Torres, were unpaid volunteers for the Episcopal Church Commission on Hispanic Affairs. In 1977, after the link was uncovered, two employees of that organization were jailed after they refused to answer a grand jury's questions about the FALN. They have never talked.

The captured leaders declared themselves "prisoners of war," and refused to acknowledge a U.S. court's right to try them on such criminal charges as weapons violations, armed robbery, seditious conspiracy and murder.

Puerto Rico came into the American orbit in 1898 as one of the casual prizes of the Spanish-American War and remained a relatively placid colony for three decades. In 1917, the Jones Act conferred American citizenship on Puerto Ricans, setting the stage for the migration to American cities that intensified after World War II. Until 1952, when the island became a self-governing commonwealth, Puerto Rican governors were Americans appointed by the president, usually as a reward for political favors.

The independence movement surfaced in the late 1920s, but could never get more than 22 percent of the vote in any plebescite, a figure that shrivelled to six percent in the last two decades. Its leader was Pedro Albizu Campos, a Harvard Law School graduate who became disaffected when he was assigned to a segregated Army unit during World War I.

Berrios and most independencistas reject violence.

Policy Will Stimulate Investments

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State William Clark says President Reagan's Caribbean policy will help stimulate private investment in this newly independent island nation.

Clark was on hand for the weekend festivities marking the end of British rule in Antigua and its sister island Barbuda. Independence came at the stroke of midnight Saturday, when the Union Jack was lowered and Antiqua's yellow, blue, red and black flag unfurled.

Clark said Reagan's policies of "stimulation of private investment in Antigua is going to be a very big item — helping them help themselves wn several sectors." He also said the U.S. Consulate in St. John's would be upgraded to an embassy.

"Dollar TV and Rental is now a Curtis Mathes Home Entertainment Center"

Curtis Mathes

"I'd like to welcome you as a member of America's largest chain of exclusive Home Entertainment Centers. Your total commitment to customer services has assured your selection as a Curtis Mathes representative here."

"Thanks, Curtis. Although the name of my business has changed, my personal goals have not: to offer truly professional advice, demonstration and after-sale follow-through on our full line of quality products... all backed with the Curtis Mathes exclusive four-year limited warranty."

Kenny Dollar

The Longest Warranty Available

With each new Curtis Mathes television, video recorder or stereo system, you get our famous 4-year exclusive limited warranty that covers all electronic parts and or picture tube. It's the longest warranty in the business. And though you may never need it, it's nice to know it's there. Ask to see a complete copy of this warranty.
