President Clinton signs nuclear test ban treaty

Wants 'zero tolerance' for terrorist supporters

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Clinton today appealed to the world community to join together in exhibiting "real zero tolerance" for nations that support terrorism and drug trafficking.

Addressing the U.N. General Assembly, Clinton urged the world body to maintain international sanctions to isolate "rogue states" like Iran, Libya and Iraq.

And, he said, the message to drug traffickers and terrorists should be: "You have no place to run, you have no place to hide."

Clinton addressed the world body after becoming the first world leader to sign the historic Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty banning all nuclear test explosions.

"This week, in this place, we take a giant step forward" in making the world a safer place, Clinton said.

With a blue U.N. flag at his back, Clinton put his signature to the treaty in the Trusteeship Council Room.

In his General Assembly speech, Clinton called the treaty "the longest-fought, hardest-sought prize" toward world peace.

Clinton also used the speech to take a slap at the Senate for not ratifying a Clinton-endorsed treaty to curb the worldwide spread of chemical weapons.

"I deeply regret that the United States Senate has not yet voted on the chemical weapons convention," he said. "I will not let this treaty die. And we will join the ranks of nations determined to prevent the spread of chemical weapons."

Democrats have blamed former Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, Clinton's presidential rival, for the delays in taking up the treaty.

Clinton was returning to the campaign trail after his U.N. appearance.

His U.N. speech was the reason cited by his presidential campaign for postponing the first presidential debate, which had tentatively been scheduled for this week.

On combatting terrorism and drug trafficking, Clinton said that he was pressing support for "11 international conventions that would help prevent and punish terrorists. All of us, working together, must do more to fight terrorism."

Clinton noted that in his speech a year ago, he hard urged nations "to commit to a goal of zero tolerance for aggression, terrorism and lawless behavior."

Rains spotty

A fast-moving thunderstorm hit the Snyder area around 9 p.m. Monday and left over a half-inch of rain just west of town at the Paymaster Gin.

The city's rain gauge at the water treatment plant caught three-tenths of an inch, as did gauges in central Snyder.

Only a trace of rain was recorded east of town while Ira and Dunn residents were treated only to a lightning show.

No moisture was reported at Lake Thomas.

Rain, Thanks!

Environmental activists were recently warned about a chemical, dihydrogen oxide, looming as to cause major harm to our planet.

According to an article by Peter Sparber, a Washington lobbyist, this chemical is a real killer. He pleaded in his article to "stop the silent killer."

He wrote, "You have been identifed as a person who cares deeply about the future of our fragile planet, the health of our children and the quality of our nation's leadership. If we are right, we need your help and we need it immediately." That usually translates, "send money."

He listed some reasons for his appeal:

--In a single year, 4,100 Americans died from excessive doses of dihydrogen oxide.

--Lakes, rivers and oceans are known to contain vast quantities of the substance. Ground water, same tragic situation.

--In some states, families have lost their homes because of dihydrogen oxide contamination.

--In some applications, dihydrogen oxide is a major contributor to injuries from falls.

Sparber's appeal for help drew some hard-hitting responses from many environmental-friendly people. One said, "We're writing to demand an end to the production and use of dihydrogen oxide. This is a major threat to humans and animal health. Do the right thing and don't let dollars always speak."

Those with chemistry knowledge may have figured out it was all a hoax. Dihydrogen oxide is water, and the lobbyist was setting a trap for over-zealous environmental activists are are quick to embrace issues without fully investigating the facts.

Yep, floods can cause massive damage and damp surfaces can be slippery.

And yes, water does cause drowning, and many rivers and lakes have lots of water. We could probably get a low-level exemption for Lake Thomas.

Think More Rain!

Barred from debates, Perot files suit

DALLAS (AP) — Unable to get his message out the way he wants, Ross Perot is going to his lawyers to gain access to the debates and the airwaves.

The Reform Party nominee filed a lawsuit Monday and plans to file a complaint today to force his way into the presidential face-offs, onto prime-time television — and, in turn, into American voters' homes.

Shutting him out, "will only deepen the nation's cynicism about government," the pugnacious Perot said in his lawsuit.

Perot filed suit in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., against the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates, which barred him from the debates. He complained that he should be included or the forums canceled.

Perot's campaign said he would also file a complaint today with the Federal Communications Commission requesting reasonable access to network facilities and equal air time for his broadcasts.

The Texas billionaire, who prefers to campaign on television with 30-minute infomercials, hasn't been able to buy desirable broadcast times for his political ads.

Adjusting to the networks' decisions, Perot's campaign is now negotiating to buy air time for three 30-second commercials denouncing the debate commission. "Where's Ross?" asks an announcer in one. In another, the announcer asks, "What are they afraid of?"

But even airing the short ads has become difficult. Campaign coordinator Russ Verney said the campaign tried to purchase time for the 30-second spots on the three major broadcast networks — ABC, CBS and NBC — and was told no time was available this week. He said the campaign may buy time on cable networks or in local markets.

Negotiations continued late Monday, said spokeswoman Sharon Holman.

"They want to air them as soon as they can buy time," she said of the three new spots.

Perot's lawsuit contends that the debate commission violated Federal Election Commission rules requiring "objective criteria" for determining whom to include in debates. It faults the FEC for failing to enforce its rules.

The suit criticizes the debate commission's finding that Perot and running mate Pat Choate have no realistic chance of being elected.

The suit contends that the commission violated federal election law and certain constitutional rights of Perot and Choate.

Fletcher wins football contest

Three people missed six games in the third week of the Snyder Daily News football contest.

Jay Fletcher of 412 36th was the closest to the tie breaker score of 42 - the total points scored in the Snyder-Abilene Wylie game.

Fletcher picked 43 as his tie breaking score and that was good for first place and a $50 prize.

Melissa Martinez of 100 E. 37th St., Apt. 14, missed the tie breaker by 12 points for second place and a $25 prize. Linda Stack of 201 26th St. was 14 points away from the actual score by picking 28 points and she won $15.

All three of the entrants missed the Dallas Cowboy game.

A new contest begins in today's edition.

Prudential to settle lawsuits, report says

NEW YORK (AP) — The Prudential Insurance Co. of America will pay at least $410 million to settle lawsuits that contended the company misled customers into buying more expensive insurance, The Wall Street Journal reported today.

The class-action settlement to pay back policyholders is the biggest by Prudential since the scheme was uncovered two years ago, the paper said. The deal could be announced as early as today.

"We have been talking to the plaintiffs' counsel, but I'm not prepared to announce a settlement yet," Prudential spokesman Robert DeFillippo said this morning.

The attorney for those filing the suit, Mel Weiss, did not immediately return a telephone message left at his New York office today.

The latest arrangement is designed to compensate as many policyholders as possible, the Journal said, quoting sources it didn't identify. The average payout is expected to be at least $2,300 per policyholder exclusive of damages.

Nearly 11 million policyholders who bought insurance over 15 years are eligible to apply for restitution.

The settlement must be approved by a federal judge in Newark, N.J., and several state insurance regulators.

Prudential agents practiced "churning," a tactic to dupe policyholders into buying more expensive coverage with the cash value of their policies. Many of the policyholders were elderly, and regulators said customers were misled about the costs and its impact on their policies' value.

Even if the judge approves the settlement, Prudential still must deal with dozens of individual lawsuits in state courts filed by people who don't want to participate in a class-action deal.

Prudential has already struck a deal with insurance regulators in 43 states that includes restitution but no punitive damages.

The insurance giant is still being investigated by the Florida attorney general, who is probing whether documents were destroyed by the firm or its agents.

Goals 2000 program set

Goals 2000, a program sponsored by Snyder ISD, holds its first parent/volunteer training session tonight.

SISD Supt. Gayle Lomax will be guest speaker for the event, which begins at 7 o'clock in the Northeast Elementary auditorium. Parents and volunteers are encouraged to attend.

Following Lomax's message, the first class on "Megaskills" will be offered. "Megaskills" addresses topics such as confidence, motivation, effort, responsibility, initiative, perseverance, caring, teamwork, common sense and problem-solving.

During the 1996-97 school year, monthly meetings will be held to offer parents and volunteers classes on parenting, study skills, the importance of reading to children and other topics.

Perot protests exclusion, but has little chance

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — With neither legal nor political precedents on his side, Ross Perot is angrily debating his exclusion from the real debates between President Clinton and Republican Bob Dole.

The precedent for that is an older political standard: Don't just get mad, get even. Or try to.

Perot is suing to block the presidential campaign debates, due to begin on Oct. 6, advertising his protest against the Democrats and Republicans in the kind of television commercials he used to dismiss as sound bite politics, and denouncing Dole as the man most responsible for his exclusion.

His prospect of winning a reversal is frail at best. The federal courts in 1988 and 1992 rejected the demands of a minor candidate to be included in debates, and the Supreme Court declined to consider a post-election appeal on the question.

Perot wants the court to bar the debates unless he gets to confront the major party candidates again.

He did four years ago, and the debates revived his interrupted campaign. When Perot temporarily quit the 1992 race, he said he didn't want to disrupt a contest he couldn't win, a concession he later retracted.

AP analysis

Now he is suing the Commission on Presidential Debates for ruling him out on grounds that he does not have a realistic chance of winning the election. "Declaring the election essentially over for all candidates but two before a single debate takes place will only deepen the nation's cynicism about government," Perot's lawsuit complains.

Perhaps so, but short of a miracle or revolutionary reversal in form, either Clinton or Dole will be elected on Nov. 5. Perot's 19 percent of the 1992 ballots did not win him a single electoral vote, and his standing in public opinion polls now is far short of that showing, running in the 5 to 7 percent range.

Indeed, Perot said himself that his goal this year is to make sure that his new Reform Party gets at least 25 percent of the vote to give it equal legal standing, and financing, with the Democrats and the Republicans in 2000.

He also said on NBC that he's still running to win. But to get a quarter of the popular vote he would have to outdo his last showing, with six weeks to go and polls pointing the other way.

Essentially, Perot argues that he can't reverse that without debating, saying that to be excluded would incalculably damage his campaign.

The debate commission argues that its forums are intended to let voters see and hear potential presidents, not to help launch lesser candidates. It has no official standing, but has been sponsoring debates since 1988. Perot argues that its electability guidelines are subjective, and do not meet the Federal Election Commission rule requiring that objective criteria set in advance be used to determine which candidates participate in debates among candidates for federal office, congressional as well as presidential. So he is suing both the agency and the debate sponsor.

Perot's political argument is most bitterly against Dole, who wanted him out, while Clinton sought to have Perot included in at least one debate. The final terms were settled Saturday between the major party campaigns, as usual. The Republicans figured Perot could hurt their ticket, and the Democrats thought so, too.

The presidential debates were set for Oct. 6 and Oct. 16, with one between the vice presidential nominees on Oct. 9.

When the 1992 debates were set up, negotiators for President Bush and for Clinton both saw potential advantages in including Perot and agreed on it even before the debate commission ruled that he was entitled to a spot.

As a practical matter, that's the way it works, and neither the lawsuit nor the 30-second TV commercials in which Perot assailed his exclusion is likely to change the situation.

But Perot will be raising the issue from now on, as he did Sunday on NBC, saying Dole's insistence on excluding him was really dumb politically and will hurt Republicans in congressional elections where his supporters helped them win in 1994. He's also called Dole arrogant, rude and desperate.

Debates can become issues as well as forums. A notable example: Ronald Reagan's against Bush in the 1980 New Hampshire primary campaign. They were to debate one-on-one, excluding four other GOP candidates. One was Senator Dole, and he complained to the Federal Election Commission about corporate financing of a debate that denied seats to all but two candidates.

"To sanction an event which suggests that only two men are vying for the Republican nomination and to schedule it three days before the primary seems to me to be the worst kind of political manipulation," Dole said then.

Times and circumstances change.

Seagram pushes liquor ads on TV despite criticism

NEW YORK (AP) — Brushing off criticism from President Clinton and others, Seagram is expanding its whiskey commercials on television, disregarding the industry's 48-year-old voluntary ban on hard liquor TV ads.

A New Hampshire TV station seen in the Boston metropolitan area confirmed Monday that it has sold time to Seagram for a commercial advertising Chivas Regal premium whiskey.

Marc Lehner, general sales manager at WNDS-TV in Derry, N.H., said managers felt that the ad was tastefully done and agreed to run it after 9 p.m., when it is expected that fewer children will be watching.

That confirmed, at least partially, a report in Monday's edition of the trade magazine Advertising Age that said Seagram was starting to run ads for Chivas and Crown Royal whiskeys in New Hampshire, Texas, Iowa, Illinois and Michigan.

A spokeswoman for Seagram declined to say when and where the distiller was running commercials. But she said the Canadian-based company had bought ad time for several of its liquor brands since June, when it broke the industry custom, adopted in 1948, of voluntarily keeping such advertising off television.

Seagram began running a 30-second commercial in June for its Crown Royal whiskey on NBC affiliate KRIS-TV in Corpus Christi, Texas.

A few days after the ads began running, Clinton said he was disappointed by the decision and urged liquor companies to "go back to the ban" and to "pull those ads" so children wouldn't be exposed to them.

With liquor sales lagging in recent years, Seagram contended the media landscape has changed dramatically since the 1940s and that it should be as free as the beer and wine marketers are to buy commercial time.

Bevin Gove, a spokeswoman for the Seagram Americas division in New York, said Seagram "obviously disagreed" with Clinton's comments urging the company to pull its commercials, and added that further criticism from health advocacy and consumer groups hadn't caused the company to change its mind.

Gold sale rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund won't be selling off its gold — at least not now — but is exploring other ways to raise money for debt relief to the world's poorest countries.

A senior IMF official, briefing reporters Monday on condition that his name not be used, said he was confident the 181-nation lending agency will be able to come up with the resources for the joint debt relief effort with the its sister organization, the World Bank.

The IMF's 24-member executive board last week decided to delay approval of a plan to sell $2 billion of the IMF's $40 billion in gold reserves in the face of continued opposition from Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

The gold sales have the backing of the Clinton administration, which has been trying since last June's economic summit in Lyon, France, to overcome strong objections from Germany.

It Happened In Scurry County...

The buffalo hunters

By Jean Everett

Excerpts from "Footprints Across Scurry County," published in 1984 by the Scurry County Book Committee, from the section "Those Who Left Tracks," with permission from the author, Jean Everett.

No one knows how many buffalo roamed over North America before the white man came. The most carefully calculated estimates range from 60 to 75 million head. However, as late as 1830, after the hunters began their kills, there were still 40 million. The peak hunting year was 1875. By 1883 less than 1,000 were left in the United States.

Perhaps it was adventure and excitement that first lured the white man to hunt the buffalo, but it became a livelihood and a lucrative business. The buffalo hunters were hardened men, aged beyond their youthful years by blizzards and sandstorms, stampedes, and sneak Indian attacks. They blazed their footprints across Scurry County with the crack of the Sharps 50 rifle as they cleared the way for the cowman and the settler.

The most famous of the hunters to come to this area were J. Wright Mooar and his brother John. Others were here, too, but the Mooars came and stayed after the buffalo were gone.

J. Wright and his party of hunters first camped on the banks of Deep Creek in the year 1876. It was on the first day, Oct. 7, that Wright shot his albino trophy. His was one of seven killed in the entire United States. Mooar tanned the hide, and displayed it with pride to his friends over the years. He passed it down to his granddaughter, Julia (Judy) May McDonnel Hays. She displays it in a glass case, mounted on the den wall.

While Wright was the hunter, John was the business man who found new markets for the meat and hides of the buffalo. Charles Anderson tells a more complete story in his book "In Search of the Buffalo."

The Mooar brothers continued to hunt from the camp on Deep Creek during the winter of 1877-78, sending the hides to Fort Worth. But they could see the hunting as about to play out, so by 1877 they began to buy a few cattle to run on the open range...

Cattleman

Dust from the vanishing buffalo had barely cleared when men began eyeing the vast, unsettled prairie of the Staked Plains as a new frontier. Green with gramma and buffalo grasses, watered by many streams, it was unspoiled, virgin land with grazing range just for the using.

Civil War weary and broke, young men looked with eagerness to the open range as an opportunity for a new start. The most courageous of the lot rounded up herds of wild cattle that roamed East Texas, and headed west. The migration that began in 1877 brought great changes to this portion of West Texas.

On the heels of the longhorn cattle rode the cowboy, adapting his dress and equipment from that of the Spanish vaquero. With the broad brimmed hat to shade his eyes from the glaring sun, a bandanna to protect the nose and mouth from dust, leather chaps to shield his legs, and pointed-toe boots suited to the stirrup, the cowboy spurred his way into history.

The Nunn brothers were the first to drive a large herd of cattle into Scurry County. In July, 1876, John W., Thomas N. and James H. Nunn left the security of home and friends in Washington County, Texas with 1,500 head of cattle and headed for the unknown of West Texas...

The trip was long and arduous. By the time they reached Scurry County their horses were thin and worn out, the cattle were poor, and supplies had run out. One of the men cut the date in a rock when they arrived and made camp in the northeastern part of the county. The campsite was near the present community of Camp Springs where the Guinn School later stood. The date was reported to be Oct. 30, 1877, by James Nunn (then 82 years old) in his talk with Oma Ryan in 1937. However, two years later, he told Odell Head it was 1876. (Location of the rock has long been lost).

Other stockman and herdsmen followed. By 1880, the U.S. Census showed 102 persons living in Scurry County which included 32 residences, 25 families and 32 employees. Eight of the 102 were black.

It was a young man's country, with average age being late 20s and early 30s. The oldest head of family was 45 years of age.

...When cattle first came to the area, they operated on the principal of the open range, that is, they would establish their headquarters by erecting a place of lodging, and would control as large an area as they grazed. This free range period lasted until about 1884-1886.

Loser wants newspaper to pay cost

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A losing state Senate candidate wants the Star Tribune newspaper to pay for a new election after a picture of him was mistakenly published with a story about a fraud case on primary day.

"At the very best this is gross negligence. At the very worst this is criminal," said John Derus, in suggesting to a judge Monday that the newspaper acted deliberately.

The newspaper has said the photo mix-up was an innocent mistake.

Derus, a Democrat, lost to Linda Higgins by 104 votes out of about 6,300 cast in a Minneapolis district Sept. 10.

Although his name was not printed with the photo, Derus said the juxtaposition of his image with the words "charity fraud" cost him votes. His lawsuit filed Monday asks the judge to order the newspaper to pay for a new primary, estimated at $20,000, and cover his legal fees.

Husband Struggles With Guilt While Coping With Invalid Wife

© 1996 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 66-year-old married man. My wife and I were childhood sweethearts and have been married for 46 years.

Six years ago, she developed Alzheimer's disease and has been in a nursing home for the last year.

Even though she does not recognize me or our children, I have gone to visit her every day, until six months ago when I reduced it to twice a week because she had no idea who I was, which I found very depressing.

The nursing staff and my children noticed my depression and encouraged me to "break away." As I reduced my visits, I wound up with a guilty conscience that is difficult to cope with.

My children have encouraged me to seek female companionship, something I had longed for, but I was concerned about what others would think.

However, for the last four months I have been romantically involved with a 62-year-old neighbor lady whose husband died nine years ago. We have taken a few trips together. My children and brothers and sisters enthusiastically approve of our relationship and say they have noticed a positive change in me.

Abby, my guilt feelings have increased even though I haven't changed my visiting routine to the nursing home. I would greatly appreciate your comments on my situation.

TORN IN OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR TORN: I can understand your feelings of guilt. Fate has placed you between a rock and a hard place. You are a married man with an absentee wife.

A psychiatrist, psychologist, grief counselor or clergyperson could help you absolve those feelings.

If there is an Alzheimer's support group in your area, join it. There are thousands of support groups for caregivers of Alzheimer's patients, and the national office of the Alzheimer's Association (1-800-272-3900) will be happy to refer you.

Incidentally, on Oct. 5 and 6 in more than 200 communities, the Alzheimer's Association will hold its 1996 Memory Walk, the only nationwide event for Alzheimer's disease, to raise funds for caregiver programs.

DEAR ABBY: I am 36 years old and my husband is 38. We have been married three years. This is a second marriage for both of us, and I consider myself the luckiest woman in the world.

I have never had children but my husband has one — a 10-year-old son who is living with his mother in another state.

Abby, I am tired of being asked, "When are you two going to have a family?"

I honestly do not want children and my husband doesn't want children — in fact he had a vasectomy shortly after his son was born.

What do you tell people who keep asking, "When are you two going to have a family?"

SICK OF IT

DEAR SICK OF IT: Use the "Dear Abby" response when you are asked a question you don't want to answer:

"If you'll forgive me for not answering, I'll forgive you for asking."

***

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law is basically a nice person, but after 20 years, he has yet to recognize me as a person. I am simply "Ken's wife."

I have been a very conscientious daughter-in-law, remembering all the special occasions, Father's Day, his birthday, etc. But despite my efforts he still treats me like I am invisible.

Each Christmas, he presents my husband with a nice check (in front of me). It is in an envelope bearing Ken's name. I try to ignore the slight, but each time I feel that I have been slapped in the face.

Abby, am I being petty? Or do I have a point?

SENSITIVE CANADIAN

DEAR CANADIAN: You are not being "petty" and you do have a point. Your father-in-law is incredibly insensitive. Your husband should "educate" him in the social graces. He should remind his Dad that you have a name.

To win or not to win

By Phillip Alder

You are being offered a trick, but it is one that won't run away. Should you win or duck? Sometimes that decision will make the difference between "outrageous fortune" and suffering "heartache and the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to," as Hamlet phrased it.

In this deal, from the Alcatel Worldwide Bridge Contest last June, West missed a chance to mislead declarer.

Against four hearts, West led the club 10: two, seven, queen. The declarer, the European Bridge League President, Bill Pencharz, ran the diamond jack to East's king. She continued with the club ace and another club, South ruffing low and West overruffing with the queen. Back came a diamond to declarer's 10.

Having lost three tricks, the declarer had to read the trump suit correctly to succeed. With his antenna in tune, Pencharz cashed his heart king and played a heart to dummy's 10. When East discarded, declarer drew the last trump and claimed. His 10 tricks were two spades, four hearts, three diamonds and one club.

Now go back to trick four. Suppose West discards when South ruffs the third club with his heart seven. Might not South now place East with the two missing trump honors and continue with a heart to dummy's ace? Maybe — but maybe not. If East has the jack and queen of hearts, she is known to have 11 high-card points. Now, given the known six-card suit, every red-blooded Englishwoman would open one club. So, Pencharz might have got home anyway. However, it would still have been good defense.

Gary Bussey and Tiani Warden wed

DALLAS (AP) — Gary Busey has tied the knot.

The 52-year-old actor, nominated for an Academy Award in 1978 for "The Buddy Holly Story," married actress Tiani Warden, 29, on Monday.

The two, who met in 1989, exchanged vows at the Morton H. Meyerson Symphony Center in downtown Dallas.

Busey's son, actor Jake Busey, served as best man.

CARPAL TUNNEL SYNDROME
Carpal Tunnel Syndrome is the result of compression of the median nerve - usually in the wrist. Symptoms include pain in the wrist and forearm, numbness and tingling, weakness, swelling, and clumsiness of the hand.
Carpal Tunnel is commonly caused by several different things: Repetitive bending forward the wrist, repetitive lifting with a bent wrist (such as in assembly line work), repetitive backward bending of the wrist (such as working at a computer), excessive muscular overuse, sprains, fractures, weakness of the arms and wrist and arthritis.
Treatment usually includes rest for the wrist and forearm and wearing a carpal tunnel brace.

Williams may miss seven, eight weeks

IRVING (AP) — Dallas wide receiver Kevin Williams could miss 6-8 weeks because of a foot injury suffered in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Buffalo Bills.

Williams, who has only caught 11 passes for 154 yards in four games, severely sprained his right foot and suffered a hairline fracture of a bone at the base of the ankle.

"That's a devastating loss to us," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said Monday. "We were already depleted in that area. Kevin also was a tremendous player for us on the special teams. The doctors are saying he could be out six to eight weeks."

Texas leaves 10 stranded

Rangers blow chance to go three up in AL West

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A loss to the Athletics left the Texas Rangers frustrated and disappointed, but one game closer to their ultimate goal.

The Rangers missed a chance to widen their lead in the AL West when they lost 5-3 Monday night to Oakland, but the Seattle Mariners' loss reduced Texas' magic number to five for winning its first division title.

"That's one more down," said Texas manager Johnny Oates. "Sure, it would have been much nicer to get the win. We just didn't get the base hit when we needed it tonight."

The Rangers, who had 12 hits, were frustrated at leaving 10 men on base — including leaving the bases loaded in the sixth when Kevin Elster flied to right. Texas could have opened a three-game lead over Seattle, which earlier lost 4-3 at California.

"You don't lose any ground, but at the same time you get a little ticked off because you could have done a better job on the field," said Will Clark, who had an RBI double for Texas.

The Athletics chased Bobby Witt after 1 1-3 innings, his shortest outing this season. Ernie Young had an RBI double and a run-scoring single as the A's scored five runs in the first three innings.

Mark McGwire, who hit his 52nd homer on Sunday, went 0-for-3 but had a bases-loaded walk to drive in Oakland's first run.

The Rangers, who have a game left in Oakland on Tuesday before heading home to complete the regular season with four games against the Angels, lost for the 10th time in their last 13 games.

Witt (15-12) gave up five hits and walked two in his shortest stint since pitching just one inning for Florida before leaving a game at Colorado on June 20, 1995, with an injury.

"For the team it's a good situation, but I didn't go out there and do my job," Witt said of the Rangers maintaining their two-game lead over Seattle. "When you come out in a game like this and not perform, you're not satisfied."

Texas got Clark's run-scoring double in the first, a sacrifice fly by Darryl Hamilton in the second and an RBI double by Juan Gonzalez in the seventh. Gonzalez, who has driven in 142 runs this season, became the Rangers' career RBI leader with 657.

John Wasdin (8-7), a late replacement for the injured Willie Adams, allowed two runs on eight hits in five innings for the A's. Adams is out for the season with a sore right shoulder.

Billy Taylor got five outs for his 16th save.

Cardinals one win away from playoffs

CINCINNATI (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are tired of toting 30 cases of champagne around.

They arrived in Cincinnati four days ago ready to party. After a 3-2 victory Monday night over the Reds, they headed for the airport with the bottles still corked.

The win moved the Cardinals within one victory of the NL Central title and eliminated the defending-champion Reds. They want to end the wait tonight in Pittsburgh, the next stop for those 30 well-traveled cases.

"These guys have got their act together," said manager Tony La Russa, who has guided six teams to the playoffs. "I must have heard it a dozen times — we've only got one more to go, one more to get.

"It was good to get this one here today. The Pirates are real hot, but we'll be ready to get them."

The Cardinals lost the first three games of their series in Cincinnati, but closed in on the division title because second-place Houston remains in a nose-dive. One more St. Louis win or another loss by the Astros, who have dropped eight in a row, would make the Cardinals champions.

"One more," said outfielder Brian Jordan, who reached the 100-RBI plateau with a pair of run-scoring singles. "I want to win it outright. I don't want to back into anything."

The Reds didn't want to have to watch the Cardinals clinch. By winning the first three games of the series, the Reds at least avoided an indignity.

"We went down swinging," catcher Joe Oliver said. "We gave it everything we had the whole series. We made sure they couldn't win it here. Nobody wants to see them celebrate on your home field. Now they'll have to take it to Pittsburgh and do it in front of 5,000 people."

Injured Colts lope past Miami

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Just think how good the Indianapolis Colts might be when they get healthy. Then again, they're not too shabby the way they are, battered, bruised and just plain mean.

The unbeaten Colts, off to their best start since 1977, put the hurt on the Miami Dolphins Monday night, sidelining Dan Marino with a bad ankle sprain, holding what had been a potent rushing attack to a miserly 28 yards and using the scrappy play of Jim Harbaugh for a 10-6 victory.

All this with six starters still out with injuries and two more joining them on the casualty list early in the game.

"Our coaches put together a good defensive scheme and the guys really put a lot of time in studying film, knowing what the opponent does. That's a hell of a line they have, and they've got some great backs," said Colts defensive end Bernard Whittington, who started in place of injured Ellis Johnson.

"We just came out and were determined. We had people down ... that's one thing about our team, we have so much adversity but so much character to build on, and we had guys step up," Whittington said.

Miami (3-1) came in averaging 156 yards a game rushing but was continually stuffed at the line by the Colts (4-0).

"You would always like to go into a game and stop the run totally. I had no idea what the total yards were, but I felt we came out there and played hard," said Whittington, who had one sack.

The Colts' injury list included Marshall Faulk and Tony Bennett. On the same play early in the game, linebackers Quentin Coryatt and Stephen Grant went out with pulled muscles.

Indianapolis spotted Miami a 3-0 lead, then used two long drives engineered by Harbaugh to put Miami away for the fourth straight time and take a one-game lead over the Dolphins and Buffalo in the AFC East.

Harbaugh drove Indianapolis 97 yards for a second-quarter touchdown, hitting Ken Dilger on a 1-yard pass for the score, and then directed the Colts 89 yards to set up a field goal by Cary Blanchard early in the fourth.

Harbaugh, who was 19-for-25 for 120 yards, also outwrestled Miami's Chris Singleton for possession of the ball on a fumble by the Colts' Clif Groce at the Indianapolis 39 in the fourth quarter. The officials ruled Harbaugh and Singleton had simultaneous possession, but the ball goes to the offense in those situations.

"I was not a very good wrestler as a kid. I got pinned a lot, but I feel like I got my redemption today," said Harbaugh. "I was just arm-weary after fighting for the ball. It felt like I was arm-wrestling for five minutes."

Harbaugh retreated to the sideline for a few minutes and returned on the Colts' next possession.

Marino wasn't as fortunate.

"I feel pretty bad about not being able to play. It was real disappointing."

Falcons frown on George

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — The Jeff George era may be over in Atlanta.

The Falcons quarterback was suspended Monday after a sideline confrontation with coach June Jones, who seemed to indicate that George wouldn't be playing again for his team.

"After the next 24 to 48 hours, we'll look at it closely and decide where we're going to go from there," Jones said after Monday's workout. "It's just a bad situation. ... I don't know how it's going to sort out."

Jones said the quarterback "left me no choice" after he complained vehemently about being benched in the third quarter of a 33-18 loss to Philadelphia that left the Falcons at 0-3.

George could be seen following Jones down the sideline. Jones said the suspension was for conduct detrimental to the team, including abusive language and "the fact that it went on for 10 minutes."

Lady Tigers open 2-4A play tonight

Coach Patty Grimmett isn't saying much about tonight's District 2-4A volleyball opener with arch rival Lamesa.

"I haven't seen them play this year, but as always, I'm anticipating a tough match against them," she said Monday.

Snyder comes into the contest following a solid weekend outing in which the Tigers defeated Denver City 15-9, 15-5 and Plains 15-2, 15-6.

The victories left the Lady Tigers with an impressive 16-4 record.

Lamesa comes in at 13-6, following a three-match loss to highly-touted Seminole.

In other 2-4A matches today, Frenship (7-8) is at Lubbock Estacado (1-8) and Levelland (7-8) is at Plainview (3-12).

Tonight's action begins with a freshman matchup at 5:30, followed by junior varsity teams at approximately 6:30 and the varsity squads at about 8:30.

Western Texas third after 1st round play

RUIDOSO, N.M. — Western Texas College finished the opening round in third place at the High Country Shootout played at The Links at Sierra Blanca.

WTC's White team fired a 293 Monday, nine shots behind New Mexico University which posted a four-under-par 284. Midland College, with a 287, was in second place.

WTC's Green team was in sixth place in the 14-team field. A second 18 holes was scheduled for today.

The White team was paced by Morten Vildhoj, sophomore from Denmark, who fired a 72 along with Andreas Ljunggren, freshman from Sweden, and Jake McCullough, freshman from Big Spring.

Army paratroopers miss their mark land at wrong high school

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) — It was a stunning entrance — to the wrong event.

Three Army paratroopers who planned on delivering the game ball for a high school football game Friday night landed on another high school field five miles away.

Fans and players from River View and Granger high schools didn't know what to think as helicopters hovered and parachutists descended during warm-ups.

"Nobody knew what was going on. Someone even asked me if they were terrorists," said John Doran, River View's assistant principal.

Players from Kennewick and Pasco high schools stood in the end zones and fans scanned the sky for parachutists who were to land in the giant "X" that had been painted in the middle of the field.

"We kept looking in the sky and they never came down, and this is after they had us listen to one of those Army commercials," said spectator Bob Woehler.

Army Staff Sgt. Ed Traylor blamed the mistake on "a new pilot that lost track of his marker."

The jumpers quickly packed up their parachutes and got back on the helicopter, which had landed on River View's baseball field, and left.

"This is the first time this team has ever done this," Traylor said. "They were pretty embarrassed."

The three are going to try again this Friday.

Doran said their landing was so impressive, the paratroopers were asked to repeat it for River View's homecoming game.

"They're going to get back to us on that," he said.

One person is arrested

Deputies arrested one person on parole violation charges Monday as local law enforcement agencies enjoyed a relatively quiet day.

Santos Gutierrez Jr., 23, of 2807 Ave. Q, was booked into the Scurry County jail at 8:57 a.m. on parole violation charges.

Officers investigated a two-vehicle accident at 1:15 p.m. in the 4500 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1988 Ford driven by Brian Hill of Deming, N.M., and a 1985 Pontiac driven by Lydia Gomez of Jayton. The persons involved in the accident refused medical treatment at the scene.

A report of a possible prowler was made at 9 p.m. from the 1400 block of 24th Street.

At 10:57 p.m., a clerk at Allsup's notified officers that she had observed someone taking a license plate off a vehicle that was getting gas. The license plate was left at the scene and the person removing the license plate left in a vehicle traveling south on College Avenue.

Turner owns piece of New Mexico

CIMARRÓN, N.M. (AP) — Ted Turner's latest purchase is big, real big. In fact, he now owns about 1½ percent of all the land in New Mexico, an area almost as big as Delaware.

Turner on Monday bought the Vermejo Park Ranch from Pennzoil Co., bringing the amount of land he owns in New Mexico to about 1,796 square miles.

Woes plague naval academy superintendent

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — When a young midshipman was accused of telling classmates she had been involved in a love-triangle killing in Texas, Naval Academy officials responded quickly, helping police arrest two suspects.

But even the apparently successful handling of that case is giving Adm. Charles Larson trouble.

Larson has had to contend with a series of crimes — from car theft to sexual misconduct and now a slaying — since being brought in two years ago as academy superintendent to rebuild morale and polish the tarnished image of the 151-year-old Naval Academy.

Larson was chided by top Navy brass for not following a regulation — of which he said he was unaware — that required him to notify Naval criminal investigators of the killing. He called local Texas police instead.

And the superintendent drew more attention to himself with a strongly worded letter to The (Baltimore) Sun — which he acknowledges should have been put in a drawer for reflection before being sent — criticizing the newspaper's recent coverage of the academy as biased and inaccurate.

William K. Marimow, managing editor of The Sun, defended the handling of the story about the Texas killing and its aftermath. "We believe that the stories were accurate, thorough and fair."

The academy and the Pentagon downplayed the controversy and said Monday that officials, from Secretary of the Navy John Dalton on down, retain full confidence in Larson, who refused requests for an interview.

"It's not a big deal," said Capt. Tom Jurkowsky, an academy spokesman. "It's over and done with."

Larson, a four-star admiral and one of the Navy's most respected officers, was brought to Annapolis to restore public confidence in an institution that had been rocked by a cheating scandal and accusations of sexual harassment.

But over the past year, the academy was again hit by a string of crimes with midshipmen involving car theft, drug use, child abuse and sexual misconduct.

Then, over the summer, academy freshman Diane Zamora allegedly told classmates she was involved in the slaying of a high school girl in Texas.

When the classmates told academy officials, they began their own investigation, calling police near Zamora's Fort Worth, Texas, home until they found a matching case.

Zamora, 18, and her boyfriend, 18-year-old David Graham, a former Air Force Academy cadet, were charged earlier this month with killing 16-year-old Adrianne Jones in December.

Graham said a one-time sexual fling with Jones had enraged Zamora, who said the only way her boyfriend could atone for the mistake was to kill Jones, according to police.

The academy handled the case on its own despite a Navy regulation requiring notification of the Naval Criminal Investigative Service.

When Larson learned he was supposed to notify the investigative service, he called to make amends and also called Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Jay L. Johnson, said Jurkowsky, the academy spokesman.

The Sun, citing Navy sources, reported that Larson was "forced to apologize for knowingly violating military regulations."

Larson then wrote his letter to The Sun, denying that he was forced to apologize and criticizing the newspaper's coverage of the academy. He sent a copy by e-mail to the faculty, staff and brigade of midshipmen.

Three days later, Larson sent a second letter through the academy e-mail saying he "meant what I said" in the letter to The Sun, but noting that he was upset when he wrote it.

"It is always a good idea to put letters such as this one in your top right drawer and take a day or two to decide whether you really want to send it," Larson wrote.

Kansas declared disaster area

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The entire state of Kansas has been declared a disaster area for crop losses due to drought, frost, high winds and wild fires over eight months of last fall, winter and spring.

The Department of Agriculture designation makes farmers and ranchers in all 105 counties of the state eligible for low-interest loans to help cover their losses. Gov. Bill Graves had sought the designation July 2.

The designation covers Sept. 1, 1995, through April 30, 1996.

Adrian Polansky, head of the state Farm Services Agency, said drought devastated crops in Kansas, western Oklahoma, the Texas panhandle, eastern New Mexico and eastern Colorado until May rains broke the dry spell.

"It's pretty unusual, but Kansas was just part of a wide area in five states that had similar conditions," Polansky said. "It was a vast area. Kansas was just part of it."

Report says juveniles are more violent

AUSTIN (AP) — More juveniles sentenced to the Texas Youth Commission are violent, more use weapons and more have histories of substance abuse and gang involvement, according to a new state report.

The percentage of new TYC commitments who were classified as violent more than doubled — from 16 percent in 1990 to 37 percent in 1995, the report said.

A higher proportion used a firearm in their offense — 21 percent in 1995 compared with 8 percent in 1990.

And 43 percent of those committed in 1995 reported a gang affiliation, up from 18 percent in 1990.

"The profile of juveniles committed to TYC has changed," said Tony Fabelo, executive director of the Texas Criminal Justice Policy Council, which issued the report Monday.

"The No. 1 reason is the use of firearms. I think the type of fights and the type of violence where the kids are involved are more likely to involve a firearm today as opposed to 10 to 15 years ago," Fabelo said.

"That creates a more lethal and violent situation."

Gov. George W. Bush campaigned for and pushed tougher juvenile justice laws in the 1995 Legislature. A spokesman said the report shows why Bush wanted that action.

The tougher laws — including lowering the age at which youths may be tried as adults, sharing information on youthful offenders among law enforcement agencies and increasing the capacity of the juvenile detention system — were needed to protect Texans, said Bush spokesman Ray Sullivan.

"These are all aimed at trying to intervene in the lives of young offenders so they don't embark on a life of crime. They also send the signal that juveniles will be held responsible for their actions," Sullivan said.

"There may need to be more done, as juvenile crime will most likely get worse before it gets better. Juvenile crime continues to be one of the governor's top concerns."

In looking at the youths committed, the Criminal Justice Policy Council found that the types of offenses were changing.

"In 1990, the most frequently occurring offenses were: burglary (16 percent); unauthorized use of a vehicle (11 percent), and violation of probation (9 percent).

"In 1995, the top offenses were violation of probation (15 percent), burglary (10 percent), aggravated robbery (9 percent) and aggravated assault (9 percent)."

In 1990, 15 percent of newly committed offenders used a weapon, while that rose to 35 percent in 1995. Of those using a weapon, 61 percent used a firearm, up from 56 percent in 1990.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Sept. 25, 1996

Your chart indicates that you will have more success if you work independently in the year ahead. You can accomplish your goals if you focus your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, improper behavior could disrupt a situation which is running smoothly. You should not be the one who throws a wrench in the works. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to come on too loud or too strong in social situations today. Your friends will be more responsive if you ask their advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Wield your power carefully today, especially in matters in which you have authority over others. You will not want to make enemies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will endorse and champion an unpopular cause today, provided that you don't get angry with the people who didn't agree with you in the first place.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you are not extremely careful in an important financial meeting today, you might draw the short straw. Do not leave anything to chance.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, if you are not flexible when dealing with others, you might encounter someone who is even more rigid than you are.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Time has run out in regard to a responsibility you've been ignoring. You will be asking for complications and penalties if you continue to delay.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you may have to choose between two social invitations. The event which sounds less impressive may actually be more enjoyable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If a family member does something that displeases you today, try to count to ten before responding. You will regret your actions if you respond in anger.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have to deal with a temperamental acquaintance today. If you know from experience that certain topics will annoy him, avoid them at all costs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Business conditions could be trickier than usual today. This will make it hard for you to get a clear understanding of the situation. Wait until you have the facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Disagreements between you and your mate could be frequent today. Neither one of you should introduce a contentious topic on purpose.

What's the effect of endocarditis?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was recently released from my local hospital following pneumonia and bacterial endocarditis that affected my heart valve. What can you tell me about the long-term effect of endocarditis?

DEAR READER: For reasons that are not completely understood, normal heart valves rarely become infected. In contrast, abnormal valves — either natural or prosthetic — often do, because they are deformed.

Known as "endocarditis," valvular infection can be extremely serious. Not only may the infected valve be destroyed by the infection (a situation which, if untreated, can be fatal), but also it may easily become re-infected at a later time.

Endocarditis is diagnosed by blood tests and a special examination called "cardiac ultrasound." In almost every case, intravenous antibiotic therapy — sometimes for prolonged periods — is necessary.

With respect to future problems, patients with cured endocarditis must use oral antibiotics during procedures — even as mundane as routine professional dental cleaning — or for seemingly innocuous infections, to prevent another heart valve infection.

If your endocarditis (an unusual complication of pneumonia) was adequately treated, you should be completely back to normal. And you will suffer no long-term consequences.

Yet, I wonder why you got it in the first place. This issue needs clarification. Ask your doctor about it. Do you have a leaky or floppy valve in your heart? This can cause a murmur (extra heart sound) and is diagnosed by the ultrasound exam that I mentioned.

In other words, you need to know whether you have a valve that is susceptible to infection. Should it be replaced? Under what circumstances do you need to use prophylactic antibiotics?

I cannot answer these questions without the additional information that your personal doctor (or cardiologist) can supply. Therefore, you must turn to him for definitive answers.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Understanding Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read an article that red-headed women are not the same as other women when it comes to a monthly menstrual cycle. Do red heads make a different chemical that causes problems in this regard?

DEAR READER: No, they don't. The article you read is pure rubbish. Hair color, whether natural or artificial, is not related to ovulation or menstruation.

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, Snyder, TX 79550, or bring it by the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 5:00 p.m. Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the total points of the score for that game and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second and third place winners. In the case of a perfect score, the formula would apply for the $250 cash prize. To win the $1,000 cash prize, all twenty games must be picked correctly, plus the exact score must be predicted on the tie-breaker.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all that person's entries. Entries must be on the official entry blank (No Copies Please). Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the winner's story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the SDN and their families are not eligible to enter.

33 Cubans land in southern Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Border Patrol agents are investigating whether any of 33 Cubans who landed in three separate groups in southern Florida were assisted by refugee smuggling rings.

Three women and five men washed up behind the Miami Beach Days Inn Hotel early Monday in an 18-foot wooden boat. They were in good condition and were greeted by several family members, officials said.

The eight said they left the coastal town of Villa Clara in Cuba on Saturday. But U.S. Border Patrol Assistant Chief Keith Roberts expressed doubts.

"There was no water on board and the people had no sunburns, no dehydration and they walked around minutes after landing," said Roberts, who added that they also had no maps. "We really don't believe the story."

Roberts said the group told border patrol agents they had collectively purchased the boat for $1,200 and snuck out of the coastal village. The eight were being detained at the Krome Detention Center.

People smuggling can be highly profitable. Lawyers and local officials say the going price for transit from Cuba ranges from $3,500 to $6,000 per person. If 25 Cubans make the trip, its organizer can make $87,500, with the boat's crew making about $25,000.

On Monday afternoon, five more Cubans were caught in Key Largo.

Roberts said one of the men had been awaiting an immigration hearing in the United States and is suspected of going back to Cuba to help his friends.

And in a third incident, 20 Cubans — 11 women, three children and six men — were brought into Key West Monday afternoon by a fishing vessel.

Roberts said all were in good condition, but details of their journey were being investigated.

Two years ago, the United States and Cuba agreed that would-be Cuban refugees intercepted on the high seas would be returned.

However, once they make it to land, they are usually taken to Krome or released to relatives. After a year they may file a petition for residency.

GOP lawmakers to drop amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week of indecision, Republican lawmakers have decided to yank from a massive immigration bill a section backed by Bob Dole and House Speaker Newt Gingrich that would have allowed states to bar illegal-immigrant children from public schools.

The provision, known as the Gallegly amendment, will be dropped today, almost certainly allowing negotiators from the House and Senate to agree on compromise legislation acceptable to President Clinton.

"Gallegly is not in the proposed (compromise) conference bill," said Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on immigration. "Without bipartisan support in the Senate, we couldn't go forward with it."

Smith said the bill could face a final vote in the House as early as Wednesday.

Aides to GOP presidential nominee Dole had earlier this month argued to Republican lawmakers that they should keep the provision in the bill. Gingrich made a rare personal appearance on the House floor in March to argue in support of the section.

The public-schools measure had been a political stumbling block for weeks. President Clinton had threatened to veto the entire bill if it included the education provision, while GOP lawmakers in the House had championed the initiative, complaining that states with heavy immigrant populations such as Texas and California cannot afford to pay soaring education costs.

Under the new plan, GOP lawmakers will strip the provision from the broader bill and offer it up later as a separate piece of legislation.

The provision had been pushed in particular by lawmakers from California; Republican Rep. Elton Gallegly, was the measure's sponsor.

Jury finds agribusiness giant guilty of making gratuities

WASHINGTON (AP) — A California agribusiness firm was found guilty today of illegally lavishing gifts on former Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy and making campaign contributions to his brother.

The jury found Sun-Diamond Growers of California guilty of eight out of nine counts of illegal gratuities, making illegal campaign contributions, disguising those contributions and wire fraud. It took the nine women and three men nine hours over two days to reach the verdict.

It is the first guilty verdict in the first case to come to trial in the two-year-old investigation by independent counsel Donald C. Smaltz.

No individuals were charged, but the company faces fines of as much as $500,000 on some counts and other penalties.

Prosecutors identified Senior Vice President Richard Douglas, a longtime friend of Espy's, as the man who spent $14,287 of the companies money in little more than a year on himself, his girlfriend and Espy and Espy's girlfriend at Sun-Diamond expense. Prosecutors also said that Douglas arranged the illegal campaign gifts.

"This kind of conduct should send a strong signal" to other companies, Smaltz said afterward. He said the verdict also shows the investigation did not go far afield when it began focusing on companies and their behavior.

"I had always had the utmost faith that I was acting in the jurisdictional mandate that I had," Smaltz said.

Shannon Lucid bids Russia's Mir goodbye

As Atlantis slipped into the blackness of space Monday night, the astronauts radioed good luck wishes and last-minute tips — some in jest — to Blaha at the beginning of his four-month stay on Mir.

"Bye-bye, John. Have a good trip," said Lucid, who finally departed the orbiting station after shattering space endurance records for a woman and an American.

From the other shuttle crew members followed these messages and advice: "Do svidaniya, John. See you in a few months," "Don't eat all the chocolate at once, huh?" and "Don't forget English. You speak now only Russian, heh, heh, heh."

Blaha, a former combat pilot, replied: "We'll see you guys."

His new crew mates, two Russian cosmonauts, sent wishes for a safe trip to Lucid, with whom they shared the space station for the past month.

"Goodbye Shannon, we'll be missing you. Have a happy return, a soft landing and a lot of happiness!"

"I hope to be together again soon," Lucid answered in Russian.

The shuttle undocked a few hours earlier some 240 miles over the Ural Mountains, between Russia and Kazakhstan, and slowly backed away as the seven Americans and two Russians peered through windows.

Then Atlantis flew around Mir 1½ times at a distance of about 400 feet, allowing the astronauts to take pictures of the 10-year-old station, which has had parts added since Americans last visited in March.

During five days of linked flight, the nine space travelers moved 3 tons of food, water and other supplies between the spacecraft.
