Remember back a few years ago when people here were displeased because they were denied the opportunity to vote on a junior college proposal?

"If they would just give us a chance, we would take care of the situation at the polls." That was a familiar expression in those days.

The chance finally came and the junior college district was created promptly. Now, there is another situation at the polls to be taken care of this Saturday. The real questions up for consideration are: Do we build our junior college now, and do we build it properly?

The college trustees have been told by financial advisors, both local and from out of town, that the proper procedure is to change the college district's tax structure and to raise the limit on interest for bonds to be issued by the district. It is fairly certain that the bonds cannot be sold at present under the tax and interest rates allowed in the original election. Meanwhile, every week of delay may mean increased construction costs.

All financial advisors, including local bankers, have told the college officials that a tax rate for retirement of bonds should be established at a level substantially higher than actually needed to enhance the rating of the bonds. Consequently, the college district is proposing that the tax rate for that purpose be set at the state maximum of 50 cents, although no more than 28 cents will be needed for the current bond issue and it could be even less. At the same time, a maximum rate of 35 cents for maintenance and operation is proposed. Yet the district does not intend to fix its combined rate at more than 50 cents, and this, also, could be even lower.

The college district could get ample funds for all purposes another way, and without going to the voters at all. However, that would entail setting up its own tax office at an expense of some $40,000 per year and establishing valuations of taxable property at a figure which would cover the needs at the rate already established.

But the college hopes to continue indefinitely to rely on the county tax office for collecting college taxes on a contract basis. This means that county valuations will be used.

The district likely could get the financial base it needs without the election by hiking valuations to some $250 million rather than the $137 million figure used by the county.

Instead, the financial advisors have encouraged the college board to stay with the county valuations and go back and ask for a change in rate regulations for the district, which is exactly what they have done.

So, the real questions to be answered at the polls Saturday are: Do we want to build our college now? Do we want to do it right?

Nab Killer Suspect In Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A young Californian sought by police as the ritualistic slayer who calls himself "The Candlelight Killer" was captured near here today after allegedly robbing a motel and taking the owner's wife as hostage.

Arrested after a bullet-punctuated, 15-mile chase was Robert Liberty, 23, blamed by police for three murders—including one which landed him in a mental hospital for three years.

Taken into custody with him were a 17-year-old unidentified male and Kendell Bierly, 24, who said she was from California.

Police said three persons staying at the motel held up an unidentified woman night manager, taking $100 and a hostage.

The car was spotted by police, and detective Bernie Carter gave chase. Officers said the occupants apparently knew Carter was a detective and showed that they were holding a gun to the hostage's head.

The chase continued at high speed. Six shots reportedly were fired at Carter's unmarked auto and he fired three shots into the side of the pursued vehicle when he drove alongside.

The car pulled to the side of the road and the three occupants surrendered, officers said. The hostage was unhurt.

Liberty was charged with murder and flight to avoid prosecution after his roommate, Thomas Astronia, 25, was found dead March 12 south of Los Angeles in Orange County.

Police said Liberty kidnaped a 17-year-old motorist in Long Beach last Saturday and forced him to drive to Westminster, Calif., where Liberty robbed his own mother of $45 at gunpoint in her home, saying she owed him the money.

California authorities said the young motorist was forced to drive to San Diego, where Robert Irion, 52, was killed.

Bill Offers Draft Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan House group today introduced a bill which would replace the current draft law with a system allowing young men to choose between military and civilian service.

The measure would require all men to register at 17, receive counseling and at 18 make one of three choices:

—Volunteer for military service.

—Volunteer for civilian service with a qualified agency for a period of time equivalent to two years in the armed forces.

—Take their chances on being drafted under a lottery system.

Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., is principal sponsor of the bill.

Under the plan, suitable civilian service agencies would include but not be limited to state, federal and local agencies; public, private and parochial schools; nonprofit hospitals; law enforcement agencies; penal and probation systems and noncommercial organizations, such as the Red Cross, whose principal purpose is social service.

CHARGES DISMISSED — Charges against Capt. Thomas K. Willingham of Allenhurst, N. J., accused in the alleged massacre of civilians in South Vietnam, were dropped by the Army on Tuesday. School Will Seek Bids For Building Project

Snyder School Trustees last night authorized applications for some special funds, agreed to proceed and seek bids for construction of a CV-AE-classroom building at the senior high school, set a new administrative policy for the use of school buses by non-school groups and took action on several other routine items at their regular meeting.

The building project under consideration would provide laboratory space for the coordinated academic-vocational education classes at the high school, plus some regular classrooms.

The board hopes to finance the building out of maintenance funds, but it will not be known whether this will be possible until bids are tabulated.

An application for $45,542 for Head Start funds for 1970-71 was authorized, along with an application for $3,744 for adult basic education. Also approved was application for some regional Head Sart funds, amounting to $2,500, for career development of non-professional people employed in the Head Start program. This would involve special training for aides and other personnel.

Resignations were accepted from Diana L. Harper, communicative arts teacher at Lamar Junior High; William B. Bundy, biology teacher and coach at the high school; Jerry McLeod, social studies teacher and coach at high school; and Kenneth McAllister, math teacher and coach at Lamar.

New personnel approved include Mrs. Mary A. Abbott, math teacher at Travis Junior High; Burnell Hargrove, Latin at high school; Diana Gary, fourth grade at East Elementary; Leroy Donald Gressett, unassigned; Empress McFarland, journalism at high school; Aubrey Joe May, math at Lamar Junior High; Milton Ham, biology teacher and coach at high school; Mrs. Mary E. Williams, Title I teacher at Central Elementary.

Reassignments include: Ann Cross from Title I at Central to Kindergarten at Child Development Center; Mary J. Floyd, from first grade at West to second grade at West; Jamie Boren, from sixth grade at West to sixth grade at North; Marilyn Crownover, from second grade at West to third grade at West; LaNelle Rambin, from third grade at West to fourth grade at West; Monette O'Day, from first grade at West to music at East; Irene Masters, from second grade at North to first grade at North; Floy McNaughton, from sixth grade at North to second grade at North; Billie Walker, from first grade at North to second grade at North; Mrs. Jimmie Cooper, from first grade at Central to second grade at Central; Nellie Womack, from second grade at Central to first grade at Central; Betty Bloch, from first grade to first grade (Engleman) at Northeast; June Anderson, from first grade at Northeast to second grade at Northeast; Grayson Wetzel, from social studies and coach at Travis to social studies and coach at senior high.

A policy for use of school buses by groups outside the schools will limit such use to a radius of 115 miles from Snyder.

Participation in the girls summer recreation program was approved, with the use of school facilities authorized. Also, the schools participate in financing the program in the amount of $800, the same as for last year.

J. L. Browning was appointed to the school district's board of tax equalization. Others on the board are Lee Smyth and Leland Herod.

Contract to furnish bread for school cafeterias for 1970-71 was awarded to Baldridge, which submitted the lowest of three proposals: 18 cents for pound and a half loaves, 16 cents per package for coney buns and 13½ cents per package of hamburger buns. The milk contract went to Gandy's, lower of two proposals received, with 6½ cents per half pint for white milk and 7 cents per half-pint for chocolate milk.

Absentees In For College Election

Absentee voting closed Tuesday in the Scurry County Junior College District's tax and bond election scheduled for Saturday. A total of 225 cast absentee ballots.

Meanwhile, the college board of trustees officially changed the site of voting box No. 2 from the Northeast Community Center to the Loyd Mountain School building. The action was taken due to another activity being scheduled at the community center on Saturday.

College officials have scheduled another community meeting at Loyd Mountain to discuss the proposals up for a vote in Saturday's election. This meeting will be held at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the Northeast Community Center. Similar meetings have been held at Snyder, Ira, Fluvanna and Hermleigh.

The college district is asking voters to lift the 6½ per cent interest limit on its bonds and to separate the tax rates for bond retirement and maintenance-operation. A 50-cent maximum rate for bond retirement and 35-cent maximum for maintenance and operation is being sought on the advice of the district's financial advisors. The election was called after the board was advised that the district's bonds probably could not be sold at 6½ per cent under the original tax structure.

Ballotipg will be conducted Saturday at all polling places in the county. There will be two sets of ballot boxes, one set for voters who have property rendered for taxes in the county and the other for non-taxpayers. The eligibilityy of non-taxpayers to vote in such elections has not been determined by the courts, although the issue is en route to a decision. Consequently, two sets of ballot boxes are needed until the issue is decided.

Of the 225 who cast absentee votes, 203 were property owners and 22 were non-property owners.

Welfare Reform Plans Outlined By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon outlined today what he termed "significant extensions" of his welfare reform proposals but delayed their introduction in Congress until next year.

The main alterations to his ground-breaking family assistance plan involve new administration of the food stamp program and replacement of the present medicaid health insurance plan for the needy with a broader based, prepaid "family health insurance program for all poor families with children."

The Senate Finance Committee demanded May 1 that the administration rework its welfare reform measure because senators claimed it penalized some poor persons who worked.

The President said he would submit a reorganization plan next year to transfer the food stamp program from the Agriculture Department to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The shift is designed to tie food stamps more closely with family assistance.

Nixon said his new health plan for the poor "would provide a comprehensive package of health services, including both hospital and outpatient care."

The new plan was not spelled out, but is expected to be prepaid, comprehensive care plan similar to one proposed earlier as an option in the Medicare program.

The key change would switch administration of food stamps from various state and local agencies to the family assistance network. Family assistance is designed to replace the federal-state aid to dependent children program.

Some senators contended benefits from welfare-related programs such as food stamps, public housing and medicaid would tend to destroy the work incentive and become, in fact, a "work disincentive."

They cited a Chicago family of a mother and her three children.

If the mother earned $5,000 a year, they said, the various government benefits would bring the total to $7,123. If her earnings rose to $5,560, the total would drop to $6,109, they added.

14 Americans Held Hostage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Amman Radio announced that King Hussein of Jordan and guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat concluded an agreement today to end the fighting between their forces in Jordan's capital. Meanwhile, a band of extremist guerrillas held 14 Americans and 18 other foreigners hostage in an Amman hotel.

One of the hostages in the Jordan Intercontinental Hotel was a son of former President Camille Chamoun of Lebanon. Another was Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld, who reported the hotel was held by the Marxist Popular Front for the jliberation of Palestine, a small terrorist organization which has frequently rejected Arafat's leadership.

Neeld said a spokesman for the Popular Front charged Tuesday night that the Jordanian army was bombarding Palestine refugee camps around Amman, causing many deaths. The guerrilla spokesman said the safety of the hostages could not be guaranteed if these attacks continued.

Neeld's report made no mention of the broadcast announcement of the Hussein-Arafat agreement and apparently was sent before it was announced. Communications with Amman were sharply curtailed.

The hostages in the Intercontinental included 14 Britons and three West Germans as well as the Americans and the Lebanese. All were staying in the hotel.

A spokesman for the Popular Front in Beirut, Lebanon, said the hostages were in no danger.

"They are having a good time, he said. "They are eating ice cream for free."

Other newsmen being held include correspondents of United Press International, Reuters, the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post, the National Broadcasting Co. and Agence France Presse.

Guests of other nationalities were told they were free to leave Tuesday night, but in the blacked-out, enbattled Jordanian capital there was nowhere for them to go.

Carrying submachine guns and wearing hand grenades at their belts, the guerrillas invaded the unguarded hotel Tuesday afternoon. They took up firing positions on bedroom balconies and placed guards at every exit.

Most of the guests spent the night huddled in the hotel basement. Neeld said Amman had been without power for nearly 24 hours, and the guests groped their way along the hotel corridors by candlelight. But the hostages were free to do as they pleased inside the hotel and none was ill treated.

Amman Radio's announcement of the Hussein-Arafat agreement left one cardinal point unclear: whether Hussein was giving the guerrillas a green light for operations against Israel or whether the commandos had agreed to curtail their raids.

In Beirut an official of the Popular Front said guerrilla radio messages from Amman reported scattered shooting today despite the announced agreement.

"It's not as heavy as yesterday, but we have reports of some killed and wounded this morning," said the guerrilla official.

Street fighting broke out in Amman early Tuesday when Jordanian troops took the offensive against the guerrillas, who had repeatedly stood off government attempts to moderate their attacks on Israel.

Much of the fighting died down Tuesday night, although some shooting was reported.

Amman Radio made no mention of casualties, but the Ministry of the Interior reported that "a large number of victims have fallen." At least 100 persons are believed killed or wounded.

Summer Air Covers State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It felt like summer over most of Texas today, even though the calendar says that season doesn't arrive until June 21.

Warm air, laden with moisture, flowed northward across the central part of the state from the Gulf of Mexico with a continuing promise of thunderstorms or showers.

Official observers looked for a new Pacific cool front to move into West Texas and lower temperatures a bit by Thursday.

Much of the Panhandle-Plains sector kept cautious watch again Tuesday night on that area's nightly round of thunderstorms, which caused a wide stretch of countryside to be placed under a severe weather watch.

The alert was capped by a special warning against thunderstorms which bombarded some localities with large hail as they coursed through Wilbarger, Baylor, Wichita and Archer counties.

Light showers fell, meanwhile, in other parts of Northwest Texas, across the Big Bend country and in extreme South Texas.

Temperaturessoaredwtuesd afternoon, hitting 98 delrees at Childress, 95 at Midland and Wink, 93 at San Angelo, 92 at Wichita Falls and 90 at Amarillo, Dallas and El Paso.

Military To Revise Laws

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's military leaders prepared today to insure that the new president they name will not get too independent like the last one did.

Defense Minister Jose Rafael Caceres Monie told a news conference Tuesday that the junta would revise the law prohibiting direct military participation in the government. This had been adopted at the instance of Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania in 1966 when he shed his uniform to become president after the last military coup.

The chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force who ousted Ongania Monday issued a statement promising "formation of truly responsible political parties" and a return to "authentic republican democracy, representative and federal." But no deadline was set or even indicated.

Tell parents the truth about girl friend

By Abigail Van Buren

(c) 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this not for myself but for a friend. "Miss X" is a beautiful, intelligent 22-year-old girl who had an unfortunate romance when she was 15. This resulted in a hurry up marriage and a baby. She was divorced at 17.

She met and fell in love with David, a fine young man who knows about her past, but loves her and her child and wants to marry her. David was raised a Catholic, but he isn't devout. [However, his parents, for whom he has much love and respect, are strict Catholics.]

David is taking Miss X to meet his parents [they live out of town] before they announce their engagement. Naturally Miss X wants David's parents to like her, and I'm sure they will, after they get to know her because she is such a terrific girl, but don't you think since they're so Catholic, if they are told right off the bat that she's a divorcee with a 6-year-old child, they might be prejudiced against her?

Wouldn't it be better if David's parents met her and had a chance to know her and like her, and then they were told about her child and divorce? MISS X'S BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: It strikes me as rather strange that a young man who "loves and respects" his parents would suddenly appear with a fiancee on his arm without having mentioned to them that he had marriage in mind, plus a few vital facts about the girl. But since that's the case, I think Miss X and David should tell them right off the bat that she's a divorcee with a child. To deliberately withhold these facts until after they get to "know her better" would be dishonest, and would surely cause resentment when finally disclosed.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a brother-in-law, age 67, who makes improper advances to my 88-year-old mother. This started a few years ago. He is so sly, he makes sure he isn't seen by his wife [my sister], but I have caught him at it and so has the housekeeper. He obviously needs help? But how? And who? I can't visualize this man going to a psychiatrist. Why he doesn't even go to church! Do you think I should speak to him? He isn't really what anyone can call "mentally unbalanced"—except in this one area of behavior. When he is around Mama we have to watch him every moment. Thank you for any help you can offer.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Yes, speak to him about it. [He is probably becoming senile, so talk to him as if you were speaking to a "naughty boy."] And for goodness sakes, don't ever leave your poor mother alone with him. [P. S. It wouldn't hurt to ask your family doctor for his opinion.]

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to "MOTHER," who was worried about her son seeming to want punishment.

I am only 15, but I have heard many friends say they thought their parents didn't really love them or care about them because they were rarely punished.

I believe that most kids NEED to be punished when they do wrong. It may be hard for parents to understand, especially when the child puts up a fight, but after the tears are gone and all is forgiven, the kids will have a much more secure feeling because they know their parents care enough about them to keep them on the right path.

PUNISHMENT NECESSARY

DEAR PUNISHMENT: You may be "only 15"—but you are very wise.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Activists Sentenced

CHICAGO (AP) — Seven anti-war activists have been sentenced to five years in prison for destroying Selective Service records. Three absent defendants, who a federal judge called ringleaders in the action, were given 10-year sentences.

In pronouncing sentence Tuesday, Judge Edwin A. Robson of U.S. District Court dismissed a defense contention that the demonstrators' action was nonviolent. He said the raid May 25, 1969, on a draft board complex was "violence, the violence that can bring about revolution."

He said he hoped the penalties were severe enough to deter other youths from staging similar attacks on draft boards.

The three defendants who disappeared in the final days of their trial were sentenced to five years on each of two counts, the terms to run consecutively.

Judge Robson said these three masterminded the assault on the Southwest Side draft offices where some records were thrown into a bonfire and paint was dumped on others.

The seven in court also were sentenced to five years on each of two counts, but Judge Robson said those terms would run concurrently.

The judge denied appeal bond for the seven defendants present. He said the disappearance of the three others was a major factor in his decision.

The seven have been in Cook County-Chicago jail since their conviction by a jury Friday.

Cambodians Push Back Reds, Reopen Airport

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian troops pushed back enemy forces around Siem Reap and reopened the airport to replenish their dwindling supply of food and ammunition, the Cambodian Command reported today.

A military spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces were still around Siem Reap and hit the provincial capital 185 miles northwest of Phnom Penh with sporadic fire Tuesday night. But the opening of the airport between the city and the ruins of Angkor Wat was viewed here as a major achievement for the government.

The spokesman said the enemy force that attacked Siem Reap included Laotians who probably were impressed into service as porters. He added they may have been troops of the Communist Pathet Lao movement.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces also continued their harassment of Kompong Thom, another provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh on the highway to Siem Reap and Angkor. But the heavy pressure on Kompong Thom last week appeared to have eased for the moment.

The spokesman also reported a heavy Viet Cong attack before dawn today in southern Cambodia, on a military post near Kompong Som, the country's chief port formerly known as Sihanoukville. But the garrison apparently held on.

Thailand's military chief of staff, Marshal Chamras Chutasap, returned to Bangkok after a one-day visit to South Vietnamese leaders in Saigon. He reportedly made the trip to discuss transfer of part of the 12,000 Thai troops in South Vietnam to the Siem Reap area, which is 80 miles east of the Thai border.

Meanwhile, Dawee's deputy, Lt. Gen. Kriengsak Chamand, and a team from the Thai air force were in Phnom Penh discussing Thai air operations in support of Cambodian ground operations. Diplomats in Phnom Penh said Thai pilots and planes soon would join South Vietnamese air units in helping out the hard-pressed Cambodian air force, which has only 30 small bombers.

American and South Vietnamese forces reported generally light contact with enemy units in Vietnam. Cambodia but uncovered another 100 tons of rice and more than 30 tons of weapons and munitions in border areas of Cambodia.

Billy Morton Killed In War

William A. (Billy) Morton, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Morton of Sweetwater and a grandson of Mrs. George Morton of Snyder, was reported killed in action Friday in Cambodia.

Morton was wounded in Vietnam in March of last year and after recuperating from his wound reenlisted in the Army and returned to Vietnam for combat duty in October.

His parents received word of his death Monday.

He was born July 1, 1946, in Sweetwater and graduated from Sweetwater High School in 1964. He entered the service June 4, 1968.

Other survivors are a brother, Seaman Devaughn, stationed in Orlando, Fla.; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Glasgow of Mansfield, Ark.

Westfall Service Set Here Today

Guidelines Issued For Women Employes

By JANET STAHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has issued guidelines designed to prohibit discrimination against women on jobs under federal contract, a move described by a female spokesman as "a most appropriate milestone of women's progress."

Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, director of the Labor Department's women's bureau, made the remark Tuesday while announcing the guidelines at the White House.

The rules ban sexual bias in jobs, wages, hours, seniority and retirement. They result from a presidential task force review of women's rights and responsibilities submitted to the Nixon administration six months ago.

At the same time, the American Association of University women Tuesday released a study in which 84 per cent of the women and 77 per cent of the men who responded to a questionnaire said that women were discriminated against in the business world.

The questionnaire was published in the AAUW's journal last January. Of the organization's 170,000 members, about 7,000 including nearly 3,000 men responded to the opinionnaire.

Without specific guidelines to go by, Mrs. Koontz said, there was a gray area and confusion about sex discrimination in such jobs.

She said the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which investigates women's rights complaints, has a backlog of some 600 complaints of sex discrimination.

A presidential directive against sex discrimination on government work contracts has been on the books since 1965. But not until now have exact guidelines been set publicly.

The guidelines prohibit advertising in newspaper columns headed male or female unless sex is a legitimate occupational qualification.

They prohibit any distinction between married or unmarried persons and the denying of employment to women with young children unless the same policy exists for men.

Seniority based solely on sex also is banned, as are retirement requirements for women that differ from those for males.

World Offers Adventure To Female Photographer

NEW YORK (AP) — Doris Nieh is a pretty photographer whose philosophy of never passing up a challenge has gotten her into some strange and wonderful situations, including the chance to become a member of a sheikh's harem.

This honor was offered here when she went to the Middle East to do a series of photographs for an oil company. She declined the sheikh's proposal.

Another time, on her first trip to Taiwan, the Chinese-born miss was shooting photographs of frogmen who do intelligence work for the Taiwan government. Someone suggested she go through the rigorous underwater training herself. She did—for two weeks—and has pictures to prove it.

Her latest escapade involved playing a nude scene in the movie "The Hawaiians" with Charlton Heston. She had been hired by the studio to shoot stills for the movie, but the director spotted her and asked how she'd like to take a bath with Heston. Without her clothes? How else?

"At one time I thought I'd say no," she recalled. "But then I thought—how many people get an opportunity like this?" The fun started when she tried simultaneously to hide her nakedness and take the photos.

"I was juggling two cameras and trying to keep a towel wrapped around me and I was a nervous wreck," the 33-year-old Miss Nieh recalled with a smile. "You don't just take off your clothes and feel natural about it. But the second day it wasn't so bad, and I realized nobody was paying any attention to me personally."

Although she has had small parts in three movies, Miss Nieh's main occupation is as a Hollywood still photographer. "I'd like to act," she says, "but I don't want to have to fight for roles. It was enough of a hassle to establish myself as a photographer."

Miss Nieh was born in mainland China, but she and her family fled from there in 1950, and settled in New Jersey. After graduating from the University of Iowa, she decided she wanted to travel, but didn't want to pay for it herself.

"I first thought of being a foreign correspondent," she said, "so very wide-eyed I walked into the New York Times office. They looked at me like—who is this crazy girl?"

Undeterred by her failure at the Times, but determined to travel she then tried to use the "fly now pay later" credit plans that had just begun.

"I wrote to two credit card companies requesting cards," she recalled. "When they wouldn't issue me their cards—and why should they, I had no money, no job—I wrote a very moving letter to the president of one company accusing him of discriminating against penniless Oriental refugees.

"It must have caught his eye, because they issued me a trial card. I wrote a thank you letter to the company and took off."

Before leaving she purchased a second-hand camera, hoping she'd be able to sell her photographs. She chalked up a $6,000 bill on her 22-country trip, all of which she eventually repaid, and sold a series of photographs to a Canadian magazine.

Returning home, she moved to Los Angeles, had no luck with her photography, and finally worked as a lecturer. "For three years I lectured on Oriental cooking and the mystique of Oriental women," she says. "It was a hoke because I only knew how to cook two Oriental dishes, and the mystique idea is a farce."

Her break into Hollywood photography came in 1965 when she learned a studio was getting ready to start shooting for "The Sand Pebbles" in Taiwan.

"I wrote the head of the publicity department and told him they should hire me because I spoke seven dialects of Chinese and would fit right in," she said. The studio took her up on the idea.

After "The Sand Pebbles" came other assignments, not all in Hollywood. In 1968 she went to Florida with the Detroit Lions to work on the film, "Paper Lion."

"That was a challenge because the players don't like having women working around them. They feel they have to curb their language," she explained. "But after I showed them I could keep my cool, we got to be friends."

Miss Nieh said that her parents haven't understood her yen for travel and adventure, and that her father has disowned her. "We haven't been in communication for some years now," she said.

But she doesn't regret her adventures, and she doesn't worry about her future. "I never think too much about what I'm doing. When you think, you worry too much and you anticipate all the horrible things that can happen."

But there is one firm plan—"to do something for this country." "I'm very grateful to the United States and I believe in the American dream," she explained. "If you want to do something, then maybe here you can, and I don't think anywhere else is like that."

Various Observations On Economic Slowdown

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Observations on the economic slowdown:

WHEN IS IT A RECESSION? A lot of economists think we already are in one. They point to the sharp rise in unemployment to 5 per cent of the labor force and the sluggishness in industrial output.

No completely satisfactory set of requirements has been devised to indicate the onset of recession, but the most widely followed indicator is the Federal Reserve's index of industrial production.

That index has now fallen in eight of the past nine months, or for two straight quarters, which suggests that the nation is indeed in a recession.

Curiously, however, a good many professional economists, fully capable of making up their own minds, refrain from using the word until they get the cue from the prestigious, nongovernmental National Bureau of Economic Research.

DO CURRENT STOCK MARKET PRICES INDICATE A RECESSION? It would seem so. Certainly, they reflect a great loss of investor confidence in the immediate future of business.

One way of measuring the decline in confidence is with price-earnings ratios, or the number of times earnings that an investor is willing to pay for a stock. A $60 stock with per share earnings of $3 would have a P-E of 20.

Back in 1961, when the boom was building up, the P-E ratio for the 30 stocks in the Dow Jones Industrial Average came to 22.9. By the end of 1967 it was down to 16.8, to 16.5 by the end of 1968 and 13.4 as 1969 closed.

Last Friday it had fallen to 12.8 times earnings. During the great rise in stock prices it wasn't at all unusual to see some stocks with P-E ratios of 50 or 60 or even 100. It's difficult to find them now.

ARE VOLUNTARY RESTRAINTS ON WAGE-PRICE INCREASES LIKELY TO BE SOUGHT? The chances appear to be rising. The Nixon administration has left no doubt that it opposes rigid wage-price-credit controls.

However, as the economy retrenches—and wages and prices keep rising—the pressure grows for more direct involvement of the administration in the marketplace. Indications grow that some type of voluntary plan may be formulated.

The pressure is coming not just from the housewife who sees her budget money disappearing. Inflation is exportable, to a certain extent, so several international agencies are advocating a stronger attack by Washington.

IS THE OUTLOOK BLEAK? It may depend upon how you assess it. Many respected economists foresee the economy expanding again before the end of the year. But that could mean just another round of inflation before the present one is brought under control.

The question to which there appears to be no answer is this: How do you speed up the motor without wasting the gasoline? How do you push the economy into a vigorous expansion without inflation.

'Wonder' Grass Is Developed

By FREDERICK ROSENFELD

EILAT, Israel (AP) — A wonder grass with multiple uses and a promising commercial future has been developed in Israel's Negev Desert.

Its growers claim it can reduce water pollution, cheaply substitute for wood pulp in the production of high-quality paper and do many more things.

Dr. Hugo Boyko, who died in May, developed the reed-like vegetation called juncus-esparto, using desert sand and plentiful underground saline water.

Just before his death Boyko said tests in Scottish and English paper mills had yielded excellent results.

The mills thought so much of its qualities that they applied for the complete harvest once it reaches an economically profitable level of 10,000 tons annually, Boyko said. He indicated that Israeli production within the next few years will be much higher.

"I'm not trying to tell you that the juncus is going to completely replace wood pulp for papermaking," he said. "But the market for high quality paper is so great that we will have absolutely no trouble selling our entire production no matter how large it becomes—and we shall be able to cover millions of desert acres now empty and unused."

Boyko said the grass can purify urban or industrial waste water by breaking down noxious compounds or destroying harmful micro-organisms.

"Water filtered through the grass is clean enough to drink," the scientist asserted.

The grass has found other uses in pharmaceutical laboratories, as a dairy fodder, in the manufacture of woven mats, baskets and wicker furniture, in the production of plastic sheets and as an insulating material.

About the turn of the century, Italy's Guglielmo Marconi wirelessed across the English Channel, and in 1901 he leaped the Atlantic with a signal, a feat Thomas Edison had predicted was "impossible."

Advice From Poor Man's Philosopher

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Dear Poor Man's Philosopher:

Lately I have been going steady with a nice man who makes something of a mystery of his age. He likes to give the impression that he is under 35, but I have a feeling he is nearer 45.

Personally, I don't care how old he is, as he has a good job and, of course, I'm not getting any younger myself and a girl of 31—that's a laugh—can't always pick and choose.

But I would like to know if he's kidding me about his age. Can you help me?

Curious

Certainly, my dear. No one can hide his actual age for long. His attitudes and conduct inevitably give him away.

Your boyfriend is certaintly well over 40 if:

His wig is beginning to shed but he blames the falling hairs on his dog.

He begins to fidget if you look longingly at the a la carte side of a restaurant menue instead of ordering the price-fixed dinner.

On Saturday nights he'd rather listen to Lawrence Welk than take you out dancing.

His medicine cabinet contains two kinds of sleeping pills, three kinds of antacid tablets and four bottles of tranquilizers.

Any small talk he gives you that any day now he's going to take up jogging to get in better shape is just that—small talk.

Miniskirts on other girls look good to him, but he hates to have you wear one.

If he is considering marrying you, he keeps asking you pointed questions about your financial background and whether he would have to support any of your insolvent relatives.

A World War II uniform is still hanging in his closet.

When he is in an amorous mood, he can't chase you twice around the sofa without getting short of wind.

Now and then he forgets himself and starts bragging about how soon all his life insurance will be paid up.

He never forgets your anniversaries, because he is now old and smart enough to know how important they are to a woman.

When he goes without shaving for a day, his 5 o'clock shadow has a Civil War motif—a tinge of gray as well as blue.

If the price of anything goes up, he worries about whether the nation is heading again into a major depression.

If you exclaim, "Cool it, man!" he thinks you are asking for another ice cube in your drink.

Should these things be true of your boyfriend, lady, you can bet he's over 40-so give him all the help you can.

Junior Editors Quiz on BIRD TONGUES

QUESTION: Do birds have tongues?

ANSWER: If all the birds went after the same food, the supply would soon be exhausted. But many birds tend to specialize. Some like certain seeds best, other certain insects. The hairy woodpecker we show is after the grubs and insects under tree bark. He hammers a hole with his chisel-like bill, then inserts it. But he needs something else with which to draw out the grub: his amazing tongue, which we show in diagram form. We show how backwards extensions of the tongue go all the way around the head, so the tongue can be poked out when inside the hole. Spur-like barbs draw out the grubs; sticky saliva helps the tongue to extract ants. In much the same way, a hummingbird's long bill is thrust inside a flower. Its still longer tongue comes out and can either suck nectar or catch insects with its brush-like tip. The crossbill opens pine cones helped by its peculiarly shaped bill. But it must then rely on its active tongue to get out the seeds. Yes, birds do have tongues. These are modified in a great many ways to assist the beak in gathering food.

The only Cub hits were singles by Mickey Early, Bobby Cooper and Paul Carrillo.

Snyder batters pounded out six safeties, getting two tallies in the 1st, three in the 2nd, one in the fourth, and two in the fifth inning.

Butch Buchanan doubled and scored on an error that let Bobby Schrader on first base. Bruce Almond delivered a single, driving in Schrader.

Then in the 2nd inning, Neil Starnes walked, was sacrificed to second and scored on an error at shortstop that allowed Joe Wilson to reach first safely. Joe made it to second on an error by the catcher, then scored on a single by Butch Buchanan.

The 4th inning tally resulted from a single by Jackie Murray; two stolen bases and an error at second.

In the 5th, Wes Bishop and Bruce Almond got on base on an error and a walk and both scooted home when Jackie Murray slammed a single.

The only other base hit was a single by Joe Wilson in the 1st.

Both Rotan runs — one in the third and one in the fourth — resulted from errors.

McLain Files For Bankruptcy

DETROIT (AP) — Suspended Detroit Tiger pitching ace Denny McLain, who earned an estimated $200,000 in 1969, has filed for bankruptcy, admitting unsecured claims of about $400,000.

McLain's attorney, William Aikens, said that aside from the pitcher's interest in various business ventures, "which are of questionable value, the petition and schedules filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court Tuesday show that McLain has virtually no assets."

He said he advised McLain the bankruptcy declaration was the only way to straighten out his tangled finances.

McLain, suspended earlier this year by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for alleged involvement in bookmaking activities, is scheduled to go back on the Tigers payroll in three weeks.

McLain earned an estimated $200,000 in 1969 from the Tigers and personal appearances. He claimed he had no income after his suspension.

Hoffman Bids For Yankees

LONDON (AP) — Jerome D. Hoffman, president of a London investment company, confirmed today that he is going to try to buy the New York Yankees.

"We also want the real estate of the Yankee Stadium," he said.

Hoffman said he was leaving for New York today to meet with former Mayor Robert Wagner before completing details of the offer being made to the Columbia Broadcasting System, which owns the baseball team.

Hoffman is president of International Investors Group Service Ltd., which sells mutual funds. Wagner is chairman of the board.

Ham Joins Grid Staff

Milton Ham, former Snyder High School football, basketball and baseball star, will return here this fall to join the varsity football coaching staff of Wayne Tyrone.

Ham's contract was formally approved last night by the school district's board of trustees.

Ham will be the backfield coach of the Tigers, replacing Bill Bundy who has resigned to accept a similar position at Andrews.

Ham is a 1957 graduate of Snyder High School and was an all-district performer here in football in 1955 and 1956. He also was a frontline performer on the high school baseball and basketball teams. Later he was a regular end for the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs.

After graduation from college, Ham coached in the Midland School System and more recently had been associated with a sporting goods firm. He and his wife, the former Jo Ann Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Miller of Snyder, and their two sons, will move here from Midland this summer.

Cards, Tribe Win In FL

The Cardinals flailed the Cubs 20-7 and the Indians bested the Athletics 11-6 in two exciting Farm League tilts contested on the Towle Park diamond yesterday.

The Cards collected a total of 14 hits, including a triple by Dennis Garl and doubles by Don Bennett, G. G. Miller, Glen Smylie, Steve Dickenson and Keith Herrley. G. G. Miller went 4-for-4 at the plate while Gary Eckert rapped three hits and Glen Smylie two. Also hitting safely was Roy Dicharry.

Cub batters Rob Cumba, Jackie Womack and Onis Loyd each hit doubles. Cumba got three hits altogether while Ray Hill, Malcom Small and R. Sutton hit singles.

The Indians' Richard Crayton limited the Athletics to only two hits — a triple by Mike Jones and a single by Randy Tate.

Tribe batters Steve Bounds and David Lee each stroked three hits. Dana Hanna, Tony Rodriguez and Jessie Vallerrial got two each while single safeties were credited to Denton Hanna, Richard Crayton and to Gary Welsh.

New Adult Net Program Set

Coach Bill Boles has announced that a new tennis program for adults will begin on Thursday nights from 7 until 9 p.m. He also announced that there would be no workouts for advanced tennis players from 4 to 6 p.m. on Thursdays.

Philadelphia pitcher Joe Hoerner is co-owner of a St. Louis travel agency. His former teammate, shortstop Dal Maxvill of the Cardinals, is a partner.

Steve C. Greenberg plays first base and captains Yale's baseball team. He is the son of Hall of Famer Hank Greenberg.

Lemon Is Royal Manager

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bob Lemon, one-fourth of the Cleveland Indians' vaunted pitching brigade of the late 1940s and early 1950s, at last has realized a desire that has sifted through his dreams for 12 long years.

He's been named manager of the Kansas City Royals.

The Royals fired Charlie Metro and appointed pitching coach Lemon as his successor Tuesday. A few hours later the team went on its wildwest scoring spree of the season and clobbered the Washington Senators 8-1.

"All I've thought of since I left the big leagues as a player in 1958 was coming back as a manager," said Lemon, sitting almost scholarly and erect and appearing more like a banker than a baseball manager. "I hate to get the job under these circumstances. Charlie Metro worked hard. He conditioned this club well. I just hope I'm the one who can get it all together."

Lemon admits he has worries. The biggest could be a four-man pitching rotation, something Lemon's own managers during Cleveland's golden decade, Lou Boudreau and Al Lopez, didn't have to think about.

Boudreau and then Lopez had what many regard as the greatest pitching rotation in baseball history — Bob Feller, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Lemon.

Wall-Eyes Landed Here

Bill Aaron, 110 Twenty-fifth Street, caught two wall-eyed perch in Lake J. B. Thomas Saturday, fishing from the bank with minnows behind the Boy's Club.

The landing of these fish marks the second time that this species has been caught in Lake Thomas. About 400,000 of them or less than fingerling size were turned loose here a year ago last April.

Until the catch Saturday there had been only one earlier report of this species — native to Northern climates — having been caught here. Thus it is the first sign that the wall-eyed pike may survive in southern waters.

Earlier plantings of wall-eyes at Lake Meredith in the Panhandle have been fairly successful with catches up to five pounds having been recorded three years after the fish were turned loose there.

State game and fish authorities are hoping that this species can survive in southern waters. It's still too early to state definitely that they will, but the catches here Saturday by Aaron and the earlier one lend hope to that belief. If successful, the stocking program will result in a new species of abundant game fish that can be enjoyed at mealtime.

The earlier catch was recorded by J. M. (Doc) Davis, 2906 Thirty-fourth Street, who pulled one out weighing about half a pound three weeks ago. It also was caught with a minnow from the bank.

"There're a pretty fish," said Doc, adding, "They're long and gray-colored and they have a skin like a catfish. And, man, did it taste good."

SHS May Be Only District Baseball Team

Snyder High may be the only school in District 3-AAA fielding a baseball team in University Interscholastic League competition next year.

That was the word passed along to school board members last night at their regular meeting.

Supt. Bill J. Hood said that such a situation is a definite possibility, although final decisions have not been made by a couple of schools.

It was announced several days ago that Lubbock Public Schools were discontinuing the UIL baseball program in both Dunbar and Estacado High Schools. Subsequently, school officials at Brownfield indicated that the baseball program there probably would be dropped. And, in turn, there were reports from Lamesa that should Brownfield drop its program, Lamesa likely would follow suit.

The only other school in the district which fielded a baseball team the last season was Levelland, and it is going into District 1-AAA this fall.

Vision Is Normal Now

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ailing Paul Blair, who was struck in the face by a pitch 11 days ago, has been told his vision is normal.

Dr. Herman Goldberg, the Baltimore Orioles' eye specialist, made the announcement Tuesday, allaying fears the star centerfielder might suffer permanent damage.

Blair was examined following his return from California, where he had been hospitalized a week after being struck by a pitch from Angels' reliever Ken Tatum.

Chester Cobb knocked a home run for the A's in the top of the first inning while Larkin West knocked a home run for the Indians, also in the first inning.

Other Athletic hits included two singles by Chester Cobb and single base hits by Charles Cobb, Charles Hammond, Mark Mueller, David Reed, Dale Hobbs and Randy Lewis.

Kyle Sikes doubled for the Indians. He also had a single to his credit while Doug Vaughn hit two singles. One-base-hits were credited to Harvey Waller and Johnny Eicke.

Tied up 4-4 going into the last inning, Royce Corbell walked and scored on a couple of errors.

That Cub-Cardinal affray was mostly one-sided as the Cardinals tallied four runs in the 2nd to build enough cushion to go with single tallies in the 3rd, 5th and 6th to preserve the victory.

Each side hit two home runs. A big blast by Terry Franks in the 2nd got the Cards to rolling and another one over the fence by Phil Robinson in the 5th removed all doubt about the outcome.

It's true the Cubs also got a couple of homers, and they occurred in the last inning, but it was too late to turn the tide in their favor.

Robinson also had a single to go with his homer for the Cards. Other Cards who cracked singles are Sid Everton, Clifford Kay, Mike O'Day, Ricky Beard and Terry Franks.

Flynn did as well as Robinson, also stroking a single to go with his home run for the Cubs. Kevin Dicharry came through with two singles, for the only other Cub hits.

Green Pebbles May Have Come From The Moon

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tektites, mysterious black and green pebbles found in only four isolated areas of the earth, may be of lunar origin, a study of Apollo 12 moon rock indicates.

Dr. John A. O'Keefe of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said glass found in a lemon-size moon rock appeared to be tektite glass.

"If this indeed proves to be the case, this constitution answers the argument given by proponents of the terrestrial origin of tektites," O'Keefe said in the current issue of Science magazine. "There appears to be no sound reason not to say that tektites come from the moon."

The rock in question was part of a lunar rock sample brought back in November by the Apollo 12 crew and believed to be some 4.6 billion years old. Scientists at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston have described it as "clearly the oldest rock yet found on the moon, and older than any rock found on earth."

Tektites are black or green glass pebbles found in small quantities in Bohemia and Moravia, sections of Czechoslovakia, the East Indies and Australia.

Usually the pebble's surface is pitted or sometimes grooved with winding marks. A few have ring marks like those seen on spacecraft re-entry heat shields.

O'Keefe said he compared the Apollo 12 rock with two earth tektites and some 5,000 ordinary rocks produced by fusion in heating.

"The Apollo 12 rock has the distinctive chemical hallmarks of a tektite, including enrichment in potassium and a puzzling mixture of the characteristics of the basic rocks and the acidic rocks like granite," he said.

Earlier theories held tektites were sort of earth rocks, such as sandstone or shale, fashioned from hardened mud or sand, and distributed over the earth by the impact of large comets and the resultant splashing of melted sandstone.

"It is now clear that the moon can produce the same peculiarities, although it has no mud, sand or atmosphere," O'Keefe said.

He added that most moon rocks found thus far are older than 3 billion years. By contrast, the oldest tektite apparently has an age of 2 billion, and most are much younger.

This discrepancy could be explained if tektites were launched from the moon not by meteorite impact, as O'Keefe himself formerly believed, but by volcanic eruption as suggested by a Dutch engineer, Dr. D. M. Verbeek, in 1897, he said.

O'Keefe explained that older material may be torn from the sides of a volcano's vent, but even this material likely would be the result of a relatively recent previous eruption since volcanism rarely continues for a long time at the same site.

"Thus, even if lunar volcanoes are rare, they would account for all the material found on the earth," he said.

Complainant Is Confused On Stand

DALLAS (AP) — Ollie Whitley, 80, was testifying Tuesday in the trial of a man charged with stabbing and trying to rob him last November.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Scott Hudson asked Whitley to point out the accused man. Whitley looked about the courtroom.

"That's him," said Whitley and levelled a finger at one of the jurors.

Hudson asked Whitley to don his eye glasses and look again. This time Whitley pointed to the defendant, Nathanial Goodman.

The jurors retired after a bit to weigh their verdict. After deliberating a little more than an hour they pronounced Goodman innocent.

Presbyterians Outline Steps For Merger

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Proposals outlining initial steps toward uniting two Texas Presbyterian synods for the first time since the Civil War were to be presented to church delegates today.

The proposals were on the afternoon agenda of the 128th Synod of Texas of the United Presbyterian Church, USA, meeting this week at Trinity University, a church related school.

In opening business Tuesday, the Rev. Houston Hodges of Austin was elected moderator of the synod, which represents 80,000 Presbyterians in Texas and Louisiana.

The Rev. Mr. Hodges, 40, a native of Tyler who was reared at Littlefield in West Texas, is executive for campus ministry for the United Christian Life Committee at Austin.

The committee finances ministries at 17 college campuses in Texas.

The Rev. Mr. Hodges succeeds Robert L. Cowling, a real estate broker and ruling elder of the Central Christian Church in Houston.

The 300 or so delegates to the synod will consider proposals already approved by the Synod of Texas of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

These proposals include a recommendation to form common boundaries for the two synods' presbyteries, a joint executive officer and a joint publication to be put out monthly.

The synod was expected to act on the proposals after the report of its general council this afternoon. Its sessions will end Thursday.

Louisianan Says Many Approve Use Of Guns

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Louisiana congressman says most Americans share his view that police should have used their guns during two outbreaks of violence at last November's massive antiwar protest.

"I think it's popular in America," Rep. Edwin Edwards, D-La., said Tuesday of his controversial stand. "I just have to believe that Americans feel criminal acts have to be stopped."

His position was supported by [illegible] V. Wilson and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. Kennedy today said, "We must learn well the lessons of how we can allow and encourage dissent without citizen violence, and how we can maintain order and safety without official violence."

Edwards, considered a political moderate in his home state, said originally during a hearing Tuesday of his House internal security subcommittee that he saw "several instances where gunfire was not only justified but required."

He later told a news conference he was not advocating the police should have fired into a crowd, but he stuck to his "not only justified, but required" stand regarding "specific, isolated individuals."

"Police would have been justified in shooting in two instances during the moratorium," Edwards said.

"They stormed the Justice Department and there was a confrontation with police over the flag" and when police and demonstrators [illegible] at Thomas Circle the night before the Nov. 15 rally.

Edwards, who said he is running for governor of his state, said gunfire in such situations was justified "only because they repeatedly refused to cease and desist what they were doing."

Discipline is the key to quelling such violence, he said.

At the hearing, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, took issue with Edwards, saying police should not assume the role of "judge, jury and executioner" during demonstrations.

The discussion on the use of guns came after Wilson showed the subcommittee a police film of the moratorium.

Wilson, who was on hand at the two instances described by Edwards, said he knew of no instance in which police should have used their guns.

He said his force handled outbreaks with a minimum of force, and with a strategy of dispersal.

"It is not the job of a police [illegible] to punish [illegible]"

Kennedy said violence between Americans "is unequivocally unacceptable as a mode of expression, a means of dissent, or a tool of vengeance."

In a prepared statement, he said the demonstration showed it is possible to have massive dissent without a threat to security.

The smallest member of the United Nations presently is the Maldive Islands, with a population of 106,000.

Water Records Are Suppressed

HOUSTON (AP) — Reports which could give a warning of a water shortage similar to the one which plagued Houston last year were declared off-limits by city officials.

Robert A. Thompson Jr., assistant public works director who heads the city Water Department, said Tuesday he had been ordered by Public Works Director E.B. Cape not to release the daily water pumpage reports. He said Cape also told him not to talk with reporters about any possible water shortage.

Cape was not available for comment.

Cape was critical of [illegible] reports about last summer's water shortage, in which the city had to institute water rationing. The shortage, city officials said, came because of a shortage of pumping facilities.

Both Cape and Mayor Louie Welch have said this has been corrected and no shortage is expected this year.

Athletes at the United States Air Force Academy competed in 152 events in 10 varsity sports last winter.

State agriculture inspectors in Kentucky report they found 40 per cent of 26,000 retail packaged items shortweighted during a check of stores and supermarkets. The state now plans [illegible] action against second offenders.

Transfer Easy From Jr. College

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

According to studies by the American Association of Junior Colleges, about 20 per cent of freshmen, entering community colleges begin in general education programs. Many of these students plan to transfer to four-year institutions at a later date.

HOW GOOD ARE TRANSFER CHANCES? Graduates of transfer programs have little difficulty making the switch – with a few big if's. Here's how to sidestep common pitfalls.

ACCREDITATION means the procedure whereby an educational institution is evaluated and accorded recognition if the evaluation is favorable. Transfer students should find out if the two-year school is accredited by one of the six regional accrediting associations of colleges and secondary schools. These are: New England, Middle States, North Central, Northwest, Southern, or Western. If the college is accredited, it will so state in its catalog.

Accreditation by a regional agency is not an overnight process which means that many of the newer colleges would be penalized if this were the only measure of quality. Accreditation by a state department of higher education may be enough to insure easy transfer to a four-year public university within the state, and sometimes to schools in other states.

TAKE TRANSFERABLE COURSES. Four-year institutions will accept only college-parallel courses, which means those with equal academic standards. To be certain you don't blow credits, make a "reality" check off several four-year institutions you would like to attend. See what courses they accept in common.

WHICH COURSES WON'T TRANSFER? Although requirements vary among senior colleges, for the purpose of discussion, doubtful catagories include:

(1) Developmental courses, which is remedial "catch-up" education.

(2) Highly technical courses. Because senior colleges feel that your first two years should be devoted to gaining a broad educational foundation, those courses which are targeted on occupational skills may be rejected. Examples: courses in engineering, business or allied health technologies which are not general in content.

(3) Specialized courses usually considered upper division work and not appropriate at the junior college level. For instance, while general psychology would likely be accepted, abnormal psychology probably wouldn't. American history is a foundation course, American history in the 20th Century isn't. In a nutshell, stick to the general foundation courses which match those offered during the first two years of four-year institutions.

WILL YOU LOSE CREDITS SWITCHING MAJORS? Probably yes. One exception is moving from an academic program to a career program, because occupational students must take above one-third of their courses in general education anyway. When transferring, they can use credits already gained to fill general requirements, and then concentrate on vocational studies. However, expect to take extra courses if you switch from a career program to an academic program.

DO "A's" TRANSFER AS "C's?" No. This is a widely misunderstood and difficult point to comprehend. What you transfer is credits – not grade points. Your grades from junior college are not averaged in with your grades at senior college, although your junior college grades remain on your transcript (record). In effect, you just start over acquiring good grades. The reason you must make at least a "C" average in junior college is so that you will be accepted at a four-year school. The higher your junior college grades, the wider your choice of senior colleges.

WHAT ARE THE CHOICES IN CAREER EDUCATION? About 40 per cent of students wind up in career programs preparing for immediate semiprofessional and technical jobs. The variety of opportunities is astounding, and next we'll list some of them.

Delay Lifting Of Cyclamate Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is holding off plans to seek an easing of the strict law banning such cancer-linked food additives as cyclamates.

Legislative aides in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have mapped plans designed to ease the ban without adverse public opinion.

But sources said Tuesday that acting HEW Secretary John G. Veneman put a hold on the plans after vigorous complaints from Food and Drug Commissioner Charles C. Edwards.

Veneman is acting HEW chief until the Senate confirms Elliot L. Richardson as replacement for former Secretary Robert H. Finch, who opposes the additive ban. Finch went to the White House staff last Saturday.

When Finch was forced last October to ban the artificial sweetener cyclamate he complained that the law was too strict because it forced action when any additive was found to cause cancer when fed to animals in any amount. Cyclamates were linked to bladder cancer in rats.

Some argue for retaining the law, known as the Delaney amendment, after its sponsor, Rep. James L. Delaney, D-N.Y.

But Creed Black, assistant HEW secretary for legislation, said in a memo Monday that it should be altered because the secretary must now outlaw cancer-linked substances even when evidence comes from tests on "inappropriate animals under inappropriate conditions."

The memo, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, went on to propose eliminating the compulsory ban in favor of ceilings—or tolerance levels—for additives linked not only to cancer, but to birth defects, genetic mutations or other irreversible damage.

"The approach is designed to anticipate and counteract criticism that the department is merely trying to weaken existing safeguards against harmful substances in foods," Black's memo said.

He conceded that present law was entirely satisfactory in setting tolerance levels for substances linked to disorders other than cancer.

Phil Goyette of the St. Louis Blues has played 14 National Hockey League seasons.

VOTE FOR PROPOSITION 1 AND PROPOSITION 2

WESTERN TEXAS COLLEGE ELECTION

SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1970

A JUNIOR COLLEGE WILL BENEFIT SNYDER AND ESPECIALLY THE YOUNG PEOPLE OF THIS AREA!

Western Texas College - Fact Sheet

(Scurry County Junior College District)

WHEN WILL THE ELECTION BE HELD?

June 13, 1970

Absentee Voting – through June 9, 1970

WHO WILL BE ELIGIBLE TO VOTE?

All registered voters who have rendered property in the County of Scurry.

All other registered voters may vote on all issues.

WHAT, SPECIFICALLY, WILL BE VOTED UPON?

Proposition 1 - A maintenance tax not to exceed 35c on the one hundred dollar valuation of taxable property in the district.

Proposition 2 - Approval of the issuance of $3,250,000 in bonds and a tax rate never to exceed 50c on the one hundred dollar valuation of taxable property in the district.

WHY DOES THE ELECTION NEED TO BE HELD?

On the petition creating the Scurry County Junior College District, there was a 6½% limitation. The board's financial advisors from First Southwest Company do not believe the bonds can be sold with this limitation. ATso, as originally voted, the 35c maximum tax rate for both bonds and maintenance, would not allow the district to receive the best rating on the bonds. The financial advisors, as well as our local bankers, believe the approval of the two propositions will save the tax payers of the district many thousands of dollars over the life of the college.

DOES THE BOARD PLAN TO BUILD MORE BUILDINGS THAN ORIGINALLY PLANNED?

No. The Board of Trustees has not altered its plans in any way from what was given them by the Steering Committee in the Fall of 1969. The reason in going back to the voters is the high cost of borrowing money.

IF THE PROPOSITIONS CARRY, DOES IT MEAN AN INCREASE IN THE TAX RATE FROM 35c TO 85c?

No. The only reason for placing the bonds under the State's 50c maximum is that it will allow the district to receive a high rating on the bonds, which would mean a lesser interest rate on the bonds. Even if the bonds had to sell at 7%, the board would not have to assess more than 26c to pay off the bonds on a 16-year schedule.

The board does not intend to assess more than 24c for operation the first year of the college. Hopefully, after the first year or two, this rate can be reduced, as enrollment increases.

WHAT WOULD BE THE TOTAL TAX RATE ASSESSED THE FIRST YEAR?

No more than 50c on the one hundred dollar valuation of taxable property in the district.

Taxes Will Be Assessed On County Values and Collected By The County Tax Assessor-Collector.

TIPRO At Standstill On Unitization Issue

DALLAS (AP)—Members of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association over-rode a committee recommendation and voted Tuesday to send the controversial issue of statutory unitization back to its executive committee.

The step left TIPRO in a position it held before the convention started and will in effect part a victory won by unitization opponents at a Sunday committee meeting.

TIPRO members passed a resolution Tuesday directing the statewide organization "to continue to analyze and observe prospects of new legislation for fieldwide unitization and, if legislation introduced appears to be possible of passing, the executive committee shall be instructed to determine a proper and immediate course of action in view of the then current events."

The resolution said such course action taken by TIPRO leaders would be "consistent with the interest of independents and royalty owners."

James G. Bertman Jr., Houston, a vice chairman of the conservation and state legislation committee, introduced the resolution.

It was at his committee's Sunday meeting when unitization foes won a narrow-vote victory to deny TIPRO support of any statutory unitization effort and put the association back into its historical position of opposing statutory unitization.

What gives the resolution immediacy is definite assurance that a unitization bill will be introduced in next year's state legislature.

The president of the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Association, A. V. Jones Jr. of Albany, affirmed Tuesday that his group, which has been leading the unitization law drive, would have a bill ready for introduction.

A persistent problem throughout the meetings centered on the question of the limitation of imports by tariffs as opposed to the present quota system.

Monday, James Atkins, director of the State Department's Office of Fuels and Energy, addressed TIPRO members and stressed that national security is the overriding guideline in current deliberations concerning the future of the imports program.

Lloyd Bentsen Jr. of Houston, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, attacked a tariff approach in his address Tuesday to the convention.

Bentsen said such a step would cripple the Texas economy and claimed it would threaten the nation's security.

"There is nothing any administration has ever done that would hurt Texas more," he said.

The senatorial candidate centered his dislike mainly on the threat of reduced domestic crude oil prices posed by the tariff approach.

"The original purpose of import controls—national security—would be defeated," Bentsen charged. "We would become increasingly dependent on foreign oil from politically unstable areas."

He also cited the "urgent need to protect incentives for exploration and a need for drilling to be stepped up if we are to avert an energy crisis."

IRS Is Denied Checks

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge ruled Tuesday that the Internal Revenue Service could not examine about two million cashiers' checks and drafts paid through the First City National Bank since 1956.

U.S. Dist. Judge John V. Singleton said, "the government, businesses, labor unions and charities have gotten so big, somewhere, somebody has got to protect the individual. Somebody's thumb has got to be in the dike, and that thumb is the federal judiciary."

The IRS is investigating a physician suspected of having bank accounts in Switzerland, the Bahamas, Mexico and Canada. Government agents wanted to examine all the checks and drafts, not just those pertaining to the physician.

Singleton said his ruling was not designed to protect the doctor or the bank, but other depositors whose records also would be seen.

William R. Morgan, an IRS agent, admitted on the witness stand he would make notes on other suspicious persons while searching the records for information pertaining to the physician.

"This agent is a good public servant and I don't want to penalize the government," Singleton said.

The judge said the IRS had the right to see specific records going back a reasonable number of years.

"But what is the difference between the government going into a banking institution and seeing all their records and electronic eavesdropping?" he asked.

John G. Heard, a lawyer for the bank, said the bank has spent about 30 hours supplying the IRS other material in the investigation. Heard said the bank has sent the doctor copies of all IRS subpoenas.

Heard said the bank rebelled only after being asked to permit the agent to check all the records, regardless of the individuals involved.

"There's no way to put blindfolds on these agents," Heard said. "There's no way to wash other names out of their minds."

Singleton, agreeing, said such a blanket authority could cause IRS investigation of persons who have made legitimate transactions and paid their taxes.

Pleads Innocent In Alien's Death

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — A Tijuana, Mexico, man has pleaded innocent to five counts of felony manslaughter in the deaths of aliens being transported illegally to Los Angeles.

Rafael Morfin-Toscano, 31, was ordered held in lieu of $50,000 bail Tuesday by Judge Donald Smith.

Morfin was arrested Friday and was identified as the driver of the pickup truck carrying 15 Mexican nationals which crashed while pursued by the U.S. Border Patrol. Five aliens were killed and ten injured earlier Friday.

Blast Rips Building

By WILLIAM R. TOW
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventeen minutes after an anonymous caller telephoned a bomb threat, a powerful dynamite blast ripped through the second floor of police headquarters Tuesday night. Eight persons were injured, none seriously.

"There is a bomb set to go off at police headquarters," the unidentified male caller said and hung up. The time was 6:40 p.m.

About 150 persons were at work in the fortress-like six-year-old structure at the time, most of them in the 4th floor communications center. Emergency units sped to the building and began a search.

At 6:57 p.m. the bomb—estimated to have contained 10 to 15 sticks of dynamite—exploded in a men's room, destroying several nearby offices and shattering windows in the five-story structure.

First Deputy Commissioner John F. Walsh described the explosive device as a sophisticated bomb with timer and said that if it had gone off earlier in the day 500 employes would have been in the building.

Manhattan has been plagued by a series of bombings in recent months, one of them in the Criminal Courts building a few blocks from police headquarters.

Man Killed Under Wheels Of Truck

GEORGE WEST, Tex. (AP) — Robert C. Campbell, 32, of George West was killed under the wheels of a tractor-trailer truck here Tuesday night.

State patrolmen said his car was halted beside the road and he was trying to flag the heavy vehicle to a halt. Campbell jumped for the right side of the truck cab, they said, and fell under the trailer's tandem wheels.
