Snyder's sales tax 'plus' said steadily shrinking

Snyder's sale tax return, which in May was running some 15 percent above last year, has shown a steady decline since that time and with the recent reporting period has leveled off to approximately the same year-to-date amount as 1985.

With three reporting periods remaining, the economic profile offered by the 1 percent tax on merchandise sold here now appears in danger of finishing 1986 in the minus category.

A one-month drop in sales during July equaled almost 17 percent less than the same period last year. This brought the year's total to less than 1 percent above 1985's figure.

The 1986 payments to date now total just over $626,000 compared to more than $623,000 last year. This equals a plus .44 percent.

The exact figures are $626,099 and $623,386 respectively.

The one month total for July here was $50,647 this year compared to $61,017 last year, reflecting the 17 percent drop.

Statewide, the sales tax return was down an average .5 percent. The report, offered by the state comptroller of public accounts, represents taxes collected on sales made in July and reported to the state by Aug. 20.

The state's largest cities, Houston and Dallas, both report declines in the annual sales tax of some 5 percent.

Comptroller Bob Bullock says decreases in the August and September check amounts reflect a downturn in the Texas economy.

The sales tax profile for area cities both larger and smaller than Snyder was generally down this year compared to last. These figures include:

—Lubbock: a minus .79 percent with $9.8 million returned this year compared to $9.9 million in

Reagan orders mandatory drug tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today ordered the heads of each government agency to establish mandatory drug-testing programs for "employees in sensitive positions" and endorsed a House-passed measure that provides the death penalty for some drug-related offenses.

"This is the federal government's way of just saying 'no' to drugs," the president said, taking a line from his wife as he signed an executive order and sent his own legislative package to Congress, which is rushing to enact new measures to combat drug abuse before the November elections.

Officials said they could not estimate how many of the government's 2.8 million civilian employees would be affected, but some published reports have put the number as high as 1.1 million.

Reagan, unveiling his own plan for combatting drug use as Congress rushes to enact legislation of its own before the November elections, said he would allocate $500 million in additional spending for law enforcement and drug interdiction efforts in the Southwest border region and in the Southeast. He earmarked $100 million to help local schools eradicate drug use and a like amount in grants to the states to enhance drug abuse treatment facilities.

One day after joining his wife, Nancy, in exhorting Americans to "rise up together in defiance against this cancer of drugs," Reagan proposed legislation and administrative steps that would add nearly $900 million in additional resources to combat drug abuse, bringing the cost of all federal anti-drug programs to $3.2 billion for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The president said that all the money would be redirected from other federal projects and that no new appropriations would be necessary.

The House has approved a $2 billion package of antidrug measures, including establishment of the death penalty for some drug-related crimes and assignment of a bigger role for the military in combatting the flow of illegal drugs into the country.

Reversing his position as announced by a spokesman last week, Reagan endorsed the provision in the House bill providing for the death penalty "for those who intentionally cause death while committing an offense" under what is known as the "drug kingpin" law.

Spokesman Larry Speakes had said Reagan favored use of the death penalty for some drug-related crimes but would not propose it in order to avoid controversy that could block adoption of his other proposals.

The bill Reagan submitted today also would increase the maximum prison term for large-scale drug trafficking to life for a second offense and broaden the scope of existing legislation to include the sale of cocaine and marijuana.

The bill contains mandatory prison terms for large-scale drug traffickers if a person dies as a result of using drugs supplied by them, and it would toughen the Controlled Substances Act to provide mandatory fines for offenders convicted of drug possession and mandatory prison terms for those convicted of second or subsequent offenses.

Announcing his commitment to "a drug-free federal workplace," Reagan said, "The use of illegal drugs by current or prospective federal employees will not be tolerated."

He said those caught using drugs will be subject to penalties ranging from private reprimands to suspension. Federal employees in "sensitive positions," as defined by their agency heads, "will not be permitted to remain on duty" if they are found to use illegal drugs.

BLOOD DRIVE SIGN-UP — A competition is due with Tuesday's community blood drive scheduled from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. Local financial institutions will be competing to see which can have the largest number of employees giving blood. Pictured signing up donors at American State Bank Monday are Linda Hughes (seated) and (standing from left) Helen McLeod, Shana Koonsman, Donna Badgwell, Eddie Johnson, Caron Perkins, Nancy Roemisch, Angela Wheeler, Polly Nichols and Mike Banta. Competition due with blood drive

A "friendly competition" between Snyder's banks, savings and loans and the local production credit association will be included in Tuesday's county blood drive, set from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center.

Officials with the local financial institutions have been working the past few days signing up their employees as blood donors. The business with the most participating staffers will be given a "traveling trophy" courtesy of the local blood advisory council.

As summer ends, local drive workers note a severe need for blood since donor numbers traditionally decline during the vacation months.

One county case also used substantial amounts of blood recently. Herman Hundsnurcher received treatment which required some 58 units of blood derivatives.

Another local using blood amounts is Cliff Harrison, 18, who was injured in a fall from a motor vehicle Sept. 5. He currently remains in St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock, suffering from head injuries.

Tuesday's drive will feature also an expanded list of local firms which donate merchandise for donors. Added to the list will be McDonalds, which will give away coupons good for a breakfast meal, and Lawrence Super Market (formerly Piggly Wiggly), which will donate cookies for each donor.

Also given away will be a coupon good for a hamburger at Whataburger, plus a free six-pack of soft drinks to every fifth donor courtesy of the Sweetwater Bottling Company.

First time donors Tuesday will also receive a heart key chain.

Outdoor sign space advertising the event has been contributed by Kmart, Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy, the Scurry County Coliseum and Whataburger.

2 reported forgeries prompt local charges

Scurry County sheriff's deputies and city police jailed two forgery suspects in the city Saturday in two unrelated incidents.

Sheriff's investigators jailed 27-year-old John Gregory Early of Rt. 3, Snyder at 10:45 p.m. on a felony charge of forgery by passing.

Early is alleged to have stolen three blank checks from Red Faver's Fina station on College Ave. earlier this month. He is then said to have attempted to pass one of them in Big Spring with a forged signature.

Early was being held without bond in the Scurry County Jail Monday morning on a motion for revocation of a previously granted felony probation sentence filed in addition to the forgery charge.

Earlier Saturday — at 12:48 p.m. — city officers took a forgery suspect into custody for sheriff's investigators at Lawrence Super Market on College Ave.

Store employees had originally called the sheriff's office to report a man attempting to pass what they thought might be a

COG board to meet here

Members of the regional board of the West Texas Council of Governments will meet at the Senior Citizens' Center at noon Tuesday.

County judges, commissioners and city officials from Fisher, Nolan, Mitchell and Scurry Counties are expected to attend.

Individuals to address the group include Brad Halbert, director of WTCOG, Dr. Lewis Lemmond, WTCOG director on aging, and Jim Compton with the regional planning committee.

Since the regional board meets at various locations in the West Texas area, center director Gloria Shaw noted that "it's Snyder's turn to host the session."

TEXAS SESQUICENTENNIAL 1836-1986

Q. — What is believed to be the first oil pipe line in Texas?

A. — Oil springs existed about three miles from Nacogdoches, and in 1888 operators ran the oil by gravity flow to town. There it was used for harness oil and cleaning guns.

Texas Sesquicentennial trivia questions should be submitted to staff at the Scurry County Library. The number is 573-5572.

Ask Us

Q. — Why are trailer houses allowed to go down College and 37th St. blocking traffic?

A. — At one time, firms which move mobile homes were regulated at the state level, requiring them to be "routed" by officials with the state highway department. These restrictions have since been abolished by the state legislature, and such companies may now move freely over any highways and roads.

Peres seeks support for talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres, opening a two-day visit today, is seeking U.S. support for the international conference the Israeli leader and Egyptian President Husni Mubarak have agreed is the best next step in the search for a Middle East peace.

But Peres, who will switch jobs with hard-line Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir next month, lacks support of the Israeli coalition Cabinet.

"What do we need this trouble for?" Shamir said Sunday after Peres reported to the Cabinet on last week's summit meeting with Mubarak that produced the idea of working toward an international peace conference.

The Reagan administration, in principle, wants to provide Jordan's King Hussein with the broad international reassurance he demands as a back-drop for one-on-one peace talks Israel.

But U.S. officials are lukewarm about according the Soviet Union a prominent and potentially meddlesome role. Also, the United States will bar participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization unless it accepts the Jewish state's right to exist.

"Our policy has not changed," Charles E. Redman, a State Department spokesman, said last week, while echoing the reservations of other officials toward the Soviet Union.

"We do not see a helpful Soviet role in a peace conference unless their policies and attitudes change," said another official, who demanded anonymity in briefing reporters Friday at the White House on the Peres visit.

"We do not see any breakthroughs on the horizon," the official said.

Before seeing President Reagan today, Peres was to call on Secretary of State George P. Shultz. He also was due to confer with Vice President George Bush, who made a recent trip to the Middle East, and to meet on Tuesday with Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and members of the House Foreign Affairs and the Senate Foreign Relations committees.

Peres' summit meeting with Mubarak in Alexandria appeared to bring the two countries closer than at any time since they signed a peace treaty in 1979.

But when Peres vowed at the Cabinet meeting to pursue an international peace conference, Shamir objected. The Likud leader told reporters after the two-hour session he could not understand why Peres sought "to hand Israel's fate into the hands of countries whose interests do not run parallel to those of Israel."

Aquino: Boston trip will be emotional

BOSTON (AP) — When Corazon Aquino returns to Boston for the first time since becoming Philippines president, it may be the happiest and most difficult stop on her U.S. tour, which starts today.

It was the city, she has said, that she and her husband, Bengino S. Aquino Jr., the assassinated foe of former President Ferdinand E. Marcos, "had come to love and consider our second home."

"It's really been emotionally very difficult for me to go back to Boston," Mrs. Aquino, 53, said in an interview earlier this year in her Malacanang Palace office in Manila. "It reminds me of the time I was happy."

Across from her desk, where she could see it every time she lifted her eyes, was a portrait of her husband.

From 1980 to 1983, the couple and their five children lived in a large house in suburban Newton, near the gates of Boston College.

It was the house Aquino left on Aug. 13, 1983, for the journey that brought him to Manila Airport, where he was shot dead while being led from a plane by Philippine soldiers. The killing set in motion the events that led to the ouster of Marcos last February and to Mrs. Aquino assuming the presidency.

She and her children left for the Philippines two days after the killing, but she returned to her Newton home twice before becoming president.

"I did not realize it would be so hard," she said, recalling one visit to her husband's favorite men's store. "I knew each time he would go there, it would take him so long. Then it dawned on me, 'Oh, it's so different now. It's so sad.'

"I told my daughter, 'I think we'd better go.' It's things like that. As far as our house is concerned, I really can't stay there."

No public appearance is scheduled this trip at her former residence, although Boston College will honor Mrs. Aquino on Sunday at a Mass across the street at St. Ignatius Roman Catholic Church, which the Aquino family attended.

Mrs. Aquino was scheduled to arrive this afternoon in the United States. Her first stop was to be a brief one in San Francisco before continuing to Washington, D.C.

When she arrives in Boston on Saturday from New York City, she will receive an honorary degree from Boston University, attend a luncheon at Harvard University, where her husband spent two years as a fellow, and speak in the evening at Faneuil Hall as part of a municipal welcome.

Her Boston visit also includes a dinner and reception expected to be attended by more than 1,000 friends from the area's Philippine community.

The dinner will be held at the Westin Hotel, operated by a group that also runs the Philippine Plaza Hotel in Manila, owned by Imelda Marcos, wife of the former president.

It was at another dinner, at the Downtown Harvard Club in May 1984, that she heard for the first time the suggestion that she run for president of her country.

She was seated next to Benjamin H. Brown, retired director of the fellows program under which her husband worked

Suspects may be moved out of city hit by racial tensions

KOUNTZE, Texas (AP) — At least three crosses have been burned since the arrest of three blacks in connection with the alleged rapes of two white teenaged girls, and officials said that for the suspects' safety they would try to move them today out of this Southeast Texas town.

Tensions were high over the weekend, but eased on Sunday, and Hardin County Sheriff H.R. "Mike" Holzapfel said he had ended extra patrols by officers. He also lifted a ban that he had imposed Saturday on sales of liquor after 10 p.m.

However, black residents expressed concern that the Ku Klux Klan or others might cause problems, and the sheriff said he would attempt to move all three suspects today from Kountze, which is about 25 miles northwest of Beaumont.

Holzapfel said he would request a hearing to revoke the probation of one of the suspects and bring charges of parole violation against a second. If successful, both would bring a prison sentence, allowing him to move the two Kountze men to Huntsville today, Holzapfel said.

The sheriff said he planned to move the third suspect — a juvenile from Jasper with no previous conviction — to a jail in another county.

After the three were arrested in connection with the Sept. 7 rapes, three reports of cross burnings were investigated. Beefed-up patrols of city, county and state law officers were ordered in the town, particularly in predominantly black neighborhoods.

"The whole incident pretty much defused after last night," Holzapfel said Sunday. He lifted his earlier ban on liquor sales after 10 p.m. and said as long as everything stayed peaceful, he would not reinstitute it.

Many blacks, however, remained on guard against violence. About 100 blacks attended a meeting Saturday night with Holzapfel and Mayor W.R. Overstreet at Green Pine Baptist Church.

"We need the crosses to quit burning. When you see crosses burning, that means one thing — the Ku Klux Klan — and the Klan has made it known around the world that we are nothing to them. That's enough to arouse us as citizens," said Doris McDaniel, one of the black residents at the meeting.

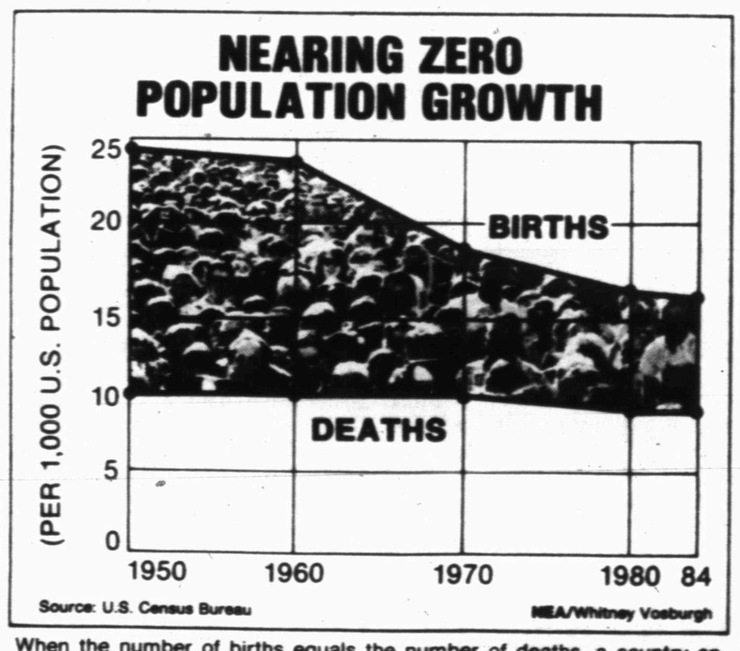
She said she was concerned about the safety of children and elderly people.

"We wanted to find out what's going on about these cross burnings," said Ms. McDaniel.

Holzapfel refused to comment on any cross-burnings and said minutes after the meeting that "it was just to discuss what was going on and to settle rumors. Everybody's going about their normal business, and I'm going to do my job."

Ms. McDaniel said she noticed "a change" in the city following the meeting.

"We don't know if and when something else is going to happen," she said. "Although it's been quiet since the meeting, you can sense that people are still worried and wondering what's going to happen next."



When the number of births equals the number of deaths, a country approaches zero population growth, assuming, of course, that immigration is not a major factor. Although the U.S. population is still increasing, we are getting closer to zero population growth because of a decline in births.

Vivisection May Save People But It's Not the Only Choice

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have always been a big fan of yours, but we have come to the parting of the ways on the subject of vivisection.

If operations on a dozen or so live animals might reveal the key to curing thousands of human beings who are afflicted with a fatal disease, would you save the animals and let the people die?

Closer to home, suppose it is a question of your very own adored son, condemned to die of a disease if a cure cannot be found. Medical authorities know that a certain enzyme may effect that cure and the only probable source, outside of living human donors, is in the spleens of living tortoise-shell cats. You have a tortoise-shell cat whom you love as your own flesh. What is your choice?

MRS. P.C.,
SANTA BARBARA

DEAR MRS. C.: I take it you read my column urging my readers to write to their elected representatives and ask them to support the Humane Product Testing Bill (H.R. 1877).

In response to your question: I would, of course, value the life of a human (relative or not) over that of an animal, but that's not the issue. Bill H.R. 1877 does not eliminate the use of animals for product testing. It would promote the use of non-animal alternatives to the cruel lethal-dose 50 percent test used by companies to test household products and cosmetics. That test requires that animals be force-fed products such as bleach until the lethal dose that will kill 50 percent of the group is reached! Prominent toxicologists agree that the results of this test hold no comparison to the effect of a substance on a human being. Yet companies continue to use it.

The animal rights movement is growing, and one of its prime concerns is the use of animals for cruel and inhumane testing. I share this concern for the needless suffering of millions of animals each year.

If this Bill H.R. 1877 is passed, it would pave the way for revolutionary changes in the testing methods.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you never had a problem like this. You have my permission to put this in the paper, but don't use my name. I am 80 years old. I had a brother (four years younger), and we loved and respected each other. He passed away last week after a long illness. His funeral happened to fall on the same day as the wedding of one of my favorite grandsons. I was torn between going to my brother's funeral and my grandson's wedding. The funeral was in town, but I had to travel to another state for my grandson's wedding, so I couldn't go to both.

Well, I chose to go to the wedding, and now my name is you-know-what with some of my relatives. They said that out of respect to my brother I should have gone to his funeral.

Please tell me if you think I did wrong by going to my grandson's wedding instead of to my brother's funeral.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: The time to show respect for people is while they're living. Congratulations for having the courage to do what you wanted to do. I think you made the right choice.

DEAR ABBY: Some friends and I were having a discussion about what (if anything) should be said upon seeing a friend (friendly, but not close) for the first time after she obviously has had a face-lift.

DEAR US: First I'll tell you what not to say: "What have you done to yourself? I hardly recognized you! I thought you were your daughter." Or, "Who did it?"

It is, however, permissible to say, "My, you're looking marvelous." Period.

Group makes sure all death row inmates have lawyers

HOUSTON (AP) — An effort is under way to recruit lawyers who will volunteer their services to make sure that death row inmates continue to have legal representation to the very end.

The constitutional right to a lawyer stops after a prisoner has exhausted an automatic appeal to the state appellate court. But a group of lawyers say death row inmates need to pursue several other legal avenues after that, and their chances may be curbed if they cannot afford an attorney.

A recent poll showed that at least one of every four condemned killers — 0 of 236 on death row — lack legal representation.

The movement is being spearheaded by appeals lawyer Carolyn Garcia of Houston and Bill White, who directs legal services for convicts in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Will Gray, another Houston appeals attorney who represents some death row inmates, is also involved in the effort.

The non-profit corporation also may ask the Texas Legislature to provide money in some way to pay for the attorneys, she said.

White, whose office handles general prisoner matters, said he feels obligated to honor requests for help from death row. But he said his present staff can't deal with a big workload restricted to those cases.

His office in Huntsville now is representing two condemned indigents, he said.

With eight lethal injections, Texas leads the nation in executions this year.

Florida, second to Texas in the number of executions, provides a public defender agency with 10 fulltime attorneys for condemned indigents, said Larry Spalding, who directs the office. He suggested Texas should adopt the same sort of system.

"You sure need it," Spalding said. "Your state's a disaster."

He said no group in Texas knows the status of death row appeals.

Ms. Garcia said her group is trying to establish which inmates have attorneys and where their cases are in court.

Groundbreaking

BOSTON (AP) — The Kennedy family and city officials gathered to break ground for a rose garden dedicated to Rose Kennedy.

"My mother's life will stamp the character of this park," said her daughter Eunice Kennedy Shriver. "So it must always serve families old and young."

Also attending Sunday's ceremony under a blue-and-white striped tent were Rose Kennedy's grandson Joseph P. Kennedy II.

Roadway debate surfacing

WACO, Texas (AP) — In the 1930s and 1940s, traffic circles were flourished in many Texas cities and were considered engineering marvels that kept traffic moving without disruption, highway officials said.

But in Waco, a concrete roadway that surrounds a 1940s renovated cafe, Mexican restaurant and hamburger stand is considered by some as obsolete and confusing.

But, fans of "the circle," as the thoroughfare near Interstate 35 is called, said it is just as much a part of Waco as the city's century-old suspension bridge or the Brazos River paddleboat.

Texas Highway Department engineers have proposed widening a road and replacing the circle with an intersection and traffic lights. City and county officials back the plan.

But the plan hasn't been met with universal acceptance. Many residents are grumbling.

"The people around Waco have sort of grown to love the old thing," said Roger Conger, a Waco author and former mayor.

Critics claim the circle is obsolete and confusing, or "goddurned dangerous," according to Carol Johnson.

"I hate it. I hate that circle," she said. "Most people don't yield to it. They don't pay attention. When you're in it, everyone gets in one big jam."

But employees in the Circle Cafe sport T-shirts emblazoned with the slogan, "I survived the circle."

Opponents to the highway department proposal, including some businesses at the circle, have launched a "Save Our Circle" campaign.

Twice since the late 1960s, highway engineers have sought to get rid of the circle. But each time, circle loyalists stirred enough public sentiment to kill the proposals without disruption.

But traffic volume has grown, and now only about eight traffic circles remain in the state, officials said.

"They're trying to get rid of them," said Bo McCarver, state highway department spokesman. "The department is slowly phasing them out as they can. They're an interesting historical anomaly, but they are traffic safety problems. The traffic safety people, they get ulcers from them."

The circle was built in the 1930s just south of downtown for traffic converging from five country roads. Today, three highways — Loop 296, Loop 491 and U.S. Highway 77 — meet at the circle.

"It's always fun to watch someone go around it the wrong way," said David Gardner, a veterinarian who's lived near the circle all his life. "It's a bluffing game. It's a challenge. It scares the heck out of some people."

But Baylor University sororities and fraternities have held parties atop the six-foot grassy mound in its center. And high school students cruise the circle late at night.

"I like it because it's part of Waco," said Ruby Yates, 61. "I'd hate to see it removed. Been here for so many years. To me, it's a trademark."

Neighborhood radio watch foils burglars in Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — When the body of Beaumont businessman and photographer Chris Owens was found, police asked a utility company official to be on the lookout for Owens' car.

Basil Jackson, security coordinator for Gulf States Utilities Co., spotted the vehicle later and made a quick call to police that authorities said led to the recovery of the car and arrest of a man in connection with the crime.

Jackson's help is typical of the help that Beaumont officials say they've received from members of the Neighborhood Radio Watch program, which helped authorities investigate 75 crimes and make four arrests in its first year.

Charter members of the group in 1985 included the Beaumont Police Department, Jefferson County, the city of Beaumont, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, Liberty Cable TV, Gulf States Utilities and Southwestern Bell.

The number of participating agencies and companies since then has increased to 15. The committee recently invited Signet Cable TV of Vidor and two Orange County agencies to join the program.

The program, at no cost, provides some 350 extra men and women on the streets reporting crimes, accidents, drunk drivers or suspicious events, Jackson said.

"It's probably a pretty good deterrent on crime too," Jackson says. "With all the utility trucks around, a criminal might give it a second thought before he does something illegal."

In another incident while Jackson made his meter-reading rounds, he spotted a man sneaking from house to house and peering through windows.

The worker went to his truck and, within minutes, the neighborhood swarmed with police cars. Officers took the burglary suspect into custody.

Jackson said participants report incidents as they occur, such as a drunk driver, an auto accident or debris creating a traffic hazard. They also help law enforcement officials in investigations of homicides and other serious crimes.

Jackson told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal that participants normally only report suspicious activities to authorities.

They make the reports as part of their regular work duties.

Rebels pull out

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Salvadoran leftist rebels on Sunday pulled out of peace talks scheduled this week aimed at ending their country's nearly 7-year-old civil war.

Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte said he and his delegation would keep the Friday date at Sesori, 95 miles northeast of the Salvadoran capital of San Salvador. The two sides had agreed to the time and place of the talks at a Aug. 20-22 meeting in Mexico City.

Double meaning

By James Jacoby

What does it mean when you double the opponents in their freely bid game contract, if you and your partner did not enter the auction previously? Of course it means that you think you're going to beat them, but anything else? That anything else is very important.

There is no special significance when you are the opening leader. You look at your hand and you think it is very likely that the declarer won't make his contract, so you double. But it is entirely different when your partner is to make the opening lead. Now it is very much to your advantage if you and your partner know what has been an unwritten code at the bridge table for experts for many years. Such a double is a strong command to partner to lead dummy's first-bid suit. Look how it worked in today's deal.

When North-South arrived at four spades played by South, East was certainly not sure that he could set it. But he did know it was likely that his partner would lead a heart, and that did not figure to be good. Since his double said, "Hey, partner, lead a diamond," he decided to try that stratagem. As you can see, it worked. The defenders took the first three diamond tricks and thereafter could not be denied the trump ace. With the normal heart lead, two diamond losers would quickly be shed on the A-K-Q of clubs. What if the declarer's diamond and club holdings were reversed? Then East made a bad double.

Wildlife agency wants to protect prairie chickens

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — Federal officials have proposed the creation of a 15,000-acre refuge near Victoria and expansion of another refuge as ways to protect the endangered Attwater prairie chickens.

Only about 874 of the birds remain in Texas, down 40 percent from last year's count, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Agency officials blame the loss on heavy rains washing away nests during the hatching season.

They contend in a federal report that two refuges are needed to ensure that storms, epidemics or other disasters "do not eliminate the Attwater prairie chicken."

The existing Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge, 10 miles northeast of Eagle Lake, was established in 1972 with 3,500 acres and later expanded to 8,000 acres.

An additional 7,000 acres of leased or managed land is needed to buffer the refuge from continuing habitat destruction caused by an expanding Houston, according to a team of biological experts.

The new refuge, about 10 miles north of Victoria, would be built around 5,700 acres of grassland where 40 to 50 prairie chickens now live.

Some 9,300 neighboring acres would be leased or managed by its current owners under voluntary agreements with the wildlife agency.

Two owners have agreed to sell the 5,700 acres at appraised market value but no federal money is available now, Fish and Wildlife spokesman Tom Smiley said.

However, the National Audubon Society and other environmental groups in Washington are working to convince Congress to buy the land, he said.

Demos claim East Texas victory a mandate

By The Associated Press

State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle says Richard Anderson's decisive victory over Republican Edd Hargett for a state Senate seat confirmed East Texas support for another Democratic candidate, Gov. Mark White.

"When Richard Anderson won with 58 percent of the vote, by some 12,000 votes, the people of East Texas sent a clear message that the Democratic Party, led by Governor White, speaks for the majority, as it has for over 100 years," Slagle said Sunday after the victory.

Anderson, Harrison County judge, won the District 1 Senate seat on Saturday with 58 percent, or 41,947 votes, to Hargett's 42 percent, or 30,178 votes.

Slagle said advertisements aired last week through election day by the Republicans linked White and Anderson and called upon voters to reject them both. White faces former Gov. Bill Clements in November.

"The voters' answer was a clear 'no,'" said Slagle. "The governor's re-election campaign joined Richard Anderson and the people of senatorial District 1 in winning a major victory."

Anderson said that, of the district's 15 counties, he lost only in Gregg. He called the 1,286-vote defeat there "acceptable" in what he described as the only Republican area in the strongly Democratic district.

"I'm delighted with the margin," said Anderson, 37, "and feel very, very good that both Democrats and independents showed support for the campaign, which has been positive."

The 39-year-old Hargett credited outside labor and minority support for Anderson's win, and said the election did not draw the turnout a Republican needed to win.

"It doesn't make any difference what you tell them. If you can't make them ashamed to vote for a guy like Mr. Anderson, I don't know what you can do," said Hargett. "I hate to say that, but it's true."

National GOP officials last year said they felt Hargett could oust a long line of Democrats representing the 15-county congressional district, but Democrat Jim Chapman ended up winning the U.S. House seat.

The Secretary of State ordered a recount in District 1's most populous county of Bowie, delaying Saturday's vote count for several hours after the polls closed. The tally wasn't completed until nearly midnight.

Marylene Megason, Bowie County Clerk, said workers were very careful, "dotting the i's and crossing the t's," in checking the absentee ballots there.

"The Republican pollwatcher is objecting to a lot," she said.

In Bowie, which includes Texarkana, Anderson had 6,620 to Hargett's 4,602.

Anderson garnered 6,120 votes, or 57 percent, compared to Hargett's 4,702, or 43 percent in Harrison County.

Hargett's home county of Cass went to Anderson, albeit narrowly, 3,731 to 3,155.

The 72,125 turnout exceeded the 65,000 predicted by both campaigns, or about one-fourth of the district's registered voters.

Hargett repeatedly went to court to try to get Anderson's name off the ballot, charging that he was ineligible to run because he was already holding a county post. Hargett also said Anderson had been detained in Belton in 1980 for overdue child-support payments.

Several dozen applications for absentee ballots were recently determined to be forgeries, and Anderson and state Democrats pointed the finger at Hargett supporters.

The two triumphed over a four-candidate field in the Aug. 9 special election to replace Ed Howard, who resigned in April to become a lobbyist.

Hargett, a former football player, received 40.3 percent of the vote in the Aug. 9 special election that had a 21.7 percent turnout. Anderson won 32.3 percent.

Anderson spent nearly twice as much on his campaign.

IUD demise leads to various choices for birth control

BOSTON (AP) — A father of three pronounced himself relaxed as he sat in a city health clinic with two other men waiting to be sterilized.

"Five years ago, you wouldn't have gotten me near this place," confided David C., who declined to be identified fully.

At 40, he said he opted for sterilization, the most widely used means of birth control in the United States, for a variety of reasons. But a major factor that he and the other men cited was the recent demise of intrauterine devices as a popular female birth control method.

Their comments supported predictions last May by the New York-based Alan Guttmacher Institute that the withdrawal of some IUD models from the market would lead many couples to decide on sterilization: a tubal ligation for the woman or vasectomy for the man.

"That in fact is just what has happened," said Billie Rossoff, coordinator of Preterm, the nonprofit clinic where the men awaited operations.

In January, G.D. Searle and Co. discontinued sales of Cu-7 and TCu-200 IUDs, saying it feared lawsuits from women claiming the devices caused serious side effects.

Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., the other leading maker, withdrew its Lippes Loop last September. The A.H. Robins Co. took its Dalkon Shield off the market in the 1970s and is seeking protection from creditors following a wave of lawsuits.

First in 50 years: Senate beginning impeachment plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today begins its first impeachment trial in a half-century, with the duty of deciding whether imprisoned federal judge Harry E. Claiborne should be kicked off the bench because of his 1984 conviction for tax evasion.

A seat in the historic Senate Caucus Room was reserved for Claiborne himself, temporarily released from a federal prison in Alabama to attend, as the central figure in a nationally televised drama that will unfold before a special impeachment panel of 12 senators.

The panel's first order of business will be to rule on a Claiborne motion crucial to his defense against impeachment. That is the judge's contention that the Senate should consider his claim that he was framed by overzealous prosecutors who acted illegally.

Nine members of the House Judiciary Committee who are serving as prosecutors argued that the Senate should limit the evidence to the details of Claiborne's conviction for falsifying his federal income tax returns for 1979 and 1980 by failing to report a total of $106,651.89 in income from legal fees.

That conviction, the House insisted, is "an independent and sufficient basis for his removal from office" and that allegations of misconduct by government prosecutors are irrelevant to the question of whether Claiborne should be impeached.

Professor has paper published

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — After the Battle of San Jacinto, Mexican Gen. Santa Anna became a prisoner of the Republic of Texas only to become a liability, says a college professor's master's thesis, which was published as a book.

Kenneth Durham, a history professor at LeTourneau College, first wrote "Santa Anna — Prisoner of War In Texas" two decades ago. So when Skipper Steely of the Wright Press in Paris said he wanted to publish Durham's master's thesis, Durham was shocked.

He said the casual observer might consider Santa Anna's capture at San Jacinto a benefit for those fighting for Texas' independence, but he turned out to be more of a liability than an asset.

Husband charged in wife's murder

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Officials filed capital murder charges against two men after one of them led authorities to a shallow grave, where they discovered the decomposed body of a woman who had been missing for seven months.

Jesse DeWayne Jacobs, 36, an Illinois parolee, and James Michael Urdiales, 36, were charged with capital murder Saturday after the body of Urdiales' 25-year-old estranged wife, Etta Ann Urdiales, was uncovered, said Bob Morrison, spokesman for the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department.

'Old Scotsman' dead at 65

DALLAS (AP) — Gordon B. McLendon, who as "The Old Scotchman," captivated radio audiences with his studio recreations of live sports events, is dead at the age of 65 after a lengthy illness.

Bart McLendon said his father died at 9:15 p.m. Sunday at his ranch north of Dallas. The elder McLendon had suffered from cancer of the esophagus.

In recent years, McLendon, a multimillionaire, had spent much of his time on his ranch 25 miles north of Dallas. On Dec. 5, 1985, he was shot in the face with a .38-caliber revolver, which his son said happened when McLendon was cleaning the gun.

At McLendon's request, there will be no funeral, his son said.

A memorial service is planned for Saturday at the Cielo Ranch, Lake Dallas, he said.

The family requested that in lieu of flowers, donations be made to a favorite charity or to the Girls' Club of Dallas.

Between 1947 and 1952, McLendon created and owned with his father, B.R. McLendon, the nationwide Liberty Broadcasting System, which claimed 458 radio affilates.

Sitting in a studio, McLendon used ticker tape messages from major league baseball parks and a battery of sound effects to do simulated live, play-by-play broadcasts.

He also teamed with such celebrities as Dizzy Dean on a nationwide baseball "Game of the Day" and football "Game of the Week" carried by the network.

A native of Paris, Texas, McLendon graduated from Yale University with a major in Oriental languages.

He served in U.S. Naval Intelligence as a Japanese language officer during World War II.

Following his discharge from the Navy, he attended Harvard Law School.

In 1943, he married Gay Noe, daughter of former Louisiana Gov. James A. Noe.

After an initial start in the radio industry as owner-manger of KNET, Palestine, Texas, McLendon obtained a construction permit for KLIF, Dallas, in 1947.

In the 1950s, McLendon began using a list of the most-popular records — a technique first employed by Midwest radio entrepreneur Todd Storz — along with listener contests and colorful disc jockeys to create the "Top 40" format, which became a staple of the radio industry for nearly three decades.

Among the radio stations owned by the McLendon family partnership were KABL-FM, San Francisco; KABL, Oakland, Calif.; WNUS AM-FM, Chicago; WWWW, Detroit; WYSL AM-FM, Buffalo, N.Y.; KOST, Los Angeles; WRIT, Milwaukee; KILT, Houston; KTSA, San Antonio, Texas; KELP, El Paso, Texas; KEEL, Shreveport, La.; and WAKY, Louisville, Ky.

His family sold the last of numerous broadcast properties in 1978 and invested the proceeds. During the late 1970s and early 1980s, McLendon became a recognized adviser on investments in precious metals and in 1981 wrote a book on the subject, "Get Really Rich in the Coming Super Metals Boom."

In 1964, McLendon made an unsuccessful foray into politics, losing to incumbent U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough in the Democratic primary.

McLendon's family owned a number of drive-in movie theaters.

Education Dept. issues drug booklet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Education is opening up toll-free telephone lines today for the public to call for its new handbook on how to expel the drug problem from the nation's schools.

"We have to get tough, and we have to do it now," Secretary of Education William J. Bennett said in his introduction to the 78-page guide, "Schools Without Drugs."

The education agency has printed 1 million copies of its handbook at a cost of 40 cents each and will spend as much as 30 cents more to mail each copy free to parents and others who request them.

Bennett already has put copies in the mail to every public and private elementary and secondary school and to every school superintendent.

The public can call 1-800-624-0100 for copies of the handbook. The local Washington, D.C., number is 659-4854. People also can write for copies to: Schools Without Drugs, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Bennett said use of drugs, including alcohol, is "the most serious threat to the health and well-being of our children."

The problem cuts across class lines and geographic boundaries, Bennett said. "In some schools, drug deals at lunch are common. In others, intruders regularly enter the building to sell drugs to students. Even schools with strict drug policies on paper do not always enforce them effectively."

The handbook "tells how drug use starts, how it progresses, and how it can be identified. Most important, it tells how it can be stopped," he said.

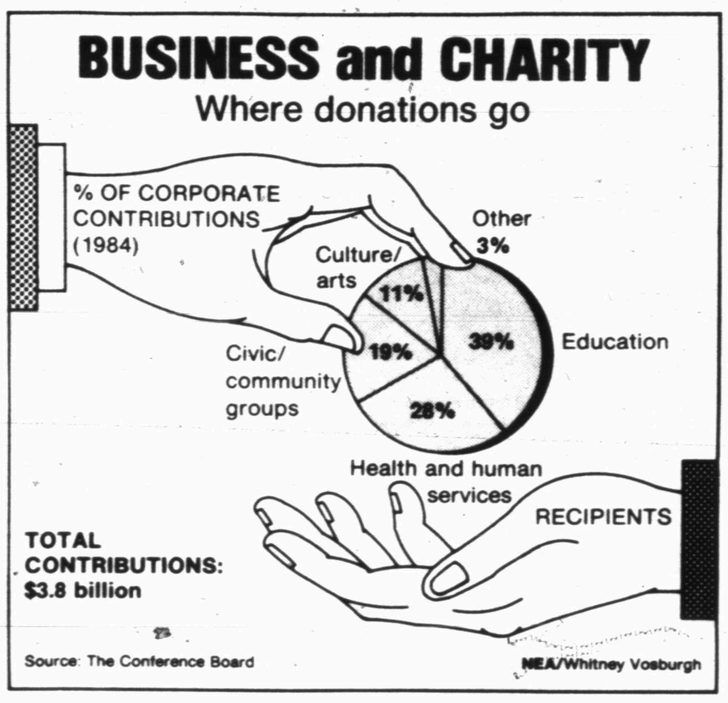
First Lady Nancy Reagan, who joined President Reagan on Sunday night in a nationally broadcast address against drugs, wrote in a foreword, "Only if our schools are free from drugs can we protect our children and insure that they can get on with the enterprise of learning."

The booklet is aimed at educators, parents and students themselves, laying out basic facts about drugs, providing a detailed explanation of educators' rights to search students for drugs and suspend or expel offenders, and listing tell-tale signs of drug use.

The latter include bloodshot eyes, conversation and jokes preoccupied with drugs, hostility about discussing drugs, possession of large amounts of money and "distinct downward turns in student's grades."

The handbook capsulizes how several schools, including Atlanta's Northside High School and Eastside High School in Paterson, N.J., have turned the corner on drugs, and it spells out a 12-point "plan for achieving schools without drugs."

In 1797, Napoleon entered Venice, which had been independent for 14 centuries.



Charitable donations by U.S. firms total about $4 billion a year. An important federal tax deduction, business contributions rose by 15 percent in 1984. Education is the leading recipient of the charity from big business.

NMJC wins conference tournament

Defending WJCAC champion New Mexico Junior College won the first conference golf tournament of the season here Saturday at Western Texas College Golf Course.

New Mexico JC shot a 425 to win by seven strokes over runnerup New Mexico Military Institute, a team which also played in last year's national tournament.

Western Texas College tied with South Plains for fifth place with a 439.

Third place went to Odessa with a 434 and fourth was Midland with a 438.

Each six-man team played 27 holes. The four low scores were tallied for each team score.

Medalist was NMMI's Derek Crawford, who shot a 67 over the first 18 and a 35 over the next nine for a total 102. Johan Anderson of NMJC was runnerup with a 104. Next was Western Texas freshman Joel Fults, who shot a 68 and a 37 for a 105 total.

Other WTC scores were not as solid, though sophomore Brent Wilson turned in a 72 on the first 18 holes. He came back with a 38 for a 110 total. Others playing for Western were sophomores Scott Sawyer, who shot a 114, Matt Smith, a 114 and Mike Harrison, a 115, and freshman Clint Adams, a 119.

"The team played well over the first 18 holes. We shot a 289 and were just six shots out going into the last nine holes," said Coach Dave Foster. "But we lost 10 shots on the last nine and that was the difference. We had a good performance out of Joel. This was his first collegiate tournament and he is a freshman so he did a real good job. On the other hand, I was disappointed in the way a couple of our sophomores played."

Western will try to climb back into the WJCAC race this Friday when the Westerners play in the second conference tournament at Levelland Country Club.

Dorsett paces Dallas in win over Detroit Lions, 31-7

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - While NFL fans have gone ga-ga over the intramural duel between Herschel Walker and Tony Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys have quietly become a pretty good football team.

The Cowboys handed the Detroit Lions a 31-7 thrashing Sunday with solid performances from a lot of people - including the celebrated running backs.

Dorsett, playing on a badly sprained left ankle, ran the ball 23 times for 117 yards and a touchdown. Walker ran only six times but still got 51 yards and a TD on the ground. He also caught five passes for 35 yards.

But there were plenty of other Cowboy heroes in this one-sided contest.

Quarterback Danny White completed 20 of 31 passes for 184 yards and a TD with two interceptions. He also ran 1 yard for a score.

On defense, Dallas linebacker Jessie Penn recovered both of James Jones' fumbles while tackle Jim Jeffcoat made the hit that caused Garry James' fumble and had two quarterback sacks.

"It surprised me a little bit to be able to do some of the things as well as we did," Dorsett said. "But, you know, we're not a bad football team. We're going to get better as the weeks go by."

The Lions contributed greatly to their own downfall by losing three of four fumbles and taking eight penalties for 70 yards.

"The team we were playing wasn't anywhere near what I saw them play last week" on film, Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "You don't expect a game like this. I'm sure the Lions thought they were ready."

The Cowboys improved to 2-0 while the Lions slipped to 1-1.

The Cowboys took advantage of two key Detroit mistakes for 17 points in the second quarter.

Dorsett swept around right end for a 5-yard touchdown one minute into the second quarter after the Cowboys had recovered a Jones fumble.

Dallas made it 14-0 with 1:01 remaining in the second quarter when White hooked up with Timmy Newsome on a 15-yard TD pass play.

"We pretty much executed the game plan," White said. "We never threw the ball deep. We were patient. We were able to maintain ball-control, which was important."

Moments later, Detroit punter Mike Black fumbled at the Lions' 9 yard line and Rafael Septien kicked a 27-yard field goal with one second remaining in the half.

"When you play that way, you can't do much about it," Landry said. "That's the way we played here last year."

Dorsett appeared to have scored on a 34-yard run with 12:41 remaining in the game, but officials ruled he was stopped inside the 1 after checking a television replay. White dived in for the score on the next play.

Walker, who was used sparingly in the contest, scored on a 7-yard run with 8:07 remaining for a 31-0 lead.

"Herschel is good," Landry said. "Herschel helps us because when Tony's not there, they still gotta worry."

Jones scored on a 1-yard dive for Detroit with 3:00 left in the game.

The Lions started with Eric Hipple at quarterback and switched to Joe Ferguson at the start of the second half, but neither could solve the tough Dallas defense.

Hipple hit 10 of 16 for 91 yards while Ferguson was 4 of 12 for 23.

Varsity Tigers notch third in Key City volleyball event

ABILENE -- Snyder's Lady Tigers placed third in the Key City Tournament here over the weekend, their final non-district activity of the regular season.

The Tigers, 12-7 now, resume District 2-4A play Tuesday in Big Spring. Snyder is 2-1 in loop action.

Snyder opened the tournament here by thrashing Aspermont 15-1, 15-4, but was shocked in the second game 4-15, 7-15 by eventual champion Breckenridge. The 'Cats then whipped Abilene High 15-9, 15-7 for third place.

"Aspermont didn't give us much of a challenge in the first game. We went in to play Breckenridge and I guess we thought we were still playing Aspermont. We didn't move. We didn't play volleyball at all. We were just there," said Snyder Coach Vicki Nelms.

But the Tigers came back strong against Abilene High.

"The girls played as well as I've seen us play this year against Abilene. Our setters, Donna Clay and Shondra Robinson, did an excellent job getting the ball to everybody. We were very aggressive at the net. We played the type volleyball I know our kids are capable of playing," noted the coach.

Melody Pickering was chosen to the all-tournament team.

"She played as well as she's played this season against Abilene High."

Snyder's contest with Big Spring is set for a 7:30 p.m. start Tuesday. A freshman match will be held at 5 p.m. and a junior varsity match at 6:30 p.m.

"The girls are glad to get this tournament out of the way and get on to district play now," said the coach. "It's kind of hard to get ready for a non-district opponent when you know you have district games right down the road."

Scoring on serves for Snyder last Saturday were the following girls.

Aspermont: Donna Clay 3, Allison Adams 5, Tammy Williamson 6, Shondra Robinson 7, Leslie Ward 2, Monica Hinojos 6, Paula Caldwell 1.

Breckenridge: Clay 4, Adams 2, Sharnette Thompson 5.

Abilene: Clay 8, Adams 7, Williamson 9, Robinson 5, Ward 1.

Young Tigers second in tournament action

Snyder junior varsity girls placed second in their volleyball tournament, held at the high school gym Saturday.

The young Tigers lost the championship match to Pecos, 9-15, 9-15. Earlier, they defeated Brownfield 15-9, 15-4 and Big Spring 5-15, 15-8, 15-7.

Abilene Cooper won consolation. Third place went to Plains.

"We played pretty good against Brownfield," said Coach Patty Grimmett. "Our first game with Big Spring we had a hard time serving. We had five miss serves. The second game we won but we still had eight miss serves. The third game we played a lot better and hit our serves.

"When we played Pecos we didn't have much offense. They scored six straight points and we had trouble returning their serves. I was proud of the girls, though. They played hard," added the coach.

Rhonda Echols served the last eight points of the second game against Big Spring. Sandra Morin served five straight in the first game.

Against Big Spring, Echols served the last 10 points of the second game. LaFon Williams helped by serving the first eight points in the third game.

Against Pecos, Sandra Powell served five points in the first game and Williams had four and Echols three in the second game.

The Cats, now 12-5, will play Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. in Big Spring for their next outing.

Snyder netters take a pair from San Angelo, Lubbock

Snyder's Tigers defeated San Angelo Lake View and Lubbock High in non-district team tennis action here Saturday.

The meet was the final non-conference action for the Tigers, who open District 2-4A play this Saturday in Andrews.

"We were happy to win this weekend but we've still got a long way to go," stressed Coach Charlie Chrane this morning. "We play Andrews and Fort Stockton this Saturday and we haven't beaten either of them in several years. We're still making too many errors. Hopefully, we'll be ready by Saturday. Both of these teams (Andrews and Fort Stockton) are two of the better teams in the district."

Snyder clipped Lubbock High 12-9 and defeated Lake View 13-4. The Chiefs were without two of their top players, sisters Manda and Janda Lopez.

Michael Risenhoover and Michael Rodriguez teamed to defeat both of their doubles opponents Saturday. Shawna Chrane and Michelle Osborn did likewise. Osborn, Chrane and Rodriguez were also singles winners in both matches.

CRMWD to meet on Thursday

Reports on various phases of operation will highlight a meeting of Colorado River Municipal Water District directors in Big Spring at 10 a.m. Thursday.

This will include progress reports on the Stacy Reservoir project. One spin-off is that directors will be asked to authorize the general manager to negotiate land mitigation claims by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in connection with Stacy.

One of the things, O. H. Ivie, general manager will have to report is a net gain of some 75,000 acres of water in Lakes J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence combined during the past forthnight.

RANDALL GRAY

Gray accepts Fresno post

Randall Gray, minister of the 37th Street Church of Christ since January of 1984, announced Sunday that he had accepted a post with the College Church of Christ in Fresno, Calif.

Gray will become the pulpit minister of the 700-member church on Oct. 1.

Prior to his association with the 400-member 37th street congregation, Gray was minister at the Hermleigh Church of Christ for three years. Prior to that, he preached for 3½ years at the Sheffield Church of Christ.

Gray is a graduate of Western Texas College, Abilene Christian University and the White's Ferry Road School of Biblical Studies.

"Snyder has been the best place I have ever lived," Gray said Monday. "Becky and I have been very happy here. The people, the community and the wonderful congregation at 37th Street all combine to make this a great 'hometown.' Fresno has a lot to live up to. We plan to make that our home, but we will always have a warm spot in our hearts for Snyder and all the people of Scurry County."

Senators seek tough measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Senators are calling for tough measures against the Soviet Union unless American journalist Nicholas Daniloff is allowed to return home, including a halt in discussions of a superpower summit, a cutoff of subsidized grain sales and expulsion of Soviet spies.

Sen. Richard Lugar, calling for "retaliatory action" against the Soviets, said Sunday the Reagan administration should refuse to discuss anything but the Daniloff case at a pre-summit planning meeting with the Soviets this week unless Moscow frees Daniloff.

Lugar, R-Ind., speaking on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," did not specify what he meant by retaliation other than refusing further discussions with Moscow about a summit.

Cubans begin arriving by plane

MIAMI (AP) — A plane carrying more than 100 Cubans, including some jailed since Fidel Castro seized power 27 years ago, arrived here today on a flight to freedom that followed two years of negotiations.

The 111 people, among them the nephew of a former president, made up one of the largest single groups of Cubans to arrive in the United States in years. Many seemed on the verge of tears as they went through the Miami International Airport terminal.

"I can say I'm in my country," said Rene Gonzalez Herrera, an elderly man in a wheelchair, after getting off the chartered plane. "I feel very happy after 28 years in prison."

Domingo Suarez Espinosa, whose 28-year imprisonment in a Havana prison ended just hours before the flight left Cuba, said it was hard to express the joy of being in the United States. He recalled sending his wife and two children away after Castro took over the island.

"I preferred never seeing them again rather than seeing them subjected to such a horrible system," he said.

Immigration officials had expected 117 people, 71 former or current prisoners, and the rest relatives, to arrive.

But one unidentifed prisoner died today in Havana and his wife elected to stay behind, said George Waldroup, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service here.

Another person was kept behind because he was of military age, two people were inadvertently listed twice and one name was an erroneous entry, he said.

The plane took off from Havana about an hour late and arrived at Miami at 7:00 a.m., said Waldroup.

"Glory to God, thanks to God," said Nry Tejera, whose 44-year-old brother, Samuel Tejera Milian, was among those listed as being on the flight.

The Cuban government kept Tejera Milian behind bars for 18 years before his release in May, she said. His wife and young son are accompanying him, she said.

The permission for the emigres to leave Cuba came after two years of negotiations among the Cuban government, the White House and the Roman Catholic church.

The Reagan administration had long refused to take more Cuban refugees because Castro has refused to take back criminals who immigrated to Miami during the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

But three weeks ago, President Reagan announced that all Cuban political prisoners jailed for more than 10 years could seek entrance to the United States.

There were 71 former or current prisoners on the release list, and some have been incarcerated for up to 27 years, U.S. officials said.

ATTEND ACS MEETING–Jan Johnson, Dr. Harold Miller and Helen Hatter, all of Snyder, attended a District 16 meeting of the American Cancer Society Thursday in Abilene. (ACS Photo)

Three locals attend Abilene ACS session

American Cancer Society volunteers from 15 counties, including Scurry County, attended the 1986 District 16 Annual Meeting of the American Cancer Society in Abilene on Thursday.

Dr. Harold Miller, Helen Hatter and Jan Johnson of Snyder represented the Scurry Unit of the ACS. The annual meeting serves as a kickoff and training for ACS volunteers preparing to inform their local communities of the ACS programs and services and to implement these programs.

Dr. Michael Schultz of Brownwood, Area VI Public Education Chairman, was the guest speaker during the opening session. He spoke about the direction the ACS is taking in areas of public education, service and rehabilitation, and reseach. Also included in his presentation was an overview of the ACS Volunteer Development Program.

"Over $181,000 was raised by volunteers in District 16 last year to support the American Cancer Society's three-fold attack on cancer through research, education and patient services," said Helen Hatter, Public Education Chairman of the Scurry Unit. Hatter is the newly elected district lay director.

The American Cancer Society is second only to the federal government's National Cancer Institute as a source of cancer research funds. And in Texas alone more than $6 is currentlv invested by the ACS in 12 major hospitals and research institutions throughout the state.

Vehicle equipment theft, motel incident investigated

A stolen radar detector and criminal mischief caused to motel furniture were two misdemeanor complaints investigated by police over the weekend.

Byrom Beasley of 2805 36th St. reported at 10:58 a.m. Saturday that someone had apparently taken a radar detector valued at $300 from his 1986 Ford pickup. The vehicle had been parked at his residence overnight Friday.

The manager of the Travel Inn Motel filed a misdemeanor criminal mischief complaint Sunday evening.

They reported finding broken furniture in Room 208 of the motel. The damage was thought done by a tenant who had left the facility prior to 10 p.m.

No value was estimated for damage to the furniture.

In other weekend action, city officers logged a total of 10 misdemeanor arrests.

Seven suspects were jailed for public intoxication and two for driving while intoxicated with one other arrested for driving on a suspended license.

Trial and error is best approach

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Last year my husband's colon was removed due to cancer, and the surgeon connected the small intestine to the rectum. What foods should he avoid? Is chocolate OK?

DEAR READER — I cannot give you a specific set of recommendations, because each case of colectomy (colon removal) is different and your husband's surgeon may wish to counsel him with specific advice. As a general rule, however, post-colectomy patients soon learn which foods they should avoid. Chocolate is usually OK, but salads, roughage and bulk foods may produce diarrhea. Ordinarily, trial and error is an appropriate approach.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been a longtime sufferer of sinus headache. One doctor suggested an operation to correct my deviated septum, but I don't really have a breathing problem. What's the connection?

DEAR READER — The maxillary sinuses consist of air-filled baffles within each cheekbone. These chambers communicate with the outside air through tiny vents that open behind the nose. Any physical condition that closes off these vents can block sinus drainage and thereby set the stage for sinus infection and headache.

If the nasal septum, a tough sheet of cartilage that divides the nose, is deviated (swung to one side or the other), it can press against the sinus opening, blocking the vent. Although you may not be aware of a breathing problem from a deviated septum, intermittent obstruction may occur. Once the deviation is surgically corrected, your sinuses may be able to vent properly; the headaches from sinus blockage may disappear.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A friend has taken painkillers, including cortisone, for 30 years for rheumatoid arthritis. About three months ago, she was hospitalized for severe hip pain and was given a massive injection of cortisone. Four hours later, she developed shingles. She has lost 25 pounds and is still in pain. What can be done for her?

DEAR READER — I am not sure whether the pain you describe is due to your friend's arthritis or to shingles, a virus infection of an area of the skin's nerves. Arthritis pain can be controlled by medicine, heat and rest. On the other hand, herpetic neuralgia (nerve pain from the shingles) can be quite difficult to treat. More cortisone may help, but I suspect that your friend will have to use pain pills and wait until the neuralgia runs its course. With time, it will.

DEAR DR. GOTT — How does a doctor test people for food sensitivities?

DEAR READER — Usually by taking a meticulous medical history in an attempt to discover which foods cause problems. Skin or blood testing are often used to confirm which substances are the culprits.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report, EPILEPSY: THE 'FALLING SICKNESS,' explains the causes, treatment and types of epilepsy. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

Overcrowding plagues jails

DALLAS (AP) — County officials say their jails are becoming more and more crowded with parole and probation violators, many of whom were released early from the state prison system to ease overcrowding there.

Of the 243 county jails in Texas, about 20 have chronic overcrowding, including several rural or suburban county jails, officials say.

The worst crowding, according to Robert O. Viterna, director of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, is in three of Texas' largest county jails — Tarrant (Fort Worth), Bexar (San Antonio) and Harris (Houston) counties. Each is building or planning to expand existing facilities.

The jails' situations are aggravated, in part, by the growing number of probations and paroles, Viterna said.

"Parole is to reduce the population at TDC, so they are placing more people out on parole and therefore there are more parole violations. And these people wind up back in the county jail," said Viterna.

Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles member Ruben Torres recently said "to me, every parole is a risk. You cannot eliminate that factor."

Texas has about 38,000 convicts in 27 state prison units and 20,000 inmates in 243 county jails. In the state system, their numbers are kept under control by a revolving door balancing releases and admissions, closely watched by a federal judge.

On the county level, voters usually approve bond issues to expand or build new jails.

Nearly all Texas prison inmates are sent to the Huntsville-based Corrections Department by Texas' 254 counties, only 11 of which do not have jails. The few inmates who don't originate in county jails are parole violators or transferees from other states.

Crowding in Texas prisons is under review by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who three years ago set up population limits for the state prison system.

The prison system is trying to increase capacity with the addition of 300 temporary beds for minimum-security inmates at Fort Wolters Army Post in Mineral Wells. But inmates opposed the plan in a court document filed Friday and Justice temporarily blocked the plan and set a court hearing for Monday.

Stuntwoman looks for new challenges

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — One day in February last year, Jamie Bunch spent all night falling down in front of an oncoming car.

That same month Ms. Bunch dove off a cliff.

Now she wants to be set afire.

Ms. Bunch, a 35-year-old stuntwoman who has also tumbled off a building and has been rescued from a flood by a helicopter, believes becoming a human torch for a movie plot seems like a logical progression.

"Not a full burn," she says. "Maybe just an arm or a leg."

One night last week she watched her boyfriend and fellow stuntperson Russell Towery in flames for a film called "Robocop," which is being shot in downtown Dallas.

"I've always been interested in sports," she said.

She said she's been doing stunts about two years, and became interested in the offbeat occupation through Towery and Randy Fife, owner of Action Coordinators, a Dallas company that supplies stuntpeople and special effects experts for films in the Southwest.

One day in February last year, Towery asked Ms. Bunch if she'd like to do some stunts for the television movie "Peyton Place: The Next Generation."

In a 10-second segment that took 14 hours to film, Ms. Bunch threw herself in front of an oncoming car.

"At the last second they throw a dummy out there, and the car runs over that," she said.

She took the dive off a cliff for the same film, landing on an air bag specifically designed for stunts.

Chemical Pump Service Serves Many Oil Patch Needs

Chemical Pump Service, owned locally by Tom Machen, serves the needs of the oil patch, by carrying a full line of Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors. The 4100 Series Texsteam Injectors are positive displacement, plunger-type pumps which are gear driven and utilize electric motors, V-belts or other rotating drives as the power source. The unit's gear drive is housed in a precision-bored, heavy cast iron case with anti-friction bearings on the high speed shaft. The output gear, made of high strength alloy iron, is supported in a special bearing arrangement assuring extremely long life with maximum rigidity.

The entire worm-gear drive mechanism runs in a lubricant bath for longer operating life, even under the most adverse operating conditions.

The Texsteam 4100 Series can by used for chemical injection and for handling corrosive fluids.

Because these units can be equipped with from one to eight heads, a wide range of additives may be accurately handled from one installation. This versatile pump has found wide acceptance for use in refineries, LACT units, salt water floods, tank batteries, process plants and in water treatment for boilers

The Texsteam 4100 Series Injectors are easy to install. No expensive foundation or piping is required. These pumps will give you many years of economical and trouble-free service.

In addition to Texsteam Electric Drive Injectors, they also carry Western, Calgon and Percision Pumps and Bendix, Wico, Fairbanks Morse and American Bosch Magnetos.

Also ask about Magneto sells and repair as well as Poulan and Shindaiwa chain saws and all types of chain saw sharpening.

Army hospital has to hire some civilian doctors

KILLEEN, Texas (AP) — More than 2,600 deliveries last year and long waiting lists in the obstetrics and gynecology department of a Fort Hood hospital have forced officials to hire civilian physicians to ease the workload, officials said.

The number of deliveries at Darnall Army Community Hospital was second only to Tripler Army Medical Center in Hawaii for military hospitals last year.

More than 1,000 patients are on waiting lists for gynecology, and more than 3,000 women are on the waiting list for pap smears, said Dr. Paul N. Smith, chief of Darnall's obstetrics-gynecology department.

Smith said the waiting lists are due to inadequate staff.

A hospital official told the Killeen Daily Herald that about 60 percent of Darnall patients are seen in either a women's or children's clinic.

The hospital hired six family practice physicians from Waco for the "Joint Health Benefits Delivery Program" to help with the overload.

Doctors' schedules were arranged to make sure that each day two of the physicians are in the Women's Health Clinic to see patients with uncomplicated pregnancies.

No military medical facility has more obstetricians-gynecologists than Darnall, which is now at its peak with 10, said Smith.

The hospital also has four nurse midwives who deliver babies and see patients throughout their prenatal care. The Waco doctors have been practicing at Darnall for about three weeks and see about 100 patients each day at their peak.

They only treat dependents of active duty military on an outpatient basis.

"As long as the program continues to be as productive as it has been so far, we plan on continuing it forever," Smith said.

Officials said the hospital once handled about 230 deliveries each month. In 1985, 924 women were given non-availability statements to deliver their babies at another hospital of their choice, because Darnall was overcrowded.

The African nations of Tanganyika and Zanzibar announced in 1964 that they had joined together to form Tanzania.
