Worst Still To Come In Polar Blast

By The Associated Press

An Arctic blast slammed snow, sleet and freezing rain across most of Texas Thursday. It was the state's worst weather this winter.

Glazed highways and slippery streets jammed transportation. Some schools were closed.

The U. S. Weather Bureau warned the worst was still to come. No let up in the bitter cold was seen before the week end.

Texas took the full brunt of a mass of polar air skidding southward from Canada. By mid-morning Thursday the frigid norther had pushed sleet and freezing drizzle past Austin and San Antonio. The front was due to sweep into the Gulf around noon with a threat of freezing weather for the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Dalhart and Borger had lows of 4 above zero early Thursday for the statewide minimum.

As the front advanced it left behind a mixture of snow, sleet and freezing rain. Abilene reported 2 inches and an inch had fallen at daybreak in Amarillo, Mineral Wells, Fort Worth, Denton, and Wichita Falls. Lesser amounts fell in Dallas, San Angelo, Lubbock, Paris, San Antonio, Austin, Sherman, Kilgore, Corsicana and other points.

The forecasts called for continued snow, sleet or icy drizzle over all the state except in the coastal region. Temperatures early Friday were expected to range from around 8 above in the Panhandle to 28-38 in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Other minimums at 6:30 a.m. Thursday included Brownsville 70, Lubbock 11, Wichita Falls 13, Abilene 14, Mineral Wells 16, Midland-Odessa 18, San Angelo and Fort Worth 19, Dallas 20, Junction 22, Austin 25, Marfa 26, San Antonio 31, Texarkana 32, Lufkin 33, Presidio 38, El Paso 35, Corpus Christi 44, Houston 45, Beaumont 51, Denton 19, Sherman 18, Paris 14, and Corsicana 22.

Snow and sleet slowed the heavy morning traffic in the Fort Worth-Dallas area as thousands of workers tried to get to their jobs. Buses and cars skidded and stalled on slippery hills and iced over underpasses. In Fort Worth signal lights were off in the downtown section and trains ran half an hour behind schedule. Some Fort Worth schools were closed and officials said students absent from the other schools would not be penalized for staying home.

More than an inch of snow covered roads in the Borger area. Highway officials called the routes passable—but dangerous.

San Angelo had almost half an inch of sleet and snow before daylight and roads iced over in all directions from the city. Highway patrolmen warned motorists to stay home. All county schools were closed.

Sleet, light hail, snow and some freezing drizzle left about 2 inches of frozen slush on the ground at Abilene. Roads were extremely dangerous with numerous minor wrecks reported. Rural schools in the area were closed. T. S. Lankford Co., clothing manufacturer, closed his two Abilene plants because of the weather.

A total of .46 inch of sleet at Sherman early Thursday closed all schools in the county. Most will remain shut until Monday. Highways were reported almost impassable, and farm to market roads were closed. Perrin Air Force Base advised civilian and military personnel not to attempt to return to the base.

Eastland reported more than 2 inches of sleet and ice on the ground Thursday morning with some drifts up to 6 inches deep. Officers warned that all roads were dangerous. Eastland had an early morning temperature of 14.

The low of 13 degrees in Wichita Falls was the lowest since Jan. 17 last year. All roads were open but covered with an inch of snow and sleet and driving was hazardous.

Traffic slowed to a crawl on highways between Denton and Dallas after almost an inch of snow. More sleet continued to fall Thursday morning. Farmers said the sleet cover would be good insulation for small winter grains in case the temperature drops to 12 as predicted in the Denton area for early Friday.

Kilgore reported sleet falling Thursday morning. It followed several hours of freezing rain.

Sleet covered the Paris area and more was falling Thursday morning. Roads were open but slick.

Sleet and snow made travel dangerous in the Corsicana area. The Wednesday high temperature of 78 was followed by a minimum of 22 early Thursday.

Temperatures dropped from 80 Wednesday afternoon in San Antonio to 30 Thursday morning. Some freezing rain fell. A low of 20 was expected Friday morning.

Mixed rain and sleet fell in Austin Thursday morning, most of it melting as it fell despite 25 degree temperatures.

Houston expected freezing temperatures by noon Thursday with a low of 27 early Friday. Forecasters said there was a chance of snow but "it's not likely."

Small craft warnings were posted on the coast notifying boat operators they could expect a shift from southerly winds to northerly gusts of about 35 miles an hour.

17-Degree Low Felt In City; 15 Seen Tonight

Big Spring and surrounding area got a taste of winter Thursday with 17 degree temperature and a thin crust of sleet.

Conditions were in sharp contrast to a spring-like 68 degrees at noon Wednesday when the norther moved in. Temperatures tumbled about 25 degrees in three hours and then kept easing to the morning's low.

The U. S. Experiment Farm had the 17-degree reading as did Bruce Frazier at Howard County Junior College. Each had recorded 68 as a high on Wednesday. The Experiment Farm gauge showed .05 inch of moisture from the balled sleet, some of it measuring up to an eighth of an inch in diameter. Frazier measured .02 of an inch.

Traffic crawled cautiously on city streets and highways. At junior high school one youngster broke out with an honest-to-goodness sled.

By noon, however the thin layer was thawing.

At Colorado City, the amount of moisture from an inch of snow and sleet was measured at .34 of an inch. Minimum temperature was 10 degrees and streets and highways were icy.

Low temperatures were expected to continue in the area through Friday. The mercury was not due to climb out of the low 30's today, and a low of 15 degrees is forecast here for tonight. Predicted high for Friday is 36 degrees.

Dulles Leaves For Berlin To Attend Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles leaves for Berlin today to attend a Big Four foreign ministers conference which he concedes may wind up in a sharp East-West propaganda battle.

Dulles was described by associates as nursing only scant hope Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov will make any important concessions when he tackles the long-deadlocked German and Austrian problems with American, British and French foreign policy chiefs.

The meeting is set to open Monday in the American sector of divided Berlin. Arrangements are for a three-week session.

Accompanied by eight aides, Dulles was assigned President Eisenhower's plane, the Columbine, for the 13-hour nonstop flight.

Dulles said Tuesday the meeting will be a waste of time if Russian representatives pursue past tactics of trying to divide the West by playing off France against Germany.

He also appealed for Molotov to show up in a "constructive mood" to pave the way for successful negotiations to unite Eastern and Western Germany into a single nation and complete Austria's independence settlement.

24 Marines Die In Inchon Harbor When Boat Flips

INCHON, Korea (AP)—Twenty-four U. S. Marines drowned today when a troopship loaded with Chinese war prisoners rammed and overturned their small landing craft.

It was the third costliest naval disaster of the Korean theater.

The Navy said 28 men were rescued from the chill waters of Inchon harbor minutes after the collision between a big Formosa-bound LST (landing ship, tank) and an LCM (landing craft, medium).

The men, brought here from the 3rd Marine Division in Japan as guards for the Chinese, were combat-loaded with heavy boots, packs, helmets, rifles and winter uniforms.

They sank quickly in the icy, choppy waters of Inchon's outer harbor after the big LST rammed their smaller LCM, rolled it on its side, and hurled overboard the 48 Marines aboard and the boat's crew of four.

Rescue boats reaching the scene moments later rescued 24 struggling Marines and the crew of two American soldiers and two Koreans.

By dusk, only five bodies had been recovered and the search for 19 other missing Marines was called off.

The accident occurred when the LCM crossed the bow of the big LST, loaded with 1,000 Chinese prisoners returned to the U. N. Command by Indian custodian troops yesterday. The LST was reported manned by a Japanese crew.

Toll of the naval tragedy was surpassed in the Korean theater only by the 30 dead in a turret explosion aboard the cruiser St. Paul April 21, 1952, and by the loss of 26 men when the minesweeper Walke struck a mine off Wonsan harbor June 12, 1951.

The Marine helmsman of the LCM told Associated Press Correspondent Robert Eunson he was trying to bring his craft alongside the LST so the Marine guard detachment could board.

He is Pfc. John D. Gates Jr. of Pensacola, Fla.

The Navy ordered an immediate inquiry.

House Approves Air West Point

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today voted 328-36 for establishment of an Air Force Academy.

The roll call tally sent on to the Senate a measure authorizing appropriation of 26 million dollars for the air "West Point."

Before the final vote, the House beat down an attempt to send the measure back to committee. A 131-25 standing vote defeated it.

The bill, backed by President Eisenhower, was the first major legislation considered by the House in the present session.

The House approved, 39-18, an initial authorization of 25 million dollars to start work on a permanent academy and a maximum of one million to set up a temporary school at an existing air installation. The 26 million will have to be appropriated later.

The Baldwins' baby girl, Mary Ellen Baldwin, suffered internal injuries. The family was en route to California to make its home.

Stockman was the sole occupant of the car which collided with the Baldwin vehicle.

Tax Trial Starts For Ex-Tarrant Official

DALLAS (AP) —A. L. Wardlaw, former Tarrant County assistant district attorney, went on trial a second time here yesterday on income tax evasion charges.

The government accuses Wardlaw of trying to evade taxes totaling $3,025 in fraudulent returns for 1948 and 1949.

He received a three-year sentence in May, 1952. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans reversed the conviction last spring and ordered a new trial.

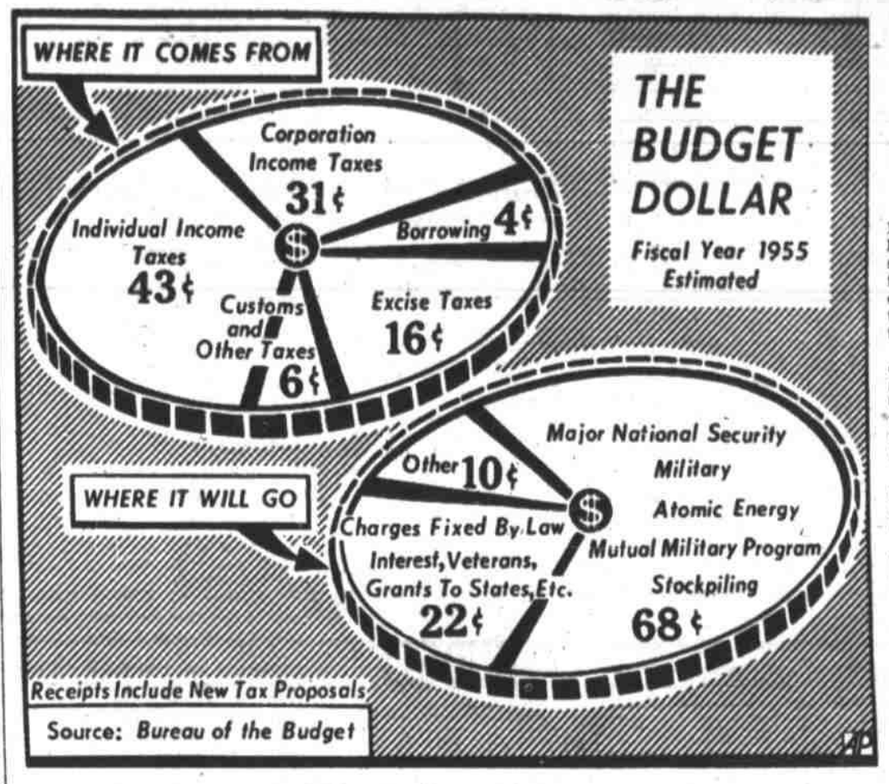
Administration's Budget Calls For Spending Cuts



The Budget Dollar

This chart shows where the money for the budget dollar comes from and where it will go in the 65½ billion dollar budget President Eisenhower placed before Congress today. (AP Wirephoto).

Deficit Forecast Despite Slashes

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower laid a 65½-billion-dollar budget before Congress today, slashing 5¼ billion dollars from total spending but proposing record outlays for atomic energy, continental defense and overseas military aid.

Despite a 7½ per cent cut under estimated spending this year — also lowered — Eisenhower told Congress the government will wind up the 1955 fiscal year nearly three billion dollars in the red. Fiscal 1955 starts July 1.

Although he proposed a broad program of tax law changes he told Congress no further general tax cuts are justified at present.

His message said the budget was based on a "new concept" of security planning which places reliance on "the full exploitation of modern air power" and on "new weapons" to justify manpower and dollar defense cuts.

He proposed spending $2,425,000,000 next year for atomic energy. This increase of 225 millions over this year would bring atomic spending to "the highest point in our history," he said. He also said that since most atomic energy plant construction is complete, spending now would concentrate on "operations."

He set no figure for continental defense, but said outlays would be "greater than ever before in our history" to provide early warning and reaction to attack.

Military aid would rise by 75 million dollars, he said, to a new peak of $4,275,000,000 for round-the-world assistance to friendly nations.

The President told Congress "there will be no way of operating within the present debt limit" of 275 billion dollars in the last six months of this year. Therefore, he said, he was renewing his request, stymied in the Senate last summer, for a higher ceiling.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told newsmen the administration would again ask for 290 billion dollars borrowing authority, a boost of 15 billions.

Both Humphrey and Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge, who met

(See military budget story on page 10, this section)

newsmen separately in briefing sessions, refused to forecast when the budget might be balanced. Both said efforts to bring outgo down to the level of income would not be relaxed.

This budget was the first one prepared by a national Republican administration in 21 years. All the recommendations, of course are subject to approval by Congress.

There is considerable election-year sentiment there to reduce taxes further, a step which would swell the deficit unless corresponding cuts were made in spending.

He said his tax program would result in about 600 million dollars tax relief each for individuals and for businesses, in addition to the changes that took effect Jan. 1: a 10 per cent cut in personal tax rates and abolition of the excess profits tax on corporations.

In the message of about 40,000 words, Eisenhower also:

1. Recommended a 25-point tax revision program, calling upon Congress to : shift the annual personal income tax deadline from March 15 to April 15; liberalize deductions for family medical costs; allow limited deductions for child care; give farmers a deduction for soil conservation; extend corporation income and excise tax rates rather than permit them to decline April 1 to pre-Korea levels' and enact a series of revisions aimed at lightening and adjusting the tax load on business.

2. Renewed his plea, stymied in the Senate after the House okayed it last year, for a higher legal limit on the national debt. While he used no figure today, his previous request for for a boost from the present 275 billion dollars to 290 billions. The debt is now about 274½ billions.

3. Revised downward budget estimates for the current fiscal year which ends next June 30. Here is the comparison between Eisenhower's estimates for the current year made last August and now, the

President Asks Modest Tax Cut In Revision Plan

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today urged upon Congress a big tax revision project that would reduce revenue about $1,215,000,000 next year—and then drew a line against further cuts now.

The revision program, he said in his budget message, would rewrite a tax structure he termed "haphazard," easing burdens for millions of persons and promoting business expansion to push America "to ever higher standards of living."

But Eisenhower said this program and the five billion dollars in annual tax cuts which took effect Jan. 1 are all the reductions "our national security and well-being will permit" right now.

He thus raised a barrier against growing talk by some Congress members in this election year for (1) a further general cut in individual income taxes and (2) a lowering of all excise or sales taxes which are above 10 per cent to that level.

The President reiterated his request, first made last May and renewed in his State of the Union message, for extension of present rates of excise and corporation income taxes. They are due to drop April 1 to their pre-Korea levels, three billion dollars under present levels.

The revision program would reduce taxes an estimated two billion dollars annually when it reaches full effect in later years.

It included one big surprise — changing the annual deadline for some 60 million individuals to file income tax returns from March 15 to April 15. A Treasury spokesman said there was no thought of making the change effective this year.

The President also called for bigger tax deductions for medical expenses, a new deduction for child-care expenses of working widows and widows, a new allowance for dependents who make more than $600, sharp cuts in taxes on income from dividends, and a tax break for single heads of households.

Agriculture Budget Calls For Slash Of 10 Per Cent

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower outlined a farm budget today proposing a 10 per cent reduction in funds for regular activities of the Agriculture Department, but forecasting a loss of nearly half a billion dollars in supporting prices of farm crops during the coming fiscal year.

In his budget report to Congress, the Chief Executive called for a total appropriation of $1,182,284,000 for rural electrification and farm loans, research, conservation, educational, marketing, school lunch and crop control activities during the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This was a reduction of $133,553,000 from funds appropriated for these same activities this year.

But the President predicted that the Community Credit Corp. (CCC) —agency which finances price support programs—will lose $487,304,000 when it disposes of surplus crops at less than they cost the agency. Present record farm surplus stocks in the hands of the government total about 5½ billion dollars, and farm officials have predicted they may climb to 7½ billion a year from now.

Most of the proposed savings in regular activities—those apart from the handling of surpluses—were said to be possible as a result of a recent reorganization of the department involving some reduction in personnel, and recommendations that smaller amounts be provided for loans for rural electrification power projects and farm housing, and for grants for the school lunch program.

The projected price support losses for the new year compare with estimated losses of $326,323,000 for the current year and $61,146,000 for fiscal 1953.

The anticipated price support losses included $279,432,000 for dairy products, 49 million for corn, $4,796,000 for peanuts, 54 million for wheat, $1,124,000 for tobacco, $3,000 for honey, $206,500 for tung oil, and $2,245,000 for wool.

Eisenhower, saying farm price support activities have been dominating agriculture expenditures, remarked that "a thorough reconsideration by the Congress of the provisions of existing price support laws is needed not only in the interest of farmers, but also in the national interest."

The President has recommended that farm price supports be placed on a flexible basis beginning with the 1955 crops, rather than continued on the present high rigid levels for basic crops.

In addition to the proposed appropriations for regular department activities, the President asked Congress to vote to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corp. for $775,000,000 past price support losses and for two other programs financed by it.

The past support losses were 642 million dollars. The two other programs cost 131 million for subsidies on wheat exported at cut-rate prices under an international wheat agreement, and $2,086,000 on joint U.S.-Mexican efforts to eradicate the foot and mouth disease in Mexico.

Eisenhower recommended $68,800,000 for research, an increase of $9,900,000 over this year; $43,600,000 for education, an increase of $8,300,000; $71,900,000 for the Forest Service, a reduction of $2,200,000; $54,900,000 for the Soil Conservation Service, a reduction of $3,900,000; 195 million dollars for the Agricultural Conservation Practices Payment program, a reduction of 17 million; 68 million for school lunches, a reduction of 15 million; 4½ million for crop control programs, a reduction of $1,800,000; 59 million for payments to sugar producers, unchanged; 145 million for farmers home administration loans, a reduction of 20 million; 55 million for Rural Electrification Administration power loans, a reduction of 80 million; 75 million for Rural Electrification Administration telephone loans, an increase of 7½ million.

The proposed budget carried an item of 180 million for disposal of farm surpluses—to the school lunch program, relief agencies and diversion into byproduct uses and into export markets—compared with $169,954,000 this year.

The President's message also carried a proposal—disclosed earlier in the week by Secretary of Agriculture Benson—that a billion dollars worth of farm surpluses be set aside for use in foreign aid programs during the next three fiscal years.

Daniel Opposes N. M. Water Diversion Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Price Daniel (D-Tex) yesterday asked a House Reclamation subcommittee not to include the proposed San Juan-Chama water diversion unit in New Mexico as a part of the Upper Colorado River development project.

Death Threat Rumors Circulate In Strife-Ridden South Texas

By WILBUR MARTIN

ALICE (AP) — Reports of death threats circulated in this strife-ridden South Texas area today while the Jim Wells county grand jury considered a gun-carrying charge against George Parr.

The jury recessed yesterday afternoon until 10 a.m. today after talking to Sheriff Halsey Wright, Deputy Bob Miller, County Atty. Sam Burris, Manuel Marroquin, Raphael Burniaz, and Manuel Carrales.

Marroquin, a leader of the Parr-hating Freedom Party, told the jury yesterday that the long-time, dominant political leader in the 70th Judicial District threatened to kill him Monday night.

Parr has said he didn't even have a gun, as Marroquin charged in a complaint, and did not threaten anybody. What Marroquin took for a pistol Parr said, was actually binoculars.

Parr said Texas Ranger Captain Alfred Allee "intended to kill me" when Parr stepped between Allee and Archer Parr, the politician's nephew and Duval County sheriff. This happened Monday in a corridor of the Jim Wells County courthouse.

Marroquin reported yesterday that a district court interpreter, Incarnacio N. Pena, told him:

"Don't come to my barber shop in San Diego because I don't want to see you killed in my place of business."

Pena said, "I just asked him to go some place else to get his barber work done. He is the red light now. x x x I'm a member of the Old Party (Parr's) and he's a member of the New Party. x x You know how it is. I don't want no trouble."

Parr is free on a $1,500 bond following Marroquin's complaint charging illegal display of a firearm. Also free on bond is Juan Barrera, Parr's companion Monday night when Marroquin drove up to Parr's parked car near Marroquin's drive-in where a meeting of Freedom Party members was in progress.

Parr said he and Barrera went to the spot in an effort to see who was at the Freedom Party meeting.

While he was parked there, Parr related, Marroquin and two other men passed by, made a U-turn, and came back to a spot near where the Parr car was parked.

Marroquin said Parr "told me he was going to kill me and the 'whole bunch of so-and-so's in there at the meeting.' "

Parr's version was that he got out of his car when Marroquin approached and said, "What the hell do you want? Get away."

"I didn't have a pistol and I didn't threaten anyone," Parr said.

Tax Exemption Hike Nixed By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today voted down a proposal by Democrats to reduce individual income taxes by 2½ billion dollars annually through increasing personal exemptions by $100.

All 15 Republicans on the committee opposed the proposal; all 10 Democrats voted for it.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) insisted the committee had previously agreed unanimously the question of increasing individual income tax exemptions would not be taken up until the committee had completed its work on a general revision of the tax laws.

Indictments Sought In Kidnaping Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Indictments under California's "Little Lindbergh Law" will be sought Monday against the two men accused of kidnaping Leonard Moskovitz, 36, a real estate broker.

Police seized Jackson and Lear early Tuesday and rescued Moskovitz unharmed from a rented house where he had been held captive 3½ days. Not one cent of the $300,000 ransom demanded was paid.

Hereford Calves Go For $135 Average

COLORADO CITY — Twenty-two head of purebred Hereford calves, ranging in age from eight to 14 months, went through the ring of the fifth annual Mitchell County Hereford Breeders Association sale here Wednesday for an average of $135, returning consignors a total of $2,966.

Bidding was slow to start, with a few of the calves going for less than $100.

The top selling animal, an 11-months-old grandson of the famous WHR Proud Mixer 21st, was consigned by Leslie Hamilton of Colorado City and went to Dee Bassham of Colorado City for $206. E. L. Brown of Colorado City sold a 10-months-old granddaughter of the same bull to A. N. Counts of Robert Lee at $166.

The consignors made the following sales:

Thompson Ranch, heifer at $123; P. K. Mackey, two heifers at $134 and $156; Mackey, two bulls at $134 and $156; O. R. Carpenter, four heifers at $142, $107, $93 and $106; Dr. Bruce Johnson, three heifers at $95, $76 and $78; C. C. Thompson, heifer at $125 and bull at $122; Spade Ranch, bull at $121 and heifer at $120; E. L. Brown, two heifers at $166 and $176; Leslie Hamilton, two bulls at $162 and $206; R. D. Buchanan, bull at $165, and Gus Chesney, heifer at $135.

The cattle were all in good range condition, and according to Don Tarver, fieldman for the Texas Hereford Association they sold for about one-half what similar cattle brought at a recent Lovington, N. M., sale.

"And out there," Tarver interrupted yesterday's sale to tell the buyers, "it is so dry they say their drinking water is only 67 per cent moisture."

Buyers included O. A Ruffin, Howard Rogers, Dee Bassham, Sam Thompson, Frank Jones, Gus Chesney, Leslie Hamilton, and J. C. Barkley, all of Colorado City; C. E. Mathers of Silver; A. N. Counts of Robert Lee; August Hackfeldt of Loraine; Burton Hines of Westbrook; A. A. Tate of Lubbock; Jim W. Brown of Cuthbert, and Wayne Beck of Snyder.

This annual livestock event was established in 1949 by Chesney, a Colorado City banker and rancher, who was able to offer only cattle from his own herd that year. The association now has about 20 members, with half of them consigning to the 1954 sale.

Chesney is president of the association. Other officers are R. D. Buchanan, vice president, and County Agent Jack Burkhalter, secretary-treasurer.

Frank Grandstaff's Wife Files Suit For Divorce

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP)—The schoolday sweetheart who married convict-composer Frank M. Grandstaff 30 years later filed suit for divorce yesterday.

Mrs. Mildred McConkey Grandstaff based her suit on the ground that her husband had been convicted of an infamous crime. He is serving concurrent sentences of 1 to 3 years at the Wisconsin State Prison on charges of burglary and attempted burglary.

Grandstaff, serving a life sentence in the Tennessee State Prison as an habitual criminal, gained fame in 1950 as the composer of the Big Spring Cantata, written for the centennial celebration at Big Spring, Tex. He was flown to that city under guard to conduct the rendition of his work.

He was pardoned Dec. 25, 1950, and came to Fort Wayne to locate the sweetheart of his childhood at Decatur, Ind. They were married Jan. 7, 1951.

Grandstaff was sentenced at Milwaukee in August 1952. Authorities have said that after his release he will have to return to Tennessee to resume serving the life sentence.

News that Mrs. Mildred McConkey Grandstaff had filed suit for divorce from her prisoner-composer husband evoked no great surprise from Shine Philips, whose book inspired Grandstaff's cantata in the first place.

Philips, who corresponds with both, said that Mrs. Grandstaff had written previously asking advice.

"I told her that it was none of my affair," he said, "that she was a grown woman and would have to make up her own mind."

In the last letter to Philips, Grandstaff said that he was to meet the Wisconsin parole board sometime this month.

He was planning to return to Fort Wayne, he said, and after a time go somewhere for a "new start." South America was in his mind.

"Well, he can go there now at half the expense," said Philips. "Apparently he won't have a wife to accompany him."

Regarding speculation that Grandstaff would have to return to the Tennessee prison to resume his life sentence, Philips had definite ideas:

"Tennessee doesn't want him. Frank said in one of his letters that if he did get out of prison in Wisconsin he would have to clear with Illinois and Indiana authorities, so Tennessee is third on the totem pole. Anyhow they wouldn't have him down there and I don't think they are eager to take on a star boarder again."

Grandstaff was in the Tennessee prison when he read Phillips colorful book, "Big Spring, Casual Biography of a Prairie Town." The prisoner had remembered Big Spring from his piano-selling days. Chunked in solitary, as was not uncommon with him, he began tapping out time for a cantata. Later, almost apologetically, he sent it to Philips, with whom he was now in regular correspondence.

Philips had a number of musicians audition it and they thought it had merit. The T&P Male Chorus took it on as a project and presented a premiere of the music here in 1948. The composer was still languishing in his cell, but in October 1949, when Big Spring was celebrating its centennial, local people prevailed upon Gov. Gordon Browning of Tennessee to furlough Grandstaff for a week to hear his music. Tears streamed down his cheeks as he stood in the wings and heard the chorus sing and heard the applause of the audience. He played other of his compositions on a centennial program for three evenings, and then he was flown back to Nashville.

After one abortive effort, he did succeed in obtaining a pardon. Then he married; played concerts and made lectures; then he grew restless, wandered, and got back in prison.

Local 'Y' Group Installs At Midland

Forty-three young people from the Big Spring YMCA installed a new Hi-Y chapter at Midland on Wednesday evening.

Robert Angel, president of the Big Spring Hi-Y, presided temporarily and introduced Ann Gray, Tri-Hi-Y president, who directed a model meeting of the girls club. Midland is considering organizing a girl's club, too. Later, Robert and other members here gave the new officers at Midland instructions.

The delegation from here, making the trip in a bus and one car, was entertained at a banquet in the Midland High School cafeteria.

BUDGET

August figure first in each instances:

Income	$68,305,000,000
	$67,628,000,000
Outgo	72,116,000,000
	70,902,000,000
Deficit	3,811,000,000
	3,274,000,000
Year-end debt	271,100,000,000
	269,750,000,000.

Eisenhower thus trimmed nearly 1¼ billion dollars from his previous spending prediction for this year, and, despite a drop of 677 million dollars in expected revenue came up with a fiscal 1954 deficit 537 million dollars lower than he estimated six months ago.

His new fiscal 1954 estimates showed income about one billion dollars less than former President Truman estimated in his budget message to Congress a year ago. Spending was estimated about 7¾ billions less than Truman forecast, the new deficit figure was over 6½ billions less than Truman's and the debt predicted for next June 30 was four billion dollars under Truman's figure.

Eisenhower whacked appropriations requests as well as spending estimates, and commented that asking for less authority to spend was the highroad to reduced spending.

He requested new appropriations of 56¼ billion dollars for the new fiscal year. That was about 4½ billions less than new money requests in his revised fiscal 1954 budget, 15½ billions less than Truman asked for fiscal 1954, 24 billions less than in fiscal 1953, and 35 billions less than the Korean War appropriations peak of 91½ billion dollars in fiscal 1952.

The new budget, Eisenhower said, "marks the beginning of a movement to shift to state and local governments and to private enterprise federal activities which can be more appropriately and more efficiently carried on in that way."

He said the budget is based on assumptions that business conditions in general, personal income and corporation profits would continue "at substantially the present high levels."

Previous-year figures for receipts and expenditures were each about 65 million dollars, lower than figures heretofore used, due to a bookkeeping change. Receipts and expenditures for the railroad retirement trust were eliminated from the receipt and expenditure totals. Since they are trust collections and expenditures, Eisenhower said, they should be kept apart from the government's own income and spending. This is the practice with social security money.

Eisenhower predicted that agricultural price supports would cost $1,104,763,000 in fiscal 1955, some $47,026,000 less than estimated for this year, because, he said, his agricultural program would halt excess production.

He proposed that foreign economic aid costs be cut next year to $1,028,000,000, compared with $1,555,000,000 this year, and that the aid be concentrated in the Orient, Africa and Latin America.

Defense housing spending was cut from 31 million this year to one million. Civil defense spending was cut from 74 million to 68 million. The President called for 48 million for slum clearance and relocation of slum dwellers, compared with 38 million this year.

He proposed to spend 366 million for flood control and multiple-purpose dams next year, compared with 416 million this year, but hiked TVA's budget to 212 million from this year's 195 million.

More Furniture Is Bought By County

County commissioners authorized purchase of $6,000 worth of additional furniture for the new courthouse this morning.

Principal items ordered were document cases for the district clerk's office and roller shelves for the county clerk's department. Miscellaneous items were authorized for virtually all other county offics.

The order was placed with Wilhite Furniture Company, which equipped the new building. Commissioners also authorized payment of the balance due on the original contract with Wilhite. Final payment on the old contract amounted to $10,891.55.

Total bill for the additional furnishings and equipment will be $6,079. Delivery date was not specified.

Petition For School Bond Vote Circulated

Petition for a half-million-dollar school bond issue was circulated at the Rotary Club meeting Tuesday.

Supt. W. C. Blankenship of Big Spring schools said he had been asked to submit the petition. Picking up several signatures, the petition asked that the bonds be issued to provide for construction of additional schools and other improvements.

Circulation of petitions started last week after school board members proposed construction of new buildings for Airport and Lakeview schools, a six-room addition at Washington Place and a four-room expansion program for North Ward.

Program at the Rotary luncheon consisted of music by a group of high school students under direction of Harry Plumbley. Martha Winans presented a piano selection. The "Fence Post Four" presented a barbershop quartet number and Mary Walker and Beverly Young sang "hillbilly" songs. The duet was accompanied by Guitarist Plumbley.

Beat Wife, Upset Dog

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Dogs are more down-to-earth than humans. But that's about the only difference, a California veterinarian says.

Dr. R. A. Stocking of Los Angeles is attending the convention of the Intermountain Veterinary Medical Assn. here. He thinks that hound of yours may have the same troubles, emotions and thoughts you do.

Your dog may dream, have ulcers, be intelligent or dull-witted. He may become nervous and upset if he sees you beating your wife. Which may be why Dr. Stocking says he believes the world would be better if there were more dogs and fewer humans.

If you want your dog to be normal, give him a normal home life, the Los Angeles veterinarin says. Dogs are just as much affected by their surroundings, he reports, as humans.

Santa Fe Officer Indicates Union Shop Opposition

AMARILLO (AP)—Santa Fe Railroad President Fred G. Gurley, who says he would sign a union shop agreement only "under rather dire circumstances," was to testify again here today.

Gurley was the standout witness here yesterday in the injunction hearing by which employes of the Santa Fe seek to bar the Santa Fe and 16 non-operating unions from signing such an agreement.

The railroad is not contesting the injunction and has filed a cross action upholding the employes concerned.

The court action is to determine whether a temporary injunction barring the union shop agreement should be made permanent.

Quoting what he called union estimates, Gurley said about 10,000 Santa fe employes in the non-operating crafts are not members of any labor organization.

He said since the union had started efforts to obtain a union shop contract that he had received some 1,200 employe protests against such a contract. He had a half dozen notices in favor of it, he added.

Dejected Sapet Plans To Take Case To Highest Possible Court

BROWNWOOD (AP) — A dejected Mario (El Turko) Sapet, his 99-year prison sentence upheld by the Court of Criminal Appeals says he will take his case "to the highest court possible."

Sapet, San Antonio tavern keeper, was convicted as an accomplice in the 1952 slaying of Jacob S. Floyd Jr., son of a prominent Alice attorney opposed to the George Parr political regime in South Texas.

"I will fight this as long as I am able and take it to the highest court possible," the swarthy Sapet told a reporter yesterday. He has been in the Brown County jail since Dec. 26, 1952.

He declined further comment on yesterday's action by the appeals court until he talks with his attorneys.

Attorney Fred Semaan of the San Antonio legal firm of Semaan and Schlesinger, said yesterday a motion for a rehearing would be filed within 15 days, legal limit for such a motion.

Semaan said there was a possibility the case would be taken to the Supreme Court.

Young Floyd's father testified at the trial here that the bullet which killed his son near the family garage in Alice actually was meant for him. Floyd is a leader of the Freedom Party, organized in opposition to political king-pin Parr.

The elder Floyd testified he was keeping a rendezvous with Nago Alaniz, a law partner of a Parr-backed county official (Raeburn Norris) when the shooting occurred. He said Alaniz had warned him not to go near the family car the night of the slaying.

Alaniz is awaiting trial in the case, charged with murder and conspiracy.

Jim Wells County Atty. Sam Burris said he was sure the appeals court decision would open the way "toward the prosecution and ultimate conviction" of Alaniz.

A major defense argument in Sapet's trial and appeal had been that divulging of the conspiracy by only one of the alleged conspirators—Alaniz—was insufficient evidence to support a conviction.

Dist. Judge A. O. Newman said in Brownwood yesterday he would not act on setting the time and place for Alaniz' trial until he had conferred with attorneys involved. The trial for Alaniz, free on bond, has also been transferred to Brown County.

The appeals court held that a conspiracy was shown "by circumstances" to exist between Sapet, Alaniz and Alfredo Cervantes, the alleged trigger man who was never caught.

"We think it is safe to say that a conspiracy cannot be proven upon the testimony of a co-conspirator alone; nevertheless, such a doctrine finds no application herein because of further facts being present," said the court's opinion, written by presiding Judge Harry N. Graves.

Floyd had testified Alaniz called him shortly before the slaying, advising him to take a taxi and meet him at an Alice drive-in.

There, Floyd testified, Alaniz related that professional killers had been brought from Mexico to kill both Floyd and Sam G. Reams, then district judge in turbulent South Texas.

Alaniz was quoted as saying the killer, even then, was waiting in Floyd's garage. It was at about that time that Floyd's son, a University of Texas student, was shot down in the garage.

Sapet's defense had also contended Alaniz' divulging of the conspiracy ended his role as a conspirator and his statement was therefore not admissible in the trial.

On that point, the appeal court said:

"The acts and declarations of the conspirators are all admissible as long as the conspiracy itself endures, and as long as any act agreed to therein has not yet been performed.

"...as long as the killer was in danger of being apprehended Nago Alaniz's part in the conspiracy still existed."

Tears clouded the eyes of the 48-year-old Sapet yesterday when he was told of the appeals court verdict.

"What can I do? What can I say?" he asked.

Sapet talked to a reporter of his young children, a boy of 6 and a 4-year-old girl. He said they had been told he was in Brownwood to "get well" and had asked him to come home with them in their last visit.

Sapet has asked that they not be permitted to visit him in jail again.

In Alice, the elder Floyd said: "It wasn't the penalty he was entitled to, but I am glad it was upheld."

Bill Allcorn, 35th District Court attorney in Brownwood, said, "Justice has prevailed."

Cugat And Wife Report Abduction And Jewel Robbery

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bandleader Xavier Cugat and his voluptuous wife, vocalist Abbe Lane, told police they were kidnaped and robbed of nearly $20,000 in jewelry and cash last night by a masked gunman who lay in wait for them in Cugat's car.

The couple had just finished a performance at an auto show in Pan Pacific Auditorium and were on their way to a movie. As they rolled slowly out of the parking lot in Cugat's expensive white convertible, the bandit rose up from the back seat. He wore a white handkerchief over his face and held a .45 caliber automatic, Cugat said.

Cugat reported the gunman made them drive to a parking area and there took a $9,000 10-karat solitaire and a $2,500 diamond wedding ring from Miss Lane, and a $2,600 wristwatch, $5,000 diamond ring and $150 in cash from the bandleader.

The gunman then ordered them out of the car and cautioned them: "Keep walking. Don't look back or I'll drill you."

The car was still on the parking lot when Cugat returned there with police.

Senate Okays Seaway Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, after slapping down St. Lawrence seaway legislation for two decades, has finally taken a huge step towards authorizing the United States to join Canada in carrying out the project.

But after an enabling measure sailed through the Senate last night on a 51-33 vote, Canadian government informants raised a serious question as to whether their country was still interested in U. S. participation.

After repeated failure of seaway legislation in Congress, Canada undertook to go it alone. In Ottawa last night, government sources said that country still would push for an all-Canadian seaway on her side of the boundary river. The Canadian government was represented as feeling that the United States, spending 105 million dollars, would be getting too much of a bargain in joint control of navigation and shipping tolls.

They explained Canada already has spent that much on locks and is prepared to put up 300 million dollars for navigation facilities.

The bill, strongly supported by President Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff because of the project's claimed importance to national defense, now goes to the House.

Because the House has never considered the bill, observers were at a loss to predict its chances there.

Demo Votes Seen Against Bricker Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said today 15 to 20 Democrats are ready to "stand behind President Eisenhower" by voting against any constitutional change in treaty-making powers.

Humphrey said in an interview he believes the country's interest would be best served by defeating efforts of Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) to change the Constitution.

Eisenhower has said adoption of Bricker's proposed amendment would make it almost impossible for him to deal with foreign nations in many fields. Bricker says his proposal is aimed at shielding state and individual citizens' rights from treaty invasion. Lawyers do not agree on how real the threat of such invasion is.

Republican leaders have been attempting to compromise, with Bricker to eliminate provisions objectionable to the President, but Humphrey said that even if a compromise is reached a Democratic bloc will vote against it and against the Bricker proposal.

Senate leaders figure that about 90 of the 96 senators are likely to be present on a showdown vote on the proposal, which must have approval of two-thirds of those voting for passage. If these estimates are correct, 31 senators could shelve the measure. Revision of it, however, requires only a majority of those voting. Humphrey said he doesn't believe his group could muster enough votes to stop such action, if a compromise is reached.

Bricker conceded in an interview that some of his backers are becoming "shaky," but he said he feels proponents of his measure can also apply pressure.

In the United States a girl child at birth can expect 72.4 years of life and a boy child 66.6 years.

Frame For Face

An important part of Mari Aldon's blond beauty is her lovely hair. The popular motion picture actress tells Lydia Lane her favorite way of keeping it attractive.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Care For Hair As Main Focal Point Of Beauty

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — "The focal point of beauty," Mari Aldon told me the other day, "should be your hair. It is a frame for the face and with color, coiffeur and texture, you can make it an asset or a liability.

"I think women make a big mistake following fashion without first asking what it will do for them," Mari continued. "If you have a desire to try a streak in your hair, or an Italian bob, do so but if you make a mistake, don't waste any time getting back into a becoming hairdo.

"At the studios they are always thinking up new ways of dressing your hair and I think it's a good idea to experiment because you can get awfully tired of yourself if you always look the same. But I will never let them schedule me for a portrait sitting with a new hairdo. I've learned the hard way how embarassing it is to have a whole batch of pictures with an unbecoming hairstyle."

I had to agree with Mari. It would be wrong for any woman to become identified with a hair style that did not suit her. And I had to agree, too, that a picture was a strong way of stressing a hairdo.

"A perspective from pictures seems stronger than one you receive in a mirror," Mari told me. "I think any girl who is not quite sure about a new hairdo should ask someone to snap her from all angles. As soon as the film is developed, you'll know without asking how much the new hairdo does."

"Do you give your hair any special care?" I asked.

"It may not be new advice, but it is valuable—the necessity of brushing your hair faithfully," Mari answered. "There is nothing to give your hair the life, gloss and softness that brushing can give. And there is nothing which will make your hair dull and uninteresting as neglecting to brush.

"It's silly to be afraid that brushing will ruin your wave," she added. "It just makes it more natural-looking, that's all."

"Do you have a pet brushing method?" I wanted to know.

"I like to lie across a bed and brush my hair with my head hanging over the end," Mari said. "This brings the blood to the scalp and rests your arms as you brush. I also like to use two brushes —one in each hand.

"If you have strong bristles it's so invigorating to your scalp," she added. "Another thing I do is put a nylon stocking tight over the bristles before I brush. This is an easy way to shine and clean the hair. I also find that this stocking routine is good for oily hair as it helps to pick up excess oil."

'Not A Man's World' Says Lady Architect

ATLANTA (AP)—It's not a man's world declares the American Business Woman of the Year.

To June Wicker it's just a tough world; that is, if you're engaged in a highly competitive field like architecture.

Miss Wicker, who won her title from the American Business Women's Assn., says being a woman has made it neither harder nor easier to get ahead.

Whether she worked for the government or private firms she was paid the same as men and given the same responsibilities.

"If there's any discrimination against women architects, I don't know about it," she says. "Of course, those who are prejudiced wouldn't come to me in the first place."

She feels that usually only "inferior men mind taking orders from a women, probably because it makes them feel more inferior." Such she dismisses as "uncouth characters."

This 37-year-old, tall, slim woman also upsets the cliche that has professional women going home at night to whip up a tasty dish or do needlepoint. June is too busy.

She has had her own office in Atlanta for three years but currently her private work has to be sandwiched in at night and weekends. Daytime she's working temporarily in the state department of education on school building plans.

Her primary interest is institutional and commercial buildings, but she has designed some houses.

And here she thinks women architects may have an advantage—that of being able to work more successfully with Mrs. Homeowner than could a man.

"Surely women architects are very sympathetic toward such things as kitchen planning, color and even furnishings. Women have a sensitiveness toward all this that most men don't have."

The houses she has designed are not necessarily her own dream homes. After all, you have to please your client, and Miss Wicker, like many architects who strongly prefer modern, has been forced to design traditional houses.

She says modern architecture has caught on more slowly in the South than in some other sections.

"The South has had its own architecture for years while other areas are still developing theirs. The traditional colonial home is deeply rooted in the South."

Since she has had her own office Miss Wicker has bid on some big jobs but so far hasn't landed one on her own. But she's had a good many such projects "farmed out" to her. In such cases she works either on a fee-sharing or splitting basis, then turns over her blueprints to the firm which won the bid and in turn supervises the project.

She also has had her hand in some good-sized government projects. After she helped work her way through Oklahoma A&M, where she took her degree in architecture, she spent four years on war construction. She worked on the cantonment expansion program at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., and an airport development program in Brazil for the Army Engineers.

Last October when the American Business Women's Assn. holding its annual meeting in Ft. Worth, Tex., tapped Miss Wicker as the American Business Woman of the Year, the citation read "for her extraordinary advancement in business."

But she modestly says she has a long way to go.

Her basic problem is that of most architects who break away independently: establishing a professional reputation.

Business firms and individuals often feel safer hiring a tried, well-established architectural firm. After all, the fees are supposed to be the same, regardless of experience, following the schedule set by the American Institute of Architects.

June Wicker, determined and dedicated, expects, in her phrase, to gain momentum.

Black Velvet Slippers Put TV Fan On Uneasy Footing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeature Writer

For my birthday a while back a well-meaning and probably desperate relative gifted me handsomely with a pair of black velvet hard-soled, open-toed foot coverings ornamented with gold kid. In the box accompanying them was a little slip of paper identifying them as "television shoes."

This, concededly is an age of specialization, and I think I have as many pairs of specialized foot coverings (I dislike the word shoes in this connection because it seems so specific) as the next person. I have dressy slippers for dressy dresses. I have several degrees of street shoes, from the kind you have to take a taxi in to the kind you can walk almost comfortably in. I have garden shoes which range from the kind you dig and weed in to the kind in which you stroll prettily and cut flowers. I have slippers to dance in and others to shuffle from bath to dressing table in.

But until my birthday I had no television shoes. As a matter of fact, I had been watching television in whatever clothes I happened to have on, without thinking too much about the propriety of my costume.

In my time — I say this with shame— I have watched television in the garments I wear to the office. I've watched it in a comfortable old bathrobe and scuffs. In the summer, I've watched it in shorts and halter. As far as foot coverings are concerned, I've watched it in dressy shoes and street shoes. My very favorite way to watch television is in no shoes at all.

I think it is very nice to have black velvet, gold-trimmed slippers for television watching, but there are difficulties.

In the first place, black velvet slippers require a soigne, black velvet television-viewing gown. I don't look so good in black velvet, so I'll also have to go in for a pretty heavy makeup and some bright touches — jewelry — around the neck. By the time I've got all those, I'll be so dressed up I won't be able to relax with Desi and Lucy.

Of course, there are some compensations. I've already discovered that if you are wearing black velvet slippers, you are not the person designated to run out and refill the birds' feeding stations, or close the garage doors. You don't have to go to the cellar to replenish the firewood. You don't even have to fuss around in the kitchen. When you are so elegantly decked out to look at television, you look, by golly, at television.

On the other hand I know that if I acquire a black velvet television-viewing gown to match my television shoes, I will find our present television set pretty inadequate for my own splendor. If television demands so much from me, I will immediately require a much more impressive television set— a 21-inch screen in an Empire cabinet model which also holds a high fidelity record player. And, of course, that will just lead into albums—you can't get by with only the Pines of Rome.

And if we get a new big television set, we'll have to rearrange the whole living room, and that means we'll have to get some new furnture. And goodness knows what that would entail. Undoubtedly we'll end up making a play room in the cellar to hold the old set.

So I am putting my black velvet, gold-trimmed television shoes back in their box. I am going back to watching whodunits on my 12½-inch screen in — or out of — whatever shoes I happen to have on at the moment.

India To Open Gates For Pro-Red Balkers

PANMUNJOM (AP)—If the Communists do not take back 349 pro-Red war prisoners—including 21 Americans — Indian guards will open the gates of their neutral zone stockade and walk away at midnight Friday, an Indian general said today.

"First we will have to tell the prisoners that their owners refuse to take them back," said Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya. "Then we will open the gate and we will tell our men to go back to their line."

The Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission conceded that if the prisoners refuse to leave their compound it would create a problem since neither Allied nor Red troops are permitted to enter Korea's demilitarized zone.

Thimayya told a news conference he planned to send another letter to the Communist high command asking the Reds to accept the return of the 21 Americans, 1 Briton and 327 South Koreans who chose to stay with the Communists.

In Washington, the Defense Department said the 21 Americans would be discharged as "undesirable" tomorrow. The action will cut off their military pay and convert them into civilians "under conditions other than honorable."

The Indian command returned 21,809 anti-Communist Chinese and Korean War prisoners to U. N. custody in a smooth operation yesterday and today.

About 10,000 Chinese sailed for Nationalist Formosa from Inchon today and about 4,000 remaining were to leave later. The 7,500 Koreans were moved by train to South Korean army centers for processing.

Ground Godfrey, CAA Requests

NEW YORK (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) has recommended suspension of Arthur Godfrey's pilot's license based on a charge of reckless flying.

Another CAA allegation, that the radio-TV star's medical clearance to fly was not in order, was withdrawn provisionally yesterday in statements here by the federal bureau and its regional administrator, Ora W. Young.

To which Young added:

"Apparently, there is nothing wrong with his medical qualifications. He had the certificates but had not properly reported them to Washington nor had he requested that a CAA certificate be issued to him."

The CAA has accused Godfrey of operating his DC3 twin-engine, 21-passenger plane "in a careless manner" while taking off last Jan. 7 from Teterboro, N. J., airport.

Godfrey who admits he was displeased by takeoff instructions, says his plane was forced close to the control tower by a strong crosswind.

The CAA, which enforces regulations by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB), has asked the board only to suspend Godfrey's license for "as long as necessary."

Maximum penalty for reckless flying is revocation of a pilot's license or a $1,000 fine.

Godfrey is entitled to a CAB hearing if he requests it, but he already has said he will not appeal a suspension ruling because "I have too much respect for the CAA."

Catholic Priest, Dying Of Cancer, Gets Many Letters

PARSONS, Kan. (AP) — The Rev. Julius Busse, the Catholic priest who said he considers it "a privilege to die of cancer," has received about 2,000 telegrams and letters from 47 states in the last week.

The flood of messages began after he made the remark about his illness in a hospital interview 10 days ago.

The 46-year-old priest says he is grateful his death will not come unexpectedly.

"When we go on a trip we like to have time to prepare for it," he explained. "I am getting ready for my most important journey."

The messages he has received are highly varied. Some ask for advice but he is unable to answer them because of his condition.

Mercy Hospital attendants say Father Busse seems to enjoy most hearing from men with whom he served as a chaplain. He was wounded twice in the Pacific fighting while serving with the "wonderful 7th Infantry Division" in World War II.

Mother Baptista, hospital superintendent, said persons who visit his room seem to find inspiration there.

His doctor says he "has the most remarkable outlook on death I have ever seen."

Woman Freed From Prison As Death Ruled Not Murder

By ED OLSEN

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Dark-haired Emma Jo Johnson is "not angry at anyone" for sending her to prison for murder — a murder which the Nevada Board of Pardons now says never was committed.

Emma Jo, 35, was ordered freed yesterday after 2 years, 8 months and 28 days behind bars as a result of a year-long, $15,000 investigation by mystery story author Erle Stanley Gardner and others.

The board accepted doctors' findings that Mrs. Jane Jones, 72, of Las Vegas died of a brain tumor — not as a result of an asserted attack by Emma Jo.

The jury convicted Emma Jo of second degree murder; sentence, 10 to 12 years.

Author Gardner, who also is a successful attorney, went to work on the case about a year ago as a result of a letter from Jack Wengert, 44, Emma Jo's fiancee.

Gardner, pathologist Le Moyne Snyder of Michigan and Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl of St. Louis became convinced that Mrs. Jones was not murdered, but died of a brain tumor.

In the long, expensive investigation, they found Dr. T. V. Nendick, Las Vegas physiotherapist, to whom Mrs. Jones had gone the day before the altercation.

Dr. Nendick said Mrs. Jones was dying of the brain tumor and needed immediate surgery. He was not called to testify at Emma Jo's trial, although he said he sent the defense attorney an anonymous letter. The lawyer said the letter came on the final day of the trial and he was unable to substantiate it. The case was not appealed.

Emma Jo was philosophical:

"I'm not angry at anyone — I'm just so grateful that somebody came to my rescue. I'm not bitter. The district attorney, the judge and the jury did their job as they felt it should be done."

Although free, Emma Jo stayed at the prison last night waiting for Wengert, who has waited for her for almost three years.

Wengert, a Las Vegas chef, and Emma Jo were to have been married in 1951 after she divorced Navy man Russell Johnson.

"Just as soon as I can I'm going to marry Jack," the emotion-choked Mrs. Johnson told reporters.

"Jack is the most faithful and loyal human that God ever put breath into. He has worked hard all this time and contributed every dime he made to help me."

Marilyn Monroe Not Back At Studio Yet

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marilyn Monroe has failed to meet the deadline for reporting back on the picture "Pink Tights."

She and hubby Joe DiMaggio are still honeymooning somewhere in southern California, but they haven't been seen at any of the Hollywood spots.

Marilyn's studio late last night announced that it had extended to Jan. 25 her "vacation" from the movie. Her agent told 20th Century-Fox he doesn't know her whereabouts but expects her and Joe to show up at her apartment over the weekend.

American Balkers To Get Undesirable Discharges Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 21 American soldiers who have refused to come home from Communist Korea will be declared "undesirable" and discharged tomorrow.

The undesirable discharge papers for the prisoners of war who declined to be returned have been completed by the Army after weeks of consultation with the Defense and State departments. The action will convert the soldiers into civilians "under conditions other than honorable."

The Pentagon chose this middle course in dealing with the 21 to avoid possible legal difficulties in the way of sterner action, and to leave a loophole for the men to clear themselves, should any of them get back to the United States.

The moment the undesirable discharges become effective for the 21, their service pay will cease to accumulate. It will be difficult though not impossible for them to qualify for veterans benefits. The VA must decide each case. Should any of them ever come home he will still have the right to ask for a review of his discharge and be given an opportunity to show, if he can, that he was coerced into making his decision.

Pakistan Passenger Train Has Wreck, Toll Feared High

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—The 60-mile-an-hour Pakistan Mail passenger train collided with a petroleum-carrying freight about 75 miles north of Karachi early today. Officials feared the dead and injured might exceed 100.

A number of foreigners, including Americans and Britons, were aboard the passenger train. But damage appeared largely restricted to lower class coaches just behind the engine.

Two of the first coaches were reported "completely burned" and two others and the engines of both trains badly damaged.

Among the passengers of the Lahore-to-Karachi train was Pakistan Foreign Minister Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan. His car was in the middle of the train and railway officials at Lahore said he was safe.

A special rescue train carring doctors, nurses and medical equipment was rushed from Karachi.

The Pakistan Mail, driven by an American diesel engine, is the fastest passenger train operated by the Northwestern Railways. The crash occurred near Jhampir.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

El Paso desires to do business in the Longhorn League because travel expenses in the Arizona-Texas circuit were eating up its operating kitty.

After jumps of upwards to 700 miles, the El Pasoans will probably feel as if they're just going across the alley for some of their Longhorn dates, if they make the switch.

The Longhorn League holds an important meeting in Hobbs, N. M., next Sunday, at which time not only Hobbs and El Paso, but Juarez, Mexico, are apt to gain membership.

Prospects are now good that the Longhorn will start the season as an eight-club circuit but will it still be a going concern in July? It's future looks very dark.

Walt Fondren, Houston's great schoolboy footballer, is now supposed to be wavering between the University of Oklahoma and the University of Texas.

• • • •

Cary Middlecoff, the golfing dentist, said it:

"Every one of (Ben) Hogan's wins last year—the Open, the Masters and the British Open — were on real good courses. He can lay off the circuit, practice and tighten up his game for the big ones. The rest of us have to play a lot of bad courses on the year-around swing. It throws us when we get onto the good ones. That's Hogan's dish."

It's interesting to note that Rusty Russell, deposed SMU mentor, is the only coach to have filed a formal application for the Texas A&M grid job. Russell must like controversial situations.

It wouldn't surprise this writer if DeWitt Weaver brings with him action films of the Texas Tech-Auburn Gator Bowl game when he comes here to serve as principal speaker at the Lions' Club football banquet on Jan. 30.

In that one, at least, the Raiders performed much as did the Big Spring Steers in their playoff games. Down at the half, the Raiders stormed back to all but run Auburn off the greensward at Jacksonville.

The Steers were behind in two of their playoff games, then neutralized the enemy with thunderous counter attacks. They outplayed Port Neches, too, in the second half but had too far to go.

Think a football coach doesn't keep on the run when the rubber-chicken circuit opens its season?

This week, Jess Neely, the Rice coach, popped up in Ozona Monday for a speaking engagement. On Tuesday, he was at Huntsville and is booked for two oratorical dates in Corpus Christi this weekend.

Next Monday, he goes to El Campo and darts from there to San Antonio for appearances on both Tuesday and Wednesday. He'll be in Galveston for a dinner date and a talk on Thursday night and hops over to Pittsburg on Friday.

Incidentally, the Rice alumni will probably gather in Midland early next month to hear Jess.

He'll probably welcome spring training when it opens next month. He can beg off when requests are made for his appearance at special functions then.

Warren On Way

A tremendous basketball player when he performed for Big Spring High School and HCJC, Charles Warren (above) of Big Spring is becoming recognized as one of the top defensive players and playmakers on the University of Texas' fine team this season. Chuck takes few shots at the basket but feeds the ball to the Longhorns' top scorers.

IN HALL OF FAME

Two Bills And Rabbit Snared

NEW YORK (AP)—Rabbit Maranville, Bill Dickey and Bill Terry are in baseball's Hall of Fame today but Joe DiMaggio still is on the outside—for at least one more year.

Maranville, the sprightly little shortstop of the 1914 "miracle" Boston Braves who died Jan. 5, led the ticket in the latest elections by the Baseball Writers Assn. Dickey, all-time Yankee catching great, and Terry, last .400 hitter in the National League, were close behind.

DiMaggio, who retired in 1951, missed by 14 votes. Totals of 252 ballots were cast by 10-year members with 75 per cent or 189 necessary for election.

The rules were changed this year, restricting the field to players active within the last 25 years but out of baseball in any "field" capacity for at least five years. That eliminated managers, coaches and umpires who still are active or have been since 1948. The only exceptions were Dickey, DiMaggio and Ted Lyons, who had received 100 or more votes in the 1953 election.

Plaques will be dedicated to

TERRY DICKEY

Maranville, Dickey and Terry at the Cooperstown, N. Y., Hall of Fame Museum in August when the Yankees play Cincinnati in the annual exhibition game at Doubleday Field. Six others, including Chief Bender, who were named by a special committee last September, also will be officially accepted at that time, when the membership will be increased to 73 men.

Except for a surge of votes for Maranville, inventor of the "basket" catch, the 1954 results closely followed last year's pattern. Those who finished well up the ladder behind Dizzy Dean and Al Simmons, the '53 selections, moved up. A total of 53 players were named with seven receiving 100 or more votes.

Maranville drew 209, Dickey 202 and Terry 195. DiMaggio at 175 and Lyons at 170 barely missed. Then came Dazzy Vance, ex-Brooklyn pitching ace, 158, and Gabby Hartnett, former Chicago Cub catcher-manager with 151 votes. There was a long gap between Gabby and Hank Greenberg in eighth place with 97 votes.

Louise Suggs Out For Third Win

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Of all the present and former champs of ladies golf playing the annual Tampa Women's Open Golf Tournament today, the name of Louise Suggs seemed to shine a little brighter.

The tiny Georgian is out for her third victory in the $5,000 72-hole open. She'll have to do some remarkable shooting if she tops her last year's winning score of 288 on the par 72 Palma Cela course.

Miss Suggs, the 1953 top money winner among the touring golf pros, started out this year by winning the recent Sea Island Open with three days of identical 77s.

The Tampa Open is medal play and will end Sunday.

It has drawn a record field of entries, including all the former winners in the eight years of the Tampa Open and the top golfers in just about every major 1953 tournament.

Miss Suggs was set for an afternoon threesome with Babe Zaharias, the home town sports idol, and Beverly Hanson of Pasadena.

Sam Snead Is Due To Enter Tourney

HOUSTON (AP)—Gallery favorite Sam Snead is expected to take part in the $30,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament March 4-7.

Houston Golf Assn. officials said yesterday that Roberto de Vicenzo and Antonio Cerda, the Argentine stars, have also indicated they will participate.

Snead finished in a tie for sixth place in last year's $20,000 tournament here. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., won the tournament in an 18-hole playoff with four other golfers

IN BUFF GYM

Forsan, Sterling Tangle Tonight

FORSAN (SC) — The Forsan-Sterling City basketball doubleheader, originally booked for Friday night, will instead be played here tonight.

The girls' teams take the court at 6:45 p.m. The boys open play at 8 o'clock.

Oscar Dorsey the Sterling coach, requested the switch in dates because he had entered his team in a tournament over the weekend.

The Forsan boys will carry a 2-1 won-lost District 23-B record into the game. The Buffaloes have beaten Garden City and Knott while losing to Coahoma.

The Forsan girls have won once in three tries.

Coach Frank Honeycutt of Forsan has announced he will probably start a lineup consisting of Albert Oglesby at the post, Pat Brunton and James Skeen up front and Johnny Baum and Harold Hicks in the backcourts.

Marshall Blair, one of the leading scorers in the conference, poses a threat to the Buffaloes. Sterling City has won from Garden City and lost to Knott and Coahoma. In three games, Blair has hit for 47 points.

Don Glass is another top Sterling threat. Glass scored 21 points in a recent game against Garden City.

Coca-Cola Quint Gets Job Of Trying To Slow Leaders

If any team in the YMCA City Basketball League is going to head off the Tennessee Milk team, it had better do it in a hurry. Time is fast running out on the other five quintets.

The undefeated Milkmen take on Coca-Cola in tonight's feature game. The two teams get together at 9 p.m.

In other contests, Hardesty's Drug opposes the Draginits at 7 p.m. and Phil-Serv-66 opposes Clark's at 8.

The Milkmen, with a lineup built exclusively with Webb Air Base personnel, seem to imrpove each time out. Earlier this week, Tennessee walloped the Draginits, 66-24. In that one, Ed Schuster rang the bell for 23 points.

All games will be played in the Junior High School Gymnasium.

Steers Drill For Bulldogs

Victors over the Vernon Lions earlier this week, the Big Spring Steers returned home Wednesday and promptly began preparations for their sternest test of the season, a Friday night engagement with the District 1-AAA pace-setters, the Plainview Bulldogs in Plainview.

The Bulldogs will be heavily favored to defeat the Longhorns but the locals showed a lot of improvement in their outing with the Lions and are capable of measuring the Bulldogs.

Plainview is still undefeated in conference play.

The Steers play their next home game on Jan. 28, at which time they host Breckenridge.

Snyder hosts Breckenridge tonight in a District 1-AAA skirmish.

The Bucs are on a swing of the western sector of the conference. On Friday night, they visit Sweetwater.

SOCCER GAME POSTPONED

Originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon, the first soccer game involving personnel of Webb Air Base has been indefinitely postponed due to a flying program set for that day.

The teams are being organized among Europeans stationed at the base. Personnel will be announced soon.

All soccer games will be played at Steer Stadium.

Rookie Battery Is Signed Up

The Cubs now have 19 players signed.

Park Job Slated

CHICAGO (AP)—With an eye towards brightening things for fans, literally and figuratively, the Chicago White Sox today launched a $150,000 painting and refurbishing program at Comiskey Park.

Council Plans To Interview Applicants

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—The Texas A&M College athletic council meets again Saturday morning to consider prospects for the post of head football coach.

Council chairman W. L. Penberthy, college dean, said the meeting was called to decide who should be called for interviews.

He said the interviews would be held "as soon as possible."

Seven men have been named as under consideration for the post vacated when Ray George resigned recently. They were listed as:

Jim Tatum, University of Maryland; Mike Brumbelow, Texas Western; Johnny Vaught, University of Mississippi; J. V. Sikes, formerly of the University of Kansas; H. N. (Rusty) Russell, former Southern Methodist coach now at Schreiner Institute in Kerrville; Mike Michalske, Aggie line coach; and Dick Todd, former Aggie star who was backfield coach last season at SMU.

Andrews Opens With Longhorns

ANDREWS (SC) — The Andrews Mustangs have completed a 10-game football schedule for 1954, Head Coach Glenn Frazier has announced.

Included will be five home and five road contests for the 1953 district 6-AA tri-champions.

In addition to the four district contests, with Brownfield, Littlefield, Semipole and Kermit, the Ponies take on just about the best opposition to be found in non-loop frays.

Included are such powerful machines as state AAA finalist Big Spring, district 7-AA co-champion Monahans, district 4-A champion Denver City, a potent Hobbs, N. M. outfit that is always at or near the top in its own state, Crane and Colorado City.

The scheduling of the Big Spring game completed the Pony schedule. It will be played in Andrews Sept. 10 and open the campaign for both teams. The Steers replaced Pecos on the Andrews schedule after the Eagles and Mustangs were unable to decide on a site for their tilt.

Frazier's charges will go into their hornet's nest schedule with a strong, versatile backfield corps but minus the stalwarts up front that gave Andrews the finest defensive line in the school's history in 1953. Graduation wrecked the forward wall.

The schedule:

Sept. 10—Big Spring here
Sept. 17—Monahans there
Sept. 24—Denver City here
Oct. 1—Hobbs there
Oct. 8—Crane there
Oct. 15—Colorado City here
Oct. 22—Open
xOct. 29—Brownfield here
xNov. 5—Littlefield there
xNov. 12—Seminole here
xNov. 19—Kermit there
x District 6-AA games.

Littler Favored At San Diego

RANCHO SANTA FE Calif. (AP)—The $15,000 San Diego Open Golf Tournament gets under way today and Tommy Bolt, as the 1953 winner, would seem to be the leading contender in the field of 137 professionals and amateurs.

But the home folks established a noted local attraction, national amateur champion Gene Littler, as the favorite.

The scene is the Rancho Santa Fe Golf Club, where Littler last year won the California Open championship over a good field of pros.

Par at Rancho, site of the original Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur event before the singer moved up to Pebble Beach, is 36-36—72.

Lanky Bill Nary, who led the recent Los Angeles Open for the first two rounds and is a challenger here, holds the course record at 64.

San Angelo Standouts

The two boys shaking hands above will pose threats to the HCJC Hawks in the basketball game here Saturday. They are Tom Milford (left) of Lamesa and Bill Barker of Olive Hill, Ky., scoring threats of the San Angelo Rams. The two helped the Rams to an impressive win over HC in Angelo recently.

Hawks Seek Revenge In Ram Go Saturday

Phil George brings his San Angelo College Rams in Saturday to do battle with the Howard County Junior College Jayhawks in the HC Gym. Originally set tonight, the game was weathered out.

The Rams are one up on the Hawks, having beaten the locals by ten points two weeks ago.

That was the bout which almost got away from the officials and both coaches voiced complaints about it. Seems, every time the two clubs get together, the going gets rough.

There's talk the series may be ended for a few seasons, after Saturday, unless the athletes smoke the peace pipe. The coaches want their charges sound of limb for the conference wars.

HCJC is playing .667 ball at the moment, having won 12 against only six losses. Their most recent success was a dazzling one, coming at the expense of Amarillo in a Zone encounter. The Hawks took that one, 72-70.

The win, incidentally, kept alive their chances to repeat as conference champions. They have previously lost to Odessa in Odessa.

The Ram contest was originally booked for Saturday night, then moved forward to Friday night. It was changed again, at the suggestion of George.

Angelo has much the same type ball club as HCJC. It depends on speed and the ability to hit from outside, rather than the rebounds. It simply hasn't the height to do that.

In Bill Barker and Tom Milford, the Rams have two of the better court smiths around. Barker was recently named to the Howard College Tournament all-star squad. Milford was a choice last year.

Coach Harold Davis of the Hawks has indicated he'll start a lineup consisting of Jerold Parmer at the post, Don Stevens, Paschall Wickard, Tommy Patterson and Jim Knotts.

There'll be a B string game, starting at 6 p.m.

AUSTRALIAN JOHN LANDY COVERS MILE IN NEAR-RECORD 4:02.3

MELBOURNE (AP)—John Landy, Australia's great miler, failed again in his bid for a 4-minute mile tonight. Running in a special twilight meeting at Olympic Park he was timed in 4:02.3.

Landy, who has failed on several occasions to shatter Gunder Haegg's world mile record of 4:01.4, nevertheless did turn in one of the fastest miles on record.

Back on Dec. 12 he was timed in 4:02, the third fastest winning mile on record. Arne Andersson's 4:01.6 is the second fastest.

Landy competed before a crowd of 25,000, the largest ever at Olympic Park.

He ran the first quarter in 59 seconds, the half in 2:00.3 and the three quarters in 3:02.1.

He won by 95 yards over Geoff Warren. Less Perry finished third.

BILLY DENDY IS NAMED BUCKIES' TOP PLAYER

BRECKENRIDGE (SC) — Bill Dendy received the annual Lions' Club award here Wednesday night for having been judged the most valuable player on the Buckaroo football team.

The presentation took place during the annual football banquet.

Supt. W. C. Blankenship of Big Spring formally presented Supt. John Culwell the District 1-AAA co-championship trophy.

Culwell will return the honors when Big Spring holds its banquet Jan. 30.

Big Spring and Breckenridge shared the title.

Dendy, a fleet footed halfback and a favorite target for passer Kenny Ford, led District 1-AAA in scoring. He was an unanimous choice for all-district honors and was named on several all-state teams.

Atomic Engine Operates

The first atomic submarine engine, built into a land based submarine hull, was generating power when this overhead view was made at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho. The engine section is immersed in a sea water tank about 50 feet in diameter and almost 40 feet deep to simulate actual operating conditions. The nuclear power plant, designed and built by Westinghouse Electric Corp., is a prototype of the engine in the USS Nautilus, first atom submarine launched this morning at Groton, Conn. (AP Wirephoto).

First A-Powered Sub Is Launched

By ELTON C. FAY

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—The world's first atom powered vessel—the submarine Nautilus—was launched today, opening a new era in sea power.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the President, swung a bottle of champagne across the bow to send the sleek craft sliding down the ways into the Thames River at 10:57 a.m. (EST).

A crowd of about 12,000 persons including a number of notables cheered as the Nautilus entered the water under a bright sunlit sky.

Speakers hailed the nuclear driven vessel as not only a powerful new sea weapon but as a harbinger of peaceful use of atomic enginek.

As Mrs. Eisenhower moved forward on the gaily decorated launching platform to christen the vessel, a masculine voice called out:"

"Hit it hard."

She took a few practice swings and then hit the hull sharply. The bottle crashed and champagne splashed. The crowd roared and whistles blew.

The nation's first lady stood watching silently and bit her lower lip as the Nautilus slid to the river.

AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said during the launching ceremonies the craft symbolized both the "atomic thunderbolts" of defense and of a peaceful boon of nuclear power.

The official party, traveling in a White House special train, journeyed up from Washington overnight. The President remained in the capital.

To join the Navy on so historic an occasion were high representatives of the other armed forces, Congress members and state officials. The plan was to handle a crowd of 12,000 persons—including workmen of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. who built the hull of the submarine.

For a ship unprecedented in design, the Nautilus was built with amazing speed. Her keel was laid by former President Truman June 14, 1952.

At about the same time the Westinghouse Corp., working under contract of the Atomic Energy Commission, began construction out on an Idaho desert of a land-based model atomic power plant. That power plant—designed around an atomic furnace using the uranium element U235 as fuel—develops steam for operation of a turbine. A copy of the power plant was constructed for the Nautilus herself.

When the launching time arrived today much of the nuclear power plant was aboard or at hand for installation during the next five or six months as final work is completed on the submarine.

The Nautilus, besides being the biggest and most intricate submarine ever built, also is the costliest. The Navy and the AEC will have spent an estimated 50 million dollars on the boat and her machinery by the time her commissioning date rolls around.

On a neighboring way is the beginning of the hull for the second nuclear submersible, the Sea Wolf. That boat will use a somewhat different type of atomic plant.

The Nautilus is probably the heaviest submarine hull to be built at Electric Boat Division where hundreds of submersibles have been built for two world wars.

Her displacement is estimated at 3,000 tons when surfaced. Fully submerged, she will displace approximately 3,500 tons.

The atom sub is about 340 feet long, with a peculiar blunt bow to give her a hoped-for underwater speed of 30 knots or better. That is as fast as the speediest surface ships travel.

Courthouse Fund Still Has Balance

Howard County's courthouse and jail fund still has $194,000, report of Auditor Lee Porter for the month of December shows.

The fund has $34,549 in its active account and $160,000 in government securities.

The aggregate of active accounts at the end of 1953 was $404,436, a decrease of more than $100,000 from the total at the beginning of December when balances stood at $515,815.

Largest balance was in the road and bridge fund which had $115,018 plus $16,600 in government bonds. The general fund had a balance of $74,555.

Total of revenues during December was $22,178, while disbursements amounted to $133,558. Receipts for 1954 (tax collections) amounted to $290,000 in December.

The county's indebtedness amounted to $969,000 at the end of 1953. Of this, $30,000 is outstanding on the 1945 road bond issue and $939,000 is owed on courthouse bonds.

Shivers Says He Plans To Call Special Session On Teacher Pay

By BO BYERS

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Shivers put an unofficial seal of approval on a teacher pay raise compromise yesterday and expressed hope a special session will soon make the $402 a year increase a reality.

The plan, as drawn would fatten teacher pay checks beginning next September.

Members of a 25-member committee submitted the proposition to Shivers and the Texas State Teachers Association with a unanimous pledge to support it "if a special ression is called." At the same time, some members individually urged that the Legislature consider an immediate pay raise if funds are available.

A delegation carried the report and a copy of a proposed bill to Shivers' office late yesterday afternoon.

Commending the committee for its "fine work" in presenting what he considered a "forward step" in Texas education, Shivers promised a prompt call of the Legislature as soon as feasible.

"It is my intention to call a special session of the Legislature if this bill embodies what I understand it to, and to submit it not only as your recommendation but as mine," the governor said.

He told reporters the exact date could not be set yet but said "it will not be too far in the future."

Mrs. Kate Bell of Houston, TSTA president, said her organization's executive committee will meet Friday to consider the compromise. She felt confident of its approval.

Shivers said he will "try to set some approximate time" for the special session after the TSTA leaders reach a formal decision.

He indicated again he would prefer to wait for a U.S. Supreme Court decision on the state's natural gas pipeline tax, which if upheld would free an estimated 43 million dollars for use during the current biennial ending Aug. 31, 1955.

A $402 across the board increase in the minimum pay scale for more than 58,000 teachers would require approximately an extra 23½ million dollars per year.

Shivers said he would not use the pending Supreme Court decision as an excuse for delaying the call of a special session.

Some other considerations will necessitate some delay, he added.

In the event the gas pipeline tax is declared unconstitutional wiping out that potential revenue, or if Shivers cannot delay until the decision is handed down, he may want to lay the groundwork for successful submission of a new tax proposal.

He said yesterday he thought the compromise committee very properly left the financing problem to the governor and the Legislature.

At least one member of the committee, Sen. Warren McDonald of Tyler was not certain that was a wise decision.

"Unless this compromise carries with it an implied agreement to vote for a tax bill, we are right back where we started from," said McDonald, recalling that a $600 pay raise was voted last year but died when funds were not provided.

Rep. Joe Kilgore of McAllen agreed that the committee's recommendations carry with them "the implication that we would support whatever revenue raising measure becomes necessary."

Kilgore said he was committing himself only to a pay raise to start the next school year, as proposed in the bill submitted to Shivers and TSTA's executive committee.

McDonald and Supt. Henry Stilwell of Texarkana were hopeful the Legislature would see fit to grant an immediate increo) for the current school year.

Main features of the compromise, other than the $402 increase, are division of state and local support of the minimum foundation program on a percentage basis and indirect assumption of part of school building costs by the state.

East Texas Sheriff Acquitted By Jury

GILMER (AP)—An Upshur County jury deliberated only 31 minutes yesterday before returning a not guilty verdict for Sheriff Orear Watson.

Applause broke out in the court room as the verdict was read and about 300 persons filed by and shook Watson's hand. He was smiling and moist-eyed.

Watson had been charged with negligence in allowing a prisoner to escape. He said the charge was "politics."

Joe Lawrence Miller, 28, the escapee, walked into the courtroom Tuesday and testified in Watson's behalf. "If I'd even thought the sheriff would be indicted I never would have left," he said. Miller was a trusty at the jail when he walked away last November.

Several sheriffs of surrounding counties and an ex-sheriff here testified as to Watson's good character.

Conservatives Bolt Beaumont Session

BEAUMONT (AP)—Jefferson County had two Young Democratic Clubs today after a "conservative" faction, outnumbered 100 to 25, walked out of a meeting last night after a dispute on rules.

"Loyalist" Young Democrats elected H. C. Pillsbury, business representative of the Beaumont Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL) to presidency of their group.

"Conservatives" elected president Beaumont architect Douglas Steinman Jr.

All Officers Of Loan Group Are Re-Elected

All directors and officers of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Big Spring were re-elected, at annual meetings of shareholders and directors Wednesday.

J. Gordon (Obie) Bristow was named to a three-year term on the board at the stockholders meetings. Other directors are R. L. Cook, Elmo Wasson, Robert Stripling and R. V. Middleton. Terms expire on a yearly rotation basis.

Directors then renamed Cook as president, Wasson as vice president and Stripling as secretary-treasurer. Jack Cook, J. W. Purser, Jess Thornton Arthur Woodall and Jess Thornton, Arthur Woodall and appraisers.

This is the 19th year of the Association, and its report shows first investment's of $67,200, cash in the amount of $227,986.83. It shows $1,894,991.35 in members' share accounts, $179,384.01 in general reserves, and $25,677.59 in undivided profits. The Association's assets now aggregate $2,127,466.40 It has operated throughout the years without ever having made a foreclosure.

The Association at the end of the year paid its customary 3 per cent on share accounts.

The board Wednesday adopted a resolution to be forwarded to President Eisenhower, urging that the Federal Home Loan Bank Board not be brought into the Federal Housing Administration. This has been considered under an executive reorganization order. Members said they felt the record of savings-loan associations demonstrated the merit of the federal bank unit remaining independent of other government housing programs.

President's Military Plans Boost For AF

By ELTON C. FAY

WASINHGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower recommended today a $37,575,000,000 military outlay for the next fiscal year, with a shift in emphasis from foot soldiery to a "full exploitation of air power and modern weapons."

The spending budget he proposed to Congress for the Defense Department is about four billion dollars less than that estimated for the current year, which ends June 30.

Eisenhower said the budget is based on a "new concept for . . . our national security program."

A substantial part of the savings obviously would come in manpower. The budget figures reflect an over-all reduction of about .7 per cent in manpower for all the armed forces. Army personnel would be reduced by 17.3 per cent, and three divisions would be dropped from the present 20.

Against the cutback in strength of the Army, in which Eisenhower was a five-star general, there was the President's emphatic advocacy of greater power in the air.

He said the Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps now have, among them, about 33,000 planes. During the next three years, he said, this will be increased to 40,000, more than half of them jets. Twenty-two per cent of defense expenditures in the new fiscal year would go to airplane procurement.

The 1955 fiscal year program, the President wrote, "calls for improving combat effectiveness by realization of our nuclear capabilities, and provides for the rapid and orderly phasing of programs to improve continental defense against possible enemy attack."

As outlined by a Defense Department spokesman, here is the way the budget for the year beginning next July 1 will relate to that policy:

Manpower for the armed services—Now about 3,400,000; will be 3,324,800 by next June 30, and 3,037,000 at the end of June 1955.

Army—Present strength 1½ millions at the end of next fiscal year, 1,164,000. By mid-1955 the organizational strength will be down to 17 divisions. For the first time, there is no request for authority for the Army to make new contracts for procuring major combat equipment; it will have left over from previous apropriations a total of $4,800,000,000.

The Army, like the other services, will build up in new weapons.

At present there are 114 antiaircraft battalions. By the end of this fiscal year there will be about 130. The goal is to increase the antiaircraft force by more than 50 per cent,—with more than one-third of the units using the new Nike guided missile weapon.

Air Force — Present strength 920,000; next June 955,000; a year later 970,000. Present unit strength 110 wings (a wing ranges from 30 heavy bombers to 75 fighters); to be 121 by the end of fiscal year 1955; up to 127 at the end of the following year and to the presently fixed ultimate goal of 137 by the end of the 1957 fiscal year.

Navy—Present manpower 770,000; 740,000 by next June 30; 688,000 a year later. There will be a decrease from a present average of 409 combat ships to 402 by June 30, 1955. The new budget contains funds for a fourth 60,000-ton carrier of the Forrestal class, but not for a third atomic submarine. One of the four 45,000-ton battleships now in the fleet will be withdrawn. The number of large carriers will remain unchanged at 12; the number of carrier air groups of planes will continue at 16.

Marines—Present strength 250,000; by next June 30, 225,000; end of June 1955, 215,000. Continue present organizational strength of three divisions (a Marine division has about 25,000 men compared with 17,500 for the Army) and three air wings.

The cutback in military manpower would account for a big share of the reduction in spending. Eisenhower estimated the reduction in forces would mean a cut in expenditures of about 600 million dollars for pay, allowances and other direct military personnel costs.

In spending, here is what the armed forces will spend in the present year and the estimate for the next fiscal year:

Army, $14,200,000,000 this year, $10,198,000,000 next year; Navy, $11,300,000,000 this year, $10,493,000,000 next year; Air Force $15,600,000,000 this year, $16,209,000,000 next.

Underscoring the emphasis on nuclear weapons, Eisenhower noted that "under the recommendations in this budget, expenditures of the atomic energy commission will rise in the fiscal year 1955 to the highest point in our history"—from $2,200,000,000 in the current year to $2,425,000,000.

He said this increase is due primarily to expanded operations at AEC plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; Portsmouth, Ohio; Hanford, Wash.; and Savannah River, Ga. It is at the new Savannah River plant that material for hydrogen bombs is being produced.

Grace Kelly Has All Needed By Actress

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's not hard to see why Grace Kelly is one of the fastest rising young stars in recent Hollywood times.

1. She is blonde and beautiful.
2. She can act.

This unusual combination has brought her a series of choice roles, generally as a wife. She was Gary Cooper's spouse in "High Noon," Ray Milland's in "Dial M for Murder" and will shortly be William Holden's in "The Bridges at Toko-ri." She was also the wavering wife in "Mogambo."

Her present role in "Rear Window" is her only departure. She plays Jimmy Stewart's sweetheart.

"I hope I don't get typed," says Grace, who is unmarried. She has been a pretty cool character in her film roles so far. But things are warming up for her in "Rear Window." She has some smooching scenes with Stewart which Alfred Hitchcock says are the hottest he has directed since the famous love match of Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant in "Notorious."

"They certainly ought to be the closest love scenes of all time," observed Grace. "The camera has been inches away from our faces. The other day I asked if my hair needed fixing. Hitch told me my hair wasn't in the picture; just my face. Can you imagine how it will look on the wide screen? Immense!"

Grace seems to talk in the tones of an English lady, but she actually is a Philadelphian. She was born there 25 years ago, her father being John Kelly, a well-known building contractor. Show business was in the family, however. Her uncles were playwright George Kelly and Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge" of vaudeville.

An independent gal, Grace made her way up on her own. She studied two years at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, then won a role in a New York show, "The Father," with Raymond Massey. Twentieth Century-Fox picked her for a role in "14 Hours."

"Yes, I played a wife in that one too," she recalled. "I was supposed to be getting a divorce, but my husband was caught in the traffic jam of people watching the man who was going to jump off a building. The experience got us back together. The critics couldn't see how this had anything to do with the main plot. The picture lost a million dollars.

"Twentieth offered me a contract, but I didn't think I was ready for it. I though I needed more training in the theater."

So she turned her back on the Hollywood gold and returned to New York. After some stage and TV work, she did "High Noon." That brought forth the offer for "Mogambo," which was accompanied with a term contract. Did she think she was ready for it then?

"No," she admitted. "But the part was good, and I was eager to see Africa. So I signed." Since then all her pictures have been loan-outs, and MGM has announced no plans for her.

Fewer, Smaller Livestock On Feed, Report Reveals

By FRANKLIN REYNOLDS

The number of cattle on feed in the United States the first day of 1954 was nine per cent smaller than for the same date a year ago, and the number of sheep and lambs on feed for market was down four per cent from a year earlier, according to the statisticians of the Agricultural Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Their figures put the number of cattle at 5,334,000 head, compared with 5,884,000 a year earlier, and the 1948-52 average of 4,489,000 head.

Sheep and lambs on Jan. 1 were estimated at 3,997,000 head which is 164,000 less than last year.

Cattle on feed in Texas was estimated at 129,000 head, the smallest since Jan. 1, 1948 when the figure was 115,000. In 1947 the number was 121,000 head. The five-year average is 157,000 head.

The Texas feeder cattle population increased steadily from 144,000 in 1949, to 161,000 in 1950, to 177,000 in 1951, to 186,000 in 1952, to 193,000 in 1953 to drop 64,000 head to this past Jan. 1 estimate.

The Corn Belt total of cattle on feed for the market on the first of this month was estimated at 4,052,000 head, the second highest on record. The peak number was 4,488,000 on Jan. 1, 1953. The West Corn Belt states declined 12 per cent, while feeding in the East Corn Belt was only two per cent below last year. Iowa, the leading feeder state showed a decrease of 16 per cent, while Nebraska, the second ranking feeder state this year, showed a 17 per cent decrease. Illionois was down eight per cent, but the other East Corn Belt states showed increases ranging from four to five per cent.

Outside the North Central States the number of cattle on feed was smaller than a year ago. In the 13 Western States, cattle feeding was eight per cent below a year ago. California, the leading western feeder state, showed an increase of seven per cent. Colorado showed a decrease of 17 per cent, while Texas showed a decrease of 33 per cent, principally due to the drought.

Reports from cattle feeders in the Corn Belt on the weight of cattle on feed on Jan. 1, this year, showed a larger proportion of lightweight cattle on feed than last year. Cattle weighing 600 pounds or less accounted for 34 per cent this year, compared with 28 per cent last year. The number of cattle on feed weighing from 700 to 900 pounds made up 41 per cent of the total compared with 43 per cent a year ago. Cattle weighing over 900 pounds accounted for 25 per cent of the total, compared with 29 per cent last year.

Corn Belt cattle feeders reported the first of this month that 74 per cent of the cattle had been on feed less than three months, compared with 73 per cent last year. Of the number on feed Jan. 1 this year, 22 per cent had been on feed from three to six months. Last year 23 per cent were on feed from three to six months and four per cent more than six months.

Cattle feeders intend to market fed cattle at a slower rate than intended last year, with 37 per cent of the Jan. 1 number to be marketed by April 1. Based on present information, the number of fed cattle received at Corn Belt markets during the next three months is expected to be lower than last year. A decrease in marketings of fed cattle from the Jan. 1 inventories, as a result of the smaller number on feed, will also occur in the late spring and summer, according to the plans feeders expressed two weeks ago.

In the 11 Corn Belt states the number of sheep and lambs on feed is estimated at 2,452,000 head, six per cent below a year ago. Lamb feeding is less than a year ago in all of the Corn Belt states except Wisconsin and Kansas. Feeding in Kansas is 40 per cent above last year, while Wisconsin showed no change. Elsewhere in the Corn Belt reductions are: Michigan down 17 per cent; Illinois and Iowa down 15 per cent; Missouri down 13 per cent; Indiana and Minnesota down 10 per cent; Nebraska down six per cent; South Dakota down five per cent, and Ohio down three per cent.

In Oklahoma lambs on feed are up 33 per cent, and down nine per cent in Texas with all this decrease occuring in drylot feeding. There are more lambs on wheat pastures over the Great Plains than a year ago, the number of this being estimated at 196,000 head as compared with 111,000 head on Jan. 1, 1953.

The number of lambs on feed in Colorado, the leading western feeding state, is down 15 per cent from last year. Nearly all this decrease in Colorado occurred in the irrigated areas in the northern part of the state. It is estimated that 300,000 head are on feed in this area compared with 400,000 at this time last year. The Arkansas Valley shows a slight increase in the number on feed. In California, the second largest feeding state in the West, sheep and lambs on feed were estimated at 265,000 head, which is 23 per cent more than at the same time a year previously. A record of 208,000 are on feed in the Imperial Valley.

Lamb feeding in the North Platte Valley of Nebraska and Wyoming is below a year ago. Elsewhere in the West trends are extremely varied with New Mexico estimated to have 73 per cent more sheep and lambs on feed; Arizona up 14 per cent; Montana up six per cent; Wyoming and Utah up two per cent. The number of sheep and lambs on feed in Idaho was down 22 per cent; Nevada was down 20 per cent; Oregon down six per cent, and Washington down eight per cent.

On Jan. 1, 1954, Texas had 100,000 sheep and lambs on feed compared with 110,000 in 1953; 117,000 in 1952; 105,000 in 1951; 118,000 in 1950; 105,000 in 1949; 100,000 in 1948; 215,000 in 1947, and 175,000 in 1946.

Further information concerning the program can be obtained from the Recruiting Section in Building T-48.

SPORTS

Field Maintenance and Student Squadron continued their unbeaten basketball ways last week. Both undefeated quintets posted win No. 8 to remain co-owners of the Squadron Basketball League's top perch. A second half rally gave Field Maintenance a 41-30 decision over Medical Group and the Students trimmed 3560 Maintenance, 43-17.

Pace-setting Air Base Headquarters trimmed AACS, 3-1, but despite this triumph the AB keglers saw their slim Squadron Bowling League lead dwindle to one-half a game as second place Medical Group blanked 3561 Maintenance, 4-0.

The Turkeys blasted the Red Dogs, 4-0, to take over first place in Wednesday Bowling League pin blasting.

Pilot Training placed first in all five brackets of the minor sports agenda at Webb for January. PT athletes snared top honors in free throws, badminton, pool, table tennis singles, and table tennis doubles.

Jailers Warned Not To Be Too' Frisky'

DALLAS (AP)—Fifty jailers, from North Texas, here for a 3-day school, learned that "frisking" is all right for movie cops but risky for real police.

Inspector H. R. Swenson, U.S. Bureau of Prisons, told the jailers the best way to search a man is to strip him down. He proved it with demonstrations.

Howard Hughes 'Amazes Amazers' In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Houston, Hollywood and Las Vegas are three fabulous places. And the most fabulous citizen of each may well be Howard Hughes.

All unwillingly, if you listen to the friends who paint him as the shy, retiring type. Yet he's always doing things that get him in the papers.

What kind of man is this phantom, who sometimes acts like a throwback to the rugged individualists of another century?

Is he genius? Or an overgrown boy who toys with movie studios, and oil wells, and airplanes? Is he shrewd, ruthless, gentle all at once? Does he pinch pennies and toss away millions? Is he Hollywood's greatest off-screen lover? Is he, or isn't he, supereccentric in the Hollywood world where normal behavior is eccentric?

Let's try to smash through that small army of high-paid public relations men and executives who run interference for him.

No executive in the country, including the President, is harder to get to than Hughes via normal channels. It's amazing how many in Hollywood, including some of his high-priced help, never have seen the man.

Yet once you get to talk with him, he's easy-going, charming and courteous. And not too hard to find if you keep late hours.

Hughes, first of all, is a mechanical genius. It's not difficult to understand why. He is the son of a man who did almost as much as Henry Ford to roll America into the motor age.

His father invented the famous rock bit oil well drill with 166 cutting edges that chews through flint as easily as mud. With it, drillers all over the world first were able to strike the 16,000-foot depths that tapped unknown petroleum riches.

Howard was born in Houston but spent much of his childhood in Dallas. Serious, shy even then, his favorite toys were tools. Before he entered high school, he had invented a practical muffler for motorcycles, constructed his own hot rod of parts from automobile graveyards and monkeyed around with a steam automobile.

He was 19 when his father died in 1923. Hughes says that the government appraised the business at $650,000.

By 1949, when 75 per cent of the world's oil wells were drilled with Hughes equipment, it was worth better than 140 million. That's the price, according to the New York Times, that a Wall Street syndicate offered Hughes then. He didn't sell, for it's the fountain of income, estimated at better than three million yearly that juices Hughes' other enterprises—such as Trans World Airline, a Texas brewery, RKO Pictures, Hughes aircraft and others.

Hughes was educated at fashionable prep schools in Boston and Ojai, Calif., studied at California Institute of Technology and Rice Institute.

Pilots and mechanics around early California airfields recall Hughes as a reticent, boyish flier who never laughed much. In the air, he was a hell-on-wheels daredevil.

His interest in flying—and his millions—led to the filming in 1928 of "Hell's Angels," with air sequences which probably are the finest the screen has seen.

Hughes' passion for speed led to the founding of Hughes Aircraft in 1931, so he could design and fly his own ships. Long-time friends estimate he has made 30,000 take-offs and landings in every describable type of craft. His design included the first twin-boom fighter, later known as the Lockheed Lightning, and the big Constellation.

He first won international air prominence in 1935 when, with no advance fanfare, he wrested the ground speed record from France, going 352 m.p.h.

Two years later he took the same ship across country for a transcontinental record of 7 hours and 28 minutes. It stood until late in World War II.

The Russian government offered him big money for the plane but Hughes refused. A friend explains:

"Howard was and still is Hollywood's most violent anti-Communist."

Hughes' greatest air feat was the 1938 round-the-world flight. He and his crew made the trip in 91 hours, bettering by half the record of the late Wiley Post.

It was a typical Hughes operation, without fanfare.

His scientific devotion almost killed him in 1946 on the first flight of his XF11, a highly experimental plane reputed at that time to be the fastest long-range craft built. He knew for 25 seconds ahead of time that the ship was going to crash but with a designer's curiousity he loosened his safety belt, inspected the plane and convinced himself that the right propeller was causing the trouble. Then he tried to pancake it on a golf course.

Instead, he hit three homes and a garage.

His chest and left lung crushed, skull fractured, nine ribs broken, burned, bruised, shocked, he was given little chance to live.

The next day he summoned two aides to the hospital and wanted to conduct business as usual. A horrified doctor stationed a deputy sheriff outside his door with orders to admit no one but doctors and nurses.

Hovering between life and death, Hughes asked the doctor to deliver a message to the military that the propeller caused the crash.

"Tell them to study it," Hughes gasped. "I don't want this to happen to anyone else."

Soon he improved enough to find fault with his hospital bed and design a new one, ordering his engineers to build it immediately.

"We were amazed," said one hospital official. "If he had flown that bed out of the hospital, I wouldn't have been surprised."

Among his get-well messages was one from President Truman. Enclosed was the Congressional Medal awarded Hughes five years earlier for his round-the-world flight. He never had bothered to pick it up.

Ideas For Changes In State Criminal Laws Are Asked

DALLAS (AP) — Suggestions for changes in Texas' criminal laws are being asked of district attorneys in the state.

State Rep. Tom King of Dallas said yesterday he had written every district attorney in Texas regarding needed changes. The solon said he would compile answers he receives and present them to the State Legislative Council.

The council studies proposed legislation between sessions and makes recommendations to the Legislature. King is a member of the council.

The economic growth of Texas, King said in his letter to the district attorneys, has brought criminals in from other states to cause a general crime increase.

He said there appeared no doubt that charges in criminal and bail bond laws should be made to aid enforcement agencies in combating crime.

Coffee Price Is Going Up

By The Associated Press

The next pound of coffee you buy may cost as much as $1.15.

Some grocery stores in Houston reported prices that high Tuesday while Dallas grocers predicted prices up to $1.05 per pound.

Wherever you live the price increase will strike you...if you or your family drink coffee.

Damaging frosts in Brazil, one of the chief coffee-growing countries, plus increased consumption in the United States, get the blame for the rise in prices.

Meanwhile, the price boost was encountering rumblings of buyer resistance. A Houston grocery said, "a lot of our customers are saying they just won't buy any more coffee."

Joe Weingarten, chairman of the board of a supermarket chain, advised the public to drink less coffee as a means of forcing prices down.

"I wouldn't say people should quit drinking coffee," Weingarten said, "but I think people can use less. And I think they will if prices pinch too much.

"Prices will continue to go up until everybody shouts 'I've had enough,'" he added.

Dallas grocers said a 5-cent per pound rise in wholesale prices over the week end made a pound of coffee cost the stores $1 to $1.02½. The same prices prevail over much of Texas, they said.

Wholesale prices on roasted coffee have risen about 11 cents per pound in a month. Green coffee has jumped 14 cents a pound.

Rivet Heater Will Wed 23 Floors Up

DENVER (AP)—So the bride can "see what kind of work I do," Max A. (Pappy) Wilk and his lady fair will rivet bonds of matrimony Jan. 31 atop the 23rd floor of the Denver Club building, now under construction.

Pappy, 55, is a rivet heater on the project. The bride-to-be is Mrs. Mary Varnell, 52, an Alamosa, Colo., widow.

Their decision to get married atop the building came on the spur of the moment. "Some of the guys on the job dared me to do it," said Wilk. "I called her long distance and told her it was up to her. She said all right."

Teen-Agers' Trek To Florida Fizzles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Finding the weather "sort of miserable," two teen-agers left Boston Tuesday morning with plans to spend the winter in Florida.

By nightfall they had hitchhiked their way to Baltimore, where police found them almost broke at the YMCA. They said they left home with $3 apiece, but had spent the money for food.

The boys were bedded down in police headquarters while authorities contacted relatives about the sunshine seekers.

Unemployed Man's Wife Bears Twins

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mrs. John Robinson, 41, Choctaw, wife of an unemployed oil field truck driver, gave birth to her 16th and 17th children Tuesday.

The girls were her first set of twins, and she was highly pleased.

"Big families are easier to raise than small ones," she said.

A Bible Thought For Today—

"Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this." — Esther 4:14. Many wise men have held that the Infinite plans very far ahead. God might use us for a great work if we were willing to be guided.

Reliance Upon Single Source Of Power May Create 'Maginot' Line

Addressing the Council of Foreign Relations in New York this week Secretary of State Dulles, among other things, declared that the Eisenhower administration has made a basic decision to rely upon "massive retaliatory power for security of the United States and the free world."

That isn't news of course, for other administration leaders, including the President himself, have said the same thing in one way or another.

"Massive retaliatory power" means plenty of atomic or H-bombs with a Strategic Air Force capable of delivering them anywhere in the world. Up to a point, this concept of national security tallies with the policy inaugurated with creation of the Defense Department several years ago, which called for a "balanced establishment with Strategic Air Power as the first line of defense.

This new policy is different, in that it means serious cutbacks in the Army and an equal or greater cutback in the Navy. What was a balanced defense would become an unbalanced defense.

Under this policy, there is a danger of creating in this country an atomic Maginot Line, of putting all our eggs in one basket. Undoubtedly a powerful SAC with an abundance of bombs and planes is necessary as a deterrent to aggression, and as an immediate retaliatory weapon in case of war.

But if we concentrate on this single weapon, and eventually the world should reach agreement on the outlawing of atomic weapons, what then? We would have dissipated or gravely weakened our Army and Navy, which take a long time to rebuild, and we'd have nothing left save an emasculated Air Force if we should become a party to the outlawing of atomic weapons.

Another question: Does not our dependence and emphasis upon atomic defenses preclude any possibility of a future world accord proscribing atomic warfare?

These are questions, it seems to us, that Congress should weigh with the greatest care before consenting to do away with much of our well balanced military potential.

How About Standardizing Gadgets To Avoid Confusion Of Motorists?

President Ralph Thomas of the American Automobile Association is pretty well fed up with the situation which results in a multitude of control positions and markings that have come along with atuomatic transmissions. He is "pretty well convinced that only an advanced scholar, automotive engineer or someone versed in identifying government 'alphabet agencies'" can figure it all out.

He was complaining, of course, of the alphabet-soup system automobile makers pursue in fixing level positions and identifying letters employed with automatic transmissions. No two systems, it seems, are alike, and the initial letters brought into play run almost the whole gamut of the alphabet.

Mr. Thomas thinks the American motorist is entitled to a simplification if not a standardization, of these gadgets—not in their fundamental working parts, but in the irreducible minimum of manipulation required to make them percolate.

It seems to us the levers and lever-positions and the identifying letters have been steadily growing in the direction of confusion and complication, while the automatic transmissions themselves may be just as steadily improving in efficiency and simplicity.

Perhaps the trouble is the desire to be different. Manufacturers seek to make their product look different and better than competing items. Salesmen like to have talking points, slogans and something new and better to impress the buyer.

There was a time in America when every railroad had its own width of track, before the present standard was mutually agreed to. There was a time, as late as the 1880s, when every railroad, city and state had its own time system, so that nobody in New York knew what time it was in San Francisco. Time was standardized everywhere—until daylight saving time was invented to the confusion of everybody.

Auto-makers finally got round to standardizing the old conventional gearshift, except that some put the lever on the steering post and some kept it on the floor out of sheer conservatism or stubborness. Maybe they can get together on Mr. Thomas' suggestion for uniformity.

Delays In Congress Holding Up Progress On Important Issues

Ours is a continuous government in the sense that a new administration continues the policies of its predecessor until, with the consent of Congress, they are replaced.

The pollsters reporting that Eisenhower remains popular, doubt that the Republicans can hold their tiny majority in Congress. For the Republicans, a defeat in 1954 could be preferable to the present status in which they are held responsible while being in a minority in the Senate with a bare majority in the House of Representatives.

If Eisenhower is to be able to function effectively, he needs a Republican majority in the Congress. Our system requires two parties and that the President should belong to one of them. A bipartisan President is not in the American system and efforts to establish such an order must fail and add to our confusion.

No pollster, by whatever mathematical formula, can in January estimate what the people will do at the polls in November. Nor is any one of them so prophetic as to be able to foretell the course of events, not only in the United States but throughout the world, during the next ten months. Therefore, the pollsters' guesses, implemented by adding machines, means no more than yours or mine.

It is true that Eisenhower was elected on the slogan, "It is time for a change." Whether the voters meant a change in personalities or policies, they did not give the new President a Congress sufficiently of his own partisanship to make such a change immediately effective. If it was to be a change in personalities, he found himself hampered by phony civil service politics and the really important veterans preferences.

In the area of changing policies, Eisenhower could take the initiative. But his inheritance of more than 20 years of expanding government, exorbitant taxes, profligate expenditures and a confusing pursuit of improvised policies, often conflicting, burdened him with continuing responsibilities which he had to pursue while planning changes. This is in the nature of a paradox, normal to our system.

For the second session of the 83rd Congress, President Eisenhower has presented a systematic program designed to attack some of the problems facing this nation such as the excessive cost of government, the modernization of the armed services, the rationalization of farm prices, etc. How much of his program will be passed by the time the November elections take place, nobody at the moment can tell.

Valuable time can be wasted in Congress. This might best be exemplified in the recent attempt to create an impasse over Senator Joe McCarthy. It was a wholly unrealistic diversion that could have postponed the consideration of the Eisenhower program by a month. It failed.

And now another little business is developing over the effort of the Democratic Senators, who walked out of the subcommittee on Investigations, to return to it without loss of face. The are very anxious to return and are negotiating secretly and indirectly to get back, but on conditions which even if McCarthy were to agree to them would be meaningless except for face-saving. The only sensible procedure for them is to walk in through the same door that they walked out of. They would prefer for McCarthy to send them gold-plated invitations, which he is not called upon to do. Senator Carl Hayden is trying to make a fuss over this, but he can accomplish nothing except to delay the Eisenhower program to the disadvantage of the country.

Another confusing factor is the Bricker Amendment, which the people want but which the President and the State Department do not want. Public opinion is so insistent on the passage of the Bricker Amendment that the opposition to it may lose a month of time, if not more. Failure to pass the Bricker Amendment may effectively split the Republican Party at a critical moment when all elements in it seek union behind the Eisenhower program.

It is unfortunate that so strong an opposition to the Bricker Amendment manifests itself in the White House because after Congress passes it, the proposal must go to 48 state legislatures for acceptance before it can become law. Why tie up Congress this year over it, when the battle for or against it must still be fought in the state legislatures? After all, if its opponents fear immediate ratification by the state legislatures, are they not opposing the people's will?

Joint Statehood Bill For Both Hawaii And Alaska Gives Eisenhower Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a while it seemed President Eisenhower might be able to steer Hawaii into statehood without too much trouble. Then a member of his own party, Sen. Dworshak of Idaho, rocked the boat.

For more than 15 years congressional committees have batted around the question of letting the territories of Hawaii and Alaska become states. The Senate has been the bottleneck.

The House gave approval for Hawaii three times, in 1947, 1950 and 1953, and for Alaska once, in 1950. The Senate, never for either.

Democrats and Republicans have talked about statehood for both territories for years, but most of the time in such weasel-words in their campaign platforms as favoring statehood "eventually."

In 1948 the Democrats got bold and favored "immediate" statehood for both. But former President Truman couldn't get the Democratic-controlled Congress to carry through. In their 1952 platform the Democrats repeated themselves.

In that year, with Eisenhower heading the ticket, the Republicans came out for "immediate" statehood for Hawaii but, for Alaska, admission, presumably not so speedily, under an enabling act.

Ironically enough, in the 1952 elections Alaska, Democratic for years, elected a Republican Legislature while in Hawaii, traditionally Republican, the Democrats made gains.

As soon as he got into the White Housse, Eisenhower asked his Republican-controlled Congress to let Hawaii into the Union.

The House okayed a statehood bill for Hawaii. But not the Senate. It was supposed to act this year. Two weeks ago Eisenhower again urged Hawaiian statehood, and again passed over Alaska.

If the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee sent up a bill on Hawaii alone, it might get quick action and might even pass the Senate. If then an Alaska bill came up later, or separately, Alaska would probably be pushed aside.

But if the committee sent up one bill combining Hawaii and Alaska, neither might get approval, since some senators want statehood for Alaska and some don't and there'd be a general mixup and maybe stalemate.

This week the committee, on which the Republicans have a majority, took up the question.

Before the voting, this was the outlook: only one Republican, Sen. Malone of Nevada, and all the Democrats — except Sen. Long of Louisiana, who had committed himself to Hawaii — favored a combined Hawaii-Alaska bill; and all the other Republicans would go for a single bill on Hawaii.

But the vote when it came — it was 8-7 — was for a combined bill. Dworshak had voted with Malone and the Democrats. Why? He said later: "To force a showdown. This statehood thing has been kicking around since the year one."

Unless the full Senate itself separates the two territories when it gets the bill, Hawaii's chances of statehood this year don't look too good. Alaska this year, as last year, seems to have no chance at all.

So Eisenhower, who got his first victory this week with Senate approval of the St. Lawrence seaway, got his first real bump of 1954 on the statehood bill.

This Day In Texas

By CURTIS BISHOP

The action of the Texas Legislature on this day in 1850 may have precluded a small civil war within the Lone Star domain.

The Legislature passed an act guaranteeing settlers within the so-called "Peters Colony" possession of their lands.

The territory involved was in the Dallas area, and trouble arose as the result of a contract with the Texas Agricultural, Commercial and Manufacturing Company and the Republic of Texas for the introduction of settlers with the company to receive bounty lands—very much the same contract as was closed between Mexico and early American empresarios such as Stephen F. Austin.

Two factors caused the complication. First, Texans were tired of such contracts. Second the company made an unfortuante choice of Henry O. Hedgecox as an agent.

"Squatters" started moving in and defied company authorities. Clashes resulted in the Legislature guaranteeing to all men of family 640 acres and to single men 320 acres. The company considered this a breach of contract and started to sue for over a million dollars. A compromise was effected, by which the company received 1,700 sections of land, but this did not appease the settlers who had pushed in without a "by-your-leave" from the empresario. A small riot resulted, but without effect. The company located its sections in Throckmorton, Young, Jack, Shackleford, Stephens, Palo Pinto, Parker and Montague Counties.

This was one of the last empresario contracts issued by the Republic of Texas.

New Atom-Powered Sub Is Really Swish Inside

NEW YORK (AP)—If you were fitting out a new submarine, what kind of pictures would you hang on the walls?

This was one of the problems faced by a commercial designing firm called in by the U.S. Navy to make the Nautilus, the world's first atom-powered submarine, a comfortable underwater home for the sailors who man her.

"We thought pictures of peaceful country scenes would be more restful," said Walter P. Margulies, partner in the firm of Lippincott and Margulies. "But some Navy men figured pictures of famous fighting ships would be more inspiring.

"No final decision has been made."

The Nautilus is able to stay submerged for two months and sail around the world in that time. But men in close quarters often get on each other's nerves, and fighting efficiency falls off with lowered morale.

What does the Nautilus have that John Paul Jones lacked aboard his ships?

"Well, the crew quarters on sailing vessels in the 18th Century were only about 4½ feet high," said Margulies. "In the Nautilus there are separate decks for the officers and crew, and plenty of room to stand upright.

"The mess hall has yellow walls and red seats. Each sailor has a fluorescent bed lamp, and he sleeps on a foam rubber matress. He can sit up without bumping his head on the bunk above him, and the men don't have to sleep nose-to-toe as in the old days.

"There are outlets for electric razors, showers, a phonograph with plenty of records, a movie projection machine, and library shelves. Each man has a personal locker by his bunk, instead of a duffle bag. There is even a place inside the locker compartment where he can hang a picture of his favorite pinup girl—and keep her to himself.

"Paying attention to human needs pays off in higher morale, and we have only scratched the surface so far in making fighting machinery more adaptable to the men who fight with it."

Despite The Atomic Age, Navy Officers Take Up Sword Again

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

They call this the atom age, but the Navy is going back to the bow-and-arrow era.

Seems like the last 10 or 12 years have gotten the best of tradition, protocol and whatever else sets the pattern for brass behavior. But that's all over now, and the nation's defenders are going to get back to being gentlemen.

More "spit and polish," the highbrows have ordered. So Navy officers are taking up the sword again. The ancient weapon will be a standard item of dress, a "must" for regular officers.

And that ain't all. At official ceremonies, Navy officers soon will be looking like Russian field marshals. A regulation now being circulated says that officers will wear their large official medals on the "full dress" uniform. Previously, small ribbons have been sufficient to signify that the wearer had qualified for such-and-such a medal.

Officers' swords have been traditional in the U. S. Navy ever since there has been a naval force. They used to carry them to fight with (remember John Paul Jones), but later on the weapon degenerated into an item of dress.

Then, when World War II broke out, everybody got busy trying to win and swords were dropped as something that got in the way. Now with the shooting suspended, brassy thinking has returned to tradition.

Reason given for picking up the sword is that it will restore "certain prestige" to the officer rank. Carried in a black scabbard with gold braided rope and a knot, the sword will be worn on such occasions as captain's inspection, change of command, parades and official calls on warships of other nations.

As a result, the cost of living is going up for Navy families. Each officer has to purchase his own sword getup, and it costs about $50 a throw.

The new regulation probably will expand the plastics industry for America, too. Up to now, practically all swords are imported from England. But since they're not going to be used for anything, toymakers can forge vinylite swords for the Navy.

Complaints On Patronage Still Source Of Trouble For Regime

WASHINGTON — Beneath the polite platitudes about party harmony, a rumble of Republican discontent can be heard without benefit of any hearing device. Old-line Republicans simply do not like the Eisenhower program.

But there is another source of unhappiness. That is patronage. Republican national committeemen out in the country want to know why more jobs have not been available to hand out to the faithful who have waited so long for the dawning of a new Republican day.

Their discontent is reflected in the snappish behavior of members of Congress and party leaders in Washington who must deal with this discontent in an election year. Most department heads are under continuing pressure to "turn the rascals out"—or more of the rascals at any rate—to make way for good Republicans.

The pressure has been particularly severe on the Department of State. Old Guard Senators growl that Secretary Dulles has not gone nearly far enough in reversing the foreign policy of past years. And why hasn't he, they want to know. They're ready with the answer—because all those New Dealers, or worse, are still down there making policy. An interview with one of these pillars of the old order goes approximately as follows:

Question: You are really convinced, Senator, that these people down below the assistant secretaries are making policy? Or at any rate fixing it so that new policies cannot be implemented?

Answer: Why, I certainly am! Do you know how many people in policy-making jobs have been removed in the State Department? Twenty-seven! Just 27 out of 5,000.

Question: Aren't most of those people in the career service specialists in their jobs? Could you replace them with anybody?

Answer: We can find plenty of good people who have a Republican point of view. Somebody said to me the other day that firing maybe as many as 500 over there at State would be just like a new chief of staff of the Army coming in and firing all the officers of the rank of colonel and above. That's the bunk! There isn't any comparison there at all.

Question: But how does this influence work? These career people are a pretty cautious lot.

Answer: I'll tell you how it works. Take Walter Robertson. He was made Assistant Secretary for the Far East, and he's a good man trying to do a good job. But they haven't cleaned out under him. So who does the research that he has to base his decisions on? Why, those carry-overs from the Truman-Acheson time.

That is a sample of the hot breath down the neck of the State Department. Out of his long experience in foreign policy, Secretary Dulles is well aware of the importance of continuity. He knows that a great and responsible nation cannot abruptly pull a switch and reverse the policies of years in response to a political change. He knows that technical skills are required in almost the same degree as in the armed services and that a specialist cannot be replaced by a deserving party worker or contributor without damaging the machine on which much depends.

Some interesting questions are raised by this pressure for patronage. One may ask how far it is to go. Before the career foreign service was established most diplomatic posts, including consulates, were political plums. And too often America was represented by indifferent party hacks.

In a recent magazine article a former employe of the Economic Cooperation Administration tells how "I rode Uncle Sam's gravy train." The author apparently feels that the salary, the perquisites and privileges he received while working for ECA in Denmark were unnecessary and undeserved. The implication is that all Americans working for the government abroad are having a high old time at the taxpayer's expense. And presumably the whole business had best be abolished and the sooner the better.

Unquestionably many Americans set out merely to ride the gravy train in some pleasant foreign capital. But there are also thousands of hard-working civil servants who work long hours under difficult circumstances. In a letter of protest to the magazine editor six former officials of ECA, all now in much better paying private jobs, say that they had never worked so hard as they did for ECA in Europe.

One may ask whether the patronage hunters are looking for seats on the gravy train or whether they have a genuine interest in finding qualified men and women for responsible positions. The career civil servant has taken a terrible beating of late. A little more of it and he may become a vanishing species.

Excelsior . . .

Newspapers get letters from their readers every once in a while, and the letters usually are appreciated, because each indicates that something in the paper has aroused enough interest in someone to write a letter.

A cartoonist for a newspaper was paid a superior compliment in such a letter recently. The writer of the letter said he feared that cartoons such as those he had seen in the paper would "start people to thinking."

The telephone company is still having its troubles with various municipalities, but one complaint lodged recently must have been somewhat refreshing. It didn't concern rates or service.

The complaint was made in a city of the Deep South where the citizenry suddenly became concerned over the names assigned to some of the telephone exchanges. It was pointed out that the company even had the audacity to name one exchange "Union."

That's a wrong number, suh.

Not So Intellectual

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Harvard may be noted for its culture but the most popular books with students and faculty are murder mysteries, according to Robert H. Haynes, assistant at Harvard's huge Widener Library.

"At any particular time," Haynes says, "one or maybe two thousand murder mysteries are out of the library."

Uncle Ray's Corner

Wiley Post Was Record Breaker

Today I wish to speak mainly about Wiley Post, an early round-the-world flyer, but first let me mention others who were ahead of him in performing the deed.

Thirty years ago, six men in planes of the United States Army made the pioneer round-the-world airplane trips. They were Lieut. Lowell Smith, Lieut. Leslie Arnold, Lieut. Leigh Wade, Sgt. Henry Ogden, Lieut. Eric Nelson, and Lieut. John Harding.

All six of those aviators flew by way of Alaska and Asia, and later across the Atlantic. The distance flown was above 27,000 miles.

Other aviators, including Kingsford-Smith an Australian, made round-the-world trips.

Wiley Post, an American, became interested in aviation during his boyhood. He wanted ever so much to have his own airplane, and in his young manhood he obtained one. It would be almost an exact fact to say that he gave one of his eyes for a plane. While he was in a Texas oil field, he lost his left eye when struck by a metal chip. He was awarded $2,000 in damages, and with this money he bought his first airplane.

Soon afterward Post won public notice because of his parachute jumps. He made almost 100 leaps.

In 1931 Post joined Harold Gatty, and flew around the world. The flight set a new record of eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Wiley Post made the trip again—this time alone. Aboard the same airplane, the "Winnie Mae," he flew from New York to Germany, then to Russia, Alaska and Canada, Speeding to New York, he landed after seven days, 18 hours and 49 minutes of travel.

The life of this aviator ended four years later when he crashed in Alaska. With him died Will Rogers, writer and humorist.

Tomorrow: Crossing the Atlantic.

MRS. ELDON APPLETON

HD Club Member Gives Two Snappy Recipes

As a busy housewife, City Home Demonstration Club member, Mrs. Eldon Appleton has lots of practical and delicious recipes. Two of her favorites are given here today. They are not connected in any way, but both are easy.

Besides cooking, Mrs. Appleton likes sewing and crocheting. And in her HD Club she has learned to make handsome aluminum trays on which she etches a design. Her latest is a huge circular one that will be a perfect wall decoration when finished.

Two active boys, Rex, 6, and Van, 11; membership in her HD club, the Philathea Class of the First Methodist Church and a P-TA take a good deal of Mrs. Appleton's time. It's no wonder she likes this salad.

PINK SALAD

Ingredients:

2 packages cream cheese
½ pint whipping cream
½ jar pineapple cheese spread
1 No. 2½ can sliced pineapple (diced)
Small jar maraschino cherries
1 dozen marshmallows (cubed)
½ cup chopped pecans

Method:

Drain pineapple; cream cheeses together and add cherry juice to right consistency. Add whipped cream, marshmallows, pineapple and other ingredients. Place in ice box and chill.

With cabbage coming into season crisp cole slaw will be turning up on the menu. Mrs. Appleton suggests this dressing to make it even more delicious.

COLE SLAW DRESSING

Ingredients:

1-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon powdered mustard
Pinch celery seed
1 egg
Pinch of salt

Method:

Mix and cook until thick. Will keep indefinitely.

Menu For A Bride Is Good For Everyone

You're a young bride and it's time to invite your folks to dinner again. When you ask them, Pop will probably make his usual speech: "No need to get stylish for us. Never liked dishes that put on airs anyway. Just make plain food taste good!"

Young Madam, here's your menu. Roast loin of pork, crispy and brown. Orange-gold yams and apple rings. Green beans. Then if you can't resist being just a tiny bit fancy, we suggest sprigs of parsley for the pork, crunchy pecans with the yam and apple dish, and thin lemon slices to give the beans tang and because their pale yellow looks so pretty against the green.

Let's start with the pork loin. Buy a rib end of about five pounds—allowing about one-half pound for each serving. Have your meat man saw the backbone free from the rib and other bones to make your groom's carving life easy.

If you want to shop for your dinner party ahead, it's perfectly safe to store the roast in your refrigerator for several days. Just unwrap it when it comes from the meat market, then rewrap it loosely in waxed paper.

When you are ready to roast the pork, rub it with salt, using about one half teaspoon to a pound of meat. Sprinkle lightly with pepper, using fresly-ground pepper if you have a mill. Place the roast fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Do not cover, and do not add water—you want your meat to roast, not steam. Roast in a slow (325F) oven about three hours and fifteen minutes—if Pop likes his meat well done. If you have a meat thermometer, insert it through the fat side into the center of the roast; don't let the tip end of the thermometer touch bone. When the thermometer registers 185F you'll have well-done pork.

And now to the yams. If you're buying them several days ahead store them in a dry place—not hot, not cold. Don't put them in the refrigerator. The recipe for our special yam apple and pecan casserole follows.

If you use fresh snap beans snip off the ends, scrub them in cold water, and leave them whole. Cook at the last minute, in a small amount of boiling lightly salted water, to the degree of doneness your family likes—tender-crisp or really soft. You can use canned whole beans.

Drain the hot beans — fresh-cooked or canned — stir in a big lump of butter until it melts and add a small squeeze of lemon juice; garnish with thin lemon slices.

For dessert? If you can make a creditable layer cake, go ahead! If not, buy two layers of sponge cake, fill them with membrane-free orange sections and a layer of whipped cream; frost the top with more whipped cream and sprinkle with chocolate shot. Or if your family are weight-watchers have a compote of fresh fruit. Serve coffee family-style in big cups and Pop will have no complaints!

YAM AND APPLE SCALLOP

Ingredients:

8 medium-sized yams
4 medium-sized apples (cored but unpeeled and cut in rings)
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup pecans
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace
¼ cup butter or margarine

Method:

Cook yams in covered saucepan in boiling salted water until almost tender—about 25 minutes. Peel and cut yams into lengthwise slices about ½-inch thick. Arrange layers of half of yam slices, apple slices, brown sugar, pecans, salt and mace in a buttered 2-quart casserole. Dot with half the butter or margarine. Cover and bake in moderate (350F) oven 50 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

How To Do Scalloped Succotash

Scalloped succotash is a good baked vegetable dish.

SCALLOPED SUCCOTASH

Ingredients:

2 tablespoons diced pimiento
3 tablespoons melted margarine or butter
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup milk
½ cup coarse cracker crumbs
½ cup buttered cracker crumbs

Methdd:

To cooked succotash add pimiento, butter or margarine, mustard, salt and pepper. Mix well. Beat egg, add milk and half-cup cracker crumbs. Mix into succotash. Pour into well-greased shell baking dish, or into six individual bakers. Sprinkle buttered crumbs on top. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 30 minutes, or until set and top is browned.

Be sure to hang your dishcloths and dish towels where they will dry well before you use them again. When you launder them, the use of a bottled bleach in the wash water, will help you keep them a good color.

Sticky Buns Are A Tasty Family Treat

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

My family loves these sticky buns !I think yours will, too.

This good hot bread calls for easy-to-use biscuit mix plus cream for super richness. Dot the dough with spoons of the iron-rich molasses filling, then spread evenly and lightly, so you get just enough of the wonderful sweet goo in each bun. The even spreading helps when you come to roll and cut the dough.

I found the muffin pans whose wells each hold one-third cup a little small for these buns, because their filling tends to bubble over. So use a large-cup muffin pan.

STICKY BUNS

Ingredients:

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
½ cup dark molasses
½ cup currants (rinsed in hot water and drained and dried on a towel)
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup milk
3 cups prepared biscuit mix
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup heavy cream
½ cup milk

Method:

Melt butter in small saucepan; remove ffom heat and let pan cool. Mix in ½ cup sugar, molasses, currants and walnuts. Stir biscuit mix and 3 tablespoons sugar together in bowl. Mix cream and milk; stir into mix thoroughly with fork. Knead *10 times on floured board. Roll out to rectangle 16 by 10 by ¼ inches. Spoon molasses mixture over dough, spreading lightly and evenly. Roll up as for jelly roll, starting at longest edge. Cut into 12 equal slices. Place in 12 well buttered large muffin cups. Bake in moderate (375F) oven 20 minutes. Let cool in pans about 3 minutes; loosen with spatula and remove. Scrape up any sticky filling in bottom of cups and spread on bottom of buns. Serve hot with butter or margarine.

Important How You Store Your Meats

Your meat dollar is an important item in the food budget. Protect your investment by proper care of the meats you buy. Here are some pointers to remember in storing prepackaged (self-service) meats:

All meats should be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator immediately upon your return from the store.

Prepackaged smoked or cured meats and packaged sausage may be stored in the original wrapper. However, prepackaged fresh meats should have the wrapper loosened at both ends before refrigeration.

If small cuts of fresh meats are not to be used within a few days, they may be frozen. Remove the self-service wrapper and rewrap in special freezer paper. Although zero storage is preferable, fresh meats may be frozen in the freezing section of the refrigerator if they are used within one week.

This Is Two E's Dinner

This two E's dinner—easy and economical—is one you'll want to serve often. Pork shoulder steaks, one of the thriftiest pork buys, are baked with a colorful vegetable-rice topping and served with buttered green peas.

PORK STEAK STACKS

Ingredients:

4 pork shoulder steaks
Salt, pepper, flour
1 cup cooked rice (1-3 cup uncooked)
4 slices tomato (½ inch thick)
4 slices onion (¼ inch thick)
4 teaspoons chopped green pepper
Marjoram, thyme (optional)
1 can sliced mushrooms (optional)

Method:

Trim a little fat from edges of the pork steaks and fry out in a large skillet. Remove pieces. Sprinkle steaks with salt and pepper; flour and brown in the hot fat. Remove steaks to a roasting pan. On each steak, place ¼ cup cooked rice, 1 slice tomato, 1 slice onion and 1 teaspoon green pepper. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, marjoram and thyme. Top with well drained mushrooms and add water to cover bottom of pan. Cover and bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour. Add more water as needed. Baste steaks several times during cooking with liquid in bottom of pan. Serve with some of the drippings spooned over meat and vegetables. 4 servings.

California Official Has Health Proposal

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Goodwin J. Knight advocates voluntary private health insurance plans written like $50 or $100 deductible auto collision policies.

If private insurance companies can't handle the load alone, he told his news conference Tuesday, he favors setting up a non-competing state medical insurance fund which would offer policies on a strictly voluntary basis.

He said his idea was a better solution than President Eisenhower's proposal for a system of government re-insurance of private medical plans.

THE GRUB LINE

With Franklin Reynolds

(Part two of the Grub Line history of cigarette fiends and snipe-shooting chippies.)

Ever smoke a Milo cigarette?

About the time that women started worrying the Grub Line Rider, Milos were the hot stuff, and if you could get a date with a girl you, and she hadn't completely fallen from the community's grace, you were really wading through the horseradish and cutting the mustard.

They came ten to a little purple box with a lid that lifted up. The paper out of which the box was made had a velvety touch and the cigarettes, made by blending domestic and Turkish tobaccos, had gold tips, and hottest of all were violet-scented. They made you irresistible to women, if you could get the woman to smoke them. Any man in possession of them was considered a tom-catting rounder on the prowl.

Hot ziggety dog! Ishkabibble! I should worry! Chicken Inspector 23! There ain't no flies on me! I love my wife but oh you kid! That was the hep talk in the Milo days.

Ordinary cigarettes in those days like Camels, Sweet Caporals, Home Run, Old Mill, Picayune, Chesterfield, and Piedmont were bad enough. Loaded with nothing more harmful than the light tobaccos from Virginia and the Carolinas, or maybe blended with some of the black small-leafed tobacco from Louisiana, they were coffin nails and you immediately lost all control of your morals if you smoked one of them. But those Milos, why they were even deadlier than Fatimas and Sovereigns and Melachrinos, which carried a rather heavy blend of the tobacco imported from Turkey.

Some of the commoner American cigarettes, like those first enumerated above, could be bought ten for a nickel, or twenty for a dime. The others, the more deadly and devasting ones came a little higher. As I recall it took two-bits to round up a box of Milos, but the impression they made for a young fellow was worth a million dollars. They indicated he had his mind made up for the day.

Down through the years smokers have seen many brands of cigarettes come and go with a few of the old faithfuls apparently plodding on forever. The first massed produced cigarettes I can remember were Sweet Caporals, Piedmonts and Home Runs. I particularly liked the Piedmonts because they were made with straight Virginia and Carolina tobacco without any Turkish blend and were, therefore, more like Bull Durham than any other tailor-made.

I hadn't seen a Piedmont since well before World War II until a couple of years ago when I found Willard Sullivan of the Settles Drug was selling them and smoking them. They've always been his favorite and they're still being manufactured.

Now what about those cigarettes that were so heavily loaded with Turkish tobacco like the Fatimas, the Sovereigns, the Melachrinos? It is to be kept in mind that in their day this particular type of cigarette was the worst of the whole caboodle when it came to destroying moral fibre and health. Weren't they filled with Turkish tobacco, and didn't Turkish tobacco come from Turkey, and didn't Turks have harems, and weren't harems full of veiled women? That was the argument. The implication was that these cigarettes made men want more than one woman, even if the one might be his lawfully wedded wife. And another cigarette in this class was the Omar, that came in a bluish-grey wrapper.

What happened to these most terrible cigarettes? Nothing, except that the people quit smoking them. American cigarette smokers made a more pleasant smoke with just a light pinch of Turkish, than when loaded with a heavy charge of the imported stuff that just simply dissolved morals like a snowball vanishes on a hot stove.

Today you may be able to get cigarettes called Fatima or Omar or Sovereign, I don't know about that, but I do know they'll be more like the average cigarette than like they used to be. If one, or a million, of them ever transformed any man's moral character I never heard about it.

Then there was another type of cigarette once quite popular in this country. This was the "English" cigarette, such as the Pall Mall and the Herbert Tareyton. Both these brands are on the market today but both have been Americanized. As a smoker I have learned one thing—the English blend the best aromatic pipe tobacco and the worst cigarettes in the world.

World War I popularized American cigarettes in England and destroyed the popularity of English cigarettes in America.

Both these cigarettes and another quite similar and known as Lord Salisbury, came in hinged top boxes, and all three were cork tipped. The Pall Malls came in two different sizes, a sort of "king size" and the regular, and the Pall Mall box was red with two layers of cigarettes, ten to the layer. The Tareytons came in a white box, and I can't recall the color of the Salisbury box, but it was probably green. These cigarettes were quite fashionable, and the thing I recall most distinctly about the Herbert Tareyton was that a cup of Arbuckle's coffee could be sweetened with one of them, the tobacco had been impregnated with so much molasses.

But through all this a very high proportion of all the cigarettes smoked were rolled from Bull Durham, Stud, Duke's Mixture, Buffalo, Tuxedo, Prince Albert, Velvet (remember Velvet Joe, the philosopher), Country Gentleman and other similar tobaccos with a wide range of colorful and picturesque names. And through all this too, there were lots of cuspidors at all strategic indoor spots.

'Special Delivery' Call Costs $4,000

DENVER (AP) — Two masked bandits bound and gagged a wealthy wholesale liquor operator, his wife, daughter and the family maid and escaped with loot totaling nearly $4,000 Tuesday night.

Police said the bandits gained admittance to the home of Joseph Zerobnick by ringing the doorbell and shouting, "Special delivery."

Once inside, police said, they carefully bound and gagged Zerobnick, manager of the Midwest Liquor Co., his wife Goldie, a daughter Natalie, 12, and the maid, Rita Thompson.

Zerobnick said he attempted to hide his billfold under a footstool but a gunman grabbed it. It contained $3,000, he told officers.

The two also took a $350 diamond ring from Zerobnick, a $500 diamond ring from his wife and $20 from her purse.

Texas Town's Post Officials Face Ouster

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—Edwin M. Lockey, postmaster here 17 years, says he has been notified he may be dismissed because of irregularities of a technical nature.

He said he and Supt. of Mails Ben J. Walker were given 30-day notice of proposed dismissal and assistant postmaster Seaborn C. Teems was given a 5-day notice. All were on grounds of irregularities.

Lockey said the irregularities included use of forms on hand that have been changed slightly but which he continued to use to save money.

He said a letter from L. E. Schwoerke, postoffice inspector, advised him to answer charges of irregularities within five days and that after at least 30 days "it is proposed to separate you from your position or take other disciplinary action."

Lockey said it seemed useless to try to answer the 25 charges item by item "because no post office in the country could possibly comply with every regulation in the book." Ninety per cent of the alleged irregularities, he said, related to regulations never before called to the attention of local postal officials.

Rosenberg Attorney To Fight Disbarment

NEW YORK (AP)—The attorney for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg says he will defend himself against disbarment proceedings and claims his record is unblemished.

The lawyer, Emanuel H. Bloch, faces the disbarment proceedings for saying, at the graves of the executed Rosenbergs, that he placed "the murder of the Rosenbergs at the door of President Eisenhower, Mr. (Atty. Gen. Herbert H.) Brownell and (FBI Director) J. Edgar Hoover."
