Group Urges Tax Cuts Tied To Spending

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A bi-partisan group of 21 senators urged the Senate today to tie tax cuts in future years directly to reductions in federal spending.

The 21 are trying to amend the Senate Finance Committee's tax-cut bill by allowing new reductions in 1980 through 1983 only if spending does not exceed the inflation rate plus one percent.

In addition, a tax cut would be allowed in 1982 only if the federal budget is balanced by that time.

The proposal, sponsored chiefly by Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Lawton chiles, D-Fla., Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., and William Roth R-Del., would not affect the Finance Committee's proposed tax cuts for 1979.

Sponsors estimate the plan would, over the four-year period, give additional tax cuts totaling $453 to a typical four-member family earning $20,000 a year.

While the Senate works on taxes this week, the House will consider President Carter's long-delaxed energy package. Both houses hope to adjourn for the year on Saturday.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd has said failure to pass either a tax cut bill or the energy package would prevent final adjournment this week and might force a lame-duck session after the November elections.

Byrd scheduled a cloture vote today aimed at preventing unrelated proposals from being attached to the $29. billion tax cut bill, which has become the biggest Senate roadblock to adjournment.

If the cloture motion fails, dozens of amendments seeking to reshape the bill would have to be considered. Some amendments represent last-ditch efforts by senators to save non-tax proposals that would otherwise die when the session ends.

After the Senate passes a tax-cut bill, it must still be reconciled with the House version, which calls for $16.3 billion in tax reductions. Carter has hinted that he might veto anything above $20 billion to $21 billion.

The Senate was also scheduled to vote today on two non-controversial parts of the long-debated energy program - energy conservation and electric rate structures. Expected Senate approval could set the stage for final House action on the energy package later in the week.

House leaders hope to combine those two sections with the natural gas and coal conversion bills, which have already won final Senate passage. By presenting the four sections as one package, the leaders hope to reduce the chances for opponents to defeat the controversial natural gas pricing section.

A fifth part of the energy package - energy taxes designed to encourage conservation - is still in a House-Senate conference committee although chances for its passage have brightened in recent weeks.

Monday update

Farmers Get Money

WASHINGTON (AP)-Farmers who signed up in this year's feed grain program aimed at curbing production have collected about $231.2 million so far, according to the Agriculture Department.

That payment total, as of Sept. 21, represents the most recent national figures available. Most of the payments were to corn farmers, about $222 million, and the balance went to producers of grain sorghum and barley.

Orville I. Overboe of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said that the payments as of Sept. 21 represented "less than half" of what they eventually will get.

Bum Rap, Say Backers

DETROIT (AP) - Many of his constituents, including the Baptist minister from his church, say Rep. Charles Diggs Jr. got a bum rap when a jury convicted him on 29 counts of mail fraud.

The Rev. Charles Adams of the Hartford Avenue Baptist Church, where Diggs is a trustee, said Sunday the congressman was railroaded by overzealous government prosecutors.

Diggs, the nation's senior black congressman, was convicted Saturday by a Washington jury on 29 counts of defrauding the government of $66,000 in a payroll kickback scheme.

Prisoners Wounded

HUNTSVILLE, (AP) - Texas penitentiary officials who previously denied reports of violence now say they were mistaken and three prisoners were wounded by a shotgun blast from a guard last week during a strike action.

"I had been calling those reports total and absolute lies," prison spokesman Ron Taylor said Sunday. "I'm sorry, I was asked to re-check the information, and I did...and it is true."

Meanwhile, 108 prisoners carried on with the strike Sunday at the Ellis Unit, refusing to eat or leave the exercise yard where they have been since Thursday. But 300 of their number gave it up during the weekend and returned to their cells, as have prisoners who protested at two other units.

The strike is in sympathy with a suit filed in federal court by prisoners protesting living conditions within the Texas Department of Corrections.

NOW To Press Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Organization for Women is vowing to press its economic boycott of states that have not embraced the Equal Rights Amendment, despite legal challenges and the new time won in which to obtain their ratification.

Though clearly in a festive mood over the Senate vote extending until June 30, 1982, the deadline for ERA's acceptance by at least 38 states, some 2,000 delegates at NOW's annual conference renewed their declaration of a "state of emergency" on the issue.

The action means that NOW's limited boycott of the 15 states yet to ratify will continue, said President Eleanor Smeal.

Davis Case Debated

HOUSTON (AP) - Attorneys for Cullen Davis want to know how much as-yet unrevealed evidence the state has against the Fort Worth millionaire accused of hiring a "hit man" to kill a judge.

It is one of 83 motions up for debate today in pretrial prodeedings for Davis, including at least five motions which the defense has asked he sealed and kept secret.

Fighting Nuclear Plant

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) - Opponents of the proposed nuclear Waste Isolation Pilot Plant that would be built near Carlsbad pledged to continue spreading the word about what they believe are the plant's dangers.

Several groups who have come out against WIPP sponsored a rally in Carlsbad Sunday to protest the building the plant at a site about 36 miles east of Carlsbad to dump nuclear waste.

Persons favoring WIPP have said the 3,600-foot mine that would be dug in the salt beds initially would be used as a test storage site for low level radioactive waste with experiments also planned for small amounts of high radioactive waste.

Cease-Fire In Lebanon Appears To Be Holding

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)-Sniper fire killed three persons trying to cross a Syrian-held bridge into Christian east Beirut today, it was reported, but the Syrian-Christian cease-fire generally appeared to be holding for a second day.

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, meanwhile, ended three days of urgent talks in Damascus with Syria's President Hafez Assad and left for Saudi Arabia and meetings with Saudi leaders.

Sarkis, whose Damascus talks produced the cease-fire, is trying to work out a permanent solution to the conflict here between the Christians and the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping force in Beirut, which is trying to assert control over and dis-arm the Christian militias. A token contingent from Saudi Arabia is part of the Arab League force.

The Voice of Lebanon, Beirut's Christian radio station, said the city had its second quiet night in a row after 10 days of heavy fighting between Syrian troops nd Christian militiamen. But it said that early this morning "Syrian snipers" killed three persons and wounded another in the Quarantina Bridge area while they were trying to enter East Beirut.

The only cease-fire violation reported Sunday was sniper fire that broke out at the bridge as hundreds of fleeing Christian families were trying to get across it. After that flurry of shots, all main crossroads between Christian and Moslem areas were closed, and the Syrians blocked supply columns bound for the Christian areas.

The Syrian-held bridge is on the supply route to east Beirut from the Christian port of Jounieh, 15 miles to the north. The bridge area was the scene of some of the heaviest of last week's fighting as the Christian militias made repeated attempts to recapture it and open the supply line.

As the Christians in East Beirut assessed the damage to their war-ravaged homes, offices and shops, leftist Lebanese Moslem groups called a general strike in Moslem west Beirut to protest a French proposal that the Syrians withdraw from Christian areas and that Christian and Moslem units of the reconstituted Lebanese army man buffer zones between the Syrians and the Christian militias.

The leftists charge that the Christians control the Lebanese army, which disintegrated during the Lebanese civil war and is now being rebuilt.

County Studying Use Of Old Jail

County Commissioners this morning were discussing several items associated with the upcoming move of the county jail into new quarters.

Mickey Nunley, who heads a special committee of the Scurry County Historical Commission, and Earnest Sears, president of the Scurry County Museum Association, conferred with the commissioners on the future of the old jail building. Nunley said the County Historical Commission is interested in using the old jail and the commission is looking into the possibility of grants for restoring the building. It could be used for historical commission offices and for activities of the local historical organization.

At this time, however, it is not known what procedure must be followed to make the building available for that purpose. Nunley said he planned to continue seeking information on possible routes to go on such a proposal.

Basically, he asked the commissioners court to study the proposal and decide whether they would prefer for the county to retain title to the old jail property and grant the historical commission the use of it, or to set up a non-profit organization to take charge of the old jail. More information on the advantages and disadvantages of both suggestions will be assembled.

Sheriff Keith Collier discussed acquisition of supplies for maintaining and operating the new jail, which will involve purchase of household items. However, no date for occupancy of the new jail has been set.

Commissioners also planned to open bids today for the purchase of some supplies for the new senior center.

New Officers Installed By Local Kiwanis Clubs

The Noon and Sunrisers Kiwanis Clubs of Snyder held a joint banquet Saturday night at the Western Texas College cafeteria in which new officers were installed and awards were presented.

Jay Massingill was installed as president of the Noon Club and Roy Meador was named president of the Sunrisers Club. The installing officer was Billy T. Smith of Big Spring, lieutenant governor of Division 22 of the Kiwanis.

Jim Tully was the recipient of the Noon Club's Kiwanian of the Year Award. The same award from the Sunrisers Club went to Roy Meador.

Besides the president, other officers installed Saturday night for the Noon Club included Paul Hurt, president-elect; Bob Clifton, first vice president; Joe Cheyne, second vice president; and Roy McCloskey, secretary-treasurer.

In the Sunrisers Club, Preston Wilson was named president-elect; Troy Williamson, first vice president; Gary West, secretary; and Don Stacy, treasurer.

Directors for the Noon Club are Hubert Cargile, Arel Faver, Sam Kitching, Billy Prince, Bob Sealy, Tom Chorn, Buddy Whittenburg, Ed Vernon, and Gary Brewer.

Directors for the Sunrisers Club are Guy Sullivan, Billy Roach, Bill Forbes, and Jim Dower.

Attendance awards were also presented at the banquet. Honored by the Sunrisers Club were Jack Chastain, three years; Don Stacy, five years; Preston Wilson, five years; and Roy Meador, 22 years.

Honored by the Noon Club were Joe Cheyne, one year; Don Osborne, one year; Ed Vernon, one year; Tommy Galyean, two years; Billy Prince two years; Art Feinsod, four years; Paul Hurt, four years; Joe Jackson, four years; Leslie Williamson, four years; Bobby Beard, five years; Cy Miller, six years; Pat Patterson, six years; Sam Kitching, seven years; Jay Massingill, seven

Ask Us

Q--Is our city going to drop the one per cent sales tax on utilities?

A--There has been no decision yet. Sept. 10 was the deadline for a city governing body to vote to drop this tax effective Oct. 1 this year. However, the city council has several options. They may adopt an ordinance by next May 1 to keep the tax, they may vote before the end of this calendar year to drop the tax effective next April 1, or they may vote before next March 31 to drop the tax by July 1. If no action at all is taken, the one per cent tax automatically goes out Oct. 1, 1979. Since Snyder's current budget included the one per cent tax on electricity and natural gas, the city could keep it until a new budget year begins without taking any action at all.

the age of paradoxes

Proposition 13 was the banner, if not the theme, of the recent governors' conference in Boston. While all the state heads tried to pledge allegiance to that flag of taxpayer revolt, they could not stay consistent individually or as a body.

One newspaper headline summed up the seeming paradox of the conclave it read, "Governors, unblushing, seek more U.S. funding."

The lead paragraph beneath the headline stated, "While calling on the federal government to balance its budget by 1981, the nation's governors also urged Washington to increase they flow of money to the states. They did it without blushing even though the federal government already has a huge debt while states are enjoying surpluses totaling at least $6 billion.

A number of resolutions were adopted by the National Governors' Association which call for more federal spending and, if adopted, would insure further growth of the bureaucracy.

The president and the Congress were urged to continue and expand eight regional commissions. These have often been termed boondoggles, and they are slated to expire in 1979. These are known as Title Five Commissions. The governors asked that they be retained and that funding be increased from $65 million to $250 million per year.

Gov. Thomas Judge, D-Mont., said a White House task force now recommends creation of three new commissions encompassing mid-Atlantic, mid-South and mid-America states. These commissions would plan and administer economic development programs for groups of states.

Right after voting unanimous approval for expanding the regional commissions, the governors voted for a resolution calling on the federal government to balance its budget. The statement asking for the budget balance expressed "great concern" over the growth of federal expenditures and their effect on the economy.

Without debate and with little discussion, they adopted a series of resolutions requesting additional federal expenditures.

So, our great state leaders have managed to sit on both sides of the fence at once and can use their "position" either way as the occasion requires at home.

There was a great deal of lip service to helping the overburdened taxpayer as they basked in the shadow of Proposition 13 with all its implications. But, the cloak of consideration for fiscal responsibility soon wore thin to reveal the political image in all its self-held esteem.

Perhaps it was too much to expect or even hope for to find this body willing to take a real stand leading to the solution of our greatest problem: inflation.

Had they had the best interest of all of us at heart, they could have decided to refuse all federal aid until the budget was balanced and the national debt was reduced.

Where leadership is most needed to end devastating inflation and monetary debasement, none was evident in the meeting of our governors. In the end it was only "politics as usual." Taxpayers' plight was on their lips, but actions denied any rightful consideration.

The governors adjourned, unblushing.

good and bad news

The United States went into the hole by $3.26 billion in its dealings with the rest of the world for the second quarter of this year.

That is the Commerce Department's final figure on the balance of payments deficit for the April-June period. It is the eighth successive quarter of red ink and points toward a year-end deficit topping 1977's $15.27 billion. That is clearly bad news.

However, the deficit was less than half that registered in each of the preceding two quarters, suggesting a leveling off of the long-term trend. And that is considered good news.

Sometimes it's difficult to tell the difference these days.

morality of inflation

NEW YORK (AP) - Everyone dwells upon the financial consequences of inflation but rarely do we think of it in terms of morality.

But inflation involves cheating and deception. It inverts values. It rewards the profligate and penalizes the thrifty. It diverts capital from production to quick-buck schemes. Some say it encourages gambling.

Those who spend a lifetime paying insurance premiums or building bank accounts, denying themselves in order to finance their retirement, are embittered when they see the results. After all the bright promises.

Those who live for the present and borrow from the future to finance it are rewarded for their foresight and permitted to pay back in cheap money. Children quickly learn the lesson: Don't be a sucker.

It undermines various productive pursuits. Corporations that can create jobs only by investing capital in new or improved facilities decline to do so because inflation makes the future too risky.

New businesses, which traditionally account for most of the new jobs, can't get started because they can't afford the high interest rates, which almost always accompany persistent inflation.

Many companies sometimes react to rising prices by cutting quality and quantity. Inferior ingredients and smaller portions are offered; either way, the customer pays more and gets less.

Group, if not class friction is promoted. The elderly fight for pensions and pass the bill to youth. The president threatens to veto a tax cut provision because, he says, it benefits the wealthy.

The rich can live with inflation, although it cuts into their assets. But the loss to the rich is often measured in luxuries, rather than in the necessities of the poor, such as a meal. A moral issue? It seems so.

Labor-management friction is intensified by inflation. Anticipating higher prices, workers raise demands. And business raises prices because it anticipates higher wages or controls.

Controls, the demand for which arises in proportion to the duration and severity of inflation, present other moral considerations: black markets, phony price lists and disrespect for government and authority.

Inflation results in higher taxes, because people are pushed into higher income brackets. The illusion of greater income, therefore, becomes subject to a very real tax. Yes, the illusion is taxed.

Eventually, as has been shown in other nations, prolonged inflation promotes cynicism, and sometimes it undermines not only the currency but the nation's institutions, including its government.

Essentially and eventually, it's a moral issue.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Confrontations over public policy in this capital seldom fail to attract the interest of the press and public, but too little attention is paid to the peaceful resolution of those conflicts.

A case in point: The often acrimonious seven-year-long dispute over the design of the next generation of buses to meet the nation's transportation needs in the 1980's and beyond.

That issue inspired years of lawsuits, emotional accusations and political maneuvers. The Department of Transportation (DOT), which provides 80 percent of the funds for purchase of urban mass transit equipment, was forced repeatedly to change its policy.

But the matter centered around the Transbus, a radically different intercity bus designed specifically to provide access to the approximately 30 million elderly and disabled people who find it difficult, if not impossible, to negotiate the steep steps and narrow doors of current bus models.

To achieve that goal, the Transbus floor will be only 22 inches above the ground and the vehicle will have the capability to mechanically "kneel" down to 18 inches, compared with the 32- to 34-inch floor height of buses now in service.

A retractable ramp and a 44-inch-wide door would permit those confined to wheelchairs to use the buses. (The wide door also would allow simultaneous entry and exit of other passengers, an obvious improvement over the current single-file system of entry and egress.)

The General Motors Corp., whose GMC Truck and Coach Division is by far the country's largest producer of buses, adamantly opposed the entire concept, arguing that the Transbus was a "technical disaster."

On the other side of the conflict was a coalition that included leaders of the Paralyzed Veterans of America, National Council of Senior Citizens, American Council of the Blind, United Cerebral Palsy Associations and American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities.

Members of that "Transbus Group" lobbied against GM on Capitol Hill and within DOT, held public demonstrations in major cities and enlisted the support of major political figures including DOT Secretary Brock Adams and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

GM President Elliott M. Estes recently agreed to meet twice with representatives of the Transbus Group. From those unpublicized sessions, a compromise emerged:

GM had insisted upon a rear-door hydraulic lift as the only acceptable means of providing bus access to infirm and handicapped passengers. The Transbus Group was equally adamant in its campaign for a front-door ramp.

The feuding parties and DOT agreed that both the ramp and lift would be available as alternative options, to be selected by local transit agencies when they buy the buses. In either case, the mechanism will be attached to the front door.

GM withdrew its support of congressional legislation that would have required a one- to three-year delay in implementation of the program and the company no longer actively opposes the Transbus concept.

The Transbus Group and DOT originally pressed for a production schedule calling for delivery of the first buses by 1981. They acquiesced to GM's demands for more time, and deliveries now are scheduled to begin in 1984.

Major corporations, self-proclaimed "public interest groups" and federal agencies frequently have been accused - with considerable justification - of being inflexible when dealing with each other on such issues.

But the Transbus experience demonstrated the value of the compromise. Philadelphia, Miami, Los Angeles, Denver, Pittsburgh, Portland, Seattle, San Diego, New York, Chicago, Minneapolis and other cities now will be able to place their orders for a vastly improved bus.

Jogging.

It has almost been raised to the elevation of a sacrament. That's all people talk about anymore.

"Who told you about jogging? Was it your mother or your father or did you learn about it in the gutter?"

"Where were you and what were you doing when you heard that Jerome Drayton won the Boston Marathon?"

"Sure, I could go jogging with you this weekend - but will you respect me in the morning?"

Running around the streets wheezing has replaced handball, which replaced tennis, which replaced biking, which replaced golf, which replaced swimming, which replaced skiing as the national physical pastime. All of those are still in favor, but at one time or another they led the field in popularity.

It is safe to assume that jogging will pass and relinguish its trend status to a new sport. And what will replace it? Will there be life after jogging?

Of course, and frankly I wouldn't be at all surprised if "napping" replaced jogging as the No. 1 national sport. The momentum for any pastime is usually the same. It starts with a hero (astronaut, sports figure or movie star) who appears on a talk show and is asked, "How do you stay so thin?" and he or she replies, "I nap at least 30 minutes a day."

Small groups start at first. Then, a few stories appear when the AMA, to protect themselves, advises participants to get a complete physical before starting to "nap."

Books begin to come out - "The Complete Book of Napping," "The Complete Napper" and "The Napper's Handbook" (a Complete Guide for Men and Women Who Sack Out).

Napper's regulation shoes will come out with cushioned inner-soles and fashions will reflect the sport with wrinkle-free slacks and polyester shirts that breathe when your body temperature goes down.

As the momentum builds, everything will point to the Napper's Marathon....The Napper's Olympics where nodders from all over the country will compete to see who can sleep the longest. There will be film clips of nappers "packing warm milk," taking deep breathing exercises, and talking of the "dreaded eye-opener" when you're pushing your body into sleep far beyond its limits. I can see Curt Gowdy spotlighting a man yawning and observing, "He's the man to beat."

I give "nappers" a couple of years at the top and then we'll be on to another sport - maybe stumbling.

Whatever it is, my body is packed with carbohydrates for it.

The husbands of members of Lambda Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were guests at a German Wurstfest held by the sorority on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the Snyder Country Club. Special guests were Charlotte and Duane Seay.

Guests were greeted by members of the social and membership committees who were dressed in traditional German costumes. John Greene, the official host of the evening, wore an authentic pair of leather pants, brought from Germany in 1966 by Johnny Richardson's sister, and a moutaineer's hat. A menu of German foods was served from tables covered with red and white checked cloths and festooned with red and white streamers. Each food item was labeled with its German name. Tables were centered with candles burning in red glass containers, and a medley of taped German music was played during the dinner. A yodeling contest was won by the teams of Susan Chesser–Joe Zoda and Bette League–Ronnie Foust. Mary Lou Scott played the piano for group singing. Hostesses for the evening were the social and membership committees, chaired by Lora Beasley and Carolyn Fortune respectively.

Consumer Food News

COLLEGE STATION - Consumers can expect a slight drop in meat prices for the rest of the year, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist, predicts.

Small declines in meat prices are forecast due to seasonally larger pork and poultry supplies, she says.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to Mrs. Clyatt, this week's price-quality trends at Texas grocery markets include the following:

POULTRY - Eggs and fryer chickens are two excellent protein foods available at low prices, although egg prices are up slightly, and medium-size usually offers the best buy.

BEEF - More specials are the trend. Items with the most attractive price tags are chuck roasts and steaks, boneless roasts and liver.

PORK - Supplies are increasing, but prices are rather irregular. Look for feature prices on smoked cuts such as picnics and bacon. Also, consider fresh cuts such as quarter loin cut into chops, Boston butt roasts and liver.

FRESH VEGETABLES - Several items are worthy of consideration pricewise and quality-wise. They include potatoes and onions, carrots, corn, cucumbers, squash and mustard greens. Also, head lettuce and bell peppers. Sweet potato quality is good, but buy only enough for a week or 10 days. Cauliflower is on the market, but it has relatively high first-of-the-season prices.

FRESH FRUITS - Prunes highlight some fruit counters, but their short season will be over soon. Shop carefully for other fruits since price levels vary.

GROCERY MARKET AISLES - Leading features include tuna fish, soups, peanut butter and macaroni. Watch dry bean prices, especially pintos - an item in heavy supply.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "The two most prestigious events in American bridge are the Vanderbilt and Spingold Cups. The feat of winning both in the same year was just accomplished by the team captained by Malcolm Brachman of Dallas that included Paul Soloway, Bobby Goldman, Eddy Kantar and Mike Passell. They won twelve successive matches against the best in America to do this."

Alan: "I believe you won both in 1934 and 1938 some years before I was born and it has been done twice between now and then."

Oswald: "The team uses what might be called advanced standard American. In other words they make normal opening bids and have all sorts of slam gadgets."

Alan: "Here is a poppa-momma slam bid by Brachman and Soloway. Paul's three diamond bid was strong, but not forcing so Malcolm just bid six."

Oswald: "He won the trump lead in dummy; led a heart to his ten and West's queen. Later on he ruffed out East's king of hearts to find a parking place for his three of spades on dummy's jack of hearts. If this hadn't worked he could still have fallen back on the club finesse."

Ask the Experts

A Maine reader asks, "Do all experts use the Gerber convention as well as Blackwood?"

We can't speak for all, but those experts we know do use it when it is obvious.

Stanfield Open House Tonight

Stanfield PTA will have its first regular meeting of the year at 7 p.m. tonight in the cafeteria. Following the business meeting there will be Open House and each parent is invited to see their child's room and visit with the teacher.

"This is membership drive week. Dues are 60 cents per person and we are striving for 100 percent participation to benefit our school and also to be recognized with a state PTA award," states Mrs. Anita Felan, president.

Museum Interested In Finding Flying Saucer

By MICHELLE SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

CRESSON, Texas (AP)-Has anybody got a spare flying saucer lying around. If so, Jim Peel wants to hear about it.

Peel, curator of the Pate Museum of Transportation at Cresson, near Fort Worth, says the museum plans to establish the nation's first comprehensive display on unidentified flying objects. But, he says, not many people want to talk about encounters with UFOs.

"The main obstacle has been finding factual information," Peel said. "We've had calls from several people telling us experiences they've had with UFOs, but they're not backed up with scientific data."

The museum's founder, oil tycoon A.M. Pate of Fort Worth, says the government hasn't been any help either.

"The Air force is extremely reluctant even to discuss the subject," Pate said. "Even the Smithsonian hasn't been able to help us. They have a 20-foot mockup of a UFO in storage, but it's too big to transport across the country and there's no way to disassemble it."

The museum has been successful, however, in getting UFO authority Dr. J. Allen Hynek as a major contributor, says museum special coordinator Tommy Blann.

Blann says Hynek will provide the museum with motion pictures of "actual unknows" and a copy of UFOCAT, the largest organized catalogue of UFO reports in the world.

The museum plans to include in its presentation an introduction to the UFO phenomenon, UFO reports dating from 1897 to the present, natural phenomena commonly mis-identified as UFOs and a discussion of different types of organizations which study UFOs.

Peel said the museum display is not designed to prove UFOs exist, although he personally "firmly believes" in them.

He had never given much thought to UFOs until he began putting together the museum display, Peel said.

"I'd been pretty skeptical," he said. "But the more I get into it. I believe there are other beings on other planets. There's so much that has not been proven false by the government."

Peel said the museum still needs photographs, drawings or scale models based on eye-witness accounts of UFO sightings and information on documents, reports or any physical evidence or memorabilia pertaining to UFOs.

"We hope to put together a nice enough permanent exhibit that it could become a traveling exhibit," Peel said. "Who knows. Maybe while we're traveling with it we'll have a close encounter ourselves."

Battery Powered Car Made In Japan

TOKYO (AP)-Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. of Japan said today it has developed a battery-powered test automobile with a top speed of about 70 miles an hour and a range of about 90 miles.

The test car is powered by what Matsushita called "light-weight, high-output ferro-nickel storage batteries." The company said the battery has a long life, but is expensive. The cost of the car was not given.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two traffic mishaps were reported to city police during the weekend. Both occurred Saturday.

The first was at 11:41 a.m. in the 1600 block of 30th St. Reports show that a 1978 Honda motorcycle driven by Johnny Joe Curtis and a 1971 Buick driven by Martha [illegible] were in collision.

Curtis and a passenger on the motorcycle, Banta Tempest, were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released.

The other weekend mishap took place at 2409 Ave. R. Reports show that a parked 1976 Ford pickup owned by Howard Limmer was struck by a 1959 Ford truck driven by Allen Ray Gleghorn.

The mishap was reported at 11:48 a.m.

Briscoe Comments On Carter's Veto

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday of President Carter's veto of the $10.2 billion public works bill that it "appears that the president has now embarked on a policy which is anti-inflationary and anti-spending.

"It is my hope that the federal government can begin operating with a balanced budget," Briscoe said in a statement. "Texas has proved that a balanced budget and a policy of fiscal resopnsibility can produce a stable economic climate."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Varicose veins and standing

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if you would advise anyone with varicose veins to enter a profession that requires being on her feet most of the time — even if she wears support hose and arched shoes?

DEAR READER — That depends. If you mean standing still, the pressure builds up in the veins of the legs while you are standing and does aggravate varicose vein problems.

But if a person is moving around, walking and using the leg muscles, the movement of the leg muscles tends to pump blood out of the veins toward the heart actually draining them. Walking, as such, is actually helpful and is not a significant factor in causing varicose veins or making them worse.

To illustrate the point, a barber has to stand still in one spot most of the day and that's very hard on the veins in his legs. The same is true of anyone who has a similar occupation. A postman who must walk to deliver the mail, on the other hand, will be constantly milking the blood out of his veins, and that won't be a factor in causing varicose veins.

How severe the varicose veins are is also important. When the varicose veins involve large, dilated veins deep inside the leg muscle, as well as those on the outside of the leg, the problem is more complicated. So, you need to know exactly what kind of professional people are talking about and how bad the veins are.

In general, I don't like the idea of telling someone that they can't be on their feet. That implies not being active. Lack of activity leads to other health problems. Since I am sure you would appreciate more detailed information about varicose veins and what can be done about them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I read an article in the paper which mentions that humidifiers may be a cause of respiratory problems. The article quoted the Journal of the American Medical Association and advised that, while these devices put moisture back into the air, they can also harbor organisms that may cause pulmonary problems.

The article said that homeowners who had portable humidifiers should clean them at least once a week with a detergent and refill them with fresh water containing a growth deterrent chemical. They suggested copper sulfate.

The article also said that if the humidifier was part of the furnace that the screens ought to be cleaned frequently and a growth detergent applied. Is this true and do you have any comments about it? My wife has bronchial asthma and we need to make an effort to be sure that she doesn't have any additional lung problems.

DEAR READER — Yes, the comments you have made are all accurate. I am afraid people just take the air they breathe for granted. It can either be too dry, full of chemicals or even full of organisms. Any device that humidifies the air and is able to accumulate water is a potential place for the growth of fungi and various organisms.

All air-circulating devices, whether they are air-conditioners (central or window), humidifiers or any other device that's in the system of circulating the air you breathe should be kept clean at all times. All filters should be cleaned regularly. You should never allow standing water to accumulate in any part of the device as a breeding ground for organisms.

Angus Bulls Cause Beef In Virginia

TIMBERVILLE, Va. (AP)—Residents of this Shenandoah Valley town have a beef about a lot of bulls — the seven Angus bulls owned by Rudolph Miller.

The town of 959 has asked Shenandoah County Circuit Court to order Miller to restrain his bulls, saying the animals break fences, eat shrubbery and pose a danger to residents.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

October 10, 1978

You will have more than your share of opportunities this coming year, but they will not be in the long-shot department. Stick to the blue chips and sure things.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you may be tempted to cater to whims of overindulgence. If you do, there is an indication you may suffer financially as well as physically. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could succumb to a desire today to make an important change just for the sake of change. Don't let restlessness lead you to unsound reasoning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Refrain from embellishing your achievement too grandly today. Your credibility will suffer by telling tall tales.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For one who seldom counts his chickens before they're hatched, you may be banking too heavily today on something not yet a reality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who is aware that you can be manipulated today through flattery may lay it on rather thick in order to achieve his ends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is likely today if you expect others to do more for you than you would for them if roles were reversed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Large groups could get on your nerves today, so by all means don't subject yourself to them. You'll be happier where things are less hectic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Taking bows prematurely for something not yet accomplished could backfire on you. One who'd like to trip you up might ask to see the finished product.

GEMINI (MaV 21-June 20) Usually you like to play things by ear, but today if you don't have everything planned step-by-step you could experience some serious pitfalls.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be wary of getting involved in a venture today where the heavy end of the expenses could fall to you because of something you permitted another to manage.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extremely careful in horse-trading today. You'll go in thinking that you have the edge. In reality, you won't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not your usually reliable self today. You may pretend that you took care of something for another when you really hadn't. The truth will out.

Cowboys Back In Form

DALLAS (AP)-The Dallas Cowboys are brewing that potent Super Bowl-winning concoction of a heavy dose of Doomsday Defense and a deadly dash of Roger Staubach's passing.

Staubach threw three touchdown passes and the Randy White-led defense sacked two New York Giants quarterbacks eight times in a 24-3 National Football League rout Sunday that was worse than the score indicated.

The Dallas defense hasn't allowed a touchdown in its last 11 quarters.

"We shut down their offense, and that wasn't easy," Landry said. "We were a super football team last year in the playoffs, but we haven't reached that level yet. We just need a re-education on that type of winning."

The eager-to-learn Cowboys gave the Giants several lessons. Starting quarterback Joe Pisarcik was knocked groggy in the second quarter and was still woozy after the game.

Running back Willie Spencer suffered a painful hip pointer.

Staubach rifled touchdown passes of 17 and 30 yards to Tony Hill and a 23-yard scoring shot to tight end Billy Joe Dupree.

Redskins 21, Lions 19

Theismann's winning pass, a 25-yarder to John McDaniel, came with 1:24 left as Washington retained its two-game lead over Dallas in the National Conference West.

The Redskins led 14-12 on a 21-yard TD pass from Theismann to Jean Fugett early in the fourth quarter, but Detroit forced Theismann to try again when Rick Kane ran 6 yards for a score with 5:52 left.

Raiders 21, Oilers 17

Houston led 17-7 in the third quarter and was driving for what would have been the clinching touchdown when disaster struck and Oakland once again pulled the game out. Running back Earl Campbell fumbled on the Raiders' 4-yard line and Oakland end Dave Browning ran 96 yards for a touchdown.

Ken Stabler then led Oakland on an 80-yard, fourth-quarter TD march, capped by a 4-yard pass to Dave Casper with 42 seconds left. Casper had to wrestle the ball from defender Greg Stemrick for the score.

Packers 24, Bears 14

The Green Bay-Chicago game was for the NFC Central lead, and the Packers won it with a "shades of the 1960s" defensive performance. Safety Steve Luke returned an intercepted pass 63 yards for a touchdown and recovered a fumble that set up a field goal. Defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas intercepted a pass that set up another TD.

Quarterback David Whitehurst capped the Packers' scoring with a 58-yard pass to rookie James Lofton.

Browns 24, Saints 16

Cleo Miller rushed for 93 yards and scored a touchdown, and Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ozzie Newsome in the Browns' victory.

Rice's Bengals Try Favored Miami, 8 p.m.

MIAMI (AP)-Homer Rice, who lost 28 of 41 college games he coached, is expected to get his first taste of losing in the National Football League tonight when he coaches the Cincinnati Bengals for the first time.

The winless Bengals take on the Miami Dolphins, 3-2, at the Orange Bowl in a 8 p.m. nationally televised game. Rice, former coach at Rice University and the University of Cincinnati, replaced Bill Johnson, who resigned last week.

The Dolphins will be helped by linebacker Steve Towle's return to the lineup and end A.J. Duhe's first starting appearance this season. Both suffered knee injuries.

There's also the possibility that another knee injury victim, star quarterback Bob Griese, may see some spot duty. Griese, injured in the Dolphins' last exhibition game practiced in pads for the first time this week.

The Dolphins need a victory to keep pace with the New England Patriots in the AFC East. They're also seeking revenge for a 23-17 loss to Cincinnati last year that kept them out of the playoffs.

"We've got a score to settle," said cornerback Norris Thomas.

Lady Cats Fall To Strong Duo

SEMINOLE--Snyder varsity lost its second game in a week here Saturday, falling to El Paso Burges in the second round of Indian Tournament play, 15-8, 16-18 and 12-14.

Earlier in the week, on Thursday, the previously undefeated Snyder team lost to Denver City, 15-13, 11-15 and 8-11, bringing it's season record to 12-1 at that time, and 13-2 following weekend play here.

"I feel like El Paso Burges was the best team we've played this year," commented Tiger Coach Joyce Elrod. "It was a very hard fought game, both offensively and defensively. Our girls played very well."

Cindy Koonsman led the Cats with 12 points, followed by Danna Myers, 8; Kathy Harrell, 7; Kim Harlin, 6; Sherry Neves 4; and Dana Elrod and Suzanne Fisher, 3 each.

On Friday, Snyder whipped Midland High 15-4 and 15-13 in first-round play. Koonsman had 11 points, while Harrell noted 6, Harlin had 5, Danna Meyers noted 4, and Elrod and Debbie Myers had 2 each.

Today, Snyder junior varsity and varsity were to play at Kermit at 4 and 5 p.m.

Of Thursday's loss to Denver City, Coach Elrod commented," Our defensive game and serving game were both well above average and our offensive game, our attack game, was also above average. It's hard to say how we lost it except that we didn't make the big plays when we needed too."

Harrell scored 10 points, followed by Koonsman with 8, Danna Myers with 6, Sherry Neves with 5, Harlin with 3 and Elrod with 2.

Earlier in the day Thursday, Snyder junior varsity revenged an earlier loss to Denver City, winning 15-10 and 15-10.

Dodger Coach Gilliam Dies

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)-Los Angeles Dodger coach Jim Gilliam, who never regained consciousness after a stroke three weeks ago, has died of a cardiac arrest one day after his team won its second consecutive the National League pennant.

Gilliam, 49, died late Sunday night at Daniel Freeman Hospital, said spokesman Larry Pilcher. He has been in the hospital since Sept. 15, when he lapsed into a coma following surgery for a cerebral hemorrhage.

"He was a great guy and a wonderful man," said Al Campanis, Dodger vice president and general manager. "He was an excellent instructor and people liked him very much."

Morgan Wins Pacific Meet

GOTEMBA, Japan - Dr. Gil Morgan shot a 1-under-par 70 and won the $300,000 Pacific Club Masters Golf Tournament by 3 strokes over fellow American Jerry Pate.

Morgan won $65,000 first prize money and a Japanese sports car. He had a 273 total on par-71 Gotemba course.

Pate also finished with a 70 for a 276 and picked up $32,500.

American Bob Gilder finished third with a 278 total while Lee Trevino tied for fourth place with Don January and Danny Edwards at 279.

Series Looks Familiar But Personalities Differ

NEW YORK (AP) - Ready when you are, C.B.

That's right, Hollywood is one day away from the gala opening of the sequel to last year's box office smash, the "Los Angeles Lovers Meet Murmurers' Row."

In baseball lingo, that's the second straight go-round between the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers and the American League kingpins, the New York Yankees, in the 75th anniversary World Series, opening in Los Angeles Tuesday.

For a sequel to sell, audiences can't be given the same script, so this year's East-West confrontation has a twist worthy of Alfred Hitchcock.

It seems the Dodgers, those advocates of hug-ins on the field, aren't wearing the white hats anymore. And the fussin', feudin' Yanks are no longer sneering under black hats.

After a much-publicized clubhouse fist fight between the Dodgers' Steve Garvey and Don Sutton and the Yanks' disposition turning sweet with a twist of Manager Bob Lemon, the old hero-villian labels just don't apply anymore.

"The last few months all you read was that everything was lovey-dovey with us, while the Dodgers have been bickering," said Graig Nettles, one of the home run heroes in New York's 2-1, pennant-clinching victory over the hard-luck Kansas City Royals Saturday night. "I hope they haven't found the key to our success."

The Yankees beat the Dodgers in a six-game World Series last year in spite of themselves, overcoming bitter player disputes and antagonisms involving owner George Steinbrenner and then Yankee skipper Billy Martin.

Ironically, the Dodgers ripped a page out of the Yanks' book this year, spurting past West Division rivals Cincinnati and San Francisco right after the Garvey-Sutton brawl. Sutton said Garvey's all-American image was fraudulent, calling slugger Reggie Smith the real leader of the team. Garvey had a terrific season, then smacked four homers to lead the Dodgers over Philadelphia for their second straight NL pennant.

Eagles Pop Ira Dogs

IRA--James Jeffery and the McCaulley Eagles flattened the Bulldog homecoming hopes of a victory here Saturday night.

The Eagle quarterback took part in 64 points worth of action as McCaulley drilled the hosts, 76-36.

The loss, Ira's fifth of the year, may not have been as bad as an injury to leading rusher and tackler R.D. Phillips however. Phillips, injured just before halftime, will be out for the season with a cracked bone in his right foot.

"We'll find out what kind of stuff we're made of this next week," commented Coach Gary Fox, whose Bulldogs meet the apparent district 3-B weak horse, Southland. "If we don't band together and play tough, it's going to be a very long season."

The two teams played almost equal in the first quarter Saturday. Eagle Earl Williams cashed in on a 7-yard run and Jeffery tacked on six more points with a 75-yard punt return. Ira retaliated when Tate Kesner returned the kickoff 79 yards and Phillips found Keith Bryant on a 40-yard TD pass play.

Later in the period Jeffery hit Williams with a 64-yard pass and Kesner found Robert Mitchell on a 50-yard pass.

But McCaulley dominated the remainder of the game, whipping the Bulldogs 24-6 in the second quarter, 6-0 in the third and 23-6 in the fourth.

A 22-yard run by Scott Kesner garnered Ira's second quarter points, while a 4-yard run by Tate Kenser scored the fourth quarter points. Keith Bryant kicked three point-after trys.

A True Alarm

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with up-dated figures:

Last year, 10,074 Americans perished and 33,400 civilians, plus 106,100 firemen, were seriously injured in 3,513,000 fires. In Canada, 829 deaths were caused by 69,651 fires.

A large percentage of the dead were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition

The total fire loss last year was $6,064,000,000 in the U.S. and $503,894,438 in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for drycleaning indoors.

Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Some excellent smoke and fire-detection systems are available to homeowners. Shop around, and buy the one that suits your needs.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of everybody's door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

Basin's Rig Count Drops

Permian Basin oilfields had 261 drilling rigs in operation last week, a decrease of two from the previous week, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's weekly survey. There were 300 rigs running in the Basin during the corresponding week last year.

Eddy County, N.M., topped the survey with 26 units, a gain of four over the previous week. Pecos County was the West Texas leader with 25 rigs running.

Scurry County had five rigs in operation last week, compared to three the week before. Figures of other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 1 and 2; Dawson 2 and 4; Garza 7 and 6; Howard 8 and 5; Kent 3 and 3; Mitchell 4 and 3.

NEW IN BORDEN COUNTY-Kathy Blagrave, is the new home demonstration agent in Borden County. Mrs. Blagrave is a native of Ackerly and taught home economics in Sands prior to accepting the position in Borden County. Above she is chatting with James McElroy, superintendent of Borden County School, at a 4-H awards banquet held Saturday in Gail. McElroy, and Keith Hackfield manager of Bar-H-Bar Western Wear were cited at the Banquet for their support of 4-H activities. See Stenholm Addresses Gail 4-H, page 1. (SDN Staff Photo)

Med School Drops 20% Minority Goal

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)- Stanford University's medical school faculty has disbanded its minority admissions committee following last July's Supreme Court decision in the Allan Bakke case.

The university said Wednesday the faculty voted to create a single, expanded admissions committee that will screen the 5,500 applicants who apply for the 86 positions open in the freshmen class. Stanford said its new admissions committee would consider grades, test scores and "distance traveled in the context of social or economic disadvantages." Since 1968, the school had sought a minimal goal of 20 percent of each entering class from minority groups.

Illinois Group Fears Pestilence, Doomsday

EDITOR'S NOTE-They're nice people, the people building the community of Stelle in the middle of the Illinois prairie. But they have a scary message. The world will end in the year 2000, and before that we will be beset by economic chaos.

By Charles Chamberlain
Associated Press Writer

STELLE, Ill. (AP)-Children wave. Their parents greet strangers with smiles, as if Doomsday were a million years away instead of only 22.

The people who are building Stelle in the middle of cornfields 100 miles southwest of Chicago, believe the world will end in the year 2000. But they say they are more concerned with surviving the economic collapse that they believe will take place in the next few years.

The Stelle Group pins down May 5, 2000 for the Apocalypse, when, they say, the planets will be lined up with each other and the sun. This will cause tidal waves, earthquakes, floods and erupting volcanoes, wiping out most of the world's population.

But the Stelle Group will be saved by being airlifted over the holocaust in special craft. They will return to build The Nation of God.

There are 200 members here, about 40 children, and there are fewer than 1,000 nationwide. By Doomsday, they hope to have 200,000 members. They propound a philosophy spread by Richard Kieninger, who published his visions in 1963 in "The Ultimate Frontier." His mission is to prepare for a better world.

Since 1975, Stelle has been functioning under a broad of trustees with a president, Malcolm Carnahan, 41. Kieninger and his wife, Gail, went separate ways, she with followers to Centuria, Wis., and he to Garland, Tex. to set up a new group. But Carnahan says that Kieninger, the founder of Stelle, visits once a month.

Carnahan says the group doesn't recruit, depending for members on people who read "The Ultimate Frontier." He says about 200,000 copies have been sold.

Carnahan, once a minister with the United Church of Christ in Harrisburg, Pa., and a former employee of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in Chicago, says the group focuses on "building a viable community, not preparing for the Apocalypse."

Stelle is a well-kept, modern housing development of 33 homes, all built by members. They are valued up to $80,000 and are spaced along a winding road on part of the group's 320 acres of rich farmland.

Stelle has its own water filtration and sewage treatment plants; all electrical and telephone lines are underground, and there are no police or security guards. In case of fire, nearby towns respond. A Stelle fire department is being planned. Greenhouses are planned to provide vegetables, and heating is provided by wood-burning stoves.

Stelle includes professionals, businessmen, secretaries, craftsmen and laborers. Many commute to Kankakee, 25 miles away, or to Chicago.

The group runs a factory with woodworking, graphics and plastics divisions. Profits are used to stockpile inventory. Workers are paid from profits.

Smoking is allowed only in the home. There are only a half dozen television sets and only selected programs are watched - no sex or violence.

Groceries are purchased on the honor system at an unattended store. Cash is put in a box, or the value listed in a credit book.

Reliable Plane Being ReplacedBy New Model

EDITOR'S NOTE - It's a hardy old bird, the 707, the pioneer of commercial jet flight and one of the world's safest and most serviceable planes. But it's being pushed aside by America's airlines to make way for the new wide bodied craft, which provide a cheaper, more comfortable way to travel.

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) - The hardy and dutiful Boeing 707 is being upstaged these days by its bigger, more economical sisters and ultimately it's headed for the same obsolescence that ended the career of that old World War II era workhorse, the DC3.

But no one in aviation will forget that 20 years ago this month, the sleek, four-engined airliner ushered in the era of passenger jet travel and set a record that let even the most jittery relax in the sky.

In this anniversary year, two 707's that made aviation history set silently on European fields, like used cars, waiting for a buyer.

The former Pan American World Airways "Mayflower" launched the United States into the age of jet passenger service with a New York to Paris flight, October 26, 1958.

Her sister ship, the "Caroline" flew from New York to Paris the next day, and on Dec. 8 the same year began regular domestic jet service by flying from New York to Miami.

Today, the "Mayflower" is out of service on on airfield near Brussels, and the "Caroline" rests at Lasham, England. Each has compiled 42,000 hours of flying time.

Not that the 707 is obsolete. Boeing still turns out about one every month and a half and is currently filling orders for Saudi Arabia, Romania, Nigeria and Quatar. Smaller nations buy the plane because it has a long range - 4,155 to 7,610 miles - yet does not have to carry as many passengers as the jumbo jets to make it pay.

But in the United States, carriers are phasing out the old bird in favor of wide-bodied planes. The 707 gets about 20 miles per gallon per passenger, while the wide-bodied 747 jet gets twice that. The 707 also cannot meet today's federal noise standards.

Still it was the plane that proved jet travel feasible.

"It revolutionized the whole thing," says Capt. Bill Merrill, 84, who flew a transatlantic roundtrip in a single-engine plane in 1936. "The airline industry would have flopped without jets."

Boeing has delivered 922 707's in the past 20 years. Now it is gearing up to produce a new line, spearheaded by the 767.

Douglas Aircraft Co. came out with the competing DC-8 in 1959. When it discontinued the DC-8 in 1972, it had delivered 556. Since 1965, Douglas has concentrated on the smaller DC-9 and the jumbo DC-10's.

As of 1977, there were 219 707's in U.S. service, down from 337 five years before.

Richard Deeds of San Jose, Calif., a Western Airlines captain who has flown 707's since 1965, says, "It's built as a plane should be. It's extremely strong, probably the most capable airliner ever built. It goes up fast, flies high and comes down slow like a glider.

"In 13 years I only lost one engine on a 707 and that was due to loss of oil. And even on just two engines the plane will get you there."

More than any other plane, the 707 established jet air travel.

The British put their Comet 1 into service between London and Johannesburg in 1952. But it grounded the fleet in 1954 after a series of accidents and the explosions of two Comets over the Mediterranean. Britain's Comet 4 opened trans-Atlantic jet service three weeks before the "Mayflower," but completed only two flights because of a maintenance strike.

The Soviet Union put passenger jets in the air in 1956 when a TU-104 flew from Moscow to Siberia. But Soviet planes were no competition.

Boeing staked its life on the 707, investing $16 million in the prototype.

"It was a gamble, but a good gamble," says Bill Allen, 77, Boeing president and board chairman at the time.

"Jets were safer and easier to maintain, more comfortable and quieter than piston-driven planes," says Paul Garber, historian emeritus of the Smithsonian Institution's Air and Space Museum. "That made them acceptable to many more people."

With the 707 paving the way, air travel boomed. A little over 1,500 aircraft in 1958 carried 49 million passengers. Today, 2,300 planes are heading for a record of 260 million passengers this year.

Parents' rights

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

Though the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act has been law since 1974, some parents are still unaware of their right to inspect their children's school records. The mother in the following hot-line conversation was one such parent.

Upon reading the records, parents can challenge information that is inaccurate, misleading or in violation of a student's rights, such as the right to privacy. Parents can place in the record an explanation of any information they disagree with. (Personal information in all hot-line excerpts has been changed to protect the caller's confidentiality.)

HOT LINE

MRS. G: I really don't think I'm calling the right place, but I'm so upset I have to talk to someone.

COUNSELOR: What happened?

MRS. G: I'm not sure. Jon, my 9-year-old, came home from school last week crying because he had been called into the principal's office. He had done something bad but wouldn't say what it was. I called the principal, but his secretary said he had just left for a conference and wouldn't be back for a month.

COUNSELOR: And your son's teacher?

MRS. G: I left messages. She didn't return my calls, so I took time off work one day and went to the school. It was just my luck. A substitute had the class for the day. I know something terrible has happened. I hate to think what my son's school records look like.

COUNSELOR: I am having trouble understanding why you are so upset. It may have been only a small incident.

MRS. G: I should have mentioned that Jon got into very bad trouble last year. At that time, I had a conference with the principal. He said if I didn't control my son, his records would look very bad. And then he said, "They don't look that good right now." That struck the fear of God into me.

COUNSELOR: Have you seen the records?

MRS. G: Oh, no. How could I see them? They are closed.

COUNSELOR: Did the principal tell you that?

MRS. G: No. But when he was reading them, he held them away from me so I couldn't see what was written. And he didn't offer to let me read them.

COUNSELOR: You do have the right to read those records.

MRS. G: Maybe I shouldn't. Maybe I wouldn't be able to understand what they say.

COUNSELOR: The school has an obligation to explain anything you don't understand. I think it might be a good idea to take advantage of this right you have as a parent.

MRS. G: To tell you the truth, I'm afraid of the school. If I do something they don't like, they might take it out on my son. He's not really a bad boy.

COUNSELOR: Is there anyone who might help you with this problem?

MRS. G: No, I'll have to do it by myself like I have to do everything else. I'm just afraid . . . I'm always afraid I won't be able to bring my boys up right. I have felt that way ever since their papa died. I'm afraid, but I'll be all right.

The counselor went on to give Mrs. G. the name and address of the federal office that handles parents' complaints about the use and abuse of their children's school records. That is the Information Practice Office, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 200 Independence Avenue S.W., Washington D.C. 20201.

Dr. Blaker cannot take telephone calls from her readers. However, there are hundreds of crisis intervention phone lines in the United States. For the phone number of one near you, contact your local mental health association or mental health information service.
