Seven twisters sighted...

Funnels threaten area

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms that dumped baseball-size hail and heavy rains on parts of North Central and West Central Texas spawned at least seven tornadoes within a 40-mile radius of Abilene, authorities say.

The Texas Department of Public Safety in the West Texas city said no injuries or damage were reported on Tuesday from the twisters, most of which touched down in open fields.

A DPS spokesman said six twisters were spotted in the Sweetwater area, which was struck by a devastating tornado April 19. Baseball-size hail was reported just west of Sweetwater.

Four of the tornadoes touched ground, three in Nolan County and one south of Stamford, said DPS spokesman Kelly Smith. Two tornadoes were sighted near Loraine and one near Hamlin, he said.

National Weather Service radar shortly before 11 p.m. indicated possible tornadoes seven miles southwest of Anson and eight miles south of Sweetwater.

A Nolan County dispatcher said about 30 minutes later that two tornadoes were reported on the ground between Roscoe and Sweetwater.

Weather service radar indicated a tornado on the ground 15 miles south of Sweetwater at Texas Highway 70 shortly after 10:30 p.m.

Sirens warning of possible tornadoes sounded in Sweetwater from shortly before 10 p.m. to 10:25 p.m. Tuesday night, the weather service said.

NWS radar later detected a tornado south of Old Glory in Stonewall County with golf-ball size hail reported in Rule.

Smith said three tornadoes were spotted at 8 p.m. by law enforcement officers in Nolan County 10 miles east of Roscoe and one in Mitchell County five miles northeast of Loraine.

The twisters touched down in open country, he said.

Warning sirens in Stamford signaled a tornado on the ground three miles south of Stamford on U.S. Highway 277. The twister was spotted by the Department of Public Safety at 8:10 p.m.

A Stamford resident said no damage was reported from the tornado, but golf-ball size hail fell in Stamford and Tuxedo to the west.

A weak cold front stalled from the Red River Valley to the Permian Basin triggered the line of storms. Drier air filtered into West Texas where skies were mostly clear.

District adopts new salary concept

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

A new concept in pay for Snyder school teachers and administrators was unveiled Tuesday by the school board — one which eliminates the old "step schedule" which locked in annual raises tied to years experience and advanced degrees.

Its implementaton was based upon a "compensation study" completed for the board by staffers with the Texas Association of School Boards. This study included a survey of teacher salaries from nine other school districts of similar size in the immediate area.

Tuesday's implementation included also an "average" 3 percent pay raise for teachers and administrators for next school year.

In actual dollars, "professional employees" of the district can expect some $755 added to their current annual salary — an amount which equates to approximately $63 per month.

The pay increase as granted will be less than one projected last year for the next two-year period — a pay raise tied to the old "step" method for district salaries.

"With the current economic situation, we knew we just couldn't do that," said Mike Jordan, board president. "On the other hand, we didn't feel it was fair to freeze teacher salaries this year, not with teacher morale low because of the TECAT and the continuing effects of House Bill 72.

"In the end, we shot for a compromise," he said.

The pay increase as now approved will equal an approximate $200,000 increase in the pay portion of next year's budget.

The old pay plan tied to the "step" system would have added some $350,000 to that budget. This plan was tied to 22 percent above state base for teachers with a BA degree and 25 percent above the state for an MA.

Under the new plan, Snyder teachers will still be paid well above the state's minimum pay standards, which direct a beginning teacher be paid $15,200 a year. The new Snyder plan will start new teachers — both with a bachelors or masters degree — at $19,000 annually.

"The new pay plan has some immediate savings to the district," Jordan pointed out. "But the major impact will come in future years."

Board members point also to the flexibility of the new schedule — a characteristic not included in the locked in pay guarantees of a step schedule.

"We're not saying school personnel aren't going to get raises in the future," Jordan said. "But this plan gives the board an option to consider based upon economic conditions and competition in the job market."

The net effect of the new plan is to "put a cap" on the base pay of teachers and administrators. Under it, only one "extra" pay

'Ladder' committee nominated

A selection committee charged with choosing this year's career ladder teachers was approved Tuesday by Snyder school board members.

The committee method for selection follows the same process used last year. The board had the option to change the procedure this year.

In one change, a member of the committee representing one campus principal was dropped. Assistant Superintendent Jack Gorman, who recommended the committee concept, said this created a possible conflict when this same principal had to recommend career ladder nominees from their own campus.

The only repeats on the committee will consist of Gorman and Assistant Superintendent Tom Scannicchio. Also serving will be a classroom teacher representative from each of the three main grade levels.

Representing high school will be Alta Lynch; from junior high, Dale Hamby; and from the elementary schools, Judy

'Greater Tuna' opens on campus Thursday

Thursday will mark the first of six scheduled performances of the dinner theatre production of "Greater Tuna" on the campus of Western Texas College.

Tickets are priced at $13 each and may be reserved by calling the WTC box office at 573-8511, extension 234. Tickets are to be paid for in advance.

The evening begins with a dinner served at 7 p.m. and the play at 8. The meal is informal and will feature barbecued beef brisket served in the WTC Central Courtyard. The play will be in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Other performances are slated Friday, Saturday and Monday in addition to May 22 and 23.

"Greater Tuna" will be the final show from the Western Texas College Theatre Department and its 1985-86 season.

Using quick costume changes, two actors play 10 male and female roles in the show ranging from school kids to eccentric Texas matrons. Tuna is a mythical small town in Texas and the actors take their audience on a tour of "the Greater Tuna area" via an all day newscast by two radio announcers.

Mike Dennis and Glen Polk will be performing under the direction of Jim Rambo.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Competition doesn't create character, it exposes it."

Charlie Henderson, a vice president at West Texas State Bank, carried his three sons to services at Trinity United Methodist Church last Sunday.

There was the normal amount of after-church visiting. One youngster, three-year-old Will Henderson, was having a good time after having to sit still and quiet for the better part of an hour.

Only three couples remained when it was noticed that young Will was still there and his familiy was nowhere in sight. Henderson had forgotten one of his boys.

A call was made to the Henderson home. Charlie's wife knew he would be making several stops, and she would try to catch him. She called around and finally found Henderson.

"Charlie, did you forget something?"

"I don't think so," Charlie replied, knowing he had remembered that it was Mother's Day.

"Are you sure you didn't leave something at church?" the wife persisted.

"I sure don't know what it would be," the banker said with confidence.

After Ann had informed him about Will, Charlie asked his other two boys, James and Tommy, if they could think of anything they had forgotten. Apparently, forgetfulness runs in the family.

Central Elementary Principal Charles Anderson made a Mother's Day call to his mom who lives in East Texas.

Just like a mother, Mrs. Anderson wanted to know how her son had performed on the recent teacher's test.

Lamented Anderson later: "Here I am, almost a senior citizen, and I have to report to my mother that I passed my test and still have a job."

Tough year predicted for soybean farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — World oilseed production appears to be headed for another record in 1986-87, which could mean further problems for American soybean producers, according to Agriculture Department projections.

Recent reports issued by the department point to a record global oilseed output of 193 million metric tons, edging 1985-86 production by less than 1 percent.

Soybeans account for less than half of the world's annual production of oilseeds. This year, for example, soybeans make up about 94.7 million tons of the estimated global total oilseed production of 192.7 million tons.

The United States is the largest producer of soybeans at 57.1 million tons in 1985-86. Thus, U.S. production, prices and export policies have a great impact on world oilseed trade.

Although 1986-87 foreign oilseed production by country won't be computed until July, the department has projected what might be this year's U.S. soybean harvest, based on past trends and average weather.

The 1986 U.S. soybean crop, which was only 14 percent planted as of May 10, could produce a three-year low of 51.7 million tons — about 1.9 billion bushels. That would be down from 57.1 million tons or 2.1 billion bushels last year.

Although this year's U.S. soybean harvest could be the smallest since the drought-shriveled crop of 1983, at 1.9 billion bushels it still would be historically large, bigger than any harvest prior to the record yield of 2.26 billion bushels in 1979.

Further, a crop of 1.9 billion bushels would not allow much of a drain on the record U.S. soybean stockpile, now forecast to be a record of 490 million bushels Sept. 1, compared with a carryover of 316 million bushels last Sept. 1. If 1986-87 production and use turns out as projected, the soybean stockpile would be shaved only by 2 million bushels next season to 470 million bushels as of Sept. 1, 1987.

The USDA's projections indicate that the farm price of soybeans in 1986-87 could average $4.75 to $5.15 per bushel, compared with $5.10 estimated for 1985-86 and $5.78 in 1984-85.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng has named 10 members to serve two-year terms on the Wheat Industry Council, which administers a national research and education program for wheat and wheat foods.

The 20-member council includes wheat farmers, processors, end-product manufacturers and consumers. The program is financed by assessing bakers, bread manufacturers and other end-product users one cent per hundredweight on purchases of processed wheat.

Congress authorized the program in a 1977 farm law. The council was established in 1981. The USDA oversees operations of the council and approves its annual program budget, which is $1 million a year.

Newly appointed council members are Edwin F. Ross, Fisher, Minn., and J. Dale Criddle, Downey, Idaho, representing producers; Jack L. Karp, L. Karp and Sons, Elk Grove Village, Ill., and William W. Hay, Pillsbury Co., Minneapolis, Minn., processors; David S. Leavenworth, Campbell Taggart Inc., Dallas, wheat end-product manufacturers; and Carole A. Bisogni, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., consumers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has revised its system used to allocate surplus government-owned cheese to states for distribution to needy people.

According to the department's Food and Nutrition Service, the change will enable states to request additional cheese under a new allocation system. The change will go into effect July 1, the beginning of the new quarter.

Locals win in dog show

BIG SPRING--Ninety-three purebred dogs and their owners recently participated in the Big Spring Kennel Club's annual AKC fun match. The show drew dogs from area towns including Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Snyder, Colorado City, Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene and Sterling City.

Stand-out at the match, according to veteran show people, was eight-year-old Tricia Cunnington of Snyder who was the only child showing a dog in the obedience competition. Daughter of David and Pat Cunnington, Tricia showed her Miniature Schnauzer, Brian's Duke of Snyder, to first place in the Terrier group.

"Duke lets me dress him in doll clothes, play with him, do anything," praised Tricia. Though barely tall enough to lift Duke onto the examination table, Tricia proved competent in showing Duke against all adults even in the final match in match competition.

Another Snyder winner included Saluki "Duke," owned by Christopher Cunnington, third place in the hound group.

Going-away party slated for teacher

How would you do with East's hand?

By James Jacoby

Why don't we have a quiz today. Sitting East, you hear North open one club. What should you bid? Try one diamond. Although your hand is very strong for a mere overcall, no other bid is satisfactory.

The bidding continues, ending with North's four hearts. Should you double? The answer is, of course, a loud "No." You have three aces and more, but your partner must be broke. The best you can expect is a one-trick set. There is not enough profit in it.

On the opening lead of the diamond deuce, a low card is played from dummy and you win the jack. What should you return? The answer to this one is that if you want to defeat this contract for sure, you must quickly play your ace of hearts and get off lead with a spade. That spade play is not too difficult. Obviously you cannot afford a club or diamond lead. The play that's tougher to see is getting rid of that ace of trumps first. If you fail to do this, and declarer is on his toes, he will run three spade tricks and then throw you on lead with that heart ace. You will then have to lead away from one of your minor suit aces, and South will make his game.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I am writing to you in the hope that you will be able to help me solve my problem. Unfortunately, my concrete driveway is on the side of the main entrance of my home. There are numerous dark oil stains that have soaked in from earlier drippings that I cannot seem to remove. I have tried all sorts of cleaners, including special ones made for driveways, chlorine bleach, gasoline, paint remover and others, all to no avail. I even made a thin mixture of plain concrete and brushed it on. This made it look good until it dried, then there was a powdery residue on the spots I had covered, and consequently I had to wash it off again so as not to bring it into the house on the carpet. Is there something I can do to eliminate the oil spots?

A.—Once the oil has been absorbed by the concrete, you can only hope to soak up most of it over a period of time. In a recent case of this kind, results were achieved by covering the oil spots with a generous quantity of plain portland cement, letting it stay there for a couple of days, sweeping it up and repeating the procedure four times over the period of 10 days. The entire area was then scrubbed three times with trisodium phosphate. If you go to all this trouble and it works, better be sure that no car that stands there drips any oil, which is easier said than done, since this sometimes occurs when a delivery truck parks there.

Q.—We have two deep basement window wells on the west side of our house. Since the rain beats on that side of the house, the wells always fill up and flood into the basement. Can we do away with this problem permanently?

A.—A window well should have some sort of drainage system at the bottom to carry away the water from the well. Usually, these are drain tiles leading to a dry well or some other water carry-off method. Without something of this sort, you are likely to have trouble a number of years. Sometimes digging up the bottom of the well and covering the opening with a few inches of gravel will help.

Meal on Wheels needs volunteers

The Senior Citizens Center is in need of volunteers to help with the home delivered meal program, Gloria Shaw, director said.

The center delivers meals to persons who are homebound and cannot come to the center for the noon meal. Meal delivery begins about 11:30 a.m.

Volunteers do not have to be senior citizens age to assist with the meal delivery. The drivers must hold a valid Texas operators license. The "hoppers" carry the meals from the vehicle to the residence.

If you are willing to help contact Norma Laywell, Senior Center secretary.

Tough year predicted for soybean farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — World oilseed production appears to be headed for another record in 1986-87, which could mean further problems for American soybean producers, according to Agriculture Department projections.

Recent reports issued by the department point to a record global oilseed output of 193 million metric tons, edging 1985-86 production by less than 1 percent.

Soybeans account for less than half of the world's annual production of oilseeds. This year, for example, soybeans make up about 94.7 million tons of the estimated global total oilseed production of 192.7 million tons.

The United States is the largest producer of soybeans at 57.1 million tons in 1985-86. Thus, U.S. production, prices and export policies have a great impact on world oilseed trade.

Although 1986-87 foreign oilseed production by country won't be computed until July, the department has projected what might be this year's U.S. soybean harvest, based on past trends and average weather.

The 1986 U.S. soybean crop, which was only 14 percent planted as of May 10, could produce a three-year low of 51.7 million tons — about 1.9 billion bushels. That would be down from 57.1 million tons or 2.1 billion bushels last year.

Although this year's U.S. soybean harvest could be the smallest since the drought-shriveled crop of 1983, at 1.9 billion bushels it still would be historically large, bigger than any harvest prior to the record yield of 2.26 billion bushels in 1979.

Further, a crop of 1.9 billion bushels would not allow much of a drain on the record U.S. soybean stockpile, now forecast to be a record of 490 million bushels Sept. 1, compared with a carryover of 316 million bushels last Sept. 1. If 1986-87 production and use turns out as projected, the soybean stockpile would be shaved only by 2 million bushels next season to 470 million bushels as of Sept. 1, 1987.

The USDA's projections indicate that the farm price of soybeans in 1986-87 could average $4.75 to $5.15 per bushel, compared with $5.10 estimated for 1985-86 and $5.78 in 1984-85.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng has named 10 members to serve two-year terms on the Wheat Industry Council, which administers a national research and education program for wheat and wheat foods.

The 20-member council includes wheat farmers, processors, end-product manufacturers and consumers. The program is financed by assessing bakers, bread manufacturers and other end-product users one cent per hundredweight on purchases of processed wheat.

Congress authorized the program in a 1977 farm law. The council was established in 1981. The USDA oversees operations of the council and approves its annual program budget, which is $1 million a year.

Newly appointed council members are Edwin F. Ross, Fisher, Minn., and J. Dale Criddle, Downey, Idaho, representing producers; Jack L. Karp, L. Karp and Sons, Elk Grove Village, Ill., and William W. Hay, Pillsbury Co., Minneapolis, Minn., processors; David S. Leavenworth, Campbell Taggart Inc., Dallas, wheat end-product manufacturers; and Carole A. Bisogni, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., consumers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has revised its system used to allocate surplus government-owned cheese to states for distribution to needy people.

According to the department's Food and Nutrition Service, the change will enable states to request additional cheese under a new allocation system. The change will go into effect July 1, the beginning of the new quarter.

Locals win in dog show

BIG SPRING--Ninety-three purebred dogs and their owners recently participated in the Big Spring Kennel Club's annual AKC fun match. The show drew dogs from area towns including Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Snyder, Colorado City, Lubbock, San Angelo, Abilene and Sterling City.

Stand-out at the match, according to veteran show people, was eight-year-old Tricia Cunnington of Snyder who was the only child showing a dog in the obedience competition. Daughter of David and Pat Cunnington, Tricia showed her Miniature Schnauzer, Brian's Duke of Snyder, to first place in the Terrier group.

"Duke lets me dress him in doll clothes, play with him, do anything," praised Tricia. Though barely tall enough to lift Duke onto the examination table, Tricia proved competent in showing Duke against all adults even in the final match in match competition.

Another Snyder winner included Saluki "Duke," owned by Christopher Cunnington, third place in the hound group.

Going-away party slated for teacher

How would you do with East's hand?

By James Jacoby

Why don't we have a quiz today. Sitting East, you hear North open one club. What should you bid? Try one diamond. Although your hand is very strong for a mere overcall, no other bid is satisfactory.

The bidding continues, ending with North's four hearts. Should you double? The answer is, of course, a loud "No." You have three aces and more, but your partner must be broke. The best you can expect is a one-trick set. There is not enough profit in it.

On the opening lead of the diamond deuce, a low card is played from dummy and you win the jack. What should you return? The answer to this one is that if you want to defeat this contract for sure, you must quickly play your ace of hearts and get off lead with a spade. That spade play is not too difficult. Obviously you cannot afford a club or diamond lead. The play that's tougher to see is getting rid of that ace of trumps first. If you fail to do this, and declarer is on his toes, he will run three spade tricks and then throw you on lead with that heart ace. You will then have to lead away from one of your minor suit aces, and South will make his game.

Meal on Wheels needs volunteers

The Senior Citizens Center is in need of volunteers to help with the home delivered meal program, Gloria Shaw, director said.

The center delivers meals to persons who are homebound and cannot come to the center for the noon meal. Meal delivery begins about 11:30 a.m.

Volunteers do not have to be senior citizens age to assist with the meal delivery. The drivers must hold a valid Texas operators license. The "hoppers" carry the meals from the vehicle to the residence.

If you are willing to help contact Norma Laywell, Senior Center secretary.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I am writing to you in the hope that you will be able to help me solve my problem. Unfortunately, my concrete driveway is on the side of the main entrance of my home. There are numerous dark oil stains that have soaked in from earlier drippings that I cannot seem to remove. I have tried all sorts of cleaners, including special ones made for driveways, chlorine bleach, gasoline, paint remover and others, all to no avail. I even made a thin mixture of plain concrete and brushed it on. This made it look good until it dried, then there was a powdery residue on the spots I had covered, and consequently I had to wash it off again so as not to bring it into the house on the carpet. Is there something I can do to eliminate the oil spots?

A.—Once the oil has been absorbed by the concrete, you can only hope to soak up most of it over a period of time. In a recent case of this kind, results were achieved by covering the oil spots with a generous quantity of plain portland cement, letting it stay there for a couple of days, sweeping it up and repeating the procedure four times over the period of 10 days. The entire area was then scrubbed three times with trisodium phosphate. If you go to all this trouble and it works, better be sure that no car that stands there drips any oil, which is easier said than done, since this sometimes occurs when a delivery truck parks there.

Q.—We have two deep basement window wells on the west side of our house. Since the rain beats on that side of the house, the wells always fill up and flood into the basement. Can we do away with this problem permanently?

A.—A window well should have some sort of drainage system at the bottom to carry away the water from the well. Usually, these are drain tiles leading to a dry well or some other water carry-off method. Without something of this sort, you are likely to have trouble a number of years. Sometimes digging up the bottom of the well and covering the opening with a few inches of gravel will help.

Gary Landes named Business Associate of Year by ABWA

Gary Landes, owner of Landes Home Furnishings, was named Business Associate of the Year by members of the Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

Landes accepted the honor during recent ceremonies held in the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Music by the Sons of Snyder highlighted the affair.

Mark McMillan, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Ira, served as guest speaker for the evening with Myra Martin presenting the vocational program.

Martin, owner of Merle Norman Cosmetics, told the group about her new location and clothing lines she has recently acquired for her store.

The invocation and pledge for the evening were led by Judy Bynum, the organization's president. Sharon McCarty welcomed members and guests. Leona Wiggins made introductions and presented the associate honor.

Faye Layne gave the history and growth of ABWA and Pam Murray recognized each charter member present. Carla Beaird closed the session with the benediction.

Mexico's food imports were valued at an average of $1.72 billion a year in the period 1981-83, or 22.4 percent of the Latin American total for the period, according to the InterAmerican Development Bank.

Farmers who feed the world turn to food stamps for own use

by The Associated Press

For about a year, shame rode with Denise O'Brien every time she went to the market. They traveled together under cover of night hiding a secret — her farm family was on food stamps.

"It was just humiliating," Ms. O'Brien recalled. "I'd look around in the store and if I saw anyone I knew, I'd write a check."

Today, she has dismissed her fears of discovery; she shops by day and greets neighbors without shame. Ms. O'Brien realizes that $300 a month in food stamps is helping her family of five dig out from debt on their rented Atlantic, Iowa, farm.

Their plight has become common these days in the Midwest, where thousands who feed the world now feel the bitter irony of needing help to feed themselves.

"We raise the crops, but we can't feed our family," Ms. O'Brien said. "It's a sad commentary."

In Iowa, which accounts for about a fourth of America's hog production and more than 12 percent of its red meat, state officials say the number of farm families on food stamps jumped from about 400 in the summer of 1984 to 2,000 this spring.

The U.S. Agriculture Department doesn't keep records of food stamp recipients by occupation, but Iowa and several other struggling Farm Belt states have compiled their own numbers, showing sharp increases:

— South Dakota never had more than 350 farm families on food stamps before 1984, when times started getting tough. Last fall, 630 families were receiving stamps; that number jumped 58 percent to 1,000 families this spring.

— In North Dakota, 656 farmers got food stamps in March, up 46 percent from 447 in October 1985.

— In Minnesota's 10 most heavily agricultural counties, the number of households on food stamps rose about 25 percent from April 1980 to April 1985 — to a total of 1,817.

— And in Nebraska, the number of food stamp recipients hit record levels three straight months — in December, January and February — with a greater increase in rural communities.

Although the number of farmers on food stamps is small, farm groups say many more in need don't apply because they want to avoid the stigma of welfare.

"I know of several farm families right now that should be getting them (but) they just think it's wrong to apply for government programs," said Bob Simon, a Winterset, Iowa, farmer.

"We look out for our own," added Simon, who was on food stamps for a few months. "We take care of our own. Our parents taught us that."

Pride and fear of small town gossip keep some farmers away; others feel an application for food stamps is an admission of failure, "a public declaration they're not a good manager ... or a hard worker."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A reader named "Audrey" wrote: "When you can smoke and keep all the smoke inside yourself and not blow it into the air I must breathe, then you have the right to smoke, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your smoke."

Now, please quote me: "When you can wear perfume, cologne and after-shave and keep all the aroma inside yourself and not fill the air I must breathe, then you have the right to wear it, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your perfume, cologne and after-shave."

Let's hear it for signs that read: "Thank You for Not Wearing Perfume, Cologne or After-Shave."

FRANK IN PHOENIX

DEAR FRANK: Now that fragrances have become big business, one enters a crowded elevator without a gas mask at his/her own risk. The problem is not actually perfume, cologne or after-shave — it's the "smell-goods" who drench themselves in it.

Let's be fair, Frank. While too much can be merely annoying, it's life-threatening only to those who are highly allergic. The solution: All fragrances should be labeled: "Warning: Use sparingly. Excessive amounts may render you friendless."

LISTEN, ABBY. I'm sick and tired of reading about the "rights" of non-smokers to shove smokers around and make them feel guilty. My wife has now begun to threaten me, saying she just might go back to work, move out and live by herself where she won't have to breathe my cigarette smoke.

Well, that's OK by me. There are plenty of women who would be glad to have a good provider like me and the smoke wouldn't bother them too much. Or, I'm sure, I wouldn't have any trouble finding a woman who smokes and who won't bellyache about my smoking.

I work hard, and when I get home I enjoy my smokes. What does the wife do but stay home all day, clean the house and look after our two kids? She says my heavy smoking will hurt the kids. Well, they can get out, too. I'm the breadwinner in this family and I have my rights. If she's afraid of getting lung cancer because I smoke a couple of packs a day, she can just hold her breath.

I'll bet I don't see this in your column, but I'm mailing it anyway.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your response that a "thank you" scribbled on the back of a check (given as a gift) is better than no thank you at all: Not in our case. My husband and I have checking accounts in three separate financial institutions, none of which return the original checks with their statements. So a thank you would never be seen by either one of us.

So, for those who are too lazy to write a thank-you note for a check, a telephone thank-you would be better than none at all.

The common courtesy of a thank-you note is a combination of personal caring for the feelings of others, sincere gratitude and parental teaching. I have a 12-year-old niece who still does not write a thank-you note unless I make a federal case out of it. For her 13th birthday, instead of a gift, I plan to write her a letter explaining that I am tired of having to ask for a thank-you, so I'm not sending her anything. Think she'll get the message? (Her mother is just as bad.)

CHRIS P.

DEAR CHRIS: Most parents have had to remind, nag, threaten or bribe their children to write thank-you notes. Some parents are so embarrassed or impatient, they write the notes themselves and beg the child to "copy it."

I believe that children learn responsibility from having to bear the consequences of their own actions. To rush in and rescue an ungrateful, procrastinating or lazy child teaches him only that if he doesn't do it, Mama will.

Not everyone feels the same about receiving a "thank-you." Some give for the joy of giving and readily overlook the absence of a thank-you. However, people with good manners send a written note of thanks — promptly.

Shcharansky urges continued American pressure on Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anatoly Shcharansky, the Soviet Jewish dissident freed after almost nine years in Soviet prisons, is urging U.S. leaders to continue pressure on the Soviets to release some 400,000 other Jews.

"The fate of 400,000 Soviet Jews is, to a great extent," in the hands of President Reagan and the United States, Shcharansky told a news conference Tuesday.

That was the message the 38-year-old mathematician repeated over and over during a day-long series of meetings with Reagan and Congress.

Shcharansky went to Israel after he was freed by the Soviets on Feb. 11 in a prisoner swap brokered by the United States. He is on a two-week visit to the United States.

The diminutive Shcharansky told an audience of legislators and invited guests during a brief ceremony in the Capitol rotunda: "I am released, but 400,000 other Soviet Jews are prisoners."

Later, he met privately with Reagan for 30 minutes at the White House and told reporters later he was "very encouraged" by the president's words.

"I am sure my release would be never possible if there wasn't such a strong, open campaign and if President Reagan personally didn't take such a strong, open position on my behalf," Shcharansky said. "Of course, I am very grateful to him for this, and I expressed this to him."

In the past, Reagan has pushed for "quiet diplomacy" on the issue of Soviet Jews, and when asked about that approach, Shcharansky said, "Quiet diplomacy, in my point of view, can help only if it is supported by strong public pressure, strong public diplomacy. ... In the Soviet Union there will be no illusions that the question of human rights, the question of Soviet Jewry, the question of free emigration are very closely connected with their basic economic and political interests."

He told a news conference later that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev "understands better than his predecessors" the role of world public opinion and appears to be more sensitive to what the world thinks about Soviet actions.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said that during the meeting, Reagan "reiterated his commitment to do everything possible to support the people in the Soviet Union who are striving for their human rights."

According to the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, about 400,000 of the 2.5 million Jews there want to emigrate. Last year, only 1,140 were permitted to do so, and in 1984 only 896 Jews were allowed to leave.

About half the 534 members of Congress appeared to have attended the Capitol ceremony.

Farmers who feed the world turn to food stamps for own use

by The Associated Press

For about a year, shame rode with Denise O'Brien every time she went to the market. They traveled together under cover of night hiding a secret — her farm family was on food stamps.

"It was just humiliating," Ms. O'Brien recalled. "I'd look around in the store and if I saw anyone I knew, I'd write a check."

Today, she has dismissed her fears of discovery; she shops by day and greets neighbors without shame. Ms. O'Brien realizes that $300 a month in food stamps is helping her family of five dig out from debt on their rented Atlantic, Iowa, farm.

Their plight has become common these days in the Midwest, where thousands who feed the world now feel the bitter irony of needing help to feed themselves.

"We raise the crops, but we can't feed our family," Ms. O'Brien said. "It's a sad commentary."

In Iowa, which accounts for about a fourth of America's hog production and more than 12 percent of its red meat, state officials say the number of farm families on food stamps jumped from about 400 in the summer of 1984 to 2,000 this spring.

The U.S. Agriculture Department doesn't keep records of food stamp recipients by occupation, but Iowa and several other struggling Farm Belt states have compiled their own numbers, showing sharp increases:

— South Dakota never had more than 350 farm families on food stamps before 1984, when times started getting tough. Last fall, 630 families were receiving stamps; that number jumped 58 percent to 1,000 families this spring.

— In North Dakota, 656 farmers got food stamps in March, up 46 percent from 447 in October 1985.

— In Minnesota's 10 most heavily agricultural counties, the number of households on food stamps rose about 25 percent from April 1980 to April 1985 — to a total of 1,817.

— And in Nebraska, the number of food stamp recipients hit record levels three straight months — in December, January and February — with a greater increase in rural communities.

Although the number of farmers on food stamps is small, farm groups say many more in need don't apply because they want to avoid the stigma of welfare.

"I know of several farm families right now that should be getting them (but) they just think it's wrong to apply for government programs," said Bob Simon, a Winterset, Iowa, farmer.

"We look out for our own," added Simon, who was on food stamps for a few months. "We take care of our own. Our parents taught us that."

Pride and fear of small town gossip keep some farmers away; others feel an application for food stamps is an admission of failure, "a public declaration they're not a good manager ... or a hard worker."

DEAR ABBY: A reader named "Audrey" wrote: "When you can smoke and keep all the smoke inside yourself and not blow it into the air I must breathe, then you have the right to smoke, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your smoke."

Now, please quote me: "When you can wear perfume, cologne and after-shave and keep all the aroma inside yourself and not fill the air I must breathe, then you have the right to wear it, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your perfume, cologne and after-shave."

Let's hear it for signs that read: "Thank You for Not Wearing Perfume, Cologne or After-Shave."

FRANK IN PHOENIX

DEAR FRANK: Now that fragrances have become big business, one enters a crowded elevator without a gas mask at his/her own risk. The problem is not actually perfume, cologne or after-shave — it's the "smell-goods" who drench themselves in it.

Let's be fair, Frank. While too much can be merely annoying, it's life-threatening only to those who are highly allergic. The solution: All fragrances should be labeled: "Warning: Use sparingly. Excessive amounts may render you friendless."

Rockets win 112-102

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — While Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has shown no sign of slowing down on offense in recent years, he has been especially effective against the Houston Rockets since the "Twin Towers" came into being.

But the NBA's all-time leading scorer was anything but effective Tuesday night as Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson combined to limit him to only nine field goals in 26 attempts and a total of 21 points and four rebounds.

Meanwhile, guard Lewis Lloyd of the Rockets scored 10 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and Olajuwon and Sampson combined for 46 more points along with 29 rebounds and 11 blocked shots against the defending NBA champions.

The result was a 112-102 victory by the Rockets, which evened the Western Conference finals at 1-1.

The 7-foot-4 Sampson has been in the NBA for three years and the 7-0 Olajuwon for two seasons. Before Tuesday night, Abdul-Jabbar had averaged 32 points per game in leading the Lakers to nine victories in 11 games against Houston since the beginning of the 1984-85 season.

That includes the 31 points the 39-year-old center scored in the Lakers' 119-107 series-opening victory over the Rockets last Saturday.

"The big guys (Sampson and Olajuwon) created a lot of havoc," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We're going to have to be stronger with our moves to the basket. You can't be tentative with these guys."

Sampson had 24 points, 16 rebounds and five blocked shots while Olajuwon had 22 points, 13 rebounds and six blocked shots. Many of those blocks were on shots taken by the 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar.

"One time I thought they dropped someone out of the ceiling to block my shot," Abdul-Jabbar said. "They had me hitching on my shot and looking for people. The ball just would not go down for me. It was a rough night."

The best-of-seven series now shifts to the Summit in Houston for the third game Friday night and the fourth game Sunday. The Rockets are 41-5 at home this season, including a perfect 5-0 during the playoffs.

"This game gives us a lot of confidence going back to Houston because we can't lose there," Olajuwon said. "We'll do whatever it takes to win. It's going to be tough, but I know we can do it."

Lloyd scored only four points in the series opener and got off to a slow start in Game 2, missing several times early in the game.

"The first game I had a slight cold, it kind of slowed me up," he said. "When it's money time like it was tonight, I feel like I'm at my best. They were giving me the outside shot the whole game and I think I proved it was a mistake."

Los Angeles, which had beaten Houston in 22 of the last 25 games between the teams before Tuesday night, is now 6-1 in playoff games at the Forum this spring.

"I think it (the win) gives us some confidence, but they've been through this before," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said.

The Rockets outscored the Lakers 10-4 in the final 2:18 of the second quarter to take a 54-53 lead at halftime, and they were on top the rest of the way. Los Angeles led 25-18 after the first quarter and 34-20 early in the second period before Houston got its game together.

Celtics gaining playoff momentum

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks won the opening tap. They scored the first two points. Unfortunately, they still had to play 46 minutes and 40 seconds of basketball against the Boston Celtics.

"No one has said that they are not the best team," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson said. "They pretty much prove it every night."

The latest bit of overwhelming evidence was presented Tuesday night. The Celtics charged into a 29-point lead with less than five minutes gone in the second quarter and blasted the Bucks 128-96 in the opener of their NBA Eastern Conference final series.

"After a week off, we needed to come out and get a good tempo going and put in a strong performance," Boston forward Kevin McHale said. "I think we did that tonight. We did everything we wanted to do."

The Celtics led 29-12 after one quarter as Milwaukee tied six other teams for the fewest points scored in the first quarter of an NBA playoff game. The Bucks hit just 29.8 percent of their field goal attempts in the first half, which ended with Boston in front 60-38.

The Celtics outrebounded the Bucks 67-51. They outpassed the Bucks, 39 assists to 17. Milwaukee's top regular-season scorer, Sidney Moncrief, was sidelined, but the next three on the list — Terry Cummings, Paul Pressey and Ricky Pierce — hit just 8-of-34 field goal attempts for 23 points.

"We did a lot of good things on defense," said Larry Bird, who led Boston with 26 points. "Robert (Parish) and Kevin did a good job on Terry and when he would make a move, we would help pick him up."

"They were bigger, but we were quicker," said Cummings, who sank 3-of-13 shots and scored eight points. "We could get by the first man so easily but once we were in the paint they collapsed on us."

Moncrief has missed five of Milwaukee's last eight playoff games with an injured left heel. Nelson said he may be able to play when the best-of-seven series resumes here Thursday night.

"I'm glad I didn't waste Moncrief in this game," he said. "Nothing could have helped us."

The victory was the Celtics' 25th in their last 28 games. It was their 37th in a row at home where they are 46-1 this season.

Colonial golf starts Thursday

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Mac O'Grady, predicting he'll face further fines from PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman, returns to the golfing wars this week while his lawyer returns to the legal battles.

O'Grady, facing a $5,000 fine and a six-week suspension from the PGA Tour for conduct unbecoming a professional golfer, took some time away from the tour last week and used the break to appear on two nationally televised talk shows.

On one of those programs, NBC's "Today Show," O'Grady again attacked Beman as a "dictator" and said the tour "needs a new commissioner."

"He'll fine me again, maybe another big one," for those comments, O'Grady said Tuesday before a practice round for the $500,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament, which gets underway Thursday.

Beman was not available at his office in Ponte Vedra, Fla.

In San Diego, O'Grady's lawyer, Steve Novak, said he knew nothing about any further fines. He did say, however, that a formal appeal to the fine, suspension and one-year probation would be made "before the end of the week."

Novak said he wouldn't take advantage of Beman's offer to bypass the commissioner and go directly to a three-man Appeals Committee.

Beman had offered to allow O'Grady to go directly to the Appeals Board, but Novak refused, even though he said Beman "is inherently biased" in the matter and that his "bias has tainted the whole affair."

Jury selection is underway in football battle

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Football League, which for almost four years has been blaming much of its misfortune on the NFL, is finally getting the chance to prove its case.

Jury selection in the USFL's $1.32 billion antitrust suit against its older rival ended Tuesday and opening arguments were scheduled for this morning before U.S. District Judge Peter K. Leisure.

Both sides professed to be satisified with the group of jurors selected and both seemed more than ready to start.

"That the day is finally here is both exhilirating and anticlimactic," USFL Commissioner Harry Usher, who took office in January 1985, two months after the suit was filed, said.

First chance at addressing the four women and two men, seated along with six alternates, will go to Harvey Myerson, the USFL's flamboyant chief trial attorney.

Myerson will present the jury with the USFL's claim that the National Football League pressured the three major television networks to deny the young league a contract for the fall schedule starting in September and ask the jury to require the NFL to divest itself of at least one of its network contracts.

He will also argue that various NFL efforts to undermine the USFL required the awarding of $440 million in damages, trebled as is normal in antitrust cases to the $1.32 billion figure.

The jury which will hear the case include just one professed football fan, a West Indian-born postal worker from the New York suburb of Mount Vernon. He is one of three members born outside the United States.

American League roundup...

Rangers lose on 10th inning homer

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

There's nothing like being on the wrong end of a rout to get your feet back on the ground.

The Cleveland Indians proved that Tuesday night, returning from a 19-2 loss the previous evening to edge the Texas Rangers 3-2 on Pat Tabler's 10th inning home run.

"Maybe getting smoked last night helped," Tabler said after connecting off reliever Greg Harris. "It made us start all over again — look at every day as a new day. The thing about baseball is, you've always got another game the next day."

The Indians had dropped four consecutive games after a 10-game winning streak ended last Friday. The first three defeats were close games. Then the Rangers collected a club-record 22 hits Monday night.

In other American League games Tuesday night, it was Seattle 8, Milwaukee 5 as the Mariners turned the first triple play this season; Baltimore 3, Chicago 1; Kansas City 4, Detroit 2 in 11; California 5, Boston 4, and Oakland 6, Toronto 3 in 10 innings.

Mariners 8, Brewers 5

Four hits by Danny Tartabull, including two triples, and superb relief by Pete Ladd — plus the triple play — were the keys for Seattle.

Tartabull tripled and scored in the first inning. He also tripled in the eighth to drive in two runs but was thrown out trying for an inside-the-park home run.

Ladd relieved starter Mike Morgan in the sixth after Morgan had yielded five runs with two outs, on Rick Manning's two-run single. Ladd had 3 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Ladd has a win and a save in five games since Dick Williams took over as Mariners manager.

Seattle's triple play in the first inning came after Randy Ready and Ernie Riles walked to start the game. Cecil Cooper grounded to first baseman Alvin Davis, who threw to Domingo Ramos at second to force Riles. Ramos' relay to first was too late to get Cooper but Ready strayed off third and was tagged out by catcher Bob Kearney in a rundown.

Kearney then threw to second baseman Tartabull, who tagged out Cooper.

Orioles 3, White Sox 1

Chicago first baseman Bobby Bonilla bobbled a dribbler by pinch-hitter Larry Sheets and then made a wild underhand toss to pitcher Gene Nelson, allowing John Shelby to score the winning run in the eighth inning. Shelby, in a 3-for-25 slump, singled in the third and advanced to third on two stolen bases, giving him 9-for-9 this season.

Yankees 6, Twins 4

Tommy John, who rejoined the Yankees as a free agent earlier this month, won his second straight decision and 261st of his career to move into 31st on the all-time victories list. The 42-year-old John left with a five-hitter through seven innings and Dave Righetti finished for his 10th save, most in the majors.

Sutter's relief derails Mets

By The Associated Press

A comeback by Bruce Sutter would be a big relief to Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner.

Sutter, who led the National League in saves five times in six years before developing shoulder problems last season, allowed two hits and struck out three in three innings of shutout relief as the Braves defeated the New York Mets 6-3 Tuesday night. It was only the sixth loss in 27 games for the Mets.

"He's the whole key to our staff," Tanner said. "When he told me to get him the lead and give him the ball, it made my day."

"I went to Chuck before the game and told him I thought I was ready," Sutter said. "I had been throwing without pain."

In other NL games, it was Montreal 4, Cincinnati 2; San Francisco 6, Chicago 5; San Diego 4, Pittsburgh 2; Houston 3, Philadelphia 2 in 11 innings; and Los Angeles 6, St. Louis 5 in 13 innings.

Sutter, who earned his second save of the year, hadn't pitched three innings in a game since last June. He underwent off-season arm surgery.

"The way he threw in spring training, I thought we'd be using him a lot," Tanner said, "but then we had to start babying him, using him one inning here and one inning there."

Now, however, Tanner said, "I'm going to use him every time we're ahead. I plan on using him as if he's 100 percent. I think this is a tremendous leap over what he's been able to do. He threw free and easy out there."

Dodgers 6, Cardinals 5

Los Angeles snapped a four-game losing streak and won for the first time in seven extra-inning games this season on Mike Marshall's two-run homer in the 13th inning.

Marshall's hit, which gave him eight homers and 25 RBI, both tops in the NL, came off St. Louis reliever Ken Dayley, 0-2.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Denny Walling, who has eight hits in 15 at-bats during a five-game hitting streak, singled in the winning run for Houston in the 11th inning.

Phil Garner doubled with one out in the 11th off loser Dave Rucker, 0-1. After an intentional walk to Glenn Davis, Walling bounced a game-winning single off the right-field wall.

"I've been struggling a little against lefties so it was nice to get this one," Walling said. "If he was going to throw it in there and try to get ahead of me, I was going to be swinging."

Giants 6, Cubs 5

Candy Maldonado hit a two-run homer, his third pinch-hit home run of the season, off Lee Smith with two outs in the ninth inning, carrying San Francisco past Chicago.

"It's good to have that kind of weapon on the bench," Manager Roger Craig said. "He's been wanting to play every day, but I'm not going to let him. He's too valuable doing what he does."

Maldonado, batting for winning pitcher Greg Minton, hit a 1-0 pitch over the left-field wall for his fifth home run of the season in only 57 at-bats. Smith, 2-3, gave up a single to Bob Brenly before Maldonado homered.

Expos 4, Reds 2

Montreal won for the 11th time in 13 games, with Andre Dawson providing the key hit against Cincinnati with a two-run single in the fifth inning.

Dawson put the Expos ahead 3-2 with his game-winning hit, which followed singles by pitcher Floyd Youmans and Mitch Webster. Youmans went to third on Webster's hit and Webster stole second.

Youmans, 2-3, worked 5 1-3 innings, allowing seven hits for the victory.

Padres 4, Pirates 2

Dane Iorg, batting only .190, hit a three-run homer, his first in the NL since 1981, lifting San Diego over Pittsburgh.

Frank Gifford to remain on Monday night football

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Gifford will remain with ABC Sports and move from play-by-play announcer to analyst on Monday Night Football, the network announced.

Earlier this year, Joe Namath was fired by ABC as an analyst on NFL games, while O.J. Simpson was offered a position to work college football for the network. Only Gifford was asked to return, but to do color as Al Michaels was given the play-by-play assignment.

Have doctor check symptoms

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Quite often I pass gas both ways. During these attacks I get sore gums and a burning sensation up through my chest, have hemmorhoids and pass a light-yellow stool. Could this be an ulcer or a diet problem?

DEAR READER — Your problem is probably dietary. However, your symptoms are somewhat unusual, so check with your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 78-year-old woman and have been having problems with yellowish vaginal discharge. My Pap smear and pelvic exam were OK. My doctor says this is normal for older women. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Although some whitish vaginal discharge is common in postmenopausal women, a discharge of the type you describe does not sound normal to me. In my opinion, you need further testing to define this troublesome problem. If your doctor is convinced your discharge is "normal," request a referral to a gynecologist for a second opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What problems can occur because of a reduction of white blood cells? Does this condition indicate a serious disease?

DEAR READER — White blood cells are the body's infection fighters, therefore, any reduction in their number is cause for concern. There is day-to-day variation in white-cell counts, and some innocuous viral infections (like mononucleosis) are associated with temporary reduction in the white-cell population. Physicians take very seriously any severe or longstanding low white-cell count, because such a reduction can make the patient extremely vulnerable to any and all infections. In my opinion, a persistent low white-cell count requires medical evaluation.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had a problem with my ears for two years. They are damp and itchy deep inside. My doctor says he can't see anything wrong. I do have allergy problems. Could this be the cause of the itching and earaches?

DEAR READER — Allergies could certainly be the cause of your ear problems, as could a chronic skin infection (like yeast). Wait until you are having symptoms again, and then get in to see an ear-nose-and-throat specialist. The doctor will be able to tell more about your ears if you are seen at a time in which your symptoms are active.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is a meningioma? My mother has one but will not tell me what the doctors have told her.

DEAR READER — A meningioma is a slow-growing tumor that involves the membrane covering of the brain or spinal cord. As they enlarge, meningiomas may cause compression of nerve tissue, particularly the brain. Surgical removal is necessary.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report on IRRITABLE BOWEL SYNDROME explains the symptoms and management of this common problem. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Second shelter could open

AUSTIN (AP) — A battered women's home which turns away three times more occupants than it has space to accept could build a second shelter on leased Travis County land, officials said.

The Center for Battered Women is considering leasing three acres of county land to build another facility, center officials said.

Cyndy Perkins, chairman of the center's board of directors, said a new facility would triple the number of women and children sheltered for stays ranging from a few days to several weeks.

Center Director Ellen Fisher said 161 people were sheltered in the first three months of this year and 505 were turned away.

2 women are in gubernatorial race

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraskans guaranteed themselves their first female governor while "creating a little history" by setting the stage for the first woman-against-woman gubernatorial campaign ever in the United States.

Republican state Treasurer Kay Orr and former Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis, a Democrat and the first female mayor of a U.S. city of more than 100,000, were picked Tuesday from the state's largest gubernatorial primary slate ever.

"We're creating a little history," said Mrs. Orr, 47. "It's an exciting opportunity for us to make people aware of what Nebraska's all about."

"That has never happend in the history of our country, and I think that says something for Nebraskans," said Mrs. Boosalis, 66.

In other elections Tuesday, Kenneth Gibson — the first black mayor of a major Northeastern city — lost a bid for an unprecedented fifth term in Newark, N.J., to Councilman Sharpe James, also black and a former Gibson supporter. In Atlantic City, N.J., Mayor James L. Usry failed to win his first full, four-year term, and will face Assemblywoman Dolores Cooper in a June 10 runoff.

In West Virginia, U.S. Rep. Harley O. Staggers swept the Democratic primary, defeating Charles Wood, a coal miner and Lyndon LaRouche supporter who doesn't live in the district, and former state Rep. D.P. "Sheriff" Given.

There were seven Democrats and eight Republicans on the Nebraska gubernatorial primary ballot Tuesday, all vying to succeed Gov. Bob Kerrey, a Democrat whose style and long-time relationship with actress Debra Winger kept Nebraskans captivated for four years. Kerrey didn't seek re-nomination.

Both Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Boosalis grabbed early leads Tuesday and never trailed on the way to victories that were easier and more substantial than newspaper polls or party regulars had predicted.

The gubernatorial race "is going to get a lot of attention at first blush ... but I don't think that will be a sustained thing," said Mrs. Orr, who was the first woman elected to statewide office in Nebraska, in 1982. She had been appointed to fill a vacancy in 1981.

"I am proud for Nebraska and for my party, much more so than personally," she said.

"This election is about one thing, Nebraska's future, and which one of us candidates has the vision for that future," said Mrs. Boosalis, who served two four-year terms as Lincoln's mayor beginning in 1975. She also was chairwoman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Abilene couple file lawsuit

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The parents of a 33-year-old Abilene State School resident who drowned in the school's swimming pool are suing for $10 million, claiming their daughter was treated inadequately and denied her rights.

James Wilburn Feagley and Billie Jean Feagley, parents of Ellen Darlene Feagley, filed suit in federal court against the school and several staff members, including Superintendent Bill Waddill.

They claim that their daughter was denied her constitutional freedom from harm, from unsafe conditions and undue restraint, and from unnecessary institutionalization, as well as her rights to minimally adequate treatment and training in an appropriate setting, as determined by professional judgment.

Waddill referred inquiry about the lawsuit to attorney Kent Johnson of the Texas Department of Mental Health-Mental Retardation.

Johnson said he had not yet seen the plaintiffs' petition, filed Monday.

He said an investigation conducted after the drowning was a lawyer's "work product," specifically directed by him for defending against litigation that might arise.

"We'll use the information" in defending against the litigation, if necessary, but the investigation report itself will not be made public, Johnson said.

Ms. Feagley's body was found in the deep end of the pool shortly after 3 p.m. on Sept. 28 after she and four companions had been brought there for a swim session.

The suit charges that no adult - other than state school clients, or residents - were present when Ms. Feagley went into the water.

The Feagleys also claim that their daughter was "denied rehabilitiation and training, and was subjected to oppressive, inappropriate, unhealthy, abusive and unhealthy living conditions, and to severely injurious and cruelly inhumane treatment" before her death.

The Feagleys' petition included a long list of injuries they say their daughter, an epileptic, suffered during her residence at the state school. Many resulted from falls, they claim.

Drifter testifies in Kerrville trial

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Hill Country rancher padlocked a group of hitchhikers into a chain gang and forced them to dig ditches, then poked them with an electric cattle prod to make them work harder, a drifter testified in the trial of the rancher and two others.

Robert McCafferty, 27, of Chattanooga, Tenn., also said one of the ranchers boasted he and his father had killed people on their land.

"Mr. Ellebracht said to me why don't you tell me why I shouldn't kill you right now?" McCafferty said of defendant Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr.

"I said I have a 4-year-old girl in California and I don't think she wants a dead daddy," McCafferty responded.

McCafferty, who testified Tuesday, he went to the Ellebracht ranch because they promised him a job, said he was released after he was forced to work for hours at gunpoint.

"He (senior Ellebracht) said the last guy who went to the police ended up committing suicide in jail," McCafferty recalled.

His testimony came in the state's organized crime case against Ellebracht, his son Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., and drifter Carlton Robert Caldwell.

They are accused of violating the state's organized crime law in connection with the allged abduction and slaying of drifter Anthony Warren Bates.

Prosecutors claim Bates, along with other hitchhikers, was lured to the Ellebracht ranch near Mountain Home with the promise of work, then forced to stay against his will.

The state alleges Bates was beaten and tortured to death over several days in March 1984, then his body doused with gasoline and burned.

The younger Ellebracht's wife Joyce also has been charged in the case, but she has been granted a separate trial.

McCafferty said the elder Ellebracht picked him up in late March 1984 as he was hitchhiking on Interstate 10 near Kerrville.

He said the Ellebrachts promised him food, shelter, a pack of cigarettes a day and a paycheck in 30 days in exchange for cutting wood and making keychains.

McCafferty said he decided to go to their ranch because he had no money.

After spending the night in a bunkhouse that had no heat or plumbing and had dirt floors, McCafferty said he decided to leave.

He and two other hitchhikers went with him to tell the Ellebrachts. Senior, Junior, Mrs. Ellebracht and ranch foreman Mark Hamilton responded by pulling guns.

"Senior said 'you guys aren't going nowhere,' " McCafferty said. "We spent $20 on gas getting you up here and now you want to split on us. You may never go anywhere."

McCafferty testified another hitchhiker, Travis Boyd, then said, " 'You guys aren't really going to kill us are you?' "

"Then Senior said to Travis Boyd, 'You're going to die a slow death because you've got a loud mouth,' " McCafferty said.

McCafferty said the younger Ellebracht then chained him to the other hitchhikers and marched them to a spot near the bunkhouse and forced them to dig ditches.

Then, he said, "Junior said take off your shirts. You're not working hard enough. He approached us with a gadget that he called a hot shot (cattle prod).

"It was the most painful object I've ever felt. It knocked me off my feet and I screamed," McCafferty said.

McCafferty said he was released after Hamilton and a group of men, all pointing guns at the chain gang, "decided I looked like the hardest worker — the nicest guy."

The Ellebrachts dropped him off on Interstate 10 after he signed forms releasing them from any injury liability and any payment of wages, McCafferty said.

HOUSTON (AP) — Nine Afghan boys who left their war-torn homeland are now in Houston where they will receive medical treatment for injuries blamed on Soviet bombs.

The youths, ranging from 7 to 18, each had injuries to arms or legs. Some were rolled off the airplane in wheelchairs, while others limped through the aiport terminal after their arrival Tuesday.

"He's very happy to be in the United States," an interpreter said of the youngest child, known only as Bakhtiar. The 7-year-old displayed a deformed knee allegedly injured when a wall fell on him during a bombing attack.

"His parents are in Pakistan, his brothers are fighting," said interpreter Mohammed Zia Jahed. "He is one of the most fortunate ones."

Since late 1979, Soviet troops and the Soviet-backed government have been fighting against Afghan rebels.

New salary plan adopted by ISD

option is available to teachers — the once-a-year supplement for career ladder status.

Previously, teachers could receive pay supplements for obtaining their masters degree, a $400 supplement for earning 30 hours above a masters; and a $1,000 supplement for earning a doctorate.

All teachers currently within the system who have attained these supplemental payments will retain them, part of a "grandfather" clause in the new pay plan.

But a teacher receiving a masters degree next school year will not automatically receive a pay supplement. This masters will count toward their consideration for career ladder, however.

The new plan also eliminates the various pay schedules teacher were placed under based upon year's experience and advanced degrees.

All teachers are now placed in one "pay grade." At the board's option, they can consider an annual salary increase based upon the "mid-point" of this pay grade.

The mid-point is just that, the pay level in the middle of the lowest teacher salary and the highest.

For next year's salary computation, the mid-point is $25,500 per year. The pay raise granted teachers was arrived at by multiplying 3 percent — the percentage the board thought fair this year only — by this yearly salary.

While all teachers will receive the same salary increase in actual dollars, the net effect is that teachers earning below the mid-point will receive a higher percentage raise. For teachers earning above the mid-point, the opposite will be true.

School administrators are also placed in six pay grades — each with a high and low salary and a "mid-point." These pay grades group the director of maintenance and the director of transportation; counselors-diagnosticians, the student development coordinator and curriculum consultant; all assistant principals; the elementary principals, special education director and athletic director; the junior high and high school principals; and the district's assistant superintendents.

Still to be addressed in the new plan is three pay areas identified by the board's compensation study as significantly "too high" regarding the pay for similar positions in the immediate area. These include the positions of assistant principals, counselors and the district's maintenance director.

The board noted these were situations which "just developed over the years." No immediate action has been taken regarding these pay areas and the board has directed Superintendent Bob Hawes to address the situations individually.

Final decisions regarding these areas are expected during the budget planning sessions this summer.

Committee told for career ladder

Barkowsky. Each of these teachers was selected for career ladder status last year, it was noted.

Seventy-one teachers were chosen for career ladder last school year, receiving supplemental payments of $1,500 each.

At Tuesday's meeting, trustees also accepted "with regret" the resignation of J.M. (Mule) Kayser from the board. A plaque was presented to him acknowledging his service to the board and his some 37-year association with the district.

The board took no action on a request submitted to them by local TSTA chapter president-elect, Betsy Griffin. The request asked that attendance at some funerals — specifically those not involving an immediate member of the family — be allowed under the professional business leave provision for teacher absenses.

The board noted it would take the request "under advisement."

Attending Tuesday's meeting were board members Mike Jordan, who presided, and Trustees Mike Reed, G.A. Parks Jr., Allen Grimmett and Charlene Light. J.D. Hinton was absent.

In other school business, trustees voted to:

—Renew the agreement between the district and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture for U.S.D.A. commodities. As part of this motion, Artie Butler, assistant superintendent for business, was authorized to represent the district to secure these commodities. Trustee Mike Reed voted against the motion. He noted also the district's option to reject these commodities if it is felt they won't be used.

—Appoint Mike Jordan as the district's delegate and J.D. Hinton as the alternate to the fall state convention of the Texas Association of School Boards.

—Approve for another year the food service contract awarded to American Food Management.

—Award the low bid of $23,559 to T.E. Shelburne and Sons to repair, encapsulate and paint the ceiling of Worsham Auditorium. It was noted this will be the final asbestos encapsulation project required of the district. The only other bid was received from AAA Polution Control Services of Abilene, bidding $64,263.

—Award the low bid of $21,524 to Nolan Electric to rewire the concession stands and restrooms at Tiger Stadium. The only other bid was submitted by J.T. Electric for $24,300 for the same wiring plan.

—Grant a request for use of the district's athletic facilites this summer by members of the Scurry County Recreation Program.

—Accept the resignations of 11 district staffers. These include two principals, Frank Miller at West Elementary and James Stehley at junior high. Other resignations were accepted from Billy Bob McMullan, vocational ag teacher at SHS; Suzanne Ferrell, library aide at SHS; Wayne Griffin, industrial arts teacher at SHS; Jimmie Lynch, social studies teacher at junior high; Phyllis McGinnis, librarian at West; Jo Alyce McMullan, first grade teacher at East; LaNelle Rambin, fifth grade teacher at East; Donna Stehley, fourth grade teacher at West; and Billie Walker, second grade teacher at Central.

—Approve a leave of absence request submitted by Patricia Guerra, third grade teacher at North.

The board also went into executive session at 8:40 p.m. to discuss the pending lawsuit against the district challenging its method of electing members at-large.

The board came back into open session around 10 p.m. and adjourned with no action taken.

Illegal sale charged here

Police jailed a 28-year-old Snyder man on misdemeanor charges of possession of alcoholic beverages for sale in a dry area Tuesday evening.

The suspect remained in Scurry County Jail Wednesday morning in lieu of bond set at $1,000.

In other Tuesday arrests, police jailed a 17-year-old man for misdemeanor assault after two complaints were made against him during the day.

School officials at Central Elementary reported at 8:03 a.m. a man riding a bicycle and brandishing a knife at students.

Police received a second report at 2:41 p.m. indicating a subject had been pointing a BB gun at individuals in the 1000 Block of 26th St.

Bell arrested 3 times

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — John Michael Bell has been arrested three times on alcohol-related driving cases since he slammed his car into 16-year-old Barry Head, killing the youth almost instantly.

Head's parents say Bell, who has been placed on probation and sent to an alcohol-treatment program, has had more than a second chance.

"He's been fined, he's lost his driver license, he's gone through rehabilitation," said Arlene Grady, Head's mother. "People make mistakes, but how many chances do you get?"
