Tanker Crewmen Missing

PORTSMOUTH, Fa. AP — Thirty-three of 44 crewmen were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N..C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a life raft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the Coast Guard resumed a search this morning for possible survivors.

Most of the missing crewmen were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The Coast Guard here said its cutter Escanaba and an aircraft from its air station at Elizabeth City, N. C., were dispatched this morning to search the area where the Texaco Oklahoma went down.

The Coast Guard said it was a mystery why nearly two-thirds of the crewmen apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661-foot vessel broke in two in 15-foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the Coast Guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

Both messages, the Coast Guard said, reported 20 crewmen missing-last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084-ton tanker about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, said however that records showed 42 crewmen aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft about 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Coast Guard had difficulty learning details of what happened, but a spokesman said one message from the Sasstown quoted the survivors as saying the stern section they abandoned sank half an hour afterward.

They were reported to have said the other crewmen were scattered throughout the rest of the ship, which they saw for the last time at midnight, 18½ hours after they launched the raft. They did not see the rest of the ship sink, nor did they see any other rafts, the Coast Guard said.

By the time the Coast Guard got a plane into the air late Sunday, all it found was a huge oil slick. The pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Patrick H. Cannon, said the Sasstown by then was 145 miles east of Elizabeth City, N. C., in seas running 8 to 10 feet.

COWBALL HALL OF FAME OFFICIALS AND HOST — Posing in front of the chuck wagon of the Fort Griffin Fandangle of Albany are Dean Krakel of Oklahoma City, Albert K. Mitchell of Albert, N. M., C. T. McLaughlin of Snyder, Matt Matthews of Albany, Jasper Ackerman of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Glenn Faris of Oklahoma City. Krakel is managing director of the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City, and McLaughlin is head of the Diamond M Foundation, sponsor of the Hall of Fame art exhibit at the coliseum. The others are on the board of directors of the Western Heritage Center who attended a dinner in their honor Saturday night at the coliseum. Some 300 invited guests from throughout Texas and several other states were on hand for the event. See other pictures on page 2.

Court To Review Private Club Racial Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Suprene Court agreed today to consider whether private social clubs that have liquor licenses can continue to exclude Negroes.

The court accepted for review an appeal by a Moose Lodge in Harrisburg, Pa., whose racially exclusive policy was ruled illegal in November by a three-judge federal court.

If the high court upholds the ruling the decision could upset the racial policies of private clubs across the land.

In other actions today the court:

—Upheld 5 to 4 the power of states to limit what an illegitimate child may inherit from his natural parents.

—Agreed to rule on the scope of the Federal Trade Commission's authority to protect consumers in a dispute involving S&H Green Stamps. The dispute concerns the S&H practice of not permitting holders of S&H stamps to trade them at exchanges for other kinds of stamps or to exchange them for merchandise with retailers who do not trade with S&H.

—Agreed to consider a government contention that no one convicted of a serious crime may ever legally possess a gun.

—Refused to review the conviction of a Chicago man who contended the government should have said whether it used illegal electronic surveillance to convict him.

—Granted a hearing to the Socilia Socialist Labor Party in a challenge to Ohio's loyalty oath for political candidates.

The Harrisburg lodge's rule against Negro members or guests was tested three years ago. A white member brought a Negro, K. Leroy Irvis, the Democratic leader of the Pennsylvania house, to the club for dinner and drinks.

Irvis was refused service.

Irvis, a Pittsburgh Democrat, sued, leading to the ruling by the District Court in Harrisburg in November, that the lodge could not keep both its Pennsylvania liquor license and its racially exclusive policy.

Since the Constitution forbids states to discriminate by race, the unanimous opinion held, the State of Pennsylvania may not issue a liquor license to a private club that bars Negroes.

The decision, written by the late federal appeals court judge, Abraham L. Freedman of Philadelphia, was appealed Feb. 2 by attorneys for the Moose lodge.

Without a liquor license most social clubs would die, the appeal said, since clubs depend on the sale of drinks to offset invariably losing restaurant operations.

"It follow's" the appeal said, "that the ruling ... effectively destroys the great majority of private social clubs in this country."

The constitution that governs all Moose lodges provides that membership "be composed of male persons of the Caucasian or White races above the age of twenty-one years, and not married to someone other than the Caucasian or White race. ..."

The Supreme Court hearing will be held sometime next term, beginning in October. In granting review the court said it was postponing judgment as to whether it has jurisdiction over the case and the issues.

Hundreds View Western Art

Hundreds of people from throughout Texas and from several other states viewed a Cowboy Hall of Fame traveling art exhibit over the weekend in the Scurry County Coliseum.

The exhibit, brought here under sponsorship of the Diamond M Foundation, will remain here through Wednesday, with three local organizations to serve as hosts for additional showings. The Palette Club is host today, the Ranch Headquarters Association will be the host for Tuesday and local garden clubs will be in charge of the show on Wednesday.

A highlight of the festivities over the weekend was a dinner honoring directors of the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center of Oklahoma City. C. T. McLaughlin was host for this event, with some 300 invited guests from a wide area of the Southwest attending.

Entertainment featured a "sampler" of the Fort Griffin Fandangle which was staged in the coliseum by members of the cast of the famous Fandangle from Albany.

McLaughlin was presented a special medal by Jasper Ackerman chairman of the board of the Cowboy Hall of Fame, for his interest in, and support of western art.

Ackerman was introduced by Dean Krakel, managing director of the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Gordon Snidow, Cowboy artist of Belen, N. M., president of the Cowboy Artists of America, and who had three pieces of his work on display in the traveling exhibit, also expressed his appreciation for the opportunity of presenting the Cowboy hall of Fame art here.

There are 21 pieces of art, including oils, water colors, charcoal drawings and bronze sculpture, on display in the coliseum. Each piece in the traveling exhibit won a top award at a CAA annual show at the Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City.

A motion picture will join the paintings in the Coliseum on Tuesday for Ranch Headquarters Day.

The picture is an eight-minute film made in 1928 on the John Slaughter U Lazy S Ranch. It shows Slaughter and others working cattle on the ranch, then loading them on cattle cars for shipment.

The public is invited to see the film at intervals between 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Hall of Fame art exhibit will be open to the public between the hours of 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. through Wednesday.

Welding School Set For Adults

A special welding school for adults has been set for Tuesday night at the Snyder High School Shop.

The school, which is open to the public, will be conducted by instructors from Odessa between the hours of 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. and is primarily for persons who already know welding, said Ronald Fowler, instructor. It will deal with new materials, new processes and new metals being used now in welding. There is no enrollment fee.

33 AMERICANS KILLED, 76 WOUNDED

Sappers Raid US Artillery Base

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese sappers ran through a U.S. artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest American death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. Command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in American control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. Command said.

There was a general stepup in enemy action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon-"there is always higher enemy activity about this time because it's easier for the enemy to get into position without being detected," one officer said.

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang Air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Enemy gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. American Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down the less than 400 American defending the base.

"They put in some mortar rounds and our people took cover," said one American field officer. "There were sappers going through the place throwing satchel charges into our bunkers and firing positions. The sappers swept across the base and dropped the charges as they went across. They did most of the damage."

"We had no intelligence the attack was going to take place," one American field commander said.

Top Egyptian Diplomats Are Meeting In Paris

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With President Anwar Sadat warning that the next few days will be decisive in the Middle East, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and a score of his top diplomats gathered in Paris today for a meeting their government hopes will generate new pressure on Israel.

Riad conferred with Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France. Both Riad and Schumann called the talk fruitful.

The office of the United Nations in Paris reported that the U.N. special envoy on the Middle East, Ambassador Gunnar V. Jarring, had come to Paris.

Riad told newsmen he had hoped to meet with Jarring. But there was no word that such a meeting would take place. Jarring's presence in Paris was not explained.

Riad told newsmen: "We are facing a serious deadlock which is the result of the Israeli's refusal to accept Dr. Jarring's proposals. We hope the Israelis will change their point of view and will answer in a positive way as we did so the talks can start."

Neither Riad nor Schumann went into detail on what they discussed.

En route to his Paris meetings, Riad stopped off in Italy for talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia, who is visiting there, and Italian Premier Emilio Colombo and Foreign Minister Aldo Moro.

Raid begins a three-day session on Tuesday with 21 of his diplomats stationed in Europe and America, including U.N. Ambassador Mohammed Hassan el-Zayyat and Ashral Ghorbal, Egypt's representative in Washington.

Egyptian sources said conference would map a vigourous campaign to demonstrate to the West that the current no-peace, no-war situation is extremely dangerous and that Egypt already is on a genuine war footing.

Speaking to newsmen on his arrival from Rome, Riad praised the French government for its "just appreciation of the situation in the Middle East."

President Sadat told a rally in Khartoum Sunday that Egypt had done all it could to achieve peace in the Middle East. The official Middle East News Agency's report of his speech did not elaborate on his remark that the next few days would be decisive for the Arabs, but he was warned before that the unofficial truce along the Suez Canal cannot last unless there is progress in the peace talks.

Deliberations In 13th Day

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) —Lt. William Calley's murder jury began its 13th day of deliberations today with a request to see the logs made of radio transmissions on the day Calley's troops swept into My Lai.

While they met, the trial judge scheduled a court session to ask opposing lawyers what, if anything, he can do to prod the jurors into speeding up their discussions.

The longest court-martial in history now also has had the longest jury deliberations in memory. The trial began with the jury selection Nov. 12. The jury received the case March 16—the third anniversary of the day at My Lai.

Divorcee: I'm marrying ex-priest

By Abigail Van Buren

(C 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old divorcee and mother of three. I am deeply in love with a 50-year-old man who is kind, gentle and considerate and wants to marry me. His is genuinely fond of my children and they of him.

Now, the problem: He's a Roman Catholic priest who is leaving the priesthood soon. He assures me that the decision to leave was made before we became emotionally involved, and I believe him.

I know that many men leave the priesthood every year, but I do not know anyone whose advice I could seek concerning the problems I may face in marrying an ex-priest. I wonder about the censure of family and friends, and his possible resentment eventually of having given up a 22-year vocation for a ready-made family.

Perhaps you, or some of your readers, could offer some advice. If I seem overly cautious, it's because I have one marital failure behind me and I want to do everything possible to insure a successful marriage the second time around.

ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: You can expect the same problems encountered by any other 37-year-old woman with a ready-made family who marries a 50-year-old bachelor. Plus others. Even tho he may not have left the priesthood to marry you [and a divorced woman, yet!] many will say he did.

Much will depend on where you live. Ex-priests who marry find it easier to make a new life in a new community. Wherever you go, you can expect subtle snubs and cutting remarks. You will lose some old friends because your husband "deserted his calling" and broke his vows. And you will win some new friends for the courage and honesty you have shown. Your former good friends will remain good friends.

Priests are usually sensitive, highly motivated and accustomed to discipline, and will work to make a marriage succeed, but I advise you to proceed with caution, and give him time to adjust to his new life before you say, "I do." I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: What does "B. Y. O. B." mean at the bottom of an invitation?

PUDGE

DEAR PUDGE: If it's a drinkin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bottle. If it's a prayin' party, it means Bring Your Own Bible.

DEAR ABBY: "NO DUNKER" griped about the barbaric, uncivilized new social custom of serving chip dips and fondue. She said it was unsanitary and unhealthy for everyone to dip into and eat out of one large communal pot!

We, "The Barbaric Naval Advisors of Viet Nam," would appreciate it if NO DUNKER would gather up all the half-eaten chips and leftover dips and fondue and send it over here. We eat out of a communal pot 365 days a year and nobody has caught anything from the pot yet.

"ADVISOR TEAM 159"

DEAR ABBY: Fondue was originated by the Swiss, and everyone knows what a clean and cultured people the Swiss are, so "NO DUNKER," who called Fondue parties "unsanitary and barbaric" doesn't know what she's talking about.

In the first place, the long fork is used only for cooking, and at no time does it go into the mouth. Each person has his own cooking fork and eating fork, so where is the danger of germs? I'm glad you told "NO DUNKER" to stay home.

LOVES FONDUE

3 Perish In NY Inn Fire

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — An intense fire, with flames that could be seen for miles, raced through the 117-year-old Canandaigua Inn early today leaving at least three persons dead, seven missing and sending 14 persons to hospitals.

Firemen searching the smouldering rubble found two charred bodies buried in the wreckage. A third man died of a heart attack after fleeing the burning hotel in the early morning hours.

Stanley Rypka, a former patient at a Veterans Administration Hospital here, collapsed at the scene and died at the hospital.

Detective Anthony Decere said the fire broke out on the top floor of the four-story brick and wood building and engulfed all but the ground floor within 20 minutes.

Occupants of the 70 rooms included students at the Finger Lakes Community College and patients recently discharged from the nearby Veterans Administration hospital.

Five hours after the blaze was reported, at 12:25 a.m., the building continued to burn, preventing firemen from checking for bodies.

"I'm afraid there are victims buried beneath the rubble," Decere said.

"There must be bodies in there," a witness said. "They couldn't all have gotten out."

A spokesman for the hospital said a staff member at the scene made contact with most of the former patients and reported them "okay."

A number of persons were rescued by ladder from the top floors and others were led down fire escapes to safety.

More than 150 firemen and equipment from communities as far as 20 miles away were called in. At the height of the four hour blaze flames were visable for almost ten miles.

Today's fire was the third major blaze at the inn in the last 13 years.

President Of Toy Company Says Industry Should Police Itself

By AP Newsfeatures

The toy industry is trying to police itself, but some manufacturers ignore danger signs that might lead to more stringent controls, says Richey Smith, youthful president of a family-founded company that manufactures toys. He was in New York to attend the toy market.

"If you make a bad refrigerator, you may not hear much about it, but toys involve children, and when many toys are proved unsafe, it is a blow to the whole industry."

Certain regulations have been established by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, but in Smith's opinion, there are a lot of unfair-to-children practices not covered by such regulations.

"One thing that bugs me is the use of slow-motion techniques on television to appeal to children. For example, a 4-year-old child sees something difficult being done slowly, and he thinks he can do it. He presses his parents to buy the toy that really is beyond his capabilities. A tiny child cannot understand degrees of speed so, in addition to being unable to cope with the toy, the child may think of himself as a failure at play."

There are puzzle-type games also portrayed in slow motion on television. These make a game look easier to do than it is, and the game may seem to do more than it really does. This proves disillusioning to a youngster who cannot accomplish the same results, Smith explains.

Unsafe toys that have been removed from toy shelves include dolls, rubber squeeze toys and toy ovens. The bulbs on some ovens would get as hot as 400 degrees.

Smith would like to see all raw materials tested for color fastness, non-toxic qualities that do not irritate the skin or affect the eye sight. Edges should be rolled on steel toys to avoid cuts. Paints should be tested.

His criticism of some manufacturers is not motivated to boost sales of his own products which include basketballs and decorated rubber balls. Three toys made by his company, Sun Products, are among the top 10 toys on a "hit parade of toys" a sales barometer used by many members of the industry.

He has been associated with the company 10 years, he says, and because he is new in the toy industry, he doesn't want to make enemies, but he "doesn't want to see the toy industry go down the drain because some individuals have no regard for the facts.

"The average layman cannot tell whether some toys are safe merely by their appearance. Too many factors enter into the manufacture of a toy. The consumer must rely on the manufacturer to make toys that are fun and safe."

Novel Tells Need To Expand Mind

THE SHAPE OF MINDS TO COME. By John G. Taylor. Weybright and Talley. $6.95.

Taylor is discussing in this book what he calls the mental revolution, as distinguished from the mechanical revolution which has had so much effect on man's life in the last 300 years. His main point is that the revolution of the mind must be speeded up quickly before civilization destroys itself.

His procedure is to comb through hundreds of research reports. His background is that of a physicist, but he discusses a great many medical, surgical, physiological and psychological matters.

There are chapters on the prospect for extending man's intelligence and memory, for expanding the consciousness, for controlling enotions. Others are on sleep, drugs and such paranormal psychic phenomena as telepathy and clairvoyance.

One of Taylor's principal themes is that consciousness seems to be dependent upon electrical and chemical processes within the brain. That leads him to the proposition that there may be no such thing as free will, one of the keystones to moral, political and religious institutions of the past and present.

Taylor presents some awesome possibilities for the improvement of the human mind in the next few decades, but these possibilities also involve some frightening problems. Some readers may question part of the author's vision of the future, but there is no doubt that he has written a provocative book.

When it was introduced to the general consumer market nearly 30 years ago, a paint roller was a paint roller was a paint roller.

Today, the all-purpose roller has been replaced with rollers of all sizes and shapes, affording such a multiplicity of choices that the purchaser is likely to be bewildered when making a selection. Fortunately, some manufacturers have taken to labeling each roller to advise the buyer what the product is made of and what its best usage is.

Roller covers are made of mohair, lambskin and many kinds of synthetics. They also come in various fiber lengths, producing what generally are called short, medium and long "naps." If the particular roller that catches your eye does not carry a label describing its uses, the rule-of-thumb to follow is that the rougher the surface to be painted, the longer the nap of the roller should be. Thus, a short-napped roller is for smooth surfaces, such as plaster and dry wall; the medium nap for light stucco and fairly smooth concrete; and the long nap for heavy stucco, brick, rough concrete and cement or cinder block.

Mohair is especially good for enamels and varnishes, lambskin is fine for most oil paints, but not enamels or latexes. Synthetics of good quality work well with all kinds of paints. The principle is the same as with paint brushes: if you are putting your own labor into a paint job, it is foolish to use poor quality rollers to save a dollar or so.

To get the best results with a roller, certain fundamentals must be observed. The roller should be loaded by dipping it into the paint tray and then removing the excess by rolling it over the higher and drier surface of the tray. On vertical surfaces, the first stroke should be upward, then downward, then crosswise. Use light, even strokes. Always start rolling in a dry section and toward the one just painted, blending the laps.

The most common fault—and the one that causes splattering—is to roll too fast, which causes the roller to spin at the end of a stroke. Another common mistake is to keep rolling when there is very little paint left on the roller. As soon as the roller begins to run dry, dip it in the tray and pick up more paint.

When you have to paint a ceiling or a floor, the job becomes a lot easier if you use an extension handle on the end of the roller. And remember that there are special rollers for all kinds of special projects, such as painting fences and round objects.

(Sweating windows and walls, squeaky floors and stairs, brickwork repair and concrete patching are among the 35 problems discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Folks Really Do Eat Lots Of Cereals

COLLEGE STATION—Ever wonder about the breakfast habits of the folks next door, or down the street? Chances are they are having ready-to-eat cereal, says Miss Sally Springer, Extension foods and nutrition specialist at Texas A&M University.

According to a recent survey by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, three-fourths of the nation's families do eat such breakfast cereals during the week.

Children were found to be the biggest users of the ready-to-eat breakfast cereals, Miss Springer reports. In fact, they ate at least twice as much per person as their parents. The survey also revealed that boys consumed more than girls, and that men ate more than women of the same age.

Breakfast cereals account for 1.3 percent of the food money spent by U. S. families, the specialist says.

Nutritionally, Miss Springer adds, chief contributions of the ready-to-eat foods are iron and the two B vitamins, thiamine and niacin. They provide 4.1 percent of the iron, 7.0 percent of the thiamin, 3.4 percent of the niacin and 1.8 percent of the food energy in the daily family diet.

Long Range Prospects For GNP Forgotten

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Partially forgotten amid concern that the 1971 Gross National Product will fall short of President Nixon's goals are the long-range prospects, which are decidedly, overwhelmingly bullish.

The President's goal is a GNP of $1.065 trillion. The cold analyses of nongovernment economists is that the figure is $20 billion too high, a conclusion supported by the slow pace of recovery so far this year.

That $20 billion difference looms large on the scene right now, with implications for jobs, taxes, urban redevelopment, corporate profits, the stock and bond markets and, of course, for next year's national elections.

In the perspective of 10 years, however, it doesn't seem at all as important as it does now. After all, what's a mere $20 billion when the 1980 GNP is forecast to be more than $900 billion larger than that of 1970?

That's the estimate of Profs. Ross Preston and Lawrence R. Klein of the Wharton School's Econometric Forecasting Associates, who built a symbolic economy of numbers that is manipulated through various equations.

The elaborate econometric technique—the word suggests economics, measurement and mathematics—takes place on a computer. Over-simplified, if you put in certain quantities, you should obtain a certain result.

That result shows the GNP rising from $1.0476 trillion this year to $1.9972 trillion by the end of 1980, although the authors concede that 2.5 to 3 per cent inflation per year is built into their projections.

"In human terms this holds the promise of a decade of peace and welfare—human benefits for almost everybody," said Preston.

"Personal disposable income will almost double, total profits will rise, the hours we work will decline, and federal, state and local budgets will have several years when they are balanced," Preston added.

"Aren't you a bit optimistic?" Preston was asked. Back came an emphatic no. If sound policies are used, he said, the results are entirely attainable, but he did concede that sound policies often are sidetracked or derailed.

You must also accept the assumptions on which the projections are made, namely, that the Vietnam war will end by the close of 1972 and that, as the President expressed the hope recently, no other major wars will be waged.

A&M Gets New Craft

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&M University, the state's only sea-going institution, has acquired a third oceanographic research craft.

The newest addition to the Texas A&M fleet is the R V Leprechaun, an 88-foot vessel donated by Emmet Vaughey of Jackson, Miss.

The Leprechaun is berthed at A&M's new Mitchell Campus on Pelican Island in Galveston.

In addition to being used for instructional purposes, the craft will be used for research in shallow offshore waters, as well as in bays and estauries.

Dr. Richard Geyer, head of the Oceanography Department, said the boat will be the department's second to be used primarily in programs associated with coastal zone, ecological baseline and environmental problems.

The department's third craft, the 186-foot R V Alaminos, is used almost exclusively for cruises of long duration and deep-water operations.

President Helped Settle Election

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A president once had to intercede to settle an Arkansas gubernatorial election.

It happened in 1872 when Elisha Baxter led Joseph Brooks by a small majority. Each claimed victory.

Baxter took office. Brooks went to court, but his case was thrown out. Then Brooks took the governor's office by force, and friends of each candidate kept Little Rock on the verge of civil war for nearly a month. Several skirmishes caused a few casualties.

President Grant then intercedded and recognized Baxter as governor.

Geologists have found that during the Ice Age, as recently as 10,000 years ago, a vast area between Siberia and Alaska lay above water.

Junior Editors Quiz on GAMES

QUESTION: Who first used marbles and how are they played?

ANSWER: Boys have played marbles since Greek and Roman days and there have been many variations of the game. But Americans, today, generally play "ringer." For this, you make a circle about 10 feet across. There is a "lag line" and a "pitch line" as our diagram shows. You put a marble in the center of the circle and arrange a dozen more in the shape of a cross, three on each side of the center. Then the two to six players "lag" for turns by throwing or shooting their large "shooter" marbles from the pitch line toward the lag line. The nearest shot wins first turn, the next nearest, next turn and so on. Then the players shoot their "taws" or "monnies" (shooters) at the "migs", "ducks" or "hoodles" (ring marbles) trying to knock them out of the ring. If you shoot out the most marbles, you win. Except for lagging for turns, marbles are shot by "knuckling down" — one knuckle touching the ground as the thumb snaps the marble out. You're not supposed to "hist" — raise your hand from the ground — or "hunch", which means moving your hand forward.

Boyle Gets Data From Mailbags

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Chinese doctors used to keep small ivory dolls on which their lady patients, too modest to undress, would point out the site of their symptoms.

Why the world's oceans are being polluted: 5 to 10 million tons of oil are spilled into them each year. Most of it comes from the pumping of bilges, the dumping of used fuel and pipeline breaks—not from tanker collisions.

The United States is now the seventh largest wine-producing nation, and 90 per cent of the wine we consume is domestic. Our thirst for this beverage is still moderate. We drink an average of only two gallons a person each year, compared with 30 gallons for the Frenchman or Italian.

What is the deadliest seaway? It is the busy 350-mile long English Channel, where half the world's ship crashes take place. There is at least one collision a month in its crowded waters, plied by 1,000 vessels a day.

To tell or not: Should a doctor tell a patient that he has cancer? Of a group of 100 patients so diagnosed and told the seriousness of their disease, 89 expressed approval for having been informed, 6 said they would have preferred not to know and 5 had no opinion.

Hippies, please note: English gentlemen in the 18th century prided themselves on the length of their hair. Some plastered their tresses before bedtime with two pounds or more of a mixture of pomatum, flour and powder, then slept all night sitting up in an armchair to keep from disarranging their coiffure.

One thing amiss with medicine, women liberationists complain, is its lack of women. They point out that though women make up 51 per cent of the population, only 7.4 per cent of physicians and 10.5 per cent of first-year medical students are feminine.

Worth remembering: "When a man has everything that a woman could ask for, she usually does."

It was William James who observed: "The prevalent fear of poverty among the educated classes is the worst moral disease from which our civilization suffers."

Eaton Urges Cattle Deal

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The United States should sell beef cattle to Russia, Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland says.

"Russia is interested in buying beef cattle," the 87-year-old industrialist said Friday, "and I don't want us to fumble the ball the way we did when they wanted to buy steel and rubber."

Eaton said Russia would have placed the largest steel order in history in the 1960s and U.S. businessmen were ready to sell, but the government denied export licenses. He said the business went to Western European countries.

The cattle deal could involve $100 million and 200,000 head of cattle, Eaton said.

Clean Program

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — A tired hippie took refuge in an all-night launderette, only to be alarmed by a mysterious voice from inside one of the washing machines.

He called Hampshire police, who found the voice broadcasting police messages. Freak weather and the copper lining of the copper washing bowl, acting as an aerial, had turned the machine into a radio receiver.

Tower Speaks To Jews

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., urged Jews Sunday to support America's military might as an indirect way of shielding Israel and other free nations of the world.

Tower spoke to the 32nd annual convention of the Texas State Association of B'nai B'rith.

Tower said a retreat by American military forces into a "Fortress America" would leave U.S. economy at the mercy of Soviet Russia.

He said persecution of Russian Jews is a "manifestation of the tyranny we cannot allow to gain the upper influence in this world."

Citing Russian "adventures" in the Middle East, Tower said it is in the best interests of America to make sure that Israel "not only survive, but prosper. There is a singular dedication to that. The state of Israel will not be abandoned."

'COMPANY' TAKES SIX HONORS

Tony Awards Are Announced

By WILLIAN GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway has bestowed its 1971 Tony Awards upon "Company" as the best musical and "Sleuth" as the best play.

Top individual acting trophies were won by Maureen Stapleton and Brian Bedford for drama, Helen Gallagher and Hal Linden in the song-and-dance department.

The 25th anniversary presentations of the silver medallions for "distinguished achievement" were made Sunday night during a two-hour-plus telecast from the Palace Theater over the ABC network during which a stellar galaxy reprised hit songs from past musical champions.

There weren't any real surprises among the winners—voted upon by about 450 representatives of stage guilds, craft unions and the press. But the loudest ovations greeted the awards to three veteran actresses, Miss Stapleton, Miss Gallagher and Patsy Kelly.

Miss Stapleton, honored for her portrayal in the "Gingerbread Lady," won a Tony previously in 1951. Miss Gallagher, of "No, No, Nanette," also got a Tony for supporting work back in 1952.

For Miss Kelly, taking the supporting musical actress award for "No, No, Nanette," there was special sentimental significance, for it was at the Palace when she was 12 that she made her New York debut in a vaudeville chorus.

As her name was announced, the rubber-faced commedienne looked momentarily stunned, tripped as she mounted the red-carpeted steps to the stage and after the traditional thanking of everybody quipped: "Now I'm going home and faint."

In addition to the award as best musical, "Company" scooped up five other Tonys; for best book, by George Furth; best music and lyrics (separate citations), Stephen Sondheim; scenic design, Boris Aronson; and Hal Prince, the director-producer. The show, which opened last April 24 after the Tony voting deadline, previously was named the best musical of 1970 by the New York Drama Critics Circle.

Four prizes were picked up by "No, No, Nanette." Besides the pair for distaff performances, Donald Sadler was named for best choreography and Raoul Pene du Bois for costumes.

The Tony Award to Linden was the second to "The Rothschilds," as Keene Curtis took the award for supporting actor in a musical.

Bedford, starring in "The School for Wives," was one of three English winners. The others were "Sleuth," written by Anthony Shaffer; and Peter Brook, best director for "A Midsummer Night's Dream," performed by members of the Royal Shakespeare Company.

The other competitive awards were won by Paul Sand, dramatic supporting actor; and R. H. Poindexter, lighting design, both for "Story Theater"; and by Rae Allen, supporting dramatic actress in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little."

Urban Mass Transit Is New

(First of 3 parts)

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: Do you think urban mass transportation will be a promising career field for the future, and what kinds of jobs will there be? -- K.R., Greensburg, Pa.

Improving urban mass transportation has become a top-priority job for America. And just in the nick of time. After thumb-twiddling decades of little or no attention to urban public transportation, scores of cities face rigor mortis of systems which are either underbuilt, overtaxed, neglected, or in serious disrepair. Ridership is down; costs and fares are up.

But now, there's a new drive to keep America's cities moving which seems likely to provide thousands of new jobs – of many types – during the 1970s. As one Government transportation official has said recently, "If we can send a man to the moon, surely we can give him a better way to travel across town."

NEW FEDERAL LEGISLATION, the 1970 Urban Mass Transportation Assistance Act, gives a fresh infusion of money to revive urban transit: 10 billion dollars over the next 12 years – with $3.1 billion available to be committed over the next 5 years. (Only about $1 billion of Federal money was allocated for this purpose during the entire past decade.) Except for highway and freeway investments, this is the first time that long-term continuous Federal financing for urban transportation improvements has been available. Under the old financing, not only was far less money available, but funds were granted on a year-to-year basis, making it difficult for transportation operators and local governments to plan ahead and make sizable capital improvements.

CARLOS C. VILLARREAL, head of the US Department of Transportation's Urban Mass Transportation Administration, cautions that jobs will not be equally distributed on a geographical basis because of varying degrees of self-help instigated by local governments:

"Progress in mass transit is not a certainty merely because Federal funds have been voted. Local commitment to a comprehensive, regional transportation plan and allocation of local funds also are required. One-third of the cost of equipment and other capital improvements must come from the local sources, with the Federal government underwriting the remaining two-thirds. Private investment will be needed too – we estimate that urban transportation capital investment requirements for the next 10 years will be between 28 and 34 billion dollars," Villarreal says.

OVER THREE-FOURTHS of the US population lives in urban areas. Although it's too soon to pinpoint which cities will offer the greatest job opportunities, Villarreal anticipates that by 1980, we will need to double the people- and goods-carrying capacity of our national transportation network to just stay even with the demand. As an additonal plus factor . . .

URBAN MASS TRANSIT may turn out to be the answer for many unemployed aerospace technical personnel. Growing mass transit needs will require better designed transportation facilities, and that in turn will call for the application of systems management and technology from other industries – particularly from the industry that is the largest repository of advanced techniques, aerospace.

Conditions Similar To Dust Bowl Days

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Todd A. Fonstad believes that unless steps are taken, mid-America in this decade could see conditions similar to the Dust Bowl days of the 1930s.

And the graduate geography student at the University of Oklahoma says the "dirty 30s" which led to the flight of "Okies" need not have happened.

Fonstad, from Waupaca, Wis., said his research showed the Dust Bowl of the Depression days was a result of mismanagement by settlers. And similar conditions in the 1950s also came as the result of improper use of the normally dry land, coupled with periodic drought, he says.

"It is probable the decade of the 1970s will revert to droughty conditions," Fonstad says, "for it appears there is a 20-year wet-dry cycle existent in the plains."

Before the settlers began using, and abusing, the grasslands in the middle of the continent, the area supported vast herds of bison, antelope and other wild animals—even in dry years.

"Yet they caused no dust bowls," he says. "The reason lies in the natural grasses which formed a tight sod, resisting both water and wind erosion."

Then the ranchers began grazing too many cattle, close-grazing sheep were introduced, and farmers began plowing the soil," he said. The grasses were killed and loose topsoil was exposed to wind and rain.

"The results were disastrous," Fonstad says. "About a half-century after the homesteaders began to populate the plains, they were victims not of drought alone, but of continuous poor land management.

"The pioneer philosophy of clearing the land, plowing (most often regardless of the contour of the land), planting, and reaping the harvest proved to be suicidal," he says. "The 'black blizzards,' the auctioneer's hammer and the flight of the 'Okies' were all too prevalent scenes in the desert years of the 1930s.

Actually, Fonstad says, drought conditions were worse in the 1950s in parts of Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, New Mexico and Colorado.

To prevent another Dust Bowl, Fonstad recommends these steps:

—In areas where farmers have pushed cropland too close to the desert, the only "safe and sane" alternative is the return of a permanent grass cover. The U.S. Soil Conservation Service advises that 14 million acres of arid cropland be returned to permanent sod.

—Reserves of silage and hay should be built up during humid years for use during drier years.

—Condition of the ranges must be improved. That would include allowing a good growth of grass to start before range is used in the spring. Rotational grazing then should be used.

SHS Nine Wins 12-4

EUNICE, N. M. — Snyder's Tigers lashed Euncie 12-4 to capture third place at the baseball tournament here Saturday night.

The Bengals blasted 12 hits while Tim Holder and reliever Marvin McClanahan holding Euncie to just five hits. Holder, who was credited with the victory, was relieved in the 5th. The loser was Mitchell, and he went the distance for the hosts.

Snyder scored one run in the 2nd, one in the 3rd, six in the 4th, two in the 5th and two in the 7th. Eunice tallied two in the 4th and two in the 7th.

Albert Hernandez walked for Snyder in the 2nd and moved to second on a single by Charles Anderson. A single by Tim Holder brought Albert in.

In the 3rd, Larry Wall walked, went to second on an error at third, and scored on a single by Butch Buchanan.

Eight walks in the 4th inning combined with singles by Stewart Sims and David Thompson accounted for six runs.

Mitchell reached first for Eunice in the 4th on an error. Three successive walks enabled him to score.

In the 5th, McClanahan opened with a single and moved to third on a single by David Thompson. A walk to Buchanan loaded the sacks, then Tommy Washington walked to force in McClanahan. Albert Hernandez then delivered a C. [illegible] in Buchanan.

In the 7th, Larry Wall singled and scored on a double by David Thompson. Thompson took third on an infield out and he scored on a sacrifice by Washington.

For Eunice in the 7th, Magee walked and came in on a home run over the right field fence by Mitchell, the losing pitcher.

The Bengal record now is 10-5. The Tigers host Eunice in a double-header Saturday.

Larry Wall and David Thompson were named to the All-Tournament team.

Hammond To Guide Mustangs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Methodist finally came down to Earth with its football offense.

After former NCAA passing champion Chuck Hixson bombarded SMU opponents with passes for three seasons, Coach Hayden Fry has gone overland with the wishbone-T offense.

At the throttle is the Ponies' versatile former receiver-running back Gary Hammond, who switches his skills to quarterback this spring.

Fry has used Hammond as a stopper in each of the past two seasons to plug up graduation holes and with Hixson graduated this season, quarterback had to be Hammond's next stop.

"I really wouldn't say passing was my strongest point," said Hammond, who was an all-state quarterback for Port Arthur Jefferson High School.

And after a week of work with the new offense, Fry, says the Ponies are further along than he expected.

"This is an intricate offense that they're running," Fry said. "Although we're just running the basics now, we're much further along than I thought we would be."

Texas, Rice, Texas A&M and Texas Christian also joined the Mustangs in spring drills last week. Texas Tech and Baylor join the fun this week. Arkansas waits until April 12.

Freshman Don Burrisk highlighted Texas' controlled scrimmage with 112 yards on 10 carries, including a touchdown. Longhorn quarterback Eddie Phillips scored on runs of 35 and five yards and threw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Rick Davis.

TCU Coach Jim Pittman said his Horned Frogs defense continued to show "vast improvement over last Saturday" and the "pursuit by the defense was 100 per cent better with a lot of gang tackling."

But Pittman didn't like what he saw on offense. "The offense is not coming off the ball well at all," he said. "The backs are not running with authority, especially the fullbacks running out of the T or wishbone."

Tarheels Defeat Engineers

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was the kind of week that had the fans bemoaning the loss of the cheerleaders. Then came the saviours—St. Bonaventure and Bill Chamberlain.

The 34th annual National Invitational Tournament was being called a collection of losers—teams that failed to make the NCAA national championships.

And for most of the games in Madison Square Garden, the lack of super teams or superstars was evident. The show was stolen by a high-spirited bunch from Hawaii.

The Rainbows, making their debut in post-season play, arrived in the Big Apple with pineapples, leis, orchids, "hot pants" basketball suits and hula-girl cheerleaders that had the fans more interested in the intermissions.

Then Hawaii was eliminated in the quarter-finals and the fans wondered: "What now?"

Well, there were the Bonnies, who had to struggle to turn back the Rainbows. Most observers expected them to dispose of Georgia Tech and meet Atlantic Coast Conference power North Carolina in the championship.

It didn't quite work out that way. North Carolina made it to the finale with a 73-67 thumping of Duke but St. Bonaventure wound up on the short end of a 76-71 double-overtime score that sent Georgia Tech into Saturday's title tilt before 18,134 fans.

It didn't appear Tech and North Carolina could match that game's excitement—and they didn't. Chamberlain did it all by himself.

The 6-foot-6 junior who started his basketball training in the streets of New York's Harlem, scampered away with the tourney's Most Valuable Player honors.

The soft-spoken star repeatedly brought the crowd to its feet with twisting, spinning layups, and high, hanging jumpers as he dashed to a personal collegiate high of 34 points and directed a flurry of fast breaks that gave the Tar Heels an easy 84-66 victory.

Player Captures Airlines Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Gary Player has earned $75,643 in five American golfing weekends, and the incredible South African is thinking of moving here for a fulltime shot at the $7 million tour.

The muscular, little man in black shot a closing 68 Sunday for a 14-under-par total of 274 to capture the $200,000 National Airlines Open.

It means another $40,000 for him, winner of the $25,000 top check the previous week in the Greater Jacksonville Open.

Player strung out rounds of 69-67-70-68 on the 6,970-yard Country Club of Miami course, smashing a five-man [illegible] three straight birdies Sunday to whip Mexican Lee Trevino by two shots.

Astros Are Now 12-10

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — The Houston Astros will close out the Florida portion of their spring training today with a game against the Boston Red Sox.

They come back to Houston for more exhibition games before the start of the regular season.

The Astros are now 12-10 in the Grapefruit League this season following a 3-1 loss here Sunday to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Larry Dierker was the losing pitcher, dropping the decision to Don Sutton and Sandy Vance of the Dodgers.

But Dierker, despite Sunday's loss, is not worried about his pitching, if he gets enough work.

The Astros only 20-game winner in their 10-year history said after the game, "if you go out there enough and pitch enough innings you're going to win a lot of games. This is the way I look at pitching, the way I think I am going to win a lot of games.

"By going out there and pitching more than anybody else, if I can do this, I am confident of the results—that I will get my wins."

Dierker got stuck with the defeat Sunday when the Dodgers erupted for two runs in the eight to break up a 1-1 tie.

He and Sutton had battled on even terms for seven innings, but a one-out single by Willie Davis touched off the winning spree.

Wes Parker doubled over the head of left fielder Bob Watson who stumbled and fell in backing up on the wind-blown ball. Davis easily scored and Bill Buckner scored for the final run.

Bruins Are U.S.Champs

HOUSTON (AP) — UCLA Coach John Wooden had more in mind than slowing down Villanova Saturday when he sent his NCAA champion Bruins into a stall game that produced a fifth consecutive national title.

"I was hoping they wouldn't come out and we could hold the ball all day," Wooden said of the sometimes unpopular freeze tactic that helped the Bruins to a 68-62 victory over the "iron men" of Villanova.

Wooden has long been an advocate of a 30-second clock for shooting in college basketball, and what better showcase than the national championship to demonstrate the need for such a rule?

"Yes, I thought about that while we were playing," Wooden said. "I've been for a 30-second rule for a long time now. I think it would help the game.

Wooden said clocks had been put on Coach Hank Iba's teams at Oklahoma State, one of the foremost exponents of the pattern offense, and Iba's offense shot the ball in an average of 20 seconds.

"If the rule wouldn't hamper those teams," Wooden said, "I don't think it would bother anybody."

While Wooden has long been an apostle of speedup methods in college basketball, he didn't hesitate to go to the slowdown when he needed it to win the Bruins seventh NCAA title in eight years.

UCLA has more often been the intended victim of slowdown play to stop their run and gun style, but Wooden wanted Villanova to come out of its zone defense and the stall was the answer, even if it almost backfired.

"I didn't think they could beat us man-to-man," Wooden said. "We went to the slowdown to bring them out of their zone defense and it worked. Yes, it did hurt our momentum but that's a gamble you have to take."

Losing Coach Jack Kraft said UCLA's [illegible] helped the runner-up Wildcats get back in the game in the second half when they cut a 12-point deficit to four points.

"It made our fellows scarp harder," Kraft said. "He (Wooden) just forced us out of our zone a little bit early. The way we were going, we would have had to come out anyway to catch them."

The Bruins' slowdown strategy brought boos and a few paper cups down on the Astrodome floor. When the UCLA captains accepted the NCAA trophy in post-game ceremonies, Villanova fans shouted: "Freeze it." Villanova players taunted the Bruins during the game because of the tactic.

But Kraft refused to discredit the UCLA victory.

"It's perfectly within the strategy of the game to play slowdown," Kraft said. "We're playing for the national championship here. I'd be the last one to criticize anyone for doing whatever it takes to win."

The dust of UCLA's victory had not cleared before questions of "what about next year?" arose.

"Surely Wooden can't take five freshmen and (Henry) Bibby and win it again," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis.

"We lose six of the seven players that did most of the playing this season," Wooden said. "And we'll certainly be going with some young players next year, but I think we'll have a pretty decent club."

Wooden said his 1970-71 Bruins were better defensively than last year's but not as good offensively.

"We played under greater pressure than last year," he said. "Last year many thought we would finally get our comeupance. Most of the year we weren't picked, so the kids were hungry. They had something to prove. But this year they weren't hungry."

Wooden also answered another annual question in comparing the current championship to the others.

"This one was just as satisfying as any of the others, except the first one," he said.

Baltimore Hits Phils

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You can't keep a good man down . . . even if you knock him out.

Case in point: Earl Monroe, the Baltimore Bullets' gun-quick guard.

Monroe was knocked cold by an errant elbow in the second quarter but came back after intermission to score 23 of his 29 points as the Bullets pasted Philadelphia 111-103 in the National Basketball Association playoffs Sunday.

"Every time we needed a key shot, he made it," said Baltimore Coach Gene Shue as his Bullets took a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Division semifinals.

In other NBA playoff games Sunday, the New York Knicks trimmed Atlanta 110-95 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven semifinals and Chicago battered Los Angeles 106-98 and cut the Lakers' lead to 2-1 in their best-of-seven Western Division semis.

The league's other Western semifinal series continues today with San Francisco visiting Milwaukee, which holds a 1-0 lead by virtue of its 107-96 victory Saturday night.
