Corsican Suspect in Gem Theft

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — France's public enemy No. 1, a swarthy Corsican named Jacques Casanova, was the prime suspect today in the biggest jewelry holdup in Riviera history.

Moving with sang - froid and savoir - faire, five masked bandits took less than two minutes during the mid - morning aperitif hour Thursday to shoot their way out of a jewelry store with about $2 million worth of diamonds, emeralds and other gems.

A policeman and gardener who tried to stop them were shot and wounded, not seriously. A store clerk who tried to reach for a telephone was blackjacked.

Later about $408,000 worth of jewelry was found in an abandoned grey panel truck, along with six pistols, two submachineguns and a hand grenade.

The exact amount of the net haul could not be determined. But it was several times the $300,000 worth stolen from the Begum Aga Khan in southern France a decade ago.

Summer visitors were strolling the main square and others were sipping aperitifs in sidewalk cafes in this playground principality ruled by Prince Rainier and Princess Grace (the former Hollywood star Grace Kelly) when the robbery occurred 50 yards from the Monte Carlo Casino.

The five masked men moved into Clerc's, the branch of a Paris firm, with guns blazing, "apparently to warn us they meant business," manager Jean Ferrario told reporters. He said the first bandit "let loose a burst horizontally and it was just luck no one was wounded."

Police said the No. 1 suspect was Casanova, 37, wanted for the abortive kidnaping last May of Mme. Marcel Dassault, wife of France's biggest aircraft manufacturer.

Casanova also is wanted for a string of Paris holdups. A policeman was killed in one of them.

Calm Returns to Gotham; Minor Incidents Occur

Negro Ministers Walk Through Brooklyn Streets With Appeal

By United Press International

Relative calm returned Thursday night to New York City which had been troubled by five successive nights of street clashes between Negro gangs and police and waves of violence.

In the Bedford - Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, where police and Negroes battled in the streets on the three previous nights, there were only minor incidents. A group of 40 Negro ministers walked through the four - square mile area appealing to residents to stay off the streets and respect law and order.

A contingent of police on foot and horseback stood by, but only 11 arrests were made. A newspaper photographer was the target of bottles and cans thrown by a crowd and two new lootings were reported.

Harlem, where the rioting flared last weekend, again had a quiet night.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, saying the department was "braced for the weekend," ordered special forces in reserve posted at borough command headquarters at week's end.

In Jackson, Miss., Thursday, three of the nation's top Negro leaders urged President Johnson to make civil rights a key issue of the presidential campaign. The President scheduled a meeting in Washington today with GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater to discuss leaving civil rights out of the campaign.

But Martin Luther King Jr. of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, James Farmer of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and John Lewis of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), said "racism" should be left out of the campaign but not civil rights. "You can't sweep it under the rug," Farmer said.

Elsewhere:

Boston: A white man was arrested Thursday night for taking a swing at a Negro policeman during a demonstration by whites against four Negro families who moved into an east Boston development. It was the second consecutive night that about 200 whites noisily demonstrated against the Negro families.

Washington: Leroy Collins, head of the new Community Relations Service, said Thursday the first responsibility for solving racial trouble under the civil rights law lies with local communities and the states.

Birmingham, Ala: A federal court hearing was set for Tuesday on objections filed by Negroes to the Birmingham school board's revised integration plan. The Negroes claimed the plan was still too slow.

Hattiesburg, Miss: Houston Hartfield was fined $20, with $10 suspended, in city court Thursday for assault and battery in connection with a fracas with civil rights worker Peter Werner of Flint, Mich., Monday.

World-Beater in See-Saw Admits Bottom Soreness

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Two 13-year-old boys today claimed the world's see-saw endurance record, more than 60 hours of teeter - tottering since Tuesday.

David Williams and Pat Cook passed the former record mark of 60 hours about noon Thursday, but continued rocking through the day to make sure. The previous record was set by two Sacramento youths.

"I feel real good," said David, "but I'm a little sore on the bottom."

David and Pat alternately slept in two -hour shifts on the the board. One slept while the other kept see-sawing with the aid of a stick.

OAS Has Meeting In Secret

By JACK BRANNAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign ministers of the Organization of American States (OAS) met in a secret session today to work out last differences on proposals to further isolate Communist Cuba from the rest of the hemisphere.

The meeting was expected to push the 20-nation organization to general agreement on collective measures against the regime of Fidel Castro. Diplomatic sources said there already was majority agreement "but we haven't got unanimity yet," Secretary of State Dean Rusk said as he entered the meeting.

Prior to the start of the first secret general session of the four day meeting, ministers of most of the "hard-line" nations met with the Argentine and Peruvian delegations. That private session delayed the start of the formal meeting by nearly an hour.

Sources said Argentina and Peru, which had not yet taken a definite stand, were the key nations on which pressure was being applied to join the "hard - line" camp before a vote is taken.

There was no indication when final votes would be taken. Action might be delayed until Saturday or even later.

Diplomatic sources said a majority of the ministers already were in agreement on two "hard line" resolutions to sanction the regime of Castro. The sources said that from one to as many as three more were expected to join the ministers taking the hard line stand.

The sanctions were designed to punish Cuba for its terrorist intervention in last year's Venezuelan elections. They would invoke compulsory severance of diplomatic, trade, shipping, airline and postal ties with Cuba.

Some sources said the wording on the diplomatic sanction may be changed, softening its impact but leaving the meaning unchanged. This would be done out of respect for the four OAS nations still maintaining diplomatic relations with Cuba — Bolivia, Chile, Mexico and Uruguay.

Molotov Cocktails Hurled Into Motel

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) —Molotov cocktails were hurled early today through the restaurant window of a motor lodge that has been a center of controversy in this racially - troubled city.

James Brock, manager of the Monson Motor Lodge said a gallon bottle and two soft drink bottles with flammable liquid and flaming wicks in them were thrown through the window about 4:15 a.m. EDT.

The night clerk, Gomer Bray ran outside but said he did not see anyone fleeing. He called the fire department and the blaze was extinguished within minutes.

"The fire was limited to the carpet and furnishings," Brock said. "Of course there was extensive smoke damage, but there was no damage to the structure.

"We're open and doing business. We're serving customers."

Brock said he had no idea who was responsible for the blaze. "There were no notes, no telephone calls, no threats of any kind," he said.

Local police began an investigation of the fire. The FBI said it was aware of the incident, but declined to say whether it was investigating.

The motel became a center of controversy when the racial trouble in this tourist city first broke out. The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was refused service at the motel restaurant during their integration drive.

Brock, who favored a policy of segregation, agreed to integrate the motel after the new civil rights law was passed. But recently he relented in the face of white segregationist pickets and stopped serving Negroes.

Red Viets 'Quote' Captured US Pilot

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The Communist Pathet Lao radio has broadcast a statement quoting captured U.S. Navy pilot Charles Klusmann as saying he is "alive and in good health."

The statement had Klusmann purportedly saying he was on a mission "to spy" and saying he was "grateful" to his captors. This is the price the Communists frequently exact for getting word to the families of their American prisoners in Indochina.

Klusmann's unarmed RF8A Crusader jet reconnaissance plane was shot down June 6 by Communist ground fire over the rebel - held Plaine des Jarres in central Laos.

Klusmann, 30, of San Diego, bailed out and waved off would-be rescuers as Communist ground troops swooped in on him.

The Pathet Lao broadcast monitored here quoted Klusmann as saying, "I want to send this news about me to my wife and children. I am alive and in good health.

"I am looked after carefully by the Pathet Lao. They give me pretty sufficient rations. They protect my security when planes come to bomb or strafe. They lead me to well-built shelters.

"I want to thank the patriotic forces for their generosity and humanity. I am very grateful to them."

Klusmann's purported statement said, "the commander of the 111th Division ordered me to fly over (Pathet Lao) controlled territory to spy and take photos."

In San Diego, the pilot's wife, Mrs. Sarah Klusmann, said "I am glad he is alive and well."

Mrs. Klusmann, 30, made the statement through a Navy spokesman.

The day after Klusmann was captured, a Navy FA8 jet fighter piloted by Cmdr. W. Lynn Doyle of La Mesa, Calif., was shot down. But Doyle was rescued.

American Killed, Second Wounded By Viet Guerrillas

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — One American was killed and another wounded Thursday when Communist guerrillas ambushed a South Vietnamese convoy in the central highlands, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The death brought to 174 the total number of Americans killed in combat in South Viet Nam since the United States stepped up its military aid in 1961.

The spokesman said the slain American was a U.S. Special Forces enlisted man but did not otherwise identify him.

General Motors Lists Demands For Changes

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp., charging the no-strike clause of the current contract "has been seriously abused," today laid on the bargaining table demands for changes in the pact with the United Auto Workers Union.

GM made the demands in a 47-page position paper. The company asked for the UAW to "carry out in good faith the true meaning and intent of the no-strike clause throughout the term of the new national agreement."

The company also asked for clarification, changes and safeguards in the new contract sections covering grievance procedures, pension programs, union representation, and the pension insurance and supplementary unemployment benefit plans.

The General Motors stand regarding the no-strike clause is similar to a demand made by Ford, which accused the union of using the authorized strike as "an outlet for local militancy."

Leonard Woodcock, director of UAW's GM department, said, "the UAW has received and will study the corporation's statement and has no other comment at this time."

Under terms of the current contract strikes are allowed only over working conditions and alleged violations of the local agreement.

Both Ford and Chrysler have listed changes sought for their workers in the current three-year contract.

The UAW Thursday night notified the industry's big three —GM, Ford and Chrysler—that it wanted a share of record first half profits for union workers at the respective companies.

The union challenged Chrysler to play the role of pioneer.

General Motors Thursday reported profits of $1.1 billion during the first six months of the current year. Chrysler reported first half profits of $114.4 million and Ford Wednesday reported profits of $324 million for the first half of the year.

LBJ, Goldwater Plan to Discuss Campaign Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first major confrontation of the 1964 presidential campaign takes place at the White House today when President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater meet to discuss the trouble potential of the civil rights issue.

Johnson scheduled a 5:30 p.m. EDT meeting with the Arizona Republican as the climax of a busy day. The President holds a televised news conference at 3:30 p.m., and meets with a group of the nation's top labor leaders at 4.

Goldwater told newsmen Thursday night his purpose in requesting the meeting with Johnson was to "see what we can do to avoid any inciting of trouble" in the nation's already explosive racial situation.

"I don't want to exploit the campaign in any way which result in disorder," he said, adding that he expected no formal agreement during the session, simply a "broad discussion of the campaign and its possible effect on racial violence."

Sources close to Goldwater said he sought the meeting at this time — even before Johnson is formally nominated as the Democratic candidate—because of the increasing seriousness of the racial situation in certain sections of the nation.

Civil rights leaders voiced the hope that the Johnson - Goldwater meeting would not mean that civil rights will be "swept under the rug" during the coming campaign.

Pair Facing Charges on Civil Rights

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI) —The white owner of a plumbing company, his son and an employe, the first persons arrested under the Civil Rights Act of 1964, face a preliminary hearing on the charges Wednesday.

The three were arrested by the FBI Thursday on charges stemming from the July 16 beating of a Negro, Silas McGhee, who integrated a theater in this Mississippi delta city.

Willie Amon Belk, 47; his son, Jimmy Allen Belk, 19, and Sam Allen Shaffer Jr. 40, later were freed on $1,000 bond by U. S. Commissioner William Luckett at Clarksdale.

Maximum penalty for conviction under the law is a fine of up to $5,000 and up to 10 years in prison.

Officers Seek Bank Robber

BOSSIER CITY, La. (UPI)— Law enforcement officers in north Louisiana, East Texas and Southern Arkansas were on the lookout today for a bandit who robbed the Bossier City Bank and Trust Co., of $31,600.

The stocky gunman entered the bank during the lunch hour Thursday and forced manager Johnnie Webb to fill a paper bag with money.

Webb said the bandit was calm and sounded as though he meant business when he ordered Webb and Mrs. Mary Ward, a bank employe, to lie down on the floor and not get up for five minutes "or I'll blow your head off."

The manager said the robber overlooked $56,000 in other cash drawers in the bank.

The loot was in small bills, most of them old.

Police described the bandit as about 40 years old, 5 feet 8, wearing a short-sleeved denim shirt, khaki trousers, a brown straw hat and dark glasses.

Pampa Cabot Engineers Will Construct Plant in Colombia

Cabot Corporation of Boston, Mass., announced plans for a subsidiary carbon black plant to be constructed in Colombia, South America. The plant will be designed and constructed by the Cabot Engineering Company of Pampa.

Three employes of the Pampa division were named as executives of the new plant. James O. Harris was named as general manager of the Plant. Gary Frashier as plant manager and L. D. Martin was appointed construction superintendent. Martin will return to Pampa as soon as the plant is completed, however Harris and Frashier were named to permanent positions.

The plant will be located adjacent to the oil refinery owned by the International Petroleum Corporation which will supply raw material for the manufacture of a complete range of Cabot oil furnace blacks, used primarily in rubber and in inks and paints. Cabot plans to satisfy all of the basic demand for carbon black in Colombia and thereby afford the Colombian economy substantial dollar savings through replacement of current imports of this product. Additional exchange savings are expected to result from the export of a portion of Cabot Colombia production.

Total project cost will be in the neighborhood of four million dollars. Initially the plant will employ more than 50 Colombian workers and will be readily expandable to meet Colombia's growing market as well as anticipated exports to countries such as Ecuador and Peru. It is expected to be completed by June, 1965.

The plant will be equipped with modern analytical, quality control and rubber testing laboratories and will also utilize facilities of the parent company for basic technical assistance and for carbon black research and development work.

Beef Exports to Europe Give Hope To U.S. Ranchers

AMARILLO (UPI)—A breakthrough into the European market may be the key to ending the U.S. "beef war."

That was the hope held out Thursday by Jay Taylor, chairman of President Johnson's committee on the beef problem.

The United States has been overproducing beef. The domestic price has been dropping and the cries of protest mounting. Many cattlemen have called for a curb on beef imports, and some towns in cattle-raising sections of New Mexico, Texas and Kansas have passed ordinances requiring imported beef to be so labelled in large conspicuous letters.

An Export First

Taylor said in a speech Thursday that the U.S. sold three million pounds of beef on

Bricklayer Has No Plan to Appeal In Durocher Case

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (UPI)— The lawyer for a Middlebury bricklayer who lost an alienations of affections suit against Leo Durocher said today he plans "no appeal at this time."

However, Gerard Trudeau, counsel for Rene Morin, did not bar the door to a future appeal. A Superior Court judge had set today as the deadline for an appeal.

Durocher, coach of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was cleared by a jury earlier this month of allegations he stole the love of Morin's wife, Anna.

Reporter Ban Denied by Judge In Lufkin Case

LUFKIN (UPI)— A judge turned down an attorney's request yesterday that he order newspaper reporters not to report part of the testimony in a trial.

The refusal came from Dist. Judge Jack Pierce, who is hearing a disputed election for the Democratic sheriff's nomination. Burl McBride, a political newcomer, defeated Angelina County Sheriff Leon Jones by one vote.

Jones is contesting the election on the grounds of voting irregularities. A voting official, C. A. Smith, was indicted by an Angelina County grand jury earlier this month on six counts of deliberately altering ballots. Witnesses before the grand jury said their votes for Jones had been changed to votes for McBride, after the ballots were cast.

Judge Pierce, of Nacogdoches, must rule on the validity of the disputed ballots, which will decide who gets the nomination.

Smith, the voting official, was on the witness stand Wednesday. An attorney for McBride, Quentin Keith, asked Judge Pierce to order reporters not to print anything in regard to lie detector tests.

Costly Plan Given on Education 'Catch Up'

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN (Spl) — A costly plan for "catching up" with other states in the field of higher education has been outlined to Texans by the Governor's Committee on Education Beyond the High School.

It will take considerable money to accomplish just one of the major tests of excellence in education — bringing Texas faculty salaries up to the national verage. More is needed for libraries and research facilities.

To help achieve goals in those three fields, the Committee recommended that further college construction be delayed. By using present classrooms and laboratories more hours a day and more days a year, this saving can be accomplished, the committee felt.

Gov. John Connally conceded that it will take new taxes to finance the program which he has termed his No. 1 interest. Neither he nor the committee recommended a financing plan. Committee did say the Legislature should double college tuition, so students and their parents would share more of the cost of education.

Plan calls for expansion of the junior college system, and wide use of vocational training to prepare students for skilled and semi-skilled technical jobs in industry.

Coordination, to eliminate duplication between state colleges, would be placed in the hands of an 18 - member board appointed by the governor. Board would take over duties of the present junior college division of the Texas Education Agency and the Commission on Higher Education. This would put junior and senior college and university supervision in a single group.

Goal would be to make junior college training available to all, and to raise its level of excellence so all junior college credits would be immediately transferrable to senior colleges.

Committee, headed by H. B. Zachry, San Antonio construction executive, is taking its case to the public in a series of meetings with business leaders in their communities.

A POPULAR PLACE — Texas' State Capitol is being invaded daily by both Texans and out of state tourists who come here to pay tribute to the history of the state. Men, women and children—about three times as many children as parents, it seems—literally crowd the Capitol's halls, their numbers reaching as many as 1,200 a day.

One of the most popular stops on the informal tour there are no guides) of State buildings is the State Archives and Library, just across a walkway from the Capitol.

There, renowned artists Peter Hurd and his son-in-law Peter Rogers are executing a mural of Texas' history, featuring remarkable likenesses of Stephen F. Austin, Sam Houston and Anson Jones, as well as Davy Crockett and William B. Travis. The mural depicts the conquistador as well as the cowboy.

Visitors are invited to pull up a chair and watch the artists at work, and they do. They are also treated to a newly-arranged re-creation of a room from Gov. Elisha Pease's (1853-57, 1867-69) mansion. Furniture was donated to the archives when former Gov. Allan Shivers bought the venerable mansion.

MAKING WAY FOR 1990 — A large number of Texas cities with populations of less than 50,000 are planning now for the year 1990 by developing a blueprint for progress under a Federal-local program being administered by the State Health Department.

Under this program a city can obtain studies of current facilities and projections of future needs in every area from economic and sociological needs to budgeting for capital improvements. The Housing and Home Finance agency makes grants for the master plans and the city pays one-third the cost, while the Federal agency pays two-thirds.

A typical town under study is the West Texas city of Winters, which has a population of 3,200 and will spend $4,845 toward a $13,365 master plan.

So far, 109 cities have enrolled in the planning project to see where they can go and how they can get there over the next 25 years.

PUBLIC PIER —Parks and Wildlife Department will advertise a second time for bids for concession rights on the new state fishing pier at Port Lavaca. Only one person submitted a bid July 1 after 13 said they were interested.

The 3,200 - foot - long pier, which replaced one destroyed by Hurricane Carla, is said to be the world's longest fishing pier. Access to it will be free to the public, but the department is trying to provide a source of bait, soft drinks and fishing gear via a concessionaire contract.

ANIMAL HEALTH HEAD CHANGE DUE —Texas Anim Health Commission will decide on July 27 on a new commission director to replace Dr. R. G. Garrett of Taylor who plans to resign.

Decision will be made at a meeting to be nosted by Chairman Ed Knolle of Sandia at his Knolle Jersey Farm in Jim Wells County. Knolle said there have been several "well-qualified" applicants for the post, but declined to list them. However, it has been rumored that a staff veterinarian with the commission, Dr. S. B. Walker, will be favored.

CAR-HOPS RESIST AUTOMATION

NEW YORK (UPI) — The drive-in hamburger stand has now been automated, reports Electronics magazine. But the car-hop is still around.

She takes the order and gives it to the girl behind a key-punch console which automatically signals the kitchen to fill the order. The food comes out on a conveyor belt and the check is printed by the system.

Union Delays Endorsements

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas AFL-CIO has postponed endorsements of political candidates until after the national Democratic convention.

Democratic and Republican candidates had been invited to appear before the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education at the AFL-CIO's annual convention in Brownsville Aug. 17-20.

But Sherman A. Miles, political and legislative director of the union office, said many Democratic nominees have indicated they would not be able to attend because of conflicts involving the national party convention, which begins Aug. 24.

Miles said COPE would hear the candidates and possibly make endorsements after the convention and prior to the Nov. 3 election.

AN HISTORIC MILESTONE—This month is the 25th anniversary of the first nonstop flight from the United States to France. In 1939, Air France's hydroplane, the Lieutenant-de-Vaisseau-Paris, rose from the waters of Port Washington Bay and 28 hours and 27 minutes later, landed at Biscarosse, France. The 74,000-pound hydroplane was 104 feet long and had a wing span of 161 feet 10 inches. The six engines developed a total of 5,400 horsepower. The plane was designed to carry a crew of eight, 30 passengers and a total payload of 21½ tons.

Realignment Set By Pan American

OKLAHOMA CITY (Spl) — A proposed general realignment of Pan American Petroleum Corporation's operating territories, contemplated to become effective within the next two years, was announced here yesterday by Randolph Yost, president.

Changes contemplate consolidation of present district offices into division offices, he explained. Yost said the moves are being made in the interest of greater efficiency.

E. C. Woodall, superintendent of the Pampa area office, said the projected changes would not effect the local Pan American unit, which operates under the central office in Oklahoma City.

Destructive fires took a toll of 11,800 lives in the U.S. during 1962.

Oswald Gun Purchase Gave Idea on Racket

CHICAGO (UPI) — Lee Harvey Oswald's mail order purchase of the rifle he allegedly used to kill President Kennedy gave a Chicago man an idea for a gun-selling racket, U. S. Treasury agents said this week.

Federal agents said Willie E. Engram, 23, sold about 1,300 illegally purchased pistols for $16 each. He bought the guns from a Fort Worth mail order firm for $9.85 each.

A spokesman for Buddie Arms Co., (2226 E. Lancaster) in Fort Worth said Engram "bought so many guns that we gave his firm a special price."

No License Check

The spokesman said he did not check on whether the purchasers were licensed dealers of arms.

Police seized a package of 18 snub-nose .22 revolvers. Engram, to whom the package was addressed was arraigned Monday on charges of selling firearms without a federal permit.

Such a permit cost $1 and allows anyone who does not have a felony record to sell and buy guns across state lines.

Authorities said Engram's gun selling became so profitable that he quit his $135 a week job as an aluminum sheet handler and went into business full time.

Wrong Type Purchasers

Police alleged that drug addicts, criminals and teen-agers were among those who bought the pistols.

Guns believed sold by Engram were linked to several Chicago area crimes, including a pistol-whipping involving a 13-year-old boy and at least two shootings.

U. S. Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike set Engram's bond at $1,500. Asst. U. S. Atty. Richard T. Sikes said he would seek an indictment before the grand jury next week.

The rifle that killed President Kennedy was reported sent to Oswald's post office box in Dallas by a Chicago mail order firm.

Tea With Lady Bird Due Editors' Wives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A visit to the White House and tea with the nation's First Lady will highlight the entertainment program for wives of United Press International editors and publishers at their fifth annual conference here Oct. 6 and 7.

The new Spanish ambassador and his wife, the Marquis and Marchioness de Merry del Val, also will entertain the wives at the Spanish Embassy. The modern and stately mansion that houses the embassy is currently being extensively redecorated by the celebrated Durat Pinto Coho of Madrid.

The marchioness has invited the UPI ladies to a tea and tour of the embassy on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 6. The White House tea is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 7.

The First Lady is expected to greet her guests in the Blue Room and refreshments will be served in the state dining room. President and Mrs. Johnson have brought a Texas hospitality to the White House and their buffets are lavish.

The First Lady will take her guests on a tour of some of the upstairs rooms as well as the East Room, Red, Blue and Green Rooms.

The Lincoln bedroom and the Treaty Room may be included in the tour. They are rarely seen by public visitors because they are in the family quarters. However, President and Mrs. Johnson have made it a point to show off the White House and have opened up rooms that were previously considered strictly for the family.

It will be the second time Mrs. Johnson has entertained the wives. Three years ago, she was hostess at a reception for them held in the old Supreme Court chamber at the capitol, a rarely used historic spot.

Many art treasures are housed in the residence of the Spanish ambassador. A top attraction is a collection of 14 paintings representing some of the best work of Eugenio Lucas one of the most famous of Goy's pupils.

The ambassador and his wife also will show the ladies his collection of rare Peruvian art which the Marquis assembled when he was ambassador to Peru.

Vandals Shatter Store Windows

Vandals went on the rampage in Pampa last night, smashing eight plateglass windows and causing damage estimated at almost $1,000.

Four separate incidents were being investigated by police today.

A wooden club was used to smash five front plateglass windows at Furr Food, 1421 N. Hobart. The windows were valued at $100 each.

A six by eight-foot plateglass window on the front of Caldwell's Appliance Store, 112 E. Francis, was shattered when someone tossed a beer bottle through it.

Another front window was broken at Cut Rate Liquor Store, 866 W. Foster, by a beer bottle.

In the last incident reported, Ruff's Grocery, 900 E. Francis, had a front plateglass window shattered when vandals threw a smudge pot into it.

According to police, all four incidents were apparently the work of the same persons and occurred late last night or early this morning.

European markets last month, the first time U.S. beef has ever been exported to Europe.

The breakthrough came about, he said, because Argentina, the traditional supplier of European beef, was hit by drought this year and couldn't produce enough.

And he predicted the European sales would increase now that the American stand on subsidizing beef sales has been made clear.

He said he received a telegram from President Johnson recently that said the U.S. will not subsidize beef exports.

If the U.S. subsidized beef, the federal government would buy the meat at the market price and sell it on the European market at a lower price, thus absorbing the loss in the interest of American beef companies.

Taylor indicated some European buyers were holding off, on the chance the U.S. would begin subsidies, and they could get the beef at lower cost.

"Now that the subsidy policy has been clearly decided and announced, I think there will be a pickup in European purchasing," Taylor said.

Freshness And Wit Spark Pastor's Book

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"Death is one of the great blessings of life."

That provocative observation comes from a new book entitled, "It's Better to Believe" (M. Evans & Co., New York). The author is the Rev. Dr. John D. Verdery, an Episcopal minister who is headmaster of the Wooster School, Danbury, Conn.

During 20 years as a pastor and teacher, Dr. Verdery has been involved with all sorts of people in all kinds of trouble. Experience has convinced him that faith in God enables human beings to cope with the major and minor crises of life with more courage, dignity and perspective than they would otherwise be able to muster.

It is not a novel thesis. But Dr. Verdery documents it with extraordinary persuasiveness, freshness and wit.

Death is one of the human experiences which, he says, are "generally a little bit better handled by someone who believes than by someone who does not."

"However unspecific his convictions about the hereafter may be, at least the believer does not confuse it with the here, which he recognizes to be an end, a finis, a final moment. Through his faith, he has the courage to face the fact of his finitude, without trying either to gloss it over with juvenile sentimentality or escape it by running away."

The faithful can even perceive, dimly, that "God planned well when he planned life with an end to it."

"We need death in order to give meaning to life," says Dr. Verdery.

Even with a finite span of time at our disposal, Dr. Verdery says, "it is hard enough to keep our existence filled with some significance." Without "the blessing of numbered days," all of the urgency would go out of human choices, and life would become a pointless, perpetual bore.

A person may face his own death with equanimity, and yet go all to pieces when a loved one dies. This is understandable, Dr. Verdery says, because the pain of bereavement "can be next to unbearable."

But even this terrible pain is ultimately a good thing. "Without it one might go all through life withuot ever having one's heart made sensitive to any ultimate questions."

Why did this have to happen? is one of the ultimate questions which the death of a loved one raises. Dr. Verdery has heard it many times—from anguished young widows, from grief-stricken parents, from wide-eyed boys called to the headmaster's study to receive bad news from home. His answer is:

"I don't know. But I guess God knows what he is doing. If you can believe that, you don't really have to understand."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

It is just over three months now since a revolutionary regime under President Humberto Castelo Branco took control of a debt-ridden and politically chaotic Brazil. The stock-taking shows the results have been good.

Of particular pride to Castelo Branco, a former marshal of the army, is the fact that after the first wave of arrests and political repression open debate has returned to the Brazilian congress and newspapers are coming back to their old-free-swinging style of criticism.

Early fears that army zeal for reform would mean the suppression of all critics so far have been groundless.

Noteworthy also is the Castelo Branco regime's continuing determination to press through the reforms so badly needed.

Already approved is a 30,000 unit low-cost housing program aimed at city slums.

In the works are land and tax reforms and an economic development plan.

Inflation Spiral Soaring

The administration has not and will not be able to halt immediately Brazil's disastrous inflation spiral which in the past has boosted prices as much as 80 per cent per year.

Since the first of this year, prices have jumped another 40 per cent. But Castelo Branco hopes to hold the total increase for the year to 75 per cent. Without government restraints he says it would have jumped 144 per cent.

Outside support for the new regime has been enthusiastic.

The United States has okayed a $150 million loan and is instituting a $90 million food-for-peace program which will provide wheat, vegetable oils, milk and butter and other commodities.

The $50 million U.S. loan from the Agency for International Development (AID) primarily will go toward low-cost housing, industrial credits and loans to farmers.

Urged by the United States, Brazil's creditor nations also have agreed to ease conditions for repayment of her enormous national debt now totalling $3.4 billion.

Many Problems Ahead

Problems ahead remain huge and it already is clear will not be solved without grumbling.

The state's railroad system loses around $1 million per day.

Coastal shipping has dropped 40 per cent because of the high cost of operating ports and the state-owned shipping line.

The highway department owes contractors around $30 million.

According to the new ministry of education, it has found that funds intended for new schools actually were diverted to the tune of millions of dollars to political groups favoring ousted President Joao Goulart.

Employers are said to be $80 million behind in social security payments.

Leftist leaders have been removed from union leadership but as the government moves both to restrict wage increases and the amount producers may demand, opposition is sure to mount.

And, at the moment, the unhappiest man of all is Gov. Carlos Lacerda of important Guanabara State whose principal city is Rio de Janeiro. The government at the moment is in the process of extending the Castelo Branco regime's tenure in office 14 months to March 15, 1967, to give it time to institute the needed reforms. Lacerda wanted to run for president in 1965. Lacerda says the extension "destroyed the revolution."

Wall Street In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bache & Co. notes that "one of the outstanding characteristics of the market's performance of late has been its ability to bounce back quickly."

The brokerage firm says "we continue to remain of the opinion that higher prices are in the offing and the major upward trend will remain intact."

Goodbody & Co. writes that "as the over - all stock market continues its upward trend during the months to come, intermittent spells of profit - taking — some of which may result in minor corrections rather than substantial setbacks — are probable and should be viewed as proof of the market's ability to maintain a sense of proportion as it goes along."

Purcell, Graham & Co. asserts that "we look for the wide disparity between the blue chips and the secondaries to be narrowed in coming weeks by growing strength in those issues not reflected by the (popular) averages."

NEW YORK (UPI)—Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. writes that "if one looks back at the tecnical action of the stock market it will be noted that when highs are made the list has a tendency to stop, look and listen before proceeding upward again."

"We believe," it adds, "recent history is repeating itself and after some further sidewise action the market will again progress to even higher ground."

Hayden, Stone, Inc. comments that "a normal correction could take place at any time, but it should not amount to much, and any such action should actually be rather welcomed as a restraining factory to the very minor speculative excesses that occasionally occur."

Bache & Co. says that "in view of the favorable outlook for corporate profits and the fact that few clouds appear to be on the economic horizon, the outlook for the stock market continues to be bright in our opinion. On this basis," Bache says, "we continue to advocate a policy of making selective commitments."

Clothing Drive Truck To Stop Here Aug. 17

The Church World Service truck scheduled to pick up clothing from local churches, participating in a city-wide clothing appeal sponsored by the Christian Rural Overseas Program, has been delayed and will not reach Pampa until Aug. 17.

Philip Zinn, general manager of the Houston CWS center, said that the duffel bags for packing the clothing are being sent to Pampa from Houston.

Pampans wishing to participate in the drive are requested to contact their ministers, Rev. Russel West of Pampa Ministerial Alliance or Mrs. R. E. Converse, community co-ordinator.

Church World Service has calculated that there is an urgent need for 10 million pounds of clothing, bedding and shoes this year.

"With knowledge of what our resources are likely to be for 1964, we have allocated about five and a half million pounds for overseas shipments this year," M. B. Myers, director of Materials and Services for CWS, said.

Most urgently needed supplies are all kinds of good usable clothing, shoes and blankets. The clothing should be in good repair and clean. It is also important that eight-cents per pound be included for moving the clothing overseas.

REASSURANCE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ministers of the United Church of Christ were assured in a pastoral letter recently that their representatives in the six-denomination Consultation on Church Union had neither considered nor discussed "any plan that would impair the function or freedom of the local church."

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Educational problems do not take a vacation during the summer months. Some typical problems must be faced before the beginning of the new school year.

Question

I graduated from high school this past June. Although I did not intend to go to college, careful consideration has changed my mind. My parents are upset because they feel it is too late to be accepetd for the September term. Is this correct or are there still opportunities at this late date?

Answer

It is quite late but fortunately not too late to be accepted for the September term. Your choice of colleges is limited to those in which openings still exist. Speed is important. If possible, contact the guirdance counsellor or principal of your high school. Explain the situation and find out how they can assist and advise you. Obtain a list of colleges which you might attend. This will depend upon finances, location, your qualifications, etc. Contact the admissions offices personally, by telephone, or by special delivery. Find out if an opening exists and what procedures to follow.

Question

My son, a junior in high school, has expressed a decision not to return to school in September. He has been an average student has not had any major problems. He has apparently given much thought to this decision. His father and I tried to change his mind but he was well prepared to explain his reasons. One was difficult to answer. He said that his father is not a high school graduate and is a particularly successful businessman. Our son felt that there was no reason why he shouldn't obtain a job and get started on his own career.

As parents, we feel in our hearts that this is a wrong decision, but we need help in explaining it to our son. Please advise us.

Answer

Perhaps your son has given a great deal of thought to his decision to leave high school but his conclusion may be disastrous. Either his logic is confused or he is not aware of the facts regarding high school drop-outs. Much unemployment and many social problems facing our nation are closely related to individuals who left high school before graduation. President Johnson's "war on poverty" is aimed at relieving these problems many of which involve high school drop-outs.

Your son should consider some of the actual facts. Non-high school graduates have a difficult time obtaining jobs. If they are fortunate enough to obtain jobs, they have difficulty obtaining advancement. High school graduates are more likely to earn higher lifetime incomes than non-high school graduates. The fact is that the more education an individual has the higher his lifetime income is likely to be.

Your son should discuss this matter with several other people such as the high school guidance counsellor, family doctor, religious leader, and some successful businessmen. These people are in a position to advise a boy in a less personal or emotional way than his parents.

Your son should be convinced of the growing importance of education to be an individual's future success. In addition, you should remember that he needs your permission to leave school.

Two Lubbock Men Chat Often With Barry Goldwater

LUBBOCK (UPI)—Al Hopson and Bryan Edwards of Lubbock have never met GOP Presidential candidate Barry Goldwater but they call him up and talk to him from time to time.

The two Lubbock men are ham radio operators, as is the Arizona senator.

Goldwater has a radio rig in his Phoenix and Washington homes and a mobile unit in his car. Hopson and Edwards have talked to him when he is broadcasting from his Phoenix home.

"He seems like an ordinary guy," Hopson said, who talked to the senator a week before the Republican convention in San Francisco. Hopson said Goldwater refused to discuss politics but he did tell him he had a sister-in-law in the Panhandle city of Amarillo.

"What I thought was nice is that everybody calls him Barry," Hopson said.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

WHY NOT NOW?

Put your life in the hands of God, who is the maker and creator of all things. His words states "It is appointed unto man once to die and after that the judgement." We must all stand before God and give accounting for the deeds which we have done in this life. That means poor man or rich

Galatians 6:7-8

7. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.
8. For he that soweth to his flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

So many people are going out to meet God unprepared. When people would rather go to wordly pleasures instead to God's house, strong indications are they don't have much love for God. In God's Word it states. If the love of the world is in you, the love of the Father is not in you."

I have talked to thousands of men. I've only found one that didn't want to make it right with God. This is serious even to the one that is serving the Lord. Some have only a form of Godliness but deny the proof thereof. We wish all people to come to the knowledge and truth and accept Christ as their personal Savior. This is the only way to find Salvation. Every day people are coming face to face with God. Don't put Savation off. You could be next.

Yours in His Service

Take It From Kathy

By KATHY PETERSON

Dear Kathy: I'm pulled in two directions and don't know what to do. The boy I'm going steady with does not like my best girl friend. If I keep running around with her, I'll lose him but I think a great deal of both of them. What should I do? Please answer as soon as possible. — In Between.

Dear In Between: Would you be expected to like spinach just because he did? If your boy friend didn't like history, would it mean you had to start a hate-history campaign?

No matter how much a boy and girl like each other, they'll have opinions that differ. That just makes them human. Each is entitled to his own ideas. You should have the right to choose your own friends.

The one thing to consider is the reason for this dislike. If the boy is concerned because you are traveling in bad company, then give up the girl friend — not just for him, but for yourself.

If he's just being bossy and selfish, face the fact and then ask yourself this: Which of the two would you miss most, the girl or the boy? — Have you decided?

Teen-agers: Please send your personal problems to Katy Petersen in care of this paper. While she cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Schafer Club Has Ice Cream Social

SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — Skelly Schafer Club met recently in the club house for an ice cream and cake social for all the club members and their families.

After refreshments were served the group played games of 42. The August meeting will also be held in the club house in the form of a water melon feast for members and their families.

Attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Harold Gosnell, W. F. Truitt, John Simmons and daughter, L. F. Karlin, LeRoy Allen and daughters, John Pierce and son, R. S. Shannon, John Kenney, R. C. Heaton and son David, J. M. Chapin and Mrs. Mary Cowart. Guests were Messrs. and Mmes. Cliff Gosnell, of Haywood, Calif., Lloyd De Fare, Yale, Okla. and Alvin Adams of Schafer.

The problem of what to do with the telephone directories is solved with a storage case in library binding. The twin compartment case has the words "Telephone Books" embossed in gold on the cover.

Beauty Envoy Advocates Natural Look Be Created by Cosmetics for Daytime Wear

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cartoonist's caricature of the woman in sloppy robe and curlers at eight in the morning is unpleasant.

But what happens if she reverses habit and shows up instead made up to the last phony eyelash with fashion's new "kangaroo" eyes?

Such fantasies in makeup get the label "ludicrous" pasted on them from one cosmetics authority.

"I'm sure such things are one of the chief causes of trauma among children," said William Loew. "I'm afraid the experience is as traumatic for husbands as for the children."

Those kangaroo eyes, he explained, are made up so that the false eyelashes turn down instead of up and back naturally.

"Can you imagine that, plus stretch pants, in the A&P?" he asked. "All the wrong shapes are wearing those stretch things anyway."

Loew said in an interview he is not against the dramatic in makeup—in its time and place and if the individual has the "confidence" to get by with it. But not for regular daytime.

For day he advocates use of cosmetics to create a look of simplicity, of naturalness. Dramatic eye make up belongs "only in the chick fashion lounges after six."

Or, he said, it belongs to "the high fashion models or movie stars whose business it is to be 'on' at all time." It does not belong on the numerous teen-aged girls who wear enough shadow and eyeliner to be right from those "rather fight than switch" advertisements, he continued.

Loew for the past six years has been beauty envoy for Charles of The Ritz, traveling the United States, Canada and Europe demonstrating to women the technique of cosmetics use.

He was born in Hungary and grew up to work in the legitimate theater and ballet, dancing in Europe with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. From the stage he got his early lessons in blending cosmetics.

He is a self-styled evangelist of the cosmetics world with one motto for the woman "inundated with confusion" by the barrage of advice tossed at her. "Adapt, don't adopt" he advises those who would be in tune with style but would also be individualistic.

"Somewhere between the extremes of high fashion and the adaptability to individual needs we've forgotten dignity and elegance," said Loew of the whole style world.

Quickie Charcoal Starter For Fire

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My idea is for a quick, quick way to start a charcoal fire in the outdoor grill. Take a large tin can such as a potato chips container, discard the top and cut out the bottom to make a cylinder. Punch three or four rows of large holes around one end of the cylinder. Remove the grating from the grill and place the can upright in the grill with the holes at the bottom. Stuff a sheet of lightly crumpled newspaper in the can and then fill about two thirds full of charcoal. Light the paper by sticking a lighted match through the holes. The can acts as a chimney and the charcoal catches fire quickly. When the fire dies down and the charcoal looks gray, remove the can with tongs and spread the coals. Replace the grating and you are ready to cook.

—ED.

DEAR POLLY — I hope your large group of readers will like my two helpful, homemade gadgets. One is a scraper about 2x4 inches with two corners cut diagonally and the other two rounded. I use this for scraping off food that sticks to pots and pans. The other makes an artistic design on a frosted cake or even on mashed potatoes for my grandchildren. It is about the same size and points on one side like saw teeth. Both gadgets can be cut from any plastic bleach or starch container. To flatten the plastic put between two sheets of paper toweling and go over it with a hot iron. Use scissors to cut the plastic to the desired shape and size.

—ELIZABETH

DEAR POLLY — We enjoy taking overnight camping trips but my husband never gives me more than an hour's notice. I used to forget many things we needed. Now I pack AFTER a camping trip and can be ready to leave in 15 minutes. One shelf in our freezer contains all the food needed for one of these trips — bread, butter, meats and so on. The frozen items also serve as "ice" in the ice chest while we are traveling and there is less chance of food spoilage. By the time camp is set up and I am ready to cook, everything is thawed. I also fill milk cartons with water and keep them in the freezer so we do not have to make a stop at the ice house. Bed rolls, camping gear, clothing for the children and first aid items are already stored in the car trunk and ready to go when we are.

—MRS. L. E.

GIRLS — I know Mrs. L. E.'s letter will receive a rousing cheer from those husbands, who like to do things on the spur of the moment and will appreciate this wife who plans so well that she can take off at anytime.

Women owe the designer of the topless bathing suit a standing vote of thanks. Thanks for stepping so far beyond the bounds of good taste and decency that women are forced to take a good, hard look at all the ugly, unfeminine, tasteless styles the men who design clothes for women have been dreaming up to make women look absurd.

—First there was the sack, modest but so unbecoming to the feminine figure that men hooted at it. Undaunted by the sack's reception, the designers have kept bringing it back under first one name and then another.

—Then there was the bikini —a style better suited for a strip-tease joint than a public beach. In the bikini, most women look repulsive. Those few who don't would look far more beautiful in something designed to subtly flatter the feminine form, instead of in a garment which blatantly cheapens it.

— And those low-on-the-hips pants that girls swaggered around in for a couple of seasons when they were "in" were pretty cheap - looking, weren't they? They made any girl who wore them appear to be looking for a pick-up.

—And now they're trying to get grown women into the topless swimsuit held up by a pair of straps — like a baby's sunsuit. If anything could make the feminine figure look move grotesque and do any more to rob a woman of the feminity that is her natural right, it's still in the mind of some dress designer with designs against feminine charm and beauty and dignity.

So thanks, boys for the topless swimsuit and the barefront cocktail dress. With them, you've tipped your hand. Now we women ought to be smart enough to turn thumbs-down on any future style you dream up to make us look silly.

Dear Abby....

Young at Heart Should Forget and Take Initiative

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband hasn't kissed me since 1959. And then it was only a little peck on the cheek. We are both in our 60's and I would enjoy some affection. I hate to bring it up because I think it's the man's place to. I suppose there is always a chance that he is finished with that part of his life. But if he isn't, what a pity to have it wasted. I don't discuss matters of this nature with my friends, so I don't know whether I am expecting too much of my husband or not. Can you tell me?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: The physical capabilities of men vary widely, so there is no telling when one is "finished with that part of his life." Forget whose place it is to take the initiative, and you'll have your answer.

DEAR ABBY: I know you are probably sick of complaints against mothers - in - law, but please help me. Four months ago my mother-in - law came to live with us. She's spry, in good health and a good sport. BUT — she monopolizes every conversation. This is no exaggeration. She talks constantly, no matter where we are; at the dinner table, breakfast table, riding in the car or just sitting in the living room. Her voice drones on and on. All the people in her past are discussed at length, everybody's house, and what they have. And she knows more about any subject than anyone else. She discusses every newspaper article, radio program, and TV show she's ever read, heard or seen. I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world. And neither would my wife. What, oh what, Dear Abby, can be done?

NO NAME, NATURALLY

DEAR NO: Since she is living with you, your wife must get her aside and tell her gently, but firmly, that she must give someone else a chance to talk. If she "forgets," she should be quietly reminded. But for the sake of your family's happiness, DON'T LET THIS GO ON.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I went on a camping trip, at which time the mosquitoes sure had a ball on my ankles. My husband said the bites on my ankles could not possibly have been mosquito bites because the "stinger" or proboscis of a mosquito cannot penetrate an inch-thick woolen bobby sock. I KNOW they were mosquito bites because they were identical to the bites on my arms, and I SAW the mosquitoes biting me there. So who is right?

MRS. W. C. S.

DEAR MRS. W. C. S.: To quote Dr. E. M. Farber, Chief of Dermatology at Stanford's School of Medicine: "The husband and wife are both right! Mosquitoes cannot bite through an inch of woolen sock. But they don't have to because mosquitoes not only fly, they climb up socks and crawl down into them, which is apparently what happened. P. S. I hope that is the most serious problem they ever have — the husband and wife, not the mosquitoes."

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Talking to Ourselves?

Those of us who write editorials in behalf of preservation of private enterprise and freedom of the individual as opposed to the steady encroachment of the socialistic welfare state—which has been going on in this country for the past 30 years—often hear the comment that we are just talking to ourselves.

This comment implies, of course, that we are doing no good.

People we meet on our daily rounds often tell us, "Your editorial was fine; we agree with just about everything you have said, but the trouble is — you are not getting through to the right people."

Let's consider that comment for a moment.

We have long since reached the conclusion that those who say this are attempting — unconsciously no doubt — to excuse themselves for not measuring up to their own responsibility as leaders in their community by trying to place the blame on others, and therefore do nothing themselves. There is no question in our mind but that if this nation goes completely socialist, communist, or dictatorship, the blame for its doing so will rest upon the shoulders of its leaders — upon the lawyers, doctors, teachers, preachers, businessmen and industrialists who do not measure up to their own responsibility.

We should never forget that the sin of omission can sometimes be just as damaging to the cause of freedom as the sin of commission. Actually, the sin of omission is the one that businessmen, being so busy with other things, are most likely to commit.

The wise men down through the ages have recognized the responsibility that rests upon leaders. Here's what a few of them have said over the years:

Plato expressed it long ago when he said, "The penalty good men pay for indifference to public affairs is to be ruled by evil men."

Then along came the Apostle James, who expressed it another way, "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is a sin."

Dante, by the time of the Twelfth Century, put it a little more pungently when he said, "The hottest places in Hell are reserved for those who, in a period of moral crisis, maintain their neutrality."

Another six hundred years went by, and we hear Edmund Burke saying, "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

And then just about one hundred years ago our own Abraham Lincoln said this:

"To sin by silence when they know they should protest makes cowards of men."

And how often have you seen this not only in the case of individuals but in the case of civic clubs, chambers of commerce, manufacturers and trade associations, colleges, universities, and churches, if you please.

But there you find set forth the questions that a free man in a free nation must always be asking himself:

"Am I allowing myself to be ruled by evil men because I am indifferent to public affairs?

"Am I sinning by knowing to do good and not doing it?

"Am I reserving for myself one of the hottest places in Hades by maintaining my neutrality during periods of moral crisis?

"Am I allowing evil to triumph because I do nothing about it?

"Am I making a coward of myself by remaining silent when I know I should protest?"

All of us should think on these things — because the future of the nation depends upon our answers.

This editorial writer feels that if readers will ask themselves those questions, they will not conclude that we are talking to the wrong people.

Barry's Looking Better

Walter Reuther and Norman Thomas say that the election of Barry Goldwater would be a disaster. Reuther is the magneto of the auto workers union and Norm Thomas is an old gab who has led the Socialist party forever and ever.

After Lyndon sold out Joe Kilgore so that Reuther could have Yarborough in the Senate there was no doubt Our Leader would get the support of organized Labor, possibly excepting that of Jimmy Hoffa who is sore at Bobby Kennedy.

Poor old Norm Thomas is a fellow who has been the head of a political party that never got enough to elect a dog catcher but, as he once said, lived to see both major political parties elect a President on a Socialist ticket every four years regularly.

Well, with Norm Thomas, Walter Reuther, Castro and all the socialists of Europe deploring the nomination of Barry Goldwater, he begins to look better and better to us.

We are not true Goldwater people, in the sense that the True Believers would put their arm in the fire for him up to there.

But he's about the best shot that's come out of the gun for as long as most of us can remember; and if he gets more and more knocks from Reuther, Thomas, Castro and the Europeans, he might make a better show against Lyndon than we suspected.

Eagles and Indians

Numerous Indians of the Southwest who have been complaining they had "nothing to wear" — ceremonially, that is— are in receipt of 1,000 eagle feathers from Big Chief Lyndon-bird Johnson. It is hoped this will cover the situation.

Eagles, like Indians, themselves, are now protected by Federal law. Thus, it may soon be necessary for the latter to adopt powwow tuxedos.

Cannel At Bay

By Ward Cannel

'Thoreau, and All That

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. — We have always had great admiration for any man who can throw job security to the winds, sell off his few possessions, and go back to live with nature.

So we packed a lunch and came down to Provincetown to see how Walter P. Chrysler was making out since he quit his job in an automobile company, sold a building he owned in New York, and went to live in this tiny fishing village with nature.

We have never actually met a man who did this, although we have read stories about it, such as the works of Edgar Rice Bourroughs. But while we can see the virtues of returning to basic nature, we could never do it because we do not like apes and have a hard time learning new languages.

We also doubt that we could survive if left to fight nature alone because we do not know the first thing about making such elementary items as heavy cream or aspirin.

We did not suppose that you had to worry about things that basic in Provincetown. But as it is only two streets wide and lies out in the Atlantic Ocean 3,716 miles West of Paris, it seemed to us to be about as close to nature as you could get without actually being dead. There had to be a good reason, we figured, why the Pilgrims had hurried on to Plymouth after first setting foot on this continent at Provincetown.

We were therefore quite surprised that both streets were crowded with people. They were dressed in the old and foreign clothes you wear when you go back to nature, and they stared at us in our suit and tie as though they had long - forgotten what civilization looked like.

They were, however, very friendly, a number of them stopping us to ask if we were a fisherman and what year contemporary art began.

But nobody knew where Mr. Chrysler was to be found, all of them offering the plausible excuse that they had just arrived in Provincetown yesterday or the day before.

At length we stopped at what seemed to be a combination general store and art gallery, offering a wide selection of fresh eggs and objects of art. It was, we thought, very nicely designed and looked like the War on Poverty pavilion at the World's Fair. We especially admired a knitted radiator cover from Aleppo and a large painting done in green and bullet holes entitled "Preying Mothers."

The shopkeeper was a pretty girl in bare feet who carried a large shopping bag in which a small baby slept peacefully. The girl told us that Mr. Chrysler's place was in the center of town and we could not miss it.

After a short walk, during which we told a number of people that contemporary art began in 1913, we came to the place. It was a large, white church and had the name Chrysler on it. It displayed a number of what seemed to be statues on the lawn. And we could tell without going in that it was an art museum of some sort.

Mr. Chrysler was at the door and we can report that he is well and happy and does not regret at all having got out of the rat race to live in Provincetown with nature.

Editor:

I read your editorial in Tuesday's paper about J. Evetts Haley's book on Lyndon Johnson. I bought this book when it first came out, and read about half of it. It's pretty strong alright, but if people will consider the source from whence it came, I don't think they'll get too excited about it. I know I didn't. I think instead of bringing him into court for libel and slander, they ought to send him to a hospital for medical help. I was a student at Canyon when J. Evetts was, and we all thought he was sick then. Of course old J. Evetts is going to make a lot of money out of the book, because of suckers like me. But I'd rather see folks make money in a more honest way; that way they'll enjoy life more.

Data on Leftist Influences in Racial Outbreaks Sought By Goldwater; Southern Senators Urge Publication of FBI Report

ROBERT ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Senator Barry Goldwater is seeking a conference with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on the mounting wave of racial disorders in various states, particularly New York and Mississippi.

Purpose of the Republican presidential nominee is to ascertain the factors and forces behind the intensifying disturbances and violence.

It is not known whether President Johnson is aware of his rival's desire to meet with the head of the FBI. The assumption is there will be no interference with that.

The proposed meeting was suggested by Goldwater's close advisers. They urged it on two grounds:

That in preparation for his campaign, the candidate should get all the information he can about the explosive racial issue; the best way to do that was to go direct to the leading authority in the country on the matter.

The Republican standard-bearer's advisers also were aware that a group of Southern senators, led by Senator James Eastland, Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, are preparing to deliver a series of speeches charging that Communists and leftists are inciting the racial outbreaks.

These senators will name names and present other detailed supporting evidence.

The staff of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, also headed by Eastland, is assisting in the drafting of these addresses and the accompanying explosive documentation.

Several Southern senators are known to have urged Goldwater to demand the publication of an FBI report on Communist infiltration of civil rights organizations. This comprehensive study was circulated among high administration officials in the spring, but has never been released.

Existence of this report is known, but its dynamite - loaded contents are not. There has been considerable conjecture about them, but no positive information.

Senator Goldwater is still undecided what to do. It is deemed very likely he will discuss the matter when he confers with FBI Director Hoover. The candidate's aides anticipate he will be guided by Hoover's wishes.

The advisers also are pointing out that another reason Goldwater wants to meet with the FBI chief is because the President recently sent him to Mississippi for the express purpose of stressing his renowned agency's "presence" in that race-troubled state.

In the separate White House sessions the President is holding this week with business and labor leaders he will appeal to them to aid the effort to avert racial strife.

GOLDWATER'S "ARMY" — The basic structure of Senator Goldwater's triumphant convention "army" will be used to spark his high-powered campaign for the White House.

At the San Francisco convention, the delegations were divided into five regional groups, each under a director and they, in turn, under the overall command of Denison Kitchel, Phoenix attorney and long-time assistant of the candidate. This system will be continued in the fall contest.

That was strongly recommended by Goldwater's advisers and approved by him. These key regional leaders are as follows:

Lloyd Waring, investment banker and former Massachusetts Republican State Chairman, to be in charge of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Wayne Hood, Wisconsin GOP Chairman, who will direct the Great Lakes area which includes Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Richard Herman, Omaha, Neb., manufacturer, in charge of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Missouri and Oklahoma.

John Grenier, young Birmingham attorney, who will lead the Southern states—Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Stephen Shaddegg, Phoenix, campaign manager of Goldwater's 1952 and 1958 senatorial races, will be boss of the Western region including Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Alaska and Hawaii.

POLITICALS — Aim of Republican National Committee finance chiefs is a $13.5 million campaign fund. That's what Senator Goldwater told GOP State Chairmen at his meeting with them after his nomination. He expressed confidence this fund would be raised, even though the committee is starting virtually from scratch as no reserves were built up under former National Chairman William Miller, now the vice presidential candidate. . .Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Me., whose presidential candidacy got few votes but many cheers for her courage and persistence, has assured Goldwater she will campaign vigorously for the national ticket. Said Mrs. Smith, "I'm a Republican and have been all my life. I intend to remain one, and will do my very best for you."

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone)

QUESTION: "Is the draft necessary and if it is not then why do we have it?"

Answer: That is a very good question. Before we try to answer it we must determine what is meant by necessary? If we mean necessary to keep the politicians in office and give them more power and control over mankind, then the draft is absolutely necessary. If the politicians couldn't draft soldiers, as the late Frederick Smith of Ohio said, "we wouldn't have even been in the First World War."

The draft is not necessary to have a great America, to set a good example to the rest of the world. People should be allowed to join the Army voluntarily for self-defense and they should be paid for their service, just as we hire policemen. There is no more reason to draft soldiers than to draft policemen. We could get voluntary soldiers if we were attacked.

But we should consider why we are in the foreign wars. As Frederic Bastiat said more than a century ago, "where goods do not cross border lines because of protective tariffs, soldiers will. You will have wars." If we didn't have immigration restrictions, and people could freely exchange goods and services and go anywhere in the world which they felt was to their benefit, then we would not be in all these foolish wars and drafting soldiers would certainly not be necessary.

The primary purpose of drafting soldiers it seems is to give the politicians more power.

Governments do not think, they do not take action, they are not an entity. Governments are only agents of the public and the agents are represented by the politicians. The politicians are our enemies.

The trouble starts in the minds of men. Wars start in each community when people believe in government parks, government schools, government libraries, and believe in the right to use initiated force to make people who do not want to use these things pay for them. Taxes are a form of war. Government services should be so useful that people would support them voluntarily.

Wit and Whimsy

Little Johnny was in one of his very bad and disobedient moods. In answer to his mother's remonstrations that he behave himself, he said:

Johnny — Give me a nickel, and I'll be good.

Mother — Give you a nickel! Why, Johnny, you shouldn't be good for a nickel, you should be good for nothing - like your father.

Jean — I hate people who are vague and non-commital, don't you?

June — Mmmmmm!

When a woman has ceased to be quite the same to us, it matters little how different she becomes.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markey

The British recently came up with an ultrasonic aid for the blind, developed in cooperation with Britain's famed St. Dunstan's Institute. The device effectively makes use of the same principle a bat employs to warn it of obstacles in its path — the emission of inaudible high-pitched sounds whose "bounce back" reveals to the ear whatever object lies ahead. Using this device blind people have walked a couple of miles through snow and have been able not only to calculate distances but to distinguish a tree from a bush, a post from a wall, items of clothing and something moving.

Today's smile: We liked the one about the gal who put a penny in a weighing machine and a card came out saying: "One person at a time, please."

Educators tell us the reason it is difficult for many high school students to enter the college of their choice today is the fact that 70 per cent of all males attending high school these days complete their courses and graduate. Years ago only 10 per cent graduated. Today's crop seek higher education and the colleges haven't the physical facilities and manpower to accommodate them. . .Just to show you how the population is growing, nearly 15 million persons live in three counties in the U.S. — California's Los Angeles County has 6,800,000 inhabitants; another 5,300,000 live in Illinois' Cook County; and Wayne County in Michigan is home for 2,800,000.

Thoughts while shaving: Never doubt that the U.S. is a sportsminded nation. Last year 63,500,000 Americans went to race tracks to watch thoroughbreds and trotters. Another 35 million paid to see auto races; while 30,400,000 attended major and minor league baseball games. . .A recent insurance survey says more than 4 million Americans living today would be dead if the U.S. death rate remained at the 1937 level. . .Prices of newspapers vary throughout the country. There are 665 selling for 10 cents; 596 for 5 cents; and 59 go for 8 cents. No other commodity gives the people so much for so little. . .Pollsters don't spend all of their time trying to figure out political trends. One recently conducted a survey to pick "three of the four subjects you and your friends talk about most." Results showed that 58 per cent talked about their children; another 35 per cent said "clothing" (they must have been gals); and the remaining 7 per cent talked about a variety of things. . .The same poll showed that religion is the one topic people feel most strongly about. . .We were told recently that out of 10 prescriptions in the average pharmacy today call for drugs that were unknown in 1950. And our complaint that pharmaceuticals cost "too much" brought proof that the average retail price of a prescription is $3.26, much less than a bottle of Bourbon. . .Headline in the Hartford (Conn.) TIMES: "Time For All Women To Come To Aid of Figure." Of course, women's figures bother them, and men, too!

Country Editor speaking: "One look at your tax bill should convince you they're not 'cheap politicians.'"

WASHINGTON:

U.S. Blocks Red Trails To Viet Nam

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The United States and South Viet Nam have started a determined effort to seal off the Ho Chi Minh trails down which North Viet Nam's Red Ho sends military and political cadres, money, weapons and supplies south to the Viet Cong.

First steps have been highly successful. U. S. guerrilla fighters leading native tribesmen have conducted a series of ambushes that are beginning to bother the Reds.

In essence, the U. S. guerrilla troops and their tribesmen allies are using Red tactics. They patrol the forests alongside the Ho Chi Minh trails, hit North Vietnamese soldiers and supply teams coming down those forest tracks. They operate best at night.

These primitive tribesmen live along the South Viet Nam-Laos border. They know the area. They're ideal guerrilla fighters when given U. S. training and weapons. They form strong personal loyalties to individual U.S. fighting men.

The hill tribesmen, too, are vague on boundary lines. If they infiltrate into Laos and catch the Reds before they arrive in South Viet Nam, no one is the wiser.

This new border trail fighting is just getting into stride. It will be beefed up sharply in the next six to eight months.

One problem: U. S. guerrilla fighters must keep the hill men from different tribes in well-separated units. Some would rather fight each other than the Viet Cong.

This concept of a military alliance with native tribesmen is a type of operation at which U. S. soldiers have excelled for some time. Americans were highly successful with the Shan tribesmen in Burma in World War II. They organized hard-fighting groups of Meo tribesmen in Laos a few years back.

The Viet Cong Reds are expected to react sharply. They must keep the Ho Chi Minh trails open.

The weapons and supplies coming down these paths probably account for less than 2 per cent of the tonnage the Viet Cong use in the south and for only a relatively small percentage of the fighting men.

But the men and supplies involved are critical items — radios, mortars, machine guns, specialist personnel, unit leaders, noncommissioned officers, medical supplies, campaign instructions and considerable sums of money.

Without these leaders, instructions and money, the systematic direction and co-ordination of Viet Cong operations would be much more difficult.

The expanding border patrol setup also serves another purpose. It gives fleeing Viet Cong fighters fewer places to hide. Secret of the success of the Red guerrillas is that when they're surprised by South Viet Nam troops they can flee, either into the hills or across the border into Laos or Cambodia.

When the guerrilla patrols become large enough and experienced enough, and when they expand far enough along the border, they may be able to cut off numbers of fleeing Viet Cong after major raids by government troops.

This will reduce the importance of the Cambodia sanctuary.

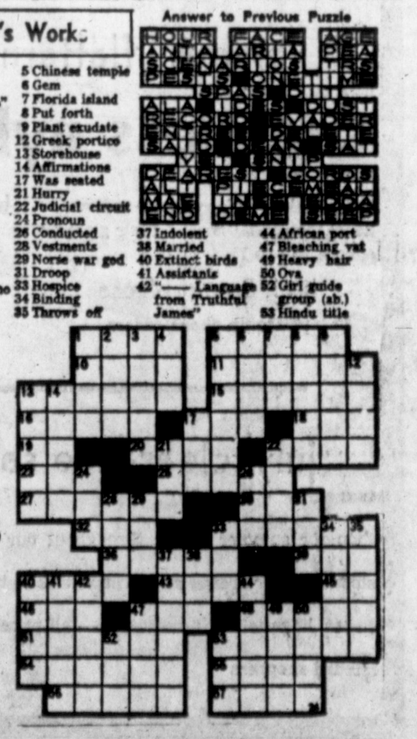
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Rookie's Debut Impressive One

By United Press International

Please don't disturb Kansas City's newest rookie because if this all a dream he'd rather not be awakened.

His name is Bert Campaneris and even if it was Frank Merriwell, he never had any right to expect the kind of fantastic showing he made in his major league debut Thursday.

It was almost too good to be true.

Stepping up to the plate in his first time at bat, the pint-sized 155 - pound Cuban shortstop belted the first pitch for a home run, but he was only warming up.

He homered again with one man on in the seventh, also singled, walked, stole a base and turned in a spectacular ninth inning catch.

Doc Edwards' homer in the 11th was the actual blow that gave Kansas City a 4-3 victory over Minnesota but the day belonged to the 21 - year - old Campaneris, whose exhiliration couldn't even be dimmed by the fact that he barely speaks any English.

Only Second Player

Campaneris' two homers in his first major league game made him the second player in modern baseball history to accomplish the feat and only the third player to do it ever.

Bob Nieman socked two homers for the St. Louis Browns in his first game back in 1951, and much further back than that, a chap by the name of Charlie Reilly, whom only grandfather may remember, did it for Columbus when it was a member of the majors in 1889.

Both Campaneris' shots came off Minnesota starter Jim Kaat but Edwards' homer came off loser Gerry Arrigo (6-3). Harmon Killebrew hit his 34th homer with two on in the sixth for the Twins but it couldn't prevent them from suffering their eighth straight setback. John Wyatt posted his seventh victory in relief, five of which have come at the expense of the Twins.

The A's called Campaneris up from Burmingham of the Southern Association on Thursday night because their regular shortstop, Wayne Causey, is out with an injury.

Campy Is Ambidextrous

Among his other accomplishments, Campy, as he's called because his first name — Dagoberto — is too much of a mouthful, happens to be ambidextrous. Right now, the A's aren't overly concerned about which hand he throws with; they want to see some more of his amazing bat.

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Washington knocked over New York 2-1 but the Yankees retained their lead by five percentage points over the second - place Baltimore Orioles, who beat the Cleveland Indians 7-1. The third - place Chicago White Sox moved within a half game of first place with a 2-1 win over the Los Angeles Angels in 11 innings and Boston downed Detroit 4-3.

Delivers Pinch Single

Something he ate kept Jim King out of Washington's starting lineup but it didn't keep him from coming up with a two - run pinch single in the eighth that beat the Yankees. King delivered off Pete Mikkelsen although the loser was Stan Williams (1-2). Claude Osteen scattered eight hits to make his record 8-7.

Sam Bowens, Dick Brown and Robin Roberts were the key men in Baltimore's victory over Cleveland. Bowens drove in four runs with a homer, single and a sacrifice fly, Brown belted a pair of homers and Roberts hurled a five -hitter for his eighth victory of the season and 266th of his career. Sam McDowell (3-5) was the loser.

Tom McCraw's two - out single in the 11th scored Mike Hershberger with the run that snapped a 1-1 tie between the White Sox and Angels. The White Sox ended Dean Chance's scoreless string of 27 innings with a run in the first and didn't score again until the 11th when they handed Barry Latman his ninth loss in 12 decisions. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-6) was the winner.

Red Sox reliever Dick Radatz was credited with his 16th save of the season when he preserved Dave Morehead's sixth win against the Tigers. Felix Mantilla's 15th homer in the sixth proved to be the clincher as Joe Sparma suffered his third loss. Al Kaline hit his eighth homer for the Tigers.

TAKEOFF—Mets shortstop Amado Samuel looks for all the world like an albatross taking off as he skips high in the air to make way for a grounder underneath him on the way to second base.

In Babe Ruth Tournament

Plainview A.L., Dumas Advance

By KARL O'QUINN
Daily News Sports Editor

Plainview American League ousted Fritch American League from the Babe Ruth District Tournament 14-8 and Dumas slaughtered Canyon American League 21-1 in the winners bracket semi-finals last night.

So far only the two Fritch teams have been knocked out of the double elimination tourney but two more clubs will be put out tonight. Muleshoe plays Pampa National League at 5 and Canyon National League plays Pampa American League at 8 in a pair of losers bracket games.

Tomorrow night Dumas plays Plainview National in the winners bracket finals at 5 and Plainview American meets the Muleshoe-Pampa National winner at 8 to cut the 10-team tournament field in half after six days of play.

Neither of last night's games was a contest for long.

Fritch led Plainview 4-0 briefly after one inning of play but Plainview tied the score in the second and moved out to a ten-run lead before Fritch could score another four runs in the bottom of the seventh.

Johnny Campbell walked four Fritch batters in the first inning and six in the seventh to give his opponents a valuable assist. In all he walked 14 batters but struck out 11 and gave up just four hits to win the decision.

The loser was George Jarvis.

Plainview's Tommy McBee paced the game's hitters with two singles and a triple in six at bats. Danny Andrews, Gary Findley, Tommy Hall and Zoro Gutierrez each included a double in his two hits for Plainview.

Jarvis got Fritch's only extra base hit, a triple.

Dumas scored seven runs in the first inning and added to the total in each succeeding frame. Thirteen errors by Canyon caused most of the damage as the Dumas batters collected just 12 hits, less than could be expected for the number of runs scored.

Each of the 14 men Dumas played scored at least one time and six of them scored twice.

While Canyon hurlers Mike Culwell and Bill Vernon were having their troubles, Dumas' Mike Milligan sailed along serenely. He allowed just two hits and struck out 11. A triple and the only error committed by Dumas combined to produce Canyon's only run in the fourth.

Culwell, the starter, was the losing pitcher.

McKinley In Semis

HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI) — Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., top-ranking player in the United States, meets fourth-seeded Gene Scott of St. James, N. Y., today in a semi-final match in the 61st annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis championship.

The other semifinal match between Frank Froehling, No. 3 U.S. player from Miami, Fla., and second-seeded Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., will be held Saturday, with the final on Sunday.

McKinley advanced in the quarter-finals Thursday with a 10-8, 10-8 triumph over Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., in a powerfully waged contest. Scott, rated No. 4, defeated Ron Holmberg, Brooklyn, N.Y., 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

Froehling won a marathon, two-hour and 50-minute match from Martin Reissen of Evanston, Ill., 7-5, 28-26. Froehling shot over 49 clean service aces, 44 of them in the second set. The 54-game set was the longest in singles history in the tournament.

Ralston moved ahead at the expense of Charles Pasarell, topping the Puerto Rican, 6-3, 6-2.

In the women's play at Merion Cricket Club, top-seeded Mrs. Clark Graebner of Shaker Heights, Ohio, met Carole Hanks of St. Louis and second-seeded Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman of San Diego, Calif., met Justina Bricka, of St. Louis, in the semifinals today.

Mrs. Graebner was a 6-3, 6-1 winner over Faye Urban of Windsor, Ontario, in the quarter-finals Thursday. Mrs. Susman topped Sue Shrader of Sacramento, Calif., 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Hanks advanced by disposing of Tory Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa., 6-1, 6-2, while Miss Bricka eliminated Kathleen Harter, Seal Beach, Calif., 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

Geiberger Is Leader

By JACK O'BRIEN

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Slender Californian Al Geiberger, wielding a powerful driver and a hot putter, held a two-stroke advantage today going into the second round of the $50,000 Insurance City Open golf tournament.

The six-foot, two-inch star from Carlton Oaks, Calif., came within four strokes of the course record when he fashioned a seven-under par 64 to lead a field of 150 in Thursday's opening round of the four-day, 72-hole tourney at the nearby Weathersfield Country Club.

Tommy Bolt set the course record of 60, 11 under par, 10 years ago in winning the ICO in its third year of existence.

Geiberger braved a sudden electrical storm and the pressure of 59 players who broke par to emerge at the top of the pack after the first 18 holes that started out in sunny and steamy weather.

Before turning in his card late in the day, Geiberger was challenged for the lead by four players who tallied 66 each in quest of a $7,500 first prize. they were Pennsylvania Open champion Bert Yancey of Philadelphia, Al Besselink of Merchantville, N.J., Jim Ferree of Corona, Calif., and Jack Rule of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sharing 67 scores were Larry Beck, Whispering Pines, N.C.; Sam Carmichael, Martinsville, Ind.; Jerry Steelsmith, Glendale, Calif.; Dick Ryhan of Columbus, Ohio, Dave Ragan, Orlando, Fla., and Bud Sullivan, Yuba City, Calif.

Two newly-crowned champions, U.S. Open titlist Ken Venturi and PGA king Bobby Nichols, trailed the first-round leaders with 70. Old pro Sam Snead had 69, a figure matched by Julius Boros and Mike Souchak. Eight entrants shot 68.

PHILS RECALL JOHNSON

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phlies recalled Alex Johnson, an outfielder, from their Little Rock farm team to replace Danny Cater who was placed on the disabled list after breaking his arm against Milwaukee on Wednesday.

US-Russia Meet Opens Tomorrow

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The stage was set today for one of sportsdom's greatest spectacles as the U.S. prepared to meet Russia in a dual track and field meet.

The competition opens Saturday in the Los Angeles Coliseum, with 70,000 fans expected in the seats when the first events start at 4 p.m. (PDT).

And if the American women can come up with a surprise point or two, this could be the United States' initial triumph in over-all team scoring.

In five previous meetings, the American men have won every time, with the point margin varying from 21 in 1962 at Stanford to only five last year in Moscow.

On the other hand, the American lassies haven't come close. They took their worst thumping last year when they got only 28 points against 74 for the Russians.

With the class of competition here, there could be a world record in every event in the men's division. However, that is unlikely. In fact, one or two world marks would make the meet a success for all concerned.

United States scored only 119 points last year, but it figures to come up with better than 130 this time in the men's division.

Burdette Blasts Sinking Giants

By United Press International

Anytime Lew Burdette is ready to hang up his mitt, he can start a brand new career with his bat.

Fidgety Lew takes the jibes from the opposing dugout about his nervous habits on the mound and his propensity to "load" a pitch occasionally, but the bench jockeys have become silent lately when Burdette runs (literally) to the plate.

Burdette, twice a 20-game winner in his 14 major league seasons, was written off twice as a starting pitcher within the last year by the Milwaukee Braves and the St. Louis Cardinals. But since Chicago Cubs' head Coach Bob Kennedy inserted him in the starting rotation this month, the 36-year-old righthander has reeled off three straight complete-game victories and extended his record to 7-2 (6-1 since coming to the Cubs).

Almost as gratifying to Burdette's best with the bat. He In those three games, he has hit at a .538 clip with seven safeties — including two homers and a triple — and four runs batted in.

Good Hitting Day

Thursday was one of Burdette's best with the bat. He cracked a home run, a triple and two singles in five times up against San Francisco, driving in three runs and scored twice, in the Cubs 13-4 romp over the Giants. Billy Williams and Len Gabrielson also homered for Chicago off loser Billy O'Dell who allowed 11 earned runs in seven innings. Jim Ray Hart and Orlando Cepeda homered for the Giants.

In other National League games, the league-leading Phillies spanked the Braves 13-10 in 10 innings, the Pirates slugged the Cardinals 8-5, the Reds nipped the Mets 5-4, and the Dodgers dumped the Colts 5-4.

Cracks Two Homers

Johnny Callison hit two home runs to account for five runs and Jack Baldschun, who had saved games the two previous days, picked up the victory and started the winning rally for the Phillies.

Baldschun, a relief pitcher, singled with two out in the 10th inning to start a three-run rally. He went to second on Richie Allen's single and scored on a double by Cookie Rojas, which broke a 10-10 deadlock. There were 33 hits — 18 by Philadelphia — against the 13 pitchers used in the slugfest.

The Reds broke a five game losing streak to the Mets but almost blew it in the ninth when New York scored once and had the bases loaded before reliever Bill Henry shut the door.

Jim Maloney pitched the first six innings for the Reds but was forced to leave the game in the sixth inning when he suffered a muscle strain in his back and was replaced by Bob Purkey. The Reds made only five hits, but capitalized on three of four Met errors to score an unearned run in both the first and sixth innings. Larry Elliot hit his third homer in three days for the losers.

Bailey, Virdon Homer

Bob Bailey and Bill Virdon each contributed three hits including a home run to the Pirates 16-hit assault against the struggling Cardinal pitching staff, which has given up 36 runs in the last four games. Mike Cuellar (2-3) was the loser and Steve Blass (4-4) picked up the victory.

Frustrated Dick Farrell, who allowed only two unearned runs to the Dodgers, lost his ninth bid for his 11th victory, when relief pitcher Claude Raymond blew a 4-2 lead in the ninth inning. Ron Fairly's bases loaded single drove in the winning run, following three singles and a walk. Walt Bond homered for the Colts with a man on in the sixth. Reliever Bob Miller, who worked the final inning, was the winner.

Fish Tales

By Ray Rodgers

Fishing has been only fair to good the past week with most fishermen reporting the best catches in this area out of Foss Dam.

Bass fishing has picked up at Burson, Conchas, and Baylor.

Most fishermen this week are heading for trout streams and lakes in New Mexico or Colorado.

Around Eagle Nest and Red River trout are biting better now than any time this year.

Similar repoarts have been received from most trout lakes and fishing resorts in the two states.

Several good sized pikes have been taken at Conchas on bombers.

Lake Texhoma reports sandies very good and bass fair.

Fishing at Lake Altus is reported as only fair with a few bass taken on top water lures.

The water level has dropped considerably in most lakes in the Texas Panhandle and in Oklahoma, except at Foss.

Crappie and catfish are reported as only fair at Buffalo Lake.

Heat Bothers Fish

Along about this time of year, fish are bothered by searing temperatures.

Since it curbs both movements and appetites of fish, the basic rule for any real good fishing in the summer sun is: forget it. Instead, fish during the cool of the day. . .or night.

The best time to work shallow bays is just at the crack of day - break. Though the water may have cooled slightly at dusk and during early evening it will have reached its lowest temperature at the crack of dawn.

The few hours preceding sunup are generally the most productive for top-and shallow-water action. For the most part, these fish will be in the small to medium size range—the fast moving foragers which scramble for the easy pickin's that exist in the warm shoals.

Hook Fish Properly

"If you can't hook a bait, you can't hook a fish."

These words contain more than a grain of truth. While bait fishing is probably the least complicated way to load a stringer, the secret to success lies at the juncture of hook and bait.

Here are some of the most frequently used baits and some of the most effective ways of "hookin' up."

WORMS — Run the hook lightly through the collar, using a single worm for trout and panfish, two worms for bass and a whole gob for catfish.

GRASSHOPPERS — Hoppers, as well as beetles, crickets and caterpillars, should be tied to a hook. Fine thread will do the job and permit the bait to float in a lively, natural fahion.

MINNOWS — Hook should be slipped under the skin just behind the dorsal fin; best for still fishing and casting. Sometimes hooking through both lips is advisable when making rapid retrieves or when using a dead minnow.

FROGS — Tie hook to back just behind front legs.

CRAWDADS — Hook either under the collar or through the tail. Keep bait moving, as each type is inclined to scurry under rocks and hide from the fish you wish to entice.

Choose hooks made of light wire and, depending on the bait used and fish sought, select the smallest size possible.

Give the bait a chance. The fish will do the rest.

Inmate Artists Plan Exhibit at Huntsville

HUNTSVILLE (Spl) — A public showing of the best art talent of inmate artists of the Texas Department of Corrections will be held here July 30 inthe prison's visiting room, it was announced by D. George J. Beto, director of the prison system.

The public display will be held from 3 to 5 p.m., and again from 7 to 9 p.m., Dr. Beto stated.

The display will include the works of top inmate artists of the entire prison system, prejudged from more than 200 entries. The judging will be done by the art faculty of Sam Houston State Teachers College.

Richard C. Jones, assistant director for treatment, says that the exhibit is part of the prison's rehabilitation program designed to foster and build worthwhile interests and values among the inmates.

Details of the program have been worked out by Alonzo Langley, director of education for the penal system, who stated that inmates have spent countless hours preparing for the exhibit.

Gaddis Geeslin, head of the art department at Sam Houston State, after viewing a number of the paintings, drawings, and sketches, lauded the talents displayed by inmate artists and commented, "You have the makings of a very fine show."

Fred Pardue of the prison's education department, is assisting in coordinating the exhibit. He stated that background music and refreshments have been arranged as an added feature of the event.

The Lighter Side

Fun of Vacation Is Catchup Later

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The fun of coming back from a vacation is catching up on what has been happening while you were away.

I spent my recent vacation in such a remote spot that a lot of important news failed to reach me. For instance, I just now learned that while I was gone the Agriculture Department found a way to bypass the diapause of a cabbageworm.

On the chance that there might be other Americans who have been out of the mainstream and may also have missed this development, I shall now attempt to bring us all up to date.

The Agricultural Research Service, whose curiosity knows no bounds, wanted to see what would happen if it exposed a cabbageworm to repeated flashes of light.

Apply Light

Each night, while the cabcageworm was still in the caterpillar stage, department scientists turned on a photoflash. Lo and behold, something did happen.

The photoflashes apparently upset the cabbageworm's normal life cycle.

At a time when the cabbageworm would normally have entered diapause, which is a dormant stage similar to hibernation, it emerged from its cocoon as a full blown adult butterfly.

"This new photoflash technique may have potential value as a biological control method against insects," the department says. "...If insects in their natural environment were forced to bypass diapause and develop into adults ahead of schedule, the insects would probably get so out of step with nature that they would perish."

If photoflashes can change the life cycle of cabbageworms, I am wondering if something similar might happen to politicians.

Disrupt Life Cycle

This is an election year, you know, and our politicians will be exposed to a tremendous amount of photoflashes during the next couple of months.

Under their normal life cycle, many politicians would enter diapause after Nov. 3 and would remain dormant until the next campaign. But if photoflashing causes them to get out of step with nature, they might emerge from their cocoons ahead of schedule.

The nation would have no respite from office-seekers; next year would be just like 1964.

There is little likelihood that any politicians would perish, however. They are generally more durable than cabbageworms. Some of them have been out of step with nature for years.

Indian Boys Have Feast of Quail Worth $15,000

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Three hungry little Papago Indian boys broke into a cage of masked bobwhite quail and ate the major part of a $15,000 research project, it was reported Thursday.

A spokesman for the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum said the youngsters, aged 10 and under, took between 25 and 30 of the quail from research pens near here Wednesday and cooked them over an open fire for a feast. They left behind nine birds, possibly too old to breed.

"They said they were hungry," said Laurence McWilliams of the museum staff. "What can you say?"

Ancestors of the boys once considered the birds sacred.

"These may have been the first ever eaten by members of the Papago tribe," said Lewis Walker, associate director of the museum.

More than $15,000 had been invested by the museum, three government agencies and a charitable foundation in the project, aimed at re-establishing the bobwhites in Arizona. The one-time game birds are considered extinct here.

"That meal may have eliminated any chance we might have had of making the masked bobwhite a native Arizona bird again," said McWilliams.

Ecuador has an area of 104,506 square miles.

Houston Names First Negro Judge In State of Texas

HOUSTON (UPI) — Harrel G. Tillman took over his duties Thursday as the first appointed Negro judge in Texas.

He was named as a substitute corporation court judge by Mayor Louie Welch and city council confirmed the appointment.

Earlier this year, Welch lowered another racial barrier by hiring Huey Mitchell for the city's legal department.

Tillman was admitted to the Texas bar last year. He is an ordained minister and secretary-treasurer of Standard Savings and Loan Association. He is 39 and he and his wife have three children.

Polo is played, on the same principle as hockey or association football, with four players on each side, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Why This Particular Pickup is The... Most Popular Truck in Pampa.

Last year CULBERSON CHEVROLET helped break the world's record in truck sales, and have sold almost twice as many as our nearest competitor in 1964. One of the most popular models was the Chevrolet pickup shown above ... the Chevrolet Fleetside.

What's the secret of this pickup's popularity? Many people say that it is its many quality features ... good ride ... and its double-walled body and cab.

Yet, in the final analysis, perhaps what convinces people the most that it is a good, sound value ... is the name on the back of the truck. A lot of people have come to rely on the name-CHEVROLET-the emblem that appears on more than 22 million cars and trucks on the road.

PROFILE OF A CANDIDATE—V

Barry's Candor Surprises Public

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of five dispatches sketching the rise of Sen. Barry Goldwater. It tells how he waged his successful battle for the Republican presidential nomination.

By LOWRY BOWMAN
United Press International

The art of dodging loaded questions has been developed to scientific precision by many politicians. But Barry Goldwater frequently has horrified the professionals and surprised the public with his candor.

It is likely that no man has given his opinion so bluntly on so many subjects and survived to win the presidential nomination of a major party.

His votes on national issues are on record in the Senate for all to see, and he has been publicly interviewed frequently and has made countless speeches. Numerous magazine articles and two books bear his name.

Despite this there is loud—even violent — argument not only about his views but about the larger question of whether Goldwater is the while knight of salvation, the voice of a right - wing conspiracy, or a shallow thinker with easy answers to hard questions.

One thing is certain. The reaction to Goldwater is not mild on the part either of his friends or his foes.

Opposite Party Views

In his own Republican party he is viewed by some as the only man who can remake the GOP into the nation's leading political organization; by others as the man who will sound the death knell of the two-party system.

Goldwater calls himself a right - wing conservative. But the popular labels of left, right and center: moderate, liberal and conservative, mean different things to different people.

The word "conscience" runs through most of his spoken and written political thought, and there is no convenient shade of political meaning that can be attached to such a word.

When he announced last Jan. 3 that he would seek the Republican presidential nomination, Goldwater said: "I am convinced that in this year 1964 we muast face up to our conscience and make a definite choice."

His conscience, he has said, is comitted to a strict interpretation of the letter of the constitution; to individual choice as opposed to government action.

Gives Voters Choice

His views have been exhaustively aired. He left it to the voter to choose how they should be interpreted.

Goldwater has said, in the South and elsewhere, that he favors racial desegregation. He is a member of the Urban League and once belonged to an Arizona branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People NAACP. But he said also that former Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett had the right to block the entrance of a Negro to the University of Mississippi, and that individual states—not the federal government — should handle racial problems. He voted against the 1964 civil rights bill because he said he doubted the constitutionality of its fair employment and public accommodations sections, but he led desegregation moves in Arizona and endorsed the 1963 civil rights march on Washington.

Goldwater voted against ratification of the nuclear test ban treaty on grounds that the Soviet Union was too untrustworthy to observe it. He also argued that the United States needed to do more testing for valid defense reasons.

The senator has called in the recent past for severing diplomatic relations with Russia. But his present position is that this country should only use the threat of a cutoff as a diplomatic bargaining weapon.

Wants Sound Security

Another apparent modification of a Goldwater view has occurred on the politically-sensitive social security issue. The senator once wrote that he favored making participation in the social security voluntary, but he now calls for a "sound" system which should be strengthened and protected against inflation. He opposes adding medical care for the aged to the system as a burden that would wreck it.

Goldwater opposed President Johnson's "war on poverty" bill when it cleared his Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee by a 13-2 vote. His solution to unemployment — "get the government off the backs of the citizens . . . let this syste mof ours work and it will produce all the jobs that are needed."

He is a long-time advocate to "right to work" laws and has assailed Congress for "giving labor unions too much power." Last year, he offered legislation that would outlaw union security contracts unless state legislatures voted to allow them. His recent campaign document did not mention "right to work" legislation, but did object to federal "intrusion" into labor-management disputes.

Against Subsidy Program

Farm policy has not been a prime interest of his campaign, but he has called in the past for "gradual termination of the subsidy program."

Goldwater once called the progressive - rate income tax "confiscatory," but later said he had concluded it was impractical to apply the same rate to everyone. He now supports an overhaul of the whole tax system with an eye toward modifying the rate of progression. He opposed the recent tax cut on grounds that it would prove inflationary without corresponding reductions in government spending.

Goldwater has been highly critical of U.S. foreign policy, which he charges has worked against this country's interests around the world. He also has criticized the United Nations. He calls it a "useful" forum for conciliation, but he wants its voting procedures changed to give more weight to big powers.

Right or wrong, Goldwater stands rarely arouse a "so what" response from his listeners.

Goldwater explains his grasping of political nettles on the ground he is offering the voters a clear choice between two points of view. He says he will not change his stand simply to win election.

Goldwater perhaps best explained his own political credo in 1952 when he first made his race for the U.S. Senate.

"I am a Republican," he said, "who is opposed to communism and particularly to the Communist-inclined sympathizer and the Communist-inclined policymakers and their companion wishful thinkers."

"I am a Republican who gives more than lip service to a balanced budget. I believe individuals and individual local government, city councils, county supervisors and state legislatures must reassert their independence and their responsibility, that we, the free people of this nation, must demand an end to government subsidies, deficit financing and living beyond our income.

Famous Gambling Spot in Arkansas Will Be Closed

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI) —The Vapors Club, once a plush gambling center until Gov. Orval Faubus ordered the illegal gambling activity stopped last March 29, will close in about two weeks.

A reliable source said the Vapors found it impossible to make any money on its dining room and bar without the gambling.

Dane Harris, the club's owner and operator, confirmed the report and said the club would present only two more acts after the present run of singer Anita Roman ends tonight.

The Southern Club, another top gambling spot before March 29, closed its bar and grill, dining room and liquor store Monday.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A Missouri Pacific passenger train barreled into a stalled automobile Wednesday at a crossing. John L. Jones, 52, a brakeman for MoPac was killed.

It was the 51st traffic fatality of the year for the city and Bexar County.

DROWNS IN POND

HOWE, Tex. (UPI) — J. D. Newby, 36, of Dallas drowned today in a farm stock tank near Howe in Grayson County. Newby was fishing with seven other men and disappeared while swimming across the pond to retrieve a boat. His body was recovered in 20 feet of water.

Americans use about 12 billion cubic feet of wood each year, according to estimates.
