Tigers Still Leading In Little League Play

Thursday
It took one hour and 40 minutes for the Red Sox and Cougars to play four innings here last Thursday night, and a final score of 19 to 6 gives you a pretty good idea of the kind of game it was. Pitching was wild on both sides. Our tabulation showed that 21 batters were able to take their base on balls—eleven for the Red Sox and ten for the Cougars.

Many of the Red Sox scorers were accounted for by Cougar fielding errors, which is to be expected since they (Cougars) have a young new team. One of their players is only eight years old. They'll be competitive again next year when the Tigers and White Sox lose a whole batch of 12-year-olds.

Score by innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6
Red Sox 6 5 3 5—19
Cougars 0 4 1 1—6

Friday Night

The game Friday night was a critical one for the Tigers and White Sox and it just about made a nervous wreck out of the spectators before it ended dramatically with a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the Tigers, which left them undisputed champions of the first half of the season.

The Tigers had been trailing all through the game and it looked like the Whites had it in the bag. The first two innings were scoreless, but in the top of the third, Tiger pitcher, Paul Page Jr., gave up two bases on balls; then the White Sox got two hits and this along with some errors by Tiger fielders enabled the Whites to run in four scores. That made the score 4 to 0 in favor of White Sox and that's the way it stood until the bottom of the 5th inning. Here the Tigers got some hits and ran in 3 runs, making it 4 to 3. They almost tied it up when Paul Page tried to steal home from third and was tagged out by his cousin, Bob, who is catcher for the White Sox.

The White Sox at bat in the top of the 6th were shut out, and then came the Tigers in at the bottom of the 6th. It was now or never—one run would tie it up, two would win. This reporter doesn't remember how it all happened. One Tiger runner got a base on balls; two more got on base somehow. The bases were loaded but with two men out. Mickey Phelps was at bat with two strikes on him. Then—wham!—he hit a line drive deep into left field. A parade of runners crossed home plate, but it was no use counting after two came in because it left it 5 to 4—TIGERS.

It was the best game of the season.

Score by innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6
White Sox 0 0 4 0 0 0—4
Tigers 0 0 0 0 3 2—5

Saturday — All Star

The all-star game was played Saturday night to a large crowd of spectators. One team was made of players from the Tigers and Cougars and they played against a team from the Red Sox and White Sox.

The editor of this paper was unable to be present at this game, and mostly what we got were the scores. The Tiger-Cougars romped over their opponents to the tune of 5 to 0. They used as pitchers—Bob Page, Ricky Menchaca, Denny Phelps and Mike Olson.

The White-Red Sox pitched Jas. Larry Davis, Roy Jones and Archie Nixon.

Monday Night

The second half of the Little League season got under way Monday night with Red Sox and White Sox crossing bats at Legion Park. It was a better game than the final score indicates—which was 10 to 5 in favor of White Sox.

Red Sox batted first and ran in two scores. Then the Whites came right back in the bottom of the first with three, making it 3 to 2. In the 3rd inning the White Sox got two more, but in the 4th the Red Sox pulled in two more scores, making it 4 to 5. The Whites got another score in the 4th and the Reds got one in the top of the 5th, and the score was 6 to 5 in favor of the White Sox. It should have stopped right there, but the clock had some more minutes to go, and the White Sox came in at the bottom of the 5th. Five of their batters got bases on balls and they ran in 4 more scores, making it 10-5. It was too late to start another inning.

Tuesday Night

When the strongest team in the league plays against the weakest you can't very well expect any upsets or surprises. And so it was Tuesday night when the Tigers played the Cougars, and the Tigers won 3 to 4.

But even so, the Cougars were leading for a short while, and part of the time it was tied up. Wild overthrows and other fielding errors on part of the Cougars were responsible for giving the Tigers the lead they gained.

By innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6
Cougars 1 0 1 2 0 0—4
Tigers 0 2 2 4 2 0—8

Cucumber Harvest May Start Next Week

Cucumber harvest may be under way by next week if all continues to go well. That was the word this week from Ben Keel and the other growers who report that the vines have been blossoming, and already have some small cucumbers on them.

It was 37 days ago that the crops were planted. Arrangements were under way this week for picking. The captains were here looking things over and a mechanical grader will be set up at the gin.

The cucumber crop is consigned to a packer at Texarkana.

Mrs. Wiley Logan of Sonora and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Jenkins of Dallas visited Mrs. L. T. Wilson last Saturday.

Off To The Ro-Dee-O

Nobody is any more enthusiastic about rodeos than Mr. and Mrs. Arch Orv, who have always taken an active part in managing and staging every one, big or little, in Eldorado for years.

Today they are taking off, accompanied by a niece, Joan Moore, and they aim to see the most famous rodeos of them all—the one at Cheyenne, Wyoming, in July. Traveling in a brand new 8-cylinder car which they bought for the trip (drouth or no drouth) they aim to take in all the Northwest-ern states and see as much new country as they can in three weeks. Of course if they hear of any other good rodeos on the way, they'll take 'em in too.

Mrs. Calvin Henderson Released From Hospital

Mrs. Calvin (Freddie) Henderson was released from the Menard hospital Wednesday and taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Furr at Lake Buchanan.

Mrs. Henderson had been hospitalized since suffering serious injuries in an auto accident about three weeks ago.

It was reported that she is much improved but will remain in a cast for an indefinite time.

Doctor Hopes To Set Up Practice Here Next Week

Dr. and Mrs. (Diana) Vernezobre were in Eldorado yesterday unloading supplies at the clinic building and familiarizing themselves with the local set-up. They explained that their office in Baird has already been closed and that suitable housing in Eldorado is the only feature delaying their move here.

The doctor and his wife (who is a registered nurse) said they may have to take temporary living quarters and leave the remainder of the family in Baird for a while. "But we hope to open practice next week."

Dr. and Mrs. Vernezobre have an 8-month-old daughter named Diana. Also making their home with them is the doctor's mother, Mrs. Isabella Vernezobre; and his grandmother, Mrs. Hudson J. Metz. They simply need a good sized house.

Dr. Vernezobre studied medicine at the University of Havana in Cuba where he received his diploma in 1952. He interned and served four years residence training in the University Hospital and started practice in Cuba in 1956.

When he was forced to leave the island in 1961 he owned the 40-bed St. Emily Hospital in Havana.

Upon arrival in the United States, he started the intern process all over again at Riverside Hospital in Newport News, Va., and moved to Texas in 1962 where he served on the staff of the San Antonio State Tuberculosis Hospital. He passed his Texas medical examination later that year, and moved to Baird about six months ago.

Dr. Vernezobre holds memberships in the American Medical Association, Texas Medical Association and Taylor-Jones Medical Association.

A NATION'S CREDO

It is fitting on Uncle Sam's 188th birthday to recall some of our nation's inspiring moments. It is especially so at this time, when many Americans are quick to render self-criticism, but ignore the glorious accomplishments of their country. Here is "I am the Nation," authored by Otto Whittaker, now copy supervisor of Leo Burnett ad agency, Chicago. He wrote this Credo in 1954 as a public service advertisement for the Norfolk & Western Ry., and it since has appeared in thousands of publications. Never has it seemed more timely than on July 4th, 1964.

Who Am I?

"I WAS BORN JULY 4, 1776, and the Declaration of Independence is my birth certificate. The bloodlines of the world run in my veins because I offered freedom to the oppressed. I am many things, and many people. I AM THE NATION. I am 185 million living souls—and the ghost of millions who have lived and died for me. I am Nathan Hale and Paul Revere. I stood at Lexington and fired the shot heard around the world. I am Washington, Jefferson and Patrick Henry. I am John Paul Jones and the Green Mountain Boys, and Davy Crockett. I am Lee and Grant and Abe Lincoln.

"I REMEMBER THE ALAMO, the Maine and Pearl Harbor. When freedom called, I answered and stayed until it was over, over there. I left my heroic dead in Flanders Field, on the rock of Corregi-dor and on the bleak slopes of Korea. I am the Brooklyn Bridge, the wheat fields of Kansas, and the granite hills of Vermont. . . I am big. I sprawl from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I am more than 4 million farms. I am forest, field, mountain and desert. I am quiet villages and cities that never sleep.

"You CAN LOOK AT ME and see Ben Franklin walking down the streets of Philadelphia with his breadloaf under his arm. I am Babe Ruth and the World Series. I am 169,000 schools and colleges and 250,000 churches, where my people worship God as they think best. I am a ballot dropped in a box, the roar of a crowd in a stadium, and the voice of a choir in a cathedral. I am an editorial in a newspaper and a letter to a congressman. I am Eli Whitney and Stephen Foster. I am Tom Edison, Albert Einstein and Billy Graham. I am Horace Greeley, Will Rogers and the Wright Brothers. I am George Washington Carver, Daniel Webster and Jonas Salk. I am Longfellow, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Walt Whitman, Thomas Paine.

"YES, I AM THE NATION. I was conceived in freedom and God willing, in freedom I will spend the rest of my days. May I possess always the integrity, the courage and the strength to keep myself unshackled, to remain a citadel of freedom and a beacon of hope to the world.

"This is my wish, my goal, my prayer, on July 4, 1964 — one hundred and eighty-eight years after I was born."

We Hold These Truths . . .

As the 188th anniversary of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence approaches, the Eldorado Success devotes this space to a reprinting of that document of inspiration.

A DECLARATION

By the Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies, and such it is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpation, all having in direct object, the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world:

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature; a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose, obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined, with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us.

For protecting them by a mock trial from punishment, for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefit of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws and altering fundamentally, the powers of our governments:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the work of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages in an undis-tinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts made by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war—in peace, friends.

WE, THEREFORE, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

ON THIS

FOURTH OF JULY, 1964

The flame of patriotism will burn brighter the remainder of this week. Flags will wave; bands will play; military men will march. Americans are proud of the heritage of their forefathers. But, how many citizens know that the freedoms they enjoy, are for the most part, spiritual? The founding fathers of the Republic were religious men. They wrote into the Constitution certain guarantees of freedom which we in the twentieth century still enjoy. Their dependence upon God and their belief in the value of the individual soul sparked their love of freedom.

So on this 189th Independence Day, let us celebrate with fervor as they did that first Fourth of July in 1776. But let us not in the joy of our freedom fail to hear the Liberty Bell ringing down through the years this tocsin: "The condition upon which God hath given liberty to man is eternal vigilance."

DPS Director Warns Drivers About Fourth

Austin.—The director of the Texas Department of Public Safety today described the traffic situation in Texas as "critical" at mid-year and appealed to all motorists to make the July 4 holiday weekend the turning point away from a two-year upward trend in fatal traffic accidents.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr. announced that "Operation Motorcicle" will be in effect from 12:01 a.m. Friday, July 3 through 11:59 p.m. Sunday, July 5, in an effort to focus public attention on the added hazards of holiday road travel and at the same time bring about safety consciousness among all drivers. During this three-day period, the DPS estimates that 32 persons will be killed in Texas traffic.

As part of this program, he said, additional patrolmen from the DPS License and Weight and Motor Vehicle Inspection Services will join the regular Highway Patrol force for the three-day holiday period.

Garrison added that numerous agencies, organizations and individuals will take part in "Operation Motorcicle" in a coordinated attack on traffic accidents. For example, he said the Texas Safety Association will conduct a public information program stressing the need for courtesy and caution on a statewide basis and coordinate local safety council holiday safety emphasis programs. The Texas Council of Safety Supervisors and the Texas Motor Transportation Association will conduct a "Holiday Road Patrol" in which a fleet of 35 to 40 cars will be used over the state to assist stranded motorists and thus help to relieve highway patrolmen for more enforcement work. And the State Highway Department will conduct a continuing information and education program instructing drivers on freeway driving and the need for caution near construction areas.

"And we know we can count on the press, radio and television, as always, to carry the message of safety to the public and thereby make a wonderful contribution to the program," he said.

In a mid-century summary of the traffic situation in Texas, Garrison stressed that fatal accidents on the streets and highways are up about 14% over 1963—which was the worst year in history for Texas traffic with 2,729 fatalities.

"If this trend continues through the rest of this year, traffic deaths will go over 3,000," he said. "We must break this trend toward ever-increasing fatal accidents which seems to have set in almost exactly two years ago. To do so, we must have public awareness of this dangerous situation and the full cooperation of everyone in saving lives and cutting down in injuries and economic loss."

Garrison said a study of the present situation shows that the increase in fatal accidents has been in the cities and towns as well as on the open highways. A recent report shows that 445 fatal crashes occurred in cities and towns so far this year, compared to 363 for the same period last year. The same report shows that a total of 524 rural fatal accidents have occurred this year, compared to 480 for the same period in 1963.

The Public Safety Director pointed out that nearly half of the fatal accidents that occur on rural highways involved either running off the roadway or head-on collision. To guard against these most frequent types of fatal mishaps, Garrison offered these suggestions:

1. Be sure your equipment—tires, steering gear, brakes, lights, windshield wipers, etc.—are in working order at all times.
2. Be sure the driver is in good physical and mental condition whenever he takes on the exacting job of driving a motor vehicle.
3. Always be on the alert for unexpected actions of other drivers and for other hazards, such as slick pavement, pedestrians, construction areas, etc.
4. Reduce speed before entering curves, not after, when it may be too late to retain control.
5. Avoid improper passing, one of the major factors involved in head-on collisions. This includes such things as passing with insufficient clearance, and passing in no-passing zones such as on hills and curves.
6. Adjust speed to existing conditions and circumstances, regardless of the posted limits.

Letters to the Paper

Sportsmanship In Little League Baseball

Sportsmanship is the greatest thing to learn while small, but what's happening to our Little League? It seems not all the boys are getting to play. Only a few are getting to play while others sit on the bench. If this is sportsmanship take the players that play all time and let them sit on the bench as much as the "bench warmers" did in the first half of the season. "Boy would they scream" about it being unfair.

Little League was organized for the benefit of all boys in a given age group and came out to practice and wanted to play ball. But it looks like on some teams only 9 get to play. It's also getting that way in practice, too, while the others sit on the sidelines. If this is sportsmanship and fair play the meaning has changed. It's more important for all to play and lose a game than the same 9 to play and win. Several boys have quit because they didn't get to play and a lot more have been greatly discouraged and lost interest in sports. There has been a lot of harm done to these boys. Let's see what can be done about it.

—Bob Rowe.

July — The Month For Remembering

When we remember the signing of the Declaration of Independence after those weary months of waiting for a fearful, critical people to accept its findings — we wonder if our people realize and appreciate the wonderful heritage that is ours. Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and father of Democracy, John Adams, George Washington, and countless others who labored so faithfully for the freedom of our nation are worthy of the honor and esteem of every red-blooded American.

So let us join the local D.A.R. members on the glorious 4th of July in displaying the Flag of our country, and breathe a prayer of thankfulness to our Heavenly Father for those men who gave so much, that we may enjoy the great blessings that are our today's. — Rep., Mrs. W. N. Ramsay.

Rapid Transit System Started In California

Mrs. L. T. Wilson's daughter, Mrs. Mildred Deaton of Concord, California, is keeping her mother posted on news of the Rapid Transit system of transportation that is being developed in the Bay (San Francisco) area of California.

Concord, Mrs. Deaton's hometown, held ground-breaking ceremonies last Friday with President Lyndon Johnson pushing the detonator button to touch off the first blast on the rapid transit network; the first of its type in the United States.

The system is designed to work in partnership with private automobiles and local bus and street car systems. The light-weight electric trains will travel at speeds up to 80 miles an hour, averaging about 50 miles per hour including station stops. They will be controlled automatically.

It is expected that Rapid Transit will speed up commuting all-around, whether by train, auto or bus by relieving peak-hour congestion.

The Old Fourth . . .

The Fourth of July—Independence Day! What a world of color, of drama, of history, those few little words bring to mind, and especially to those of an age who can remember what the Fourth used to mean.

It was a day of fun, of course. There were games, complete with prizes for young and old alike, running the gamut from three-legged races to shooting matches. There were the family picnics, and sturdy old tables groaned under them. There were the fireworks, now banned almost everywhere, except in formal displays, for safety reasons. There were the orators—they ran the full gamut from good to indifferent to bad, but they all had one thing in common—dedication, passion, pride in nation, its heritage, and its future. There were the great brass bands, the members standing tall in their pressed, polished uniforms. There were the roll calls of the towering names that had provided leadership in molding and making a nation fit to stand with any nation—Washington, Madison, Monroe, Jefferson, the Adamses, Franklin . . . And the flags, proud against the sky, flew everywhere.

We still celebrate the Fourth. It's still a national holiday. But perhaps something vital has gone out of it. Whatever the reason, the nation is poorer, weaker and smaller because of that. Times have changed. We have grown, prospered, learned sophistications, enjoyed vast material progress. But is the old pride, the old sense of faith in nation and in its destiny, the old courage, still with us?

Each must answer that question for himself. But let him ponder deeply and honestly before another Fourth comes near.

Mr. and Mrs. John Luman and family are at home after a three-weeks' vacation in East Texas.

OUR STATE TREE

By Leonard Kent

Our state tree, the pecan, is a native of Texas. The Indians were aware of nutritional benefits of the pecan and were first to use it for food.

Cabeza de Vaca, the Spanish explorer who was shipwrecked in 1527 and lived among the Texas Indians for several years, wrote, "The Indians came to the place of which we had been told, to eat walnuts (as pecans were then known). These are found with a kind of small grain, and this is the substance of the people for two months of the year, without any other thing."

The pecan has advanced considerably since then. It is now an important horticultural crop in the United States and Texas is one of the leading pecan producing states. Average annual production of Texas pecans ranges up to 55 million pounds, with a value of $10 million.

One of the oldest, most popular varieties found in Texas is the Success. This tree is a heavy bearer of quality nuts and has proven itself profitable for more than 50 years.

Desirable, a newer variety gives high yields and has become popular within the last 20 years.

Another variety, Stewart, is very hardy and vigorous. Because of its disease resistant qualities this variety is preferred in East Texas and near the Gulf Coast where high humidity encourages growth of fungus diseases. Other varieties in Texas are Western Schley, Mahan, Schley, Burkett, Moore, Nuggett, Evans, San Saba Improved, Texhan, Barton and Comanche.

Pecan kernels are a rich energy food, containing about 3,400 calories per pound. The nut should contain at least 50% kernel. They should have good color and taste, and should easily separate from the shell when cracked.

The leaf-nut ratio, or number of leaves per nut, determines the size and quality of nuts. Ten compound leaves, each consisting of nine to 13 leaflets, are needed to produce a good medium-sized pecan.

This ratio is partly dependent on soil quality. The soil should be deep, fertile, loose and well-watered. Its pH value should range from about 6.0 to 7.5.

Many native groves along the rivers and creeks of Texas can be developed into commercial groves in a short time. Underbrush must be cleared first and the trees must be thinned. Trees 25 years of age or more need at least 50 feet of space between them. Weeds and grass can be controlled by cultivation, mowing or grazing. Native groves which do not produce high quality pecans should be topworked to standard varieties by inlay grafting or patch budding.

Pecan groves can be started by planting 3- and 4-year-old nursery trees, 5- to 7-feet high of standard varieties. These can be purchased from nurserymen for about $3.00 a tree. They should be transplanted in late winter or early spring. About half of each tree should be cut back at this time and the trunk wrapped with paper to prevent damage by sunscald, drying and insects.

Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons are the best times to market pecans. This leaves a very short season in which to harvest the pecans after they mature. The slow, difficult and expensive method of harvesting pecans by threshing the large trees with poles and then hand gathering the nuts is rapidly being replaced by mechanical shakers, operated off tractors. Sheets spread under trees catch the pecans. Vacuum-type machines are used for gathering the nuts which are separated from leaves and trash by hand, or mechanically in large-scale operations.

A machine known as a pecan sheller and separator removes adhering husks and separates the nuts from shells. Tests have shown that two men can easily clean 5,000 pounds of Success pecans per hour with this machine under favorable conditions. The machine is economical for growers with productions of 20 to 30 thousand pounds annually. More elaborate machines are available for larger producers.

Natural pests present a problem to pecan growers. The most serious insect pest is the pecan nut casebearer. Others are the pecan shuckworm, pecan weevils, aphids and scale insects. Crows are also destructive as well as annoying in the pecan grove.

Another problem is the long period of time required to develop a good pecan grove. One can expect little return on his investment during the first ten years after planting. Each fall harvest is the result of a long series of processes which began with the formation of buds 13 months before. A crop failure may be a major catastrophe. Storms, lightning, floods, and drought can easily cause permanent damage to the trees.

Pecan growing offers many compensations, however, which counterbalance these problems. The pecan is a beautiful shade tree which grows larger, taller, more beautiful and more productive every year for a century. Given sufficient time and favorable conditions, the pecan grove is a profitable investment.

To those in the pecan industry, however, it is more than a "profitable investment," it is a way of life. Pecan growing is, and will remain, a permanent part of our nation's agriculture. The demand is high and all indications show that pecan growing will continue to flourish in the pecan's native state of Texas.

The Texas Department of Public Safety appeals to all drivers to mark this Fourth of July weekend as a time to review their driving habits in light of the fact that traffic accidents are at an all-time high. Serious accidents are more frequent in holiday periods, and it is estimated that 32 persons will be killed in traffic from Friday, July 3, through Sunday, July 5. This doesn't have to happen! Tragedy can be averted by remaining constantly on the alert for dangerous situations, by not taking chances and by driving in accordance with laws of safety.

Home Demonstration Agent's Column

By MRS. VIDA KREKLOW

We spend a lot of money and a great deal of time in the process of keeping clean; our houses, our clothes and ourselves. We are the cleanest people on earth and we show it.

I found this interesting story about Benjamin Franklin's "cleanliness activities" by way of soap making and this does prove that we have been at the job of being clean for a long, long time.

Ben Franklin's First Job Was Making "Sope"

Benjamin Franklin's first job—after leaving school at age 10—was making "sope" a product most housewives boiled in their kitchens or backyards 2½ centuries ago. Although soapmaking was a home art, the industry may be almost as old as glass-making, the first American manufacturing activity. Professional soapmakers arrived in Jamestown in 1608, and a "sopemaker" landed in Salem only 17 years after the Pilgrims arrived. Franklin's father is known to have made soap on Milk Street in Boston in 1716.

Franklin printed the Pennsylvania Gazette, which carried advertisements for his brother John's "Super Crown Soap," pointing out that "the Sweetness of the Flavor and the fine Lather it immediately produces renders it pleasant for the use of Barbers." Only a century ago, housewives still made soap from grease and lye leached from wood ashes. This is a farm cry from modern housekeeping, with wide selections of efficient but inexpensive soaps and detergents available in supermarkets and grocery stores.

And—I don't believe that boys put up the same fight today against all the motherly arts of cleanliness that they once did; however, in case you have a resistor on your hands use a little of the following psychology on him. The fire engine idea is wonderful.

Who Ever Saw A Dirty Doctor? All boys reach a stage where anything connected with cleanliness is regarded as "strictly for the girls." But even the male suburban who spurns all contact with soap-and-water may have career plans for the future, so remind him that all of these future dreams will involve cleanliness. No future doctor would ever perform an operation with dirty hands. No scientist would attempt an experiment until all dirt and bacteria had been scrubbed from his person and his equipment.

No matter what the young man's ambition may be—astronaut or advertising writer—he will need advanced scrubbing skills to do the job successfully. Not even a cow-poke is at home on the range these days without cleaning aids for himself and his cattle. And when was the last time Junior saw a dirty fire engine? Probably never. So remind a "no soap" youth that there is something he can do right away to help make his dream of grown-up cleanliness come true. He can't start college yet, but he CAN start scrubbing to help develop good soap-and-water habits as a step on the way to a successful career.

While we are on the subject we might as well include other bits of soap such as these—

Plastic "Scarf" Aids Travel Face Washing. Stow a bar of soap, a washcloth, and a strip of plastic in your purse or make-up case while traveling. When you stop for a meal or a rest, tuck the plastic into the neckline of your dress or blouse to protect it from moisture. Then lather up your face and neck, rinse off, apply fresh make-up—and you will feel like a "new" woman!

Here's how to make "instant" soap pads for travel, hikes, or picnics. Soak folded paper towels in a dense soap solution. Then dry these soaped-up towels over an outdoor line. They will pack compactly for the trip, and need only to be immersed in water to serve as pre-soaped washcloths.

Before transporting a boat by car trailer, pour of pailful of fresh water and some household soap or detergent into the hull. While you drive, the suds will slosh around, loosening dirt as effectively as a good scrubbing.

If your overnight car stop does not have a bathtub, let the children take sponge baths using a clean towel soaked in sudsy water—followed by rinsing with another towel wrung from clear water. Towels do a cleaner job than washcloths for sponging the body.

Soap is Safe Anywhere! Don't hesitate to use soap provided in public washrooms because germs don't thrive on soap. Just rinse off the surface of the bar before washing up. If you are extra fastidious, you may prefer to carry plastic-wrapped soap in your purse. Otherwise, don't worry. Soap is safe anywhere!

For hot weather comfort, wash your hands, forearms, and face as often as you can get to a washbasin and soap.

It's worthwhile to actually wear and wash travel clothes ahead of time. This "trial run" will indicate how they will perform en route.

Strange as it seems, a dull overcast day is best for washing house and car windows, as well as glass-top garden furniture. The reason is that sunshine dries the sudsy water and rinse water so quickly that streaks may be left on the glass.

Greet the warm weather with cool table settings that are a breeze to take care of! Plastic tablecloths and place mats are pretty enough for company, and come out clean with the mere wipe of a sudsy cloth. There are prints and cool pastels to suit any setting.

Even if you cheat on other housekeeping these warm days, don't neglect the bathroom. Apart from sanitary considerations, an atmosphere of shining cleanliness makes a bath much more enjoyable. Take time to hang plenty of clean towels, keep the soap dishes neat as a pin, and see that the bath mat is clean and fluffy.

Did you know that hot soapsuds will help to preserve the beauty of flowering branches after they are cut? Wash the stems and the vase with suds after the branches are brought into the house. Then repeat the treatment, with a change of water, about every third day. This inhibits the growth of bacteria which cause objectionable odors and shorten the life of the branches.

Fibers which absorb body moisture, and fabrics which are loosely woven, are best for hot weather. Happily, these benefits are compatible with machine-washability. For coolness, choose garments made entirely of natural fibers such as cotton or linen—or which contain a generous percentage of these fibers blended with synthetics.

New casual footwear for men (made of fabrics such as madras, seersucker, denim, terry, and linen like materials) have synthetic soles. are often cushioned with polyurethane foam, and are advertised and sold as safely machine washable.

Try the trick recommended by many smart women who refrigerate their cosmetics until just before a warm bath. Then follow a sudsy soak by spraying or splashing on a chilled cologne, and donning clean lingerie and clothes.

Have you tried using a SECOND top sheet on cool summer nights? It adds just the right comfort and is easier to launder than the traditional cotton quilt.

THE HIGH ROAD

L.W. PRENTISS

Transit and Freeways

There is nothing about a bus which makes it unsuitable for freeway operation. But many freeways, unfortunately, have not been designed for the efficient handling of transit operations.

Consequently, many people are led to believe that the only efficient transit is that which runs on steel wheels. Over-eager promoters of rail transit have encouraged this belief.

As E. H. Holmes, Director of Planning for the Bureau of Public Roads, pointed out in a recent speech, more than three quarters of the transit patrons in the United States ride on rubber tires, not on steel wheels. So transit patrons, to a large extent, are dependent on highways for rapid and efficient movement.

The essential advantage of a freeway over a conventional highway is limited access, with the points of entry and exit limited in number. Related to this advantage is the fact that stopping on the freeway right-of-way is prohibited except in case of emergency. In order to make it practical for operators of bus lines to make the most efficient use of freeways, it is important that freeway interchange points be located in a manner suitable for transit usage and that there be turnoffs from the traveled way that can be used as bus stops.

A more significant adaptation of the freeway to bus use would be the provision of a special freeway bus lane from which other traffic would be excluded. Providing such bus lanes would complicate the design of the freeway and add to its cost. But the reserved lane would make it possible to provide bus lines with schedules comparable to rail transit schedules, at substantially less cost than the cost of constructing a rail transit system. The Bureau of Public Roads takes the position that such reserved bus lanes are reasonable if the number of bus passengers using the lane exceeds the number of persons who would normally be moved in the lane in the same period in passenger cars during a congested period, or about 3,000 persons per hour.

The special bus lane, of course, could be opened to other traffic during non-peak hours, when transit usage shrinks. Many freeways are heavily used during holidays and at other periods when there is little demand for commuter transit.

The rail transit facility, on the other hand, must pay for itself during the relatively short period of daily commuter movements.

217 So. Chadbourne San Angelo, Texas

Austin.—Traffic accidents will kill 32 persons in Texas over the three-day July 4 week end, if Texas Department of Public Safety estimates prove correct. DPS Director Homer Garrison Jr. urges Texans to make the July 4 holiday week end the turning point away from a two-year upward trend in fatal traffic accidents.

Garrison describes the present traffic situation as "critical."

"Operation Motorcade" will be in effect from 12:01 a.m. on July 3 through Sunday, July 5, he announced, "in an effort to focus public attention on added hazards of holiday road traffic and to encourage safety consciousness among drivers."

Additional highway patrolmen from the license and weight and motor vehicle inspection services will supplement the regular patrol staff over the holiday period.

New Auto Insurance Rates Set

Texas automobile owners will pay less for auto insurance beginning August 1.

State Insurance Board and industry spokesmen agreed on the new rates, which will average out 1.2% cheaper statewide than last year. Board estimated motorists will save $3 million in premiums compared with 1963. However, rates will vary from area to area.

Liability insurance rates reflect a statewide increase of 3.8%, and medical payment coverage will increase about 8.7%. Collision coverage will be reduced .5%.

Overall reduction in rates is due primarily to a 15.5% cut in comprehensive coverage, due to low wind and hail storm damages last year.

Lawmakers Face Tough Job

An already "tough" job faced by Texas lawmakers in the 59th Legislature will be complicated even more by "issues of high emotional content," Lt. Gov. Preston Smith feels.

These issues, according to the lieutenant governor, include: proposals to legalize parimutuel betting on horse races, sale of liquor by the drink in eating establishments, control of oyster shell dredging on the Gulf Coast, an oil and gas "pooling" bill, further controls of water pollution, repeal of the poll tax and another proposed constitutional amendment to guarantee equal rights to women in property and business management.

"The Legislature will need a combination of many virtues if it disposes of all the important and controversial legislation laid before it," Lt. Gov. Smith told approximately 250 mayors and councilmen gathered in the capital city for an institute on municipal problems.

Three major "musts" confront the Legislature next year, Smith said. These include: deciding the future course of higher education, financing education and "other vital state functions", and congressional and legislative redistricting.

Legislators are busy with maps and population tables, trying to see how the new court rules on legislative apportionment affect them. One plan in general circulation involves the Texas Senate. It envisions slicing up the four big-city counties of Harris, Dallas, Bexar, and Tarrant and attaching the slices to present senatorial districts which tough them.

This plan would give all present senators except one a chance for re-election, if they can get the votes in the portions of the big cities assigned them.

Education Study Group

Gov. John Connally got a look at tentative recommendations of his Committee on Education Beyond the High School. But disagreements over financial details prevented the report from being a final one.

Committee members will meet again on July 13-14 to finish the job. Chairman H. B. Zachry promised the report will be presented to the Governor and Legislature by the August 31 deadline.

Lawmakers of the 58th Legislature appropriated $175,000 for the study aimed at pointing the way to number 1 ranking for Texas colleges and universities. Less than half that amount has been spent to date.

Indian Settlement Out

Cherokee Indians, run out of East Texas by a Republic of Texas army, have failed in an attempt to "recapture" claims to lands they were forced to leave.

Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr gave the "no" sign to a proposed settlement of their claim to 2.5 million acres of land in Smith, Cherokee, Van Zandt, Gregg and Rusk counties.

Cherokee Indian Nation, through general counsel, Earl Boyd Pierce, several months ago proposed that Governor Connally set up a historical fact-finding commission to review the claims.

For each acre of land the commission might find the Indians were unjustly ousted from, Pierce recommended one dollar be allocated by the state to a trust fund for higher education of worthy Cherokees. This money would draw 5% interest annually, and at the end of 25 years, the Cherokees would return the corpus of the fund to the state, releasing all claims.

Atty. Gen. Carr concluded: the plan of settlement would require an unconstitutional appropriation by the Legislature, therefore neither he nor the Governor is authorized to pursue it.

Funds Asked

Officials of the Attorney General Department have asked for more funds to prosecute cases involving slant-hole oil wells and Billie Sol Estes.

They reason that judgments already awarded in the suits have brought the state $577,000, or $3 for each $1 spent.

In 1963 the Legislature provided $82,000 to handle these suits in fiscal 1964 and 1965. Now, the department wants $100,000 for '66 and '67.

Hill-Burton Requests

Texas cities, which have requested a total of $22 million worth of Hill-Burton funds to finance community hospitals and health centers will have to wait until September for any action from the State Health Department. Even then some of them will be turned down.

Health Department won't decide which among the 39 projects to recommend until congressional action on renewal of the act is complete in September.

Hill-Burton allocation for Texas in past years has run just over $13 million for a year. Health department officials do not think it will be any more this year.

Short Shorts . . .

Parks and Wildlife Department will open bids on July 1 for concession rights on the new Port Lavaca fishing pier.

Program for tracing brucellosis and qualifying for certification by backtagging is picking up, with 8,500 cows and culls backtagged in May plus the testing of 22,166 cattle at livestock markets, but current estimates are that Texas won't qualify for Modified Certified status until 1969 or 1970.

Fourteen cases of undulant fever have been reported to the State Health Department this year.

UT's Bureau of Business Research reports Texas building declined to a new low for 1964 during May, but retail sales rose 7% above the year's low in April. Parks and Wildlife Commission will consider regulations for fishing and hunting in 152 regulatory authority counties on July 10.

Texas Highway Department has appropriated $1.5 million for installing safety devices on the highway system during 1964-65.

On The Screen . . .

Strategic Air Command Has Men Kindly, Cruel

Rock Hudson, nominal hero of "A Gathering of Eagles" which is in color and which will be shown Friday and Saturday nights at the Eagle Drive-In Theatre, is heroic. His second in command of a Strategic Air Command Base in California is a stand-out actor, Rod Taylor, who both sings and acts and has a knack of bringing a nice guy into focus.

Also worth watching on the Eagle screen will be Mary Peach, a British girl who registers a degree of wormth and radiance reminiscent of a compatriot, Greer Garson.

Hudson is chosen by high destiny in Washington to whip an aerospace wing into shape at its California base. He has to be cruel to be kind, or so he thinks.

The plot develops with Hudson showing a solemn devotion to perfectionism, with a red telephone trailing him for command decisions. All this is misunderstood by his wife, Miss Peace, who comes from a land that has always "muddled" through somehow.

The hovering terror is: ORI, or if you must know, "Operational Readiness Inspection."

From the Pentagon without warning comes a glacial general (Kevin McCarthy) to put the SAC base through a sneak attack. The force doesn't know whether it is on the level or not but must act as if it were. No more Pearl Harbors can be tolerated.

For many, the fascinations of this picture are the aerial "stuff" which shows that machines are susceptible to malfunction when human beings don't dare to be.

Eldorado, Texas

Ultimate cost of this new venture in federal spending is estimated to approximate $15 billion. It includes loans and outright grants, mostly to a dozen of the big metropolitan centers. And it invades an area of spending which is essentially local and which has always been treated that way.

In this wild spending spree this Congress has apparently abandoned any interest in ever achieving a balanced budget in this country. Faced with an $8.8 billion deficit this year, and probably a bigger one next year, this project commits Uncle Sam to a new type of spending which will get bigger and bigger each year.

Fourteen Texans voted against this new spending program; seven voted for it, and two of the members did not vote.

The anti-poverty program is next. It is due to sail through the House, and will add, ultimately, another $15 billion of new spending to the federal welfare program if its goals are achieved. All such projects start out more modestly, usually on the order of an initial outlay of a half billion or a billion dollars the first year. Then each year they get bigger and bigger, and the federal deficit does likewise.

Only last week the House approved a bill to raise the debt limit to $324 billion in order that Uncle Sam can pay for these accumulated commitments. Interest on the deficit now amounts to about $12 billion annually.

Observers believe this may prove to be the wildest spending Congress in modern history.

Recent visitors have included Virginia Bruton and daughter, Betsy, of Eldorado, and B. L. Hughes of Brady.
