Belgians Seize Stanleyville Too Late To Save Hostages

Britain Dims Outlook For NATO Fleet

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson appears to have dealt a severe—if not fatal — blow to the proposed mixed nuclear fleet of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by declaring Britain opposes the project.

Wilson told the House of Commons Monday his Labor government believes "a mixed manned surface fleet adds nothing to Western strength, is likely to cause dissipation of strength in the alliance and may add to the difficulties of East-West agreement."

On the surface, his statement puts London in stern opposition to Washington's plan at the very moment when it seemed to officials here that the new British government's interest in the fleet had given fresh cause for hope that, perhaps after some modification, it might be acceptable to a number of NATO allies

U.S. officials were surprised at the flatness of Wilson's declaration, but there was some tendency to regard it as the opening move in a series of negotiations.

Wilson said he hopes to obtain in discussions with President Johnson here next month more extensive "consultation in the deployment and sharing of NATO's nuclear strength."

At the same time he declared, "We are irrevocably committed against more fingers on the (nuclear) trigger." London's aim, said Wilson, is to have the United States serve as the custodian of Western nuclear power.

The position Wilson outlined appears to leave little room for maneuver in an effort to reach accommodation with the strong positions already taken by the United States and West Germany in favor of the proposed 25-ship fleet. Armed with Polaris nuclear missiles, it would be jointly controlled by participating nations and they would share the cost and provide the personnel for the vessels.

Wilson's statement came as Secretary of State Dean Rusk and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder were starting two days of consultation on U.S.-German and NATO problems, centering around the multilateral force — MLF — plan.

Neither the State Department nor Schroeder reacted publicly to what Wilson said.

Privately U.S. officials said that on this issue Wilson's stated position is close to that of French President Charles de Gaulle. Paris' position is that the West Germans must choose between closer ties with France and closer ties with the United States on MLF.

Texan Leaves Luxury Yacht

TEXAS CITY (AP)— Houston millionaire John Mecom has told the Coast Guard he is abandoning the burned out hulk of the Nourmahal, once the luxury yacht of President Franklin Roosevelt.

The vessel caught fire Saturday and burned until it capsized at 2 a.m. Monday. It went down in 32 feet of water at a private dock owned by Seatrain Lines.

This is the precise spot where the French freighter Grandcamp was berthed in 1947 when it exploded, setting off a holocaust which killed more than 500 persons.

Report Reveals Ruby's Testimony

WASHINGTON A(P) — Jack Ruby, in testimony before the Warren Commission, said he did not shoot Lee Harvey Oswald in order to silence President Kennedy's assassin.

Ruby, convicted of slaying Oswald, made the statement in a lie detector test in the Dallas County jail July 18.

Rather, Forrest Sorrels, Secret Service agent in charge of the Dallas office, quoted Ruby at another time as saying, "I guess I just had to show the world that a Jew has guts."

Commission testimony disclosed that Ruby had asked Chief Justice Earl Warren, chairman of the commission, for the lie detector test when Warren met Ruby at the jail six weeks earlier.

Warren talked to Ruby alone. Prior to the test, the testimony said, Ruby said he would answer any question. "There's no punches to be pulled. I want to answer anything and everything."

Here are some of the questions asked Ruby in a series of tests:

"Did you know Oswald before Nov. 22, 1963?—the date of Kennedy's assassination."

Ruby: "No."

"Did you assist Oswald in the assassination?"

Ruby: "No."

"Have you answered all my questions truthfully?"

Ruby: "Yes."

"Were you born in the United States?"

Ruby: "Yes."

"Were you born in Chicago?"

Ruby: "Yes."

"Are you now a member of the Communist party?"

Ruby: "No."

"Have you ever been a member of the Communist party?"

Ruby: "No."

"Are you now a member of any group that advocates the violent overthrow of the government?"

Ruby: "No."

"Have you ever been a member of any group that advocates violent overthrow of the government?"

Ruby: "No."

"Between the assassination and the shooting, did anybody you know tell you they knew Oswald?"

Ruby: "No."

"Did you shoot Oswald in order to silence him?"

Ruby: "No."

"Did you first decide to shoot Oswald on Friday night?"

Ruby: "No."

"Did you first decide to shoot Oswald on Saturday morning?"

Ruby: "No."

"Did you first decide to shoot Oswald on Sunday morning?"

Ruby: "Yes."

PLANE CRASHES AT ROME—Rescue workers approach the still burning wreckage of a TWA Boeing 707 jetliner at Rome's Fiumicino airport after the crash of the Cairo-bound plane on takeoff. There were 72 passengers and crew aboard. There were reports of some survivors on the flight that originated in Kansas City with stops at Chicago, New York, Paris, Milan and Rome. Doctors Keep Vigil Over Quints

PARIS (AP) — Doctors keeping vigil over the new French quintuplets said today their condition will remain precarious for at least 10 or 12 days.

The three boys and two girls born prematurely Monday to a postman's 27-year-old wife lay in incubators at the pediatrics center of the Paris Faculty of Medicine.

"The fragility of the children is extreme," said a statement from the clinic. "It is impossible at this time to comment on their chances for survival."

After their birth, the babies had been reported in good condition.

The mother, Mrs. Raymond Sambor, gave birth about two months ahead of schedule in a private clinic in suburban Asnieres, where her 35-year-old husband delivers mail. She was reported in excellent health.

The babies, weighing less than three pounds each, arrived at intervals of about 10 minutes.

Sambor had been told after his wife's Xray to expect quintuplets, but he told newsmen he was still "overwhelmed."

The Sambors also have two sons, Yves, 5, and Jean-Paul, 3. Samor, who has been making $120 a month as a postman, said he was worried about the future.

26 From US Among Dead

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP) — Trans World Airlines said today preliminary evidence indicates that the TWA jetliner which exploded Monday developed engine trouble at the start of its takeoff run. It said the pilot's effort to abort the run caused the plane to veer to the right and hit a steamroller.

Forty-five persons perished in the explosion, among them 26 Americans. Among the survivors were 13 Americans. The plane carried 73 persons.

TWA headquarters in Paris issued a preliminary accident report in which the airline said the steamroller ignited fuel spilling from the plane, causing the explosion.

Work crews began recovering bodies from the plane's wreckage at the end of runway 25.

"From the evidence at hand, the aircraft began a normal takeoff on runway 25. From preliminary crew reports, No. 4 engine pressure ratio dropped to zero at some point early in the takeoff run, and the No. 2 engine, reverse indication light came on," the TWA report said.

"Capt. Vernon Lowell immediately aborted the takeoff, using brakes, spoilers, and reverse thrust.

"During the deceleration process, the aircraft veered to the right, sufficiently for the wing, overhanging the runway edge, to strike a steamroller which was being operated at a distance of 24 feet from the edge of the runway. The aircraft continued on its course for another 300 feet, spilling fuel from the ruptured right wing. Indications are that the steamroller ignited this fuel as the aircraft came to a stop near the end of runway No. 25. Emergency cabin procedures were begun.

"In the rear cabin, the main door and the galley emergency exit door were opened, and the chutes placed in position. The front main door was opened, and as the emergency evacuation chute there was being positioned and inflated, an explosion took place in the center wing area of the aircraft. The blast blew the two rear escape chutes from their positions and the front chute burned. Those passengers escaping from these exits jumped to the ground.

Local School Is High On Iowa Tests

The Snyder school board met for a special luncheon meeting Monday to hear the report on Snyder's placement on the "Iowa Tests of Educational Development."

Jack Longbotham, director of counseling services in the Snyder schools presented the report, which, he said, although not quite complete, gave a good picture of where the Snyder schools stood in relation to schools across the nation.

The tests, which were taken by Snyder students about six weeks ago, revealed that on the composite score — an average of eight different tests — Snyder seniors ranked at the 96 percentile. In other words, 95 per cent of the schools in the country ranked below Snyder.

Sophomores and Juniors take the same test, and ranked at 72 and 79 respectively.

Also presented were comparative scores over a seven year period. The figures showed that in general the various classes had been improving steadily.

Longbotham said that the figures and charts showed that "Snyder schools in the past 12 years have provided for (the students) education and training."

He added that the counseling department would be glad to review these tests with any parents who were interested in seeing where their children, or the schools stood in relation to others in the rest of the country.

THURSDAY ROUTE IS MOVED UP

City garbage collection trucks will make their Thursday rounds a day earlier this week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Earl Davis, head of the city sanitation department, advised residents who live in areas of the city where pickup service usually is provided on Thursday to have their containers ready for a Wednesday pickup this week.

Missionary Among Dead

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Belgian paratroopers swarmed down on Stanleyville today and seized virtual control of the rebel capital, but not before about 50 foreign hostages were killed, including a U.S. missionary doctor, official reports said.

U.S. transport planes flew in the paratroopers, and some of them were shot at and reported damaged.

As the Belgians landed, white-led Congolese government soldiers attacked Stanleyville. The attacking troops moved quickly to free the rest of 1,613 foreigners held as hostages and marked for slaughter by the regime should their capital be attacked.

Refugees flown to Leopoldville from Stanleyville said the rebels had killed Dr. Paul Carlson, medical missionary from Rolling Hills, Calif. He had been condemned as a spy, a charge denied by Washington.

(The State Department in Washington said Carlson was among 250 hostages herded by the Congolese rebels into Lumumba Square and fired upon. Belgian official reports said 15 hostages were killed and 40 were wounded when the rebels machine gunned them in the square. The State Department notified Carlson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Carlson of Alhambra, Calif., and his brother, Dr. Dwight Carlson of Orange, Calif.)

In Brussels, Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak said he was informed that "at least 50 non-Africans have been killed."

Some of the foreigners were shot down when they dashed toward the airport as the news of the Belgian paratroop landing swept the rebel capital in the northeast Congo.

Spaak said 200 foreigners were held in a Stanleyville hotel, and at least 15 were killed when the soldiers of leftist leader Christophe Gbenye opened fire on the building.

Gbenye, whose regime was backed by Red China, had threatened to set the whole city afire but apparently the swift arrival of the Belgian paratroopers and Congolese troops thwarted the plan.

Drive Over, But UF Fund Still Rises

Although the campaign officially closed last week on this year's United Fund drive, the late gifts have pushed the total over the $25,000 mark.

As of this morning, $25,023.72 was reported.

Campaign workers said that although no more personal contacts will be made in soliciting funds, it is still not too late to donate to the fund. All money, whenever received by the United Fund, will go to the charitable institutions supported by the fund, they said.

A complete report on this year's drive will probably not be made for several days so that the gifts which are still to be received can be included in the total. The goal this year was $32,500.

Red Supply Line Watched Closely

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force apparently is concentrating its aerial reconnaissance on the Laotian region through which men and supplies flow from Communist North Viet Nam into South Viet Nam.

The loss of two U.S. jets in the Laotian panhandle is an indication of this.

The loss of the American planes last week also may indicate the Communists have beefed up their force of radar-directed antiaircraft guns in this critical area.

The area could be a target for U.S. and South Vietnamese air strikes aimed at choking off that flow. Intensive aerial reconnaissance would be a necessary prelude to any such strikes.

Suggestions that the United States may be approaching a decision on whether to expand the war beyond South Viet Nam's borders have grown as the U.S.-supported drive against the Viet Cong has seemed to flag.

Maxwell D. Taylor, U.S. ambassador to Saigon, said in an interview published by Life magazine that air strikes could contribute to victory "either by making more difficult the infiltration along the routes from North Viet Nam . . . or by striking the infiltration sources, the training and staging area as in North Viet Nam itself."

He told ABC in an interview released Monday that the possibility of attacking "the trails of Laos" has been discussed.

If Viet Cong supply lines in North Viet Nam were attacked, the former army chief of staff said, "I would certainly expect considerable encouragement in South Viet Nam to see that at long last the enemy, that had been harassing the countryside for so many years was beginning to pay."

Taylor is due back in Washington later this week for possibly critical talks with President Johnson and top advisers.

Two U.S. Air Force jets, one an F100 escorting a photo plane and the other an RF101 reconnaissance ship, were shot down by antiaircraft ground fire last week in an area generally described as in southern to south-central Laos.

Is This Really The Fate Of That Thanksgiving Turkey?

By DAVE SMITH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Institute of Hypnosis, in a burst of Thanksgiving spirit, has some advice that should make turkeys grateful until they die — if turkeys will excuse the expression.

The institute says you should hypnotize the birds before you kill them.

Dr. William J. Bryan Jr. explains that the method is both more humane and conducive to better-tasting turkey.

Bryan, the institute's executive director, explains that turkeys, just like people, get overwrought when faced with violence and their suprarenal glands pump out energy-giving adrenalin to help them meet the demands of the crisis.

Thus, turkeys that meet violent deaths while in a state of panic will have adrenalin in their blood. This makes them less tasty, says Bryan.

According to Bryan, here's some suggestions on how to mesmerize your gobbler:

1. Hold the bird to the ground, talking softly to it. Press its head gently to the ground and draw a straight chalk line away from its beak. The turkey will remain motionless — it says here.

2. Do Step 1 but use white string instead of chalk.

3. Tuck the bird's head under its wing. It will go to sleep. Yes, you'll have to take the head out again to chop it off, but the bird will be in a better mood.

4. Put your hand over its eyes. The turkey, being among the least intellectual of birds, will think it's nighttime and go to sleep.

Dr. Bryan did not comment on what to do if, say, you're a commercial poultry raiser. You'd get pretty sick of running around playing peek-a-boo with 10,000 or so birds, and you could go broke buying chalk.

Suit Would Block Bridge Building

BEAMONT A(P)—Trial of a suit to block construction of a $5.2 million fixed-span bridge across the Sabines-Neches ship channel at Port Arthur was set for today in U.S. district court here.

Levingston Shipbuilding Co. of Orange sued the U.S. Engineers, requesting a declaratory judgment and injunction to stop construction of the bridge.

Its petition states that the fixed-span bridge, if built with a proposed 138 feet of vertical clearance above mean low tide, would obstruct free navigation of the channel and its tributary waters, the Sabine and Neches Rivers.

Levingston builds and repairs mobile platforms used in drilling for oil in the Gulf of Mexico. These platforms are towed from Orange down the Sabine River, Sabine-Neches canal and into the Gulf.

The firm says many of its platforms tower above water considerably higher than 138 feet.

The U.S. engineers had set Nov. 5 as the date for advertising for bids on the bridge but postponed the move pending the outcome of the suit.

Jefferson County voters approved a $1.5 million bond issue Nov. 3 as the county's share in construction costs of the bridge.

The bridge is part of a $20 million Sabine - Neches waterways navigation improvement project sanctioned by Congress in 1962.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school teacher, so you know I am at least as intelligent as the average person, but when I received my sample ballot, I had great difficulty understanding it. The language is so confusing that I actually had to read it four times before I knew whether my YES or NO would mean what I wanted it to mean. For instance, in Proposition 15, which (in Calif.) is the issue dealing with whether or not we want paid television, if we vote No, it means, "Yes, we DO want it." Is it necessary to word the propositions so that most people vote exactly the opposite of how they intend to vote?

JUST STUPID, I GUESS

DEAR JUST : NO!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful man. He is my second husband. I ran into my first husband, who is also married again, and he tells me he still loves me and he KNOWS that one day we will be together again. What does this mean? Now I can't think straight. We were divorced for five years. I thought I loved my second husband until this happened. Do you think we could be married to the wrong people? I need advice.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It sounds to me as though your first husband has had second thoughts about his second wife. Leave well enough alone. If you "thought" you loved your present husband, keep right on loving him, and tell Number One to make the best of it with Number Two because that's what you intend to do.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I read about some of the ridiculous wedding customs sent to you from readers. Kidnapping the bride, filling her shoes with money, etc. The one I think takes the cake is when the wedding guests keep hitting their water glasses with silverware until the bride and groom give them a demonstration of a long, passionate kiss. I am going to be married soon and I do not care to put on this kind of performance in front of a bunch of gawking half - tipsy spectators. I have considered kissing the matron of honor as a means of sobering up the sightseers. Have you a better suggestion?

IN LOVE BUT NOT INSANE

DEAR IN LOVE: Yes. If you really want to sober 'em up, kiss the best man!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for your wonderful answer to "UNENLIGHTENED" — that teenager who had just learned that her parents had not been married quite long enough when she was born. You have answered a question I have wanted answered for four years. Our first was born early as our marriage was late. I've felt guilty and ashamed ever since, and worried so for fear the child would find out about it later. You have helped me a lot. I feel like a weight has been lifted off my shoulders. Thank you.

US Soldier Missing After Viet Ambush

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —A U.S. Army sergeant was missing today after a Viet Cong ambush overran a government convoy 22 miles east of Saigon.

The Communist guerrillas killed 15 Vietnamese soldiers and wounded nine others, hitting the convoy with intense automatic weapons fire.

U.S. military spokesmen said two U.S. helicopters fired rockets and shells at Viet Cong muzzle flashes but could not see the attackers. One helicopter crewman got a bullet wound in the wrist.

The Communists destroyed two armored cars, a heavy truck and one jeep.

In Saigon, students in three secondary schools staged antigovernment riots behind barricaded gates today, creating tension in the city for the third straight day.

At one school opposite the U.S. post exchange and commissary they threw bricks, blackboards and tables at police and shouted for the resignation of the three-week-old government of Premier Tran Van Huong. The students oppose the national draft.

Two American teachers in the school were held as hostages for 30 minutes, then allowed to slip out a back entrance.

The riot ended in the early afternoon when the students went home quietly.

Guilt Showed In His Eyes, Oswald's Wife Revealed

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — She was born in the Arkhangelskaya region of the Soviet Union on July 17, 1941, this strong-willed girl who never knew her father.

Somehow — more incredible bits in the incredible story of President John F. Kennedy's assassination — she got to Minsk, met and married Lee Harvey Oswald, came to America, and wound up being the widow of the most notorious murderer this country has produced since John Wilkes Booth.

The Warren Commission made its testimony on the crime public Monday.

Marina Oswald was its first witness, and no one else who appeared drew clearer pictures of this strange, obsessed man, so bent on distribution it seemed that he must shoot somebody, anybody.

She told how Lee Oswald kept two guns, how he liked to sit in the dark and fondle his rifle, how he hated his mother and wanted nothing to do with her, how he could break into tears, how for two months he planned to shoot Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, how she grappled with her husband in the bathroom when he said he was going out to kill Richard M. Nixon, and how finally, looking into his eyes in the Dallas police station, she knew at last he had done it and had killed the president himself.

Exactly why Marina Nikolaevna Prussakova fell for Lee Harvey Oswald is hard to understand, and it isn't made easier as it comes out, disconnected and translated from Russian.

She met Lee — his friends called him "Alec" because Lee is an unusual, cumbersome name in Russian — at a dance in the Palace of Trade Unions. She took to him at once.

"He didn't look like the others," she said. "You could see he was an American. He was very neat, very polite, not the way he was here, not as you know him here. And it seemed that he would be a good family man. And he was good."

And so they were married, on April 30, 1961, and 10½ months later their first baby, June Lee, was born.

But Lee Oswald, ever restless, was eager to move again. He managed to get himself and his family out of the Soviet Union—and thus began a steady downhill skid that was to culminate in Dallas, Tex.

Although Oswald used to cuff her around occasionally — she once tried to hide her black eye from his mother — Marina insisted he was always a good father. He loved his children, helped wash out their diapers and took pictures of them.

"If I would punish June," she said, "he would punish me."

The homecoming didn't help Oswald. Right off, he quarreled with his mother. Soon he was quarreling with his friends. Then he quarreled with Marina.

"He was very irritable," she said, "sometimes for a trifle, for a trifling reason."

Perhaps if Mrs. Oswald had a better command of English or had close friends in whom she could confide, history would not have had such a violent shock in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

All the horrible signs of a complete crackup were there.

Take the case of Gen. Walker.

Oswald carefully planned this shooting for two months. He took pictures of Walker's home and on the night of April 10, 1963, he made the attempt. He fled without knowing whether he had hit Walker or not. He learned from the papers the next day he had missed.

"He was very sorry he had not hit him," said Mrs. Oswald.

As for Nixon, Mrs. Oswald said that after the Walker incident her husband promised to behave and when he said, "Nixon is coming," and picked up his pistol, she got him into the bathroom and began to cry.

"I remember that I held him," she said. "We actually struggled for several minutes and then he quieted down. I remember that I told him that if he goes out it would be better for him to kill me than to go out."

Oswald was no match for his aroused wife. "He is not strong," she said. "When he is very upset, my husband is very upset, he is not strong, and when I want to and when I collect all my forces and want to do something very badly I am stronger than he is."

So she prevailed. And looking back, "It might have been that he was just trying to test me. Possibly he didn't want to go out at all but was just doing this all as a sort of joke."

But soon it was to be anything but a sort of joke.

John F. Kennedy came to Dallas, and Lee Harvey Oswald, who liked to think of himself as a great man who would some day be even greater, was ready.

When Mrs. Oswald heard the president had been shot, "I went to my room and cried."

At first she didn't think it could have been her husband, and then a friend mentioned the shot was fired from the building where he worked.

The next day was Saturday, Nov. 23, the day before Oswald was killed by Jack Ruby, and she went to see her husband at the police station.

Here's her account of that last meeting.

"He said that I should not worry, that everything would turn out well. But I could see by his eyes he was guilty. Rather, he tried to be brave. However, he said goodby to me with his eyes. I knew that. He said that everything would turn out well, but he did not believe it himself. I saw it in his eyes."

2 Mishaps Reported

The Snyder police department reported two mishaps on Snyder streets Monday.

At 10 a.m. on the East Highway near Wilson Motors a mishap involved a 1963 Pontiac driven by Henry D. Blound of Lubbock and a 1961 Ford driven by Hoyle G. Bishop of Snyder. Damage to the Blound car was estimated at $100 and to the Bishop car at $450.

At 9:22 p.m. the police investigated a mishap south of the Boys' Club. Involved was a 1958 Ford pickup driven by W. L. Powell of Snyder. The vehicle struck a culvert causing about $450 damage to the truck.

No injuries were reported in either mishap.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Mary Markham Melchior, 40, television producer, has filed suit for a divorce from her husband of 6½ months, Lauritz Melchior.

Jean Harlow's Father Files Damage Suit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A $3 million damage suit was filed Monday against the author, publisher and distributors of a book about movie star Jean Harlow, who died in 1937 at the age of 26.

Her father, Dr. Mont Clair Carpenter of Kansas City, brought the suit in Jackson County Circuit Court, alleging the book destroys his right of privacy and subjects him to humiliation, disgrace, ridicule and public contempt.

The book, "Harlow, An Intimate Biography," was written by Irving Shulman of Los Angeles. Other defendants are Random House Inc., Bernard Geis and associates, and the Dell Publishing Co., all of New York; and Ward Parkway Book Shop, Inc., the Kansas City agent.

Miss Harlow was born in Kansas City as Harlean Carpenter. Her parents separated when she was 10, and her mother took her to Hollywood. Later she attended a private school in Kansas City.

Labeled "The Platinum Blonde," she earned an estimated $1 million in a seven-year movie career.

FROM GRANDMA'S KITCHEN — This recipe for homemade chili sauce.

Homemade Chili Sauce

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A TRIED and true recipe stays with us for a long time.

That's what happened to this rule for Homemade Chili Sauce. Its main ingredients have been used in the same proportions by many a good cook over the years. But spicing is often varied: in one household a bay leaf may be added, in another a cinnamon stick. The friend from whom we borrowed this recipe always adds, in her words, "a fat clove of garlic."

If you try this recipe, you'll have a gallon (4 quarts) of tomatoes to peel. You may want to scald the whole caboodle at once or to do so in batches. For the latter, put half a dozen tomatoes in a large piece of cheesecloth and dip into a kettle of actively boiling water for about half a minute; plunge into cold water and remove the skins before scalding the next batch.

There's nothing quite like homemade chili sauce - great to serve with cold meats, corned beef hash and many other "made" dishes. Try it, too, as an accompaniment to egg salad sandwiches for something different and delicious.

HOMEMADE CHILI SAUCE

1 gallon ripe tomatoes
2 cups finely chopped onion
2 cups finely chopped sweet red pepper
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
3 tablespoons mixed pickling spices plus 1 pod hot pepper
1 fat clove garlic, peeled
2½ cups distilled white vinegar

Wash tomatoes in cold water; drain. Scald and remove skins; coarsely chop.

In a large kettle, mix together the tomatoes, onion, sweet red pepper, sugar and salt. Stirring occasionally, boil gently for about 45 minutes.

Tie the mustard seed, celery seed, mixing pickling spices, hot pepper pod and garlic in a cheesecloth bag; add to tomatoes. Boil gently, stirring often toward end of cooking period, until very thick — about 45 minutes.

Add veingar; taste and add more seasonings and sugar if desired. Contihue boiling gently, stirring often, until as thick as you like. Remove spice bag.

Pour boiling hot sauce into sterilized canning jars leaving ⅛-inch head space; put on dome lids; screw bands tight. Makes 5 to 6 pints.

Note: You'll need 2 to 2½ dozen medium - sized tomatoes to make the gallon (4 quarts) called for.

Africa Imports Lions

By DENNIS NEELD

NARO MORU, Kenya (AP) — Kenya, the land of a thousand lions, has imported four from Germany to take part in a movie based on Joy Adamson's best - selling book "Born Free".

With them have come two young lion tamers, 24-year-old Monika Gradishnic from Austria and her 18-year-old assistant Ruth Hass, of Germany.

The lions, actually two lions and two lionesses, come from the private menagerie of the famed German Tamer Tugari who, until recently, kept 16 of the animals at his home in Bigham, near Frankfurt.

"There is no such thing as a tame lion," explains Monika, "but to be suitable for a film, they must be accustomed to people, otherwise they are completely unmanageable."

"Born Free' is the story of a lioness named Elsa, an orphan cub Mrs. Adamson adopted, took into her home and raised for several years as a pet. Elsa finally returned to the Kenya wilds to live in her natural environment.

Many Elsas

In the film British star Virginia McKenna plays the part of Mrs. Adamson and Bill Travers, her game warden husband George Travers, is Virginia's husband in real - lift, too.

Several lions portray Elsa at various stages of her life — from the time she was a cub to when she goes back to the wilds as a fully grown lioness.

It is the job of Monika and Ruth to train these lions to recreate the habits of the real - life Elsa. One of Elsa's favorite tricks was to ride on the front of the landrover when Mrs. Adamson went on safari with her husband.

The Austrian girls are training their lions on location here to do the same thing.

No Fake Scenes

Said veteran Hollywood producer Sam Jaffe: "This is the most difficult picture I have ever been on. To do a western or a thriller or a romance is easy. But with Elsa we want to remain faithful to the book and that means we can't fake a scene."

Close by, on the 1,000 - acre ranch under the slopes of Mount Kenya, a dozen technicians and cameramen sat patiently round a wire cage. Inside placed a lioness.

The moviemakers had been waiting for two days to get a shot of the lioness pricking up her ears.

"The animals are not forced to do anything they would not normally do," said director Tom McGowan "This is unlike the circus lion who has been trained to do a set sequence every night."

Fourteen lion "extras" are taking part in the movie and they eat 1,000 lbs. of prime beef each week.

Who's Nervous?

Authoress Adamson says: "When this picture is released to the world, it could revolutionize man's thinking about wild animals. It could break down the barriers that exist between man and beast.'

"Love, patience, understanding and kindness could bring about a relationship between humans and animals which man has never thought possible."

Honey blonde Virginia McKenna is filming with a plaster around a broken ankle. It was injured when she was bowled over by a lion that got too frisky.

"I remember the first time I went into the cage with a lion," she says. "While I was there face to face with her I don't remember being nervous. But when I got outside again I was shaking like a leaf."

Nabokov Plays Murky Chess Game

THE DEFENSE, By Vladimir Nabokov.

For the benefit of the Nabokov fans, it must be said first that this novel is much closer in spirit and technique to the author's "The Gift" than it is to his "Pale Fire."

That is, it was written in Russian in 1929, reaching us now in a translation by Michael Scammell and Nabokov. It is in the same class with the last of the author's Russian novels, "The Gift," written in the mid-'30s and published here in 1963.

It is less coherent, less a dazzling feat of literary virtuosity than his later books in English, such as the famed "Lolita" of 1958 or the "Pale Fire" of 1962.

This book is about chess. Its hero is Luzhin, an abnormal creature. A horrible child deprived, or depriving himself, of love and human attachment, he becomes a chess prodigy.

What becomes of child prodigies? In this case, the adult Luzhin is a flabby, repulsive, ingrown man with a one - track mind: an almost - champion who suffers a breakdown in a crucial match, then falls into the hands of a prespinster female who has a penchant for rescuing lost people. She foolishly tries to rehabilitate him, as the psychologists would say, even hoping to make him human. No dice.

As many readers know by now, Nabokov loves to play games. In this one, the author moves his characters about like chess pieces, getting Luzhin into, out and into checkmate. If you're interested, you may deduce all sorts of esoteric associations between the people and the game.

The writing, in translation at least, is murky. There are flashes of Nabokov word - brilliance, stirring imagery and intellectually coy maniuplations — but they lie embedded in the midst of dark clouds of Slavic irrationality and morbidity. It can reward those sturdy readers who have a taste for literary vodka and occasional flashes of cerebral electricity. Others need not apply.

The pull of gravity is less on the moon than on the earth.

Meal Magic with Convenience Gravies

Time is the homemaker's dilemma. Rightly so when one person does the work of ten. Mother, cook, chauffer, nurse, seamstress are just a few of the jobs done in a too-short day.

As a result, Monday-through-Friday meals sometimes lack imagination. Change the image . . . do something different. Use convenience foods in preparing swift weekday suppers. Canned beef, chicken, and mushroom gravies are the answer to a homemaker's prayer in preparing dinner-on-the-run.

Discover the wonders of using canned chicken gravy in everything from skillet dishes to casseroles and sandwiches. Smooth, full - flavored canned chicken gravy enhances limitless chicken dishes.

A delightful change is a hot Open-Face Chicken Sandwich. It features peach halves, slices of chicken and, of course, ready-to-serve canned chicken gravy. What could be easier! Star this sandwich meal with a relish tray; finale — generous portions of chocolate cake.

OPEN - FACE

½ cup diagonally sliced celery
¼ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ ounces) chicken gravy
6 servings sliced cooked chicken
6 peach halves, drained
6 slices toast

In skillet, cook celery with ginger in butter until tender. Add gravy, chicken, and peaches. Heat, stirring now and then. Place a serving of chicken and a peach half on each slice of toast, pour gravy over. Makes 6 open - face sandwiches.

Society Gradually Abolishes Use Of Capital Punishment

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Babylonians drowned murderers; the Israelites stoned Sabbath breakers; the Assyrians impaled the guilty; the Romans had an extra-special way of dealing with citizens who murdered close relatives.

They sewed the victim up in a sack with a dog, a cock, a viper and an ape. Then the sack was cast into the sea or river.

Last year in the United States, 21 men were put to death by legal authorities in entirely legal ways. Six were gassed, 13 were electrocuted and two were hanged. The youngest was an 18-year-old Negro in Georgia; the oldest a 55-year-old white man in Arizona.

The crimes they committed are recognized universally as heinous: murder, rape and kidnaping. But, in this century — and there are notable exceptions — that's the way more and more Americans, like people all over the world, are viewing the death penalty.

Last March, the Kentucky House voted to abolish capital punishment. Although the bill died in the Senate, that's the first time the perennial measure had traveled that far.

Early this month, voters in Oregon approved a law to take the death penalty for murder out of the state constitution. When Gov. Mark Hatfield proclaims the vote — he immediately commuted to life the death sentences of three condemnd slayers—the death penalty will be dead in Oregon.

The 21 executed by civil authorities in the United States last year were, according to Federal Bureau of Prison records, the smallest number executed in any year in the nation's history From 1930, the earliest for which detailed statistics are available, until 1949, at least 100 were so dispatched each year.

Equally to the point is that capital punishment is as good as dead in many states where it remains on the books. Only 12 states recorded executions in 1963. Seven states haven't conducted an execution in a decade.

A year ago, Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, an implacable foe of capital punishment, pointed to 10½ months without a legal execution in his state and declared: "It really means that capital punishment has been repealed by the courts."

At the moment, 42 states, the District of Columbia and the federal government impose capital punishment. It is illegal in six states — Michigan, Wisconsin, Maine, Minnesota, Alaska and Hawaii — and, for all practical purposes, in Rhode Island and North Dakota.

On the world scene, since 1859 capital punishment has been abolished except, as a general rule, in wartime or under martial law; in Austria, Colombia, Latvia, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Panama, Portugal, Romania, San Marino, the Dominican Republic, Sweden, Argentina, Brazil, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Honduras, Norway, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Perhaps the most prominent voice raised against abolition of the death penalty is that of J. Edgar Hoover, since 1924 director of the FBI.

In June 1960, writing in the FBI law enforcement bulletin, the nation's most famous crime fighter said: "It is my opinion that when no shadow of a doubt remains relative to the guilt of a defendant, the public interest demands capital punishment be invoked where the law so provides."

And, he went on, "the professional law enforcement officer is convinced from experience that the hardened criminal has been and is deterred from killing based on the prospect of the death penalty."

Still, the pendulum is swinging the other way.

Music Hath More Than Just Charms

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Music has more than charms to soothe the savage breast.

It also has big pocketbook appeal. It has sounded a major keynote of its own in the present national business boom.

"This country has got to wake up to the fact we have had a cultural explosion, and are now culturally mature," said Robert J. Burton. "Musically, we now dominate the world."

Americans themselves still are largely ignorant of their musical flowering, according to Burton, president of Broadcast Music, Inc., one of the country's two major organizations for licensing performing rights. The other is ASCAP, pioneer in the field.

"In 1939, when BMI was formed, ASCAP had a membership of about 1,138 composers and publishers," Burton said.

"Today there are more than 21,750 authors, composers and music publishers connected with the two firms.

"Performing rights payments came to about $4 million in 1939, last year were above $50 million, and by 1970 will reach $100 million.

"Sales of recordings rose from $44 million in 1939 to in excess of $650 million this year.

"In 1963, Americans spent another $650 million for new musical instruments, accessories and sheet music — more than the combined amount they spent for all spectator sports, cameras, comic books and playing cards.

"We had 100 symphony orchestras in this country in 1920. Now there are some 1,300, more than half the number in the whole world.

"Americans own 39 million musical instruments, up from 21 million in 1950."

Burton paused. A stocky, intense man who started life as an attorney, he hadn't run out of figures. He simply had run out of breath.

Then he went into the international picture.

"Music is America's chief creative export form today. That wasn't so true even 10 years ago.

"But now in Western Europe, the Far East, and even behind the Iron Curtain, American music can truly be said to dominate much of the popular taste."

The mushrooming interest in music has created an upsurge in the untold number of Americans anxious to write their nation's songs.

"Heaven only knows how many songwriters there are," Burton said.

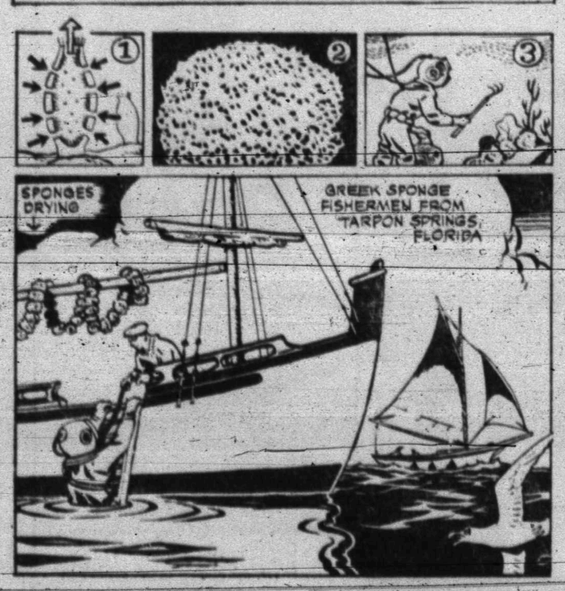
Junior Editors Quiz on SPONGES



QUESTION: Is a sponge an animal? Where do sponges come from?

• • •

ANSWER: When you look at a bath sponge you are looking at the elastic, interlaced fibers which once formed the internal skeletons of a colony of sponge animals. Such little creatures are known to have lived in very ancient times; they have no organs like brains or hearts, but they have cells which can form tissues. (1) shows a cross section of a single sponge animal. Its body is a tube with pores through which water enters. The tube is lined with cells bearing little whips which move the water in and out so that tiny plants and animals in the water can be digested. Many individual sponge animals grow together. Joined, they may make large cup shapes or the more familiar rounded shape, like the sponge skeleton in (2). They grow in many seas but thrive best in warmer water, especially if there are few ocean currents, which is why fine ones are found off the west coast of Florida, where sponge fishing is carried on as our pictures show. When first brought up, sponges are covered with animal tissue; this must be removed before the sponge is salable.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Blocks of synthetic, sponge-like material are widely used today in place of real sponges, but you may find some real sponges in the shops. Look at them closely to see what their structure really looks like.

Frank Broyles and his Arkansas Razorbacks have all the victories they need, thankee very much m'am, and they'd just like a couple of losses now.

They've won all they're really allowed to, least-wise in the regular season, you see. Ten of 'em. Their season is over and they're still not No. 1. So's the best thing they can hope for is a couple of losses.

That's not to wish Ara Parseghian and his Irish nor Bear Bryant and his Crimson Tide any bad luck, mind you. It's just that's the only way the Razorbacks can gain the No. 1 spot they've sought so long and never achieved.

Notre Dame's Fighting Irish retained their No. 1 spot in the latest Associated Press Poll Monday, gaining 36 of the 47 first-place ballots cast.

In all, Notre Dame collected 437 points in the voting on the basis of 10 for first, nine for second, eight for third and so on, while Alabama retained second with six first-place votes and 385 points.

Each has a 9-0 record with one game to go, Notre Dame against Southern California and Alabama against Auburn. Arkansas, No. 3, is through. The Porkers, who have a Cotton Bowl date with Nebraska, closed out their first perfect 10-0 season in 5 years with a 17-0 blanking of Texas Tech.

Ten-0 is, of course, as good as you can do—and this is a team that hoped only to do as well as it's 5-5 record of the season before—but it now would take two major upsets for Arkansas to win it all. Both Notre Dame and Alabama will be solid favorites in their final regular-season games.

Notre Dame, Alabama and Arkansas remained unchanged in the 1-2-3 rankings, but the rest of the nation's elite took a considerable shaking up.

Nebraska, upset by Oklahoma 17-7, dropped from No. 4 to seventh with Michigan moving into the fourth position. The Wolverines upset Ohio State 10-0 for the Big Ten title and a place in the Rose Bowl.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, and points:

1.	Notre Dame (36)	437
2.	Alabama (6)	385
3.	Arkansas (4)	345
4.	Michigan (1)	315
5.	Texas	247
6.	Louisiana State	189
7.	Nebraska	158
8.	Oregon State	91
9.	Ohio State	84
10.	Florida State	58

Promoters of the Pecan Bowl football game have mailed out letters urging area high school coaches and booster clubs to send high school players to their game. The Pecan Bowl, set for Dec. 12 in Abilene, is one of the NCAA regional playoffs in the college division. It will match State College of Iowa and Lamar Tech, winner of the first football title in the new Southland Conference. Local coaches were somewhat surprised at suggestions made in the letter inviting high school players to attend the Pecan Bowl. The letter urged that booster clubs be contacted to provide tickets for the high school youngsters. This would violate eligiblity rules of the University Interscholastic League, which means that any high school youngster accepting such a ticket would not be eligible for further competition in high school sports.

The Dallas Cowboys and New York Jets, who hold draft rights to Tulsa's Jerry Rhome probably are encouraged by the announcement that Coach Bobby Dobbs is leaving the Calgary team in the Canadian Football League. Calgary holds the "negotiation rights" to Rhome in the Canadian loop, and some had figured the Canadian outfit might have the inside track on Rhome since Calgary Coach Dobbs is the brother of Tulsa University Coach Glenn Dobbs.

It is more than a possibility that fans who attend the Denver City - Iowa Park game here Thursday afternoon will see the state Class AA champion. Phillips had been regarded as a heavy favorite to represent the north area of the state in the finals with a good chance of taking the title, but now Iowa Park already has eliminated the Black Hawks. Iowa Park has been regarded as a sort of "sleeper" all along, but actually sounded its warning early in the season when it warped Stamford by 26-0. Denver City's reputation on the gridiron, already is well - known here.

Kickoff time

and he had one of his worst days statistically, Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry says Don Meredith's performance against Washington last Sunday probably was the most amazing the coach had ever seen. Meredith, already a "walking stretcher case" was roughed up repeatedly in the game, but he never let anyone know the extent of his new injuries. Finally, a team mate signalled the bench and got a substitution in the game after the Cowboys went into their offensive huddle and discovered that Meredith was unable to talk because of an unmerciful roughing incident. Nevertheless, Meredith insisted on going back into the game later on. Team mates said he was in obvious pain every time he threw the football.

The Texas - Texas A&M game Thursday will be the 71st between the two schools, which makes it one of the oldest rivalries in the country. Baylor and TCU played their 71st game against each other this season, giving the Southwest Conference two of the oldest matches in the land. Usually, you think of the Ivy League when old rivalries are mentioned, but did you know that Lehigh and Lafayette met last Saturday for their 100th game? Yale and Princeton top the Ivy League with 86 engagements. Incidentally, in the 70 Texas-Texas A&M games already played, Texas has won 48, A&M has won but 17 and five have ended in ties.

Irish Will Decide Rose Bowl Host

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame, the country's top-ranked college football team, may not play in a bowl, but the Fighting Irish probably will decide Michigan's opponent in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

The unbeaten, untied Irish go after their 10th straight victory Saturday against Southern California in Los Angeles. The Trojans are tied with Oregon State for the lead in the Pacifin Athletic Conference, but the PAC faculty advisors announced Monday they would defer their vote until after the Notre Dame-Southern Cal game.

The inference is that if the Trojans upset Notre Dame or make a good showing they might be selected over Oregon State for the Rose Bowl. Southern Cal and Oregon State both are 3-1 in conference play while over-all Oregon State is 8-2 and the Trojans 6-3.

The postponement of the PAC team selection was the main news Monday, bowl-wise, although West Virginia announced it had accepted an invitation to play in the Dec. 19 Liberty Bowl at Atlantic City, N.J., in the first major bowl game to be played indoors.

No opponent was named for the Mountaineers although Gomer Jones, Oklahoma coach, said the Sooners had been contacted.

Panamanian Students In Rebellion

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

PANAMA (AP) — Rebellious students appeared today to be trying to foment a general strike against President Marco A. Robles.

Leaders of the Federation of University Students called a 24-hour classroom strike Monday night but it was believed they hoped to marshal support for a nationwide labor walkout.

The student attempt to generate a strike should show the extent of support among labor groups for Robles' policy, considered one of the sternest ever taken by a Panamanian government toward students.

Battle-ready National Guardsmen, Panama's army and police, quelled an anti-American demonstration by students and left-wing extremists Monday.

Thirteen persons were injured and 11 arrested as the guardsmen waded into a mob of about 2,000 persons near the legislative palace. The soldiers fired guns and tear gas and swung their riot sticks.

The avowed purpose of the rally was to urge a stronger posture in talks with the United States on the 1903 canal treaty. Agitators shouted "Throw the Yankees out of Panama."

Nicklaus To Get Extra '65 Bonus

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be exempt from paying entry fees in all 1965 golf tournaments, a sort of a bonus for the 24-year-old pro for edging Arnold Palmer in the 1964 PGA money race by a mere $81.13.

When the season ended with the Cajun Classic in Lafayette, La., Sunday, Nicklaus — who was second in the tourney—pocketed $113,284.50 in winnings for the year. Palmer was third in the Cajun and his earnings reached $113,203.37.

The PGA said Monday the race was the closest since it started keeping records in 1947.

Aggies 'Fire Up' For Texas Game

By The Associated Press

There'll be a giant flame lighting the countryside around College Station tonight. The folks at Austin won't see it but they'll know it's there.

It's the annual bonfire when all Texas Aggies show their burning desire to beat arch enemy Texas.

Once they had one that reached 101 feet. Tonight's will be only 90 but it still will be the largest in the world and besides the Aggies don't want to burn up all their energies before the game.

Both teams announced ready for the big one. The game will mean nothing in a championship or bowl way but will be a renewal of the longest football rivalry in the southwest when the teams clash at Austin Thursday.

Texas will have wingback Phil Harris and tackle Clayton Lacy available. Both suffered hip injuries in the TCU game but have resumed hard work.

However, end Sandy Sands and linebacker Timmy Doerr, who have been out for some time with knee injuries, won't make it for the last game.

All of the Aggies were in top physical condition.

Baylor was dogged by injuries but Rice, Baylor's foe at Waco Saturday when third place in the conference race goes on the line, welcomed fullback Paul Piper and tackle Harlon Dearing from the injury list.

Coach John Bridgers was having to make some changes in his starting lineups because of the injury to defensive tackle Jerry Haney. Quarterback Terry Southall, halfback Donnie Laurence and ends Ramsey Muniz and James Rust were taking it easy in practice in deference to injuries.

Southern Methodist feared its star guard, John La Grone, wouldn't be able to play against Texas Christian at Dallas Saturday because of sprained leg ligaments. Linebacker Billy Bob Stewart also had a bruised knee but will be able to play.

Anderson Just Short Of Mile

DALLAS (AP)—Donny Anderson, the wild horse of the plains, came within 50 yards of a mile in Southwest Conference football this season.

The great Texas Tech halfback leads the Southwest Conference in rushing with 966 yards on 211 attempts, is fourth in receiving with 32 catches for 396 yards and is first in kickoff returns with 320 yards on 16 runs.

Also he took back two punts for 28 yards. So his total for the year was 1710 yards.

There's little chance of Anderson being overtaken in rushing although the runner-up, Jim Fauver of Texas Christian, still has a game to go. Fauver has rolled up 705 yards on 141 carries.

Terry Southall of Baylor leads the passers with 104 completions of 196 attempts for eight touchdowns. He also has another game to play but wouldn't run the risk of being overtaken even if he hadn't. Tom Wilson of Texas Tech, in second place, had 65 completions for 761 yards.

Southall also is the total offense leader with 1456 yards on 255 plays. He has that title nailed down since Fred Marshall of Arkansas is the runnerup with 1094 yards and has no more games to play.

Lawrence Elkins of Baylor leads the pass-receivers with 46 catches for 823 yards.

Ken Hatfield of Arkansas tops in punt returns with 31 for 518 yards.

Teddy Roberts of Texas Tech has intercepted the most passes, seven for 62 yards.

Danny Thomas of Southern Methodist leads the punters with a 41.7-yards average on 54 boots.

Quarterback Session Set

The Snyder Quarterback Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in the High School Cafeteria.

The film of last Friday night's game at Lake View, the last game of the season for the Tigers, will be shown.

However, most of the attention will be focused upon future prospects. In this connection, Ned Underwood, head basketball coach at Snyder High, will be asked to give a rundown on prospects for his team this season.

Also, football coaches in the high school will be called upon to outline their appraisal of the prospects for the 1965 season.

Mrs. Phipps In Sweep

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps completed a sweep of the Thoroughbred Racing Association's 2-year-old crowns today when her Wheatley Stable's Queen Empress was named the top juvenile filly of the year.

Earlier, the TRA board of selection comprised of 31 racing secretaries, had named Bold Lad the champion colt. The two Wheatley Stable runners, along with five-time Horse of the Year Kelso and Bon Nouvel, voted best of the steeplechasers, will be honored at the TRA's annual dinner here Dec. 3.

Queen Empress, daughter of Bold Ruler who also sired Bold Lad, never was out of the money in 14 starts and earned $319,262. She won eight races, was second four times and third twice.

New Wheel Chair Goes Up Stairs

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)— "I've got a newspaper clipping here," a telephone caller told The Associated Press. "It says the space scientists hope to develop a wheel chair that climbs stairs.

"I thought you might be interested in knowing that I've already built one and my son-in-law rode it up the steps of the courthouse the other day."

The caller was Rod Zamotin, 45, an employe of the jet engine division of Eastern Air Lines, part-time inventor and architect.

Working at home, in two years of spare-time effort, the "hobby" inventor has produced a wheel chair that does climb stairs, and could open a whole new world to the handicapped.

With Donald Whitney, Zamotin's son-in-law, riding the chair, it easily mounted the concrete steps of the courthouse.

Zamotin, soft-spoken, New York-born son of a Russian portrait artist, has invented only little things in the past — such as a salt shaker which keeps the salt dry.

Two years ago, he read an appeal to inventors from the Department of Commerce to work on a wheel chair that would climb stairs. He went to work on it.

With his model completed, he applied for a patent. He said he has been advised that it will be granted "because of the novelty of my invention."

Beyond that Zamotin, no marketing expert, didn't know how to go about getting his brainchild to those who needed it. He wrote to a manufacturer of hospital supplies "and they said it was a wonderful thing, but it would involve a lot of tooling up to produce it and they wanted to know how big a market there was for it."

Zamotin has now been put in touch with experts in the handicapped field and has set up a series of demonstrations to prove the need.

"My chair," he said, "can mean that a paraplegic, now a burden to his family and friends, can enjoy independence.

"With my chair, he can go down the porch steps, cross the street, go to the shopping center, up the steps of the library, or just down to the beach to watch the tide come in."

Zamotin's wheel chair looks much the same as a standard kind, with two big wheels up front and a small one behind. On the flat, the driver operates it like any other, by turning the big wheels.

At the foot of a flight of stairs, the driver turns a small device which retracts the rear wheel and lowers a frame with a non-skid belt made of a special rubber composition developed by Zamotin and built by the U.S. Rubber Co.

The belt, molding itself to the stair edges, takes the driver upstairs backward as he turns the two large wheels by hand, just as in traveling on the flat. Zamotin says it can't slip or skid on the stairs.

While the model is hand operated, Zamotin says it could easily be electrified.

The model is much heavier than production chairs would be, but a 72-year-old man testing it out ran it upstairs handily.

Suspect Is Held In Hospital

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (AP)—E. T. O'Neill, 34, of San Antonio, Tex., wounded in a gun battle with a Nevada sheriff, was held under guard at a hospital today. He is accused of murder in Texas and Colorado.

Mineral County Sheriff Henry Eddy said he and a deputy spotted O'Neill Monday in a car reported stolen at Gunnison, Colo. O'Neill came out shooting when ordered to halt.

Eddy said O'Neill is wanted at Gunnison for the fatal shooting of Roland Westerman, a Lorenzo, Tex., rancher, last week. He was driving Westerman's car and had the rancher's billfold, wrist watch and papers, the sheriff said.

O'Neill also is wanted for a holdup in San Antonio in which a bartender was killed earlier this month, Eddy reported. The Texas warrant charges him with robbery with firearms and murder.

"He came out shooting when we ordered him to get out," Eddy said. "I shot him as he whirled. The bullet went into his side and out of the lower part of his back, but the doctor says he's all right. He's in good condition."

O'Neill admits both shootings, Eddy said.

The female sea horse plays but a brief part in producing the young. She deposits her eggs in the male's brood pouch, then swims away. After about 10 days, the fry are hatched and ejected.

Black Day Retold In Panel's Report

By HUGH MULLIGAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The moment of assassination in Dallas, Tex., 12:30 p.m. by the electric clock on the school depository, came upon the principals in the motorcade with a terrible suddenness that is forged forever in their memories.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy would never forget that it was hot "terribly hot, just blinding us all," and that amid the din there was a sound, like motorcycles backfiring.

"There is always noise in a motorcade, and there are always motorcycles beside us, a lot of them backfiring. So I was looking to the left. I guess there was a noise, but it didn't seem like any different noise really because there is so much noise, motorcycles and things."

For a long time afterward, she would torture herself with the thought that if she had been looking the other way when she first heard that noise things might somehow have been different.

"I used to think if only I had been looking to the right I would have seen the first shot hit him, then I could have pulled him down, and then the second shot would not have hit him."

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, riding two cars behind, also heard the noise. She connected it with the tumultuous welcome being accorded the president. "There had been such a gala air that I thought it must be firecrackers or some sort of celebration."

Her husband, seated next to her, heard the noise, too, and likened it to a "sharp report or explosion."

Mrs. John B. Connally, wife of the Texas governor, had just finished saying, "Mr. President, you can't say Dallas doesn't love you," when she heard a noise. She didn't know quite what to make of it, except that it was "frightening" and came "from the right."

But Gov. Connally, an experienced deer hunter, knew at once what that frightening noise was.

"At the time I heard it, I didn't think it was a firecracker or a blowout or anything else. I thought it was a rifle shot." The thought immediately crossed his mind that "this is an assassination attempt."

What happened next in that fateful journey down Main Street and around the corner into Elm is retold in greater detail than ever in the complete 26 volumes of Warren Commission testimony released Monday by the White House.

The principals tell the story in their own words, words still weighted by the burden of lingering melancholy that time can lighten but never lift.

"Suddenly Gov. Connally was yelling, 'Oh, no, no, no,' Mrs. Kennedy told commission investigators when they called at her Georgetown home last Summer. "And my husband never made any sound. So I turned to the right. And all I remember is seeing my husband, he had this sort of quizzical look on his face, and his hand was up, it must have been his left hand. And just as I turned and looked at him, I could see a piece of his skull and I remember it was flesh colored. I remember thinking he just looked as if he had a slight headache. And I just remember seeing that. No blood or anything.

"And then he sort of did this (indicating), put his hand to his forehead and fell into my lap. And then I just remember falling on him and saying, 'Oh, no, no, no,' I mean, 'Oh, my God, they have shot my husband,' and 'I love you Jack," I remember I was shouting. And just being down in the car with his head on my lap. And it just seemed an eternity."

At the crack of the first shot, which he was certain came from the right, Connally turned instinctively in that direction. Failing to see anything unusual and unable to catch the president in the corner of his eye, he turned to look back over his left shoulder.

"But I never got that far in my turn . . . then I felt like someone had hit me in the back."

Connally knew he had been shot "when I just looked down and I was covered with blood, and the thought immediately passed through my mind that there were either two or three people involved or more in this or someone was shooting with an automatic rifle."

Mrs. Connally, seated in the jump seat next to him, looked over her shoulder at the first shot and "saw the president as he had both hands at his neck. It was just sort of nothing, the expression on his face, and he just sort of slumped down."

She recalled her husband saying, "Oh, no, no, no," she testified, "then there was a second shot, and it hit John and as he recoiled to the right, just crumpled like a wounded animal to his right, he said, 'My God, they are going to kill us all.'"

Still conscious, the governor reclined in his wife's lap, his eyes open.

"And then of course the third shot sounded, and I heard the shot very clearly. I heard it hit him. I heard the shot hit something, and I assumed again — it never entered my mind that it hit anybody but the president. I heard it hit. It was a very loud noise, just that audible, very clear."

Then the horror of it all, the grisly grotesqueness of a young, vibrant life being shattered, flooded the limousine.

TOWARD A DISTANT GRAVE—Two long lines of people move steadily toward the picket fence enclosed grave of John F. Kennedy in Arlington National Cemetery. Thousands of visitors passed by the grave on the first anniversary of the assassination of the young President. Overlooking the scene is the Lee Mansion, pre Civil War home of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Chorus Girl Says Teaching Is Ideal Spare Time Position

By JOLIE LUELOFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Dede Thomas doesn't see what's so unusual about being a schoolteacher by day and a Broadway chorus girl by night.

The red-haired Dayton, Ohio lass, 26, who appears in "What Makes Sammy Run?" spends two or three days a week doing substitute teaching at Manhattan's Junior High School 79.

"I don't think this is really extraordinary if you look at the number of hours in the day," she says.

"I'm at the theater only three and a half hours in the evening and I get home about 11:45. It's not as if I worked in a cocktail lounge until four in the morning. I usually get up at 6:45 a.m. and that leaves a full day ahead."

She says that her husband, Jimmy Campbell, wasn't very enthusiastic about the idea. "But," she explains, "I said to him, 'Jim, I have all this time — what am I going to do with it?' and he agreed."

Their schedules almost coincide. He plays in the orchestra of the Broadway hit, "Hello Dolly," in the evening and attends rehearsals and acting classes during the day.

When Dede was a dance major at Ohio State University, she carried a full study load and danced every night. "I guess that's where I got into the swing," she says.

After working as a secretary in New York for a short time, she got a teaching license and taught physical education and hygiene. Then she joined the chorus of "Bye Bye Birdie."

Being on tour with the show didn't put a stop to her teaching.

"We had seven kids in the show," Dede explains, "and they needed a tutor, so I volunteered. "When 'Birdie' closed, I came back to New York. There wasn't much happening on Broadway, so I took another job teaching."

Three In Family Killed In Crash

PONDER, Tex. (AP)—Three carpenters died Monday when their small car collided with a Santa Fe passenger train at a crossing in this small community 10 miles west of Denton.

They were William Hunter, 62; his brother, M. W. Hunter, 66; and Warren Hunter, 36, son of M. W. Hunter, all of Denton.

The engineer of the southbound Santa Fe Chief No. 15, W. E. Pipes of Cleburne, said the car had been traveling on a road parallel to the tracks and it abruptly turned left in front of the train at the crossing.

The automobile was knocked 50 feet down the track.

Estes Has Spent Little Cell-Time

By TOM JOHNSON

DALLAS (AP) — Convicted farm financier Billie Sol Estes has spent three days and two hours in jail since FBI agents arrested him more than two and a half years ago.

The three days followed his arrest March 29, 1962. It took that long for his lawyers to get his $500,000 bond reduced to $100,000, which was promptly posted.

The two hours came Monday when U.S. Dist. Judge Sarah Hughes ordered a $10,000 bond forfeited at noon because of travel violations.

She granted him another bond in the same amount and he was again free by mid-afternoon. The bond stemmed from a Dallas indictment that Estes made false statements to the Commodity Credit Corp. The case hasn't been tried.

Estes has been named in indictments charging him with fraud, conspiracy, false swearing and swindling since his far-flung grain storage-liquid fertilizer complex collapsed upon his arrest.

Two indictments—a state and a federal—have been tried, and Estes was sentenced to 23 years in prison. Both convictions are on appeal, and he is free on bonds of more than $100,000.

Some of the nation's largest financial houses paid millions of dollars for worthless chattel mortgages in a scheme prosecutors say Estes masterminded.

Monday's action came at the request of U.S. Atty. Barefoot Sanders, who said Estes had shown a "cavalier attitude" toward the court by leaving the 100-county jurisdiction of the Northern District of Texas.

Estes took the witness stand briefly and said he had made trips recently to Denver, El Paso, Austin, Houston and New Orleans, all outside the district.

When Sanders said the bond clearly specified that Estes was not to leave the district, Estes replied that he hadn't read the bond.

He said he left the district on personal business and to attend to legal matters concerned with his appeals. He added that his lawyer, John Cofer, had advised him it was all right to make the trips.

Cofer argued that the only grounds for forfeiture would be failure to appear in court. However, Sanders said he had written Estes and his lawyers to the effect that he would seek forfeiture if Estes continued to leave the district.

On ordering that the bond be forfeited, Mrs. Hughes said:

"This defendant has thought he could be treated differently by the court. This case will be handled just like any other. I remand the defendant to the custody of the U.S. marshal."

Mrs. Hughes remitted $9,000 of the bond back to the sureties, members of Estes' family. The court kept the rest.

Water Study To Begin

AUSTIN (AP)—Federal, state and local government officials and industry spokesmen will outline to the Texas Water Commission their views on statewide water needs at hearings Dec. 2, 3 and 10, the commission said Monday.

The commission will hear discussion of intra-agency coordination Dec. 2 from spokesmen for state and federal agencies, river authorities and major water districts.

Representatives of cities will appear Dec. 3 to discuss municipal water needs. Industrial needs, including the use of water for maintaining oil field pressure, will be discussed at a Dec. 10 meeting for manufacturing and mining spokesmen.

Attorney Ordered To Repay Funds

TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, N.M. (AP)—City Atty. Jess R. Nelson, a former president of the New Mexico Bar, has been ordered to repay $12,928 to heirs of the late Rosie Messinger.

Dist. Judge Caswell Neal made the ruling Monday. Mrs. Messinger's son, C. L. Van Orman, and her grandson, C. W. Van Orman, claimed in a suit that Mrs. Messinger was misled into investing most of her savings.

Mineral interests in the West Texas counties of Pecos, Reeves and Ward and two tracts of land in Truth or Consequences also go to the heirs under the order.

The judge stated in a 25-page ruling filed with the Sierra County court clerk that Dist. Atty. Raymond Keithly was a party to inducing Mrs. Messinger to sign instruments, the content of which Neal said she did not comprehend. He said this referred to the land transactions.

"The court finds that the transactions between the attorney and his client were not in the best of faith and that the transactions were not fair or equitable," Neal said.

Winter Slows Harvesting

AUSTIN (AP)—Winter weather stopped most harvest activities in Texas during the week, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Monday.

Cotton harvest is 47 per cent complete, 12 per cent behind last year. Sorghum combining, slowed by damp, cold weather, is 96 per cent complete, about the same as last year.

Showers held back peanut digging to 55 per cent, 25 per cent behind last year.

Wheat planting is about the same as last year, 97 per cent complete. Showers slowed oat planting, which is 94 per cent complete, 11 per cent ahead of last year. Flax planting is about one-half complete.

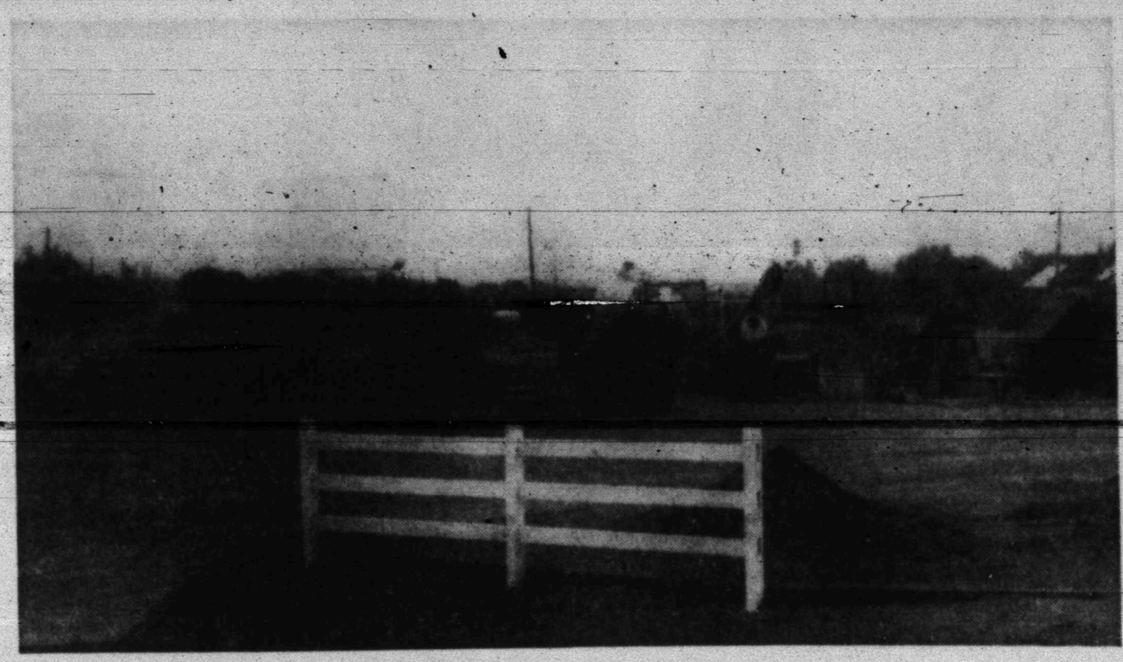
BUSINESS and INDUSTRIAL NEWS



WHAT APPEARS TO BE A PLANK FENCE is this picture of a portion of the yard of Caprock Material Co., is actually a concrete fence. Farmers and ranchers use the fences at cattle guards and other places where a permanent fence is desirable. In the background, at left behind the fence, are concrete feed troughs, which being virtually indestructable, are actually cheaper than wood troughs or barrels cut in two. Also in the background are two of the little concrete houses made by Caprock for school children to use while waiting on the bus.

SEVERAL CONCRETE ITEMS ARE MADE BY CAPROCK which fill the need for installations where freedom from rust, rot and decay are important. Gene Best, owner of the firm, stands behind the form which is used in producing the water trough in the foreground. The hard-to-turn-over steel-re-inforced troughs can be made in any depth up to the height of the form, and all have built in water supply pipes and brass drain plugs. Concrete utility houses built by Caprock, originally planned for use by ranchers as salt or cake houses, have found uses also as tool storage houses in town and well houses at several locations.

End Of Bracero Program Dec. 31 May Bring Major Changes To Agriculture

By ROB WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Since 1951 more than a million Mexican farm workers have crossed the international border, reaching from Texas to California, to help in the harvest of vegetable, fruit and cotton crops.

On Dec. 31, the border gates may be closed to the Braceros — a Spanish word for laborers and the name given these Mexican citizens when they first began the annual trek to the western farm lands.

Public Law 78, the congressional act granting the Mexican admission into the United States for seasonal farm work, expires the last day of the year.

There apparently will be no renewal of the treaty.

The program was granted a one-year lease on life in December 1963 with a congressional notation that there would be no further extensions.

Braceros did the most demanding and unpopular of the farm work, on crops such as strawberries, cucumbers and lettuce.

The end of the Bracero program will touch the lives of domestic farm workers, cannery workers, farmers and even the housewife responsible for balancing the grocery budget.

California, which used 62,670 Braceros at the peak of the 1963 harvest season, will feel the sting of this labor loss more than other states.

But the California farm problem may set off a chain reaction that will reach Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and other agricultural areas.

A State Senate fact finding committee reported recently that wherever California growers look for replacements to fill the Bracero jobs, serious problems arise.

The committee said if California growers don't find an adequate work force and, instead, cut back crop production, the effect on the state's economy would be critical.

For every farm job, the committee said, 2.6 are created in other fields. A reduction in crops, therefore, would mean a loss of jobs in other industries.

Arizona finds itself in much the same position, with thousands of Braceros used each year, and an uncertain domestic labor force.

Farmers in New Mexico have expressed fear that elimination of the program will mean a drain on their supply of domestic workers by hardpressed West Coast growers.

In Texas the situation appears more stable. Mechanization has stepped in to take up much of the slack in the state's main labor crop, cotton.

There also is a report that an estimated 128,000 U.S. citizens of Mexican lineage living in Texas will move into the farm fields on the heels of the departing Braceros.

Egon R. Tausch, executive director of the Texas Council on Migrant Labor, is optimistic, predicting, "in time we feel our domestic workers will take those jobs which up to now have been done by Braceros and not wanted by domestics."

Labor officials report, however, that several thousand Texas-Mexicans have left in the past few years to seek jobs in California.

Farm labor wages in California are listed as the highest in the nation, thus the appeal to workers in other Western states.

New Mexico farmers have cut back on the use of Braceros in recent years. Max Salazar, an official of the State Employment Security Commission, says "the farmers of New Mexico got fed up with the restrictions imposed under the Bracero program."

Carl Nakayama, one of the biggest farmers in New Mexico, painted a picture that reflects much of the agricultural thinking within the state:

"It depends on how badly hit those growers in California are. They grow crops requiring hand labor and with them its almost a case of labor at any cost. If they come in here after workers, they can take all the available men and we will really be hurting."

Already New Mexico has felt the need of West Coast growers. Oregon farmers made a request to New Mexico emplyoment officials for 300 Indian workers as strawberry pickers.

Although mechanization has helped in some areas, Charles Paul, director of the California Agricultural Department, recently gave this breakdown:

Mechanization for tomatoes, eight to 10 years away; little mechanized equipment for strawberries; little mechanization now and none in sight for lemons and oranges; some mechanization for leading melons, none for picking.

All of these are big California crops, some are major crops in other states.

The University of California Sciences released a report on the Bracero problem, pointing to the dangers of seeking domestic help from other sections of the nation.

"It could reasonably be expected that this work force will be unemployed a substantial part of the year. This could add millions to state welfare costs," the report said.

Serious doubt remains among farmers and some labor experts if domestic workers would do the demanding labor.

Al Green, director of the AFL-CIO Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee in California disagrees, saying: "There is no job Americans won't do if they get paid for it." He suggested a $2 an hour minimum wage.

Braceros, paid by piece work, earn from $1.50 an hour for picking tomatoes to 90 cents an hour for thinning cantaloupes.

This brings still another problem.

The Senate committee chairman, Vernon Sturgeon, Republican from San Luis Obispo, said California growers can't raise prices to consumers or reduce acreage without opening up the state to competition from other states and at the same time putting California products at a disadvantage in the rest of the nation.

Flunks As Matchmaker

PROVO, Utah (AP) — If a computer can be embarrassed the Brigham Young University electronic brain should be blushing.

Once a year the computer makes matches for a dance: pairing boys and girls with similar interests.

Bonnie Mitchell, 18, Provo, a red-haired freshman, asked for a tall boy with dark hair and blue eyes, who likes entertainment and looks on marriage favorably.

The male picked for her by the computer from BYU's 15,500 students was tall, had asked for a date with a red-haired girl, likes entertainment and looks on marriage favorably.

He was Richard Mitchell, 19, Bonnie's brother. Bonnie went to the weekend dance with Richard and said she had an "interesting" time.

Overseas Interest Rate Hike Causes Rise Here

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States put a higher bank discount rate into effect today as a safeguard against the flow of dollars abroad.

At the same time, the government hopes to keep the domestic economy on course by moderately increasing the funds available to bankers, businessmen and consumers.

The Federal Reserve Board Monday ordered an increase from 3.5 per cent to 4 per cent in the discount rate — the interest bankers must pay when they obtain funds from the Federal Reserve system. The board acted after Britain jumped its bank rate from 5 to 7 per cent earlier in the day.

Today, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, charged that the action would halt the vigorous business expansion that has run 45 months.

Patman has fought fiercely for years for lower interest rates, arguing that only bankers benefit from a tight money policy.

Beside approving the discount rate increase, the Federal Reserve Board raised the ceiling on time deposits from 4 to 4.5 per cent. Rates on savings deposits also were strengthened.

President Johnson, who is at his Texas ranch, talked by telephone with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and with William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, about the U.S. and British actions.

Dillon and Martin sought to allay fears that the board's actions represent a move toward monetary restraint.

They were taken, Dillon said, "to maintain the strength of the dollar without impairing the steady and healthy advance of the American economy."

Martin said the only reason for the higher discount rate was to make sure there is no excessive flight of dollars to Britain and other European countries which have higher interest rates.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — Just read up on what progress is doing and action is the key to living these industrial days.

The bustling city of more than 5.5 million is growing up and out at the rate of a teenager who wears size $30 shoes. And everybody (well, almost everybody) treks to Mexico to do business.

Latin Steel Leaders will operate a convention here to discuss the merits of steel. Mexico's steel production is up and climbing higher (I don't know how much but there is more turned out than I would care to have piled on me).

Mr. Wesley Bolin, Secretary of State of Arizona published a long statement in the local dailies giving words of praise for the Home Fair here.

The Home Fair is great. It is filled with products from all over Mexico. Canned shrimp, automobiles, Veracruz cooking and native crafts of all types.

Mr. Bolin paid a visit to the Fair and became interested in a host of products.

A new market is opening up in the southwestern section of Uncle Sam Land for Mexico's products. Governors from both sides of the creek are holding meetings to discuss who will sell what to whom.

It is a busy, busy world we live in and the ancient Aztec Capital is developing a heavier Rush Syndrome than it had when the Spaniards drifted into town.

Whole new residential sections are going up. More modernistic buildings are going up. The stock market, bank deposits, production and exports are going up like express elevators.

And the government announces tourist trade is piling high. This is the only commodity Mexico cannot export.

Tourism is Mexico's jackpot. They call it "the industry without smoke stacks." Visitors and dollars pour in from the land, the sea and air.

Dollars are exchanged for suntan on the beaches and native items like silver service sets and Swiss watches. The tourists go home happy.

And the innkeepers sweep out and scrub for the next shipment.

Streets are filled with U.S. license plates (patient traffic cops shake their heads sadly when a Wisconsin car turns left on a big avenue where there is an arrow pointing left with a big NO).

The tourist is uneducated in local traffic rules and must be given special consideration.

And at the airport there are scads of private planes with U.S. numbers.

A fog came up with the sun the other day and the airport boss said, "Nobody flies." Commercial liners were stacked up everywhere and the huge terminal looked like a Democratic Convention.

After awhile it lifted and I snatched the radio mike on my air flivver. "Mexico tower — this is XB-HEK, request instructions for takeoff please. Over."

Sr. Mr. Alberto Carrillion in the tower replied, "Good morning, John. You will be number twenty on five right, hold your position."

Twenty commercial jobs from block - long jets to DC-3s, lumbered out and blasted off. While I burned half a tank of gas waiting. Tourists streaking back home and more streaking in.

Even the air is terribly active in our commercial era.

Once a common sight skimming over Florida's marshlands, the Everglade kite - a dark gray bird - now faces extinction because extensive swamp drainage is destroying its natural habitat and source of food.
