New bank owners in place Saturday

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Owners of the newly named American State Bank of Snyder were in place Saturday morning — and the promise was for a smooth transition and a long stay in their newly adopted city.

The American State Financial Corp. of Lubbock purchased First National Bank Friday after the facility was declared insolvent.

By Saturday morning, the Lubbock-based corporation had named a new bank president and six members to a new bank board of directors.

President of American State will be Eddie Johnson, a native of Levelland and a 13-year veteran of West Texas banking. He has been serving as a vice president of American State Bank in Lubbock.

The Lubbock facility is one of several banks owned by the corporation, which was formed in 1948 in Lubbock and continues to headquarter there. Other West Texas facilities include Liberty State Bank in Lubbock and Brownfield State Bank.

At the end of 1983, the corporation had total assets estimated in excess of $344 million. Since that time, they have acquired the Brownfield and now the Snyder banks.

W.R. Collier, president of American State in Lubbock, and other ASB officials were in Snyder Saturday morning helping with the transition.

Collier said, "To say we're happy to be in Snyder is an understatement. We're West Texas based and that's where we intend to stay."

Named to the newly formed board of directors are Collier; Don Hudgeons, executive vice president of ASB in Lubbock; Joe Birdwell, senior vice president of ASB there; Jim Melton, an ASB vice president who was associated with Snyder National Bank here from 1958-70; A.C. Arnett of Lubbock, a board member of ASB; and Johnson.

"We'll be adding local people to the board as soon as we get our feet on the ground," Collier said. He added a final number for directors on the board has not been determined.

Regarding personnel, Johnson said current personnel at the facility will be maintained during the transition.

As for the operation of the bank, Collier said the new staff will spend the next 7-10 days reviewing the FNB loans now in the hands of FDIC officials.

FNB said insolvent

Federal officials declared the First National Bank of Snyder insolvent Friday.

The facility was officially ordered closed at 3:35 p.m., ending a business operation which spanned three years and three months here.

The closing was ordered by the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which then placed the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) in charge of its operations.

Around 4:30 p.m., an FDIC official stepped from the bank and motioned to some 55 FDIC employees who were waiting nearby. The procession entered the bank and — assisted by the FNB staff — implemented bookkeeping procedures associated with the closing.

Simultaneously, FDIC officials were coordinating a bidding process for prospective new owners of the facility.

At 7:35 p.m. Friday, an FDIC official emerged from the bank and announced, as he termed it, "some good news and some bad."

Allan Whitney, public information director for FDIC, confirmed the closing and then announced that Snyder will have a new bank effective Monday morning.

American State Financial Corp., a holding company based in Lubbock, purchased the bank's assets Friday afternoon and will reopen it as American State Bank of Snyder on Monday morning.

The bid price to purchase the bank was quoted at less than $1 million. The exact figure stated was $962,000.

This payment represents "what they think its worth to acquire the additional business," Whitney said Saturday.

In addition, the corporation will pay to FDIC some $6.8 million for the bank's assets. These include the installment loans and the bank building.

FDIC officials say the reason for the closing was a "deterioration" in the quality of loans. In addition, "accelerated deposit withdrawals" were pointed to.

With the bank's closing, the FDIC estimates it had insured deposits of $15.2 million and installment loans at $9.6 million.

Both figures for FNB had steadily dwindled during the past few months.

The highest figures for each were likely reported in March of 1983. At that time, deposits were at

Tech students hurt in wreck

Two 20-year-old Texas Tech students were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital early Saturday morning for treatment of injuries sustained in a one vehicle traffic mishap northwest of Snyder.

According to Department of Public Safety patrolmen investigating the accident, Hayden Foster Merket and Rickey Woolf, both of Hamlin, were injured when Merket apparently lost control of his 1980 model Ford Mustang. The car struck a concrete culvert on U.S. Highway 84 about one mile southeast of Dermott around 5:45 a.m.

Merket was hospitalized for treatment of a possible broken arm and Woolf was treated for a possible broken nose. Both men

The feller on Deep Creek says, "How can a government so patient with Chrysler be so antsy with a guy a few days late on his tax payment?"

It seems that filing suit and going to court may surpass baseball as America's favorite past-time.

A lot of folks like to blame the current trend on the growing number of lawyers trying to make a living. Some say it's ethics, or even perhaps the lack of it.

Last week, however, we read about a 78-year-old California resident who may have been in civil court more than any U.S. citizen. A non-lawyer, Robert Agnew, doesn't get mad, but rather he gets even. "I'll go hungry to get even," he said.

According to news accounts, Agnew has sued both his brother and sister. He said it was a matter of principle, his sister had cheated him.

He sued his brother because he called him a "dirty louse" and threatened to punch him in the mouth. Agnew got a $4,000 settlement from his brother.

In addition to relatives, he has filed suit on his neighbor four times in the last 1½ years. As a result, he has taken his neighbor's car and garnished her wages.

For more than 50 years, Agnew has sued relatives, neighbors, cities, corporations, judges, friends and employers. A good friend once mistook him for a burglar and yelled, "Stop thief." Agnew sued for slander and collected $1,000.

He also took on the city for raising utility fees. The city settled and Agnew is now the only citizen of the town who pays nothing for sewer and for garbage pickup.

The unique thing about Agnew is that he has never employed a lawyer. He represents himself and has never lost a case. It is estimated that he may have collected $150,000 to $250,000 in judgments over the years. He once appealed a traffic ticket to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Boys who grew up in the oil patches of West Texas can easily remember when things were settled on a lot less complicated basis. You may have gotten your nose blooded, but the issue was settled.

Judge rules against man

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas man has become the first person in the nation to be convicted of corruptly trying to impede an Internal Revenue Service investigation, an agency spokesman said.

U.S. District Judge Robert Porter on Friday found Lester Irvin Reeves, of Terrell, guilty of committing a corrupt act in an attempt to impede a tax investigation by filing a lien against the personal property of an IRS agent.

Porter's verdict in the non-jury trial established a legal precedent because Reeves is the first person to be convicted of "corruptly" attempting to impede an IRS investigation, said Marlene Gaysek, a spokeswoman for the Dallas IRS office.

Moments after Porter announced the verdict, Reeves was arrested by federal marshals on a separate indictment charging that he used a false Social Security number in 1981.

Suspect arrested by police

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A man suspected of being the driver of a pickup truck involved in a high-speed chase by U.S. Border Patrol agents was arrested and charged with transporting illegal aliens, officials said.

Two illegal aliens were killed when a Border Patrol unit crashed into a car the pickup truck had been following Wednesday night, Border Patrol officials said. Six other aliens were injured, two critically.

A 25-year-old Mexican was arrested Friday afternoon, about three miles from Bruni, north of Hebbronville, said Border Patrol chief Larry Teverbaugh.

He said the man was being held in Laredo under $10,000 bond.

Border Patrol agents said the pickup truck and car were carrying 39 illegal aliens.

Company to repay funds

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says elderly Texans who were fast-talked into buying a special life insurance policy in hopes of evading inheritance taxes will get a $7 million refund.

As a result of a combined effort by the attorney general's department and the State Board of Insurance, an Austin district court approved Friday an agreed judgment against Academy Life Insurance Co. of Colorado and Jack Milton Amason, a Dallas insurance agent.

The insurance department began the investigation, then passed the matter to Mattox as a violation of state laws against unfair competition and unfair trade practices in selling insurance.

Deliveries down CRMWD notes

Declining deliveries for oilfield secondary recovery units contributed to a slight decrease in the total volume of water pumped by the Colorado River Municipal District in April, compared to the same month last year. Another factor was severe sandstorms, which on two occasions dropped deliveries by as much as 25 percent on those days.

Total deliveries stood at 1,509,337,236 gallons, or 17,331, 730 under (1.35 percent) April 1983. Municipal deliveries of 1,392,225,500 gallons were up 5.55 percent, while those to oil companies amounted to 117,111,736, gallons down 46.46 percent. Most of this drop was due to a cut-off of deliveries from Lake J. B. Thomas to oil companies as a means to conserve for municipal use.

In April, Big Spring received 243,447,000 gallons, up 4.52 percent; Midland 326,245,000 gallons; down 4.45 percent; Odessa 659,506,100, up 5.33 percent; Robert Lee 24,246,100, up 156.47 percent; San Angelo 3,602,300; up 22.93 percent; Snyder 113,381,500, up 30.55 percent; Stanton 10,641,000, off 20.66 percent; Pyote and West Texas Children's Home 10,641,000, up 93.68 percent.

Qualities showed up very early

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Truman's reputation as a mediocre politician who became great when he assumed the mantle of the presidency is incorrect, says biographer David McCullough.

McCullough says Truman already was showing the qualities that would make him a great president 40 years before assuming the office.

"It required only a series of genuine challenges for his true character to assert itself," McCullough said, writing in this Sunday's issue of Parade magazine.

After his work as a file clerk at the bank, McCullough said, Truman persisted in joining the Army. He was rated as an "excellent battery commander." To one of his men, he was "the best in the world."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your tolerance with outsiders will be up to its usual standards today, but you might not show the same consideration to family members or in-laws.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Rely upon your logic and reason today rather than on your intuituion or hunches. What you sense about things could be erroneous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your behavior will be closely scrutinized today. When in the public eye, put your best foot forward. A bad showing will be remembered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A verbal agreement won't count for much today if you're tryig to wring a commitment out of another. Important terms should be put in writing.

Some exciting, happy changes are in store for you this coming year. One could be a change of residence, if you've been hoping to make a move.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are indebted to a friend, try to make arrangements today to clear up the obligation. Don't wait for him or her to come to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're likely to be very clever today in advancing your self-interests. However, the tactics you use might not please associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't become involved in your newest interests today to the point where you neglect an old project that requires attention. Devote time to each.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful how you deal with friends today. You might feel you're helpfully managing things for them, but they might feel you're being manipulated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being indecisive today could severely hamper your productiveness. Face up to difficult decisions. Don't dodge them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you find yourself in a rut today, it will only deepen if you let things go as they are. Make a concerted effort to right matters.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Losses could result today if you fail to handle financial matters skillfully, either where your resources are concerned or those of others.

Almost 500 people died Nov. 28, 1942, when a flash fire raced through a Boston nightclub. Dozens were crushed to death or jammed too tightly to escape the flames as the blaze roared through the packed pleasure spot in seconds. Nightclub singer Bill Payne saved 10 patrons by leading them into a huge icebox in the building's basement.

Hearing aid caution

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 72 and recently consulted an otolaryngologist for a hearing loss. Within 10 minutes after flushing my right ear my hearing was miraculously restored. Then after a complete examination an audiologist said there was no need for me to be fitted with a hearing aid.

Many people my age have hearing loss problems. It seems to be a very touchy subject. Many of them seem resigned to their world of silence. Unfortunately, some unscrupulous individuals push hearing aids and frighten these people.

Do you have a health letter for people with this problem? Everything I've seen always starts off with mention of a hearing aid.

DEAR READER — You're very observant. Many people don't want and won't use a hearing aid. If they really need one, it's unfortunate because the new inconspicuous aids can make a great deal of difference. But unless a person really needs a hearing aid, it's completely unnecessary.

The best advice I can give people with a hearing problem is to see an ear, nose and throat specialist, as you've done. In your case your ear canal must have been obstructed with wax; the removal of this wax restored your hearing.

There are other hearing problems that can be corrected, which is why an examination by a specialist is a good place to start. After an evaluation of hearing by a certified clinical audiologist, the doctor should complete the assessment of whether you need a hearing aid, whether one will help and, if so, what kind you should use.

I've discussed hearing problems in the Health Letter 16-8, Your Vital Hearing, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I recently read that a condition referred to as albuminuria may occur temporarily because of a high protein diet or following strenuous exercise. If so, how serious is the condition? I'm concerned because I exercise with weights and eat a high protein diet.

I also read it could indicate a leak in the glomerular membrane in the kidney. Should I be concerned about this?

DEAR READER — Anyone who has albumin, one of the blood proteins, in his or her urine should see a doctor. It can be caused by kidney disease, but it can also be from less serious causes.

It's true that strenuous exercise, particularly long-distance running, may cause albumin to leak through the structures in the kidney and into the urine. In general, the blood flow to the kidneys is decreased during running to provide more blood for the working muscles, which may cause it.

I wouldn't think that would be so common in people training with weights because the exercise isn't that long in duration. But it's a good idea to limit long or strenuous exercise to every other day and only three days a week. There's evidence that this is better for the kidneys. It also happens to be the best way to build muscles.

Arraignment of family postponed

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — The arraignment of three family members accused of torturing a hitchhiker to death at their Hill Country ranch has been postponed until they hire lawyers.

Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 51, his son Walter Jr., 31, and daughter-in-law Joyce, 29, told Judge Marlyn Johnson on Friday that they are negotiating with lawyers to defend them.

Three hitchhikers who worked at the Ellebracht ranch near Mountain Home also were in court Friday. Two pleaded innocent and a third asked the judge to find him a lawyer.

Prosecutors say the three Ellebrachts and three hitchhikers who worked for them shocked and kicked to death Anthony Bates, 21, of Huntsville, Ala., on March 13.

The three Ellebrachts, dressed in jail whites, sat together in the last row of the courtroom Friday as Johnson called their cases individually and spoke softly to the judge.

The three hitchhikers, who also remain jailed, are Mark Hamilton of Los Angeles, 22, Darryl Hunsaker of Wichita Falls, 21, and Carlton Caldwell of Taos, N.M., 21.

Hamilton and Hunsaker pleaded innocent Friday. Pretrial hearings for those two defendants were set for May 17. The Ellebrachts and Caldwell will be brought back to court on May 14 to plead.

In a motion filed Friday, Hamilton's lawyer asked the court to bar jurors from hearing Hamilton's statement to investigators.

Attorney Robert Denson of Ingram, on Friday said his client did not voluntarily give the statement that says Bates was shocked with a cattle prod 20-30 times, for more than an hour each time.

"Eventually, Bates became very weak and died," Hamilton said, adding that Bates had been tortured because "he was not as productive as (the Ellebrachts) desired."

Denson's motion said Hamilton is "a person of very little education, of young age" who gave the statement after investigators promised "leniency."

Denson said the statement was "the result of coercion ... and undue influence in that the law enforcement officers threatened the defendant with prosecution and promised leniency if he confessed."

District Attorney Ron Sutton left open the possibility that charges against one or more of the defendants could be dropped in an effort to get testimony.

"We like to get all the testimony we can get," he said.

Sutton said Friday he thinks charred remains found at the ranch are Bates' bones. Hamilton's statement said the Ellebrachts ordered Bates' body burned.

The prosecutor said he has audio tape recordings, apparently made while Bates was tortured. The tapes are explicit, Sutton said.

"If you got a copy of it, you couldn't print it," he told a reporter.

Hitchhikers who worked at the ranch gave investigators detailed statements about how the Ellebrachts offered them jobs cutting cedar and then allegedly forced them to work.

The Ellebrachts also face aggravated kidnapping charges. Travis Boyd, a 36-year-old hitchhiker who worked at the ranch, said in his statement to investigators that he was poked with a cattle prod and forced to sign a suicide note.

New home computer troubled

NEW YORK (AP) — IBM's chairman finally acknowledged what most people in the computer industry had said for three months — that IBM's new home computer is struggling in the marketplace.

Yet as Chairman John R. Opel made his concession this past week, a magazine premiered that is devoted entirely to International Business Machines Corp.'s home computer, the PCjr.

The magazine is called PEA-NUT, the nickname given PCjr by the trade, and its debut shows that despite the machine's initial problems, many people believe it is only a matter of time until PCjr is the success that IBM, the world's largest computer maker, expects of its products.

PCjr was introduced last November amid what some observers said was the biggest fanfare in the history of computers.

Whether PCjr deserved such notoriety is debatable, but it must be remembered that at the time, the home-computer industry was in turmoil following a severe price war, and IBM was riding the wave of tremendous success with its small computer for business use — the Personal Computer.

Hence, PCjr was seen as the correct product both to take advantage of the PC's success and to put a stop to the price wars. PCjr, it was said, would set a new standard for home computers.

PCjr came in two models. A $669 entry model includes a keyboard, 64,000 characters of main memory and uses cartridge programs. An advanced $1,269 system has a disk drive, 128,000 characters of internal memory and uses cartridge and disk software.

PCjr did not arrive on the market until February. The machine's critics had already appeared by then, but their complaints intensified after PCjr began selling in lackluster fashion.

The machine was too expensive for the home yet not capable enough for the office, some argued. Others said PCjr needed more memory to run some of the best-selling programs. Most of all, critics hated PCjr's keyboard for being too awkward for extended use.

The result; "I don't think it's an overstatement to say PCjr is a failure so far," says Douglas Cayne, who follows IBM for the Gartner Group, a research firm in Stamford, Conn.

But Cayne is quick to add: "IBM is committed to the home market and will do whatever it takes to succeed. The question is one of timing."

—The U.S. civilian unemployment in April stayed at 7.8 percent — its third month at that level.

THE OLDER WE GET, THE HARDER WE FALL

None of us likes to think of ourselves as an "older person." You may be one of the lucky ones who feels nary a twinge as the years progress. Your pace hasn't slowed much and you exercise regularly. Nevertheless, time does take its toll, and you should use increased caution as you progress in years.

Many of the injuries suffered by older people are from falling, and most occur in the home.

Other dangers include smoking in bed (a practice best avoided altogether), and preparing meals in loose, flowing, flammable clothing. Older people are particularly susceptible to burns because of their reduced agility. Also, the older person should plan an emergency fire exit route from the house. These precautions may seem at first over-protective. However, older people are especially prone to accidents because they often suffer from impaired hearing or poor eyesight, and coordination is not as it used to be.

The greatest number of back and limb injuries come from falls, especially on stairways, walkways and ladders. The older person should recognize that the bones are brittle and that they will heal more slowly.

The older person should avoid standing on chairs and ladders, getting into awkward positions, or bending or stooping for long periods of time. The older person should seek help for lifting objects and use every tool available to avoid unusual physical exertion.

If a structural injury occurs, the older person should seek immediate professional attention. The doctor of chiropractic is a health specialist who gives special attention to problems of the spine and nervous system. Under chiropractic care, a patient is either treated or referred after a comprehensive differential diagnosis. Chiropractic has been particularly effective in keeping senior citizens ambulatory and active, important elements in having a fulfilling life.

Dallas, Austin dwellings least affordable

AUSTIN (AP) — Homes in Dallas and Austin were the least affordable in 1983, while homes in San Antonio were the most affordable for the same period, a new survey shows.

An index developed by the Texas Real Estate Research Center at Texas A&M Univeristy says Austin housing affordability hit a 10-year low.

Arthur Wright, research economist at A&M, said monthly income would have to rise $500 to about $2,190 to make the average Austin house — costing $88,500 in 1983 — affordable to half the city's home buying population.

He said housing is considered affordable when one-third of the household median income equals the average principal and interest payments.

Brain transplants help mice

NEW YORK (AP) — Mice that had been infertile gave birth to healthy offspring as the result of brain tissue transplants to restore a missing reproductive hormone, a researcher says.

The value of the experiment is that it demonstrates that [illegible] can make the complex hook-ups needed to control reproduction, said the researcher, Marie Gibson of the Mt. Sinai Medical Center in New York.

She said it is unlikely that brain transplants will be used to treat human infertility.

But the experiment raises hopes that such transplants might one day be used to treat ailments like Parkinson's disease and Alzheimer's disease, both caused by defects in the brain.

Ms. Gibson is scheduled to describe her research Saturday at the annual meeting of the American Society for Clinical Investigation in Washington.

She and her collaborators, including Dr. Dorothy Krieger, chief of endocrinology at Mt. Sinai, found that while the transplanted brain tissue did not function completely normally, it did establish numerous connections with the brains into which it was transplanted.

The mice that received the transplants were not only infertile, but their sexual organs were severely underdeveloped, said Ms. Gibson. The transplants sparked the maturation of the sex organs and allowed six of 10 mice to bear normal offspring, she said.

The mice did not have normal reproductive cycles, however. In normal mice, the amounts of various reproductive hormones in the system rise and fall during a cycle of 4-6 days, analagous to the human menstrual cycle, that culminates in ovulation.

In the mice given brain transplants, however, the level of estrogen, the female sex hormone, remained constant at an intermediate level. The mice ovulated only when stimulated by a male, said Ms. Gibson. That presumably means the transplanted brain cells weren't working quite correctly, she said.

The infertile mice lacked a brain hormone called gonadotropin releasing hormone (also called leutinizing hormone releasing hormone). Brain cells producing that hormone were taken from mouse embryos and surgically implanted in a cavity in the brain.

For unknown reasons, brain tissue from embryos works better than other brain tissue, Ms. Gibson said.

The hormone then triggered the release of other hormones, eventually leading to the production of estrogen and subsequent ovulation.

Other research groups are also investigating brain transplants in animals and humans.

G. Miller to present abstract on Rh factor

George G. Miller, son of Frank and Carol Miller of Snyder, will present an abstract of a paper to the Texas Medical Association membership in Fort Worth on May 10.

The abstract is entitled "Erythroplastosis Fetalis, the University of Texas Medical School at Houston Experience." The topic deals with the management of Rh negative women during pregnancy and other obstetrical situations. A detailed review of the literature dealing with the history of the disease from Hippocrates to the present, a review of the pathophysiology, a statistical analysis of the U. T. Houston experience and a proposed management scheme of Rh negative women to be given.

The paper will be submitted for publication in the "Texas Medical Association Journal" and the "Southern Obstetrical and Gynecology Journal."

Miller is a 1976 graduate of Snyder High School, a 1980 graduate of Texas A&M University and in June of this year will graduate from U. T. Houston Medical School with a MD degree. To follow is a three year residency in internal medicine at the Universty of Florida at Gainesville, Fla.

Two Salvadorans jailed for refusing to testify

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two Salvadorans remain in the Cameron County jail this weekend after being held in contempt of court for refusing to testify against a church worker who's on trial for conspiring to transport illegal aliens.

U.S. Judge Filemon Vela ordered Brenda Sanchez-Galan and Mauricio Valle jailed Friday after they said testifying against Stacey Lynn Merkt violated their "Christian principles."

Supporters of a national movement to provide sanctuary to Central Americans view the Merkt trial as an attack by the government on organized opposition to U.S. policy in Central America.

Incarcerating the aliens pits the federal government against the church by threatening first amendment rights protecting freedom of religion, defense attorneys said.

Judge Vela asked Valle and Mrs. Sanchez-Galan if they understood the consequences of refusing to testify.

"Your honor, my principles as a Christian don't let me speak in this case," Valle said softly. "I cannot say anything that was said to me in confidence."

"I respect your principles and I have to work by the same standards," Vela replied before sentencing the 20-year-old Salvadoran to jail.

Mrs. Sanchez-Galan smiled across the courtroom at Ms. Merkt, who wept as the 19-year-old mother was led away by a U.S. Marshal. Under the judge's order, the pair will remain incarcerated for 179 days or until they agree to testify.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra said the Salvadorans had been granted immunity before being subpoened to testify.

Valle and Mrs. Sanchez-Galan worked in a Lutheran church sponsored displaced persons camp in San Salvador before coming to this country. The American Lutheran Church helped the two come to this country after other workers in the camp were abducted and tortured or killed, defense attorneys said.

They were arrested Feb. 17 with Ms. Merkt, Sister Dianne Muhlenkamp of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Dallas Times Herald reporter Jack Fischer, when Border Patrol agents stopped the Catholic Diocese-owned car in which they were traveling to San Antonio.

A volunteer at two church-supported refugee halfway houses in San Benito and Colorado Springs, Colo., Ms. Merkt faces up to 15 years in prison if convicted.

During recess, Merkt's attorney, Daniel Sheehan, a former Jesuit priest and director of the Washington-based Christic Institute public interest law firm, said he was surprised by the judge's actions.

"The Christian Church in America has risen up and almost uniformly asserted a privilege covering all information obtained confidentially by employees of the church who are assisting bona fide refugees," he said.

Sheehan said confidential communications with religious workers are protected under the first amendment.

He said the National Council of Churches and other religious organizations have told him they will be filing briefs Monday to register support for the Salvadorans' stand.

Guerra said, however, that the first amendment does not grant any special status between the Salvadorans and Ms. Merkt.

"I've never seen a proposition like this upheld by any court," he said.

"Confidentiality extends only to one receiving communication, like a priest. So how can Brenda and Mauricio have privilege when they were the ones making the communication not receiving it?" Guerra said.

Prosecutors called Fischer and two Border Patrol investigators to testify Friday afternoon.

Fischer, whose case has not been presented to the grand jury, told the eight-man four-woman jury about circumstances surrounding the arrest as they were reported in a newspaper story he wrote about the event.

Must relay foreign message

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush says President Reagan's trip to China showed there's much more to American-Chinese relations than similar defense interests.

The Chinese have a "long, long way" to go before they enjoy as much freedom as Americans have, but their country has "much more openness" today than ever before, Bush said Friday.

The vice president told more than 850 members of Houston's Forum Club, a speakers' platform group, that Reagan's trip showed "there's much more to this (U.S.-Chinese) relationship than just parallel strategic (arms) interests."

Bush said the U.S. has no role in diplomatic relations between China and Taiwan and said the two nations must work out their own difference.

"The biggest problem between China and the U.S. is obviously Taiwan," Bush said. "For our part, we will not turn our back on friends."

Vitamin E linked to deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration conceded Friday that it erred in failing to stop sales of an unapproved intravenous Vitamin E drug which has been linked to the deaths of 38 premature infants.

"What we realize with the benefit of hindsight is, that was a wrong decision," said Dr. Harry Meyer, Director of the FDA's Center for Drugs and Biologics.

"This product should have had more scrutiny than it got," added Dr. Mark Novitch, acting commissioner of the FDA.

The two men were among the witnesses called by the House Government Operations subcommittee on intergovernmental relations which was examining the way the FDA handled E-Ferol Aqueous Solution, a drug made by Carter-Glogau, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Revco D.S. Inc. of Twinsburg, Ohio.

The subcommittee chairman said the evidence suggests the FDA may need a "total review and revamping."

When FDA was told in November 1983 the drug was being sold despite its not being approved by the agency, one of its compliance officers decided to give the matter a low priority. That officer, James Hamilton, said he made the decision because there was no evidence of safety problems and because other Vitamin E formulations already were being sold. None of those had FDA approval either, he said.

The subcommittee also was told by one doctor the drug distributor knew that deaths might have been associated with use of E-Ferol as early as January 1984, but the information was not given to the FDA.

But another physician, Curtis Paul McCammon, director of Tennessee Memorial Research Center and Hospital in Knoxville, Tenn., said company officials told his hospital they did not know of any deaths or injuries linked with the drug when the hospital made inquiries on March 19, 1984, after five infant deaths there.

Novitch said the FDA might have been able to have the drug recalled earlier than it was — April 10, 1984 — if hospitals that suspected a problem with the drug had informed the agency.

Dentist's advertising said 'deceptive'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A controversial dentist who was reprimanded by the Texas Board of Medical Examiners for publishing "deceptive" advertising in a newspaper ad warns the medical panel hasn't heard the last from him.

The board Friday found Dr. Barry Solomon guilty of "false, misleading and deceptive" advertising because he claimed in a newspaper ad that gum disease was "totally preventable."

"That's a Kangaroo Court. Oh God, that's a Kangaroo Court," Solomon, 42, shouted from his seat as the guilty vote was read.

The panel unanimously found the dentist guilty and it could have revoked or suspended his license. But they instead voted 8-3 to reprimand him.

Dr. William Haskell, a board member, said the hearing, which started Thursday, was attended by one of the largest gatherings of dentists because it was being conducted at the Convention Center, where the annual meeting of the Texas Dental Association was also being held.

"It's an advertising case. That's probably one of the reason it's of particular interest," said Dominick DePaola, Dean of the Dental School at the University of Health Science Center.

At one point, some 150 dentists could be found crowded inside the hearing room.

Dr. Will Graham, of Borger, recommended the board only reprimand Solomon because he said he didn't think the ad that ran in two suburban San Antonio newspapers Feb. 7, 1983 posed "any great danger to the public."

William Nail, an adminstrative assistant for the board, said a formal order reprimanding Solomon would be sent to him within the next 60 days.

Despite the minor penalty, Solomon said "This won't be the last they'll hear about this."

Solomon heads two Family Dental Health Centers run by a staff of 12 dentists. He said his 60,000 patients have never complained about his practice.

"It's always the other dentists," he said. "It's because we were succesful."

Solomon uses a system developed by Dr. Paul Keys of the National Institutes of Health in Maryland. The Keys technique involves testing for micro organisms, removing plaque from tooth roots, cleaning with antiseptic agents and educating the patient about gum disease.

The "Western Texas," campus newspaper at Western Texas College, has received a first place rating in the junior/community college division of the American Scholastic Press Association in Wheatly Heights, New York.

"You have an excellent publication which displays a high degree of professionalism in its writing, editing and layout," one ASPA judge said. "Congratulations to all staff members whose contributions have helped to make the 'Western Texan' a sussess."

Special week to note rare disease

President Reagan has proclaimed May 6-13 "National Tuberous Sclerosis Week," and the designation has significant meaning for the Snyder grandparents of three-year-old Pam Boley.

Pam is the granddaughter of Jane Boley and Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle Strickland, all of Snyder. The youngster lives in Cross Plains and has been diagnosed as having the rare disease.

Tuberous Sclerosis is a genetic disease identified in the late 1800s. Despite being known for more than 100 years, it remains poorly understood and frequently misdiagnosed. Awareness is extremely low and no significant research has been done to combat the disorder.

Tuberous Sclerosis is generally characterized by one or more of the following conditions: seizures, mental retardation, white spots of the skin, tumors in the brain and internal organs, and skin lesions.

Early diagnosis is critical because of the importance of genetic counseling. A person midly afflicted has a 50 percent chance of having a child with Tuberous Sclerosis, and there is no way to predict the severity of the child's symptoms.

The National Tuberous Sclerosis Association is a non-profit voluntary health organization established in 1974 to provide support and information to those affected and to stimulate research.

A research project is currently studying six extended families, each with three generations of Tuberous Sclerosis. The goal of the research is to identify the genetic marker, the location on the chromosome that is unique to the disease.

Persons desiring information about the disease may write NTSA, P. O. Box 612, Winfield, Ill. 60190.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this man I'll call John for a year. He's 27 and I'm 29. I'm divorced with two sons, 8 and 9 years old. My kids adore John, but he doesn't care for kids. He says if we did get married he could put up with them for maybe four days a month. (He wants me to send the boys to live with their father, which I don't want to do because they'd rather be with me, and their father doesn't really want them.)

John likes his women pencil thin. I'm 5 foot 7 and when we met I weighed 90 pounds. (I suffered from anorexia, but I'm over it now.) I shot up to 128 pounds and everybody thought I looked great, but John wanted me thinner, so I started to work out two and three hours a day. I'm down to 117, and John says, "After you lose 6 more pounds you'll be perfect!"

Another thing. He says he doesn't see anyone but me, but when I'm at his place and the phone rings, he doesn't want me to answer it, and he doesn't either—he just lets it ring. Strange, isn't it?

Believe it or not, Abby, he says he loves me, and I must love him because I even stopped going to my shrink because John didn't want me discussing our problems with anybody. Help me!

FEELING SAD

DEAR FEELING SAD: Go back to your shrink and find out why you need this selfish, tyrannical, abusive man in your life. He doesn't love you—he loves only himself—and the sooner you get rid of him, the better.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Every year my brother forgets my birthday. (I never forget his.)

Last year he telephoned me the morning of my birthday to wish me a happy birthday and said, "I have a little something for you, but I'm a little under the weather now. I'll bring it around when I'm feeling better." Well, I never got it.

This year he called three days before my birthday and asked me what I wanted for my birthday. I said, "Nothing"—which is exactly what I got.

My brother is good to me. He makes all my car payments, pays for my car insurance and car repairs, and if I need any money I can always count on him to give it to me.

Am I being petty for feeling hurt because he never remembers my birthday?

FORGOTTEN SISTER

DEAR FORGOTTEN: He doesn't forget your birthday, he just forgets to deliver a gift on that day. In view of his extraordinary generosity throughout the year, I think you should overlook his occasional lapse of memory. You're batting 364-to-1, which isn't too shabby. Every woman should have a brother like yours.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are planning to get married. I'm 25 and he's 26. The problem is his parents. They are divorced and hate the sight of each other. Each refuses to attend the wedding and reception if the other is present.

Please don't tell me to have two weddings. My fiance and I are paying for it and one is all we can afford. Hurry your answer. I have to make a choice.

PROBLEM PARENTS

DEAR PROBLEM: You don't have to make a choice, his parents do. Invite them both, and if they aren't sufficiently mature to put aside their hostilities for this one very important occasion, it will be their loss.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Now that the tourist season is upon us, this might be helpful. If friends or relatives ask you to buy something for them in a foreign country ("Pick up a nice jade ring in Hong Kong" or "Bring me a pretty piece of Thai silk from Bangkok"), don't consider it unless (1) they give you the money first, (2) give you a detailed description of what they want and (3) agree to accept it whether they like it or not.

Twice I was stuck by relatives who refused to accept the items I had purchased at their request. They said they weren't what they wanted and they refused to reimburse me. I had absolutely no use for these things, but there was nothing I could do about it.

Pass this along, Abby. I wish I'd been warned.

Stray dogs, cats killed

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of stray animals destroyed in Houston has increased so dramatically that city officials now refer to the problem as tonnage — instead of counting the animals, an animal control official says.

Robert Armstrong, head of the Houston Bureau of Animal Control, said Friday the stray animal problem in Houston is "out of control" and is resulting in 110 cats and dogs being put to death daily.

He said that equals to 7½ tons of animals destroyed a week. At that rate, he said the total could reach 390 tons for the year.

Armstrong estimated the dog and cat population at 750,000, but said two-thirds of them were not regularly cared for. He said only 40,000 were vaccinated against rabies.

In an interview with the Houston Post, Armstrong insisted he was not trying to create a panic, but said he was being dramatic in order to educate city residents.

As of May 1, city officials received reports from 775 people that had been bitten and 100 required treatment from a doctor. But Armstrong said he believed only one of every three bites was reported.

Just one case of rabies has been detected and that was in a bat, he said.

Armstrong said the situation can be eased if his department's $2 million budget is increased by another $1 million. Most of the money would go for boosting his staff of 50 animal control officers, Armstrong said.

Each officer covers an area of about 35 square miles.

"That's a little ridiculous," he said.

Houston ordinances require pet owners to license their animals. But Armstrong said no more than 2 percent of the animals were properly tagged.

"I've seen as many as 50 cats being kept at a single home," he said.

Lady Tigers take second

AUSTIN -- Coach Jan Kruse's Lady Tigers played well to take second place in the Class 4A State Golf Tournament here Friday, edging Borger 760 to 763. Grapevine won the two-day tournament going away, with a fine 739.

"We really wanted to beat Borger," said Coach Kruse. "I'm very proud of our girls."

Borger had come from behind to beat the three-time District 2-4A champions in the Region I-AAAA Tournament this season.

Snyder jumped in front of Borger quickly here, but simply couldn't catch Mineral Wells, which had a six-stroke lead after the first round.

"They had a couple of 80s and a couple of 90s. We probably should have played better yesterday (Friday) but we're not disappointed," said Kruse, who noted that a contingent of about 25 Snyder fans gave support to the girls. "We had a lot of fans from Snyder. That really excited the kids. We really appreciated that. It helped us out a lot."

Snyder senior Lisa Franklin shot a total 167 to finish third in the medalist competition. Hollie Frizzell of Grapevine won medalist honors with a 151.

In addition to Franklin's rounds of 84 and 83, Snyder got a 95 from freshman Leslie Light - her best score ever. Added to her 102 of Thursday, she had a total 197. Rebekah Powell shot a 196, Xalyn Harris a 204 and Susan Hamlett a 207.

Harris is a sophomore, Powell a freshman and Hamlett a senior.

The trip was the second for Snyder, which placed fifth here when Franklin was a sophomore.

Thompson places 7th...

Sweetwater girls win state

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Snyder's Karlene Thompson placed seventh here in the state 4A triple jump Friday.

The sophomore was not discouraged with her placing, but was unhappy with the distance.

"Seventh doesn't bother me but I was disgusted with not getting a better jump," said Thompson, who jumped 37-3¼ feet. Her best has been 38-3 this season.

"I think next time I'll do better. I kind of know what it's like now," she said.

In two years, Thompson has qualified to regionals in seven different events - the 100, 200, 400, triple jump, long jump and the 800 and 1600 meter relays. This was her first trip to the state tournament.

"We're real proud of Karlene," said Coach Patty Grimmett. "She tried her best. Just making it to state means she's one of the eight best. And she's got a lot of future in front of her."

The 4A triple jump was won by Cynthia Cook of Fort Worth Carter Riverside with a leap of 40-2¾.

Fort Worth Polytechnic sprinter Lisa Ford tied a state record in the 100 meter dash and set a Class 4A record in the 200 meters Friday night, but her team finished second to Sweetwater for the team championship in the University Interscholastic League girls' state track and field meet.

Sweetwater captured the 4A title by a 42-40 margin over Fort Worth Polytechnic and Paris finished third.

Altair Rice and Diboll tied for the Class 3A crown with 58 points each and Gilmer was third with 34.

Ford started the evening by defending her 100-meter crown with a 11.4 clocking that ties the state record set by Palestine Westwood's Bonita Brown last year. Ford hit the tape at 24.1 in the 200 meters, beating the 4A record of 24.2 set by Donna Sherfield, San Antonio Southwest in 1978.

Austin Westlake's Sheila Quigley set a 4A record of 4:47.3 in the 1600-meter run and the Brenham 1600-meter relay team established a 4A record with a 3:47.5 time.

In earlier performances, Melinda Clark of A&M Consolidated won the Class 4A high jump for the third time in four years with a record tying performance and Sherry Deckard of Nacogdoches upset the defending champion with a record toss in the 5A discus.

Clark tied her own Class 4A record with a leap of 5-10, easily beating runnerup Davona Randolp, Stephenville, who was second at 5-7.

Clark missed three tries at 6 feet, which would have broken the state record of 5-11 by former Red Oak jumper Louise Ritter. A leap of 6-0 12 would have given Clark an automatic spot in the Olympic Trials.

Sweetwater won the 4A 400-meter relay in a time of 47.9.

Kim Whitaker of New Braunfels won her third straight state title with a 10:45.8 clocking in the 3200-meter run, narrowly missing her 4A record of 10:43.2 set at last year's meet. Bridgett Wilson, Corpus Christi Flour Bluff, was second in 11:30.4.

Deckard upset defending champion Latricia Frank of La Marque with a 5A record heave of 146-7

Deckard, who finished third in the event last year with a toss of 131-4, broke the old conference record of 146-1 set by Bryan's Jo

Tigers at region; Peterson to 100

BROWNWOOD -- Chad Peterson qualified eighth in the preliminaries of the 100 meter run at the Region I-AAAA boy's track meet here Friday.

Peterson ran a 10.78 to make the cut into Saturday's finals.

The all-around talent ran a 22.4 in the 200 however, and did not reach the finals.

Snyder was to compete then in four events here Saturday. Peterson was to vie in this morning's long jump - his best event - and in the 100 meters this afternoon.

Teammate Ricky Vaughn was to compete in the discus this morning, while Kyle Freeman was entered in the shot put later in the day.

First and second place finishers in the meet will advance to the Class 4A State Meet in Austin.

"I thought Chad ran well," said Snyder Coach Robert Crawford. "But he can run faster than a 10.78. I think he'll move up out of eighth in the finals. We have a good chance to do some good in all three (field) events Saturday. The kids are looking forward to the challenge."

WTC women holding down first in three rodeo events

HOBBS, N.M. -- Western Texas College rodeo teams came into the final regular rodeo here in second place and it appears they are working hard to retain those positions.

Western Texas' girls started off as pacesetters here by taking the early lead in three events.

"They started off real well. Canita Cass is winning the breakaway roping with a 3.6 time. Kellie Kyle is first in goat tying with a 10.6 second run. She is also winning the barrel race with a 17.78," said WTC Coach Bob Doty.

No one on the men's six-man team from Western was scheduled up Thursday. They will compete in performances tonight at 7:30 and Sunday at 1:30 (MDT).

However, WTC's Craig Murdock did team up with Clinton Ware of Texas Tech in the team roping. They timed in at 9.3 and currently hold down second place.

"New Mexico Junior College (men) started off well last night and it looks like it's going to go right down to the last few bullriders," said Bob Doty, whose Westerners lead the Thunderbirds by a slim margin.

First and second place teams in the Southwest Region will advance to the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont.

For 2-4A runnerup...

Andrews, Pecos locked

As expected, Andrews and Pecos baseball teams both ended up with 6-4 records in District 2-4A and will have to enter a one-game playoff to determine which will serve as conference runnerup.

Date and time of the playoff had not been determined by Saturday morning.

Snyder, 10-0, had wrapped up the championship - its eighth straight - over a week ago. The Tigers completed their perfect record by defeating Monahans 17-5 on Thursday.

In games Friday, Andrews used two home runs to defeat Lamesa 5-2 while Pecos drubbed Fort Stockton 16-4. No details on the Pecos game were available.

Andrews did all of its scoring in the third inning on a three-run homer by Weldon Kaufman and a two-run homer by Destry Simpson. Shay Morris went six and a third innings to pick up WP honors. Johnny Gonzales was the loser.

loans that fit our guidelines," he said. Loans which conform to standard bank guidelines will simply be transferred to the new bank. Collier said he expects these to be "by far in the majority."

Notes which the bank does not buy will be serviced by FDIC.

Johnson invited individuals with loans at the bank to visit with them regarding their notes, but added the 7-10 day period should be allowed to complete the review.

Anyone with a "pressing credit need" could come in immediately, he noted.

Bank hours will remain the same through the transition and all FNB checks will be honored. He said new ASB checks will be issued to all customers.

In addition, the bank will also maintain the automatic teller service. They will change it to "Tillie the Teller," however, a feature of the Lubbock bank.

At some point, new cards for the automatic teller will also be issued. All old customers of the service will receive these.

A new service will also be available through the bank — a trust department for the handling of family estate trusts.

As of Saturday morning, the only confirmed executive officer for the bank was Johnson.

He said he will be moving his family to Snyder "as soon as I can find a house."

He is a 1966 graduate of Levelland High School and a 1971 graduate of West Texas State in Canyon.

He and his wife Becky have two daughters and a son, Mandy, age 16; Julie, age 6; and Reid, age 3.

Demos seek peace treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capitalizing on a conciliatory theme sounded by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, national party leaders are stepping up their efforts to reach a "peace treaty" among the Democratic presidential candidates to prevent disputes from erupting into messy floor fights at the July convention.

Democratic National Committee Chairman Charles T. Manatt jumped into the negotiations on Friday, meeting with top aides to Walter F. Mondale and asking to meet with Jackson and Sen. Gary Hart.

Manatt's spokesman, Gene Russell, said the chairman informed the campaigns of all three candidates that he will propose a "party unity task force," to resolve disputes among the contenders, the New York Times reported.

Seek to present arguments in custody case

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — A father who won custody of his daughter because his former wife married a black man believes grounds other than race warrant leaving the child with him, an attorney says.

Bill Hawtrey said Friday his client, Anthony J. Sidoti, is not asking state courts to overrule the Supreme Court, which acted April 25 in the woman's favor and overturned a Florida court's ruling in Sidoti's favor.

Hawtrey said he wishes only to present new arguments for leaving the child with his client.

The Florida appeals court held that Linda Palmore's interracial marriage was reason enough to award custody of 6-year-old Melanie Sidoti to her father, a Bryan air conditioner repairman.

Texas District Judge W.T. "Tom" McDonald last week granted Sidoti's request for a temporary restraining order barring Mrs. Palmore, of Seffner, Fla., from removing the child from Brazos County.

But McDonald dissolved the order Friday and admitted he lacked jurisdiction over Mrs. Palmore to issue such a ruling. He agreed to withdraw the order after the mother agreed not to take the child from Byran, where she lives with her father, until the end of the school year.

McDonald ordered attorneys for each side to appear at a May 18 hearing to determine whether he or a Florida court has jurisdiction over the child.

Attorneys for Sidoti had asked McDonald to make his injunction against the mother permanent.

Sidoti's attorneys contend Texas courts should decide the custody case because the child has lived in the state for a year.

Bank closed here Friday

$28.9 million and installment loans at $18.4 million.

As of March 30, the end of the last quarter, FNB reported deposits of $22.1 million and loans of $13.5 million.

An $8 million loss in deposits and a $4 million drop in loans was noted during April and the first week of May.

After Friday's closing, the net effect to the average depositor at FNB will be "business as ususal," Whitney said.

He said all deposits at FNB which do not exceed the federal insurance limit of $100,000 are insured by FDIC. These accounts will be available to their owners Monday and checks drawn on First National accounts will continue to be honored.

These deposits entail some 3,400 accounts equaling about $15.2 million.

The FDIC reported that another $346,700 in deposits at FNB would be classified as uninsured since these individual deposits exceeded the $100,000 limit.

Based upon an estimate of assets of the bank, these depositors will be paid 40 percent value of their deposits beginning next week.

As all of the bank's assets are sold, Whitney said a higher payment than 40 percent might eventually be paid. These depositors — which were characterized as relatively few — are guaranteed no less than 40 percent, however.

Regarding stockholders, Whitney said Saturday it will be some time before it is determined if the old bank's stock has any value.

He characterized the chances of stockholders regaining money from their investments Friday as "not very rosy."

FNB's application as Snyder's third bank was filed with the Comptroller of Currency in August of 1979. On Aug. 21 of that year, notice of the charter approval was received.

In November of 1980, Lewis B. Nance was named president of the new bank and construction was begun on a new building at the corner of 37th St. and College Ave. Until it was completed, a temporary modular facility was used.

First National opened for business Jan. 16, 1981 with first-day deposits of $2.8 million. At the end of 1981, deposits had grown to $22.7 million and the bank was recognized as the second-fastest growing new bank in Texas.

In September of 1981, Phil Guerry, who had served as executive vice president of the bank since its opening, was named bank president. Later that month, the bank moved into its new facility.

Sam Spikes, an organizer of the bank, served as chairman of the board until April of 1983 when he sold his stock to a group of local investors and resigned from the board.

Spikes had also served as chairman of banks in Seminole, Brownfield and Lubbock. All of these have been closed by the FDIC this year.

FNB gained a new bank president in February as Larry Hearn, a former state bank examiner and president of the PetroBank in Houston, was named. His hiring was prompted by the resignation of Guerry, who entered private business in Spur.

Two wrecks investigated

Snyder police were called to investigate two minor traffic mishaps, one a hit-and-run incident, Friday.

Carl E. Hattabaugh of Hermleigh filed the hit-and-run report at 9:43 a.m. He told police that his 1983 Chevrolet had been struck by an unidentified vehicle while it was parked at Kmart Thursday afternoon.

Friday's only accident was reported at 9:05 p.m. in the 2200 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1973 Ford driven by Salvador Luna, Jr. of 2510 Ave. B and a 1983 Ford driven by Willie Cox of Rt. 1, Snyder.

No injuries were reported in either incident.

2 students are injured

were also suffering from multiple cuts and bruises sustained in the mishap.

Merket and Woolf were eastbound on U.S. 84 and reportedly eroute to Hamlin at the time of the accident.

Arrests noted

Snyder police investigated a number of calls Friday but four misdemeanor arrests were the only official action of the day.

Three persons were jailed for public intoxication and a fourth suspect for DWI Friday evening.

DEAR READERS: Next Sunday is Mother's Day. And so soon after income tax time, which has left most of us a little short. Dry your tears. I have a suggestion for a Mother's Day gift that could be the most appreciated gift your mother has ever received. And the price is right.

It makes no difference if you're 9 years old or 70, if you're lucky enough to have a mother, sit down and write her a letter. It doesn't have to be a literary masterpiece, just a few sentences telling her how much she means to you and why. If you happen to be in a sentimental mood, go ahead and write your heart out, expressing some thoughts you've never verbalized. And be sure to date it, because long after the nightgowns, purses and hankies are worn and discarded, I'll bet your letter will remain tucked away for safekeeping with some other treasures your mother couldn't bear to throw away.

How do I know? My letters were.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The recently discussed problem of wives who refuse or are reluctant to have sex with their husbands has a simple solution.

Prior to the marriage ceremony, these women should inform their prospective husbands that they do not intend to honor the marriage contract, i.e., that they intend to be "non-wives," occasional wives or reluctant wives.

Otherwise, entering into the marriage contract constitutes fraud, and the defrauded husband should boot her worthless rear out immediately and seek an annulment.

(MR.) E.J.A.,
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

DEAR Mr. A.: And what about the woman who had every intention of honoring her marriage contract, but after the vows have been said she finds herself yoked to an inconsiderate brute whose sole interest is in satisfying himself?

Should she "boot his worthless rear out" immediately and seek an annulment?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Finally! Heartiest congratulations on your courage to tell it like it is. You said what most clergymen don't care to go into these days. A gal, 18, and her 22-year-old boyfriend decided to live together, but their parents objected, saying if they wanted to live together they should get married first. (Aren't they stinkers?)

The young couple gave as an excuse that they didn't want to get married because their religion looked down on divorce, and you said loud and clear, "I know of no religion that looks down on divorce that also doesn't look down on fornication."

Abby, you have burst the bubble of widespread hypocrisy—that the young can eat its cake and have it, too.

Please print this and use my name.

SAMUEL HOFFMAN,
SUNRISE, FLA.

DEAR SAM: Before I accept any orchids, read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am afraid you are rather parochial because there are religions that do not look down on fornication. Perhaps not in the United States, but there are some.

YVONNE L. IN NEW YORK

DEAR YVONNE: I didn't say there were none, I said I knew of none. But if you (or anyone else) does, I would appreciate the information.

* * *

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Mrs. Carl Gray celebrates her 90th birthday

Mrs. Carl Gray celebrated her 90th birthday April 22 at her home, 4505 Garwood. A reception was given by her daughters, Lorene Gale and Leta Lloyd, in her honor.

Nellie Gray, who is affectionately called "Chatchie" was born April 22, 1894 in Indian Territory of Oklahoma. Her parents were E. A. and G. W. Smoot. She was the oldest daughter of a family of eight children. A sister, Louie May Smith, lives in Lubbock.

Nellie, along with her family, moved to Scurry County when she was 12 years old.

She was married to Carl Gray Dec. 24, 1911 by Rev. S. C. Shipley sitting in a buggy on the prairie near Vincent. They farmed and ranched in Borden County.

She and her sister-in-law, Ora Gray, reminisce about "pulling cows out of the bog" and driving cattle two miles to a well and hand-drawing water for them during the drought of 1917.

Mrs. Gray recalls her father hauling a bunch of chickens to Big Spring for her one time which sold for $49.50. He took 50 cents more out of his pocket and gave her saying, "Here, daughter, I want you to have $50 for those chickens.

It was about 1927 when Mr. and Mrs. Gray purchased their first registered Hereford cattle. Through the years many young calves were sold to young people for 4-H and F.F.A. projects. In 1933 they left the "ol' stomping grounds" and moved to Scurry County to put down their roots. It was here that the registered Herefords occupied their main interest until retirement. Mr. Gray passed away on May 14, 1972.

Mrs. Gray, a member of 37th Street Church of Christ, remains active by caring for her home, flowers and garden. She has 11 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren, and nine great-great grandchildren.

Out of town guests attended from Wendell, ID, Gooding, ID Coleman, Dalhart, Luling, Fluvanna, Lubbock, Laguna Hills, CA, Dallas, Hermleigh, Ira, San Antonio, Albuquerque, NM, McDonald, NM, Stanton, Farmersville, Rowlett, Gail, El Paso, Big Spring, Colorado City, and Abilene.

In late 1758, a strong force of British troops reached Pittsburgh to find a French force had destroyed its supplies and burned the buildings of the tiny outpost and then left for Canada. The abandonment of Pittsburgh by the French gave England control of the early West.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Harry Fishbein was not the greatest player, but he was perhaps the most colorful and he was capable of really great plays. Here is a hand which has been published before but is one of the greatest hands of all time.

Harry took the ace of clubs and promptly ruffed dummy's other club. A silly-looking play, but the only one to give him his contract.

His next play was the ace of spades. West showed out and Harry had a sure trump loser. It didn't cause Harry any real trouble. He simply cashed his queen of hearts and started with diamonds. East could ruff the second, the third or the fourth diamond, but no play would help him. After ruffing the diamond, he would be unable to keep South out of dummy and South would discard any remaining diamond losers on hearts.

Look at the beauty of that early club ruff. Without it East could safely exit with a club and Harry could get to dummy only by overtaking his queen of hearts.

Harry had been lucky, but as Napoleon said, "God is on the side of the general with the better artillery." In turn we can say, "The gods of chance respect the player who gives himself an extra chance."

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Many companies encourage money-saving suggestions.

Pitney Bowes says its suggestion program has resulted in savings of millions of dollars for the firm since 1943. In the past five years alone, the program has produced savings of more than $2 million. In the same period, it has enriched employees, whose suggestions are adopted, by some $400,000.

Awards for winning suggestions are based on the money saved by Pitney Bowes. Employees can win a maximum of $30,000 per suggestion, paid in increments of $10,000 over a three-year period.

In 1974, the U.N. General Assembly granted observer status to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Piano Guild auditions scheduled

Local piano pupils from the classes of Mmes. Billy Tune, Kenny Kornegay, Jerry Neill, Virgil Mott and Wayne Bethel have enrolled in the National Piano Playing Auditions sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, teacher division of the American College of Musicians.

Auditions will be held May 7-12 in the parlor of First Baptist Church with Miss Jeannine Greene as adjudicator.

The biggest piano event in the world is conducted in over 700 audition centers from coast to coast with more than 96,000 piano teachers and students participating. Most entrants will be certified, given a gold, silver or bronze embossed pin, and a year's membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians and Piano Hobbyists of the World.

Awards for students participating in the auditions include certificates, pins, plaques, diplomas, and scholarships. Incentives and awards help increase the skills and knowledge of students due to the effort put forth in getting ready for the auditions.

Miss Greene holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wayland Baptist University and a master of music degree from Baylor University. She has studied privately at Texas Tech University and attended numerous workshops. Her professional affiliations include National Guild of Piano Teachers, Music Teachers National Assn., Texas Music Teachers Assn., Plainview Music Teachers Assn., and Lubbock Music Teachers Assn. She has MTNA national certification and ACM certification from the NGTA. She has judged National Guild auditions, sonatina festivals and hymn festivals.

For 25 years she has maintained a private studio in Plainview, teaching piano and theory.

For the past three years Miss Greene has been coordinator of pre-collegiate music at Wayland Baptist University. She is also active in the Musical Arts Club of Plainview.

GARDEN CHECK LIST FOR MAY

1. Watch for the first sign of young bagworms on junipers and other narrow leafed evergreens. These caterpillars hatch from eggs that overwintered in the protective bag left by the female last season. The small larvae feed on available foliage and spin a silken bag about themselves for protection. They carry this bag with them wherever they go, attaching bits of leaves and sticks to the outside as they feed. Bagworms are more easily controlled while small. Good control is usually obtained using a thorough coverage spray of malathion, dimethoate or sevin.

2. It is not too late to sow directly into the soil, seeds of sunflower, zinnia, morning glory, portulaca, marigold, cosmos and gourds. Achimenes, cannas, dahlias and other summer flowering bulbs can also be planted in May.

3. To get maximum flower production from crape myrtle be sure to fertilize them with a complete fertilizer this month.

4. Lace bugs are often found this month on the underside of the leaves of pyracantha, live oak, azaleas and other choice plants. Acephate, dimethoate, diazinon or malathion will give good control.

5. Do not forget to spray roses for black spot control. Use triforine, phaltan, benomyl or maneb at seven day intervals.

6. Gardenias are acid loving plants and must receive special care if grown in neutral or alkaline soil. Iron chlorosis is a frequent problem under these conditions. Consult L-435 for information on how to overcome iron chlorosis.

7. Do not neglect to pinch back the terminal growth on newly planted annual and perennial plants. This will result in shorter, more compact, better branched plants with more flowers.

8. Time to plant caladium tubers, impatiens and begonias in those shady areas.

9. Chinch bugs are working in most St. Augustine lawns. Apply diazinon, aspon, dursban or ethion. Follow label instructions.

10. Make cuttings of your favorite chrysanthemums and root them in a mixture of sand and peat moss. Cover cutting box with plastic and place in shaded area for five or six days to prevent wilting.

11. Replace or replenish mulch materials in flower beds and shrub borders to conserve moisture and reduce weed growth.

Job searching takes planning

NEW YORK (AP) — Summer has a reputation as a bad time for job-hunting but it's possible to beat the odds, according to an expert in the field.

"In summer, many companies are gearing up for fall. Therefore, they may be hiring," said John H. Brinckerhoff, senior vice president, Communispond Outplacement Services. To help job-hunters cope and win, he offers these "summer-ized" suggestions:

—Ignore those who urge you to save your time and energy for fall. A break in the job hunting momentum can be fatal.

—Be single-minded. Others may be caught up in the "vacation syndrome," but you have just one objective: to land a job.

—Make every day count. If you find prospective employers leaving early on Fridays or coming in late on Mondays, use those days for record-keeping and letter-writing.

—Resist the temptation to take a vacation yourself. In the job market, absence is a negative.

—Don't be put off by short holiday weeks — Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day. If an interviewer can find time, you can, too.

—Double-check your "circle of contacts" so you don't miss anyone who's been taking time off.

—If the person you call is on vacation, leave your name, but don't expect a prompt response. When that person's due back, call again.

Mooar home near Snyder

This picture was taken at the J. Wright Mooar home about 10 miles northwest of Snyder. J. Wright Mooar is second from the left and Wayne Boren is third from the left. This beautiful home was built in 1908 and was one of the best homes to be found in Scurry County. Mooar lived there until his death on May 1, 1940.

The home was built within 300 yards of the creek where J. Wright Mooar killed the white buffalo. He had first seen this area on Oct. 7, 1876 and he liked its beauty and peacefulness.

He planted pecan trees and dug a well just a short distance from this house. He first lived here as a hunter in the buffalo hunters' camp, but he liked it so well that he stayed for most of his life.

The house slowly fell to pieces. Some say mortar was not mixed strongly enough. It stood for a few years with windows and doors missing and hay stored in the rooms which once housed the Mooar family. Finally, Judy Hays, granddaughter of Mr. Mooar and present owner of the property, had the old house torn down.

It had seen many wonderful and historic events, and the likes of it will never be seen again in Scurry County.

Prince avoids repeat of incident

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Prince Andrew, who splattered photographers with paint during his trip to Los Angeles last month, steered clear of a repeat performance during his latest encounter with the press.

British photographers held a sign over their heads that read "Stand here for a top coat" of paint as the 24-year-old prince left a photographers' exhibition at London's Commonwealth Institute on Thursday.

The prince took one glance at it, said "I don't need one," and quickly departed in his royal limousine.

When Andrew arrived to officially open the exhibition, he told waiting journalists standing beneath a "Quiet please" sign to "take notice."

Andrew, third in line to the British throne, sprayed photographers with white paint from a pressurized spray gun during a tour of a Los Angeles housing project on April 17. He later apologized and said it was an accident.

Tony Curtis considers estate buy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A realtor says actor Tony Curtis is negotiating to buy the $3.7 million Pauma Valley estate of automaker John Z. De Lorean, who is being prosecuted for allegedly conspiring to traffic in cocaine.

Realtor Athan Vlahos confirmed Thursday the $3.7 million asking price for the ranch estate in the secluded valley at the foot of Palomar Mountain, 50 miles northeast of San Diego, but would not say what Curtis has offered.

"We're in the negotiating stage," said Vlahos, vice president of Vlahos Properties.

Curtis, 58, and his bride of two weeks, Andria, 21, were driven by Vlahos to see the estate last Sunday, the day after they had attended a party in Coronado celebrating the 25th anniversary of the movie, "Some Like it Hot."

"I know that he has a great affection for San Diego. He loves the esthetics here," Vlahos said of Curtis. "He wants a retreat for his life; he wants to relax. The proximity to Los Angeles yet the privacy that San Diego County can afford makes it a very unique area."

Joe Cocker arrested

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Joe Cocker spent about 36 hours in jail after concert organizers alleged they lost the equivalent of $21,000 because the British pop singer missed a May 1 concert.

Upon his release Thursday night, Cocker said Austrian authorities had dropped accusations against him of accepting money for the missed concert.

Cocker, 39, and his European tour manager, Martin Biallas, were arrested Wednesday and appeared at two days of City Court hearings. Biallas said he, too, was free to leave Austria.

Craftsman speaks language

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — The best way to outfox a seasoned turkey is a good box, says Erchel Cook, who handcrafts turkey calls in a shop behind his home.

Cook, 71, prefers to work with cedar. Occasionally he uses walnut or oak. Whatever the material, Cook said in a recent interview that he preferred a box call to any other type. "They're the old original."

Born on the Fourche LaFave River in Scott County, Cook has been around wildlife most of his life. It is important, he said, to know the language of the turkey before one can make a good call. "You've got to know exactly what's the difference" in the sound, he said.

To make the turkey calls, Cook begins by selecting his own trees. They are cut to specifications, with the lower part of the tree used because there are no knots.

"You don't get too much turkey stock out of a tree," he said. "You do good if you can get an 8- to 10-foot saw log out of it."

He seasons the wood a year or two and then cuts the boards to assemble the boxes. Each piece is cut and sanded to a desired thickness and shape.

The sides, cut about an eighth-inch thick and 8 inches long, vary in width. The wider side is used for calling gobblers and the other is used for hens, Cook said.

After that, Cook cuts the bottom of the box at about a halfinch thick. Two grooves are carved in the base and the sides are inserted. Two blocks are then glued into place at either end.

Each piece must fit snugly. "Woodfiller don't look too good," Cook said.

After the box is complete, a lid is fashioned. It resembles a miniature paddle and is attached with a screw and flexible spring. "The lid is your most important part of your caller," Cook said. "I sometimes put three lids on before finding one with the proper tone."

If a call does not pass inspection, he said, "I just throw it back."

Cook finishes his turkey calls with a coat of varnish. He says it is also a good idea to varnish the call after each hunting season.

Each year, Cook makes about 100 box calls and sells them in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Although box calls make the bulk of his work, Cook has some he has made from wing bones, one made from a hollowed corn cob and cane and one made from a coconut shell.

Range Conservationist

We sometimes hear of large ponds being described as "impoundments." As far fetched as it may seem, large ponds and dogs have something in common. Impound is an old English word meaning to enclose or encircle something. From impoundment they dervive a "dog pound" and Americans have given it the meaning of a pond of water.

Proper management of largemouth bass is the key to managing ponds that range in size from one to five acres. Bluegills and fathead minnows are stocked to provide forage for the predatory bass.

Channel catfish can be stocked to provide additional sport and will not interfere with the critical balance between bass and forage fish. Expect most or all of the catfish spawn to be removed by big bass, particularly in clear ponds. More catfish will avoid bass predation in ponds which are muddy. If stocking catfish in a pond with an established bass population, use catfish at least eight inches long. Catfish and fathead minnows can be stocked alone and managed as in small ponds.

Maintaining a balanced bass forage population is essential, yet very difficult. Two important factors in this balance are proper harvest of bass and proper stocking schedules. Proper bass harvest will be discussed in a later article.

The stocking schedule depends upon the size of bass stocked. When one to three inch bass are planned, stock with one to three inch bluegill and channel catfish longer than four inches in late fall, followed by bass the next spring. This schedule allows times for the bluegill and fathead minnow to grow and spawn. Bluegill can spawn when only three inches in length.

When advanced (six to eight inch) bass are planned, all species can be stocked in the spring. However, stocking the forage species in the previous fall is still advisable. Sunfish should be longer than three inches and channel catfish should be at least eight inches to avoid bass predation.

Here come them ole portents of spring again.

In the Army, there is a specified date when winter officially passes.

We forget exactly when it occurs. But on this date soldiers are instructed to begin wearing the sleeves of their fatigues rolled above the elbow rather than buttoned at the cuff.

In this way, the change from winter to summer uniform is effected regardless of the weather's true condition.

And any decision-making process regarding the "sprung" in spring was eliminated.

As an observer of the seasons, we look forward each year to the minor details which indicate the arrival of spring in West Texas.

On the campus of Texas Tech, we knew it must be spring because of a sudden change in fashion — the switch from felt cowboy hats to the straw variety.

We say "sudden," because it seemed to occur overnight. As if some order had been given, there would appear a swell of white, shiny straw hats — moving like a wave across campus.

One of the saddest stories we ever heard was from a fellow in college who had grown up an orphan in a boys home.

Barred from normal pets, he said he was befriended by a greenbacked turtle which returned to the home every spring. He named the turtle Lassie.

We asked him how he was certain it was the same turtle every spring, and he replied, "Easy, I'd carved my initials in old Lassie's shell."

It seemed to us a poor way to treat your only pet, but the arrival of the lumbering and disfigured turtle must have produced the same squirt of pleasure some folks feel when it occurs to them winter is indeed over.

Springs in West Texas, however, are not always greeted so happily.

Rather than apple blossoms or mesquite sprigs, we used to look for the first horned toad caught blinking his glassy eyes free of his long winter's sleep.

This until a wise guy science major explained that this also indicated the other cold-blooded beasties were most likely out also.

It is no fun looking for horned toads when you're just as likely to find a rattlesnake.

Dust storms are another portent of spring, as are dandelions, rye grass, and that gosh-awful spell of hay fever that hits just before everything turns green.

Another is the first display of evaporative air-conditioner repair parts — a sign that the old swamp cooler needs cleaning and fixing.

Likewise, hanging racks of hoes — the red and green paint still intact at the cutting edge — and the spring line of lawn mowers — reminders that the most boring job in the world is at hand.

As a kid, we knew it was spring when we made our first trip to the storm cellar.

Sitting there surrounded by the earth-smell, hearing the wavering moan of a night wind and the splattering drum of rain on the sheet iron door — it occurred to us spring had finally arrived.

John Dunnam

If we can legislate an extra hour of daylight, why can't something be done about dust storms? I'm not too crazy about either one.

Too little sleep does the same thing to my eyes and disposition as too much dust. There seems to be something sinful about getting up at 6 a.m. and pretending it is 7. Is lying a good way to start a day?

I'll eventually adjust to DST, but DUST - never.

There must be something we can do. A few mountains would help. Beginning this weekend, if everyone planning a garage sale would instead deposit their junk at some agreed on spot west of town, by July 4 we would have a wind-free environment. By Christmas perhaps a place to ski.

The least we can do is require politicians to face west when they make a speech.

For every action, there is a reaction. The wind blows and causes a massive imbalance. This vacuum is filled by those of us who curse the wind. Thus the two most abundant resources of this area are once again brought into harmony and the cycle begins anew. Trouble is, no one is making any money out of this arrangement.

Anyone who stepped outside Sunday or Wednesday realizes a lot of raw force is going to waste. I realize that since gas went to over a dollar a gallon we haven't heard much about the energy crisis. Seems it was only the 40 cent gas that was in short supply. Still it seems a shame to waste all this wind-power on innocent eyes, noses, signs, roofs and an occasional mobile home. I wouldn't mind the wind nearly so much if it were making me rich.

On the other hand, what good would it doeth a man to gain the world if the earth bloweth in his face?

Perhaps we should pass a law that says the extra hour of daylight be devoted to solving the wind problem. To date only weak jokes have been proffered in a half-hearted effort to make the wind and dust a little easier to swallow. For example, there is the one about the chicken who laid the same egg three times. And there is the one about the guy who found the hat laying on the ground. When he picked it up he found a man under it buried to the top of his head in sand.

"Hang on buddy and I'll dig you out."

"You'd better go get some help. I'm riding a horse."

Things have become to serious for funning around. Besides the agony, our topsoil and property are being blown away. This very week a farmer related to me how he dug post holes for a fence only to find them gone the next morning. He found four of them in a ditch near Abilene. One was discovered in Arizona by an Indian who reported that the poor thing had nearly frozen to death.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
April 29

Snyder High School drama students claimed the department's ninth State Championship trophy since 1968 in UIL One-Act Play competition, it was announced Sunday.

This year's production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" was judged best in the field of eight class AAAA entries for the 1984 finals. In addition, four Snyder players earned individual honors, David Etheredge, Dana Parham, Kathy Norris and Larry Light.

MONDAY
April 30

The Phi Theta Kappa-American Heart Association Jumpathon for Heart reached its 108 hour goal at 1 a.m. Monday.

Around 40 people were on hand to cheer the end of the four and one-half day vigil as Robbie Turnley, an Ozona freshman and PTK member, finished up the event. He took over the jumpers spot at 12:59.30 to complete the last 30 seconds.

Snyder High School's Dana Parham placed third in state competition for poetry interpretation in Austin during the weekend, it was reported Monday.

Some 30 Scurry County farmers were told Monday that there are two routes a proposed assessment on cotton "at the gin" could be approved if a vote regarding it is called here this summer.

The assessment could be implemented if at least two-thirds of the individuals actually voting approved it; or if approving votes were received from individuals whose total land comprised at least 51 percent of the county's cotton acreage.

The meeting was in response to the local effort by members of the Scurry County Producer's Association to call such an election.

An okay was given Monday to hire an extra part-time employee at the Scurry County Museum — an addition requested by museum officials to "catchup" on records regarding exhibits.

Director of Museums Eunice Irwin and Dr. Robert Taylor, president of the museum association, had projected that $8,400 would be required for the staffer's salary. Monday, the court approved this expense "not to exceed" this amount.

The "promises and platforms" of candidates seeking political offices here this coming Saturday were delivered Monday at a chamber of commerce-sponsored "Candidates' Night."

Chamber President John Jarrell introduced the evening with this promise, and 17 candidates took the podium for addresses limited to a five-minute maximum. The event attracted approximately 70 spectators.

WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Bunch said after further consideration she felt personal obligations to her family would prevent her from pursuing the office fulltime if elected.

Engineering personnel at the Sun Gas Plant were host Wednesday to a group of visiting engineers including a native of Denmark currently on a three-month tour of the U.S. to study natural gas processing facilities.

THURSDAY
May 3

Joining the staff is Amelia Cohagan, a certified speech pathologist who also holds a masters degree in speech and language pathology.

At Cogdell, she will also be involved in the newly implemented home health care operation.

FRIDAY
May 4

It was reported Friday that an advertisement sent out by the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority is to appear in eight Texas newspapers — including the SDN — seeking prospective sellers for land to be used for the agency's dump site.

A discrimination complaint filed by the Scurry County Chapter of the NAACP and the Snyder Chapter of LULAC has resulted in a visit and examination of Snyder school records this past week by two personnel with the Office for Civil Rights, a division of the Department of Education.

A ruling regarding the allegations should be returned to both the school and the local complainant by mid-July, a DOE spokesman said.

Animal lovers denounce 'religious' cult as cruel

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a seven-day ordeal when Gene Bailly became a priest — a weeklong rite of religious passion, of drums and incense, and finally, with 30 goats, lambs and fowl, it was a ritual of blood sacrifice.

But this rite of Santeria went on far from the folk religion's Afro-Cuban roots. The place was Brooklyn, the priest a young professional — testimony that the animal sacrifice cult is growing with a surprising mix of followers.

Members and observers say Santeria is reaching across the United States, swelling groups of followers in Miami, New York and beyond, spreading from its Hispanic base to embrace blacks and whites.

"It's frighteningly popular," says Thomas Langdon, an officer of the American Society for the Prevention to Cruelty to Animals. "I think it is a lot more widespread than anyone would like to admit."

Santeria's size is unknown, its ways secretive. But devotees, increasingly vocal in their own defense, say they are the victims of unequal law enforcement and religious persecution that paints them as bloodthirsty pagans.

The cult stems from beliefs that crossed the Atlantic 400 years ago with the Yoruba people of Nigeria, taken as slaves to Cuba. Pressed there to adopt Catholicism, they instead assigned the identities of Catholic saints to their traditional gods, gradually merging tribal and Catholic religious practices. Similar versions evolved nearby: Voodoo in Haiti, Macumba in Brazil.

Santeria remains most prevalent in Miami and New York, home to many Cuban immigrants.

Santeros, or priests, say they kill animals in the belief that an offering of blood, as the essence of life, brings fortune by pleasing their gods.

Sacrifices are held in santeros' homes, often to celebrate the initiation of a new priest. Devotees lead the animals to an altar, cut their throats and drain the blood into bowls. ASPCA raiders have found scores of animals crowded into city apartments, trussed up and awaiting sacrifice; in January, they took 80 animals from a single apartment in Harlem.

Though beheaded chickens turn up most often, Langdon says the ASPCA has gotten "reports of animal carcasses, in numbers, flopping out of 30-gallon garbage bags — in a vacant lot, along a highway, near a cemetery."

Santeros say they perform sacrifices humanely. But they acknowledge that their rituals violate laws against home slaughter and harboring animals in the city, and say they expect changes — perhaps the use of licensed butchers or 'designated religious slaughterhouses — as Santeria grows.

Santeros worship seven chief dieties and hundreds of lesser ones, adopting one or more as their personal protectors. At some rites, punctuated by drums, gods are said to speak through devotees, dispensing warnings or advice.

The gods also speak by way of divination sessions, at which priests throw cowrie shells, then prescribe cures and purport to foretell the future. They may advise a ritual bath to regain an unfaithful lover, or herbal potions to prevail in court, or may warn of impending illness or injury.

A fortune-telling session costs $20, and money is included in many other aspects of Santeria — from $50 for lucky beads to $5,000 for the fruits, cakes, oils, herbs, decorations and sacrifical animals needed to become a priest. Santeros concede that unscrupulous priests cheat followers, but maintain that the expenses most often are justified.

Santeria has a social side as well.

Horse owners invited to Texas A&M short course

Horse owners in Scurry County are invited to attend the 1984 Horse Short Course at Texas A&M University, May 17-18.

This year's short course at Texas A&M's Animal Science Pavilion will feature a number of key discussion topics, a tour of horse farms, a horse training clinic and a horse sale.

Sponsors include the Extension Service, Texas A&M's Department of Animal Science and the Brazos County Extension Horse Committee.

Discussions at the first session starting at 8:20 a.m. will deal with controlling internal parasites, feeding high performance horses, infectious and noninfectious problems in foals, and an overview of Texas A&M's horse research program.

A tour to two Brazos County horse farms will be conducted that afternoon. These include Win-Walker Farms, which breeds, raises, conditions and trains race horses, and Granada Equine Services, a high technology, labor efficient operation providing many services to the horse industry.

John Hoyt, a professional horse trainer from Lone Oak, will conduct a horse training clinic that evening. The clinic will include live demonstrations and in-depth discussions on riding and training the performance horse.

The second day of the short course will be devoted to tours of the A&M campus--the Large Animal Clinic (horse section) of the College of Veterinary Medicine and the Department of Animal Science (horse section)--and to a Central Texas Select Quarter Horse Sale.

Sale horses may be previewed beginning at 8 a.m. The 1 p.m. sale features a mixed offering of about 70 yearlings, two and three year olds, and aged horses with fashionable halter, cutting, arena performance and race pedigrees.

Advance registration for the short course is $25 and should be sent by May 10 to Dr. Doug Householder, Department of Animal Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.
