'The Crucible' on to regional

Snyder High School's one act play "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller again was chosen to advance Tuesday after area competition conducted locally in Worsham Auditorium.

The SHS production and Brownfield's "Tartuffe" were chosen to go to regional competition in Brownwood April 14. Winners at regional will go to the state play contest in Austin — an honor Snyder drama students have won 14 times.

In addition, Snyder's David Etheredge again won Best Actor honors Tuesday. He was joined by a second Snyder player, Dana Parham, who was

Dr. Shel Hillis...

Division head to leave WTC

Dr. Shel Hillis, one of six division chairmen at Western Texas College, has notified administrators he will be resigning his post effective at the end of this contract year.

In a related matter, Hillis said Wednesday morning he will also be removing his name as a candidate to the Snyder school board, place 6.

He said his decision was a mixture of "personal and professional" reasons and that at the end of the upcoming summer terms at WTC he will be moving from Snyder.

Due to his expected move, he would be unable to serve as a school trustee if elected.

He will continue to handle duties as chairman of the Science Division at the college through the spring semester and said he also plans to teach during the summer terms.

Hillis joined the WTC faculty in the fall of 1977 and was named division chairman in the fall of 1978.

During his seven years in Snyder, he has been active in the introduction of judo instruction on campus — an activity he has pursued outside of his administrative and teaching responsibilities.

Judo teams coached by Hillis have won six state titles and two national titles, the most recent this past weekend as his girl's team won the National Women's Team title.

At WTC, he also serves as director of the planetarium.

Regarding his future plans, he said he is considering either continuing in the college or university

Hart eyes New York

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Democratic presidential marathon turns to New York today, with Sen. Gary Hart hoping his impressive sweep of Connecticut will give him the edge he needs in next week's showdown with Walter F. Mondale.

Hart was cautious about making too much of his win Tuesday night, telling supporters only, "We expect to do very well" in New York.

"Front-runnership seems to change about once a week," he added. "We'll wait and see."

But Connecticut's Democratic primary was his best election showing in two weeks — a romp that completed a six-state sweep of New England and was the kind of convincing victory he needed to tarnish Mondale's claim of a comeback and to regain campaign momentum for himself.

Mondale, campaigning in New York state, said Hart had a "very good win ... and I commend him for it."

"We go now to New York for the next campaign," said the former vice president, the one-time front-runner now squeezed for cash even before the midway point of a long march of primary and caucus contests.

Final returns in Connecticut gave Hart 53 percent of the vote, compared with 29 percent for Mondale and 12 percent for the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Hart won 33 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, to Mondale's 18 and 1 for Jackson. There are 252 delegates at stake in New York, nearly five times as many as in Connecticut.

NEW RECORD SET — Snyder and Scurry County blood donors set a new record Tuesday as 206 persons registered to give blood with 179 pints eventually received. PTK officer honored

A special thanks was offered on the campus of Western Texas College Tuesday to WTC student Danny Hunter, who brought national honors back to Snyder this past weekend by being named national president of Phi Theta Kappa.

Hunter serves as local president for the 12-year old Psi Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, the honors society for American Junior Colleges.

Hunter will serve as PTK president for 1984-85. To honor this, plans had called for the WTC flag to be raised in salute to the honor, but high winds forced a postponement.

"There will be a Danny Hunter Day at WTC when weather permits," Dr. Don Newbury told the group assembled to congratulate Hunter and the FLAG WILL BE FLOWN — To honor his election as the national president for Phi Theta Kappa, this special Western Texas College flag was to be flown Tuesday to honor student Danny Hunter. Records again passed at drive

Scurry County blood drives passed another record mark Tuesday, surpassing a recond set only last January by an additional 36 donors.

"Even with the sand," noted Wilma Dillard, who has organized the drives the past 12 months as part of her work with co-sponsors for the effort, the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The auxiliary holds the drives in cooperaton with the local advisory council for United Blood Services of Lubbock.

Local drives have also improved during the past year from an average of 40 to 50 donors per effort to Tuesday's count of 179. The previous donor record set last January was 143.

Records were set also for the number of persons registering to give as well as the number of first-time donors. In all, 206 registered and 27 of these were given temporary deferrals.

Regarding first time donors, 62 signed up Tuesday. The past record was 25 first time donors.

In fact, so many first time donors showed up Tuesday that as Dillard noted, "we ran out of hats." As an incentive for first timers, "painter's caps" were given out with blood drive insignias.

Dillard said the names of those who did not receive caps were taken and these will be given hats at the next scheduled drive in May.

Tuesday's effort was the second of six planned here during 1984.

It produced "gallon pin" awards to seven longtime donors also.

These included five one-gallon pins presented to Anastacio Alvarex, Tim

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You can always tell homes with young children. You have to wash the soap before using it."

The recent execution in Texas by lethal injection and ensuing debate over capital punishment caused WTC history professor Franklin Pruitt to tell a story about a principal friend of his near Fort Worth who got into a controversy over paddling of pupils.

The corporal punishment issue reached a peak in the small community, and in exasperation, the principal wrote the following memo to his faculty.

"Because of recent criticism concerning the discipline of students, a change in the policy concerning the spanking of students is necessary. In the future, all students will be sent to the office for capital punishment."

There seems to be differences of opinion concerning the paddling of students. A recent incident in Iowa Park attests to this. Three students were caught taking a pair of $7 gloves from a classroom.

The three were told to report to the principal's office. The first showed up, and in accordance with school policy, received three licks.

The second student arrived in the company of his father, and also got three licks. The father said that wasn't sufficient and gave him three licks of his own.

When the third student arrived, he too, was given six licks.

His parents reacted in a different manner. Seeing the red cheeks, he was taken to the doctor and a television crew from Wichita Falls arrived on the scene.

Photos of the student's behind were shown in full color on both the 6 and 10 p.m. news. It was reported the youth had been hit with a "sawed-off baseball bat."

School patrons responded solidly behind the school system, and were almost unanimous in the criticism of the TV station. Letters to the editor supported the school's discipline policy.

Bottoms, like attitudes, react differently.

In Brief

Brush fire damages center

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Brush fires fueled by dry vegetation and winds gusting to 40 mph ravaged the Hill Country, destroyed six houses and heavily damaged a wildlife management center, authorities said.

Three major fires continued to burn early today and were expected to rage out of control for up to 48 hours, Kerrville Fire Chief Raymond Holloway said.

"If the wind stays like it is, we may be on this thing for a week," Holloway said.

The fires, which broke out around noon Tuesday, also burned hundreds of acres of bone-dry brush land, authorities said.

There were no reports of injuries, but one woman whose home burned to the ground was hospitalized for treatment of hysteria, officials said.

Briton is killed in Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A lone gunman shot and killed a representative of the British Council cultural institute in central Athens today, police said.

Authorities identified the victim as Ken Whitty, a British citizen who is the council's assistant cultural representative. The shooting occurred near the British Embassy.

A police spokesman, who spoke on the condition that he not be named, said the assailant was armed with a pistol and fled on foot after opening fire.

The shooting occurred on the corner of a busy intersection at 3 p.m. (7 a.m. EST).

At least 3 Lebanese killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — At least three people were killed today by security forces in Israeli-controlled south Lebanon who fired weapons to break up demonstrators hurling stones at them.

Israeli military sources in Tel Aviv said the shots were fired by Israeli-backed Lebanese militiamen, killing three people and wounding 10 others.

In Beirut, however, reports were received from witnesses saying that at least six people were killed by Israeli soldiers who stormed into the village of Jibchit and fired into a crowd of demonstrators.

Jibchit, 17 miles southeast of Israel's defense line at the Awali River, has been under an Israeli siege since Tuesday night, the witnesses reported.

Court rejects O'Bryan stay

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today voted unanimously to reject Ronald Clark O'Bryan's motion to stay his Saturday execution.

Jury offers split verdict

A split verdict was returned here Tuesday by a district court jury chosen to decide a civil damages suit filed by Vancel W. Brooks of Snyder against Michael Charles McKinney of Dunn.

The panel had heard the case in 132nd District Court since Monday. Jurors deliberated some two hours Tuesday before returning a verdict.

The lawsuit stemmed from a motor vehicle accident which occurred here April 13, 1983.

According to court officers, the judgment was neither for nor against either the plaintiff or defendant and details of any possible settlement were still being discussed Wednesday morning by attorneys representing both sides.

El Salvador election...

No final results due before Friday

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — After a two-day delay, officials announced the first partial returns from El Salvador's presidential election and said final results — expected to force a runoff — might be available Friday.

The two frontrunners, moderate Jose Napoleon Duarte and ultra-rightist Roberto d'Aubuisson, both claim they could end the country's 4½-year-old civil war. But Ruben Zamora, a spokesman for the leftists, declared Tuesday: "The war continues, and with zero or 40 elections nothing will be resolved."

Results from the eastern province of San Vicente, which represents an estimated 25 percent of the total vote, yielded no surprises when announced Tuesday afternoon. They gave Duarte a slight edge, with 11,029 votes, or 35.1 percent, to 10,947, or 34.9 percent, for d'Aubuisson.

Francisco Jose Guerrero, a conservative who could prove a key figure in the expected Duarte-d'Aubuisson runoff, was third in San Vicente with 7,461 votes. The five other candidates split the remaining votes from the province.

Central Election Council officials in San Salvador were unable to begin tabulating returns until Tuesday afternoon because ballot boxes were late arriving from the provinces and some of the council's six members did not show up to witness the count as required by law. Council officials said they hoped to have final returns by Friday.

Bureaucratic bungling and squabbling among council members, as well as guerrillas interference, prevented untold thousands from voting. In some places, hundreds who waited in line for hours had not cast their ballots when the polls closed Sunday night.

Based on an unofficial count, Duarte's moderate Christian Democratic Party conceded he appeared short of an absolute majority.

The runoff, required by law, has to take place within 45 days and has been tentatively scheduled for May 6.

A series of controversial agrarian, banking and social reforms that Duarte, 58, pushed through while president of a ruling civilian-military junta from 1980 to 1982 riled the few wealthy Salvadoran families who have been wielding economic and political power for centuries.

These families now back d'Aubuisson, 40, a cashiered army major linked in reports to the notorious death squads, which are responsible for a large majority of the more than 51,000 deaths since El Salvador's civil war began 4½ years ago.

The candidates will be looking for support from the losing parties, and Guerrero, with a projected 15 to 18 percent of the total vote, could play a major role in determining who governs El Salvador.

"I am like a doctor waiting for a phone call," he said in an interview with The Associated Press. He said his National Conciliation Party will make its decision in about 10 days on who, if anyone, to support.

Leftist leaders refused to take part in National Assembly elections in 1982 and in Sunday's voting. They have insisted on power-sharing negotiations first, saying their candidates would otherwise be easy prey for the death squads.

Reopen death probe

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Authorities in El Paso have reopened an investigation into the 1962 death of an accountant who was an associate of convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported today.

Capt. Alfredo Bonilla, chief of detectives for the El Paso County sheriff's department, said Tuesday that he has begun an investigation into the suicide of George Krutilek, who handled Estes' grain and cotton accounts in the early 1960s.

U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples, who has written a book about the Estes case, said last week that he believes the deaths of Krutilek and three other West Texas men during the early 1960s may be linked to Estes' finacial deals.

Stress can break people's hearts

Stress is also responsible for at least half of the heart disease that occurs, according to a Phoenix cardiologist addressing heart specialists at a meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

To dramatize his report that stress can precipitate heart disease and is a major factor in 1,200 sudden deaths each year in America, Robert S. Eliot persuaded doctors into a booth at the Dallas Convention Center, where they were given the chance to sit in an easy chair and play "Breakout," a video game.

Most of the physicians appeared calm Monday as they played. But after 15 minutes, blood pressure cuffs around their arms showed that one in five of the doctors had reacted to the stress of playing the game as if they were "fighting a saber-toothed tiger."

They are what Eliot calls "hot reactors" — people whose bodies react strongly to stress and thus are more susceptible to heart disease.

Use pre-schoolers for pornography

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cameras rolled and teachers watched as preschool children were sexually molested by adult strangers in a game called "Naked Movie Star," say prosecutors seeking to have three of seven defendants held without bail.

"It appears that the primary purpose of the McMartin Preschool was to solicit young children for pornographic purposes," Deputy District Attorney Eleanor Barrett said Tuesday.

"It is my belief that these photographs and movies were taken for commercial purposes," Ms. Barrett said.

She said 125 children who attended the Virginia McMartin Preschool between 1973 and 1983 may have been involved.

No photographs or films have been recovered, authorities said.

Seven school staff members have been charged with 115 felony counts involving 18 children who testified before a county grand jury.

One unidentified parent was quoted in today's Los Angeles Times as saying that his 4-year-old daughter told investigators that she and two other children were driven to a horse stable where sex acts were filmed.

"Ropes were placed around her waist and her hands were tied behind her back," the father said.

Brad Sales, an assistant to therapist Kee McFarland who interviewed the children, was quoted in court documents as saying that rabbits, turtles, dogs and cats were mutilated, and birds and fish were tortured in front of the children.

The youngsters allegedly were told they and their parents would be similarly treated if they revealed the molestations, he said.

Ms. Barrett's findings, released Tuesday, were contained in District Attorney Robert H. Philibosian's response filed in Los Angeles Superior Court to defense motions to reduce the defendants' bail.

Paul Harvey

Last year, 1983, the United States economy improved dramatically.

You'd never have known it from listening to the three major television networks.

Unemployment was reduced from 10.7 percent to 8.2 percent.

Employment increased by four million to a new historic high.

But the prime time newscasts on the big three networks persisted in seeking out and concentrating on pockets of poverty, black clouds of economic misery.

Maybe they didn't know — or didn't care — that the Institute for Applied Economics was listening, recording, keeping score.

Last July 8, the labor Department announced a drop in unemployment.

For Dan Rather's program reporter Ray Brady focused your attention on worsening unemployment in certain industrial areas.

On October unemployment continued to decline to the least in 20 months.

Construction, mining and manufacturing all showed improvement.

ABC stated that the unemployment drop was the result of many jobless Americans ending their search for work, implied that the Reagan economic policy was a complete failure, and turned to Democratic presidential candidates for their views.

November, again unemployment declined sharply, to the lowest level in two years.

ABC used that announcement to focus instead on two men who'd been unemployed for 18 months and on their despair and talk of suicide.

In last year's third-quarter the gross national product grew at a robust 7.7 percent.

Inflation abated last year to the lowest rate in 10 years.

CBS sought and found an economist who talked only of "the three years' recession, unemployment, idle factories." He said, "Most industry is flat on its back."

Dan Rather somehow figured out that, quote, "when inflation stays low too long the wealthy benefit disproportionately."

Factory output increased 6.5 percent and ABC followed that mention with a lengthy story about the closing of an International Harvester plant.

During the six months' span of this study every aspect of our nation's economy was improving but...

Of all economic stories of an interpretive nature on the three networks evening news shows, 86 percent were primarily negative.

Today's hand is one of Paul Lukacs' famous single-dummy problems. You are given your hand, the dummy, the bidding and opening lead, and you are supposed to go on from there.

You find yourself at a very sound seven no-trump. Your only problem is to guard against four to the jack in either minor suit.

You can handle clubs safely, so at trick two you play dummy's king of clubs and note that West holds all four. No problem there, so you cross to your hand with a heart at trick three and finesse against the jack of clubs. You are sure of twelve tricks, and Jeff Rubens points out that you lose nothing by cashing all the rest of your major suit winners right away.

You do just that, and something surprising happens. East shows up with an eight-card heart suit. Also he has followed to two spades, so he can't hold four diamonds. You play your ace of diamonds and East shows out.

Now it is easy. You lead a second diamond, on which West must play the nine. Now you see why you left clubs for later. You simply cash out the clubs, stopping in your hand, and repeat the diamond finesse for all the tricks.

Special prosecutor to probe all areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special prosecutor will investigate the full range of allegations against Attorney General-designate Edwin Meese III, including whether he got federal jobs for his financial benefactors and what he knew about how the 1980 Reagan campaign obtained opposition campaign documents.

Attorney General William French Smith's decision to ask a three-judge panel to name the special prosecutor was welcomed by all sides: President Reagan, Meese and Meese's supporters and opponents on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Under the Ethics in Government Act, three senior appellate judges — Roger Robb of the District of Columbia, J. Edward Lumbard of New York and Lewis R. Morgan of Atlanta — must now name a special prosecutor, or independent counsel as the law calls it, to investigate the areas outlined by Smith.

Picking a prosecutor may take about a week, and the prosecutor may take as long as he wants. The three previous prosecutors named under the act took between five and nine months to investigate Carter administration officials Hamilton Jordan and Tim Kraft and Reagan's Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan.

Smith heavily emphasized an interest-free $15,000 loan that Meese received in early 1981 from a long-time California friend, Edwin Thomas. The loan and Meese's failure to list it as required on federal financial disclosure forms came to the department's attention through news accounts on March 15, Smith said.

Smith noted that while the loan was still outstanding, Thomas and his wife and son all were appointed to federal jobs.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan "welcomes the decision" and "believes that an impartial, prompt, and thorough inquiry will provide the opportunity to clear the air on this matter."

Broken promises lead to fast, pupils quitting

GARWOLIN, Poland (AP) — A Roman Catholic bishop says he will eat only bread and water to protest a hardening stance by Poland's Communist authorities against the display of crucifixes in public schools.

Bishop Jan Mazur told throngs of students at a Mass at Garwolin's parish church Tuesday that he would continue the fast as long as they remain "in trouble."

Mazur's announcement followed reports the government was forcing parents and students at an agricultural school in nearby Mietne to sign a document acknowledging the separation of church and state — breaking a promise to Mazur.

His decision to fast was the most dramatic development in the church-state conflict since some 400 students launched the "war of the crosses" March 7 with a 12-hour sit-in at the Mietne school.

The school, closed since the protest, reopened Tuesday. But scores of defiant students packed their belongings in knapsacks, left school and along with parish priests threatened to join the bishop in his fast.

Mazur told 2,500 somber students and other worshippers during a Mass at Garwolin's Church of the Transfiguration that he had exhausted efforts to resolve the impasse through normal channels.

"Starting from today, for as long as you remain in trouble, my daily meal will consist of bread and water," said the portly, 63-year-old bishop from Siedlce.

"I am just doing what my conscience tells me to do," he told Western reporters later.

Last week the government agreed to drop its demand that students or their parents sign the document. Mazur had negotiated the deal with Minister of Religious Affairs Adam Lopatka.

But witnesses at the Stanislaw Staszic Agricultural School said an undetermined number of students were barred from their dormitories overnight after refusing to sign.

The Polish government says the display of crucifixes in public schools violates the constitutional separation of church and state in this devoutly Catholic nation.

A Correctol addict

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother is a 52-year-old Correctol addict. She claims if she doesn't take it her bowel movements cause her fissures to act up and she's in severe pain. She's been dependent upon laxatives as long as I can remember.

I think if she were on a proper diet she could correct this problem, but she won't stop taking it. She averages two a day and has lost about 25 pounds within the last two years. She's 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. She's using this every morning to keep her stomach flat.

Can Correctol be harmful to the colon considering it contains chemicals to make the bowels move?

DEAR READER — Your mother's bowel habit has become dependent upon the chemical stimulant phenolphthalein, a bowel stimulant. It's in the group of laxatives that doctors usually recommend on a regular basis.

The phenolphthalein isn't harmful, except that its chronic use can prevent normal bowel function. I hasten to add that such a laxative habit doesn't help people lose excess body fat. Recent studies on individuals purging themselves with laxatives show that water loss from diarrhea is about all that can be accomplished. That water loss, with loss of vital salts, can be harmful.

Your mother has a point about wanting to avoid problems with her anal fissures. These are cracks in the skin and are made worse with mechanical trauma. When such trauma is avoided the fissures usually heal. But a better approach is to use an adequate amount of a bulk former and stool softener on a regular basis.

I'm sending you the Health Letter 12-8, Laxatives, Enemas and Suppositories, which you can use as a basis for a discussion with your mother. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think your mother will need some professional guidance to get over this habit and develop normal function again. Most people who've abused chemical laxatives that long usually need some help.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about bicycling, walking and running. I'd like to say that calories burned during a unit of time would seem more meaningful to a person than the number of calories burned per mile.

I believe bicycling has been overlooked as a valuable way to exercise at whatever level the person desires. I love biking and want others to realize it's an exercise that can control their weight. They should consider it equal to walking and running. It's something you can do for a lifetime.

DEAR READER — I'm glad to see you're enthusiastic about bicycling. I've always endorsed it as a means of exercise and frequently recommended it to people who have osteoarthritis.

Many people want to know how bicycling compares to walking and running in terms of using calories. Since speed is variable the only way this can really be done is to look at it in terms of distance. At average speeds for bicycling, walking uses about twice and running about three times as many calories per mile.

But that doesn't mean walking and running are better exercises; it depends on the individual.

Valley hearings held on hunger

PHARR, Texas (AP) — A spokeswoman for a Brownsville clinic told a panel of state senators studying hunger that she knows of at least one family so poor they eat rats as a way of getting protein in their diet.

Paula Gomez, a worker with the Su Clinica Familiar, an outpatient health center for indigents, was among dozens of people testifying during a six-hour hearing held Tuesday by the Senate Interim Committee on Hunger and Nutrition.

Ms. Gomez told the panel about a Cameron County family who raises rats for food. She said 10 percent of the people in Brownsville are malnourished.

Dr. Tony Zavaleta, director of the South Texas Institute of Latin and Mexican American Research at Texas Southmost College, confirmed Ms. Gomez' observations about the hunger crisis among Brownsville's poor.

In a recent health survey he conducted among 3,000 poor Brownsville families, Zavaleta found 40 percent of those said they did not have enough food to feed their families. He said nearly 50 percent of all the 235,000 people in the Valley live below the poverty level.

Zavaleta said conditions in the Valley have not changed signficantly since an investigator working on a 1970 federal nutrition study in the Valley wrote, "In reference to the children ... I doubt that any group of physicians in the past 50 years in this country as many malnourished children assembled in one place as we saw in Hidalgo County."

After listening to a number of experts testify on the relationship between malnutrition and childhood diseases, committee chairman Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, said, "You don't hear about these kinds of Third World diseases in children anywhere else in the state."

Consumer groups say EBD in food

AUSTIN (AP) — Two consumer groups, dissatisfied with state testing of a poisonous pesticide, have urged the Texas Department of Health to adopt tougher standards on levels of EDB allowed in foods.

The Texas Pesticide Project and the Consumers Union on Tuesday said that despite state testing for the pesticide in foods and the removal of some products from store shelves, a danger remains.

"Texas consumers now have an illusion of safety about products on the shelves. But they haven't been recalled because they haven't been tested (for EDB)," said Tani Adams of the Texas Pesticide Project.

Ms. Adams and Carol Barger of the Consumers Union said more than 300 food products found to contain some traces of the pesticide haven't been recalled.

EDB, or ethylene dibromide, was used for more than 30 years. It now is suspected of causing cancer.

Health department officials say they are using the same levels as set by the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The two women said the Texas Department of Health should adopt the tougher EDB standards, inform consumers about results of all tests on food products, and require manufacturers who voluntarily recall products to notify the department and consumers of the names and lot numbers of those items.

The Consumers Union also will begin publishing a list of the EDB levels found in foods tested by Texas officials, Ms. Barger said.

The discovery of EDB in some food products, such as cake mixes, flour and muffin mixes, prompted officials in several states to begin testing and remove some products from stores.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency has virtually banned the use of EDB as a pesticide and established guidelines for acceptable levels of the chemical in food products. Those levels are 30 parts per billion for ready-to-eat foods and 150 parts per billion in products that require cooking.

The Pesticide Project and the Consumers Union officials said they obtained test results from the Texas Health Department showing that 705 grain and citrus products had been tested as of Friday, not counting unprocessed raw grain products.

Of that total, 400 contained some level of EDB — from 1 part per billion to 29,000 parts per billion. Forty-eight products exceeded the EPA guidelines and have been removed from the shelves, they said.

"In many other states, the northeastern states and others, the levels that are being found (in some Texas products) and not recalled would be recalled," Ms. Adams said.

Road chaos strikes London

LONDON (AP) — A one-day strike by London's bus and subway workers today forced more than 2 million mass transit riders to find other means of travel and created traffic jams as long as 12 miles.

All trains on the subway were out of action, and only about 10 percent of bus routes were in operation, said London Transport spokesman David Hales.

The strike was called by London Transport's 20 unions to support a "democracy day" orchestrated by the Trades Union Council, the national labor federation.

The council is protesting the government's plan to abolish London's regional government and hand over responsibility for the capital's public transit systems to the Transport Ministry.

"We very much regret that people should be caused this inconvenience," said Hales.

'Hit man's' kin denies charges

DALLAS (AP) — Relatives of the man convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes claims killed a federal agricultural official in Central Texas on orders of Lyndon B. Johnson say the alleged "hit man" was in California on the day of the slaying.

The relatives of Malcolm E. "Mac" Wallace also were quoted by the Dallas Times Herald in today's editions as saying Wallace, who died in a 1971 car crash at the age of 49, had moved to California and also was there when Estes claims Wallace discussed the killing at a meeting in Pecos, Texas.

Meanwhile, authorities in El Paso said they have reopened an investigation into the 1962 death of an accountant who was an associate of Estes.

Estes, who was released from prison last November, reportedly told a Robertson County grand jury last week that Johnson ordered the killing of U.S. Agriculture Department official Henry H. Marshall out of fear that Marshall could link a Johnson aide, Clifton Carter, to Estes' fraudulent activities.

He said Johnson did so at a January 1961 meeting in Washington involving Johnson, Wallace, Carter and himself. Only Estes, an acquaintance of Johnson, is now alive.

Wallace's four brothers and one sister, who all live in Dallas, said Wallace never had any dealings with Johnson or Estes and as far as they knew, had never met them or any members of their families.

However, Wallace's late wife, Virginia Ledgerwood of Anaheim, Calif., said Tuesday night her husband had told her that he knew the Johnson family. "Mac told me he knew Mrs. Johnson (Lady Bird Johnson) better than Mr. Johnson."

Mrs. Ledgerwood, who met Wallace in California, said he never mentioned the name of Henry H. Marshall, the U.S. Agriculture official that Estes said Wallace killed.

'Danny Hunter Day' planned at college

chapter. "On the first appropriate day, we will raise the flag which is flown only on special occasions and Danny Hunter will be noted."

He noted that the 1983-84 school year will be one long remembered by PTK members at WTC. Earlier this month, the chapter had won the office of state secretary at the Texas convention in Austin. Cathy Caddell was then elected to serve officially in that capacity.

At the national convention March 21-25 in Washington, D.C., Hunter won the race for the national president in a field of 11 candidates. In addition, the Psi Zeta chapter received the National Award of Excellence for its outstanding program of activities and Dr. Don Newbury was named to the Phi Theta Kappa Presidents' Hall of Honor. He had been nominated by the Psi Zeta chapter in recognition of his support.

WTC Phi Theta Kappans are accustomed to bringing home awards, Newbury pointed out. This year, they received the state travel award in Austin. In 1983, they won the state scrapbook award. Sonny Lee, a former Psi Zeta member, was inducted into the Alumni Hall of Honor at the 1980 national convention and Neva Reaves gained the same distinction in 1981.

Nationwide, Phi Theta Kappa was organized in 1918 and was recognized by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges in 1929. The Psi Zeta chapter at WTC was organized on Feb. 11, 1972, with Dr. Edward Barkowsky as charter sponsor.

There are now more than 700 chapters in the nation and 63 chapters in Texas alone.

Since its formation, the WTC group honored Barkowsky by making him an honorary PTK member. They have also extended honorary memberships to Rep. Charles Stenholm; Dr. Mary Hood, chapter sponsor; Dr. Robert L. Clinton, first college president; Dr. Ben Brock, WTC executive vice president, and Newbury.

How does it feel to know he will be at the helm of the national fraternity? "Unbelievable!" Hunter says.

Hunter will spend next year fulfilling official duties and traveling while he continues his education.

Pre-election activities at the PTK national meeting are not unlike those at the Democratic or Republican national conventions. Candidates are alloted space for a booth so delegates can become acquainted with them and each candidate is invited to address the various caucuses. There were 18 this year. Each candidate is given three minutes to address the delegate assembly just before voting begins. Candidates were assigned a single topic, "Orwell's 1984 in 1984: Myth or Reality?"

Hunter addressed the subject from the standpoint of individual responsibility, and his speech was well received, Dr. Mary Hood, WTC faculty sponsor, said.

"Thirteen people from WTC went to the convention, and the 12 others did more for my election that I could have hoped to do," he said. "They were up early and out late campaigning. 'Thank you' is not enough to say to them. You can say 'thank you,' but it really doesn't say it all.

"As Phi Theta Kappa president, I'll be representing not only the fraternity but Western Texas College throughout the coming year. I would also like to thank the faculty and administration and everyone else at WTC who have made this honor possible."

Hunter is a graduate of Roscoe High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hunter of Roscoe.

Cowboys planning new complex for team, fans

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys Football Club and Triland International, Inc., unveiled plans Tuesday for a $250 million, 200-acre development that Tex Schramm called "unique in sports."

It will be know as Cowboys Center at The Valley Ranch with construction beginning in January 1985 with completion expected in 1986.

"It will be a big tourist attraction where all the Cowboy fan across the United States can come and see us," said Schramm, the new managing partner of the team.

A multi-million dollar Dallas Cowboys headquarters and training facility is now under construction in the Valley Ranch area some 15 miles northwest of Dallas.

All administrative, coaching, and related operations including three practice fields will be consolidated into a single location.

Included on the Cowboys' 30-acre campus will be all executive and staff offices, weight training and exercise areas, the football fields, a retail store and main ticket office, team publication facilities, a television studio, and a 3,000 square foot cheerleader rehearsal studio.

--An athletic club and sports medicine center.

--A 3,000-seat indoor sports arena.

--The Dallas Cowboys Vistor Center which will include a Cowboys Hall of Fame and a large movie theatre.

--A retail and restaurant pavilion.

--A Cowboys Center Office Park.

"The Cowboys Center is without a doubt the most ambitious project ever undertaken by a sports entity," Schramm said. "This development will create an environment that will be enjoyable for all Cowboys personnel, our players-- past, pesent and future, and especially our fans and followers across the country.

"And the success of this project will certainly enhance the image and reputation of the entire Cowboys organization."

Schramm cited a recent national survey which asked the question "When you hear of Dallas what do you think about first?"

Schramm said "Cowboys was the response. Now we will have a theme park to surround our practice facility."

Astros release former fastball ace, Richard

COCOA, Fla. (AP) - The Houston Astros have released pitcher J.R. Richard, whose once-feared fastball was effectively defused almost four years ago by a life-threatening stroke.

Astros Board Chairman John McMullen announced the team's decision Tuesday, leaving Richard to accept a "career opportunity" from McMullen or to follow his earlier desires to become a minister.

The former league-leading strikeout artist signed a Class AAA make-good contract with the Astros this season in one final attempt to complete an amazing comeback from a near-fatal stroke suffered July 30, 1980 during a workout in the Astrodome.

Richard left the Astros training facility here Tuesday shortly after his release was made public.

The announcement ended a spectacular pitching career with the Astros that spanned nine seasons. Richard, 34, had back-to-back 300-plus strikeout season in 1978 and 1979 and was named to the National League All-Star team in 1980.

Richard underwent surgery to remove a blood clot from his neck in 1980 and later had further surgery to remove a blockage in an artery in his shoulder.

Control of his pitches and slow reflexes have been Richard's major problems in attempting a comeback.

"We don't want J.R. to get hurt and we don't want him to hurt anybody," General Manager Al Rosen told the Houston Post.

McMullen said the decision on Richard had been made after several days of discussions with Richard and his agent, Tom Reich.

Donovan remains question mark

DALLAS (AP) - The last thing Dallas Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry needed at the beginning of the club's annual spring minicamp was bad news.

He got it anyway.

The star-crossed Cowboys, who have stumbled badly in the National Football League playoffs the last three years, may be losing Pro Bowl offensive tackle Pat Donovan.

Donovan and wide receiver Butch Johnson were no-shows on the first day of the Cowboys two-day veteran's orientation Tuesday.

Johnson's absence was no surprise. He is waiting for the Cowboys to trade him.

However, Donovan had told club officials a week ago he might not be back, but no public announcement was made.

Donovan, a nine-year veteran, two time member of the Pro Bowl, and former second team All-Pro, has been plagued with injuries the last two, both sub-par seasons for him.

Player personnel director Gil Brandt said Donovan could still play out the remaining year on his contract.

"I don't think he has decided what he is going to do," said Brandt. "He is looking at other job opportunities. Donovan is a fellow who has a lot of long range plans.

"It's not certain whether he wants to start (on those plans) in 1984 or 1987. He has this year left."

Brandt said "Pat talked to us on March 15th. It's not a contract ploy. Tomorrow he may decide to be at practice."

On the receiver front, there was speculation the Cowboys might not trade Johnson after receiver Drew Pearson was injured in an automobile accident a week ago in which his brother was fatally injured.

Pearson was recovering at Presbyterian Hospital and was listed in satisfactory condition. He suffered severe bruises and bleeding around his liver.

Asked if Pearson's condition meant the Cowboys might keep Johnson around, Brandt answered:

"It's Coach Landry's decision to make. Doug Donley would e be a fine player at (Johnson's) position. We have solid, concrete offers for Butch. It's just a matter of deciding which way we want to go."

Another no-show was veteran fullback Robert Newhouse who is not expected back next season.

Cornerback Dennis Thurman said the key to the Cowboys' 1984 season was "All of us have to pull together for the same end. If we don't, the fans will run us out of town this year."

NEW YORK (AP) - The last time Michigan and Notre Dame met on a basketball court was the final game of the 1981-82 season and the two teams, between them, had 16 victories.

They meet again tonight in the championship game of the 47th National Invitation Tournament with a combined total of 43 victories and the memories of losing seasons far away.

"Michigan and Notre Dame are two schools that represent a tremendous amount of tradition, a tremendous amount of success in all their athletic programs," Michigan Coach Bill Frieder said. "To see where we came from, both of us, has been a step in the right direction for both us."

They last met in the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich. on March 7, 1982 and Notre Dame prevailed 53-52. Irish Coach Digger Phelps felt it was more survival.

"We were 9-17 and Michigan was 7-19 and would you believe 14,000 dummies showed up to watch the game," Phelps said.

Sophomore center Roy Tarpley led the Wolverines, 22-10, to their 78-75 semifinal victory over Virginia Tech with 23 points, including the decisive free throws with 45 seconds remaining in the game. Freshman guard Antoine Joubert added 17 points and was credited, along with junior guard Eric Turner, by Frieder with turning Monday night's game around.

"We struggled in the first half defensively," Frieder said of the 44-40 deficit he faced at halftime. "We usually play better than that. Turner did a good job on (Dell) Curry for six, eight minutes in the second half and then Joubert had to push him out the rest of the night."

Curry scored 16 of his game-high 24 points in the first half for Virginia Tech and stopping him, along with a 41-25 rebounding edge, moved the Wolverines into the final.

Notre Dame, 21-11, was led by its only senior, forward Tom Sluby who scored 26 points in the 65-59 semifinal victory over Southwestern Louisiana.

"Both teams are very, very young teams, with the exception of Sluby for us" Phelps said. "It just give you confidence, postseason play. The teams that have come here have obviously done well the following year in college basketball. It's obvious we'll both be ranked preseason next year because of the young teams we have and the recruiting we've done."

Tigers challenge Midland in final pre-district game

MIDLAND -- After a week-long layoff, Coach Albert Lewis' Snyder Tigers take to the diamond again, this time for their final pre-district tuneup.

"It's tough not playing for a week," said Lewis, who lost a date when Plainview pulled out of a makeup game on Monday. "We need all the games we can get and at this late date, there's no way you can make that up."

Two victories last week did help the team, according to the coach.

"We made some real strides last week. We're improved. Hopefully we can take that into district play."

The Tigers take on Midland High at 4 p.m. here Thursday, then entertain Fort Stockton at 7:30 Friday in their first District 2-4A game of the season.

Snyder is the defending Class 4A champion.

Candy Man's family has recovered

HOUSTON (AP) — Almost a decade ago, Daynene O'Bryan faced the ultimate family tragedy — a son murdered and her husband convicted of the crime. Faith, hard work and a new marriage pulled her through, friends say, who call her "a remarkable woman."

Daynene's former husband, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, is scheduled to die before dawn Saturday for the poison-candy murder of his 8-year-old son, Timothy.

The boy died after a trick-or-treat outing on Halloween 1974. O'Bryan was convicted of killing him with cyanide-laced candy in order to collect on insurance policies.

Her son's death and O'Bryan's subsequent conviction left Daynene destitute financially and devastated emotionally, friends say. But she endured.

"She had some really tough years, emotionally and financially," said Mike Hinton, the former Harris County assistant district attorney who convinced jurors to sentence O'Bryan to death by injection. "I saw her a couple of days ago and she really looks wonderful. She's lost weight. She is a much more happier and outgoing person than when I first met her."

Hinton first came to know Daynene O'Bryan on the night of Nov. 4, 1974.

The Pasadena Police, with Hinton assisting on the legal angles, had been investigating the poisoning of Timothy since Halloween night and had determined that O'Bryan was a prime suspect.

The grieving parents were called to the police station and then taken to separate rooms.

Detectives gently told Daynene that they had discovered O'Bryan had taken out insurance policies on Timothy and on their daughter, Elizabeth, then 5, just a few days before the boy was killed. The premium had been paid in cash, $108, even though the family was so broke that their car was about to be repossessed.

"She at that moment recognized that he could have done it," recalls Hinton. "She was shocked. We all were."

"Oh, my God — no," said Daynene. She wept.

When she recovered, Daynene told police that her husband had good qualities, but that he was a spendthrift, a dreamer and a chronic liar. Further, he had held and lost 21 jobs in a few years, had constant financial worries and had twice collected insurance on suspicious fires.

"I feel that he needs help," she told police. "I feel that he is dangerous. He cannot be allowed to walk out of this place."

Based on the insurance and other evidence, O'Bryan was charged. He never again was free and Daynene never again saw him alone. Later, she testified at his trial, firmly describing their life together while he sat at the defense table and wept.

After the trial, Daynene slipped from public view, protected by family and friends. Even O'Bryan, in interviews on death row, refuses to say where she and Elizabeth now live.

"You can say what you want to about me. Just leave them out of this," O'Bryan demanded.

Her brother-in-law, the Rev. John E. Tucker Jr., said her faith carried her through.

"It has been a unifying influence in their lives," Tucker said of Daynene and Elizabeth.

The memory of that Halloween, he said, has haunted them.

"Each year, in October, the emotional impact comes on in various ways," Tucker said.

Hinton said Daynene suffered "embarrassment and humiliation."

Both Tucker and Hinton said that even though Daynene needed money she refused to accept payment of the $30,000 in insurance O'Bryan has purchased on Timothy's life.

"She turned down the proceeds," Hinton said. "I flat admire her for that."

Tucker said she found work, saved her money and eventually was able to start her own business.

The brother-in-law said both Daynene and Elizabeth underwent counseling to help them deal with the tragedy that shattered their family.

Daynene remarried just over two years ago, Tucker said, who declined to give the precise date. Elizabeth was later adopted by her stepfather. The three, said Tucker, are now a happy family, "thinking about today and the future and not looking back."

Girl Searching for Love Had Better Find Maturity

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a girl of 14. I always knew I'd wind up writing to you sooner or later, but I was betting on later.

Five months ago while on vacation, I met this guy I'll call Scott and we fell in love. You'll probably say that I'm too young to know what love is. Well, you're wrong! It happened real fast. Just 3 1/2 hours after we met we were making love. I never dreamed of going that far, but I couldn't help myself. He's 16. Three days later he told me it was all over between us.

After that, I started doing all kinds of crazy things like drinking, smoking, stealing and even doing drugs. Then I met this guy I'll call Kevin. He's everything I want, but I'm scared the same thing will happen with him that happened with Scott.

My parents are very old-fashioned. They won't let me have Kevin over to the house and they won't let me go to the mall to see him. I know I'm capable of handling myself, but my parents don't think so. How can I convince them that I am really more grown up than they think? They would kill me if they knew I had already experienced love.

Please, Abby, help me prove to my parents that I am mature and responsible. Sign me ...

GROWN UP AT 14

DEAR GROWN UP: You can prove to your parents that you are mature and responsible by acting that way. So far, you have proven that you are not. Having experienced "love" (in your case it would be more accurately described as "sex") does not make you mature. Mature people make responsible choices and have no need to sneak and lie.

Your parents love you and don't want to see you hurt. They are your friends, not your enemies.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer before going to Paris, I was asked by a friend of mine to buy her a souvenir gold Eiffel Tower charm. She wanted to give me her credit card to charge it on, but I told her that I would pay for it myself and she could pay me back.

I found the charm she wanted and bought it. It came to $61.50 in American money. (I kept the sales slip.)

Well, someone stole the charm from me while I was still in Paris, so when I returned home, I showed the friend the sales slip, explained that I had bought the charm for her, but it had been stolen. Then I asked her to share half the loss with me since I had bought it as a favor to her. She refused to share the loss, saying she didn't feel she owed me anything.

Now our friendship is strained. Do you think I should have suffered the entire loss? Or do you think she should have gone 50-50 with me?

NO LONGER FRIENDS

DEAR NO: You were most accommodating to have purchased the charm as a favor to your friend. But since it was never delivered to her, I see no reason why she should go 50-50 on the loss. It would have been generous had she offered, but you were out of line to suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: I know how "Proud Mama (and Grandma, Too)" feels. I had one in college and one in diapers at the same time. When strangers learn the baby I'm holding is not my grandchild but my child, they say, "I don't know how you can stand it. I'm glad she's yours and not mine."

I smile and say, "That's why God gave her to me and not to you."

Election called political failure

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Salvadoran leftist spokesman said Sunday's presidential election represents the "biggest political failure" yet for the Reagan administration in El Salvador.

Salvador Samayoa, the spokesman, speaking at a press conference on Tuesday, also said American encouragent of the election amounted to a preview of a future U.S. intervention.

"The elections constituted the biggest political failure of the United States in El Salvador," said Samayoa, a member of the joint political-diplomatic commission of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, the rebels' military organization, and the Democratic Revolutionary Front, the leftist political ally of the guerrillas.

Citizens [illegible] El Salvador [illegible] polls Sunday to elect a president and vice president. The results still are not known.

If no candidate wins a clear majority — as is considered likely there will be a runoff election. The runoff probably will take place in the first week of May.

"The elections, financed and directed by the United States government, are the clearest manifestation of the American intervention that someday will come massively," Samayoa said.
