You've probably been reading about these new guidelines for advertisers announced recently by the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC undoubtedly is sincere in its efforts to promote truth in advertising, but on the other hand, it surely doesn't think the great American public is so unsophisticated, or downright naive, as to take all advertising claims without a grain of salt.

Fortunately, these guidelines came after the so-called "golden era" of Hollywood. The stupendous, colossal, amazing and magnificent motion picture productions would have been cut off in the inspection room if they had been required to "prove" their claims.

The same would have been true of many a developer in the "old west." This country might have been much longer in "settling up" if it had not been for some of the rosy messages directed to residents of the crowded east, boasting of everything from the productivity of the soil to the healthful climate that "sent undertakers to the poorhouse."

★ ★ ★

The old medicine shows used to be champions in the game of exaggeration, which Americans apparently thrived on. A small lad once listened as the vender of a colorful tonic expounded upon the virtues of his wares following the customary banjo pickin'and comic routine from the back of the brightly-painted wagon.

"It's guaranteed!" declared the enthusiastic "medicine man."

"Guaranteed to what?" asked the lad.

"Why, it's guaranteed to pour, my lad," said the genial medicine man.

The crowd roared with glee and promptly purchased dozens of bottles of the watery tonic.

★ ★ ★

And regardless of the FTC guidelines, there will be those who will find ways to comply without giving up their old habits. Such as the East Texas politician back in the days of the "great depression." He is the one who promised voters in a small community that he would move a creek five miles away into their village so that good fishing would come closer. He was elected, and after a few months, some of his constituents had the nerve to bring up his campaign promise.

"When are you going to move the creek?" he was asked.

"Oh, haven't you heard?" asked the politician. "I had to abandon that project by popular demand. I was just getting started on and had got the creek's mosquitoes moved when I got so many complaints that I called it off."

★ ★ ★

But the FTC guidelines could cause some unusual problems, especially the one that requires noted personalities to actually use products they identify themselves with in commercials. Take Joe Namath and his pantyhose, for example. . . . .—WACIL McNAIR.

Panel Will Quizz CIA, FBI On Soviet Ability

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee plans to question FBI and CIA officials about Soviet capabilities to monitor long-distance phone calls within the United States, an informed source says.

Communist ability to intercept U.S. phone calls was first mentioned in the Rockefeller commission's report and later amplified by news accounts describing how long-distance phone calls were monitored and recorded by satellites and antennas atop the Soviet embassy in Washington.

The source, who described the Senate panel's intentions to investigate the reports, spoke in amplification of a remark made Wednesday by Chairman Frank Church that his committee would look into "the problem of penetration by the KGB and the necessary protection we need to invoke." The KGB is the Soviet spy agency.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in a news account from its Washington bureau, reported Wednesday that the Rockefeller report referred to monitoring long-distance telephone calls transmitted within the United States by microwave relays.

Quoting government sources, the Post-Dispatch said that although the report referred to "Communist countries," the Soviet Union was believed to be the only Communist nation with the ability to monitor such calls.

The Post-Dispatch said microwave stations about 20 to 25 miles apart transmit about 70 per cent of long-distance telephone calls in the United states. The remainder are transmitted by underground cables or telephone wires on poles.

LAST SURVIVOR OF MASSACRE

Retired Teacher Learns Of Place In Indian History

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP) — "It's all so unreal!" Mary Jo Estep said after learning she is one of the last known survivors of a massacre of Indians in the United States.

The year was 1911 when her mother, her father, her grandfather and seven other members of a fleeing Shoshone Indian band were massacred by a posse of whites in desolate sagebrush country of northern Nevada.

Now a retired school teacher, Miss Estep, 75, said she grew up with a white family and never asked about the massacre.

Her place in Indian history was recently discovered by Dayton O. Hyde, an author who spent 15 years researching a novel, "The Last Free Man."

This is his account of the massacre:

Miss Estep's grandfather, Shoshone Mike, and a small Indian band that included her family, lived in a canyon near Twin Falls, Idaho.

In 1910, Mike was charged with horse stealing, so he and his band fled. Believing they were being pursued, the Indians made their way to California, then across the Sierra Nevada into Nevada. They holed up in a canyon and were soon confronted with the worst winter in Nevada history.

The Indians lived on butchered beef until they were discovered by ranchers. Fighting erupted and the ranchers were killed.

The Indians fled, chased for more than 300 miles through Nevada Territory by a large posse.

The end came near Winnemucca, Nev., when the posse attacked while Mike and his band were asleep. Only four children survived, Miss Estep, two sisters and a brother.

The children were taken to the Carson, Nev., Indian School where they remained a short time. Evan Estep, superintendent of the Indian agency at Ft. Hall, Idaho, came to the school and took the children back to Ft. Hall. He adopted Mary Jo after the three older children died of tuberculosis.

"They never talked about what had happened," recalls Miss Estep.

"I knew my parents had been killed in a massacre, but that's all. I just never asked."

Earlier this year, a woman in California read the book and wrote Hyde that she had gone to school with a Mary Jo Estep, whose parents had died in an Indian massacre in Nevada.

Hyde followed the trail to Yakima, where he found Miss Estep, who graduated with a degree in music from Washington Normal School in Ellensburg in 1934.

The story told over the years in bars and taverns in Northern Nevada was that the "posse braved the winter and killed the Indians."

But they had the story wrong. One Indian survived. And now the townspeople of Winnemucca hope to erect a monument on the site where Shoshone Mike and most of his Indian band died.

FINDS MANY CHANGES IN EIGHT-YEARS

Gene 'Van Winkle' Awakens

EDITOR's NOTE—Gene Tipps was knocked out in a car accident eight years ago. And when he woke up recently, well, times had changed.

SEYMOUR, Tex. (AP) — Gene Tipps woke up, yawned, looked around and discovered the hippie movement with its flower children was gone.

The Vietnam war was over.

A 1967 Chevrolet was now an old car.

His old girlfriends had long since married and had a house filled with children.

The hard rock music had given way to a new subculture—progressive country music.

And Gene, feeling his face and peering into a mirror, discovered he was 28 years old. But that's funny. The last thing he remembered he was only 20.

"To tell the truth, I feel like Rip Van Winkle. Only difference is that I had 12 more years to sleep," he said.

Tipps was critically injured in a one-car accident May 21, 1967. Suffering from shock and acute swelling of the brain associated with trauma, doctors held little hope of recovery.

Gall bladder surgery somehow brought him out of it.

He had lapsed into a void where he was "unresponsive and uncooperative," said Dr. C. M. Randal of Seymour. "All he wanted to do was sleep."

"There's no medical explanation. I wish I had a reason for the change. It would certainly help other patients in the same circumstances, but we don't," said Randal who performed the surgery May 16.

His mother called it a miracle.

"I can hardly believe Gene is back. I still can't find the words to express the way I feel about the change. It's a miracle," said Mrs. O. E. Tipps.

When Tipps awoke, his only thought was to notify Cisco Junior College of his whereabouts so he could graduate as he had planned in May 1967. Brushing away nurses' efforts to give him something for sleep, he broke his eight-year silence.

"Mother, I only want to talk," he said.

Tipps thought he had been asleep two weeks. He does not remember when he used to sit in a chair, staring, or his parents' efforts the past five years to exercise him twice daily on a rowing-bicycle machine to maintain muscle tone.

"I have already told mother it's for sale. I'm never going to ride it again," said Tipps, who learned to walk with a chiropractor's help after lying in bed two years.

Otherwise, Tipps did little during his ordeal, his mother said.

"Gene only wanted to lay and sleep. We would get him up and feed him and no matter what we did, he would go lay down and go to sleep. He had no desire to do anything," she said.

Now, Tipps wants to complete his business administration education at West Texas State University. He plans to enter this fall. The former dean's list student saw his graduation certificate from Cisco Junior College recently.

However, Tipps' education plans to own a farm with cows and a Cadillac and planned leisure drives with his parents through Seymour must wait a while. He has little muscular control of his left eye, which a Wichita Falls doctor will examine.

There are other things to cope with. He was looking for flattop haircuts and 25-cent gas, but found changed lifestyles, cars and dance steps.

"Everyone who comes to see me is married and has two or three kids. Last thing I remember is that we were all kids and single. I know I'm 28, but to me, I'm still 20," he said.

"I want to go ahead with my education in business administration. I'm going to have to get a job. I think I'm ready to take on the responsibilities my parents have had these last eight years."

All Out Effort Urged To Avert Railroad Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration says "everthing must be done" to prevent a nationwide railroad strike threatened to begin at midnight Sunday.

The administration called the prospect of a strike "a matter of deepest concern" after the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks announced Wednesday that contract talks were deadlocked and that strike preparations were under way.

But beyond further efforts by federal officials to mediate the dispute, there is little the administration can do. All legal delays have been exhausted and only enactment of emergency legislation by Congress could block the threatened walkout.

Union President C.L. Dennis blamed the impasse on railroad management and said "nothing in the picture at this time suggests we will be able to avert a strike." He scheduled a news conference for today to discuss his union's position.

Dennis earlier had rejected an agreement signed by seven other railway unions providing for wage and benefit increases totaling 40.7 per cent over three years. A union spokesman said the agreement failed to deal with special problems and needs of the railway clerks.

A 60-day cooling-off period imposed by President Ford under the Railway Labor Act expires at 12:01 a.m. Monday, and the clerks will be legally free to strike then.

It is expected that picket lines manned by the 117,000 clerks would be honored by most of the nation's 300,000 other railroad employes. Sources indicated the union may exempt bankrupt lines from the shutdown, including the Penn Central and Rock Island.

With the nation just beginning to recover from its worst recession since World War II, a strike could have crippling effects, particularly industries such as steel and coal which are heavily dependent on the railroads, and farming areas.

"Everything must be done to prevent it, certainly at this particularly crucial period in our economy," declared W.J. Usery Jr., chief of the Federal Mediation Service and the President's top labor troubleshooter.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

RECOGNIZED BY AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL ADMINISTRATION

Bicentennial In Scurry Is Official Now

The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington, D.C., is according official recognition to Scurry County as a Bicentennial Community, Congressman Omar Burleson announced today.

Delbert Downing, General Chairman of the Scurry County Bicentennial and Centennial Celebrations, said he was pleased to receive word that the local celebration had been officially recognized at the national level.

"We will now begin planning a formal ceremony for the official designation of Scurry County as a Bicentennial Community," said Downing.

Scurry County received official approved by the Texas Bicentennial Commission in Austin several days ago.

TO FORMAL CANDIDACIES

Ford, Wallace Edging Closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is edging closer to formal candidacy for a full presidential term by creating a 1976 campaign organization and naming a Georgia Republican to head it.

At the same time, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace said Wednesday that he intends "to be involved" in the 1976 election campaign and indicated he will announce his candidacy later this year.

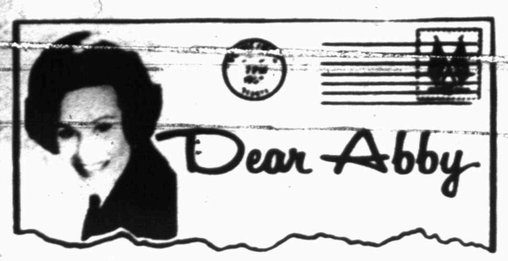
Ford plans to file papers by Friday with the Federal Election Commission, formally creating the organization to raise funds and plan his campaign, the White House announced Wednesday.

The announcement by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that Secretary of the Army Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, a one-time Georgia congressman who headed Richard M. Nixon's 1968 campaign in the South, will become chairman of the committee within two or three weeks.

Ford's formal declaration of candidacy will come "sometime within the next few weeks," before television cameras, Nessen said.

Meanwhile, Wallace told cheering businessmen of his plans and said: "I believe that the great issue of the survival of the middle class is going to need someone to forcefully express that viewpoint to the point of getting these people into the political process so that we are going to see that these changes are brought about."

The Alabama governor said he reserved the right to change his mind but indicated he has every intention of making his fourth presidential bid in 1976.



Hot Embrace of Mom and Son Burns Girl Friend

DEAR ABBY: I must make a comment about the woman whose husband tickles her until she is hysterical, even though she begs him to stop.

I had a husband like that.

He used to shadowbox around me, occasionally landing a genuinely painful blow here and there. He would dance around, prizefighter-style, saying, "Let's mix it up a little." He would pretend it was all in fun, but I knew he was sadistic when I begged him to stop and he wouldn't. I even told him that if he'd quit that little shadowboxing game for good, I would accept it as my Christmas present. Even that didn't work.

Then I casually asked a friend of mine in the presence of her husband and mine if her husband ever played such games. Of course he hadn't. And then a knowing look passed between the two of them.

He never played that game again.

A psychiatrist later told me that when I exposed his cruelty to our friends, he saw himself as others saw him, and he stopped voluntarily.

So maybe this poor "tickled" woman should try the same approach.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: It's worth a try. Isn't it a shame that some people are more concerned about how they appear to strangers than how their own families view them?

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a grown son and his mother who kiss each other on the mouth? My boyfriend is 27, and you should see the way he and his mother kiss! Every hello and goodby is like a love scene in the movies.

The first time I noticed it was last New Year's Eve. They embraced like a pair of lovers, and they held a kiss for what seemed like five minutes without coming up for air. I was so angry I didn't even feel like kissing him after that.

It looks like his mother loves him the way I do. Could I be mistaken? Or could I be overreacting because I love him?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: It depends. You don't say whether your boyfriend is the KISSER or the KISSEE. If he's the kisser, he may have a problem.

DEAR ABBY: Please put something in your column to shake up some of those thoughtless people who make stinging remarks to pregnant women.

I'm pregnant, and I've had people ask, "When's your due date?" And when I tell them, they say, "You'll never last that long!"

I've had some people ask, "Did your doctor tell you you might have twins? You sure look like it!"

And, "Are YOU still walking around?"

Then there are some women who insist upon telling you in detail what a hard time they had delivering their babies.

It's difficult enough to be pregnant without having to answer all those questions and listen to their frightening talk. Be a pal, Abby, and print this. It may help. Thanks.

OVERDUE IN ORLANDO

DEAR OVERDUE: Here's your letter. And many a woman who has walked a mile in your moccasins will identify with your situation and thank you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Assassin Of King Confessed

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — King Faisal's assassin confessed before he was beheaded that he killed his uncle to put an end to the rule of Islam in Saudi Arabia, the government radio reported today.

Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, the late king's 27-year-old nephew, was executed at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the central square of the Saudi capital. His head was displayed briefly on a pole, then head and body were carried away for burial in an unmarked grave, in accordance with the tenets of Islam.

The broadcast today said he told his captors he wanted to end the influence of the state religion because it "was standing in the way of development in the country."

MUSEUM VISITORS—Mr. and Mrs. T.P. Fowler of Loraine are shown in the Scurry County Museum when they came to see an exhibit entitled "The Negro Texan" currently on loan from the Institute of Texan Cultures. Fowler is a grandson of "80 John" Wallace, an early-day Mitchell County rancher who is featured in the exhibit, and recalls many interesting stories his grandfather related about area history and settlers.

'80 John' Wallace One Of Exhibit's Features

"80 John" Wallace was one of the early day West Texas cattlemen who made a success of ranching, surviving the years of drouth and rock bottom cattle prices that put many others out of the business.

He was also a Negro, and his accomplishments were such that he has been selected as one of the personalities featured in a traveling exhibit entitled "The Negro Texan" prepared by the Institute of Texan Cultures. The exhibit is now on display in the Scurry County Museum.

Wallace was born in 1860 in Victoria County, and was named

MRS. WALLACE

Daniel Webster Wallace officially. He arrived in Mitchell County in 1877 with the well-known rancher Clay Mann, and "it was from Mann's "80" brand that he acquired the nickname "80 John". One of Wallace's grandsons, T.P. Fowler of Loraine, says Wallace told him he helped the Nunn brothers drive cattle into Scurry County in those early years as well.

Mann was far-sighted enough to see that the days of open range could not last forever, and he counseled Wallace to buy land of his own. For two years, Wallace drew only $5 a month of his $40 wage and with his savings he bought steers. He bought two sections of land in Mitchell County when the school and railroad lands opened for sale, and by 1936 he had expanded his holdings to 12½ sections.

Wallace realized that many men were handicapped in transacting business because they could not read and write, so at the age of 25 he rode to Navarro County to enroll in a Negro school. There he met Laura Dee Owen, who became his wife. The couple had four children, two of whom are deceased. One daughter, Mrs. Travis Branch, and her husband operate part of the ranch "80 John" put together and have control over the remaining acreage which the estate rents to other farmers and ranchers. The other daughter, Mrs. Eula Wallace Harris, lives in Greenville.

Mrs. Branch wrote a brief biography of her father entitled "The Story of 80 John Wallace" some years ago. The Institute of Texan Cultures drew on Mrs. Branch's book for the biography used in its traveling exhibit.

Colorado City honored "80 John" by naming a school in his honor, and is now in the process of converting the building to the Wallace Center for use as a continuing education facility. Western Texas College will hold its extension courses there, and senior citizens' activities will be based there.

Wallace died in 1939 and was buried, at his request, on the first section of land he bought. Mrs. Wallace died in 1950.

Demand For Water Lags

Lagging consumption through the first five months of the year has held down revenues for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Revenues, which are based on the previous months billing, amounted to $487,613 in May, making $2,009,905 for the year, or up about $26,000 over the same time a year ago. At the same time, expenses of $750,996 were $113,000 more than for the same period in 1974, principally due to higher power costs.

Income from sale of water to the cities was $1,208,659 for the five-months period, up by $6,000, and that to oil and industrial users was $767,633, up by $18,000. Recreational facilities income of $27,188 was down $3,000, and miscellaneous income was up $5,000 in amounting to $6,423.

For the period, water sales to cities amounted to 3,942,000,000 gallons, 583 million gallons less than the previous year. Total deliveries were 6,595,000,000, down 860 million. Bulk of production came from the lakes-2,869,246,000 gallons from Lake Spence and 2,263,111,000 gallons from Lake Thomas. At the end of the month Lake Spence had 170,500 acre feet and Lake Thomas 30,500 acre feet.

Gandhi's Lawyers To Appeal

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's lawyers announced today they are ready to appeal her conviction of corrupt electoral practices.

Her lawyers said they would go before the Supreme Court Friday to ask for an urgent hearing early next week on a double motion by Mrs. Gandhi seeking formal permission to file the appeal and to remain in office while the appeal is under way.

Mrs. Gandhi was found guilty last Thursday of two violations of election laws in her 1971 campaign for Parliament. Her lawyers said today their immediate aim is to get the Supreme Court to extend a 20-day reprieve of a six-year-ban on Mrs. Gandhi holding any elective office.

However, lawyers for Raj Narain, a Socialist leader who succesfully prosecuted Mrs. Gandhi on charges of electoral violations, went before a court in her home city of Allahabad to challenge the original 20-day reprieve.

Narain's lawyers filed an application charging that Mrs. Gandhi's counsel had won the reprieve on false pretenses by arguing that the ruling Congress party needed the 20-day period to elect a new leader to succeed Mrs. Gandhi and avoid any disruption of the government.

Instead, Narain's lawyers said, the Congress party had used the reprieve period to rally around Mrs. Gandhi and declare their confidence in her rather than choose a new leader during the appeals process.

The judge who heard the application from Narain's lawyers ruled that they should formally present their motion to Judge Jag Mohandal Sinha, who found Mrs. Gandhi guilty and who granted the initial delay of the sentence.

Rehab Patients Have Happy Hour

BROOKLYN (AP) — Every day from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. the solarium in the Katz Pavilion of the Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center is a busy scene of men and women being exercised with and on pulleys, wheels, weights and other rehabilitation equipment by members of Kingsbrook's Department of Rehabilitation Medicine.

But every other Friday at 3 p.m., the equipment is pushed to the walls and two carts are wheeled in ... one with a record player and pop and Latin records, and the other with bottles of wine contributed by the Manischewitz Wine Co., glasses and trays of snacks, and it's time for the "Every Other Friday Afternoon Cocktail Party."

"This break in the hospital routine is most welcome by the patients," said Pauline Tan, chief occupational therapist. "At first, the patients were somwewhat shy in mingling, but after the second party and a little wine, there was a spirit of warmth and cheer." Ambulatory patients began dancing with one another. Wheelchair patients kept time to the music, toe tapping and finger snapping. "The whole atmosphere is psychologically therapeutic," Miss Tan added.

An interesting aspect of the parties is that the patients themselves are responsible for the snacks. Patients in the hospital's Activities of Daily Living Kitchen prepare meatballs, cocktails sandwiches of tuna fish, egg salad, cheese and other delicacies.

Besides being a break in routine, the parties afford the patients an opportunity to forget their personal problems. For many, seeing their fellow patients swing and sway to the music encourages them to undertake activities which they might have thought too difficult.

The idea for the parties was developed by Dr. Asa P. Ruskin, Kingsbrook's director of rehabilitation medicine. "There is no reason," said Dr. Ruskin, "why patients should not enjoy more of the activities that people who are normally active enjoy at home."

The Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center, which marked its 50th anniversary in May, is known for its rehabilitation activities. Work is currently being completed on the 10-story David Minkin Rehabilitation Institute, the seventh building in the Medinal Center's complex.

'Yellow Kid' To Celebrate 100th

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph "Yellow Kid" Weil was a legendary con artist whose flim-flam schemes netted an estimated $8 million.

On Monday he'll celebrate his 100th birthday as a welfare patient in a convalescent home.

"I don't feel a day over 70," he said during a recent interview. "I still like to look at the ladies. I like a sip of wine now and then ... But I'll be damned if I will play bingo with the rest around here. It's a ripoff."

He was in and out of jail 41 times before he reformed in 1941.

During his heyday of grand-one schemes in the 1920s, the Yellow Kid drove yellow cars, wore yellow kid gloves and had canary yellow calling cards.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — A guest at our house placed a cigarette in an ash tray on our living room coffee table. We went into another room. While we were absent, the cigarette must have fallen from the tray and rested on the table top, where it left a deep burn that seems to go right through the finish and slightly into the wood itself. Can this be fixed without refinishing the entire table top?

A. — No. When a burn has gone through the finish and affected the wood itself, the old finish must be removed. The marred spot then must be tackled, sanding it down until it disappears. In more severe cases, it may be necessary to do a patching job before the refinishing, but this is often unsatisfactory because it is so difficult to get an exact match. Should it be impossible to make a good repair, you might consider recovering the top of the table with a wood veneer or perhaps a wood-grained laminated plastic.

Q. — Sometimes I read about getting a 5 per cent tax credit on the purchase of a new house and sometimes I read that it is a $2,000 tax credit. Which is correct?

A. — It's 5 per cent up to a maximum of $2,000. Thus, if you bought a house for $45,000, the credit would be only $2,000 even though 5 per cent of $45,000 is more than that. Also, you are reminded that the credit doesn't apply to all new houses. The builder can tell you whether his house is eligible for the credit and, to protect you, should give you a certification of that.

Q. — Can I use ordinary hydrogen peroxide for bleaching wood?

A. — It has bleaching qualities and, in some cases, might be effective. I recently visited a friend who had cut his hand while making some furniture. Some of the blood had spilled on the wood. It was quickly and effectively removed with peroxide from the medicine chest. However, for complete bleaching jobs on wood I have never used anything but the wood bleach sold in hardware stores and lumber yards.

Inflation Hits White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation has hit the White House.

First Lady Betty Ford held a "brown bag" lunch on the White House South Lawn on Wednesday for members of the Republican Congressional Wives Club.

Mrs. Ford told the women: "At least you all got what you wanted because you had to bring your own."

The luncheon was planned in January when Mrs. Ford attended a meeting of the club and jokingly said at the time she wanted to have them at the White House but "I might have to ask you to brown bag it. With inflation, my husband is after me to cut down.

Dr. Lamb

Urine is not a medicine!

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—In one of your columns you stated that urine is pure as it comes from the sterile blood. I have been curious about this for quite a long time but, as urine is considered "dirty," I wouldn't have broached the subject. It was interesting to hear that it is clean and that makes me wonder even more about people's aversion to it.

We have just seen a documentary on the sad plight of the people in the drought area in Africa. They were plodding hundreds of miles with their children and livestock through endless dust. Surely they must recycle every drop of liquid and not let it seep into the sand while they perish from thirst.

I drink lots of water, and people have said I might wash out too many minerals from my body. Sounds reasonable. But if urine contains these valuable minerals why should it be discarded?

When I was pregnant I had a shot for morning sickness and heard it was made from the urine of a pregnant woman. Shocking! Then I've heard that some shots are made from a horse's urine. If this is true, there must be some curative qualities there.

I recently read a book advocating using urine for all sorts of miraculous cures. It stated that "...urine extolled by many of the ancients, but misunderstood by the semi-moderns, now appears in the light of a wonderful reservoir—a filter of preeminent value. It contains in pure and often undreampt of quantity, products of a vital nature." I'm sure the drug companies would reject this, but if it is true it would be a miracle for the destitute who cannot afford these sometimes harmful prescription medicines.

DEAR READER—At the risk of offending you, I'll have to say your letter is a good example of a little knowledge being a dangerous thing.

Urine from a healthy person with no infection of the kidney or bladder is sterile. It is literally a siphoned or filtered out part of our blood. Blood contains no bacteria.

Being sterile or germ free does not mean it is a wonderful, healthy thing. It can be sterile but contain harmful chemicals. The urine is a vehicle to rid the body of excess unwanted chemicals, such as the nitrogen-containing urea, made from the excess protein that so many people eat. The urine can be concentrated if you need to conserve water and diluted if you need to eliminate excess water. The kidney plays a major role in controlling your chemical, salt and water balance. If you drink water that contains too much salt, it will make your thirst worse and lead to death. That is why shipwrecked sailors can't simply drink sea water which, incidentally, contains about the same concentration of salt that is in your blood. Urine, particularly in the thirsty individual, may be much more salty.

That pregnant urine, even from horses, contains an important hormone eliminated to maintain hormone balance. It is useful in certain medical conditions requiring such hormone treatment. It has no value in treating infections any more than other hormones do. So, while I will agree that urine is sterile, the idea that this solution of the body's chemical wastes is a magical cure-all is a bit far out.

Aircraft Retired

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Air Force spokesmen said a C118 Liftmaster which carried three United States presidents would find its final resting place today at the Davis-Monthan AFB airplane graveyard.

Air Training Command officials at Randolph AFB near San Antonio, Tex., said the plane, a four-propeller craft, made its final flight Wednesday.

President John F. Kennedy used the plane for commuting to Hyannis Port, Mass.

During the 1960s then-Vice President Richard Nixon made a goodwill tour of South America using the plane.

Lyndon B. Johnson used the plane also while he was vice president.

Randolph officials said they decided to retire the aircraft because of high fuel costs and maintenance difficulties.

Race Set In Angelo

SAN ANGELO—Final preparations were being made this week for the first annual "Fiesta del Concho" Race Meet at San Angelo's Wilkie Downs off U.S. 87 on Country Club Road, kicking off the annual summer festival set this year from June 21 through 29 along the Concho Rivers.

Aubrey Stokes, San Angelo attorney, horseman, and chairman of the Racing Committee,, has announced a slate of 20 races with purses expected to total some $10,700 including the specially featured "Bob Milburn Memorial" for horses in the open class aged three years or more, which will be run Sunday afternoon with prize money of $1,300 ($300) added) to be divided among the top three finishers and a special two-foot trophy in memory of the late West Texas sports journalist.

Stokes and his committee have written a wide variety of contests ranging from 250 to 400 yards for quarterhorses to longer races for thoroughbreds at three-eights, five-eights and half a mile and entry fees from $25 to $50 in addition to the $100-fee "Milburn" special.

Five of the races carry blanket prizes in addition to cash up to $1,100.

Post time Saturday is 2 p.m. following a 90-minute historical panorama narrated by Texas radio personality "Tumbleweed" Smith and presenting such performers as the Ector County 4-H Mounted Drill Team, the Concho Muzzleloaders, a group of Explorer Scout Indian dancers from Sterling City, Color Guard from the Army Unit at Goodfellow Air Force Base, area equestrians re-creating the storied Pony Express dash, and a 25-piece "All-City Band" of junior and senior high school musicians from San Angelo.

Admission to the historical spectacle Saturday is free with the purchase of the regular $2 race meet tickets.

Entries for the Saturday races will be taken from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday at (915) 655-4136, and entries for the Sunday races will be taken from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday at the same number.

The meet has been sanctioned by the Texas Racing Circuit.

Cancel Game

MONTREAL (AP) — The Canadian Football League's annual all-star game scheduled for the Montreal Autostade next Tuesday was canceled Wednesday due to lack of interest.

Only about 2,000 advance tickets were sold for the game pitting a CFL all-star team against the Montreal Alouettes, the 1974 Grey Cup champions.

Few Are Forecasting Improved Jobless Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Many economists forecast an expansion of business activity during the late summer months, but few of them foresee a substantial, concurrent improvement in the jobless rate. Why?

Isn't it logical to expect that as economic activity quickens, as production improves, few people will be frustrated in finding jobs? And that the jobless rate will quickly decline from 9.2 per cent?

The answer: No. There's no conspiracy; it's all explainable.

First off, as the economy emerges from a recession there is a decided tendency on the part of business to seek productivity increases and also to get more for the dollar. There is a great deal of hesitancy about hiring.

Businessmen decline to commit themselves to expansion until they have some certainty about the future. They fear overexpansion.

Instead of hiring, they might be more inclined to seek greater efficiency from the existing staff. Or, they might increase the number of hours worked by the staff until they are certain the recovery will continue.

Argus Research Corp., wholesaler of market and economic information to securities brokers and institutions, notes a second factor at work: Despite unemployment, it often is difficult to find workers with the proper skills.

"This may be the result of either the inability of the unemployed to relocate or differences in skill requirements," says Argus.

Demographics, or the population factor, accounts for a third explanation of why an improvement in the jobless rate usually lags behind economic recovery. The labor force is growing faster than the ability of the economy to absorb workers. Eventually they will be absorbed, but many months will be lost in the process.

Another reason also is frequently cited: Many of the largest employers — automotive, housing, appliances and the like — are cyclical industries. Right now their cycles are down, although seemingly destined to rise, if only slowly.

There is, nevertheless, a considerable amount of bullish news for the employment situation. Among those cited by Argus:

—The rate of factory hirings and recalls has risen.

—Employment rose in 43 per cent of 172 key industries in April, up from only 17 per cent in February.

—The number of first time claimants for jobless insurance fell in May.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I want to contribute to a private overseas organization which gives aid to war orphans. Would my contribution be tax deductible?

A. Contributions made directly to a foreign organization are not deductible. However, you may deduct contributions to a U.S. organization that transfers funds to a charitable foreign organization but controls the use of the funds, or that uses the foreign organization merely as an administrative arm. Contributions to certain Canadian charitable organizations may be deductible. However, the amount of charitable contributions to Canadian groups cannot exceed the percentage of Canadian source adjusted gross income that is specified under Canadian income tax law. The organization can tell you whether it qualifies to receive charitable contributions, or you can find out by writing to the Director of International Operations, Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D.C. 20225.

Q. Please explain taxes that are deductible as income producing expenses.

A. You may claim as an itemized deduction certain taxes only if they are ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in the production of income. These taxes must generally be imposed upon you and paid by you during your tax year. State transfer taxes on security sales, for example, stocks, bonds, etc., that may be deducted as income producing expenses.

Q. I just took a new job in another state. The house I bought won't be ready for me to move into for a month. Are my living expenses during this waiting period deductible as moving expenses?

A. Yes. The cost of temporary quarters, that is, only meals and lodging, at the new location of work during any period of 30 consecutive days after obtaining work is deductible if you meet the time and distance requirements for moving expenses. To find out if you qualify, consult IRS Publication 521, "Tax Information on Moving Expenses." It's available free at many IRS offices.

Q. I plan to buy a house this year to rent out for the tax benefits. Can I take a full year of depreciation on it if I plan to take none in the year I eventually sell it?

A. No. If you acquire or dispose of property during the year, regular depreciation is allowable for only that part of the year you own the asset.

Skin cancer, the most common form of cancer in America and at the same time the most curable, can often be easily treated in a doctor's office, says the American Cancer Society.
