Terrorist attack leaves 30 Israelis dead

Israeli troopers deploy from helicopter near Tel Aviv Saturday in search of Arab terrorists responsible for attack on two busloads of sightseers (AP Laserphoto)

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Arab terrorists came ashore from the Mediterranean on rubber rafts Saturday, attacked two busloads of Israeli sightseers on a coastal highway and then fought a furious gun battle with Israeli security forces, authorities reported.

At least 30 persons were killed and 70 were wounded, government sources said. If those figures are correct, it would be the highest death toll from a terrorist attack in Israel's 30-year history.

BEIRUT (AP) — Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility Saturday for the terrorist attack on a busload of Israeli citizens.

The Arab gunmen had forced the occupants of the two buses aboard one of the vehicles and headed south toward Tel Aviv 30 miles away. But it was stopped at a roadblock and in the ensuing battle the bus caught fire and exploded. Some bodies were seen in the charred wreckage.

One bus passenger, who said he had seen six or seven terrorists, told reporters he believed he had shot two of them. Seventy-one persons were reported to have been aboard the hijacked bus.

Exact information on the number of victims and terrorists was unavailable because of strict military censorship. Police reportedly were searching for some of the terrorists who fled into nearby fields.

In New York, Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said he was cutting short his visit to the United States to return home. He said Prime Minister Menachem Begin briefed him on the attack by telephone and said Israeli police and soldiers had apprehended 10 of 13 terrorists.

Weizman said the bus "blew up or was blown up," indicating officials did not know if the terrorists set off explosives in the vehicle or a fire ignited by bullets caused the gas tank to explode.

Weizman said he would arrive in Israel Sunday for cabinet talks and retaliatory air strikes were "a possibility."

Begin postponed his scheduled trip to Washington Sunday because of the attack. A government spokesman, Aryeh Naor, said a new date would be announced. Weizman said he expected Begin to postpone his trip for at least several days, possibly until after funerals are held for the victims.

In Washington, President Carter said the attack was "an outrageous act of lawlessness and senseless brutalty.

"Criminal acts such as this advance no cause or political belief," Carter said in a statement. "They inspire only revulsion at the lack of respect for innocent human life."

Security forces mounted a massive manhunt in the wake of what was the first major guerrilla infiltration into Israel in three years.

Israeli radio said the gunmen came in on rubber dinghies and beached on the Mediterranean coast at the kibbutz cooperative farm Maagan

Webb gone one year, but Big Spring humming

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a two-part series on Big Spring's "recovery" after the closing of Webb AFB. The second part of the series, dealing with the city's developing air park, will continue in Monday's edition of The Reporter-Telegram.

By JIM STEINBERG
R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A year ago this month, the city of Big Spring received notification that Webb Air Force Base would be closed.

Although that closure meant the loss of approximately 3,000 military and civilian jobs, one year later the economy of the city is humming, and many say it is on the verge of a boom.

"The closing had been talked about for some time and we studied what other cities in similar circumstances have done. We wanted to learn from their experience. Once we knew for sure the base would be closed, we hit the ground running," said Harry Nagel, city manager of Big Spring.

Officials here do not deny there were individual economic hardships. Some businesses did fold. And trailer court operators, as Nagel put it, "took it on the chin."

On the other hand:

"It's amazing the bad things that have not happened to Big Spring after the closing," said First Federal Savings President Charles E. Beil, echoing the sentiments of many in Big Spring.

"We were sitting here with our mouth open thinking about how well we went through the closing," said R. L. McDonald of McDonald Real Estate.

"A lot of houses came on the market and much to our surprise, nearly all sold right away. There might have been a few houses sitting around in July, but our listings are getting pretty scarce right now," McDonald said.

"We had a boomer of a year," said Janell Davis, a realtor with Reeder & Reeder Associates, who noted that the real estate business here prospered with the housing turnover resulting from the base closing.

Many people selected Big Spring as their new home because housing in the city was a little cheaper than in other parts of the area, Mrs. Davis said.

"They (new residents) came in and gobbled up the plums," she said. "An economy that depends heavily on government spending is always vulnerable. In the future we expect to be an even better community than we would have been with the military still here. Our economy is much more stable and diversified," said Beil.

During 1976, revenues from sales tax amounted to $727,162. In 1977, those revenues increased to $750,348. And sales tax receipts may now be increasing at an even brisker pace. In the first four months of 1978, total sales increased by more than 12 percent compared to the same period the year before.

Bank deposits were $128,478,209 for January 1978, compared to $117,134,146 for January 1977. And another indicator of economic ac-

Complaint filed in wake of alleged bird slaughter

By MARLEEN RAY

Midge Erskine, a federally licensed bird rehabilitator in Midland, Saturday labeled the alleged killing and wounding of hundreds of birds at Edison Freshman School as "sadistic" and "inhumane."

"My real objection to this is inhumane treatment of wildlife and the participation of a school principal in this," she said.

Late Friday Mrs. Erskine filed a complaint against Edison Freshman School Principal Rufus L. Williams in connection with the deaths of the birds found earlier that morning.

Mrs. Erskine said she was notified by the city animal shelter around noon Friday about some Edison Freshman students who were "upset" about the dead and dying birds. She said the students told her Assistant Principal Tex Paris "threw the wounded birds against the wall" and encouraged other students to do the same.

She said students told her persons were kicking birds around and feeding them to dogs. After arriving at the school following the phone call from the shelter, Mrs. Erskine said she talked with students and toured the school grounds. She said students showed her the dumpster where some of the birds had been thrown.

"I dug through a good two feet of birds and didn't reach the bottom," she said. She said a number of them were still alive. "They were just dumping garbage on top of them," she said.

Mrs. Erskine estimated that about 2,000 birds were in the dumpster, and some were scattered around the school grounds, too. She said there were three mockingbirds (the state bird), blue jays, brown-headed cowbirds, sparrows and house finches.

She said when she first saw the dead and dying birds she suspected poisoning. However, she said some of the students told her the birds were shot early Friday morning.

When she confronted the principal with the problem, Williams said he knew nothing, according to Mrs. Erskine. Later, she said he told of firing three shots from a 12-gauge shotgun at the birds while they were in the trees in the school patio.

Williams subsequently was quoted

Lawsuits may result in changes in Ozona

By KAY HORD

OZONA — Isolated, the only town in Crockett County, Ozona has a reputation for doing things its way. But in the very near future, Ozona may be forced to change.

The town has remained unincorporated, with the commissioners court acting as governing body for the city as well as the county.

"It saves trouble, double taxes and jobs," said one resident.

But trouble recently has been the password for the commissioners, as they have faced one legal battle after another.

The Mexican-Americans in Ozona, representing approximately one-fourth of the population, organized in 1974, and, represented by San Antonio attorney Luis Segura, have begun to assert themselves in the city's government.

Two suits have been filed protesting precinct lines and elections.

A three-judge federal panel in 1977 ruled in favor of the Mexican-Americans in the first case, filed in 1976, over reapportionment of precinct lines.

The second case is pending.

A pre-trial hearing will be held Monday in Sanderson to "discuss the perimeters" of the pending suit against Ozona commissioners, in connection with a run-off election for Commissioner Precinct Place 1 held in January 1978.

Segura is representing Sostenes DeHoyos, who challenged incumbent Jess Marley in the race.

Ozona's problems began in 1975 when the county reapportioned precinct lines under the one-man, one-vote rule. In 1976, Texas came under the Voting Rights Act.

Some controversy arose during that election as County Judge Troy Williams sent letters to each of the election judges instructing them to allow voters to vote in any precinct, as long as they signed an affadavit swearing they were residents of that precinct.

Williams later told commissioners the letter was sent to avoid "confrontations at the polls." Since the reapportionment, about 80 residents of Precinct 4 wanted to cross precinct lines and vote in Precinct 1, which is where they lived before the lines were moved.

Williams' letter was countermanded by a district judge, and residents were instructed to vote in the precinct in which they lived.

According to Segura, after the election the Justice Department objected to the county's reapportionment plan, and he filed suit on behalf of the Mexican-American organization, which had formed shortly before the controversy over the lines began.

"We won that suit, requiring a new election," Segura said.

Accident kills man

ODESSA — A 48-year-old Odessa car salesman was killed Saturday afternoon when the dune buggy he was driving overturned two or three times, throwing him from the vehicle, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Joe Dan Walton was dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital after the accident, which occurred at 4:50 p.m. at Huntington and 29th streets in Odessa, the DPS said.

DPS reports indicated Walton was traveling south on Huntington when he apparently lost control of the dune buggy. After turning over, the vehicle came to rest on the west side of the road.

Walton was alone in the dune buggy.

Communists back Italian regime

ROME (AP) — Giulio Andreotti formed an all-Christian Democrat government Saturday that will for the first time ever receive Communist support in parliament.

Andreotti made his announcement after conferring with President Giovanni Leone, ending a two-month government crisis, Italy's longest. Andreotti, 59, had resigned as premier Jan. 16 rather than give in to leftist demands that he take the Communists, Italy's second-biggest party, into his cabinet to help solve the country's severe economic and social problems.

Under a five-party agreement announced last Wednesday after long negotiations, the Communists will be members of the governing majority in parliament and will have a voice in policy-making, but they will not hold any cabinet posts.

The United States has been strongly opposed to any Communist participation in the cabinet of this NATO country.

The other parties to the pact are the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans.

Nazi march brings confrontation

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hundreds of angry demonstrators pelted about 50 swastika-displaying members of the National Socialist Party of America with snowballs and stones Saturday, heading off their attempt to march through the streets of south St. Louis.

Using placards emblazoned with "White Power" messages as shields, the brown-shirted party members remained on a flatbed truck from which they had intended to disembark for a city-approved mile-long march.

They were carried to a park site near the end of the route, where about 20 members of a counter-organization known as the Black and White Defense Committee of the Revolutionary Socialist League gathered.

Kingergarten board concern

The future of the full day, multi-age kindergarten program at seven Midland public schools is expected to be considered by the Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school administration building.

Schools Superintendent Dr. James Mailey said Friday the administration plans to present a list of alternatives concerning the organization of the kindergarten program to the board. He said the administration hasn't decided which alternative it will recommend to the trustees.

Ideally, he said, it would be good to go to a full-day program throughout the district, but he said this would be "very costly."

Mailey said he personally preferred keeping the present organization of the kindergarten program and extending the full-day sessions to the Title I schools which only have half-day sessions now. He said this would involve establishing full-day programs at Pease Elementary, South Elementary and Travis Elementary Schools.

Board member Ann Page said Friday she thought taxpayers ought to be aware of how much each alternative would cost them in local taxes. She said administrative staff members figured out how much the tax rate would increase or decrease for each alternative.

According to the report, the highest increase of 3.9 percent would occur if the board decided to implement full-day kindergarten programs districtwide with self-contained classrooms and an aide for each teacher. The smallest increase of 1 percent would occur if the board adopted a full-day program for Title I schools, a half-day program for non-Title I schools and kept the multi-age programs.

The tax rate actually would decrease by 5 percent if a half-day program were implemented districtwide with no aides for the teachers.

Mrs. Page said, "We (the school trustees) all recognize the (full-day, multi-age) program as being a successful one, but we all recognize the inequity of the staffing." She said more staff members are available to students in the full-day, multi-age programs.

"I have much sympathy with the kindergarten teacher who does not have access to an aide," she said.

Board member Joe Dominey said Saturday although he is not leaning towards any one of the alternatives, he said if the district is able to keep a program that is considered a success and supported by parents, then he hoped it could do so.

On the other hand, he said there are certain inequities in the kindergarten structure since some schools have full-day programs and some do not.

"If it were just a matter of costs, then I don't think that is sufficient reason for stopping the (full-day, multi-age) program," said.

Also on the agenda is consideration of the textbook committee recommendations concerning textbook adoptions. Texts in drama, Texas History, English Composition, Business, German, Driver Education, Chemistry, Biology, Spanish, English Literature and Free Enterprise are being considered for adoption by the district.

Superintendent Mailey said the trustees are expected to approve changes in the new Midland High School vocational facility.

The board scheduled three executive sessions. One involves a discussion with the school attorney, Charles Tighe, concerning the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling which extended the Voting Rights Act of 1965 to school districts in the South, according to Mailey.

The other two sessions will concern a real estate matter and the hiring of a new Midland High School football coach, he said.

The board plans to hear a salary schedule proposal by the joint salary committee of the Midland chapters of the Texas State Teachers Association and the Texas Classroom Teachers Association during the meeting. It is scheduled to hear an analysis of trends in school populations by Payton Cook, director of pupil and community services.

TALK TO YOUR CHILD'S TEACHER IT'S EASY!

Before you go to a parent-teacher conference—

Both parents should attend, if possible.

Decide in advance what questions you want to ask. Write them down so you don't overlook any.

Ask if your child has any questions.

Leave children at home, unless the teacher asks that they join you. They might repeat what they hear.

At the meeting—

Arrive promptly—and don't "overstay" your visit. The teacher probably has other conferences scheduled.

You're there to obtain information, but you can provide the teacher with facts that make it easier to deal with your child.

Ask what you can do to help your child learn.

If you have a specific point or a complaint to discuss listen to the teacher's side of the story before you criticize. Jot down points covered along with the teacher's suggestions.

When you get home—

And . . . check back with the teacher in a few weeks.

Administration officials now term inflation biggest economic problem

By MICHAEL DOAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with worsening inflation, the government now sees rising prices, rather than unemployment, as the nation's biggest economic problem.

Administration officials in public statements are moving away from their previous stance that inflation and unemployment are problems of equal importance.

The government reported Friday that the unemployment rate dropped from 6.3 percent to 6.1 percent in February. But wholesale prices rose by 1.1 percent last month, the largest increase in three years. And economists predicted that supermarket prices will keep going up.

"Inflation is the major problem," Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said flatly at an American Newspaper Association Convention session.

He said the administration is not proposing economic programs that would over-stimulate the economy. Job-creating programs are often criticized for overheating the economy, contributing to inflation.

Blumenthal's comments were echoed by Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, who when he was nominated last fall said both problems were equally important.

At a congressional hearing Thursday, Miller said he now considers inflation the biggest problem and plans to give it a "very, very high priority" at the Fed.

Congress also is turning its attention to the rising prices. House Democrats earlier this week agreed to add anti-inflation language to the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, which is aimed at reducing unemployment.

Rep. Robert Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he agrees with Republicans that fighting inflation should get equal priority with creating jobs.

The government's new stress on inflation over unemployment has drawn fire from labor leaders, who maintain the twin goals of reducing unemployment and controlling inflation are not contradictory. They note that the country had both high unemployment and high inflation during the mid-1970s recession.

"Through programs designed to put people to work, we can have reasonable controls on inflation and still reduce unemployment," AFL-CIO spokesman John Zaluski said Friday.

It is not clear what the emphasis on fighting inflation will mean for government programs. The Carter administration has proposed extensive tax cuts to stimulate the economy and eventually create more jobs. It also has proposed a voluntary anti-inflation program, but has ruled out wage and price controls as unworkable.

Senators discuss new canal change

By RICHARD PYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal allowing the United States to negotiate later for a permanent U.S. military presence in Panama is being studied by Senate leaders in hopes it may break the stalemate on the Panama Canal treaties.

As advanced by several senators not now committed to support of the treaty, the plan would merely make such talks a possibility, if Panama was willing to go along.

But there was immediate speculation that it could attract enough of the dozen or so stilluncommitted senators to give the neutrality treaty the required two-thirds majority in a showdown vote next Thursday.

As written, the treaty calls for all U.S. forces to leave by the year 2000, when Panama would take over control of the waterway.

But Sens. Sam Nunn and Herman Talmadge, both Georgia Democrats, said they felt the pact should carry provisions for at least a reopening of negotiations on a status-of-forces agreement. The United States has similar agreements with Spain, the Philippines and other countries.

"In our view, a small but select U.S. military presence in Panama beyond the year 2000 would be highly desirable," the senators said in a joint statement.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, DAriz., another uncommitted lawmaker, and Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., also have suggested adding such a provision to the treaties.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said that if an agreement could be attached in a manner acceptable to the Panamanians, "I would not object."

He ruled out an amendment that would require a second plebiscite in Panama, but suggested that, "You could accomplish the same thing with a bilateral reservation" or an understanding attached to the formal instrument of ratification to be adopted by the Senate.

A reservation would require concurrence of Panamanian leaders. An understanding would not, but neither would it have any force.

Emerging from a meeting at which the proposal was discussed, Vice President Walter Mondale, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, floor mananger for the treaties, declined to comment.

But Assistant Majority Leader Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was reported to have agreed with Baker that there appeared to be nothing in the idea that would stand in the way of the treaties' acceptance.

It wasn't his day

CLEVELAND (AP) — It was all going so smoothly. A would-be robber paid his fare to board a Cleveland bus, took out his .32-caliber revolver, and ordered the passengers to turn over all their money.

But every one of the riders — and even the driver — said they were broke.

The gunman, apparently angry at finding a bus full of indigents, fired a shot at the back of the bus, then hit a passenger on the head with the gun.

True to his luck, the gun fell apart. The cylinder fell out and clattered along the bus floor.

The man ran off, and police said they were searching for him.

The passenger who was conked was not seriously hurt.

Coal talks progressing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bargainers for the coal industry and the United Mine Workers exchanged contract proposals Saturday, and both sides said they were making "some progress" toward a settlement that could end the 96-day coal strike.

French vote in elections

PARIS (AP) — Thirty million Frenchmen vote Sunday in the first round of crucial legislative elections that opinion polls say will bring an uncertain Socialist-Communist alliance to power.

Men sought

Midland County Sheriff's deputies are looking for two men who allegedly took $114 at gunpoint Saturday night from a man on Interstate Highway 20 at the exit to U.S. Highway 80.

New homes to use solar energy

By ED TODD

What about adapting solar energy for home living?

On Saturday, Midland County Commissioner Win Brown said he was amazed by it all.

Midland City Manager Jim Brown said he was interested in it.

Odessa Chamber of Commerce leader Art Lish said it was timely.

And builder-architect Loyd Willis of Andrews said he was "excited about it and scared at the same time."

What those men were lauding was the adaption of solar energy for heating home dwellings.

Their comments came late Saturday morning at the ground-breaking for El-Sol Estates, about 10 miles southwest of Midland.

The 33 houses, ranging in price from the upper $30,000 to the upper $50,000, are to be built on two locations about five miles south of Midland Regional Air Terminal.

And when completed, say the developers, El-Sol will be the "second largest" solar-heated housing addition in the nation. What is reputed to the largest is a 34-house addition in California.

But Commissioner Brown said El-Sol should be billed as the biggest solar addition in the state of Texas. El-Sol will be in his precinct.

He said the technology of solar power impressed him.

"It amazes me what they can do," Brown said. "I read 'Popular Mechanics,' and I've wanted to heat my home (with solar energy) for a long time. But there's the cost involved."

City Manager Brown said he was "interested" in the El-Sol's solar-heating concept. "This is rather unique," he said.

Odessa's Lish said the technology behind solar power comes at an appropriate time. "We're in the middle of energy exploration," he said.

Site of El-Sol Estates, which is midway between Midland and Odessa, may be the meeting place of the two cities. he said.

"I think this will be where the cities are growing together," Lash said. The new development is about 1/12 miles east of Farm Road 1788 and is near Monahans Draw, off County Road 160

Architect-builder Willis, who has already built some solar-heated homes, indicated that the technology of solar-heating is far from perfection.

"There are some things about it that we don't know about yet," he said.

". . . Some (of the innovations) will be successful; some will not. . . . I'm excited about it and scared at the same time," Willis said.

He said that solar energy will account for about 80 percent of the heating for each house. The "back-up system" will be piped-in electricity.

Other than for the solar-heating system, each house in the addition will be a "total-electric home."

Cooling will be by evaporative units, rather than by refrigerative coolers.

"We look down on it (evaporative cooling), and the reason is that it's not properly installed," Willis said.

He said the houses would be "fairly contemporary" in architecture. The "solar collectors" will be on the southside of the houses.

The cost of the houses will be about $30 per square foot and the square footage per house will range from 900 to 1,500, he said. He said each house's solar-heating system will account for $2,500 to $3,000 of the total cost of the dwelling.

In responding to the likelihood of homes having their own power generators, Willis termed that unlikely in his generation.

"The utility companies have a tremendous investment to protect," he said.

Investing their money in El-Sol Estates are two Odessans, Odell Anders and Duke Harkness.

Work on the first house in the addition is to begin this week, and it should be completed and readied for open-house within three or four months.

Meanwhile, the developers will start drilling for water wells for each of the proposed houses in the addition. Willis said that, perhaps, the wells should have been drilled before Saturday's ground breaking.

"It could be there's no water out here, and we'll have to abandon the whole project," Willis said.

However, some water wells have been brought in at non-solar-heated home sites not far from El-Sol.

Arab terrorists kill 30 Israelis in raid

Michael, 37 miles north of Tel Aviv.

In Cairo, Egypt's Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Butros B. Ghali expressed hope the terrorist attack would not affect Israeli-Egyptian moves toward peace in the Middle East. "My only hope is that the incident will not stop the process of peace," he said.

A confused picture of the attack emerged from eyewitnesses.

A youth who passed the kibbutz just afterward said:

"We saw wreckage and a lot of blood. At first we thought it was a road accident and we wanted to help. Then we heard policemen shouting 'Terrorists! Terrorists!' A car went by full of bloodied people. I don't know if they were dead or alive."

Avrahim Shamir, a passenger on one bus, said it stopped when "we saw the bus with a wounded driver." Then, he said, "a Mercedes-Benz full of terrorists came by and ordered us all into one bus."

One bus was returning from a tour of a cave. The other also carried tourists.

The terrorists forced the combined busload south on the Tel Aviv-Haifa expressway. Witnesses said the gunmen fired machine guns and grenades at passing cars from the commandeered bus.

Winds, dust predicted

If ever a day was born to fly a tissue-paper kite, this isn't supposed to be the day.

Nor is it billed to be a day for hang-gliding or for sailing, or fishing from light vessels.

It's going to be a windy, gusty and dust-blowing day, predicted a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Winds will be southwesterly at 20 to 30 miles per hour and gusty. Skies will be partly cloudy and the air will be pleasantly warm — in the upper 70s — today, said the weatherman.

The weather service said wind warnings are resquired today on area lakes.

Throughout the Midland area Saturday night, skies were reported as clear, and the weather generally mild.

Midland went pancakes

Midlanders again were on a pancake diet Saturday as the Downtown Lions Club staged its 22nd annual Pancake Jamboree in the Dellwood Plaza Mall.

It all started with an early breakfast and concluded with a late dinner, with the Lions serving 'em up as long as the diners held out their plates for more.

And when the pancake-sausage aroma had cleared and the griddles were cool, it was found that a total of 8,582 men, women and children had been served during the day.

He was joined by Gariand Chapman, club president, in expressing appreciation to Midland and area residents who again this year supported the Pancake Jamboree in such large numbers.

Their support, the club leaders said, will make possible the continuation of the Lions Club's activities and projects which reach into multiple phases of community life.

"This is what it is all about," Weis said, "the financing of our far-reaching program of serving others. We are most appreciative of such fantastic support."

Weis said a special thanks is directed to all club members and others who worked hard to make the event a huge success.

Chapman said a dollar count of net proceeds to the club cannot be determined until a final report of advance ticket sales is available and food bills have been paid.

"But the club will come out all right again this year," he said, "and for this we are grateful."

Webb gone, but not town

tivity, building permits, increased to $6,206,323, in 1977 from $4,888,162 in 1976.

Although those associated with Webb AFB estimate that approximately 2,700 people left the area after the base closed, the exodus of people is not reflected in Chamber of Commerce population estimates which peg the city's population at 32,374. (Base personnel were never included in city population figures, a chamber spokesman said.)

If the chamber of commerce census takers didn't notice the population loss, Big Spring Independent School District officials did.

Combined enrollment this year was 5,293 students, down between 800 and 900 students from last year when air base personnel were still here.

Five elementary schools closed, although Assistant Superintendent Lynn Hise said several of the schools would have been closed even if the Webb AFB had not been shut down.

And because Big Spring has been growing at the rate of 12 families per week, Hise said that there was a strong possibility that one of the elementary schools would be opened next year.

The nucleus of Big Spring's recovery from the loss of Webb AFB is the revitalization of property on the air base itself. Approximately 135 new jobs have already been created in what were abandoned hangars behind the still-locked gates at the base.

That work force could grow dramatically if Lockheed Service Company is awarded a $100 million contract for modification of the Phantom F-4C fighter aircraft at the end of this month.

If Lockheed is awarded the project, plans are to open a facility on the former air base that will ultimately employ 700 to 1,000 workers.

The semi-classified defense contract would pump $250,000 in weekly payrolls into the city. That money, according to Big Spring officials, would circulate through the local economy and in effect add a $1 million weekly jolt to the community.

as saying he was merely trying to "scare them off." He claimed the birds were creating a nuisance the past two weeks, damaging the trees and benches in the patio, according to one newspaper account.

Williams also was quoted as reporting previously had tried throwing cans at the birds and squirting them with water. The account quoted him as saying he he didn't notify school administration officials about it.

"My intentions were good. I am not a sadistic person," he said in the newspaper account.

Claiming the bird droppings were not cleaned up in the patio, Mrs. Erskine said the droppings presented a "health hazard" to the students. She said it was a "black mark" against the maintenance department at the school.

She described it as normal for birds to gather in flocks numbering in the thousands to roost during the winter months. She said the school patio was a "perfectly protected area" for the birds to roost.

Midland public Schools Superintendent Dr. James M. Mailey Saturday said he was not aware of the bird problem at Edison and that Williams had not talked with anyone in the administration.

"We've never been confronted with this problem before," he said.

Mailey said his staff is investigating the incident, but he declined to comment on the findings. He said he has talked with Williams and Paris, but would not say what was discussed.

He said the administration has not yet decided whether any disciplinary measures will be taken against Williams or Paris. Neither of the two were available for comment.

Mrs. Erskine said she went to the police to file a complaint after Williams said he shot at the birds, but she was referred to the city. She said she lodged the complaint with Assistant City Attorney Bill Clifton.

Since Midland is a bird sanctuary, Williams could be fined up to $200 per bird, but Mrs. Erskine said she plans to recommend probation. "I think Williams should be reprimanded through the school system," she said.

Richard Endress, special agent for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department in San Angelo, is expected to arrive in Midland Monday to investigate the matter, according to Mrs. Erskine. She said she had "no idea" what the state or federal government will do about this. Endress could not be reached for comment.

Police Chief Wayne Gideon said Saturday that he understood the National Audubon Society had filed a complaint with Assistant City Attorney Clifton.

Gideon said he had talked with Williams, and he believed this incident was "an error of judgement" on Williams' part. He said he planned to talk with the city attorney about it in the near future.

Mrs. Erskine said she has frozen some of the birds and will give them to Endress to send to Texas A&M University to determine the cause of death.

Suits may bring change

Marley, Jerry Hayes and DeHoyos, was held Dec. 10, 1977.

Although DeHoyos led the race, he did not receive the majority of votes required, and a run-off election between Marley and DeHoyos was held in January 1978.

Marley won the run-off election by 32 votes.

Of 743 votes cast in the run-off election, DeHoyos received 348 and Marley received 380.

The suit alleges there were "a great many" votes cast by electors who were non-residents of Precinct 1 or Crockett County.

The suit was amended to include a list of the voters in question shortly after the original petition was filed.

According to a spokesman in the courthouse, "Some of the names listed were misspelled, and we don't even know some of them."

However, Segura said, "They know who they (the names on the list) are. The names were misspelled, but we had taken them down over the telephone. My client got the names from the list of people who voted, which is public record. He was reading the list to me over the phone because we wanted to get the darned thing filed.

"We feel there were in excess of 32 illegal votes, so we filed suit.

"There's a new provision that says the election ballot stubs do not have to be signed. That may be significant, because we do not know who voted for whom," he said.

An Ozona resident commented, "If they can't win through the ballot box, they'll win through suit. We didn't think Marley had one chance of winning, but I guess he had more Mexican-American support than we thought."

Lawyers get revenge in throwing chips

By JIM STEINBERG

Legal secretaries and Midland lawyers decided to square-off Saturday and let the chips fall where they may.

The showdown took place under a warm 2 p.m. sun at Hogan Park.

Before it began, the atmosphere was fraught with tension, as the two groups milled around separately, contemplating the ordeal that was to come.

Then someone brought a sinister brown bag into the chalked arena that was to be the staging ground for this event: "The Cow Chip Toss Olympics."

As the bag was opened, contestants in this event of skill, stamina and fearless fortitude, pulled out gloves.

"You've got to use your bare hands," said a spectator, who would not participate in the rigorous competition.

"I'm loose and ready," said Midland County Attorney Leslie Acker, as he prepared to psychologically upstage his secretarial opponent.

As the contest rolled on, past the flat-footed distance toss, through the between-the-legs distance toss and around the "under-one-leg accuracy toss at a swinging tree," the men emerged with a clear lead in distance — if not in form.

For the Midland Young Lawyers Association, the cow chip toss was revenge for last year's 14-12 defeat in softball to the Midland Legal Secretaries Association.

It wasn't all a one-way contest Saturday.

After a lawyer made a particularly good toss, one of the secretaries would shout: "Who will do your typing for you?"

"Naturally, a lawyer would be good at tossing that stuff around. They do it all the time," one secretary commented.

Layoffs from coal strike not as widespread as anticipated

By The Associated Press

Layoffs of employees and disruptions of factory production schedules are becoming more prevalent in the 11-state region affected by the lengthy coal strike, but they apparently are not as widespread as had been predicted.

Since coal stocks at many Midwest and mid-Atlantic utilities began to dwindle when the United Mine Workers went on strike Dec. 6, industries in many of those states have come under power curtailments — voluntary in many areas, but mandatory in parts of Indiana, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In addition to laying off workers, some firms are imposing production cutbacks that are closing factories for one or two days a week.

U.S. Labor Department officials say the power cutbacks caused layoffs of about 31,600 in the week ending this past Friday.

But layoffs, so far, involve only a small percentage of the 7.8 million factory workers in the 11 states. By shipping in coal from out of state, and by buying power from utilities outside the troubled region, some key utilities such as Ohio Edison Co. and the Tennessee Valley Authority have cut the drain on coal stockpiles and relieved some of the pressure that had been expected on the labor force.

The Labor Department, for example, had at one point anticipated at least 67,400 factory workers laid off by the week ending March 4 — and at that point there were only 25,500.

Still, administration officials have warned that if the strike continues until the end of March, the number of unemployed workers would exceed 1 million. Several million more, the officials said, will see their working hours — and paychecks — cut.

And the 31,600 jobless because of power curtailments do not include 20,000 workers in transportation and utilities who have been laid off. Most of the transportation employees work for coal-hauling railroads, and many of the utility workers were employed at coal-burning generators that have been shut down.

An Associated Press spot survey conducted this past week found that nearly half the job and production cutbacks were in Indiana.

Industries served by three major Indiana utilities have been ordered to cut power usage by 25 percent since mid-February.

Maryland and West Virginia are also hard-hit, the AP survey found.

In Ohio — where most of the state is under a 25 percent voluntary cutback program and a small area around Marietta is affected by the mandatory cutbacks in neighboring West Virginia — state officials said layoffs have reached about 5,700, but most firms were avoiding layoffs by cutting back on lighting and other power uses.

Press women to hear writer

MONAHANS—Texas Press Women, District 2, will meet at 2:30 p.m. today in the National Room of the First National Bank here to hear Midland writer, Estellene Nelson report on the recent National Federation of Press Women Seagoing Seminar.

The business meeting will include a discussion of a project for the year and plans for the 86th annual TPW state convention to be held April 13-16 in Amarillo.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Beverly Boase, District 2 vice president in charge of programs, and Marian Rodgers, editor of the Monahans News. Mrs. Boase also is society editor of the News.

All women communicators, including free-lance writers and those associated with radio, television and radio are eligible for membership. District 2 covers 17 West Texas counties. TPW is affiliated with NFPW.

Kenneth O. Callaway Jr.

Callaway crusade chairman

Kenneth O. Callaway Jr. has been named the American Cancer Society's chairman for the downtown crusade which kicks off Wednesday in Midland.

Callaway, vice president of sales for United General Insurance Agency Inc. of Midland, will have as his co-workers members of the Midland Association of Life Underwriters. Crusade leaders for the downtown drive will be Jesse Hauptrief, Bill Childers, Jack Pollard and Bob Midkiff.

Downtown crusaders will be trained for their task at noon Monday when they hold a luncheon meeting at the Midland Hilton.

The meeting also is scheduled to include awards to the three downtown workers who last year raised the most money for the Midland chapter of the Cancer Society. The trio brought in a total of $2,500. Total for last year's downtown campaign was $5,500.

This year's downtown crusade will begin Wednesday and continue through the month. The residential campaign is slated March 27 through April 2.

Commissioners meet Monday

Midland County commissioners are scheduled to accept bids on road materials when they meet at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Midland County Courthouse.

Also on the commissioner's agenda are consideration of a resolution designating Ector County as prime sponsor applicant for all Manpower programs in the Permian Basin region and a resolution supporting the proposed Stacy Reservoir on the Colorado River as an area water supply.

The commissioners also are expected to meet with County Surveyor Max Schumann concerning the Greenwood Acres Subdivision and to consider accepting a deed to County Road Barbara Lane.

Lions club gets equipment

The Midland Southside Lions Club has come into possession of a wheelchair, a walker and a portable commode, which will be made available to persons needing such equipment, on a loan basis.

Lion Happy Bond, in making the announcement, said the club's board of directors Friday noon took action in accepting the items and approving a method of making them available to persons needing same.

Fred Johnson is the club's president.

Teachers on board's agenda

The board of trustees for the Stanton Independent School District Monday night will approve the textbook committee's report and hire teachers and coaches, in preparation for the following school year.

The board also will appoint the equilization board and set the date for the Board of Equilization meeting and approve a change in the new building program.

Scheduled for discussion Monday night are school truancy, a roof leak on the junior high building, a band trip to Six Flags and the athletic and band budgets.

Andrews board meets Tuesday

ANDREWS — The Andrews school board is expected to approve high school and middle school summer school programs when the trustees meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the school administration building.

Also scheduled for action are adoption of 1978-1979 textbooks and a proposal for the tax assessor to work on a state school-tax valuation study.

The board is to hear a report on the Texas Education Agency interpretation of a student fee item.

School board slates meeting

The Greenwood Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. Monday to set the date for the meeting to canvas the trustee election.

The board also will approve recommendations of the textbook committee, appoint the board of equilization and will discuss the football program.

In executive session, trustees will discuss election of teachers.

Tips on starting your transplants

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent

Some areas of the High Plains were fortunate to receive snow and during February which helped greatly in alleviating drought conditions, but the Midland area has received only traces of moisture during that time and soil moisture supplies still remain short. Some land has been listed and chiseled in the county but areas remain where cropland has not been touched since harvest due to the extreme dry conditions.

Use of transplants is one of the keys to successful gardening, and an individual can grow his own vigorous transplants indoors. However, care should be used not to start them too early. This is a common mistake made by inexperienced gardeners. Transplants from seed planted too early become spindly, weak, tall and yellow and do not do well when set out in the garden.

For the best survival and quick recovery after planting in the garden, transplants should be young, sturdy and in good nutritional condition. Usually four to six weeks is sufficient time to grow most transplants. Vine crops take two to three weeks to develop two to three true leaves while lettuce takes three to four weeks. Tomatoes need five to seven weeks to reach transplanting stage.

These time requirements are at the recommended day temperature of about 75 degrees F. and a night temperature of 60 degrees F. To determine planting time for transplants, figure back four to six weeks from the average last spring frost date which normally occurs in Midland County about April 10. Seed of most spring garden varieties should be planted about this time.

When starting plants indoors you can use a soilless or synthetic soil mix available at garden centers or nurseries. Seed can be started in almost any type container such as flower pots, milk cartons or cake pans. Be sure the container has holes for adequate drainage. Once you've got the needed materials and planting time is at hand, fill the containers with the synthetic mix, firm it in well and then water thoroughly. Space the seed evenly, cover lightly and water again.

To improve germination, slip the container into a plastic bag and place it in an area at room temperature but out of direct sunlight. Remove the bag when the seed first sprout and place the container in sunlight. Once the container has been removed from the plastic bag, water must be added to maintain good moisture. Frequent watering will be necessary but use care to avoid saturation. After plants have two to three true leaves, daily watering may be needed. When the plants are of adequate size and outdoor conditions are suitable for plant growth, transplant them into the garden area.

As I indicated in last week's column, live oak decline is a very serious problem on oaks and certain other trees in Texas and is suspected as being on the increase in the Midland area. Researches at Texas A&M University have been working to develop a control program. The fungicide Benomyl has abeen shown to have activity against the fungus but the problem now is to find a method of getting it into the tree and in a form that can be translocated throughout the tree. A number of carriers have been used with this products and not always with success.

The current program involves the use of products known as Lignasan and Arbortect which are being used for Dutch Elm disease in the northern states. These are being applied under pressure into the trees. Results from this are too early for any type of evaluation. We have had trials of injected Benomyl in Midland for the past several years but results have been erratic and for the most part not too successful.

This is all well and good as far as what is being done and what has been done in the live oak decline work, but what can you do as a homeowner to help your trees now. The sad thing about it is that there is not a whole lot you can do. We must maintain these trees, do not allow them to become stressed in any manner. This stress can be brought about as a result of drought, excess water in the root zone, and in some cases where heavy rates of fertilizer are used it is possible that salt accumulation can be built up and cause damage.

Banquet tickets still available

Tickets are still available to the 1978 Chamber of Commerce annual membership dinner to be held March 20, at 7:30 p. m. in the Hilton Ballroom.

Mark Russell, the resident comedian of Washington's Shoreham Hotel and an editorial page humorist for The Midland Reporter-Telegram, will provide the entertainment.

Dinner music will be provided by The Globe Recorder Consort in the mezzanine area of the ballroom from 6:45 to 7:30 p. m. The Globe Recorder Consort is a group of five recorders and a harpsichord.

Parker Humes will be master of ceremonies for this year's dinner. Also included in the program will be the introduction and presentation of the 1978 officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce

Mark Russell has been a fixture at the Shoreham Hotel since 1961. He has entertained such Washington notables as Hubert Humphrey, Henry Kissinger, Bob Hope and Barbara Howard. He is scheduled to do five one-man television specials for the Public Broadcast System.

Tickets for the dinner may be reserved by calling 683-3381. Due to the limited seating capacity of the Hilton, tickets must be sold on a first come first serve basis.

Pee Wee softball meeting set Monday

YMCA Pee Wee Softball is getting under way and on Monday there will be a parents' organizational meeting at 5:30 p.m. at the Central YMCA, 800 North Big Spring St., or Alamo Junior High School, 3800 W. Storey Ave.

Participating players must be six years old by April 3 and nine years old by Sept. 1.

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — French wine sparkled in dozens of glasses recently as dinner guests drank to the health of Antonio R. Sanchez Sr., the typewriter salesman turned multi-millionaire.

Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton sat at Sanchez' right, just a few feet from New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca.

Most of the Texas Supreme Court's justices were there, along with members of the Texas Railroad Commission and numerous state and national legislators and officials.

The occasion was a black-tie banquet, with donations up to $1,000 a table, held to honor Sanchez "for his outstanding accomplishments and contributions to the economic development of Laredo."

Hundreds of guests came from across the state and nation to honor Sanchez, who is called "Big Tony" by his friends.

Big Tony suddenly has a lot more friends now than he ever imagined back in the days, not so long ago, when he was going broke in the office equipment business. At odds with the Laredo political establishment, he says, he had "a hell of a time" getting a bank loan to turn his sideline of trading oil and gas leases into the Sanchez-O'Brien Petroleum Group.

Today, Sanchez controls the bank that made that loan and is openly out to change the rest of the old guard Laredo establishment.

"I'm damn tired of Laredo being such a poverty-stricken city. I've seen it so dead. I want some vibrant change," he said in an interview.

Until 1974, Sanchez, now 62, had practically nothing. For decades he had been slowly going broke trying to sell business equipment in this South Texas border city of 80,000 people. About 80 percent of the residents are Mexican-American.

Today, Sanchez is into just about everything, including banks, construction, the stock market and newspaper publishing.

Some friends say Sanchez may even be doing more to lift Laredo's economy than any other man in its history, including his ancestor Capt. Tomas Sanchez who founded the city in 1755.

The Sanchez-O'Brien Petroleum group, which didn't even exist until September 1974, now leases 540,000 acres in 11 states and has negotiated with foreign governments, Sanchez said.

Sanchez, his son Antonio Sanchez Jr. and Houston geologist Brian E. O'Brien are equal partners in the petroleum firm and although they will not reveal the value of their shares, it reportedly is near $25 million each.

The reason for this great wealth is that Sanchez is sitting atop one of the biggest natural gas discoveries in decades—by some estimates enough to run the entire nation for six months.

Sanchez dreamed about it for years, patiently collecting oil and gas leases in the scrubby South Texas brush country around Laredo. Twenty years ago, he could buy the leases for $2 to $5 an acre. Today, leases go for $75 to $100 an acre.

And, the price of gas has gone from as low as 6 cents per thousand cubic feet to something more than $2 per thousand cubic feet.

In 1974, Sanchez borrowed $80,000 from a local bank and in September that year, the Sanchez-O'Brien gas well No. 1 came in outside Laredo on the Hereford Ranch.

There now are more than 250 producing wells in the "Laredo Gas Play" that Sanchez helped discover. And, he controls the bank that made him his first loan.

Sanchez-O'Brien grew by leaps and bounds. The office went from 700 square feet to 17,000 square feet. The staff grew from 40 to 70 in the oil and gas business alone.

It is all quite a change for Sanchez, the youngest of four children born to a poor Laredo rancher. As a small boy, he collected small chips of coal in a cart to heat the family home. He dropped out of high school to get a job.

The Sanchez family, which has lived here since Spanish conquistadores pushed north through Mexico to the Texas border, was once wealthy but lost everything a generation before Sanchez was born.

Sanchez' great-grandfather was mayor of Laredo.

"I was born here, my father was born here, my grandfather was born here," Sanchez said. "I'd like to get back all the wealth my family lost, sure.

"But I have other priorities.

Bubbles dies after 'shots'

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Bubbles, the freedom-loving hippopotmus, died after she rolled down a hill and suffocated when rangers shot her with tranquilizing darts in an effort to capture her, officials said Saturday.

Bubbles had been enjoying her freedom lately in Clucker Lake, a 100-yard-long lake about two miles from the 240 acre animal park from which she escaped Feb. 20 for the third time.

"Apparently she wandered out shortly after 10 p.m. and the rangers, following their standard operating procedure, just tracked her," said Jerry Kobrin, vice president of Lion Country Safari. "When she got out they followed her and when they figured she had gotten far enough to be tranquilized they shot her with two tranquilizer darts."

He said the two-ton hippo rolled down a hill in this Orange County community about 40 miles south of Los Angeles and lodged against a tree in the head-down position, which proved fatal.

"I personally feel terrible about it," he said, "We all do."

Dr. Don Dooley, the park's veterinarian, said the animal might have lived had she not fallen in "a very bad position."

"My feeling at this time was the cause of death was primarily the position she was in. She was having difficulty breathing because of her position. We couldn't get the heavy equipment up there soon enough to move her."

He said Bubbles was first shot about 10:30 p.m. Friday and lay immobile until her death at about 11:45 p.m.

Horse show set Saturday

ODESSA — The eleventh annual All Youth Charity Horse Show will be held Saturday in the 4-H Arena behind the Ector County Coliseum. Proceeds from the show will go to the Girls Club of Odessa and local charities.

The horse show is being sponsored by the Lambda Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International.

Competition will be in 26 classes, divided into junior and senior classes with awards and ribbons presented in both categories.

A western dance will be held March 18 after the show at the Ector County Sheriff's Posse Clubhouse on Andrews Highway. The "Goodtimers" band will play at the dance.

Chicken, 'burger purchasing ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has decided that it has bought enough chicken and hamburger for school lunches this year.

Since last July 1, the department bought 78.3 million pounds of chicken at a cost of more than $41 million. The chicken is donated primarily to schools which can fry or fricasee it as they please.

As of last week nearly 94 million pounds of frozen ground beef, including about 4.5 million pounds of frozen patties, were bought for $67.8 million.

The chicken and beef buying for this school year now has ended, but the department says it will purchase a little more canned beef to help tide school cafeterias over until summer vacation.

Briscoe to be guest of Downtown Lions

Gov. Dolph Briscoe will be the guest of honor and principal speaker Wednesday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton.

The governor is expected to address the club on "The State of the State," according to Duke Jimerson, a past president of the club and a past district governor of Lions International. Tom Sealy, Midland attorney, will introduce the governor.

Garland Chapman, Lions Club president, said interested persons are invited to attend the luncheon as paying guests by making reservations not later than Monday noon with Jimerson (682-6521) or Secretary Frank Marlow (684-8368). Club members who plan to invite guests also are requested to make advance reservations.

Gov. Briscoe, who will be on a whirlwind swing through West Texas, is expected to arrive here by plane at 11:30 a.m. Immediately following his Midland appearance, he will go to Odessa where, at 2 p.m., he will be the keynote speaker at ceremonies dedicating the new Instructional Building and expansion of the Student Union Building at Odessa College.

Briscoe, who has spoken here on several previous occasions, was elected to a two-year term as governor in 1973 and then to a four-year term in 1975. He is a candidate for re-election in this year's balloting.

He served as chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission in 1976, and has been active as a member of the National Petroleum Council. He is the immediate past chairman of the Southern Governors Conference.

He is a past president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, the South Texas Chamber of Commerce and the Texas State Chamber of Commerce. He holds the Silver Beaver Award and the Antelope Award for outstanding service to Boy Scouting.

The governor was recognized as "Texan of the Year" for 1976 by the Texas Legislative Conference at New Braunfels in March of last year.

Congressman's vote generates nightmare

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Rep. John B. Anderson voted against Rep. Larry McDonald's amendment to prohibit government-funded legal aid to homosexuals, he didn't know he'd find himself in a mail-order political nightmare nearly a year later.

The amendment had almost been laughed off the floor, but Anderson isn't laughing at what his opponents are doing with that and similar issues.

Anderson, the veteran chairman of the House Republican Conference, had no idea the vote would play havoc with his Illinois re-election campaign.

In voting against the anti-gay proposal submitted by McDonald, the John Birch congressman from Georgia, Anderson unwittingly set off Richard A. Viguerie's computers.

Viguerie, as Anderson is now well aware, is the direct-mail wizard whose sophisticated, computerized techniques have raised millions for George C. Wallace and a growing list of New Right conservatives.

Among Viguerie's clients is Don Lyon, a former host of a religion-oriented television program who is challenging Anderson for the GOP nomination in a March 21 primary in the 16th District. Thus, for the last two months Anderson has been the target of a blizzard of letters whirling out of Viguerie's direct mail plant, across the Potomac in suburban Fall Church, Va.

The letters say the veteran congressman is too liberal for his district based on the tradition-minded city of Rockford, Ill. They call him an advocate of food stamps for strikers, gun control and free legal aid for "homosexual activists."

Anderson's troubles began last June when the homosexual issue surfaced on the House floor.

The lawmakers were debating money for the government-funded Legal Assistance Corp. In a surprise move, McDonald popped up with an amendment to bar the legal group from taking part in lawsuits involving "homosexuality or gay rights."

By all accounts, there was cackling and hissing on the floor of the House, which promptly rejected the measure on a voice vote. Then a roll call was demanded. That meant the lawmakers were going to have to go on record on the issue.

Abruptly, the mood turned sober. One by one, lawmakers who had just shouted down the measure solemnly switched, deciding it should be adopted.

One who refused to bow to the pressure was Anderson. He went on record as voting against the amendment — a fact that voters back home are being reminded of by Viguerie's direct-mail operatives.

Viguerie, as Capitol Hill has discovered to its alarm, can be effective. He played a major role in the 1976 upset defeat of veteran Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, by little-known Republican Orrin Hatch.

Complaints abound that Viguerie's attacks through the postal system are ham-handed, unfair and riddled with distortions. But House and Senate incumbents hate to hear that he is working for their opponents.

"It hurts," moans Anderson, "there's no question but that it hurts." Anderson says the mailings distort his record because of their "yahoo, know-nothing approach."

An example? The "gay rights" amendment.

Doctor develops Home Treatment to

Rinse Away Blackheads

See Blackheads "Wipe Off" After A Single Queen Helene Skin Treatment

A leading New York dermatologist has developed a simple medicated home treatment that rinses away blackheads & whiteheads in a matter of minutes.

The treatment starts with a thorough skin cleansing. A special laboratory-developed whipped cleansing cream is used that takes off not only surface dirt, but also softens and loosens pore-caked grime with its emollient action. It liquefies as soon as it is applied and literally floats the dirt right off your face.

After this is tissued off, a delightful mint-scented cream is applied. Within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this specially medicated cream into a plastic-like masque. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws on waste matter in the pores. . . . In 8 or 10 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with luke-warm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your tissue. And your skin looks clean — really clean — and refreshed and smooth, like velvet!

The third step in the treatment is an exhilarating application of a unique anti-septic astringent — a facial "mint julep" that sponges and tightens emptied pores and tones up your complexion.

Nothing Else Like It

Even after a single treatment, women who have been troubled by blackheads for years see a marked improvement. Many find it hard to believe their eyes. Some blackheads and whiteheads just rinse away. Others are softened and made ready to be drawn out by future treatments. Enlarged pores appear to be smaller. The skin looks smoother and firmer — feels fresher and more alive!

Anyone Can Use It

In short, after a single treatment taking only 15 minutes, you can expect to see results that normally you would not dare hope for even after many weeks . . . but don't expect everything at once. Damage done by years of neglect can't be undone in a day. Yet with 3 or 4 treatments a week, you may confidently look forward to startling complexion improvements within 30 days. Then one treatment a week—or every second week—will probably be all your skin will need to keep it clear, lovely and healthy looking.

Look! See them come off on your cleansing tissue — and without squeezing or digging!

The medically developed products used in this treatment are manufactured and quality-controlled by QUEEN HELENE. They are Queen Helene Whipped Cleansing Cream, Queen Helene Medicated Masque and Queen Helene Penetrating Astringent. The three items are sold as a complete skin and beauty kit for 5.00. Quite a bargain when you think of what it will do for a person's good looks — and self-esteem!

Upcoming elections may violate law—technically

By LINDA HILL

Do school districts, cities and other government bodies have to get permission from the federal government to change the location of polling places?

The Justice Department says the Voting Rights Act requires them to. And a U.S. Supreme Court ruling Monday that all governnent bodies in Texas are covered by the law seems to support the Justice Department's contention.

Thus, the possibility has arisen that at least three of four Midland bodies holding joint elections April 1 may be in at least technical violation of the law.

For the first time, Midlanders will go to one place to elect officials for the city of Midland, the Midland school district, Midland College and the Midland County Hospital District.

The six designated polling places for the joint election represent a change in number and location of voting spots from previous elections held by any of the bodies.

"That is the kind of change for which pre-clearance would be required," Janet Blizard of the Voting Rights Division of the U.S. Justice Department in Washington said Friday.

Such small changes "technically" must be passed on by the Justice Department, she said, but, "as a practical matter," she sees "no substantial problem."

Under the pre-clearance provision of the law, any change in election methods must be submitted to the Justice Department, which examines the change to see if there is any discriminatory intent or effect.

If department officials think there is either, it files an objection, and it is up the government body to go to court if it wants to keep the change.

The Midland Independent School District already is involved in litigation in an attempt to block the Justice Department from voiding a 1973 change in the way school trustees are elected. The school district claimed it was not covered under the Voting Rights Act.

School district attorney Charles Tighe said Friday he has not had a chance to study the Supreme Court decision ruling that school districts are covered.

"They (the Justice Department) literally claim to have the right to pass on moving a polling place from one side of the street to the other. I assume that would apply you moved it from one floor of a building to another," Tighe said.

"That's scary," he added.

Tighe had no comnent on what the school district will do about its litigation with the Justice Department.

"They'll go as far as they can," Tighe said of the Justice Department. "I don't think that (pre-clearance of polling places) is their stopping point."

The city of Midland is in the process of applying for pre-clearance for its new polling places. City Secretary James McCullough said he expects to mail the application this week.

But Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. attacked the existence of the requirement.

"The sole reason that the city is making application is that we have a bond election on that date, and the bonding companies require it," Angelo said.

"I believe the American people and the people of Texas are really unaware of how onerous that piece of legislation is" he continued.

The Midland County Hospital District is holding its first election for district directors April 1. But the six polling places is a change from the September election which created the district and approved $10 million in bonds.

Hospital District attorney Ted Kerr said he has some question about whether the district is required to get pre-clearance for this election, since it is the first district directors election.

Also, Kerr said, extreme care was taken to see that the selection of polling places made it equally easy for any voter in the county to cast his ballot.

He said he has not seen the Suprene Court decision and has not made a decision on what action, if any, the hospital district will need to take.

Midland College also has not sought pre-clearance for this year's polling places.

"Our position on that is we have to read the (Supreme Court) decision" before deciding on a course of action, college attorney Charles Aldridge said Saturday.

David Norton, Midland College assistant to the president, pointed out that the college has more polling places this time than ever before.

Will the results of the April 1 elections be allowed to stand if no pre-clearance is granted?

"Theoretically, it has to be submitted so that the department can pass on discriminatory intent or effect," said John Wilson of the Justice Department Public Information Department.

But, Wilson said, whether the Justice Department goes to court to seek new elections depends on the "total situation" surrounding a violation.

Cubans in Ethiopia discussion subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met Saturday with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin on U.S. hopes for a reduction in the Cuban military force in Ethiopia.

The 45-minute discussion in Vance's office was part of a joint effort by the two powers to deal with the war between Ethiopia and Somalia which the Carter administration would like to see ended by a ceasefire and a negotiated settlement.

There are an estimated 12,000 Cubans assisting the advancing Ethiopian army, which according to some reports is now 10 miles from the Somali border. The United States is counting on Moscow to prevent a crossing into Somali territory.

Man thingking ahead

Tauke, a Republican, has introduced a bill to allow bars licensed to sell liquor or beer on Sunday to serve their good cheer from noon on Dec. 31 to 2 a.m. on New Year's Day.

The reason: New Year's Eve falls on Sunday this year.

"We're pretty well known for New Year's Eve partying in Dubuque," said Tauke. "We don't want everybody to go over to East Dubuque, Ill.

"Also, we have compassion for people in the central part of the state who don't have a neighboring state handy to go to."

CHECK INSURANCE POLICIES

The dictionary defines "overlook" as "to fail to notice by carelessness." This word is a dangerous one in the real estate business, according to that definition. It's dangerous in the sense that if one aspect of a real estate transaction is overlooked, trouble, problems, and the possible loss of money can follow. As Realtors we take infinite pains to make sure nothing is overlooked.

Take insurance, for example. Everyone is well aware of its importance. Yet, it sometimes can be forgotten or taken-for-granted. We're talking about instances regarding insurance were a real estate transaction is concerned and finalized.

Let's say you negotiate to buy some property. The seller has it covered, of course. When you buy that property, have those insurance policies checked by an insurance broker to make sure the building is covered by an adequate amount. Remember, as soon as you take title, you, the buyer, may be held liable for any losses! There must be NO time gap within which the property is not covered. If it's a business building, it's also important to check and see if YOUR use of the structure doesn't invalidate existing policies.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Claustrophobia serious ailment

Dear Dr. Solomon: My sister has claustrophobia quite badly. This makes it hard for her no matter where she is—at home or at the office or in the bus. But there is just no way she can afford going to a psychiatrist for a couple of years on the chance she might be able to clear it up. And the trouble is that the more difficult things become for her, the worse she seems to get, so it's kind of a vicious circle. What does someone do in a situation like this?—A.T.

Dear A.T.: A lot of doctors are now trying to deal with troubles like your sister's in a fairly straightforward, practical way—rather than delving around at great length to find out what may have caused the problem some 30 or 40 years ago.

Let me give you one example of this that I cam across recently—Duke University Medical Center's "Bad Habits Clinic." It uses behavior modification techniques to help people kick all sorts of bad habits. They use the term quite broadly to include phobias, insomnia, over-eating, tension, anxiety, smoking, and sexual difficulties.

Dr. Patrick Boudewyns, who heads the clinic, says that the medical psychologists there think of themselves more as teachers than as therapists. People who come to the clinic are called clients rather than patients—and nobody thinks of his or her condition as abnormal.

Among the techniques for getting at phobias are "systematic desensitization" and "flooding."

In systematic desensitization, the client first learns how to relax and then, in later sessions, begins to face his fears. If he has a phobia about snakes, he might be told to first think about toy snakes, then about real ones—and go on until he could hold a live one (harmless variety) while remaining very relaxed. If you are relaxed, Dr. Boudewyns says, you can't be anxious.

In flooding, the client is simply asked to do, under supervision, what he is afraid of doing by himself—and keep repeating this over a period of time until the anxiety dies out. Dr. Boudewyns says that, contrary to what many people think, a person with a phobia doesn't go crazy when forced to face his fears.

Of course, I don't know if this kind of behavioral retraining would be the best method for your sister. I mention it just as an example of the direct ways that are now available for dealing with quite a number of psychological problems. For guidance, your sister should consult a doctor or a local health clinic.

Incidentally, phobias are quite common and come in hundreds of varieties. There is doraphobia (fear of fur), levophobia (fear of objects on the left side), eruthophobia (fear of red) and auroraphobia (fear of northern lights), to name but a few. There is even phobiaphobia (fear of being afraid).

The Nationwide Supermarket of Sound!

The benefits of owning Realistic components (as against Pioneer, Marantz and other front-runners) should be obvious. But they aren't. So we explain them every so often, particularly at model-change-time, which is a happening that begins today. We agree Realistic and other famous national brands are in some ways look-alikes in power, beauty and suggested retail price. That's where the similarity ends. Realistic is available only where there's a big Radio Shack sign out front. Realistic is designed by and custom-crafted by (or for) Radio Shack. No one else. That means we sell direct. Direct in every state, in more than 9 countries (including Holland and Australia, for example). We service what we sell. And since we sell more receivers, probably, than any other chain of audio shops in the world, that means The Shack® has more buying power and dedicated salespeople than anybody. One thing we don't have many of is rugs on the floor. Millionaires may not like our low-key, low-cost environment but music lovers do. Like Peter Nero, who knows how to pinch a penny. Like Arthur Fiedler, our friend and customer since about 1948. One more thing: this sale is not on at Pacific, Atlantis, Tech, Custom or Federated. Only at Radio Shack.

Archie Manning

Services for Archie A. "Tom" Manning, 78, of 1704 Hughes St. will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home with Bert Mercer, minister of a Dallas Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Manning was born Aug. 29, 1899, in Mills County. He was reared in Callahan County. He moved to Midland in 1923. He married Mary Norwood Dec. 26, 1927, in Colorado City, and they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Dec. 26, 1977. He owned and operated Manning Nursery here from 1947 until 1972.

Survivors include his wife; three sons, Robert A. "Bob" Manning of Nashville, Tenn., Lewis A. Manning of Greenville and Tommy Joe Manning of Oxnard, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Troy (Janie) Etheredge of Midland; a brother, Calvin G. Manning of Holtville, Calif.; six sisters, Mrs. D. D. (Lillian) Boydston of Albuquerque, N.M., Mrs. Merrell (Averel) Smiley of Sonora, Calif., Mrs. George (Elinor) Evans of Safford, Ariz., Mrs. Dick (Ted) Evans of Duncan, Ariz., Mrs. Velmer (Minnie Belle) Hamilton of Petersburg and Mrs. Verl (Chloe) Selch of Monrovia, Ind., nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Gene Skelton, Jay Norwood, Pete Morrison, Cleon Hamilton, Bill Vessel and Sam Logan.

F. Richardson

GRANDFIELD, Okla. — Services for Finton R. Richardson, 76, brother of Sam Richardson of Lamesa, were held Saturday in Gray Funeral Home chapel here. Burial was in Grandfield Cemetery.

Richardson, a retired Grandfield farmer, died Thursday in a Wichita Falls hospital. He had lived here since 1934.

He was born May 14, 1901, in Bowie.

Survivors other than the brother in Lamesa include his wife, a son, a daughter, a brother, four grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Cole

Services were held at 2 p.m. Saturday in Nally-Pickle Rosewood Chapel here. Interment followed in Trinity Memorial Park.

Mrs. Cole was born Jan. 22, 1890, at San Antonio and moved to Garden City in 1902. She was married to Claude Cole on Oct. 26, 1914, at Andrews. Mr.and Mrs. Cole lived on their ranch in Glasscock County, where he was once a county commissioner. He died in 1957. Mrs. Cole later moved to Big Spring but still maintained ranching interests in Glasscock County. She was a member of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Francis Greer of Big Spring; a son, Eldred Cole of Big Spring; a brother, George Nicholson of Fort Worth, and a sister, Mrs. Dora Armistead of Big Spring.

Ima Joy McCoy

Ima Joy McCoy, 69, widow of Midland civic leader and druggist J. B. McCoy, was found dead at her residence, 606 N. Marienfeld St., Saturday.

She was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace John Biggs. He said the woman, who lived alone, had been dead at least a "day or so." An autopsy has been ordered.

Mrs. McCoy's late husband operated the Palace Drug Store and Palace Jewelry in Midland. He was a member of the Midland City Council.

Arrangements are pending at Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Three sought in connection with vandalism

Police are looking for three males in connection with more than 30 cases of vandalism committed Friday night.

According to police, three males in a pickup knocked over mailboxes and yard lights in an area from Cimarron Drive to Golf Course Road and Garfield Street to Hughes Street.

The largest number of mailboxes and lights damaged were on Fannin Avenue, Humble Avenue and Hughes. Several on Dengar Avenue, approximately a mile from the main area of concentration, also were damaged.

The first of about 10,000 spectators walk around the space shuttle orbiter Enterprise after it landed at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston. It flew in piggy back on a Boeing 747. (AP Laserphoto)

Space ship lands in Texas

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A space ship landed at Ellington Air Force Base Friday and was witnessed by about 10,000 excited persons but no one mistook it for an Unidentified Flying Object.

Due to advance notice, it was easily recognized as America's first space shuttle orbiter Enterprise, mounted atop a Boeing 747 as it descended for a landing at Ellington Air Force Base.

The specially fitted 747, with its "passenger" securely fixed in place, made two passes over the landing field for the benefit of the astonished crowd before landing here for refueling and a two-day public appearance.

"There it is, there it is," many in the crowd shouted as the rare site appeared on the western horizon. The 747 passed over the first time at about 2,000 feet but returned shortly and gave the crowd a much closer view from about 200 feet.

"We hit a little turbulence over Arizona but it was a good flight overall," said 747 pilot Fitzhugh Fulton Jr., who is ferrying the orbiter from the Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif. to the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.

"There are no real problems with the orbiter on top," Fulton said. "It's just a little different procedure."

The Enterprise, similar to orbiter craft that eventually will carry astronauts and experimental equipment into space, will undergo ground vibration tests at Marshall before being returned to Dryden.

The Enterprise will not be the first orbiter in space. A similar model now being constructed by Rockwell International at Palmdale, Calif., is scheduled to make the first flight in 1979.

Dr. Christopher Kraft Jr., director of the nearby Johnson Space Center (JSC), presided over a brief awards ceremony at the field.

"We're happy so many of you came out to see part of the space program that is said to be floundering, but we think it is on the go," Kraft said.

Cocaine rapidly replacing coffee as Colombian export

By ALFONSO CHARDY

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Cocaine smuggling to a lucrative and expanding American market is increasing so fast that the powdery white drug rivals coffee as this country's main export, law enforcement officials say.

About 70 percent of the cocaine sold on the illicit American drug market comes from Colombia, with Peru and Bolivia supplying much of the rest. By some estimates, Colombian cocaine exports brought in $1.5 billion last year, equal to the country's coffee earnings.

The rise in popularity of cocaine, considered a prestige drug by its increasing number of middle- and upper-class users, has removed marijuana as the main target of drug enforcement officials.

Some economists say last year's record 29 percent inflation here was due as much to the influx of cocaine money as from higher coffee prices. Sociologists say cocaine earnings have given rise to a new middle class in Colombia.

Colombia has created a special, American-trained strike force to break up the cocaine network here. Since 1974 the United States has spent $600 million to fight the drug trade in Colombia, and authorities say a like amount may be needed in the next two years.

"So many Americans are using marijuana and so little has been proved about whether it is really dangerous to your health, that we think it is just not worth wasting a lot of effort in the marijuana deal. But cocaine is serious business, and it is gradually becoming as mass consumption a drug as marijuana," said an American drug expert who asked not to be identified.

A kilo, or 2.2 pounds, of cocaine in Colombia sells for between $12,000 and $15,000 but can bring as much as $700,000 in the United States. A third of a gram, or about one hundredth of an ounce, sells for about $35 on the street, but probably has been diluted with milk sugar or other substances.

The drug is sniffed in small amounts and produces first a stimulant, then a narcotic, effect for a short time. It is said to cause a psychologial dependency among some users, but generally is not considered addictive.

It comes from leaves of the coca bush, which are reduced to a paste, then a powder in illicit laboratories throughout Colombia. The best quality leaf is grown in Peru and Bolivia.

Suspect arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — An East Harlem man has been arrested in the Feb. 25 slaying of a French woman who was a member of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church, police said today.

Detectives said Robert L. Fowler, 31, was booked on a charge of murder in the death of Christiane Coste, whose body was found in a rear courtyard.

Charity softball game set

The call of "play ball" will echo in a good cause on field number one at Hogan Park next Sunday afternoon.

A charity softball game is scheduled at 1:30 p. m. for the benefit of the Opportunity Center agency of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The competing teams will be the Golden Life Spa nine against the KMND Radio Station All Stars. These organizations, along with the Midland Softball Association and several Midland businesses, are currently conducting a benefit drive for the center. Mentally retarded youths present will be shown some of the fine points of softball, the sponsors say.

Those wishing to contribute to the cause should make checks payable to Permian Basin Community Centers. Contributors may bring the check to the game, or they may call Bob Watson at 697-4958.

New vaccine may slow, stop child-killer disease

HOUSTON (AP)—A disease that appeared mysteriously a few years ago is taking a greater toll of deaths and disabilities in children than did polio during the 1950s, doctors say.

Two scientists at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston said in a recent interview they had developed a vaccine that would slow, and possibly stop, the spread of the disease. But, the problem now is how it can be administered to expectant mothers.

Dr. Carol J. Baker and Dr. Morven Edwards, both pediatricians at the medical school, said the disease, a Group B Streptococcus, is striking an estimated 15,000 infants every year. Half of those babies die, the others are left blind, deaf or mentally retarded.

The disease appeared with unexpected swiftness in 1970.

Dr. Baker suggested women could be immunized when they apply for a marriage license, "similar to the blood tests required in several states.

"When you say 15,000 infants a year, perhaps that is not an impressive figure. But it is a greater toll than the polio babies of the 1950s. It is a heart-breaking experience to see a child born with this disease and then die within two to 12 hours," she said.

The two scientists said the germ can be transmitted sexually but is not a venereal disease. Adding to the problems facing physicians is that adults show no symptoms. There are no social or economic boundaries, and it can strike a baby after a normal pregnancy.

Dr. Baker said, "We don't know why it came. Of course, the Group B Streptococcus had been known for many years, but until 1970 there were only a few cases known among infants."

The 15,000 children affected by the disease may be a low estimate, Dr. Baker said. "The reports generally come from the metropolitan areas and from the larger hospitals. The Group B strep could be causing thousands of other deaths and disabilities in areas where medical facilities are not as sophisticated as in the larger cities."

Many infected infants die soon after birth, others show symptoms of the disease a few weeks later with the Group B strep often resulting in spinal meningitis.

Dr. Baker said in Houston alone the disease has been the cause of 65 percent of meningitis among the newborn.

The doctors said it is mandatory to begin "an education program, go into the schools and inform the young of this danger. And, we must somehow, someway, start an immunization program."

The vaccine, now being prepared by Dr. Dennis Kasper of the Harvard Medical School, will not only save the lives of thousands of babies, the two researchers said, "but eliminate one of the major causes of mental retardation."

Dr. Baker said those children who are infected, but survive, may in later years develop abnormal behavioral patterns, including disciplinary and learning problems.

She said the first trial of the vaccine, administered to 33 persons, now with immunity to Group B strep, was encouraging "with good responses in 73 percent."

Those who volunteered to take the vaccine were all pediatric residents at the medical college.

Dr. Edwards explained, "They gave their time and their bodies because they had seen the babies die. They had an emotional as well as a scientific reason to assist in the experiment."

The two doctors said large scale studies will begin this spring, but the major hangup now is the lack of screening processes to check women of child-bearing age.

Dr. Baker said, "Routine detection is just not available. If you checked all the people, you would probably miss half who were infected."

Significant seminar

Important seminars of one kind or another are held here on frequent occasions, but one of the more significant is scheduled Thursday.

It is the "Senior Citizens Against Crime" seminar which will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday in the Fine Arts Building at Midland College.

The seminar is a community project, sponsored jointly by the Midland Police Department, Midland College's senior citizens program, Casa de Amigos, a social services outreach organization, and by Senior Services.

It is a part of the overall "Senior Citizens Against Crime" project, which performs a most valuable service in the Tall City.

It is said that a great many senior citizens live in fear of crime, either actual or imagined, and one of the program's major objectives is to help overcome some of those fears through a better understanding of the problem and what can be done about it.

The basic aim of the seminar is to inform senior citizens of the services available to them as a means of protecting themselves from harm from the criminal element and to secure their homes against break-ins.

Representatives of several organizations and institutions will make brief presentations of the services they are prepared to offer. Members of the Crime Prevention Unit of the Midland Police Department will discuss and demonstrate procedures and programs which senior citizens can adopt to prevent being victimized.

A number of specific subjects will be covered, all designed to enlighten senior citizens about crime.

This is a tremendous project, and its sponsors are due commendation for arranging and staging it. Its benefits will be far-reaching. And if this seminar meets with favorable response, others of a similar nature will be held from time to time in the coming months.

Although this particular seminar is designed primarily for senior citizens, all interested persons in Midland and vicinity are invited to attend and participate.

Camp Fire Girls

Camp Fire Girls of Midland today begin the observance of their organization's Birthday Week, with Founders Day to be celebrated Friday

It was on March 17, 1910, that Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick founded the first national organization for girls, and since that time it has served more than 20 million girls across the land.

The Midland Council of Camp Fire Girls was founded in 1965, and its first executive director was employed in 1977. There presently are 188 girls and 70 adult leaders actively registered and involved in the Midland Council. The council is a member of the United Way of Midland.

The traditional Camp Fire Girls program includes small groups of girls (ages 6 to 21), supervised by adult leaders, participating in activities of an educational and recreational nature.

The program is divided into four program levels: Blue Birds, ages 6-8; Adventure, ages 9-11; Discovery, ages 12-13, and Horizon, ages 14 and older. The programs cover a wide range of activities, encompassing areas of business, citizenship, creative arts, home, outdoors, science, sports and games, Indian Lore, and service.

In addition to the traditional program, the local council now is able to offer other programs to meet community needs. This is what really counts insofar as community recognition is concerned

Volunteers also must be credited with playing and having played major roles in the organization, serving as group leaders, committee members and board members.

Midland is most fortunate in having a Camp Fire Girls organization, and Midlanders join in wishing the Camp Fire Girls and their leaders a Happy Birthday Week, along with all best wishes for continued growth and service in the future.

CHARLEY REESE:

Sen. McIntyre objects to being held accountable

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., revealed one of the major flaws in the U.S. Senate when he complained that Panama Canal Treaty opponents are engaging in "coarse and brutish tactics."

"These people," he said of the new conservatives, "are radicals whose aim is not to compete with honor and decency . . . but to annihilate those they see as enemies."

I will not dwell on the fact that the only thing the new conservatives are doing is exactly what the old liberals and their AFL-CIO pals have always done.

Rather, it's more interesting to examine McIntyre's attitude. After all, the "coarse and brutish tactics" consist of nothing more than saying to a politician, if you choose not to represent our views, we shall choose to seek your defeat at the next election.

What McIntyre and many of these nabobs are really objecting to is being held accountable for their actions. McIntyre and the rest live in splendid isolation. The U.S. Senate is the most exclusive private club in the world. They live in regal comfort, deferred to by their attendants and fawned over by lobbyists.

Issues are debated and decisions made in marble halls. The language is refined. It is all a gentleman's game. Above all, no senator is ever nasty to another. Never forget that the Senate censured the late Joe McCarthy, not for what he did to other people, but for his behaviour toward another senator.

To McIntyre and his ilk, nothing is more horrible than for us common folk to hold him personally accountable for his decisions. That a senator's decision should affect his own personal life is unthinkable.

You see, they want not only the comfort and the money and the prestige, but also the privilege of perpetual forgiveness of their sins.

Let them vote, as for the Tonkin Gulf Resolution, to send Americans to combat, but don't hold them accountable for the coffins coming back, for the mutilations, for the misery, for the loss of nerve. Some of these yellow-bellied gentlemen became so anxious to avoid being held accountable they completely reversed themselves and protested, with righteous indignation, the way they had started.

Senators George McGovern and Ted Kennedy are just two of several who fit that category.

Let them vote, year after year, for deficit spending, but please don't hold them accountable for the inflation that ruins families, wipes out savings, and shoves so many of the elderly into despair.

Let them create a monstrosity of a tax system, but don't hold them accountable for the injustices.

Let them create foreign policy blunders which result in death and slavery, but please, let's be honorable and decent about this, and not hold them accountable.

Well, the esteemed gentleman from New Hampshire has esteemed rocks in his esteemed head. The American people, conservatives and liberals, have wised up. They are at last, let us all pray, going to hold these baloney peddlers accountable for their actions.

The individual human beings in the Senate, House, and the White House are responsible for the inflation, for the taxes, for the bureaucracy, for the wars, for the defeats, for the disasters, and for the injustices.

The most brazen con in the history of bamboozelry is the incumbent politician who campaigns against his own creations. That so many consistently do so is proof that their intent is cold-blooded deception.

They have for years operated on the assumptions that the voter is not only stupid but has a short memory. They would have us believe that "things just happen." Things do not just happen. Individuals make them happen. They are responsible. They should be held accountable.

The voter must learn to recognize that there is a direct connection between his personal life and the actions of these esteemed individuals in the halls of Imperial Washington. Is your son dead from a Viet Cong bullet? Well, he didn't wander over there on his own hook. He was sent there.

Are you bitter over tax loopholes that allow some to escape paying their fair share? Well, those loopholes are not spontaneous creations of nature. They were written into the law and voted upon by your senators and congressmen.

Their actions affect your personal life. It's up to you to see that they do not remain insulated from their own decisions. Politics is not a game. All war is an extension of politics and it was politics that killed 50 million people in World War II and other millions in Korea and Vietnam. If you die in a nuclear war, you will die as a result of politics, as a direct result of the actions or non-actions of specific human beings.

You're damned right, Mr. McIntyre, you're going to be held accountable for your vote on the treaties and the consequences. That's not coarse and brutish tactics, that's justice.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Kurds merit U.S. assistance

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In an ordinary brick house in the Washington suburbs, the proud and dauntless leader of a fierce mountain people spends his days visiting with friends and laboring to learn the English language. Every few weeks, he visits the Mayo Clinic for treatment against the cancer that is ravaging his lungs.

He is General Mustafa Barzani, the grizzled, 75-year-old commander-in-exile of the Kurds who used to roam the rugged mountains where Iran, Iraq, Turkey, Syria and the Soviet Union come together. Now, most of his people have been deported in small groups to the deserts of Iraq and dispersed throughout remote regions of Iran.

The unfortunate tribesmen became pawns on Henry Kissinger's chessboard in 1972. They were manipulated and then abandoned. Today, the powers-that-be in Washington act as if they would like the Kurds to fade away.

The Kurds lost out because of Washington's strange love affair with the shah of Iran. In the early 1970's, he was embroiled in border and navigation disputes with Iraq, and he felt threatened by Iraq's close relationship with the Soviet Union. He thought it strategically wise, therefore, to stir up the ancient simmering struggle between the Kurds and the Iraqis.

In May, 1972, the shah pressed Kissinger and his boss, Richard Nixon, to arm the Kurds against the Iraqis. Despite CIA resistance, the White House pair agreed to the shah's scheme. Following orders, the CIA smuggled $16 million worth of untraceable Chinese and Soviet weapons through Iran to the Kurds. They fought the Iraqis to a standstill.

But in March, 1975, the shah abruptly announced he had patched up his differences with Iraq. Overnight, American support for the Kurds dried up and, without weapons, the mountain men were overpowered. Thousands were killed or wounded; thousands more fled into Iran as refugees.

General Barzani flew to the United States to plead with Nixon and Kissinger for humanitarian help for his beleaguered people. The American leaders, who had abandoned him on the battlefield, refused to acknowledge any obligation. They ignored his appeals.

Our sources say they refused assistance in deference again to the shah, who distrusts the Kurds and prefers to keep them subjugated. He has tried to conceal, meanwhile, the ruthless manner in which he exploited them.

Eventually, a token 700 Kurdish refugees were admitted to the United States. Kurdish leaders were instructed to keep quiet about even this minor gesture. Like the shah, the United States doesn't want to advertise its crass intrigues in the Iraqi highlands.

The Kurds who arrived in the United States were granted no special privileges. They were sponsored by international refugee organizations, which gave them personal loans to pay their air fares and expenses. Some were thrown into resettlement camps in San Diego. Later they were actually asked to pay for their "care and maintenance" at the camps.

Although the Kurdish refugees, for the most part, are educated and skilled, many had difficulty with the English language and had to take low-paying jobs. Dozens of them are still unemployed. Nevertheless, they are receiving dun letters from their sponsoring organizations.

One letter from the Tolstoy Foundation, for example, warns a refugee that nonpayment of his loan "may cause you difficulties in your permanent residence in this country."

The refugees from other U.S. foreign policy flops, on the other hand, are treated royally by comparison. Over $1.3 billion has been lavished on Cuban refugees since 1961. And sone $455 million, according to Congressional sources, has been spent to help Indochinese refugees resettle in this country.

For the Kurds, the State Department reached into its petty cash and scraped up a paltry $150,000, which was used to help finance the United Nations Kurdish refugee program. Congressional leaders, meanwhile, have ignored the Kurds' pleas for funds to help them resettle.

As part of his daily routine, General Barzani musters his energy to dictate a few letters asking for help. Twice he has written to President Carter. Once, he received a short response from the National Security Council advising him to talk to the State Department. On another occasion, he received a two-sentence note from a presidential aide who assured the general that his "interest" in the Kurdish problem "is appreciated."

The old mountain fighter still believes in the common sense and goodwill of the American people. The Kurds committed their lives and their fortunes to U.S. foreign policy. And, he believes, the U.S. government will eventually reciprocate by helping his people.

He can be forgiven, however, if he is beginning to have a few doubts.

Footnote: A State Department official told us that $20 million has been requested for direct grants to private foundations for their refugee resettlement programs.

NICK THIMMESCH

Where will Jimmy Carter's education billions go?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — The citizenry now pays $144 billion a year in federal and local taxes to support public education in our country, more than goes for national defense. Both areas get too much money, but we become more disturbed over inflation of public school costs than defense, because we live near schools and our children attend them.

So taxpayers should raise eyebrows when President Carter rhapsodizes that the $12.9 billion he asks for education in 1979 represents the largest increase proposed by any President and Congress since the mid'-60s. The reason we pause is that in the past 10 years, according to a national study, per-pupil education costs have risen 132 percent while the Consumer Price Index rose only 60 percent — and still pupil performance scores have dropped.

There is something wrong in public education today, despite record-breaking budgets and price hikes. Now the President is asking for even larger increases so that greater emphasis can be placed on the basic skills — reading, writing and arithmetic.

It seems that the poorer public school performance gets, the more money is demanded to correct the errors. It's a little like the auto companies recalling defective cars for repair and then adding the cost of fixing their mistakes to the cost of doing business. Thus, the consumer winds up paying the bill.

There are many examples of such failure. The Council for Basic Education recently reported that a statewide educational assessment program in Florida showed that while only modest numbers of high school juniors flunked a relatively simple communications exam, 38 percent failed a math test which featured such questions what is 50 percent of $42.98? The president of the state teachers' union quickly blamed the results on TV watching, single-parent homes, alcoholic parents and juvenile crime.

No question that the deterioration of the American family makes it tougher for youngsters to learn. But then comes along a Chicago black woman like Marva Collins (Time magazine, Dec. 26, 1977) who operates a one-room school she founded for intensive teaching of inner-city children.

She puts up with no nonsense, holds pupils only one or two years and raises their overall performance remarkably. She then encourages parents to send their children to parochial rather than public schools.

It's one thing to talk about spending billions more for basic and bilingual education, but it's another to deliver it so pupils can really succeed. Pupils in bilingual Spanish-English programs aren't learning English any better than those not in this more expensive form of education, according to one federal government study. There is good reason to conclude that school boards and-or administrators install bilingual programs more in response to local political pressure than for their effectiveness.

Indeed, there is a great deal of politicizing in our public education system, especially since the National Education Assn. (NEA) has become a labor union which spent $3 million on the 1976 election (nearly all on Democratic candidates), backed the Carter-Mondale ticket and expected something nice in return.

It might be cynical, or accurate, to observe that the something nice is the huge hike in federal-aid-to-education Mr. Carter is asking for. Where will the money go? It's fair to say that labor unions such as the NEA don't like job-performance testing. Rather, they like more job slots, more chummy weekend educational conferences, more "special resource" or "remedial" teachers and, forbid-the-thought, more consultants and studies.

If that is what comes out of the Carter program, well, why don't we spare the taxpayer the expense?

What's really needed is a drastic upgrading in the skills of teachers who now glut the educational field. We need more good teachers like Marva Collins who notes: "All you need to teach is a blackboard, books and a pair of legs that will last through the day. If you gave me $20,000 worth of audiovisual equipment, I'd leave it out on the sidewalk."

Perhaps the Marva Collinses in education should be enlisted to instruct laggard teachers that if you become determined to teach, you will teach. If you fall back on special resource teams or "supplementary" aids, you probably won't teach.

If teachers need four -or six-week summer sessions to upgrade their skills and become more knowledgeable in their subjects, let it be, and hopefully some of the extra federal money will be spent this way. Call it recycling or retraining, the point is teachers have to put aside the bad news that American family life isn't the best, and realize that youngsters can be shaped up in a classroom and also, believe it or not, taught.

Instead of more expensive convenient escape hatches, we need more real teaching in the classroom, and that means work. With such a surplus of teachers, some of them must be willing to work. They have in the past, many work hard now, and the rest need to be prodded by the word that a taxpayers' revolt can be just as forceful as the political clout a rich labor union can wield with an Administration.

Devise not evil against thy neighbor, seeing he dwelleth securely by thee. — Pro. 3:29.

Mark Russell says

There are growing complaints among congressmen that the job is "no longer fun and rewarding." All of which seems to be a step in the right direction.

•

There is a yearning among the old timers in Congress for the good old days. Maybe they're worried that Congress might suffer an attack of terminal virtue.

•

Fear and suspicion stalk Capitol Hill. A congressman's every move is closely watched. He is, in fact, being spied upon. By whom? Other congressmen.

This would be a good time to cheer up your congressman. Campaign against him to take him out of his misery.

POSITIVE THINKING

How you can help other people

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Have you ever noticed how an everyday experience with people can actually be thrilling? I had such an experience while lunching with some men in a big bustling restaurant.

I happened to notice a waitress serving the next table. She was a large woman, somewhat on the hefty side, but very fast on her feet. Obviously she was taking care of her customers with real skill. That may have been what first caught my attention — it is always interesting to watch anyone do a job outstandingly well.

But there was something else about the woman that interested me even more. In her laughter, in her whole demeanor and obvious attitude of pleasure in her job, you could sense a wonderful spirit of good will.

But getting involved again in the conversation at our table, I forgot about her. Presently I was startled to find this waitress standing beside our table and bending down to speak to me. She rested both hands on the edge of the table — big hands accustomed to hard work. Bringing her large, friendly face close to mine, she looked me straight in the eye and said, "I want to tell you something: I like you."

"Well," I assured her, "I like you too, though I can't remember ever meeting you before. Just why do you like me?"

"I read everything you write," she beamed. "You see, I needed a lot of help. I've had scads of trouble in my time and plenty of sorrow, too. But in reading your things, I got to feeling that you actually cared about me. And you made me see that maybe God loves me too. Well, when I began believing that, I started getting hold of myself and things began to improve. I am much happier now. I'm on top. So, I like you."

As suddenly as she had appeared at my side she was gone again, back to her work, spreading joy all over the place.

How could I do otherwise than like her too. Naturally I was pleased that I had been able to help someone in this way. The warmth of the woman's good feeling touched me deeply. She gave me a real lift.

My luncheon companions also reacted to this woman's buoyant spirit. At once our conversation turned to whether we were really putting enough of the spirit of love into our daily living; and I think we all left that restaurant with renewed resolve: We were going to try to be better at liking people and helping them.

William James, the early American philosopher-psychologist, pointed out that the most deep-seated human feeling is the desire to be appreciated. There is nothing greater you can do for others than to show that you believe in them and have real regard for them.

Some people throw up their hands at the idea of making a deliberate effort to love others. How do you go about loving a person — they want to know — if you just don't love him and if he isn't likeable? How do you begin?

A good way is simply to practice esteeming people. A friend of mine spends a few moments each morning bringing to mind people whom he expects to contact during the day. He mentally stresses their best qualities. He holds the thought, "I esteem Bill — John — Mary," individually naming each. He makes a special point of mentally esteeming anyone he has had difficulty getting along with. He finds by this practice he can cultivate more positive feeling toward these persons.

When you deliberatly think thoughts of regard toward people it is bound to transmit itself to them, and you can be sure it will stimulate similiar feelings in response.

A further step in learning to like people is simply to make yourself likeable. Be outgoing. Be interested. To have friends, be friendly. It's that simple.

This encourages the other fellow to be friendly. Result — you get to know each other better. And the better we know people, the more we like them. Liking people is a two-way street. Like them, genuinely like them, and they will like you.

A do-gooder once asked the great Indian philosopher Rabindranath Tagore how to do good to people. His very wise answer was — "Don't try to do them good. Simply love them and you will do them the most good of all."

ART BUCHWALD

Women in trenches with 'our boys'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is asking Congress to end the ban on women going into combat. It wants permission for women in the armed forces to fly planes, man battleships and live in the trenches next to "our boys."

The problem seems to be that the "baby boom" in the United States is over. The military says that by the 1980s it won't have enough men to man all the battle stations.

I must admit I have mixed feelings about American women serving in combat, particularly in the trenches with men. Part of me says "women earned it." But another voice says "Remember how it was with Brinkerhoff."

Let me explain. During World War II in the Pacific, I served in a U.S. Marine Corps fighter squadron with a fellow named Brinkerhoff. We shared the same foxhole, which was used in case of an air raid or when someone in our outfit went berserk and decided to open fire on the rest of us.

When you share a foxhole with another person you get to know him quite intimately, and you really learn to hate him.

The trouble with Brinkerhoff was that he was never in a hurry to get into the foxhole, and I always wound up there first — on the bottom. He'd come diving in at the last moment with helmet, rifle, canteen and field boots, and he used me to break his fall.

"Brinkerhoff," I finally said, "why don't you just once get to the foxhole first so I can use you as a mattress for a change?"

"I got claustrophobia," he said. "I don't like to be in a foxhole at the bottom."

"Then why don't we dig a larger foxhole so we can lie side by side the way they do in John Wayne movies?"

Brinkerhoff's eyes filled with tears. "You don't like me any more."

"I do like you," I retorted, "but I'm getting tired of you jumping on my bones."

"I'll bet you wouldn't say that if I was a girl," Brinkerhoff said.

"That's the most stupid thing I ever heard," I shouted. "What would a girl be doing out here in a foxhole?"

"Some day American women will be sharing foxholes with men," Brinkerhoff said.

"Not in the U.S. armed forces, they won't," I told him, trying to get his canteen out of my kidney.

"Why not?"

"Because one of the reasons we're out here fighting the Japs (during World War II we were allowed to use ethnic slurs when discussing the enemy) is to protect the girl next door. How could we protect her if she was out here in a foxhole fighting beside us?"

"I'd rather be in a foxhole with the girl next door than you," Brinkerhoff said.

"You're just saying that because I'm here," I said.

"How would you feel if the girl was a better shot than you were and killed more Japs?"

"You have to be kidding," Brinkerhoff said. "You don't think if I was sharing a foxhole with a girl we'd be shooting at anybody?"

"That's my point, Brinkerhoff. You can't have a war if you have men and women in the same foxhole. An officer would yell 'CHARGE!' and nobody would leave their cover. They'd have to do away with the Good Conduct Medal."

"I still say we'll see women in foxholes some day. You ain't going to get Marines to go into the trenches a few wars from now if they have to share them with people like you."

It's a hard thing for me to admit, even now, but damned if Brinkerhoff didn't know what he was talking about.

Prompt response

To The Editor:

In reference to my letter of February 26, 1978, regarding the Andrews Highway traffic signals, I wish to state that I received a very nice letter from Mr. D.D. Vanover, traffic coordinator. He was aware of the problems I discussed. He stated that remedial measures to relocate the actuator pads will start shortly.

I would like to commend Mr. Vanover for recognizing a problem and taking action to improve on it. Too seldom do our governmental employees receive thanks. I'm sure theirs is a difficult job trying to please everyone.

Girls benefited

To The Editor:

Our most grateful thanks for the marvelous full page story you ran last Sunday showcasing both Girl Scouts of America and Camp Fire Girls. We would also like to thank our many supporters. It was very heartwarming to see the two stories run side by side. After all, we exist for the same purpose: to help young girls grow into womanhood as responsible, caring citizens. Our methods are slightly different but we aim for the same goals. We appreciate, more than we can say, the fine support The Midland Reporter-Telegram has given both organizations.

As we celebrate our birthday weeks, we of the Midland Council of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., salute the Girl Scouts of America and wish both organizations a happy birthday and many years of continued success.

Dry's the answer

To The Editor:

The perfect solution for our troubled teens who have been fooled into thinking that "drinking is grown-up" is to dry-up Midland!

And after Midland is dry, help our West Texas neighbors to dry up too. It's a long drive out of here for a six-pack or a fifth.

Don't you know that behind all those nice front doors are parents who also drink? Weekends in Midland many a Midland family member has his bottle or his six packs and spends his entire weekend with it. Many of your young people on responsible jobs downtown are drinking heavy come Friday night. Is it worse for the kids to be doing in the open what some of their parents are doing behind closed doors?

My suggestion is take the beer out of the grocery store and get rid of the alcoholic stores. It is a sickness that goes under the disguise of "being mature and grown-up fun." These kids really don't know what they do. It is our responsibility in the governing process, law enforcement and as knowledgeable residents knowing what the Good Book preaches, to protect our young and our old who are sick by removing the "fire-water" and replacing it with something more constructive.

We have banned firecrackers in the city — cannot we also ban alcohol? So we step on a few toes of those who control this business — aren't we tough enough to fight evil?

But, also, Midland and West Texas towns have no fields and streams and let's face it, very little to do for a young lively person. We need to consider quickly some type of meeting places for different types of youth and we need a big park with bike trails and a place for taking walks. We could have walking policemen in these parks, like New York does, but it would be cheaper than chasing drunks.

With the drinks dismissed from our town, our law enforcement could much more easily control the dope problems.

I'm ready today. What do you say Midland? Wouldn't it be better and safer and much more healthy atmosphere for all to go dry?

No less than best

To The Editor:

At a meeting Monday of parents concerned about the possible loss of the full-day kindergarten program and, consequently, the multi-age learning situation at Rusk, Burnet and Jane Long Elementary schools, I was gratified especially to learn we had the support of several principals of schools which do not have these programs.

These principals, whom I commend for their open-mindedness, voiced public and private support of full-day kindergarten and multi-age learning and said they wished their schools had such programs but that vocal opposition by some parents had prevented this. They felt multi-age programs provided the best learning opportunities and that Midland parents deserved a choice. Currently, persons can transfer children into or out of schools with these programs.

There appears to be no question among the educators that full-day kindergarten provides greater educational opportunities. However, there seems to be some resentment that Rusk, Long, and Burnet receive approximately $24 more per kindergarten child per year than other schools.

In the past, other schools have had opportunities to adopt these programs and have declined. The staff at Rusk assumed that ours were a permanent part of the school system and planned accordingly. Now we are threatened with the loss of these programs and the years of preparation which have gone into them. The majority of Rusk parents feel it is grossly unfair that some who have repeatedly said, "We don't want it" are endeavoring to take it from those of us who do.

Several members of the administrative staff and the school board were at the meeting and heard overwhelming support for the program. I ask them to give great concern to priorities when they make a recommendation and vote. What is more important than the best possible early childhood education?

Thoughts echoed

To The Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my thanks to Cindy Johnson for putting into words exactly the way Greenwood School feels about their rules and regulations. I couldn't have said it better myself.

"If you don't like the way things are done out here, don't move out here. If you already live here and don't like it, move out."

Only the school board and faculty has any say about how things are done at their school, regardless of how the taxpayers and parents feel.

Puzzled

To The Editor:

It is very difficult for me to understand the actions of President Carter. In September 1977, amid much fanfare, he signed away the American Canal in Panama.

Then on October 5, 1977, President Carter signed the U.N. "Human Rights" treaties: The Civil and Political Rights covenant and the Economic, Social and Cultural Rights covenant.

If these two treaties should be ratified by the U.S. Senate, the death knell of free enterprise and the private ownership of property will have been accomplished.

In regard to these two treaties, Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon refused to sign them unless an Article 17 was included. This article reads: "Everyone has the right to own property alone, as well as in association with others. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his property." As was to be expected, the USSR refused to sign so long as this Article 17 was included. However, President Carter apparently has a deep-seated desire to please the USSR so he signed without Article 17 thus giving away the right of any American to own property.

It is difficult for me to understand how a so-called Bible scholar like President Carter can sign away the ownership of private property when the Ten Commandments affirm this right and so do many of the parables of Jesus.

Under the leadership of a so-called "born again" President, have we ceased to be a "nation, under God?" The Panama Canal treaties should be defeated as well as these two U.N. treaties.

Drivers at fault

To The Editor:

It is regrettable your editorial concerning "Downtown Parking" (2-26-78) was not placed on your front page instead of being buried on the editorial page. It is also regrettable you did not carry it further so as to encompass all traffic in the downtown area.

You could have included the driver who elects to attempt a left hand turn, especially in rush hour traffic on the streets where traffic is restricted to one lane because of construction. And let us not forget the long-haired male "beauties" who cut across through traffic making a left hand turn at a light change and illustrating what sort of offspring their parents brought forth by making obscene gestures at oncoming drivers who are making emergency stops.

And how about the drivers who arrive at a red light and go right through the intersection, their only gesture toward obeying the law being a slight pressure on the brake pedal? Even police vehicles not on call have been observed doing this?

Your editorial states pedestrians yet have some rights. One might certainly say they do! Their walking habits strongly resemble those they have while behind the wheel. One never knows where they will appear in the street. If they happen to cross at an intersection where there are "WALK-DON'T WALK" signs, the signs are ignored so long as the vehicular green light remains lit.

And there are those who ignore the vehicular red light as long as there is no traffic from right or left and continue across leaving the driver desiring to make a right hand turn wanting.

Perhaps the city should obtain more white paint to designate crosswalks instead of the yellow with which they paint the curbs and the motorists ignore.

Let us face the facts. The people of Midland are no better off than the greedy, self-centered population of any other community in this country. They have no respect for their fellow man.

Let's pedal

To The Editor:

Within the past few weeks, I've read two editorials in your paper concerning the worsening parking situation in downtown Midland.

One overlooked way of reducing the problem somewhat is to encourage bicycle riding for those within a convenient distance (two to three miles). The advantages are obvious in that several bicycles can be parked in the space required for a single car.

Unfortunately, there is no provision for parking bicycles downtown, with the exception of a rack in front of the library and that is not a convenient location for most office workers.

Certainly, bicycle riding will not solve the parking problem all by itself, but it could help by lowering the number of cars moving into downtown Midland each morning.

I urge you to give this matter some thought. Possibly a short article or editorial would encourage the city council or some of the downtown businesses to allocate some space for bicycle parking.

Solution needed

To The Editor:

"Detroit? Harlem, perhaps?"

Somehow, chosen phrases such as these seem a little harsh to describe the current situation on L Street as described in the "Neighborhood Struggles Against Vandals" article in the March 5 issue of The Midland Reporter-Telegram. Admittedly, a problem does exist in the neighborhood and something must definitely be done.

Yet, I, a one-time cruiser of the overpopulated strip, don't feel that "gangs of marauding teen-agers," actually "take over" the neighborhood and "sprawl" on the lawns. The words chosen by Kay Hord throughout the entire article reminded me of the sensationalistic yellow journalism of the '20s.

While reading the story I couldn't help but conjure a picture of 500,000 Willie Nelson picnickers trudging across the residential neighborhood.

Unquestionably, a solution must be found, but issuing over 1,600 tickets and setting up road blocks (this time, the police last weekend) on Friday and Saturday night isn't exactly the answer. As most Midlanders will remember, last year a similar situation occurred at A Street Park and before that at Dellwood shopping center. And now it's L Street.

The entire problem boils down to the single fact that the youth don't have anything to do, unless of course they own fake identification and can enter the area discos . . . illegally.

Maybe the local authorities should re-examine their actions and find a permanent solution to a problem which affects the owners of the houses as well as the youth.

K-1 boosters

To The Editor:

As concerned parents, we are quite upset that Rusk may lose its K-1 program next year. Having had a child in the program for two years, we have seen from personal experience how well it has succeeded. Not only do we feel that our child has made remarkable progress in the basic language and math skills, he has also acquired intense curiosity about everything around him.

We realize that all good schooling instills this in a child, but we also feel that team teaching and multi-age grouping have created more enthusiasm for learning than a self-contained classroom atmosphere could do. Learning at his own pace has given our child self-confidence as well, which will help him all through his school years.

As supporters of the K-1 program, we know it will cost money (our money, too) to continue the programs. It is inconceivable to us that a prosperous and rapidly expanding Midland could toss aside such a well-organized and proven program.

We are aware that certain groups in Midland resent the K-1 programs. Some, who have not themselves been involved in them, think they do not work. This is absurd! Those who have been involved — teachers, administrators and parents — wholeheartedly support the system and are fighting to keep it.

Others feel that the schools having the K-1 program are somehow favored over others. For these people perhaps a poll should be taken to see if other schools also want the program. Frankly, we think every district would find the multi-age grouping beneficial, but convincing them is not our intention here.

All we hope for is that the school board will retain what we consider a marvelous learning opportunity for Midland children.

Green machine

To The Editor:

It is that time of year again, and the political machine of Greenwood is at work again. They can make Richard Nixon look like an angel.

It always starts out like any other election, but as it gets closer to the 1st you will always see the inner-circle trying to smear anyone they can so as to get the vote to go their way.

This year they need to clean out their own closets. I have known the family they are spreading rumors about now for 25 years, and these are facts: he has six children, and last year he made just under $13,000. His children do not get free lunches, but they are at reduced prices. He does not owe a penny on anything, and his children will not have to apply for help if they go to college. You can call him at home any time you wish and he will give you the facts — not some rumors like you are hearing.

This inner-circle does not want to lose control of the school, and they don't care what they do or who they hurt. They have tried everything from putting their flunkies in on election day to causing good people to move from the community.

These $500 per month millionaires need to be shown by the good people of Greenwood that they are tired of the way that they try to control the community. I cannot understand why they think they are so much better than others. Please clip this out and carry it with you, for you have the facts, not rumors, to spread.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Don't put too much confidence in polls

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Figures, it has been pointed out, don't lie, but lots of liars figure.

Understanding that principle is basic to deciphering just what is going on in the numerous polls which are being taken for various political candidates.

Let us hasten to add, however, that that comment isn't intended to imply that pollsters lie or deliberately distort results.

No reputable organization would, and word gets around as to who's reputable, and who's not.

But how polls are structured and interpreted often can affect how accurately, or inaccurately, they reflect actual conditions.

Making a poll accurate isn't easy. But thanks to improved techniques and experience, polls now frequently do provide an accurate picture of conditions — political and otherwise.

That very success is proving something of a problem, however.

Polls have become as much a part of political campaigns as the buttons, bumper stickers, flyers and other paraphernalia which candidates employ.

And because the public has come to trust, although not completely, the accuracy of such polls, the announcement of the results of a poll creates immediate interest within the camps both of a candidate and his supporters, and of his opponent and opponent's supporters.

This produces the spectacle of politicians bringing out poll and counter-poll, parading the results before journalists and voters, in a way which brings to mind the old prints of naval battles, with the vessels passing in formal array as they lob missiles at one another.

Recently, the pollsters themselves got into the act directly — after a press release by U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie implied that opponent Bob Krueger's pollsters were too closely linked with Krueger's campaign to conduct an objective poll.

That, as one campaign official noted, is a serious change in the case of someone who makes his living by the credibility of his product — and there are likely to be some hard feelings there for some time.

What is it that politicians themselves and their campaign workers look for in polls?

One thing, they report, is whether the results from several different polls appear to be consistent.

That is the significance in the recent polls conducted for Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Attorney General John Hill, and in the other polls which indicate that the two Democratic gubernatorial candidates are fairly close together.

Hill's folks describe the situation as a "dead heat." Briscoe's folks say the incumbent has a "firm margin."

Hill himself has fired a few shots at what he called "political poll cats" who put out polls with "very little substance."

He had, Hill commented, conducted a poll that showed him with 100 per cent of the vote — in his Austin campaign headquarters.

Hill is willing, however, to credit another poll which shows him pulling ahead of Briscoe, 36 per cent to 34 per cent, with Preston Smith getting seven per cent and the rest of the voters "undecided."

Those results are somewhat at variance with Briscoe's latest poll, which shows the governor with 38 per cent, Hill with almost 32 per cent and Smith with over 9 per cent, and 17 per cent undecided.

Workers in both campaigns, however, agree that the split probably is in that general area — and that it indicates the Democratic race is closer than most observers would have predicted several months ago.

Those polls also are seen by both sides as a spur to workers to get out and campaign harder — and also serve in some instances to indicate what groups need to get more attention.

What the surveys show now really won't count for much come May 6, when voters go to the polls — and those, in the final analysis, are the only polls that really show what voters think, and that really counts.

Coal strke effects pyramid for state of West Virginia

By BILL BRYANT

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The 96-day-old coal strike is taking a heavy toll on this state of 2 million people where coal is king, and the governor warns nearly a third of the workforce could be jobless if the walkout is not settled soon.

—17 percent unemployment, or 117,000 to 118,000 people. Not all of that is attributable to the strike, but the figures include 65,000 striking miners and several thousand others in related business. The percentage figure is the highest since the Depression.

—$34 million in lost state taxes, or $17 for each man, woman and child, from a total state budget of about $841 million.

—$43 million in lost coal sales taxes that counties will not receive. That is $21.50 per resident.

—$578 million in total personal income lost, an amount equal to $289 for each of the state's residents.

—27 million tons of coal not mined — worth more than $1 billion.

Gov. Jay Rockefeller says the first quarter of 1978 will be the worst in the state's modern economic history. He predicts a longer strike could mean unemployment for 100,000 more people within weeks, meaning three out of 10 workers would be idled.

At a news conference last week, Rockefeller detailed a bleak economic picture for his state. But he said he would not call state legislators back to revise the state budget after they end their 60-day session today and that he had no intention of laying off state employees to cut expenses.

"My back will have to be up against the absolute wall before I will consider laying off a single worker," he said.

"The strike at some point is going to end," he says.

LUBBOCK — A historian here discovered that the Walpole Windmill at the Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University is really an Althouse-Wheeler Raymond windmill made in Waupun, Wis.

Dr. T. Lindsay Baker, who is completing work on a "Field Guide to American Windmills," said his research led him to doubt the designation of the mill as a "Walpole."

"As it turns out," he said, "there is no Walpole windmill. Farmers referred to the Raymond as a 'Waupun' and, in oral transmission, that likely became 'Walpole' when the mill arrived at the Ranching Heritage Center."

Dr. Leslie C. Drew, director of the museum, announced the discovery of the error recently.

"Historical research at the Ranching Heritage Center is a continuing process," he explained, "and we will be constantly adding new information as historians uncover truth of the past."

Austin benefit concert slated for Midland child

AUSTIN — A benefit concert to raise funds for 8-year-old Eric McHam of Midland will be held in Austin's Zilker Park from 4 to 10 p.m. today.

Eric, who is sufferimg from Down's Syndrome, is son of Ken McHam, a Midland native and Austin free-lance writer who died of cancer at age 28 last Nov. 30.

Playing at the benefit will be the jazz-rock group, "Ain't Misbehavin'."

The concert is being put together by some of McHam's friends and associates in Austin. McHam was an aide to State Rep. Senfronia Thompson, who helped pass the bill to legalize the drug Laetrile, which McHam had believed might be a cancer cure or which might cause the disease to remit.

Austin lawyer Stan Peyton, who went to school with McHam at Midland's Lee High School, is helping to put on the concert. They were in the class of '67.

"It's going to be a beautiful spring day in Austin," Peyton said. "(It's) the kind Ken loved."

McHam's mother, Fredna McHam of 3312 W. Louisiana Ave. Midland, adopted Eric after McHam realized he had a malignancy. The boy is living with his grandmother in Midland. McHam had been ailing for two years.

Peyton said the benefit is open McHam's friends and acquaintances.

Those who wish to contribute to the cause may send their gifts to Jim Arnold, 606 W. 11th St., Austin 78701. Arnold is handling the Eric McHam trust fund, Peyton said.

14 award winners named in creative writing event

Awards for poetry went to Jean Knight, first place; Suzanne Pomeroy, second, and Alexis Wheeler, third. Honorable mentions were given to Stephanne Browne, Holly Holt, Alexis Wheeler, Duane Holst and Jean Ward.

Winners in the essay division were William Anthony, first; Buddy Rigby, second; Barbara L. Benge, third, and Carolyn Foret, honorable mention.

In the short story category, winners were Elise Coombes, first; Johnnie Moritz, second; Alexis Wheeler, third, and Hamilton Straughan, honorable mention.

Representative works from the contest entries will be published in "Tableau," the college literary magazine that is put out each spring.

Horizontal guideway tests people movers

DENVER (AP) — A unique horizontal guideway, nearly one half mile long and capable of continuous operation, has been installed here by an elevator company to test advanced "people mover" vehicles and control systems for use in downtown city centers and at resorts, universities, hospital complexes and shopping centers.

The new guideway will allow the testing of small vehicles carrying 12 passengers, up to large ones capable of transporting 80 people, says Robert L. Cole, president of Otis North American Operations. The track's continuous loop design will allow durability testing of vehicles running nonstop for long periods of time. Most "people mover" systems are automated and use driverless vehicles much like modern elevator systems, Cole says.

Midland County schools schedule spelling bee

Who is the supreme young speller in Midland County?

By late Wednesday, the speller will be known after competing for the county-wide honors at Alamo Junior High School.

The competition is a preliminary for the national spelling bee. The county winner will attend regional competition in Lubbock April 15 at the Lubbock Christian College where there will be another "spelldown."

Sixteen elementary students from the Midland Independent School District will face other county students at 3 p.m. Wednesday. The county spelling bee is open to the public.

The winner of the regional spelling bee on April 15 will advance to the contest to be held in Washington, D.C. during the first week of June.

The spelling bee offers over $6,000 in cash and prizes to winners who reach the regional level and go on to the national competition.

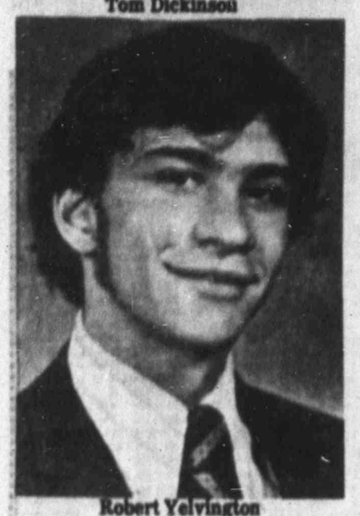
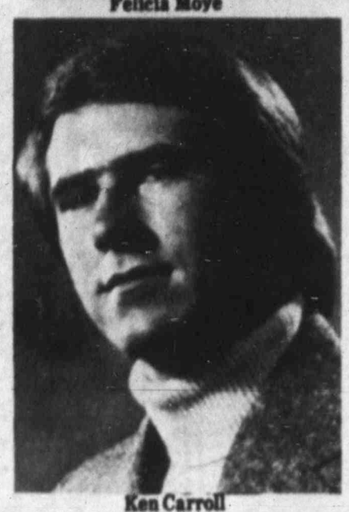
Top artists prepare for concert

Tom Dickinson

Felicia Moye



Robert Yelvington



Ken Carroll

Top winners in the 1978 National Young Artist Competition held in Midland in late January returned here this weekend to prepare for concert appearances with the Midland-Odessa Symphony, sponsor of the annual competition.

The four gifted young musicians will perform with the orchestra in concerts at 8 p.m. Monday in Odessa's Bonham Junior High auditorium and 8 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium of Midland's Robert E. Lee High School. The public may purchase single admissions at the doors before the start of each concert.

The guest performers are violinist Felicia Moye of Westbury, N. Y., baritone Ken Carroll of Austin, pianist Tom Dickinson of New Haven, Conn., and flautist Robert Yelvington of Albuquerque, N.M. They were named performing winners of the 1978 competition, being chosen for the honor from among more than a dozen finalists who, in turn, had been selected by a panel of musicians and music educators from the approximately 80 student instrumentalists and vocalists participating in the contest.

The performing winners, as well as other students named winners (but not performing winners) and remaining finalists will be sharing approximately $5,600 in prize money contributed to the annual competition by Mrs. Raiford H. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Ross and Mr. and A. A. Bradford, all of Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Noel of Odessa.

In addition, the four performing winners are recipients of the Lara Hoggard Performance Award, established this year by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fullinwider of Midland. The awards, in the form of medallions, pay tribute to Dr. Lara Hoggard, a former music director-conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony who organized the National Young Artist Competition in the early 1960s. Dr. Hoggard will attend the concerts here this week.

Miss Moye, 16, is the performing winner from the secondary schools division of the music competition. In her concert appearances with the orchestra she will be solo artist in Henri Vieuxtemps' Violin Concerto No. 4.

Miss Moye, formerly of Houston, has been studying violin with Margaret Pardee at the Meadowmount School of Music and while continuing studies with Pardee now also studies with Ivan Galamian in the Juilliard School's pre-college division.

The young lady was soloist with the Houston All-City Symphony at age 10 and also performed with the Rice University Chamber Symphony. She now plays in the Great Neck (N.Y.) Symphony and in the Young Artists Chamber Symphony of Long Island and serves as concertmistress of the Musica Viva Chamber Symphony of Long Island and the New York Youth Orchestra. She won first prize for strings in the Great Neck Symphony's Young Musicians Auditions in 1976 and has won prizes in numerous other competitions on the East Coast. She has played recitals at the Meadowmount and Juilliard schools as well as those in Garden City, N. Y., and Houston. She also has played in chamber music programs. She was recipient of the $500 Lado Award at Juilliard in 1977.

Kenneth Carroll, 24, currently attends The University of Texas School of Law while continuing his vocal studies. He received a masters degree in music with honors from East Texas State University, Commerce.

Carroll, who has studied voice with Earl Holloway, Charles Nelson, Dr. Walter Ducloux and Jess Walters, won first place in 1977 in the graduate division of the National Association of Teachers of Singing competition and was a finalist in the Shreveport Symphony's 1976 competition. During the time he was attending East Texas State University, he was recipient of the school's outstanding musician award.

He has performed with the East Texas State University Opera Ensemble and the University of Texas Opera Theatre and has sung roles in musical comedy and in productions of the Brahms Requiem, the Schubert Mass in G amd the Faure Requiem. He presently is baritone soloist at Austin's First United Methodist Church. He is originally from Bonham.

Monday and Tuesday nights, Carroll will sing operatic selections from "I Pagliacci" by Ruggero Leoncavallo and "Barber of Seville" by Giaocchino Rossini.

Robert Yelvington, originally from Espanola, N.M., now attends the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque on a full academic scholarship, majoring in applied music and French.

Yelvington began playing the flute as a junior high school student in band, but did not receive private instruction in the instrument until he was in high school, when he became a student of flautist Frank Bowen of Albuquerque. He has had additional study with Catherine Craig Schmidt and at the Marcel Moyse flute seminars at Brattleboro, Vt.

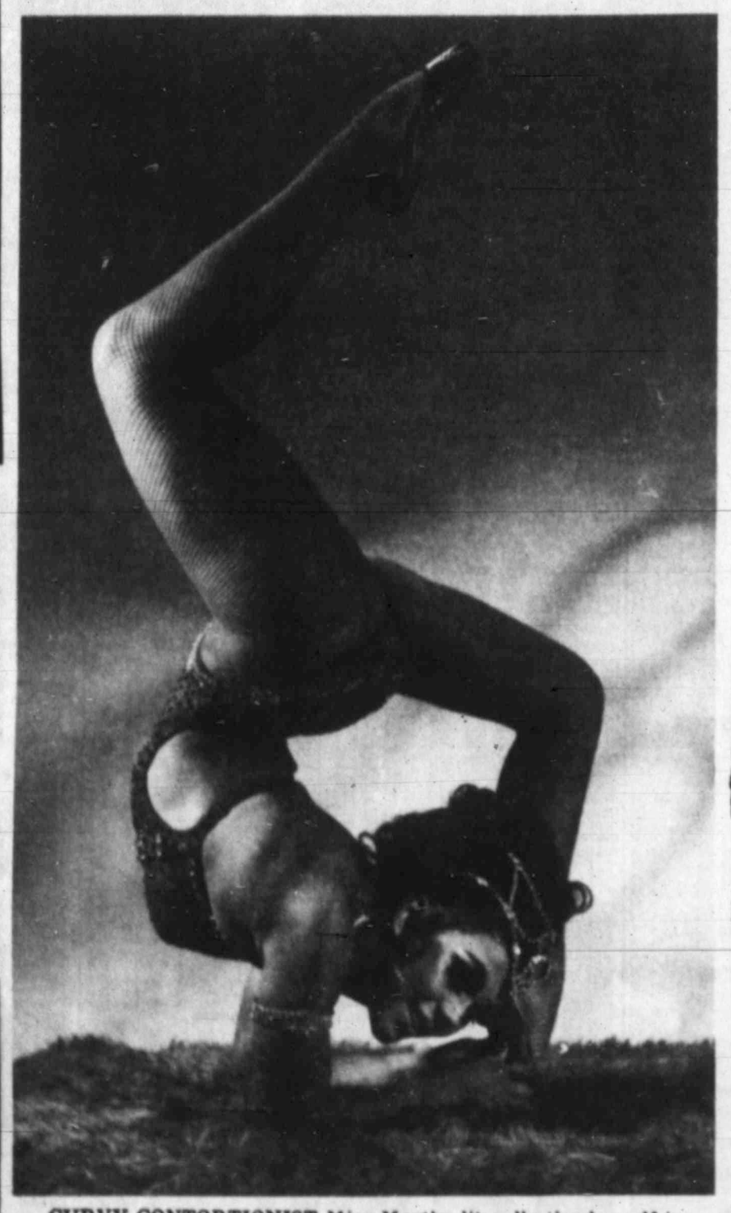
For his concert performances with the Midland-Odessa orchestra, Yelvington has chosen C.P.E. Bach's Concerto for Flute in B-flat major.

The fourth performing winner, pianist Tom Dickinson, 22, has selected the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra by contemporary American composer Samuel Barber for his appearances with the local orchestra.

Dickinson, from New Haven, Conn., currently is a keyboard student of Donald Currier at the Yale School of Music. Earlier studies were with Doris Cotton, Francis Clark, Sue Liu Wen and Donald Betts, as well as with Ward Davenny at Yale College.

Dickinson has participated in numerous summer music programs, including Boston University's Young Artists Program at Tanglewood, the Andre Watts piano seminars at Tanglewood, and programs offered by the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara, Calif. He is scheduled to perform as solo artist with the Yale Symphony Orchestra this month.

In addition to the musical works chosen by the four guest performers, the pair of concerts this week will feature the orchestra in presentations of Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 and Maurice Ravel's "La Valse." The concerts will be conducted by Dr. Tom Hohstadt.



CURVY CONTORTIONIST Miss Martha literally ties herself in knots to entertain audiences of the American Continental Circus, coming to Midland next Sunday for a pair of afternoon performances in Midland Memorial Stadium. The circus, sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will have performances at 1 and 5 p.m., with tickets to be available at the gates before each show.

Idaho's 'Ballet Folk' to dance in Odessa

"The Ballet Folk," a dance company in residence at the University of Idaho, will entertain members of Odessa Civic Concert Association and their guests Thursday night.

The ballet evening will be open to members of Midland Community Concerts Association through the reciprocal attendance arrangement existing between the two entertainment organizations.

The troupe, now in its sixth touring season, has a repertoire of dance works inspired by music ranging from Debussy to Elton John. New dances include "Viva La Company" and "Intimations of Immortality," both choreographed by company artistic director Jeannette Allyn, and "Watercolors," created by ballet master George Montague. The latter is an extension of Montague's earlier work, "Simple Gifts," a hit of the troupe's 1976 touring season, which was based on songs by Judy Collins. The new work is mounted to a medley of songs by such contemporary entertainers as Collins, Elton John, Joni Mitchell and Jim Croce.

Music by Claude Debussy frames the ballet "Intimations of Immortality," inspired by Wordsworth's famous "Recollections of Early Childhood." "Viva La Company" is a collection of mini-ballets taking place simultaneously. The work is mounted to the piano concerto of the immensely pouplar Emerson, Lake and Palmer group.

The traditional roots of ballet have not been neglected by "The Ballet Folk." In a salute to August Bournonville, one the all-time great ballet choreographers and teachers, the troupe offer. "Pas de Trois," mounted to music by Burgmuller. The work has been choreographed by George Montague in the style of the 19th Century Royal Danish Ballet.

"The Ballet Folk" concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of Odessa's Bonham Junior High School, 21st and Royalty streets.

Actor Broderick Crawford and wife Mary Alice Moore portray Sam and Laura, a widower and widow making plans to spend their remaining years together, in The Mansion dinner theater's new comedy attraction, "The Second Time Around."

Elderly couple gets last laugh

ODESSA — No one can accuse "The Second Time Around" of being profound theatre, but then profundity is not particularly expected, or even looked for, in dinner theaters across the country.

Despite the fact "The Second Time Around" is considerably broader than it is deep, it nevertheless has something going for it in a new production at The Mansion between Midland and Odessa — it's frequently very funny.

The Mansion's producer-director Enid Holm has exploited the comedic possibilities, the ribald tomfoolery, the antic improbabilities, of the piece with a canny eye for laughter and audience appeal. And with a couple of pros like noted actor Broderick Crawford and his attractive wife Mary Alice Moore as the stars, aided and abetted by a talented cast, this farcicial romp turns out to be pleasantly entertaining.

The show, which opened this past week, will have its first matinee at 2:30 today, followed by supper at the end of the performance. Weeknight performances begin at 8:30 Tuesday through Saturday, preceded by dinner service between 6:30 and 8.

"The Second Time Around," in which the Crawfords have starred elsewhere (including a just-completed run in Chicago) revolves around a widower and widow, both past 65, who have met, fallen in love and decided to spend their remaining years together — not in marriage but in a "living arrangement," for practical financial reasons. Their children are shocked, their children's humorless spouses are horrified, even the grandchildren are opposed to the situation. There's a neat little twist at the play's end, though, that saves the old folks' honor and makes everyone else feel virtuous and victorious. But the last laugh definitely belongs to the senior citizens.

Providing remarkably good support for the Crawfords are William Swan (last seen here about a year ago in another frothy comedy, "Hanky Panky") as the slightly neurotic son of the widow, and Mary Hennessy as the definitely neurotic daughter of the widower — both militantly opposed to the parents' announced plan to live in sin. Richard Folmer provides a delightful spoof on psychiatry in his role as the widower's psychiatrist son-in-law, and Elfriede Russell gives an amusing portrayal of the diet-conscious, health food faddist daughter-in-law of the widow. Rounding out the cast are Scott Given as the widower's grandson and Patricia Bay as the boy's girlfriend.

"The Second Time Around" has much amusing dialogue and lots of witty lines, many of them belonging, as might be expected, to the widower and widow, Sam and Laura. The Crawfords know how to get full mileage out of their parts. Crawford, especially, has some delightful throw-away lines, but he doesn't waste them.

The dialogue sometimes pokes fun at the infirmities and limitations of advancing age — but gently, never cruelly. (Says Laura at one point; "Let's celebrate and have a real cup of coffee, instead of Sanka." And Sam observes at another point that he and Laura want to share their lives because they share a lot in common, including the same blood type and a touch of hypertension.)

"The Second Time Around" will play through April 9. Table reservations for all performances are now being taken at the box office, 563-1133.

Mary Rasmussen

Midland artist Mary Rasmussen will be featured in a watercolor demonstration this afternoon in the Fine Arts Building of Midland College.

The 2:30 p.m. event is sponsored by Midland Arts Association and will be open to the public as well as MAA members.

Mrs. Rasmussen holds a degree in applied art from Iowa State University. She does landscapes, still lifes and portraits, working in oil and pastel mediums as well as watercolors. She has had special art study with Robert Marshall in this country and with Bill Earl in Switzerland and Germany.

In addition to her work as a painter and fashion illustrator, she also is active in various social and civic organizations here, including Heritage Study Club, Pi Beta Phi Alumnae and Green Thumb Garden Club. She is a former president of COM MOMS, the mothers organization of the City of Midland Swim Team.

Husband returns after declared dead

Newsday

The question of life after death has always intrigued mankind, and the prospect of whether physical return from the beyond is possible will undoubtedly continue to remain an enigma.

However, judging by "Baby, I'm Back," a new TV situation comedy, it's much more difficult to come back legally than in the flesh.

The gimmick of CBS' newest Monday-night show is reasonably simple: Ray Ellis walked out on his beautiful wife and two children; some years later he hears that his wife, Olivia, has had him pronounced legally dead so she can remarry.

The plot for the next eight to 10 weeks will no doubt thicken, since Ellis has returned to the scene, much to the dismay of Olivia's boss and fiance, a Pentagon colonel. All Ellis wants is to claim his right to be alive and to persuade his wife (former wife?) that he's reformed and they should pick up the marriage again.

Tickets on sale for MCT show

Tickets go on sale to the public Monday morning for Midland Community Theatre's next attraction, "Sleuth."

The famous mystery puzzler opens at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana Ave., with seven additional performances scheduled through April 1. The cast is headed by Charles Dixon and Ocie Robinson.

"Sleuth," which had an immensely successful run on Broadway, then became an acclaimed motion picture, is not a whodunit. MCT director Rick Schiller describes it as more a "who-is-the-who-that-does-what-to-whom" thriller. Persons, after seeing the play, are asked not to reveal the plot to others who have not yet seen a performance.

Seat reservations for the eight performances of "Sleuth" may be made by telephoning 682-2544.

Henry Fonda reluctant to be award recipient

The Washington Post

Henry Fonda didn't exactly look forward to being the sixth person honored by the American Film Institute with a Life Achievement Award. The black-tie testimonial dinner took place March 1 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles and will be telecast Wednesday night on CBS.

Fonda was in Washington last month opening a new play by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, "First Monday in October." We talked in his suite at the Watergate Hotel, and he made plain his lack of enthusiasm for being the guest of honor at any awards ceremonies.

Sculptures to be shown at museum

A collection of bronze sculptures by Colorado artist Auldwin Thomas Schomberg will go on view at the museum Friday, to continue on view through April 22.

The exhibition will feature sculptures illustrating paramount elements of the petroleum industry. The collection includes "The Roughneck," "Dry Hole," "Stabbing the Pipe," "The Strike" and "Lost Offshore." Individual castings and sets of castings of the sculptures may be ordered through the Petroleum Museum office.

The display, showcasing the work of art students in the city's public and private schools, will be on view to the public between 2 and 5 p.m. today. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Admission is free.

The art festival is sponsored by the museum, the Midland Independent School District, the City Council of the PTA and the Junior League of Midland Inc. Currently on exhibition are art works by elementary students. Works by secondary students will go on view March 23.

Duncanville wins TC title

By BOB DILLON

Duncanville reigns as tourney champions.

Jeff Morgan, Pete Collins and Leland Creel delivered timely base hits Saturday night to pace the Panthers to a 9-6 come-from-behind victory over the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen in the 4th annual Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium.

Morgan tripled in three runs and added another run with a walk in the sixth inning with the bases loaded to spark the victory.

Monterey had jumped to a 4-0 first inning lead with outfielder Dana Rieger's two-run double the big blow.

Rieger, the Most Valuable Player of the tourney, wound up with three hits in four trips to the plate for the Plainsmen.

DUNCANVILLE WENT through the tourney with four straight victories and leaves the Tall City with a 6-0 season record.

Midland High's Bulldogs pulled off the surprise of the two-day tourney by knocking off Monterey, 8-5, Saturday afternoon behind Rick Goode's six-hitter.

The Bulldogs had to come from behind in that one too, scoring five runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to win. Goode had a run-scoring double while Mark Mead knocked in two runs during the big rally that stunned the Hub City team.

Midland Lee turned the same trick against the El Paso Burges Mustangs in the first game of the day Saturday morning with a seven-run sixth inning for an amazing 10-9 victory over the Border City nine.

Lee pounded out 13 hits, including five doubles in coming from behind with John Bob Hopkins delivering two doubles.

Junior righthander Mark Denny came in to pick up the victory and won his own singles ball game with two in the same inning as the Rebs sent 12 batters to the plate. Denny's base hit scored Tyler Alcorn with the winning run.

CLAY CALHOUN had a pair of hits along with teammates Denny, Alcorn, Hopkins and Doug Schmidt.

Lee dropped a tough 8-5 decision to tourney champion Duncanville later in the day when the hard-hitting Panthers rallied for the three runs in the bottom of the fourth for the margin of victory.

Calhoun, an all-tourney selection, ripped a triple in the sixth inning for the Rebels who take a 7-2 record into their game with Pecos in Pecos Monday night.

Midland also dropped a narrow game, losing to Burges, 5-4 Saturday afternoon.

JIMMY ZACHRY had a double for Midland while Rick Altheide also had a two-bagger for Burges.

In Midland's big victory over Monterey, Goode got into a hole early in the game, walking the first two Plainsmen hitters and then gave up a long homer by Rieger to fall behind, 3-0 in the first inning.

Catcher Nick Junior was named along with first baseman Leland Creel, shortstop Milo Choate, third baseman Scott Wolf and outfielder Jeff Morgan for the Panthers.

Monterey placed pitcher Ron

Permian takes WT Relays

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA—Odessa Permian's baton throwing fit Friday, which cost them an entry in the mile relay, didn't even slow the Panthers charge toward the title in the 35th annual West Texas Relays here Saturday at W. T. Barrett Stadium.

Permian chalked up 110 points to walk away with the title by scoring heavily in most of their strengths. San Angelo, however, got disqualified in the mile relay, an event they hoped would bring them victory, and lost second place in the process while falling to fourth.

THE VICTORY by Permian lifts the Panthers into the favorites role next Friday night when they come to Midland for the Tall City Relays in Memorial Stadium under the lights. Permian has now won two straight titles after finishing behind both Midland Lee and San Angelo in Fort Stockton. San Angelo also fell apart in the hurdles, and they could be fighting mad when they journey to Midland Friday.

Lubbock Monterey, which finished third in the mile relay, was given first place in the meet's final event when El Paso Andress and San Angelo were both disqualified in a bumping incident. San Angelo won the race and got no points while Monterey won third with 63 points and Del Rio got second with 70 points.

IN THE AAA Division, Odessa Ector walked off with top honors on the basis of 106 points, but Andrews freshman Van Pearcy stole the show by gaining high point individual honors with 31 points. Pearcy won the long jump Friday and came back to win the 220 Saturday with a 22.6 seconds. He placed second in the 100-yard dash showdown with Ector's Alvin Woodard, and ran a leg on Andrews' third place sprint relay team. Woodard had a 10.0 while Pearcy was second with a 10.2 in the 100. Danny King of Permian won high honors in the AAAA run with 36 points, and he is a do everything man for the Panthers.

Slaton won the AA Division in a runaway with 125 points while Stanton was a distant second with 70 points without winning an event in the meet.

EL PASO Eastwood captured 114 points to win the girls competition while Permian was second with 101 points. Eastwood's Cheri Kirk won high honors with 35 points. Slaton's Kelvin Kern scored 28 points in the AA run for top honors.

Midland High scored only 28 points Saturday, but the Bulldogs brought home production in every event that they had qualifiers, and at least three of the Pack members turned in impressive showings even though no one came away with a victory.

Jeff Adkins turned in a 4:27.4, three seconds under his best which had kept him undefeated this year in two outings, only to finish third in a very tough field.

CURTIS CONAWAY of Monterey blazed a 4:23.9 to win the event, and he passed Adkins on the last lap for the victory. Ricardo Diaz also came from behind for second with a fine 4:26.5.

Chuck Stump also turned in his best time of the year in the 880 with a 1:59.6, but it also managed only a third place as Kenneth Schmidt of El Paso Austin set a meet record with a 1:56.1 while defending 5-4A champ Ed Bruning was second with a 1:56.4. Stump broke out of the pack early to make a run at the title, and the strategy didn't get a victory, but did lead to his best effort of the year.

Midland High was plagued by a rash of thirds. Alvin Price had a third in the 220 with a 22.6, not his best; and Jerry Bundage had a third in the 100 with a 10.7, not his best. Bundage owns a 10.1 this year in the 100, and that would have won Saturday.

ONE OF the biggest surprises by the Bulldogs, however, came from Joe Primera in the pole vault. Primera managed only fourth place with a leap of 13-3, but that is more than a foot higher than he has ever

Upset by Oppenheim foils Bulldogs sweep

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Wayne Oppenheim may have some shortcomings in his tennis game, but as Jeff Bramlett can tell you from firsthand experience, his backhand certainly isn't one of them.

Oppenheim, the top-seeded 17-year-old from El Paso Eastwood, used that particular facet of his game to perfection Saturday in the 'A' boys singles final of the Tall City Tennis Classic, defeating Bramlett in a three-set, hour and a half long dual, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

Oppenheim's victory spoiled a Midland High sweep of the 'A' singles titles Saturday. While Bramlett was having his difficulties with Oppenheim, his MHS teammate Vick Vasicek, the top seed in the 'A' girls singles event, was beating Karen Broe of Lee, 7-6, 6-3, for her second straight Tall City title.

Midland High also walked off with the 'A' boys doubles title as Kirk Farquhar and Joe Love disposed of Permian's Mike Madden and Steve Ashley in the finals, 6-4, 6-3.

Suzanne Naworski and Karen Wilson of Permian won the 'A' girls doubles crown, defeating Dana Craig and Nancy Lee Weaver of Lubbock Coronado in the morning finals.

To no one's surprise, Midland easily won the 'A' team championship. Coach Larry Burgin's team accumulated 31 points in the two-day tourney to easily outdistance runnerup Permian, which finished with 19 points. El Paso Eastwood was third with 16 amd Lubbock Coronado fourth with 12.

Bramlett, who has now lost three of four meetings with Oppenheim, decided to give the Border City netter's backhand a test, and that turned out to be a mistake. Oppenheim bombarded him with an array of good passing shots to upset Bramlett's hopes for his second tournament title in two weeks. He won the boys singles crown at the L.D. Bell Tennis Festival last Saturday in Dallas.

But it was not to be. Oppenheim broke Bramlett's service three times in the first set and then took advantage of some untimely mistakes by Jeff in the deciding third set to pull out the win.

Bramlett's most critical error came in the sixth game of the third set. After dropping the first three games of the set, Bramlett rallied to win the fourth and fifth, and was serving for a 3-3 tie. But, with the game tied at 15, Bramlett double-faulted and then followed it up by hitting what should have been a simple forehand return, into the net. The 16-yearold never recovered after that.

Vasicek also attacked her opponent's backhand in her title match with Broe, but with different results as she outlasted the Lee senior in a 55 minute first set marathon and then put her away for a 6-3 victory in the second.

After losing in the finals of the Hurst tourney last week, Farquhar and Love made it all the way Saturday, as they knocked off Madden and Ashley without even working up a sweat. The win was especially pleasing to Farquhar, who had lost to the Permian pair last month in a dual meet. He was teamed with Bramlett then.

NET NOTES: Lee High coach Bobby Connell's wife gave birth to a seven pound, 14-ounce baby girl early Saturday morning. The couple are going to name her Jennifer Robin. . . The Midland and Lee tennis teams will participate in the Lubbock Invitational Tennis Tournament next weekend. . . The District 5-4A tennis tourney will be held here on April 14-15.

Hogs devour Weber State

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Marvin Delph and Ron Brewer ripped the Weber State zone defense for 39 points Saturday as seventh-ranked Arkansas rolled to a 73-52 victory over the outmanned Wildcats in the opening round of the NCAA Western Regional basketball playoffs.

Weber State's deliberate style and a cool Arkansas shooting hand kept the game close through the first half, with the Big Sky champions trailing only by six, 32-26, at the intermission. But the Razorbacks, 29-3, reeled off 10 straight points—six by the slick-shooting Brewer—to open a 47-30 lead with 13:46 left in the game.

The Wildcats, who finished the season 19-10, refused to abandon their zone defense and the quicker Razorbacks never were threatened in the second half.

Arkansas, co-champion of the Southwest Conference, grabbed the lead for good at 10-8 on Delph's rebound basket with the game barely seven minutes old.

Weber State's 7-foot center Richard Smith was in foul trouble most of the second half and the Razorbacks controlled the backboard.

Delph led all scorers with 20 points. Brewer hit five of seven shots in the second half and added 19. Sidney Moncrief added 16 points for the Razorbacks.

Kurt Moore and Bruce Collins scored 14 and 13, respectively, for Weber State.

The Razorbacks avenged an opening-round loss in last season's NCAA tourney and will meet UCLA Thursday night in Alburquerque, N.M.

Miami stuns Warriors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A three-point play by Archie Aldridge and two free throws by Rich Babcock with 14 seconds left in overtime capped a Miami comeback that hurtled the Redskins past defending NCAA champion Marquette, 84-81 Saturday in the NCAA Mideast Regional basketball tournament.

In the other Mideast Regional contest, sixth-ranked Michigan State hit its first eight shots, roared to a 24-point lead and rode Greg Kelser's 23 points to a 77-63 victory over unranked Providence.

Miami, which trailed by as many as 13 points early in the second half, began to rally after Jerome Whitehead was thrown out of the game for decking Miami's John Shoemaker with his elbow with 3:38 left in regulation. He was charged with a personal foul, and Marquette Coach Hank Raymonds picked up a technical.

Babcock hit one free throw, Aldridge hit both technicals and Rick Goins followed with a basket to cut Marquette's 10-point lead in half, 68-63.

"They just got the momentum after the technical foul," said Raymonds, who took over from Al McGuire as Marquette's coach this season. "They hit some shots and that turned it around. It was my first technical all year."

All-American Butch Lee, who led all scorers with 27 points, hit one of two free throws with 28 seconds to go. Then a basket by Shoemaker put Miami on top by one before a free throw by Jim Boylan sent the game into overtime at 75-75.

Big Ten Conference champion Michigan State, playing in its first NCAA tournament since 1959, never trailed. The Spartans built a quick 11-2 lead, widened it to 17 points midway through the first half and were threatened only once before intermission.

Bruce Campbell, who led Providence with 24 points, sparked a rally that closed the gap to six, but two free throws by Earvin Johnson and baskets by Kelser and Ron Charles pushed the lead to 38-26 at the half.

New Mexico loses

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Seven for eight free throw shooting over the last 1:43 and a balanced attack headed by Keith Anderson paced Cal State-Fullerton to a 90-85 upset victory over New Mexico in the first round action of the NCAA Far West Regionals Saturday.

That came in Saturday's second game after San Francisco, behind the scoring and rebounding of Bill Cartwright, paced the Dons past North Carolina 68-64.

Heavily favored New Mexico, ranked fifth nationally, had its hands full throughout, but it rallied to tie at 83-all on Michael Cooper's slam dunk off a steal with 2:59 remaining.

But that was virtually the last gasp for the Lobos as the Titans regained the lead with 1:43 left when Mike Linden converted both ends of a one-and-one.

Kentucky whips FSU

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Top-ranked Kentucky ripped off 14 straight points to come from behind and defeat Florida State 85-76 and Western Kentucky rallied in the closing minutes to upset 18th-ranked Syracuse 87-86 in overtime in the first round of the NCAA Mideast basketball playoffs Saturday.

Truman Claytor, who led Kentucky with 16 points, scored a layup during the Wildcat streak, while teammate Kyle Macy, who scored 14, hit two long jump shots. The Southeastern Conference champion Wildcats trailed 53-48 midway in the second half when they began their spurt, which put them ahead 62-53 with just under seven minutes left. Kentucky is 26-2 while Florida State, the runner-up in the Metro Seven Conference, finished the season 23-6.

Mahaffey fires 69 to tie Nicklaus for Doral lead

MIAMI (AP) — John Mahaffey, trying to battle his way back from golfing oblivion, cut out a 3-under-par 69 and tied on-rushing Jack Nicklaus for the second-round lead Saturday in the weather-plagued $200,000 Doral Open.

Mahaffey, mired in a deep slump compounded by physical and personal problems all of last year and questioning whether he'd ever again play, put together a 2-round total of 136, 8 shots under par on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

"LAST YEAR I'd just like to write off, to forget about," said Mahaffey, who lost a playoff for the 1975 U.S. Open, led through 68 holes of the National Championship the next year and then went into the slump.

"I wondered if I'd ever play the tour again. I'm just thrilled to be back out here," he said.

The awesome Nicklaus, a winner his last time out, surged into a share of the top spot with a 67 that could have been much better.

He had a shot at the lead alone but missed a 3-foot birdie putt on his final hole. It marked the fourth time of the sunny day that Nicklaus had failed on a putt of 4 feet or less.

"It could have been an extremely low score," said the man who birdied his last five holes two weeks ago for the title in the Inverrary Classic.

THEY SHARE a one-snot lead over rookie Ed Fiori, Tom Weiskopf and Gibby Gilbert going into Sunday's 36-hole windup. Fiori, the surprise leader of the first round, matched par 72. Weiskopf and Gilbert each shot 70.

"Probably just a case of nerves," said Fiori, who bogeyed three holes in a row coming home.

The double-round finish was set up when a pounding rain flooded the course Thursday afternoon and forced a suspension of play with only half the field in. The other half — which got the worst of the weather — had to come back Friday in a howling, 30 mile an hour wind. From that half of the field, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Mike Reid, Eddie Pearce and Bob Mann were the best at 139, 3 shots back. Reid had a second round 68; Mann, Pearce and Rodriguez 69s.

U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, with a 71; Ray Floyd, 69, and Lee Trevino, 68, were in a large group at 141.

Tom Watson, winner of two titles and more than $103,000 already this season, was in the half of the field that caught the worst of the wind on Friday.

Spinks' crown is in jeopardy

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Spinks, the heavyweight champion of the world, could have title recognition withdrawn by the World Boxing Council by next Friday if he does not meet certain conditions, Jose Sulaiman, WBC president, said Saturday.

Sulaiman said in a telephone interview from Mexico City that Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., has agreed to present an affidavit to the WBC that Spinks has not yet signed to fight anyone. Arum has the promotional rights to Spinks' next three fights.

SULAIMAN noted Spinks and Muhammad Ali both agreed before their Feb. 15 fight that the winner would sign by April 7 to fight the No.1-ranked Ken Norton by July 7 or have title recognition withdrawn.

Sulaiman said Arum agreed that if Spinks signed to fight anyone other than Norton he would report this within 24 hours to the WBC and that title recognition would then be withdrawn from Spinks.

Nebraska to play at Austin

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — University of Nebraska officials are disappointed about the decision to play the second round National Invitational Tournament game in Austin, Texas, Wednesday.

But Athletic Director Bob Devaney said Nebraska could be charged with a forfeit if it did not agree to play there.

"We have never forfeited anything and we sure as hell are not going to start now," Devaney said.

Basketball Coach Joe Cipriano said he was surprised Texas would not compromise. But he said there was nothing in writing.

Don Bryant, assistant athletic director, said the NIT had not properly conveyed the information on the game to Nebraska officials.

Austin's lead shrinks to 2 in Sunstar golf

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Debbie Austin settled for an evenpar 72 Saturday and her advantage was trimmed to 2 shots after three rounds of the $100,000 Sunstar LPGA Classic at Rancho Park Golf Course.

Austin had a 54-hole score of 210, 6 strokes under par, entering Sunday's final round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, which offers a top prize of $15,000.

Debbie Massey, the LPGA's Rookie of the Year in 1977, gained 2 strokes Saturday on Miss Austin and was alone in second place with a 212. The 27-year-old Massey birdied the last two holes with 10-foot putts to finish with a 2-under-par score of 70.

Next at 214 was another newer professional, Nancy Lopez, who also fired a 70. The 21-year-old Lopez, who became a pro last July, had an up-and-down round that included five birdies and three bogeys.

Five strokes off the pace and alone at 215 was Japanese pro Chako Haguchi, who had a 73 Saturday. Hollis Stacy and Pat Bradley were next at even-par 216 following rounds of 71 each.

Longhorns end spring drills

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The defense had the upper hand Saturday morning as the Texas Longhorns wound up three weeks of spring football practice with a controlled scrimmage.

The Longhorns wrap up the off-season work with the traditional Orange and White intrasquad game Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"We had some good interceptions today and we've been looking for those for a long time," said Coach Fred Akers, referring to the lack of thefts during last fall's drive to the Southwest Conference title.

Akers cited the play of backs Ricky Churchman and Glenn Blackwood and tackle Steve McMichael on defense. The offensive accolades Johnny "Ham" Jones and quarterback Ted Constanzo.

Texas' Cinderella signalcaller, Randy McEachern, has been sidelined for an undetermined length of time with a knee injury, which Akers has said could keep him out of uniform next season.

SOC defeats Victoria, 70-62

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dallas South Oak Cliff defended its Class 4A championship in girls' basketball Saturday by pulling away from Victoria in the final frantic minutes of the last quarter, 70-62.

Two crucial plays swung the game to South Oak Cliff, which extended its season record to 41-3 with the victory.

Chris Kennedy banked in three layups in just over a minute of the fourth quarter as Slaton defeated emotionally charged Granbury, 55-45, for the 2A championship.

Mattioli retains ring title

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Rocky Mattioli of Australia retained his World Boxing Council welterweight with a seventh round knockout over Elisha Obed of the Bahamas Saturday night.

Jones moves to share of 1st

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Brian Jones of Australia fired a 4-under-par 69 Saturday and moved into a share of the thirdround lead with Kuo Chi Hsiung od Taiwan and Stewart Ginn of Australia in the Indian Open, the fourth leg of the Asian Golf Championship.

Jones, Kuo and Ginn are all at 7-under-par 212 after 54 holes at the Royal Calcutta Golf Club. Kuo had 70 Saturday and Ginn a 73. The second-round leader, Paul Purtzer of the United States, fell back with a 5-over-par 78 for 215.

Eleuterio Nival of The Philippines had a third-round 73 and Ho Ming Chung a 72 for a 214, two strokes behind the three leaders. Other Americans in the field are Ken Riley, 70— 217; Kurt Cox, 73—219; John Brenda, 73-220, and Mike Krantz, 76—220.

Gilmer stays with Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Assistant coaches Harry Gilmer and Jim Hanifan have been retained at their positions for the 1978 National Football League campaign, the St. Louis Cardinals said Saturday.

Gilmer, 51, is beginning his fourth year of a second term with the Cardinals as a quarterback and wide receiver coach under the regime of Bud Wilkinson, new head coach.

Foyt earns pole position

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A.J. Foyt, showing few of the effects of a crackup Feb. 19 at the Daytona 500, toured Texas World Speedway's twomile oval track in record time Saturday to earn the pole position for Sunday's USAC-sanctioned Aggieland 250.

It will be the first race of the season on the United States Auto Club schedule since last week's opener at Ontario, Calif. was rained out.

Ming owns 7-stroke edge

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Taiwanese amateur Chen Tze Ming posted a 4-under par 68 Saturday for a 54-hole total of 202 and a 7-stroke lead over New Zealand pro Simon Owen in the $6,000 Malaysian Masters golf tournament.

Chan shot six birdies and two bogeys on the par-72 Subang National Golf Club course. Owen, expected to win the pro title and first prize money, also fired a 68.

One stroke further back at 210 was Walter Godfrey, another New Zealander, who had a third-round 75. The top American in the field, Hal Underwood, fired a 71 for a threeround 218.

Edison, SJ post cinder wins

SAN ANGELO — Midland Edison rolled up 109 ½ points to win the ninth grade division of the San Angelo Junior High track meet here Saturday. San Angelo Edison was second with 72 points while Midland Austin was third with 53 ½ ⅖.

Midland San Jacinto won the seventh grade title with 94 points, an 11-point margin over San Angelo Glenn. San Angelo Edison won the eighth grade with Midland San Jacinto second and Midland Alamo third.

Sex symbol Stephenson says she's ordinary girl

By JOHN NADEL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Golfer Jan Stephenson has become a sex symbol, something she says surprises her.

"I feel so inadequate in that regard," said the 26-year-old native of Australia, called the most desirable woman in the world recently by Bobby Riggs. "I feel like I'm just a typical young woman."

Stephenson, who has been more renowned as a beautiful woman than an outstanding golfer since joining the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in 1974, wants to become an actress someday. Unless she is an outstanding actress right now, sincere modesty is one of her traits.

AND SHE hadn't met Bobby Riggs until Wednesday, when they were paired in the pro-am prior to the $100,000 LPGA Sunstar Classic.

"I was in Australia when it came out," she said of Riggs' list of the most desirable women in the world, on which she was the only athlete.

"It almost seems like too much emphasis is put on glamor and not enough on golf," continued Stephenson. "I'm capitalizing, but it seems kind of a shame."

Stephenson said she feels like all the attention she's received has affected her performance on the golf course. Since joining the tour four years ago, her best year was 1976, when she won two tournaments and earned almost $65,000 to rank eighth on the LPGA winnings list.

"ALL OF it hurts my game," she said. "It's all part of making a living and I enjoy much of what goes with it, but if you go by ability, I'm not playing up to my potential.

"I had so much spare time when I first came on the tour," she added. "Now it seems like I have no time to myself, but I'm not complaining. I do a lot of what I do for the LPGA. I feel like that's my way of giving back because I really believe in the LPGA."

"I look a lot better in photographs than I do in real life," she said, smiling.

"I'm very hyper sometimes, and when I have a press conference, I get so high that maybe I fit their image," said the 5-foot-5, 115-pound blue-eyed blonde. "I'm really down to earth.

"AND I don't do all those prissy things that would seem to go along with a glamor image," she continued. "I really like to get in there and get my hands dirty. I have two motorbikes, I love to ski, and to ride horses.

"Last year I didn't wear shorts at all. It's almost as if I were trying to go in the opposite direction from being glamorous."

Soph keys LaSalle's hopes

Brooks, a 6-foot-7 sophomore, will be the highest-scoring player by average, 24.5 points per game, in today's NCAA East sub-regional doubleheader that pits the Explorers, 19-11, against Eastern 8 champion Villanova, 21-8, in the first game.

Pennsylvania, the Ivy League titleholder with a 19-7 record, hosts St. Bonaventure, 21-7, the Eastern College Athletic Conference upstate-southern champ, in the second game.

Brooks scored only seven points in the Explorers' 73-72 victory over Temple last weekend that gave LaSalle the East Coast Conference championship. And Westhead is hoping Brooks, who sat out two games — including a 78-77 loss to Canisius — because of tardiness, fares better against the Wildcats.

"I'm going to encourage him to sleep late and be on time," Westhead said with a grin.

LaSalle dropped an 82-79 decision to the Wildcats in a Feb. 18 clash between the city rivals and Westhead said he feels Sunday's game will pick where that one left off.

Coaching elite clash at Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The four men who bring their teams into the NCAA Midwest Regional here today know so much about winning college basketball games that it seems unlikely two of them must lose.

The winningest active college basketball coach, Denny Crum of Louisville, will throw his 22-6 team against St. John's among college basketball's all-time winningest schools.

Later, the high-powered Houston Cougars, fifth in scoring in the country, will take on playoff-hardened Notre Dame.

The winners of the two games at Oral Roberts University will advance to the Midwest Regional championships March 16-18 in Lawrence, Kan.

CRUM'S 161-43 career record at Louisville gives him a 78.9 percent winning record. But Lou Carnesecca, coaching at St. John's for nine years, is fifth in the country with a 74.3 percentage.

Digger Phelps, who has coached the Irish into four straight NCAA regional playoffs, is eighth among active coaches with a 70.5 percent win record. And Guy Lewis, longtime Houston mentor, is 12th among active coaches with a career record of 423-196. His 1978 team is 25-7.

All that is history, however, and each coach feels that he might just have a national championship in his immediate future.

"I don't know how it's going to end up," says Lewis, "But I'll tell you, this team has a spot in my heart forever. Regardless of what happens from now on, it's one of my all-time favorite teams."

Crum, whose 1975 Louisville team lost to UCLA after winning the Midwest Regional, says, "That was my favorite team. This year's team certainly has not been that consistent. But on our best nights I think we have been as good."

PHELPS, WHOSE team has an opportunity to join UCLA as the only team to go into the regional championships five times in a row, says his versatile team showed its character with a late-season come-from-behind victory over Marquette. He said it ranked with "our victory over UCLA in 1974 when we stopped their 88-game winning streak."

Carnesecca's tradition-rich Redmen will count on team leader George Johnson, who is the school's all-time leading rebounder and is top scorer at 19.2 points per game on the 21-6 team.

URI must stop Gminski

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — When Rhode Island takes to the court here today to play Duke in the first round of the NCAA East Regional, Coach Jack Kraft will have his men looking for Blue Devil center Mike Gminski and swing man Jim Spanarkel.

"We have to try to keep the ball away from Gminiski," Kraft said. "If he gets the ball low, he's going to foul us right out of the game. Spanarkel, we've got to make it difficult for him to get his shots; got to make sure he isn't uncontested."

The Blue Devils, on the other hand, will have to contend with 6-7 forward Sly Williams, who is averaging 19.3 points and 8.8 rebounds a game. Another threat is Rams playmaker Jim "Jiggy" Williamson, a 6-foot guard averging 14.1 points a game.

Famed oddsmaker Jimmy The Greek really digs blackjack because "it's a game of skill and judgment." And that's why he enjoys playing blackjack with UNISONIC (R), the all-electronic new family game fro Unisonic Products.
It's loaded with all the features you could want. Players can split, draw or stand, or make an "insurance" bet if the dealer shows an ace. Automatic stake balance always tells you where you stand.
A 52-card deck dealt at random, never the same qay twice. Automatic "bust" over 21. Dealer and player card values are shown, and the deal is changed when 38 cards are played. Just like Las Vegas or Freeport or Monte Carlo. And you can bet any stake.
It can do more than play blackjack like a pro. Flick a switch and it's instantly an eight-digit, four-function calculator that can help you balance your budget. Or help your kids do homework.
UNISONIC (R) 21 is the great way for you and your family to learn one of the world's great games. And to enjoy it s fun and excitement while learning.

UA fights 'Can't win big one' reputation

Before it can enter the record books as the greatest Southwest Conference team ever, Coach Eddie Sutton's Arkansas Razorbacks must first shuck their reputation of not being able to win the big ones, a common failing among teams that have come suddenly upon success. upon success.

Once you've been there, it's a different story. If a UCLA loses, it's just one of life's little setbacks and just as there was a last year, there's always a next year.

After sweeping through the SWC schedule unbeaten last year, the Hogs were ushered to an early exit in the NCAA playoffs by Wake Forest, an also-ran in its conference, but only because its conference was the ACC.

STILL, THE Razorbacks saw a nine-point lead evaporate when the Demon Deacons applied the pressure.

This year, Arkansas had the inside track to a bye into the finals of the SWC tournament only to stub its toe against Houston. Then, in the semifinals of the tournament, Houston again beat the Razorbacks and went on to win the tournament championship over Texas, the regular season co-champion with UA.

As it turned out, the second loss to Houston may have been a blessing in disguise. How else would the Hogs gotten Weber State alone in the same room?

Weber quite obviously didn't belong in the same arena with the Razorbacks and played like a team intent on surviving first and winning next.

WHAT WAS Weber doing there? UCLA may have wondered the same thing last year when it faced Idaho State, the Big Sky Conference standard-bearer, while worrying about its next game with Nevada-Las Vegas. As it turned out the Bruins had no worries.

From here on, the going gets rougher and the question again will arise as to Arkansas' ability to win the big one, which in the immediate future stacks up as UCLA, the other winner at Eugene, Ore.

Of course, in Arkansas' case the lack of a strong bench is the Achilles Heel that Sutton confessed to while admitting this year's Arkansas team was potentially better than last year's in a preseason press conference.

It was a deficiency that could have been troublesome Saturday had the opposition been anyone but Weber. The Hogs had key starters in foul trouble and in a close game, it could have been a problem.

STILL, SO far, so good. Sutton contends that in order for the SWC to gain respect for future NCAA pairings, it's going to take some victories in tournament play. And at this stage, a victory over Weber looks just as good in the won lost column as a victory over Marquette or North Carolina.

Houston can strike another blow for SWC prestige today, but against Notre Dame, it may be a little tougher to achieve. But a Cougar victory over the Irish certainly wouldn't be as much of an eyebrow lifter as Miami's win over Marquette, which goes to show that anything can and is liable to happen in this year's no-favorite jousting.

Risque Russians bring 'X' to figure-skating

OTTAWA (AP) — Ice dancing, which was to conclude the World Figure Skating Championships Saturday night, has raised some eyebrows with its revealing costumes and erotic maneuvers.

Some of the dancing, bordering on exhibitionism, has brought cries of indignation from the judges, one of whom said the International Skating Union would certainly issue a directive requiring more modest dress and stronger policing of the sexually-oriented dance routines.

A SEMINAR in ice dancing will be held here Monday, and the judge, who requested anonymity, said the erotic ice dancing moves that have crept into the routines would be a major topic of discussion.

Former ballerina Irina Moiseeva, who teamed with Andrei Minenkov to win world titles in 1975 and 1977, wore the competition's most revealing outfit, a black number with a plunging neckline that was bare at the middle. "Min and Mo," as this Russian couple is called in skating circles, were second to their more sexually subdued teammates, Natalia Linichuk and Gennadij Karponosov, going into Saturday night's final free dancing program. A victory by Linichuk and Karponosov over Min and Mo would be considered a major upset and would mark the third world title in the four events contested to change hands.

ON THURSDAY night, Charlie Tickner of Littleton, Colo., won the men's title with defending champion Vladimir Kovalev of the Soviet Union finishing fourth. On Friday night, Anett Poetzsch of East Germany won the women's crown, dethroning Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif. The only repeat gold medalists were Irina Rodnina and Alecsandr Zaitsev of the Soviet Unions who have now won six straight world titles together. Rodnina has won the last 10.

The raunchiest routine Friday was performed by the third Russian couple, Marina Zueva and Andrei Vitman, a performance that was considered X-rated by many skating officials and marked down severely by the more conservative judges. At one point in their routine, Zueva and Vitman skate together and suddenly stop, dropping their hands. She arches her back and glides backwards. He then drops to one knee, and like a charging bull, buries his face in her chest. At precisely this point the music swells to a crescendo and is punctuated by a thunderous round of canned applause.

THE NINE judges who are, for the most part, several generations older than the skaters, did not warm up to this new style of dancing. The British judge, Roy Mason, gave Zueva and Vitman a mark of 4.8 for technique and 4.6 for interpretation, excessively low grades for this caliber of competition where a mark of 5.2 is considered poor. The American judge, Nancy Meiss, gave the couple its highest marks, a 5.4 and a 5.5.

Texas splits with Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Steve Kovar singled in the winning run in the seventh inning to give Houston a 7-6 victory over Texas in the second game of a Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader after the Longhorns ripped the Cougars 14-3 in the first game.

The split left Houston with a 10-7 season mark and 4-2 in conference play. Texas is 15-5 for the year and 2-4 in league action.

Houston was trailing 6-5 going into the seventh inning of the nightcap.

Gottfried gives U.S. 5-0 lead

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Brian Gottfried defeated John Newcombe in straight sets Saturday to give the United States its third straight World Cup tennis championship over Australia. A doubles victory later pushed the Americans to a 5-0 lead and closer to a shutout.

Gottfried lost his serve only once as he won his second singles match of this year's World Cup by turning the tables on one of his former teachers. He beat Newcombe 6-4, 6-4 to give the United States the title in the best-of-seven event.

Reeves and Reiger in the outfield and Reiger was also MVP.

Jorge Diaz, Burges' fine lefthander was also named to the team along with Joe Mowles of Midland High at an outfielder position.

SERGIO BACA, second baseman from Burges, was also chosen on the team and Lee's Calhoun was named the top designated hitter in the tourney.

Reeves turned in the most impressive mound performance of the tourney with a two-hitter against Burges along with 15 strikouts Friday night.

TOURNEY NOTES: Hopkins, who played well for the Rebels, was in an automobile accident Saturday evening on the way back to watch the Duncanville-Monterey game. The big senior totaled his car, but only suffered a cut eye...Cub Stadium is in the process of a brand, new coat of paint. Also, new permanent box seats will be installed for the up-and-coming Midland Cubs season. They will be red and blue and add some color to the already beautiful ball park...Burges second baseman, Sergio Baca is quite a ball player. The senior has not made an error in two years and Diaz lost his first game in three years Friday when he lost to Monterey, 5-0. He scattered six hits...Mike Richard, who had knee surgery last week after suffering an injury against Hobbs, N.M., watched the tourney with a cast and celebrated his 18th birthday Friday in watching his Lee teammates play...This year's tourney was great with good weather and some Major League plays.

Tully sets vault mark; Miners win

DETROIT (AP) — Mike Tully, one of the first UCLA athletes to compete in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships in the meet's 14-year history, soared to a world indoor record 18 feet, 5¼ inches in the pole vault Saturday. Texas El Paso won the team title for a record fourth time.

The refreshing Tully, who on Jan. 7 broke the indoor mark with a vault of 18-4 in the Muhammad Ali Games at Long Beach, Calif., first smashed the NCAA record Saturday by one-quarter inch by clearing 18-0½.

After erasing the mark of 18-0¼ established by Earl Bell of Arkansas State in 1976, the imperturbable Tully flew over the bar at the world record height before an excited Cobo Arena crowd of 9,300.

HE REMAINED flat on his back on the pole vault mat for a few seconds before bouncing up, raising his hands in exultation and jogging back down the pole vault runway as the fans continued to applaud.

Tully and fellow pole vaulter Charlie Brown only competed in this meet because a UCLA outdoor meet was postponed from Saturday until today. The college decided to move the meet back one day to enable the school's students to watch the Bruins basketball team in action in a nationally televised game against Kansas.

If not for that, Tully would not have made the trip from Los Angeles to Detroit.

Tully, however, did not stop after his world indoor record leap. He then attempted to break the world mark of 18-8¼ held by Dave Roberts. But he failed in three attempts at 18-6¾.

WHILE THE globe-trotting Tully, winner of the World Cup at Duesseldorf, West Germany last year, and numerous other international meets, was obliterating the world indoor mark, little Franklin Jacobs, the world indoor record holder in the high jump, set a meet record by clearing 7-5.

The diminutive Jacobs, a sophomore at Fairleigh Dickinson University, then went after the world mark of 7-7¾, set by Russia's Vladimir Yaschenko last year by attempting 7-8¼. After two unsuccessful attempts, he stopped.

Texas El Paso, the team winner in 1974, 1975 and 1976, and a second-place finisher — one half point behind Washington State last year — accumulated 44 points in taking the team championship. The Miners won it despite a disqualification after a first-place finish in the two-mile relay.

The Miners, the leaders with 33 points after Friday's opening seven finals of the 18-event program, added 11 points Saturday on a surprising first-place finish by James Munyala in the mile in 3:59.81 and a sixth by Tim Vahlstrom in the pole vault.

Munyala covered the last quarter mile in 58.8 seconds in outkicking Niall O'Shaughnessy of Arkansas and Ray Flynn of East Tennessee.

Auburn finished second in the team race with 38 points, followed by Villanova with 35, Washington State with 27, Alabama with 23 and Missouri, Maryland, Michigan and Providence with 20 each.

Jeff Robinett, Billy Applin, Bobby Stovall and Bill Young combined for a second place 3:51.8 in the special sprint medley relay, but that did not count in the point totals.

The Midland High girls put on a show with 37 points, their best showing in this meet. But top honors have to go to Wanda Caldwell, who set a new girls record in the 880 with a 2:31.1. In Fact, that record breaking fete broke Gloria Caldwell's mark, Wanda's sister.

LEE'S TERRY Reyes, who won last week in Pecos, could manage only fifth place here with a 2:35.2. Lee's only other points came from Shelli Speck with a fourth place finish in the 80-yard hurdles with a 12.7.

The Pack girls also got three third place finishes as Jana Trolinder produced a 1:03.7 in the 440 dash while Donna Repman had a 5:50.1 in the mile run. Midland High's mile relay team posted a 4:20.0 behind the running of Trolinder, Nan White, Margaret Christian and Lashell Schrock. Loryanne Coon had a fifth in the mile with with a 6:10.8.

Lee JV wins, 12-3

The Lee Junior varsity baseball tean took it on the chin from Odessa High Saturday afternoon, losing a 12-3 decision to the Bronchos at the Lee diamond.

The winning pitcher was Billy Rumbaugh, who struck out 10 Rebels enroute to his four-hit victory. The loser was Lee Johnson.

Danny Rabb had the only extra base hit for Coach Tim Whalen's Lee club, a triple.

The Rebs, 3-2 on the year, will be home again on Tuesday, entertaining cross-town rival Midland.

'Golf widow?', Yippy just doesn't qualify

By JIM MURRAY
The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

"Golf Widow" is a term we are all familiar with. It's used to designate a woman whose husband's real bride is a golf course, a spouse who's in absentia whether he's playing a round at the club or the Masters in Augusta.

We are used to seeing them on the tour — knitting on the clubhouse porch in Georgia, or walking the treacherous roughs and fairways of the Open, watching hubby knock the new refrigerator in the water on 18, or slicing the new station wagon or fur stole out of bounds on 14, or sometimes, three-putting the new den furniture.

WHAT IS not so common is the modern counterpart of the melancholy figure, the version of the golf widow who shaves every day, talks baritone, and can't get in the ladies' locker room, but who lives in fear over every golf shot struck by his spouse.

Walter (Yip) Rankin knows exactly what Winnie Palmer, Barbara Nicklaus, Polly Crenshaw or Valerie Hogan ever felt like. Yip Rankin is Mr. Judy Rankin. Judy Rankin is the Jack Nicklaus — or, at least, the Tom Watson — of women's golf.

There is a tendency on the part of the public to think of the married partner of a famous woman as a kind of lounge lizard, a traditional Hollywood husband who carries the poodle out, mixes the drinks and does the grocery shopping. And, you would think, in golf especially, it would be the woman who wears the pants in the family.

But Yip Rankin goes 6-2, 205, and comes from the most macho part of Texas, West Texas, and played linebacker for Texas Tech. Yip Rankin doesn't walk anybody's dog.

WHEN HE married the golfer, he was more famous in Midland, Texas where they met, than she was. She was then Judy Torluemke, bedeviled by a snap hook and not at all to be confused with Mickey Wright, Kathy Whitworth or the late Joyce Wethered. She had a swing only a lover could love. Yip Rankin fell in love with the girl, not the golf.

She was going to quit the tour anyway and, when she got pregnant right away, that cinched it. Yip had, and still has, a successful insurance business in Texas. Judy was petite, only 103 pounds, she wore hair ribbons all the time and she was as shy as a Robin.

Right after the Rankin's son, "Tuey," was born, the women's tour came through Midland for the Tall City Open, the event at which Yip had met his bride the year before. "She had just had a baby, but she went out and shot a 66 the last day and took third," he recalls.

"Then she went over to Dallas and finished third again. Then she won her first-ever tournament at Corpus Christi, and I began to think it might be unfair to make her stay in a kitchen. She was striking the ball so well, Bob Toski told me I was doing the girl a great injustice if I didn't let he play golf. She was 22 at the time and Toski told me, 'By the time she's 27, she'll be the best golfer in the United States.'"

Yip's linebacker friends disapproved when Judy went back on the tour. So did his father, a rancher, "Bull" Rankin, who had also backed up a line for Texas Tech and for the Chicago Cardinals in the only years that they ever won the NFL championship, 1947-48.

"IT WAS hard," says Yip. "People get the idea you're a gigolo or you're just around to open doors and clean clubs. That she had married a caddy. Then, I said, 'Hey' What am I worried about? I make a good living, she doesn't have to be out there. She's a great wife, a tremendous mother — but she's also a great golfer. It's her right to be out there.'"

It is not likely that Barbara Nicklaus would ever sidle up to Jack as he prepared to tee off on No. 8 at the major tournament and say, "Remember, honey, the fairway is wet down the right side. You'll get roll if you hit it left." Nor is she likely to say after a bad shot, "What did you go over there for, Dummy?"

But Barbara Nicklaus is not an ex-linebacker. And the ex-linebacker is apt to say all these things. Of course, this is not to say that Judy does not turn on her husband on occasion on the course and tell him to shut up or get lost — or, in effect, to get out of her kitchen.

I mean, doesn't your wife?

Indian River sweeps NJCAA swim titles

GRAND RAPIDS — For the second year in a row, Indian River (Fla.) College waltzed off with the men's and women's team titles in the National Junior College Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championships which ended here Saturday night.

The Indian River men's team accumulated 586 points in the four-day meet to easily outdistance runnerup Daytona Beach (Fla) College, which finished with 398 points. Midland College, with a strong final day showing, held on to third place in the team race with 184 points.

In the women's team picture, Indian River racked up 568 points and Daytona again was a distant second with 271. Brovard (Fla.) College was third with 187 and Midland was fourth with 163.

The best performance by a Midland swimmer Saturday was turned in by Jay Quintana who finished second in the men's 1650-yard freestyle event with a time of 16:48.1. Teammates David McDowell and Gary Rose were fifth and tenth respectively in the same evemt.

The Chap men's and women's 400-yard free relay teams did well. The men's team finished third with a 3:15.5 time, and the women's team was fourth with a 4:56.3.

Rice scores

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rice Owls won nine of ten running events with three men in the top five in six of the running events to race to an easy victory Saturday in the Rice Invitational Track Meet.

The Owls scored 113 points, leaving the University of Houston and The University of Texas tied for second and far behind with 44 points each. Lamar had 39 points and Houston Baptist trailed the field with 10 points.

Spoilers lurking in wings

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Forget that Missouri lost more games than it won during the season. Forget that Creighton dropped a triple overtime decision to DePaul on the Bluejays' home floor.

That's all in the past. What's in the future for both schools is an opportunity to win a national basketball championship. All that is needed is five straight victories.

Missouri, the team with the worst record in the 32-school NCAA tournament, opens first-round play in the Midwest Regional at Wichita today by facing 15th-ranked Utah.

Missouri Coach Norm Stewart must welcome the opportunity to silence skeptics who believe a team that finished 14-15 overall and sixth in the Big Eight Conference has no place in the NCAA tournament.

"Something like this doesn't happen very often, but wheh it does it's great for the school, the team, the conference and the fans," Stewart said of Missouri's Cinderella finish in the Big Eight's post-season tournament that earned the Tigers their berth.

Utah Coach Jerry Pimm, for one, is not rapping Missouri's presence in the tourney, although he notes that under normal conditions his 22-5 team would be "overjoyed" by such a draw.

"They are playing very good basketball," Pimm said. "In order to beat Iowa State, Nebraska and Kansas State on successive nights, they have to have been playing extremely well."

Lee captures Amarillo meet

AMARILLO—The Midland Lee thinclads turned in their most impressive showing of the year here Saturday while compiling 154½ points to easily win the Amarillo Invitational Relays.

Amarillo Tascosa was a distant second with 108 points, and Lee brought home victories in six events. The Rebs had never put together more than two event victories in their two previous meets.

Dwight Washington turned in an impressive 9.9 seconds to win for the first time in that event while Doug Guthrie, who had a great meet, had his best for second and a 10.1.

LEE'S 440 sophomore sensations also pulled off a one-two sweep as Phil Carlton turned in a 51.5 and Gary Butler a 52.4, both personal bests. Carlton and Butler also joined Arthur Pertile and Jami Berry in a winning mile relay effort with a 3:27.8, Lee's best this year.

Lee also got a one-two-three sweep in the shot put as expected, but the throws were not season bests for any of them. Jeff McCowan won the event with a fine 54-10 while Herb Pearce upset teammate Rodney Taylor with a 50-8. Taylor had a 50-0.

Jerry Moore really improved in the long jump with a leap of 21-7½ for a first and miler Steve Hooper got his first victory of the season with a 4:32.7

RICKY PARSONS continued to improve in the mile for the third straight time with a second place 4:35.0. Lee Haglestein placed third in the 330 hurdles with a 41.5, and he has never had such a lofty standing.

Guthrie, in addition to his second in the 100, also had a second in the 220 with a 22.6, beating Washington, who came up with the same time. Berry placed fourth in the 220 with a 228. Guthrie was third in the discus with a career best of 148-9. Pertile placed third in the 880 with a 2:02.8 while Tommy Younger got his first points with a sixth place 2:06.0, which is a good time for sixth place.

CONSTRUCTION WORK HAS started on another new building in the Midland business district. It is being erected by Area Builders for John L. Cox, Midland independent oilman. Frank Welch and Associates is the architect for the building which is being constructed at the corner of Wall and Big Spring streets. The structure will be four stories high and completion is due about March 1, 1979.

Record one-week permit filing set in Tall City

A record $11,780,820 in building permits was issued this past week, bringing the year's total thus far to slightly over $21 million.

Topping the permits was an $8.7 million permit to Midland Memorial Hospital for alterations and additions.

According to a hospital spokesman, the permit was issued to cover complete remodeling and renovation of the existing building, parts of which where built in 1950.

Additions to the hospital include the critical care, indigent care and coronary care pavilion.

Hospital Administrator Wayne Ulrich said Firday remodeling was scheduled to begin April 1 in the north wing.

"While it will be an inconvenience to patients and visitors, this is a necessary step in order to provide first class hospital care for the people of Midland and the Permian Basin.

"We expect by the middle of January 1980 to be in the new building with everything completed," Ulrich said.

Also issued this past week was a $549,700 permit to Midland High School for construction of a new vocational building at 906 W. Kansas.

Permits issued for new commercial establishments include $474,000 for a Handy Dan Improvement Center at 1004 Andrews Highway, $55,000 each for Taco Bell at 210 N. Midkiff and 400 N. Kansas, $5,000 for a shop at 303 N. Fort Worth and $250,000 for the foundation of a new office building, the John L. Cox Building, at 400 W. Wall.

New resident permits issued included Allen Construction 3001 Meadowbrook, $65,000; Bufler Homes, 3513 Park Lane, $25,000; H. C. McCulloch, 4523 Crenshaw, $35,000; H. C. Effects of year-long decline in dollar comes home roost

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The effects of the year-long decline of the dollar in the world's foreign exchange markets are coming home to roost.

Americans are faced with higher prices for imported German beer and wine, stereos from Japan and Scotch whisky from Great Britain.

In West Germany, for example, a quart of milk costs the equivalent of $2. Some U.S. servicemen stationed in Germany are sending their families home because the cost of living is so high.

The dollar, which brought roughly four marks in the late 1960s, recently was bringing only about two — a record low in Frankfort.

It also hit a record low against the Japanese yen in the past week although it showed signs of recovering a bit by late in the week.

In both Japan and Germany, there were reports that government banks were considering a number of moves designed to slow the relative rise of their currencies and bolster the dollar.

The U.S. Federal Reserve, this nation's central bank, announced this last week that it was once again involved in negotiations with Germany to strengthen the dollar in currency trading.

In the last six months of 1977, the dollar lost 10 percent against the Japanese yen, 8 percent against the West German mark and other European currencies tied to it, 21 percent against the West German mark and other European currencies tied to it, 21 percent against the Swiss franc and 12 percent against the British pound, the Federal Reserve said.

The dollar's decline has concerned U.S. officials as well as foreign governments who fear their export business will be hurt because they must either raise prices or cut profit levels because the dollar is worth less than used to be.

While the transfer of price increases is not always direct or immediate, for a variety of reasons, higher prices are already being charged for a variety of imported goods.

Electronic products imported from Japan increased just under 10 percent in January, said a buyer for Tandy Corp., the nation's largest retail electronics chain. More increases are expected.

Prices of imported beer and wine, primarily from West Germany, and Scotch from Great Britain have also seen recent increases. One importer estimated that prices went up 5 to 7 percent for imported wines and liquors in January. Future prices depend on the dollar.

In theory, the decline of the dollar is not all bad. While the cost of imports to the United States is forced up, the cost of goods exported to foreign countries should be relatively cheaper and thus help the sales of U.S. products overseas.

Since the U.S. trade deficit, which reached a record $26.7 billion last year, has been a major factor in the falling value of the dollar, the market continues somewhat of a selfcorrecting mechanism.

But economists point out that imported oil, which was by far the biggest cause of the U.S. trade deficit, makes simple or quick solutions impossible.

Without an effective plan to cut oil imports drastically, the U.S. faces a continuation of major trade deficits even if its own exports do improve dramatically.

Speaker announced

The president of the American College of Real Estate, Marvin T. Deane, will be the speaker for the Midland Board of Realtors luncheon at 11:45 p. m. Tuesday at the Rachland Hill Country Club.

Deane, who also teaches real estate law in San Antonio and has wide experience in realty matters, will discuss seven new legal pitfalls and new earnest money contracts.

Show dates announced

LUBBOCK — The South Plains Farm Show, the largest exhibition of farm and ranch equipment ever held in the South Plains, will open March 30 for a three-day run in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Allen said the show is free and open to everyone, with free parking at the Civic Center.

The exhibits will be open from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. March 30; from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. March 31, and from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. April 1.

Dividend declared

The First National Bank of Midland's board of directors have approved a quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share to stockholders of record March 20.

The dividend will be paid on or before March 31, Wilbur A. Yeager Jr., president, said.

Marylee Tyler

Mrs. Tyler honored

Marylee Tyler was honored at a Saturday awards breakfast as Kelly Girl Employee of The Year.

The event was held in the Trellis Room of the Midland Hilton.

Mrs. Tyler was presented with a watch for the most outstanding performance of 1977.

Mrs. Tyler has worked three years as a Kelly employee. Prior to Kelly Girl, she worked in retail credit, the Lubbock school system, in the insurance and abstract business.

Other employees honored along with Mrs. Tyler were the Top Performers of 1977: Joan Dunn, LaRay Huddleston, Patricia Fisher, Frances Oekerman, Pamela Reece, Bertha Jones, Myrtle Johnson, Olivia Padgett and Doris Belden.

Special recognition went to Karen Leaverton as the Top College Student Kelly Employee, and Elizabeth Turner as Top Second Career Employee.

Broadcasts extended

Parker M. Humes, vice president of Midland Broadcasting, said the expanded schedule for both stations will offer increased service to listeners in the form of 24-hour-a-day news, weather information and entertainment.

Station KCRS is Midland's oldest radio station, established in 1935, while KWMJ is the city's newest FM station, in operation since 1976.

'Readable' insurance policy still missing

By BILL KID

AUSTIN — Efforts on property insurance rates and development of a "readable" homeowner's policy continue at the State Board of Insurance — but work on both items isn't likely to be completed before this summer.

Public hearing on property rate changes was held in February — with the Texas Insurance Advisory Association proposing an increase of 13 per cent statewide, while the SBI staff has calculated that an increase of 11.4 percent should be approved.

Despite the fact that those figures are closer than has been in the case in several other years, SBI representatives indicate it now appears unlikely that rate changes can be implemented by July 1, as had been first expected.

Principal reason for that delay, agency spokesmen say, is that the Texas general basis schedule is being completely reprinted in a new format — and that reprinting will not be completed before April.

When it is completed, Property Actuary Jack Jones will recommend an effective date for rate and rules changes — which could be 90 to 120 days after the three-member board acts on Jones' recommemdation.

Some insurance industry representatives have indicated they would like to see the new property rates made effective as soon as possible — particularly in view of the fact that no decision was ever reached on increases requested last year — while others are concerned that too many changes at once would simply result in confusion for companies and agents.

A public hearing, or perhaps hearings, on "readable" homeowner's policies — a pet project of former chairman Joe Christie — apparently will be called in April or May.

That session will focus on the efforts of an advisory committee which spent most of last year working on ways to make policies simpler, and more comprehendable, for the layman.

But the final fate of those proposals is far from settled.

Chairman Hugh Yatins, in recent remarks to agents in Dallas, commented that while he is not against such an approach, "readable language, simplified policies and the like are just not worth the paper they are printed on, much less the time to read them, if they do not conform to the dictate....and interpretations of the statute."

There is, Yantis agreed, a "tremendous gap in public and knowledge and understanding that needs to be filled" by the SBI and industry — but content, not readability, "is critical."

This summer also will be enlivened, on the insurance scene, by the annual automobile rate hearing — which the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office has requested be set "on or about" July 19.

TAISO has proposed that it and the SBI staff exchange exhibits July 10 in order to speed up the actual hearing — similar to what was done in the case of the property hearing.

A study by Dr. Carl M. Hubbard and Dr. Gloria M. Shatto, Department of Business and Management Studies, Trinity University, shows that banks in Texas which are not members of the Federal Reserve System are "significantly more profitable" than Federal Reserve member banks.

That study, published by the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas at Austin, concludes that "accelerating erosion of membership" by Texas banks in the FRS is likely to continue.

Hubbard and Shatto note that FRS membership imposes on banks regulations in addition to those of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which "adversely affect a member bank's profitability and thus are a major deterrent to membership..."

The researches say that FRS requirements seem to produce a "greater-than-desired allocation of resources to legal reserves" — meaning that funds which otherwise would be invested in higher-yielding loans and securities earn no returns.

Non-member banks, therefore, can allocate more funds to better-paying investments — and can show greater profits than FRS members.

Cop practices as he preaches

Wood, 34, said Buffy ran out when he opened the door to his suburban and "got into a precarious position with the neighbor male dog across the street."

The chief drove over, investigated, pulled out his ticket book and handed it to Wood so he could write his own citation.

"Newport's a small town, about 3,500, and it would be all over that a policeman's dog could break the law," explained Wood. "I've read so much bad publicity about cops that I wanted to show we're not above the law."

If found guilty of letting the dog run free, Wood could face a fine of up to $100.

Farm front; need for new markets

By ROBERT ESTILL
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Department of Agriculture, although faced with surplus U.S. crops, is not keeping pace with inflation or some foreign competitors in spending to develop overseas markets.

In 1970, the USDA budgeted $16.8 million for foreign market development. Seven years later the USDA budgeted $21.4 million for the same purpose.

The figures are deceptive.

The apparent increase becomes a decrease when the effect of inflation on buying power is considered. The $21.4 million represents only $13.6 million when measured in 1970 dollars.

Although the United States leads the world in agricultural exports, it is outspent by less agriculturally rich countries bent on developing new markets.

Foreign market development spending by the USDA and contributions by U.S. market development "cooperators" — organizations promoting U.S. sales abroad — totaled $22.5 million in 1975. The value of U.S. agricultural exports that year was $22.1 billion.

Australia, with only $4.6 billion in agricultural exports, spent $50.5 million in 1975 to open up new markets. The Netherlands, with $3.8 billion in exports, spent $23 million in foreign market expansion.

Those figures do not originate with congressional critics who are echoing with ever-increasing frequency farm-belt complaints about the need for new markets.

The figures come from the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), the USDA agency responsible for market development through its agricultural attaches in 69 posts covering more than 110 countries, research staff and contracts with cooperators.

FAS provided the figures to Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee's subcommittee on Livestock and Grains and a backer of efforts to expand foreign market development.

Despite criticisms from Congress and farmers of Mr. Carter's farm policies, there is reason to doubt the administration will provide substantial funds to increase foreign market development.

An Agriculture Committee source said the Office of Management and Budget has rejected a request by FAS for an additional $10 million next year for foreign market development.

He notes U.S. agricultural exports in 1977 set a record of nearly $24 billion, and this nation is the world's largest provider of soybeans, wheat, corn and other feed grains.

But the forecast for 1978 is not so good.

Farmers will be selling more but making less.

Although the export volume is expected to rise by more than 5 percent to a record 110 million tons, lower prices will reduce the value of those exports to $22 billion, $2 billion less than the 1977 record.

Grain and feed exports are expected to be about $9.8 billion, down 4 percent from last year despite a 20 percent increase in wheat volume and feed grain shipments.

Price pressure from larger supplies here and abroad will reduce the value of oilseeds and products from $6.4 billion last year to a forecasted $5 billion for 1978, despite a 10 percent increase in soybean export volume.

Maddocks appointed

As a sales manager, Maddocks will be responsible for the sales and service activities of a staff of representatives.

He joined Metropolitan Life as a sales representative in the Midland office in March 1977.

TI sharing announced

DALLAS — Employees of Texas Instruments Inc., Dallas-based multinational electronics manufacturer, with a facility in Midland, are receiving a $32 million contribution to their profit-sharing accounts as a result of company performance in 1977.

Statements of account now being distributed to participants in TI's "universal" profit-sharing plans show a company profit-sharing contribution of $62 for every $1,000 of eligible payroll for 1977. This is the equivalent of about 16 days pay for every profit-sharing plan participant.

TI's profit-sharing is geared to the company's profit-after-tax return on assets and to a "people effectiveness index," a measure of productivity. As either return on assets or employee productivity, or both, increases, the amount of profit-sharing gets bigger.

Under TI profit-sharing plans, the company contribution is used to purchase shares of TI common stock for participants' accounts. The profit-sharing plans cover TI employees in the U.S. and international locations including Australia, Canada, England, Denmark, Germany, Japan, and Hong Kong.

business beatitudes

by Bill Beattie

When we think that we need a rest, very often it isn't that we need a rest from work as much as we need a rest from worry and pressure. Men rust out sooner than they wear out; they wither in idleness sooner than they break down in willing, useful work.

The time that we all share here on earth is the common denominator that we all have. It makes no difference what our race, religion, politics, economic or social background; we are all sharing the same second, the same minute, the same hour, and there are twenty-four hours every day, seven days a week, and fifty-two weeks a year. Those of us who feel that life has dealt us out, probably have wasted more time in idleness than we would like to admit.

If our government taxed us 10% of our time to be employed in its service, we would want a change of government. But, idleness taxes many of us much more. If we love life and want to succeed, we should not squander time in idleness, for time is the "stuff life is made of."

Lord Balfour said, "The superstition that all our hours of work are a minus quantity in the happiness of life, and all the hours of idleness are plus ones, is a most ludicrous and pernicious doctrine, and its greatest support comes from our not taking sufficient trouble, not making real effort, to make work as near pleasure as it can be."

It is an undoubted truth that the less we have to do the less time we find to do it in. We yawn, we procrastinate, we can do it when we will, and, therefore, we seldom do it at all. Those of us who have a great deal to do must buckle to it; and, when we are busy, we always find time to get things done.

Having nothing to do is far more strenuous work than any other form of labor. Being idle is terribly difficult, and even a small proportion of our day wasted is worse than working many hours overtime. Henry Ford tells us: "Nobody can think straight who does not work. Idleness warps the mind. Thinking without constructive action becomes a disease."

Not only is he idle who is doing nothing, but he that might be better employed.
— Socrates

WASHINGTON OIL

Another Capitol Hill myth riddled last week

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The long-standing myth that a powerful oil and gas lobby holds Washington in its hands was shot down once again last week when a majority of Senate conferees agreed on a compromise approach to natural gas price deregulation.

If the compromise is adopted by Congress — and the prospect is that it will be — controls will be continued for seven years and either Congress or the president could extend them for two additional years if deregulated prices rose faster than the formula prescribed in the compromise.

Furthermore, intrastate gas sales will be brought under the federal price umbrella for the first time in history.

From the standpoint of gas producers, the compromise legislation is worse than no legislation at all. If there were no bill, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission would be required to establish a new national price every two years and if it used a formula comparable to the one adopted by the old Federal Power Commission in 1976, producers would get a higher price than they will under the price escalation provisions contained in the compromise legislation.

That 1976 formula, incidentally, has been approved by the courts and therefore would not be subject to further legal challenges.

The current compromise legislation sets the price for new natural gas sales at $1.75, beginning April 20, 1977 — the date President Carter unveiled his national energy plan.

The price would rise to offset inflation, plus an additional increase of 3.5 per cent for four years and 4 per cent for the final three years.

The provision that prices would be permitted to rise to offset inflation sounds fair enough at first glance, but the fact is that inflation of costs in the oil patch is running well ahead of the inflation rate calculated by the government because the latter includes the costs of products generally. So the inflation factor contained in the compromise is likely to mean a loss in "real" income for producers.

Even assuming that the inflation factor is sufficient to offset inflation, the "incentive," increases of 3.5 per cent at the start and 4 per cent later are likely to fall short of the realities of the marketplace and therefore likely to fail to provide the new momentum needed if the existing gas shortage is to be overcome.

The formula the old FPC utilized in setting the 1976 national price level for new gas included consideration of such factors as the price of competitive fuels, the capital needs for accelerating drilling and production efforts and other marketplace elements.

That is, the old FPC formula had flexibility to meet changing conditions. The fixed percentages contained in the compromise legislation do not have such flexibility.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

These reasons and others are why domestic producers and other observers consider the compromise legislation worse than no bill at all.

The biggest thing of all wrong with the proposed legislation is that Congress undertook to set the price levels itself. In times past, Congress was content with passing legislation authorizing the Executive Branch to set up a system of price or wage controls. Congress did not undertake to administer those controls itself, determining specific price levels.

But with domestic crude oil and now with natural gas Congress has set itself up as the pricing agency. This means the price levels are determined politically.

In the current setting, Congress considers it politically wiser to keep natural gas prices under control than to let prices reflect marketplace factors.

This was evident last week in the final drafting stage of the compromise. Several senators who had voted for deregulation when the issue was before the Senate backed off from deregulation this time to go along with the compromise. This included several Republicans, each of whom is facing re-election this year.

Those senators facing the voters in November obviously were skittish about any vote for deregulation during an election year. This reflects an attitude that price is more important at this point than some future supply.

Petroleum refiners disagree with report on world trends

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Petroleum refiners disagree with parts of a Department of Energy report on world trends in crude oil processing capacity.

The report estimates foreign processing capacity, excluding Communist bloc nations, will increase from 45,779,000 barrels a day to 56,299,000 by 1980.

U.S. capacity, excluding Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, meanwhile is predicted to only increase from 16,800,000 barrels a day in 1977 to 17,200,000 for 1978 and 17,400,000 for 1979.

The report indicates, however, that utilization of foreign capacity declined from 74 percent in 1973 to 63 percent in 1976. But domestic refinery utilization is expected to increase from 87.3 percent in 1977 to 91 percent in 1979.

The National Petroleum Refiners Association does not question the projections but does question some DOE comments made in the report.

The DOE said domestic refining capacity will be insufficient to meet increased residual fuel, distillate, and liquefied petroleum gas demand in 1979.

It then referred to the excess foreign refining capacity as something of a supply reserve the United States can rely on to meet product supply deficiencies.

"The trouble with reading U.S. and foreign capacity numbers this way is two-fold and apparent," the 56-year-old NPRA said in a March bulletin mailed to members.

"It hastily assumes this country will never again be taught a hard lesson about the use of oil as a political and economic weapon. It also represents a twisted argument for not increasing domestic refining capacity."

The NPRA said the real message contained in the numbers is foreign producers intend to become the principal refiners of their own crude.

"Given their cost advantages, these countries could achieve enormous leverage over U.S. consumers of petroleum products," the bulletin said. "Whether or not this actually occurs will primarily depend upon future U.S. government policies."

Compared with an increase of only 3.5 percent for domestic refining capacity by 1980, the DOE report indicates a 21 percent increase for other areas of North America, 15 percent for Central America and the Caribbean, 23 percent for South American, 17 percent for Western Europe, 40 percent for the Middle East, 104 percent for Africa, and 20 percent for Asia.

The NPRA bulletin also commented on a new Senate bill that would require domestic refiners to produce gasoline with a 1 percent alcohol volume content by 1981, 5 percent by 1985, and 10 percent by 1990.

The bulletin said bills to require the production of socalled gasahol by blending fermented grain alcohol with gasoline have been introduced into Congress regularly the last 50 years.

"The main problem with these gasahol proposals has always been the cost factors involved," the bulletin said. "NPRA made this point nearly 10 years ago during a panel presentation before a congressional committee investigating the use of lead in gasoline."

NPRA said the same problems continue today.

The American Petroleum Institute has estimated grain alcohol would have to sell for about 24 cents a gallon, or about one-fourth to one-sixth its current price, in order to compete on a cost-per-mile basis with gasoline.

"Even if Congress could legislate away the fuel's cost deterrent, there still remains the critical question of whether the public would accept it as a suitable gasoline alternative," the bulletin said.

A 1975 report on a series of gasahol tests, it added, identified such potential trouble areas as uneven acceleration, lower mileage, corrosion, and cold weather startup.

Dr. Warme will speak

Dr. John E. Warme, Rice University oceanography professer, will be the speaker for the March 21 meeting of the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists in the Midland Hilton.

The meeting will begin at 11:30 a. m.

Dr. Warme will talk on "Jurassic Carbonate Facies Mosaic in a Rift-Trough, High Atlas, Morroco."

Dr. Warme earned a bachelors degree from Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., and a doctorate from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1966.

Following a year at the University of Edinburg in Scotland as a Fulbright Fellow, he came to Rice University where he now is Maurice Ewing Professor of oceanography.

He is active in the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the SEPM. He has published 50 papers and abstracts.

Oil lease sale slated

NEW TOWN, N.D. — The superintendent of the Fort Berthold Reservation, New Town, has announced a sale of oil and gas leases on Indian lands will be held at the Agency office at 9 a. m. (CST) April 20.

Sealed bids will be accepted on 169,694.59 acres of individually-owned trust lands and 12,976.07 acres of tribal-owned lands in Dunn, Mercer and McKenzie counties.

The leases will be sold to the bidder offering the highest money bonus for each tract for a term of five years from the date of approval by the assistant secretary for Indian Affairs or his authorized representative, and as long thereafter as oil and-or gas is produced in paying quantities.

The royalty rate is 16 percent.

In addition to the bonus offer, each lease will pay in advance an annual rental of $1.25 per acre. The rental for any one year will be credited on the royalty for that year.

Details of the lease offering and how and where to file bids can be obtained from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Fort Berthold Agency, P.O. Box 370, New Town, 58763.

Geologists will meet

Dr. Thomas W. Amsden, with the Oklahoma Geological Survey, will be the speaker for the Tuesday noon meeting of the West Texas Geological Society in the Midland Hilton.

The meeting will get under way at 11:30 a. m.

Dr. Amsden will speak on "The Middle Paleozoic History of the Anadarko and Arkoma Basins, Oklahoma."

The speaker received his B.A. degree from Wichita State University, his M.S. degree from the University of Iowa and his Ph.D. degree from Yale University.

He was with the U.S. Geological Survey from 1941 to 1946, with the Johns Hopkins University staff from 1947 to 1955 and with the Oklahoma Geological Survey from 1955 to the present.

He is a member of several earth science organizations, including the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists.

The meeting will get underway at noon.

Womack will talk on "Are We Losing Our Free Enterprise System?"

Womack is a native of Houston and attended The University of Texas, the University of Houston and received his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from South Texas College of Law.

He was employed by Humble Oil & Refining Co. in 1938 and has had varied assignments during his career.

He also is a past president of the Wichita Falls Landmen's Association and of the Houston Association of Petroleum Landmen.

In 1973, he received a Distinguished Service Award from the AAPL for his dedication to the professional development of landmen.

In 1974, he received the First "Outstanding Landman of The Year" award given by the Houston Association.

He is a member of the American Petroleum Institute, the Houston and American Associations of Petroleum Landmen and the State Bar of Texas.

Eddy wrestles drilling lead from neighbor

Eddy and Lea counties in New Mexico again swapped positions in the rotary drilling scene in the Permian Basin of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico last week.

Eddy county wrested the lead from Lea County with 31 active rigs, an acrease of two of the previous week. The Reed Drilling Equipment survey showed Lea County, last week's leader, with 29 units making hole. The previous week, Lea had 33 for first place.

Pecos County remained the top drilling county in West Texas with 25 rigs, one less than the count a week earlier. Ward showed 20 for second place in West Texas and fourth in the Basin.

Operators were making hole with 16 rotaries in Reeves County, 15 in Gaines and 10 in Crockett.

The overall Basin count last week was 304, seven less than the 311 a week earlier. One year ago, there were 287 rotaries working the two-state area.

D-Jax Corporation offers a revolutionary pumping well dynamometer—and at an economical price. Installation can be easily accomplished by one man in less than one minute. Built with a minimum number of moving parts, it simply "hooks" on the existing horsehead bridle cables. It gives a direct dynanometer card read out recording qualitatively a history of what is happening downhole. No loss of resolution due to hydraulics or molecular difference in various polish rods. No calibration or zero base line problems. It is possible to get up to 100 dynamometer charts from each roll of paper. Charts are changed by simply cutting off the run chart. For a free demonstration, call D-Jax at 683-5710

Wilson Aviation meets increasing demands

More and more individuals as well as businesses are discovering the advantages of using air charter service, and Wilson Aviation offers them the best service possible. Foremost among the reasons why the demand for air charter service continues to grow is the fact that with five passengers, the cost is less than first class air fare.

Added to the cost factor is the obvious fact that air charter service is the best way to get to out-of-the-way places and a direct line anywhere. Consider the convenience of setting your own schedule, no layovers or transfers, traveling with associates and friends, no waiting in lines to check in or pick up baggage, plus the fact that Wilson Aviation makes over 11,000 airports, which are not serviced by the airlines, available to you for your business or pleasure.

Wilson Aviation will serve you with the finest in new aircraft. Their Beechcraft Duke is more than just a beautiful airplane. It's a beautiful answer to efficient transportation. It's pressurized, air-conditioned, radar-equipped, and fully de-ice equipped. It has a nose baggage compartment that's the largest in its class. It is lighted, carpeted, and has a flat floor which will accommodate up to 500 pounds of cargo. Inside the Beechcraft Duke it's quiet and comfortable. Super soundproofing, three-bladed propellers and engine placement help to make the Duke quiet. Deep cushions, reclining chairs, movable headrests, and retractable armrests help make you comfortable.

Call Jerry Morelock, Chief Pilot for Wilson Aviation, at 563-3024 for aviation service or for further information. Jerry has had ten years of experience in aviation and will be happy to answer your questions.

National Kelly Week celebration begins

Nowhere in Midland will you find more Irish cheer this week than at the Kelly Girl office in Suite L-120 on the lower level of the Midland Hilton. The Midland Kelly Office celebrates its 20th anniversary during National Kelly Week, March 12 through March 17. Open house will be held all week, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Kicking off the festivities on the 11th, an awards breakfast was held in the Trellis Room of the Midland Hilton. There Kelly Girl honored ten top employees. Marylee Tyler was named the outstanding Kelly Girl employee of the year. Karen Leaverton received special recognition as the top college student Kelly employee. Top second-career honoree was Elizabeth Turner. Also receiving honors for outstanding service were: Joan Dunn, LaRay Huddelston, Pamela Reece, Frances Oekerman, Bertha Jones, Patricia Fisher, Olivia Padgett, Doris Belden and Myrtle Johnson.

The week's activities will be highlighted with a Kelly Day party on St. Patrick's Day, Friday, March 17, from 3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Local manager, Betty Simon invites Kelly customers and friends to join them as they honor their Kelly employees. The occasion will be made most festive with champagne, Irish coffee, soft drinks, favors, Irish pennies, shamrocks, balloons, Irish buttons and lots of "Kelly Irish cheer!"

Kelly Girl, a division of Kelly Services, had its inception in 1946 when William Russell Kelly, realizing the need for temporary help, approached a company with the idea of doing their "overload" work for them. His first job was typing one purchase order. From this humble beginning, Mr. Kelly expanded his operation to over 300 offices, including Canada and Europe, with more than 150,000 employees.

Just as Mr. Kelly pioneered the temporary help field nationally, Marie Bennett Munson, in 1958, realized the need for such a service here in Midland and brought Kelly Services to our city. Since that time, Kelly Girl has contributed much to the economy of Midland by supplying their customers with top guaranteed temporary help, and has afforded many people employment who could not work permanently, or were not interested in full time work.

On those occasion when your business need temporary help to meet overload demands, or perhaps to replace ill or vacationing employees call on the experts at Kelly Girl, a division of Kelly Services, Inc., at 682-9748.

Have a happy Kelly Week—and think "green!"

Deaths decline

ATLANTA (AP) — Influenza deaths in the United States have declined during the past two weeks, with most of the deaths attributed to the ATexas and A-Victoria flu strains, the national Center for Disease Control says.

A virus similar to A-Texas or A-Victoria has been found in every state except South Dakota during the current flu season, the center said Friday.

Although pneumonia and influenza mortality continue to decline, deaths from those causes remain slightly above the expected number in the South Atlantic region, the center said.

Russian flu has been diagnosed in each geographic region in the nation and continues to spread, striking high school and college age groups, the center added.

Young people are more susceptible to the Russian virus because it is similar to one prevalent in the United States between 1947 and 1957.

Space duo has tests

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko underwent detailed medical test Saturday, their 92nd day in orbit aboard the Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported.

Joan Mondale coming

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Second Lady Joan Mondale will be in San Antonio on Tuesday to view three works of art that have been chosen to decorate the vice presidential home in Washingon.

The three works are currently on display at San Antonio's Witte Museum

J. Roy Christian

Company names three officers

J. Roy Christian has been elected president and a director of Petroleum Exploration & Development Funds, Inc., in Midland, the company announced Saturday.

Also, William E. Vick has been named vice president-Exploration, and Frank S. Delay has been named controller.

Prior to his election as president, Christian was a senior vice president in the Trust Department of The First National Bank in Dallas.

For most of his 12 years with that department, he headed its Oil Department. Previously, Christian had been vice president of Oliver & West, Inc., in Dallas; senior engineer for Colorado Interstate Gas Co.; chief engineer for Stekoll Petroleum Co., and petroleum engineer with DeGolyer and McNaughton.

He was with Shell Oil Co., mostly in the Permian Basin, for eight years in various assignments as production geologist and exploitation engineer.

Vick has been a consulting geologists, principally in the Permian Basin, Texas Panhandle and Central Texas areas for the last 18 years. He moved to Midland from Amarillo.

Previously, he was a geologist for Shamrock Oil Corp. and earlier had been exploration geologist, acting district geologist and foreign exploration manager for Lion Oil Division of Monsanto Chemical Co.

Delay came to Midland from Dallas where he wae corporate controller of Dorchester Gas Corp. He had earlier served in various audit and controller functions with The Superior Oil Co., Richfield Oil Corp., Signal Oil & Gas Corp., British Petroleum and Coastal States Gas Corp.

Delay served as chairman of the Audit Committee for the American Petroleum Institute from 1968 to 1970.

PEDF has been active in drilling and production operations for the last 10 years in the Permian Basin, Western Oklahoma, Gulf Coast and South Texas.

James R. Sutherland is vice president-Operations, and Herbert V. Wales is vice president-Land and Legal.

Directors include Curtis L. Guss and Sanford Kaplan, both of Los Angeles, Calif.; Irby L. Dyer of Midland, Nathan Kessler of Oakland, Calif., and Arthur T. Roth of New York City.

Thomas J. Robichaux

Robichaux on program

Thomas J. Robichaux, director of Safety, Health and Environmental Affairs for Petrolite Corp., St. Louis, Mo., will be the speaker for the National Association of Corrosion Engineers meeting Tuesday in the Granada Club in Midland.

He will speak on "Environmental Effects and Regulation of Corrosion Related Chemicals in Oil and Gas Production."

The meeting will begin with a social hour at 6:30 p. m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p. m.

Robichaux holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in Chemistry from Louisiana State University and an M.S. degree in Environmental Science from the University of Houston.

He joined the Tretolite Division and Petrolite in 1970 as a technical assistant to the manager of Marketing.

He currently is responsible for developing and implementing programs within the corporation to comply with federal and state regulations for industrial hygiene, safety and pollution control, and for product registration and testing.

Granby Jones joins Mitchell

HOUSTON — Granby Jones has joined Mitchell Energy Corp. in Houston as a drilling engineer in the Continental Division of the company's production department.

Course slated

Oil and Gas Fundamentals-I will be offered April 5-19 by the Permian Basin Graduate Center.

Dr. Jack G. Elam, consulting geologist and president of the Permian Basin Graduate Center, will be the instructor.

The classes will be held from 7 to 10 p. m. Wednesdays in the PBGC building.

Fee for the course will be $50. A textbook, "Oil From Prospect to Pipeline" will be available for $6.95.

Elam received his A.B. and M.A. degrees in Geology from UCLA and his Ph.D. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Engineering starts for project

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. — Texaco Inc. and Southern California Edison Co. have announced preliminary engineering is underway to develop a major coal gasification demonstration project.

The project consists of a 1,000-tons-a-day demonstration system using the Texaco Coal Gasification Process. The proposed site is at Edison's Coolwater Generating Station near Daggett, 12 miles east of Barstow, Calif.

A full-scale development program is contemplated, the companies said. The facility will be capable of operating in two modes.

The first operating mode involves a large coal gasifier developed by Texaco, with related gas cleanup equipment, to provide fuel for an existing 65-megawatt generating facility.

The combined cycle unit of approximately 90 megawatts capacity would be integrated with the gasifier to demonstrate that an integrated system can operate efficiently and can effectively respond to the load changes required in the generation of electricity.

"Successful demonstration of an integrated gasified coal-combined cycle demonstration plant will represent a significant advancement in the state of the art in coal gasification and electric power generation," Edison and Texaco said.

The program is estimated to cost about $300 million. The integrated gasification-combined cycle facility could be operational in the mid-1980s, the companies said.

"This schedule is anticipated to help Edison and other utilities meet future generating requirements using coal for new power plants," the comapnies said.

Texaco and Edison said they believe this project offers one alternative for using domestic coal as "a long-term, economically feasible fuel supply base with the potential of utilizing coal to generate electricity in an environmentally clean manner."

The present effort being carried out by Texaco and Edison includes piolot plant studies at Texaco's research laboratory in Montebello, Calif.

Texaco and Edison noted that other participants will be invited to join the project within the next few months.

Refineries process run shows increase

AUSTIN — Fifty-one Texas refineries processed 146,758,313 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends during Dec. 1977, according to their reports to The Railroad Commission of Texas.

This volume compared with 143,940,444 barrels in the previous December, the commission's Administrative Services Division reported. Inputs of crude oil and blends totaled 141,598,656 barrels in November.

Texas refineries ran 125,645,640 barrels of crude oil in December compared to 120,503,459 barrels in December 1976 and 121,392,005 barrels in November 1977.

Products manufactured in December 1977 totaled 147,766,948 barrels, up from 142,280,154 barrels in the same month the previous year, and up from the 142,228,647 barrels in November 1977.

December manufacture of motor gasoline totaled 59,014,696 barrels, compared to 58,631,182 barrels in the year-earlier month and 57,132,696 barrels in November.

Texas refineries manufactured 14,124,361 barrels of home heating oil in December — a decrease of 1,783,651 barrels from the year-earlier volume. November output was 14,344,013 barrels.

In 1977, Texas refineries processed 1,709,198,235 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends, compared to 1,586,920 barrels in 1976 and 1,477,232,651 barrels in 1975.

Crude oil runs to stills in 1977 amounted to 1,461,928,064 barrels, against 1,342,396,408 barrels in 1976 and 1,247,191,277 barrels in 1975.

Products manufactured in 1977 by Texas refineries amounted to 1,713,636,906 barrels, against 1,574,634,273 barrels in 1976 and 1,471,476,097 in 1975.

Motor gasoline output in 1977 totaled 685,584,818 barrels, against 655,333,937 barrels in 1976 and 628,490,076 barrels in 1975.

Q. D. Edwards Jr.

Sessions scheduled

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — The 53rd International School of Hydrocarbon Measurement will be held April 11-13 in the Oklahoma Center for Continuing Education at Norman.

More than 900 energy experts from around the world are expected to attend the three-day meeting believed to be the oldest petroleum school devoted to fluid measurement and control.

Speakers and instructors for the general sessions and specialized classes are from the faculty of the University of Oklahoma, the natural gas petroleum industries, equipment manufacturers, governmental agencies, and other organizations directly interested in the measurement and control of hydrocarbons.

Meeting scheduled

Q. D. Edwards Jr., president of Q. D. Edwards & Co., will speak to the Petroleum Accounting Society Wednesday at the Best Western Motel on I-10 in Midland.

The meeting will get underway at 6 p. m.

Edwards, a graduate of North Texas State University, began his oil industry career in 1952 in the land department of Jak L. Hamon, independent Dallas oil operator.

In 1961, Edwards formed his own company as a property tax consultant, specializing in ad valorem taxes on oil and industrial properties.

He is a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, petroleum branch.

Hobbs firm makes organization changes

HOBBS, N. M. — A recent major reorganization has been announced for DA&S Oil Well Service, Inc. of Hobbs.

Under the new organizational structure, total DA&S operations have been split into Texas and New Mexico operations, with Dean Snyder of Hobbs being named manager of New Mexico operations, and Harold Roberts of Andrews, Tex., manager of Texas operations.

John Reid of Midland will be sales manager for Texas operations, and A. R. Blankenship is sales manager for New Mexico operations.

In other changes, Dick McFadden has been named safety director, replacing retiring Bob Pampbell, and Maple Taylor has been named purchasing director.

R. D. McCubbin, Hobbs station manager, has been put in charge of plugging and abandoment operations.

Two long-time DA&S rig operators, Albert Dennis and Earl Cowger, have been promoted to tool pusher in the organizational change. Dennis has been an operator 11 years and Cowger 10 years.

The reorganization was made to fill vacancies and provide more equal distribution of responsibility within the firm, according to Ben Alexander, president.

DA&S operates 41 double derrick rigs in West Texas and New Mexico.

C. E. SIKES has announced his retirement from Gulf Oil Exploration & Production Co., Western Division, Southwest District. The resident of Kermit completed 41 years with the company.

Personnel changes announced by Kobe, Inc., in Mid-Continent

Five key personnel changes have been made in the Mid-Continent Region by Kobe, Inc.

The changes were announced by C. Lance Poulsen, regional.

Bill Stogdon, formerly Oklahoma Area Manager, has been promoted to West Texas-New Mexico Area manager and is being transferred from Oklahoma City to Midland.

Curtis Keel, formerly a sales engineer in the West Texas-New Mexico Area, has been promoted to manager of the Oklahoma Area, which includes Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle, Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, northern Louisiana, Dallas and East Texas. He will manage the Ratcliff City and Kilgore districts.

Other promotions include Ellis Rutherford from area service manager to Odessa District manager, and Holice Smith from Midland sales to Hobbs District manager with responsibility for field sales and service for the Denver City and Lovington areas.

Ray Way has been named Ratliff City district manager serving the Texas Panhandle, North Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

He will continue to be headquartered at Kobe's Ratliff City facility.

Gas cost estimated

WASHINGTON — The natural gas utility industry estimates it will require $204 billion in capital investments between now and the year 20000.

An American Gas Association study released last week predicts that domestic natural gas-related development and supplemental gaseous fuel projects will require this significant investment to provide sufficient new gas supplies.

Capital needs for supplemental gas supply projects are targeted at $97 billion (in 1977 dollars) based on an anticipated increase in supplemental gas supplies from the current level of about 1.3 trillion cubic feet to 14.9 trillion by the turn of the century.

The AGA study estimates $107 billion will be needed for conventional projects relating to domestic natural gas. These projects consist of $77.9 billion for utility and pipeline construction and $28.8 billion for exploration and development.

American Gas Association President George H. Lawrence said, "the supplemental supply increase, largely from coal gasification, liquified natural gas imports and Alaskan gas will be necessary in order to provide the nation's consumers with adequate energy supplies."

While developing supplemental projects will require a substantial increase in the gas utility industry's capital needs Lawrence said that "supplemental gas represents significantly less investment per delivered unit of energy than electricity from either coal or nuclear power.

Capital demands for supplemental projects include $1.6 billion for synthetic natural gas from liquids, $24.4 billion for Alaskan gas, $9.9 billion for LNG imports.

Explorers, discovery, field work reported

Wildcat operations have been announced for Crockett and field area wells and projects have been reported in other West Texas areas.

HNG Oil Co. of Midland No. 1-15 Parker is an 8,500-foot Ellenburger wildcat in Crockett County, seven miles north of Ozona.

REPLACEMENT

Methane Gas Co. of Dallas has junked and abandoned its No. 1 Baggett, scheduled 3,000-foot Clear Fork wildcat in Crockett County, at an unreported depth.

The operation has been replaced with No. 1-A E. G. Baggett, 46 feet east of the No. 1.

Location is 467 feet from north and 742 feet from west lines of section 2, block NG, GC&SF survey and 13 miles south of Ozona.

A Strawn reef discovery has been reported by Texas Pacific Oil Co., Inc., at its No. 1 J. B. Cooper, ⅞ mile northeast of the Estaban (Strawn reef, Canyon and Ellenburger) field in Nolan County, 3.5 miles southeast of Roscoe.

The strike was completed for a daily flowing potential of 158 barrels of 40.8-gravity oil, plus 110 barrels of water, through a 30/64-inch choke.

The producing zone is behind casing perforations from 6,274 to 6,344 feet. The section had been acidized with 3,000 gallons.

The Cisco lime was topped at 4,190 feet; the Strawn reef at 6,243 feet, and the Ellenburger was entered at 6,787 feet. Groupd elevation is 2,269 feet.

Total depth is 6,885 feet and 5½-inch pipe is set at 6,883 feet. Plugged back depth is 6,663 feet.

GAINES WELL

David Fasken of Midland No. 2-234 J. J. Taylor is a new oiler in the Hanford (San Andres) field of Gaines County — the sixth for the field.

Operator reported a daily pumping potential of 156 barrels of 53-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 5,538-1.

The oil is coming from the pay at 5,444-5,056 feet which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons.

Total depth is 5,750 feet and 4½-inch casing is set at 5,742 feet. Plugged back depth is 5,694 feet.

The San Andres was topped at 5,250 feet on ground elevation of 3,387 feet.

GAINES TEST

David Fasken of Midland No. 1-215 Boecker will be drilled as a location south offset to the Hanford (San Andres) field in Gaines County, seven miles north of Seminole.

Slated for a 5,800-foot bottom, it is 467 feet from north and west lines of section 215, block G, WTRR survey.

MIDLAND WELL

Tamarack Petroleum Co., Inc., of Midland No. 2-31-A Windham has been finaled as a pumping well to extend the Parks (Spraberry) field of Midland County ¾ mile north on the southwest side.

It finaled for a daily potential of 43 barrels of 35-gravity oil and 50 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,870 to 8,052 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and 80,000 gallons of fracture solution.

The well is bottomed at 8,890 feet and 4½-inch pipe is cemented at that point. The plugged back depth is 8,823 feet.

WARD TESTS

Continental Oil Co. staked locations for a pair of projects in the Rhoda Walker (5900 Canyon) area of Ward County.

No. 7 Ned Wilson and others is ¾ mile northeast of production and 467 feet from northeast and northwest lines of section 133, block 34, H&TC survey.

No. 8 Ned Wilson and others is ⅝ mile east of production and 467 feet from northwest and 1,980 feet from northeast lines of section 133, block 34, H&TC survey.

The projects, seven miles northeast of Pyote, will be drilled to 6,800 feet.

COKE OFFSET

Sun Oil Co. No. 9-A Central National Bank will be dug as a northeast offset to a producer in the two-well F. P. (Pennsylvanian) field of Coke County, eight miles southwest of Silver.

The 6,700-foot test is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of S. M. Conner survey No. 72, abstract 1739.

SUTTON PROJECT

Slated for a 7,500-foot bottom, it is 1,650 feet from south and 1,350 feet from west lines of section 130, block C, HE&WT survey.

CORRECTION

Northern Natural Gas Co. of Midland No. 1-4 Childress will be drilled as a 12,500-foot operation in North Terrell County, 17 miles southwest of Sheffield.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 4, block 161, Abstract 1659. It earlier was reported in error that the block was 662.

The site is five miles southwest of the Yucca Butte, West field which produces gas from the Ellenburger and Pennsylvanian and oil from the Connell, Strawn and Ellenburger.

Texas American Bancshares is in Midland, too.

The Permian Basin of West Texas is one of the nation's most prolific oil and gas producing regions, whose bountiful production from thousands of wells is playing a vital role in meeting our growing energy needs. The capital of the Permian Basin is Midland, where Commercial Bank & Trust Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Texas American Bancshares, is an important factor in the city's financial scene.

Texas American Bancshares is the largest bank holding company in Texas which has built a statewide banking organization from a base other than Houston or Dallas.

Strong Statewide Banking Organization

Home base is Fort Worth, a dynamic part of the Dallas-Fort Worth Southwest Metroplex, the nation's tenth largest market. Our lead bank, The Fort Worth National, is the city's largest and oldest financial institution.

Of course, we're also in Houston and Dallas. We're in Houston with three banks, including a major downtown entry, Southern National Bank. Our newest Houston acquisition is the Galleria Bank, located in the famed Galleria Complex, one of the nation's most successful retail market places. We're in Dallas with Texas American Bank, the city's seventh largest bank. And we're a part of the resources-rich and thriving economies of West Texas, the Panhandle and the South Plains, with strong banks in Midland, Amarillo and Levelland.

Our long-range plans include strengthening our ties to the state's burgeoning economy through prudent expansion into other key areas of Texas.

Most importantly, we're growing across Texas. Steadily. Solidly. Forging ahead from a strong capital base which positions us to take advantage of the favorable economic conditions prevailing in our areas of operations.

13.4% Compound Growth Rate

We've grown in per share earnings, which over the past five years have risen at a compound rate of 13.4%. Each year since our formation as a holding company in 1970, we've broken the prior year's record highs in deposits, loans, total assets and stockholders' equity. We're now at more than $2 billion in assets and more than $1.6 billion in deposits. The comparable 1970 year-end figures were $585 million and $458 million.

Dividend Increases

In recognition of our strong earnings' performance and future outlook, we increased our dividend rate by 42.1% since January 1976, including the effect of a 5% stock dividend.

We invite your comparison of our performance with those of other bank holding companies in Texas and across the nation.

For more information about Texas American Bancshares, our member banks and the areas we serve, drop a note to Gary W. Cage, Senior Vice President and Treasurer, P. O. Box 2050, Fort Worth, Texas 76101.

Texas now believed main drug corridor

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas' reputation as a state of oil millionaires and wealthy cattle barons has been replaced in the minds of law enforcemnt officials as the breeding ground for illicit drug operations.

Of the six million tons of heroin brought into the United States last year, two-thirds of that total — or 4 million tons — passed through the Lone Star State, according to Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) estimates.

"It's difficult to speak of any significant criminal operation within North America to avoid either the state of Texas or the (DEA) region governed by the Dallas office," said Dennis Dayle, the chief of DEA's CENTAC operations that handles conspiracy investigations on a nationwide scale.

"We estimate that two out of every three kilos of heroin brought into the United States last year came through Texas," adds Peter B. Bensinger, the DEA director.

The infamous position Texas occupies is due largely to its meandering, difficult-to-patrol border with Mexico, whose poppy fields and clandestine heroin laboratories attributed to more than 85 percent of the heroin smuggled into this country.

Although DEA officials on the national, state and local levels agree that Texas does not have a single person or criminal organization responsible for — and profiting from — the heroin and marijuana trafficking, the illicit drug smuggling originating from the state can be best exhibited by two major DEA endeavors during the past year: Operation Wishbone and Operation Casino.

Operation Wishbone, which pinpointed the smuggling activity in Hidalgo and Starr counties along the Mexican border in the Rio Grande Valley, resulted in the conviction of 18 Class I violators. A class I violator, in DEA terminology, is capable of delivering on a weekly basis two kilos (about 4½ pounds) of 100 percent pure heroin or its equivalent or 2,000 kilos (about 2½ tons) of marijuana.

Operation Casino, which focused on multi-ton marijuana smuggling operations via airplanes out of the Fort WorthWaco-Austin area, netted 14 class I violators, according to the DEA.

Together, the two operations resulted in 118 arrests with 70 convictions to date (11 cases are still pending). Wishbone cost taxpayers $5,912.70 while Casino has cost about $63,000 to date.

"The average jail sentence was between 8-10 years ranging from a high of 25 years to just a slap on the wrist," said Ed Heath, the DEA deputy regional director in Dallas.

The number of Class 1 violators apprehended during the two operations lead the DEA to conclude that there is no "Mr. Big" operating in Texas.

"We haven't seen evidence of such an operator in Texas as yet," said Bensinger who quickly added: "That doesn't mean there aren't several predominately Mexican-American families in the state with strong hooks on both sides of the border."

"It's so easy to get in the (drug smuggling) business in Texas," offered Heath. "From San Antonio, you're only 250 miles from the border. Anybody can take a couple thousand bucks across the border and they're in business. If there was a single operator in Texas controlling the drug smuggling, he'd have to have an army to maintain his power... and he'd have to do an awful lot of advertising.

"There are some pretty gutsy violators in the state... guys who because of their personality or method of operation emerge as biggies but we apprehended 22 major violators in Operation Wishbone alone. Those are pretty big operators."

"Most of the bigger operators live in small communities," continued Heath. "They live in fishbowls. If they went out and started buying Cadillacs, their neighbors would get suspicious. What they like to do is buy land, a big ranch. Then they might buy some cattle. To them, that's status.

"Whereas in New York, if a big dealer went out and bought a Cadillac and $400 silk suits, no one would really notice. It's no big deal, but in small Texas towns it would.

"The Texas-based dealers think if they buy land or buy into a motel or restaurant, that makes them legitimate.

"Even those with incomes of more than half-a-million dollars a year find themselves going out and buying a big tractor-trailer or recreational vehicle because they are small-town thinkers."

Don Smith, the DEA special agent in charge of the McAllen district that encompasses the Operation Wishbone area, adds that the large-volume drug dealer generally falls into two categores: those who flaunt their money and those who don't.

"We have seen people leap from absolute poverty to flaunting material possessions," said Smith. "We know they aren't working and we know their associations are such that they have to be involved in illicit activity. Flaunting their wealth is an early warning signal and often an irritant.

"You assume they have gotten their new cars and new homes through narcotics because there are so few things that can compound money in such a rapid fashion. He is the unrefined guy, if that's the proper term, who is very open about the way he uses his money."

"Then there is the more refined dealer," Smith continued. "The guy with the white-collar background... the guy who's going to pull all the strings and let everybody else take all the chances. He's going to be more integrated into society and harder to identify. This is the guy we're worried about and we may be able to identify him but it's much harder to get to him."

The number of relatively small, closely knit organizations operating along the border have led DEA to focus its attention on major drug rings and the poppy eradication program in cooperation with Mexico.

In testimony before a House subcommittee last month, Bensinger outlined the progress against two such major operators: Leroy "Nicky" Barnes of New York City and Jaime Herrera of Chicago.

Barnes was convicted of conspiracy and sale and managing a continuing criminal enterprise on Dec. 12, 1977, and sentenced to "life in prison and will never be eligible for parole," Bensinger testified.

Herrera and "his associates were responsible for much of the heroin transported to Chicago," Bensinger continued. "The traffickers have been involved in an international production and distribution network which significantly impacts on heroin availability in the East, South, Southwest and along the West Coast as well as the family production center in the Durango, Mexico, area."

Bensinger also told the congressmen that by the time narcotics reach the border "it is difficult to track down. The time to curb the flow of contraband, we believe, is when it is hardest to hide: that is, when in the ground."

Bensinger also said that during the 1975 Mexican poppy eradication program, 17,964 acres of poppy fields equivalent to 7,270 kilos (more than 3,300 pounds) of pure heroin were destroyed.

"Our lab samples used to show an extremely pure quality of heroin," said Smith. "Before (the eradication program), heroin was coming in here entirely uncut. Now it's coming in cut quite a bit before it hits the street.

"The obvious deduction is that the source is hurting," he continued. "People may say, 'Well, we've got rid of the heroin.' No, there's heroin but some of it you could shoot it up all day and not get a buzz out of it."

Ector air pollution study set

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House Speaker Bill Clayton has named a special committee to study the possible impact of the Environmental Protection Agency's "emissions effort policy" on the 15 Texas counties, including Ector County, which are subject to the regulations.

The House panel, to be chaired by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, is made up totally of House members from the counties affected by the effort policy.

That regulation was reluctantly adopted by the Texas Air Central Board after the EPA refused to approve the state's request for a waiver from the policy. The federal agency also withheld the TACB's $2 million annual grant — one-fourth of the state agency's budget — until board members agreed to the adoption of the policy.

The effort policy, and EPA regulations which was included last fall in amendments to the federal Clean Air Act, requires new or expanding industries in "dirty" areas to obtain effective reductions in emmissions of the offending pollutant from existing facilities before a construction permit can be ussued by the TACB.

In announcing the appointment of the committee, Clayton said "I am particularly concerned with the EPA regulation.

"I believe it could severely humper industrial growth in rural areas of this state and in these urban areas where industry has been environmentally responsible. These areas will have no pollution emissions to 'tradeoff', therefore no new material growth can occur."

Clayton said major criticisms of the policy to be reviewed by the House panel includes:

The policy "rewards" industrial polluters since they will be the ones who will have emissions they can reduce to expand.

Pollution can become a "marketable commodity" under the policy since major polluters could be in position to "sell" pollution credits to other industries wishing to come into a nonattainment area.

"Since no state west of the Mississippi appears to be able to meet EPA's exidant standard," Clayton said, "the EPA will be encouraging industrial growth in the Frostbelt states at the expense of the Sunbelt states."

The speaker said the committee will seek information from the TACB and other agencies "in evaluating the effect of the effort policy on the state," solicit public testimony on the effect of the policy, and prepare a report for presentation to federal and state officials.

Violence breaks out at Sobukwe funeral

GRAAFF-REINET, South Africa (AP) — A stone-throwing crowd of about 100 young black militants mobbed Zulu Chief Gatsha Buthelezi and other black leaders Saturday at the funeral of black nationalist Robert Sobukwe. Three of the youths were shot and wounded.

One of Buthelezi's entourage fired two shots to disperse the crowd that nearly overran the chief, shouting "Kill the pig!" But there was confusion about how the three were wounded.

Buthelezi is leader of 5.5 million Zulus, South Africa's largest tribal group. The militants accuse the chief of selling out to the white-minority government because, as chief minister of Kwazulu, the Zulu tribal homeland, he operates within South Africa's "separate development" policy.

That policy calls for establisment of black states within South Africa that would perpetuate the country's system of racial segregation.

Buthelezi and the other black leaders were forced to leave the services. The militants said the leaders were "government puppets and traitors to the cause of black freedom."

Brig. A.A. Coetzee, division commissioner of police for the southwestern Cape, said three youths were hospitalized with bullet wounds, but he did not say where or when the shooting took place.

"No shots were fired by police," Coetze said. "The whole matter is still being investigated."

Witnesses said Buthelezi's bodyguard "definitely fired into the air."

Police kept a very low profile in the area. Though reinforcements and riot police had been called in, there were no police visible at the show grounds and no reports of arrests.

More than 5,000 mourners gathered at the showgrounds in Graaff-Reinet, 130 miles north of Port Elizabeth, to participate in the memorial services for Sobukwe, who died of cancer Feb. 26 at the age of 53.

Sobukwe had gained an international reputation in the 1950s with his non-violent stand for black rights. He founded the now-outlawed Pan African Congress. A life-long foe of apartheid, he spent the last 18 years of his life in prison or silenced by restriction orders that forbade him any political life.

Foreign representatives attending the services included U.S. Ambassador William Bowdler.

Begin's stand threatens negotiations, Sadat says

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said Saturday that Prime Minister Menachem Begin is endangering Mideast peace negotiations by claiming Israel is not obliged to withdraw from the West Bank of the Jordan River.

"Premier Begin's position threatens not only the peace negotiations, but the peace initiative itself," Sadat told reporters.

Egypt and the United States want an Israeli commitment to withdraw from all occupied lands — Egypt's Sinai Peninsula and Gaza Strip, Syria's Golan Heights and the West Bank, which was seized from Jordan.

The Begin government, in a new interpretation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, says it is not obliged to pull its forces from the West Bank and wants to negotiate that point with the Arabs.

"As long as Mr. Begin has adopted this policy, it may well lead to nothing at all," Sadat said.

Resolution 242, which among other things calls for withdrawal from occupied land, has served as the basis for Mideast peace negotiations for more than a decade.

Begin travels to Washington next week for meetings with President Carter and a review of the American mediation mission of Alfred L. Atherton. Atherton ended his two-week shuttle between Egypt and Israel on Monday.

Sadat said that although "nothing tangible" had been achieved during the shuttle, the Atherton mission was not a failure because it succeeded in narrowing the gap between Egypt and Israel on some points.

Romanian Premier Manea Manescu arrived in Damascus, Syria, Saturday with a message for President Hafez Assad from Romanian President Nicolai Ceaucescu. Its contents were not divulged, but sources said it outlined possible ways to end the Mideast deadlock.

Ceaucescu is expected to try to help narrow the differences between Assad and Sadat that resulted from Sadat's trip to Jerusalem in November.

Pentagon concerned over Soviet missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians are making faster progress in improving the accuracy of their missiles and may be able to threaten destruction of U.S. land-based Minuteman missiles a year or two earlier than expected, Pentagon officials said Saturday.

They estimated the 1,000 Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles may become vulnerable to a possible Soviet knockout blow in their underground launch silos in 1983 or 1984, instead of an earlier projection of 1985.

U.S. experts calculate the Russians would achieve this capability when they can aim their nuclear warheads to strike within one-tenth of a mile of targets within the United States after traveling about 6,000 miles from Soviet launch bases.

Pentagon officials said the revised estimate of when the Minuteman missiles would become vulnerable was made on the basis of data obtained over the past few months.

They refuse to say how the information was collected, but it is an open secret that the United States monitors Russian missile tests, including those conducted inside the Soviet Union, by spy satelite and other technical means.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has acknowledged that Minuteman vulnerability "is a serious concern." But Brown has stressed that the United States still would have as insurance its fleet of missile-firing submarines and hundreds of bombers, armed by that time with cruise missiles, to deter Russia from launching a surprise attack.

"An attack intended to destroy U.S. silos ...would leave untouched at least the alert bombers and at-sea missile firing submarines with thousands of warheads," Brown told Congress last month.

"The Soviets might — and should — fear that, in response, we would retaliate with a massive attack on Soviet cities and industry," he said.

Ethiopian troops reach boundary of Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopian troops have reached the Somalia border in their counterattack to clear the Ogaden desert of Somali forces, the Ethiopian ambassador here said Saturday. Elsewhere, an Ogaden rebel leader vowed to fight on despite the withdrawal of his Somali allies.

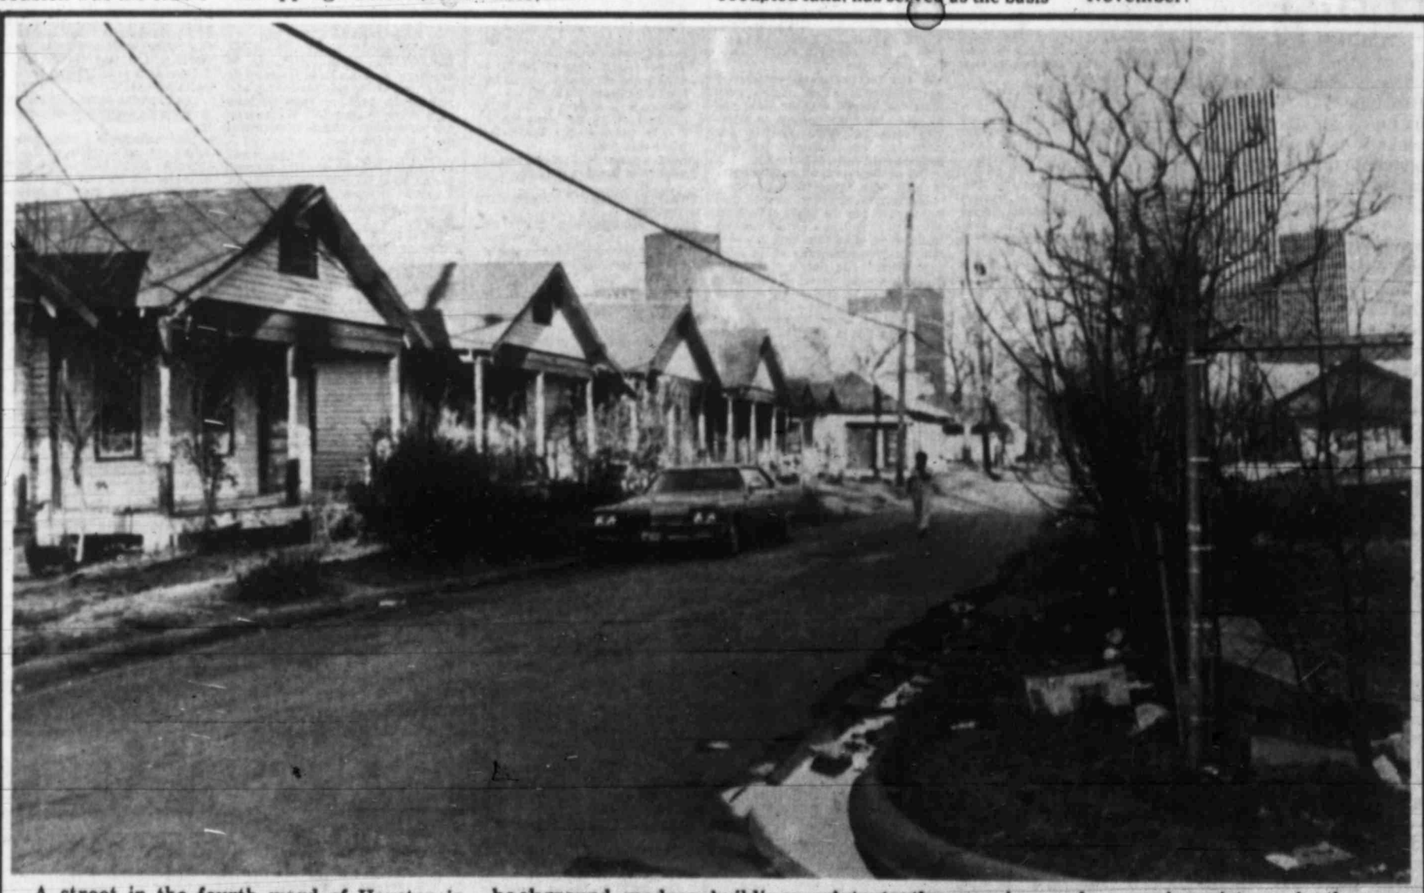
Ambassador Mengiste Desta said the Ethiopians had advanced to the frontier of northern Somalia 60 miles east of Jijiga, the crossroads town whose fall last Sunday signaled the collapse of the 7½-month Somali drive to annex the Somali-populated Ogaden region of southeastern Ethiopia.

Ethiopia has pledged not to take its Soviet-and Cuban-backed offensive into Somalia, but Desta predicted that if Ethiopian conditions for a "lasting peace" were not met, "there will be a recurrence of the guerrilla war and the Somalis will send troops to invade us again."

After Somalia's announcement Thursday that it would withdraw its soldiers from the Ogaden, Ethiopia said a ceasefire could only be reached if Somalia accepted the boundary between the two states as permanent.

In addition, Desta said, Ethiopia demands that Somalia renounce its claims to parts of Kenya and Djibouti, pay compensation for what Ethiopia estimated as $275 million in war damage in the Ogaden and give a pledge of non-interference in Ethiopia's affairs.

In Somalia's capital, Mogadishu, the secretary general of the rebel Western Somali Liberation Front — the Ogaden rebel group — said Somalia's troop withdrawal would not bring peace, but rather "more bloodshed and war. The masses will continue to wage the war until complete success, no matter how long or how many sacrifices it takes."



A street in the fourth ward of Houston is lined with rundown frame houses while in the background modern buildings relate to the city's wealth. The city has a scarcity of social services and economic assistance for the poor. (AP Laserphoto)

Houston's poverty mars city

HOUSTON (AP) — In this city where growth and prosperity know no bounds, pockets of poverty and inner-city decay stand out like mud splattered on a velvet cushion.

Houston may be the nation's healthiest and wealthist city. But for its poor, Houston is a city of contrasts.

Houston is called by some the "golden buckle on the Sun Belt." Oil rigs pump black gold from beneath the city. The jobless rate is low; average incomes are high. The city has a population of 1.5 million, a metropolitan area population of nearly 2.3 million and a growth rate of nearly 20 percent, making it one of the nation's fastest growing cities.

Despite this economic vitality, poverty persists for a small segment of the black and Hispanic communities. Even among these groups the city's booming economy has left most families in comfortable circumstances; as a result, according to poverty workers, the true poor are increasingly isolated and often ignored.

The jobless rate in one large inner-city area — comprising perhaps one-seventh of Houston — is about 8 percent, far above the citywide rate of 4.5 percent. Researcher Marshall Kaplan says, "Within this area are 25,000 unemployed, more than all but eight cities in the country."

While many older Northern cities have developed extensive social programs to ease the plight of the urban poor, Houston's disadvantaged are perhaps a victim of their city's prosperity.

"Houston is growing so fast that we can't do the day-to-day cosmetic work," says Judson Robinson Jr., the only black on the City Council. "Streets, sewers, water lines — we can't keep up. We forget that the city's underbelly is hurting."

In Houston and throughout Texas, welfare and unemployment benefits are low, and city services are scarce. The city has done little to develop social programs; many officials point to New York City's money problems saying it was social largesse that created them.

Public transportation here is poor. Job training programs are hard to find. Health service for the poor is inadequate. As elsewhere, the poor live in the oldest housing in town, and when the city's temperatures reached historic lows in February it was a chilly reminder that many homes have no heat.

"You go into the 4th Ward and you can't believe it's Houston," says Mayor James McConn, who told an inaugural audience this winter that his first priority is to rebuild the deterioriating inner city. "Allen Parkway Village is a disgrace. We can walk around my neighborhood and I'll show you blight you can't believe."

Hutchinson's future wife cheers for political upset

WASHINGTON (AP) — In November of 1961, Kay Bailey stood on the sidelines and watched a monumental upset in the making. Her Texas Longhorns, undefeated and stampedeing toward a probable national championship, stumbled over lowly TCU by a 6-0 score.

This November, Miss Bailey, 35, will be on the political sidelines cheering for another upset.

"I think we have an excellent chance to win," she said this week from her Washington office where she is the acting director of the National Transportation Safety Board. "The Republicans have gotten from 42 percent to 49 percent of the vote in the last few (gubernatorial) races and I believe Ray can get that additional 10 percent."

The future Mrs. Hutchinson has a record of backing winners, that dismal autumn afternoon against TCU notwithstanding.

Following her graduation from Texas' Law School in 1967, she went to work for KPRC-TV in Houston as a political correspondent.

"I just walked in off the street and applied for a job," she explained. "Since I had a law degree and since they thought they needed to hire a woman, they hired me to cover the state legislature."

After a one-year stint as press secretary to Anne Armstrong, then co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, Miss Bailey launched her own political career. Carrying Republican banners, she was elected to the Texas House in 1972 and again in 1974.

"That's where I met Ray. We were both freshmen (in the legislature) in 1972 and had offices in the same suite."

The two had planned to marry in September of last year but when Webster Todd resigned as chairman of the National Transportation Board, Miss Bailey was automatically promoted from vice-chairman to acting chairman.

She had been appointed to the board in 1976 by then President Gerald Ford on the strength of her record of championing transportation causes through the Texas legislature. "Plus I was a Republican and a woman."

In a resignation letter sent last week to President Carter, the former Texas cheerleader said she would like to leave her post by April 7 but agreed to stay on until the Senate confirmed Carter's nominee to replace her.

In 1976 she was named one of Glamour Magazine's 10 Outstanding Working Women in America. This year, she was named Woman of the Year by Houston Baptist University.

Talks succeed despite U.S., Turk head says

MONTREUX, Switzerland (AP) — Premier Bulent Ecevit of Turkey said Saturday his meeting with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis was a success despite what he called an "unfortunate" attempt by the United States to influence the talks.

Ecevit referred to a recent statement by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance linking the lifting of a U.S. arms embargo against Turkey to the outcome of the Montreux talks on GreekTurkish problems and to Turkey's Cyprus policy. The U.S. Congress imposed the embargo on Turkey after it invaded Cyprus in 1974 following a Greek-led coup against the Cypriot government.

Speaking to reporters, Ecevit voiced bitter disappointment with the Carter administration for what he called a "surprise in the negative sense in the midst of our friendly and constructive talks."

Ecevit said he and Caramanlis believe their countries should be left alone to solve their own differences without outside interference.

In Turkish capital of Ankara, the government announced that an official protest had been lodged with the United States because of the Vance statement.

The two leaders wound up more than seven hours of discussions Saturday, pledging to continue high-level contacts to restore friendly relations between the two feuding NATO allies. They did not, however, announce any concrete achievements. Caramanlis left for Athens without issuing a statement on the talks and Ecevit remained in Switzerland another day.

Greek and Turkish sources said the two leaders covered the entire range of bilateral issues, including the dispute over oil exploration rights in the Aegean Sea, Aegean airspace and the problem of minorities. The Cyprus question was touched on briefly, they said, but both sides stressed that the future of the Mediterreanean island rests with the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities.

"From the statement by Mr. Vance, we cannot help getting the feeling that American policy was involved even in the discussion we were having tetea-tete at Montreux," Ecevit said.

Roxanne wrong choice

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Women's rights advocates who supported Roxanne Gay reluctantly have admitted they picked the wrong woman on whom to focus national attention about the plight of battered wives.

Several feminist groups were attracted to the case after Mrs. Gay claimed she killed her husband, professional football player Blenda Gay, because he abused her.

But in testimony last week in Camden County Court, not a scrap of evidence confirmed that the 6-foot-5, 255-pound Philadelphia Eagles lineman had ever battered his 5-foot-1 wife.

Instead, Mrs. Gay was portrayed as a jealous, suspicious and fear-ridden woman who slashed her husband's throat Dec. 20, 1976, because she suffered delusions that he plotted with her family and police to have the Mafia kill her. Psychiatrists called her a paranoid schizophrenic.

Judge I.V. DiMartino dismissed the murder charges Friday and ruled Mrs. Gay was legally insane at the time of the murder.

"We were behind Roxanne in the beginning as a battered woman," said Janice Miller of the Women's Resources and Survival Center in Keyport, which raised $3,000 for her defense. "We're supporting her now simply as a woman."

"There was never an issue of wife beating," said prosecutor Philip Seaton. "It was just a tragic story of a woman with a lot of problems and a man who couldn't help her."

Camden County Public Defender H. Ian Wachstein said he had been contacted by several women's groups who believed the case should focus on the battered wife issue.

NOTICE AND ORDER OF SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION OF THE MIDLAND INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in and throughout the Midland Independent School District on the 1st day of April, 1978, for the purpose of electing trustees to fill positions 3 and 4:

Position No. 3 on the Board of Trustees of the Midland Independent School District to succeed Mr. Johnny R. Warren whose term is expiring; and, Position No. 4 on the Board of Trustees of the Midland Independent School District to succeed Mr. Don L. Sparks whose term is expiring.

ORDER FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION

WHEREAS, it is necessary for the Board of Trustees to pass an order establishing the procedure for filing and conducting said Trustee Election;

NOW, THEREFORE, be it on this the 14th day of February, 1978, ORDERED by the Board of Trustees of the Midland Independent School District that an election be held within the Midland Independent School District on April 1, 1978, between the hours of 7:00 o'clock a.m. and 7:00 o'clock p.m. for the purpose of electing trustees to fill Positions Nos. 3 and 4 respectively, of the Board of Trustees of the Midland Independent School District.

Any persons desiring election for a position on the Board of Trustees shall, no less than thirty (30) days prior to the date of said election, that day being March 1, 1978, file with the Board of Trustees written notice announcing his or her candidacy. Such person shall designate in the written notice and request to have his or her name placed on the official ballot the number of the position on the Board of Trustees for which he or she desires to become a candidate. All candidates shall have their names printed on the official ballot beneath the number of the position so designated.

A person who does not file said notice and request within the time aforesaid shall not be entitled to have his or her name printed upon the official ballot to be used at the election. All candidates for trustee in the election shall be voted upon and elected separately for positions on the Board of Trustees, and all candidates shall be designated on the official ballot according to the number of the position to which they seek election. No person shall be elected as a trustee unless he or she is a qualified voter.

"OFFICIAL BALLOT FOR THE PURPOSE OF ELECTING TRUSTEES OF THE MIDLAND INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT"

and also the designating number of each position to be filed, namely, Positions Nos. 3 and 4, with the list of candidates under the position to which they respectively seek election. The names of the candidates for each position shall be arranged by lot.

The candidates shall be elected by majority vote, as provided for by law.

The results of the first election shall be canvassed by the Board of Trustees within five (5) days after the election. In the event of no candidate in a position receives a majority of the votes cast therein, the Board of Trustees orders a special run-off election to be held on April 22, 1978, and shall cause the names of the two (2) candidates receiving the highest number of votes in any position in which no candidate received a majority to be placed on the ballot as candidates for that position. The special election shall be held and conducted in the manner prescribed by law for regular trustee elections.

At the election called herein each qualified voter shall vote for only one (1) candidate for each position. The election shall be held in the following election precincts which are all of the election precincts within the boundaries and limits of the Midland Independent School District. The following places are designated as polling places in the respective precincts and the following named persons are appointed as officers to hold the election in the respective precincts:

Polling Precinct	Polling Place	Election Precincts	Presiding Officers
1	Fire Station #3 1710 N. Edwards Street	1,10,12	Mrs. Sonya Scholl Mr. Clarence Meekins

Special Canvassing Board: Mr. R. J. Paxton, Mr. J. R. Smith and Mr. Mel Butler

The first named person in each precinct described above shall be the presiding judge, and the second named person shall be the alternate presiding judge. The presiding judges, clerk for absentee voting, and presiding officer of the special canvassing board shall appoint such number of assistants, clerks, and deputies to assist in the conduct of the election as are permitted by law.

The voting at such election shall be by voting machines adopted by the Commissioners Court of Midland County, Texas, for use in elections held in the County.

Absentee votes shall be cast at the office of the Clerk for Absentee Voting, named herein, at the Business Office of the Midland Independent School District; 702 North "N" Street, Midland, Texas, and counted by the Special Canvassing Board herein appointed pursuant to Texas Election Code, Article 7.14, Section 7A. Voters who are eligible to vote absentee by personal appearance shall vote by voting machine, and voters who are eligible to vote absentee by mail shall vote by appropriate paper ballots. Requests for absentee ballots by mail should be directed in writing to: Clerk for Absentee Voting, Mr. Don R. Purgason, 702 North "N" Street, Midland, Texas 79701, Attention: Absentee Voting. Absentee balloting will begin on March 13, 1978, at 8:00 o'clock a.m. and continue through March 28, 1978, concluding at 5:00 o'clock p.m. In the event of a special run-off election the absentee balloting for this election will begin on April 16, 1978, at 8:00 o'clock a.m. and continue through April 18, 1978, concluding at 5:00 o'clock p.m. The hours for absentee voting will be those of the regular working hours of School District's Business Office.

This election shall be held and conducted pursuant to, and in conformity with the Texas Election Code.

This order shall constitute the election order for the call of the election herein described, and the same or a substantial copy of this order shall also constitute the notice of the election. The Secretary of the Board of Trustees is hereby ordered and directed to cause such notice to the election to be given in the manner and for the time required by law. Immediately after the election has been held, the officers holding the same shall make returns of the results thereof to the Board of Trustees of the School District in accordance with the general election laws of the State of Texas. The Board of Trustees shall canvass such returns to be elected to each of the two (2) named positions. In the event no person is elected by majority vote to any one of the two (2) positions, the Board of Trustees orders a special election as hereinabove provided.

PASSED AND ADOPTED this the 14th day of February, 1978.

CAREERS

CONSIDER MERRILL LYNCH

You've got a good job now, but... it isn't using your total capability... progress is limited... and pats on the back don't show up on a paycheck.

1. Your earning potential can be exceptional as a Merrill Lynch Account Executive. We can give you some eye-opening examples of how rewarding an investment sales career can be.

2. You don't have to be a financial expert to qualify. We'll invest substantial money in your training, paying you while you are in Merrill Lynch's four-month training program, so intensive and practical some graduates call it a "mini-MBA."

3. Merrill Lynch is not a brokerage house in a conventional "stocks and bonds" sense. We're a diversified financial corporation. Which means you'll have more than 30 kinds of financial products and services to offer your customers, in order to meet their individual investment needs.

What's the catch?
Just one. Your ability.

You need the ability to absorb financial information and relate it to customer needs; an ability to make decisions, handle details, communicate well—and work very hard.

You should also have a successful record of achievement in all endeavors coupled with a strong personal presentation. Sales or other related business experience a plus.

If you've got this ability, tell us. We'd like to make you a well-trained, financially sophisticated Account Executive in an exciting and prestigious field... earning what you're really worth.

WHY STRUGGLE TO GET TO THE TOP IN SOMEONE ELSE'S BUSINESS WHEN YOU CAN START AT THE TOP IN YOUR OWN?

If you have the required investment of $9,975.00, you can have your own highly successful business.

THREE BOOMING INDUSTRIES COMBINED INTO ONE

You will have income from three different sources, not just one. You will manufacture demand items for Banks, Savings & Loan Associations, Hospitals, Schools, Shopping Centers, Office Buildings, Retail Stores, Tourist Industry, Professional Buildings, Factories, Apartment Buildings, Motels, Restaurants, City, County, State, and U.S. Agencies, and other businesses too numerous to mention.

We personally install the machinery and equipment for all three industries at your location. You will be thoroughly and expertly trained in all three phases of factory operations (we guarantee your complete satisfaction).

The marketing of your products will be handled by company established sales outlets (no selling by you is necessary).

You will have a protected territory and each state will have a limited number of our factory operations — so be one of the first applicants in your area — act now — an unheard of opportunity to be in an exclusive business for yourself. Achieve total financial independence and become one of the top money makers in your area.

AMA urges rejection of diet changes

By PATSY GORDON
R-T Staff Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.—Because the American Medical Association believes that diets of the American people must not be standardized and they feel there is no decisive evidence to show the population will benefit from such a change, the AMA is opposed to the adoption of the "Dietary Goals for the United States," proposed by the now defunct Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs."

This opposition and a discussion on why the AMA is opposed was voiced by Dr. Philip L. White at the Third Annual Food and Nutrition Press Symposium held here by the Dairy Council, Inc. for food editors attending from 5 states, including Texas.

Dr. White is director of the Department of Foods and Nutrition of the AMA.

Dr. White, who has been an AMA staff member 21 years, said the AMA is "concerned about the assumptions made in the report relating to the benefits assertedly to be derived by adoption of a major change in our national dietary practices along the lines as stated in the study.

"We believe that the dietary goals as set forth in this report, which appear on this page in another story, should not be adopted at this time nor should the recommendations to implement these goals be adopted."

The report suggests that the incidence of heart disease, cancer, hypertension, diabetes, obesity and tooth decay could be reduced by changes in the American diet.

Heart disease and diet

The strongest evidence for an association between diet and any one of the ten leading causes of death in the United States is "that of diet and coronary heart disease," said Dr. White.

Coronary heart disease, said White, is a multifactor condition, but those risk factors considered to be of greatest importance have been age, sex, hypertension, elevated serum cholesterol level, diabetes and cigarette smoking.

Cancer and fiber intake

Another disease category which would allegedly be influenced by adoption of the dietary goals as set out in the report is cancer. The report suggests a link between consumption of fiber and the existence of bowel cancer. "While data shows a correlation between high fat intake and cancer of the colon, the case against high fat intake is weak because there are populations that have a high fat intake but little cancer.

"Furthermore," said White, "high fat intake has not been identified as a risk factor in breast cancer. As to dietary fibers, there is no scientific consensus on the definition of them or their measurements. Fiber is a general term applied to several different food components that vary in their chemical and physical characteristics. It is not yet possible to define whether fiber deficiency or excess exist in the diet."

Hypertension and salt

Another alleged benefit from the adoption of the dietary goals is, in the view of the report, a favorable change in the incidence of hypertension by setting a goal of consumption of three grams of salt daily.

"Difficulties arise in attempting to recommend a suitable range for dietary salt because of the tremendous range of tolerance in normal human beings, the widely different levels of salt appetite and the cultural significance which salt has in relation to food," pointed out Dr. White.

The effects of salt consumption, as stated by the Committee on Nutrition of the American Academy of Pediatrics, is as follows: "For 80 per cent of the population in this country, present salt intake has not been demonstrated to be harmful; that is, hypertension has not developed."

Organizations such as the American Heart Association and the American National Red Cross, and civic groups have been actively involved in mass screening programs to detect elevated blood pressure, a risk factor in hypertension, and thus bring about proper treatment.

"Most patients with hypertension," said White, "can be effectively treated, their blood pressure lowered and their risk of death and adverse effects reduced. Medical management for some patients may include sodium restriction or calorie restriction or both."

Diabetes and weight control

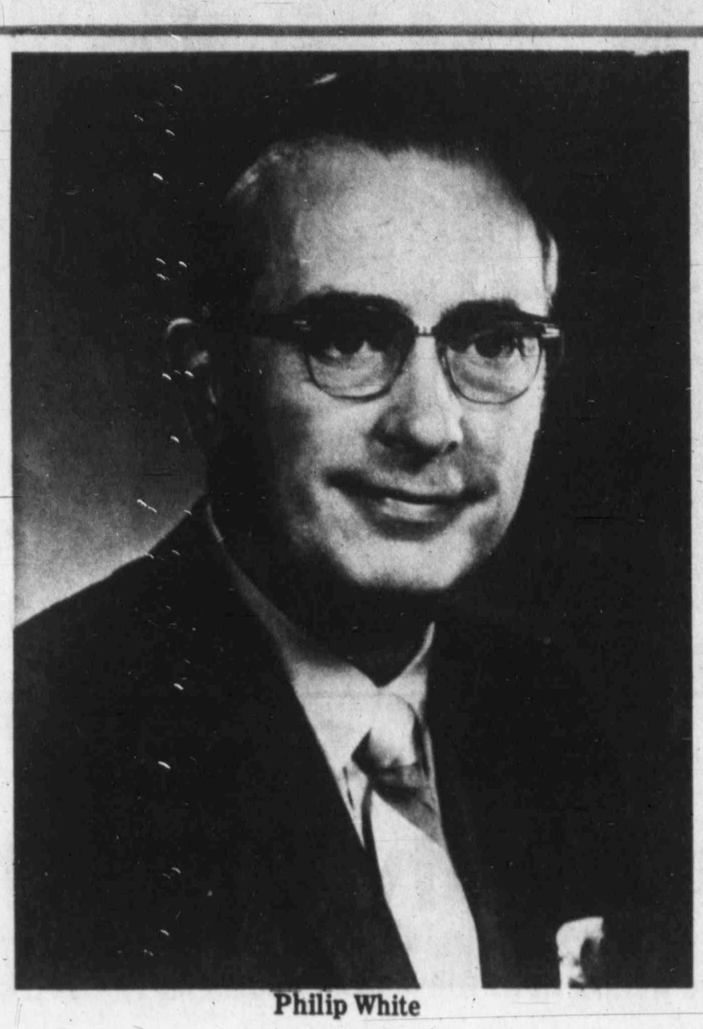
"The primary emphasis in the dietary management in of the individual diabetic patient is weight control through appropriate reduction rather than the proportion of carbohydrates and fat in the diet as the report suggests. Diets to control diabetes (or other conditions) must be tailored to meet individual needs rather than seeking a uniform diet for all," explained the past president of the Society for Nutrition Education.



Philip White

"The American Medical Association does not consider it appropriate for the government to adopt national goals that specify such matters as the amount and proportions of total fat, type of fat, sugar, cholesterol, or salt content in the diets of the general public as these national goals advocate.

Dr. Philip White

Obesity and carbohydrates

The main dietary determinant of obesity, another condition addressed by the report, is "total amount of calories (energy) in the diet and not their source (that is, whether or not the calories are provided by carobydrates, fat or protein), said White.

"Those suffering from obesity should seek individual medical advice and, where appropriate, follow a prescribed individual diet. Adoption of national dietary goals is not an answer to obesity and could prove detrimental if followed by individuals properly requiring medical supervision for their particular condition," White added.

In conclusion, White said "the AMA does not consider it appropriate for the government to adopt national goals that specify such matters as the amount and proportions of total fat, type of fat, sugar, cholesterol or salt content in the diets of the general public as these national goals advocate.

"Rather, we believe that individual programs to prevent or to treat obesity through decreased caloric intake along with programs aimed at improving physical fitness would be the most effective means of improving the health of our American citizens.

"As to the recommendations stated in the report, we (AMA) believe they should not be adopted in implementation of the national goals. As stated, the recommendations would encourage the Federal government to undertake a massive, nationwide educational program to gain public acceptance and incorporation of the dietary goals as personal goals.

"Furthermore, the recommendations carry with them the underlying potential for prohibiting the sale or for discouraging the agricultural production of certain food products which may not, in the view of the government, be supportive of the dietary goals.

"We, (the AMA) urge the report not be adopted."

Dairy Council tells people of choices

Dairy Council, Inc. (DCI) is a non-profit education and communications organization regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

DCI's goal is to get people to make wise food choices using the Four Food Group system devised by the USDA. Proper daily selections from each group—meet the Recommended Dietary Allowances established by the Food and Nutrition Board of The National Academy of Sciences.

A professionally trained staff of 35 registered dietitians and home economists work in 19 regional offices to serve 21 million consumers in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and parts of Kansas, Tennessee and Mississippi. Nutrition programs are presented unconditionally to professionals in education, health, science and mass communications. The practical skills, information and materials provided these leaders help teach and communicate good eating habits to people of all cultural backgrounds.

DCI is sponsored by funds collected from the dairy industry in the Southwest. The dairy farmers benefit from the education and communication programs since milk and dairy foods are an important part of the Four Food Groups. Consumers benefit from the nutrition information they receive.

The organization works with National Dairy Council, Dairy Council units in the United States and other interested nutrition groups to meet industry and consumer needs.

Dairy Council does no paid consumer advertising nor does it promote milk beyond its place in the Four Food Groups.

The Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs released "Dietary Goals for the United States" in January 1977.

Since that time a great deal of discussion about both the committee and its report has made the proposal the most important nutrition event of that year. The committee document proposes extensive changes in the American diet, which if adopted, will also produce alterations in the economic balance of American agriculture, say some observers.

It has been said that the goals were developed by the committee to show the Senate as a whole what important work the was committee doing and to persuade that body to keep the committee, scheduled to die Dec. 31, alive. The Senate, however, decided to disband the committee on schedule. This defeat might have caused the "Goals" to disappear into government archives forever without action by the government, but for others who took the cause to President Carter to turn into national policy, yet undone.

In the opinion of many, such a step would affect all government activities in nutrition such as food programs, the 25 million meals the federal government serves each day, livestock raising, funding of research programs such as American Heart Association and American Cancer Society, and dental research programs. In general, it will tend to freeze nutrition knowledge in its present state.

—Reduce saturated fat consumption to account for about 10 per cent of total energy intake; and balance that with poly-unsaturat and mono-unsaturated fats, which should account for about 10 per cent of energy intake each.

—Reduce sugar consumption by about 40 per cent to account for about 15 per cent of total energy intake.

—Reduce salt consumption by about 50 to 85 per cent to approximately three grams a day.

The goals suggest the following changes in food selection and preparation: increase consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grains, decrease consumption of meat and increase consumption of poultry and fish, decrease consumption of foods high in fat and partially substitute poly-unsaturated fat for saturated fat and substitute non-fat milk for whole milk.

1. Fund nutrition education for schools and school food service workers to be presented by the Extension Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

2. In addition to current nutrition labeling, require per cent and type of fats, per cent of sugar, milligrams of cholesterol, milligrams of salt, caloric content and complete listing of food additives.

3. Fund studies and pilot projects to developing new techniques in food processing and institutional and home meal preparation to reduce dietary "risk factors."

4. Increase funds for human nutrition research and establish a committee to coordinate the human research done by USDA and HEW.

5. For a joint USDA-HEW committee to consider the "implications of nutritional health concerns on agricultural policy."

The report's major premise is found in an introductory statement to the report which reads: "...our diets have changed radically within the last 50 years, with great and often very harmful effects on our health. These dietary changes represent as great a threat to public health as smoking. Too much fat, too much sugar or salt, can be and are linked directly to heart disease, cancer, obesity, and stroke, among other killer diseases. In all, six of the ten leading causes of death in the United States have been linked to our diet."

The report further suggests that the incidence of heart disease, cancer, hypertension, obesity, diabetes, and tooth decay could be reduced by making qualitative and quantitative changes in "the American diet."

"...our diets have changed radically within the last 50 years, with great and often very harmful effects on our health. These dietary changes represent as great a threat to public health as smoking. In all, six of the ten leading causes of death in the United States have been linked to our diet."

66 years of camping, cooking, crafts, cookies celebrated by Scouts

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. are celebrating the 66th anniversary of its founding, which was March 12, 1912. Girl Scout Week begins today and concludes Saturday.

Girl Scouting is a girl-centered organization that is an integral part of the community. It is a sharing among youth and adult volunteers of an informal education process based on proven ethical values that help expand a girl's horizon.

Its program offers a wide choice of activities, tuned to the interests of today's girls—activities that stimulate self-discovery and self-confidence, give opportunities for community service, provide fun and friendships and help develop skills.

Midland Girl Scouts have varied activities, including a Brownie Girl Scout Choir that is proving fun for Brownies that want to participate. The ones who do attend weeks of music and singing training with Carole Ann Hall as their director and leaders of troops working with the choir members. There are 50 Brownies singing in this choir and they recently sang for the Midland Independent School District board meeting and the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council annual meeting. Any organization wishing to have them sing are asked to contact the Midland Girl Scout Service Center at 684-6222.

Junior Girl Scout Gail Griffin of Troop 320 sold 400 boxes of Girl Scout cookies in the recent annual sale. Selling cookies teaches the Scouts how to meet the public, take care of handling orders properly and learning to count money and accept responsibility. Profits from the cookie sale go to the individual troop and also help to maintain Mitre Peak and Hat-A-Day Ranch camps.

Girl Scouts, the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world, is open to all girls ages 6-17 or in grades one through 12 who subscribe to its ideals as stated in the Girl Scout Promise and Law. There are more than three million members, with one out of every nine girls in the United States a Girl Scout.

Brownies are ages 6-8 or grades 1-3; juniors, ages 9-11 or grades 4-6; Cadettes, ages 12-14 or grades 7-9 and Seniors are ages 14-7 or grades 9-12. Campus Girl Scouts are young adult students serving in the community through local Girl Scout councils. Troops on Foreign Soil (TOFS) are in 53 countries and are daughters of U. S. military and civilian families living abroad.

Some 557,000 adult members (women and men) serve as leaders, consultants, board members and staff specialists in the areas of child development, outdoor education and recreation education for Girl Scouts in 159,000 troops throughout the U.S.

The traditional house-wife mother has been and still is the mainstay of the Girl Scout volunteers. But what has changed is that husband and wife teams and career women and men, young singles and retired persons also are appearing on the scene to lead Girl Scouts. Also the housewife-mother volunteer leader also is, in many instances, the fashion designer, artist, secretary, probate judge, et cetera. They are all Girl Scout personalities adding to the Girl Scout educational program through its volunteers.

The Midland Girl Scout executive board is headed by Mrs. Ken Steward, coordinator. Other members are Mrs. Bill Gallagher, public relations coordinator, and Mrs. Gary Gililland, secretary Neighborhood chairmen are Mrs. John Josefy, Mrs. Benton Howell, Mrs. Tom Scott, Mrs. Ray Bailey, Mrs. Charles Henson, Mrs. Janet Niblett and Mrs. Danny O'Grady.

Staff worker is Mrs. Joe Warren, Midland field executive, and Betty Moore works in the Midland Scout Office as secretary.

Controversy arises over USDA proposal to ban fortified products

By MARIAN BURROS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — When children in some rural areas board buses for school in the morning, they are offered not only a seat but "breakfast:" a half-pint of milk plus a fortified donut, cupcake or a similar confection.

These items, termed "formulated grain-fruit products," were made eligible in 1974 for the school breakfast program, a program that will cost the federal government $200 million this year. They have been a subject of controversy ever since and now an attempt to ban them from the program has created controversy too.

Products with names like Huzzah!, Morning Break and Super Donut were conceived as alternatives to the "conventional" school breakfast, which provides a serving of fruit, bread product or cereal in addition to milk. The manufacturers say USDA asked them to develop these products for use in schools unable to supply the conventional breakfast because of a lack of facilities. Now, under a new administration, Agriculture wants to get rid of them and the manufacturers are angry.

When the Department of Agriculture originally proposed adding the fortified products to the breakfast program in which 2.6 million children participate, public comments were overwhelmingly opposed to their inclusion. Feeding children such foods runs counter to nutrition education, protested, since children are unable to distinguish between fortified high-sugar, high-fat foods and their lookalikes (often called "junk" foods) which do not contain added nutrients. USDA ignored the negative comments and approved their use.

Then last August, USDA proposed banning the so-called "breakfast bars" from the school breakfast program. The explanation was that their withdrawal "will promote the development of good food habits in the furtherance of nutrition education through a well-balanced diet of conventional foods." Public comment has been overwhelmingly in favor of the proposal. Out of 154 comments USDA received, 112 support the ban.

The Grocery Manufacturers Association (GMA), at the request of Morton Foods, a division of ITT-Continental, and Keebler Baking Company — two of the big producers of these grain-fruit products — has launched a public-relations campaign to prevent USDA from going through with the ban. They have targeted for attention members of the Congressional Black Caucus, hoping to force hearings that will either prevent the ban or at least delay it.

GMA has hired a minority public relations firm, Vanguard Associates of Minneapolis, for the job. The breakfast bars are used most frequently in both rural and inner-city schools where there are large numbers of minority and disadvantaged children.

GMA has an official statement which it makes to all inquiries regarding its interest in the proposed ban and its hiring of Vanguard. "We feel our association with Vanguard is especially sound because of our mutual concern that the withdrawal of these products will have a direct effect upon feeding the minority and disadvantaged children who participate in the breakfast program in schools which do not have facilities for serving a conventional breakfast. These, of course, are the very children and schools for whom this product was developed."

Kathy Ehrman, expresses her company's interest more strongly: "We became involved with GMA because of our outrage, and that's exactly what it was, because potentially hundreds of thousands of disadvantaged children would be deprived of a nutritious breakfast. We viewed this action (USDA's) as being arbitrary and socially insensitive."

Asked if the withdrawal of the products would mean these children would go without breakfast, neither Ehrman nor GMA spokesman Jim May was able to answer the question. Yet neither GMA nor the Agriculture Department is aware of any school in which these formulated products are served five days a week.

The custom is to serve them two or three times, offering other choices from the accepted list of school breakfasts on the remaining days of the school week. School food service personnel who want to keep them in the program cite convenience, speed and low cost as reasons for using them. Said one North Carolina school food service offifficial: "I doubt that anyone would starve without them."

But the GMA-Vanguard lobbying effort implies otherwise. According to Ehrman, Vanguard is "contracting large black religious and fraternal organizations to bring the proposed ban to their attention. We are asking them to help us in getting a delay on the ban until congressional hearings can be held."

FRAC (Food Research and Action Center), a non-profit public-interest law firm which is concerned with government feeding programs for the poor, has launched its own lobbying effort. It has asked anti-hunger and low-income groups to write USDA in support of the withdrawal.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., is one House member who has been approached by Keebler. According to Tim Hetz, a member of Chisholm's staff, the company "wanted us to endorse their idea of a breakfast bar. They allege that the nutrition bars are very useful in inner-city schools without facilities to prepare breakfast."

Chisholm disagrees. She has circulated a memo to the Black Caucus, which often relies on her on nutrition matters, endorsing USDA's planned withdrawal.

STITCHING WITCHERY

If size wrong, then improvise

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

When ready-to-wear sizes frustrate us, we often must improvise — as did this reader from Oakland, N.J.

Dear Mrs. Kinser:

In two sweater seats I bought, the jackets fit OK but the shells were too tight (I don't know why sizes in ready-mades can be so confusing). To make the shells looser, I knitted two strips of matching yarn with fine needles in the stockinette stitch and inserted a strip in each side seam. The knitted strips can be made any width. Mine are about two inches wide. Allow for seam allowances. — Doris P. Wilson.

For those of us who do not knit, Doris, here is a "second-best" idea. Insert two-inch-wide knit trim in each side seam. Not as nifty as a matching knitted insert, but better than being squeezed to death by a shell.

Dear Mrs. Kinser:

I am looking for a pattern for an eyeglass case. I have some lovely damask swatches from which I would like to make cases. McCall's has one, but it is in with a lot of other articles I don't care about. — Mrs. Fochler, Los Angeles

Besides the McCall's patterns, there is also one in Vogue (1703) and one in Simplicity (7735), but these, too, come with other items.

Eyeglass cases are very easy to make (unless you want to get real fancy). Just cut one rectangle as wide as needed and twice as long. Fold in half crosswise, right sides together, stitch up two long sides. Turn right side out and bind open edges with pretty trim.

Trio teams up again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Producer Joseph E. Levine, director Richard Attenborough and writer William Goldman, who last brought you "A Bridge Too Far," have teamed up again for "Magic."

The love story stars Anthony Hopkins, Ann-Margret and Burgess Meredith. Production is now under way in Northern California.

City 4-H'er places in District 6 Food Show

CRANE — Eight Midland County 4-H'ers participated in the 4-H District 6 Food Show Contest held in Crane. The girls must complete a foods and nutrition project in the county and be a winner at the county food show.

Lynn Chamberlin of Midland placed first in the side dish group and will compete in the state contest in June at Texas A&M University. She prepared Chinese Romaine Salad.

The girls are scored on the dish they prepare, a day's menu they write and their knowledge of nutrition.

CHINESE ROMAINE SALAD

1 or 2 heads Romaine lettuce, shredded
1 can bean sprouts, drained
1 can sliced mushrooms
1 cup fresh tomato, hopped
8 slices bacon (cooked and crumbled)
2 tablespoons green onions, chopped
½ cup slivered almonds (optional, but adds crunch)

Dressing

1 oz. soy sauce
Juice of ½ lemon
½ teaspoon Accent

Wash and dry lettuce; shred. Place on salad plate. Drain sprouts bean and Chinese vegetables; slice mushrooms, if not already sliced. Chop tomato. Cook bacon until crisp; drain, then crumble. Chop onion.

Mix together mayonnaise, soy sauce, lemon juice and Accent. Lightly toss dressing with drained bean sprouts, vegetables and onion. Salad is better if these vegetables marinate in dressing for several hours; however, it may be used at once, if need be.

HOME EC NOTES

Combine scraps of nylon net and terry cloth to make good dishcloths that will also work as scratchers. Cut one thickness of terry cloth and put a layer of nylon net on both sides and bind edges. These may be made in round, square or oblong shaps.

Fashionable sewing program to be given

The Family Living Committee, home demonstration clubs and the Extension Service of Midland County are sponsoring a program entitled "Sew Fashionable For Spring '78" that will provide the latest information on this question.

The same program will be held twice, with the first at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Midland Room of The Midland National Bank. The program will be presented again at 7:30 p.m. the same day in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

Accessories for spring '78 will be presented by Linda Bond, producer and co-host of KOSA-TV's "High Noon" show. Formerly a fashion editor for Woman's Wear Daily, she presently is the southwest editor for several fashion trade magazines, and is working on a masters degree in mass communications at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Betty Martin, representing Leggett Fabrics of Odessa, will present fabric trends for this spring. She will show fashionable spring fabrics, putting the emphasis on natural fibers such as cotton, linen and silk. She also will give tips on how to select today's fabric for an attractive garment that is an asset to the wardrobe.

Mrs. Martin has had extensive experience in the clothing industry, having been a buyer for Macy's in Kansas City, Mo., Charles A. Stephen's in Chicago and Neusteters in Denver. She holds a B.A. degree from Misaouri Valley College.

Fit is one aspect of sewing that "makes or breaks" the garment, particularly pants. Taking body measurements to determine the right pattern size, making pattern adjustments before cutting out the pattern and fitting adjustments for the garment will also be included in the program and presented by Becky Culp, area clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Mrs. Culp's topic will be "Fashion Directives Spring '78" and "Pants—Fit or Misfit."

Mrs. Culp works with extension agents in 55 West Texas counties in all subject matter in the areas of clothing and textiles. She holds a B.S. and M.S. degrees in clothing and textiles and home economics education from Texas Tech University.

Festival slated by area group

MCCAMEY—The annual Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the McCamey Woman's Study Club will be held from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. March 23 and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. March 24 in the McCamey Park Building.

All area artists are invited to participate by displaying their arts and crafts, and people in the area are invited to attend.

Further information can be obtained by telephoning Mrs. F. C. Bolen, 652-3342, or Mrs. A. E. Bradshaw, 652-3579.

Women of coal strikers working

By STRAT DOUTHAT

MADISON, W.Va. (AP) — Women have always worked hard in Appalachia. They have raised the kids, canned the corn and nursed the injured mining men. Now, in the ever leaner days of the coal strike, they are working to survive.

Like hundreds of miners' wives, Jane Burns, 21, has become the family breadwinner during the 93-day-old strike.

"We're living on my salary," she said in an interview at the auto agency where she works as a $100-a-week secretary. "It's not much, but it keeps us going—barely."

Edith Burgess, a veteran of nearly 30 years of strikes and labor strife, is still feeding her family steak and roasts, even though they have received no food stamps and her husband, Roy, has not had a paycheck since last December.

"We bought a whole beef right before the strike," said Mrs. Burgess. "Of course, the meat is beginning to run low now, just like our savings."

The Burgesses, who have reared four children, said they had $5,000 in the bank when the strike began.

Is Mrs. Burgess pushing her husband to return to work?

"No, indeed!" she said. "Some women may be pushing their husbands but I'm not one of them. I want him to get a good contract."

"But you couldn't blame some of the wives if they were pushing," said her husband. "We own our own home and have some savings, but some families didn't have anything saved up for this strike, especially the younger miners just starting out."

"We've been married for three years and we've got a lot of payments," she said. "We've got rent to pay, and payments on the pickup in addition to our food and utilities. Because of my job, we didn't qualify for food stamps."

She said she and her husband have been staying home.

SAND, SEED GARDEN CLUB

Mrs. Drake announced the center will have a bake sale, bazaar and plant sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 12. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of reed screens and an exhaust fan for the center's greenhouse. She also stated there will be a work day on the center grounds from 9 a.m. to noon March 31.

Mrs. Drake will attend the District I spring convention of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., March 28-29 in Lubbock. The club voted to send a check in lieu of items for the convention's "Trash and Treasure Sale."

Karen Burkett, Alice Coombes and Kay Cromwell attended as guests, and Mrs. Burkett became a new member.

BOOK REVIEW UNIT

Dorothy H. Perkins, poet and retired teacher, presented a program on "A Patchwork of Poetry" for the Book Review Unit of the Midland Woman's Club in in the clubhouse.

She included in her discussion of poets, those living in Midland. In her discussion of poetry, she said poetry is the oldest form of communication and is the heart beat to the soul.

Hostesses were members of the hospitality committee: Mrs. J. R. Emmons, Mrs. Keys Curry, Mrs. Robert M. Turner and Mrs. Ray Trammell.

Mrs. L. T. Barnett was in charge of the springtime decorations. Mrs. Bettie Schuler played the piano during the luncheon, and the president, Mrs. Stanley Erskine, read a poem about spring.

Mrs. C. E. Bissell, vice president, introduced two new members, Mrs. John P. Hawkes and Mrs. James T. Smith.

The vice president of the Midland Woman's Club, Mrs. I. W. Hynd, announced the club will have a Family Easter Parade Luncheon at 11:45 a.m. Thursday.

Mrs. Marvin McCree gave the nominating committee report, and Mrs. Fran Birdwell reported for the by laws and revisions committee.

Mrs. Birdwell also announced the Midland Camera Club will have a tea from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday to open an exhibit in the club during March of photography in black and white and color.

On display in the foyer were linen, felt and silk calendars made by Mrs. Emilie Perkins, mother of Mrs. Charles Lutrick.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHER

(Sun., Mar. 12)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time of minor aspects--by taking it easy and doing the little things that can make life easier for you, it is nevertheless possible for you to get much of value done. You can take more time to mull important matters over in your mind for by so doing you get much more accurate and satisfactory answers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study some practical aspects of your life and know how to have greater income in the future. Know where to make improvements to projects on hand and plan them now. Be happy in social circles.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever will improve your appearance and health. Then be out with good friends who could be of help to you in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Work yourself out of restricting conditions now and be happier, plan for a better existence in the days ahead. Do favors for the most important persons in your life.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time for civic work that will give you prestige and make your life easier as well. Make a bigwig understand you want more work to do, add to your income.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is best to handle small details now even though you as a Leo are always concentrating on thinking big. Situations come to the fore so that you know best how to proceed.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan time to study into some projects that can bring you greater success in the future. Study a vexing situation form all angles and come to the right conclusion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Making new arrangements that will make you more prosperous and happy in the future is wise. Avoid that troublemaker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your monetary position and plan to have greater abundance in the future. Use extreme care in motion today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can easily handle matters at home that will take up your time and energy. Sidestep one who wants to undermine your efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go to the right sources for the data you need in order to become more successful in career work. Make the evening a happy one.

Stump weds Malone

Dellwood Baptist Church was the setting for the marriage at 7 p.m. Saturday of Lee Ann Stump and James Rell Malone.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry R. Stump, 3513 Seaboard St., and Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Malone of Lubbock.

The Rev. Chapman Davis of Dellwood Baptist Church and the Rev. Jerry Allen of Arizona performed the double ring ceremony. The music was furnished by DelRae Stump, organist; Phyliss Bryant, pianist, and Becky Compton, soloist.

The matron of honor was Sharon Malone of Lubbock, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Toni Cook was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Brenda Stump, sister of the bride.

The brother of the bridegroom, Dell Malone of Lubbock, was the best man, the groomsmen were Brian Malone of Lubbock, brother of the bridegroom, and Tim Looney of Lubbock.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a colonial A-line gown of Chantilly and Alencon laces. The fitted Empire bodice was enhanced with a deep silk sheer yoke edged with a deep silk ruffle. Lace formed a ring neckline and traced the cuffs of the slim sleeves. The A-line skirt was gathered in the back to form a chapel train. Deep scallops with silk ruffles below the Alencon lace formed a double ruffled hemline the length of the train. Chantilly lace edged the full-length mantilla of French illusion which was gathered to a matching lace and pearl Camelot headdress. She carried a semi-cascade of yellow roses and white carnations with baby's breath.

The bride is a graduate of Lee High School and is employed by Thornton's Department Store. The bridegroom is a graduate of New Deal High School and is employed by Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

Monica Christiansen marries McClintock

DALLAS — Monica Ann Christiansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack T. Christiansen of Brighton, Colo., became the bride of Harry Porter McClintock III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. McClintock of Dallas, formerly of Midland, at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The Rev. William T. Boand officiated for the double ring ceremony, which was held in the Preston Hollow Presbyterian Church of Dallas. Robert Goodwin was the organist.

Pamela Rice was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Janet Frederick of Scottsbluff, Neb., Susan Gdowski of Lincoln, Neb., and Kay McClintock of Arlington, sister of the bridegroom.

Thomas McAdow of Houston was the best man. The groomsmen were Randall Moore, Bruce Peterson and John Sturman of Fort Worth. The ushers were Sparky Christiansen of Denver, Colo., brother of the bride, and Steve Hausheer of Chicago, Ill.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a cotton knit gown with Venise lace designed along princess lines. The bodice had bishop sleeves edged with lace. She carried gardenias with white Sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The couple is residing in Dallas. A wedding trip to Hawaii is planned in May.

"Thank you, Pat Walker, for giving me a new life!"

After: 84-¼" lost, 70-¼ pounds lost

70¾ lbs. and 84¾ inches later, Barbara Alarcon says:

"I used to think some people were fat, others skinny and that you couldn't change what you were. Pat Walker's has proved me so wrong and am I glad. People used to tell me I had large bones, but as it turned out, underneath the fat was a small frame. Thank you, Pat Walker for giving me a new life. Other people think more highly of me now, and as for me, I have a self-confidence I've never had."

Deb Carter trimmed down to size 3 the sensible way — at Pat Walker's

Deb Carter says she never had a weight problem until two years ago, when she gradually started gaining weight. After all the fad diets and exercises she tried ended in failure, she decided to get professional help at Pat Walker's.

The counseling and support Deb received from the Pat Walker staff helped her revise her eating habits. Passive exercise on the Pat Walker unit was simple but effective.

As a result, Deb has lost 32-¼ inches and 28 pounds — and now wears size 3 clothes! She urges others to join the Pat Walker program and see how easy it is to lose weight.

Camp Fire Girls do the giving

Camp Fire Girls will be pulling a switch when they celebrate their 68th birthday this week, March 12-18. Instead of doing the traditional receiving associated with celebrations, the group will be giving of themselves to others.

Each group has planned projects where they will show their thanks to various people and organizations in the community. These include presenting civic leaders with a birthday cake, and delivering flowers they made to new mothers at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Camp Fire Girls was founded March 17, 1910 by Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick. To mark that date, March 17 will be proclaimed in Midland as Camp Fire Girls Day.

The United Way agency was started in 1965 in Midland and has 185 girls and 70 adult leaders.

The program is divided into the following levels: Blue Birds, ages 6-8; Adventure, ages 9-11; Discovery, ages 12-13, and Horizon, ages 14 and older.

Projects cover the areas of business, citizenship, home, creative arts, outdoors, sports and games.

Welcoming Adventure Club member Dani Dyer to the Sunday morning worship service is Rev. Bill Weir, associate minister at the First United Methodist Church. The group planned to attend the service in observance of Camp Fire Girls Sunday.

CLUB NEWS ROUNDUP

"Silhouettes in America" was the program presented by Mrs. Edwin Watts to members of Lt. William Brewer Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. Watts, a member of Col. Theunis Dey chapter, discussed the history of silhouettes and showed examples of famous silhouettists Master Hubard, Samuel Metford, William Henry Brown, August Edouart and Charles Wilson Peale. Shown were hollow-cut, cut and paste and painted types with various backgrounds.

Dr. Dorothy Wyvell, national defense chairman, said two-thirds of the transit through the Panama Canal is American and that Panama is the base and repair center for American ships in the area. Nicaragua has offered to allow a second canal to be dug, but if the treaty is passed by Congress, no other canal can be dug.

Mrs. Lee B. Park read notes of appreciation from Julie Wheat and Barbara Tompson, last year's scholarship recipients. She also recommended programs for March on the Public Broadcasting System.

Plans were announced for a March style show.

AT WIT'S END

All parents are struck dumb

BY ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a parent alive who hasn't been struck down in their prime by a condition called "Terminal Dumb."

For some of us, it was a cruel blow. One day my mother was a bright, intelligent, worthwhile human being with something to contribute to society. That woman could do anything and I believed her. She could make the traffic light turn green by blowing on it, cure my scraped knee by kissing it, and knew every answer to every question you could imagine.

Then one morning she woke up and she didn't know anything.

There wasn't an ounce of logic to anything she said. ("Wear boots. It's raining.") She became repetitous ("Close the door.").

Her grammar was so bad she once used the word "seen" without a helping verb and I had to correct her before a roomful of company.

She couldn't remember things anymore. One day when she didn't remember that my sister got to lick the pan or her 14th birthday and got a watch and I only a boughten cake and a dresser set, I lost all respect for her. I was amazed she could feed herself.

Luckily, after I was married, my mother pulled lout of it. It was like a miracle. She got hold of herself and was once again able to carry on a conversation without being corrected, make a move without criticism and really began to understand and appreciate me.

I hadn't thought much about the disease until the other night at dinner when I said, "Do you know what I'm thinking of?"

"Don't end a sentence with a preposition, mother, and sit up straight. You're slouching. Your spine will grow that way."

"You are always criticizing me," I said. "You're making me psychotic."

"You misuse that word all the time," said my son. "Why don't you look it up?"

"I wish all of you would get off my case and stop prosecuting me."

"DON'T SPELL IN FRONT OF ME!"

I have a feeling that my mind has slipped out of my primetime spot temporarily. I don't know how long before my miraculous revovery takes place, but hopefully it will be soon...for their safety.

JUSTIN WILSON, who has been the "Cajun King" of the dinner circuit some time, will entertain at the Crystal Ball to benefit High Sky-Girls Ranch. The ball will be held April 6 in Midland Country Club. Wilson has a unique style of story telling, mixed with clever anecdotes. He has his own syndicated television show and Cajun cookbook.

Scientists probe perfume mystery

By BOB CORBETT
Copley News Service

Why do men follow the scent of Chanel No. 5? It's a question that bothers Dr. Daniel Koshland of the University of California at Berkeley.

It's not simply a matter of voyeurism for Koshland. To him, the attraction of perfume represents a basic cellular response to an outside stimulus.

Such responses are common to all living organisms, he said, from man to the single cell bacteria and an understanding of these response mechanisms could have great meaning to medical researchers.

In man, Koshland said in an interview, the responses are highly complicated and difficult to sort out. As a result, he has turned to the simple bacteria to see if he can find basic patterns in the process.

He hopes the processes of the bacteria will ultimately shed light on the human process. Recent evidence, he said, indicates that such a linkup is not all that impossible.

For bacteria, he explained, this simply means that they migrate toward good things like oxygen and food and away from toxic compounds. In humans, he said, it explains why they avoid pain and pursue pleasure.

Mrs. Cliff Murray

Miss Wooten weds Murray

Golf Course Road Church of Christ Chapel was the setting for the exchange of vows between Deborah Ann Wooten of 3001 W. Ohio St. and Cliff Murray. Don Davis officiated the double ring ceremony held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Wooten of Washington, Mich. and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm C. Murray of Searcy Ark.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Qiana jersey fashioned with a fitted bodice featuring a high lace band neckline. The silky Venise lace spilled down the bodice and slender sleeves. The half-circle skirt had a chapel train, and the waltz-length mantilla had matching lace around the face finished with a band of satin.

Ushers were Roelf Ruffler and Steve Manley, both of Midland.

After a wedding trip to South and Central Texas, the couple will live at 507 W. Storey St.

DEAR ABBY

Friend's help aided depressed woman

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a single, middle-aged female (no family) who is recovering from a depression of several months and I'm so grateful to be feeling good again. Life was so dreary for some time, but with the help of a psychiatrist, prescribed medication, time and a friend, the future looks cheerful.

The reason for this letter is to let people know what they can do if a friend or loved one finds himself (or herself) in a depression.

1. Keep in contact. A phone call just to ask how I was kept me going.

2. Send cheery notes or cards. (Some days all I received were bills and junk mail.)

3. Encourage your depressed friend to get dressed and get out of the house. Even a walk around the block helps. Some days I left my apartment only to see my doctor or buy a TV dinner.

4. Invite the sick person out for a meal. It doesn't have to be fancy—anything will be appreciated. If your invitation is refused, perhaps just the idea of getting dressed and getting to your home is too much. Tell them you will pick them up even if you live only a block away. Convince them you want their company.

5. If they haven't sought medical help, encourage them to do so. And never ask them what the doctor said. Therapy is a very personal thing.

6. Never tell a depressed person that they should "snap out of it" or that nobody can help them—they have to help themselves. (I thought if one more person told me that, I would scream!)

Above all, let the sick person know that you care about them. People have a hard time pulling themselves out of a depression when they feel that nobody cares.

Thank God for my one concerned friend. Without her, I never would have made it.—SMILING AGAIN

DEAR SMILING: And thank you for an excellent letter.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a rare coin collection. Recently we noticed that four half-dollars were missing. Their total value is more than $300.

The only person who has been alone in our house is a 14-year-old neighbor boy who sits with our children. This boy's parsnts are good friends of ours and we wouldn't want to lose their friendship over this.

My husband says we should hide the collection and keep quiet about the missing coins. I say we should confront the boy's parents. I am sure the boy doesn't realize the value of the coins he took. What should we do?—STUMPED

DEAR STOMPED: Whether the r $300 is beside the point. The boy himself should be confronted. Leave his parents out of it.

VISIBLE WOMAN

Looking for love in classifieds

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

It's a sunny, pleasant restaurant. A woman enters, glances around, then approaches a gentleman who already is waiting.

"You must be Joe (or Harry or Bill)." After introducing themselves, the couple is seated for lunch, and they've enacted another step of a surprising process.

When a friend told me she was having lunch with a man who'd answered her personal advertisment, I was astounded. She was one of the most attractive, sociable women I'd ever known. Divorced and the mother of two nice children, as far as I'd known, she'd never lacked for dates.

"But I haven't been meeting the type of man I'm really interested in. Everyone's doing it, you know," she said. I didn't know. Single women and men may be meeting through the Personals, but they weren't talking about it when I was around.

When an acquaintance began dating a good-looking bachelor in my husband's office, I began to realize how widespread the practice is. They both ski, both are interested in backpacking, each has an interest in art. Surely, I thought, one of these activities brought them together. Not so. He ran an advertisement, describing the sort of woman he was looking for; she read the note, felt she met the requirements, and answered.

It seems a risky way to meet people, but according to those who do it, it's much safer than singles bars, clubs, or chance.

"You don't even have to give your name, address, or telephone number when you run the ad. Replies come to a newspaper box number.

"You screen the applicants, then call or drop a note to the ones who are interesting. If things go well on the phone, you meet at a well-lit, public place, and proceed from there, " explained one cautious soul.

There are different styles in newspaper courtship. One woman never runs ads herself, but watches the ads and replies to those that appeal to her. Another woman, successful designer and well-educated woman, placed her own advertisement.

"It was a marvelous, creative experience, describing myself the way I hope others see me. It also helps you visualize the sort of man you want. It takes a lot of self-confidence."

The results were excellent. She met several nice men, and now is dating a refined, non-smoking fellow who plays raquetball. Just what she wanted. Just what she never found in her singles apartment complace.

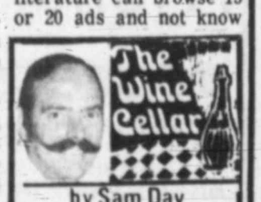
Why would an attractive, competent woman find dates in the classified ads?

"Because it saves time and trouble." explained the designer. Singles bars bored her. "The cigarette smoke and drinking is ruinous to my health."

It can takes weeks or months to find out what a person wants from a relationship. In ad advertisement, there is some idea of what a person is like and what her or she wants, from the outset.

Out of a voyerish curiosity, I began reading the ads, and found that some of them, at least, were straightforward. "Attractive Jewish lady looking for man, 65 to 70, for companionship," began one notice. Another described an Oriental woman, interested in tennis and music, who hoped to meet a man interested in marriage. The underground and give-away newspapers run advertisements with comic relief. "Luke looking for Leia" or "Apollo seeks Diana" are among the more repeatable ads. Readers not versed in mythylogy, science fiction or C.S. Lewis literature can browse 15 or 20 ads and not know what they've read, and maybe that's the point. It's entertaining reading, whether you're partnerhunting or not.

What seems like looking for a prize in a Cracker Jack Box apparently works out. The women who do this feel they have greater control over their love lives, and men apparently feel the same.



The Wine Cellar

by Sam Day

American drink much less wine than most Europeans but we have much more choice of our wines than do people from other countries. If you lived in Rome, it would be hard for you to find a German wine. In Germany, only German wines are readily available. In Spain, you could not easily find a bottle of French wine. And a Frenchman living in Bordeaux would even have a tough time buying a bottle of Burgundy. But in the United States, most wine stores stock wines from 15 to 20 countries with up to 500 different varieties.

And indeed, at IMPERIAL LIQUORS, 3209 W. Wadley, 694-4256 you'll find the full gamut of imported and domestic wines for your selection. Let us help you select the appropriate wine to compliment your Easter dinner. We also feature a wide array of beers, liquors and party goods. Look for the moustache in the drive-up window. Open: 10-9 Mon-Sat.

Handy Hint:
Red wines go well with most cheeses.

Secretaries seminar begins Thursday with registration

The Permian Chapter of the National Secretaries Association Thursday will sponsor two outstanding businesswomen who will conduct a seminar entitled "Everyone Needs His Own Security Blanket."

The seminar will be held in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton, beginning at 8 a.m. for registration. The registration fee is $15 for NSA members and $20 for non-members. This includes seminar materials, coffee break and luncheon. Office equipment will be exhibited by Midland companies.

Lenore S. Forti, certified professional secretary, is administrative assistant to Calvin E. Rowley of the J. L. Hudson Co. in Detroit, Mich., and Bertha Stronach, CPS, is word processing training manager for the Office Products Division of IBM in Franklin Lakes, N.J. These women are experienced in all aspects of the secretarial field and present seminars for management, secretaries and educators across the United States and abroad, according to Doris Gallagher, seminar publicity chairman.

The seminar is open to all secretaries and office personnel in the Permian Basin.

Registrations can be sent to Dot Milner, Box 136, Midland, 79702. Additional information can be obtained by dialing Nelda Timberlake, seminar chairman, at 682-1657 or 683-1416, or Doris Gallagher at 682-1929 or 682-6081.

Jail now art center

HANFORD, Calif. — You know it's a jail when you first see the old brick and granite structure with its barred windows and tower for solitary confinement.

The jail has been called the bastille by local residents ever since it opened in 1898. It has been home for murderers, thieves, safecrackers, burglars and wife-baters.

The last prisoners moved out of the old Kings County jail in 1964 to a new $1 million facility on the other side of town.

The keys to the old jail were handed over to the Kings County Art League and ever since then, the building has been the Bastille Art Gallery.

The reception room and main holding tank downstairs are used to display paintings by local artists. In the tower, behind prison bars, YWCA and Kings County Art League classes are conducted daily.

"It works out just fine," said instructor Shirley Walzem. "It's a nice quiet place and centrally located.

Editor-photographer to keynote UTPB communications seminar

ODESSA — Arthur Rothstein, photographer and associate editor of "Parade" magazine, will be keynote speaker for the third annual Mass Comnunications Seminar at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin Monday.

Registration begins at 8 a. m. Rothstein's main address will be at 8 p. m.

Dr. Robert Rothstein, chairman of mass communications at UTPB, said the purpose of the seninar is to acquaint area students with facilities avdilable at UTFB, especially in mass connunications.

"We bring in several hundred high school and junior college students, and they get to meet not only media celebrities and the faculty of UTPB, but they are also introduced to a practical approach to the field," he said.

Arthur Rothstein is best remembered for photographs of the Depression years taken while he was working for the Farm Security Administration.

He has won more than 30 photography awards. Among his contributions to communication technique is the development of a three-dimensional printing technique that was acclaimed by Saturday Review as "the first major breakthrough in printing technology since the 15th century."

Members of area news media will serve as panelists during the workshop. Sessions will be conducted in areas relating to radio, television, yearbook and newspaper.

"Lisa's Lovelies," a dance tedm composed of Kimberly Brown, Stephanie Worley, Karen Horn, Anisa Aguilar, Rosie Rodriguez, Laura Najar, Lauri Williamson and Melissa Payne, won a first place in competition. In the junior small twirl team division, a group of "Lisa's Lovelies" won a second place. The group consisted of Kim Watson, Yvonne Corrosco, Hilda Rodriguez and Shelly McComb.

Placing in solo events were Stephanie Worley, third place for best costume in 0-6 group; Yvonne Corrosco, fourth place in beginner basic, 9-10; Melissa Payne, first in beginner solo, 7, and fourth in best costume, 7 to 10.

Patrick's Day cards humorous

The cards are invaribaly colored some shade of green as befits the holiday, but the traditional "Best Wishes" verse is often treated with a bit of rakish wit.

TWC slates hearing on sludge disposal

Austin Bureau

Austin — The Texas Water Commission has set a hearing for 10 a.m. March 21 on the application of the city of Odessa for permission to divert waste-activated sludge from the city's sewage treatment plant to a lagoon across Monahans Draw.

The TWC has issued a temporary order for the operation and the March 21 session is to ratify the order, and make any changes which may be needed, as determined by the TWC staff.

In other action at its regular weekly meeting, the TWC continued to 10 a.m. Monday (March 13) and amendment to the waste discharge permit of the City of Monahans.

That amendment is described as a minor change, which will not substantially affect the quality of the discharge, and which does not require a public hearing.

Ringing the bell

With BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience: "End of a Saga" and "Triumph of Will." A remarkable human being died recently. He began life with what some people then regarded as a handicap. And as nationally syndicated Nick Thimmesch put it, "his was a triumph of will." He was born one of 17 children in a poor Southern family. That was in 1920 and in Pensacola.

And as the Daily Oklahoman put it: "His mother preached to her children that the only way to rise above their poverty was through education and excellence." "Chappie" James bulled his way through prejudice and closed doors. He became a fighter pilot, served in three wars and, at the end of his career, carried the responsibility of protecting us from air or missile attack--that's when he was a commander-in-chief of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD).

Chappie was 6 feet 4, 220 pounds or so and every inch and pound of him a military hawk. He flew 179 combat missions in the Korean and Vietnam wars, engaging many enemies. One morning in Korea, Chappie was shot down behind enemy lines. In the afternoon, he was rescued by Marines. That night, he was in his plane, on another combat mission.

"Chappie" was promoted by President Nixon to brigadier general, became commander of the U.S. air base in Libya just in time to be harassed and confronted by Quaddafi's revolutionary forces.

Speaking one April evening to a delegation of Daughters of the American Revolution convention, which 34 years before had denied their sacred hall to distinguished black Marian Anderson, "Chappie" noted: "I assess the progress that's very visible tonight as I stand here, and I don't have to explain that to you". Our fellow columnist describes the scene:

"Eyes went misty and old throats dry as Chappie proclaimed his love for America. 'I love her,' he said fervently. "If she is ill, I will hold her hand and bring her roses. When angry students tell me to go back to Africa, I tell them. This is my home. I was born here, an American. When black militants cry for separatism, I tell them I was once separate but equal, but I'm not going back under that blanket, no sir."

Chappie played life to the hilt. He pooh-poohed black youngsters' complaints about "barriers" reminding them that they can vote and go to any school. He chastised them for "making a career out of being black and not knowing what real suffering was all about. As NT put it: "What a man he was. He died too young."

Black Colleges in the News: Mrs. Iphigene Ochs Sulzberger, 86 year old daughter, wife, mother-in law and mother of the New York Times publishers, recently became the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities from Bishop College of Dallas in a special ceremony held in New York City.

Dear Bob: The president, board of trustees, faculty and students of Texas College request the honor of your presence at the Eighty-fourth Founders Day Celebration--Sunday afternoon,the nineteenth of March, 1978 at three o'clock. Place: Texas College Auditorium, Tyler, Texas. The scheduled main speaker is Ms. Sharnia "Tab" Buford "62," president of Freedom National Bank of New York. Presiding will be Attorney James Faison III presiding district prosecutor of Camden, N.J. Bishop C.D. Coleman, presiding prelate of the 8th Episcopal District of the C.M.E. Church and chairman of board of directors will be inducted into hall of fame with a reception to follow in the W.L.D. Building.

Area executive details differences between mental illness, retardation

By BROOKS KELLER

Mental illness and mental retardation are entirely separate problems, according to Bob Dickson, executive director of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

He and his mental health staff deal with emotional disturbances and crises and with drug and alcohol abuse.

Mental retardation occurs at or near birth, is usually a lifelong condition, is characterized by impaired intellectual development, may be treated through educational techniques and therapy, but is not curable, according to a professional pamphlet on the problem.

Because of these differences, the work of the PBCC MH-MR will be dealt with in separate articles. This one is concerned with mental health and its converse, mental illness, in the Permian Basin.

In numbers, the people served by Dickson's staff are overwhelmingly those with mental health problems. Last year they totaled 3,441 of 3,791 clients served.

"We see these people mostly on an outpatient basis, and counseling is our main therapy. We do not attempt to treat them medically," Dickson said.

"Many of them have a temporary emotional crisis brought on by a sudden and unexpected family upheaval," he added.

For severe addiction to an illegal drug such aa heroin or cocaine, or to a legal one such as Valium, Dickson said his staff would recommend a stay in one of several good hospitals in Texas specializing in this type of cure. A psychiatrist, a psychologist and trained drug abuse counselors are on the mental health staff, Dickson said. The staff is equipped to handle severe cases such as a psychotic, Dickson said. He defined a psychotic as one who has lost touch with reality.

In drug rehabilitation, no substitute drug such as Methadone is used. Counseling, group therapy and urine surveillance are the tools that seem to work.

The drug abuse program is a battle against the overuse of such drugs as heroin, cocaine, LSD, Librium, Valium and Thorazine. The unit also copes with the glue-sniffing habit.

Many people use Valium as an anti-stress crutch, not realizing the drug can be highly addictive, and that "kicking the habit" can be more painful and longer in time than breaking away from an illegal drug like heroin, Dickson noted.

Another hazard of Valium is using it in combination with alcohol, as in the famous case of Karen Ann Quinlan, as pointed out in the January issue of Dun's Review, a magazine for businessmen. Dun's said of Valium:

"This casual acceptance (of the drug) obscures some stark facts. According to the Drug Alert Warning Network of the Drug Enforcement Administration, Valium is the Number One drug involved in emergency room treatment, inpatient treatment and deaths."

One of the more vital of the MH services here is its Crisis Intervention Program, a telephone number listed in the Midland book under that name but also listed as Suicide Prevention in the book.

Trained people man this number 24 hours a day, taking sone 60 to 100 calls a month from people who range from the depreased to the truly desperate.

"Mostly, they just want reinforcement and a good listener," Dickson said. The service has been going on for eight years and has yet "to lose" a person who has threatened to commit suicide.

PBCC MH-MR serves Midland and Ector counties, and has pilot projects in Upton, Ward, Winkler and Reeves counties, Dickson pointed out.

A breakdown by sex indicates the MH staff served 1,222 males a 1,461 females last year. Alcohol and drug abuse clients numbered 693 men and 165 women.

Of age groups receiving all three services, adults between 21 and 64 years of age was by far the largest, numbering 2,485. Adolescents between 13 and 20 years were next, with 618. Children treated, with no drug or alcohol case problems, numbered 324. Senior citizens, with no drug abuse cases reported, came to 114.

Some ballots for school elections said 'improper'

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN– The secretary of state's office is finding that some ballots being prepared for the April 2 city and school elections, to be held in many Texas communities, have been improperly "perforated."

Legislation passed by the 65th Legislature last year removed the requirement that voters using paper ballots tear off, and sign a corner stub. The law which took affect on Aug. 31 thus eliminates the need for local election officials to have the upper right-hand corner of the ballot printed with a perforation.

But apparently the notice of the new law wasn't received by enough city and school officials for the first major election they will conduct since the statute took affect.

Kathy Bowman in the Secretary of State's Election Division reports "quite a few" city and school officials from across Texas have been in contact, wondering what to do since they had already printed ballots with perforated corners.

But Bowman says use of the perforated ballots is still legal, so long as the stubs are not torn off, or signed. She said local election officials are being advised to post notices where balloting takes place, explaining this fact.

She said the Secretary of State's Office was unaware that local officials did not know of the change in law, until after the filing deadline for the April 2 city and school races, and ballots were being printed.

Stubs have been used on paper ballots in Texas for decades.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner Alice, who sponsored the legislation repealing the voting requirement, argued successfully before the Legislature that signing the stub could result in voter intimidation and did nothing to sageguard against election fraud.
