Heavy Snow Watch Issued For Texas Panhandle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A heavy snow watch went up today for the northern Texas Panhandle with expected snow depths of more than four inches by Thursday morning.

The Highway Department said driving in Northwest Texas and the South Plains was becoming very hazardous.

Bridges and overpasses in several areas were iced over by midday. Highways had slick spots in places.

Light snow fell near Muleshoe, Plainview and Childress and extended to Amarillo and Pampa.

Forecasters said dangerous fog cut visibility to less than a mile at a few points.

Littlefield had three-quarters of an inch of snow on the ground shortly after dawn and Levelland had one-half inch!

Clouds covered the rest of the state and cold rain or drizzle made weather conditions dismal over much of West, North, Central and Southeast Texas.

Snow also fell here and there over an area taking in the countryside south of Hereford, west of Paducah and southwest of Plainview.

The nasty weather started developing Tuesday as light snow and sleet dotted a belt from Lubbock to Wichita Falls and showers fell at scattered points across North Texas.

Temperatures near dawn today stood at 29 degrees in Amarillo, which also had fog, and 32 at Childress, Dalhart and Lubbock. Readings in other sections ran from the higher 30s into the 50s except for a warm 61 at Brownsville.

The mercury crept no higher than 31 Tuesday afternoon at Amarillo while soaring to a springlike 85 far to the south at Brownsville and McAllen.

More snow was expected tonight and early Thursday in the Panhandle-Plains section and occasional light rain was predicted elsewhere across the state.

Forecasts called for the cold to linger in northern sections and cooler weather to spread into the south, with gusty north winds raking the coast.

J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, says the urban guerrilla presents an increasingly serious problem today.

"Today's urban guerrilla is a new type of criminal, considerably different from the old-line, traditional hoodlum, thief, and robber," says Hoover.

"His aims are not primarily loot or selfish gain (though there are instances of this), but revolution—that is, the overthrow of our democratic institutions. He rejects our law, our system of courts, our constitutional principles in the name of a 'higher revolutionary justice'—a term which can be translated as 'destruction of all who disagree with his interpretation of society.' "

On the subject of interpretations, those who lean toward a philosophical approach rather than a strict democratic process but at the same time profess to support both individual and "class" rights may be erecting a paradox that will come tumbling down one of these days. For example, using some of the doctrine espoused by critics, backers of controversial nominees to the Supreme Court some day may call attention to the fact that they represent a certain segment of the population and therefore are entitled to representation on the court in proportion to their numbers. Both the far right and the far left might invoke this argument with as much validity as philosophical and racial groups.

Being named No. 1 quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys may have inspired Roger Staubach to a remarkable achievement. In the last four games—spanning his tenure as No. 1 so far—Staubach has not had a single pass intercepted. And in those four games he has completed 53 of 94 passes for 702 yards and three touchdowns. At the same time, Roger has gained 232 yards running with the football, for an average of 9.7 per carry.

Nixon Hopes To Promote Understanding On Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key aide says President Nixon's week-long February visit to Communist China, his longest stay in any country, aims at promoting mutual understanding—not an instant settlement of the Vietnam war.

The White House announced Tuesday that Nixon and wife Pat will be in mainland China Feb. 21-28 and will visit the capital city of Peking; Shanghai, the country's largest city, and Hang Chou, a much smaller place judged a suitable site for "conversations in a less hectic atmosphere."

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the president's assistant for national security affairs, later had this to say about the purpose of Nixon's planned meetings with chairman Mao Tse-tung, Premier Chou En-Lai and others:

"There has been an agreement to discuss issues that have to do with the relaxation of tensions between the United States and the Peoples' Republic of China ... the minimum we expect to get out of this trip is a better understanding by both sides of each other's positions and a continuing means of remaining informed about these positions...."

Asked if Nixon would raise the Vietnam issue, Kissinger ducked a direct reply but said:

"We expect to settle the war in Indochina either through the progress of Vietnamization or direct negotiations with Hanoi. We do not expect to settle it in Peking."

Kissinger also said the future of the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan would be discussed. But he added, "Our position is that the ultimate disposition, the ultimate relationship of Taiwan to the Peoples' Republic of China, should be settled by direct negotiations between Taiwan and the Peoples' Republic of China."

While saying both the United States and China have agreed to talk about ways to relax tensions between them, "there is no commitment by either side to any detailed agenda."

At another point, Kissinger said there would be "a free-wheeling nature to (the) discussions" and it is "clearly understood that each leader will be free to raise whatever topic he feels is urgent."

The foreign policy aide said Nixon would spend at least four days in Peking mainly in conversations with the Chinese leader.

The precise Nixon itinerary has yet to be fixed but Kissinger said the chief executive would fly directly to and from China—stopping only on American territory en route. Somewhere in mid-Pacific, Nixon is expected to set aside a day or two—probably in the Hawaiian Islands—to accustom himself to time-zone changes.

Only a small working party, including Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, will go along.

Meir Arrives With 'Sack'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel is here to talk with President Nixon and says she's carrying "a big sack" that she obviously wants to fill with Phantom jets.

"Israel is prepared to talk about everything," she said on her arrival Tuesday night at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md. That includes "an interim Suez solution and a final peace treaty" to end the Middle East crisis.

Mrs. Meir avoided discussion of her country's request for more fighter-bombers except to say the issue will be discussed, But the "big sack" reference she made on her departure from Israel earlier in the day was clear.

The Nixon administration, despite increasing congressional pressure and the recent delivery of Soviet medium bombers to Egypt, insists the military balance in the Middle East is intact and Israel doesn't need the Phantoms.

Mrs. Meir, a 73-year-old former Milwaukee schoolteacher, is in the United States ostensibly on a private visit to help the United Jewish Appeal. She was picked up in New York by a U.S. government plane and met at Andrews by Joseph J. Sisco, assistant U.S. secretary of state for the Middle East.

The Israeli premier is scheduled to meet Thursday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and then with Nixon.

Winners In Last Contest

There were clear-cut winners of both first and second prize money in last week's Snyder Daily News football contest, the last round of the season.

Guy Staton, Route 1, Box 200, Snyder, took the first prize with only three misses. Placing second was Frank McCravey, 2906 Avenue F, who missed four selections.

The next contest will begin next September.

Bush To Run For State Representative

HOUSTON (AP) — Lawyer Cecil Paul Bush, 38, said Tuesday he will run for state representative in the 89th district here.

Bush, a Negro, is a law associate of State Sen. Barbara Jordan.

"The 89th is one of the new single-member districts," Bush said. "It just so happens that many, many people in the district are poor and they are black.

"They need someone who is going to represent them and their interests in Austin, someone they can trust to fight for them. For these reasons, I'm running."

Money Men Near Agreement

ROME (AP) — The finance ministers of France and West Germany reported today that the United States and its major trading partners—the Group of Ten—are moving closer to a settlement of the international monetary crisis.

Karl Schiller, West Germany's economics and finance minister, told newsmen that a breakthrough had been achieved Tuesday night at a meeting of the finance ministers and central bank governors from the non-Communist world's 10 richest trading nations.

"We must now prepare our fields and bring in the harvest," he added.

French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing, one of the leading critics of American proposals for a settlement, said the U.S. position now seems "rather less inflexible."

U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally also reported earlier that some progress had been made in the bargaining on a new system of foreign exchange.

Italian sources said Connally had agreed for the first time to discuss as a hypothetical question what the Europeans would want if the United States included a dollar devaluation in the package. This appeared to be the basis for the French minister's remark.

American sources confirmed that the discussions today included a number of hypothetical packages, but they would not say whether devaluation of the dollar was mentioned in this context.

Conferees Trim Tax Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees have chopped from the tax bill $12 billion worth of tax-relief amendments that caused a presidential veto threat, but the conferees apparently are at odds over a provision to finance presidential campaigns with federal income taxes.

Trimmed from the bill Tuesday were what President Nixon called "budget-busting amendments" including ones providing for increases in personal income tax deductions and tax credits for ghetto businesses and for parents who pick up the tabs for their childrens' college education.

These, plus the campaign-financing plan, caused the White House to announce Monday that Nixon would reject the legislation if it reached him with them in it.

The only major item that remains to be agreed on by the conferees, who resume meetings today, is a controversial plan allowing individuals to earmark $1 of their income tax for presidential campaigns.

The money would go to all parties, but it is not as badly needed by the Republicans—who reportedly have a $40 million surplus—as by the Democrats who are said to be broke.

Democrats on the committee apparently want to retain this provision.

There was talk, however, of some modifications that could escape Nixon's veto. Sources said one possible change would make it harder for minority parties to share in the financing. One main objection to the plan is that it might aid the formation of splinter parties.

The original $26-billion bill, part of Nixon's new economic program, was passed by the House in a version reportedly acceptable to the President. But Senate Democrats added the tax-relief and campaign provisions that the White House said ballooned the bill way out of proportion.

Dropped by the conference were provisions to increase personal exemptions next year from $750 to $800, increase the low-income allowance this year from $1,050 to $1,300, allow credits for the cost of higher education and provide a credit for real estate taxes paid by the elderly.

The conference also pared provision for tax deductions allowed working parents for the cost of child care and set an across-the-board limit of $18,000 income for persons eligible for the deduction.

Mission Of Mars 2 Puzzles US Scientists

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The announcement in Moscow that a Russian capsule had landed on Mars left American scientists as puzzled as ever about the mission of the Soviet Union's Mars 2 and 3 spacecraft.

They stand ready to applaud a Soviet achievement, but until the Soviets reveal more details the significance of the feat can't be assessed.

"The question is, have they landed an instrument package on Mars that is sending back data or have they just sent down a flag?" said a scientist at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

The announcement Tuesday from Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that as Mars 2 passed within 776 miles of Mars on Saturday a capsule was separated from it and delivered to the surface of Mars a pennant showing the Soviet Union's coat of arms.

But the Russians gave no further information about the lander. They didn't say whether it contained instruments, or if the capsule survived the landing and was sending back data.

Nor did they say when Mars 3, launched nine days behind Mars 2 last May, would reach Mars.

The announcement said that Mars 2, after dispatching the capsule, went into Martian orbit and began transmitting data.

Speculation here is that an instrument package with a flag was sent to the surface, probably by parachute.

The flag, one scientist suggested, might be to salvage Soviet pride if something went wrong and the instruments were destroyed.

But if the Soviet Union has landed an instrument package, the scientists here agree, it is a significant step in the exploration of the planets.

"For everyone's sake, I hope they have landed instruments and are receiving data. If that is the case, it will be a fantastic accomplishment that we ought to take our hats off to. The entire scientific community should applaud it," said Dr. Robert Sharp, a Cal Tech geologist working with Mariner 9, the U.S. craft now orbiting Mars.

"I think they're to be heartily commended," said Dr. Carl Sagan of Cornell University, here also for study of data from Mariner 9. "Of course we want to know what sort of scientific instrumentation is on board and until we find out it's hard to assess the experimental program. But merely landing, even if there is no instrumentation is an achievement."

Grandparents shouldn't go overboard with gifts

By Abigail Van Buren

[c 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: Why do some grandparents feel that they can give their grandchildren anything they want for Christmas without even consulting the parents?

Our children have more toys than they know what to do with, and my parents have just told us what they plan to give their grandchildren for Christmas and we have told them that we disapprove. In the first place, we think the gifts are very inappropriate for our children, they are far too expensive, and we have no place to store them.

My parents say they are not asking us, they are telling us. Abby, don't you think they should respect our wishes? And what can we do about it? UPSET IN PA.

DEAR UPSET: Yes, I think your wishes should be respected. You could threaten to return any unapproved gifts and make good your threat if they insist on sending them anyway. But this would undoubtedly make it "rough sledding" for your relationship at Christmas, so I don't recommend it.

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those unfortunate women who had only sons. Out of six children, I never had one daughter. Talk about rotten luck. That was the worst. I know what I am talking about because last Christmas I knew what a broken heart felt like.

The five older boys are married, and on Christmas and Thanksgiving, too, each went to HER mother's.

My younger son has a girl friend, and he went to HER house. Not one of my sons asked me if I had plans.

I am not a whining, complaining, clinging vine type. I am self-supporting, and can look after myself. This was the first Christmas without my husband, and I thought surely one of my boys would invite me to spend Christmas with him. I'm sure if I had had daughters, things would have been different. What do you think? MOTHER OF SONS

DEAR MOTHER: It's hard to tell. Some mothers have received the same treatment from their daughters. And some sons treat their mothers like queens. The little verse, "A son is a son 'til he takes a wife, but a daughter is a daughter all her life," "ain't" necessarily so!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old man [divorced] who has been single for five years, with no desire to marry again until I met a charming 45-year-old woman [also divorced].

I plan to ask her to marry me and feel confident that she will accept. My problem: I don't feel I should buy her an engagement ring because she is already wearing diamonds on both her hands which would put to shame any diamond I could afford to buy her.

How could I handle this? UNSURE IN OAKLAND

DEAR UNSURE: Skip the engagement diamond and make up for it with a more elaborate wedding ring.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AMAZED AT YOU AND YOUR FILTHY MIND": I DID consult with psychiatrists before publishing my answer, and they agreed unanimously that no healthy-minded mother sleeps with her 11-year-old son. [And in one twin bed, yet!]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Man Is Charged In Murder

WILLIS, Tex. (AP) — Officers here have made the first arrest in seven slayings of young women in the Houston area since June.

They charged James M. Whittle, 28, a Houston wrecker driver, with the murder of a 16-year-old girl but they said he is not a suspect in the deaths of six other young women.

Whittle was accused of murder with malice in the shooting Nov. 2 of Adell Margaret Crabtree, 16. She was struck by two shotgun charges.

Miss Crabtree, from Cincinnati, Ohio, was living in Houston at the time of her death. Houston police said she was pregnant. The body was found near Conroe Nov. 3.

Montgomery County Sheriff Gene Reaves said Whittle failed a lie detector test earlier in the day. He was held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Reaves said he did not believe Whittle would be a suspect in any of the other six deaths of young women whose bodies have been found around Houston and Galveston since summer.

Meanwhile, officers searching an area near Addicks Reservoir where two bodies turned up last week, discovered a skull. They said it belonged to Gloria Gonzales, 19, whose headless body was found last Wednesday.

Harris County Sheriff C. V. Kern said the skull found near the Gonzales body Wednesday had been identified as that of Collete Wilson, 13, of Alvin. Her skeleton was located Friday as lawmen searched for additional evidence in the death of Miss Gonzales.

Also slain were:

Linda Faye Sutherlin, who disappeared Nov. 3. Her body was found four days later in a ditch beside a rural road in Brazoria county. She had been killed with a shotgun.

Maris Johnson and Debbie Ackerman, both 15-year-old pupils at Ball High School in Galveston. The bodies were found Nov. 17 in Turner's Bayou near Texas City with hands and feet bound. They had been missing a day. Each was shot in the head with a pistol.

The nude body of Brenda Jones, 14, was found floating face down in Galveston Bay in June. She had been missing about a day and had been strangled, officers said.

Officers from all over the two-county area who conferred Monday agreed that only the Gonzales and Wilson girls' deaths were related.

Cambodians Retreating

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian forces were reported in retreat today under an onslaught of North Vietnamese attacks along Highway 6 on the northeastern front.

Official reports reaching Saigon said the Cambodians had pulled out of Baray on Highway 6, about 60 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital and were retreating from Kompong Thmar, six miles farther north.

The Cambodian government called for more air support from its U.S. and South Vietnamese allies to save the imperiled 20,000 Cambodian troops isolated in pockets along more than 30 miles of Highway 6.

Hunters Successful

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Rain, hail, high winds, a couple of tornados and a packed schedule of football games couldn't keep prairie chicken hunters in the Permian Basin from getting their birds.

More than 160 hunters were successful in killing 262 birds during the two-day season in Cochran, Hockley, Yoakum and Terry counties, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said. Last year, hunters killed 231 birds.

It took an average hunting time of two hours, 48 minutes for each man to kill a bird. Hunters at check stations averaged 1.62 birds each.

Statements Issued On Campaign Costs

HOUSTON (AP) — Final statements of campaign costs for the Nov. 20 Houston school board election filed Tuesday show that the Citizens For Good Schools slate spent $122,837.

This is more than five times the $21,746 spent by the opposing Committee for Sound American Education slate.

The CGS put two of its three candidates on the school board without a runoff and their third candidate, Mrs. Karl Kamrath, led in the regular election but faces Mrs. Irene Lewis in a runoff Tuesday.

Campaign Was Costly

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. Louise Day Hicks, D-Mass., says she spent $101,703 in her unsuccessful campaign for mayor this fall.

She reported campaign contributions totaled $44,495, leaving a $57,214 liability. Mrs. Hicks said she was personally responsible for a $38,000 loan.

Boy Gets Kidney Transplant

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Surgeons worked into the early morning hours today in a kidney transplant operation that began with the death of a young boy in Maryland.

A hospital spokesman said the recipient, an unidentified San Antonio boy, 9, went into surgery late Tuesday night.

The kidney was taken from the 12-year-old son of a high ranking naval officer who died Tuesday morning in the Besthesda, Md., Naval Hospital, officials here said.

The name of the donor was not disclosed. Officials said the father had given consent for the use of his son's kidneys if the boy did not live.

Spokesmen here said a team from the Northeastern Regional Transplantation Center in Rochester, N.Y., removed the kidneys after the boy died.

Based on computerized tissue matches, one kidney was sent to Boston and the other was readied for the long trip to Texas, officials said.

Local spokesmen gave this account:

An Air Force helicopter transferred the organ from Bethesda to Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, where a Navy jet was waiting.

When the Navy jet arrived here at Kelly AFB, an Army helicopter from Ft. Sam Houston was standing by and ferried it to the County Hospital helipad.

Coordination for the airlift was arranged by still another military arm—the Texas Air National Guard.

Transplant team members placed the organ in the hospital's Belzer Renal Preservation unit, a machine that maintains the normal body function of the kidney, while tests were conducted.

The kidney had been packed in ice for the flight here. A doctor said a kidney usually is still viable even after 10 or 12 hours in a frozen state.

"A kidney can be kept alive up to 72 hours on the Belzer unit, although 56 hours is as long as we have ever required to find a matching recipient," he said.

Successful Black Women Claim No Bitterness

By ELAINE OGBURN
Raleigh News and Observer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The climb to professional success is harder for a woman than a man and more difficult still if the woman is black.

Still, several black women whose careers began in North Carolina can trace their climbs to top jobs without bitterness.

Their success stories instead tell about hard work, a fair share of self confidence and a little bit of luck.

One of them is Mrs. Dorothy [illegible] Executive Director of Wake Local Opportunities Anti-Poverty Agency.

With only a high school background, boosted by an immeasurable amount of self-confidence and drive, Mrs. Allen [illegible] her way up from among the poverty-stricken to helping the poverty-stricken.

Her early years in Cleveland, Ohio, where she went to integrated schools, did not prepare her for life in Raleigh's Southside slum area as a teenage wife.

Her husband died when she was young, and Mrs. Allen said the most tragic thing in her life was the realization she had to rear three children alone.

When she moved to Raleigh 27 years ago, Mrs. Allen said doors were not open to blacks.

"I became a maid—that was the only thing I could do. I had to eat in the basement with a separate set of silver," she said.

"I wasn't bitter. I've never been taught bitterness." Next she worked for a family for 17 years during which time she took into her home four needy youths to care for along with her own three.

Later Mrs. Allen became the first black salesclerk at J. C. Penney and eventually head of the notions department.

Despite some encounters with prejudice through her life, Mrs. Allen feels she has never been discriminated against in a job situation. In fact, being black, she believes, has played a part in her success.

"I was in the right place at the right time," she said, referring to her present two-year-old position.

"It is still a good time for the black. Times can be better, but they are the best ever right now—if you work hard and apply yourself."

She calls herself a monitor of government projects. Previously she had been deputy director and had worked at the grass roots level to help develop a community action program against poverty.

Another black woman, Mrs. Juanita Baker, is superintendent of the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women. She explains her tremendous task simply. "I am responsible for 325 inmates, 170 employes and the complete upkeep of 10 acres."

In the year and a half she has been in that position, she has expanded both study and work release plans for inmates and set up community-volunteer programs.

Mrs. Baker, 36, is a Raleigh native who grew up near the Bragg Street Correctional Center. She and her husband John, a former professional football player and now a member of the Paroles Board, used to walk by the center when they were dating.

"I never thought I might end up here," she said. It was John's family who influenced her career in corrections, she said. "His father is a policeman."

After graduating from Shaw University where she earned a B.S. degree, Mrs. Baker began teaching at the center. She moved through the ranks from eight years as a teacher of business subjects to more than a year as deputy superintendent before stepping into her present position.

Mrs. Baker said she has never been discriminated against in a job because of her skin color. She practices what her religious father taught her—"to love my fellow man."

Working in a completely integrated situation as she does, Mrs. Baker insisted, "I don't see color. I have to go home at night confident that I have made impartial decisions.

"If racial acceptance is ever going to work, this is the place for it. It's an unusual situation—the races are forced to live together. Yet I can't say everything is peaches and cream here either."

Mrs. Baker doesn't feel that it is nearly as hard for blacks to succeed as it used to be, adding, "Anybody can hide from responsibility by saying he is black."

Staff History, Contribution Of Boston Globe

NEWSPAPER STORY: One Hundred Years of the Boston Globe. By Louis Lyons. The Belknap Press of Harvard University Press. $9.95.

For those who follow journalistic history, this is an immensely detailed chronicle of the Boston Globe's century of publication.

Its nearly 500 pages are crammed with the personalized stories of the newspaper's feats, its ups and downs, its coverage of its own territory and the world. It details the careers of the three members of the Parker family who have directed it—founder Charles H., his son William O. and his grandson Davis. It also recounts the contributions of hundreds of individual reporters and editors (including Lyons himself, who was on the staff from 1919 to 1946).

The author has developed the narrative in a series of episodes, and it is remarkable how much attention he has given to the personalities on the staff, throughout the whole century. In addition, the text is well supplied with illustrations.

Although the book's main theme is journalism, it also is a contribution to the history and sociology of Boston and the nation.

Chinese Cooking Can Be Elegant

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

The beautiful wife of a Chinese general has a wardrobe of 1,500 gowns and some unique views on Oriental cookery that have been drawing patrons to two gourmet restaurants she operates in New York City.

The gowns are a hobby, but food has become such a preoccupation with Mme. Irene Kuo that she has been touring U.S. cities trying to assess the extent of regional influences on Chinese cuisine. She insists it is as refined as that of France.

Mme. Kuo has long held the theory that Chinese food should be enjoyed with fine wines rather than the tea which inevitably appears on the tables of Chinese restaurants throughout America. She also uses wine to season many of her subtly-flavored dishes.

Apparently leading gourmets agree with her views. Recently the prestigious Confrerie des Chevaliers du Tastevin gave a banquet at the Gingko Tree, one of her restaurants. It was an unprecedented move for the society which had hitherto limited itself to French fare.

The meal Mme. Kuo served ran 18 courses, lasted five hours and was accompanied by nine imported wines.

The elegant restaurateur, who takes ginger for vitality, is a great believer in food as medicine. She told me of the Chinese custom of consuming dried jelly fish for high blood pressure. She also gave me her recipe for a marinade for the classic barbecued spareribs.

SPARERIB MARINADE

¼ cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon Sherry
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons unsweetened pineapple juice
1 teaspoon sesame oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 teaspoon minced fresh ginger

Trim fat off 2 pounds spareribs kept in one piece. Mix marinade ingredients, pour over ribs and rub in both sides. Let marinate 4 hours turning occasionally. Fill shallow pan with water and place on lowest rack of oven preheated to 375 degrees. Use butcher or curtain hooks and hook ribs to highest oven rack so that they will be in standing position over water. Roast for 45 minutes, then turn to 450 degrees for another 15 minutes to brown.

Waist Back In Fashion

By ANN HENCKEN
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The tiny wasp waist is back in fashion.

Anyone who grew up in the 1950s remembers hitching up the Merry Widow waist pincher, making do on half a supply of oxygen, and wondering how Scarlett O'Hara managed.

You couldn't sit down because the bones dug into your stomach. You worried that your dancing partner could feel the harness-like stiffness. You took off the pincher at night to find deep red grooves in your skin.

Pauline Trigere offers a series of taffeta skirts with small vertical pleats around the waist. There is a coat to match. The skirts are flutter tucked and perfectly charming, but a small waist is a necessity for them.

The short cropped jacket is starring for spring at Malcolm Starr, and again it helps to be narrow where the jacket breaks.

At the new Pierre Cardin II sportswear line, there is a solid offering of pants and skirts with high waists. They are topped with very short matching jackets. Some gingham blouses sprout wide stand-up ruffles at the neck.

Prints often turn up in circular patterns. Trigere does horizontal stripes in white on a grey and white coat dress.

The Claudia for George Halley lines includes the same crisp neat waist in day clothes, with dresses and little jackets. But some evening styles still skim the body in one long fluid line.

Aerial War Under Way Between Two Systems

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — An aerial war is under way in the seemingly peaceful skies through which businessmen and tourists travel.

It involves the nation's regularly scheduled airlines and the charter, or supplemental, lines. The charter lines also are called unscheduled.

Says a spokesman for one scheduled line, referring to an industry position paper:

"The financial condition of the U.S. airlines is being eroded by the supplemental carriers. Flying whenever they want and wherever they want—at their convenience—they are taking more and more of the transatlantic business."

In 1970, he said, the six U.S. supplemental lines carried 12.5 times more passengers on the North Atlantic route than they did in 1964. The two U.S. scheduled lines carried 2.5 times more passengers in the same period.

Says Steedman Hinckley, head of Overseas National Airways, a leading charter line:

"They're taking our business away from us. Anytime we take from them it's original sin, but it's always open season on us."

The two systems have always been a bit jealous of each other.

The scheduled lines get the bulk of the business but that bulk includes some unprofitable flights, routes and seasons. The supplementals must settle for fewer flights, but these are almost always full.

If their ordinary relationship to each other wasn't irritating enough, their feelings were rubbed raw by the reduction in military flights, which hurt both scheduled and supplemental carriers.

That wasn't all. Airlines must order their planes well in advance, with one result being they are prone to over-order rather than under-order, and that is just what they did, especially with the huge 747s.

"Capacity comes in surges and waves," says Hinckley. "The 747 was one big wave, the biggest of all. It was too much too soon. The timing was unfortunate."

As he sees it, "Anytime the scheduled carriers have more seats than passengers they cut rates to compete with each other and then they come after our business."

The scheduled carriers certainly have cut their rates or plan to do so especially on the routes to Europe, but they do not concede that they are seeking the business of the supplementals. That business, they tell you, is really theirs, for they too are permitted to run charter flights.

With plenty of capacity, they say, why shouldn't the scheduled lines go after more charter business? The supplementals concede the point, but they make a very serious claim against the regular carriers.

"They have come up with below-cost loss leaders in their fare structures as though they were operating overstocked supermarkets," says Hinckley. "Their rates are noncompensatory and destructive to competition."

Hinckley claims that in their efforts to win more charter business the regular lines not only have cut advertised rates but have developed an "under-the-counter" business 30 per cent lower. He makes a passing reference to what he considers a rather low ethical level.

The scheduled lines deny their intent is to destroy competition by beating down rates to unprofitable margins, but there is little question that earnings of both types of carrier are off, perhaps dangerously so.

Hinckley maintains the supplementals can still undersell the scheduled lines. Offseason New York to London, he says, the supplementals can offer a $130 roundtrip rate, compared with the lowest scheduled rate of $180.

The charter, which must fly with all seats filled, is the most economical way to sell, he says. "If they eliminate us then the cartel is going to have higher prices when their business comes back."

Junior Editors Quiz on TRAINS

* * *

ANSWER: The caboose, at the end of a freight train, is the office of the conductor and home of the crew. It usually was red in color, but now the railroads are using other colors. It contains lanterns, shovels and other equipment. The caboose usually has a glassed-in enclosure called a crow's nest, watch tower, lookout, or cupola that sticks up about 2 feet above the roof. The conductor or brakeman sits in the cupola and checks on how the train is running.

The conductor does his book work in the caboose. He is responsible for the freight carried in the cars. He checks on the cars in the train and knows where to drop off the cars on the way. He also must know where to pick up other loaded cars and empty ones. He keeps a book with a record of each car and its destination.

The brakeman operates out of the caboose. He uses lanterns as a warning signal when the train makes a forced stop and another train may be following. The brakeman is responsible for coupling and uncoupling the cars.

Pest Problem Solution Offered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Insects are capable of developing resistance to any pesticide man produces, an entomologist reports.

Insects use different mechanisms to acquire resistance, said Dr. Robert Benson of Washington State University told the Entomological Society of America meeting Monday.

Benson said the best solution to the pest problem may be to breed and release insects with genetic defects making them susceptible to poisons or diseases. If this method were perfected, mutant genes carrying the defects would spread through generations of a pest species, he said.

Things We Could Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Some things we could all do without:

Grocery prices going up, wages standing still.

Dollars that ain't what they used to be.

Amateur harp players.

Sex brags and confessions at cocktail parties.

Clocks in bars that show the face reversed and thus further muddle the confused minds of veteran martini drinkers.

Cats at home which refuse to enjoy canned food like the amiable cats in the television commercials.

Finding that your fly-swatting average has dropped at least 20 points in the last 10 years. With old fly-swatters, it's the speed that's first to go.

Having to do without breakfast on a 30-day diet just to lose 30 ounces.

Figuring out the pension pay you'll get when you retire—and whether, in order to exist, you'll have to build a tree house on the back yard and rent your home to strangers.

Writing a love song and trying to get it published.

Going to a natural history museum with a youngster and being asked to identify by name all the dinosaurs shown there.

The comparison between the way fried onions taste when you eat them and how they feel in the stomach four hours later.

The sickly look of feigned gratitude you get from a young married couple for the silver-plated tray you gave them as a wedding gift. They assure you that of the 24 trays they got yours was the lovelist.

Reading an explanation of what the U.S. monetary policy really is—and isn't.

Shopping for a trustworthy secondhand car in an auto lot run by a dealer whose eyes are set too close together.

Getting invited to spend the weekend at the boss's country place only to discover that he gets up at 5 a.m. for a five-mile jog—and insists on having company.

Sitting on a park bench and listening to two young hippies on the other end discuss the mysteries of love and the universe.

Looking at the photos of wanted men on a post office wall and finding that at least three of them look like relatives—yours, not your wife's.

New dentures from the dentist that make you lithp when you don't whis-s-s-stle, and whis-s-s-stle when you don't lithp.

Guests who spill red wine on your new light-colored rug the day after you finish putting it down.

The high cost of low living.

Moonwalker Meets Poet

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Apollo 15 moonwalker James B. Irwin has met with the author of a poem the astronaut carried to the moon with him this summer.

Irwin spent about two hours Monday with James D. Freeman, who wrote the poem, "I Am There."

Irwin had the poem with him July 31 through Aug. 2 when he walked on the lunar surface with fellow astronaut David R. Scott.

The astronaut is in Kansas City to speak today at the 28th annual Achievement Day at William Jewell College in nearby Liberty, Mo.

The poem, about 46 lines long, was given to Irwin by his mother. Freeman is director of religious research for Unity, a religious organization.

Unitas Is Offensive Standout

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was like watching the precision of a watchmaker, the coolness of a surgeon, the flash of a swordsman, the supreme confidence of a general.

In short, it was an old pro at work.

It was Johnny Unitas of Baltimore, stepping up to the line, surveying the scene, then methodically destroying the Oakland Raiders.

He only threw the ball 16 times, completing 10 of the passes for 119 yards, and didn't connect for a touchdown in his three quarters of work—but statistics don't even begin to tell the story of Sunday's 37-14 demolition by the Colts.

Losing Coach John Madden expressed it best. "They are the world champions," he said, "and they certainly played like it."

And for his subtle, yet devastating play-calling, Unitas was selected today as The Associated Press Offensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

The 16-year veteran beat out a host of runners, including Clint Jones of Minnesota and Vic Washington and Ken Willard of San Francisco.

The man who gave Unitas the ball, center Bill Curry, said it's "exciting to play with John 'cause you never know what he's going to call.

"The guy in front of me doesn't know 'cause we don't know ourselves," he said. "You just can't type him. If you try, he'll just come up with an unexpected play—like that (10-yard) trap Tom Matte scored on.

"It looked like an obvious pass—except to John. After that kind of a play is over, you say to yourself, 'Now why didn't I think of that?'"

He didn't convert many of them for first downs—but he didn't have to. Rarely did he let things get that close.

With head fakes, trap plays, flare passes, so effective were his first-down plays—generally netting six, seven or eight yards—that the Colts usually picked up the necessary first-down yardage on the next play. It was sheer artistry.

Jones enjoyed a romp through the Minnesota snow, carrying the ball 22 times and amassing a team record-tying 155 yards as the Vikings swept past the Atlanta Falcons 24-7.

And Washington and Willard rumbled around and through the New York Jets' defense for 125 and 129 yards respectively with Washington adding 36 yards on two receptions and scoring touchdowns on a two-yard run and a 22-yard John Brodie passs as the 49ers downed the Jets 24-21.

Musso Is Star For Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., (AP) — "The way I figured it," said Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama, "he could stand on hot coals that long."

Therefore Bryant sent his ace running back, Johnny Musso, back on the field Saturday for the closing minutes of the Crimson Tide's 31-7 victory over Auburn.

Musso, playing despite a painful sprained toe that had him on crutches earlier in the week, spearheaded a ball control offense that kept Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan of Auburn on the sidelines during most of the battle of undefeated Southeastern Conference powers.

Musso, nicknamed the Italian Stallion, piled up 167 yards in 33 carries as the Tide possessed the ball for almost 42 minutes. He also scored two touchdowns and completed a pass for 17 yards, a performance that earned him acclaim today as The Associated Press National Back of the Week.

"I didn't expect him to play the whole game," said Bryant, who calls Musso the greatest running back he's ever coached. "I figure he wanted to stay in there."

"I've said a lot about Johnny throughout his Alabama career but I don't think Ive said enough or could say enough,' 'Bryant added. "He's every thing you could ever want in a football player and in a young man."

Bryant said Musso's performance against Auburn was "even more outstanding when you consider that he's gone almost a month without any real practice and was playing on a toe that would have kept many football players out of the game."

To win the weekly honor, Musso beat out several other players with brilliant performances—quarterbacks John Reaves of Florida, Jack Mildren of Oklahoma, Jim Erickson of Colorado State and Dean Carlson of Iowa State.

Seven Longhorns Make All-SWC Football Team

DALLAS (AP) — Champion Texas placed seven players on The Associated Press 1971 All-Southwest Conference football team with Coach of the Year honors going to the late Jim Pittman of Texas Christian whose Horned Frogs finished third in a late-season surge.

Joe Ferguson, Arkansas' talented quarterback, was accorded Offensive Player of the Year honors and Texas Tech's talented cornerback, Marc Dove, was awarded Defensive Player of the Year for his work in a defensive backfield that was one of the finest in the nation.

Alvin Maxson, Southern Methodist's slippery running back who led the SWC in rushing with 1,012 yards, was voted Offensive sophomore Player of the Year by the conference coaches in The AP poll. Linebacker Danny Rhodes of Arkansas was voted the Defensive Sophomore of the Year.

Offensive tackle Jerry Sisemore, offensive guard Don Crosslin, running back Jim Bertelsen, defensive tackles Greg Ploetz and Ray Dowdy, linebacker Randy Braband, and defensive back Alan Lowry won first team berths for the Longhorns on the mythical team, the most of any school.

Runnerup Arkansas landed six first team berths, including Ferguson, split end Mike Reppond, center Ron Revard, offensive tackle Mike Kelson, defensive end Ronnie Jones, and linebacker Rhodes.

Other first team offensive performers included A&M guard Leonard Forey, and running backs Stahle Vincent of Rice and Maxson. On defense, the other first teamers were end Roger Goree of Baylor, linebacker Larry Molinare, Texas Tech, and Dove, Robert Popelka of Southern Methodist and Texas A&M's David Hoot, all in the secondary.

Pittman, who was stricken with a fatal heart attack in the Baylor game, molded a team that improved rapidly under his successor, Billy Tohill. The Horned Frogs dedicated their season to Pittman and climaxed it with a last-second victory over Southern Methodist Saturday for undisputed possession of third place by the Longhorns and the Razorbacks.

Western Rally In 2nd Half Stops Bronchos

ROSWELL, N.M. — Western Texas College thumped New Mexico Military Institute for the second time this season last night with a 108-74 victory. It was the Westerners' fourth triumph in six outings.

It was close during the first half as WTC was never able to get more than a 10-point lead. Then the Bronchos began cutting into the lead and trailed by only two points, 42-40, at halftime.

The hosts went ahead in the second half 53-50, then the Westerners rallied and took a 20 point lead at 73-53, then closed with a 34 point margin.

"We stole a lot of passes and dominated the boards in the second half," declared WTC Coach Sid Simpson. Walter Hanibal grabbed 27 rebounds, 19 of them in the last 15 minutes.

"If he had played the whole game like he did the last 15 minutes, he would have set a rebounding record," Simpson said. As a team, WTC nabbed 82 rebounds.

There was good balance in the Westerner attack with five lads finishing in double figures. Hanibal was high point man with 24 points. Steve Sparks netted 15 points, Jimmy Hill meshed 13, Mike Simpson put in 12, and Mark Pearson scored 11.

The Westerners hit 36 of 80 from the floor for 45 per cent and 36 of 58 from the line for 62 per cent.

"They tried a zone, then switched to man-to-man and we really ate them up," said Simpson.

WTC made few turnovers.

The Bronchos had only two lads in double figures — Mike Pick with 25 points and Mark Wohlgemuth with 11 points.

The Westerners take on Howard County Junior College in Big Spring Thursday, then meet New Mexico Junior College at Hobbs, N.M., Saturday.

HCJC has a guard named Archie Myers who is averaging 40 points per game. Simpson said he would start Gary Henderson, 6-5 freshman from Amarillo Tascosa in place of Johnny Neff, 5-11 freshman from McAdoo in an effort to contain Myers.

"We figure we've got to put at least a 6-5 boy on him," the coach explained.

Man Held In Slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A man was held for questioning today in the slaying of a grandmother who officers said was beaten, stabbed and shot after she disappeared on Thanksgiving Day.

Officers said the man was taken into custody late Tuesday.

A deputy sheriff, seeking to serve a warrant naming a 56-year-old man, discovered the body of Rosie Lee Toliver, 35, at the man's house Monday night, investigators said.

Walls, floors and furniture in the house were spattered with blood, police said. They reported finding a bloody hunting knife in the kitchen and a rolling pin in the yard.

Mrs. Toliver, a laundry worker at Ft. Sam Houston, left her home Thursday to buy groceries but did not return, a grandson said.

Mutscher Trial Move Requested

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The prosecution has joined the defense in asking that a bribery trial involving House Speaker Gus Mutscher be moved to another county.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith filed a motion Tuesday contending that the prosecution could not get a fair trial here because Mutscher holds the "guillotine threat of raw power" over a large segment of Austin citizens—state employes—who would be part of the jury panel.

Defense attorney Frank Maloney asked last week that the trial be transferred because of extensive news coverage.

Maloney called a news conference Tuesday after Smith filed his motion. He welcomed Smith's joining in seeking a new trial site but deplored Smith's references to "powerful combinations and influences against the state (prosecution)."

Mutscher is accused of accepting a bribe from Houston promoter Frank Sharp in return for passage of two banking bills in 1969.

Mutscher also is accused together with his aide, Rush McGinty, and Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth of conspiracy to accept a bribe.

No venue motion was filed in the case of John Osorio former state insurance commissioner and former president of National Bankers Life Insurance Co., Smith said. Osorio is accused of filing a false financial statement for National Bankers Life with the insurance board.

All three cases arise from the Texas stock fraud scandal.

Smith said he expected District Court Judge Tom Blackwell to rule on the motion Thursday.

Smith said he had no preference regarding the selection of a new trial site. He said Blackwell as a matter of courtesy would move it to a county where he could find a district judge willing to accept the trial.

Asked if the trial could be held on its scheduled Jan. 10 date if it is moved, Smith said: "I don't see how the machinery could function fast enough to try it then."

In his motion, Smith said Travis County has "combinations and influences in favor of the accused such that a fair and impartial trial as between the accused and the state cannot be safely and speedily had."

He said Mutscher "Wields the power of life or death over the enactment of every law affecting the people of this state and more particularly this office effectively controls the appropriation of public funds necessary for the payment of salaries of state employes."

Colorado Party Leading

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The National party cut the lead of the ruling Colorado party to 9,389 votes today in Uruguay's presidential election, and the Electoral Court announced it would start on Friday to count the 70,000 absentee ballots that will decide the winner.

Official returns from the election Sunday gave the Colorados 591,240 votes, the Nationals 581,851, and the leftist coalition called the Broad Front 269,382.

The Electoral Court said it would work a minimum of six hours a day until the absentee ballots were processed. The registration of each voter must be checked.

The Interior Ministry denied reports that 38 ballot boxes were gone and obtained writ directing the ministry to confirm that all of them had been turned in.

It is the first time in Uruguay's history that a general election has been so close.

Cash Filming At Holy Sites

SEA OF GALILEE, Israel (AP) — Johnny Cash is making a 90-minute feature film at Christian holy sites in Israel and occupied Jordan.

"I've never seen a movie about Jesus that I really liked," says the singer. "So I thought I'd make one myself."

Cash says he has spent $500,000 and five weeks in Israel to produce a portrayal of Christ "the man, as a real man, very human, and as a divinity—very divine."

"We show him as a boy, playing with kids, we show him laughing, throwing rocks at the water. A fly lands on his nose he brushes it away. A disciple helps him get a speck of dirt out of his eye. And so on," Cash added.

Jesus is played by a nonprofessional, blond, bearded Bob Elfstrom, Ridgefield, Conn. The other actors were recruited from among Americans, British and Scandinavian youths on hitchhike tours of Israel.

Dogged by tourists thronging the holy places, Cash frequently improvised. A Garden of Gethsemane scene was done in a copse near the Sea of Galilee.

He filmed Jerusalem scenes in a deserted Palestinian refugee camp, where the aboe huts and narrow alleys have a Biblical atmosphere.

But so far, he says, "We've had a goodly share of miracles."

Cash got a storm on the Sea of Galilee the day he needed it, and a calm sea the next days. Jesus' Ascension was filmed with Elfstrom walking toward a clouded sky. As he walked, a hole opened in the clouds. "The telescopic lens turned him out of focus, and he was gone. It was beautiful."

Cash narrates and sings in the movie, and reads passages from Matthew in his rich, growling voice. He is not in the visible cast.

The "Jesus revolution," Cash says, "is the best thing that's happened to America this century ... There was a great need in the United States for a spiritual revival, because the whole country was becoming so materialistic," so consumer-product minded...."

The 39-year-old singer from Arkansas, who pioneered concerts for prison inmates and recently starred in a Western with Kirk Douglas, says his movie aims to convey the message of Christ:

"That you worship God, and that you love your neighbor."

NTSU Installs New President

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — With academic pomp, pageantry and praise, North Texas State University inaugurated Calvin Cleave (Jitter) Nolen today as president.

More than 2,000 persons, including some of the state's top political figures, attended ceremonies installing Nolen as leader of Texas' fourth-largest university.

Congratulating the board of regents for its selection, Harry Ransom, chancellor emeritus of the University of Texas system, said:

"From his student days onward, Jitter has had an unswerving concern for individuals. He has a remarkable capacity for joining, fierce institutional loyalty, with broad but not bland recognition of inter-university purposes."

In his prepared remarks, Ransom noted that job qualifications seldom include a "very special quality" which he said Nolen possesses.

"It is faith which rises above shallow optimism and expresses itself in faithfulness that includes open-mindedness and innate courtesy," he said.

Nolen, 47, brought to the presidency academic credentials only slightly beyond a bachelor's degree, but a knowledge and thirst for fund raising that money conscious regents found difficult to ignore.

"The regents opted for presidential leadership and fund raising in the same package," Nolen quipped.

Actually, Nolen, a light-hearted man of candor and flair, was chosen from among 300 candidates to guide NTSU and its 16,000 member student body through the 1970s.

At the time of his selection, he was vice-chancellor for development at Texas Christian University, a position he held three years.

The previous 18 years were spent at the University of Texas where he served in college student activities and fund raising after a student tenure as a cheerleader.

As a non-doctorate leader of a major Texas university, Nolen often is called a new breed of president, but he is not unaware that his background has its advantages.

"The chief fund raiser for any organization is the president," he said. "Any time anyone gives you money, the natural instinct is to want to talk to the head man."

Psychologists Study Behavior

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: I'm a psychology major and find it fascinating. I think young people would be interested in a discussion of the many fields in psychology — J.T., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Psychologists scientifically study human and animal behavior, and related mental and physiological processes. Thanks to the American Psychological Association for the following:

PSYCHOLOGY IS NOT PSYCHIATRY — Because psychology tends to be confused with psychiatry, a medical speciality, many people wrongly assume that psychologists concern themselves primarily with psychopathology and deviant behavior. Although some psychologists do, of course, deal with abnormal persons and phenomena, the concerns of psychology are considerably broader. Subject-matter areas include:

EXPERIMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY — a method by which a number of behavioral processes are studied — particularly learning, perception, motivation, emotion, language and thinking. Experimental methods are emphasized. Mathematical psychology, a branch of experimental psychology, deals with the development, application and evaluation of mathematical descriptions and explanations of psychological processes.

COMPARATIVE PSYCHOLOGY — comparisons of the behavior of different organisms; its scope encompasses the study of evolutionary and genetic determinants of behavior, thus giving it a close identity with the biological sciences.

PHYSIOLOGICAL PSYCHOLOGY — probes the relationship between behavior and the biological and physiological processes of the body — for example, between emotion and the function of the brain and nervous system.

SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY — concerned with human interaction in the social environment, examines such phenomena as attitude development and change, social pressures, leadership and mass movements. Group dynamics, with its increasingly broad and important social applications, is another emphasis of the area.

DEVELOPMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY — focuses on the development of the organism from its prenatal origins through old age. Child psychology is an important subarea of developmental psychology.

PSYCHOLOGY OF PERSONALITY — processes by which a person becomes a unique individual; many of the best-known theoretical statements about human behavior (those of Freud, for example) are part of its substance. Psychopathology, or abnormal psychology, is an important branch of this area; the exceptional, creative and highly effective personality is a subject of interest along with the disordered personality.

PSYCHOMETRICS — deals with development and application of procedures — for example, psychological tests — for measuring the many psychological variables which underlie and affect human behavior. This area emerged from observations of differences in behavior among individuals and has developed into a highly technical area relevant to all subject-matter areas.

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY — within the context of education, the study of such phenonena as individual differences, learning, motivation, group behavior and personality. Its principal focus is on the interaction of the child with his educational environment, but also includes the selection and training of teachers.

SPECIALITY AREAS. Whereas basic subject-matter areas define the substance of psychology, its speciality areas reflect how psychologists work with that substance. Speciality areas include: clinical psychology . . . counseling psychology . . . school psychology . . . industrial psychology . . . engineering psychology . . . and consumer psychology.

FOR MORE INFORMATION. For a single free copy of the 16-page recently revised "A Career in Psychology" send a postcard to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Ask for "Psychology." The booklet will be sent by the American Psychological Association.

High School Has Own Greenhouse

PADUCAH, Tex. (AP) — The Paducah High School has its own greenhouse, considered by Texas A&M University officials as the most modern such unit in the state.

The object is to train horticulture pupils, says Gene A. Bristo, vocational agriculture department instructor.

The greenhouse is 40x100 feet and was built during the summer.

Bristo says there are six ornamental horticulture pupils in pre-employment training, 12 in cooperative part-time training and 26 in production agriculture.

Expulsion Of Forces Opposed

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Three members of the coalition government's majority in Parliament announced opposition today to the threatened expulsion of U.S. forces from Iceland, apparently killing the leftist government's plan to close the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's base at Keflavik.

Political commentators said the defections produced a parliamentary lineup of 31 members in favor of retaining the U.S. presence and 29 ostensibly for expulsion. But they reported more members of the two non-Communist government parties privately oppose expulsion and may come out against it publicly.

The three defectors—John Skaftsson, Bjorn Palsson and Bjorn F. R. Bjornsson—are all members of Premier Olafur Johannesson's moderate Progressive party. The other members of the coalition are the Communist People's Alliance and the Liberal Left party.

Johannesson announced after he took office on July 14 that he would renegotiate the defense agreement with the United States in order to close the base which 3,700 American troops man 30 miles south of Reykjavik. He said the U.S. withdrawal would be completed before the 1975 general election.

The base is NATO's observation post for a large sector of the northern defense ring, and expansion of Soviet forces in the North Atlantic has increased its importance.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers is scheduled to arrive Saturday to discuss the base's future. He will be en route to the winter meeting of the NATO Council of Ministers in Brussels.

Carl Appointed Smith's Press Secretary

AUSTIN (AP) — Carlton Carl, sometimes referred to as Gov. Preston Smith's "resident hippie" because of his long hair, mustache and mod clothes, has been appointed Smith's acting press secretary.

Carl, 26 and a Houston native, says the references don't bother him, and that his usual retort is "flattery will get you nowhere."

He has been assistant press secretary since June 1969. He also has worked as a reporter for the Houston Chronicle and the New York Times.

He succeeds Jerry Hall, who resigned to accept a job with the public relations firm of former presidential press secretary George Christian.

Carl received a Bachelor of Arts in history and a Master's degree in journalism from Columbia University in New York City. While in graduate school he was honored as an international fellow of Columbia University. He was founder and first president of the Columbia University Club of Houston.

Too Late

HOLLISTER, Calif. (AP) — Ten members of the Hollister Elks Lodge gathered to discuss repairing a crack in the lodge's social room ceiling. They watched in horror as the ceiling gave way and crashed to the floor.

Anthony Mauro, exalted ruler of the lodge, said the men were covered with dust and plaster but escaped uninjured.

Press Corps Smaller For China Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Something like two regiments of newsmen have asked to go along" on President Nixon's historic trip to mainland China. But the White House says the press corps will be smaller than on any other presidential trip.

Even so, says national security adviser Henry A. Kissinger, it will be "much larger than anything the Chinese have confronted." Kissinger says the Chinese are doing "the maximum possible" to the extent of their technical capabilities to cope with what he called "the dimension of the intrusion that may befall them."

More than 2,000 newsmen have applied to accompany the President.

From the vantage point of two previous trips to Peking to arrange for the presidential mission, Kissinger said, "I think it is safe to say in their long history they have never come up with something like the coverage that is expected of an American president on a state visit."

Another advance team from the White House will set forth soon to work out technical and logistical arrangements. After that, the final number of the newsmen making the trip will be decided.

The seventh World Forestry Congress will be held in Buenos Aires, Oct. 4-18, 1972.

Many Vets Using Bill Of Rights

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly 7,000 veterans are enrolled in training classes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area under the new GI Bill of Rights.

Some 3,400 are taking college-level courses, while 2,800 are in vocational classes and about 500 are signed up for on-the-job training.

The U.S. Veterans Assistance Center in Dallas is processing about 100 veterans daily who want to enroll in some kind of VA-approved training. This is a 39 per cent increase over last year, and Ed Mikes, officer in charge of the center, does not expect it to level off until the middle of 1972.

"The veterans are asking for their educational benefits and they're getting them," Mikes said. "We don't tell them what they should study—we just help them to help themselves."

Mikes says any veteran who served actively in the U.S. military forces since Jan. 31, 1955, is eligible for educational assistance over a period of 36 months, providing they have 18 months or more of military service. Those who served less time are eligible for training during a shorter period.

Sadler Gets 90 Days To Reorganize

BEAUMONT (AP) — A federal judge has given the Sadler Corp. represented by former Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler, 90 days in which to reorganize under bankrupty procedures.

U. S. Dist. Court Judge William N. Steger granted the reorganization motion Tuesday on behalf of bankrupty trustee Dillard LaRue of Tyler.

Sadler filed the petition in federal court in Marshall last Sept. 10. He alleged at the time that his corporation is a "corporation that would become a bankrupt" corporation if the motion was not granted.

LaRue, an accountant, told Steger that the corporation's property has a fair market value of 1,365,200.

He said liabilities was $1,043,062 plus accrued interest through Sept. 30 in the amount of $50,611 secured by first, second and third mortgages.

The assets of the corporation include the Sadler Motor Hotel and the Sadler office building in Palestine and the Sadler ranch in Anderson County which has more than 1,000 acres.

The company expects a minimum monthly income of $5,000 from the motel, $280 from the office building and $31 from the ranch, LaRue said.

The judge gave LaRue until Feb. 29, 1972, to come up with a plan for reorganization. The corporation's business will continue until then under the trustee's direction.

Sadler had been in Texas politics sinces the late 1930s, serving has a representative, railroad commissioner and land commissioner.

Resolution Defeated

HONOLULU (AP) — A resolution calling for scrapping the electoral college in favor of direct election of the president and vice president was defeated Tuesday in the Resolutions Committee of the 48th annual congress of the National League of Cities.

The resolution, sponsored by Mayor Carlos Romero-Barcello of San Juan, P.R. also would have extended presidential voting rights to residents of U.S. possessions—Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Guam.

Robison Alarmed By 'Unconcerned'

The rash of mass murders that have struck the nation's major coastal cities are a herbinger of things to come for small towns like Snyder, according to evangelist James Robison, whose sermon Tuesday night took on a prophetic tone.

As a chilling drizzle apparently kept many residents at home by their fires, the 28-year-old Fort Worth evangelist interpreted the vacant seats at the Scurry County Coliseum as an evidence of "unconcerned Christians," whose "self-righteousness" is destined to bring down God's judgment upon the city.

"You may see the judgment of God in your little town that will literally scare you to death. And I predict that it will come," he warned.

"When people become arrogant and self-sufficient, they need breaking. And you had better pray that it will happen so that people will get right with God," he told his listeners in the third service of an eight-day crusade here.

Recounting numerous news stories of mass murders and rapes that appeared in headlines of an area newspaper Tuesday, Robison described the situation as "frightening."

"These crimes are going to start happening in small towns like Snyder. It is going to happen here," he shouted.

"It will become so commonplace that its news value will be diminshed to the point that you'll read about it in stories placed next to the classified ads," he said.

"With all your morality, you are in the process of destroying yourselves," he warned.

Recalling an interview with Dallas multi-millionaire H.L. Hunt, who offered the young evangelist the presidency of a petroleum company before he was 21 years old, Robison summed up his reason for refusal of the attractive offer.

"What good does it do to save the country from Communism if America still goes to Hell?" he asked.

Today's drug culture and the sexual revolution are evidences of people's efforts to fill the emptiness in their lives, Robison told his listeners.

"That emptiness can only be filled with the living water that Christ gives," he said.

"A lot of people have put their hand in the hand of a pastor, but they've never put their hand in the hand of the man from Galilee," Robison said.

"A lot of you put on your masks of godliness every Sunday and go to church, but you are just as empty as the man in the gutter.

"I tell you, Mr. and Mrs. Self-Righteousness, you will never get clean until you know that you are dirty.

"You will never know the truth until you know Jesus.

"Until Jesus Christ becomes your God, you are your own god. You are a self-worshiper," he said.

Nearly 200 persons have made professions of faith in Christ in the Scurry County Crusade that began Sunday night, crusade chairman Rev. Raymond Hall of Snyder announced Tuesday.

The meeting, which is being sponsored by 16 area churches of various denominations, will continue through Dec. 5, with services at 7:30 p.m.

Hereford Assn. Sale Set Dec. 6

The Sweetwater Area Hereford Association will hold its 49th annual Premium Range Bull sale Dec. 6 at the Nolan County Coliseum.

Fifty-one bulls and four cows will be offered in the sale, which is expected to draw a big turnout of ranchers and commercial operators.

Bob Gulley, president of the association, said that, due to a shortage of labor and time, about half of the bulls consigned to the sale will be sold "in their every day clothes."

Gulley served on the sale committee headed by Dub Harvey. Also on the committee are J. Paul Turner and Thomas Arlin Rosson. Trophies will be awarded to the champion bull, the reserve champion bull, champion female, champion pen of bulls. Walter Britten of College Station will be the auctioneer.

Consigners are Charles W. Creighton of Big Spring, Bob and June Gulley of Robert Lee, Jack Morton of Roby, Thomas Arlin Rosson of Sweetwater, Leland Wallace of Big Spring, Henry Webb of Bradshaw, Buchanan Herefords of Big Spring, W.D. Coleman of Miles, Harvey Ranch of Sweetwater, Arthel Henson of Tuscola, J. Paul Turner of Sweetwater, James Fox of Abilene, and Roy Henderson of Big Spring.

Yorty To View New Yortymobile

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty will get a glimpse of his new Yortymobile Thursday when he arrives for a speaking engagement at Drake University.

Forest City Millworks of Forest City, Iowa, made the Yortymobile for the mayor's campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The vehicle, a modified motor home, has a custom-designed observation platform and a rear platform which Yorty plans to use after the first of the year for whistlestop campaigning around the nation.

Crackdown On Homes Seen As Political Play

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has been accused of playing politics with the White House Conference on Aging by using it as a forum to announce a "headline-clogging" crackdown on substandard nursing homes.

"In some groups there was quite a strong feeling about the timing of this announcement," said James G. Haughton of Chicago, a co-chairman of the conference's health section.

"Many thought it would hog the headlines and put into the shadows other health issues," he said. "They regarded it as a political ploy to divert attention from other major issues of this conference."

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson announced during a conference luncheon Tuesday that 37 states and the District of Columbia risked the loss of $3.4 billion in federal Medicaid funds unless they quickly correct "substantial deficiencies" in nursing-home certification.

Richardson said the states must submit detailed corrective plans by Dec. 15 and show marked improvements in nursing home inspections and surveys by Feb. 1, or face "a non-compliance procedure that could ultimately result in withholding all federal Medicaid funds."

State inspections of all 7,000 Medicaid-licensed facilities in the nation will be required by July 1, he added.

HEW has been working intensively on the nursing home problem since late last summer when President Nixon announced that federal funds would not be spent to subsidize substandard facilities for the aged.

Minority delegates met in separate groups today to form recommendations on how to solve their "double jeopardy" of being both old and non-white.

Hurricanes' Damage High

MIAMI (AP) — The 1971 hurricane season officially is over, leaving nine deaths and an estimated $235 million of property damage in the United States.

"That's pretty small considering we had five storms in a row strike the U.S.," said National Hurricane Center forecaster Paul Hebert.

The Atlantic season ended at midnight Tuesday after spawning 12 storms—five of them hurricanes—since it began June 1. Edith, Fern, Ginger, Irene and Beth grew to hurricanes, with winds of 75 miles an hour or more.

While nine persons died in the United States, Hebert said the toll around the Caribbean is unknown.

When Hurricane Edith, the season's blockbuster, tore into Nicaragua on Sept. 9 her winds were clocked at 160 m.p.h. and she was pushing high seas.

Reports on casualties along Edith's path varied considerably, Hebert said.

While Edith was the strongest, Hurricane Doris, her predecessor, did the greatest U.S. damage by dumping torrential rains along the already soaked Eastern Seaboard.

Hurricane Ginger's 31-day life span was the longest in history.

Sessions were scheduled for blacks, Asian-Americans, Spanish-speaking Americans and American Indians, as well as for delegates concerned over such issues as blind, poor and rural old people.

Fourteen sections prepared final conference recommendations to be voted on before presentation to a general session tonight. The recommendations will be reviewed by a Cabinet-level committee and forwarded to the President.

Section chairmen said there appeared to be strong support for national health insurance, improved Medicare and Medicaid programs in the interim, a guaranteed annual income for the elderly above the official poverty level, liberalized food-stamp policies, property-tax relief for the aged and retirement policies based on physical health rather than chronological age.
