Apparently the burglary took place Sunday night for the service station had been operated all day Sunday, Entry to it was gained by sawing a 2x2-ft, slab out of the rear door. A small amount of change left in the cash register was taken. The burglars took the lock off the front door of the hardware and probably took it with them, and they prized open the back door of the home furnishings store. There they took a few knives but that seemed to be all. The ardware store has been hit more three years, the service station ed them every time.

WHAT ARE TODAY'S FACTS ABOUT NEW CAR ENGINES AND POWER STEERING?

LAST YEAR Chrysler introduced its new FirePower V-8 engine, and America's first passenger car full-time power steering. Both new ideas "took hold" in a big way.

Today, others are announcing "new engines" and "power steering" . . . but with some basic differences worth keeping in mind if you're buying a new car.

First: about "new engines." The fact is, a really new engine design happens only once in a great while. It did happen in the FirePower V-8. Its 180 h.p. was only incidental to its basic new design. Its key idea is a hemispherical combustion chamber, which makes even non-premium gasoline develop more usable power than other designs can get from premium fuel.

far mastered this design. Several cars do have some power increase, in terms of previous designs. The important fact is that FirePower is not a "warmedover" engine, but brand new in performance, construction, and efficiency.

Only Chrysler engineering has so

In power steering, too, there are basic differences. Chrysler uses hydraulic power, always in effect, to do two things. First, it does 4/5 the steering work as you turn the wheel. Second, we've cut the amount of wheel turn needed by over 1/3.

Parking or cruising, you get more and easier control than ever before. In sand, snow, or ruts, the hydraulic power is always there to keep the front wheels from "steering back" at you.

You get the same amount and feel of control all the time . . . full-time ease and full-time safety.

Actually, the differences, both in engine performance and in steering safety and ease are impossible to put in words . . . but just as impossible not to feel the moment you get into a Chrysler and drive it! Why not see your Chrysler dealer and do that, soon?

Top Texans Consider Preference Primary System For Our State and Person Dicheron leader of the Loyal Democrats of Texas, have expressed interest in the presidential preference primary as operated in New Hampshire. "I feel there ought to be a way for the people to express themselves," said the governor, "The preferential primary is an expression of the people. That's what you want and what you ought to have in a democracy."

Dickson endorsed the idea, but inserted some reservations. "It would eliminate the threat we now have of electors and delegates betraying the people," he said. "If delegates are chosen and electors elected at direct primaries, they would support the nominees of the Democratic Party without question.

Delegates to the national convention are now chosen in precinct (May 3), county (May 10) and state (May 25) conventions. The governor's insistence that the people be allowed to express themselves is belied

Both Governor Shivers, who is anti-Tru- by his demand that an uninstructed delethis year. An uninstructed delegation would mean the delegates would be free to do as they please, up to and including refusal to support the nominee of the party, whoever he might be. Most states having preferential primaries do not bind the chosen delegates to vote for anybody in particular; the primary is considered advisory. The New Hampshire law is a little stronger in this respect. A candidate for delegate may or may not agree to support any particular presidential aspirant, as he sees fit: but if he does promise to support a particular candidate, he must vote for that candidate as long as his name is before the national convention.

If Texas does adopt the plan, we believe every aspiring delegate should be required to state his choice, and to vote for that person in the national convention. Only in that way can the people's choice be

Senate Meets Its Challenge In Changing Revenue Bureau Setup

To almost everybody's surprise the reorwanization of the Internal Revenue Rureau was approved by the Senate (the vote was 53 to 37) and will become the law of the land as soon as President Truman affixes his signature.

The President's most optimistic supporters were predicting a victory margin of only two votes, hence the surprise. To defeat the bill, the opponents had to muster an absolute majority of the whole Senate, or 49 votes. They missed the mark by twelve votes. Soth Texas senators, Connally and Johnson, voted for the reform. It is probable that the opposition was beaten by a letter written some days ago by President Truman, asserting that ne senators were more interested in political patronage than in reforming the revenue bureau. This brought a hot rejoinder from Senator George (D-Ga), belwether of the opposition, but it obviously changed several senatorial minds, and produced a victory where defeat had been regarded as certain.

Under the new law the 64 tax collecting districts are reduced to 25, and all district commissioners are placed under Civil Service. All sitting commissioners are au-tomatically relieved, and if any of them win permanent status as commissioners they must pass the customary Civil Service examination in order to qualify.

The reform takes away from senators one of the choicest of patronage deals, hence the squawks from the opposition Hereafter the only appointive person in the Internal Revenue Bureau will be the director, who happens to be John B. Dunlap of Dallas, who will not be affected in his present status.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, national chairman of Citizens' Committee for the Hoover report, was elated over the Senate action, which he called "a victory for better government." Congress, he said, "has met a great responsibility squarely."

President Truman Faces Grave Decision On Mobilizer Wilson

(EDITOR'S NOTE - Just as Drew Pearson was ahead of every other newspaperman in exposing income-tax scandals, he is now the first to expose and diagnose the lagging mobilization program and the inefficiency of certain weapons. His columns on why the Navy lacks jet fighters capable of op-posing the Russian MIGs, and why the mobilization program is sagging, had Washington seething last week Here is another column in the series.)

WASHINGTON. - President Truman is now faced with one of the most uncomfortable decisions of his White House career. Within the next fev weeks, he must either read the riot act to his good friend. Defense Mobilizer Charlie Wilson -which might cause Wilson to resign-or he can sit by and watch the mobilization program continue in the doldrums.

If he does the latter, it means not only endangering the defense of the nation externally, but endangering the nation's economy internally.

For American industry, now pitched to operate in high gear, is finding fewer military orders than expected, and weak spots in the economy have begun to crop out. Already the aluminum shortage has turned to an aluminum surplus, while Belgium and Luxembourg steel, imported at high prices, is lying on the docks rusting for lack of buyers.

Charles E. Wilson, the man in charge of mobilization, is a patriotic, sometimes irritable, Irishman who worked his way up from the bottom to be head of General Electric, got to know Truman during the days of the old Truman committee, and came to Washington at considerable sacrifice to help his country.

However, there have been three big reasons for the mobilization failure: Reason No. 1 is primarily Wilson's own He has permitted the military to handle procurement instead of running things

Reason No. 2-Stems from the first; consistently inefficient military procurechiefly to fight, are placed in charge of civilian production, they nearly always the nation's productive capacity. Wilson and his advisers just did not have faith in what the nation could produce under

Result of all this is that whereas, during the war, the United States was producing 94,000 airplanes a year, today it's doubtful that we can reach a goal of 15,000 planes a year by three years after Korea. Another result is that we are woefully behind Russia in airplane production, both in types of planes and quantities. If it were not for the courage and training of American pilots, we would be out of luck in the air war over Korea.

Further result is that we have fallen far below our promises to Europe for war material. Originally we proposed supplying the material, Europe the manpower. But when we fall down on material, naturally Europe holds back on manpower. "What is the use," they argue, "of putting men in uniform when they lack modern weapons with which to fight?"

Just a little over a year ago, January 1951, military ne civilian chiefs both agreed to shoot for a goal of 1,850 planes per month and that this goal was to be attained by September 1953. This was not an unreasonable goal. Actually it repre-sented, in weight, less than the nation's rate of production at the time of Pearl

But one year later, January 1952, both Wilson and Secretary of Defense Lovett agreed that even this modest goal was unattainable. To produce 1,850 planes a month-22,200 a year-they admitted was going to be difficult.

So they convinced President Truman that the airplane goal, as of September 1953, should be reduced to 1,250 per month. Today we're producing planes at the rate of 675 per month, which compares, in weight, to about half of what we produced at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Blame for these delays is not due either the desire of the Joint Chiefs of Staff or lack of ability by American industry. The job of the Joint Chiefs is to advise the President what strength is needed to defend the nation, and they have consistently set their sights high. But between the Joint Chiefs, who do the planning, and the American factories, which do the manufacturing, there is a maze of offices generally lumped under the heading of "procurement."

The publisher of the "Herald" had arrived two weeks earlier than the man lanching the "News", But the latecomer overcame his disadvantage by printing his first issue in the baggage car of a train nearing the town; so actually the question of which was first depended upon the point of view. No Longer Any Doubt That Ike Is Now An Authentic Republican

Dewey carried New Hampshire against Truman in 1948 and lost the state to Roosevelt in 1944. The total vote was approximately the same in both elections-about 230,000. The difference between victory and defeat for Dewey was made by about 8.000 voters-round about 31/2 per cent of all who voted in the 'two elections. (The exact figures for 1944 were Roosevelt 119,-663 and Dewey 109,916; for 1948 they were Truman 107,995, to which should be added the 1,970 votes for Wallace, and Dewey 121,299.) These 8,000 who turned one way and then the other are the so-called Inde-

The claim that Esienhower is the strongest Republican candidate rests on the belief that-even more certainly than Taftwho would lose many anti-isolationist Republicans-Eisenhower would have the whole Republican vote, and that he akme can make a formidable bid for the Independents who have decided past elections, who will without any doubt at all decide this election.

The primary in New Hampshire has confirmed fully the basic argument of the Eisenhower movement. On the Republican side the primary was an unusually good test in that the total vote cast on Tuesday was about 76 per cent of Dewey's vote in 1948. In the Democratic primary, by contrast, the total vote for Truman and Kefauver was only about 34 per cent of the Truman vote in the election of 1948.

Eisenhower's victory over Taft in this very large turnout of Republicans was by a percentage which-when a candidate gets such a percentage in a national election-is described as a landslide. There is no longer any doubt, therefore, that Eisenhower is accepted as an authentic Republican. No one can doubt that Eisenhower can carry all the Republicans with him and that-in so far as New Hampshire is a sample—the Republicans will be more enthusiastic under his leadership than un der Taft's.

What happened in the Democratic primary is certainly interesting and may be very significant. The total Democratic vote was, as I have already said, very much smaller than the total Republican and 'Truman's vote-though he had the support of the regular organization-was very small indeed. It was less than 15 percent of his vote in 1948. No doubt the reason for this is that the New Hampshire Democrats stayed away from the polls in masses because they knew that win or lose in New Hampshire, Truman can dictate his own nomination at Chicago. But I think it is fair to assume that some fraction of them did not vote because they are waiting to see what the choice will be in November. This, along with Kefauver's victory over Trufan, is a strong indication that there is a very considerable trubulence in the Democratic masses this year, that is to say a reaction against the Truman administration among the Democrats and a wish among them for something different and something new

Is there any serious doubt that Eisenhower is the Republican who has by all odds the best chance to capitalize upon the discontent within the Democratic party? I do not believe anyone, not even Taft himself, would argue that he can win more Democratic votes than Eisenhower. Yet, if the Republicans are to win, they must win over Democratic votes.

Eisenhower's own position is now quite different from what it was before New Hampshire, Until Tuesday he had no right -as a soldier on active duty-to treat the informal evidences of his political popu-Iarity as a call to active political leadership. Now it is different. When he accepted the test of the New Hampshire primary, he became bound to accept the consequences of the verdict. The verdict is that he is the preferred Republican candidate of a representative portion of the Republiean party. This is a call to which he is bound to respond.

He is no longer just a very popular general: He is now an active candidate with the delegation of a state pledged to him after an open contest waged by politicians authorized to work for him. It is now, so It seems to me, his plain duty to ask the President to relieve him of his military command. He has assented to being draft ed as a candidate for President. The draft has been successful and since he is now an active candidate for public office, he should no longer be in uniform.

Whereas before New Hampshire it was his duty as a soldier not to campaignthough-it might have cost him the Presidency of the United States-now it is his duty as a soldier to retire from active military service. In deference to the very principle which he has so faithfully observed he cannot now be the supreme commander and also an active candidate for the leadership of a political party.

Under the fundamental principle of keeping the army out of politics and politics out of the army, Gen. Eisenhower's duty now is quite clear. His duty transcends his own mistake in saying that he would "never" ask to be delieved. Never is a word that men in public life ought never use without knowing clearly the whole future. Gen. Eisenhower's duty transcends also the neat little trick by which Truman and his advisers capitalized that mistake, hoping to keep the only Republican they are afraid of away from these shores.

Ireland Doesn't Have Any Snakes

Some years ago, I spoke of the old story that St. Patrick "drove the snakes out of Ireland." It was plain from my words that I looked upon the story as a

No letter of protest came to me, but I did hear of a man of Irish descent who was far from pleased. Perhaps he had listened to this tale during his boyhood, and had believed it to be a fact,

It so happens that I am partly Irish. Three of my 16 great-great-grandparents were natives of the Emerald Isle. I greatly enjoyed a visit I made to Ire land. The people were friendly and good-natured, and I was told amusing ries during my travels from Waterford to Cork, from the Lakes of Killarney to Dublin. I picked shamrocks and kissed the Blarney Stone.

Numbere did I see any snakes, and I sked an Irishman whether he had ever

"No," he replied, "except at the circus." Every continent except Antarctica has snakes, and we find them on most large islands. Great Britain has a share of them, but people have been speaking for hundreds of years about Ireland being without them.

Perhaps it was natural for a story to grow up about St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, driving these reptiles away. Some of the other Atlantic Islands are without snakes, the Azores, for example, also many frozen islands north of Canada and Europe. Snakes stay in holes, and we hardly could expect them to live where the ground is frozen the year around. Certain Pacific islands with a mild climate have been getting along without snakes for a long time. These include the islands of New Zealand, also Hawall. I never have found any legend about a saint or hero driving the snakes away from those islands.

Venomous snakes are largely the cause of the feeling of hatred toward the snake tribe. There also are snakes which crush their victims, as the python. If all places could be rid of rattlers and other harmful snakes, it would be a blessing. Many snakes, including garter snakes, never attack people and destroy such pests as field mice. For GENERAL INTEREST section

> First witnesses will be two former Agriculture Department officials in Dallas who were fired by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. Chairman Ellender (D-La.) said both Latham White, former manager of the Dallas office of the Agriculture Department's Production and Marketing Administration, and his deputy, Harry J. Solomon, had asked to testify.

Ellender said nearly four million dollars in grain shortages occurred n the area supervised by the Dallas office. In a preliminary investigation session last week, Brannan testified he suspended White and Solomon because, as he put it, they ran a poor office. Later he an nounced they had been fired.

Six - Shooters Give Headache To Military, PO

By ELTON C. FAY WASHINGTON UP-Enlisted mer

in Korea who want to tote personal six-shooters are giving headaches to the military and postoffice. Also they are leading kinfolk into unwitting infraction of the law. Officials said today an increasing number of revolvers and pistols have been found in the mail recently, addressed to Marines and G.L's. Relatives try to mail the guns in response to requests from servicemen in the war zone.

Why do they want them?

Marine and Army authorities here sa they weren't sure, but they had some ideas after talking with relatives. Among the reasons suggested were these:

1. If officers can wear side arms, why shouldn't enlisted men? 2. In forward areas, close to than an M-1 rifle on a sling or in

3. Some soldiers claim in letters that they are inadequately armed. 4. Some young soldiers are only lew years removed from boyhood lays when they yearned to pack pearl-handled six-gun in a holter, cowboy fashion.

The military says most enlisted men don't need sidearms, that under the "tables of organization and equipment" sidearms are ismed "to any and all whose duties equire use of same."

Postal laws specify that 'pistols, revolvers and other firearms capa-ble of being concessed on the person are non-mailable and shall not be deposited in or carried by
