Except For Peanut Butter...

Only Modest Rise In Prices Of Groceries During January

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Peanut butter prices are giving grocery shoppers some sticky moments. An Associated Press market-basket survey shows that the cost of the popular sandwich filling rose sharply during January, for the second month in a row.

Despite the peanut butter price surge, the overall grocery bill measured by the AP went up only two-tenths of a percent last month, thanks to declines for items like coffee, meat and eggs.

The peanut butter problems are caused by last summer's drought which cut into the peanut crop and boosted prices. In addition, some consumers, apparently afraid they might not be able to buy peanut butter at any price, hurried to stock up and several stores surveyed by the AP were sold out last week.

"People heard about a peanut shortage and started hoarding," said a clerk in a Providence, R.I., store who did not want his name used.

The AP marketbasket survey involves a random list of commonly purchased food and nonfood items. Prices of all items were checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped from the survey after the manufacturer discontinued the package size that had been used for the price check.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bills rose last month at the checklist stores in seven of the cities surveyed and dropped in six. The over-all January increase of two-tenths of a percent compared with a boost of half a percent during December.

There were fairly widespread decreases in meat prices during January — frankfurters, for example, went down at the checklist store in seven cities; pork chops dropped in five cities. Coffee and egg prices were down in eight and seven cities respectively.

Peanut butter lovers were out of luck, however. The price went up at the checklist stores in 10 of the cities surveyed by the AP, with increases ranging from 3 percent to 60 percent. The price went down in one city — Atlanta, which reported a 1 percent drop. The checklist stores in three cities were sold out of the brand of peanut butter normally used in the survey. During December, the price of peanut butter went up in nine of the cities surveyed.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concencrate, paper towels, coffee, butter, Grade A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Under New Contract...

Animal Shelter Here Operating Smoothly

Operations are running smoothly at Scurry County Veterinary Clinic and Snyder Animal Shelter, said Dr. Robert Taylor.

Taylor, who owns Scurry County Veterinary Clinic, was last year awarded a contract from the city to operate its animal shelter. The two units are housed in a new facility near the intersection of 37th St. and East Highway.

Although housed in the same building, Taylor noted that the dogs in the animal shelter are kept in a separate room from the dogs and other animals in his private practice.

The new facility has been in operation about two months, and Taylor said, "Everything we have is bigger and better than what we had before."

Taylor said the dogs in the shelter are strays picked up by the city's animal warden. Approximately 90 dogs are processed through the facility each month.

The dogs are kept 72 hours. The owners have that long to reclaim their pets. After that time the animals are either destroyed or adopted.

Most, however, are strays. Taylor said that only two out of the 180 dogs he has handled through the shelter so far have been pets carrying tags.

"If the dog has an ID, we'll call the owner," said Taylor. If, however, a family pet without an ID turns up missing then "the first thing the owner should do is call the shelter and we'll see if we have it."

Taylor estimated that only about one dog in every seven is reclaimed. The others are destroyed.

Council Due To Call Election

The Snyder City Council is scheduled to officially schedule a council election and take action on a rate request from Lone Star Gas Co. at its regular meeting tonight.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p. m. in the council room at city hall.

Due to resignations during the past year, Snyder voters will elect five councilmen at this year's city election, two of them to complete unexpired terms.

The date for city elections is set by state law for the first Saturday in April, which this year falls on April 4.

The council also is due to make some appointments and open some bids at tonight's session.

Appointments are on the agenda for an alternate on the Zoning Board of Adjustments and for one of Snyder's places on the board of the Colorado River Municipal Water District to fill the vacancy created by the death of Dr. John Blum.

Bids will be considered for the possible purchase of an elevated scraper for use at the sanitary landfill, for a five-year lease on the city's alfalfa farm, and for the purchase of a year's supply of chlorine and alum for the city water treatment plant.

A contract for data processing service for Scurry County and for the Scurry County Appraisal District will be presented to the council.

Listed as discussion items on the agenda are a contract for collection of delinquent taxes, water line replacements, requests for motel-hotel tax funds and a clean-up campaign sponsored by the Alpha Study Club.

Q.—What ever happened to the request for more dressing rooms at the Scurry County Coliseum?

A.—The County Commissioners Court has an architect working on some plans to revamp the dressing room facilities and provide facilities for more teams. They hope to have some cost estimates soon.

Kenneth Dale Wortham, 3111 39th St., has been charged with unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon and his case was also scheduled to go before the grand jury.

Charged with unauthorized use of motor vehicle is William Andrew Morris, 2711 Ave. X. He is alleged to have taken without permission a car owned by George Romero Jan. 14.

Also being presented before the grand jury was the drunken driving charge against George Byron Casey, 506½ 28th St.

One case, however, that will not be presented to the grand jury was the aggravated assault charge filed against Danny Joe Warren. District Attorney Pete Greene said that charge has been dismissed. Warren had been accused of assaulting his wife Pauline in a family disturbance two weeks ago.

DOE Discarding Rules On Bilingual Eduation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Education is discarding heavily criticized bilingual education rules proposed by the Carter administration, Education Secretary T.H. Bell announced today.

The rules would have forced the nation's schools to teach children who aren't native speakers of English in their native language and in English. Congress already had put a freeze on the rules, proposed by Bell's predecessor, Shirley M. Hufstedler, last Aug. 5, and they never went into effect.

But they ignited an avalanche of criticism from school boards and many education groups, who claimed that for the first time the federal government was trying to tell school districts how and what to teach.

"The policies are harsh, inflexible, burdensome, unworkable and incredibly costly. The rules are fiercely opposed by many, supported by few," Bell said

Variety Of Incidents Keep Police Occupied

A variety of incidents were investigated during the weekend by city police.

Saturday, David McCurry of 113 Peach reported the theft of two Cock-a-poo dogs. Each dog was valued at $150. Working that case is Buddy Kinney.

Four traffic accidents were also investigated.

The first occurred at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the 3600 block of College Ave. Involved in it were a 1974 International driven by Patricia Perez and a 1975 Oldsmobile driven by Juan Rodriquez. Kenney worked it.

At Snyder Shopping Center two cars collided. Involved in that mishap were a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Maxine Courtney and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Quintella Rose. The accident occurred at 1:50 p.m. Saturday.

At 8:40 p.m. Saturday a 1970 Plymouth driven by Johnny Ray Gonzales collided with a parked 1979 Ford owned by Mal Wilson. Working that wreck was Don Cheek.

Monday update

Groundhog Spots Shadow

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the famous weather forecasting groundhog, today poked his head out of a burrow atop Gobbler's Knob, saw his shadow and predicted six more weeks of winter, according to his interpreter.

"Sco-co-colese. Eeny meeny miny mo," Phil reportedly told Charles Erhard, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, and the only man who claims the ability to translate the groundhog's predictions.

"At 7:27 a.m., the king of all weather prognosticators seemed temporarily confused by the unpredictable nature of the winter thus far," said Erhard, after rapping on the door of Phil's heated burrow.

"But Phil definitely saw his shadow. There will be six more weeks of mild winter weather," said Erhard, wearing tails and a silk hat.

As Erhard made the prediction, a crowd of a few hundred who braved wet snow and chilly temperatures, booed loudly. No shadow, so the legend goes, would have meant an early spring.

House Fire Kills 2 Children

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A roaring house fire claimed the lives of two children early today when firefighters, attempting to rescue them, were beaten back by heat and flames.

Sheronda Speed, 7, and her brother Brian, 4, were found dead inside the frame structure two hours after the early morning blaze was reported. Three adults who lived in the house escaped unharmed.

The cause of the fire, which destroyed the home, was under investigation.

Air Pollution Tax Proposed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — About 53,000 Americans die each year from industrial air pollution, and the government should impose a multi-billion dollar pollution tax to encourage businesses to clean up the air as they switch to burning coal, a Harvard study says.

The report, released today, says a tax on air pollution would simplify regulations and give polluters a clear economic incentive to purify the air rising from their smokestacks.

The idea is simple: Tax industry for each pound of sulfur pollution it produces, and give the money back to people who have to breathe the dirty air.

Their rebates would vary, depending on how dirty their air is, but the average at current pollution levels would be $244 a year for each man, woman and child in the United States.

McKeel To Be King

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For 444 days he was a captive in Iran, but come March 1, Marine Corps Sgt. John D. McKeel Jr. will be king — of a Mardi Gras parade.

McKeel, 27, of Balch Springs, Texas, has been chosen as King of Bacchus, one of the major Carnival krewes that stage elaborate parades and balls for Mardi Gras.

Mardi Gras is March 3, but parades and balls begin weeks in advance.

"It will be a great way to erase some very bad memories," McKeel said in accepting the krewe's invitation Saturday.

He also said he would like to bring the eight members of the Marine embassay detachment in Tehran as his guests to the Carnival spectacular.

Polish Labor Crisis Eases

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's labor crisis eased again today after the government opened negotiations on farmers' demands for a union and Solidarity, the independent labor federation, called off a nationwide one-hour strike scheduled for Tuesday.

Labor leader Lech Walesa warned, however, that the strike would be rescheduled "if there is any attack on us or on the farmers. Solidarity will consider any attack on farmers' unions as being directed against us."

The movement's national coordinating commission also called for "supportive" action Tuesday on behalf of the farmers. Walesa said the local Solidarity chapters would determine what this would consist of, but it might include "the display of flags, the wearing of armbands or other manifestations."

why reagan triumphed

The inauguration of Ronald Reagan as president should be a source of cheer to all Americans who are dedicated to the principle of human freedom; not necessarily because of what Reagan might do, but because he was elected in the first place and the reasons behind his election.

There was one main reason Reagan won the presidency: because millions of Americans are disenchanted with government and Reagan, rightly or wrongly, was perceived by vast numbers of citizens as the man who will cut it down to size.

Granted, the sheer incompetence of Jimmy Carter was no small factor in Reagan's victory. But the major impetus of his campaign came from Americans who are totally disillusioned with the excesses of government and poured themselves wholeheartedly into the Reagan campaign. Without them, he could not have won.

Throughout the campaign, Reagan always generated the greatest enthusiasm with his attacks on government. He promised to reduce the amount government confiscates from citizens in taxes. He vowed to eliminate agencies whose only function seems to be squandering the taxpayers' money and issuing regulations that intrude into all our lives. Over and over, Reagan promised "to get government off our backs."

Like most politicians, as election time drew nearer, Reagan backed off of some of his most ardent anti-government stands. But he was still seen by millions of Americans as the crusader on a white horse who would finally rescue the country and its citizens from the growing colossus of a government that takes more and more of workers' earnings and chips away, piece by piece, at individual liberty with a growing mass of rules and regulations. That conception of Reagan is why he won the presidency.

Although the New York Times once observed that "nobody ever won an election by promising less," we are not aware of any instance in which Ronald Reagan promised more from the government to anyone. And he was elected.

This is quite a switch for a country which has usually anointed the politicians who were most successful in convincing the greatest number of people that they would give them more of everything.

What all this means is that millions of Americans have finally come to realize a truth that should have been evident long ago: that the greatest threat to individual liberty in this country comes not from some foreign enemy; it comes from our own government.

And, the more people who realize that truth, the better our chances of preserving the freedoms we have left.

from another viewpoint

The hostage situation from another point of view: They had been warned in advance to get out.

It has been suggested that our months of preoccupation with 52 hostages in Iran appears hypocritical in perspective -- inasmuch as almost nothing is said or done about 2,528 American MIAs in Vietnam.

After all, the hostages in Iran had volunteered for and accepted the acknowledged risks of such foreign service. Danger goes with the territory.

Also, I have learned that most were advised to get out before they were made captives.

That they were repeatedly advised to get out and come home -- and they refused.

This does not deny the deprivation and separation which the hostages endured, but it does throw a different light on the situation.

And from this misadventure perhaps we can learn what not to do next time.

From December 8, 1978, to the end of April, 1979, "at least four U.S. ships were taking turns standing off Hormuz in the Strait of Hormuz at the mouth of the Persian Gulf prepared to sealift Americans out of Iran.

A crewman aboard one of those ships -- the USS Sterrett, a Navy cruiser -- was Douglas A Pirolozzi.

He says that ship left San Diego under secret orders but once it was in position off Hormuz everybody aboard was made aware that the mission was to rescue potential evacuees.

Pirolozzi, an MS-3 -- a cook -- says extra provisions were boarded and the Sterrett remained at ready from December 8 of 1978 until January 25 of 1979.

Then the Sterrett was relieved by the USS Hewitt and proceeded to the Philippines.

On March 12 of 1979 the Sterrett was again sent to Hormuz -- to sit and wait. This time the wait lasted until the end of April.

Again, it was "understood aboard" that Americans -- including embassy personnel -- had been advised to leave.

My files relating to those dates confirm that there were "recommendations," then "advisories," then "strong recommendations" that American civilian personnel leave Iran.

Most left by air; the sealift was never required.

Former State Secretary Kissinger and others have feared that for us to purchase the release of the hostages would invite an epidemic of kidnapings; that no American would be safe abroad or at home; that the United States might become like Italy where kidnaping for ransom is an almost daily occurence.

Israelis, highly vulnerable to PLO kidnapers, have experienced not one kidnaping since the Israeli government announced that none would be ransomed. Any kidnap victim would be considered "dead."

It sounds callous -- but it works.

commentary

donald f. graff

Among the events marking the arrival of a new man in the White House is the ceremonial parade of foreign leaders to Washington.

It is already under way for President Reagan, and guess who is right at the front of the line?

His Excellency Chun Doo Hwan, president of South Korea.

No big deal, you may well think, and in a way you are correct. Chun is not exactly a world-class celebrity.

Nevertheless this is one of the more carefully orchestrated state visits since the grand tours of Nikita Khrushchev and Charles de Gaulle two decades back. For understandable reasons. Whether they are also good reasons may be another matter.

The United States has not had particularly good luck with South Korea, the half-country protege it acquired almost by accident at the close of World War II when a handful of troops rushed in to claim the south while the Soviets were moving down in force from the north.

In the beginning of South Korea's experiment in independence, there was Syngman Rhee, a father of his country who turned out to be the heavy-handed type impelling younger generations to give thought to running away from home.

For younger Koreans, the response was a student-led revolution in 1960. Rhee was ousted, but the next year a coup brought into power a military oligarchy from which eventually emerged a new strongman, Park Chung Hee.

Park had the good luck to take over at the beginning of the economic miracle that in less than two decades has transformed South Korea from a war-ravished underdeveloped charity case into one of the world's medium-sized industrial dynamos. It was an achievement much appreciated by most Koreans, and it tended to mute opposition to its authoritarian rule.

That's the way it was until late 1979 and Park's assassination, not by a wild-eyed revolutionary but by a power-hungry fellow officer. Surprisingly, the country subsequently began to reacquaint itself with democratic procedures. But that came to an abrupt end in the predictable South Korean fashion — a coup.

A civilian president was kept on as frontman, but real power was in the hands of the new No. 1, Gen. Chun Do Hwan who used it energetically to curb political activity, close universities, ban strikes and demonstrations, dictate his own new constitution, jail the opposition and sentence its leading figure, Kim Dae Jung, to death.

This did not endear Chun to the rights-minded Carter administration, and relations between Seoul and Washington rapidly progressed from cool to frigid.

Chun has since taken over as interim president pending elections under his new constitution to begin Feb. 11 with voting for a 5,000 electoral college that on Feb. 25 will name a president for a seven-year term. And guess who that will be?

Chun's rush to Washington is an exception to customary post-inaugural guest protocol that gives precedence to the oldest and closest allies — the Western Europeans. But that is no accident.

Immediately after the Reagan White House extended the invitation, Chun commuted Kim Dae Jung's death sentence, which the president-elect had criticized publicly and on which he is reported to have coordinated tactics with the outgoing Carter administration. Chun also lifted martial law although not all restrictions on political activity and the press.

But there is more than that simple quid pro quo to the matter. The new White House and State Department have advertised their intentions to refurbish the U.S. image as a potent, dependable ally of strategically situated nations. South Korea is that in East Asia.

More than that, a renewed U.S.-South Korean connection signals a distancing, also well-advertised, of the Reagan administration from the human-rights policies of its predecessor. And who knows? Word around Washington has it that less public pressure may even induce greater accomodation from South Korea on that very issue.

And it just might, with luck.

Concubinage had no moral stigma, according to Peloubet. Wives could not be repudiated without a bill of divorcement and concubines could. The children of concubines were listed in the genealogies. Moses' law provided for concubinage. A concubine could be a Hebrew girl bought from her father, a Gentile captive taken in war, a foreign slave bought or a Canaanitish woman, bonded or free. The provision for concubines' children depended on the fathers' will.

"And Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac. But unto the sons of the concubines, which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son, while he yet lived, eastward, unto the east country."

CHICKEN—Noted for its good cooks and chicken, the Delmarva Peninsula, site of the 1981 National Cooking Contest, has many regional dishes such as "Eastern Shore Chicken and Dumplings" (above).

Chicken 'N' Dumplings; Great For Cold Evenings

EASTERN SHORE CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
2 cups water
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
6 small onions
3 sweet potatoes, sliced
3 Irish potatoes
2 carrots, sliced lengthwise
Dumplings, recipe follows

In deep saucepan, place chicken parts with water, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Add vegetables and continue to simmer for 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease and vegetables are fork tender.

Remove chicken and vegetables from broth; set aside and keep warm. Add enough water to broth to make 2 quarts and bring to a boil.

Into boiling broth, drop dumplings. Cook, uncovered, over medium high heat, as liquid continues to boil; stir often, until dumplings sink, about 5 minutes. Add dumplings to chicken and vegetable mixture. Makes 4 servings.

DUMPLINGS

In large bowl, sift together 2 cups flour and ½ tsp. salt. Cut in 2 tsp. vegetable shortening; stir in ¾ cup hot water until soft dough forms. On a lightly floured surface, roll dough very thin. Cut dough into 1" x 1½" rectangles; sprinkle lightly with flour.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Oswald: "When a player jumps to three notrump there is a strong presumption that he wants to play the hand there, and an even stronger presumption that he does not think much of having his partner take him out into a suit."

Alan: "Those presumptions did not affect South at all. He had a singleton diamond and asked his partner how anyone could expect him to pass three notrump when no one had ever bid diamonds."

Oswald: "North wondered if South could not have expected North to be able to handle the lead of either unbid suit, etc., etc."

Alan: "The argument went on with neither partner realizing that South had compounded his poor bidding with really bad play. East had won the spade lead with queen over jack and returned a trump. South had cashed his ace and king and started on clubs. He got one spade discard on the third club but West had ruffed and led a spade so the defense got three spades and one trump."

Oswald: "All South needed to do to make four hearts was to duck the first trump. Now East and West could not stop the flow of the clubs and South would have made game plus an overtrick in case the defense didn't grab a second spade immediately."

Buy Fewer Suits

Men are spending more for clothes than ever before—but spending it for different kinds of clothes than in the past, Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, reports.

Men are buying fewer suits as they focus their purchasing power instead on active sportswear and work clothes, including jeans, she adds.

Ms. Vanderpoorten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Energy flow

Daytime TV star Janice Lynde told Beauty Digest magazine what she does if she's feeling low: "I sit down and meditate, do yoga or go out and take a dance class. I have so much energy that if I don't expend it, it turns inwards — and I know from past experience that's bad for me. If I can't be physically active, I call a friend."

Dear Abby

Around World, Around Block, Moving Is a Pain

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If LOVES TO MOVE were married to a petroleum engineer, as I am, she would soon lose her appetite for moving.

I recently completed my 72nd move! These moves have encompassed 17 foreign countries, three states and four Canadian provinces. To date, the record has been six moves in less than 11 months!

Each of our four offspring has attended over 30 different schools. Happily, none has suffered either academically or psychologically. I consider myself fortunate to have been able to spend two consecutive Christmases in the same house.

In the last 30 years, I have set up housekeeping in the bustling cities of the Far (and Near) East, in the steaming jungles of South America, and I've even pitched tents in the deserts of Saudi Arabia. I've braved native uprisings, revolutions, sandstorms, tropical floods and was left completely homeless twice through evacuations.

Small wonder my family and friends think I'm crazy, but were they to read of LOVES TO MOVE, they would consider her to be totally insane! Sign me . . .

MOVIN' RIGHT ALONG

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE is sitting on a gold mine! She should help others (for a fee) who hate to go through the hassles of packing and moving.

I don't think she's any crazier than the men who buy a different car every other year, but I do think she's crazy if she doesn't use all that energy to earn money. If she doesn't live in a town large enough to make money helping people move, she can "move" to a bigger town.

ALSO LOVES TO MOVE

DEAR ALSO: Move over for another reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: Why do you think the woman who loves to move should have her head examined? Let her do her thing. And I think her husband deserves praise for understanding. I know people with sillier and more expensive hobbies. At least she is moving within the same city; that keeps the cost down.

We also moved a lot but always to another country — usually crossing an ocean. I'll bet lots of people thought we were nuts, but I enjoyed it tremendously.

LIESEL IN SEAL BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from LOVES TO MOVE made my day. My husband and I also love to move, but this is the first time we ever heard of anyone else who did. We've been married for 26 years and have moved so many times we actually lost count. (We even moved back into the same house three times!)

It's expensive and hard work. We're not young any more, and I hope our next move is to the cemetery.

CRAZY LADY

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE answered her own question: "I'm never satisfied." I know how her children must feel, because my mother was also a mover. No sooner did we get settled in a new house when Mother found one she liked better. It was hard on us kids having to make new friends in a strange neighborhood.

I had a friend who had the same problem, only worse. Her mother moved 33 times in 14 years, and they never left the neighborhood! This friend's father woke up in bed with a neighbor lady one morning. His wife had actually moved two doors down while he was out of town, and she never told him about it. He came home in the middle of the night, let himself in the darkened house and went directly to bed. The Widow Jensen never got over the shock.

Your advice was perfect. LOVES TO MOVE needs to have her head examined.

HAVEN'T MOVED IN 35 YEARS

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Stolen Oilfield Goods Recovered

Approximately $39,000 in oilfield equipment, stolen from Scurry and surrounding counties, was recovered and two men arrested during the weekend, reports the Scurry County Sheriff's Office.

From Scurry County, a set of $10,500 tubing tongs was recovered.

Arrested were Bernard Dale Garrett Jr. of Conroe and Eddie Wayne King of Conroe. They were charged with theft of over $10,000 and their cases were scheduled for presentation this morning before a Scurry County grand jury.

Deputies traveled to Young, Taylor, and Jones Counties to recover the merchandise.

A Smuggler's Paradise...

Drug Runners Like Louisiana Coast

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — From pirates to prohibition to pot, "Louisiana always has been a smuggler's paradise," says one frustrated federal agent. "They ran whisky during prohibition, now they run dope."

Indeed, smugglers run so much dope these days that the intricate maze of inlets and bayous along the coast where the pirate Jean Lafitte once reigned is developing into the nation's busiest drug route.

Florida, of course, is probably still the drug smuggler's chosen land. Cynics there rank dope running as the state's primary industry, surpassing tourism. But trafficking along the Florida coast dropped off when Coast Guard patrols increased for last year's Freedom Flotilla of Cuban refugees, and narcotics agents assume that helped boost the action along the Louisiana coast.

In Louisiana, not only are there more places to hide, but smugglers also blend expertly into the bustle of coastal commerce.

Ton upon ton of marijuana, plus a little cocaine and hashish, may come packed in a barge which looks just like any one of a thousand legal barges.

Or it comes in a shrimp boat just like any of the hundreds of shrimpers that ply the coast. It comes in innocent-looking sail boats, crew boats, tugs.

Dope also arrives in small private planes or old airliners, although these tend to haul not bulky marijuana but high-price, small-pack stuff like Quaaludes, a popular depressant that can bring $5 a pill on the street.

Narcotics agents know they can stop only a small part of the flood. Even so, the 10 percent or 15 percent they do get amounts to so many tons of pot it eats up time and money just to get rid of it.

The Drug Enforcement Administration has burned marijuana in sugar mill boilers in Cajun country and in a paper mill furnace at Bogalusa. But the cheapest disposal method is still a bonfire in an open field.

"It can tie up 20 men two or three days to burn 100,000 pounds of marijuana," said DEA spokeman Michael Downs. "We stoke the fire with diesel fuel, old tires, boards, anything that helps it burn."

To their disgust, DEA agents have learned that even a bonfire may not end it. People sift the ashes. A few who retrieved unburned sprigs of Colombian gold wound up arrested on a charge of possession.

The U.S. Customs Service figures for drug seizures by all agencies since Oct. 1, the start of fiscal 1981, show 350 tons of marijuana "interdicted" along this coast — an increase of more than 20 fold compared to the same period in fiscal 1980.

Cocaine seizures more than doubled during the same period. The hashish confiscated was up nearly 60 times.

Dirt Offends Car Engine

BURLINGTON, Mass. (AP) — A malfunctioning carburetor can decrease a car's efficiency and gas mileage by up to 20 percent.

"Dirt is usually the cause and can be easily removed with aerosol carburetor cleaners," says Dick Berggren, editor of a car-racing magazine.

"All that's required is spraying the cleaner into the carburetor, while the car is running, and following simple directions on the container."

Scurrily Speaking...

First Jail In County Constructed In 1884

EDITOR'S NOTE: Scurrily Speaking is prepared by members of the Scurry County Historical Commission and is published as a community service.

By Drew Bullard

On July 23, 1884 the newly organized commissioners' court of Scurry County issued this report: "It is further ordered by the Court that W.W. Nelson be and is hereby instructed and authorized to let the contract for a building of a calaboose to the lowest bidder, of the following plans and specifications to wit: the same to be 8x10 ft., in width and length, the walls to be eight (8) ft. in height, the same to be built of 2x6 in. scantling, and covered and floored with 1x2 in. planks, and the same to be of good and substantial material and to be paid for in County scrip, and the County Clerk be and is hereby authorized to issue scrip for said purpose."

This original jail stood in a corner of the town square and "good and substantial material" was apparently used in it because in 1957 it was still in service as a storage shed on th J.H. Nunn place in southeast Snyder. However, this first jail served the county for only two years until 1886 when a new, red brick jail was constructed on the northeast corner of the courthouse square. It was joined by a corridor to the new courthouse which was built at the same time and of the same locally made red brick.

By 1911 the county had progressed to the point that a new jail and courthouse were necessary. This time, however, the courthouse and jail were to be constructed separately. On April 8, 1911 the voters by vote of 594 for, 234 against, approved the issue of a bond for the amount of $16,000, bearing interest at the rate of 5 percent per annum, payable 30 years from date for the purpose of building a new jail. The commissioner's court of Scurry County at this time were Fritz R. Smith, county judge; A.S. Lowe, commissioner Precinct 1; J.D. Litcher, Precinct 2; T.C. Stinson, Precinct 3; and Smith Brock, Precinct 4. A lot south of the square near Deep Creek was purchased on Aug. 3, for $850 from F.J. Grayum. This land was the south two-thirds of lot 2 in Block 19, the same being 100 ft. North and South by 150 Ft. East and West. On September 7, the court purchased an additional 40x50 ft. lot on the north side of the original lot for $300.

The Snyder Signal published this story on May 19, 1911: "The County Commissioners have returned from Lubbock where they went to inspect the county jail there with a view to contracting for a bastile for Scurry County. They found there a good jail and after getting some points changed for the better, they believe they will get at least an advantage of $700 in their contract here. After returning they proceeded to close a contract with the Southern Structural Company of San Antonio for a modern, well built, three story jail complete in every way for $15,000.

The plan calls for living rooms for the jailer and his family on the lower floor with cells and corridors on the second and third floors. There will be separate cells for the sexes and colors and a hospital for sick prisoners and insane persons. Every modern point will be observed and it will be a jail creditable to a progressive county.

It is expressed in the contract that the work is to be done by Scurry County labor with a single exception of the supervisor and the jail is to be completed by Oct. 15, 1911."

Scurry County's need for a new jail was emphasized soon afterward on the the last Sunday in June when three Mexican inmates were left in the runaround of the old jail so that they might get some exercise. Two of them tore a big hole in the east wall of the jail and made their escape. The third one felt it was too hot outside and preferred to remain in the shade. Also toward the end of June, County Judge Smith returned from a business trip in Austin and informed the paper that arrangements had been perfected for the registration of the Scurry County jail bonds, and he had seen a telegram from a party who was ready to buy the bonds. Work could begin on the jail immediately. On Sept. 6, the commissioners' court ordered that the dark select Millsap and the Denton Clear Buff brick be used for trimming the jail and that a good hard kiln run brick be used for the inside wall.

Work progressed rather more slowly than origianlly hoped but on Feb. 2, 1912 the new jail was received by the commissioners' court and they complimented the contractors and foreman Rollins for faithfully carrying out all terms of the contract. At this same meeting the old combination jail-courthouse was sold to the city, who said they would tear it down and use the material to construct a new fire station.

Over the years the jailhouse has remained basically the same with very little changes or remodeling needed. In 1950 the jail was properly equipped for modern plumbing and heating. In 1957 the red brick exterior received a coat of whitewash. One unusual feature of the jail is a trapdoor used for a hanging gallows. Only one person is believed to have been hung there, however.

Toward the end of 1978 a new jail was completed and the old structure has been unused since then. The outside of the building is in good condition and the inside is in fair condition, especially the bottom floor living quarters.

The Scurry County Historical Commission has just formed a nonprofit organization called Historic Scurry County Inc. One of its main tasks is to assist in the preservation of historic buildings. The Scurry County Commissioners have agreed to lease the old jail to Historic Scurry County Inc. for a nominal fee and then the historic group will be responsible for the structure. The group hopes to lease out portions of the old jail in order to provide funds to pay for its maintenance. The building may thus be preserved as a historical landmark.

Fishermen Fished From Floating Ice

OREGON, Ohio (AP) — John Myers is safe on shore after he and some 80 other ice fishermen were plucked from giant bobbing ice floes, but he thinks his cousin's truck is still out there somewhere, floating around on Lake Erie.

"I ain't never going to (ice) fish again. Only my second time out, and we get stuck on a little island of ice," said Myers, a 26-year-old plumber from Toledo.

Some of the fishermen who were out chipping holes in the frozen lake surface Sunday morning didn't know right away that the ice they were standing on was coming unstuck.

First, as the weather warmed up, a few chunks of ice broke off. Then, at about 10 a.m., a hunk measuring five miles by two miles pulled free and drifted some four miles from shore near Crane Creek State Park, Myers said.

"It started off with about three or four (people) on a small piece of ice," said Frank Henderson, a Coast Guard spokesman in nearby Toledo. "By the time we got the call and our people got there, this big hunk of ice had broken off."

The floe gradually broke into smaller jigsaw pieces as the temperature climbed to 37 degrees.

Within four hours, all the fishermen, including two boys, had been rescued without serious injury. But a dozen vehicles, including snowmobiles, cars and trucks, were left on the ice.

Myers' cousin, who had taken Myers and another man fishing, left his 1978 Chevrolet Suburban truck behind on the ice.

"We had just jumped a crack in the ice and then got a flat tire," Myers said. "We decided to go back and headed east, but the crack got worse. By the time we got back to where we originally started, there was a 100-foot crack so we couldn't cross."

The men sat in the truck, on a chunk of ice about a half mile long and 200 yards wide, singing and drinking beer, Myers said.

Iron cookware a good source

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Evidently I am low on iron. I would like to build up my iron the natural way, using foods that contain iron rather than taking pills. Could you send me a list of foods that contain iron? Also just why is a person tired when he is low on iron? I know it causes an anemia but is there any other reason? Why do women need more iron than men? Will I always need to watch my iron or will I get over this tendency?

DEAR READER — I'm not sure how you know you are low in iron. If you are suffering from fatigue, that can be caused from many other factors other than anemia. And many people are low in iron but do not have noticeable fatigue.

Women in the childbearing years usually need more iron, presumably because they have an increased blood loss. The red blood cells are one of the chief stores of body iron. You can see how good your body is as a recycling machine when you realize that all of your red blood cells are replaced every 120 days. As the old cells break down the iron is recycled to make new red cells.

Iron is essential to forming hemoglobin, the pigment that makes red blood cells red. You need protein to make hemoglobin, too, and some people have low hemoglobin levels because they are protein deficient rather than iron deficient.

Iron is also part of cytochrome compounds in your cells used to break down food to carbon dioxide and water and to release energy. So if you are low on energy from an iron deficiency, it may not be just the anemia.

It is hard for a woman in the childbearing years to get enough iron from food. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-4, Iron and Anemia, which includes a list of the amount of iron in common foods and discusses iron balance. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the good food sources of iron was iron cookware; the iron got in the food during cooking. Today with no-stick lined utensils and other cookware this source of iron in our diet has been lost or greatly decreased.

Iron is also essential to your bone marrow's ability to make new blood cells. It even aids in the absorption of vitamin B-12.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am desperate. My doctor has given me everything he can think of for restless legs and so far no relief. I am about to climb the walls. My legs feel like something crawling inside, mostly under my knees. The only thing that helps is to walk. I walk half the night and the next day I'm dead. Please help if you can.

DEAR READER — Restless legs is one of those mystery conditions that is hard to help. We don't know what causes it, but it is as you describe it. There have been some studies that show the condition is made worse with caffeine obtained in drinking caffeinated beverages. So try it and see. Stop all coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. If that doesn't work, your doctor might want to try Benedryl if he hasn't already. If you smoke, stop.

The condition is harmless other than causing fatigue and loss of sleep.

Losing 53¼ pounds
43½ inches
Now a size 7

Let 1981 Be Your "Thin" Year.

You see, before my Pat Walker's program my "lumps" poked thru the spokes of my rocker. Now, after losing 53¼ pounds and 43½ inches I can sit in my rocker, or an airplane seat, and feel slim and trim. There is space on each side!!

Before Pat Walker's I wore only full skirts — to cover up. Now when I wear full skirts it is only because I want to.

Before Pat Walker's I felt heavy, my choice of clothes was limited. Now my body feels strong, I feel healthy — and I shop in size 7, with nothing to hide.

The above testimony is important. But equally important — I've been able to maintain my present weight this past year even though I had surgery and 2 three week vacations. There was no problem, I followed the Pat Walker's method of eating. Sound good??? IT IS!!

Not only have I purchased a "new body", I now know the lovely ladies at the Pat Walker's Figure Salon as my friends. THEY CARE! I'd love for you to meet them. Tell them I sent you.

Military To Entertain Western Texas Tonight

ROSWELL, NM. – New Mexico Military Institute, always intimidating at home with its overflowing crowd of cadets, welcomes Western Texas College's Westerners at 8 tonight in a WJCAC battle.

NMMI, 3-18, will be looking for only its fourth win of the season tonight, while Coach Larry Dunaway's Westerners come in at 13-7. The Military is 1-8 in conference play after falling to Frank Phillips, 84-51, at Borger last Thursday. Western Texas is 4-6 and has lost three straight.

Western defeated tonight's hosts 111-86 in their first confrontation earlier in the season.

Most coaches feel a 10-8 record would get a team to the Region V Tournament this year and both NMMI and WTC are hoping to reverse directions in that regard tonight.

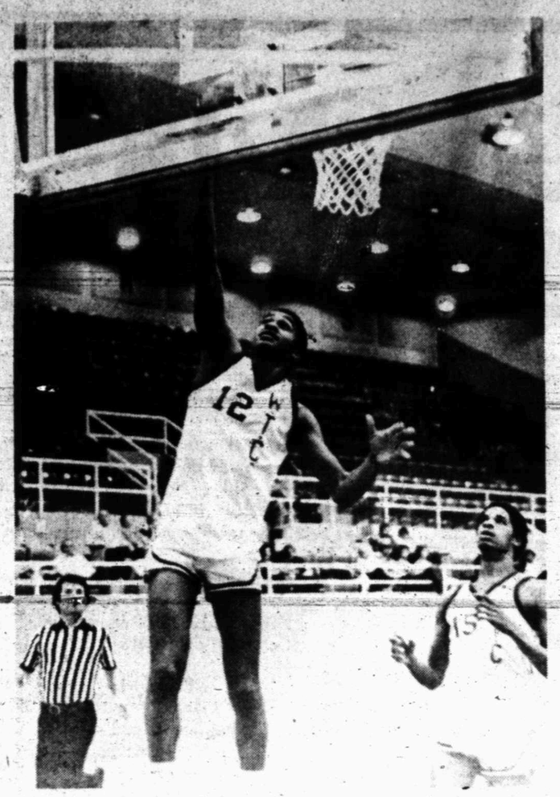
NMMI, which produced, among other's, Drake's Lewis Lloyd, is headed this year by J. C. Baty. Baty averages 13 points and 6 rebounds a game. Teammate Preston Butler is another key figure, especially from the freethrow line, where he boasts near 80 percent accuracy.

But as a team, the Military is the conference's cellar unit. NMMI averages .421 from the field (10th), and .630 from the stripe (8th). The Military averages only 64.9 points a game (10th) and allows (75.4).

Western Texas also hopes to get things rolling its way tonight, in preparation for Thursday's key contest against Howard County College. The Westerners hope to have leading scorer Chuck North back in better health. North, a 6-5 sophomore, came back from an ankle injury to play against South Plains in a losing effort last Thursday, but was noticeably limping.

The Westerners are the second-leading scoring team in the conference, averaging 92.1 points a game. Defensively, the team gives up 82.7. WTC leads the conference in both freethrow accuracy (.708) and field goal percentage (.551).

North leads in scoring with a 19.6 figure, followed by Ceasar Scott, 16.5, Keith Denis, 16.3, and Darren Lee, 11.5.



VIE MILITARY TONIGHT – Western Texas College's Westerners hope to break a three-game losing string tonight as they take on the Military of New Mexico Military Institute at 8 in Roswell. Lamesa Next Cat Opponent

Snyder's Tigers, after a 72-69 triple-overtime victory against first-round co-champion Odessa Ector, is in the driver's seat of District 2-AAAA, but the Tigers have little opportunity to rest.

Coach George Byerly's troops go after win No. 11 in a row here Tuesday night, welcoming arch-rival Lamesa at 8 in Scurry County Coliseum. It marks Snyder's third home game in a week-and-half against the big three, Andre s, Ector and Lamesa. The Tigers beat Andrews on a buzzer shot to tie Ector for the First Round title, then edged the Eagles in three overtimes Friday to open Round Two. Tuesday's game with the Golden Tornadoes here promises to be no different. Snyder edged Lamesa in their first meeting, 48-47.

Eyes won't be on the Snyder-Lamesa matchup alone tomorrow. Elsewhere, Ector travels to Andrews in another major shootout, while Lake View buses to Sweetwater and Fort Stockton entertains Monahans.

In girl's play, Coach Ken Housden's Snyder Felines travel to Lamesa for an 8 p.m. contest. Other tilts pit Fort Stockton at Monahans, Sweetwater at Lake View and Andrews at Ector.

The Felines are 12-10 on the season and 1-3 in Round Two play. Monahans, 23-1, won the first round and is 4-0 in Round Two.

Tickets for District 2-AAAA games are $2 for adults and $1 for students. All varsity games begin at 8. Most will be preceded by junior varsity contests, beginning at 6:15.

Heiden Heads Sullivan List

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Speed skater Eric Heiden, the superstar of the 1980 Winter Olympics, is regarded as the favorite to win the Sullivan Award to be presented tonight.

The honor is awarded by the Amateur Athletic Union to the athlete selected the top amateur of the year in national voting.

Heiden is one of 10 finalists, and should he win, he would be the first speed skater to receive what is recognized as the top award an individual American amateur athlete can receive. It is named in memory of James E. Sullivan, the founder and a past president of the AAU, and has been presented every year since 1930.

Rice Rolling; Tech Nips UH

by The Associated Press

In a Southwest Conference basketball season that has no sane things such as favorites and underdogs, the unheralded Rice Owls are currently the No. 1 curiosity.

You'll find Coach Mike Schuler's plucky bunch in second place just a game behind cross-town rival Houston which was more than happy to leave Lubbock in its rear-view mirror after a Saturday night ambush by the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

"Three or four years ago Rice games were almost sure wins for some teams," said Schuler after the Owls had beaten Texas Christian 58-54 Saturday to stretch their SWC ledger to 6-3. "Well, there are no sure wins in this league any more."

Houston and Coach Guy Lewis hear you talking, Schuler.

Texas Tech ripped the Cougars 81-70 to drop Houston's record to 7-2.

Rice, which hasn't won an SWC title since 1970, will be at Baylor Tuesday night, hoping to stay hot on the tail of the Cougars who have a little revenge on their minds for visiting Southern Methodist.

It was SMU which beat Houston in triple overtime at Dallas.

Houston, which began playing for the SWC championship in 1976, has yet to win a league title.

In other games Saturday night, the Texas Aggies shook off four straight losses to crush Baylor 84-59 and tumble the Bears into fourth place with a 5-4 record.

Texas, which had been upset by Southern Methodist in overtime at the Super Drum, returned the favor with an 83-63 flogging of the Mustangs in Dallas. The Longhorns, Tech, and Texas Christian are tied for fifth place with 4-5 marks.

Arkansas, holding down third place with a 5-3 mark, was idle.

Holman Wins Quaker Open

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) - Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore. took a 22-pin lead midway through the championship match Saturday and held off a strong challenge by Richard Martinez to win the $125,000 Quaker State Open on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Holman, 26, clinched the $20,000 first prize in the tournament by converting a 3-6 spare in the tenth frame of the final match and rolling a nine count on his final ball to beat Martinez 209-203 in the title game.

Murray Pro Bowl MVP, But...

NFC Defense Key, 21-7

HONOLULU (AP) — Detroit Lions' rookie Eddie Murray was the Pro Bowl Most Valuable Player by virtue of his four field goals, but members of the National Football Conference defensive unit made most of the difference in the game.

With Tampa Bay's Lee Roy Selmon, Dallas' Bob Breunig and Los Angeles' Jack Reynolds among the standouts, the NFC defense held the potentially explosive AFC offense in check in Sunday's 21-7 National Conference Pro Bowl victory

"Our secondary did a great job and gave the defensive line time to get to the quarterback" said Selmon, who logged four tackles and had two of the NFC's four quarterback sacks.

The NFC held Houston running back Earl Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher the past three years to just 24 yards on eight carries. The entire AFC running game netted only 65 yards on 22 attempts and the American Conference passing attack was generally ineffective.

NFC Coach Leeman Bennett of Atlanta lauded the entire defense and added: "I was particularly pleased with the defensive play of Charlie Johnson, Randy White and Rod Perry.

"There was some outstanding play from both teams' defensive sacondaries."

The Eagles' Johnson was in on seven tackles, Dallas' White recovered a fumble that eventually led to one of Murray's field goals and Los Angeles' Perry figured in five tackles.

Murray hit field goals of 31, 31, 34 and 36 yards. He missed on pair of 37 yard attempts, the last hitting the crossbar with just 22 seconds left to play.

The other NFC scoring came on a 55-yard touchdown pass from Steve Bartkowski to Atlanta teammate Alfred Jenkins, and a safety when the AFC was called for holding in its own end zone.

"Playing well in the game meant a lot to me, particularly since I had gotten into the game when Tony Hill was hurt," said Jenkins, a replacement Pro Bowler who was the contest's leading receiver with three catches for 91 yards.

The AFC's lone score came on a 9-yard pass from Brian Sipe of Cleveland to New England's Stanley Morgan.

Two Remain With Biles At Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Two of Bum Phillips' former assistant coaches will stay with the Houston Oilers to work under new head coach Ed Biles, team officials announced Saturday.

Andy Bourgeois will continue to coach offensive backs and special teams and Bob Gambold will remain as coach of the defensive secondary, said Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg.

"This will go a long way in providing us with the continuity which I've felt was so important to the Oilers at this time," Herzeg said. Biles also said he was glad the two assistants decided to stay.

Gambold will enter his fifth season with the Oilers while Bourgeois, dean of Houston coaches, will be starting his ninth year.

Three former Houston assistant coaches left the Oilers earlier this month to join Phillips at New Orleans, including Phillips' son, Wade.

Phillips was fired as Oiler head coach the week after his team lost to eventual Super Bowl champion Oakland in the first round of the NFL playoffs.

East Beats West Cagers, 123-120

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — It can be considered, possibly, a tribute to the unselfishness of the players, or to the defenses of both teams.

But the fact is that, in a game laden with stars, no one emerged as the clear-cut standout of Sunday's National Basketball Association All-Star Game, won by the East 123-120.

"We played team ball today," said East guard Michael Ray Richardson, representing the New York Knicks. "We had some one-on-one moves, but they were in a team concept."

No one for either team could crack the 20-point barrier. Paul Westphal of Seattle and Dennis Johnson of Phoenix shared scoring honors for the West with 19 points apiece, while Julius Erving of Philadelphia had 18 to lead the East.

"These guys' attitudes are beautiful," said Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham, now undefeated in three All-Star coaching appearances. "They have the ability to adapt to any situation. I just thought the overall attitude was great."

Echoed West Coach John MacLeod of Phoenix: "Billy and I talked before the game about how it's a pleasure to watch these guys play - guys you usually coach against, and now you have them on your team."

About 200 media representatives voted veteran Boston guard Nate Archibald Most Valuable Player in the game - even though Archibald scored only nine points. His nine assists and his playmaking earned him the honor.

Celtic teammate Robert Parish, who had 10 points and a game-high 10 rebounds, was runnerup in the MVP balloting.

But the favorite of the 20,239 fans - representing the second-largest crowd in the 31 years of NBA All-Star play - was Cleveland Cavalier forward Mike Mitchell, who scored 14 points.

The West took a 27-23 lead after one quarter behind 10 points from Westphal.

But Mitchell's eight second-period points helped the East jump on top 61-58 at the half.

Guard Eddie Johnson of Atlanta then scored nine of his 16 points in the third quarter as the East expanded its margin to 88-97.

Abstract Art At Museum

American Abstract Expressionist paintings on loan from the Blaffer Foundation of Houston are the current feature in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College.

The local showing is part of a three-year statewide tour for the exhibit. The paintings in this exhibition are part of a larger collection of American painting from the twentieth century gathered by the famous author, James A. Michener, and given to the University of Texas at Austin. Twenty-three paintings are being shown here.

The Scurry County Museum is open each weekday and from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays. A descriptive brochure titled "Words in Action" accompanies the exhibit and may be obtained free of charge at the information desk in the museum lobby. There are also postcards reproducing a number of the paintings in the exhibit and these are also free for the asking. Information about the exhibit and other museum exhibits may be obtained by calling the office at 573-6107.

urged people to first contact the shelter to see if any dogs are available, then go to the police department to pay the fee.

The shelter is open from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. It is open from 8:30 a.m. until noon on Saturday and is closed Thursday and Sunday.

Taylor also urged dog owners to have their pets vaccinated against parvo virus, distemper, and rabies. Those diseases, Taylor warned, represent a continuing threat throughout the state. The vaccinations also carry over and protect the dog against some other diseases, including hepatitis.

"The prevention is much, much better than the curative measures," said Taylor.

Rabies Outbreak In Leakey

LEAKEY, Texas (AP) — An increasing number of confirmed cases of rabies in a six-county area of South Texas has Texas Health Department officials fearing another epidemic of the deadly virus.

While no human deaths have been reported, the number of confirmed animal cases is "alarming," said Dr. Elmer Herndon, a Camp Wood veterinarian who operates the only animal clinic in three counties.

Firms Absorb Moving Costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Many companies agree that shipping a relocating employee's household goods is the financial responsibility of the employer.

Winter Rough On Proud Old Yankees

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Winter in New England: bulging wood piles, pungent wood smoke, thrifty Yankees snug by glowing wood fires. The stuff of a Norman Rockwell painting.

But in the cities — in tiny apartments and drafty old houses — old and poor Yankees are known to coax heat off kitchen stoves and ovens after fuel oil tanks in the basement run dry.

Record-breaking temperatures and the $1.20-a-gallon cost of fuel oil have made real what was only feared a few years ago — thousands of people cannot afford to stay warm.

"It looks very bad this year. We have more people eligible for government help and more people signing up," Sister Betty Murtagh, a Catholic nun working for the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans, said with a sigh.

"We worry about elderly people dying of hypothermia. We have people leaving stoves and ovens on. We've had fires because of it," she said

In some New England states, including Massachusetts and Rhode Island, natural gas and electric companies are prohibited by law from turning off the heat during winter months if users can't afford to pay. But fuel oil suppliers, whose product heats most New England homes, face no such restrictions.

"I expect I'll have my gas stove going for the rest of the winter," said Julia Thomas of Providence as she walked through the snow one morning to apply for government assistance.

Mrs. Thomas, 53, a single parent of two children, said her oil tank had been empty for a week. She stood in a crowd of people with similar stories to seek government help. "I keep the temperature at 60 degrees, but it's hard 'cause it's so cold."

Congress voted to spend $1.756 billion this year in the Low Income Energy Assistance Program, authorized by the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Act.

But in a winter like this one, the coldest since 1885, the money isn't enough, government workers say.

From mid-December to mid-January, temperatures seldom reached the normal level of 30 degrees. On many days, the mercury didn't top 20 degrees, and nighttime temperatures often plunged below zero. More bitter cold is forecast.

Rhode Island received $11.3 million in heating aid to serve an estimated 18,000 families. In Massachusetts, the fuel assistance program has $76 million to spend on as many as 441,000 eligible people. In Maine, the figure is $23.8 million for an estimated 60,000 people.

In Maine, the poorest family qualifies for up to $500 to buy fuel oil. In Rhode Island the maximum for the most needy is $450.

"A number of people I know about have already exhausted their allotments, and the winter isn't even half over," Dick Rowland of the Association of Older Americans in Massachusetts said.

"Rhode Island's assistance program would shut down today if we were to give people the kind of money they really need to keep warm," said Liza Readyhough, head of Rhode Island's program.

"Because of the cold winter, the average six-room house has already consumed over 900 gallons of fuel. Even the neediest person can get only 375 gallons under our program," she said.

"President Reagan's decision to decontrol oil will raise the price even more and mean that much less heat for poor people," Mrs. Readyhough said.

Rhode Island energy officials expect decontrol to raise the price of heating oil by about a nickel a gallon.

Jadine O'Brien, director of Maine's program, said the state has already spent about $18 million of the $23.8 million allocated.

"If it stays this cold for the rest of the winter, there'll be problems," she said.

Mrs. O'Brien worries most about "a heck of a lot of elderly people — very proud New England Yankees — who wouldn't come in from the cold for help."

The plight of the elderly seems especially acute.

Gerontology students at the University of Massachusetts in Boston conducted a survey of low-income elderly and found that rising fuel costs have "profoundly altered" the lifestyles of thousands of retired people in the state.

In dealing with the problem of keeping warm, "everyone seems to begin by regulating their thermostats," the survey found.

"Second, there are those who have to dip into their retiresavings, unable to fulfill their dreams and barely able to pay their bills. Third, there are those who are forced to give up significant possessions, such as cars, or meaningful routines, such as entertaining friends.

"Fourth, many have no choice but to reduce the size of their living area. And last, there are those who have had to severely limit food."

Sister Murtagh called the elderly the "new poor, some of whom have saved all their live only to watch their hard work confiscated by high energy cost."

Understand Agreement Before Signing A Loan

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

You may be signing up for more than you realize when you take out a loan or buy on credit.

The Federal Trade Commission says that the standard clauses included in many loan agreements can bind borrowers to "some strange things."

Among the examples given by the agency is something called the "confession of judgment clause."

The fine print reads like this: "To secure payment hereof, the undersigned jointly and severally irrevocably authorize any attorney of any court of record to appear for one or more of them in such court in term or vacation, after default in payment hereof and confess a judgment without process in favor of the creditor hereof for such amount as may then appear, unpaid hereon, to release all errors which may intervene in any such proceedings, and to consent to immediate execution upon such judgment, hereby ratifying every act of such attorney hereunder."

What the 87 words add up to is this: If you default on a loan payment and the lender sues, you agree — in advance — that the lender should win, no matter what your reason for not paying. You even agree that the lender's lawyer can represent you.

Some states prohibit clauses like the one above. And a growing number of government bodies are passing laws requiring consumer documents like loan agreements to be written in simple language. The FTC says, however, that "there is still a good chance that consumers will find at least one of (the complicated provisions) in any credit contract they sign."

Here are some of the clauses to look out for:

—Blanket security interest clause. This provision gives the lender the right to take all your household goods if you don't pay off the loan. The lender can even confiscate items you buy to replace the ones he or she has already taken.

—Waiver of state property exemption clause. If you default, this type of clause gives the lender the right to take even the personal belongings which state law would allow you to keep. You agree — in advance — to waive the protection the state gives you.

—Right to collect deficiency clause. This provision involves property that is repossessed by a lender and sold to pay off a debt. If the lender doesn't get a good resale price, you have to pay the difference. If, for example, the lender repossesses a $500 television set and is able to sell it for only $150, you still owe $350 — even though you've lost the TV.

—Co-signer guaranty clause. This clause gives the lender the right to collect from the co-signer of a loan without first trying to collect from the borrower. In fact, the lender doesn't even have to warn your co-signer that you've fallen behind in your payments.

Border Squabble Continues

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru and Ecuador each called for a cease-fire after five days of skirmishing along a disputed stretch of their Andean border, but each reiterated its claim to the territory and demanded that the other recognize it.

Peru asserted Sunday night that all Ecuadorean forces had been driven from Peruvian territory and said its troops "have been ordered to cease firing when the adversary adopts a similar measure and abstains from any act of aggression."

Several hours later, Ecuadorean President Jaime Roldos called for a cease-fire that "respects the territorial integrity of Ecuador." His government admitted the loss of one of its three military posts in the remote, mountainous area but claimed ground and air fighting was continuing for another one.

Both governments sent their foreign ministers to Washington for an emergency debate by the Organization of American States today on the border flareup.

Plano Citizens Mourn Loss Of Small Town Ways

PLANO, Texas (AP) — It's not just plain old Plano anymore, and several old-time residents of the rapidly-developing Dallas suburb aren't happy about it.

"We had a nice little town," says B.B. "Buddy" Carpenter, 71, a retired real estate businessman who maintains his downtown office so he can chat with friends.

"In 1914,, there was an embargo and you couldn't ship cotton. The merchants each bought a bale and set them on the street just to help the farmers."

Carpenter says there was a time when the farmers came into the town's stores to buy, barter and and swap stories.

"Now," he says, "they (the merchants) want you to pay your money and get out."

"It's a different type of people, a different type of life. You don't have the friendliness of a small town."

Small wonder. In 1960, Plano had a population of 3,695. The preliminary census shows the Collin County city's population in 1980 is 71,956 — roughly an 1,800 percent increase.

Twenty years ago, the Plano Independent School System had a total enrollment of 1,175. This May, Plano High School will graduate 1,500 seniors.

Ben Thomas, a 58-year-old lifelong resident of Plano, remembers when he used to scramble up a hill south of town with other youngsters and "count 11 lights."

"We used to call it an 11-light city," he recalls.

But not all Plano residents are upset by the city's phenomenal growth. Hardware store owner Frank Adams, 55, says much of the complaining is done by "old timers" who are upset because they "can't get across town" without out battling traffic.

"Any of the business firms that have been there any length of time have welcomed that growth," he says. "We're becoming a complete community."

David McCall, a savings and loan company president and former mayor, agrees.

"Business-wise, it (the growth) has been fantastic. For peace of mind and motoring over the streets, it's not as easy."

Yet, McCall insists, "the quality of life is the same."

School officials plan to open a second high school next year to help cope with the ever-larger number of students. The chamber of commerce predicts, barring "a deep recession," Plano's population will zoom to 230,000 by the year 2000.

None of which impresses W.D. Wiser, 69, a real estate broker.

"It was a nice quiet community where you waved even if you couldn't tell who it was because you knew you knew them," he says, talking about Plano's "small town" past.

"I still wave at some of them, and they look like they're mad because they don't know me."

"I'm a real estate broker, and real estate keeps going up so it benefits me. But I preferred it when it was a little rural town."
