Reagan intervention rallies oil price

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices in Europe and the United States have rallied sharply because of a belief among buyers that the Reagan administration will pressure Saudi Arabia to help the depressed market by reducing its output.

Prices for West Texas Intermediate, the main U.S. grade, hit $11.60 per 42-gallon barrel in early dealings today on the New York Mercantile Exchange, up from $11.27 at Tuesday's close. The price had plunged as low as $9.75 earlier Tuesday, the lowest price in more than eight years.

In Europe, the cost of Britain's benchmark Brent crude from its North Sea fields jumped to $11 a barrel today after falling to $9.70 on Tuesday, the lowest level for that grade since 1973.

The markets began rallying after Vice President George Bush announced Tuesday he would tell the Saudi government on his upcoming Middle East trip that the price slide is hurting the domestic U.S. oil industry.

Saudi Arabia is widely blamed for the current supply glut and depends heavily on Washington's strategic support.

"This is a major change for the Reagan administration," said William Randol, an analyst for First Boston Corp., a New York investment firm. "The policy has been that lower is better, period. Now they're starting to realize that the euphoria of lower oil prices is like a party followed by a hangover."

New freight line now in operation

Officials with Central Freight Lines of Waco were in Snyder Tuesday searching for a site for a freight terminal operation here.

Visiting the city were Arthur Kackley, a Waco-based division manager for Central; Bob Pierce, the company's sales manager based out of Dallas; and Doug Attaway, a Central terminal manager now based in Sweetwater.

Immediate plans call for Attaway to also serve as the manager for the Snyder terminal. The indication was he may be moving locally from Sweetwater once the business is in full operation.

The terminal is expected to eventually employ a second clerk-bookkeeper staffer and possibly up to two drivers.

Immediate plans, however, are limited to obtaining a building and for Attaway to oversee the operation.

As of last Thursday, Central has had final approval from the Texas Railroad Commission to begin serving Snyder and other cities along U.S. Hwy. 84 from Lubbock to Sweetwater.

A short-line route also purchased by Central allows them to haul freight from here to Lamesa.

SHS one-act heads to Area event here

Theatre students from Snyder and Sweetwater High Schools earned the right to represent District 2-AAAA in Area competition at the district one-act play contest here Tuesday evening.

Both Snyder's production of Robert Bolt's "A Man for All Seasons" and Sweetwater's production of Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun" will return to the stage of Worsham Auditorium April 11 for the Area contest.

In addition Tuesday, Snyder's Brad Vincent and Shannon Lunsford claimed the titles of Best Actor and Best Actress for their portrayals of Sir Thomas More and Lady Alice More.

Five other cast members from Snyder earned All-Star Cast recognition.

The alternate play selected Tuesday was Fort Stockton High School's production of "A Company of Wayward Saints" by George Herman.

Critic-judge Tom Haynes — instructor at Howard College in Big Spring — had high praise for both the overall quality of the seven productions in Tuesday's contest and the caliber of individual performances.

Student actors from six of the seven plays in the contest were singled out for individual recognition on Haynes' Honorable Mention and All-Star Cast ballots. These included seven of the 10 principal players in "A Man for All Seasons."

Planting date set, 8 directors named

May 19 was established Tuesday as the uniform planting date for cotton by members of the Scurry County Producers Association.

The vote followed a recommendation by County Entomologist Deanna Myers, who noted, "I really feel May 26 is a better date, but I'll compromise."

The date was established at the annual meeting of the producers, which included the election of eight members to its governing board of directors.

Regarding the uniform planting date, David Kattes, board president, called it "the cheapest way to combat the weevil problem."

Myers noted that the mild winter of 1986 will create a large population of weevils emerging in the spring. The delayed planting date is to insure cotton plants are arriving at their most vulnerable stage after the largest influx of weevils is past.

Weevils attack the "square" stage of the plant. If the May 19 planting is followed, this should occur after July 1, Myers said.

Regarding the possibility of boll worm attacks on cotton this year, she said this was difficult to predict because the pests are not native to the area.

"We think they arrive with cool fronts from the south," she noted.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some of the low air fares had parents of college students worried. Their kids were threatening to come come during spring break."

Spring break is a relatively new thing. There used to be a mini-break at Easter, but there was no week-long holiday.

Now, college kids either head for the ski slopes or for the warm spots on the beaches. TV reports of wall-to-wall bodies soaking up the sun's rays may appeal to the young set, but for an old codger, a lawn chair and a glass of iced tea has more appeal.

We're sure everybody was less than rested when they returned to classes on Monday. Spring break reminds us of the cartoon about a man and his wife who decided to go camping in a remote mountain spot--away from people, away from TV and away from modern conveniences such as indoor plumbing.

The couple had just about enjoyed all they nature they could stand when the wife looked at her equally bored husband and said, "Now that we're away from it all--let's go home."

Someone suggested one way to chase commies from the beaches of Central America is to send American college kids there on their spring vacation.

Ferdinand Marcos' salary was reportedly only $5,700 a year. Now he's worth over $3 billion. It just goes to show that public service does pay.

They do things differently in the Philipppines. Even after the votes are counted, the president is still running.

In the Philippines, the loser has to take office. The "winner" gets a free trip to Hawaii.

There have been rumors that Marcos will finally be accepted in California. It is said that the exiled president is swamped by offers from book publishers. One suggested title: "Down and Out in Beverly Hills."

Lawsuit's possibility told to district board

The possibility of a lawsuit against the Scurry County Appraisal District was broached during Tuesday's session of the district's board of directors.

Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler said he has been informed such a lawsuit is possible although no legal action has been filed as yet.

The suit would address a local taxpayer's claim that no taxes are owned against personal property — specifically a private aircraft — since it had been out of the district's jurisdiction from Dec. 28, 1985 to Jan. 3, 1986.

Board members authorized Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler to contact representatives of several law firms regarding representing the district.

A special board session will be called within the next few weeks to provide the directors an opportunity to discuss the issue with lawyers.

In other action, the board approved minutes from last month's session and approved March expenditures. The meeting adjourned at 8:40 p.m.

Board members attending Tuesday's session included Ross Blanchard, Dwaine Williams, Pete Hester and Mairl McFaul.

Pints top '86 opener

The second successful blood drive of 1986 was completed here Tuesday as donor numbers exceeded those counted in the year's opener.

In all, 164 pints were drawn Tuesday. Last February, 142 pints were contributed here.

The drive, conducted at the Senior Citizens Center, was jointly sponsored by the advisory council for United Blood Services of Lubbock and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

At Tuesday's effort, 42 first time donors registered.

In addition, "gallon" pins were presented to 13 regular donors.

First criminal trial is held

SARITA, Texas (AP) — It's a new era for Kenedy County, a sparsely populated county located amidst almost legendary Texas ranches and dotted by mesquite trees, windmills and a single highway that cuts through the flat land almost within sight of the Gulf of Mexico.

The first felony criminal trial ever conducted in the colorful 65-year history of Kenedy County has resulted in the conviction of a Lower Rio Grande Valley man on a charge of aggravated possession of marijuana.

The county is surrounded by massive Texas ranches such as the King Ranch and Armstrong Ranch and the Sarita Kenedy East Ranch. The county was formed in 1921 and is named for Mifflin Kennedy, a partner of Capt. Richard King, founder of the world famous King Ranch.

On trial in the Kenedy County courthouse that dominates the mesquite tree lined landscape of this South Texas village were Eusebio Ariola, 26, Mae Alice Rodriguez, 31, and Alfredo Sosa, 21, all of San Benito.

Presiding at the history making trial was District Judge Vernon Harville.

Sosa and Ms. Rodriguez were granted instructed verdicts of acquittal by Harville. Ariola, however, was convicted, sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $100,000.

All previous criminal jury trials involving Kenedy County have been held at Kingsville in neighboring Kleberg County, but officials say the increased number of drug arrests at the U.S. Border Patrol checkpoint south of Sarita has brought more activity to the Kenedy County Courthouse at Sarita.

Two Border Patrol agents testified they stopped the van driven by Ariola and occupied by Ms. Rodriguez and Sosa and found 420 pounds of marijuana worth an estimated $336,000.

A panel of 75 prospective jurors was called, and 36 qualified for jury duty. The county has a population of only about 500 people, with about 200 of those living in Sarita.

"There hasn't been a felony criminal trial in the county since formation of the county. We all are making history," assistant district attorney Jeff Babcock told the jury panel.

David Diaz, attorney for the three defendants, said he was surprised at being the first defense attorney to try a felony criminal case in Kenedy County.

VP Bush to warn Saudis on decline in the price of oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush is ready to tell the world's largest oil producer that plunging petroleum prices are threatening America's vital interests by causing chaos in the U.S. oil industry.

Bush, who will arrive in Saudi Arabia on Saturday on the first leg of a four-nation visit to the Persian Gulf, said at a news conference Tuesday the oil market must stabilize.

"I think it is essential that we talk about stability and that we not just have a continued free fall like a parachutist jumping out without a parachute, and that's what essentially has happened to the price of crude oil in recent months," Bush said. "And it's caused some hardship."

The Saudis, trying to gain control of the market from non-OPEC forces, have stepped up production to 4.4 million barrels a day, causing an oil glut that sent prices tumbling.

For weeks, the Reagan administration has been hailing the price drop as a barometer of declining inflation and economic growth. Energy Secretary John S. Herrington began changing that emphasis Monday, and Bush underscored the shift on Tuesday.

He said a low price helps keep inflation down and stimulates the economy, "but when it gets to damage your national security interest or gets to throw a significant number of financial institutions into turmoil, to say nothing of the people in the energy industry, that cuts the other way."

The new policy was credited by analysts with helping oil prices rebound to $11.27 Tuesday from their lowest level since 1977, $9.75 a barrel.

U.S. producers have warned that plummeting prices are eliminating incentives for oil exploration, thus increasing America's dependence on foreign oil.

Bush said he would not tell the Saudis to cut production but that "clearly I will be saying that stability in the market is a very important thing, and I will be selling very hard in terms of our domestic interest, the interests of our own domestic interests and thus the interests of our national security."

Despite his jawboning, Bush said, "We're not going there on a price-setting mission."

AT&T still coping with Bell breakup

NEW YORK (AP) — The earthquake of the Bell System breakup occurred more than two years ago, but AT&T, its one-third of a million employees and 87 million long-distance customers are still feeling the aftershocks.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has to cope, in negotiations scheduled to begin today, with labor unions demanding job security. It is waging a $400 million campaign for long-distance customers. And during it all, it must make the transition to a new chairman.

Long-distance continues to make money for AT&T, but the company has suffered from declining rental revenue on communications equipment and slow sales of both phone equipment and computers. Revenues rose but earnings slipped 1.6 percent at the end of 1985 and Wall Street analysts recently lowered their earnings projections for 1986 and 1987.

Even so, AT&T continues to have 2.9 million shareholders, making it, according to the company, the most widely owned stock in the world, and Charles L. Brown, who led the company through its worst upheaval, believes the worst is over.

Brown retires as chairman in August. He discussed AT&T's past and prospects in an interview Tuesday with The Associated Press.

"Considering the trajectory that we have been on, the momentum is good and the company is in a good financial shape," he said. "There are a great many things that need to be done, but I don't think it's a question of a reversal."

Industry analysts expect James Olson, AT&T's vice chairman, president and chief operating officer, to succeed Brown, who has declined to discuss the subject out of concern it will hurt his own effectiveness.

Brown is a traditionalist, said analyst Kenneth Leon at L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin. "Whereas Mr. Olson, we don't know yet what his management style will be. He has a higher energy level than Mr. Brown, a different flair. It could be Peter the Great moving AT&T out of the Dark Ages."

AT&T was the world's largest corporation when "Charlie" Brown became chairman in 1979. It had guaranteed returns on investment and a near monopoly on the nation's long-distance telephone service.

Today, the Bell System belongs to history and a shrunken AT&T — with less than a third the assets of its predecessor — is battling a host of competitors in long-distance service, communications equipment and computers.

Brown, 64, whose first job with AT&T was summer construction work in Cleveland during the Depression, was shaken by the company's breakup, as were many other career employees. He described the event in the latest annual report as "the most shattering reorganization in business history."

Brown aims to leave behind a company that is not just smaller than the old AT&T, but quicker, tougher and "largely free of the court and legislative and regulatory hassles of those (pre-divestiture) days."

AT&T was scheduled to begin bargaining with its unions today in the first formal contract talks since 1983, before the breakup of the Bell System.

Worker's earring center of dispute

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — There's nothing wrong with the tiny blue triangle earring that Arlington city park employee Jay Youngblood wears dangling from his earlobe, Youngblood says.

But City Councilman Jim Norwood questions whether the earring is appropriate for a male city park employee.

Norwood, who in the past has campaigned for a crackdown on homosexual activity in an Arlington park and led an attempt to prevent convenience stores from selling adult magazines, Tuesday asked the city council if the city has a dress code.

Norwood said one of his constituents disapproved of a male employee wearing an earring.

"I personally don't feel like it's appropriate dress for a city employee," Norwood said.

Youngblood, who has worked for the parks department for two years, said he was surprised that his earring became a subject for discussion at a city council meeting.

Surprise, surprise

By James Jacoby

Who could blame North for bidding six clubs? Apparently South had a long club suit and at least the ace of spades. The opening lead would presumably be a diamond. If so, South would then be able to draw trumps and lead hearts while dummy's other high diamond remained as an entry for all those heart tricks. That was not bad thinking. Unfortunately West had a surprise opening lead for North-South. He quite naturally led the king of spades. Now what?

The answer would depend upon a slightly lucky distribution of the cards for starters, but it would also require that West be given the opportunity to make a mistake. What the declarer did was to return the surprise, allowing West to hold the first trick. Meanwhile East, with nothing better to do, had signaled encouragement with the spade six. Now you and I know that defender West could cash the heart ace at trick two, reducing the chance for 12 tricks to nil. But West was worried that South might be void in hearts. Accordingly, West continued spades. That was all declarer needed.

He took the second spade with the ace and ruffed a spade with the club ace. He now played out all his clubs. On the last club, West had to reduce to three cards. If he threw the ace of hearts away to hold three diamonds, dummy's king of hearts would be the 12th trick. When he kept the ace of hearts, declarer threw his heart king from dummy and took the last three tricks with the A-K-7 of diamonds.

Pare cholesterol from food favorites

ENJOY special treats such as French apple crepes or fish and potato sticks while staying within diet restrictions.

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Surveys show that most of us pay lip service to the hottest topic of the decade — healthful eating.

Few want to give up their favorite rich desserts, butter or eggs. But it is possible to make and enjoy rich-tasting foods and keep within many diet restrictions.

An example are French apple crepes, which are lower in fat, calories and have little or no cholesterol, but have full flavor. Another favorite, fish and chips, can be a part of the weekly menu without adding an excessive amount of calories, cholesterol or sodium.

It is possible to enjoy your favorite foods within certain diet restrictions.

FRENCH APPLE CREPES

Crepes:

- 1 ¼ cups skim milk
- 2 large eggs (or egg substitute)
- ¾ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
- Butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray

FILLING:

- Butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray
- 5 apples (2 pounds) unpared, cored and thinly sliced
- ½ cup Chablis wine or apple cider (divided)
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds
- Apple slices for garnish

To make crepes, in medium-size bowl, lightly beat milk with eggs. Add flour and butter, and beat just until blended. Cover and chill at least 1 hour.

Coat a 7-inch skillet or crepe pan with butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray according to directions. When hot, add about 3 tablespoons batter to pan, tilting pan so batter covers entire surface. Cook over low to medium heat about 3 minutes or until lightly browned. Turn and cook 1 minute or until lightly browned. Remove and cool. Repeat with remaining batter until there are 12 crepes. This recipe makes about 1 ⅔ cups batter.

To prepare filling, coat a large skillet with butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray. Add apples, cinnamon and all but 1 tablespoon wine. Cover and cook over medium heat about 6 minutes or until apples are just tender, turning once or twice.

In small bowl, mix together the 1 tablespoon wine and cornstarch. Spoon a little hot liquid from pan into cornstarch and blend well. Return to pan. Cook about 3 minutes, turning apples frequently, until mixture is thickened. Stir in almonds. Spoon about ⅓ cup apple mixture in center of each crepe. Roll up. Garnish with apple slices. Serve hot (2 to a portion). This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings.

FISH AND POTATO STICKS INTERNATIONAL

- 4 medium potatoes (about 1 ½ pounds)
- 1 pound fillet of scrod
- 1 egg (or egg substitute)
- 1 tablespoon water
- ½ cup flavored bread crumbs
- Butter-flavored vegetable no-stick cooking spray

Pare potatoes and cut them into ¼-inch-thick slices. Cut slices into ¼-inch sticks. Pat dry with paper towels.

Cut scrod into 1-inch by 2-inch strips. In shallow bowl, beat egg and water. Place crumbs in a plate. Dip scrod first into egg, then into crumbs, lightly coating both sides.

Coat a large skillet with butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray according to directions. Add potatoes. Cook, uncovered, over medium heat about 25 minutes, turning occasionally, until potatoes are lightly browned.

About 10 minutes before potatoes are done, coat a second large skillet with butter-flavored vegetable cooking spray. Add scrod and cook, uncovered, over low heat about 3 to 4 minutes on each side. Remove to heated serving platter. Arrange potatoes on one side. Serve immediately. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Big eaters in 2 million homes

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are being eaten out of house and home by termites to the tune of some $750 million a year, according to a home inspection service.

"Although the figures for the number of homes infested each year in the United States vary," says Kenneth Austin, chairman of Housemaster of America, "government sources put the estimate at some 2 million homes."

Austin adds that, "While these wood-boring insects thrive in all sections of the nation, the South has been under siege in recent years by the Formosa termite from China, Japan and Formosa. These voracious borers can do major structural damage to a home in three months.

American forces under Gen. Andrew Jackson defeated the British in 1815 in the Battle of New Orleans, the final battle in the War of 1812.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

NEW YORK (AP) — What's in a name?

Enough, it's said, for some fish dealers here to be misnaming species to make them more alluring to buyers. An example would be pollack being sold as blue snapper and mullet sold under the name of fresh bass.

Single Women Might Find Good Moves at Chess Club

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You have often been asked a question like this: I am a 26-year-old female who would like to meet a decent, eligible man. I've tried the bar scene, but most men are after a one-night stand. I've tried church groups, but the few men who are present came because their wives made them go. So where do I go from here?

Abby, I have a suggestion: Join a chess club. Women are always welcome. Furthermore, they will find that men outnumber women 10-to-1. Not bad odds! Also, from 25 percent to 40 percent of the men will be unmarried. Men who play chess on a regular basis are usually of good character. The game requires that the player make individual, intelligent, patient and logical decisions. These attributes carry over into everyday life. For example, I estimate that 95 percent of steady tournament players do not smoke, and I have never met one who abuses alcohol or drugs. They are almost always employed, are high achievers and have a stable family life.

A woman could counter with, "But I don't know anything about chess." Well, that could be to her advantage. What better way to break the ice than to ask a man of her choice to show her the moves?

If you print this, some women will probably write in and say, "I married a chess player, and you can have him!"

I realize that not every chess player is necessarily an ideal prospect for marriage, but it's a good way to meet eligible men.

LYLE PROSTERMAN,
COLUMBUS

DEAR LYLE: It's a novel idea for a place for women to meet decent men, but the typical chess player (as I perceive him) is not exactly a barrel of laughs. He's apt to be quiet and pensive, more of an introvert than an extrovert, highly competitive, and slow to make decisions—which isn't all bad. The moves in chess have often been compared with those made by two opposing generals on a battlefield. A chess game resembles a war in that it consists of attack and defense, whose object is making the "king" surrender. On second thought, it could be a good training ground for marriage.

DEAR ABBY: You self-appointed soothsayers are a comical lot, but your anti-male bias tops all the others.

You presume to explain why a man will pick up a tramp and treat her better than he treats his wife who is a lady. How do you know his wife is a lady? She may be as big a tramp as the prostitutes he picks up.

There's no difference between the wife who holds her husband's sex life hostage with her "headaches" and/or demands for new clothes than the prostitute who settles for cash only. For most men, a prostitute is much cheaper than a wife.

When women fought their way into men's toilets and locker rooms and chose abortion in lieu of contraception, they ceased to be ladies.

SEATTLE SID

DEAR SID: You are obviously an angry, bitter man who loves to hate women. You asked for no advice, so I'll not urge you to seek the counseling you so desperately need in order to love and be loved in return. Pity.

DEAR ABBY: I am a U.S. postal employee who wants to say thank you, thank you, thank you for your booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." A co-worker of mine lost a grown child due to a tragic accident, and in your booklet I found just the words that reflected my true feelings. I later heard that my condolence note gave much comfort to the bereaved.

That booklet contains so much good material about how to write letters of every kind, I want you to know it was the best $2.50 I ever spent.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Unit being rebuilt with compassion

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — After grieving for the loss of 248 soldiers in the December crash of a military transport in Newfoundland, the Army has rebuilt the lost unit under a new commander who talks of infantry grit but also of compassion.

Lt. Col. Harry Rothman succeeded Lt. Col. Marvin A. Jeffcoat, who was killed in the crash as Fort Campbell soldiers were returning from Mideast peacekeeping duties in the Sinai desert.

Often wearing camouflage fatigues and green face paint, Rothman mixes with his troops, as GIs in training slog through mud and duck simulated enemy fire. "This is what soldiering is all about," he says. "This is the highlight of an infantryman's career."

Another job has been rebuilding. Of the three rifle companies in the 3rd battalion of the 502nd Infantry Regiment, one was annihilated in the Dec. 12 crash at Gander.

"My problem was how to reconstruct that company in particular," he said.

Sir Isaac Newton, inventor and father of the theory of gravity, died in 1727.

Oil exploration could be hurt

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The loss of skilled labor in an oil recession could damage the country's ability to find new oil reserves for years to come, an economist told a House panel.

Jim Williams, a partner in the consulting firm Texas Business Forecast, said Tuesday the number of people working in Odessa and Midland could fall from 100,200 to 85,000 or even 75,000 within two years if the price of crude averages $15 a barrel.

"We're talking about losing 25 percent of existing jobs over the next two years," he said.

Once skilled manpower such as geologists is lost to other professions, it would take years to replace, he said, adding that those skills require not only a college education but field experience before people can become productive.

As a result, America's ability to find oil will be impaired even after the shocks to the industry wear off, the economist said.

Williams was among the business leaders and economists testifing at a hearing Tuesday before the House Small Business Committee's Subcommittee on Energy, Environment and Safety on the future of independent oil and gas explorers and producers.

Two members of the committee from the Texas delegation — Reps. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, and Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford — sponsored the meeting, which was scheduled to continue today in Abilene.

Steve Late, who with his father operates Broncho Chevrolet in Odessa, told the subcommitte that when Texans stop buying trucks, Detroit is likely to suffer.

Late, a board of directors member of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, said car sales in Ector and Midland counties fell about 40 percent from January to February.

"General Motors is sitting on more than a 100-day inventory of trucks, and 25 percent of U.S. truck sales are in Texas," Late said.

Sam Holloman, an Odessa oilfield construction company owner, said he has sold his bank stock and resigned a bank directorship in anticipation of bank crashes in the Permian Basin.

Many banks and savings and loans will close their doors, Holloman predicted.

Charles Perry, an independent oilman and chairman of the board of MBank Odessa, said the decline in oil prices has shocked many of MBank's customers.

While many energy loans have been written off, foreclosed or collected over the past three years, commercial and real estate loans will be affected too as the impact of oil's downturn on the ecomony spreads, he said.

Borrowers are defensive and becoming increasingly willing to file for bankruptcy to protect themselves, Perry added.

Odessa rancher and independent oilman James "Buzz" Hurt told the congressmen that the Permian economy was already suffering before the price slide, with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation picking up the pieces in 1983 as energy loans soured.

"The FDIC is now the biggest operator in the oil patch," Hurt said.

Pickens : oil tariff won't pass

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A tariff on imported oil might help the U.S. petroleum industry, but there are too many non-oil-producing states to win support for such a fee, corporate takeover artist T. Boone Pickens said.

Also, Pickens said here Tuesday, President Reagan will not allow a tariff.

"It's not because Reagan is against the domestic industry, he's for it," Pickens said. "But he's opposed to taxes, he's opposed to tariffs and we're going to have to work it out ourselves."

Pickens, in San Antonio to speak at a breakfast sponsored by Trinity University, said Texas faces hard times and the oil industry already has "taken a big hit' when it comes to layoffs.

His own Mesa Petroleum Co. in Amarillo has reduced its payroll from 900 employees to 400, he said.

By October, Pickens said, there is a three out of four chance crude prices will range to less than $10 a barrel to $18 to $20 a barrel.

And, he said, it will be 18 to 24 months before the price of oil is up to $30 a barrel.

Pickens, noted for his attempts to take over such petroleum companies as Phillips, Gulf, Cities Service, General American and Unocal, said prices at the gasoline pump likely will dip as low as 50 cents a gallon before they start easing up again.

The 13 nations in OPEC, he said, need to cut production to under 16 million barrels a day to get prices up to $18 to $20 per barrel, he said.

The current production level is about 17 million a day.

Pickens described as only rhetoric a Saudi oil minister's prediction this week that crude prices would drop to $5 to $8 a barrel.

"We've got four or five years where we're going to have to work out our problems and hang on with our fingernails," he said.

He also said he thinks Texaco and Pennzoil will reach some kind of settlement without appealing their dispute through the court system.

A jury in Houston in December awarded Pennzoil $10.53 billion in damages after Texaco interfered with a proposed merger between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co.

Texaco eventually merged with Getty.

Texaco has appealed the judgment, but has not posted an appeal bond of about $11 billion was set by a judge.

Sitton named to Dean's List

WACO--For the 1985 fall semester, 732 students at Baylor University were named to the Dean's Academic Honor List and the Dean's Distinguished Academic Honor List.

Marika Lynn Sitton of Snyder was named to the Dean's List.

T. Lewis named to committee post

AUSTIN--Terry K. Lewis of Snyder has been named chairman of the Scurry County Steering committee for Tom Loeffler's gubernatorial bid, it was announced recently from Loeffler's Austin campaign headquarters.

Also serving on the committee are Roger Mize, Eddie Epley, Roger Weaver, Penny Clark and Mark Duke. "I am very enthusiastic about the steering committee we have put together for Tom here in Scurry County," Lewis said. "The Loeffler for Governor campaign is on the move right here in Scurry County, and throughout West Texas."

Commission: state must attack crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The legal profession must rid itself of mob-connected lawyers, while states must attack organized crime with electronic surveillance and grand juries, says a presidential commission investigating organized crime.

Law enforcement tools at the state level are vital if the power of the Mafia and the emerging clout of outlaw motorcycle gangs and ethnic crime groups is to be broken, the President's Commission on Organized Crime concluded Tuesday.

In its final report before going out of business after more than 2½ years, the presidential panel asserted that organized crime will reap more than $100 billion this year, will cost the country more than 400,000 jobs and will cut a typical person's income by nearly $80.

Organized crime's proceeds from heroin, cocaine and marijuana trafficking this year will total as much as $55 billion, concluded the commission, relying on a study performed for it by Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates of Philadelphia.

"The increasing sophistication and specialization of industry, the growth of permissiveness reflected in increased use of illicit drugs ... have all contributed to the changing shape and enduring presence of organized crime in this country," the panel's chairman, Irving Kaufman, said in an introduction.

Defeat Lamesa here...

Snyder Tigers win loop opener, 2-1

Mike McWilliams' sixth-inning dash provided the winning run as Snyder edged Lamesa 2-1 here Friday in the District 2-4A baseball opener for both teams.

McWilliams had moved into scoring position when he slammed a one-out triple to the left field fence. It was only Snyder's second hit of the ballgame and the first off of Lamesa pitcher Jimmy Scott, who had come in in the third stanza. But the sometimes-erratic hurler walked next-up Michael Long, then had a one-two count on Ricky Hunter before throwing the next pitch into the dirt. Catcher Greg Hogg was unable to block the ball and McWilliams raced home standing up.

Lamesa mounted a threat in the top of the seventh inning when Joe Lopez led off with a walk and Hogg followed with a shot that second-sacker Chris Fryar bobbled. But pitcher Jimmy Velasquez rose to the occasion. The fiery right-hander struck out Sheldon Smith, then got Scott to pop up to first baseman David Martinez. He then took Prentis Smith to a two-two count before winging a fast ball by him for his 12th strikeout of the evening.

All was not roses for the Tigers, though, who got base runners to second or third base with just one out on three occasions but couldn't put a run across. Snyder left six base runners stranded.

"We needed that kind of effort tonight from Jimmy," said Coach Albert Lewis. "We were able to get the runs we needed, but I'm afraid we're going to have to do better than that against some of these people (future opponents). We're still not aggressive enough at the plate. We got guys in scoring position several times and weren't able to get them in. We've got enough seniors that we should be able to do that."

Velasquez went the seven-inning distance for the Tigers and, like Scott, pitched himself out of several trouble spots. He gave up just four hits and two walks. The night air - it was an unofficial 54 degrees not considering a steady breeze - didn't bother him.

"I felt great. My elbow was hurting a little but I didn't let it bother me. The weather was just right. It was cool and I wasn't sweating as much," said the senior, who has won his last two outings. "I was hurting early in the season but I'm feeling real good now."

Snyder set up its first score in the second inning when Todd Odom drew a two-out walk off of starting pitcher David Scott. Odom, the Tigers' designated hitter, reached second on a passed ball. He scored when David Martinez clubbed a single to short right field.

Lamesa tied the game in the sixth when Prentis Smith walked aboard, was sacrificed to second, reached third despite a fine defensive play, and scored on an error.

The stellar defensive effort was put in by short stop Brad Holcomb, who made a diving stop of a hard hit ball by Tim Berry, then threw from a kneeling position in time to make the out at first base.

Unfortunately, Smith scored on a routine ground ball to Fryar. Apparently the fielder took his eye off of the ball for a split-second and it got past him.

Afterward Coach Lewis was quick to support the senior ballplayer.

"Chris had a couple of bad moments out there but he'll shake it off, I'm sure he will," said the coach. "He's a competitor. He'll bounce back for us."

The victory puts Snyder at 9-7 on the season and 1-0 in district play while Lamesa falls to 4-8-1 and 0-1.

Snyder will play its final non-district game of the season here Saturday by hosting Class 3A stalwart Brownfield at 1 p.m.

Brownfield, 13-3, is ranked No. 3 in the state but Lewis was worried about only one thing - finding a second pitcher to compliment Velasquez.

"Next week we've go to Andrews on Tuesday and host Pecos Friday. Jimmy can pitch against Andrews but we've got to find somebody for Pecos," said Lewis.

Cats pop AHS, 12-8

Snyder junior varsity baseball team defeated Abilene High 12-8 here Monday to pick up its fifth win in six outings.

Skip Coward earned the victory, his second of the season, as Snyder marched to a 5-5 record.

Kevin Dollins, Mark Faulkenberry and Van Echols all went two-for-three from the plate while Bert Otto slammed a bases loaded singled in the fourth that got the team fired up after trailing 8-4.

Snyder cracked 13 hits in the contest while Abilene came up with 11.

Dollins leads the squad in hitting with a .529 average. Faulkenberry is batting .467 and Echols .409.

The Cats will play Abilene again next Thursday, April 10, in Abilene at 4:30 p.m.

Murdock, Webb reap all-American honors

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah – Snyder athletes Justin Webb and Dewayne Murdock received All-America honors in the Bigger, Faster, Stronger program recently.

Webb, running back for the Tigers, was named to the third-team while Murdock, an offensive tackle, was honorable mention.

The program considers athletes on the bases of honors received, strength in the dead lift, bench press, power clean and squat, and grade point average.

Webb, who has received numerous post-season honors, including All-South Plains and All-District 2-4A, runs a 4.6 40, and lifts 380 in the squat, 300 in the bench, 515 in the dead lift and cleans 230.

Murdock, also All-South Plains and All-District 2-4A, runs a 5.2 40, squats 400, benches 360, dead lifts 520 and cleans 230.

Veteran pitchers booted out as teams slip past deadline

by The Associated Press

Once upon a time, any team could have used a pitching staff of Len Barker, Pascual Perez, Ray Burris, Rick Camp and Ray Fontenot, with Terry Forster and Bill Dawley in the bullpen.

The Atlanta Braves, Milwaukee Brewers, Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros decided Tuesday they couldn't use any of them, and trimmed them from the major-league rosters.

Veteran pitchers bore the brunt as big-league clubs worked under a salary deadline in paring their rosters to the 24-man limit agreed upon by owners last winter. Teams had to release veteran players Tuesday or pay their full salaries.

Also getting the pink slip were Chicago Cubs infielder Richie Hebner, an 18--year veteran; Montreal first baseman-outfielder Terry Francona, a lifetime .290 hitter but on the disabled list much of 1982 and 1984; Milwaukee outfielder David Green, a key figure in the Dec. 12, 1980, trade that sent Ted Simmons, Rollie Fingers and Pete Vuckovich from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Brewers, and Seattle second baseman Jack Perconte, who hit .294 for the Mariners in 1984.

Atlanta wielded the heaviest axe, cutting 11 players - pitchers Perez, Barker, Forster, Camp and Pete Falcone; catcher Larry Owen; infielders Gerald Perry, Paul Runge and Paul Zuvella; and outfielders Brad Komminsk and Albert Hall.

The 28-year-old Perez was 1-13 with a 6.14 earned run average for the Braves last season, although he pitched fairly well this spring. Barker, 30, who pitched a perfect game for Cleveland against Toronto in 1981, had a five-year, $2.85 million contract which ran through 1986, but only the first three years were guaranteed. He was 3-9 with a 6.35 ERA last year while trying to come back from shoulder surgery and had a 5.40 ERA this spring.

Forster had a 1.69 ERA in 10 2-3 innings this spring but did not strike out a batter. The 34-year-old left-hander has 122 saves in 15 major-league seasons, including an American League-leading 24 for the Chicago White Sox in 1974.

"It's a tough day for managers when you have to make decisions like this," said Atlanta's Chuck Tanner. "We let some big names go. Forster I had at 19 years of age (in Chicago). He is like a son to me. It was not easy."

"Life goes on," Forster said.

Tanner said Perez was penciled in as the Braves' No. 3 starter until "some of the youngsters - (Craig) McMurtry, (Joe) Johnson and (Jeff) Dedmon - came on in the spring. Basically, what it came down to was that Perez got knocked down to the No. 5 starting spot and we didn't feel Pascual could adapt" to the role of part-time starter and long reliever as well as Johnson or McMurtry.

Milwaukee lopped Burris, a 35-year-old right-hander who was 9-13 with a 4.81 ERA last year, and Green, 25, who hit .248 with the San Francisco Giants. The Brewers reacquired him in December for a minor-league infielder.

Hebner, 38, has a .277 lifetime average with 203 home runs, but batted only .217 for the Cubs last season as a pinch hitter and utility player. Fontenot, 28, had a 6-10 record and a 4.36 ERA in 1985 and has been bothered by a sore shoulder this spring. Fontenot was optioned to Iowa of the American Association while Hebner was released outright.

The 30-year-old Dawley came to Houston in 1983 from Cincinnati and was 5-3 with a 3.56 ERA last year. He saved 14 games in 1983 and was 11-4 with a 1.93 ERA in 1984.

Other cuts included pitcher Jerry Reed and catcher Jerry Willard by the Cleveland Indians, shortstop Onix Concepcion by the Kansas City Royals, pitcher Doug Bair by the Cincinnati Reds, pitchers John Stuper and Randy St. Claire and infielder Ivan DeJesus by Montreal, pitcher Tom Gorman by the New York Mets, outfielder Brian Harper by the St. Louis Cardinals and outfielder Ron Roenicke by the San Francisco Giants.

Pitcher Danny Cox of the Cardinals, who chipped a bone in his ankle while jumping off a seawall, will return to St. Louis on Friday to be re-examined.

Tuesday's exhibition scores: Atlanta 6, Baltimore 0; Pittsburgh 7, Minnesota 5; Philadelphia 3, Boston 0; Houston 5, Detroit 5 in 12 innings; Toronto 10, Cincinnati 0; Montreal 3, Texas split squad 2; San Francisco 6, Milwaukee 5 in 10 innings; Oakland 7, Chicago Cubs 4; Seattle 3, Cleveland 0; Kansas City 2, New York Yankees split squad 1; New York Mets 4, Los Angeles 4 in 12 innings; Yankees split squad 9, Texas split squad 2; Chicago White Sox 7, St. Louis 6 in 10 innings.

Expos 3, Rangers 2

Herm Winningham, Tim Raines and Andre Dawson each drove in runs in Montreal's three-run third and Jay Tibbs pitched six strong innings, allowing one run. Winningham and Raines had RBI doubles and Dawson a single.

Astros 5, Tigers 5

Darrell Evans and Dave Engle homered as Detroit built a 5-0 lead. Houston scored four times in the seventh inning and tied the score with a run in the ninth on Billy Hatcher's two-out RBI single.

Braves 6, Orioles 0

Jeff Dedmon combined with Gene Garber and Bruce Sutter on a six-hitter while Atlanta scored all its runs off Dennis Martinez, including Ken Oberkfell's two-run single.

Foster new Houston coach; North Texas welcomes Gales

by The Associated Press

Pat Foster is headed from Lamar to Houston, Dallas high school coach Jimmy Gales will be at North Texas State, and Kevin Wall has been promoted to the top job at Pan American.

It was a busy day for the hiring of college basketball coaches in Texas Tuesday.

Foster, who earlier had withdrawn his name from consideration, accepted the head coaching job at Houston to replace the retiring Guy V. Lewis.

Gales was named head coach at North Texas to replace Tommy Newman, who resigned for personal reasons.

And Wall was made head coach 15 days after Lon Kruger resigned the Pan Am job to go to Kansas State.

Foster is the third head basketball coach in the 41-year history of Cougar athletics.

"It's a job that has a great amount of prestige," said Foster. "It'll be difficult to win as many basketball games as Guy has. I probably won't make it that long (30 years)."

Foster said he may keep the university's current assistants or bring his Lamar staff to Houston.

Gales, 44, who coached at NTSU under Bill Blakely from 1975-1983, has been head coach at South Oak Cliff High School for the past three years. During that time, his teams posted a mark of 89-12.

This season, the Golden Bears were 29-3 and reached the regional tournament championship game. Last season, the team was 33-2 and two seasons ago was 27-7.

During his eight years as an assistant at North Texas, the Eagles posted a 134-85 record, including three 20-win seasons.

Gales also coached at South Oak Cliff from 1972-75, finishing with a record of 104-15.

Gales, who was born in Fort Worth, graduated from Alcorn State in 1963 and received a masters degree from East Texas State in 1977.

He was one of eight finalists interviewed by a North Texas State search committee.

Wall, 34, said the new job will enable him "to set new goals" at Pan American, an NCAA Division I independent that finished 20-8 last season.

"It was like being 10 points ahead with five minutes left - you think you're going to win, but you're not sure," Wall said.

Walls, who had been Kruger's assistant for four years, will inherit a team with eight seniors.

"I'm really excited that my first opportunity as head coach at a major university will be with a group of players I have recruited and already coached," Walls said. "They are a fine group that met some success last season."

The school didn't conduct a national search, although coaches from all over the country - many of them current or former Division I coaches - had shown interest, school officials said.

Wall has coached 10 years. In three seasons as a junior college head coach in Kansas, he guided Pratt to 19-10 and 17-5 records and Fort Scott to 21-9.

Wall was an assistant coach to his brother, Dan, at two colleges. They coached Independence J.C. of Kansas to 34-2 and 28-4 records, winning the national junior college championship in 1977. They also coached Southwest Texas State to a 20-6 record and the Lone Star Conference title.

Wall is the eighth head basketball coach at Pan American since the school became a four-year college in 1952.

Haskins hired at Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Clem Haskins, who returned from a professional basketball career to coach at his Western Kentucky alma mater, has accepted an offer to become the University of Minnesota's coach.

The announcement Tuesday night came a little more than two months after Jim Dutcher resigned during his 11th season as Gopher coach, a season that saw three players charged with sexual assault, two more suspended for violating team rules and allegations that Dutcher had been lax on discipline and academic concerns.

"I'm sorry to see Mr. Haskins go ... I think Clem's done a fine job for us and I'm sure he'll do the same at Minnesota," said Ronnie Clark of Franklin, Ky., a member of the Western Kentucky board of regents and a former Hilltopper basketball player.

"Quite frankly, I was hoping he wouldn't get together with them (University of Minnesota officials). He and his family have been a credit to our university."

Haskins' appointment still must be approved by the Board of Regents. Jimmy Williams, a Gopher assistant coach, has been interim coach since Dutcher resigned Jan. 25 following the rape charges against three players.

Cowboys promote Pueller to 2nd-string quarterback

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Dallas Cowboys reserve quarterback Steve Pelluer has been promoted to the No. 2 quarterback spot behind Danny White because backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom wants to be traded, the team's offensive passing coordinator says.

The promotion came after Pelluer had practiced only a few hours Tuesday at the Cowboys mini-camp.

"Steve is our No. 2 quarterback," said Paul Hackett, Cowboys' offensive passing coordinator. "No question, he has a shot at No. 1. But it would be difficult to unseat experience. A young guy can learn a lot from (starting quarterback) White."

Pelluer was the third-string quarterback behind White and Hogeboom last season, but because Hogeboom has requested a trade, Hackett chose to make Pelluer No. 2.

"It's starting to look like I'm in a pretty good situation," said Pelluer, who met Hackett for the first time Tuesday morning. "I'm not worried about what happens and I'm not looking to get a break. I'm just trying to improve as much as I can and I've learned a lot from both (White and Hogeboom)."

Pelluer, entering his third year with the Cowboys, has played in just one regular-season game (other than 1984 when he was a field-goal holder in one game).

Last season against the New York Giants, a game that clinched the National Football Conference East title for the Cowboys, Pelluer took the field after White sustained a shoulder injury and Hogeboom went down with a concussion.

Pelluer led the Cowboys to a touchdown and a 28-21 victory. He finished the season completing five of eight passes for 47 yards.

"In his only opportunity, Steve was outstanding," Hackett said. "Steve came in in a pressure-packed situation and got the ball into the end zone against a tough defense. I was impressed."

Hogeboom said Pelluer's promotion did not bother him because he doesn't expect to be with the Cowboys next fall.

"I haven't talked to them (about it) but it doesn't mean anything to me," Hogeboom said. "They said they would try to trade me and that's all I'm worried about."

The Cowboys have shown an interest in obtaining another quarterback in case Hogeboom is traded.

They recently met with Orlando Renegades quarterback Reggie Collier of the United States Football League and former University of Texas-Arlington quarterback Roy Dewalt of the Canadian Football League's British Columbia Lions.

"(Dallas head coach Tom) Landry likes the idea of having three quarterbacks," Hackett said.

Hackett, who came to the Cowboys from the San Francisco 49ers, said he plans to implement a deceptive offense.

NLPA may strike if mandatory ramdom testing is instituted

WASHINGTON (AP) - The executive director of the National Football League Players Association says there could be a strike next season if NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle institutes mandatory random drug testing.

Gene Upshaw said a recent NFLPA survey revealed that 72 percent of the league's players are opposed to random testing. In an interview Monday with the Washington Post, Upshaw said, "if it came down to it ... I think it (the percentage of players who would strike) would run along those same lines - about 72 percent. The players are strong on the issue."

He said, "Rozelle's idea is 'my way or no way,' Soviet-style. I'm not saying we're on a collision course ... I'm not suggesting it (a players' strike). But what I am saying is that if Rozelle tries to implement his own program without negotiating with us, we'll take all the necessary steps to stop him, including withholding our services."

Rozelle has said if no agreement on drug testing is reached between the union and the owners' management council, he will implement his own program that will include random testing.

Upshaw said if Rozelle does make random testing mandatory, the NFLPA will file charges with the National Labor Relations Board and that he would seek an injunction to block the testing. It is not known how long it would take the NLRB to make a ruling on the grievance.

Rozelle said he is talking with experts in the field of drug usage, but has not revealed any aspects of any possible program.

Controversial ex-sheriff in security

DESOTO, Texas (AP) — It's a long way from the carpeted offices of the Dallas County Sheriff in downtown Dallas to Carl Thomas' austere confines behind the Dairy Queen on Hampton Road.

By car, it's just 13 miles. But in terms of the things that feed the ego — publicity, prestige and the perquisites of public office — it's light years.

"I don't miss it," says the former Dallas County sheriff who now runs his own security guard company. "It was a great experience. I'm glad I did it. But I wouldn't want to do it again."

His office is smaller than the one he had as sheriff, but there is much that is familiar. The new, like the old, is done in earth tones — tan walls, brown carpeting, a walnut-colored desk. The items on the desk are neatly arranged; the furnishings are minimal — a chair, a couch and a small television set in the corner.

The wall decorations are just as neat and sparse. There is a silhouette of a revolver with his name and the word "sheriff" on it and a metal replica of an old-fashioned touring car with the sheriff's star stamped into the door.

"Is this going to be good story or another one of those bad ones?" he asked at the beginning of the conversation.

Curious. Here in this quiet shopping center office miles from the rush of Dallas, everything is just like it was nearly a decade ago when Thomas was writing the book on how not to be sheriff.

In the late 1970s, Thomas came out of nowhere to become the first Republican-elected sheriff in Dallas County since Reconstruction. Four years later, he became the first incumbent Republican in county history to be defeated in his own party primary.

In between, he made almost every mistake a politician can make. He fired or demoted deputies who had supported his political opponents. He had five stars sewn on his uniform and used profanity in public. He went to the horse races with a convicted felon and got into a spat with an airport toll booth operator over whether he had to pay the toll like everyone else.

If it took a toll on members of his party and county voters, the controversies took a toll on him as well. Not long before his last day in office at the end of 1980, he said: "Being in office has been kind of like being sentenced to jail.

"The fishbowl atmosphere here has been oppressive," he said. "There are boundary lines for politicians that don't apply to anyone else. Hypocrisy is rampant in this business."

The '80s have not been all that kind to Thomas. He tried acting and selling real estate after he left office, but had no success. He discounts "as another one of them stories" the rumors that he was running a nightclub in the Mid-Cities.

Mexican economy grew three percent

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid said that despite the nation's economic woes, the economy grew a moderate 3 percent last year. The government had earlier projected a pace of 3.9 percent.

In a report to Congress, de la Madrid acknowledged that "there was unevenness" in the economy's 1985 performance.

"It was not possible to reduce the average annual rate of inflation that reached nearly 58 percent, a percentage that despite its dimension was less than the 100 percent registered three years ago," he said in the report, a summary of which was released late Monday by his office.

Mexico's economy grew at a faster-than-expected pace in the first half of last year, a clip that worried government officials and prompted them to hit the brakes to slow the economy in the last half of the year.

Some analysts believe the economy grew little, if at all, at the end of 1985.

Few expect the economy to improve this year because of the recent collapse of oil prices on the world market. Mexico depends on crude sales to foreign buyers for about 70 percent of its foreign earnings. With oil prices tumbling, the nation stands to lose as much as $6 billion in revenues it had expected in 1986.

As a result, many analysts project the economy will slip into a fresh recession, contracting by as much as 4 percent, after adjustment for inflation.

The economy grew an inflation-adjusted 3.5 percent in 1984, after contracting 5.3 percent in 1983 and 0.5 percent in 1982.

In his report, de la Madrid said progress toward returning the stricken economy to health was "more irregular" in 1985. The president is halfway through his six-year term.

"During the first two years of the administration, there were outstanding results, the levels of inflation and the public deficit were reduced in half," the report said. The unemployment rate fell and the pool of international reserves was replenished, it said.

"In 1985, the execution of the policy of reordering the economy was more complex and difficult than forecast, due to unfavorable internal and external (circumstances)," it said.

The president said, as he has previously, that his administration intends to follow the current economic policy. "Today more than ever are in force two fundamental lines of action: the economic reordering and structural change."

In an effort to ease the nation's dependence on oil, de la Madrid has pushed for increased sales of non-petroleum goods to foreign buyers. As part of that move, he has opened membership talks with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a 90-nation trade arrangement.

The drop in oil prices has raised concerns about Mexico's ability to stay current on its $96.4 billion foreign debt, the second highest in the developing world after Brazil.

The Treasury Department has said that the nation will need $6 billion in new money from international bankers and financial organizations this year, $2 billion of that due to the oil price crunch.

However, Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog told reporters last week in San Jose, Costa Rica, that he thought the government could get by with $4 billion in fresh money.

Meanwhile, the financial daily El Financiero, citing unidentified government sources, reported Tuesday that preliminary figures show that exports of crude oil tumbled last month to about 1.02 million barrels a day.

Mexico had had an export target of 1.5 million barrels a day, but that has slipped steadily since oil prices began falling.

Local doctors retain membership in AAFP

KANSAS CITY, Mo.--Dr. Paul A. Thompson and Dr. Bid Cooper, both of Snyder, have completed education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The academy was formerly known as the American Academy of General Practice.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. The academy was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education. Because of their board training, family physicians have the "know how" to treat approximately 90 percent of all human illnesses.

The academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., was instrumental in the establishment of continuing education. Besides maintaining continuing education standards for its members, the academy strives to increase the number of family physicians available to serve the public in the future.

Its continuing education program also provides a major basis of eligibility for academy members seeking recertification in the specialty of family practice.

Atheneum Study Club donates WTC scholarship

The Atheneum Study Club has presented Western Texas College a scholarship especially for use by women or women participating in the special women's program at the college.

Women interested in applying for scholarship are invited to contact the office of Bettie McQueen or Dr. Mary Hood. Both women have expressed appreciation to the Atheneum Club for the gift.

The scholarships may be used during the 1986 summer session or during the 1986 fall semester, and will be applied toward tuition. Typing and reading, two courses which women enrolled in the women's program indicated they would especially like to have, are included on the summer schedule.

WTC began the women's program in the spring semester by offering a psychology course stressing family living. The program is designed to encourage women who have not attended college or who have been out of the classroom for a long period of time to become involved with college classes.

In 1957, Sir Anthony Eden resigned as Britain's prime minister after less than two years in office. Ill health was given as the reason, but his action was generally ascribed to the reaction to Britain's role in the Suez invasion of the previous winter.

See specialist about blockage

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I was younger I had bouts of trichomoniasis, candidiasis, gonorrhea, genital warts and herpes. I had them all taken care of and never had any more problems. My doctor now says that my left Fallopian tube is blocked due to salpingitis. Can an operation open my tube? Is this something I should have taken care of or should I leave it alone? I'd like to get pregnant at some point.

DEAR READER — Most of the gynecological infections you mention are venereal diseases, so I suspect that one or both of your Fallopian tubes was infected in the past and has become scarred. Gonorrhea is notorious for doing this.

Microsurgery may open your blocked tube and permit fertilization of an egg from the left ovary. On the other hand, if the right tube is open, you can certainly get pregnant from that side. Because you have had repeated infections of your reproductive tract, I think you need a specialist's opinion as to whether you should ignore the situation or seek further treatment. Ask your gynecologist to discuss your problem in depth.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For almost a year I've had pain in my left leg, from the hip to the knee. Could this be caused by the vitamin B6 I take daily?

DEAR READER — Vitamin B6 (pyridoxine) has not been reported to cause leg pain. However, large doses can cause unsteady gait, liver damage and numbness of the feet and hands. I advise you to check with your doctor to determine if you have inflammation of the muscles, bones or joints of your leg.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor told me I have trichomoniasis. I have taken metronidazole. With the medical care that I have had, can I quickly get back to a normal lifestyle without the worry of vaginitis?

DEAR READER — The treatment you have taken is appropriate for the vaginal infection known as trichomoniasis. Remember that the condition can be recaught and is commonly passed back and forth between sexual partners. Therefore, both you and your partner will need simultaneous therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Every time I stand up for a while, a feeling of numbness starts at the bottom of my spine and goes down both my legs to my feet. I have to sit down for a minute or two to get rid of the numbness. I also get pain. I have told my doctor about it; he says it is a pinched nerve and that I have arthritis on my spine. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — A pinched nerve can certainly cause the symptoms you describe. Ask your doctor for a neurosurgical opinion. If an arthritic spur is the cause of your problem, surgical decompression is an alternative that may be appropriate for you.

What is cholesterol and how can it be controlled? For more information, write for Dr. Gott's new Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Fish kills project announced

DALLAS (AP) — The effect of spring rains on the Trinity River will be the subject of a special study designed to pinpoint the cause of massive fish kills that have stirred up trouble between Dallas and downstream users.

For the first time, state and federal officials are planning a joint survey of the river, officials announced Tuesday. Teams will gather rain, water, sediment and fish samples in an effort to determine what is causing periodic fish kills on the river.

The new study will help solve the fish-kill problem by giving a better understanding of the cause, said Dick Whittington, regional administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. It will be funded by a $100,000 federal grant, he said.

The study is timed to coincide with spring rains, historically connected with fish kills, and is being conducted by the EPA and the Texas Water Commission.

Stenholm compares ag to oil

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm compared agriculture to oil here Tuesday night, noting that both "no longer operate in a climate we can control."

The Stamford Democrat broadened his comparison by saying neither the U.S. oil industry nor the U.S. agri-business industry can depend on a "free world market" to solve its respective problems.

"If you think either (industry) can work this thing out without their government standing shoulder to shoulder beside them, I respectfully disagree," Stenholm said.

His remarks were to the annual meeting of the Scurry County Producer's Association and were part of a tour of the 17th Congressional District Stenholm is completing prior to Congress being back in session later this month.

Stenholm's remarks were evenly divided between the current situation facing the oil industry, with prices this week hovering in the $10 per barrel range, and agriculture.

Regarding oil, he predicted prices will ultimately drop to $4 per barrel. "The Saudis can produce 5 million barrels at $4 oil. They can't do it forever, but they can do it," he said.

He noted as a hopeful sign Vice President George Bush's reported plans to tell Saudi Arabian leaders that the drop in oil prices poses a threat to the national security of the U.S.

But Stenholm noted Texans hoping for an oil import tax passed in Washington should realize that non-oil producing states have little support for such a measure.

"There are too many of them that remember those bumper stickers of the 1970's, 'Drive 75 and freeze a Yankee.'"

Turning to agriculture, he pointed to one "bright spot" of the 1985 Farm Bill — the lowering of the loan rate to farmers.

Stenholm said the bill may mark "the light at the end of the tunnel," but he cautioned that farmers still face at least two years of hard times.

He noted, however, that if 17 percent cuts mandated by the Gramm-Ruddman budget-balancing legislation were put into effect, "We'll gut everything good in the current farm bill."

Stenholm said he was not as worried about this as others "Because the two places they'll have to cut are agriculture and defense," indicating the same powers that would protect defense budget monies would lap over into the agriculture budget as well.

As a closing remark to the basically farm-related gathering, Stenholm advised, "Don't confuse 'productivity' with 'production,'" a warning against the over-production which has caused a surplus of commodities worldwide and the downward spiral of prices.

Bomb explodes on airplane

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A bomb tore a hole in a TWA Boeing 727 today and blasted a man, woman and child to their deaths 11,000 feet above southern Greece, airport police said. The plane landed safely but police said another child was missing and up to nine people were reported injured.

Officials said at least two Americans were among those injured on Flight 840, which was flying from Rome to Athens with 114 passengers and seven crew members.

"The blast was caused by an explosive device in a piece of luggage aboard the plane," said Yiannis Kapsis, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in a statement. Earlier, airport police raised the possibility the blast was caused by mechanical failure.

Panagiotiso Christopoulos, a senior airport security official, said a child was missing and seven other passengers were injured, including two Americans. However, a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Cairo, Egypt, put the number injured at nine and said five were Americans. The spokesman said the three dead were Colombians.

Christopoulos said the explosion blew a 9-by-3 foot hole under the plane's right wing as it flew near the town of Corinth.

The bodies of the three peope were found on an unused Greek air force landing strip outside Argos, 30 miles south of Corinth and about 65 miles southwest of Athens, he said."They apparently had been sucked out of the plane by the blast."

Christopoulos identified the dead man as Alberto Stino, a Colombian. He did not immediately identify the other victims.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman in Cairo said i addition to five Americans, two Greeks and two Saudi Arabians were injured. The plane had been scheduled to continue to Cairo.

Vandalism arrest noted

Police arrested an 18-year-old suspect Tuesday night in connection with an automobile vandalism incident reported Tuesday afternoon.

The male suspect was charged with Class B criminal mischief for allegedly denting the hood and rear fender of a 1982 Buick owned by Patricia Grimes of Snyder.

The damage to the vehicle is thought to have occurred while the car was parked at Snyder High School prior to 2:55 p.m. Tuesday.

In other action, police jailed one suspect for public intoxication and another for disorderly conduct Tuesday night.

Drive nets 164 pints

These were topped by a four-gallon pin given to Paul Luna. A three-gallon pin was presented also to Homer Godair.

Four two-gallon pins were awarded to Scott Neves, Trudie Wood, Clyde Vardine and Anastacia Alvarez.

Those rewarded as one-gallon donors were Beth Spencer, Susan Stutheit, Jessie Scarbrough, Mary Bilano, Betty Wood, Juanita Buchanan and Bill Wood.

Tuesday's effort brought the number of pints donated during 1986 to 306.

Blast culprit may never be recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The chief of the Challenger salvage effort says searchers never will find the precise rocket joint section that triggered the space shuttle explosion because it undoubtedly was destroyed in the accident.

Air Force Col. Edward A. O'Connor, however, said Tuesday he was confident that surrounding pieces will be found and will help determine the exact cause of the disaster.

He also disclosed that a section of the suspected joint retrieved several weeks ago from the ocean floor has been positively identified as being a part of the shuttle's right booster rocket.

But he told a news conference that the section is on the opposite side of the area where a plume of flame shot from the joint 15 seconds before the shuttle exploded on Jan. 28, killing seven astronauts.

Meanwhile, finally blessed with good weather, a fleet of nine ships and three small submarines accelerated its effort to locate and recover Challenger wreckage from the ocean floor in a 480-square-mile area northeast of here.

Meanwhile, the USS Preserver, which has been retrieving crew cabin debris and astronaut remains, arrived in port Tuesday night with several small chunks of wreckage and perhaps more body parts.

On its two previous trips into port from the shuttle recovery area, the Preserver arrived in darkness and was met by ambulances that took astronaut remains to a nearby medical laboratory for examinations.

The ship's lights were on Tuesday night and there was an ambulance on the pier, but it did not approach. It left several minutes later, and reporters watching from a distance were not certain if remains had been transferred.

The vote for directors included two members for each of the county's four precincts. Three current board members were re-elected, including Kattes who serves for Pct. 2.

Both board members from Pct. 4, Donald Tate and Morris Light, were re-elected also.

Others nominated and approved Tuesday were Johnny Eicke and Eicke Perry, Pct. 1; Jerrel Pylant and Kattes, Pct. 2; and Kirby Sterling and Sidney Wall, Pct. 3.

operating rights — obtained from Santa Fe Transportation Co. — was the subject of a lengthy application process through the RRC.

The final approval granted Thursday dates back to hearings which began last year at this time.

As soon as Central received its final okay from the RRC, it began immediate freight deliveries to Snyder.

Attaway said they made 10 deliveries to the city Monday.

Central has been operating in Texas since 1925. Its operation does not go outside the state, but it serves all of Texas' gateway cities for interstate hauling.

It operates what it calls major terminals in 12 Texas cities and smaller terminals similar to the one planned here in 93 cities.

SHS advances in 1-act event

Two SHS players received All-Star Cast recognition, John Hamlett for his performance as The Common Man and Missy McIntire for her work in the role of Lady Margaret More.

Receiving Honorable Mention All-Star Cast honors from Snyder were Richard Lack, Master Richard Rich; Lance Aldridge, Cardinal Wolsey; and Jamie Cofer, William Roper.

All five principals of "A Raisin in the Sun" were named on the all-star lists.

All-Star Cast honors went to Cheryl Owens who played Ruth Younger; Andrea Harrison for her performance as Lena Younger; and James Carl for his work in the role of Karl Lindner.

Earning Honorable Mention plaudits from the Sweetwater show were Patrick Goodman in his role as Walter Lee Younger and Barbara Martin for her portrayal of Beneatha Younger.

Individuals honored for their performances in the alternate play from Fort Stockton were David Bennett, Richard Edwards and Robin Wilson, all named to the All-Star Cast.

James Salmon and Ann Gaboriault were named to the honorable mention list.

Rounding out the Honorable Mention All-Star Cast were Amy Debose of Andrews, Randal Stevens of Monahans, Jeanne Cornelius of San Angelo Lake View, Laural Phillips of Lake View, and the six members of the chorus of the Monahans production of "The Trojan Women" honored as a unit.

The Pecos High School production of William Saroyan's "The Cave Dwellers" and the individual actors were disqualified from awards consideration for exceeding the contest's 40 minute time limit.

When Snyder and Sweetwater advance to Area competition April 11, they will be judged against the two best plays from District 1-AAAA (the Lubbock-Amarillo area) with the best two of those four advancing to regional competition in Brownwood.

Small West Texas school aims to be 'best'

SUNDOWN, Texas (AP) — The northwest Texas town of Sundown doesn't seem the least exceptional at first glance.

After passing cotton fields and cows grazing amidst oil pumps, all roads into the town of 1,800 converge at the one flashing red light.

There's one convenience store, Everybody's Bank and a small post office on the main street.

But nestled in the northeast corner of the town located about 35 miles west of Lubbock is a 7.3-acre building built of multi-shaded beige bricks, which turns this small town into an unusual giant.

The building is the home of Sundown School.

School superintendent G.D. Lasater greets visitors to the school with a warm smile and an offer of, "Come in this house," as he leads them into his office. Lasater grew up in Andrews and was a high school principal in Hobbs, N.M., before moving to Sundown.

The school looks new, although it was built in 1978.

The old schools, on the same plot of land, "had some buildings that were in really bad shape," said E.W. Roe, 52, school board member in the 1970s.

"We needed something done to our facilities," Roe continued.

"Most of the people here are just working people. There are no people here who own a royalty. They live at Lubbock or somewhere else," Roe added.

William Clements, 54, has been on the Sundown School Board for the past nine years, serving now as president of the South Plains Area School Board Association.

"As a citizen in the community I felt it was a much needed thing," Clements said. "Our facilities were at a low state."

After determining a bond election could produce the funds needed to finance a super-school for the small town, Roe said, voters passed the issue about four to one.

"We were really surprised at what we could do," Roe explained.

The community was able to finance the school because of "the tax base that we had on the oil property here in the district," Roe said.

Although the bond issue passed, "there was some opposition from the oil companies. Mainly because of the kind of building we were building," Roe continued.

"The oil company pays about 98 percent of the taxes in the district. So they paid for about 98 percent of the school. Two percent came from citizens and farmers. The oil companies were upset with us for getting this large of a bond passed." Today, he added, the oil companies are proud of the school.

The cost of the school complex was $5.3 million.

The community of Sundown accepted the idea of building the school. "They were thrilled to death they were going to get this kind of facility," Roe commented.

A complete tour of Sundown School takes about two hours. Included in the complex are facilities for kindergarten through high school. Each classroom has a television with closed circuit capabilities and there are computer labs for each grade level.

An auditorium with 800 rocking seats has expansion capacity to 1,100. The stage area has a professional-quality light and sound system.

There is a junior olympic-size swimming pool for the 350 students, with required swimming lessons for all youngsters in the school. There's also a canoe so paddling skills can be learned.

Two gymnasiums are included in the complex.

Biology and chemistry labs are complete. Senior science students are taken on a spring break trip to Port Aransas or to the Davis Mountains. A home economics cottage is used by the community for 50th wedding celebrations and seminars by the county extension agent, as well as home economics students.

Students produce and film a newscast each day.

There are facilities for auto mechanics, wood shop, welding, arts and crafts and drafting, to name just a few. The library is a two-story circular complex within the existing building.

The school district was not content with outstanding facilities. With the building of the school they began to make plans "to hire the best teachers that were available," Roe said.

"Our plans were, within five years, to have the best educational program in the state," Roe said. "I feel we have."

"Once they (the teachers) are here and see what we have, we have very little turnover," Lasater said.

Hance is still in running

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Kent Hance is warning reporters not to "write me out" of the GOP primary race despite a poll showing him running behind former Gov. Bill Clements and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler.

Hance said his campaign has $1 million in the bank, most of which will be spent on final-month television ads.

"If y'all want to appear to be extremely intelligent on politics, don't write me out of this race," he said Tuesday. "It (a Houston Chronicle poll released Sunday) did not reflect all the elements that will be voting on May 3."

The Hance campaign collected $700,000 in March, according to the candidate, who said a "good part of it" came in through loans. A $900,000 television ad campaign will begin next week, Hance said.

He continued his attempts to brand Clements as a sure loser against Democratic Gov. Mark White in November. White beat Clements in 1982.

"Bill Clements spent $14 million as an incumbent in 1982 and why anyone would think he has a chance as a challenger is beyond me," said Hance.

Also at his news conference, Hance predicted possible riots in state prisons this year. He said state officials should try to get out of some of the federal court agreements under which the prisons are now run.

"I think this summer you are going to have real problems in the prison system. From the prison employees I've talked to, they're scared to death the top is going to blow off this summer," he said.

White and other state officials have been too willing to let U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler run the prisons, according to Hance.

"There comes a time that I think an officeholder needs to stand up to the federal courts," he said.
