Nine States Hit By Teachers Strikes...

Classes Canceled For 2nd Day

By The Associated Press

Classes were canceled for a second day in a row today for 213,000 school children in Philadelphia, where teachers have been on strike since Tuesday, and teacher strikes disrupted schools in eight other states.

Picketing was relativly peaceful at Philadelphia school headquarters Thursday, one day after 208 teachers were arrested and cited for contempt for allegedly violating a court injunction banning mass picketing. Charges were later dropped.

The Philadelphia walkout began after the school board laid off 3,511 union members and canceled a 10 percent pay hike. The board said it faced a $223 million deficit, but teachers say the layoffs and salary action violate an agreement reached after a 22-day strike a year ago.

Teachers were striking in 11 other smaller communities of Pennsylvania, a state which permits teacher strikes. A statewide total of 14,590 teachers were on strike affecting 242,900 students.

Teachers in Elgin, Ill., went on strike Thursday, canceling classes for 25,000 students. Union spokeswoman Kathy Thomas said the length of contract and base pay were among unsettled issues.

In Delaware, where teacher strikes are illegal, teachers reported to work without a contract Thursday in two New Castle County and staged a work slowdown, refusing to participate in any new activities.

More than 600 teachers in Evergreen School District in suburban Vancouver, Wash., continued a strike that began Sept. 2, seeking limits on class size, among other things.

In Rhode Island, where public employee strikes are illegal, school got off to a belated start today in the Exeter-West Greenwich School District after teachers ended an eight-day illegal strike by accepting a contract. North Providence became the only community in the state with a teachers strike, and the school committee voted unanimously Wednesday to fire any teacher not on the job by Monday. Officials began mailing firing notices.

Seven schools in Penns Grove, N.J., were closed to 3,000 students Thursday as 185 teachers continued a three-day strike which a state judge declared illegal.

In New York, an illegal strike continued in East Moriches on Long Island, and 350 lay teachers remained on strike for a third day today at six Catholic high schools in Queens and Long Island. The strike delayed the opening of one of the Catholic schools, where 3,300 students attend.

A tentative agreement was reached Thursday in the Fraser school district in Michigan, but teacher strikes continued in five other Michigan districts, idling about 31,000 students and 1,500 instructors.

Teachers in Wilder, Idaho, conducting an illegal strike called off their picketing and resumed talks Thursday after school officials said a tentative settlement had been reached on salary issues.

Way Cleared For Plant Sale...

American Mag's Plan Gets Court Approval

A reorganization plan sought by American Magenesium Co. was confirmed Thursday at a hearing in federal bankruptcy court in Fort Worth.

The approval by the court clears the way for the company to actively seek a buyer for the plant located southwest of Snyder. The plant, which produced magnesium and chlorine, has been idled since last December when the company filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy law.

E. D. Lloyd, in charge of the plant while the reorganization proceedings have been underway, said indications are that a disbursing agent will be appointed soon, possibly within the next 30 days.

"We are in a holding pattern here at the plant," Lloyd said this morning.

A "housekeeping" crew has been maintaining the facilities here since production was halted last December. When the plant was shut down, company officials said unusually heavy rains last fall had diluted the salt water sources in Borden County which provide the plant with its raw material. Subsequently the company filed its request for reorganization.

At least two firms have indicated an interest in purchasing the plant, and reports are that both are still active prospects. Negotiations for possible sale of the plant are expected to proceed now that the plans for disbursing assets of the company have been approved by the bankruptcy court.

American Magnesium employed some 180 persons at the time the plant was shut down.

Farm Bureau Names Three New Directors

Scurry County Farm Bureau held its annual meeting and barbecue Thursday night at the Scurry County Coliseum. New directors were elected and Bill Bownds of Austin, assistant state affairs director for Texas Farm Bureau, was the guest speaker.

Directors elected for a three-year term were Jerry Wemken and David Cates of Snyder and Bob Daugherty of Fluvanna.

Bownds has served as assistant director since 1976, working to implement TFB policies in the legislature, in the executive and judicial branches of government, and in various state agencies.

Bownds is a native of Lubbock and holds a business and law degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

Thefts Under Investigation

The sheriff's department is investigating several thefts which occurred this week.

A theft was reported Thursday by Gordon Boswell of Fort Worth. He told deputies he was missing a brass holder on a pedestal in the shape of a cherub which was used during an event at the country club the past weekend.

Marie Voss, East 40th, reported a championship barrel racing saddle missing from her barn. The saddle and accessories are valued at $700.

Bunk Case, manager of the China Grove Coop Gin, told the sheriff's department someone broke into the gin sometime between Friday and Tuesday. Missing are $1000 worth of assorted tools, including electric impact wrenches, an electric hammer drill and an anchor gun.

Klay McMillan of Colorado City told officers some tools were missing from his car which was parked one and a half miles south of Dunn. He said his car broke down Wednesday night and when he went to get the car the next day, he found the trunk had been pried open and his toolbox and battery were gone.

Opal Koonsman reported the theft of a purse. She told officers she parked her car at 2212 28th and went in to a residence. When she returned to the car her purse containing $60 was missing.

Brother Files Suit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The brother of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald has launched a legal counterattack against efforts to have Oswald's body exhumed from a Fort Worth cemetery.

Wichita Falls businessman Robert Oswald asked two state courts Thursday to block exhumation requests by Oswald's widow and a British author who say they are not convinced the body in Rose Hill Memorial Park cemetery is that of President John F. Kennedy's alleged assassin.

Robert Oswald and his lawyers appeared in state district court Thursday immediately after arguing against exhumation during an appeals court hearing.

O'Connor Shares Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Sandra Day O'Connor is sending out the word: she shares the views of many conservatives.

But the Senate Judiciary Committee has yet to find out — even though most of its members appear anxious to know - if she will be a truly conservative Supreme Court justice.

As her confirmation proceedings entered what's scheduled to be their final hours today, that fact did not seem to matter.

Ten of the committee's 18 members already have gone on the record as supporting Mrs. O'Connor's nomination, and confirmation by the full Senate appears assured.

Blackout Cause Found

NEW YORK (AP) — Fire marshals have found that a four-hour blackout in lower Manhattan was caused by a faulty transformer switch at Consolidated Edison's East Side generating station.

Officials said sabotage had been entirely ruled out.

Confirming the fire department's finding, Con Edison said in a preliminary report Thursday that the incident Wednesday "shows the explosion resulted from a short circuit in a transformer at the station when a 69,000-volt cable was being removed from service for maintenance."

Will Be Prosecuted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it is determined to prosecute fired air traffic controllers charged with violating a federal no-strike law, leaving the possibility that some could serve up to a year in jail on a felony conviction.

Lawyers for the controllers union said at least 80 controllers, many of them local union leaders, still faced criminal indictments for violating a law that prohibits federal employees from striking. The maximum penalty on the felony is a $1,000 fine and one year and a day in jail.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Roger Enlow of the Hood County News says a little boy in Granbury was telling his classmates last week about the "demons" in his church.

"Oh, you're just telling us a story," his fellow students responded.

"No I'm not," the boy insisted. "We elected them this summer."

It turned out that the church had elected some deacons recently.

Cornball Blevins, in his Hominy Grits column in the Lamb County Leader-News, says he appreciates the balance of nature, the importance of various types of wildlife and vegetation, but one thing still puzzles him.

"But for the life of me, I've never understood the benefit of the common fly. Perhaps he's a scavenger. May even serve some use in pollination, or furnish food for some other insect, but to me he's nothing but a pain in the neck!"

Those flies become tenacious this season of the year, especially when autumn cool fronts begin to move south.

Walter Buckel of the Lamesa Press- Reporter offers a timely reminder at the outset of the high school fooball season:

1. There is no such thing as a "right" to participate in athletics. Math, history, English and certain other courses are mandated by the state and each has a "right" to be exposed to them, but as a participant in athletics, a youngster must follow rules or his "privilege" will be taken away.

2. The team does not belong to the community. It belongs to the school, which has agreed to certain rules so that all athletes may compete under the same standards.

3. If these rules offend anyone to the point he cannot conduct himself in a rational manner, then by all means, he should direct his energies toward some other level of athletics, such as the professionals.

4. All young athletes make mistakes. They are not perfect and never will be. It is sad to hear so-called fans boo a youngster at an athletic event.

5. The coach is also a teacher. In fact, he is a teacher first and a coach second. When misguided people try to reverses this order, the athletic program is in the first stages of collapse.

6. Spectactors should attempt to learn the rules of the game and leave the officials alone. Those who constantly criticize officials usually are ignorant of the rules.

7. Fans should remember that they are guests at the games, and that while victory is an admirable goal, it is hollow if it comes at the expense of morals, ethics, good sportsmanship and just plain common sense.

U.S. Made Car Cracks Top 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. automakers are making progress in their quest to increase the fuel efficiency of their cars, but the ratings for the 1982 model year show Detroit has a way to go to beat the imports.

Only one domestic car, a diesel-powered Chevrolet Chevette, cracked the top 10 list issued Thursday by the Environmental Protection Agency.

However, that was one more car than Detroit managed to put on the 1981 top 10. Overall, eight U.S.-made cars came in with better mileage than the best-rated domestic car last year.

But for the fifth straight year, a Volkswagen Rabbit with a diesel engine ranked No. 1. Its rating of 45 miles per gallon was 3 mpg better than was posted by the 1981 Rabbit.

Seven of the 1982 top 10 cars have diesel engines, compared to only two diesel cars on last year's list.

Diesel cars made up less than 1 percent of the autos on U.S. highways in the 1970s, but analysts predict diesels will capture 25 percent of the market by 1990, their sales spurred by motorists attracted to the higher mileage ratings.

The top four spots were held by diesel cars this year — all of them manufactured by Volkswagen.

Ask Us

Q.—Does SCAT plan to add any channels or services on the local TV cable in the near future?

A.—Yes. Mel Gilbert, executive vice president of SCAT, says the Spanish International Network will be added to the premium service within a few weeks. There may be others later on, since they are always on the lookout for offerings that will add to the variety of programming. However, there are not many services left that would not duplicate offerings already on the cable here.

Mattox Out Of Dog House

WASHINGTON (AP) — [illegible] years he's gone to Democratic [illegible] of the Democratic leadership, wishing someone would invite him in.

The outspoken 38-year-old Dallas native was frustrated at the recent defections of Democratic colleagues that enabled President Reagan to beat his party leaders on the budget and tax-cut bills.

Mattox found the Reagan victories particularly painful because the defections were led by Texans Phil Gramm of College Station and Kent Hance of Lubbock, who got prestigious committee assignments while he was being snubbed.

Honored by the Dallas Women's Political Caucus a few years ago as the outstanding member of the Texas Legislature, Mattox was elected to Congress in 1976 but got quickly in the dog house of House Speaker Tip O'Neill.

Mattox has been routinely rejected every time he asked O'Neill for a leadership role or a committee assignment, such as an open Rules Committee spot in 1979.

"I'm a positive, loyal Democrat. He (O'Neill) used discipline against me in not giving me a (committee) spot, and yet I'm the kind of guy they should have given a job to," said Mattox, who has a record of almost always voting the party position.

"Other guys, who showed absolutely no loyalty, they've the ones they reward. It's the type of inverse leadership that causes problems," he said.

Mattox got into hot water with O'Neill "because I've been one of the folks very difficult to control. I don't like people telling me what to do."

It's the same sort of trouble he found himself in when he was one of the best all-around athletes at Woodrow Wilson High School in Dallas.

"I quit football because I didn't like people telling me what to do. I was the fastest runner on the team, but I never got to play because I was always in some type of friction with the coaches," he said.

Shortly after Mattox began office here, President Carter put an energy conservation program into effect.

"I'm a casual-type guy, and I tried to change the coat-and-tie regulation," Mattox said. He attracted publicity across the country before finally backing away and incurring the wrath of O'Neill.

Later, President Carter vetoed a water project, and O'Neill asked for Mattox' vote to help override the veto.

"It was a bad deal, a boondoggle. They tried to coerce me into voting to override it and I refused," Mattox said.

Still later, Mattox collided with Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., another member of the leadership in-crowd.

"Bolling was trying to usurp power from the Budget Committee and give it to the Joint Economic Committee. I led a bruising fight against him and beat him," Mattox said.

Then there were a couple of other times, he recalls, when "I executed an individual-type action."

When a spot opened on the prestigious Rules Committee, Texas Democrats fought to keep the state represented on it and Mattox had more seniority than others seeking it.

"It's one of the spots you pretty well have got to give a commitment you'll vote with the speaker whenever he wants it," Mattox said.

O'Neill refused to give the job to Mattox, handing it instead to newcomer Martin Frost, D-Dallas, although it was almost unprecedented for a freshman to get a spot on the Rules Committee. It was an obvious snub of Mattox.

Lately, however, with Mattox staying aboard ship while other Democrats fled to support Reagan, his stock has risen with O'Neill.

"I think the speaker has come to appreciate a loyal Democrat. He told me so," Mattox said.

When Mattox came to Washington, it was with the intention of being a part of the leadership structure within a short time, he said.

"Now, I don't know. I suppose my goal is just to attempt to be the very best congressman I can be and to help my constituents. I am trying to reformulate my long-range goal," he added.

"I have a reputation of being one of the best fund-raisers here, and last Congress, I volunteered to be chairman of the Democratic Campaign Finance Committee, but the Speaker didn't take me up on it," he added.

"I am looking for a really challenging role. I'm in the middle of seniority on the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, not enough seniority to have a subcommittee chairmanship.

"Whether I am going to stay in Congress many more years, I don't know. I just turned 38. I have said before, I don't know what I'll be when I grow up," he said with a smile.

"The problem is, I am an impatient individual, and I do not feel like sitting on the back row and waiting until I get the necessary seniority."

Improvements in party discipline and campaign mechanism are badly needed in the Democratic Party nationally, he feels.

"Discipline takes long-term schooling. You've got to hand pick people who are going to be your troops and stand with the leadership when it really counts," he said.

"I learned that in the Texas Legislature, where there was really strict discipline, the kind that has not existed here in many years, certainly not since Sam Rayburn," he added.

"I learned how to count in the state Legislature and I knew whether I was going to win before my bill went up, and I didn't shed my troops blood. As a leader, you don't make a man take a hard vote unless it's absolutely necessary, and you don't take your troops into a battle you can't win."

The Democrats lost a lot of elections in 1980, Mattox feels, because its members were continually exposed the previous two years to numerous votes designed by Republicans to embarrass Democrats.

Mattox said he thinks the leadership should discipline members with actions as possible to keep members in line and still in the Democratic Party.

"We're not talking about anything drastic like taking away anybody's committee assignments," he said. "You don't want to do anything to chase anybody out of the party. On the other hand, if you've got one individual doing something to deliberately tear down the party, you can't allow that."

Our nation can be overwhelmed by immigration.

Any recession could become a catastrophe if we have more mouths to feed than jobs to feed them.

The United States Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy studied the problem for two years. Its chairman, Father Hesburgh of Notre Dame, recommends that we open the front door to more legal immigrants and close the back door to keep out illegals.

He does not say how the back door can be closed; our vast borders remain vulnerable.

Let's see how Japan handles this problem.

Japan is for Japanese.

Most advanced industrial nations have an endless procession of outsiders knocking at the door or sneaking in windows.

Industrialized nations offer the irresistible lure of more jobs at higher wages--or generous welfare for persons unemployed.

In West Germany, it's Turks; in France, it's Algerians; in England, it's West Indians; in the the United States, it's mostly Mexicans.

Everywhere outsiders create inevitable social pressures, health problems, drug and crime problems, cultural tensions--competing for jobs, houses, education, medical care.

Edwin Reubens, consultant on both labor and migration problems for our government, is just back from Japan.

He concludes that Japan does not have an immigration problem because there are neither jobs nor welfare to attract outsiders. Instead, an extraordinary system of labor-management relations mobilizes homefolks.

Mr. Reubens says we could learn from them.

In Japan there is no shortage of menial work to be done--cleaning, janitorial, ditch-digging.

Japanese companies recruit new employees each year from among their own school graduates. Instead of hiring them for specific jobs, they are made members of the big corporate family--expected to remain so for life.

They are promoted regularly; given pay raises. But their duties are rotated to cover the menial chores as well as the more interesting ones and to keep workers from getting "stale" or "bored."

Japanese have learned to perform menial chores as children, thus are not resentful of so-called "low-level work."

Thus job vacancies are rare; thus Japan holds little attraction for foreign workers.

What foreign workers are in Japan are Korean and they comprise but a fraction of one percent of the population.

When Japan needs labor reserves it draws on its own retirees.

Mr. Reubens recognizes that Japan's system cannot be imported to the United States intact. For one thing, their labor unions are company unions; not antagonistic toward management.

And they graduate pay according to age, sex and seniority.

But the United States could begin filling jobs with homefolks by contracting low-grade tasks--cleaning and maintenance--to specialized firms which dignify and reward diligence.

South won the diamond lead in dummy and led the seven of trumps. East showed out and prospects of making four hearts were dim indeed. The only legitimate play would be to drop a doubleton king-queen of spades. South didn't like that chance and instead decided to keep dummy's ace of clubs as a threat card, rather than use it to discard a potential spade loser.

West ducked the first trump, but South continued. West won and led his second and last diamond. South won in dummy and ruffed a diamond on which card West chucked his deuce of clubs. Another trump went to West's ace and West led his last trump back. Now South cashed his next to last trump to come down to a five-card ending. Dummy's last five cards were a spade, a diamond and three clubs.

On that next to last trump West felt that he had to keep three clubs and chucked a spade. East, who had already jettisoned four clubs, also discarded a spade to hang on to his high diamond.

Now South simply played ace and deuce of spades to set up his jack and four as winners.

His failure to take a discard on the ace of clubs had paid off. Either East or West should have seen what was going on, but when you give a man a chance to make a mistake he may oblige.

Avocado Oil Is Versatile

CHATSWORTH, Calif. (AP) — Avocado oil isn't for salad dressing only.

Avocado pulp yields a greenish oil with a bland taste and faint odor that is an ingredient in hair conditioners, suntan preparations and other cosmetics.

Scurry Homemakers Attend Meet In Austin

Four women from Scurry County attended the state meeting of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association this week. Virginia Drake from the Knapp Club, Texa Jones from the Honey Do's Club, and Pearl Wheeler from the Patchwork Squares went as voting delegates from Scurry County and Ruth Weathers went as a guest.

The annual state meeting was held at the Marriott Hotel in Austin and Mrs. Bill Clements, wife of the governor, addressed the opening assembly. Featured speakers included General Robinson Risner, executive director of Drug Abuse Research and Education (DARE); Mrs. Alicia deValdes, founder and director of the nationwide "Alicia Project" which provides help for the poor in the interior of Mexico; and Barbara Bey, program director of Community Services of the American Council of Life Insurance.

Workshops were presented in the areas of Community Programs, Young Homemakers, Cultural Arts and International Understanding, Health and Safety, Communications and Public Relations, Citizenship and Legislation, Family Life and Family Resources, and Membership and Leadership.

Materials and information received at these workshops will be used to help plan programs for the local extension homemakers clubs for the next year.

Over 20,000 women across the state of Texas are members of the Extension Homemakers Association and their goal is to bring that number to 50,000 during the next ten years.

Copycat Version Of Favorite Chili Sauce

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I've been using your Green Tomato Relish recipe which we enjoyed during winter and am looking forward to making more this year. But now I wonder if you have a copycat version of the best commercially prepared chili sauce made with ripe tomatoes. I have tried several recipes, but none of the homemade chili sauces tasted as good as our favorite bought brand. — KENTUCKY COOK.

DEAR KENTUCKY COOK: It's hard to copycat good commercial chili sauce. But in the opinion of a group of tasters the following recipe comes as close as possible to the best of the bought brands. Hope you agree. — C.B.

CHILI SAUCE

4½ cups distilled white vinegar
2 tablespoons whole cloves
3 cinnamon sticks, broken in half
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 tablespoon whole allspice
15 pounds (about 45 medium) tomatoes
3 cups sugar
½ cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons salt

Prepare home canning jars and lids according to manufacturer's directions.

In a medium saucepan, bring to a boil the vinegar, cloves, cinnamon sticks, celery seed and allspice; remove from heat and reserve.

Peel, chop and measure tomatoes. Into a 6 to 8-quart saucepot turn ½ the tomatoes, 1½ cups sugar, the onion and cayenne. Bring to a boil; simmer 40 minutes, stirring often. Stir in the remaining tomatoes and the remaining sugar; boil 40 minutes, stirring often. (Adding the tomatoes and sugar in two steps helps preserve the red color.)

Strain reserved vinegar mixture; discard spices. Stir vinegar and salt into tomato mixture; cook to desired consistency — about 30 minutes. Pour into hot jars, leaving ¼-inch head space. Adjust caps.

Process in boiling water bath canner for 15 minutes.

Makes about 6 pint jars.

Note: Avoid using utensils of zinc, iron, brass, copper, aluminum or galvanized metal when making chili sauce as these react chemically with both acids and salt in the chili sauce mixture.

Baste ham or poultry with leftover syrup from canned fruit.

Grandparents' Day
SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 13th
2:00 — 4:00 P.M.
Grandparents' Day is a very special day for our nursing home residents. It's a special day for kids, too. Because something wonderful happens when young people and old people get together. They talk. They laugh. They swap stories. And it's just as if they've been friends for years. Maybe nobody can explain what makes them so happy together. But whatever it is, it's beautiful. Bring your kids for a visit to our nursing home. You're going to find an old friend.

Emphysema comes with age

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I recently found out I have emphysema. It has not affected my breathing too much as yet but the X-rays showed my lungs are stretched and enlarged. I have never smoked, it is not hereditary and no one in my family smokes. The town I live in is a small town so I do not feel that the exhaust from cars is a problem.

I'm 70 years old, not overweight and I walk two to three miles every morning before breakfast. My doctor is giving me Inderal for heart regulation.

I would appreciate any information you can give me about emphysema. How could this happen to anyone who has never smoked and, most important, how can I help myself to keep from growing worse?

DEAR READER — You will be surprised to learn that most older people do have some degree of emphysema even if they do not smoke and do not have any symptoms. The lungs tend to lose elasticity with age. As a result the air passages can collapse as you start to exhale, which makes breathing more difficult. Your story suggests that the amount of lung changes you have are not too severe for your age group. And I am delighted that you are able to, and do, walk every day. Keep it up.

You may not think that your emphysema is inherited but some people do have an enzyme deficiency, which may be inherited, that increases their chance of having emphysema.

The most important thing you can do for yourself is to avoid pollutants as explained in The Health Letter number 17-8, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The worst pollutant is tobacco smoke. But you can have emphysema without being exposed to it. Second-hand tobacco smoke is an important pollutant to the victim of emphysema.

Maintaining your posture so your rib cage can move properly is also important. People who tend to slump or bend over have more problems with breathing as they get older. These and other aspects of what you should do are discussed in more detail in The Health Letter I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'd like to warn other parents about the effects of too much fluoride on your child's teeth. My 7-year-old daughter has just recently gotten her permanent teeth. I noticed that they were all streaked and spotted with a chalk-like color. The pediatrician told me that it was from too much fluoride.

She has always taken a fluoridated vitamin, had fluoride treatments from her dentist, drinks fluoridated water and used fluoride toothpaste. The doctor told me to stop the vitamins and check with my dentist. I am sick. I know this falls into the "too much of a good thing" category, but I honestly did not know of this danger to her teeth.

DEAR READER — Fluoride is important in preventing dental caries. It also strengthens bones even in adults and may help prevent fractures. Too much can cause chalky white patches on the teeth or yellow and even dark brown stains.

Mottled teeth occur only if a person drinks water regularly that contains more than 1.5 mg of fluoride per liter during tooth development. Or as in your daughter's case, the total consumption from all sources was too much. The recommended level is only 1.0 mg per liter of water.

Money To Be Returned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Thursday he is returning to the state treasury a total of $600,000 that had been appropriated to his department by the 1979 Legislature.

"For the second biennium in a row, I have found it possible to return unspent funds to the treasury," Brown said in a statement.

"This has been possible in part by running a 'tight ship' and brings to $1.4 million I have saved the taxpayers of this state since becoming commissioner of agriculture four years ago."

Hit & Run Driver Sought By Police

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Police have launched a search for the driver of a blue pickup truck believed to have been involved in a hit-and-run in which a father and his two young daughters were killed while riding bicycles.

Kelly Amanda Blanchard, 2, was pronounced dead at the scene after the Wednesday night accident, and her father, Robert Earle Blanchard, 43, died later at Westgate Hospital.

[redacted] Michelle Blanchard, 10, died Thursday morning at Methodist Hospital in Dallas after undergoing surgery for head and abdominal injuries. She had been transported by helicopter.

Blanchard apparently was carried a short distance on the truck's hood, suggesting that the driver could not have been unaware of the impact, police Capt. Bill Cummings said.

The truck was last reported sliding through a nearby intersection where a bicycle seat was found, Cummings said.

Police believe the 2-year-old was riding on her father's bicycle when the three were struck.

Vietnam Veteran...

Appeals Murder Charge

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Duane Samples majored in psychology at Stanford University, was voted president of his fraternity, boxed as an amateur and skied on weekends. That was in 1964.

Samples now jogs on a prison track and studies psychology from a cell at the Oregon State Penitentiary where he is serving a life sentence for murder.

Between the campus in California and the prison in Oregon, there was Vietnam.

Samples says the trauma of a year in combat shaded his life after he came home in April 1967. The decorated veteran drifted through jobs and drugs. Then, in 1975, he acted out what psychologists termed a lurid sexual fantasy by slashing two women with a 10-inch knife. One died.

"I know I wouldn't be here if not for Vietnam," Samples, 39, said in a prison interview. "No one can claim Vietnam takes away their responsibility for what they did, but there were some things in me not strong enough. I reacted poorly to that experience."

Samples is now the center of a moral and political tug-of-war involving the Oregon governor, psychiatrists, the woman who survived Samples' attack, the local district attorney and the inmate's friends and family.

People on one side claim Samples is a rehabilitated man and no longer a threat to society. They attribute the killing to post-Vietnam delayed stress syndrome and say five years of behind-bars private therapy cured Samples.

The other side discounts the Vietnam theory and says Samples' problems date back to adolescence. Diane Ross, the woman who survived, told Gov. Vic Atiyeh she would fear for her life if Samples were released.

Atiyeh refused a 1979 request for executive clemency but last year commuted Samples' sentence to 20 years after learning about the impact of Vietnam on his life.

The decision provoked an outcry by Marion County District Attorney Chris Van Dyke and residents of Silverton, the small town near Salem where the murder occurred.

On Sept. 3, Atiyeh rescinded the commutation. He said he based his reversal on recent negative psychiatric opinions about Samples' rehabilitation and additional evidence — including a previously undisclosed report that Samples allegedly beat up a woman in 1971.

However, Atiyeh restated his assessment that prior to Vietnam, Samples "was a scholar athlete ... and seemed destined for a successsful life. Yet he returned from the Vietnam war a wholly different person and ultimately committed a vicious murder. He then became a model prisoner and by all appearances returned to his pre-Vietnam personality."

But Van Dyke says statements Samples made after the murder referred to pre-Vietnam problems, including shooting himself in the stomach when he was 13. Van Dyke has termed Samples a sexual sadist and says the self-inflicted wound reflects abnormal sexual fantasies.

Experts who examined Samples after the murder were divided about whether the shooting was an accident and whether Samples had serious troubles before he went to Vietnam.

Van Dyke has also produced a never-mailed letter Samples wrote to a former girlfriend in May 1970. In it, he outlined a fantasy about slashing stomachs and disemboweling women, acts that resembled the eventual stabbing.

The district attorney claims Samples is an intelligent opportunist trying to capitalize on his combat to win commutation. He notes that Samples never raised the Vietnam defense until several years into his imprisonment.

But the veteran's lawyer, Michael Bailey, said: "Duane Samples never attempted to use post-Vietnam delayed stress syndrome to gain sympathy or as an excuse" and, indeed, became aware of it only after years of therapy.

When Samples and other veterans returned from Vietnam, Bailey said, "the nation rejected them and accepted no responsibility for their pain and alienation. Duane Samples struggled alone with his anguish and it led him to a brutal and dastardly crime."

Bailey says he expects to challenge Atiyeh's commutation reversal in the Oregon Supreme Court.

Samples' commutation file includes letters from friends who remembered him as a "normal Stanford student." One letter refers to ski trips with classmates, among them Max Baucus, now a U.S. senator from Montana. Baucus wrote in support of Samples, as did Dr. John Wilson of Cleveland State University, who pioneered much of the work on delayed stress and Vietnam veterans.

Samples said that after returning from Vietnam he traveled in Europe, held jobs in Oregon and California and helped set up a clinic in Salem to counsel troubled youths.

He said he avoided people he knew before Vietnam who had established successful careers. He said he considered suicide and got to the point where he was sticking sharp objects into his abdomen. He said he finally decided he would have to force someone to kill him.

Demands Are To Be Met Soon

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Bowing to the demands of leftist students who held six U.N. employees hostage, the government has agreed to investigate the cases of 41 alleged political prisoners. The agreement brought an end to the student's 56-hour takeover of the U.N. office in Tegucigalpa and the release of the hostages.

Reporters saw the hostages and 20 unarmed students leave the U.N. building Thursday evening. They drove off toward the National University campus three miles east of the capital, the reporters said.

"All the hostages are in good health and apparently, at no time, were they molested by their captors," said a police spokesman, who refused to give his name.

The hostages, all foreigners, included the head of the U.N. office here, Anton Kruiderink of West Germany. The others were not identified.

The students are members of the Federation of Secondary Students, a group that claims membership of about 50,000.

A source close to the negotiations said the government promised to investigate the students' complaints about police harassment of federation leaders and the cases of the 41 prisoners. In exchange, the students agreed to free their hostages.

The government accepted the mediation of a commission of representatives of the Human Rights Commission, the National University, the Federation of Women's Associations, organized labor and the National Legislature.

Commission members then talked at length by telephone "with an important official at the presidential palace," who promised an investigation "to establish the truth relating to this painful incident," the source said.

Dear Abby

In Matters of Sex, Cousin Is All Thumbs

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I was about 8, a cousin of mine who was about 13 at the time asked me to mess around with him. I didn't know anything about sex then, and we fooled around for about 15 minutes a couple of times. We also did some heavy petting, I guess you would call it.

I am now 13 and have not done any messing around since then. My cousin, who is now in 11th grade, said he learned all about sex in biology class. He said he can tell if a girl is a virgin or not by feeling her left thumb. He felt mine and said I was not a virgin. He said he is worried for me and, since he is responsible, he advised me not to go swimming in a public pool. He said I might get pregnant. Is he a liar or what? Am I still a virgin? How can I tell for sure?

I hope you won't think my questions are stupid.

DESPERATE AND WORRIED IN ALABAMA

DEAR DESPERATE: No question is stupid. I would guess that you are still a virgin, but you would need a physical examination by a doctor to confirm it. However, whether a girl is a virgin or not, she is in no danger of becoming pregnant by merely swimming in a public pool.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Everybody has an Achilles heel. Yours, Dear Abby, is other people's smoking. Please be fair and give equal time to smokers.

When I entered the service in 1942, I smoked my first cigarette. When I quit in 1971, I was smoking 2½ packs a day plus 6 or 7 cigars. In all that time, only one person complained about my smoking. She was a pretty young thing who asked me not to smoke around her because smoke "irritated" her eyes and made them itch and water. (Request granted.)

Now that the crusade against smokers has become popular, everywhere you go, people are complaining about smoke. Recently in a fine restaurant, a rude woman yelled at me across two tables, "Put out that cigar — you are in a public place!"

Abby, since smoke is the same as it was 50 years ago, it's obvious that people have changed. Therefore, I can only infer that 90 percent of the so-called "irritation" must be psychosomatic.

MORT IN N. J.

DEAR MORT: Psychosomatic, my eye! However, you're right on two counts. Smoke is the same (it's still an irritant) and people have indeed changed. When they're denied clean air by smokers, they speak up. Fifty years ago they were too timid to say anything.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Why do all those exercise programs on TV have trim, muscular men and thin women with beautiful figures leading the exercises? We fatties would feel more like exercising right along with them if they were overweight and out of shape like we are.

Obviously, those beautiful people were never fat, so what's the point? It's a lot easier to stay thin when you've been that way all your life.

I would like to see a woman who is 40 pounds overweight (like me) doing those exercises! It would give me hope. And if after a couple of months I could see some improvement in her, I would be inspired to follow her example.

Phooey on these skin-and-bone beauties! I don't even turn on the TV to watch them anymore!

CHUNKY IN CHARLESTON

DEAR CHUNKY: I see your point. Now let's hope some sharp ad agency picks up the cue. Of course it would mean a limited career for the overweight exercise stars, who would have to be replaced by a new "fatso" every year.

Man Tests Cars For University

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Rolling out of bed to face another work day is no problem for Rick Tonda. For Tonda, a self-professed automobile freak, it's another day, another steering wheel.

Tonda runs the automotive research programs at Texas A&M's Texas Transportation Institute, which makes sure that cars will meet federal emissions requirements.

His tests also help produce the fuel consumption estimates used in advertising.

Sometimes Tonda, an automotive engineer, has to double as detective because car makers have been known to attempt to sidestep federal regulations.

Auto manufacturers from all over the world send Tonda and his 10-member staff their newest models long before the public sees them. He begins listing the cars he has tested — Lotus, DeLorean, Ferrari, Toyota, Honda, Ford — and decides it's easier to list the cars he hasn't tested: Peugeot and Rolls Royce.

"I feel like I'm getting away with something," says Tonda, 29.

Transportation Institute clients include manufacturers and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Final testing is done indoors on a dynamometer, which simulates road conditions while a car is stationary, its drive wheels turning rollers.

But first, the model's individual road performance characteristics must be entered into the dynamometer and the $500,000 computer to which it is connected.

Road tests are performed on a perfectly flat airstrip and on highways, usually at night to avoid prying eyes of the public and photographers from automobile magazines. Manufactuers normally send Tonda prototypes, which will live their entire lives as guinea pigs and end up sacrificed in crash tests.

Driving tests are called "road coast-down testing." Cars are driven to 65 mph, then coasted in neutral until they slow to 18 mph. The procedure is repeated 28 times while sensitive instruments measure the rolling resistance of the engine, transmission, differential and wheels.

With those numbers plugged into the computer, the vehicle is placed on the dynamometer and "driven" by technician Bob O'Connell. He accelerates, decelerates, stops and starts according to a 75-minute EPA routine that simulates average highway and city driving conditions. The car is even shut off for 10 minutes to simulate a stop at the market.

The amount of fuel consumed is determined by measuring the carbons in exhaust gases collected during the sequence.

Tonda says fuel consumption estimates published by manufacturers are not to be taken literally because of flaws in the testing procedure. Estimates for cars that average under 20 miles per gallon will err on the optimistic side by one or two miles per gallon, he said, while those for economy models will be off even more.

"It's only a comparison," says Tonda, echoing the disclaimer printed in auto ads. "The moron behind the wheel is the biggest influence on fuel economy."

Gasoline used in the tests is 96 octane, while the public can buy only 87 or 91 octane, he said.

In emissions tests, exhaust gases are fed into compters that analyze carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide, nitrous oxide and hydrocarbon contents — both to see if they meet EPA standards and to estimate fuel consumption.

Parents Fight Appeals Court Order

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The parents of a 15-month old girl suffering from hydrocephalus say they will try to reverse an Oregon Court of Appeals decision that the baby must undergo brain surgery.

Arnold and Donna Jensen of Brownsville, both members of the Church of the First Born, believe in the healing power of prayer and do not see doctors or use medication.

The appelate court upheld a lower court's decision ordering the brain surgery for Sara Jensen. The three-judge panel decided to postpone the operation until Sept. 15 to allow the child's parents time to appeal.

Hydrocephalus is an accumulation of fluid on the brain.

AFS To Meet

The Snyder American Field Service Chapter will meet Saturday morning at 8 a.m. at the Smorgasboard's main dining room. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Tigers-Rebs Face Off In 8th Meeting

MIDLAND -- Schoolboy football enters its second week in West Texas and with it comes the final pre-district tuneup for many schools. Such is the case here this evening as District 2-4A Snyder and 5-5A Midland Lee High battle at 8 o'clock.

Tickets are available at the gate for $4 (adults) and $2 (students).

Snyder, 0-1, opens the district season next week at Andrews, while Midland, 1-0, entertains Plainview before beginning loop play Oct. 2 at Odessa High.

Tonight's game marks only the eighth meeting between the Rebels and Tigers, a series which Midland leads 6-1.

Traditionally, the teams have fought close, low scoring battles. Though Snyder won 27-15 in 1973 and Midland took a 32-8 win in 1978, the scores have averaged 16 points for both teams combined. Ironically, that 32-8 loss to Lee in '78 was one of only two regular season defeats - the other 28-15 to Pecos - as Snyder won district and bi-district titles that year.

The closest games played between the teams were in 1974 and 75 respectively, when Midland Lee won 19-12 and 7-3. Last year's contest ended in a 17-7 victory for the Rebels. It was a tight game throughout as Lee took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter, following a Terry Thompson interception to the Tiger 29. Three plays later Rodney Hemphill - now graduated - ran over from 10 yards out. Van Gravitt kicked the point-after.

Snyder tied the game with 8:40 left in the third period as former QB Mike Roemisch hit Glen Parham on a 48-yard pass. Parham kicked the PAT.

Lee managed to shut down Snyder's running game in the second half and continued to march to a couple of scores. A Gravitt field goal of 25 yards late in the quarter returned the lead to Midland, and Calvin Riggs' 46-yard TD run early in the fourth period iced it.

Tonight's contest promises to be much the same type of hard-hitting, ball control battle as last year's, though the Tigers obviously hope to come out on top.

A key for the Tigers will be making the most of early scoring opportunities - something they were unable to do last week against Big Spring. And though proud of conditioning, Snyder needs to establish a lead prior to the final eight minutes of the game because depth (fresh players) should begin to benefit the larger, more numbered Rebel team late.

Beyond that, reading the keys well and enforcing solid blocking and tackling are the ingredients the eventual victor will practice.

Lee By 28

Snyder High School will attempt to fool the power system again tonight when the Tigers take on Midland Lee in Midland at 8 o'clock.

The Harris Rating System, which had Snyder a 15-point underdog to Big Spring last week, rates the Tigers a 28-point victim this time around.

Big Spring did get past the Tigers last week, though it was by a single point, 14-13, not 15. In fact, Snyder dominated the Steers on a basis of total yards and first downs.

Elsewhere in the loop this week, Sweetwater is a 4-point favorite over Big Spring, Andrews is a 1-point selection over Midland High, Odessa Ector is a 35-point underdog to El Paso Bel Air and Lamesa is a 4-point choice over Brownfield.

Also, Harris picks Fort Stockton by 6 over Alpine, Monahans by 41 over Crane and Lake View to fall to Stamford by 2. Pecos' opponent, Carlsbad, N.M., is not rated.

Area Clubs Play At Home Tonight

Borden County and Hermleigh, caught short last week, look for victories tonight as gridiron action around the 2-A six-man loop begins to heat up.

Coach Randy Roemisch's Coyotes try their skills against Dawson, the team that topped Hermleigh last week in a 52-32 decision. Borden County fell to Cotton Center last Friday, 41-26, despite a 202-yard rushing performance by Jym Rinehart.

Hermleigh, also making its home debut this season, will test Wellman, a 45-18 winner over Patton Springs.

Hermleigh got 129 yards rushing from Dennis Jones and 89 from Kenny Riley in the game.

Ira, a 31-18 victor over Divide last week, takes an extra evening off tonight, but only to prepare for Saturday's homecoming festivities. Coach Tom Pierson's Bulldogs try to make it 2-0 for the season as they play host to an improved Lueders-Avoca team at 8 p.m.

All of the other 2-A teams play on Friday evening, also at 8. Last week's victors Grady and Highland host Three Way and Blackwell, respectively, while Trent goes to Paint Creek.

In other results last week, district favorite Highland swamped Christoval 56-8, Grady thrashed Loop 26-6, Goree overpowered Trent 35-32 and Blackwell blanked McCaulley 28-0.

Ira opens Saturday's celebration with registration from 1 until 4 p.m. in the old gym. A program and business meeting will be held from 3-4, followed by open house from 4 to 5 p.m. The program will be highlighted by the crowning of a coming-home queen and king, honoring two of Ira's exes.

A barbecue supper will be held from 5-6:30, preceding a pep rally at the field, and the 8:00 ballgame. Halftime activities include the traditional crowning of the student body queen.

Cats Slap Dogs 60-6 In Opener

STAMFORD -- Snyder Junior High's eighth graders rolled to a 60-6 victory in their first game of the season here last night, crushing the Pups of Stamford.

The Cats will play again in two weeks, taking on Sweetwater at Travis Field in Snyder.

Snyder's eighth, which normally forms two teams but competed as one last night because of a lack of numbers at Stamford, suited up about 50 kids for the game, according to coach Dale Byrd.

Byrd cited Todd Pollard, Eddie Becerra, Mark Thompson, Eddie Titus, Reggie Price and Rusty Radican as defensive standouts for the Cats. Scoring offensively were:

Tony Romero on a 15-yard run; Mike McWilliams on a PAT jaunt; Michael Carter on a 25-yard run; Justin Webb on a 35-yard run; Robert Patterson on a 15-yard run; Jimmy Velasquez on a 40-yard pass from Webb; Jimmy Hunter on a PAT run; Romero on a 20-yard run; Bobby Scott on a 15-yard pass from Hunter; Hunter on a 45-yard run; Patterson a PAT run; and Arthur Ramos on an 8-yard run.

Miami Shocks Steelers, 30-10

MIAMI (AP) - It's been a while since the Pittsburgh Steelers have been forced to look elsewhere in the National Football League to find the winning formula.

But after a pair of losses to open the 1981 season, Coach Chuck Noll says it might not be a bad idea to follow the lead of the young Miami Dolphins.

"We're going to have to play better, that's obvious, if we're going to correct our situation," Noll said Thursday night after his team dropped a 30-10 decision to the Dolphins in a nationally televised game before a sellout crowd of 74,190 at the Orange Bowl.

Second-year quarterback David Woodley ran for one touchdown and threw for another and rookie Tommy Vigorito returned a punt 87 yards for a score to propel Miami, 2-0, to its first triumph over the Steelers in eight years.

Fullback Andra Franklin, the Dolphins second-round draft choice from Nebraska, bulled his way to one touchdown and Uwe von Schamann booted a 32-yard field goal as Pittsburgh saw its record slip to 0-2, the team's worst start since 1970.

The aging Steelers, who won four Super Bowls during the 1970s, again were victimized by mistakes. After seven turnovers in their season-opening 37-33 loss to Kansas City last Sunday, two Terry Bradshaw interceptions led to Dolphin scores Thursday night.

Woodley completed 14 of 34 passes for 161 yards and was intercepted once.

Cards Plan Fellowship

HERMLEIGH -- Hermleigh Booster Club will sponsor a fellowship in the school cafeteria immediately following tonight's game with Wellman.

All Hermleigh fans are urged to attend.

Hosts Monahans Tuesday...

Snyder Rips Lamesa!

LAMESA -- Snyder High School took a major step in its goal to defend the District 2-4A volleyball championship here last night as Coach Joyce Elrod's Tigers swamped Lamesa 15-5 and 15-7.

The Tigers, 3-0 in first-round loop action, will receive their toughest test Tuesday when they host top contender Monahans at 7:30 in the SHS Gym.

"We were fired up," expounded Coach Elrod, who had plenty of praise for the Tigers. "Lamesa stayed right with us through one rotation of the first round, but Sherri Rich came up and served nine straight points and from that point on we had the game," she said.

Snyder was down 5-3 early in the first game, but Rich's nine points gave the Tigers a 12-5 lead. Shana Koonsman served the final three as Snyder won going away.

The second game was no contest as Becky Harrell served up a 4-1 lead and each Snyder server garnered a single point until Koonsman made it 14-7. Toni Elrod served game point.

"Lamesa made a lot of crucial mistakes at times when it really cost them, and our kids never let up," noted the coach. "Our offense was good and our blocking was real good. I was proud of our effort," she added.

Coach Elrod especially praised the efforts of Rich, who "played one of the best games she's played all season."

Rich served for 11 points, Koonsman for 9, Harrell for 6, Sabrina Robinson and Toni Elrod for 2 each and Kathy Northcott for 1.

The win was Snyder's 12th against two losses, and marked the school's 47th straight district varsity win - a string that dates back to September of 1976.

In earlier action, Snyder junior varsity fell to the Golden Tornadoes, 13-11 and 15-5.

JV Opens Volleyball Tourney Here Today

Snyder junior varsity was to begin hosting its two-day Junior Varsity Volleyball Tournament this morning with a pair of 9 o'clock matches.

Fifteen teams are entered in the event, which opened at 9 a.m. with Abilene Cooper and Odessa Ector vying in the junior high gym and with Snyder and Midland meeting in the high school gym.

Other first round games included, at 10 a.m., Brownfield and Monahans in the junior high gym and Seminole and Odessa in the high school gym; and 11 a.m., Levelland and Abilene High in the junior high gym and Big Spring and Lake View in the high school gym. At noon, San Angelo Central met Bronte in the junior high gym. Lamesa was the only team to receive a bye in the first round.

The final Friday contest was also to begin at 12, with Lamesa taking on the Midland-Snyder winner at the high school.

Other second-round action is to begin at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Finals are scheduled as follows: 4:30 p.m. consolation, 6 p.m. third place, and 7:30 p.m. championship - all in the high school gym.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Borg Reaches Open Semis

NEW YORK (AP) - Sweden's Bjorn Borg topped Roscoe Tanner 7-6, 6-3, 6-7, 7-6; while Jimmy Connors posted a 6-3, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Eliot Teltscher to move into the semifinals of the U.S. Open.

Wadkins Leads Fund Classic

SUTTON, Mass (AP) - Lanny Wadkins fired a 5-under par 66 for a 2-stroke lead after the opening round of the $300,000 Pleasant Valley Jimmy Fund Classic.

Tied for second at 68 were Tom Kite, David Thore, Jim Colbert, Steve Melnyk, Don Levin, Greg Powers, Scott Simpson, Jack Renner, D.A. Weibring, Lee Elder, Gavin Levenson and Jeff Mitchell.

Freshmen Romp Over Stamford

STAMFORD -- Snyder freshmen opened the 1981 season with a 56-0 pasting of Stamford here last night. The Cats travel to Andrews next Thursday for a pair of tilts beginning at 5:30.

Abey Munoz got the Cats on track as he intercepted a Stamford pitchout and raced 30 yards to score. Still in the first quarter, Paul Thompson scored on an 8-yard run and Carlos Carrisalez went over from 6-yards out. Jimmy Cain ran over two of the three conversion attempts.

In the second quarter Thompson scored from 15 and Cain added the two-point conversion. Carrisalez also scored in the period, on a 2-yard run.

Snyder's other scores came on a 40-yard ramble by Thompson, a 1-yard run from Kyle Freeman and a 4-yard effort from Cain.

Thompson, Cain and Carrisalez were the leading ball carriers as Snyder rolled up 320 yards offense. Roy Silva intercepted a pass.
