U. S. accused of role in ouster

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Ferdinand E. Marcos today denied charges of corruption, said U.S. officials may have taken part in his ouster and indicated for the first time he may return from exile.

"We must war again against the monster who imposes slavery," the deposed president said in a telephone call taped today in Manila and released to The Associated Press.

"Remain united so that we will see each other again," Marcos also told supporters in his home region in a handwritten postscript to an eight-page letter dated March 21 and addressed to "my beloved Filipino countrymen."

The 68-year-old Marcos, who is living in exile in Hawaii, accused President Corazon Aquino of striving for wealth and power, imposing a dictatorship, and allowing her followers to loot his palace and wear his wife Imelda's dresses.

Oil at $11 mark, 8-year low

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices dropped below the $11-a-barrel level today, the lowest in eight years, intensifying a plunge caused by oversupply and the failure of producers to cooperate in restraining output.

"The bottom line is, traders don't see anything to hold back prices from falling. There's just too much oil out there," said Peter Beutel, an analyst with Rudolf Wolff Futures Inc., a New York commodities futures firm.

Contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were selling for $10.70 a 42-gallon barrel in late morning trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The same contract closed Friday at $11.44 a barrel.

It was the lowest level reached since 1978, when refiners were paying an average $10.61 a barrel for domestic crude oil. Only last November, oil was selling for $30 a barrel.

Exchange spokeswoman Mary Ann Matlock said that it was the first time that crude oil prices have ever traded below $11 in the three years that contracts have been sold on the exchange.

Because London markets remain closed for the Easter holiday, Beutel said, traders had nothing to counter negative feelings that had been building up over last week.

He said there was some restraint in selling when the military confrontation erupted between United States and Libya last week, until it became evident that the incident was not going to escalate significantly.

In Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates Oil Minister Mana Saeed Oteiba was quoted as saying that oil prices would drop to $5 a barrel without cooperation among producers inside and outside OPEC.

A glut in world supplies was already putting downward pressure on prices when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said in December that it would increase production to preserve its "fair market share," abandoning previous attempts to support the market through restrained production.

Earlier this month, the 13-nation cartel failed to devise a strategy for reversing the plunge in oil prices at a protracted meeting in Geneva. The members only agreed to reconvene on April 15.

Today, however, the official Emirates News Agency quoted Oteiba as saying that he believed that meeting should be postponed.

Will provision cited...

1611 traffic route opposed by heirs

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

Citing provisions in a will which prohibits the sale of family-owned land, objections were raised during Monday's commissioners' court session to the proposed extension of FM 1611.

The extension would close an approximate two-mile gap in a network of roads looping the city. Proponents say it would create a truck route around the city, allowing heavy truck traffic to bypass downtown Snyder.

Helen Hatter, daughter of Florentz and John Robert (Sam) Joyce and granddaughter of Wade and Leclaire Winston, represented the Winston heirs during the court session.

The right-of-way needed by the county includes a stretch approximately 2 miles long and 100 ft. wide, crossing the property between County Road 333 and State Highway 350 which leads to Big Spring Highway

Hatter noted that the estate belonging to the heirs of Wade and Harrie B. Winston now comprises some 10 sections of rangeland south of the city and west of Roundtop Road.

Current property owners include Dorothy W. Casey, Florentz W. Joyce and Sam Joyce of Snyder and Sam. B. Casey of Florida.

The family's primary objection centers on a provision in Leclaire Winston's will which dictates that the property is never to be sold or divided. Hatter gave no indication what penalty could be assessed against the family if it is deemed the will's provision had been broken.

Hatter added that the proposed road will "essentially cut off the barns from the larger portion of the acreage" on the west side of the Big Spring Highway

The family claims that currently only one person is needed to move cattle from one pasture to another. "Since the proposed road would greatly complicate the movement of cattle, the expenses for running the operation, whether leased or family-run, would increase greatly," she said. The property in question is

Donations of blood solicited

Blood donors are again sought in Snyder from 1 until 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Senior Citizens Center.

First time donors will receive a baseball cap courtesy of United Blood Services of Lubbock. The caps carry the logo, "donate blood."

Tuesday's effort will mark the second blood drive of 1986. Last Feb. 4, some 152 individuals registered and 143 were able to give blood.

The local drives are jointly sponsored by the advisory council for UBS and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

All blood donors can expect to receive the incentives which have become a tradition with local drives.

These include a coupon good for a free Whataburger; a coupon good for an individual-sized pizza and soft drink from Shakey's; and a coupon good for a box of soap courtesy of the Tub Club laundry.

In addition, every fifth donor will be given a free six-pack of soft drink courtesy of Sweet-

2 hospitalized here after pickup rollover

Two Snyder women were listed in satisfactory condition in Cogdell Memorial Hospital Monday morning following a one-vehicle traffic mishap about 2 miles north of Ira Sunday afternoon.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, the 1982 Chevrolet pickup the pair was riding in overturned on State Hwy. 350 around 5:27 p.m.

Injured were the driver, 19-year-old Rajana Young of 109 Milburn Ave., and 26-year-old Renee Means of Snyder. Both were reportedly thrown from the truck.

According to a hospital spokesman, both women were undergoing medical examinations Monday morning to determine the extent of their injuries.

Rollover ends chase, head injuries noted

A 23-year-old Snyder man was under treatment in the intensive care unit of Lubbock's Methodist Hospital Monday morning as a result of a high speed chase with police Sunday night.

Joseph Michael Thamez of 906 28th St. was taken to the Lubbock hospital late Sunday night.

He is being treated for head injuries sustained when his 1974 Ford pickup overturned on U.S. Hwy. 208 about 15 miles north of Snyder.

Police began pursuing Thamez around 9:15 p.m. Sunday when he was spotted driving away from the scene of a reported disturbance in the 2800 Block of Ave. F.

Officers followed him out of town and north on the Clairemont Highway at speeds reported in excess of 80 miles per hour.

Thamez apparently lost control of his truck about 2 miles north of the Texaco gas plant about 9:43 p.m. His vehicle overturned after

Producers to gather for annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Scurry County Producers Association is due at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum.

Featured speaker will be U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford).

The association's spring meeting traditionally includes a recommendation and vote regarding the uniform planting date for county cotton producers.

County Entomologist Deana Myers will make a report and a recommendation regarding this.

The uniform planting date is determined to guard against boll weevil infestations. Producers are urged to plant on or after the date to insure that emerging cotton plants come after the boll weevil population has peaked.

In addition Tuesday, the group will vote for eight new directors for the producer board.

Directors with expiring terms are Milton Stephens, Carl Williams, Morris Head, David Kattes, Leon Sterling, Bob Pollard, Morris Light and Donald Tate.

Other directors include Larry Schwarz, Fred Cross, Ralph Trevey, E.E. Shifflett, Wayland Huddleston, Johnny Richardson, Jon Derouen, Tommy Pate, Jimmy Williams, Vance Voss, Wayne Glass, Terry Franks, John Short, Rodney Glass, Bill Houston and Lonny Blackard.

Defense Dept. doubts claims

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Defense Department investigators say they don't believe an ex-convict's claim that he worked on a sensitive mapping project involving Soviet target sites even though he had no clearance.

The San Antonio Light reported in a copyright story Sunday that the former prison inmate worked for a local map-making firm. He said when he went to two federal agencies in February to report he had access to a sensitive mapping project without security clearance, he was fired and labeled a "troublemaker."

His complaint was corroborated by another former employee of the same firm, but Defense Department investigators say they don't believe it and probably won't investigate.

Privately, government officials say the situation points out an inherent problem in contracting sensitive work out to the private sector, where security procedures often are not as rigid as those in government agencies that routinely deal with classified material, the newspaper reported.

The ex-convict, who was not identified by the newspaper, served more than seven years in federal prison for shooting and wounding a military policeman and attempting to manufacture a pistol and silencer while in prison.

He claims he was working on classified targeting maps of the Soviet Union without a clearance and that there was a wide range of security breaches at the firm.

He spoke to the Light last week on the condition that his name not be used.

Deborah Deffee, another former employee of the same company, Williams-Stackhouse Inc., confirmed his story and added that she also worked on classified materials without a clearance. Both said they warned supervisors at the company but were ignored.

But Williams-Stackhouse President Robert Koranek said both former employees worked only on unclassified portions of the project and that there was no way of determining the ex-convict's background when he was hired in April 1985.

Koranek called the ex-convict a "disgruntled employee" who is trying to get back at the company for firing him.

Company vice president Randy Holt confirmed that the ex-convict worked on the project but not the classified portions.

The ex-convict, however, said even though the targets were not marked, he was able to deduce what they were.

Actor James Cagney is dead at age 86

NEW YORK (AP) — James Cagney, who rose from one of New York City's toughest neighborhoods to become one of Hollywood's most famous tough guys during his 50-year acting career, was "the classic American successs story," President Reagan said following his friend's death.

Cagney, who won an Oscar for his 1942 portrayal of song-and-dance man George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," died Sunday at age 86. He suffered from diabetes and had been in declining health.

His wife of 64 years, Billie, and his manager, Marge Zimmerman, were at his side when he died at his Dutchess County farm north of New York City, where he had been taken only last week after being released from a hospital.

"We were getting him ready for breakfast and he just closed his eyes and went to sleep," Mrs. Zimmerman said. "It's Easter and it's a good time if he had to go."

"Death isn't even the right word to use, especially on Easter," Frank Sinatra said from his Palm Springs home. "Jim merely changed addresses from this life into the next."

Cagney retired in 1961 after appearing in 64 films, including "The Public Enemy," in 1931 and "The Roaring Twenties," in 1939. He returned to the screen in 1981 as the police commissioner in "Ragtime."

In addition to the Academy Award, Cagney won a citation from the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts in 1980 for career achievement and the Medal of Freedom, the government's highest civilian award, in 1984.

"Jimmy Cagney was the classic American success story, lifting himself by determination and hard work out of poverty to national acclaim," Reagan said in a statement from his California ranch. "I believe the entire nation loved Jimmy Cagney and I think he must have loved us, too, because he always gave us his very best. ... Goodbye, dear friend."

In 1938, Cagney shared billing with Reagan in "Boy Meets Girl," and the men became friends. Both were presidents of the Screen Actors Guild and described themselves as Roosevelt Democrats who turned conservative.

Cagney drew praise for a wide series of roles — mobsters in such films as "The Public Enemy," "Angels with Dirty Faces" and "White Heat;" the neurotic ship captain in "Mister Roberts;" Lon Chaney in "Man of a Thousand Faces;" Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy;" and Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Cagney was born on the Lower East Side of New York City, the second of five children, moving to Manhattan's tough Yorkville section upon the death of his alcoholic father.

Texas independence celebration scheduled at noted battleground

AUSTIN (AP) — When the state officially commemorates 150 years of independence on April 21 at the site where it was won — the San Jacinto Battleground — fireworks will explode simultaneously from the battleground and nine Texas cities.

Viewed from the heavens, the exploding fireworks will simulate a huge star across the Lone Star State, according to the Parks and Wildlife Department, which is sponsoring the "Texas 150 Celebration."

It is estimated that more than eight million Texans will be able to see the fireworks shows from the San Jacinto State Historical Park, Austin, Corpus Christi, Waco, Dallas, Lubbock, El Paso, Longview, Beaumont and Brownsville.

The fireworks show "is unquestionably the largest and most extensive ever attempted anywhere," said Gary Caimano of Pryo-Spectaculars of Rialto, Calif. The program is being financed by Anheuser-Busch.

More than 12,000 rockets will be set off over Texas skies on April 21. The largest shells weigh 50 pounds and will burst as high as 1,000 feet.

The fireworks will be choreographed to patriotic music broadcast on radio stations in each of the cities.

The display will last 18 minutes — the length of time it took the Texas Army to defeat Mexican troops at San Jacinto on April 21, 1836.

Although local Sesquicentennial events are being held throughout the year, activities at the 756-acre park are scheduled for April 20-21. About 75,000 people are expected each day.

Vice President George Bush has been invited to do a "patriotic reading," and Texas Gov. Mark White will give an account of the Battle of San Jacinto.

There will be seven stages with Texas music and dance; exhibits; ethnic and regional foods; a children's pavilion; and visits to the 570-foot high San Jacinto Monument, the Battleship Texas, which is berthed adjacent to the park, and the sailing ship Elissa.

Special ceremonies include a service to honor black heroes of the Texas Revolution, with a single rose "placed commemorating the contributions of each of 20 black men who served Texas' cause in 1836," according to the Parks and Wildlife Department.

More than 50 performers of Texas song, music and dance will appear each day at the festival. Headliner entertainers are Larry Gatlin and The Gatlin Brothers, B.J. Thomas, The Texas Playboys, Asleep at the Wheel and the Houston Symphony Orchestra featuring Willie Nelson.

The Parks and Wildlife Department said the two-day celebration is designed "To honor the memory of the people of 1836 who took a stand for constitutional government, made a declaration, committed their lives in battle and created a republic where none had existed."

The festival also will "recognize and celebrate our Spanish heritage," the department said. "Texans broke their formal ties with Mexico at the Battle of San Jacinto, but we can never break the cultural ties.

"We celebrate the cultural heritage which binds our country and our state to Mexico, recognizing that Texas is, forever, a bridge between Mexico and the United States."

Your Birthday

April 1, 1986

Interests that are of great personal importance to you will be advanced in the year ahead in unusual manners. Sources you'd least expect will be the ones that will prove to be the most helpful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be lucky today, provided you focus your attention on a practical objective. Don't let your eye drift from one target to another. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Success won't elude you today if you maintain a positive attitude. Don't let self-doubts sneak in and gain the upper hand.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) To make your presence felt today, you might be tempted to unwisely change something that friends have going in the proper direction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A partnership arrangement will fizzle today unless you and your associate are in complete accord. Discuss your differences before making a move.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're apt to be quite lucky today in your commercial affairs, but things might not be equally as rosy where your social interests are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your good judgment and common sense will tell you how to handle a delicate issue today. Don't ignore them and chart an unknown course.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things will work out as you hope if you proceed with your present line of action. Problems could develop if you begin making changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) People who are performing work or service for you today must be handled tactfully. If you get too bossy, the quality of what they produce will fall.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial conditions may be a mixed bag for you today. You have the potential to add to your resources as well as to drain them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions in general appear favorable for your today, provided you don't have to deal with an arrogant associate who always leaves trouble in his wake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might get involved in something today that will be a bargain in one sense, yet could be costly in a way not immediately obvious.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're socializing with friends today, let go and enjoy yourself. But don't overindulge your wallet or tummy.

Satellite hookups are used

DALLAS — With 17 million people in 254 counties spread across 275,416 square miles, the state of Texas proves a challenge for politicians.

Some of them are using satellite hookups and telephone conference calls in an effort to overcome the obstacles to campaigning.

Gov. Mark White, former Gov. Bill Clements and Attorney General Jim Mattox already have used satellite hookups to far-flung television stations to beam their announcements and news conferences across the state. All three plan more such arrangements.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro arranged for 21 TV stations to take a satellite "feed" from a news conference Thursday announcing his settlement of an oil lease dispute.

Mauro's campaign manager, Billy Rogers, said Mauro plans to use the satellite two or three more times before May 3 to "give him some more visibility," even though he's unopposed in the primary.

"Television stations are using satellite feeds just like a press release or a wire story," said Kevin Kennedy, who is helping several candidates with their high-tech campaigns.

"But instead of just ripping the wires and reading the story, this is something live and fresh," Kennedy said.

Miguel Reygadas is one of the most highly regarded players in Mexico. Watch how, as the West defender in today's deal, Miguel created an alternative in the play for the declarer, causing him to be set in a contract that would normally be made.

The bidding requires some explanation. North-South were using a one notrump response to a major-suit opening bid as forcing, a response used to describe a wide variety of hands. When South rebid two hearts, promising a six-card suit, North went right to game in hearts, figuring that there was no scientific way to precisely evaluate his minor suit values plus singleton spade.

Reygadas led his singleton club. Declarer won the club queen in dummy and played a low diamond, won by West's ace. Now came a low spade to East's ace, and East returned a club. Miguel ruffed and played back a diamond. Declarer won in dummy and cashed another high diamond, throwing two spades from his hand, and then led dummy's 10 of hearts. When East played low, South put in the queen, and what card did Miguel Reygadas smoothly play on that heart queen? Of course — the jack! If you now place yourself in the position of hapless South, would you not assume that the heart king was still guarded in East's hand? That was declarer's view, and he promptly played a club to get back to dummy's ace so he could take another heart finesse. Just as promptly, Reygadas took the setting trick with the lowly four of hearts. Ole, Miguel!

Hermleigh News

By Adala Drennan

Rev. and Mrs. Jim Townsend were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. O.W. Richburg on March 17.

On March 8, Clara Hoskins accompanied H.B. and Mary Lewis, her brother and sister-in-law of Levelland, to Tallahassee, Fla. to attend the wedding of their son, Curtis Lee Lewis, to Libby Clevenger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ted Clevenger of Tallahassee, Fla. The wedding was officiated by George Reynolds III, brother-in-law and county judge. It was held at the Country Club.

The Lewis' and Clara Hoskins visited their sister, Eunice and John Graham at Zavalla, on their way home. They arrived home on March 22 and left immediately for Vealmore to attend the 25th wedding anniversary of their brother and sister-in-law, Clint and Billy Lewis. Attending were Mrs. Roy Lewis and daughter, Ramona, of Lubbock; Mrs. Tommy Hillard of Denver City; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burleson of Kermit; and Marie Calvert and son, Carol, of Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Richburg of Sweetwater, visited the O.W. Richburgs on March 21.

Mary Frances Walker of Los Angeles, and her sister Lois Marie Prenos of Oxnard, Calif., have returned home after being with their mother, Mary McElhaney Close of Hemet, Calif. She is a patient in Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder. Mrs. Close is a guest of Effie Wright and Ruth Davis. She fell in front of the post office, breaking her shoulder, wrist, leg and ankle, all on the left side. She is a former resident of Hermleigh, during the 20's.

Tonnie Richburg of Sweetwater, daughter of Quaid and Rosa Nell Richburg, spent the weekend with her grandparents, Herman and Marlene Richburg, and great-grandmother, Carrie Lou McQuaid.

Matt and Renea Jackson of Amarillo, visited their father, the Joe Jacksons and their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O.B. Jackson, from March 16-23.

Visitors of the Monday Quilting Club on March 24, were Pat Cornett of Snyder; Amanda and Tamara Liner of El Paso; Donnie and Christie Lloyd of Balch Springs; Bertie Mae Herrley and Eva Brackeen.

Those visiting with the O.W. Richburgs on March 24 were Mr. and Mrs. C.V. Potts of Friona and Mrs. LaVon Bridges of Hamlin.

Jerry and Martha Chitsey of Wall (near San Angelo), spent March 23 with his mother, Ida Chitsey.

Mrs. Jay (Resa) Farnsworth and daughter, Shanna Lynn of Abilene, visited her father, the Eddie McHaneys, from March 22-25.

Recent visitors of Opal and H.M. Lomax were his brothers Howard Lomax and Vi Wright of Abilene; Pete and Dorthy Lomax of Rotan; Sara and Robert Lomax of Ira; David Verdine of Lubbock; V.W. Pruitt and Blanch Arnold of Snyder; and Burl Perry of Ira. Great-granddaughter, Mandy Mitchell of Colorado City, also visited. Local visitors were Frank Nachlinger, Winnie Richburg, Merle Glass, and grandchildren, Clyde and Carla Verdine and Benn Nachlinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Groves of Houston were visitors of his mother, Ota Groves.

Weekend guests of the H.M. Lomaxs were his brothers, Pete and Dorthy of Rotan; Robert and Sara of Ira; a niece and family, Rev. and Mrs. Michael Wallernburn of Klamath Falls, Oreg.; and Bob Clanton of Fairbanks, Alaska. Local visitors were Alta McMillan, Rodney, Janice, Darrell and Mary Neal Mayo, Eula Farr, B.W. Garrett, Jerry Deshazo, Rev. Claude Nixon, Clyde and Carla Verdine and Jean Sharp.

Recent guests of Ida Chitsey were granddaughter, Lesa Fuller and son, Matthew of Big Spring; Douglas Chitsey and family of Colorado City; and Ruby Epperson of Loraine.

Weekend guests of Carla and Clyde Verdine were his brother, David and June Verdine and sons of Lubbock; his mother, Mr. and Mrs. Haney of May; his grandmother, Mrs. Dora Crenshaw and his uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Wallis Crenshaw of Beaumont.

Correction of Hermleigh News, printed on March 26, Merle and Mable Glass of Hermleigh went to Lubbock. They are not from Lubbock. Women's news editor sends an apology for this mistake.

THE SILENT KILLER

WEST POINT, Pa. (AP) — High blood pressure is often called the "silent killer" because the disease — which can lead to strokes and heart attacks — usually has no symptoms.

An estimated 60 million Americans have high blood pressure, but nearly one half of them don't know it, according to Merck Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories. What is even worse, says Merck, is that, of those people being treated for the disease, about one half of them stop taking their medication regularly, often because of unpleasant side effects and inconvenient dosing.

A new class of anti-high blood pressure drugs, called ACE inhibitors, has been developed, doctors say, which are well tolerated and don't typically cause some troublesome and common side effects.

VISIT TEXAS — Janet Brown of Snyder Travel was the speaker before Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association on March 27. Brown's topic was "Visit Texas." (Club Photograph)

ABWA topic 'Visit Texas'

The Scurry Charter Chapter of the America Business Women's Association held its regular monthly meeting on March 27 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Ruby Deavers as hostess.

President Judy Bynum called the meeting to order. Sharon McCarty led the 25 members in the invocation.

Janet Brown, representing Snyder Travel, presented the program on "Visit Texas." Brown told of the wagon train ride that left Sulphur Springs. The train has 48 wagons and is scheduled to reach Fort Worth on July 4. The train will travel 2800 miles in six months.

The state fair will be 100-years-old this year. It is to be held Sept. 26-Oct.26. Texas is big and lots of pretty things to see. Brown encourages everyone to try to see it this year.

Faye Layne, employed by Everybody's for 10 years, gave the vocational portion of the meeting. Layne said there are 17 employees at Everbody's. She invites everyone to check the prices there. Layne stocks, checks and orders for the store.

Bynum informed the members of scheduled upcoming events which are the regional meeting to be held in Lubbock on April 4-6, a style show by Margaret's is slated for April 19, and White Buffalo Days is scheduld for Oct. 11-12.

Deavers announced the names for the woman of the year. Included were Deborah Rodgers, Myra Martin and Judy Bynum. The chapter voted Judy Bynum as woman of the year.

Sharla Williamson led the benediction.

FLY AND DRIVE

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Although about 70 percent of the adult population of the United States has now taken at least one flight in a plane, only about 18 percent has ever rented an automobile.

These figures are up from the 60 percent of the population who had flown and the 13 percent who had rented a car only two years ago, according to National Car Rental.

Effects of bypass surgery

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I underwent quadruple-bypass heart surgery six months ago. A vein was removed from my leg; I don't think it's healing properly. My ankle remains excessively swollen, and the inside of the leg is leathery and almost without feeling from ankle to knee. Is this normal?

DEAR READER — The symptoms you describe are quite common following coronary bypass surgery. When the vein from your leg was removed to make the bypass, small nerves to the skin were destroyed. Also, it takes months for the leg to adapt to the change in venous circulation caused by removal of a major vein.

Check with your doctor to make sure no infection is present, but if the leg wound is healing well, your symptoms should improve with time. Your leg may never return completely to normal, but that is a small price to pay for knowing that the vein is being put to a more important use: supplying blood and oxygen to heart muscle.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I took hydralazine (50 mg.) for five years and had a positive lupus test. My doctor said the drug sometimes induces lupus, and he put me on Darvocet. Is there any other medication that will help eliminate the lupus from my system?

DEAR READER — Although it is a useful drug for treatment of hypertension, hydralazine is reported to cause a condition resembling lupus (rash, fever, joint pains and positive lupus blood test) in some patients. Once the drug is discontinued, the lupus-like syndrome usually diminishes. However, in rare cases, the symptoms persist and doctors have to consider using cortisone to treat the ailment.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had five babies, from 8 to 10 pounds. Does this cause a woman's vagina to be large? How can this be corrected?

DEAR READER — Repeated births of large babies can stretch the vagina to a point where the tissues do not return to their original size. The situation can often be corrected through exercises, like Kegel exercises, which strengthen the pelvic floor and vaginal muscles. Surgery is also an option if the vaginal tone has deteriorated to the extent that exercise alone does not help. Discuss treatment options with your gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am in my seventh month of pregnancy and have constant stomach pain and regurgitation. I don't eat spicy or greasy foods. My gynecologist says it's the baby pushing on the stomach wall. Is that right?

DEAR READER — Probably, yes. At this stage in your pregnancy, there is very little room in the abdominal cavity. As the baby grows, something has to give to make room for it. During the last part of pregnancy, before the baby drops deep into the pelvic area, a woman's stomach may be pushed and displaced by the developing fetus. Heartburn, discomfort and regurgitation may result.

Once you have given birth, the abdominal organs will return to their natural position and your symptoms will disappear. In the meantime, you might try cutting down or avoiding other foods that may be making your problem worse, such as yeast products (bread), caffeine and eggs. Try eating smaller, more frequent meals. And, as elementary as this sounds, make sure that your clothing (especially undergarments) is not constricting.

What is HYPOGLYCEMIA and how is it treated? You can find out in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on HYPOGLYCEMIA.

Hospital's fate up to voters

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A Palestine insurance agent said an election here Saturday presents Anderson County with "a good opportunity" to get out of the hospital business, but retired banker John Cumby considers it "a giveaway" for the county to sell its hospital to a private company.

Voters will decide whether to keep county-owned Anderson County Memorial — the only hospital in the county — or to sell the facility to Safecare Health Services Inc., which has promised to build a new hospital.

"It's such an emotionally charged issue here you can't believe it," said Dr. Glen Goldsmith, vice chief of staff at Anderson County Memorial.

Safecare, a for-profit hospital company, has said it plans to build a new hospital regardless of whether voters approve the sale. The company has offered Anderson County $4.1 million for its hospital and has pledged to move it into a new $16 million building within two years.

"We feel like they made a darn good proposal. This is a good opportunity for the county to get out of the hospital business," said Palestine insurance agent R.L. Kenderdine, leader of a group pushing the sale.

John Cumby, a retired Dallas banker now living in Anderson County and leader of the opposition, calls the proposal "a giveaway" and contends Safecare is taking advantage of a new state government policy to muscle its way into Anderson County.

"This is sort of a test case for public hospitals all over Texas," he said.

Cumby said the county hospital is solid financially. Safecare is trying to get the hospital's assets at clearance-sale prices, he said.

Cumby said he considers Safecare's offer intimidation.

"Their threat is that if we don't sell it to them they will move in here anyway and build a hospital on top of ours. Some say they are bluffing. Some say they would do it," he told The Dallas Morning News.

David Hall, executive vice president of Seattle-based Safecare Health Services, said his company is not bluffing.

"We've already got a site that we have purchased an option on. Our architect is in Palestine this week working out the zoning and things of that nature," Hall said.

Anderson County Judge Edward A. Copeland said that if the sale is rejected by the county's 42,000 residents, he is certain the 35-year-old county hospital could not compete with a new facility.

"I don't see how it could. I don't believe the county can support two hospitals," he said.

Most doctors in Anderson County have publicly supported the sale. Of the 35 doctors accredited to practice at the county hospital, 34 signed a newspaper advertisement urging voters to approve the sale.

"We as the medical staff feel strongly that we need a new hospital in Anderson County," Goldsmith said. "We think we can offer a broader range of medical services and care."

Until August 1985, hospitals had to obtain a "certificate of need" from the state Health Facilities Commission. But that panel and the certificate law were abolished by the Legislature, freeing hospital corporations to build wherever they see a potential for profit.

Besides being the culmination of a seven-year controversy in the East Texas county, the vote could have an impact on public hospitals statewide.

A similar proposal to sell the hospital to another private company failed in 1983, four years after the idea was first presented.

Dora McDonald of Austin, a former member of the defunct Health Facilities Commission, said the case may set the course for the future.

Jury selection begins in trial of alleged killer of minister

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — A second man goes on trial this week for the 1984 brutal slaying of a minister from the little town of Dublin.

Dale Arthur Carrasquillo, 25, of Massachusetts faces charges of capital murder in the strangulation death of the Rev. John Basham, 55, who was pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Dublin, about 60 miles southwest of here.

Jury selection was scheduled to begin today.

Robert Purtell, 27, was convicted last year and sentenced to death for the Feb. 7, 1984 killing.

Purtell's trial was in Palo Pinto, 30 miles west of Weatherford, but Carrasquillo's trial was moved on a change of venue. More than 250 prospective jurors have been summoned, according to state district court clerk Lana Tibbits.

Basham's wife, JoAnn, said her husband left Dublin on Feb. 6, 1984 for a conference of ministers in Dallas. She reported him missing on Feb. 8 after not hearing from him and learning that he never appeared at the meeting.

His battered body was found on Feb. 9 in his van, parked along Interstate 20, near Gordon, 70 miles west of Fort Worth and 35 miles north of Dublin.

Purtell testified during his trial that he and Carrasquillo met Basham at a bar in Dallas, went for a ride with him, then fought him when the minister made sexual advances toward them.

Authorities said Basham died from strangulation, apparently from a towel found wrapped around his neck. The minister also had been stabbed with a pen knife and hit over the head with a portable television set, investigators said.

At first, Purtell testified that Basham was beaten but still alive when he and Carrasquillo left him in the van. But he later changed his testimony and said Bashman was dead when they left.

Carrasquillo and Purtell were arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., about a month after the slaying when they bragged to an undercover police officer that they had killed a minister, investigators said.

Basham was found guilty in the mid-1970s of drug possession and soliciting prostitution in Dallas, convictions that apparently never became known to his congregation until after his slaying.

England's parliament met for the first time in 1265.

Airport security said being tightened

LONDON (AP) — Libya's call for attacks on Americans following the armed conflict in the Gulf of Sidra has prompted an increase in security at airports in Paris and Zurich.

In other major European cities, precautions remain at already high levels in the aftermath of the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports in which 20 people, including five Americans, died.

The Italian news agency ANSA said security was increased on the perimeter of the Comiso base in Sicily, where U.S.-made cruise nuclear missiles are deployed under a NATO agreement.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy frequently has assailed Italy for accepting the missiles and has threatened to attack NATO bases in Italy if provoked.

Libya fired missiles at American aircraft participating in maneuvers off Libya a week ago, and U.S. officials say the United States retaliated by sinking three Libyan patrol boats and attacking a shore installation.

Last Wednesday, Libya, which claims the gulf as its territory, called on Arabs to form suicide squads and become "human bombs" to strike back at American embassies and interests everywhere.

The same day, armed police at London's Heathrow Airport closely watched the arrival of a Libyan airliner, and the British government said unspecified measures were being taken to protect U.S. installations in Britain as well as British embassies abroad.

In Zurich, a police official said Saturday that Kloten airport authorities were "forced to strengthen security measures" for the Easter holiday because of the current "political situation."

At Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, the police presence is already heavy, spot searches are made and roadblocks go up from time to time on the highway to the airport.

Since terrorists struck Schwechat Airport in Vienna, at almost the same time as the Rome attack, there have been more police — in and out of uniform — two new metal detectors and spot searches of cars and passengers.

West German security officials at Frankfurt, like those at other airports, refuse to discuss details of their precautions lest terrorists find ways to evade them.

Security was increased after a bomb killed three people at Frankfurt last June. The sprawling airport is patrolled by police with automatic weapons and dogs trained to sniff out explosives, and the passengers and luggage are checked with metal detectors.

Tragic deaths mar family's joy when son rejoins them

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Thuc Van Vu and his wife, Bong Doan, said it was the happiest day of their life, a family friend recalled.

That was last September when their son, Nguyen, 23, rejoined them in the United States.

But a decade had passed since Nguyen's father and stepmother escaped with their other four small children from Vietnam during the fall of Saigon.

Today Thuc Van Vu and his wife are dead, and their son, Nguyen, is in jail charged with their murders.

On March 20, Thuc, 47, and his wife, 41, were shot to death at their three-bedroom home they had paid off in February, several years before the mortgage was due.

In Texarkana, the family's life and times was a story of hard-won success in a foreign land with a radically different culture. Thuc and his wife worked seven days a week to buy the house and raised five honor roll students who became favorites with their peers.

But during their pursuit of the American dream and their bureaucratic battles to bring to this country the son that had been left behind, Nguyen was growing up.

At age 12, he had been staying with an uncle when his family made its hurried departure, and there was no time to get him before the escape from Saigon.

Once Nguyen did arrive here, friends said he wasn't as comfortable with the United States as the rest of the family.

He found himself equipped with only a few English phrases in a town where the Vietnamese population had dwindled to only about 75, with a family he barely remembered.

He could barely communicate with his youngest sister, Kim, who knows virtually no Vietnamese.

If troubles were brewing between Thuc Van Vu and his newly arrived son, however, they were not apparent to people in the community, friends and neighbors said.

Those who knew the family described Thuc as a hard and tireless worker who had pride in the academic successes of his children, all of whom were enrolled in honors programs in school.

DEAR READER — Repeated births of large babies can stretch the vagina to a point where the tissues do not return to their original size. The situation can often be corrected through exercises, like Kegel exercises, which strengthen the pelvic floor and vaginal muscles. Surgery is also an option if the vaginal tone has deteriorated to the extent that exercise alone does not help. Discuss treatment options with your gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am in my seventh month of pregnancy and have constant stomach pain and regurgitation. I don't eat spicy or greasy foods. My gynecologist says it's the baby pushing on the stomach wall. Is that right?

DEAR READER — Probably, yes. At this stage in your pregnancy, there is very little room in the abdominal cavity. As the baby grows, something has to give to make room for it. During the last part of pregnancy, before the baby drops deep into the pelvic area, a woman's stomach may be pushed and displaced by the developing fetus. Heartburn, discomfort and regurgitation may result.

Once you have given birth, the abdominal organs will return to their natural position and your symptoms will disappear. In the meantime, you might try cutting down or avoiding other foods that may be making your problem worse, such as yeast products (bread), caffeine and eggs. Try eating smaller, more frequent meals. And, as elementary as this sounds, make sure that your clothing (especially undergarments) is not constricting.

What is HYPOGLYCEMIA and how is it treated? You can find out in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on HYPOGLYCEMIA.

Hospital's fate up to voters

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — A Palestine insurance agent said an election here Saturday presents Anderson County with "a good opportunity" to get out of the hospital business, but retired banker John Cumby considers it "a giveaway" for the county to sell its hospital to a private company.

Voters will decide whether to keep county-owned Anderson County Memorial — the only hospital in the county — or to sell the facility to Safecare Health Services Inc., which has promised to build a new hospital.

"It's such an emotionally charged issue here you can't believe it," said Dr. Glen Goldsmith, vice chief of staff at Anderson County Memorial.

Safecare, a for-profit hospital company, has said it plans to build a new hospital regardless of whether voters approve the sale. The company has offered Anderson County $4.1 million for its hospital and has pledged to move it into a new $16 million building within two years.

"We feel like they made a darn good proposal. This is a good opportunity for the county to get out of the hospital business," said Palestine insurance agent R.L. Kenderdine, leader of a group pushing the sale.

John Cumby, a retired Dallas banker now living in Anderson County and leader of the opposition, calls the proposal "a giveaway" and contends Safecare is taking advantage of a new state government policy to muscle its way into Anderson County.

"This is sort of a test case for public hospitals all over Texas," he said.

Cumby said the county hospital is solid financially. Safecare is trying to get the hospital's assets at clearance-sale prices, he said.

Cumby said he considers Safecare's offer intimidation.

"Their threat is that if we don't sell it to them they will move in here anyway and build a hospital on top of ours. Some say they are bluffing. Some say they would do it," he told The Dallas Morning News.

David Hall, executive vice president of Seattle-based Safecare Health Services, said his company is not bluffing.

"We've already got a site that we have purchased an option on. Our architect is in Palestine this week working out the zoning and things of that nature," Hall said.

Anderson County Judge Edward A. Copeland said that if the sale is rejected by the county's 42,000 residents, he is certain the 35-year-old county hospital could not compete with a new facility.

"I don't see how it could. I don't believe the county can support two hospitals," he said.

Most doctors in Anderson County have publicly supported the sale. Of the 35 doctors accredited to practice at the county hospital, 34 signed a newspaper advertisement urging voters to approve the sale.

"We as the medical staff feel strongly that we need a new hospital in Anderson County," Goldsmith said. "We think we can offer a broader range of medical services and care."

Until August 1985, hospitals had to obtain a "certificate of need" from the state Health Facilities Commission. But that panel and the certificate law were abolished by the Legislature, freeing hospital corporations to build wherever they see a potential for profit.

Besides being the culmination of a seven-year controversy in the East Texas county, the vote could have an impact on public hospitals statewide.

A similar proposal to sell the hospital to another private company failed in 1983, four years after the idea was first presented.

Dora McDonald of Austin, a former member of the defunct Health Facilities Commission, said the case may set the course for the future.

Jury selection begins in trial of alleged killer of minister

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — A second man goes on trial this week for the 1984 brutal slaying of a minister from the little town of Dublin.

Dale Arthur Carrasquillo, 25, of Massachusetts faces charges of capital murder in the strangulation death of the Rev. John Basham, 55, who was pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Dublin, about 60 miles southwest of here.

Jury selection was scheduled to begin today.

Robert Purtell, 27, was convicted last year and sentenced to death for the Feb. 7, 1984 killing.

Purtell's trial was in Palo Pinto, 30 miles west of Weatherford, but Carrasquillo's trial was moved on a change of venue. More than 250 prospective jurors have been summoned, according to state district court clerk Lana Tibbits.

Basham's wife, JoAnn, said her husband left Dublin on Feb. 6, 1984 for a conference of ministers in Dallas. She reported him missing on Feb. 8 after not hearing from him and learning that he never appeared at the meeting.

His battered body was found on Feb. 9 in his van, parked along Interstate 20, near Gordon, 70 miles west of Fort Worth and 35 miles north of Dublin.

Purtell testified during his trial that he and Carrasquillo met Basham at a bar in Dallas, went for a ride with him, then fought him when the minister made sexual advances toward them.

Authorities said Basham died from strangulation, apparently from a towel found wrapped around his neck. The minister also had been stabbed with a pen knife and hit over the head with a portable television set, investigators said.

At first, Purtell testified that Basham was beaten but still alive when he and Carrasquillo left him in the van. But he later changed his testimony and said Bashman was dead when they left.

Carrasquillo and Purtell were arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., about a month after the slaying when they bragged to an undercover police officer that they had killed a minister, investigators said.

Basham was found guilty in the mid-1970s of drug possession and soliciting prostitution in Dallas, convictions that apparently never became known to his congregation until after his slaying.

England's parliament met for the first time in 1265.

Airport security said being tightened

LONDON (AP) — Libya's call for attacks on Americans following the armed conflict in the Gulf of Sidra has prompted an increase in security at airports in Paris and Zurich.

In other major European cities, precautions remain at already high levels in the aftermath of the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports in which 20 people, including five Americans, died.

The Italian news agency ANSA said security was increased on the perimeter of the Comiso base in Sicily, where U.S.-made cruise nuclear missiles are deployed under a NATO agreement.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy frequently has assailed Italy for accepting the missiles and has threatened to attack NATO bases in Italy if provoked.

Libya fired missiles at American aircraft participating in maneuvers off Libya a week ago, and U.S. officials say the United States retaliated by sinking three Libyan patrol boats and attacking a shore installation.

Last Wednesday, Libya, which claims the gulf as its territory, called on Arabs to form suicide squads and become "human bombs" to strike back at American embassies and interests everywhere.

The same day, armed police at London's Heathrow Airport closely watched the arrival of a Libyan airliner, and the British government said unspecified measures were being taken to protect U.S. installations in Britain as well as British embassies abroad.

In Zurich, a police official said Saturday that Kloten airport authorities were "forced to strengthen security measures" for the Easter holiday because of the current "political situation."

At Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, the police presence is already heavy, spot searches are made and roadblocks go up from time to time on the highway to the airport.

Since terrorists struck Schwechat Airport in Vienna, at almost the same time as the Rome attack, there have been more police — in and out of uniform — two new metal detectors and spot searches of cars and passengers.

West German security officials at Frankfurt, like those at other airports, refuse to discuss details of their precautions lest terrorists find ways to evade them.

Security was increased after a bomb killed three people at Frankfurt last June. The sprawling airport is patrolled by police with automatic weapons and dogs trained to sniff out explosives, and the passengers and luggage are checked with metal detectors.

Tragic deaths mar family's joy when son rejoins them

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Thuc Van Vu and his wife, Bong Doan, said it was the happiest day of their life, a family friend recalled.

That was last September when their son, Nguyen, 23, rejoined them in the United States.

But a decade had passed since Nguyen's father and stepmother escaped with their other four small children from Vietnam during the fall of Saigon.

Today Thuc Van Vu and his wife are dead, and their son, Nguyen, is in jail charged with their murders.

On March 20, Thuc, 47, and his wife, 41, were shot to death at their three-bedroom home they had paid off in February, several years before the mortgage was due.

In Texarkana, the family's life and times was a story of hard-won success in a foreign land with a radically different culture. Thuc and his wife worked seven days a week to buy the house and raised five honor roll students who became favorites with their peers.

But during their pursuit of the American dream and their bureaucratic battles to bring to this country the son that had been left behind, Nguyen was growing up.

At age 12, he had been staying with an uncle when his family made its hurried departure, and there was no time to get him before the escape from Saigon.

Once Nguyen did arrive here, friends said he wasn't as comfortable with the United States as the rest of the family.

He found himself equipped with only a few English phrases in a town where the Vietnamese population had dwindled to only about 75, with a family he barely remembered.

He could barely communicate with his youngest sister, Kim, who knows virtually no Vietnamese.

If troubles were brewing between Thuc Van Vu and his newly arrived son, however, they were not apparent to people in the community, friends and neighbors said.

Those who knew the family described Thuc as a hard and tireless worker who had pride in the academic successes of his children, all of whom were enrolled in honors programs in school.

Man's dream house lives on

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — When Houston oilman O.R. Seagraves bought his "Hill Country heaven" in west Kerr County in 1929, he envisioned a retreat as compatible with the environment as it was luxurious.

Financial difficulities befell Seagraves before he completed his dream — the Depression wiped out most of his fortune.

Fellow oilman Daniel J. Moran purchased Seagraves' nearly 7,000-acre haven in 1936. He liked Seagraves' ideas and was determined that the unfortunate oilman's dream come true.

Today that dream is called Mo-Ranch.

When Seagraves began his venture, there were no paved roads to the estate.

Not to be frustrated, Seagraves often used boats to carry men and materials on the Guadalupe River during initial construction.

One of the first buildings on the ranch was a large native limestone house that Seagraves designed.

The house rests on a hill overlooking the Guadalupe's north fork headwaters 23 miles west of Kerrville.

The palatial residence boasted an expansive Mexican tile roof, lathed native cedar walls plastered to a polished smoothness, hardwood cedar floors, and unusual arched passageways leading to 11 rooms downstairs and five upstairs.

Upstairs featured a four-room master suite. Other luxuries are four downstairs fireplaces and one upstairs in the master suite.

On the ranch, crews dammed the river and built docks on the riverbanks below the house.

When Moran purchased the property, the young Houstonian continued building on the property for 11 more years.

Illness forced him to cease construction in 1947. But in little more than a decade, Moran transformed thousands of cedar trees and miles of oilfield pipe into an impressive estate covering several acres.

Use of native limestone and oilfield pipe reflected Moran's penchant for employing available materials. Limestone is abundant in the Hill Country and oilfield pipe was easy to acquire since Moran was president of Continental Oil Company (Conoco).

Moran wanted a self-contained retreat, so a generating plant, distribution system and an ice plant were built. A large swimming pool was added next to his spacious home in 1938. It was inlaid with more than two million, handset tiles. Tiny colored mosaic squares spell MO-RANCH across the front of the pool.

A larger tile inset by the diving board features a hand-painted caricature of Moran in serape and sombrero strumming a guitar. Pool-side lights spell MO-RANCH. The lighting system was triggered by a unique cam operation that predates computerized light controls.

Moran later built a movie theater to entertain the ranch's many guests. Taking his hospitality a step further, he later added a roller skating rink.

Large columns in the rink supporting the ceiling at first look like massive cedar posts. A closer look reveals that they're actually oilfield pipes tempered and curved, then painted to resemble natural cedar wood, even down to the knotholes and cracks.

In 1941, Moran continued adding to the estate. Next came a tiny stone chapel, its custom-designed stained-glass windows imported from Germany. The chapel's ceiling was supported by massive cedar beams and again oilfield pipe was arched and painted to look like cedar posts.

Roman Catholic priests from St. Thomas School in Houston came to the ranch and conducted services for the family.

In later years, Moran built a guest house that he turned into a boy's camp that was run by priests.

Feeling for land inspires Tarrant Co. realtor

KELLER, Texas (AP) — "Mrs. A.T. Armstrong," the card said, "Real Estate — Keller acreage."

Ila Armstrong will be 90 in July. Last year she made acres of money selling rural land, wheeling and dealing with moguls such as Ross Perot, moguls who may have finished second-best in their negotiations.

"Well, I'm ready to sell," Mrs. Armstrong said briskly into her telephone. "It's the only unimproved tract in there, $25,000 an acre, and I'll carry the note. It's a 10-year payoff at 12 percent, that's my standard."

With a regal smile she hung up.

"The land is going to develop," Mrs. Armstrong said. "We can't stop it. All powers can't stop it. But it's not quite ripe yet."

Mrs. Armstrong's roots run deep in Tarrant County's soil, where she has lived, farmed and sold land since 1900.

She is a charter member of the Keller Garden Club, a board member of the North Fort Worth Woman's Club and a pillar of the North Fort Worth Baptist Church.

The hand balancing the tea cup is smooth and soft. She is a small but erect woman, seemingly undamaged by the hard years of running the farm.

"Well, I never plowed, but I knew a lot about tractors," Mrs. Armstrong said.

Today, Mrs. Armstrong whizzes around Tarrant County selling real estate, tending to civic and charitable projects, catching up on church work and planning a visit to Alaska next summer.

The independent Realtor runs her real estate business out of a small home office where filing cabinets are stuffed with 30 years of yellowing contracts and land deeds. A detailed map of Tarrant County hangs behind her kitchen door.

Tarrant County Board of Realtors doesn't keep records on the age of their members, but Carolyn Keen, board president, said she didn't know of any active member older than Mrs. Armstrong, who has customers she has dealt with for three decades.

From the front porch of her white frame house, the wide sweep of land rolls out to the winter's desolate horizon in great gray swales. This is the land she once farmed.

"I have lived through a hard part of history," she said.

Born in 1896 and a Tarrant County resident since 1900, Mrs. Armstrong today is a vital part of Keller's blooming real estate market. She relishes walking tracts of acreage, and residents of Tarrant, Denton and Wise counties might see her striding over the lots she buys and sells.

"The growth here is unbelievable," Mrs. Armstrong said. "Unbelievable, unbelievable. Jobs, weather, the airport, they all brought people down, but the people wanted to come."

When Mrs. Armstrong's husband died in 1943, she put on jeans and a jumper and took over the family farm in rural Tarrant County west of Keller.

She sold part of the land to pay off the Farmer's Home Administration loan and bought the remaining property outright.

Her farming methods were ahead of the times. She had the farm plowed in contours to prevent erosion and planted crops to improve the land.

"The neighbors thought I'd lost every brain," she said. "I spent a lot of money in those days trying to plant soil-building crops, like peas and clover. But I made a failure of it."

Some failure. She put five children through college with the proceeds. She would return to farming today if she had a chance. One small, picturesque farm in rural Roanoke appealed to her. Unsuccessfully, she tried to forge a deal with the farm's owner.

"I liked his style," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong leafed through her family photographs, unfolding 90 years of Texas history on her dining room table.

Shultz tells Soviets...

Private, not public, diplomacy needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz has notified the Soviet Union that only private diplomacy — not public proposals for summit meetings — will break the stalemate in U.S.-Soviet arms control talks.

"Until that happens, we're not going to get anywhere," Shultz said after the administration rejected a proposal by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to meet with President Reagan in Europe and negotiate a ban on all nuclear weapons tests.

As he returned home Sunday from a 10-day trip to France, Turkey, Greece and Italy, Shultz complained that U.S. and Soviet proposals on weapons reductions had been aired publicly. He said he wanted "to get somewhere in our relations with the Soviets where we're able to have some discussions that are relatively quiet and direct."

Shultz told reporters that private diplomacy produced the "fireside summit" Reagan and Gorbachev held in the Swiss city last November. There, they agreed to a "new start" in trying to curb the nuclear weapons race and in dealing with U.S.-Soviet disputes.

But, Shultz said, "It's probably a measure of the lack of progress recently that all the actions are through press statements, publicly rather than privately."

When Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the former Soviet ambassador to the United States, returns to Washington in mid-April after meetings in Moscow, there may be discussion of ideas to get the private dialogue restarted, Shultz said.

The Soviets have not responded to Reagan's invitiation to hold this year's summit meeting in late June or late July. Gorbachev's proposal for a meeting in Europe to ban further weapons tests is considered separate from the Geneva commitment to meet here in 1986 and in Moscow in 1987.

In the meantime, the president is considering recommendations from advisers that he permit the U.S. missile total to exceed the limits set by the 1979 unratified U.S.-Soviet SALT II treaty or accelerate new weapons programs.

With negotiations for new accords at a standstill, Reagan is being urged to consider these steps in response to allegations the Soviets are violating a number of arms control agreements with the United States.

Gorbachev, in a 20-minute televised speech on Saturday, offered to meet Reagan as soon as possible in a European capital to negotiate a nuclear test ban. Otherwise, he warned, the Soviet Union would end its seven-month moratorium.

Reagan quickly rejected Gorbachev's proposal because, he said in a statement, a superpower meeting should deal with the "entire range" of U.S.-Soviet relations.

He called on the Soviet leader to respond to his invitation to send Soviet monitors to the U.S. test site in Nevada where they could verify with new technology that the blasts were within the 150-kiloton limit set in an unratified 1974 US-Soviet treaty.

The United States resumed underground test explosions March 22 and is making preparations for additional tests. Kenneth L. Adelman, the U.S. arms control director, said last Thursday they were necessary to maintain the safety and reliability of U.S. nuclear weapons.

Study shows minors avoid law by crossing state line

BOSTON (AP) — Women who want abortions will get them no matter what legal restrictions exist, say two experts who studied the impact of laws requiring minors to get their parents' approval for abortions.

Their report found that after one of these laws was put in force in Massachusetts, girls went to neighboring states for abortions, and there was no significant drop in the number of youngsters ending their pregnancies.

"Whenever a society puts up obstacles, women find ways around them," said Judith A. Gorbach, director of adolescent health services in the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. "In this case, we've been lucky that youngsters have found other states with legal facilities."

She commented on a study conducted by Drs. Virginia G. Cartoof of Boston University and Lorraine V. Klerman of Yale, published in the April issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

Their analysis concludes that the law, which went into effect in 1981, had little effect. "Massachusetts minors continue to conceive, abort and give birth in the same proportions as before the law was implemented," they wrote.

Laws in four other states also require the approval of parents before minors may get abortions, while in five states, parents must be notified of planned abortions.

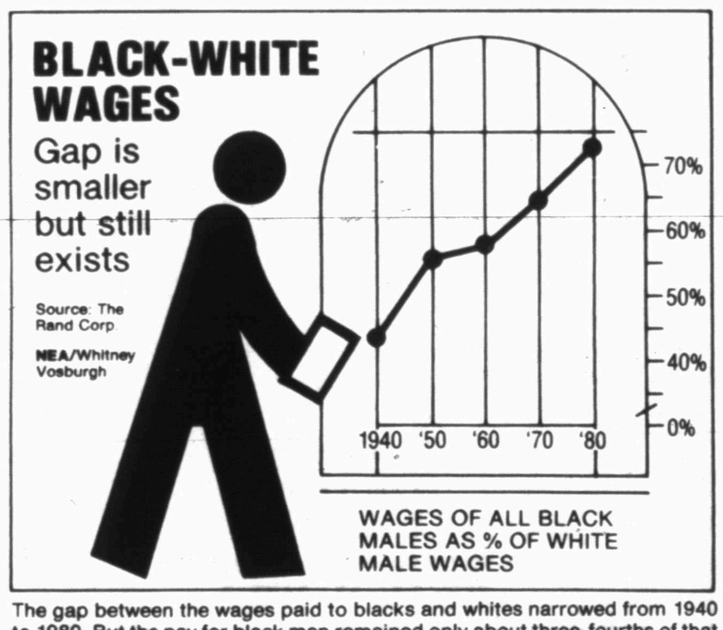
"I suspect that most women, of whatever age, will find a way to have an abortion, as they have historically, if that's their choice," Cartoof said in an interview. "I don't think that these laws, for the most part, will inhibit minor women from getting abortions if that's indeed what they want to do."

The Massachusetts law requires unmarried girls under age 18 to have the consent of both parents or of a superior court judge before having an abortion.

During the 45 months before the Massachusetts law took effect, an average of 412 minors had abortions each month in Massachusetts. But during the following 20 months, that fell to 226 a month — a 43 percent decline.

However, after the law, an average of 94 Massachusetts minors obtained abortions each month in the bordering states of New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maine and New York, up from just seven a month before the law.

The study estimated that 50 to 100 more babies were born to minors in Massachusetts in 198[illegible] than would have been expected.



The gap between the wages paid to blacks and whites narrowed from 1940 to 1980. But the pay for black men remained only about three-fourths of that for white men.

NCAA championship tonight...

Louisville, Duke promise defensive battle

DALLAS (AP) - Big D won't stand for Dallas tonight.

Big D will be for the stubborn, unrelenting defenses used by the Louisville Cardinals and the Duke Blue Devils, the last survivors among 64 teams who hit the NCAA road to Dallas two and a half weeks ago.

Both offenses are set in motion by pressing, man-for-man defenses that are designed to tire out opponents as well as steal the basketball from them.

"We like the full-court game," Louisville Coach Denny Crum said. "Duke plays the same way. They score off transition and the transition game is dictated by your defense."

The styles are somewhat different.

Duke presses full-court for the full 40 minutes unless foul trouble dictates a zone.

Louisville presses full-court at times but is most deadly in the midcourt man-for-man in which it traps after the first pass into the Cardinals' half-court area.

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said both teams are excellent at switching defensive assignments when another team screens.

"We don't have individual matchups," he said. "We have team matchups and talk is the glue that keeps everything together."

The game will match Louisville's inside quickness against the physical Blue Devils, and Duke's outside quickness against Louisville's taller guards.

"We hope our guards (Johnny Dawkins and Tommy Amaker) can make it more difficult for Louisville's guards (Milt Wagner and Jeff Hall) to run their offense," Krzyzewski said.

Crum said Duke is a "lot stronger inside. We have a size advantage in (6-foot-11) Pervis Ellison, but he's not that experienced.

"We just hope our bigger guards can cause them some problems."

Only four teams in the last 29 games have shot better than 50 percent against the tenacious Cardinal defense. The Cardinals average almost six blocked shots per game.

Duke has forced 90 turnovers in five tourney games.

"Duke has a good defense, but we're not going to sit around and worry," Hall said. "We'll just try to get the ball inside and get their people in foul trouble."

So that's the key. Take it from Larry Brown, who saw his Kansas team commit 21 turnovers and lose three starters to fouls in Saturday's 71-67 semifinal loss to Duke.

"I'm curious to see how Louisville will hold up against Duke's pressure defense," Brown said. "And I don't think Duke can win if they get their big people in foul trouble."

Baseball roundup...

Vuckovich leaves the game

by The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Brewers, a team that has gone downhill since reaching the World Series four years ago, are now minus two more players from their past.

Pete Vuckovich, who won the Cy Young Award in 1982 when he helped Milwaukee to the American League pennant, retired on Sunday. A few hours later, the Brewers traded away another starting pitcher, Moose Haas, to Oakland.

The Brewers' Tim Leary, Chuck Porter and Ray Searage combined on a five-hitter to lead Milwaukee past the Chicago Cubs 4-0. Leary, 3-1 this spring, yielded three hits over six innings while Paul Molitor, Robin Yount and Paul Householder had RBI singles.

Vuckovich, 33, had been in the Brewers' camp as a non-roster player, trying to make a comeback after shoulder surgery last September. Vuckovich accepted a job in the Brewers' organization as an instructor with some scouting duties.

Vuckovich was 0-1 with a 5.73 earned run average this spring. Last season, he was 6-10 with a 5.51 ERA.

Vuckovich's injury problems started in 1983, when he began the season on the disabled list with a torn rotator cuff. He pitched in only three games in 1983 and sat out the 1984 season.

Vuckovich was 38-22 in five seasons with the Brewers, including 18-6 in 1982 when he won the Cy Young. In 10 seasons with the Chicago White Sox, Toronto, St. Louis and Milwaukee, Vuckovich was 91-65 with a 3.68 ERA.

In other games Sunday, Baltimore beat Atlanta 6-3; Detroit defeated Minnesota 3-0; Pittsburgh routed Philadelphia 13-2; Boston tripped Toronto 7-2; the New York Mets downed Cincinnati 6-4; Montreal topped Houston 5-2; the New York Yankees shaded Texas 3-2 in 10 innings; Kansas City got by the Chicago White Sox 6-4; St. Louis ripped Los Angeles 7-1; Oakland outscored San Francisco 11-5; Cleveland defeated Seattle 7-5; and San Diego knocked off California 9-4.

McHaffey wins TPC

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) – Veteran John Mchaffey shot a final round of 71 to come from behind and win the Tournament Players Championship.

He overcame Larry Mize, who bogied four of the last five holes, missing a three-foot par on the 18th hole, for a 76.

Mchaffey won with a 275 total, 13 under par of the Players Club at Sawgrass. He collected $162,000 from the total purse of $900,000 and moved into the No. 1 money-winning spot with $244,736.

UT ladies set standard for women's basketball

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Jody Conradt believes her Texas Longhorns have set the standard by which future women's basketball teams will be measured.

Texas put the perfect ending on a perfect season Sunday, running past Southern California 97-81 in the NCAA women's basketball championship game. The Longhorns finished with a 34-0 record, the first team in the five-year history of the tourney to go through a season with a perfect mark.

"I don't think it can be topped," Conradt said of this year's accomplishment. "It's perfection. It is something we will strive for next season when we play our first game."

Texas already has a head start on a lot of teams next season because of brilliant freshman Clarissa Davis. The 6-foot-1 forward came off the bench to score 24 points and pull down 14 rebounds in leading the Longhorns over two-time champion Southern Cal.

"Our team has so many good people," said Davis, voted the tourney's outstanding player. "I just wanted to get into the game."

It proved to be an all-out team effort for the talent-rich Longhorns, whose bench outscored Southern Cal 58-4.

"Texas continued to bring in players, and bringing in fresh players helps," said Southern Cal Coach Linda Sharp, whose team finished 31-5. "We didn't get from our bench what Texas did from theirs."

Another Texas reserve, senior center Cara Priddy, ignited the Longhorns to the biggest point margin in a championship game.

Texas, leading 45-35 at the half, hiked its lead to 51-37 on Davis' 10-footer in the lane with 17:56 left in the game. Southern Cal came back to within 70-61 on Cynthia Cooper's layup at 9:30, but after a Texas timeout, the Longhorns scored seven straight points and pulled away over the final minutes.

Miller, a four-time All-America, never got untracked in the game, eventually fouling out with 7:30 to go. She scored 16 points, hitting only two of 11 shots from the field and 12 of 13 free throws, grabbed six rebounds and handed out four assists.

Texas made 40 of 68 shots for 58.8 percent and held a 42-32 edge in rebounding. Southern Cal hit 29 of 65 shots for 44.6 percent.

Forward Fran Harris contributed 14 points, guard Beverly Williams had 13 and Wimbush added 10 for the Longhorns. All-America guard Kamie Ethridge handed out 10 assists in directing a splendid floor game.

Cooper topped Southern Cal with 27 points, tying Miller's championship game record set in 1983, while center Cherie Nelson had 13 and guarad Rhonda Windham scored 12.

Joining Davis on the all-tourney team were teammate Fran Harris, Miller and Cooper of Southern Cal and Clemette Haskins of Western Kentucky.

Tigers begin loop Tuesday

Snyder's Tigers open District 2-4A baseball action here Tuesday by hosting Lamesa at 7 p.m. on Moffett Field.

The Tigers are 8-7 while Lamesa will come in with a 4-7-1 record.

Elsewhere around 2-4A, Pecos will be at Monahans and defending champion Andrews will be at Fort Stockton.

McWilliams gave loans, too...

Texas probe reveals more allegations

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - An Austin lawyer has confirmed that he represented "20 or 30" University of Texas football players without charge "over the past five or six years" after referral from Ken Dabbs, an assistant UT athletic director, a newspaper reported today.

The attorney, Alfred M. Walker Jr., said he agreed to represent Texas football players, at no cost to the players or the university, after meeting Dabbs socially about six years ago, the Dallas Morning News reported.

National Collegiate Athletic Association rules forbid student athletes from receiving any benefits beyond the tuition, room, board and books provided by their athletic scholarships, unless they are available to all students.

Dabbs, Texas' recruiting coordinator until November 1984 and now a special assistant to athletic director DeLoss Dodds, could not be reached Sunday for comment about free counsel provided football players arrested for driving while intoxicated and cited for traffic violations.

However, Dabbs, responding to earlier reports in which players said he and other UT coaches lent them money and arranged bank loans for them, said he lent money to a former UT All-American.

Dabbs told the Austin American-Statesman Saturday night that he gave former Longhorn linebacker Jeff Leiding less than $100 about three years ago to pay off two traffic tickets. Leiding repaid him within the week, Dabbs said.

Leiding was being held in the city jail and "I couldn't leave him there overnight," Dabbs said. "Did I know it was against the rules? Yes."

Dabbs also said he had sent players to two Austin banks for loans on several occasions, after they came to him in need of cash.

The News reported that 16 former football players said they knew they could go to UT coaches when they had money problems, and nine former players claimed they received cash, bank loans, bail money or promises of a loan from Texas coaches.

The newspaper, in an earlier report, said 24 of 28 players interviewed during its two-month probe into UT's sports investigation program routinely sold their complimentary tickets to boosters at inflated prices, some saying they earned $4,000 per season through the sales.

Fifteen of the 28 players interviewed specifically mentioned Dabbs as a coach who gave them money or helped them in other ways when they went to him with an emergency, the newspaper reported.

"We used to go by the coaches' office all the time because we were running short. ..." said Don Holloway, a Longhorn tailback from 1981 to 1983. "We'd go to Dabbs. Sometimes he'd give you the money, or sometimes he'd say, 'Come back later,' and he'd be gone."

At least three former players said they got extra benefits from former defensive coordinator David McWilliams, hired during the off-season to become Texas Tech's new head football coach, the News reported.

"I did in some instances loan some other guys money if it was an emergency, but we're not talking about a lot of times or a lot of money," McWilliams said.

McWilliams said the only specific case he could remember was giving $80 to a football player who had flunked out and needed to pay off unpaid parking tickets before he could get his transcript. He said that was the largest amount he recalled lending.

SWC boss wants boosters out

DALLAS (AP) - Southwest Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby wants to get boosters out of the recruiting process, saying he believes they can sometimes harm a school's athletic program when trying to help it.

Jacoby bristles at the idea of boosters or alumni meddling in university athletic affairs, and he believes they, more than coaches or athletes, may be to blame for the problems facing many SWC sports programs.

"I don't know if some of the boosters or alums are reliving their childhood or living out a fantasy," he said. "Sometimes they want to help so bad that they hurt (the college). It would be great if they could corral all of that energy into the right direction."

In the past year, seven of the league's nine schools have been slapped with NCAA penalties, have come under the scrutiny of NCAA or internal investigations or have been accused of violating NCAA rules.

"It has been a very slow, agonizing and wrenching period," Jacoby told the Houston Post.

Jacoby, 58, was commissioner of the Mid-American Conference for 11 years before he was hired as SWC commissioner fouh years ago. He said the conference is doing all it can to clean up its image.

"We want to take them (boosters) out of the recruiting process," he said.

Jacoby spearheaded the SWC's attempt to get all alumni and booster contact with recruits eliminated during January's NCAA convention in New Orleans. The proposition failed to come to a vote.

"One common thread seems to run through all of this. The trend and common bind between everything is the involvement of boosters and alums," he said.

Jacoby said the close proximty of the SWC schools is a major factor contributing to the conference's current problems.

"There's a lot of cross-recruiting between members of this family who are close together," Jacoby said. "Like members of a family, they are extremely competitive."

Jacoby said university officials cannot keep up with student athletes around the clock.

"What we can do are things such as not let those people (boosters) have admission to locker rooms, to areas the coaches still have supervision over. Once a player leaves the direct supervision of a coach, then that type of surveillance is impossible," he said.

Jacoby said he would like rules to be enacted to at least make interaction between players and boosters difficult.

The commissioner also said he has hope the conference will recover from its problems.

"Sometimes when you are ill, you have to get sicker before you can get better," Jacoby said. "Right now, we're going through a cleansing. It may be three, four or five years away, but I can see the day when we're going to get down the road."

Public hurricane shelters are nixed

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — Brazoria County emergency management officials say their decision not to open emergency shelters may prompt residents to move further inland if a hurricane threatens the county.

"I don't think there is a building in Brazoria County that is safe during a major hurricane," said Bob Martin, Red Cross manager.

Relatively mild winds from Hurricane Alicia caused minor damage to a shelter at the Brazoria County Fairgrounds, and officials are concerned about what would happen if a stronger storm hit the area.

Limited shelters will be available in the event of a storm to those who cannot leave because of official duties, Martin said.

But the location of the shelters will not be released until it's too dangerous to travel.

"If we don't tell them where the shelters are, maybe they'll go away," Martin said.

Instead of setting up emergency shelters, officials plan to publicize the location of shelters further inland and encourage people to head westward and avoid Houston, which is expected to be packed with Galveston evacuees.

Because several hurricanes missed the county last year, officials believe residents have developed a false sense of security and are even more likely to ignore pleas to leave.

Fire guts Hampton wing

LONDON (AP) — A raging fire today gutted a wing of Hampton Court Palace, a sprawling country residence of kings and queens dating from the reign of Henry VIII, killing one person and damaging some art treasures.

Queen Elizabeth II, accompanied by her heir, Prince Charles, and her sister, Princess Margaret, visited the palace after the fire was under control to inspect the damage.

A body believed to be that of an 86-year-old widow was found in the burned building, police and fire officials said.

Seven or eight elderly widows in their dressing gowns were led from apartments on the top floor of the south wing before the roof collapsed into two lower floors filled with art works, said Toby Jessel, a Conservative Party lawmaker who represents the district.

Hampton Court is owned by Queen Elizabeth II and contains hundreds of rooms, including about 15 apartments that are offered at low rent to court retainers and prominent retired diplomats and generals. Many residents of the apartments were away for the Easter holiday.

Fire Brigade spokesman Brian Clark said. They managed to keep the blaze from spreading to other wings of the huge palace, which is built around several inner courtyards.

now leased by three other individuals for grassland.

In addition to the family's objections, Hatter also presented items the family expects from the county "if the road building becomes inevitable."

"We want a cattle crossing to be built above ground at least 50 feet wide, 12 to 15 feet high and we want the road to pass over," Hatter added. "We had an undergrade installed under the Big Spring Highway, but the cattle refused to use it because it was too small and too dark."

Pct. 2 Commissioner Hassie Sneed noted that the county probably would not be willing to provide such a structure.

County taxpayers will foot expenses rising from cost of the right-of-way property, fences built to the owners' specifications and damages. "Damage payments will be expected since the actual damage done to the property by the road will be ongoing with each generation of property owners, thus diminishing the value of the rangeland infinitely," she said.

Finally, Hatter also offered opposition based on her status as a county taxpayer, primarily to the cost involved. "With the depletion of oil, decrease in the price of oil and additional factors involved in the everlessening of the value of the tax dollar, it seems out of line to add to the problems by the expenses required to build this road," she noted.

Commissioners added that the county's cost has yet to be determined. The final figure will include right-of-way, fences, damages, cost of relocating some pipeline on the property and court costs, if any.

Support for the project was voiced Monday by Bill Voss, a farmer living south of town. "I sure would like a good road to move my equipment from one side of town to the other. I think it needed to be done when we put the bypass behind the college. I understand how they feel about their property. We're good friends and neighbors, but I do need a way to move my equipment from one side of town to the other. By necessity, we farm as much land as possible," he said.

Hatter presented a list of other "personal objections as a taxpayer" regarding the road's extension. A synopsis of these inclues:

—Not that many farmers need to use the road.

—There are other ways for trucks to be routed around the downtown area.

—The route may cause "four wheeler traffic" to spend their money in other towns besides Snyder.

—The intersection created by the proposed road at the Big Spring Highway would be dangerous if there is not a divided grade crossing.

—The road would be putting hazardous loads within a matter of feet of Western Texas College housing and a matter of yards from the college itself.

—There are other things that the county needs to spend money on at this time.

—Additional expenses pertaining to the road may occur and must be paid for by the taxpayers.

2 hit-and-run mishaps here over Easter

Three minor traffic mishaps — including two hit-and-run incidents — were reported in Snyder over the Easter weekend.

The 100 Block of Milburn Ave. was the scene of the first hit-and-run accident — reported at 9:13 a.m. Saturday.

Listed as damaged by a driver who apparently fled the scene were a 1970 Ford owned by Gilbert Garcia of 114 Milburn Ave. and a 1984 Chevrolet pickup owned by Sun Exploration and Production of Snyder.

Both vehicles were parked along the curb.

The second hit-and-run incident was reported at 12:48 p.m. Saturday.

A 1981 Ford pickup owned by N.L. Industries Inc. of Houston and parked in the 3500 Block of Irving Ave. was reportedly damaged by an unidentified vehicle.

The weekend's third mishap occurred at 11:40 a.m. Sunday in the 1000 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it was a 1981 Mazda driven by Gail Brooks of 2600 Ave. Y which struck the Santa Fe Railroad crossing arm at that location.

No estimate was available for the value of damage to the railroad property.

Bike said stolen

Police took a misdemeanor theft report filed at 4:25 p.m. Saturday by Robert Burton of 601 29th St.

He told police a 20-inch BMX type bicycle had been stolen from outside his residence sometime between 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and 9 p.m. Thursday.

Six arrested over weekend

Police arrested six suspects on various misdemeanor charges Saturday and Sunday.

Included among those was a 22-year-old man arrested for shoplifting at The Grocery Store on the Clairemont Highway at 8:34 p.m. Saturday.

That arrest resulted from a call from store employees reporting having a shoplifter in custody.

Two persons were arrested for being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol and one suspect was jailed for driving while intoxicated.

One local man was jailed for public intoxication and the weekend's sixth arrest involved a man taken into custody on a instanter warrant for traffic violations.

D. Ortega justifies Honduran attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaragua President Daniel Ortega justified last week's government attacks against rebel bases across the Honduran-Nicaraguan border as "totally defensive operations" in response to rebel forays from Honduran sanctuaries.

Ortega also reiterated his government's willingness to negotiate with the United States, but refused to say whether his government would meet American demands to negotiate with the U.S.-backed rebels.

"We want a dialogue with the Contras, with the chief of the Contras, which is President Reagan," Ortega said.

Appearing Sunday on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," the Nicaraguan president said, "We have not invaded Honduras — we have not committed any act of aggression against Honduras."

Ortega justified last week's border incursion against rebel bases by saying Honduras had abdicated sovereignty over areas along the border by allowing the rebels to control and operate from the region, which he called a "war zone."

He said military actions in the border area "have been taking place for years now all along the frontier area to attack the counterrevolutionary forces which ... have their bases in Honduras. They are totally defensive operations."

Ortega cast aside suggestions that his government should negotiate with the rebels, saying, "The policy is decided in Washington, so we have to talk to the White House."

Polls shows Clements out in front in race

HOUSTON (AP) — A survey of people planning to vote in the Republican primary shows former Gov. Bill Clements would win the gubernatorial nomination without a runoff if the election were held now, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story.

Clements has the support of 53 percent of the voters surveyed, while U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler has 19 percent and former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance has 16 percent, according to the poll. Twelve percent were undecided.

The telephone poll has a 6 percent margin of error. It was conducted March 21-27 by the University of Houston Public Affairs Research Center for the Chronicle and KTRK-TV.

The research center called 3,200 registered voters in 100 key precincts across the state to find 414 who said they are likely to vote in the Republican primary.

Each was asked which Republican gubernatorial candidate they would vote for if the election were held today, the Chronicle reported Sunday.

Richard Murray, a political science professor who conducted the survey, said the difficulty in finding people who said they planned to vote in the primary indicates voter turnout will be fairly low. He estimates a turnout of about 400,000.

The GOP gubernatorial race "will be the traditional low-vote Republican primary with the party faithful making the choices," Murray said.

DEAR ABBY: You have never had a letter like this one in your column. I hope you will print it.

My husband retired five years ago, and I still can't get him to slow down. When we ride in a car, he hollers at the person ahead of us because he didn't pull away from the stop sign fast enough. In the grocery check-out line, he grumbles because the lady ahead of him has to write a check.

He wolfs his food down. He's halfway through his meal before I even sit down. When we're walking together, he is always three steps ahead of me. He says I "poke" along. No, he doesn't have high blood pressure. It's way down. But mine is creeping up. We are both senior citizens, and I think it's time we both slowed down—especially him. What do you suggest?

THE MRS. IN ORLANDO

DEAR MRS.: I have the perfect piece for you. It was written by the Rev. Wilferd A. Peterson. I pray your man slows down long enough to read it. It may change (and possibly lengthen) his life:

Slow me down, Lord!
Ease the pounding of my heart
By the quieting of my mind.
Steady my harried pace
With a vision of the eternal reach of time.
Give me,
Amidst the confusions of my day,
The calmness of the everlasting hills.
Break the tensions of my nerves
With the soothing music of the singing streams
That live in my memory.
Help me know
The magical restoring power of sleep.
Teach me the art
Of taking minute vacations of slowing down to look at a flower;
to chat with an old friend or make a new one;
to pat a stray dog;
to watch a spider build a web;
to smile at a child;
or to read a few lines from a good book.
Remind me each day
That the race is not always to the swift;
That there is more to life than increasing its speed.
Let me look upward
Into the branches of the towering oak
And know that it grew slowly and well.
Slow me down, Lord,
And inspire me to send my roots deep
Into the soil of life's enduring values
That I may grow toward the stars
Of my greater destiny.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 21 and recently fell in love with a 30-year-old man. He has never been married. He asked me to move in with him, but he didn't have to ask me twice because I am very much in love with him. He tells everyone he will never fall in love, get married or have kids. But I want all three.

When I pressure him (in a joking way) about my wanting marriage and kids, he tells me I'm scaring him. In a way, I think he really loves me, but I don't know for sure how much.

Should I stay with him and hope he changes his mind about love, marriage and kids? Or should I look for another mate?

WANTS IT ALL IN PA.

DEAR WANTS: Keep looking. But move out first. While you're wanting it all, he's getting it all. Your problem is that you each want different things.

DEAR ABBY: Why does a woman sit around the house in front of her husband all day Saturday with a mud pack on her face and rollers in her hair just so she can look pretty for a bunch of strangers on Saturday night?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: For the same reason a man shaves before going out among strangers, then comes home with a Brillo beard and nuzzles his wife.

McDonald's has Welding Machines and Supplies

McDonald Welding Supply has gained a reputation for service, and for good reason. The staff at McDonald Welding Supply comes early and stays late. This is especially important to the area's busy oil fields, and this is why so many companies have depended on McDonald Welding Supply for their supply needs.

The firm serves an area bounded by Sweetwater to Loraine to Colorado City and Big Spring and back to Snyder. The Company has three 18 foot bobtail trucks for delivery to farms, businesses and well locations.

In stock at McDonald Welding Supply is the Miller and Lincolin Welding equipment line, which includes small engine drives and electric machine for farm and home use. They also have a large stock of smaller welders. They vary in size and can fit in the rear of a foreign truck as well as a two-ton truck. In addition, they carry Victor and Uniweld welding and cutting equipment and Walton vises.

If you need steel for oilfield fabrication, you can find exactly what you need at McDonald Welding Supply. The firm has a complete line of Milwaukee heavy duty electric drills and grinders. They have Williams hammer wrenches and heavy tools.

Safety equipment of all types is stocked including goggles, first aid kits and refills, hard hats, liners and fire extinguishers. This popular business also stocks chains, cable, tubing and chain hoists. They have recently added a complete line of Grade "8" Hard Bolts and Nuts in sizes from 5/16 to 1 ¼. Blocks as well as all types of pulleys may be added to the list.

The available list of supplies is almost endless, just ask for it. Stop by and see Gayle or Jack McDonald and the staff at McDonald Welding Supply, 1110 College Ave.
