Report finds...

ATF covered up shoddy raid plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commanders of the botched raid on a Texas cult that ended in the deaths of four Treasury agents rewrote their action plan to conceal flaws in the operation's design, investigators have concluded.

A 500-page report of an investigation ordered by President Clinton says Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officials tried to cover up omissions in planning the Feb. 28 Waco raid, a federal law enforcement official said.

"It's pretty damning of the bureau concerning failure of their procedures" and intelligence, said Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., who attended a private briefing on the report for selected members of the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said the Treasury Department was prepared to take disciplinary action against agents, including some dismissals.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen, whose department includes the ATF, scheduled a news conference this afternoon to release the findings of the investigation.

Four agents were shot to death in the first 90 seconds of a furious gun battle with cult members that lasted 45 minutes. Six members of the Branch Davidian sect died in the gun battle that erupted when ATF agents tried to search the compound near Waco, Texas, for illegal weapons.

The investigation by Treasury Department officials also concluded that ATF agents proceeded with the raid even after they received strong evidence that cult leader David Koresh was expecting them, the official said.

After the raid ended disastrously, ATF officials blamed its failure on the loss of the element of surprise.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed details of the report that appeared in today's editions of The Washington Post.

In expectation of the report's criticisms of his agency, ATF Director Stephen Higgins announced Monday that he would retire at month's end. Two other top officials of the agency who oversaw the planning and execution of the raid are also planning to retire as well.

The investigation, headed by Assistant Treasury Secretary Ronald K. Noble, concluded that the original action plan for the raid was incomplete and did not contain the detail that Treasury Department guidelines require for laying out a safe and successful operation, the official said.

Collider funds ok'd by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today rebuffed the strongest challenge yet to the superconducting super collider, agreeing to fund the controversial program for another year.

On a 57-42 vote senators rejected an amendment by Arkansas Democrat Dale Bumpers to pull the plug on what he termed "this monstrosity" being built near Waxahachie, Texas.

The Senate's support for the $640 million sought by the Clinton administration sets the stage for a battle with the House, which opposed future collider funding by a decisive 280-150 vote in June.

But supporters were hopeful today that they will prevail when negotiators from both chambers meet later to hash out their funding differences.

"I have every confidence the House will accede to the Senate wishes," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas.

A resigned Bumpers agreed, saying: "The politics is always with spending, not cutting."

During a lengthy floor debate that began Wednesday afternoon, Bumpers and other critics beseeched their colleagues to live up to their budget-cutting rhetoric and ax the giant atom smasher.

"The meter is running on the national debt every day," said Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn. "We can't pull the plug on the debt, but we can pull it on the super collider."

Backers countered that loss of the collider would deal a devastating setback to future scientific and technological development. Scientists hope to discover new particles and learn more about the origin of matter by colliding beams of subatomic particles at near-light speeds in the collider's 54-mile underground tunnel.

Proponents also charged that its termination would do nothing to reduce the deficit. "The debate here is not about the deficit," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who noted that Bumpers' measure didn't dedicate savings for deficit reduction. "The choice is about tory, are less sanguine about their chances in conference.

Supporters, led by Louisiana Democrat Bennett Johnston, reiterated their contention that the oft-criticized program remains on budget.

"There has been a huge amount of sound and fury about the cost of this project," Johnston said. "The United States can prudently go into this project confident that ... the initial project cost is correct."

The Senate vote marked an erosion of support from last year's 62-32 vote, in part because the collider has been buffeted by persistent allegations of cost overruns and management ineptitude.

Police to enforce parking ordinance

Motorists who park facing traffic had better beware, there is a good chance they'll be ticketed now by the police department.

"We haven't been enforcing it much except when there is an accident, but because of the potential for serious injuries, we're going to be enforcing the law to a much greater extent," said Chief Lannie Lee.

Snyder PD has been stepping up its enforcement of the law in school zones, but will now begin increasing enforcement throughout the city.

Motorists should be aware that the fine for parking on the wrong side of the road is $33, including court costs, in most areas of the city, and $53 if the violation occurs in a school zone.

"To park like this, people have to cross oncoming traffic. Then they have to cross oncoming traffic again when they pull away from the curb. The potential for a head-on accident is great," said Lee.

Lee said the law applies not only along main city streets, but in residential areas. Those who park in front of their homes facing oncoming traffic, will also be issued a citation.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You can't get lost if you don't know where you're going."

Just recently received a nice note from Myrdell Hall, a former resident of Snyder who moved to Midland about 6½ years ago.

Mrs. Hall is still a faithful subscriber and says she still has lots of friends in and fond memories of Snyder. Her note included a clipping from the Midland Reporter-Telegram. It was an item written by Midland managing editor Gary Ott containing some random thoughts that she believed Scurry County folks would enjoy.

Here's a few samples of what the author called rambling thoughts:

--When you can see the bottom of your cup, the coffee is not strong enough.

--Waking up to the smell of a fresh rain is special.

--I love to hear people speaking in Spanish. I just wish I could understand what they were saying.

--When I hear a millionaire sports owner and a millionaire ballplayer bicker over a few hundred thousand dollars, I tend to lose interest quickly.

--I wish Midland had street vendors who sold hot dogs and pretzels and stuff like that. It would add a little flavor — no pun intended — to the community.

--When you watch the New York Stock Exchange operate you can't help but worry just a little bit about this country's economic sanity.

--I noticed that Elizabeth Taylor dropped everything and on the spur of the moment flew to Singapore to be with her troubled, but dear friend. It must be nice to have that kind of money. I bet Liz didn't even worry about not qualifying for the 21-day discount.

--Seeing a grown man with a flat top still makes me do a double take.

For friends who may want to contact Mrs. Hall, her address is 6201 County Road 86 in Midland, 79706.

Poll: most Texans believe Hutchison victim of politics

DALLAS (AP) — More than half of Texans polled recently said they believe that politics are behind indictments against U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

In the survey of 405 adult Texans by The Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle, 56 percent said they believe the charges against Mrs. Hutchison are politically motivated. Twenty-five percent said they believe the charges are merited. The rest were uncertain.

The poll was conducted by Blum & Weprin Associates Inc. in New York on Tuesday, the day after an Austin grand jury indicted the senator. The margin of error was plus or minus 5.5 percentage points.

Mrs. Hutchison was indicted on charges that she used state employees and equipment for personal and political gain during her 21/2-year term as state treasurer, and allegations that she helped destroy documents as part of a coverup. Two Treasury aides also were indicted.

If convicted, Mrs. Hutchison faces a maximum of 61 years in prison and $43,000 in fines.

The Republican denies any wrongdoing and calls the charges "sleazy politics" by vindictive Democrats, namely Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, who led the Treasury probe.

Earle's top assistant, Steve McCleery, predicted Wednesday that Texans' opinions would change once the case gets to trial.

"They (Republicans) have more public relations people working on this than we have lawyers," McCleery said.

Alcohol guards against swimmer's ear

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had an outer ear infection known as swimmer's ear since October 1992. I've been to seven doctors, four of whom were ENT specialists, but none of them have helped me. I now understand there is a new medicine given by injection into the arm for control. Have you heard of this, and can you tell me how I might go about getting it?

DEAR READER: I've never heard of an injectable medicine to cure swimmer's ear and, really, I don't see how it could. This common and painful summertime affliction is due to a mixed bacterial infection in the ear canal, which is aggravated by water that may remain after swimming.

It is almost always curable by using ear drops, such as Cortisporin.

I've used a method to prevent swimmer's ear. Perhaps it will help you, too. At the end of the day, pour half a capful of rubbing alcohol into the ear, wait a few minutes and then shake it out.

Not only will the alcohol act as an antiseptic, it also holds water. When the alcohol evaporates, the ear canal will be dry, making an inhospitable environment for bacteria. This is a cheap and efficient way to prevent an infected ear canal from developing. Try it.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Ear Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a rare disorder known as cystinuria, which is the presence of cystine in the blood and urine. My doctor seems unaware of the disease and my mother, who is an RN, has indicated the condition can cause physical problems in a child. She suggested I get genetic counseling before having children. Is there a foundation for my fears, and is there any treatment I can attempt?

DEAR READER: Your mother is correct.

Cystinuria is an inherited metabolic abnormality, in which the reabsorption of cystine, an amino-acid building-block of protein, is impaired in the kidneys.

Consequently, the levels of cystine in the urine are high, leading to kidney stones. Such stones can produce colic (abdominal pain), renal obstruction and serious urinary infection.

The condition is diagnosed by analysis of the stones or by special urine tests, such as electrophoresis.

Treatment, supervised by a nephrologist, includes additional fluid intake (to dilute the urine), bicarbonate (to reduce urine acidity and the tendency to form stones), and diuretics (to retard stone-formation).

The danger of cystinuria is that kidney damage, despite therapy, may lead to renal failure, requiring dialysis.

Hence, it is appropriate for patients with the disorder to have genetic counseling.

Barney creators sharing funds from program with networks

DALLAS (AP) — The financial bonanza experienced by the creators of "Barney and Friends" is beginning to filter down to public television, which gave the purple dinosaur his national prominence.

Barney has created millions of dollars for his creators, especially in sales of Barney dolls and other merchandise.

Sheila Tate, chairwoman of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, says CPB and PBS hope to recoup $2.5 million in grants they gave "Barney and Friends," which is produced by the Lyons Group of Allen.

"There will be some revenue sharing. And we think that's very enlightened on their part," Ms. Tate said Monday night in Dallas, during an hourlong town hall meeting for PBS radio and TV stations.

Beth Ryan, spokeswoman for Ryan Group, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that some form of revenue sharing has been in effect since "Barney and Friends" began on public television. She said the Lyons Group has a contractual agreement with Connecticut Public Television.

"There is indeed already revenue sharing that has been in effect since we started with public television. We have a contractual agreement with Connecticut Public Television," Ms. Ryan said.

Ms. Tate appeared on the Monday night program with fellow CPB members Carolyn Bacon and Martha Buchanan.

The Lyons Group's windfall profits from Barney had become a sore spot with PBS, which brought the dinosaur character to national prominence without realizing much in return financially, Ms. Tate said.

She said the experience had caused PBS to become more cautious in making deals with program suppliers. But she stressed that the projection of a fortune in product sales was not the driving force in whether to carry a program.

Ms. Ryan said the Lyons Group recently shared its wealth with PBS.

Your Birthday
Friday, Oct. 1, 1993

Friends could prove helpful to you in the year ahead both careerwise and socially. Their input might help you get a better job or introduce you to that in group you've been wanting to join.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have the ability to see both sides of an issue and this can be an enormous asset. Today, however, if you tediously weigh and balance things, you'll become ineffectively indecisive. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N. Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It won't hurt your image today if you 'fess up to situations you feel you can't handle. It could arouse associates ire, however, if you pretend to be able to do something you can't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of treating fun, competitive activities for what they are, which is merely a game, you might be inclined to take things far more seriously than you should.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Respect the talents and abilities of others, but don't credit them today with assets they don't possess. This could cause you to feel unnecessarily inadequate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Persons who usually accept what you say verbatim might challenge your statements today. Don't spread it on too thick and make sure you have the facts to back you up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if you feel required to make a choice between paying an old obligation or buying something new, you'd be wise to try to rid yourself of debt first.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons who are usually supportive of you might not be as forceful on your behalf today, plus those who are against you might be a bit more vehement than usual. You're on your own.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make a list of your duties today and try to eliminate them in an orderly fashion. If you let things pile up, they could exceed your abilities to handle them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could make both parties angry today if you let yourself get caught in an arrangement where you feel compelled to side with one friend against another.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Success is possible today, provided you rely more upon yourself and less upon Lady Luck. When you need her the most she might be cozying up to your opposition.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tell it like it is today, even if it presents you in an unattractive light. If you boast or exaggerate, there's a strong possibility your statements will not be believed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might not be as sharp a horse trader today as someone with whom you'll be doing business. This person could end up with the farm if you're not careful.

During World War II, meat, butter and cheese rationing in the United States began in 1943.

The signal was intercepted

At the end of today's deal, I expect West felt like Longfellow's theologian:

Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing,
Only a signal shown and a distant voice in the darkness;
So on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another,
Only a look and a voice; then darkness again and a silence.

The deal occurred during the Icelandic Air Pairs Championship, held last February in Reykjavik. The winners, Larry Cohen from the United States and Zia Mahmood from Pakistan, benefited when Zia successfully unscrambled both North's and West's messages.

East traded on the vulnerability for his one-heart overcall. When West raised to four hearts, Cohen, North, under pressure, jumped to six clubs.

West made a Lightner Slam Double, asking for an unusual lead, normally the first suit bid by the dummy. And here, as you can see, the diamond ace and a diamond ruff defeats six clubs.

However, Zia was also listening. And Zia assumed that Cohen, for his sudden leap to six clubs, had some tolerance for diamonds. So Zia retreated to six diamonds: an unbeatable slam.

Dummy's spade loser was discarded at trick one, while declarer won with the heart ace. The diamond king won trick two. Declarer unblocked the club queen before continuing with the diamond queen. East won with the ace and returned a heart, but declarer ruffed in the dummy and led winning clubs. Whenever East ruffed, South could overruff and return to dummy with a spade to the ace.

Film festival headed by Clint Eastwood

PARIS (AP) — Clint Eastwood will head the jury for the 1994 Cannes Film Festival, the first American to do so since 1986.

Wednesday's announcement came a day after 4,400 film stars, directors, producers and writers published a full-page ad in six major European newspapers urging officials to protect their industry from annihilation by Hollywood.

American films now account for more than 60 percent of box-office revenue at French theaters alone. This week's top four French hits, including Eastwood's "In the Line of Fire," are Hollywood productions.

Judge orders Basinger to pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kim Basinger can't use bankruptcy to avoid paying an $8.1 million verdict for backing out of the movie "Boxing Helena."

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Geraldine Mund ordered Miss Basinger on Tuesday to pay all the money, plus 10 percent interest.

She wasn't in court and her lawyer, Howard Weitzman, was out of town and couldn't be reached Wednesday.

A jury found in March that Miss Basinger broke a promise to star in the movie as a woman whose arms and legs are cut off by an obsessive suitor. The film was eventually made with "Twin Peaks" actress Sherilyn Fenn.

Miss Basinger filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy on May 26 to avoid payment.

Loop teams wind up non-district slate

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

District 2-4A teams will wind up the non-district portions of their respective football schedules this week.

Loop teams carry an overall 13-11 record against outside competition thus far, including Plainview's 24-0 win over Tascosa, Frenship's 35-7 blasting of Hereford, and a 43-21 hammering of Palo Duro by Estacado last week.

On the losing end of games a week past were Snyder, which fell to Big Spring 31-0, Levelland, which lost to Andrews 35-0, and Lamesa, the only losing team in the district to score, which lost to Canyon Randall, 35-8.

This week's matchups feature Dumas at Snyder, Frenship against cross-town rival Lubbock Coronado, Levelland at Hereford, Lamesa at Littlefield, Estacado at Roswell, N.M., and Plainview hosting Palo Duro.

Dumas (1-3) at Snyder (2-2)

The Demons were also shut out last week, 6-0, by Class 5A Amarillo High.

Dumas' offense has scored only 60 points in four games, while the defense, which returned eight starters from last season, is giving up over 20 a game.

Snyder is having similar difficulties defensively. Opponents are averaging over 350 yards per game, including last week's 303 by Big Spring.

Snyder's offense, which was snuffed last week after picking up over 300 yards an outing the first three weeks, is led by quarterback Matt Cave and tailback Chris Mitchell.

Cave, who threw for only 61 yards a week ago, is still on pace for a 1,000-yard season, as is Mitchell, who ran for a season-low 18 yards on 12 tries against the Steers.

Frenship (4-0) at Coronado (2-2)

These Tigers are for real. Frenship has not only been rolling up the yardage and points on offense, it has been keeping opponents out of the end zone.

The Tigers, led by quarterback Shane Stewart and wide receiver Kendrick Hollie, have scored 153 points in their four victories, while limiting their adversaries to just 34 total points and right at 225 yards a game.

Coronado, a 31-6 loser to San Angelo Central a week ago, was picked to battle for a playoff spot in District 3-5A, before a slow start this season.

Levelland (0-4) at Hereford (1-3)

Levelland is starting the season much like it did in 1992, losing.

Coach Tom Ramsey's Lobos were 0-5 last year, then came oh, so close to making the playoffs as the loop wild card.

Levelland had the misfortune a week ago to face an Andrews team currently on a roll.

Levelland's defense will have to tighten up if the Lobos are to contend in the 2-4A chase. The Lobos have allowed over 300 yards an outing this season.

Hereford is also in need of some defensive momentum after giving up 105 points on its way to a 1-3 start.

Lamesa (0-4) at Littlefield (4-0)

The Golden Tors will take on a salty Class 3A team in the Littlefield Wildcats this week.

Littlefield is unbeaten in its first four starts of the year, including last week's 20-6 win over long-time 3A power Denver City.

The 'Cats offense is grinding out 332 yards a game, while the Maroon defense is surrendering only 165, best in the area.

Lamesa, on the other hand, has had troubles on both sides of th ball, scoring just 37 total points, while allowing opponents 117.

Estacado (3-1) at Roswell, N.M. (3-1)

Estacado, after losing its opener to Coronado, has reeled off three straight wins, including last week's 43-21 drilling of Class 5A Palo Duro.

The Matadors, a preseason playoff selection, are led by senior tailback Talion Scott, who has rushed for 545 yards in the season's first three weeks.

Roswell brings a solid squad on both sides of the football. The RHS offense is scoring at a 40-plus points per game clip, while the defense is limiting opponents to under 10.

Palo Duro (2-2) Plainview (4-0)

The Bulldogs are proving why they were the concensus choice to win the loop title, going 4-0 to open the campaign.

Plainview's most productive offensive player is all-state candidate Damien Nails, who has accumulated 501 yards rushing, including a 212-yard effort against Amarillo Tascosa a week past.

The Dons, former District 3-5A mates of Plainview's, carry a 2-2 mark on the year. They are led by quarterback Jermaine Gilbreath, a 6-3, 175-pounder who possesses 4.6 speed, and 5-10, 190-pound fullback Tyrone Frazier.

Western Texas riders set for Vernon rodeo

Western Texas College's women's rodeo team will try to build on their first place finish at the season-opening Eastern New Mexico University Rodeo two weeks ago, when they compete in the Vernon Regional Junior College NIRA Rodeo today through Sunday.

Nightly performances in Vernon are slated for 7:30 p.m. with Sunday's finals, which features the top 10 finishers in each event, scheduled for 1 p.m.

The WTC cowgirls were led at ENMU by sophomore Leslie Greer, who captured first place in goat tying with an 18.1 combined time, edging teammate Dusti Beaton, who was the long-go winner in the event, who turned in an 18.8 on two head.

Western Texas scored 100 points in the women's events, beating out second-place VRJC, which accumulated 95.

The men's team from Western Texas, without roughstock riders Troy Thomson, Trey Griffin, Travis Whiteside and Trent Woolford, all suspended from the team by coach Bob Doty for disciplinary reasons, wound up in a sixth-place tie with 55 points at Portales N.M. two weeks ago.

Bull rider Fletcher Tigner gathered most of those points with his fourth-place 143.

The fall rodeo season continues next week as Sul Ross State University in Alpine hosts its own NIRA event. The campaign winds up about a month later at the Nov. 11-13 Texas Tech Rodeo.

Cloyce and Anita Talbott and John and Suzy Reed split third place.

Chip-ins for the month came from Burleson, Patterson and Anita Talbott on Sept. 5 and Suzy Reed on Sept. 17.

Navratilova to retire after 1994

NEW YORK (AP) — Saying the twilight of her career was longer than most other players' entire careers, Martina Navratilova is calling it quits after 1994.

"This is it — period," she said. "Next year will be my last year. It's time for me to move on."

Her retirement in 14 months will end a 24-year career that has seen her win more titles than anyone else in professional tennis history and more than $19 million.

"It's an end of a big part of my life, but it's the beginning of a new part of my life," she said.

While Navratilova left ajar the possibility she may play doubles, she said "1994 will be definitely my last year of playing full-time or part-time singles competition."

And it will be a full year. For the first time since 1988, she will play the French Open. But she will skip another Grand Slam tournament, the Australian Open in January, because "it's too early in the year."

Braves top Astros; nab NL West lead

by The Associated Press

With four games to go, the Atlanta Braves have a one-game lead on the San Francisco Giants, who must play their final games at the home of the Los Angeles Dodgers, their most emotional foe.

"It's not how you want to end your season at home," San Francisco manager Dusty Baker said after Wednesday's 5-3 loss to the Colorado Rockies at Candlestick Park. "We plan on coming back here to play again, one way or another. The race is alive and well."

Atlanta regained sole possession of first place with a 6-3 victory over the Astros. After playing Houston tonight at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, the Braves close with three games at home against the Rockies.

"It's only one game," said catcher Damon Berryhill, who hit a three-run homer. "By no means is it over."

San Francisco has lost six of nine to the Dodgers this season. The two have been fighting for a century in a rivalry that began a continent away in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Two years ago, the Dodgers were trying to beat the Braves for the NL West title, but lost the first two games of a season-ending series at San Francisco.

"There is a little revenge involved," said the Dodgers' Orel Hershiser, who will pitch Saturday.

Atlanta regained its lead as Tom Glavine won his 21st game, beating Doug Drabek (9-18) despite getting roughed up early. After Berryhill's homer in the second inning, Fred McGriff and David Justice hit consecutive solo homers to break a 3-3 tie in the third.

Houston stranded 14 runners, including the bases loaded in the eighth and ninth innings.

Rockies 5, Giants 3

San Francisco wasted two bases-loaded opportunities and stranded seven runners. Daryl Boston homered twice as Colorado beat San Francisco for just the third time in 13 games.

Steve Reed (9-5) picked up the victory, helping to end the Giants' seven-game winning streak. Salomon Torres (3-4) was tagged for four runs and three hits, walked four and struck out one.

Strange paces Texas in win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Doug Strange, who has never hit for the cycle, wanted that triple.

The Texas Rangers' second baseman singled, doubled and homered in Wednesday's 11-6 rout of Oakland.

But in the eighth, Strange, needing a three-base hit, struck out.

"I just wanted to hit it hard, but it didn't happen," Strange said. "If I did hit it, I wasn't going to stop running. I wanted it pretty bad. I'd never hit for the cycle, not even in the minors."

Strange had career-high five RBIs as the Rangers won for the third time in four games.

Strange's three-run homer highlighted a four-run second to help the Rangers rally from a 3-0 deficit. Strange then finished off a five-run third with a two-run double.

Rookie Steve Dreyer (3-2) lasted 5 2-3 innings, allowing four runs and seven hits with three strikeouts and no walks.

The second-inning rally off starter Kelly Downs (5-10) began with two outs when Doug Dascenzo singled, Manuel Lee walked and David Hulse singled. Strange followed with his seventh homer of the year to give the Rangers a 4-3 lead.

Texas chased Downs in the third, loading the bases on Ivan Rodriguez's single, a double by Dean Palmer and a walk to Rob Ducey. Lee delivered a two-run single with two outs to push Texas' advantage to 6-3.

Downs yielded eight runs and eight hits in 2 2-3 innings to fall to 0-6 as a starter this year.

CMA names Gill entertainer of year

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Satiny-voiced Vince Gill bumped Garth Brooks from the top of the country music hill, winning entertainer-of-the-year honors at the Country Music Association awards.

Gill, 36, won or shared five honors Wednesday night at the CMA's 27th annual awards, including top male vocalist. His poignant "I Still Believe in You" won best song and top album.

Brooks, country music's top seller and concert draw, had also been nominated as entertainer of the year, an award he won the previous two years.

"I never cared where I sat on the totem pole," Gill said afterward. "I'm just glad to be part of it."

Alan Jackson won three honors, Brooks one and Willie Nelson got the biggest ovation at the Grand Ole Opry House as he was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame as its 54th member. The 60-year-old Nelson was decked out in formal attire instead of the usual bandanna, T-shirt and jeans.

"I really thought you had to die to get here," he said. "So I went ahead and dressed up just in case."

Gill, who led the nominations with eight, said he was surprised to win best entertainer.

"I've always operated under the theory that I don't feel like I'm an entertainer. I just feel like I'm a musician and I sing songs," he said. "I don't have the big stage show. I don't run around and do a lot of those things. I've got a killer band and it's just great singing and playing."

Death toll to 6,200 in India earthquake

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A mighty earthquake destroyed thousands of mud-and-brick homes in villages across southwestern India before dawn today, and officials said more than 6,200 people were killed.

Debris crashed down on sleeping residents as the quake ripped through a large area of Maharashtra state at 3:56 a.m. (6:26 p.m. EDT Wednesday).

More than 1,000 bodies were recovered from the rubble before darkness fell in a remote region of the state, said Maharashtra's chief secretary, N. Raghunathan.

Varying measurements put the strength of the most devastating earthquake to hit the Indian subcontinent since 1935 at between 6.0 and 6.4 on the Richter scale.

Raghunathan said more than 6,200 people were killed, with most of the victims in the Umarga and Killari districts. About 10,000 people were injured, he said.

The quake awakened people from Bombay, in Maharashtra, to Bangalore and Madras, the largest cities in southern India that are up to 400 miles from the epicenter. People fled their homes in panic as floors, doors and windows shook.

In Gulbarga, 155 miles south of Latur, people were up before dawn celebrating the festival of Ganesh and immersing idols of the elephant-faced god in water. The village's police chief, Jeevan Vaonkari, said people panicked after the quake struck.

"Everyone ran out of their homes. They are afraid that another big quake will come," he said in a telephone interview. The wall of an old temple collapsed, injuring two people.

The state government said 4,120 deaths had been recorded by this evening and at least 10,000 people were injured.

The largest death toll — 3,050 — was reported from Umarga, a town about 270 miles southeast of Bombay.

At least 1,040 people were killed in the village of Killari, said police superintendent S.P. Wathore in Bombay, the capital of Maharashtra and India's financial center.

Wathore said 25 to 30 villages in the area sustained heavy damage and casualties. Minor damage also was reported from towns and villages hundreds of miles away.

Umarga is 18 miles south of the epicenter, which is near Maharashtra's southeastern border with Madhya Pradesh and Andhra Pradesh states. In Killari, a village of 10,000 people, 80 percent of the buildings collapsed. Killari is 50 miles north of the epicenter.

Columns of army soldiers moved from three directions toward the disaster area with 1,200 tents, two bulldozers, three recovery vehicles and one crane to clear the debris, said army spokesman Maj. V.N. Tambekar.

About 1,150 soldiers reached the area within 12 hours of the quake and pulled out 600 bodies from Killari village alone, said Tambekar, who was contacted by telephone in the southern army headquarters in Poona.

Violence feared if Denny defendants are convicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Rev. Cecil "Chip" Murray, pastor of the city's biggest black church, calls it "thinking the unthinkable, speaking the unspeakable." He also worries that the unthinkable might be the inevitable.

If a jury convicts two black men of trying to murder white truck driver Reginald Denny during the opening moment of last year's riots, violence is sure to follow, some community activists say.

None condone it and none fear a repeat of last year's deadly riots. But many say there is smoldering resentment about what some see as a racist double-standard in the criminal-justice system. And this week's surprise decision by a federal judge in the Rodney King beating case only worsens it.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge John Davies allowed Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officer Laurence Powell to remain free for two more weeks while the Supreme Court decides whether to let them stay out on bail during their appeals.

In the Denny case, the defendants are being held on $580,000 apiece, and it is unlikely they will be allowed out on bail if they are convicted. The officers got 21/2 years in prison; the Denny defendants could get life.

"The potential for violence is there, especially because the cops haven't done their time yet," said Nat Williams, spokesman for a leftist activist group called Refuse & Resist! "People are upset about that."

The Police Department is concerned, too. Jury deliberations were expected to begin this afternoon, and the department was expected to go on alert, under which officers are kept on overtime duty, vacations are canceled and police maintain a heavy presence on the street.

"It's going to be very similar to what you saw during the King trial," said Officer Arthur Holmes, a police spokesman. "We have a plan and we're ready."

In April, every available officer was deployed the night before a federal jury convicted Koon and Powell in the King case. No violence broke out. A year before, 54 people died during three days of rioting that erupted after the four white officers charged in the beating were acquitted in state court.

The jury — four blacks, four Hispanics, three whites and one Asian — will decide the fates of Henry Keith Watson and Damian Williams, accused of trying to kill Denny.

The truck driver was pulled from his rig and beaten bloody in an attack that, like the King beating, was captured on videotape.

Lawmakers signal readiness to deal

MOSCOW (AP) — Isolated lawmakers signaled today they may be ready to negotiate an end to the siege of parliament by thousands of troops and riot police, and the Russian Orthodox Church said it was willing to mediate.

The softening in the hardliners' defiance came after President Boris Yeltsin's government gave legislators until Monday to surrender their weapons and leave or face "serious consequences."

There was no immediate response from Yeltsin to the lawmakers' offer.

Outside parliament, riot police, paramilitary troops and paratroopers tried to keep warm as icy winds and snow flurries buffeted the city. Armored vehicles and bulldozers were deployed overnight around the building.

Legislators have occupied the building, known as the White House, since Yeltsin dissolved parliament Sept. 21 and ordered parliamentary elections for December in a bid to end an 18-month power struggle with hard-line opponents if his political and free-market reforms.

In a sign of conciliation, lawmakers said they would negotiate with the government in the Danilovsky Monastery in Moscow if the talks were mediated by Russia's top religious leader, Orthodox Patriarch Alexy II, ITAR-Tass reported.

Alexy said the church was ready to mediate and church leaders were discussing ways to end the standoff.

"Do not take any moves which could destroy the extremely fragile peace. Do not try to solve political problems with the use of force. Do not indulge in craziness," the patriarch said in a statement.

There was no immediate response from the government to either offer or any indication it would agree to talks.

Russian Defense Minister Pavel Grachev, who has thrown the army's support behind Yeltsin, earlier said the conflict was "serious but solvable." Some regional representatives, meanwhile, were to meet today in Moscow to seek ways to end the impasse.

But conditions inside parliament were increasingly grim, with electricity, hot water and phones cut off and food supplies running low.

Senate approves hantavirus funds

by The Associated Press

The U.S. Senate has agreed to provide an additional $10 million to the national Centers for Disease Control to battle rodent-borne hantavirus.

The funding proposal, sought by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., now goes to a House-Senate conference committee to iron out differences between the two chambers' versions of the 1994 Health, Human Services and Education Appropriations Bill.

Domenici, a member of the Appropriations Committee, said it's a crucial time right now in the battle against the virus, which causes a deadly respiratory disease, because the mice believed to carry it often seek refuge indoors when the weather turns cold.

And while a recent outbreak was first identified in the Four Corners area, which encompasses parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado, Domenici said it is clearly a national problem.

In Texas, the virus has claimed the life of at least one person, and health officials are investigating a couple dozen of other suspected cases.

"With the cold months close at hand and an increased risk to exposure to rodents, it becomes increasingly important that headway be made on controlling this disease," Domenici said in a written statement issued after the Senate approved the measure Wednesday.

The Senate bill includes $50.3 million for the CDC's infectious disease activities, $10 million more than sought by President Clinton.

wide, with 24 deaths resulting from it. New Mexico appeared to have the highest concentration with 14 cases and 10 deaths.

"It is my hope that the CDC will be able to get a handle on this thing soon," Domenici said.

Groups tout prison bond amendment

AUSTIN (AP) — Groups representing criminal justice officials and crime victims are backing a $1 billion bond proposal that would finance facilities including a new state jail system for nonviolent offenders.

"We're coming up with some creative ways of dealing with these non-violent offenders, and in exchange, we're going to lock up the worst of the worst for a lot longer," said Ken Anderson, Williamson County district attorney and president-elect of the Texas District and County Attorneys association.

The bonds to finance corrections and mental health facilities are on the Nov. 2 ballot.

"The bottom line is not that this bond issue is going to cost $1 billion ... The bottom line is there are literally going to be hundreds of Texans who are not murdered," Anderson said.

"There are literally going to be thousands of Texans who are not raped. There are going to be tens of thousands of little kids who are not going to be sexually molested, and there are ... maybe hundreds of thousands of honest, hard-working Texans who are going to come home from work, walk into their front door, and not see that their house was ransacked by a burglar," he said.

Anderson cited Kenneth McDuff, who was sentenced to death earlier this year for the sexual assault and murder of Waco convenience store clerk Melissa Northrup and has become a rallying symbol for criminal justice reformers.

McDuff initially was sentenced to death in the 1966 slaying of a Fort Worth teen-ager. But the death penalty was ruled unconstitutional in 1972, and his sentence was commuted to life. McDuff was paroled in 1990.

Anderson said that under new criminal justice reforms, McDuff wouldn't have been eligible for parole until 2007. The new law put the minimum time served for capital murder at 40 years.

The new ideas include a state jail system for nonviolent offenders that is meant to free more prison space for violent criminals and help relieve a backlog of felons being held in county jails because of crowded prison conditions.

Part of the new bonds in Proposition 14 — along with $227 million left over from bonds approved in 1991 — would go to build state jail units holding 22,000 beds, a 1,000-bed women's prison unit, and juvenile and mental health facilities, according to officials.

About $665 million in bond authority would remain available for future lawmakers to use for such projects.

School bus driver fired by company

WOLFFORTH (AP) — A bus driver has been fired for making about 50 elementary and middle school students sit for 10 minutes with the windows closed in a hot school bus because some of them were misbehaving.

"The company does not condone that type of discipline, and therefore as a result, he has been terminated," said Holli Haswell from the Austin office of Durham Transportation, which has provided transportation for the Frenship School District for the past seven years.

Tuesday's incident involved a bus with about 50 students from Casey Elementary and Frenship Intermediate schools, said Paul Whitton Jr., superintendent in Wolfforth.

The driver was not identified.

"It was a case of bad judgment," Whitton said. "Apparently, he had some children who were misbehaving, and he stopped the bus to correct the problem. This was totally inappropriate."

Jamie Baack, general manager for Durham in Wolfforth, said the driver reported that he had discipline problems with the students and pulled over to wait for the students to be seated properly.

The driver reported having the students put the windows up until they were seated properly, she said.

"The students finally sat down in their seats, and he let them put their windows down, and he proceeded on his routes," Baack said.

Indictment said not political

AUSTIN (AP) — A member of the grand jury that indicted U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison says politics played no part in the panel's actions.

Moses Saldana, 62, told the Austin American-Statesman that simple mathematics could answer whether the grand jury was led astray by prosecutors bent on a political vendetta.

"If you add up our ages, it comes out to something like 600 years," Saldana said in an interview published Wednesday.

"That's a lot of experience. We are 12, very honest, upright individuals. We've all been around the block more than once. We voted our conscience," he said.

On Monday, the panel concluded a four-month investigation into the state Treasury during Mrs. Hutchison's 21/2-year tenure as its chief.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican who won a June 5 runoff election to replace U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, was charged with official misconduct, tampering with governmental records and tampering with physical evidence.

SS nominee promises to restore public faith

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shirley Sears Chater — who has admitted that she failed to pay Social Security taxes for a part-time baby sitter in the 1970s — is vowing to restore public confidence in the agency if she is confirmed as its commissioner.

At her confirmation hearing Wednesday, Chater told the Senate Finance Committee she would work to turn around a "distinct and disturbing" lack of public confidence in Social Security.

The Finance Committee could vote on Chater's nomination as early as today, followed by a Senate vote next week, according to Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, the committee's chairman.

If confirmed, Chater, president of Texas Woman's University in Denton, would take over an agency facing deepening financial and administrative problems. Social Security's telephone lines are often busy, the backlog of disability claims continues to grow and staffers in the field are stretched thin.

Social Security touches the lives of nearly every American, including the 134 million workers who pay into the system and the 42 million survivors, retirees and disabled workers who will collect $303 billion in benefits this year.

Moynihan, who has criticized the Clinton administration for not filling the agency's top job any sooner, said Social Security is "an agency in crisis." The post at the helm of the government's largest domestic program has been open for a year.

"People don't trust it, takes no initiative, gets no respect from OMB (the Office of Management and Budget)," said Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Dear Abby

This Woman's Willing to Wait To Love Madly, Truly, Deeply

by Abigail Van Buren

1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I want to comment on the letter from the woman who was planning to marry a man for whom she felt no passion.

I almost married a man I was not "in love" with. We were both 31 (never had been married and seemed so right for each other), but I didn't feel any sexual attraction for him.

Don't get me wrong, Abby, I have no problem loving a "nice guy," and I would never marry a loser just because he turned me on. Although I agree with you that passion based on lust won't last, I do feel that passion based on true love can last a lifetime. Maybe I'm too idealistic, but I would rather remain single than marry a man for whom I felt no attraction — catch or no catch.

I gave the situation a lot of thought before I ended the relationship, and I have no regrets. I have tremendous admiration for this man, but he deserves a woman who will love him completely.

To some people, security may be more important than love, but I would rather hold out for both.

"ME" IN HENDERSON, NEV.

DEAR "ME": To each his (or her) own. To paraphrase Benjamin Franklin: Where there is marriage without passion, there will be passion without marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I need advice about office etiquette. The person I was hired to replace moved to another department. Consequently, I have never worked with her and have had little opportunity to know her. She is getting married soon and a co-worker suggested that we all chip in to buy her a wedding present. I soon discovered that the gift had a price tag of $150 (to be shared by six people). Only four of the six people asked to contribute have been invited to the wedding.

I was not invited, since she doesn't know me. Also, I thought about the $25 and decided that it was not appropriate for my co-worker to ask me for this money under the circumstances. Furthermore, I felt that the gift was a bit extravagant ($25 is beyond my budget, even for peace-keeping tactics).

I told my co-worker my feelings, that it would not be appropriate for me to contribute since I don't know the bride and am not invited to the wedding. She replied that this shouldn't make any difference. She maintained that I should contribute regardless. I disagree.

What do you think, Abby? I can't afford gifts for people I don't know, and to whose wedding I am not invited

PERPLEXED AND ON A BUDGET

DEAR PERPLEXED: I think you are correct.

DEAR ABBY: After more than 30 years of marriage and some 16 collective reunions, I have concluded: Reunions should be stag! My reason is that many spouses went to different schools or are unacquainted with the spouse's classmates. If the spouse attends and knows no one, he or she will feel ill at ease and left out.

My usually quiet, anti-social husband turns into a gregarious, table-hopping "social butterfly," leaving me to sit alone or fend for myself. I have witnessed too many reminiscing conversations between "Mrs. Mita Been" and "Mr. Grassis Alwaysgreener." After the last reunion, I told "Grassis" I had made my last appearance at his reunions.

MRS. ANYONE, EVERYWHERE, U.S.A.
