Major reductions outlined in proposed county budget

By John Conger
Staff Writer

Following their first public meeting over the 1997 budget proposal Monday morning, county commissioners are working to stay in line with County Judge Ricky Fritz' budget policy of "conservative fiscal responsibility" at the department level.

The total proposed budget for 1997 is $5,633,798, down $266,491 from the 1996 budget of $5,900,289.

Almost half of the savings between the budgets comes from the $117,611 that the county will free up by switching to group medical insurance. This move will also cut two cents off the tax rate, according to Fritz.

The largest proposed funding cut from last year is in the road and bridge fund. If passed, its total budget will drop from $1,087,301 in 1996 to $645,000 for 1997, a decrease of $442,301. Fritz noted that most of the savings would be gained by the change in medical insurance and the fact that no major capital equipment needs to be purchased.

Other notable cuts in the budget proposal include $22,850 that the Texas Mental Health/Mental Retardation Department received for rent and utilities. Fritz reported to the commisioners Monday that he felt the state office had failed to provide adequate service to the public due to its caseload and staff reductions.

The County Welfare budget has a proposed reduction of $22,819. Overall, the welfare budget is half the amount it was three years ago. Fritz credited the reductions to Marge Sealy, director of Scurry County Welfare, and he praised her fiscal ability.

"She has been staying up to date on a variety of welfare policies, and for this reason she has been able to reduce costs dramatically while adequately meeting the needs of the people."

Coliseum promotion is proposed to drop slightly from last year's budget. The two-year contract between commissioners and the chamber board expires this year and officials are working on a new contract that would decrease the coliseum subsidy by 10 percent.

The sheriff's department is up for a $14,000 cut in its equipment budget. County Sheriff Keith Collier has expressed concern over the number of cars that the county would purchase. He told

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One reason our generation didn't do some of the things kids do today is because we didn't know about 'em."

Rain, Thanks!

After having once attended "DD School," we became convinced that the eight-hour course should be declared cruel and unusual punishment.

DD School is Defensive Driving, more commonly known by lead-footed drivers as "Dumb Dumb" School. While the course curriculum is valid, a student of moderate intelligence could absorb it in 30 minutes, but the law says you have to endure it eight full hours.

In some larger cities, Defensive Driving has been made more interesting by the use of a comedy routine.

But leave it to California to start a new trend. Billboards have gone up in the Los Angeles area advertising "Topless Driving Schools."

Despite the large billboards, state officials contend no topless driving schools actually exist, and the billboards were actually a spoof. Besides, keeping the mind on traffic safety might be difficult in such an environment.

We see another problem, which could be a revenue builder for the city. Motorists might intentionally violate traffic laws just so they could be sent back to school.

Rain, Thanks!

It reminds us of the story told by Justice of the Peace Chairlie Reynolds.

A man appeared in his court with a ticket for driving too fast on U.S. 84.

Reynolds asked, "How do you plea, guilty or not guilty?

"Not guilty, your honor."

"Have you ever had a ticket before?" the judge asked.

"No sir," he said, "I never drove that fast before."

First lady, Jackson to address Democrats

CHICAGO (AP) — Seeking political balance, Democrats hear tonight from Hillary Rodham Clinton and Jesse Jackson as they reach for the center with a platform that is tough on crime and calls for a balanced budget. President Clinton assailed those who try to cram him into an ideological box.

"If you spend more money you're a Democrat," he said in an interview broadcast today on CBS. "If you spend less you're a Republican. If you're a Democrat who spends less you must not have a conscience. ... I believe that politics should be more about what to do than who to blame."

Riding a train toward the convention that will nominate him for a second term on Wednesday, Clinton visited a Jeep plant in Toledo, Ohio, today and watched the two millionth Cherokee come off an assembly line.

"You proved one more time that whenever we're given a chance to compete we can be the best in the world," he told cheering workers.

Jackson and former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, voices from a liberal tradition spurned by Clinton, get their moment on the podium tonight. But the prime time slots go to Gov. Evan Bayh of Indiana, the more moderate convention keynoter, and to first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"I intend to speak about traditional values and what we can do to renew them," Bayh said. He will talk about the need "most importantly to create a better world for our children," he added.

The convention speeches and platform define Clinton's Democratic Party and try to co-opt political ground held by the Republicans over the past decade and a half.

Rep. Counts ready to make key economic announcement

A major announcement concerning operation of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice warehouse in Snyder will be made at a press conference set for 9 a.m. Wednesday.

The press conference will be held in front of the warehouse, located on U.S. Highway 84. The public is invited.

State Rep. David Counts, along with seven top officials of the TDCJ, will be present. Rep. Counts said the Snyder community will be pleased with the content of the announcement. In case of inclement weather, the announcement will be moved inside the warehouse.

Officials who have indicated they will be present include Wayne Scott, TDCJ executive director.

Others are Art Mosley, TDCJ deputy director of operations and logistics; Gary Johnson, director of the institutional division; and Jerry Peterson, deputy director for operations of the institutional division.

Others are Ron Howell, deputy director of the planning and design division; Dale Story, director of transportation and supply; and Craig Wilson, director of programs.

After the announcement, the TDCJ officials will tour the warehouse and Windham School western regional offices and will then visit the Price Daniel Unit.

The delegation will return to Huntsville following lunch.

Area gets moisture, one shower at a time

One shower at a time, Scurry County fields and stock tanks are slowly receiving some moisture.

Ira, Dunn and Fluvanna all reported a half-inch Monday, while Hermleigh received six-tenths. Eastern and northern Scurry County also received a half-inch, according to residents.

Lake J.B. Thomas, which had enjoyed 3.4 inches over the weekend, got just one-tenth on Monday. Still, Colorado River Municipal Water District officials noted a rise in elevation from 2,208.86 feet to 2,209.48, or about half a foot since last Thursday.

The City of Snyder reported two-tenths at the water plant gauge. The city has received 7.95 for the year, and just over 1.75 inches for August. The average annual rainfall for the county is 20.3 inches, according to information provided by the state.

County residents have a chance at more moisture. The forecast calls for a 40 percent chance of rain tonight and a 30 percent chance Wednesday.

Near constant cloud cover has caused temperatures to drop. An overnight low of 65 is expected, with a high temperature Wednesday between 80 and 85 degrees.

Sprinkler system on BCD agenda

Scurry Board of County Development will convene at noon Wednesday to consider funding a sprinkler system for the Winston Field terminal building area.

That topic, bills for payment and approval of previous minutes are the only items on the agenda.

Park engineering awaits DCOS board

Discussion of engineering services related to development of the industrial park will be the primary focus of Development Corporation of Snyder board Wednesday.

The board will meet at 4 p.m. in the DCOS board room at American State Bank.

Approval of previous minutes is the only other item on the agenda.

New Almanac predicting another cold winter

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Keep the long johns handy and start chopping up the firewood. After this winter's brutal cold and seemingly endless snow, the Farmers' Almanac is predicting more of the same in '97.

And this time, says almanac forecaster Caleb Weatherbee, not even warm-weather havens like Florida and southern California will be spared.

"We are looking for a cold and unsettled 1996-97 winter season, hopefully not as bad across the East as what was experienced last winter, but very similar to what was experienced during some of the winters of the late 70s.

"It looks like virtually the entire country will be subjected to stormy and unseasonably cold conditions for the upcoming winter, even in the so-called Sunbelt areas," Weatherbee writes in the almanac's 1997 edition, which is hot off the presses.

Weatherbee, however, is not predicting a replay of this summer's temperate weather. Next summer will be a scorcher, according to the 180-year-old publication.

The reclusive Weatherbee prepares his predictions using a secret formula based on sunspots, the position of the planets and the tidal pull of the moon.

A dearth of sunspot activity, for example, is regarded as an ominous sign.

"Right now it's near a lull, and that coordinates with some pretty bad weather," said Sandi Duncan, the almanac's managing editor.

Weatherbee drafts his predictions years in advance. He just turned in his 1998 prognostications and has started work on 1999.

The National Weather Service, which regards a 10-day forecast as the longest it can make with any degree of accuracy, takes the almanac's soothsaying with a grain of salt.

"I don't think anybody could say a year ahead of time what the weather would be, based on the state of the art of meteorology," said weather service spokesman Robert Chartuk.

Taking such skepticism in stride, almanac editor Peter Geiger concedes that the 1996 edition was off the mark when it predicted a "ho-hum year" for weather.

Instead, January's Blizzard of '96 dumped three feet of snow in many areas of the East Coast, and by the time spring arrived, much of the northern and eastern tier of the country had experienced record or near-record snowfall and cold.

Nonetheless, the almanac has claimed an accuracy rate of 80 to 85 percent, and Geiger says it's not unusual for couples choosing wedding dates up to a year or more in advance to consult the almanac to find out what the weather will be.

"The fact that we can do this two years in advance is mystifying to some people, but I think we do pretty well," Geiger said.

The almanac, not to be confused with the 204-year-old Old Farmer's Almanac published in New Hampshire, claims a circulation of about 5 million. The 48-page version, which accounts for most of the copies, is sold to banks, insurance companies and other businesses that distribute it free to customers as a promotional tool.

For the third year in a row, the almanac has published an expanded edition that sells at newsstands for $2.95, competing with its New Hampshire rival.

Driver, firm charged in Sea World accident

AURORA, Ohio (AP) — The driver and the owners of a stunt boat that slammed into a grandstand at Sea World of Ohio, injuring 23 people, face charges related to the boat's operation, officials said Monday.

Andrew R. Schleis was driving the boat Aug. 17 when the steering mechanism broke and the 1,500-pound boat slid five rows into the bleachers. Investigators said the boat was missing a part of its steering controls.

Schleis, 25, of Kent, was charged with failing to operate at a safe speed for the conditions and failing to turn off the motor when the steering failed. Each charge is punishable by 30 days in jail and a $250 fine.

He did not return a message left at his home Monday.

The owner of the boat, World Entertainment Services Inc. of Winter Park, Fla., was charged with three marine regulation violations unrelated to the accident but discovered during the investigation.

Investigators said the company failed to observe requirements for life preservers, on-board distress signals and anchors. Each is punishable by a $100 fine.

Tom Weber, general manager of World Entertainment Services, said the company was unaware of the regulations but would comply.

City appeals judge's ruling restricting the use of aquifer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal judge's order imposing strict water pumping limits on Edwards Aquifer users is under attack from the city of San Antonio in an appellate court.

"A federal judge is doing something that quite frankly pushes our back to the wall," Mayor Bill Thornton said Monday before heading to New Orleans with an attorney to appeal the ruling.

"What the judge wants us to do is to cut back to the point where we would not have any outdoor (water) use, residential or commercial," he said. "So we really don't have a choice but to fight this."

Senior U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton III ruled Friday that San Antonio and other major aquifer users must restrict their water pumping from the natural underground reservoir.

The ruling resulted from a Sierra Club lawsuit seeking to protect endangered species living in aquifer-fed springs in New Braunfels and San Marcos. Drought conditions have led to reduced spring flow.

Russell Johnson, attorney for the San Antonio Water System, said Monday the city wants the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to block Bunton's emergency order from taking effect while the appellate court considers the merits of the city's appeal.

No oral arguments were scheduled Monday. The city's voluminous legal appeal was filed with the court's clerk.

Thornton said he felt it necessary to personally deliver the documents.

"I want to make as strong a statement as I can that this is not just a legal maneuver, but this is a community saying to the federal judge: 'Please, leave us alone. Let us resolve this issue locally,' " he said.

The city contends it has made progress in limiting aquifer usage and claims the judge is interfering with the work of the new Edwards Aquifer Authority, created by the state to oversee aquifer usage.

People on Watch, a water group also critical of Bunton, questioned Monday why the mayor made the trip. POW leader Kay Turner said Thornton's time would be better spent in San Antonio hiring a winning legal team for the city.

POW is asking the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee to investigate Bunton for what the group claims is his "bias and prejudice" against San Antonio.

The 175-mile-long aquifer — San Antonio's sole source of drinking water — for years has been at the center of a regional water war.

Hawaii inmates involved in prison protest in Spur

SPUR (AP) — Montana and Hawaii inmates held at a private prison here were confined to their cells today, one day after one of the prisoners was injured in a disturbance in which shots were fired.

A Montana inmate was hurt after Dickens County Correctional Center guards resorted to live ammunition to scare prisoners back following a near-revolt, said Terry Pelz, director of prison operations.

"We don't know how he was injured," Pelz said Tuesday. Earlier, a Hawaii official had said the convict had been shot in the shoulder.

Pelz added that the inmate was back in his cell Tuesday morning after a trip to an emergency room in Lubbock, about 50 miles west of sparsely populated Dickens County.

He described the morning mood as "joyful."

No island inmates were injured during the uprising at Dickens County Correctional Center, said Ted Sakai, corrections division chief for the Hawaii Department of Public Safety.

About 120 inmates from Hawaii and Montana staged a two-hour sit-down in the recreation yard of the prison where they were held after reportedly protesting conditions there, Sakai said.

Both Montana and Hawaii contract out inmates to ease overcrowding.

Sakai said Warden George Fry told him the incident started when the inmates continued to mill about unsupervised in the recreation yard in violation of prison policy.

They refused to return to their cells, and officials called in sheriff's deputies and state police to assist the prison security staff.

Inmates complained about the prison's strip-search policy for inmates who do community service work outside the prison. Fry told Sakai he started the searches last week to cut down on drugs being smuggled into the jail.

Inmates also complained about small food portions, wages for prison work that at one time were as low as 16 cents an hour and what they call a lack of access to medical specialists.

After repeated warnings and the firing of rubber bullets, guards began firing live rounds of ammunition.

"We had to push them back into the general yard, so we fired some rubber bullets, and they just laughed at that," said Pelz.

Snyder Child Day Care Center announces its policy for meals

Snyder Child Day Care Center has announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals served under the Child and Adult Care Food Program.

A copy of the policy is at the main office which anyone may review.

Application forms and a letter to parents or guardians are being sent to all homes. To apply for free or reduced-price meals, households should fill out the application and return it to the contractor. Additional copies are available at the contractor's office. The information provided on the application will be used to determine eligibility; it may be verified any time during the contract year by the contractor or other program officials.

Households must provide the following information on the application: all household member's names; the Social Security number of the head of the household (or other responsible adult); and all household members incomes by source; or the household's food stamp or AFDC case number, if appropriate; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information is correct.

Applications may be submitted any time during the year.

According to the free and reduced-price policy, staff of the Snyder Day Care Center will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the official may discuss the decision with Shirley Fritz. Parents may request a formal appeal either orally or in writing by contacting the board of directors chairman.

Households must report increases of over $50 per month or $600 per year in household income, and decreases in household size. If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the contrator. These changes may qualify children for reduced-price meals or for free meals if the household's income falls to or below the levels shown above. AFDC/Food Stamp households must report termination of benefits.

Some foster children are also eligible for free or reduced-price meals. A household with foster children should contact the contractor for more information.

The information that households provide is confidential and will be used only to determine eligibility and verify data.

In the child nutrition programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against.

The following household size and income criteria will be used to determine eligibility:

Holley speaks at ABWA

Scurry Charter Chapter of ABWA met on Aug. 22 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for a program by Snyder policeman, David Holley, and a general business meeting.

The meeting opened with the invocation led by Grace Bryant followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Holley, police department school resource officer, told ABWA members his job includes duty at Snyder High School, Snyder Junior High and sometimes the elementary schools.

A 1987 graduate of SHS and the Abilene police school in 1992, Holley said he enjoys his job because he likes to help children. He joined the Snyder PD four years ago and currently is the liaison between the students, teachers and administrators in Snyder.

"Many children have family problems and I listen and try to help them," he stated. He works in full uniform and has the open door policy. "Ninety-five to ninety-eight percent of the kids are good kids," he commented.

Holley was introduced by Carol Young, program chairman.

Inez Teaff, vocational chairman, introduced Young who gave the vocational talk. She has been employed by Bullard's Computer Solutions Inc. for one year.

Members made plans for the Sept. 26 fall enrollment project and birthday ladies for August were Vern Beasley and Glenda Glasscock. Maxie McNew and Genetha Payne were hostesses to 12 members and two guests.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A TV producer suing Loni Anderson over an infomercial deal admitted praising the show to the actress while privately predicting it would be disastrous.

"You can hope one thing and think another," she said. "I wanted to be wrong."

When it goes against the grain

By Phillip Alder

There is a large tree of knowledge that needs to be absorbed if one is to play bridge well. Each ring in the trunk is like another technique to be mastered. And the whorls are the plays that go against the grain, making them hard to find at the table. How would you size up this four-heart contract after West has led a diamond?

North's four diamonds was a splinter bid showing game values in hearts with a singleton or void in diamonds. This is a much more useful interpretation for the bid than as natural and pre-emptive.

Given North's response, West's choice of lead leafs [sic] a lot to be desired. A club start would defeat the contract, but a spade attack is also logical.

Declarer immediately played a trump, but East didn't err. He switched to the ace and queen of clubs; then he branched out with the spade jack. Having no way to avoid losing a trick to West's club king, declarer conceded one down.

"With only eight high-card points, weren't you a bit thin for your splinter bid?" asked South.

"I don't think so, as I had only seven losers. But even if I bid four hearts, the final contract is the same. And you could have made it when West didn't lead a club. You must immediately cash the spade king, overtake the spade queen with dummy's ace and ruff the spade eight in your hand. Then exit with a trump."

"Oh, yes," said South. "I see what you mean. After taking his two club tricks, East is beeched [sic]. Whether he returns a spade or a diamond, I ruff in hand and discard dummy's club loser. What a 'ash I made of it!"

Netters get two wins in weekend action

Despite the rain, the Snyder High School tennis team won two matches Saturday on the local courts.

The Tigers took care of San Angelo Lake View 14-2 and then disposed of Fort Stockton 18-7. "The team is gaining confidence with the wins over Lake View and Fort Stockton," said coach Chad Redwine. "They started out as a team and played through the whole day as a team. The team is real motivated to improve and get ready for district. We need to keep focused on improving before district."

Two young players who had good matches were Andrea Pavlik and Ashley Herrera. Pavlik knocked off Robbie Offill of Lake View, 6-1, 6-2 and Herrera won a three-set match over Renee Romo of Lake View, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2. The two local players teamed up to defeat Offill and Romo in doubles, 6-3, 6-1.

In the match with Fort Stockton, the twosome defeated Marci SanMiguel and Diana Falcon, 6-1, 6-3.

Anna Hanan was moved up to the number six spot for the girls and according to her coach, "Looks like she wants to stay there." Hanan won her singles match over Sarah Casas from Fort Stockton, 6-0, 6-2 and was ahead of Beth Moorehead of Lake View, 3-1 when the rains ended the match.

For the boys, Ty Jones and Zack Briseno won their singles matches. Jones took a two-set match over Lake View's Bryan Wheeler, 6-1, 6-3 and also against Fort Stockton's Tracy Lockhart, 6-2, 6-2.

Briseno won a 6-2, 6-4 match off Lake View's Matt Driggs and defeated Fort Stockton's John Wayne Bailey 7-6, 6-2.

In doubles, Jones and Briseno won matches over Wheeler and Briggs, 6-4, 6-3 but lost to Rubio and Lockhart of Fort Stockton, 6-4, 6-3.

The next action for the netters will be today when Brownfield comes to Snyder for a 4 p.m. match.

Fan falls out and so do the Astros, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — A fan fell out of the stands, and the Houston Astros dropped within a half-game of falling out of first place in the NL Central.

Willie McGee went 3-for-4 Monday night and hit a two-run homer that inspired the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-2 victory and a series split with the Houston Astros.

McGee also doubled in the second and beat out a ground ball for a hit in the eighth. As the call was being argued, a fan fell out of the stands in right field, delaying the game for about 10 minutes.

Center fielder Brian Hunter and right fielder Derek Bell ran over to assist the fan.

"I went over there and asked him if he was all right," Bell said. "He was kind of slurring his words and he said 'somebody pushed me.'"

Hunter said the fan, George Shaver, appeared semi-conscious when he approached him.

"By the time I got there, he seemed to know what planet he was on," Hunter said.

Shaver was taken off the field on a stretcher and went to the emergency room at Hermann Hospital, where he did not seem to have any serious injuries.

Doctors wanted to keep him for further tests, but he ignored their advice and walked out with a couple of friends.

"He didn't appear to have any obvious deformities," hospital administrator Lee Farrell said. "We didn't see any great distress."

The damage had already been done to the Astros, who lost a chance to go up 2½ games on the second-place Cardinals.

Monday's game was the only one McGee played in the four-game series, but he made his presence felt and may have changed his mind about retiring at season's end.

"We'll have to wait and see how the rest of the year goes, how I feel at the end of the season and how the club feels," McGee said. "There's a lot of things involved. I have to talk it over with my family and see what's out there."

SHS Lady Tigers in Midland for 2 matches

The Snyder High School volleyballers return to the court tonight in Midland to take on Midland Lee and Pecos.

Matches begin at 5 o'clock for the varsity and JV in the Lee gym. The freshman will also start at 5 in the Lee freshman gym.

The Lady Tigers varsity is 2-1 on the young season, coming off a two-set victory over Bronte Saturday, 15-12, 15-11.

This weekend, the volleyballers will be in Fort Worth for the Justin Northwest tournament.

Chang, Agassi win 1st-round encounters

NEW YORK (AP) — The controversial U.S. Open re-draw put Michael Chang and Andre Agassi on course to meet in the semifinals. They both took the first steps toward getting there, Agassi more easily than Chang.

Chang showed few of the skills that made him a No. 2 seed as he struggled past Brazilian Jaime Oncins 3-6, 6-1, 6-0, 7-6 (8-6). The sixth-seeded Agassi, on the other hand, looked like the player who has reached the final at the National Tennis Center the last two years as he zipped by Colombia's Mauricio Hadad 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

With the players' outrage over the men's singles seedings beginning to wane and the number of withdrawals growing at an alarming rate, the year's final Grand Slam tournament rolls out the big guns today, including defending men's champion Pete Sampras and both women's finalists from a year ago — top-seeded Steffi Graf and No. 2 Monica Seles.

Austria's Thomas Muster, ranked No. 2 in the world but bumped down to No. 3 in the seedings, was one of the first to take the court this morning, taking on dangerous Javier Frana of Argentina.

Monday's matches weren't without a few upsets.

Sixth-seeded Anke Huber of Germany was bounced by South Africa's Amanda Coetzer 6-1, 2-6, 6-2 and No. 12 Magdalena Maleeva of Bulgaria was ousted by Polish qualifier Aleksandra Olsza 6-4, 6-2.

The tournament also lost No. 9 Mary Joe Fernandez, who withdrew because of tendinitis in her right wrist. She was replaced in the draw by Tina Krizan of Slovenia.

"Tonight I went out there to take care of business from start to finish," Agassi said. "I couldn't be more pleased."

Dressed in a long-sleeve purple shirt and black shorts, cap and sneakers, Agassi said he was nervous playing a first-round U.S. Open match.

"I think there are a lot of nerves, but even more so when you haven't done well in the other Grand Slams," said Agassi, who was knocked out in the first round of Wimbledon and the second round of the French after reaching the semifinals at the Australian. "You want to come out and establish yourself as a threat in the tournament."

He did that superbly. Hadad never had a chance, not against the Agassi who won the Olympic gold medal earlier this month.

FDA probes safety of dietary supplements

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is preparing to stop sales of herbs that promise Generation Xers a "natural high," and is probing whether even traditional dietary supplements that contain a controversial stimulant are endangering Americans.

At issue is the botanical version of ephedrine, sold in dietary supplements that claim to spur weight loss and boost energy. Some companies also market it to young people as an alternative to illegal drugs like Ecstasy, promising the same euphoria and other hallucinogenic effects.

But the stimulant can cause severe reactions, from seizures to strokes. The Food and Drug Administration has received more than 600 reports of injuries — and 17 deaths — associated with ephedrine supplements.

Now FDA officials say they are moving to stop sales by one side of the industry: Supplements pushed, on the Internet and in counterculture publications, as "herbal high" alternatives to illegal drugs.

In letters that often are one of the agency's last steps before taking a company to court, the FDA last week accused six firms of ignoring repeated warnings about health risks.

"We consider marketing of these products to be irresponsible," says one letter, obtained by The Associated Press, that gives companies until Friday to settle the issue. The FDA has not said what its next step would be.

At the same time, the FDA today was asking outside scientists whether there should be curbs on even traditional herbal supplements containing ephedrine that are sold in health-food stores, such as ma huang, Chinese ephedra or an asserted athletic booster called Ripped Fuel.

"We are very concerned" because reports of injuries have almost doubled in the last year, said FDA spokesman Arthur Whitmore.

Ephedra, ephedrine's natural version, does pose some risks, particularly to people with heart disease, hypertension and certain other conditions, acknowledged Michael McGuffin of the American Herbal Products Association.

At the FDA's two-day meeting starting today, the industry will offer to put warnings to that effect on ephedrine supplements, and to limit the amount anyone should consume in a day, McGuffin said.

"There is an appropriate means by which ephedra can be consumed," McGuffin insisted.

But McGuffin and health-food stores are trying to separate their products from the "drug-mocking" competitors the FDA targeted last week — ones like Herbal Ecstacy, whose manufacturer has said it invented the product especially as an alternative to the illegal drug Ecstasy.

"Those street-drug knockoff products ... invite abuse," McGuffin said.

Herbal Ecstacy is perfectly safe, counters William Dailey, attorney for manufacturer Global World Media Corp., one of the six firms that received FDA warning letters last week.

Its inventor, Sean Shayan, has touted the product as safer than street drugs. Last spring he thanked the FDA, saying his sales actually increased after the agency issued a consumer warning against such products.

Still, his attorney said Monday that Herbal Ecstacy has changed its advertising and conforms with FDA rules.

"If they go to court regarding the safety of the products, they'll lose," Dailey said. "Maybe in the past there were some (marketing) things that were questionable, but that has changed."

The FDA isn't alone in cracking down. Florida banned all ephedrine supplements last spring when a 20-year-old college student died after taking Ultimate Xphoria, a competitor to Herbal Ecstacy that recently was pulled off the market.

Sixteen other states now require a prescription for ephedrine supplements, and Texas is poised to do the same.

The FDA isn't saying what action it will take regarding traditional herbal supplements that contain ephedrine.

Panel OKs crack down on drunken teens

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Jim Turner, D-Crockett, remembers the deaths of two high school classmates of his children in an alcohol-related accident.

Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, holds up a stack of fake identification cards picked up by the state on just one night in one store on South Padre Island during spring break.

Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, distributes a newspaper article detailing how hundreds of teen-agers cross the border into Matamoros to drink: "This is an every-weekend occurrence," he says.

Now they're recommending stiff punishment to fight it, including driver's license suspension for those under the legal drinking age of 21 found driving with any amount of alcohol in their system.

"Juvenile drinking and driving is absolutely unacceptable behavior, period. It is a serious and deadly action, and we mean business in the Legislature when we say this will no longer be tolerated," said Sen. Florence Shapiro, R-Plano.

The Senate panel unanimously approved recommendations Monday to be forwarded to the 1997 session of the Legislature for consideration. Voting for it were Lucio, Shapiro, Turner, West and Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio.

The zero-tolerance proposal on underage drinking and driving has a financial incentive: While it's estimated to cost $1 million to implement, Texas would lose millions more in federal highway funding if such a law isn't enacted.

If there's no zero-tolerance law by Oct. 1, 1998, Texas would lose $38.4 million, according to a federal estimate. If there's no law a year later, it would lose another $76.8 million for highway construction and maintenance.

Other recommendations include a new driver's license system to limit teen-agers' after-midnight driving and harsher penalties for violating underage drinking laws, including driver's license suspension for non-driving offenses.

Besides the financial incentive to cut down on underage drinking, there's the cost in lives. According to state statistics for 1994, 5,645 people were killed or injured in accidents with an alcohol-impaired or intoxicated driver age 21 or under.

Turner, recalling the deaths several years ago of two Crockett High School classmates of his now college-age children, said, "When you go to a funeral of a young person that you know and that are classmates of your children, and you see the sadness and the tragedy and the heartache and the loss that that represents you certainly don't want to see it happen again."

West said he wants all the recommendations to be included in one bill to be filed for the upcoming legislative session, which begins in January. He also said he would like to see all the committee members sign on as co-authors.

"Our work is not over," he said. "It's basically just beginning."

Actor Jan-Michael Vincent seriously injured in mishap

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Actor Jan-Michael Vincent, former star of TV's "Airwolf," suffered a broken neck after he drove into his girlfriend's Cadillac, lost control of his car and struck a traffic signal, police said.

Vincent, who has a history of substance abuse, may have been driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol when he crashed Monday afternoon, said Lt. Rich Paddock of the Orange County Sheriff's Department.

Vincent was listed in very critical condition at Mission Hospital Regional Medical Center this morning. He was on a ventilator and unconscious, said nursing supervisor Kathy Keyes.

He may have severed his spinal cord, Keyes said.

The 52-year-old actor was following his girlfriend, Nicole Wallace, 28, to her mother's house when he slammed his 1988 Mazda into the back of her 1985 Cadillac.

Authorities said Wallace and her two sons, ages 5 and 6, were not hurt.

Vincent was in the miniseries "The Winds of War," and most recently co-starred in the low-budget 1995 film, "The Ice Cream Man."

Family's pet cougar mauls toddler

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — A two-year-old girl was in the hospital today after being attacked by a cougar bought as a family pet.

Provincial police say the three-year-old cougar was purchased Friday by a family living in a rural area 30 miles south of this southwestern Ontario city.

That night, the girl wandered into the pen where her father was working with the animal, and it attacked her.

"The cougar saw the child and pounced on it and wouldn't release it," said police spokesman Dennis Harwood.

The girl's father frantically tried to free his daughter, but the 150-pound cat wouldn't let go until his wife arrived.

The child was in critical but stable condition in a local hospital Monday, officials said. Police were withholding the family's name at their request.

Harwood said the cougar has been returned to the exotic animal farm where it was purchased.

It was the second cougar attack in Canada in a week. A British Columbia mother was killed while saving her six-year-old son from a wild cougar last week.

Couple Should Straighten Out Money Issue Before Tying Knot

DEAR READERS: I'll be on vacation between Aug. 18 and Aug. 31. Don't panic — I've selected some of my favorite letters from past years to fill the gap. I hope you enjoy them.

DEAR ABBY: I need help with a problem I can't discuss with anyone I know. I'm a 70-year-old widow, in good health and living in my own home, which is paid for. A man about my age has asked me to marry him, and I've said yes. He lives in another state in an apartment building he owns. He's willing to move to my town and even to my home.

My problem: Shouldn't we have a financial arrangement beforehand? He has grown children and so do I. I don't want his money, but I think he should assume my financial support when I marry him. How do I bring this up?

Should we get a lawyer? I'm afraid that would look like I didn't trust him. I do, but I want my children's inheritance left intact.

Thanks for any advice you can offer.

SECOND TIME AROUND

DEAR SECOND: You most certainly should have a lawyer draw up a prenuptial agreement beforehand stating clearly who pays for what after you marry as well as what kind of settlement there will be should the marriage end in divorce.

You should bring it up in plain English, unless you can communicate better in another language.

He's no doubt just as eager to have his financial responsibility (and yours) clearly defined before he says, "I do."

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of something my fiance said last night. I asked him if he had ever changed a baby's diaper, and he replied, "Absolutely not; the thought of it repulses me."

Abby, I am not saying this particular task should be shared equally between us, but I would like to think that if we had a child and I happened to be away for a few hours, my husband would change our baby's diaper if necessary.

What do you think?

DECEMBER BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: I think there should be some changes made before you have children. And for openers, one should be your fiance's attitude.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am the younger of two sons in a family business. My father, who runs the business, is a very impatient man. I can never do anything to please him. He finds fault with everything I do. When I try to defend myself, he just throws up his hands in disgust and walks away.

There's not a day that passes in my life that he doesn't find fault with me. I am losing confidence in myself. I do my very best, and all I get is verbal abuse. I just can't tolerate it anymore.

What should I do?

M. IN BALTIMORE

DEAR M.: Get another job. Or find a doctor who treats ulcers.

***

DEAR ABBY: There is a question I have been wanting to ask you for a long time.

What do you say when some idiot comes up to you, just stands there and says, "Where have I seen you before?

BUGGED IN BUTTE

DEAR BUGGED: I reply, "I don't know. Where have you been?"

DEAR READERS: If you would like your letter considered for publication, please include your name, area code and telephone number.

Abby shares more of her favorite, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, More Favorite Recipes, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Hindu pilgrimmage turns into death march

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — The dead lay in rows, their clothes tattered, their bodies rigid. The living huddled for warmth, mourning the victims and weeping over their five-day ordeal in a remote Himalayan region.

After a freak snowstorm and torrential rains turned a peaceful Hindu religious pilgrimage into a death march, survivors were struggling today to cope with a disaster that left at least 160 people dead.

"People died like stray dogs do," said Bansi Lal Sharma, a Hindu pilgrim who walked for seven hours to Pahalgam, once an idyllic tourist site in the Indian state of Jammu-Kashmir.

The capricious weather cut short his trek to Amarnath Cave, where he and tens of thousands of other pilgrims had hoped to pay homage to Shiva, the Hindu god of destruction.

Mules, an important means of transport along the rocky paths in mountainous Kashmir, hauled the victims from their frigid graves.

The last of the survivors trickled in to Pahalgam from Seshnag, a hamlet along the route to Amarnath, a cave some 13,500 feet above sea level.

Volunteers from religious groups handed out fried bread and curry today to thousands of Hindu pilgrims who returned from Seshnag.

About 80,000 pilgrims were on the trek when the storm struck. By this afternoon, more than 60,000 people had retreated to Pahalgam. Nearly 20,000 had reached towns near Jammu and were stranded but safe.

In lush green fields, where tourists once had picnics or strolled by a nearby stream, the bodies of hundreds of victims cremated a day earlier were still smoldering.

Most of the storm's victims died from exposure to the cold. Some died of heart failure.

Exhausted pilgrims blamed the government for not warning them about the weather and not providing medical camps to cope with such a disaster.

"I alone counted 32 bodies on the trail," said Sharma. "Many others in Seshnag were dying. Their mouths were open. They were gasping for breath and were cold."

He said he got some hot water and tried to revive some people. But he did not think they survived.

Military helicopters plucked 2,000 pilgrims from the mountainside on Sunday after the weather cleared for the first time since the ordeal began.

This was the worst disaster to hit the annual Amarnath pilgrimage, which this year attracted a record 115,000 people. The previous record was 68,000 in 1988.

Pilgrims from the temperate Indian plains and unused to mountain tracks had ignored instructions to carry warm clothes. Many were unaware snow or even rain could make temperatures drop from 77 degrees to below freezing in a few hours.

"Some people from my state were in summer dresses," said Kuldeep Singh Shekhawat, a pilgrim from Rajasthan, a state known for its warm climate.

Will surgery end his sex life?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm scheduled to have my prostate gland reamed out some time this year. Will the procedure diminish my sexual feelings? I'm 67 years old.

DEAR READER: Prostate surgery, to remove part of the gland that has enlarged because of age, does not ordinarily affect sexual interest. But, depending on the method and the amount of excised tissue, it can certainly cause impotence.

Before having the procedure, you should discuss the potential consequences of it with your urologist. There may be other options to consider, such as Proscar, a prescription drug that shrinks the prostate gland.

Whatever method you choose, be absolutely certain that you fully understand the drawbacks and possible complications. The urologist has an obligation to explain the risks as well as the benefits of prostate surgery and drug therapy.

Bug him until you are confident that you can make an informed decision.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "The Prostate Gland." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an 82-year-old man with hemolytic anemia who has been getting blood transfusions for over two years. I feel good after each transfusion and wonder if there is a future cure for me or if this could go on indefinitely.

DEAR READER: Hemolytic anemia is due to the rapid destruction of red blood cells. For a variety of reasons, the red cells die long before their 120-day normal life span.

This can be caused by an autoimmune reaction (to certain drugs, such as penicillin), infection, reactions to transfusions, abnormal red cell proteins (sickle-cell disease and others), and an over-active spleen. In many patients, no cause can be discovered.

The diagnosis is made by a series of blood tests. Treatment depends on the reason for the anemia. Nevertheless, many such patients can be helped by removal of the spleen. In others, periodic transfusions may be required.

I don't know the cause of your hemolytic anemia, although I assume that your doctor has investigated the many possibilities I listed. Evidently, he believes that your disease can be best treated with blood replacement when your symptoms (weakness, fatigue and others) become too troublesome.

There is, of course, a small but real risk in the transfusions themselves, such as hepatitis and unexpected transfusion incompatibility.

I'm afraid that your current method of therapy will last indefinitely, unless your hematologist chooses to try another tack — such as the spleen surgery I mentioned. Ask him about this; you may have more options than you've been led to believe.

Kansas farmers expect boost from bill, weather and wheat

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Last spring, Harold Hainsworth's wheat didn't look good. Static electricity caused by dry wind killed the fields. Then blowing dust covered the plants.

Last year, the south-central Kansas farmer lost his wheat crop to disease; the year before that, a hail storm claimed the crop.

But he is now preparing an early harvest of acres of healthy crop. The difference: the crop is milo, federal farm policy has changed and the weather has cooperated, leaving fields dry for planting and showering seedlings with rain.

This spring, it looked as though Kansas grain farmers were going to suffer through a hard year as many wheat fields were lost to drought and cold weather.

This fall, the same farmers could be harvesting crops that are the envy of the Midwest.

Kansas Agricultural Statistics' weekly crop report, released Monday, rated the fall crops mostly good to excellent across the state. The fall harvest should begin in the next few weeks and last through November.

The state agency has forecast a record corn crop of 340.8 million bushels — well above 1994's record of 304.6 million bushels.

Part of the increase was due to a bad wheat harvest, said Art Barnaby, professor of agriculture economics at Kansas State University. Like many other farmers, Hainsworth plowed under his wheat and planted a fall crop. That a head start to his milo, a grain used for feed and other purposes.

And the new federal farm bill is helping, said Barnaby. It allows farmers to plant whatever crops they choose and gives them fixed, declining payments.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Aug. 28, 1996

Luck might play a more active role in your affairs in the year ahead. A fortuitous intervention might convince you to alter your objectives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The commitments you make to others will be taken seriously today. Do not tarnish your image by committing yourself to something you'll ignore later. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Developments that affect your finances will be handled well today, but you might not operate as efficiently in other areas of your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today if you plan a fun activity, select your guests carefully. Do not invite an acquaintance who has a gift for rubbing others the wrong way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep things as democratic as possible at home today. Do not make decisions that affect your household without consulting your family first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to maintain a harmonious relationship with a close friend today, try not to bring up issues that generated disagreement previously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not take anything for granted in your commercial affairs today. What you think you have gained could slip through your fingers if you get careless.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In a partnership arrangement today ideas which make sense to you might not appeal to your counterpart in the least. Seek the middle ground.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An opportunity may present itself to you today, but you must handle it properly. Do not rest on your laurels when you should be hard at work.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Expressing your independence is an admirable trait, but it is also wise to know when you shouldn't go against the will of the majority.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If something good develops for you today, make sure to include others. What you achieve will seem hollow if no one is in the cheering section.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Treat today's developments philosophically and try not to take life too seriously. You won't perform well if you get up-tight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, use caution when managing your resources to ensure that you can earn a profit. Do not be prudent one minute and extravagant the next.

All on board Sudanese airliner freed

LONDON (AP) — Armed Iraqi hijackers surrendered to police today after freeing all passengers and crew aboard a Sudanese airliner, ending a 17-hour drama that began on a flight from Sudan to Jordan. All the hostages were unharmed.

Seven Iraqis, some of them carrying guns, were arrested shortly after noon at London's Stansted Airport. Essex county police chief John Burrow said there could be up to eight hijackers.

The hijacking of the airliner, with 199 people on board, has been "successfully concluded," Burrow told a news conference. "All the hostages have been released, the hostage-takers have now come off the airliner."

He said three passengers were taken to local hospitals for treatment of illnesses unrelated to the hijacking.

Burrow said the Iraqis indicated they would be seeking political asylum.

Within minutes of the news that the hijacking was over, the pilot was seen walking down the airplane's steps — apparently the last passenger or crew member to leave Sudan Airways Flight 150. A bomb squad waited to search the plane.

The hijackers commandeered the flight Monday night about 25 minutes after it left the Sudanese capital of Khartoum heading for Amman, Jordan. The Airbus 310 jetliner landed at Larnaca International Airport in Cyprus to refuel before the hijackers ordered it flown to London.

Burrow said that — at the hijackers' request — a representative of the Iraqi Community Association in London, Saddiq Saddah, was brought to the control tower to speak with them.

After speaking with Saddah, the hijackers agreed to surrender, Burrow said.

Also at the hijackers' request, representatives from the Red Cross and the United Nations Commission on Refugees were brought to the airport.

Iraqi dissidents said Saddah, a founder of the association who left it several years ago, is well-known for helping exiles and refugees.

County budget reviewed commissioners that the county policy of replacing vehicles is "inconsistent," and he asked them to consider a policy of buying three new cars every two years instead of two cars.

Judge Fritz later responded that the two policies are not substantially different from one another. "Sheriff Collier and I agree on the rotation principle," said Fritz. "Now it's just a matter of debating how many cars we can afford to buy every two years."

One area that has been proposed for an increase is the airport budget. Some $81,000 is budgeted to match an $810,000 grant by the Texas Department of Transportation for runway repairs. The repairs involve putting emulsion on runways and restriping them. To receive the TxDOT grant the county is required to pay 10 percent of the overall grant.

Fritz said he was pleased with the 1997 budget proposal. He believes that no services will be cut drastically, and he feels the proposed budget to be "financially healthy."

"I can't see any possible catastrophe that is not covered in this budget."

Citing the county's recent financial stability, Fritz has proposed a three percent pay increase for all county employees.

He told county commissioners that the pay increase would be a well-deserved reward for county employees, who have not seen raises in the last 10 years.

"People who have worked ten years without a salary increase are working for even less money today when you consider the rate of inflation," said Fritz. "With this raise I want to reward county employees for their hard work."

He also noted that the proposed tax cuts for 1997 were a deciding factor in the salary increase. "I would not have proposed the salary increase if a proposed tax cut were not in the budget."

County commissioners are scheduled to reconvene Sept. 3 for a final vote on the budget proposal.

Bosnia's local elections postponed

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnia's municipal elections were called off today by an election official who cited "widespread abuse of rules and regulations."

National elections will go ahead Sept. 14 for a three-member presidency, a national legislature and state legislatures in the two parts of Bosnia — the Muslim-Croat federation and the Serb republic.

The decision by the international group running Bosnia's elections comes one day before the scheduled start of absentee voting by hundreds of thousands of refugees.

Bosnia's nationalist parties — especially the Bosnian Serbs — have been accused of telling refugees where to vote in order to solidify ethnically pure regions in the war-divided country.
