Council Election Set...

Gas Rate Hike Delayed For At Least A Month

The Snyder City Council last night delayed action for at least a month on a new gas rate ordinance.

The action--or lack of action--came following a discussion with Wedge Turner, local manager for Lone Star Gas Co.

The gas company filed application for a rate hike to increase its revenues by six percent last November. At that time, the council tabled the application for 120 days.

Utilities are permitted to put new rates into effect under bond 90 days after they make a request, and the 90 days have passed since the current request was made here. However, actual billing under these circumstances cannot begin for 30 days, and if the council passes on first reading an ordinance granting the request before that 30-day expires, the new rates are not effective until 30 days after a second reading of the odinance. This would delay the first billing under the new rates in until May. The council, which indicated that it felt the new rates are justified, opted for the latter procedure, which means an extra 30 days for Snyder consumers under the old rates.

The council authorized Mayor Milton Ham to call the city election for April 4. The terms of Dr. John Best, Place 1; Dr. Joe Reaves, Place 3, and David Holt, Place 5, expire this spring. In addition, voters will fill Place 2 and Place 6 for the remaining year on their terms. Ed Thrift is now serving by appointment in Place 2 and Rod Waller is serving by appointment in Place 6 as a result of resignations of Bryce Booker and Jerry Webb, both of whom moved from the city following their election last spring.

Bids were authorized for water line replacements to cost an estimated $296,000. These will include mostly four-inch lines, said George Lee, the city's general superintendent. To be replaced are a number of two-inch lines and other facilities where chronic problems have developed.

In other business, the council accepted the bid of Treanor Equipment Co. of Abilene for the purchase of an elevated scraper for use at the city's sanitary landfill. The bid of $94,358 for the Caterpillar machine was higher than three other quotations among the six proposals received. However, staff and council members expressed belief that the Caterpillar machine would have greater trade-in value after use and that availability of service would be better. Also, two of the proposals which came in below the successful bid included exceptions to specifications, including the lowest bid received, which was $78,103. The highest bid was $101,750.

Tim Collier was awarded a five-year lease to operate the city's 120-acre alfalfa farm near the wastewater disposal plant. His bid calls for payment of $12,000 per year to the city, the higher of two proposals received.

Joe Sentell was appointed as an alternate on the Zoning Board of Adjustments, and James Rosser was named to the Colorado River Municipal Water District Board to fill the vacancy created by the death of Dr. John Blum.

New Record...

53 Indictments Returned Here

Fifty-three indictments – a record high – were returned Monday by a Scurry County grand jury.

Of the 53 indictments, 19 were returned against Annette Donnelly and 17 were returned against Floyd Dale White.

The previous record number of indictments was 48 returned five years ago.

Mrs. Donnelly is alleged to have taken approximately $5,500 in rent money and security deposits at the Windridge Apartments from J. Murry Bowden. The thefts are alleged to have occurred during a period stretching from June 1, 1978, to June 10, 1979. No amount was smaller than $800 nor greater than $500, according to the complaint.

White, Rt. 1. Box 56A, is charged with burglarizing autos or buildings owned by Adam Holladay, George Mraz, Ford Spikes, Loyal T. Siebert, Clarence Airhart, Mrs. W.D. Sims, Howard Dorman, J.E. Newsome, Lynn Bratton, Karl Humble, Billy Dan Stockton, Calvin Goebel, Danny Chaney, Eugene Good, Jesse Chavez, Sheryl Chambers, and Charles Clinkinbeard from Oct. 12, 1980 to Jan. 4, 1981.

Henry Carrisalez, Skyline Motel, was indicted on a forgery-by- making charge. He is alleged to have passed a forged $395 check Jan. 1 on the bank account of Farmers' Cooperative Gin Co.

Jim Minter of Enid, Okla., was indicted on a theft-by-check charge. The indictment alleges he wrote a $264 check last November on a closed account.

Robert Grametbaur, no current address available, was indicted on a theft-by-check charge. He is alleged to have written a $234 check on a fictitious account.

A theft indictment was returned against George Allen Tucker, 26th St. and Ave. F. He is charged with stealing a cassette car stereo tape player from Radio Shack Jan. 10.

Two Conroe Men, Bernard Dale Garett Jr. and Eddie Wayne King, were indicted on theft charges for allegedly stealing a $10,000 set of tubing tongs from Danny Derryberry.

Saint John Garcia, 807 34th St., was indicted on a theft offense. He is charged with stealing $380 from Cash Foods.

Indictments of driving while intoxicated were returned against George Byron Casey, 506½ 28th St., Manuel Sanchez, Old Lubbock Highway, and John Ramon Gonzales, Kola St.

Seven burglary indictments were issued against a man and woman as yet not arrested.

The grand jury also no-billed (refused to indict) Kenneth Dale Wortham, 3111 39th St., who had been charged with unlawful possession of a firearm, and Randy Middleton, 5400 College Ave., who had been charged with theft.

Serving on the grand jury were Daisy Lewis, Ray Pruitt, Mike Rodriquez, Horrace Bostick, Judie Reed, Bill Starnes, Cyrus Miller, Barbara Gray, Carolyn Harrington, Richard Hardin, D.D. Shelburne, and Martin Pena Jr.

Candidates Sign For School, City Offices

Filing began today for city and school political races, and several candidates had their pens ready.

Joseph D. Hinton became the first candidate to file for a place on the Snyder Independent School District ballot. He is seeking Place 7 on the school board, a post now held by Ted Crenwelge, president of the board. Crenwelge indicated last week that he would not seek re-election.

Hinton, 51, is an architect and resides at 2804 32nd St. in Snyder.

The term of Bill Eiland, Place 6, also expires this spring.

Candidates had also filed this morning for three city council positions that will be filled in this year's election.

Gale McPherson, 32, an engineer for Chevron U. S. A., filed for Place 1 on the council. He resides at 4704 El Paso. He is seeking the post now held by Dr. John Best, who has indicated that he will not seek re-election.

John Wilson, 35, Certified Public Accountant, is a candidate for Place 3 on the council. Dr. Joe Reaves, the Place 3 incumbent, announced at Monday night's council meeting that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Rod Waller, who was appointed to Place 6 on the council last fall when Jerry Webb moved from the city, has filed as a candidate for the remaining year of that term. Waller, 49, is owner of Arrow Construction Co. and is a former council member.

Two other places will be filled on the council this year. The two-year term of David Holt expires and the remaining year on the term of Bryce Booker, who moved from the city last summer, will be filled. Ed Thrift is serving by appointment in that post at present.

Both the city and schools will hold their elections on Saturday, April 4.

The deadline for candidates to file is Wednesday, March 4. School candidates may file with the secretary of the board at the school administration building, while city candidates may file with the city secretary at city hall.

Budget Office Has Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan is honing his proposals for reducing federal spending, congressional economists have come up with 105 ways to cut billions of dollars from the budget and increase revenues.

The proposals are contained in a Congressional Budget Office study submitted today to the House Budget Committee.

Actions described range from simply increasing efficiency to imposing direct fees to pay for government services such as Coast Guard activities. Some of the proposals have been rejected by previous congresses and others were contained in former President Jimmy Carter's budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Although the report from the non-partisan economic research arm of Congress stresses that the proposals are examples and do not constitute recommendations, it adds: "If the Congress is to bring down federal spending...something of the sort described here will have to happen."

There is no way to arrive at a grand total of projected savings or revenue gains for the separate items because some of the proposals are alternatives to others, and some might have spinoff effects on other federal programs that cannot be calculated.

Ask Us

Q.—What does "Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws" mean as referred to in the closing of the American Magnesium plant?

A.—This is one of various provisions in the bankruptcy laws that makes it possible for a firm with financial problems to get "protection" from its creditors while it tries to solve its problems under supervision of a court. We are told that such a step may lead to reorganization of a firm, sale of the firm, or bankruptcy if nothing can be worked out to the satisfaction of the court and the creditors.

Snyder's contribution to the professional staff of the Colorado River Municipal Water District's headquarters in Big Spring has retired.

R. A. (Skeet) Schooling put in his last day Friday as administrative assistant in charge of recreational facilities. Schooling is a former president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, and at the time Snyder became a CRMWD member city, he was named to the original board of directors. He operated an automobile agency here for several years and also owned and operated a drug store before joining the CRMWD staff in 1956.

He began his work with CRMWD as superintendent at Lake J. B. Thomas and in 1966 moved to Big Spring to become administrative assistant.

Meanwhile, we learned from an article in the current issue of the New Mexico Stockman that another former Snyder resident who had retired from the quarterhorse breeding business has become active again.

The article tells how Jimmie Randals, son of Mrs. Joesphine Randals of Snyder and for many years a rancher and quarterhorse breeder at Montoya, N. M., suddenly had his interest in the business rekindled when his son, Richard, came home from college with a lot of enthusiasm and know-how which has been translated into revival of the Randals operation. In fact, according to the article, Richard Randals not only has got the business going again, but has expanded it.

Death of Poco Dell, an AQHA champion coupled, with labor problems had caused Jimmie Randals to slack off and virtually retire in 1975, but when Richard came home a year later, he got his father's interest perked up again.

Said Jody Butterfield, who wrote the article for the magazine, "We're going to be hearing more of Richard. At 24 he is mature beyond his years....."

We have heard the expression, "he must have ice water in his veins," used to describe a person who is capable of keeping his cool under duress, but we have actually seen very few people who could qualify. However, George Byerly, head basketball coach at Snyder High School, must surely be one of these.

If there is any more exciting basketball being played over the country than right here in Snyder, they have been keeping it a secret. Snyder High School's two victories and Western Texas College's tough loss last week were about as close as games can be and still produce a winner. And we could very well have more of the same tonight when the Tigers host Lamesa and Thursday night when the Westerners and Dusters of Western Texas College entertain the Howard College teams from Big Spring.

Money Can Cure Houston U. Ills, New Regent Tells Legislators

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A University of Houston regent described as a "legend in his own time" was approved by a Senate subcommittee today after he told it what the university needs is "money, money, money, money."

The Senate Nominations Subcommittee approved the appointment of Mack Hannah, as well as Charles Marino, both of Houston to the UH board of regents.

The subcommittee also voted unanimously to submit to the Senate for confirmation the names of William Archer Jr. and John Scanlan, both of Austin; Merritt Schumann of New Braunfels and John Jones of McCulloch County as directors of the Lower Colorado River Authority.

Sen. Charles Brooks, D-Houston, said Hannah — a regent for nine years — had "contributed mightily to a number of institutions, one of which, coincidentally, is the University of Houston."

Asked what the school's biggest problem is, Hannah replied, "You've heard money is the root of all evil. Well, as much money as we may have access to, we need money to grow and expand."

He listed the school's engineering department and dormitories and mentioned UH does not have a football stadium.

Marino said UH "is on the threshold of greatness" in making a contribution to the "golden Gulf Coast."

"Our physical plant must be developed — that's our immediate goal," he said.

Archer was asked about LCRA problems, and he said the board has to make energy decisions for 30 years in the future. He said the board is considering a $1 billion lignite-fired steam generating facility.

"We also have a tremendous responsbility to the people of this state in conjunction with water conservation," said Archer. "In 25 years, water standing behind our dams may be more valuable than oil you've heard so much about," he said.

Archer said the LCRA is a wholesaler for 11 co-ops and also serves 20 cities giving the authority between 900,000 and one million customers.

The subcommittee also approved, 5-0, the appointments of Larry Steinmann of Austin and Evelyn Hunter of Dallas — a hair stylist at Neiman-Marcus — to the Texas Cosmetology Commission.

The full Senate still must vote on the appointments.

The subcommittee approved the appointment of several persons whose appearances were waived, including:

Board of Pardons and Paroles — Connie Jackson, Dallas.

State Commission for the Blind — Paula Schumacher, Harris.

Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial Commission — Mrs. Omar Harvey, Dallas.

Adjutant General of Texas — Maj. Gen. Willie Scott, Travis.

Assistant Adjutant General for Air — Brig. Gen. Belisario D.J. Flores, Bexar.

Assistant Adjutant General for Army — Brig. Gen. Willard Hill Jr., Travis.

State Bar of Texas Directors — William Cox, Harris; Elbert Hall, Taylor; C. Lee McMillan, Nueces; Dr. Janice May, Travis; Lynn Milam, Jefferson; Bill Thornton, Hidalgo; and Allen Washington, Harris.

Tax Cut Proposal Certain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director David Stockman said today that President Reagan is virtually certain to propose a 10 percent reduction this year in individual income tax rates. "If I had to bet on anything I'd bet on that," Stockman told the House Ways and Means Committee.

Stockman added, however, that not all decisions on the Reagan administration's economic program have been made, including, presumably, whether the individual tax cut would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Fort Worth Mayor Running

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fort Worth Mayor Woodie Woods says he will seek re-election to a second term.

Woods made the announcement Monday, saying he doesn't plan to campaign or make any effort to obtain campaign funds because he doesn't expect serious opposition.

"If there were going to be a substantial candidate against me, I believe he would have already been working by now," Woods told a news conference.

Woods defeated former Fort Worth Mayor Hugh Parmer in an expensive, highly emotional campaign in 1979. The two candidates combined to spend about $250,000 campaigning for the $10 per week job.

Child Perishes In Blaze

DALLAS (AP)—A four-year-old boy died and his three-year-old sister was seriously injured when fire swept through an apartment Monday.

Firemen said the fire erupted while the children's parents were out of the apartment to mail their federal income tax return.

Kevin Henry died of smoke inhalation, firemen said. The children were pulled from the burning apartment, but the boy died later at Parkland Hospital. Crystal Henry was listed in serious condition late Monday.

Airlines Seeking Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major U.S. airlines are requesting emergency fare increases because of higher fuel prices, including those expected from President Reagan's order lifting the remaining price controls on domestic oil.

The Civil Aeronautics Board is expected to review the request quickly, CAB spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said Monday.

The Air Transportation Association, which represents the nation's major airlines and other carriers, asked the CAB to increase the standard fare level to reflect the higher fuel costs the airlines must pay, said Bill Jackman, spokesman for the association.

The association's petition does not ask for an increase of a specific size.

syndrome exception

The Stockholm syndrome, it seems, didn't play in Tehran.

Why it did not is one aspect of the prolonged hostage crisis that is likely to continue to be of special interest to psycholgists involved in research into a basic question in the complex problem of terroism: What motivates terrorists and how can they most effectively be dealt with in situations in which the lives of hostages are at stake?

Briefly, the Stockholm syndrome refers to the development of a bond between captives and captors. It gets its name from the attempted robbery of a bank in the Swedish capital some years back that had some bizarre consequences.

During five days of captivity, the attitude of the bank staff toward its captors shifted from fear to sympathy. One declared publicly that the robbers were actually protecting the hostages from the police.

Effects of the syndrome have been observed in several other incidents. The Symbionese Liberation Army kidnappng of heiress Patty Hearst comes immediately to mind. Also possibly the terrorist seizure of a number of foreign diplomats in Colombia. In the end, the terrorists had considerable technical assistance from some of their captives in working out details of a deal with Colombian authorities.

That may be explained as sharp application of the skills of their trade by the diplomats in their own best interest. But there may have been something more to it.

There apparently wasn't any more to the Tehran situation, however. On the basis of initial reports, the relationship between the 52 Americans and the Iranian militants during their more than 14 months of enforced association was adversary all the way.

The hostages, according to one of their number, Richard H. Morefield, were aware that the Iranians were attempting "to break us" and were determined that it would not happen."

It may be that the militants outsmarted themselves with the abuse visited upon their captives, from physical mistreatment to annoyances such as withholding mail. On the other hand, it may be that this was their intention, that they were aware of the Stockholm syndrome and wanted no part of it.

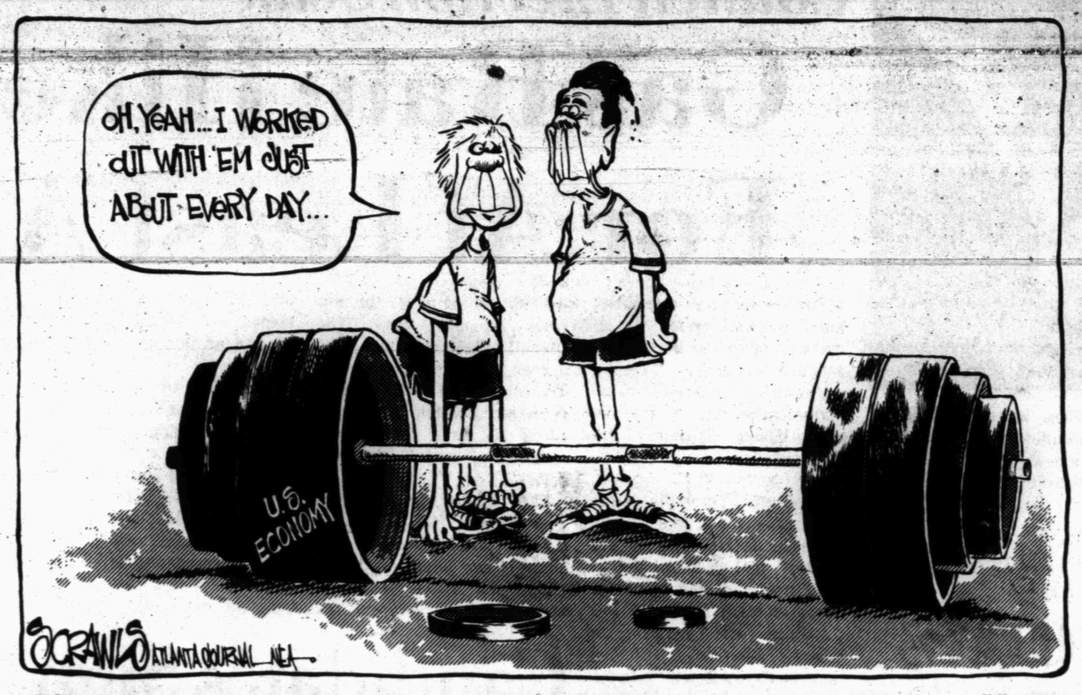
For it can have a reverse twist in which captors become sympathetically involved with their prisoners. And in revolutionary Iran, that would never do.

Also, one element of the usual hostage situation was misssing in Tehran: Terrorists customarily are themselves besieged, threatened by the forces of authority seeking to bring them to justice and free their captives. This is a situation the captives themselves can empathize with, the more so since they also may be in peril from any rescue attempt.

It was not present in Tehran. There the captors were not besieged but had the active support of what passed for authority outside the embassy walls. There were no grounds for empathy.

Tehran will provide much material for the continuing study of the psychology of terrorism. It cannot be said, however, that it either disproves the Stockholm syndrome or suggest an antidote. It was too much a special case, too much a rule unto itself.

That is pretty much what can be said about Iran in general these days.



the wagman file

by robert j. wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA)— The 14 months that the 52 Americans were held captive in Iran were doubly frightening for one hostage family with a secret whose disclosure would undoubtedly have singled its relative out for especially harsh treatment.

During those 14 months, a dozen or so reporters learned of the secret. Each of us was asked by the family to keep the secret, and each of us complied.

The secret: Hostage John Limbert's wife is an Iranian.

Limbert is a 37-year-old career diplomat who was the economics officer in the U.S. Embassy at the time of the seizure. His father, John Limbert Sr., also was a foreign service officer. The younger Limbert first saw Iran when his father was temporarily stationed there. The youth liked the country so much that he decided to study Middle Eastern culture in college.

After graduation with honors from Harvard with a major in Russian studies and a minor in Mideast culture, the younger Limbert joined the Peace Corps. He ended up in Sanandaj, the capital of the Kurdistan region of Iran.

There he met a doctor's daughter named Parveneh, whom he married in 1966. The couple remained in Sanandaj for a year before leaving for the United States so that Limbert could pursue his Ph.D. in Persian studies at Harvard.

In 1972, they returned to Iran, and Limbert began teaching at Pahlavi University. Their children, Mandanna and Shervin, were born during this stay and, therefore carry dual citizenship.

Limbert and his family returned to Boston in 1974 so that he could finish his doctorate. Then he decided to follow in his father's footsteps by joining the Foreign Service.

After a stint as a desk officer in Wasington, Limbert was assigned successively to the United Arab Emirates, Abu Dhabi and Saudi Arabia, his last post before leaving for Tehran in the summer of 1979.

Parvaneh Limbert and the children remained in Jeddah because of the deteriorating political situation in Iran. In the months before the fall of the embassy, Limbert commuted to Jeddah to see his family.

The family and the U.S. government feared what might happen if the militants learned that one of their captives had an Iranian family. Also, they did not want it known that Limbert was fluent in several Middle Eastern languages, including Farsi and Arabic.

They thought the militants might then treat Limbert especially harshly or attempt to use him for some kind of propaganda purpose. Or that they might consider him a spy because of his language abilities.

So, Limbert was described only as having "a wife and two children" and as being the son of a retired Foreign Service officer. The State Department went to extraordinary lengths to conceal that the family was Iranian and was living in Saudi Arabia. In Jeddah, Parvaneh and her children were kept under tight security by U.S. Embassy officials and by the Saudis, who shared the secret.

The Limbert family worried not only about John's safety but about the intense pressure being felt by Parvaneh, who still loved her native country although she had become a U.S. citizen. The ordeal was especially difficult for her because her husband was being held by her countrymen.

Despite the best efforts of the family and the State Department, a small group of reporters learned, one by one, of the secret. Most of us sought confirmation from Limbert's father, who asked that the story be kept secret until the hostages were freed. Every reporter complied.

After his release, Limbert thanked various members of the press for keeping the family secret. As he told one: "This has given me a very high opinion of the press and their professionalism. I will always be grateful."

In Jeddah, Parvaneh also expressed her thanks. She took part in a short and emotional ceremony at the U.S. Embassy before flying with her children to the United States for their reunion with Limbert.

A footnote: It appears that the militants at least knew of Limbert's language ablity because they sometimes used him as a translator. Several former hostages have remarked that more than one militant had been amazed that Limbert spoke better Farsi than they did. In fact, Limbert reportedly gave Farsi lessons to at least one of his captors.

overdue case

It's time to test a new federal government authority to require crosstown school busing.

The new administration in Washington is opposed—but is helpless to countermand Supreme Court orders.

Surely by now the High Court must recognize that busing has in fact re-segregated schools, re-polarized our population, violated the rights of youngsters white and black and tragically depleted the quality of public education.

A new test case is on the way.

What happened in Buckeye, La., has been misrepresented as a black-white confrontation.

It is both simpler and more complicated than that.

There is only one school in the little town of Buckeye.

The three girl students in question have been attending Buckeye school—within walking distance from their homes.

Until a federal court judge ordered them to be bused 30 miles each day for the sole purpose of further "whitening" an intergrated school in Alexandria, La.

It has to be insulting to black parents and students, this implication that academic excellence requires cross-pollination with whites.

The school bus runs backward!

The objective of purposeful race-mixing in public schools was increased educational opportunity for blacks.

It has not worked that way.

Academic achievement scores, black and white, are down.

Unemployment for black youths, 24 percent 10 years ago, is now 37.4 percent.

One of the significant factors in the case of the "Buckeye Three" is that the scool to which the federal court wants to assign them—Jones Street Junior High in Alexandria—is already half-and-half, black and white.

Obviously, therefore, the federal judge, Norman Scott, is less concerned with adding whites to an already balanced school than with punishing the "all-whiteness" of the Buckeye school.

The parents of The Buckeye Three will need public contributions to help with the horrendous legal costs of pursuing this fight—but somebody must.

I have said there is nothing the new president can do without the concurrence of the courts. That is not entirely true.

Because crosstown school busing wastes the equivalent total output of 700 average oil wells every day, probably by executive decree the president could park the buses.

Undertandably, however, the resultant disruption of classroom enrollment would dissaude him from any such stopgap measure.

What's needed is a new Supreme Court test case. In the new climate of public opinion and with our enlightened hindsight—surely the Supreme Court will want to recover its own fumble.

my turn

by john dunnam

Not only has 1981 arrived, it is already February. Sort of frightening how time races on isn't it? But as some wise man, long since dead and gone, once observed, "growing old isn't so bad, when you consider the alternative."

Show business people naturally get the most notice when they die and in 1980 the cast was thinned. Among those who left us were: Steve McQueen, who died of cancer Nov. 7 in a Mexican clinic near the border. He was 50.

—David Janssen, 49, who starred in films and on televison. He is perhaps most remembered for his role as "The Fugitive." Janssen died on Feb. 13 of an apparent heart attack.

—Jimmy Durante, the commedian with the raspy voice and large nose, died at age 86. He was a popular entertainer for some 60 years.

—Mae West.The world won't soon forget Mae West, famous or maybe even infamous, for her sexual innuendoes and one liners. The buxom blonde died Nov. 22 at age 87.

—Alfred Hitchcock, that master of suspense for more than 50 years, died April 29. He was 80.

—Peter Sellers, who gave the world such zany characters as the mad scientist in Dr. Strangelove and the bumbling Inspector Clouseau in the Pink Panther series, died July 24 of heart failure. He was 54.

—Jay Silverheels, the Indian actor who portrayed Tonto in "The Lone Ranger" died March 5. He was 62.

—Milburn Stone, 75, better known as Doc in the immortal Gunsmoke series, died June 12.

—John Lennon, former Beatle, was gunned down Dec. 8. He was 40.

World famous entertainers were not the only well known figures who departed last year. Dearly missed from the world of sports is Jesse Owens, the black track star who humiliated racist Hitler at the 1936 Olympics by winning four gold medals. Owens died March 31 at age 66.

Mohammad Riza Pahlevi, 60, better known as the shah of Iran, died July 27.

And who among us, that has ever aspired to grow a tomato, has not ordered seeds from David Burpee? The mail-order seed-catalog king died June 24 at the ripe old age of 87.

If there is one thing the varying ages and manners of dying of the above prove, its the old axiom about the only sure things in life are death and taxes. You think the IRS is tough, try cheating the Grim Reaper.

"I'm gonna live till I die," go the lyrics of a contemporary blues song. The late Hank Williams put it even more succinctly before his untimely death. To paraphrase, " we ain't ever going to get out of this world alive." There is a moral in all this somewhere. I think it's "get your act together, because you never know when the final curtain is going to fall."

On that morbid note, I'll close for now and talk to you again Friday...maybe.

Israeli commandos made a pre-dawn raid on Uganda's Entebbe Airport in 1976 and freed more than 100 Israeli hostages held there by terrorists following the hijacking of an Air France jet. Killed were three hostages, the seven hijackers, a number of Ugandan soldiers and one Israeli commando.

NEW YORK (AP) — These are indisputable tough times in housing -tough for builders, tough for realtors, tough for people who would like to buy a home.

But some of the doom-and-gloom crowd's forecasts of a severe drop in home prices have yet to come true.

Mortagage rates hovering around the 15 percent level have cast a decided pall over the market. Sales of new one-family homes dropped 3.4 percent in December, the Commerce Department reported late last week, and stood 4.6 percent below their pace of a year before.

Still, prices kept rising. The median price tag on a new home stood at $67,900, compared with $61,500 in December 1979.

The story is much the same with existing homes. Since late 1978, when used homes were changing hands at an annual rate of about 4 million, activity in the market has been in a deep slump, hitting a low of less than 2.5 million for a while last year.

Even so, the chart of existing-home prices has kept on rising with barely a wriggle. At about $65,000, the median price of a used house has double in less than seven years.

The explanation for this feat, as provided by economists at Goldman, Sachs & affordability of homes, sellers are taking their houses out of the market if possible rather than selling them at 'bargain' rates. Thus prices of home actually sold rise as activity shrinks."

In theory, this can't go on forever. At some point, the pressures on the market should presumably start to push prices downward, or at least slow their upward progress.

Some people say there are signs that this may already be happening. Edward Yardeni, economist at E.F. Hutton, points to California - the archetypical hot housing market of the 1970s.

From November 1979 to November 1980, he notes, the median price reported by the California Association of Raltors rose 11 percent. Only a few months before, the annual appreciation rate was running close to 30 percent.

Many participants in the housing market are working up new types of financing to get around the mortgage squeeze. It is estimated, for example, that more than half of home resales in California during November were done by assuming existing loans.

Demand seems to be high. The National Association of Home Builders figures that more than 2 million new housing units must be built each year in the 1980s to keep up with demand. Last year, less than 1.3 million units were started.

Using such data, it can be argued that if mortgage rates ever do come down by even a few percentage points, there could be a new upward explosion in housing prices.

Gates were the opening to enclosed buildings, grounds or cities. They were so important that they sometimes were considered as representing the city itself. The gates were made of wood with two leaves plated with metal, usually to resist fire. They swung in pivots set in the walls. They were closed at night and opened in the morning. The city gateways were public meeting places. Business and legal transactions were conducted there. Cases were tried and judgment pronounced. Markets were held. The temple gates were massive and costly, overlaid with gold and carvings. Gates of royal palaces and some private residences were richly ornamented. Solomon may be referring to that custom.

"...He that exalteth his gate seeketh destruction." — Prov. 17:19

Use Sharp Knife To Cut And Trim

To prevent loss of vitamins in fresh vegetables, use a sharp blade when trimming, cutting or shredding. Loss of vitamins A and C occur when vegetable tissues are bruised, says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist.

Also, losses occur when fresh vegetables are held too long before serving.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

We have been looking over the book of 1966 World Olympiad pairs. It is sad to see how many of the players have died in just those 14 years. One was Ivan Erdos who won the mixed pairs with Mary Jane Farell to help bring the United States the best national result.

Sitting South, he decided to try three notrump after Mrs. Farell bid three clubs. He won the heart lead since there was no reason to hold up, led his queen of clubs and rose with dummy's ace to drop the singleton king.

This wasn't too difficult a play. East had opened one heart and rebid. West had led the queen of that suit and the odds in favor of East holding the king had to be tremendous. Of course, it didn't have to be a singleton, in which case Ivan was doomed to defeat.

Ivan ran off all the clubs. East discarded two spades along the way and Ivan wound up by finessing against West's queen of spades to gather in an overtrick for a couple of extra match points.

To show the caliber of play in that tournament six other declarers — Desrousseaux (France) J. Jacoby (U.S.) Collings (Britain) Weil (Mexico) Versluis (Holland) and Portugal (U.S.) also dropped that singleton king though they were not all in notrump.

Dear Abby

Wild Blue Yonder Surrounds This Man

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who gets lost a lot, and whose husband blames it on lack of confidence.

My husband can get lost driving out of our driveway. He is completely confused whenever he leaves the main streets of our city, although he was born and raised here. He simply has no sense of direction. And it's not because he lacks self-confidence, either: He's a very successful businessman.

To make this disability more interesting, he was a navigator in World War II, and received the Distinguished Flying Cross and seven Air Medals for guiding several groups of squadrons in bombing raids over Italy!

RAY'S WIFE IN WATERLOO, IOWA

DEAR WIFE: During World War II, Ray was flying on instruments, or he'd have met his Waterloo in Italy!

DEAR ABBY: You've printed letters from waiters and waitresses. How about printing a letter from an ex-waiter who is now a customer?

If the service is really good, I leave between 15 to 20 percent. But if they just sling the food at me, without bothering to come back to ask if I want more water, coffee or dessert, or if they stand around gabbing with other help with their backs turned toward customers who may want to catch their eye, I call that lousy service. And for lousy service I leave two pennies.

CUSHING, OKLA.

DEAR CUSHING: Instead of leaving two pennies, you'd be ahead to leave two complaints: one with the waitress, and one with the management.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago you printed a letter (enclosed) that had a powerful impact on me. I think it bears repeating.

DEAR MR. B.: So do I, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am a plastic surgeon and a very busy one, but I am not too busy to write this letter asking you to PLEASE implore parents (especially mothers) to NEVER — and I repeat, NEVER — allow their children to stand up in either the front or back of an automobile while it is in motion.

These last few weeks I have been called upon to make some heartbreaking repairs on some very beautiful little faces that had been pitifully mutilated from accidents that came about in just this way. All it takes is one abrupt stop for a youngster's face to meet a windshield, dashboard or the back of the front seat with such force as to break face bones, knock out teeth and cause disfiguring injuries.

Today I nearly wept while I worked with an eye surgeon for nearly two hours in a vain effort to save the eye of a little boy who had been standing in the back of his mother's car when she slammed on her brakes. (The child's eye was gouged out as he struck the ashtray.) If you will print this I'll be most grateful.

AN M.D. IN L.A.

Blake Bill Has Panel Approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A proposed law to keep substitute teachers from collecting unemployment pay is "discriminatory," says a spokeswoman for a teacher's group.

"No other class of employees is denied benefits because of 'assurance' of work," said June Karp of the 12,000-member Texas Federation of Teachers.

Ms. Karp appeared before the Senate Economic Development Committee on Monday to oppose Sen. Roy Blake's bill that excludes substitutes from getting unemployment pay during vacations if they have "reasonable assurance" of being rehired.

The committee approved the Nacogdoches Democrat's measure 7-0 and sent it to the Senate for consideration.

Full-time teachers are already barred from collecting unemployment pay during vacations.

"Teachers are the only people who've been excluded from benefits by law," said Joe Gunn, secretary-treasurer of the Texas AFL-CIO. "And these (substitutes) are people who're already at the bottom of the totem pole."

Jerry Edwards of the Texas Association of School Boards said substitute teachers made 33 percent of the unemployment claims against school districts in 1980, and that part-time educators are "only eligible because of a loophole" in the current law.

Ronald Raksch, representing the Houston Independent School District, said substitutes receive 25 percent of the unemployment benefits, but make up only 4 percent of the employees.

"The effect is of giving these employees an unearned 25 percent raise," he said.

Texas Bilingual Status Uncertain

The Associated Press

A Reagan administration decision to shelve proposed federal rules to expand public school bilingual education brought groans from Mexican-American leaders in Texas and sighs of relief from state school administrators.

But the status of Texas bilingual education remains clouded by a pending federal court case seeking to extend the programs through the 12th grade in all Texas public school systems.

"This is but one example that the Reagan administration is trying to disembowel the Hispanic community," said Corpus Christi attorney Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens. "This is a very steep price to pay for having given the Republicans the strongest Hispanic vote in history."

And the move was criticized as "a step backward for a viable bilingual education program in this state" by state Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

But in Dallas, school board vice president Jill Foster said she was glad the proposed new rules were being dumped.

"We've been working a long time ... to develop a good bilingual education program and we don't need a lot of government regulations on us that are very restrictive," she said.

The rules, if adopted, would have required that children be taught in their native languages through Grade 12.

That objective already was being sought in a Texas federal court by a Mexican-American group. Attorneys in the case have been given until March 2 to try to reach agreement.

"Secretary Bell's decision may have some impact upon the case in which we currently are involved," said Texas Attorney General Mark White. "We are waiting for reaction and clarification from the U.S. Department of Justice before we can make any further statement."

State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen said the Texas law, requiring bilingual education through Grade 3 where needed, with grades 4 and 5 optional, "is transitional — as soon as a child learns English he is pulled out of bilingual education," he said. "The federal government had very stringent rules on a child exiting bilingual education."

Some Texas school districts voluntarily accepted federal guidelines while others were instructed to adopt the rules by the federal Office of Civil Rights.

Leonel Rosales, director of bilingual education for the Brownsville Independent Schol District, said his district was one of a few in Texas ordered to implement the rules, even though they had not been adopted nationally.

The district has a total enrollment of 27,000, with about 12,000 enrolled in bilingual programs, 8,000 of them in grades 4 and 5, he said.

Under the federal order, 4,000 students in grades 6 through 12 were placed in bilingual programs, said Rosales.

Rosales said the district still is under mandate from Office of Civil Rights, even though the rules have been discarded by Education Department.

"For the districts who were not under these rules, this is good news because they won't have to go through what we did," he said of Bell's announcement.

One Hostage Smuggled His Diary Out

KRAKOW, Mo. (AP) — Marine Sgt. Rocky Sickmann kept a diary while a captive in Iran and managed to smuggle it out by concealing it in his trousers leg, a spokesman for the former hostage says.

Attorney William Kimme of Washington, Mo., who has been handling the affairs of the Sickmann family, said Sunday that talks were under way with a New York literary agent who came to St. Louis on Friday to see the diary.

Kimme said Sickmann began keeping the diary over a year ago and managed to keep the papers with him despite several moves in Iran.

The attorney said Sickmann smuggled the diary out by sticking it into his trousers leg when he was told he was to be freed.

Sickmann had been told he would be permitted the take the diary out in his luggage, Kimme said, but the 24-year-old Marine was suspicious of his captors.

"Rocky told me he had been lied to so often by the students that he put it in his pants instead," Kimme said. "And his luggage was, in fact, confiscated by the Iranians as he left."

Kimme said the diary is believed to be the only one successfully brought out of Iran by the hostages.

Retreads Help Save Millions

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Retreaded tires saved American consumers more than $3.5 billion in 1980, a tire-industry association reports.

The 50 million retreaded tires sold last year cost motorists $3 billion less than comparable new tires, the Tire Retread Information Bureau said. Retreading also conserved 400 million gallons of oil, at a savings of $260 million.

Tax savings totaled $276 million: $176 million in Federal excise taxes and $100 million in state sales taxes.

The first patent for false teeth was granted on March 9, 1822, to Charles Graham of New York City.

Fate Of Grain Embargo Keeps Debate Going In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food proved to be an effective weapon in the confrontation with the Soviet Union, according to U.S. officials who supervise the embargo of grain shipments. The embargo, they say, achieved its limited objective: gumming up — slightly — the Soviet economy.

One official, in typical Washingtonese, described part of the impact as "a discombobulation of the livestock sector" in Russia.

This week, President Reagan is heading a Cabinet-level review of the embargo. At his news conference last Thursday, Reagan suggested for the first time that the embargo could be expanded. "You have two choices. You either lift it, or you broaden it, and we have not made a decision."

The Cabinet debate may go along these lines:

—End the embargo: Reagan pledged during his election campaign to lift the embargo to woo the farm vote and there is pressure on him to deliver on his promise. Moreover, the same U.S. officials who believe the embargo had a useful impact in 1980 say it may not make much of a dent in 1981 because the Soviets have found other sources of supply, especially from Argentina.

—Expand or retain the embargo: Despite the embarrassing political reversal, some advisers are telling Reagan that with Soviet troops massed on the Polish border, this is hardly the time to lift the sanctions imposed after the Red Army moved into Afghanistan. At the least, these advisers insist, Reagan should insist on getting something in return from the Soviets.

Not only that, but lifting the embargo would deplete U.S. grain reserves and prompt an increase in consumer food prices, they add.

The embargo was imposed by former President Carter on Jan. 4, 1980, following the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan. Carter extended it into a second year shortly before he left office.

While the embargo has been criticized as ineffective, a State Department official said the criticism seems to come from people who thought its purpose was to force the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan.

"The reason for imposing it was to have a demonstrable impact on the Soviet economy, to show the seriousness of our feelings," he said. He claimed it has done that.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said Soviet grain imports were 8 million to 9 million tons less than they would have been. Total imports are put by the State Department at 28 million tons for the year ending Sept. 30, although others think it was higher than that.

Also, he said the Soviets had to pay one-third more for grain they did import.

The U.S. embargo barred the Soviets from purchasing 17 million tons of corn and other grain they had planned to purchase, largely for livestock feed. The embargo didn't bar shipment of 8 million tons provided in a bilateral trade agreement with the Soviets.

Tourism Adds $45 Billion

PARIS (AP) — Modern tourism is a very big business, according to the U. N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

In 1975 over 200 million international visitors spent about $45 billion after reaching their destinations.

Currently about 50 million people are employed in the hotel and restaurant sectors alone. According to some experts, tourism will be the world's No. 1 industry by the year 2000.

Florida's 'Jane Doe' Still Seeks Identity

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The polite young woman in the South Florida State Hospital says she wonders as much as anyone else who she was before September, when a park ranger found her naked and filthy, too weak to cry for help.

Jane Doe, as she now is known, says she doesn't know how she got to Birch State Park here, or why she was emaciated, dehydrated, covered with dirt and near death when she was discovered Sept. 19.

She also says she wonders who and where her family and friends are and why they haven't visited her.

"No one has stopped by to see me," she said in an interview. "I feel forgotten. I guess life works out that way."

Ranger Elijah Brown said that when he found her, the woman, who appears to be about 30, was filthy and surrounded by flies in a small clearing in the underbrush. She was about 50 yards from a pavilion frequented by park visitors.

Her legs were covered with sores brought on by weeks of exposure.

Four white, plastic cups lay near her. There was nothing else.

She was hospitalized and recovered her health, but her memory goes back only to September.

Attempts to establish her identity through nationwide fingerprint checks were fruitless, and now, bearing the customary name for female unknowns, she lives as a ward of the hospital.

"This is a fascinating case. A beautiful case for a detective story," said Dr. Cesar Hernandez, a psychiatrist who evaluated her.

"Who brought her there?" Hernandez asked. "What was so traumatic to her that she doesn't even remember, or won't talk about it? Was she attacked? Abused? Abandoned?"

Doctors believe Jane Doe's problem is "conversion reaction," a psychological phenomenon in which a trauma or breakdown is converted into a physical ailment such as amnesia or blindness.

"So the person is more comfortable, but he may be less functional, which is a very bizarre thing," said psychiatrist Dr. Jesse Kaye, who meets with Ms. Doe daily.

"Here's a lady who merely walks along and says, 'I don't know my age, I don't know if I have any family. I just don't know.' So she doesn't have to deal with it. It is a protection against self-anxiety," Kaye said.

The woman, who introduces herself as Jane Doe, is polite and articulate but is described as a loner at the hospital. She is about 5 feet 4 inches tall.

Red Ink Is New GM Experience

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., producer of 23 percent of the world's motor vehicles, has lost money for the first year since it was making $800 Chevrolets. And the nation's other automakers are expected to do even worse.

The No. 1 automaker on Monday showed a loss of $763 million, or $2.65 a share, for all of 1980. Not since 1921 had GM reported a loss.

However, GM made money in the last three months of 1980, reporting on Monday earnings of $62 million, or 21 cents a share, for the fourth quarter.

GM is the first automaker to report 1980 results. Other companies plan to report next week or later.

Chrysler Corp. expects to show a loss of about $1.7 billion and Ford Motor Co., according to analysts' estimates, will show a loss of about $1.5 billion, making 1980 by far the worst year in the history of the auto industry.

Even in the Great Depression of the 1930s, GM made money, although its $165,000 profit in 1932 was $9 million short of covering dividends on preferred stock.

In 1921, a recession year when the company last reported a loss, GM was just beginning to transform itself from a collection of scattered, sometimes feuding and badly coordinated companies into the tight corporation of later years.

GM, then one of 86 companies building cars, had a 14 percent share of the domestic car market and was relying on pre-World War I designs. Inventories were high, car companies were cutting costs and unemployment in Detroit was twice the national average.

In 1979, GM earned $2.89 billion, or $10.04 a share, including a $326 million, or $1.46 a share, loss in the fourth quarter.

GM's wholesale sales of cars, trucks and buses fell 10 percent for 1980's final quarter, from 2.1 million to 1.88 million. For the year, the decline was 21 percent, from 8.99 million to 7.1 million.

In the United States, the drop was 14 percent in the quarter, from 1.47 million to 1.27 million, and 26 percent for the year, from 6.45 million to 4.77 million.

Revenues for the fourth quarter totaled $16.2 billion in 1980, a 0.5 percent increase from $16.1 billion in the corresponding 1979 period. Full-year revenues were $57.7 billion, down 13 percent from $66.3 billion the year before.

The overall 1980 loss would have been $385 million more except for tax credits. Those credits for the first nine months totaled $703 million, but GM said it paid income taxes of $317 million in the fourth quarter, more than expected under statutory U.S. tax rates as a result of losses at "certain overseas subsidiaries where no applicable income tax refund credits were currently available."

Attacker Of Patrolman Still Jailed

SANTA ANNA, Texas (AP) — A 24-year-old Austin man remained in the Coleman County Jail after being charged in the beating of a state highway patrolman, police said.

Nathan Heidelberg was charged with aggravated assault on a police officer, possession of a controlled substance and escape from custody. Peace Justice Gale Brock set bond at $25,000 on each charge.

Authorities said Heidelberg was charged in connection with an attack on Department of Public Safety trooper Jay Moses, 31, last Friday night after Moses had stopped a pickup on U.S. Highway 283 about two miles south of Santa Anna.

Moses, who had been beaten unconscious, was found by fellow officers after he failed to check in following the traffic stop, DPS officials said. His patrol car was found about two miles away.

Heidelberg was found hiding in a barn and was arrested Saturday following a house-to-house search in nearby Lawn.

Moses was treated for a slight concussion and released following the incident.

Biggest pollutant is smoke

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was shocked to read in one of your columns that lung cancer is now the second most common cause of cancer deaths in women. Is that because of increased air pollution from factories and automobiles? Shouldn't the government do more about these air pollutants? What is the lung cancer rate in men compared to women? Is the high rate in women because of sex hormones? Isn't cancer becoming an increasing problem in our society? How can an average citizen avoid this dreadful disease?

DEAR READER — You are right about the increase in lung cancer in women being due to air pollution. BUT the biggest source of the air pollution that has led to the increase in lung cancer in women is the same one that causes lung cancer in men — cigarette smoke. The air that is important is the air that goes down the windpipe and into the lungs. By far the biggest pollutant danger in our society today is still the smoke polluted air the smoker inhales into his or her own lungs. I'm always a little annoyed to hear an anti-pollutant fan harangue while smoking a cigarette.

Lung cancer is by far the leading cause of cancer deaths in men. We used to think women were safe from it, mostly, but that was because not enough women had been smoking long enough to show us that it was just as big a danger for women. Predictions now are that lung cancer deaths will replace breast cancer as the leading cause of cancer deaths in women. It is not a question of hormones but a question of smoking.

About 85 percent of all lung cancers are preventable simply by not smoking. What we know about prevention of cancer is discussed in The Health Letter number 14-8, Cancer: A Fact of Life, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

There has been enormous progress in treating cancer in recent years. Many cancers can be cured. The cure rate in lung cancer is NOT GOOD. That is why it is one cancer you should do all you can to prevent.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a hysterectomy when I was only 24. I was going through a messy divorce and my nerves were shot. I'm 29 now and oh how I want a child. There are so many wonderful things happening in medical science now. Can they give a woman back her organs so she can have children? I am desperate. I'm even willing to donate my body for experiments to try this.

DEAR READER — I have quite a few questions asking about a uterus transplant so a woman can have a baby. Unfortunately, that is not within the current state of medical science.

The other possibility is a surrogate mother. That means someone else has a baby by your husband and you then raise the baby as your own.

It has not yet been done, but a variation on the test tube baby method may one day be possible. In that case an ovum from you would be harvested at the time of ovulation, fertilized in the laboratory and implanted in another woman's uterus for the pregnancy. The baby would be the product of yours and your husband's genes. Related techniques have been used successfully in animals.

Big Business Lends A Hand In Adoptions

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Big business is reaching out a helping hand to employees wishing to adopt a child.

A typical new adoption policy now offered by Honeywell, for example, provides that the company will pay all direct adoption expenses up to a maximum of $1,000 per child. Typically adoption costs here range from $300 for a stepchild to $3,500 for a foreign child.

"Since the company provides medical coverage to employees who have children through childbirth, we decided it made sense to also help our employees who have children through adoption," explained Ed Lund, vice president of administration.

The policy applies to some 55,000 employees in the United States. Other major firms with similar policies include IBM, Ely Lilly, Hallmark, Abbott Laboratories and Xerox.

Your Birthday

February 4, 1981

You may make some considerable changes this coming year in how you handle yourself. You've learned from experience, and now you are ready to utilize your knowledge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will have the chance today to disengage yourself from what may have been an unproductive situation. If you're smart, you'll let it go with no regrets. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A better insight into something you had viewed only on a practical level can be gained by a more compassionate approach, which you're likely to adopt today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Events are developing in a manner to awaken new hopes for you. Something of importance is taking a turn for the better.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Begin today to set loftier goals than you may have been accustomed to, and watch how much better things will turn out. The currents are now flowing in your direction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't make light of any opportunities to gain new knowledge at this time. This data will turn out to be just what you need to handle in an old problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone who may consider you to be "family" could clue you in on something today that is more valuable than first appears. Listen carefully.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is an excellent day for negotiating agreements, both old and new. If there is something which requires coming to terms, get on it now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't waste your time today working on anything which may be of small consequence. You're both capable and lucky at making big things happen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can have greater management in something you've wanted to take more of a hand in if you make your move today. Don't wait. Go after it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In matters where you are looking out for the welfare of others, as well as for your own, you function with surprising skill today. Make this your priority purpose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) That missing chain which you've been looking for to pull everything together may suddenly be presented to you today, making a new beginning possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) No stone which could enhance your security should be left unturned today. There are material opportunities all about you if you'll look for them.

Another Thriller Expected At SCC...

Tigers-Tors Clash At 8 Tonight

It's not a matter of what you do, but rather how well you do it. That's what Snyder and Lamesa hope to find out as these two arch-rivals square off in Scurry County Coliseum tonight for a major District 2-AAAA confrontation.

"I don't guess Lamesa has done anything different in the past 30 years. "Either they're better than you are or they're not," said Snyder Coach George Byerly. "And they're going to get out there and get after it."

Over 1,000 fans have attended Snyder's last two games against Andrews and Odessa Ector, and officials expect that many or more tonight for the 8 o'clock tipoff. It will be preceded by a 6:15 junior varsity game. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Meanwhile, Feline Coach Ken Housden takes his 12-10 girls to Lamesa for an 8 p.m. contest as well. Lamesa's girls are winless in district play. The Felines are 8-4.

Snyder and Lamesa have a way of fighting it out like no two other teams. In 1979, each won half of the District 3-AAA crown and met in a conference playoff. Snyder came out the eventual victor, but neither of the three games against O.W. Follis' Golden Tornadoes were anything less than pure excitment.

Earlier this season, the Tigers came away with a scant 48-47 win in Lamesa, then went on to tie Ector for the Round One title. The hot Snyder club opened Round Two by edging the Eagles in triple overtime last Friday, 72-69, and now hope to make the Tors their 11th straight victim after starting the season at 3-12.

To do that, Byerly's bunch will have to stop a well-rounded ballclub that strung up Monahans last week, 89-52. The Tornadoes are 17-6 on the season.

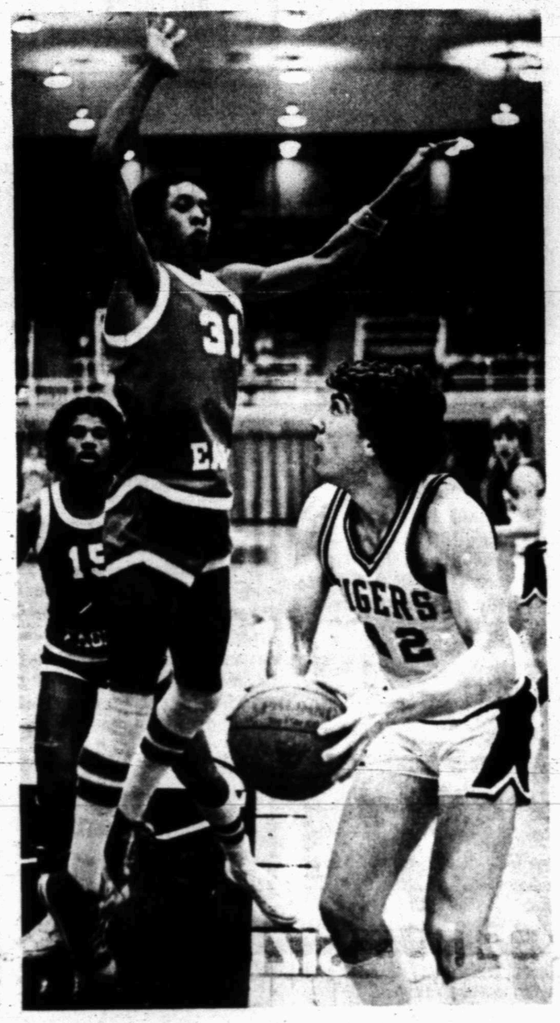
"You can't stop one man for Lamesa and expect to stop the whole ballclub," said Byerly. "The (Victor) Spencer kid is playing real well, but they've got some other talent, too. We heard reports that they had some injuries, but I don't know to what extent it is," he added.

The injury situation is apparently confined to one player, Jim Puckett, who burned the Tigers for 14 points in the earlier battle. Puckett reportedly cracked two vertebrae and sprained an ankle against Sweetwater on Jan. 20. He is not expected to play tonight, and is, in fact, doubtful for the remainder of the season.

Spencer, a 6-0 sophomore, is the leading scorer on the team with a 14 point average. Johnny Castro, 6-3 senior, averages 12.5. Castro hit 18 against Monahans last Friday; Spencer had 22.

Other starters for the Tors tonight will probably be 5-9 senior floor leader Joey Froman, 6-2 senior Bill Cheek (9 points vs Snyder), and 5-11 junior Steve Alexander. From the bench come 6-2 junior Jimmy Schneider, 5-11 junior Shane Jackson and 6-4 senior Will Wright, among others.

Snyder is expected to open with key rebounder Barry Blackmon, a 6-3 senior, and 6-2 seniors Eric Arnold and Kris Seale. Guards will probably be John Wilson and Curtis Gafford. Local fans have learned to expect good bench help from D.W. Lofton, Ricky Housden and James Caldwell also.



SHS vs LHS -- Snyder's Tigers go for their 11th straight victory here tonight as they take on Lamesa at 8 in Scurry County Coliseum. An earlier meeting produced a 48-47 Snyder victory, and this evening's edition of the rivalry promises more excitment. Above, Snyder's Eric Arnold times his jump against Ector in recent action. Virginia Pushes Oregon St. Down

by The Associated Press

Virginia's Terry Holland says the difference between being No.1 and No.2 is the sausage. Oregon State's Ralph Miller would rather call it disappointment.

Virginia grabbed sole posession of the No.1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday, edging Oregon State by mere 10 points to end a one-week tie between the two teams for the top slot in the nation.

"The good thing about being No.1 is Jimmy Graves' home-made sausage," said Holland, referring to a gift he received from a local motel owner after being named No.1. "I doubt I would have gotten them if we were No.2."

Virginia, 18-0, collected 35 first-place votes and 1,212 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Oregon State, 17-0, was tabbed No.1 on 26 ballots and received 1,202 points.

"It may hurt their (the players) feelings a little bit, but as far as affecting their lot in life and what they have to do, it makes no difference," said Miller after learning his team fell from the nation's No.1 postion after a three-week stay.

Last week, Virginia and Oregon State each garnered 29 first-place votes and 1,147 points. Three poll members did not cast ballots last week. All 62 poll members voted this week.

Heiden Accepts Sullivan Award

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Speed skater Eric Heiden, who set five Olympic records while winning five gold medals in the 1980 Winter Olympics, was named winner of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's prestigious Sullivan Award as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

The 22-year-old Heiden, who had been a finalist for the honor in 1978, finished first in voting by more than 2,000 persons nationwide.

At a news conference following the banquet, the AAU released the vote totals for the top three finishers. Heiden totaled 3,059 points. Diver Greg Louganis was runnerup at a distant 678 points, and skier Phil Mahre was third at 569.

The 10 finalists had been selected by the AAU in December. Voters were asked to consider demonstrations of leadership, character and sportsmanship in addition to athletic ability while voting for their three top choices.

Royal Was Considered For New Orleans Job

HOUSTON (AP) — Sifting back through his choices for a new head coach of his New Orleans Saints, owner John Mecom Jr. says he considered Texas Coach Darrell Royal, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne and interim Saints Coach Dick Stanfel before settling on Bum Phillips.

Mecom told the Houston Chronicle he approached Royal about becoming coach and general manager of the Saints before Phillips was fired by Oiler owner Bud Adams on New Year's Eve.

"Darrell couldn't bring himself to leave the University of Texas and especially Austin," Mecom said.

Mecom fired Saints Coach Dick Nolan near the end of a 1-15 season and had Stanfel finish out the season. Phillips signed a five-year contract with the Saints as coach and general manager on Jan. 23.

Mecom said he had told Royal that philosophical differences with former General Manager Steve Rosenbloom were forcing him toward a change. Rosenbloom resigned Jan. 21.

"I told Darrell he could resolve those differences by coming to the Saints," Mecom said. "I told him I wanted him to come and help. He could have both jobs (head coach and general manager) or either job.

"I thought he might be interested in being general manager and bringing in some younger man to coach the team."

After turning down the job, Mecom said, Royal recommended Osborne for the job but Phillips became available a short time later.

Mecom said Stanfel, the offensive line coach who took over the team after Nolan was fired, was well liked by the Saints players.

"They gave me a petition requesting him as their coach," Mecom said.

Shofner Top Prospect Now

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler Coach Ed Biles trimmed his list of offensive coordinator candidates by eliminating former Baltimore head Coach Ted Marchibroda.

That apparently moves Cleveland Browns offensive coordinator Jim Shofner to the top of the list. Shofner, who has been with the Browns since 1978, is scheduled to visit with Biles Thursday.

It was strictly a matter of salary, Biles said Monday in announcing the Oilers had broken off negotiations with Marchibroda, who had been considered the top candidate for the job.

Biles said Marchibroada, who is still earning $150,000 annually on his Colts' salary, simply wanted too much money.

In Thick Of Tourney Race As...

Western Outlasts NMMI

ROSWELL, NM -- Western Texas College finds itself in the thick of the WJCAC playoff race today, after defeating New Mexico Military Institute here last evening, 66-63.

The win helps keep WTC going in the sprint for a spot in the upcoming Region V Tournament, to be held in early March at Brownwood. Other outcomes throughout the WJCAC also aided the Westerners' cause.

Midland College earned a share of the frontrunners spot by blasting South Plains College 90-73 and Clarendon nipped New Mexico Junior College 88-83. Also, Amarillo, let out of the bag last week in an upset over Howard County, blindsided Odessa College 83-68.

Those battles leave Midland and Howard tied for the summit with 9-2 conference records. Frank Phillips, idle last evening along with Howard, is solid in third place with a 8-3 mark. In fourth is South Plains College at 6-5. Western Texas and New Mexico Junior College are locked in fifth with 5-6 marks. A half-game back is Amarillo at 4-6, followed by Clarendon at 4-7, Odessa at 3-7 and NMMI at 1-10.

Western Texas moved out to a 36-28 halftime lead, but the Military put on the pressure near the end of the contest. Clarence Cephas hit for the Westerners with 1:06 left for a 64-59 lead but Porter Cutrell retaliated for the hosts seconds later. WTC's Brian Baker put the game on ice when he scored a bucket with 43 seconds remaining. NMMI's Kevin Gale punched up another pair of points with 21 seconds remaining, but time became too short for the hosts.

Darren Lee and Ceasar Scott paced the Westerner effort with 12 points apiece. Cephas, Baker, Keith Denis and Troy Stevenson added 8 each as WTC produced a well-balanced scoring game. Chuck North, apparently still nagged by an ankle injury, did not play.

Four NMMI players scored in the doubles, led by Cutrell's 13. Gale, Reed Mulliken and Ernest Rodriguez put up 12 each.

The victory puts WTC at 14-8 for the season. The Westerners host highly-touted Howard College, 18-6, Thursday in Scurry County Coliseum. A women's game, between the nationally ranked Hawk Queens of Howard, and the WTC Dusters, will open the doubleheader at 6.

In WJCAC women's games last night, Amarillo destroyed Odessa, 78-44, and Howard ripped Frank Phillips, 89-67.

Drake Pops Bradley, 77-75

Tulsa's Gold Rush was idle last night, but other Missouri Valley Conference action was going on at a fast pace.

Forward Jaime Pena scored 32 points, including 22 in the second half, to lead New Mexico State to a 67-60 victory over Indiana State. A 6-foot-7 junior, Pena was the only Aggie player in double figures.

Lewis Lloyd hit a 15-foot jumper from the baseline with one second left to boost Drake past Bradley 77-75. Elsewhere, Creighton defeated Southern Illinois, 50-43.

Tulsa will play West Texas State Saturday in Amarillo.

Cook Wins Crosby Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - John Cook survived the first 5-man sudden death playoff in modern golf history to win the rain-delayed Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Cook, a former national amateur champion, turned back Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, Bob Clampett and Barney Thompson with a critical par on the third extra hole.

Cook, finished with a closing round of par 72 allowing him to complete the trimmed-down format of 54 holes with a 209 total.

processing service to the county and to the Scurry County Appraisal District were approved, and the city manager was authorized secure bids on seal-coat rock and liquid asphalt for summer street maintenance.

A contract with the Amarillo law firm of Perdue, Brandon, Blair, Shiever and Fielder for collecting delinquent taxes was approved for the year beginning Feb. 1.

A request by Bill Warner, chamber of commerce manager, for $2,056 in additional hotel-motel tax funds for purchasing 10,000 combination maps and brochures was approved. The transaction had been aproved earlier, but Warner said that a misunderstanding in quotations caused him to underestimate the total cost.

A resolution was approved supporting a city clean-up campaign to begin Feb. 14 under sponsorship of the Alpha Study Club.

A budget amendment was approved to provide $1,800 in matching funds for the Volunteer Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund.

Mayor Milton Ham presided over the meeting. Councilmen attending were Dr. John Best, Dr. Joe Reaves, Don Gressett, David Holt and Rod Waller.

Stained Glass Classes Set

Classes in stained glass design will be taught at Western Texas College beginning Feb. 10 and 12. Michael McCormick will be the instructor and fees are $25 per person. Students will provide their own supplies.

Pre-registration is now underway and persons interested are to call the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL NEWS

Low Fares For Short Flights

NEW YORK (AP) — Air fares for short trips must be kept low to compete with surface travel, according to the head of one of the nation's short-haul airlines.

"We believe that low fares are a must in order to compete with the automobile, the bus and even the backyard," said Howard D. Putnam, president of Southwest Airlines.

Professional Service Assured At Joe Graham Cleaners Here

A familiar sight around Snyder is the Joe Graham Cleaners van driven by Art Roberts.

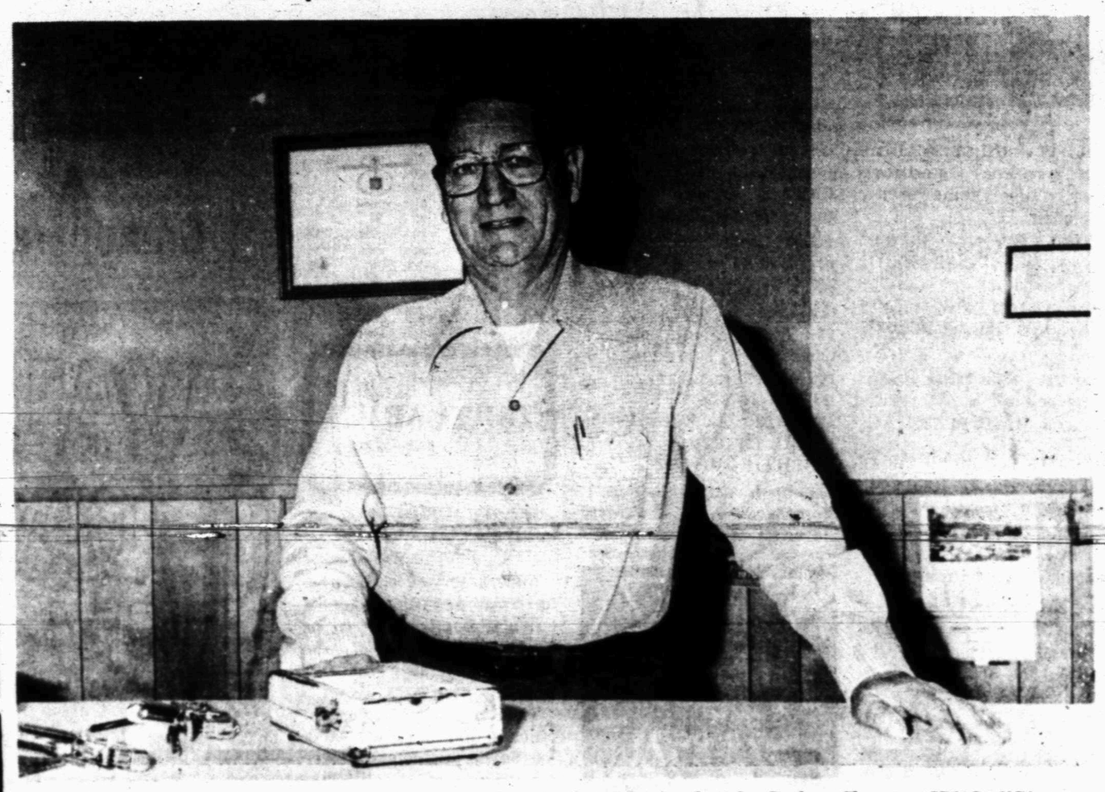
Spring is just around the corner and spring cleaning includes the dry cleaning of many items around the house. Curtains, drapes, bedspreads, quilts and blankets are just a few of the items that the folks at Joe Graham Cleaners can clean and press.

Also, as winter moves out, it's a good time to have your winter coats and jackets cleaned and processed so that they'll be ready when you need them next year.

Something to keep in mind is that Joe Graham Cleaners has a complete alteration department. Their work is well respected in Snyder as many department stores will tell you. So the next time you need something altered, remember them for fast, professional work.

With over 32 years of experience in Snyder, we probably don't need to tell you how important service is to Art Roberts, but the sure thing is that you will get the fastest and best service available when you call for your cleaning needs.

Joe Graham Cleaners is located at 2417 College, or you may phone them at 573-3401.



PROFESSIONAL SERVICE - Art Roberts will see to it that all your cleaning and alteration needs are met when you come see the professionals at Joe Graham Cleaners. (SDN Staff Photo)

Friendly Flower Shop Offers Ideal Gifts For Valentine's

Valentine's Day is Saturday, February 14 and what could be a better gift for that loved one than a Hearts & Flowers Bouquet from the Friendly Flower Shop. Your Valentine will love it!

"Place your orders early," says Jo Ann Prince of the Friendly Flower Shop. The FTD Hearts & Flowers Bouquet is a beautiful arrangement of carnations, daisies, and many more beautiful flowers to brighten your Valentine's Day.

If you are looking for something other than a bouquet for your Valentine, how about some roses? They're perfect and the Friendly Flower Shop has a wide selection to choose from. Call today to assure your order.

The Friendly Flower Shop also has a fine selection of gift items for the home. Select from a wide variety of dried arrangements or make your own. They make beautiful table ornaments. Choose from a large selection of pots and vases. Each is unique.

If your Valentine has a green thumb for house plants, select from hanging baskets and ferns inside the shop. You wll find everything from a Norfolk Pine to tulips to cactus plants.

Lenox scented candles are also one of the specialties at the Friendly Flower Shop. Choose from a large variety of candles in many different scents and colors from folding candles to sculptured column candles.

No matter what your needs for that special day, the friendly people at the Friendly Flower Shop, located at 3001 College Avenue, can help you with your selection.

Tina Sinatra Marries

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Frank Sinatra couldn't be there, but his 32-year-old daughter Tina went ahead and married Beverly Hills businessman Richard Cohen, 44, in a quiet ceremony at her mother's house.

"Mr. Sinatra spoke to his daughter before the wedding, but was unable to attend because of an out-of-town engagement," said spokesman Lee Solters, who said the entertainer was currently appearing in Las Vegas.

The couple was married by Santa Monica Superior Court Judge Mario Clinco at Nancy Lambert's home, Solters said. Attending the ceremony Friday were Frank Sinatra Jr. and the bride's sister, Nancy. A friend of Cohen's, Leonard Gersh, was best man, Solters said.

There was no immediate word on the couple's future plans.
