State announces 71 percent pass second TECAT

AUSTIN (AP) — About 71 percent of the Texas teachers and administrators who failed a competency test in March passed on their second try in June, the Texas Education Agency said today.

A total of 1,199 teachers failed both tests and won't be allowed to teach next year unless their school districts obtain a special, one-year extension.

The passing rates for ethnic groups on the second Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers showed 95.4 percent of the black educators passed, 98.9 percent of Hispanics and 99.9 percent of whites, the TEA said.

"We are extremely pleased that more than 99 percent of the teachers and administrators who took the TECAT ultimately were able to demonstrate that they have the basic reading and writing skills necessary to do their jobs," said Education Commissioner William Kirby.

"We are especially pleased with the passing rates for minorities. The minority passing rates were higher than those for virtually all other standardized tests. I think that indicates that the test absolutely did not discriminate against any ethnic group as is being claimed in a federal lawsuit," Kirby said.

'Windfall Tax' repeal applauded

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Senate vote to abolish the windfall profits tax on oil was lauded by Texas politicians and industry leaders, although there was little hope the repeal would have an immediate effect on the ailing Texas economy.

"To put it bluntly, we don't need a Band-Aid right now. What we need is an electrical shock treatment," Charlie Seely, a Fort Worth independent oil producer, said after the Senate vote Thursday night.

Gov. Mark White said the action was late in coming.

"The Arabs beat 'em to it," he said. "The Saudi Arabians repealed the windfall profits tax when they flooded the market with oil and dropped the price below $22 a barrel."

The Senate approved by voice vote the proposal by Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., which was an amendment to a pending bill raising the ceiling on the national debt. The repeal was passed after opponents failed by 51-47 to table, or kill, the amendment.

The levy, which is actually on oil produced and not on profits, takes effect only when oil prices are above 1979 levels. The tax has not been collecting any money during the recent price decline, and President Reagan had asked for its repeal.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said at the least the repeal vote "is an important step toward responding to the depression in the energy industry. If there ever were any windfall profits, they do not exist today since there are no profits.

"This is a burdensome tax, which has hurt every consumer and every energy producer. It collects no revenue today and imposes a very heavy paperwork burden on oil producers and on the government," Gramm said.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said he was "delighted" with the vote.

He said the best estimates available were that the paperwork costs $700 million a year.

Nickles and other oil-state senators, including Gramm and Bentsen, had asked for the repeal to save oil producers and the government from the bookkeeping.

"It's a small first step, but it's a beginning," Gramm said.

On a related issue, the Senate rejected 82-15 an amendment to impose a $10-a-barrel fee on imported oil.

Opponents said it would be costly to New England states, which import large quantities of oil, and hurt industries that depend on petroleum.

White said it was still necessary to impose an oil import fee.

The windfall tax repeal, he said, would have no effect until oil was again at $22 a barrel.

The governor said that when he was attorney general he had won a lawsuit against the tax but it had been reversed by efforts by the Republican adminstration. He took a jab at former Gov. Bill Clements, his GOP challenger.

"I thought he had a lot of influence with the administration. He was governor at the time that I won the lawsuit. If he had done his job then, they wouldn't have to go back and repeal it."

Clements could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

His press secretary, Reggie Bashur, said White's criticism "borders on the ridiculous."

United Way votes Noah Project as its newest agency

Scurry County United Way directors admitted a new member agency Thursday and approved its 1986 campaign goal of $85,000.

The group voted to admit Noah Project of Snyder as a new agency — increasing the number of those served through the local fund rasing effort to nine.

This followed the recommendation of a United Way budget committee which met with individual agencies July 23.

A fund allocation was given by United Way to Noah Project last year, but it was listed as a special contribution.

Noah Project offers a temporary and safe haven for women who have suffered abuse at the hands of their spouse.

This past year, 31 women and 65 children stayed at the local shelter for varying lengths of time.

The overall United Way budget approved Wednesday reflects a 15 percent decline from the record-setting $100,000 total set last year.

The budget committee recommended the reduced amount due to the recent sharp downturn in the economy coupled with the decreases in the price of oil.

Planning is now underway for Delivery charges face local parolee

A Snyder man, currently on parole after pleading guilty to drug sale charges here some two years ago, was rearrested by Scurry County sheriff's deputies this week and a case of delivery of a controlled substance against him is expected to be taken to a local grand jury Monday.

Two other individuals were taken into custody also in connection with incidents which led to the arrest Tuesday of Anderson (Son) Davis, 64.

He remained in Scurry County Jail Friday under a $100,000 bond. Davis is alleged to have sold Hydromorphone — a prescription drug pain killer — to 34-year-old Gary Don Parks.

Earlier Tuesday, deputies say Parks and his 54-year-old mother, Mary Varnele Parks, were taken into custody after they were stopped in their vehicle and the illegal substance was found in Mrs. Parks' purse.

Friday morning, a guilty plea to the possession charge was entered by Parks, who waived grand jury indictment on the charge.

Under a plea bargain agreement reached with District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, Parks was granted eight-years probation.

As part of the same plea bargain agreement–and based upon evidence given that the son purchased drugs and placed them in his mother's possession–charges against Mrs. Parks were dropped Friday, Armstrong said.

She was released from jail

Erodible land signup has begun 3rd round

The Conservation Reserve Program for land classified as "highly erodible" has now begun its third signup in Scurry County.

It will continue through Aug. 15, according to Joe Hefner, executive director for the local ASCS office.

During two previous signup periods, almost 3,600 acres of Scurry County land has been accepted.

To sign up, farmers must submit bids stating the rental payment they would accept to convert the cropland to grassland.

Hefner noted the program encourages farmers to plant the land in grass through 10-year contracts.

The signup just begun will put lands into the program effective Oct. 1. or the date the current crop is harvested. After this point, during the life of the contract, the designated area "must be devoted to a conserving use."

He noted harvesting, grazing or other commercial uses of the forage is not allowed.

Hefner said also, "Land designated for a 1987 contract may not be grazed after this coming Oct. 1."

For retiring the highly erodible land from farm production, farmers will receive annual rental payments.

These will be based upon the bids per acre and one-half of the expenses of establishing the grass cover on the land.

Annual payments will be made beginning Oct. 1, 1987.

From a friend: Don't worry about getting older. You'll always stay young if you live honestly, eat slowly, sleep sufficiently, work industriously and lie about your age.

From a lawyer: The U.S. is great. We have the only judicial system in the world where they lock up the jury at night and let the defendant go home.

The doctor shook his head in wonder and said, "You have the body of a 64-year-old. Your father must have lived to a ripe age.

"Did I say my father was dead?" the old man said. "He's 104."

"Well," said the doctor, "your grandfather must have lived to a ripe old age."

"Did I say my grandfather was dead? the old man said. "He's 124 and just recently got married."

The doctor wagged his head and asked, "Why in the world would he want to get married at that age?"

"Did I say," demanded the man, "that he wanted to?"

Textile talks

GENEVA (AP) — Diplomats from more than 50 countries agreed today to a five-year extension of the main international pact governing trade in textiles and clothing, the European Common Market chief negotiator said.

Bargaining between importers, led by the United States, and low-cost producers had continued for much of the night after the 54-nation Multi-Fiber Arrangement formally expired at midnight Thursday.

Textile trade has become an emotional issue in the United States, where thousands of jobs and billions of dollars' worth of domestic business have been lost because of what U.S. manufacturers call a flood of cheaper imports.

RV explodes

MEMPHIS, Texas (AP) — Two Natchez, Miss. sisters were among four people flown to Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas after a recreational vehicle exploded and caught fire about two miles north of this Panhandle town, officials said.

The fire occurred at 3:20 p.m. Thursday on U.S. 287, said Ricky Garcia, Memphis police and fire dispatcher. Authorities said that the four were en route to a vacation in Canada.

The victims were identified as John and Virginia Foley of Dallas, and John's sisters, Frances and Helen Foley of Natchez, said Claude McCain, hospital administrator.

Middlemen may get millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of cotton merchants, textile mills and cooperatives become eligible today for federal subsidies that in some cases may total tens of millions of dollars, say government and industry sources.

The payments are part of a new U.S. agriculture strategy that calls for reversing years of high price supports, dramatically cutting prices to make American crops more competitive in world markets.

Under the 1985 farm law, anyone holding "free stocks" — bales of old-crop cotton unencumbered by government loans — will be entitled, beginning today, to one-time "inventory protection" payments of about $200 for each 500-pound bale.

Holders of eligible cotton will receive government commodity certificates that can be sold or exchanged for cotton now in government stocks.

Agriculture Department and industry estimates put the amount of eligible cotton spread across the country at 2.5 million to 3 million bales, worth $500 million to $600 million to those holding the stocks.

The amount of cotton held by any mill or merchant is not yet known and is a closely held secret because of competitive considerations. But industry observers say they expect cotton merchants in Memphis, Tenn., where many of the largest merchants are based, to receive some of the heftiest federal subsidies.

"It wouldn't surprise me if some of them don't have 250,000 bales," said one veteran industry watcher, who spoke on condition he not be identified. At $200 a bale, that could mean payments of up to $50 million to some cotton middlemen.

Billy Dunavant, a Memphis merchant who is among the world's largest purveyors of cotton, declined to talk specifically about how much he stands to collect. But he acknowledged that 250,000 bales "is in the ballpark."

"We've got tremendous shipments to meet in August and September, and we've got to be in a position to roll," he said.

"Yes, it's going to be costly for the American government," Dunavant added. "But 90 percent of the cotton grown in the world is grown under a subsidy. We've got to do this if we're going to compete." He said the entire cotton industry, from farmer to textile mill, will benefit from higher sales.

Another Memphis merchant, the Hohenberg Brothers Cotton Co., has accumulated "not anywhere near" as much cotton, said its president, Rudy Scheit, who also declined to give exact figures.

Other large recipients are likely to include textile makers such as Burlington, Cone, West Point Pepperell and Fieldcrest Cannon.

Congressional conference okays 'superfund' renewal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional "Superfund" negotiators are agreed on an $8.5 billion battle plan to revive the nation's war on toxic waste, but the major question of who pays for the five-year effort remains unanswered.

After five months of intense bargaining, House and Senate conferees late Thursday approved compromise legislation to strengthen and expand a toxic cleanup program beset in 1983 by scandals over its administration by the Environmental Protection Agency and since last October by a money shortage.

The bill, hailed by environmental groups and EPA Administrator Lee Thomas, would increase Superfund's spending more than five fold from the $1.6 billion budgeted in its first five years.

And to counter criticism that less than two dozen chemical waste sites have been cleaned and that some of them are still leaking toxics, the bill requires the EPA to begin at least 375 cleanups through 1991 and make sure the results meet health standards set by a variety of federal laws.

To minimize the shifting of toxics from one dump to another, the bill requires the EPA to use permanent treatment techniques where feasible.

The legislation also creates a $500,000 program to begin attacking the growing problem of leaking underground fuel storage tanks, which threaten water supplies, and to require large chemical makers and users to tell the public about toxics routinely escaping from their plants.

And to close a major loophole in the original 1980 Superfund law, the compromise will place toxics created by federal agencies — principally the Defense and Energy departments — under Superfund.

Jazz pianist Teddy Wilson dies at 73

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Jazz pianist Teddy Wilson, who helped bring integrated music from after-hours jam sessions at small clubs to prime time performances with the Benny Goodman Orchestra during the 1930s, has died.

Wilson, who was 73, died Thursday at his New Britain home, where he spent the last several years of his life battling a digestive illness.

Wilson spent much of his career as a soloist or leader of his own small combos, but achieved jazz prominence during a four-year stint with the Benny Goodman Orchestra.

"What I got out of playing with Teddy was something, in a jazz way, like what I got from playing Mozart in a string quartet," Goodman once said of Wilson.

Wilson first joined Goodman in the Goodman trio, with Goodman on clarinet and Gene Krupa on drums, and later with the full band. The trio was later expanded to quartet and sextet, and featured such other jazz stars as Lionel Hampton on the vibraphone and Charley Christian on guitar.

In joining Goodman, Wilson was among the first black people to become popularly accepted playing alongside white musicians.

Graduates Speak in Tongue Foreign to Grandma's Ears

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last week I attended my granddaughter's high school graduation and had the dubious pleasure of overhearing a conversation between a gaggle of graduates. The conversation went like this:

"Hey, Amy, stand over by the lilac bush so's I can get your pitcher. And for gawd's sake, get that cap tassel out of your eyes. The sucker don't add nothin' to your beauty, you know."

"I seen Kevin and I told him he done real good in his salitory speech, and he — you know — blushed bright red an' an' — you know — acted like the wimp he is."

"Lisa asked me if I was invited to Joe's party an' I go, 'Sure, why not?' an' she goes, 'Well, I thought him an' you split,' an' I go, 'No way! Him an' me still have a thing goin,' ya know — like wow!"

"Ain't this graduation a blast? Really awesome — and I mean it. Everyone got their diplomas."

Abby, what language are these graduates speaking? Where did they learn it? In their English classes? From their peers? But who are these peers who have matriculated in several years of training in grammar and still can't speak intelligently enough to be accepted for more than the most menial job?

PERSNICKETY

DEAR PERSNICKETY: The graduates are speaking English, as they learned it from their peers. It was not taught in the classroom — but it was tolerated there. My heart goes out to the young people. Their manner of speaking is not necessarily a fair evaluation of their intelligence. It is more a reflection on an educational system that failed, and on a society that doesn't care.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Fixed Income in Kentucky," who complained that physicians prescribe too many expensive pills at one time and when they don't work they have to be thrown away.

One can always ask the pharmacist to have the prescription only partially filled until the buyer knows how she (or he) reacts to the medication.

When I had an adverse reaction to a procedure in the dentist's chair, my dentist wrote a prescription for 15 Valium tablets — my first ever. He anticipated my need for more for future visits.

My pharmacist was fully cooperative when I asked him to give me only five tablets. That was six months ago, and I still have two left.

C.H. IN OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR C.H.: You were wise. Most people hand the prescription to the pharmacist and buy the amount prescribed. It's a good idea to ask the pharmacist to give you a "trial" quantity to see how you react to it. Most will cooperate, but if yours does not, there's usually another drugstore across the street.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: In my wildest imaginings, I never thought I would be writing to Dear Abby, but listen to this. After attending a 50th high school reunion, my "first love" wrote to me telling me the old feelings had never died. Abby, he has a marriage of 42 years and I am a recent widow.

He's written some beautiful letters and I have answered all but the last one. Now my good friends, whose judgment I respect, are saying, "No more correspondence, with this old flame!"

So far it's been very exciting but harmless. What do you think?

BLONDIE, CLASS OF '35

DEAR BLONDIE: With such smart friends you don't need any advice from Dear Abby.

Drought quietly costs migrants their jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The drought in the Southeast is taking a substantial but largely unnoticed toll on thousands of migrant farm workers who subsist each summer by following the harvest northward in search of work.

"It's terrible," said Linda Brown, a 28-year-old worker who travels each summer with her 15-year-old son from Florida to Georgia, South Carolina and Delaware to harvest watermelons and other crops.

"The corn is turning brown and just wilted all over. People are here to do the work, and if they don't get a job, they're hungry. There's a lot of people out there in the same position I'm in. It's nobody's fault. We're just caught in the middle."

Brown appeared with David Cain, another migrant worker, and his family at a hearing Thursday before the House Select Committee on Hunger to plead for better nutrition, health and education programs for the estimated 800,000 people who make a living each year by harvesting crops from farm to farm.

"Thousands of migrants are without work or waiting for work in crowded, often unsanitary migrant camps because of the crisis in agriculture," said Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, chairman of the committee.

Cain, 52, said his family is fortunate to be able to live rent-free, at least for now, in housing provided by a farmer near Bridgeville, Del. But he must borrow money for food, and can't afford the gasoline it would take to drive around and look for work while the family waits for the apple harvest.

He said he normally relies on harvest work to save a few hundred dollars over a summer to help pay winter living expenses at his house in Sebring, Fla.

Space station move delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher says he was wrong for not consulting Congress before announcing a plan to move part of the space station program out of the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

At a Thursday news conference, Fletcher said he would delay the reorganization plan for 90 days for review.

Shortly after Fletcher's announcement, the House Appropriations Committee adopted, 30-22, a Texas-sponsored amendment to the NASA appropriations bill requiring the agency to get approval from Congress before moving any programs or personnel out of Houston.

The Texans drew support from other members of the committee who want Congress to have more say about the way the space agency is run in the wake of the space shuttle Challenger disaster.

Rep. Robert Mrazek, D-N.Y., said Congress had relied on NASA expertise in the past, "perhaps too heavily."

Fletcher had sought to shift research on the space station life support system from the Johnson Space Center to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

"NASA really did not do the right thing when it failed to inform Congress fully when it adopted the management restructuring of the space station," Fletcher told the Associated Press in an interview.

The proposal drew angry reaction from the Texas congressional delegation who saw the move as a weakening of Houston's status in manned space flight research. Fletcher attended a fence-mending meeting with the congressmen last week and flew to Houston the next day to explain the plan to JSC employees.

Earlier in the week, members of the Houston Chamber of Commerce went to the White House to complain to Vice President George Bush, a former Houston congressman.

Houston is suffering from high unemployment because of low oil prices. The business community sees the Johnson Space Center as an important and prestigious enticement to new, high-technology industry.

Fletcher said the reorganization would have put management of research on the space station's life support system at Huntsville, the same location as the main contractor building the station.

He said the move would have eliminated 300 jobs which otherwise would have gone to Houston, although he said early misinformation indicated 1,900 jobs would be lost at Houston. In fact, he said, it was still undecided where some 1,000 jobs would go.

Fletcher said once the job numbers were clarified "jobs weren't the issue. Certain congressmen believed that Houston is the expert in life support equipment and they should have the management of that aspect."

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, said moving the research away from the Johnson Space Center would be "an enormous psychological blow" to Houston.

"We're not asking for a federal bailout, we're not asking for things we're not entitled to, we're just asking for a little consideration," he said.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, who offered the amendment, and Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., both said there was no Texas-versus-Alabama conflict involved, but Bevill spoke against Loeffler's amendment.

Economic woes cause bank failure

EDEN, Texas (AP) — A depressed oil and agriculture economy caused Texas' 13th bank failure this year as the Eden State Bank was forced to close its doors, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. officials said.

"Deterioration in the loan portfolio had been identified by the bank's directors and examining personnel and resulted in losses well in excess of the bank's capital," said Texas Bank Commissioner James L. Sexton, who ordered the bank closed Thursday.

"Sizable losses were identified on loans originated under previous management and made to out-of-territory borrowers and into the local agriculture and oil economy," he said.

Sexton closed the bank with assets totalling $13 million and named the FDIC as receiver.

Eden State Bank will be taken over by The Eden State Bank, forming a new chartered subsidiary of Eden Financial Corp. of San Angelo, said FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski.

The failed bank's only office in Eden will open today and its depositors will automatically become depositors of the assuming bank, subject to approval by the appropriate court, Olcheski said.

The Eden State Bank will assume about $12.4 million from 23,000 deposit accounts. The new management also agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $104,000, Olcheski said.

The new bank also will purchase certain of the failed bank's loans and other assets for $9.7 million. To facilitate the transaction, the FDIC will advance $2.9 million to the assuming bank and will retain assets of the failed bank with a book value of about $3.3 million, the spokesman said.

The FDIC will recover a portion of the $2.9 million through the liquidation of assets not transferred to the assuming bank, Olcheski said.

Eden State Bank was the 81st bank to close in the country this year and the 37th agriculture-related bank, Olcheski said.

ATTENTION ANNUAL SUMMER DRAPERY CLEANING SPECIAL

There is a good reason why we have an annual Drapery Sale each year at this time. At the plant we employ a lot of skilled people in our Household Dept. and we run this discount sale on draperies to give these folks full employment. It's your chance to give your draperies the same attention to detail and all at a 20% discount. If you want to get a head start on housecleaning, I can help you take the draperies down today or on my next call.

Bright light may be way to reset the body's clock

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who feel fuzzy, drowzy or downright sick after changing work shifts or taking long plane trips may need only to see the light — literally.

A team of Boston researchers reported today that bright light in measured doses apparently can reset the body's internal clock, providing a likely way to head off such nagging problems.

There could also be reductions in on-the-job accidents, which tend to be highest among rotating shift workers, said the study's main investigator, Dr. Charles A. Czeisler, director of the neuroendocrine laboratory at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

His team's study, published in today's edition of the journal Science, dealt with just one woman, he said. But he added in a telephone interview that he's working now to set up a field study at a factory.

Eventually at many factories, he said, "workers on rotating shifts could get therapeutic doses of bright light on the evening shift to reset their internal clocks in preparation for the next week's rotation to the night shift."

In the meantime, he said, "there's a lot of spadework we need to do" involving studies of more individuals in a variety of situations.

The report in Science involves the effect of light on a person's circadian pacemaker — a mechanism located behind the optic nerve at the front of the brain that synchronizes a person's system with his or her waking, working and sleeping schedule.

It has been long assumed such synchronization is achieved by habit — through years of getting up in the morning and going to bed at night because business and social activities are set up that way.

But Czeisler and his colleagues said their study suggests the body's pacemaker has to be reset daily by the light conditions that just happen to flow from such a schedule — the sun in the morning, darkness at night — and the timing can be changed drastically by changing the light conditions.

In their experiment, a healthy 66-year-old woman was housed at the hospital in rooms with no outside night-and-day indications.

For a week, she spent the hours from 8 p.m. to midnight in front of a bank of wide-spectrum fluorescent lamps with an intensity 48 times greater than ordinary room light, or comparable to sunlight just after dawn.

Within two days, the study said, changes in her body temperature indicated her biological clock had been shifted six hours later, even though she was still going to bed at midnight and rising at 6 a.m. as she had been long accustomed to doing.

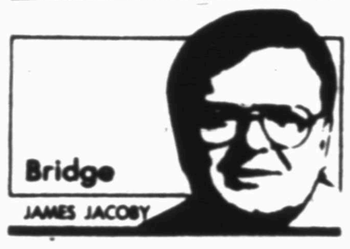
The significance is in showing an ability to quickly shift the timing of the temperature changes that generally accompany people's waking and sleeping.

That wouldn't necessarily make them tired or full of energy earlier or later, but it could make their bodies' physical systems more receptive to the idea that a new bedtime or wakeup schedule had become appropriate.

Most people have a "critical phase of vulnerability" around 4 a.m. to 6 a.m. each morning, Czeisler said. Those are the hours when most people's bodies and minds know they should be sound asleep.

People can force themselves to work during such hours and even be seemingly wide awake, but they tend to make more mistakes and have more accidents at those times, he said.

BRIDGE
James Jacoby



A safety play is a bridge insurance policy. The premium you pay is usually one trick. At rubber bridge it's worth the price to guarantee your contract. It's a tougher decision at duplicate. If all players holding your cards are going to be in game, you may not wish to play safe, since an overtrick or two may give you the best result on that deal. On the other hand, if you are doubled or in a contract that very few other players will reach, then you will surely want to play as safely as possible to make what you have bid. Today's deal illustrates the problem.

Against three no-trump West led a heart. The queen held the trick in dummy, and declarer had a simple decision to make. If clubs split 3-2, he could make at least one overtrick and maybe more. But if they did not behave, playing out A-K-Q might doom the contract. At rubber bridge there is little choice. Clubs will split 4-1 a little more than 28 percent of the time, so playing a low club at trick two is cheap insurance.

It's clear on this deal that every tournament competitor will be in three no-trump, so you might as well try to outscore the field in overtricks. Furthermore, if you take the safety play at duplicate, you might just find that on this deal you lose to every pair in the room by a lousy 30 points.

Crosby is off drugs, wants out of prison

HOUSTON (AP) — Rock star David Crosby may be leaving his prison cell in Huntsville and living in California soon, but only if the California Department of Corrections approves his parole application.

Crosby, 44, told the Houston Chronicle that he has kicked his 10-year drug habit and wants out of prison to pursue his musical career.

"It's either drugs or my life," Crosby told the Chronicle during an interview Wednesday at a TDC Wynne Unit visiting room.

"It had gotten to the point where if I continued with the drugs, then that means no more music, no more of my daughter and no more of my life," he said. "I'm off the drugs."

California's prison spokesman Jack Corrie said the department received Crosby's application for a parole transfer Wednesday. Los Angeles parole officials now have 30 days to investigate Crosby's parole plans and decide whether the singer is a good risk.

"They will be checking out the program, where he is going to live, where he is going to work and whether he has family support," Corrie said.

Crosby could be released in the next two years if his Texas parole is approved by California officials where the musician is on parole, spokesman Mike Roach of the parole board said. The release has been approved by Texas officials, he said.

The singer is serving a five-year Texas sentence for a 1983 conviction of cocaine and possession of a firearm. He was arrested after a performance at a Dallas nightclub.

Newspaper says governor to seek increase in taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's press secretary says it is "unsubstantiated speculation" that White will recommend a tax bill when the Legislature's special session convenes next week.

The Austin American-Statesman, quoting unnamed sources, Thursday said White was expected to recommend a tax increase in a plan to help erase the state's estimated $3.5 billion budget deficit.

"It will include taxes. My understanding is it's going to take care of the whole problem," the newspaper quoted one source as saying.

White's proclamation calling the special session that opens Wednesday was limited to spending cuts, but a governor always has the option of expanding the topics lawmakers can consider in such a session.

The governor's press secretary, Ann Arnold, disputed the newspaper's report.

"The sources that (it) refers to are dealing strictly in unsubstantiated speculation," Arnold said.

"There is no tax plan in preparation. The governor is meeting today and tomorrow, working over the weekend, to review the impact of various levels of cuts on state agency budgets," she said.

Ms. Arnold said White has seen news reports about plans of various state officials who have called for a tax increase, but she said White had no such plan of his own.

Comptroller Bob Bullock estimates that state revenue will fall $3.52 billion short of the $37.2 billion budgeted by the Legislature for spending in the 1986 and 1987 fiscal years.

Legislative leaders are split over a solution.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is touring the state this week, urging public support for his idea to cut $650 million in spending and raise $2.2 billion with a tax increase.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, has voiced opposition to a tax increase. House leaders say they prefer $1.3 billion in spending cuts now — to keep the state from writing hot checks before year's end — and dealing with the remainder of the deficit in the regular legislative session that convenes in January.

According to the American-Statesman, one source close to White said the governor's staff has presented various tax options to him for review but White has not decided which routes to propose to generate new revenue.

"They looked at all the agencies and looked at the impact of cuts only, and it's just too dire. They are not acceptable," the source was quoted as saying.

White has said he opposes either a personal or corporate income tax. He has declined in recent weeks to discuss the possibility of other tax hikes, saying he wanted to concentrate on spending cuts first.

If he were to sign a tax hike into law this summer, it would be the second tax increase White has supported in two years. In 1984, he pushed a three-year, $4.6 billion increase in sales and fuel taxes to fund school reforms and highway improvements.

Broiler price rise fuels increase in farm price index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising prices in the heat-scorched broiler belt of the Southeast helped boost the government's overall farm price index by 2.6 percent last month.

"Broiler prices registered their largest monthly gain ever, jumping 8.4 cents to 42.4 cents per pound," the Agriculture Department said Thursday. "The July price was the highest since records began in 1940."

Egg prices averaged 58.6 cents per dozen at the farm, up 8.1 cents from June, and turkey prices rose 3.2 cents to 49.3 cents per pound.

Broiler prices at the farm a year ago averaged 30.3 cents per pound; eggs, 52.9 cents; and turkeys, 44 cents.

Farmers in the Southeast have suffered more than $2.3 billion in losses, including thousands of broilers and other fowl.

Higher prices for hogs, cattle and potatoes also contributed to the July rise in the monthly index, while lower prices were reported for corn, oranges, pears and wheat, which helped offset gains for the other commodities.

Despite the overall increase, prices in July still averaged 1.6 percent below a year ago, the report said.

The index of prices that farmers pay out to meet expenses was unchanged from April, the previous reading. Due to a financial cutback, the agency is releasing prices paid by farmers every three months. The next report will be on Oct. 31.

According to the preliminary July figures, based mostly on mid-month averages, the farm prices of livestock and livestock products, which include poultry and eggs, rose 6.8 percent in July and averaged 9.2 percent more than a year ago.

Meat animals, the larger component, were up 6.4 percent from June, averaging 10 percent above the year-earlier level. The index for poultry and eggs was up 18 percent from June and 24 percent from a year earlier.

Crop prices declined 3.7 percent from June, averaging 13 percent less than a year earlier, the report said. Feed grains and hay dropped 12 percent during the month, averaging 22 percent below July 1985.

Under new legislation passed by Congress last year, the government is lowering price supports for major commodities, meaning a downward drift in market prices that administration officials hope will make U.S. farm products more competitive in the world market.

Corn, at $1.99 per bushel, was down 33 cents from June, the lowest since October 1982. Hay prices averaged $58.70 per ton, down $3.70 from June and the lowest in more than six years.

Food grains dropped 6 percent from June and 24 percent from a year earlier. Wheat averaged $2.29 per bushel, down 19 cents from June and 64 cents less than a year earlier.

The report said cattle prices increased $2.20 from June, averaging $52.30 per 100 pounds in July. Hog prices rose $5.80 during the month to a July average of $58.40 per hundredweight, the highest since September 1982.

Prices of potatoes and dry beans jumped 37 percent from June, averaging 17 percent more than a year ago. Potato prices rose $2.28 to $7.26 per 100 pounds, but dry bean prices declined 10 cents to $17.20 per hundredweight.

Tacos provides future for one southeast Texas family

NEDERLAND, Texas (AP) — As Albert Ramirez neared his 40th birthday, his thoughts turned to his family and the wonderful years they shared.

Recalling those years, Ramirez remembers asking himself a question: What happens to my family if I die?

Ramirez became concerned that the savings he had accumulated as a commercial artist from 1946 to 1960 would not reach very far if his income was lost.

He considered investing in more life insurance.

But another question came to mind: I want to do more with my family while I live and what if I live to be 100 years old?

Ramirez, now 64, says those 2 questions helped him make a choice that has sustained him and his wife, his children and his children's children for 26 years.

As easily as Ramirez lays brush to canvas, he switched careers in midlife, withdrawing nearly all of his savings to open a new concept in Mexican restaurants: a drive-in, convenient fast-food service.

He laughs, rubbing his chin as he modestly compares his idea to contemporary Mexican fast-food franchises.

"I never thought about franchising or selling my idea. All I wanted was to do well enough to support my family and give them some kind of guarantee for their futures if anything happened to me," he says.

The Ramirez family restaurant, Taco Rey, began in Port Arthur with two skillets, a couple of pots and pans and a lot of desire.

Ramirez's wife, Cora, casts a smile that could worm a chilly Gulf Coast breeze. She remembers how she used to prepare her meals with a skillet and kept beans cooking at home on the stove while the family slept.

She picks up a cup of hot coffee. She takes a sip and sets the cup on the table before continuing her tale.

"We talked about opening a restaurant a few times. He (Albert) always said my cooking was good enough to sell. So we decided to give it a try," she says.

They were not prepared for the response they received.

"There were cars parked all over the place and down around the block. We were the only people offering a drive-in Mexican food restaurant in the area. And Cora's recipes for taco reys, what the people call a burrito today, were home-cooked. Something that satisfied everybody," he says.

As their business grew, Albert and Cora were spending more hours at the restaurant. Because of the children, Albert added a room to the side of their restaurant — a place where the children could do their homework, rest and watch a little television.

When the children reached their teens, it seemed only natural that they would join the restaurant staff.

Delores Ramirez-Delgadillo, 31, who acts a manager now that the restaurant has relocated to Nederland, says "It never was a forced thing. We always wanted to work together and be together. It's family effort and we all are ready to do whatever needs to be done."

Ask physician about tampons

DEAR DR. GOTT — My mother's friend says that a girl shouldn't use tampons until she's married. Another friend says that tampons will stretch the hymen, but won't break it. What's the truth here? I'm 15 and active in sports, and using a sanitary pad is getting to be a drag.

DEAR READER — A tampon will break the hymen if the hymen is large and the tampon is inserted correctly. On other hand, the hymen can be broken by physical activity. Further, many girls do not have much of a hymen to begin with, so I think your best option is to discuss the situation with your doctor and determine if tampons would be appropriate for you. Waiting until marriage seems to me to be an overly strict point of view; your mother may be willing to let you use tampons, providing your doctor OKs them.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can my girlfriend get pregnant from having intercourse during her period?

DEAR READER — That would be highly unlikely, but, unfortunately, it is possible.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My brother is 18 and still wets the bed. What can be done about it?

DEAR READER — The answer depends on the reasons your brother continues to wet the bed. He may have a physical problem, such as incontinence, that should be investigated by a urologist; or his bedwetting may be due to emotional factors that could best be addressed by counseling. Either way, this problem is clearly abnormal for an 18-year-old to have. I'd start with a physical examination first and them move into counseling if that is needed.

DEAR DR. GOTT — How is manic depression treated? The doctor has my husband on four uppers and four downers a day, but if depression is caused by a chemical imbalance, why so many drugs?

DEAR READER — Manic depression (abnormally wide mood swings) is better treated with other medicine — like lithium — than with stimulants and depressants. I think your husband should get another opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My breath is so bad that I'm embarrassed to talk to people. I must brush my teeth and gargle at least 10 times a day. I've tried changing my diet, mouthwashes and toothpaste, but to no avail. I have a constant postnasal drip — could that be the cause? I also get tonsillitis occasionally. Are my tonsils to blame?

DEAR READER — Chronic tonsillitis that affects the back of the tonsils, out of sight, can cause bad breath with or without sore throat. A postnasal drip usually will not produce bad breath, unless the drip is caused by a low-grade infection of the adenoids or sinuses. Check with an ear, nose and throat specialist to see if an infection is indeed present. If your tonsils, throat and sinuses are normal, a dentist may be able to advise you.

Dr. Gott's new Health Report, ABOUT GOUT, explains the cause and treatment of this disease. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Education groups working on position for special session

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's major education groups will push for a tax hike if it is needed to avoid cuts in public school reform measures, says an official of the Texas Elementary Principals and Supervisors Association.

Brad Duggan said TEPSA and other education groups are preparing a "united position" to present to legislators when they meet in special session next week to work on the projected $3.5 billion state budget deficit.

Duggan made the comments Thursday at a news conference at which his organization released survey results showing that elementary school administrators are pleased with the results of the 1984 school reforms.

"To retreat now would be to undermind the whole focus of the reforms. It takes a long time to restructure an education program and a long time to see results of new emphasis in programs," said Duggan.

Gov. Mark White, who called the special session that begins Wednesday, has said no cuts should be made that would harm the education reforms.

Duggan said, "All of the education associations will support whatever taxes are necessary to maintain this commitment.

"The education associations have met and will be releasing information about a united position for this special session that will deal with a united position in regard to change and a united position in regard to raising dollars," he said at a Capitol news conference.

Duggan would not discuss specifics of the program. Brad Ritter, a Texas State Teachers Association spokesman, said his organization has participated in talks with other education associations. But Ritter also would not release specifics of the program.

Survey results released at the news conference showed heavy support among elementary school principals and administrators for the reforms now in place. For example, 95 percent of them support the 22-student maximum for classes in Kindergarten through second grade.

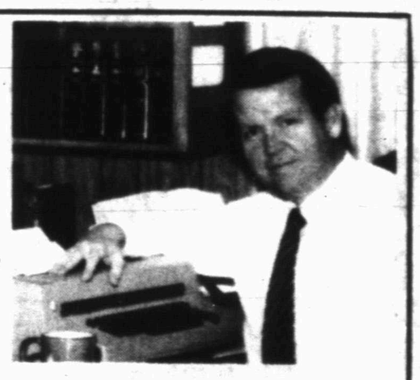
Ask The Preacher



"...about the 'Sermon on the Mount'"

This question asks, "Was the 'Sermon on the Mount' one complete lesson, or was it a composite lesson, put together by Matthew and the other Gospel writers, to display several areas of Jesus' teaching?"

Our question this week displays a view that many people (even some Bible scholars) hold, that the Sermon on the Mount is a collection of the sayings of Jesus.

Well, the Bible says otherwise.

The Gospel of Matthew provides us with the most complete record of the Sermon on the Mount, and I would like to point out two simple facts about this text.

First, Matt.5:1 says that Jesus "went up onto the mountainside... and he began to teach..." (v.2)

Then , in Matt. 7:28, AFTER the sermon is over, Matthew says, "When Jesus had finished saying these things, the crowds were amazed at his teaching..." and then, Matthew goes on to say (8:1), "When he came DOWN from the mountainside, large crowds followed him."

These passages, found at the beginning and end of the Sermon, pretty well describe it as a single unit, one sermon that contained these teachings on the kingdom of heaven.

Snyder girls in UGSA tournament

Division I girls hope to reach meet finals

MONAHANS -- Snyder's Division I All-Stars were 2-2 heading into today's final slate of round-robin action at the UGSA Class A Championship here.

The youngsters lost their first and fourth games, but defeated Monahans and Clyde.

Coach Jerry Martin said the All-Stars had a chance to get back to Saturday's championship series if they could pull off two wins today. The Stars were to play Sweetwater at 11 a.m. and Big Spring at 7 p.m.

Results of the All-Stars' first four games are as follows:

Mt. Vernon 20, Snyder 10

Getting hits for Snyder were Allison Hester, a triple; and Brooke Lowrance, Lauri Allen and Biancha Rocha, a single apiece.

Snyder 13, Monahans 12

Amy Vaughan took winning pitcher honors as Snyder clipped Monahans for its first victory of the tournament. Slapping the ball for Snyder were Lowrance, Stephanie Hernandez, Jodi White, Amanda Davis, Allen, Rocha, Hester, and Jamie Franks, a single each.

Snyder 18, Clyde 3

Snyder cracked Clyde for its second victory Thursday. Getting hits were Lowrance, a triple and a single; Franks, three singles; Rocha, Hernandez and White, two singles each; Vaughan, a double; and Davis, Paige Gayle, Allen, Hester and Stephanie Buchanan, a single apiece.

Davis was the winning pitcher.

Lovington 16, Snyder 12

Getting hits for Snyder's All-Stars were Hernandez, two doubles; Davis, Mandy Baker and Allen, two singles each; and Rocha, Hester, and Franks, a single apiece.

Senior girls post 2-2 record in tournament

MONAHANS -- Snyder's Division IV All-Stars were struggling to make it to the finals of the United Girls Softball Association Class A Championship here today.

The girls are 2-2 going into the final two games of the round-robin schedule. They were to play Andrews at 11 a.m., and - in a schedule switch - Mt. Vernon at 5 p.m.

Wins in both of their games today would likely leave them in a tie for second place and force a playoff for the runnerup position. The top two teams advance to Saturday's best-of-three championship series.

Here are the results of games played Thursday:

Big Spring 22, Snyder 6

Getting hits for Snyder were Teri Sue Henry, a double; and Jill Roemisch, Debbie Yandrich, Shelly Hayes and Nita Hernandez, a single each. Big Spring, undefeated in the tournament, got 13 hits. Jancy Cunningham was the winning pitcher.

Snyder 9, Brownwood 8

Lisa Rosas picked up the win while Hayes led the offense with three singles. Also hitting for the All-Stars were Rosas and Tisha Crumley, a double each; and Zajicek, Henry and Hope Hernandez, a single apiece.

The loser was Karen Troraugh.

Sweetwater 12, Snyder 7

Sweetwater managed only two hits in the game but used a bucket full of walks, including seven in the final inning, to come from behind and win.

Snyder came up with nine hits, including two doubles from Rosas. Others hitting were Hope Hernandez, a double and a single; Crumley, a double; Henry, two singles; and Zajicek and Teri Billington, a single apiece.

Cinthia Seqovia was the winning pitcher, despite pitching only one inning.

II All-Stars collect first tourney victory

MONAHANS -- It took a while, but Snyder's Division II All-Star squad finally found its first victory at the UGSA Class A Championship here Thursday evening.

After losing its first three games in the round-robin tourney Snyder tagged Hawley 28-9 to find the win. Now 1-3, Snyder could feasibly reach Saturday's championship finals with some outside help from other teams, and by winning its final three ballgames.

Today, Snyder was scheduled to play Monahans at 8 a.m., Mt. Vernon at 11 a.m. and San Angelo Lake View at 7 p.m.

The top two teams in the division will advance to Saturday's best-of-three series for the championship.

In games played before today:

Big Spring 42, Snyder 11

Snyder plugged 18 hits, despite the loss. Cracking the bat were Misti Watson, four singles; Rebecca Ramey, Renee Matthews and Angela Good, three singles each; Karri Blackledge, a double; Amy Ramirez, two singles; and Lee Ann Owens and Tiffany Bly, one single each.

Lovington, N.M. 13, Snyder 11

Owens slammed a double and a single in this narrow loss for Snyder. Others hitting were Ramey and Good, two singles each; and Watson, Matthews, Blackledge, Bly, Angel Scarber, Sherry Fisk, Lisa Rodriquez and Angela Vaughan, one single apiece.

Breckenridge 20, Snyder 3

Getting hits for Snyder's All-Stars were Watson, a double; Ramey and Good, two singles each; and Ramirez, Matthews and Owens, one single apiece.

Snyder 28, Hawley 9 (6 innings)

Snyder claimed its first win in a big way - via the 10-run rule. Hitting the ball were Owens, a triple, a double and two singles; Watson and Good, a double and three singles each; Fisk and Ramey, a double and two singles each; Scarber and Amy Ramirez, three singles each; Matthews, two singles; and Blackledge and Rodriquez, one single apiece.

Ramey was the winning pitcher.

Shakey's Buffs lose in state teen tourney

GAINESVILLE -- Snyder's Buffs ended their bid at the Junior Teenage League State Tournament with a 15-10 loss to Gainesville here Thursday.

Few details were available on the contest.

"They did a good job but we just made too many errors. We really didn't get beat as much as we beat ourselves. I'm proud of them, though. The boys played real well," said manager O.D. Brewer.

Oilers sign two holdouts

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - The Houston Oilers signed two holdouts, including the third-round draft pick and a four-year veteran, a team spokesman said.

Running back Allen Pinkett of Notre Dame became the eighth of 10 draft choices to sign with the team, spokesman Chip Namias said.

Pinkett was the all-time leading rusher in Norte Dame history with 4,131 yards. He scored 53 touchdowns which is the fourth highest total in the history of college football.

Tight end Chris Dressel also signed with the team Thursday, Namias said.

Dressel started in all 16 games last season and has caught at least one pass in the past 28 consecutive games for the Oilers.

The Oilers drafted Dressel in third round of the 1983 draft after playing at Stanford.

Bailes shackles Detroit, 8-7

CLEVELAND (AP) - Ulcers may be tough on the stomach, but they can work wonders for your pitching arm, says Cleveland Indians relief pitcher Scott Bailes.

The 24-year-old rookie, who spent three days recuperating from two ulcers, returned to action Thursday night and shut out the Detroit Tigers on two hits for four innings as the Indians recovered from a six-run deficit to win 8-7.

"The only real effect of the ulcers is, I had three or four days rest. When your arm's rested, you get a little extra on the fastball, a little sharper breaking ball," the left-hander said.

In the only other American League game Thursday, California beat Oakland 8-5.

Bailes, who is tied for the AL lead in appearances with 47, entered the game in the sixth inning after starting pitcher Rich Yett had allowed consecutive homers in the fifth by Alan Trammell, Kirk Gibson and John Grubb to fall behind 7-1.

The Indians scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth and four in the eighth while Bailes limited the Tigers to a pair of singles. Carmen Castillo's RBI double capped the Indians' eighth-inning comeback.

The loss was only the fourth in 15 games since the All-Star break for the Tigers. Cleveland ended its three-game losing streak, putting both teams six games behind first-place Boston in the tight AL East race.

The New York Yankees are in second place, four games behind the Red Sox. Baltimore is 4½ out and Toronto is 5½ back.

Pat Tabler singled in one run and Julio Franco singled in two more for Cleveland to tie the game 7-7 in the eighth against Bill Campbell, 2-3. Franco took second on the throw from the outfield, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored the winning run when Castillo greeted Jim Slaton with a double off the fence in left.

Trammell had lined a two-run homer to left to start the Tigers' fifth-inning outburst. Two pitches later, Gibson drove his 17th home run into the upper deck in right, and Grubb followed by lining a 1-2 pitch over the fence in left center, his eighth homer, for a 7-1 Detroit lead. Grubb has hit six home runs in his last 15 games.

The Tigers also collected three straight homers in a game July 8 at Minnesota.

Angels 8, A's 5

Brian Downing and Bob Boone each hit grand slams that led California over host Oakland.

Downing connected in the third inning for the Angels' first hit of the game off Eric Plunk, 3-7. Plunk had loaded the bases with three walks before Downing hit his sixth career slam and his 12th home run of the season.

Doug DeCinces led off the California fourth with a single and two walks again loaded the bases. Boone then connected off Plunk for his fourth home run of the year and first slam since 1976.

The Angels last hit two grand slams in a game on April 27, 1983, when Fred Lynn and Darryl Sconiers did it against Detroit.

Mike Witt, 11-7, gave up five runs in 6 1-3 innings and got the victory.

Giants break losing streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Roger Craig held a pre-game team meeting, perhaps to restore any confidence lost during the San Francisco Giants' recent four-game losing streak.

"I just knew that after that meeting, we'd score nine or ten runs," the Giants' manager joked after Candy Maldonado's bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth gave the Giants a 3-2 win over the Atlanta Braves Thursday night.

"We didn't lose four in a row. We've won one in a row," he added, displaying the optimistic attitude which has been generally rampant in the clubhouse of one of baseball's most surprising teams. The Giants, losers of 100 games last season for the first time in the franchise's long history, climbed back to within four games of front-running Houston in the NL West.

It was the only game in the National League.

The Giants managed only seven hits, six of them singles, and had only one hit over the final seven innings off Braves' pitching, but still found a way to break their losing streak. In the four previous games, they totaled four runs and lost a pair of 2-1 decisons.

Gene Garber, 4-2, walked Maldonado on a 3-2 pitch with one out and the bases loaded in the ninth inning to force in the winning run.

"This game was a perfect example of the way we were playing earlier this season, pulling out a win in the late innings. We showed we're a team of 24 players," said Maldonado, who picked up his 18th RBI as a pinch hitter. He leads the league with a .424 average as a pinch-hitter.

Ted Simmons homered in the fourth for the only run off Giants starter Steve Carlton. Carlton allowed five hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Braves' Manager Chuck Tanner's last-place team has dropped 18 of its last 23 games. Joe Morgan, the former baseball league infielder now working as a Giants' television broadcaster, paid a visit to the Braves' clubhouse and got a message from Tanner.

"Joe, whatever you do, don't become a manager," Tanner said.

Snyder's Webb stars...

South duo teams for All-Star win

HOUSTON (AP) - Tomball's Lance Pavlas and Columbus' Percy Waddle have offered Texas A&M fans a sneak preview of what they can expect in future years.

Pavlas and Waddle, both headed for Texas A&M this fall, combined for record-breaking performances Thursday night to lead the South to a 17-13 victory over the North in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star football game.

The win came despite a strong effort from the North defense, led by Snyder's Justin Webb, who was credited with a team-high nine tackles. Webb, who has signed a scholarship with Howard Payne University, went into the game after a 1,000-plus year rushing for Snyder High School's Ragin' Tigers, but he exited the Astrodome with a thought about defense.

JUSTIN WEBB

"I was pleased with my play," he was quoted as saying. "I like defense so well, I may want to play it in college."

Pavlas completed 16 of 32 passes for an all-star record 246 yards passing, breaking the old mark of 224 yards by Robert Armstrong of Houston Sam Houston in 1971.

"I look forward to playing with him (Waddle) for the next four or five years," said Pavlas, who was named the outstanding offensive player of the game.

"He's a great receiver. I've never thrown to anyone that fast."

Waddle caught seven passes for 173 yards, breaking the record of 166 yards receiving by Bryan Willingham of Pasadena in 1971.

"We started working well together from the start," Waddle said. "We were a little shakey at first but we're going to be a great team.

"If you have a great quarterback like him and a great receiver like me, you can work together."

Pavlas hit Houston Jones' Kerry Simien with a 2-yard touchdown pass with 3:55 left in the game to rally the South to victory and narrow the North's lead in the series to 28-20-4.

The touchdown nullified a record 81 yard punt return for a touchdown by the North's Johnny Hurndon of Daingerfield that gave the North a 13-10 lead with 1:52 to play in the third quarter.

Hurndon's return broke the previous record return of 68 yards by Galena Park's Michael Frazier in 1971.

South defensive tackle Greg Oefinger of San Antonio Churchill won defensive player of the game honors.

Salonen finds London cabbies to be friendly

LONDON (AP) - Cabbies the world over have a notorious reputation. But Dallas Cowboy Brian Salonen has found the ones he thinks are the best - London taxi drivers.

Salonen, a linebacker with the Cowboys, is in London this week for Sunday's exhibition game against the Super Bowl champions Chicago Bears at Wembley Stadium Sunday.

In between training sessions Salonen has tried to catch as many of the British capital's sights as possible. He's traveled to most of them in the back of a black London taxi.

"I've enjoyed my stay here a lot and I have been surprised by the friendliness of the London cab drivers," Salonen said Thursday.

"Most of the time cabbies don't care too much, they just want to get you to your destination and collect the fare. But in London they have been very friendly and genuinely hope the Cowboys win Sunday," he added.

The Cowboys' day in London begins at 7.30 a.m. when they meet in the ballroom at their hotel to discuss game plans. After breakfast they head south of the city for a gruelling two-hour practice session at the National Sports Centre, Crystal Palace.

After that, however, the players have a chance to take in the sights and soak up the atmosphere of this historic city.

"I've seen Big Ben, the houses of parliament and Buckingham Palace. I've been cramming in as much as possible while I've had the chance," said Salonen.

But Wembley Stadium is the sight that the Cowboy linebacker is most looking forward to. "I've heard so much about it, Wembley is one of the most historic sports stadiums in the world. It's going to be an honor to play there," added Salonen.

The Cowboys and Bears will each have a practice session at the famous London sporting venue Saturday.

Sunday's clash between two of the biggest names in American football has caught the imagination of the British public. Ladbrokes, one of Britain's leading bookmakers, reported heavy betting on the Super Bowl champions Thursday.

At the close of betting, the Bears were quoted at 2-7 and the Cowboys at 9-4.

Harrods, London's famous department store, reported that sales of American football merchandise, a new line for them, were "brisk."

Ranger profile...

Loynd happy to be in Majors

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Just a few months ago, Mike Loynd was pitching for Florida State in the College World Series. After that came the promise of a long, hot summer bouncing around in a bus from stop to stop in the Texas League.

The summer hasn't quite worked out the way he planned. Loynd is now a member of the Texas Rangers. After more than a week, the shock still hasn't worn off.

"The biggest chance I thought of getting here was the 40-man roster (in September)," Loynd said. "I'm very surprised to be here."

The 22-year-old righthander was called up from Class AA Tulsa on July 21 when starting veteran Mike Mason went on the disabled list for the second time this season. So far, he hasn't wasted time impressing his new bosses.

On July 24, he defeated Cleveland and Phil Niekro in his major league debut, giving up five hits and three runs with one walk and six strikeouts in just over six innings.

On Tuesday night, he pitched five shutout innings against Baltimore before departing in the seventh inning after giving up a two runs in the sixth and a two-run homer in his final inning to Juan Beniquez. He didn't figure in the decision.

Loynd wasn't happy with that outing, even though the Rangers won.

"I couldn't get my breaking balls to work," he said. "I got behind the batters and that got me into trouble."

If the student wasn't happy, the professor - pitching coach Tom House - was. He called the outing "another good performance. A better than good performance."

Loynd, the Rangers' seventh-round draft choice in the June draft of free agents, was a 20-game winner this year with Florida State. Losing only three times, he posted 223 strikeouts in 25 games and tied the NCAA Division I record for wins in a season. He led the nation in strikeouts and fell only 11 shy of a collegiate record.

Moving from Florida State to Tulsa to Arlington has made Loynd something of a nomad - and he's not signing any long-term apartment leases just yet, realizing that he might be returned to the minors anytime.

"I'm living out of my travel bags," he said. "The clothes I came here with are the clothes I still have. I know someone in Dallas who can wash my clothes. If I hadn't known someone, I'd be in real trouble."

Loynd is not the first player in the Texas organization to get a fast call to the majors recently. Outfielder Oddibe McDowell spent only a brief time at Class AAA Oklahoma City before getting the call last summer, while Pete Incaviglia has gone straight from Oklahoma State to the Rangers.

Starting pitcher Bobby Witt made the Rangers roster this spring after failing to win a game at Tulsa last season.

Loynd said he had prepared himself for the legendary ills of the minor leagues - greasy food, long bus rides and playing fields more conducive to military basic training than smoothly fielded ground balls.

But Tulsa, with an artificial playing turf and a "nice clubhouse," surprised him, Loynd said. Still, the travel lived up to all the promises.

"The bus rides were definitely bad," he said.

House said the Rangers, whose youth movement is being touted and talked about by other teams, are impressed with the rookie. He said Loynd's problems with the Orioles were a product of being left in too long.

"We let him sit during a long inning in which we scored five runs," House said. "We'll be watching his pitch count more carefully from now on."

Loynd hopes the count will be of pitches he tosses in the American League - not the Texas League.

"This here is what everybody is playing for," he said, looking around the Rangers' clubhouse. "This is the ultimate."

When the Yankees defeated the St. Louis Browns, 14-5, on Aug. 11, 1937, three men hit for the cycle in the game. Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio did it for the Yanks and Wally Schang for the Browns.

British press meets Perry, 'The Fridge'

LONDON (AP) - A trip to England for an exhibition game looked like just the thing for the Chicago Bears' two leading lights, quarterback Jim McMahon and tackle William "The Refrigerator" Perry.

Imagine, a whole week with the crush of media and autograph seekers.

Sorry, guys. Welcome to football-crazy London.

The Super Bowl champion Bears, still fighting the effects of jet lag, found themselves surrounded by notebook-wielding Londoners - the kids looking for autographs, the adults for comments for the newspapers. McMahon, the rebellious quarterback, and the 330-pound Perry were the main targets.

"What's with the black headband?" a reporter asked McMahon.

"It's a bit early in the season for getting fined," said McMahon, who was fined with a $5,000 fine for wearing a brand-name headband last season.

"I really don't know what happened to that fine," McMahon told another questioner. "They might have stopped it out of one of my checks but when I get them I just give them to my wife and she gives me my pocket money."

"Have you any complaints?" another reporter asked.

"No, I've got no complaints. I've only been here a day," McMahon said.

Nearby, Perry was fielding the same kind of questions.

"What did you have for breakfast this morning?"

"I had some eggs, bacon and sausage this morning. The eggs were a little watery."

Just when it seemed the tabloids wouldn't have a controversy to fuel, McMahon and Perry supplied one - a seeming attack on British beer.

"If the beer here is warm, I won't be touching it," McMahon said. "I don't drink warm beer."

"Warm Beer? I don't drink warm beer," Perry said, scotching plans to have him pose for a picture sipping a pint in an English pub.

The kids fared better than the beer. "OK, OK, there's no problem," Perry said as he whipped the swirling mob into line.

Solon levels 'playing politics' charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handful of newly released Energy Department memos is fanning a controversy over whether the agency is playing politics with its high-level radioactive waste dump program.

The documents, released Thursday by Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of an Energy subcommittee, indicate DOE officials weighed political factors at length before deciding on May 28 to indefinitely postpone selection of a waste site east of the Rocky Mountains.

"We found the smoking gun," Markey declared in a statement accompanying the 25 pages of memos. "These documents show that the department put politics first, not science, in making its decisions."

The DOE already has recommended that a first high-level nuclear waste dump site be located in Nevada, Texas or Washington. Western politicians, including at least three running for the Senate, have accused the department of halting the second-site program to escape intense pressure from the seven Eastern states in which potential sites are located.

DOE officials have denied the charge and continued to do so Thursday after the memos were released.

Costs, staff morale and utility attitudes were among the "pros" and "cons" cited in discussions of eight options in the DOE memos, but political considerations were the most prominent.

Typical was a May 13 memo that listed "immediate political relief" from second-round states as the first advantage of terminating the second-site program outright. The first three disadvantages were "obvious political ploy," "severe political backlash from 1st repository states," and "graphically demonstrates success mode of resistance."

Technical and geological considerations are not mentioned anywhere.

The April 30 notes also include "pro" and "con" considerations in terminating the search for an Eastern site.

No. 1 in the "pro" column was "immediate political relief" from the nine Eastern states under consideration for the second repository.

At the top of the "con" list was the notation: "obvious political ploy," followed by "No. 2, severe political backlash from first repository states (Washington, Nevada and Texas).

The notes also add, "It would appear that immediately terminating (the search for a second site) would give a great deal of political benefit to DOE via (the Eastern states)."

However, nuclear waste director Ben Rusche said the memos were discussed in the context of scheduling and were not the only basis for the decision. He said they were written by field staffers who had just conducted 80 public hearings that attracted thousands of people rather than the 50 or 100 that had been expected.

"They didn't know anything about partisan politics. They were talking about political in terms of intense public reaction," Rusche said in an interview.

Earlier Thursday, Energy Secretary John Herrington said the DOE had decided to stop studying potential Eastern sites because projections of nuclear waste had declined and the need for a second site was questionable.

Under questioning by the House Interior Committee, he denied that the department had been secretive or mishandled selection of first-site candidates in Washington, Texas and Nevada. "I'm here today to defend that decision," he said. "We have delivered a viable first repository decision."

Herrington said the second-site program is continuing with studies of crystalline rock formations — the type found at the Eastern candidate sites — in Canada, Switzerland and Sweden. Only site-specific work has been discontinued, he said.

But several congressmen said the DOE had violated the 1982 Nuclear Waste Policy Act by putting off the site studies.

Herrington said DOE lawyers had advised him the action was not illegal. He conceded under questioning that the act requires his department to nominate five Eastern sites and recommend three by July 1, 1989. But he added, "We don't expect to (do so) if Congress approves our revised mission."

"I'm going to send a revised mission statement to my bank about my overdraft," Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., responded sarcastically.

Weiter, a Senate candidate, failed last week to win House approval for an amendment cutting off funds for the nuclear waste program.

"I consider the divide-and-conquer strategy by the administration very clever," he told Herrington. "The Easterners all thought you had eliminated them and they wanted to keep the repository in the West."

Interior Chairman Morris Udall, D-Ariz., alleged that "the pressure for action on a Senate seat overwhelmed the administration's ability to think clearly" when it decided to derail the second-site process. He noted that no second-round states — "not North Carolina nor any other state" — are really off the hook at this point.

North Carolina Republican James Broyhill, a representative who was appointed to finish the term of the late Sen. John East, is in a tough Senate race against former Gov. Terry Sanford. Two of the possible Eastern dump sites are located in North Carolina.

Another bomb explodes today in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb exploded today at a crowded commercial center in Christian east Beirut, and police said the blast killed one Lebanese soldier and wounded 25 civilians.

The blast was the third deadly bombing this week in Beirut. Two car bombings — one Monday in east Beirut and the other Tuesday in the city's Moslem western sector — killed 57 people and wounded 310 others.

Today's midafternoon explosion sparked a fire at a taxicab parking lot at the Solemur building near an iron factory in east Beirut's Dora district.

Ambulances evacuated the casualties and firefighters extinguished the blaze, police said. Eight taxicabs were demolished by the blast and glass shards littered the streets.

Blood stained a sidewalk at the blast scene, which was cordoned off by army troops and Christian militiamen.

"Thank God it's a small one," said one shopkeeper at the scene, who refused to give his name. "We are used to bigger ones."

Police said the bomb contained 11 pounds of explosives. The Monday car bomb had a quarter ton of explosives.

Today's blast came a few hours after President Amin Gemayel proposed an emergency session of Parliament at which he, the Cabinet and legislators would debate a new power-sharing formula to end Lebanon's 11-year-old civil war.

The Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio reported that army explosive experts had earlier defused a 37-pound bomb at the entrance to a bakery in east Beirut's Mekalles district. Two anti-tank mines were tied to the bomb to intensify its force, the radio said.

Phone call case worked

Police reported clearing Thursday afternoon a complaint of harrassing phone calls first reported July 25.

A suspect in the case was identified and the case turned over to the county attorney's office for prosecution.

In other action Thursday, two suspects were jailed on misdemeanor warrants issued in county court.

Births

Mike and Janet Monroe are the parents of a boy weighing seven pounds two ounces born at 11:12 a.m. Thursday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

James and Jeannie Smith are the parents of a girl weighing six pounds 13 ounces born at 8:12 a.m. Thrusday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Group seeking tougher laws regarding parole

Loyd Jilek of Hawkins, Tx. made addresses to Snyder men's civic clubs this week seeking support for a statewide petition he is circulating seeking tougher laws in Texas regarding early parole for convicted felons.

Jilek spoke to the Rotary Club Thursday, the Kiwanis Club Wednesday and the Lions Club Tuesday.

He noted the effort is in response to the death of three Hawkins teenagers, allegedly killed by an individual recently paroled for crimes of a similar nature.

Jilek is part of an organization based in Hawkins calld "We, the People." Its mailing address is P.O. Box 744, Hawkins, Tx., 75765. The telephone number is (214) 769-3949.

Hospital Notes

ADMISSIONS: Janet Monroe, 3100 Hill; Tom Luera, 211 Hickory.

DISMISSALS: Edward McClain, Martin Hernandez, Ricky Stroud, Walter Deavers.

New pastor at St. John's

The Rev. Frank Swindel of Louisiana is the new pastor at St. John's Episcopal Church in Snyder. He will also pastor the Episcopal churches in Sweetwater and Colorado City. The communion service in Snyder Sunday will begin at 10:15 a.m.

Church envoy set to resume negotiations

LONDON (AP) — Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite today said he was ready to resume negotiations with the Moslem zealots in Lebanon who released the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco after 1½ years but who still hold other American captives.

"I now wait anxiously to hear from the captors," said Waite. "I await a message from them."

Waite, accompanied by Jenco, spoke at a news conference in London. Jenco, a 51-year-old Roman Catholic priest, then departed for Washington to deliver a message from his former captors to President Reagan.

Waite has traveled to Lebanon several times to meet with representatives of Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem extremist group that claimed responsibility for kidnapping Jenco and four other Americans.

Jenco, of Joliet, Ill., was kidnapped on Jan. 8, 1985, and released Saturday.

The kidnappers are holding at least three other Americans. The group claims to have killed a fourth American hostage, but his death has not been confirmed.

Islamic Jihad has said it would not free the other hostages until Kuwait releases 17 Shiites it imprisoned for bombing the U.S. and French embassies in 1983. Kuwait has refused.

Jenco delivered a message from his former captors to Pope John Paul II at the Vatican on Wednesday and to Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, spiritual head of the Church of England, on Thursday.

Giving the churches' response, Waite said the message had been received with "sympathy and understanding by two major leaders of the Christian tradition."

"I have been asked to return to the Lebanon as soon as possible in order to take further these discussions," the envoy said.

Charges filed against parolee

Tuesday after being allowed to post a personal recognizance bond.

Armstrong said Friday he would seek indictment against Davis at Monday's grand jury.

Davis was arrested here and charged with sale of prohibited drugs in February of 1984. He was indicted for that offense on March 21 of that same year and began serving two concurrent seven-year sentences in late August of 1984.

He became eligible for parole in late 1985 and received parole from the Texas Department of Corrections in the early part of this year.
