Estes' Dealings Eyed

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — At least three state and federal law enforcement agencies are investigating the business dealings for former West Texas promoter and financier Billie Sol Estes.

At the heart of the probes are two suitcases full of documents, letters and canceled checks copied by the Internal Revenue Service, Texas Attorney General John Hill's office and The Associated Press.

The correspondence was provided by Don Trull, a Mississippi promoter, not to be confused with the former Baylor football player who, during a two-day, 10-hour interview with the AP, said he officed with Estes during the latter part of last year.

Carter Program Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will reveal his anti-inflation program at a news conference next week, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Friday.

He gave no details of the program, on which he said the administration has been working for several weeks. But Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has said it will include a plan for discussion with government by business and labor groups considering major wage and price increases.

Midland Sale Third

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — The first public auction of University of Texas oil and gas leases outside of Austin has been completed at Midland, with sales netting the third highest total in the 52-year history of the bidding.

Oil and gas companies and independent operators bid a total of $13,326,500, which will go into the UT System's Permanent Fund.

The bidding at Midland Thursday was exceeded only by the $16,274,500 in 1956 and the $16,238,000 in 1953.

Lawmakers Take Break

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators- as well as House members- were on holiday today after limiting Thursday's session to two hours by avoiding prolonged debate on controversial legislation.

The next Senate will return from the Easter weekend on Tuesday morning, with House members resuming work that afternoon.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Marj Carpenter of the Big Spring Daily Herald went to the Texas Women's Press Conference at Wichita Falls recently and reported this incident which occurred while Stephani Shelton of CBS was addressing the gathering:

"During her talk, the microphone cut up a little bit and she wasn't coming through loud and clear. The women in the back, being reporters and not bashful, hollered out, 'We can't hear. Pick up the mike.'

"She reached out for the microphone and then drew back her hand saying, 'The unions wouldn't let us touch a microphone. I just can't do that.'

"And I sat there thinking, I'm glad I'm a country reporter. I hope I never get where I can't touch a mike or change a typewriter ribbon, or any of those things."

The Texas Cotton Grower says the best cotton known to the world in 1851 didn't come from Egypt. It came from West Tennessee.

Quoting a report from the National Cotton Council, it said the West Tennessee cotton won a medal for its grower, Col. John Pope of Shelby County, at the international exposition held that year at the Crystal Palace in London, England. Other notable exhibits there were McCormick's reaper and Colt's repeating pistol.

Farmland News attributes this observation to J.D. Belanger, editor of Countryside Magazine: "Most people realize that the farmer receives less than half of the food dollar, more for unprocessed products such as eggs, much less for highly processed products such as bread. What happens to the rest is interesting, especially in recent years as distraught consumers and politicians search in vain for the 'middleman.' They can't find the middleman because they aren't looking in the right place—in the bathroom mirror. Everyman is middleman."—WACIL McNAIR.

PROGRESS MADE IN SESSION

Steelworkers Pact Is Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and industry negotiators moved close to an agreement today on a new contract for 340,000 steelworkers following an all-night bargaining session.

United Steelworkers President I.W. Abel met with his policy-making executive board over breakfast, and sources said he indicated that substantial progress had been made.

"They have a lot of loose ends to put together, but it looks good," said the source. There remained some question, however, whether a complete contract package could be put together in time for a meeting of local union officials.

That meeting was postponed until this afternoon, apparently to give the negotiators a few more hours to conclude a settlement.

"They're working now and hoping to wrap it up," said Ray Pasnick, a union spokesman.

Both union negotiators and representatives of the nation's 10 biggest steel companies agreed to keep the talks going and ignore their self-imposed Thursday night negotiating deadline after the industry made a last-minute contract proposal. If necessary, the negotiators could continue their talks next week before they would have to call in arbitrators to resolve their differences.

It wasn't clear what the industry offer contained, but it apparently included some move toward guaranteed job and income security - the union's key demand. This had been one of the major sticking points in the talks. If it can be resolved it is likely to provide for some sort of guaranteed annual wage or job security built on existing income-benefits programs.

The union's Basic Steel Industry Congerence, comprised of 600 local union presidents, was told to stand by for a report on the talks. The conference has the authority to ratify a tentative agreement or recommend turning over unresolved contract issues to a panel of impartial arbitrators.

9-Year-Old Boy Is Found Dead

Nine-year-old Wade Lyndol Savell was pronounced dead Thursday afternoon at the family home in the Ennis Creek community northeast of Snyder where he was found hanging with a nylon cord knotted around his neck.

Justice of the Peace Bobby Goodwin, who was called to the scene in his capacity as a coroner, ruled that death was accidental. Goodwin said the child had been playing with a nylon parachute cord on the porch of a mobile home. He said the porch was some five or six feet above the ground. He said the boy apparently had been tying various knots and he is believed to have misjudged the length of cord when he had jumped off the porch with the cord knotted around his neck. He was found by his father, James L. Savell.

Funeral service has been set for 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. The Rev. Glenn Border and Edwin Parks will officiate. Burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

In addition to his father, the youth is survived by his mother, Mrs. Roy Jones of Cleveland, Okla.; his step-mother, Mrs. Bobbie Jean Savell of the home; three sisters, Donna Louise, Rhonda Lynn and Teresa Leanne Savell, all of the home; his grandmothers, Mrs. D. B. Savell of Ackerly and Mrs. T. J. Henry of Cleveland, Okla.; a grandfather, Melvin Bryson of Patricia; two step-sisters, Judith Ann Wheelus of the home and Mrs. Lynn Wycliff of Snyder; and a step-brother, Roger Ray Wheelus of the home.

ESCAPE INJURIES—The drivers of the gasoline truck and car shown above escaped serious injury Thursday when their vehicles collided west of town. The gasoline truck was overturned in the accident, but no fire ensued. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

2 Major Mishaps In Area Thursday

Two major traffic accidents marred an otherwise tranquil Thursday afternoon.

In the first mishap, a fully loaded gasoline truck was overturned approximately 4.5 miles west of Snyder on the Lamesa Highway.

The gasoline-carrying truck, driven by Sylvester McKnight, Jr. an employe of McCormick and Sons Oil Co., was in collision with a 1976 Ford driven by Louis Sprague, an employe of Well-Tech, Inc.

The accident occurred approximately 1:30 p.m. yesterday. Neither of the drivers of the vehicles was seriously injured. McKnight was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he was treated and later released.

Fortunately, no fire ensued from the collision, even through a small amount of gasoline leaked from the overturned gasoline truck. Two units of the Snyder Fire Department stood by while the wreckage was cleared.

The second mishap occurred about an hour and a half later in East Snyder.

A 1974 motorcycle driven by Jesse Lee Townsend of Snyder was involved in a collision with a 1976 Ford pickup truck driven by Wayland Ross Huddleston.

The mishap was reported to police officers at 3:08 p.m. and occurred in the 300 block of the East Highway.

Townsend was treated and released at cogdell Hospital.

Young Makes Full Apology

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young made a full and speedy apology to Britain's delegate to the United Nations for saying in a BBC television interview that Britain "almost invented racism."

The BBC broadcast the interview in London Tuesday night. British Ambassador Ivor Richard complained to Young by telephone Wednesday, and Young sent his British colleague a letter Thursday asking him to "accept my sincere apologies."

He now saw it was "unfair to single out the British," the letter said.

MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT—Jessie Lee Townsend, the driver of the above motorcycle, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital following the 3:08 p.m. Thursday accident. He was treated and released. He was involved in a collision with a pickup truck. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Child Welfare Board Has Its 14th Annual Session

The Scurry County Child Welfare Board held its 14th annual public meeting last night.

At the meeting, the child welfare unit presented its annual report to members of the Scurry County Commissioner's Court.

Gordon Musick, director of the local unit of the child welfare department, gave a brief summarization of the report.

The Scurry County Child Welfare Unit, Musick reported, incurred expenses in 1976 of approximately $8,551. The vast bulk of the expenses were for child care.

The costs of the child care for the local unit were $7,980. Of that sum, $5,703 was spent for board and lodging, the most expensive items on the report's tally sheet.

Following the board and lodging expenses, the medical care for foster children was the second most expensive item, costing the local unit $1,205.

Administrative expenses for the unit in 1976 totaled only $571.

The Scurry County Child Welfare Unit serves abused and neglected children, children in trouble with the law, mentally ill and mentally retarded children, the unmarried parent, and requests from the courts for adoptive investigations of children and families.

The expenses presented in the budget represent the money that came from county funds for child care and administrative expenses. The Texas Department of Public Welfare provides the salaries of two child welfare workers, a secretary, helps defray a portion of the telephone bill and furnishes travel expenses for the personnel of the local child welfare unit.

The local unit had approximately 12 children each month during 1976 referred to it for services. Of that number, a total of 14 children were served with foster care here in 1976.

Attending the meeting were several board members, county commissioners and county officials. Also at the meeting were Ron Plentl, caseworker supervisor from Sweetwater, and Mary Frances Warren, the regional volunteer coordinator.

there's no scapegoat

Two announcements came out of Washington recently that outline a situation of greater seriousness than most of our problems. Both dealt with the same subject. It wasn't inflation. Had nothing to do with taxes, energy or national defense or foreign policy. It was water.

The U.S. Geological Survey reported that for the week ending last Saturday the flow of the nation's five major rivers had shown a significant increase. In case the reader can't immediately name them, they are the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Columbia and St. Lawrence.

By coincidence this announcement was preceded by a report from the Department of Commerce on the same subject which presented another kind of story. In fact, it was gloomy, spelled with a capital G. The Commerce Department report said these same five rivers have been at an all-time low. What the Geological Survey was noting merely represented an improvement over the immediate past.

Long range at least two-thirds of the nation's land area, excepting Alaska and Hawaii, is in the grip of what is generally recognized as the worst drought in history, and the flow of rivers in the West, Midwest and sections of the Southeast ranges from 12 to 81 per cent below normal.

Much of the nation's food, feed and fiber is produced in the area most affected. And the end is not in sight for at least another year. Rainfall much higher than normal for the remaining months of the present crop year will be needed if serious shortages are to be avoided.

The point of real concern, however, is not the effect of a single year's weather. Present conditions constitute a reminder of facts that haven't been taken too seriously, One is the diminishing supply of underground water. This means it is being withdrawn faster than nature replaces it. Land use that is having a marked effect on the flow of rivers and tributaries is another factor.

We can see relief ahead for energy. Maybe at some future time we will wake up to what we are doing to ourselves with inflation and do something about it. But there is no substitute for water. This is one of the problems that can't be blamed on Communists, big business or the Republicans.

terrorists to blame

The collision of two 747 jumbo jets in the Canary Islands was not only history's worst aviation disaster. It also accounted for the greatest toll of life that can be attributed to the activities of political terrorists.

Originally scheduled to land at Las Palmas airport on the island of Grand Canary, the Dutch KLM and Pan American jetliners had been diverted to the neighboring island of Tenerife, where they met fatally on the runway during takeoff preparations. They were diverted because a time bomb, admittedly planted by a group agitating for the independence of the Canaries from Spain, had exploded shortly before at Las Palmas, injuring eight persons.

The terrorists, of course, cannot be accused of desiring the deaths of the Dutch and American victims. They claim that the planes could have landed at Las Palmas, but the authorities did not want anyone to see the bomb damage.

Be that as it may, they planted the bomb, which only by sheer luck did not kill anyone -- directly. By the worst possible luck, compounded by weather and human error, it indirectly caused nearly 600 people to lose their lives.

Is there no place in the world free of these fools and idiots, whose ideological stock in trade is terror, destruction and death?

baseball uneconomical

NEW YORK (AP) — The scholars at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton Applied Research Center, who usually concern themselves with studying the problems of business, are worried about baseball.

Professional baseball, they say, has become financially unsound business. What with free agents, expansion of the leagues and inflation in general, the future of the big league game is in doubt.

"Think of it, the Phillies need 2.2 million ticket buyers just to break even," said Chris Ritz, a senior researcher who used to concern himself mainly with such statistics as Mike Schmidt's RBIs.

A few years ago a club needed only about 850,000 paid admissions to break even. By 1976 it is estimated that clubs needed an average of 1.5 million fans to meet payrolls. But average home attendance was only 1.25 million.

Ritz and Jim Emshoff, director of the center and associate professor at the Wharton School, one of the nation's top sources of management talent, want to see the big league continue, so they agreed to work on some strategies.

And they ask your help by marking a ballot and mailing it to: James Emshoff, Wharton Applied Research Center, 418 Vance Hall, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pa. 19104.

As they view the situation, the important new ingredients in the baseball picture are higher salaries and expansion of teams into cities that might not be able to support them.

As a share of team revenues in 1970, salaries were only 18 per cent, compared with football's 29, hockey's 40 and basketball's 50. But now salaries are rising swiftly and hugely in baseball. Can baseball afford them?

In most other sports the players come to the high professional ranks already trained, often by colleges. But baseball traditionally has trained its own in minor leagues, spending perhaps $750,000 to develop one major leaguer, the two researchers say.

Many owners are said to be thinking of cutting back on minor league expenditures but, say Emshoff and Ritz, "the very real problem this presents is a talent drought." Multitalented individuals might opt for other sports.

Compounding the problem will be the tendency of free agents to relocate to the rich, glamorous cities capable of attracting big attendances and thereby capable of paying bigger salaries.

Who will make up the discrepancy between income and expenditures? "The fan, of course. His or her favorite box seat will be priced high as a dinner for two at an elegant restaurant." But will fans pay? Big question.

To aid baseball in working out its problems, Emshoff and Ritz, scholars and fans, developed eight possible alternatives, on which they ask fans to vote. They will tabulate results and send them to the baseball commissioner.

1. Higher ticket prices. "Moderate increases would probably not keep people away. The extra revenue could keep and pay quality players."

2. Equalize the split of ticket money so as to support poorer teams. "Currently," they explain, "the visiting team gets about 10 per cent of gate receipts. This gives a big advantage to teams in large cities with high home attendances."

3. Televise all games on pay TV.

4. Reduce the number of teams. Observe Emshoff and Ritz: "With only 16 or 18 teams left, all could be stronger, both financially, in salary negotiations, and on the field."

5. Eliminate the minors. Instead, they suggest for your consideration, "major league teams should actively support extension of the college baseball program."

6. Fan management to boost attendance. "By installing electronic voting buttons on each seat at the ballpark," they suggest, "important decisions could be made by using the scoreboard to ask questions and count votes."

7. Home town teams. The commissioner's office could pass a rule requiring teams be composed primarily of players living in the community, they suggest.

8. Multidivision leagues. Successful teams would play each other in division one. Others would play in three lower divisions. Division champs would move up a division, and last place teams would fall a division each year.

The two researchers, who are conducting the project without funding, ask simple yes-no answers. Your reward? "Your opinions will determine the future of baseball," they say.

ANNUAL BANQUET

After several months of planning and great anticipation, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet will be held Friday at Scurry County Coliseum beginning at 7 p.m. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C.T. McLaughlin. Well over 1,000 tickets have been sold and prospects look good for a sellout crowd of about 1,500 people.

If you have not yet purchased a ticket, please take your first opportunity to do so. The chances are very slim we will ever have as many well-known personalities for a single event as will be here to honor the McLaughlins on Friday.

The Texas Cowboy Artists Association, which last month chose Snyder as the site of its 1977 Annual Banquet later this year, will kick the banquet off with an art exhibit beginning at 5:30 p.m. in the foyer.

Dinner, consisting of prime rib, baked potato, asparagus spears in cheese sauce, salad and apple pie a la mode, will be served at 7 p.m. Rev. David Robertson of the First United Methodist Church will begin the ceremonies with the invocation.

Banquet Co-Chairman Ike Dolen will give the official welcome and introduce Ed Clark, former Ambassador to Australia in the Johnson Administration, as master of ceremonies.

Former First Lady of the United States, Mrs. Lyndon Baines Johnson, will give the opening tribute to the McLaughlins to be followed by presentations by Robert Dupree of Dallas and a member of the Cowboy Hall of Fame Board of Directors.

Fred Korth, former Secretary of the Navy, will begin the awards portion of the banquet by presenting the first annual McLaughlin Memorial Award to the person making the greatest contribution to the advancement of the local oil industry.

Bentley Baize, 1975 recipient, will present the Winston Memorial Award to the person making the greatest contribution to and promotion of the local agriculture industry. John Fagin, Mayor of Snyder, will present the Vestal Memorial Award to the city's Outstanding Citizen of 1976. Henry F. Clark, President of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, will present the Past President's Plaque to outgoing President Jimmie Joe Key.

State Representative Mike Ezzell will then be called upon to introduce Governor Dolph Briscoe to give the keynote address. Mrs. Jane Womack will conclude the ceremonies by leading the audience in "God Bless America".

Members of the Western Texas College Phi Theta Kappa fraternity will serve as hosts and hostesses. Entertainment will be furnished by the Snyder High School Stage Band under the direction of Don Eiring.

GROUNDBREAKING

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Thursday at the Snyder Oaks Nursing Home site with a large group of local dignataries and Gold Coaters on hand.

The 97-bed facility, to cost approximately $750,000, will be open for business about Oct. 1. Owners of the project are very pleased with Snyder's growth potential and present plans allow for a 30-bed growth without additional construction expenditures. They are also allowing plenty of room for future growth by situating the facility on the northwest corner of the property.

Isn't it great to live in a town that's growing and prospering? You bet!

See you at the banquet next Friday.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In every crowd, there are always a few who fail to get the message. And while slow learners abounded on Capitol Hill when Congress confronted the task of ethics reform, one senator surely deserves special recognition.

He is Democrat John Melcher of Montana, who served seven years in the House before moving up this year to the Senate seat vacated by retired Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Melcher was in a key position to influence the shape of the Senate's new ethics code since he served on the 15-member panel which drafted the package.

But as far as we can determine, his major contributions consisted of an up-front effort to loosen a ban on gifts of more than $100 from those with a direct interest in federal legislation, plus a behind-the-scenes attempt to win a special exception from the ethics code that would permit him to keep his former campaign chairman on the public payroll at a part-time salary of $28,000 per year.

He failed in both efforts, but not from lack of trying. First, the gift issue. A key section of the new code prohibits senators from accepting, in a single year, anything with an aggregate value of more than $100 from foreign nationals, lobbyists and people connected with political action committees (which contributes to campaign).

On the final day of the ethics committee's deliberations, Melcher tried to get the annual limit raised to $250. His argument: the $100 limit would keep him from accepting free rides in Montana on corporate airplanes.

"I cannot travel in Montana in an airplane any distance at all for $100..." the senator complained. "I think it gets a little bit rigid, and a little bit asinine, to turn down what is convenient."

Fortunately, other committee members understood that a senator's convenience matters less to the public than his integrity, and that freeloading on corporate planes might well pose a conflict of interest.

Melcher's amendment was rejected, 6-3, leaving the Montana senator in the same fix as other citizens - he'll have to pay for his air travel.

Then there was the senator's solicitude for his former campaign chairman, attorney J.F. Meglen of Billings, Mont., who is currently on the Senate payroll as a $28,000 per year part-time aide in Melcher's state office.

As originally drafted, the ethics code would have prohibited Senate employees who are paid more than $25,000 annually from receiving outside earned income in excess of 15 percent of their government salaries.

Clearly, this would have put quite a crimp in lawyer Meglen's private practice. So, Melcher, without mentioning that one of his employees was affected, persuaded the committee to apply the outside earnings limit only to staff aides earning over $35,000 per year.

After the committee had completed work on the ethics code and sent the package to the full Senate, Melcher belatedly discovered other provisions that made it impossible for Meglen to remain on the public payroll at $28,000 a year.

In particular, there was a section of the code forbidding staff aides who earn more than $25,000 annually from practicing law on the side.

Did Melcher tell Meglen he'd have to choose between his Senate job and private practice? No indeed. Instead, according to our sources, the senator tried to pressure key committee staffers and members into changing the rules.

His plea fell on deaf ears, and the prohibition remained. So Melcher and Meglen conferred and decided the Billings lawyer will simply take a slight reduction in his Senate pay to get below the $25,000 threshold, thus enabling him to retain both his high-priced government job and his private practice.

Circus Supplies Rich Fertilizer

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Greatest Show on Earth may have the answer for your limp lettuce and ragged radishes - exotic manure.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus has an inexhaustible supply of super-rich fertilizer which it is making available to interested farmers and gardeners.

The super rich stuff comes from its lions, tigers, llamas, horses, camels, chimpanzees and 18 elephants, which all combined produce about a half ton of manure each day.

Circus officials must pay hundreds of dollars during each engagement to remove the mountains of manure, so they're more than happy to part with the organic fertilizer.

A circus spokesman said the give away began a few years ago in West Virginia "when a few farmers requested some manure."

"When we played that town again the following year, one fellow came back and showed me the biggest tomato I'd ever seen," he said. "Since then we've been giving it away wherever we go."

Opening lead — Q ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The late John Crawford, one of the greatest of the greatest players of all time, used to show this hand as an example of how you could tell if a man knew how to play the dummy.

South wins the heart lead in dummy. You can't do anything else with a singleton ace. Then declarer should go after diamonds because if he can get four diamond tricks, he doesn't need more than three clubs. And if he can't get four diamonds, he can still hope that clubs will break 3-3.

At trick two South plays a dummy's ace of diamonds, and here is where the key play comes in. He must drop either the eight or the nine. If he drops the four he is not only not a first-rate player but he has also lost his contract.

After dropping the nine, he leads a low diamond and sticks in the eight. If West takes that diamond, South has a tenance over West's remaining honor. So an alert West may refuse to win that trick.

Now South must abandon diamonds and lead a low club. This will cost him an unimportant trick if clubs are 3-3, but gives him game and rubber against the 4-2 division.

The vanilla bean is really the pod of a tropical orchid. It is completely without odor or flavor until it is cured. To make vanilla extract, the oil vanillin formed by curing must be dissolved in alcohol. Synthetic vanilla is made from oil of cloves, creosote and lignin.

The store is normally open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. However, in preparing for the open house, England said the store will be closed today.

Amarillo Patrolman No-Billed

AMARILLO, tex. (AP) — Amarillo patrolman Robert Morris has been no-billed in the shooting death of a man at a convenience store Sunday night.

The Potter County grand jury refused Thursday to issue an indictment against Morris for the death of Mike Austin Roberts, who police said was shot in the back by Morris while fleeing from the store.

Morris was stationed in the store in a stakeout as part of a police campaign to reduce business robberies in Amarillo.

Police officials said Roberts made a loud proposal to a woman clerk at the store and when she started to the back of the building the man followed her. At that point police said, Morris stepped out of hiding and identified himself.

When Roberts, ran, Morris said he called for him to stop and fired when the man refused to halt.

Probation Revoked

One probation revocation was handled Thursday in 132nd District Court.

The probation of Jimmy Wayland Willett, 19, was revoked in the court proceedings and he was sentenced to begin serving a five-year prison term.

Willett's probation was revoked because of a subsequent arrest while on probation for suspicion of rape and for alleged possession of alcoholic beverages.

Willett had been placed on probation for a burglary of a habitation charge.

Crime Labs Make Errors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime labs often do poor work and sometimes are wrong about the evidence used against defendants in criminal trials, a new government study says.

The report from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, released today, said many crime laboratories operated by state, local or federal governments make mistakes and overlook important features in comparing bloodstains, firearms, glass, paint, soil and other items used as evidence.

A lab technician's court testimony often is crucial in linking a defendant with a crime. For example, bloodstains on a defendant's clothing are compared with a victim's blood type to determine whether the defendant could have committed a murder.

If the crime lab is unable to match the blood, a guilty defendant may go free. If the lab technician mistakenly concludes that the blood matches, an innocent defendant could be convicted.

But the LEAA report offered no conclusions on the impact of poor lab work on criminal trials.

The report was based on findings in a three-year project to test the capabilities of 240 laboratories operated by federal, state and local law enforcement agencies.

The test is being conducted by the Forensic Science Foundation with $330,904 from LEAA. The foundation guaranteed anonymity to the participating laboratories and LEAA officials said even they don't know the names of the labs.

An LEAA spokesman said it was possible that the FBI laboratory, which analyzes evidence for many federal criminal cases and for hundreds of thousands of state and local investigations, might have been involved in the test. But he said there was no way to tell how well the FBI lab scored if it was a participant.

The report said some labs scored as low as 40 out of perfect 100 on a test of their ability to compare bloodstains.

Of 124 labs performing this test, only 40 correctly reported that the two blood samples didn't come from the same person, the report said. The others made incomplete or inconclusive reports because they lacked ability to perform more sophisticated tests or made mistakes in the tests, the report said.

In analyzing paint samples, fewer than half the labs came to the correct conclusion about whether paint from a doorjam matched paint samples on clothing of two hypothetical suspects. Forty-two per cent of the labs made mistakes in the analysis, and 11 per cent were unable to learn much of value.

The LEAA said the project is continuing in an effort to determine weaknesses in crime lab operations and improve their work.

Insulation In Carter's Energy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a homeowner, the chances are good that President Carter's omnibus energy policy is going to require you to better insulate your home.

Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary is hinting that two-thirds of all U.S. homeowners may be required to make their homes more energy-efficient under Carter's program.

O'Leary said the President's April 20 energy message will seek to upgrade the insulation of all homes through a "blend of incentives and disincentives." He said he hoped the program could be accomplished in 10 years.

O'Leary told a Senate hearing Thursday that one-third of U.S. homes now have no insulation while another third are "badly insulated."

Later, O'Leary acknowledged in an interview that this, in effect, may mean that two-thirds of all U.S. homeowners will have to either weatherize their homes or improve existing insulation, whether they want to or not.

The President's energy message also is expected to include new energy-efficiency standards for new homes and new buildings.

O'Leary declined to say how the mandatory home insulation program would work. But one possibility mentioned frequently is requiring utilities to do the weatherizing and bill consumers - either directly or through a surcharge spread among all customers.

The administration also is expected to propose some form of tax credit to offset insulation costs to homeowners and businesses.

Three Mishaps Are Probed

Three minor traffic accidents were investigated Thursday by the Snyder Police Department.

Sylvester McKnight, Sr., whose son was involved in a major accident yesterday, was himself involved in a minor traffic accident.

The elder McKnight, driving a 1961 Ford, was involved in an accident yesterday in the 600 block of the East Highway. The car he was driving was in collision with a 1975 Ford driven by Irene Orosco. The mishap occurred at approximately 12:36 p.m., approximately an hour before his son was involved in a wreck.

Earlier Thursday, at 9:12 a.m., a 1969 Ford driven by Cecil Mills was in collision with a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Elbert York. The mishap occurred in the 2800 block of 25th St. Only minor damages were reported to the two cars.

At 6:20 p.m. Thursday, at the intersection of 30th St. and Ave. G, a 1970 Buick driven by Faye Davis was in collision with a parked 1965 Chevrolet driven by Jimmy C. Green. No one was injured in the mishap and only minor damages were reported to the two cars.

Pecos Hosts Tigers In Double Header

Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers will travel to Pecos this weekend for a double header against the Eagles.

Earlier in the season, Snyder edged Pecos, 1-0, in the Monahans Tournament. Senior hurler Ricky Beard pitched the game which marked the Tigers first shut out of the season.

Unlike their previous meeting however, Pecos should have available All-Stater Linvel Mosby. Cited as a "terriffic athlete" by Lewis, Mosby has made District or State teams in a number of sports, including baseball and basketball. He was recently named All-State in AAA basketball.

The ace pitcher has been out of action due to surgery following an injury, but Lewis feels the star will stage his debut this weekend.

"They should make it this weekend if they plan to use him next week," noted Lewis. "They begin district then and will probably need to give him some warming up." An aggressive club, Pecos represented this area in the state tournament last year.

As for the Tigers (10-6), Lewis will start Beard against Mosby. In the other half of the two-game series, he'll go with sophomore Mitch Mackey.

Contrary to previous schedules, Tuesday's game here with the Eagles has been canceled. Both games will be played in Pecos Saturday, with the first contest to begin at one o'clock.

RANGER'S WIN

Jay's Deck White Sox

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Neither rain nor snow nor sleet nor freezing temperatures could put a damper on the Toronto Blue Jays' debut.

A crowd of 44,649 braved the elements to witness the expansion Blue Jays' first game ever at Toronto's still-unfinished Exhibition Stadium, and the home teams' blazing bats kept the fans warm.

The Blue Jays rapped out 16 hits, including two home runs by Doug Ault and a pinch homer by Al Woods, and beat the Chicago White Sox 9-5 Thursday.

"I didn't expect it, but I'll accept it," Blue Jays Manager Roy Hartsfield said of his team's offensive output. "There's something about opening day that brings out kthe best in everyone."

Then he came down from Cloud Nine for a moment and conceded, "We're far from a perfect ball club. But we did play well."

The Chicago White Sox were upset at having had to play at all. When told there were more than 44,000 people in the stands despite the harsh weather conditions, White Sox Manager Bob Lemon quipped, "I'm glad we weren't the only idiots out there today."

Rangers 2, Orioles 1

Bump Wills, son of ex-major leaguer Maury, singled home the winning run for the Rangers in the 10th inning of his first major league game. Bert Blyleven went all the way and allowed just six hits as he outdueled Baltimore's Jim Palmer.

Sutton Cools After 1st Bat

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

It took Don Sutton one pitch to find his groove. And after he grooved that one pitch, the Los Angeles right-hander settled down to hurl the Dodgers past the San Francisco Giants with a four-hitter.

It was easy since he didn't have the pressure of a no-hitter or shutout bearing down on him.

Sutton's first pitch of 1977 landed over the right field fence for a leadoff homer by Gary Thomasson of the Giants. With that out of the way, the Dodger ace permitted just three more hits and finished with a 5-1 opening-day victory Thursday.

In other National League openers, New York topped Chicago 5-3 and St. Louis battered Pittsburgh 12-6. The other teams had the day off.

Sutton might have thought this would be an off day for him after that first pitch to Thomasson.

"It was a banging fast ball, belt high and down the middle," said Sutton. "It was obvious I wasn't going to throw a shutout."

The Giants couldn't have known it at the time but Thomasson's clout turned out to be almost all of their offense. Sutton surrendered next to nothing after that.

"I was confident we'd score some runs,'" said Sutton, thinking about the Dodgers' line-up. "It's like fighting a boxer who can beat you with his right hand and break your face with his left. I was sure we'd get some runs."

The Dodgers tied the game at 1-1 in the bottom of the first when Ron Cey doubled home Reggie Smith, who had singled. Then, in the fifth, Russell's sacrifice fly gave the Dodgers the lead. And after LA added an unearned run in the sixth, Steve Garvey singled home two more runs in the seventh.

Sutton, meanwhile, did not allow a hit after the fourth inning and retired the final 11 Giants in order. Only one Giant reached second base after the first inning.

Mets 5, Cubs 3

John Stearns drilled a two-run single, capping a four-run New York rally in the sixth inning that carried the Mets past Chicago. The key hit of the inning was a double credited to John Milner when Jerry Morrales and Bobby Murcer ran together on his fly ball.

Tom Seaver got the victory with late help from reliever Skip Lockwood.

Cardinals 12, Pirates 6

Keith Hernandez drove in four runs with a double and a homer, pacing St. Louis past Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals scored four runs in the first inning - capitalizing on Pirate errors by Rennie Stennett, Jerry Reuss and Willie Stargell - two of them on a double by Ken Reitz.

Joe DiMaggio holds the World Series record for most consecutive games without an error by an outfielder. Jolting Joe played in 45 Series games in a row, 1937 through 1951, without a miscue.

Fritch Star Signs Letter Of Intent With WTC

Gay Lea Lunday of Fritch has signed a letter of intent with Western Texas College, Dr. Sid Simpson, WTC Athletic Director and women's coach, has announced.

A 6-1 guard, Miss Lunday was selected to play in the Golden Spread East-West All Star Game this year. She has been a member of the Fritch High School varsity basketball team for the past three years and also played on the freshman team.

In her senior year, Miss Lunday was also named for honorable mention on the All-District Team and was named to the All-Tournament Team at Vega. She was selected for the Panhandle All-Tournament Team twice. She was active in numerous high school programs outside sports and was a member of the National Honor Society as well as being a Who's Who Among American High School Students selection last year.

Miss Lunday averaged six rebounds and three steals per game this season. She recovered nine rebounds in the East-West All Star game, her highest number in a single game.

The Fritch team, coached by Donnie Heard, lost to a strong Phillips team in the district championship game this year.

"We plan to make a post player out of Gay Lea," Simpson commented. "We feel she has the defensive skills to play the position and she had some experience as a forward, having played that position in her freshman and sophomore years."

Miss Lunday is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.H. Lunday. An active member of Future Homemakers of America in high school, she plans to major in home economics.

THE TRINITY

The Trinity is a mystery even to the most profound theologians. Some answers have to be given simply because the Godhead—God in three persons—is taught throughout the Holy Scriptures. We will not provide a complete answer here either, but some light can be thrown on this great truth.

GOD THE FATHER'S GREAT LOVE WILL NEVER LET US DOWN. Before we were born, He loved us, "For God so loved . . . that He gave His only begotten son; that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Secondly, GOD THE SON'S GREAT LOVE WILL NEVER LET US OFF. And He told His followers, "A new commandment I give unto you, that you love one another even as I have loved you . . . by this shall all men know that you are my disciples, that you have love one for another" (John 13:34-35).

That kind of love, Paul says, "Constrains us because we are convinced that one has died for all" (II Corinthians 5:14).

Last, GOD THE HOLY SPIRIT'S LOVE WILL NEVER LET US GO. "And I will pray the Father, and He will give you another Counselor, to be with you forever."

It was the Holy Spirit who accompanied the Prodigal Son to the far country, who stayed with him, even to his arrival in the pig pen. It was the Holy Spirit that gave him those wonderful, repentant words, "I will arise and go to my father."

What is the Trinity? It is God's love above us, God's love beside us, God's love within us, redeeming us unto Himself.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Explains salt substitutes

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you clarify some points about the use of "salt substitutes" in the diet?

As a way of reducing salt intake, can a so-called healthy person begin to use the substitute?

Can an overweight person with high blood pressure (controlled by medication) use the substitute without causing a problem?

Can the substitute salt be used in cooking or only at the table?

When using the substitute, does one have to be concerned about a potassium deficiency? If so, how to remedy that situation?

I have received differing information on this matter and need to know what's what.

DEAR READER — A healthy person does not need to use any salt if he doesn't want to. Your body requires a normal intake of sodium and potassium. Vegetables, cereals, and particularly milk and meat products all contain sodium. When you don't have too much sodium in your diet the body normally conserves it by decreasing the amount filtered out in the urine.

Fruit contains potassium, as do meat products. Potassium chloride is the main salt inside the cells — the muscle fibers. Sodium chloride is the main salt in body fluids.

A person who is sweating a lot, as a laborer in a hot environment, may lose excess salt and need additional sodium but otherwise a normal person will not have salt depletion if no salt is used at all.

It follows that you can use a salt substitute, which is usually mostly potassium chloride with some other chemical salts and contains no significant amount of sodium.

You can use the salt substitute if you are overweight. And it is a good idea for anyone with high blood pressure to avoid sodium in ordinary salt. One group of medicines used to manage high blood pressure really works by helping your body eliminate sodium.

Yes, you can use the salt substitutes for cooking or at the table. They will not cause a potassium deficiency since most contain potassium.

Most potassium deficiencies occur because the person is taking a medicine to increase the elimination of sodium from the urine. In addition to eliminating sodium too much potassium is also washed out. Individuals taking such medicines are often on a salt (sodium chloride) restricted diet but it is the medicine not the sodium restriction or the salt substitute that causes the loss of potassium.

Individuals taking medicines to eliminate sodium salt from the body should include plenty of fruit and fruit juices in the diet to increase the intake of potassium. A couple of eight-ounce glasses of orange juice a day will go a long way toward solving the problem.

If you need to use a salt substitute to avoid sodium intake you cannot use Morton's Lite Salt. It is fine to cut down on the intake of sodium but it is still half sodium chloride salt and half substitute. That is still too much sodium for many people with medical problems, including high blood pressure, and heart failure or any condition related to the retention of body fluid.

For information on blood pressure send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-9. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Miss Anderson Sets Concert

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Retired opera singer Marian Anderson will give a concert next week at the University of Pennsylvania, where she has donated her personal papers and memorabilia.

Miss Anderson, 75, was the first black soloist with the Metropolitan Opera. She was born here.

Her collection of letters, newspapers clippings and other items will be turned over to the school's Van Pelt Library, the university said.

Bird's Nest Cuts Power

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A robin bent on using Christmas tree tinsel in her nest has sent Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company crews scouring a neighborhood for discarded tinsel.

"Anyone who has tried to get Christmas tree icicles out of a shag rug knows what they must have been like," said utility spokesman Dave Raybern.

Raybern said the trouble started last Friday when tinsel in the nest touched part of a substation switching system, triggering a circuit breaker that cut power to part of Edmond.

Workmen dismissed the incident as a freak occurrence.

But on Tuesday the same thing happened again, so OG&E crews "began scouring the area, policing up the tinsel," Raybern said.

In addition, the crews stopped up all likely nooks and crannies the bird might get in - all but one, that is. They planned to come back Wednesday morning and stop up that one.

The robin beat them, though, and once again the power went out.

Raybern said all the nooks have been covered now and the area once again has been searched for Christmas tinsel.

LET'S JUST PRAISE THE LORD.

Man Names Sears In Discrimination Suit

MIAMI (AP) — A man who claims he was denied promotion and training by Sears Roebuck & Co. because he is not black or female has filed a discrimination suit against the giant retail chain.

"Every time I asked for a promotion, I was told that Sears had an 'affirmative action program' and that blacks and women would be promoted and transferred ahead of men," said Raymond Turner, 30.

The suit alleging racial and sexual discrimination was filed Thursday in federal court here.

Turner said he worked for Sears for nine years but was fired after he told the company he planned to file the discrimination suit.

Sears officials refused to comment on the alleged firing or the suit.

Frank Malone, assistant personnel manager for Sears in the Southeast, said only that the chain strives for racial and sexual balance.

"My nine years, my good record and my company training meant nothing because I was white," said Turner.

He said he repeatedly was denied promotions and transfers from the Coral Gables store. He also said he was turned down for the company's automotive training program after allegedly being told it was for women only.

He said his problems started when company officials replaced him with a black woman in washer and dryer sales.

He said a promotion he sought as head of the refrigerator sales force was given to a black person with less experience. Turner also said he was refused a transfer to Clarkesville, Nashville, Jackson and Memphis, all in Tennessee, as well as Winter Haven, Fla.

His suit alleges that stores in all five cities told him they would hire only blacks and women, not white males.

Sore At Sister's Permanent Steady

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who is a very attractive 47-year-old single woman, has been going with the same 50-year-old man for 15 years! He openly dates others, and my sister puts up with it.

He is a divorced man who plays the field, and he's convinced my sister that marriage at his age is a bummer and that all men need variety.

Our whole family has tried to make her see how foolish she is to waste her time on him, but she insists she "loves" him and is satisfied with things as they are. She could easily get someone else but she won't look at another man.

What is wrong with this dummy? And how can I convince her to break off with this heel?

PROBLEM SISTER

DEAR SISTER: The man is apparently playing it straight with your sister so why is he a "heel"? And if your sister is satisfied to go along with things as they are, why is she a "dummy"?

As I see it, even though you and your family mean well, you'd like your sister to live according to your values—not hers. It's her life, and she has a right to live it as she sees fit. Get off her back.

DEAR ABBY: My father was a very successful businessman, and my mother came into a large inheritance soon after her marriage. They were regarded as "high society," yet I was constantly beaten, kicked and brutally mistreated all through my childhood. To this day I have a semi-crippled hand as a result of the batterings I received as a child.

Today I am 30, happily married with two children of my own. Long ago I broke off all relations with my parents, as I could never forgive them for the way they treated me as a child.

My wife is urging me to make friends with my parents who are now in their 60s, have begged to see their grandchildren and repeatedly asked us to visit them.

I want nothing to do with them. Most recently they have dangled a large inheritance in front of us. My wife thinks I'm crazy to pass up this fortune. She wants me to forgive and forget. I can't seem to convince her that I can't forget what they put me through and want none of their handouts now. Am I wrong?

LONG SUFFERING

DEAR LONG: Your feelings of resentment are understandable. However, if you want no part of a prospective "large inheritance" for yourself, you might consider it for your wife and children. And for them, if not for your parents, letting bygones be bygones would seem to be a timely compromise.

DEAR ABBY: I have seen plenty of those so-called sportsmen at the store buying bullets and beer. (A great combination—almost as good as drinking and driving.)

Every deer season we wait for the news: how many hunters will kill other hunters by mistake; how many will have heart attacks from overexertion and have to be flown out of the mountains at the taxpayers' expense.

Anybody who wants to buy a hunting license can get one, you know, regardless of how lousy a shot he is. Farmers have had their livestock accidentally killed by some of these "marksmen" who shoot everything that moves. (One farmer even considered putting signs on his animals reading, "THIS IS A COW!")

I've never been hunting, and I don't care to go. The only kind of shooting I do is with a camera. That way I'll have something beautiful to remember—not the bloody, lifeless remains of a once beautiful animal.

HATES HUNTING

DEAR HATES: Well said.

Crop Duster Killed

DELEON, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Place, 45, who had recently moved to Texas from Cincinnati and purchased a crop-dusting flying service, was killed Thursday when his aircraft crashed four miles south of here.

Department of Public Safety officer Roy Kubiak said the plane nosed down for no apparent reason, and then crashed.

Place was believed to be test flying one of the crop dusters he had purchased at the time of the crash.

He had planned to return to Ohio Friday to bring his family to Texas.

Place was a former resident of Gillete, Ark., who had a doctor's degree from Purdue University and taught agronomy at the University of Arkansas.

He is survived by his widow and two sons.

Steven Ford To Serve As Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Steven Ford, son of former President Gerald R. Ford, will serve as an analyst when CBS airs the Professional Rodeo Cowboy's Association "Rodeo Invitational" from Red Bluff, Calif.

The Network announced Wednesday that the program will be telecast April 30.

The boys went hiking, fishing and got in some rope work.

The troop is preparing for a summer camp in June to Camp Sol Mayer, located outside Camp Wood. They will go to Six Flags, May 6.

Troop 107 will now meet at the Airport Terminal Building on Tuesday from 7:30-9 p.m.
