Conservative Soviet leader demoted

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev retired President Andrei A. Gromyko from the Politburo Friday and fired other old guard leaders in a Kremlin shake-up that trimmed the Communist Party bureaucracy and put some Gorbachev allies in key positions.

In less than an hour, an extraordinary meeting of the party's policy-making Central Committee ordered reductions in the party's Moscow-based staff and apparently demoted the Kremlin's No. 2 man, Yegor K. Ligachev, to agriculture chief.

Ligachev, a Politburo member who earlier had been replaced as party chief for ideology, had widely been seen as a potential conservative rival to Gorbachev, Soviet leader since March 1985, when he became the party's general secretary.

The party's top job in agriculture, once held by Gorbachev himself, is central to Gorbachev's ambitious plan for economic reform, but carries far less prestige than the portfolio for ideology.

Vadim A. Medvedev, named a full Politburo member by the Central Committee, told a news conference later that the 300-member committee also retired Mikhail S. Solomentsev, 75, from the 12-member Politburo, in the most sweeping set of personnel changes since Gorbachev came to power.

Medvedev said the revamping could halve the size of the Central Committee staff, as Gorbachev pursues his drive to get the party out of the day-to-day running of government and the economy.

The meeting was called hastily, indicating Gorbachev may have been trying to head off possible opposition to the changes. One Soviet official suggested Gorbachev decided to act as soon as he mustered adequate backing.

"When the decision is made and the support is there, then why wait?" the official said. "There was no point in wasting time."

A senior Soviet political analyst said the changes clearly strengthened Gorbachev's hand and would reduce tensions within the leadership.

"Now there will be less conflict and competition," the analyst said. "Ligachev will have an important job, in agriculture, but will not control the party machinery."

Both official and analyst spoke on condition of anonymity.

Gromyko's retirement set the stage for the 79-year-old statesman's removal as president during a special session of the Supreme Soviet legislature scheduled in the Kremlin Saturday.

"He is still the president for today," Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov told reporters at the United Nations in New York. "But tomorrow the Supreme Soviet will be convened to decide (on the presidency)."

Crude oil prices drop to lowest levels in 2 years

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices plummeted to their lowest levels in more than two years Friday as investors panicked on speculation that Saudi Arabia could flood world markets with oil and force prices down drastically.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the contract for November delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $13.37 a 42-gallon barrel after dipping to a low of $13.25.

It was the lowest closing level since Aug. 4, 1986, when the near-term contract settled at $13.29 a barrel.

Analysts said the market opened weak, then plunged after a statement from OPEC Secretary-General Subroto that if Saudi Arabia continued pumping oil at the same rate it could slash the benchmark price to $5 a barrel. That would be near the cost of production for some producers.

"That panicked the market without any doubt," said James Steel, an analyst with Refco Inc.

Subroto's statements followed a report by an industry publication that the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is producing an estimated 20.6 million barrels of oil a day, some 3 million barrels over their implied ceiling of 17.5 million barrels and approximately the same level as in 1986 when prices plummeted below $10.

Outlook for contract drilling called 'grim'

By ANNE PEARSON
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — The outlook for contract drilling will remain grim in 1989, as too many rigs chase too few jobs, the president of the country's third-largest drill bit manufacturer said this week.

The U.S. drilling rig utilization rate is expected to increase only slightly in 1989, from about 56 percent of available rigs in 1988 to 58 percent next year, according to Roy J. Caldwell, president of Houston-based Reed Tool Co.

At the same time, the fleet of available rigs is expected to fall by about 225 to a total of 2,525, he said. About 1,470 rigs are expected to be actively drilling next year.

Those figures are part of Reed's 36th annual rig census.

Six insolvent Texas thrifts rescued by joint venture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators Friday pledged $2.5 billion in government aid toward two separate deals rescuing six insolvent Texas savings institutions.

A joint venture of three Texas firms, including Temple-Inland Inc. of Diboid, a forestry company, is getting $1.49 billion in assistance from the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. to acquire three institutions with combined assets of $3.19 billion.

Temple-Inland, along with Trammel Crow Co., a Dallas-based real estate development and management company, and Mason Best Co., a private merchant banking firm in Dallas, are investing $128 million. Temple will get 80 percent of the new institution's stock, while Trammel Crow and Mason will each get 10 percent.

In the second deal, Club Corporation International of Dallas, one of the nation's largest operators of private dining and country clubs, has received a commitment from the FSLIC worth $999.5 million. For an investment of $25 million, Club is getting control of three institutions with combined assets of $1.2 billion.

The two transactions bring to an end a six-week spending spree by the FSLIC, which guarantees S&L deposits up to $100,000. The agency committed more than $16 billion to close or merge more than 60 institutions, including 32 in Texas and 14 in Oklahoma, states hard hit by problems in the oil industry and by lax S&L regulation.

Those transactions represent about half of the 122 S&L cases resolved by regulators so far this year.

M. Danny Wall, who as chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is the nation's top S&L regulator, had announced he was trying finish as many deals as possible before the 1988 fiscal year ended Friday night.

Wall conceded earlier this week that he mistakenly believed much of the federal assistance would not count toward the federal budget deficit if it was spent before Sept. 30. He said there were still minor advantages to finishing the deals in fiscal 1988, but said the board no longer felt pressured to finish negotiations by then.

"It's good news for Texas and it's good news for the Texas thrift industry. We are about a fourth of the way completed with the thrift situation in Texas," said David Colgren, spokesman for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Dallas.

"The quicker, the more viable the industry will be in the future."

But Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., Thursday called for a halt to what he called "thin deals" in the Southwest and suggested they were a "political shell game" intended to postpone any crisis until after the November elections.

The three institutions being acquired by Temple-Inland and its partners are: Guaranty Federal Savings and Loan Association, based in Dallas with 33 branches; First Federal Savings and Loan of Austin, with 22 branches; and Delta Savings of Texas, with eight branches in and around Alvin.

Among the reasons listed by the bank board for the failure of the three are: high-risk lending to avoid recognizing losses, conflicts of interest, unauthorized securities trading, speculative commercial loans, poor underwriting practices and deficient real estate appraisals.

Club International, through a wholly owned subsidiary, First Federal Financial Corp., is taking control of three Austin-based S&Ls: CreditBanc Savings Association, Franklin Savings Association and Great West Savings Bank.

Energy center awarded $100,000 federal grant

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A $100,000 federal grant will allow the Center for Energy & Economic Diversification at UTPB to take a giant step toward fulfilling its mission in the Permian Basin, according to the center's director.

The monies, from the Economic Development Administration of the Commerce Department, will allow the center — currently housed at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin — to hire three full-time staff members, said Dr. Warren Gardner.

Gardner hopes to hire an economist, a marketing specialist and a researcher with the funds from the grant which is renewable for five to seven years.

The funds are particularly important to the center because "it is so hard to get grant support for operations," Gardner said. "We've had great community support for our building fund, but this will help fund the center's operations."

UTPB is the second university in Texas to receive funding under the EDA program; the first is the University of Texas at San Antonio, Gardner said.

The center was informed of the award by Lubbock Rep. Larry Combest's Washington office on Friday.

Cleaning up

Paul Allread, an employee of A-1 Wrecker Paint & Body, sweeps glass and debris from the site of an automobile accident that injured four Midland residents Friday. Police said the collision occurred about 9 p.m. Friday in the 2200 block of W. Illinois Ave. Blanco Ornelas, 33, the driver of a yellow Oldsmobile Cutlass, sustained a dislocated hip. She was listed in stable condition, according to a Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman. Brian Nikolai, 28, who was driving a 1977 Chevrolet Blazer, was treated and released. Two other passengers involved in the accident — who were not identified — also were treated and released.

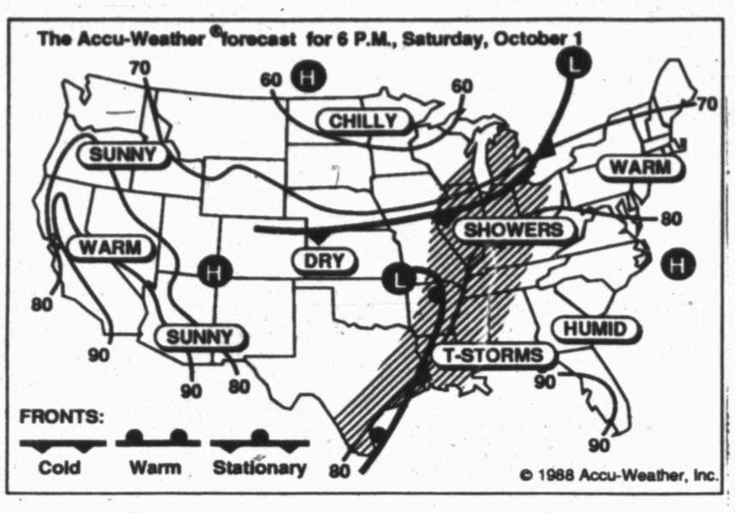
WEATHER SUMMARY



Basin revels in fall weather

From Staff Reports

It won't be long 'til autumn leaves are turning.

With overnight lows nearing 40 degrees and highs creeping only into the mid-70s, fall is certainly upon us. And today's forecast is no exeception.

Forecasters with the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport say today will be sunny and a little warmer, with a high near 80 degrees. Winds will be from the southwest at 5 to 15 mph, shifting to the north by late afternoon.

Tonight will be fair, with a low in the upper 40s.

On Sunday, skies will be sunny, with a high in the mid-70s.

Friday's high of 74 was 30 degrees cooler than the record of 104, set on that date in 1977. The low Friday of 43 degrees was 1 degree warmer than the record of 42, set on that date in 1966.

STATE

Showers and thunderstorms continued moving across eastern Texas Friday, while clearing skies pushed slowly into the midsection of the state.

A nearly stationary front located near the Texas-Louisiana border extended southward to near Victoria. The showers in East Texas resulted from warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico flowing over cooler surface air.

Light rain fell near Waxahachie Friday evening, moving east at 15 mph. A strong thunderstorm was also located near Stratford in the Panhandle.

Cloudy skies and patches of light rain were still occurring across the Panhandle as they wrapped around a low pressure system located in northern Kansas.

Temperatures at mid-afternoon were generally in the 60s and 70s with the Rio Grande Valley in the 80s. Extreme temperatures at 3 p.m. were a low of 60 at Kerrville and a high of 87 at McAllen.

NATION

Showers and thunderstorms extended Friday afternoon from Louisiana and eastern Texas into Iowa, but sunny skies prevailed from the Rocky Mountain region to the Pacific Coast.

Rains in the south-central region produced heavy rain at some locations. By sunrise Friday, Baytown in southeast Texas had received 7.95 inches of rain.

Showers and thunderstorms were also scattered along the Florida coast and the rest of the central Gulf Coast. Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy from the Great Plains to the Atlantic Coast with lingering fog in the upper Great Lakes region and the middle Mississippi Valley and a few showers in western Kansas, northwest Texas, western Kentucky and southern Indiana.

TDC again closes doors to new inmates

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The overcrowded Texas Department of Corrections closed its doors to new inmates Friday afternoon as state leaders accepted one new plan to relieve overcrowding but took no action on another.

The TDC's prisoner count as of midnight Thursday revealed 38,990 inmates in the country's second largest prison system, 53 above its legal limit. TDC spokesman David Nunnelee said the prisons released 16 more inmates than they took in on Friday but the population remained above the 38,937 cap imposed by federal court order.

TDC will release an additional 165 inmates Monday, but it will accept no new prisoners, Nunnelee said. "We anticipate re-opening Tuesday," he added.

Although overcrowding forced the prisons to shut their doors to new inmates 22 times in 1987, they have remained open since Sept. 24, 1987, when they re-opened after a 12-day crisis. One week later, Gov. Bill Clements announced a new goal of admitting and releasing 150 inmates a day.

Although Clements' plan had kept the prisons open since then, the limited number of admissions backed up convicted felons in already overcrowded county jails. As of Sept. 5, the 15 largest county jails held 6,229 inmates that belonged in TDC, leaving them 27 percent above their legal capacity.

The Jefferson County jail held 109 inmates awaiting TDC transfer. The 502-bed jail held 525 prisoners total, 2.6 percent above its capacity.

Meanwhile Friday, the Legislative Budget Board approved a $3.3 million plan that could move about 500 low-risk inmates from the prisons to strict halfway houses by early next year. The Board of Pardons and Paroles would operate the "pre-parole transfer programs," where inmates would stay for 30 to 60 days before being paroled or transferred to more traditional halfway houses.

The budget board, however, postponed a decision on appropriating $6.4 million for renovating an old San Antonio jail to hold parole violators who are currently adding to the crowding problems in county jails around the state. As of Sept. 5, the 15 largest jails held 438 parole violators, most of whom had been picked up for failing to report to their parole officers.

Budget board members expressed concern over the renovation's complicated financing scheme as well as the proposed plans for operating the center. House Speaker Gib Lewis said he couldn't get over "the queasiness I have in my stomach about this whole project."

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's largest producer and the biggest exporter in the world, is believed responsible for more than a third of the quota cheating, according to brokers.

The Saudis, once considered a leader in bringing other members back to their assigned quotas, is said to have recently joined the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait and Iraq in exceeding assigned output levels.

According to some sources, the Saudis are trying a new strategy in advance of the Nov. 21 meeting of the cartel to force OPEC members to rein in oil production.

Subroto indicated that the Saudis want to demonstrate that higher production doesn't lead to higher income.

"There's so much spare capacity that no one can gain market share," said Bob Baker, an analyst with Prudential Bache Securities Inc. "Any attempt will be undersold by the Saudis, who also have spare capacity."

"It's a very strong message," Steel said. "It's not to anyone's benefit especially to high-cost producers."

In other trading activity Friday, wholesale unleaded gasoline prices rose to settle at 47.89 cents a gallon, compared with Thursday's closing price of 46.42 cents a gallon. Other contract months declined.

Analysts said the gains in gasoline stemmed partly from the recent hurricane threat in the Gulf of Mexico when refineries and oil rigs halted operations.

Production statistics released this week showed that although gasoline inventories were up 2.2 million barrels on a weekly basis to 219 million barrels, they were 10 million barrels below the same period a year earlier.

Heating oil fell 1.50 cents to end the day at 38.04 cents.

RIGS

"Overall, the census results indicate that 1988 has not been the recovery year the industry initially hoped for," Caldwell said. "Although business has improved over the past year, there still remains a substantial gap between the supply and the demand for rigs in the U.S."

The number of rigs available for work in the United States dropped 17.4 percent this year compared to 1987, the largest percentage decline Reed's census has ever recorded. The fleet count for 1988 was 2,752, down from 3,331 rigs counted in 1987. It was the second consecutive drop, breaking the previous record decline of 16.8 percent from 1986 to 1987.

Baker Hughes Inc., which also forecasts rig activity in the United States, said it expects the number of rigs working to be significantly lower than Reed's projection. Its method of counting active rigs is slightly different.

Economist Ike Kerridge said his company expects an average of 930 rigs to be active next year, compared with a year-to-date average of 941 working this year. He noted that while Reed includes in its active count those rigs that have been drilling within the last 30 days, Baker Hughes counts only those actually drilling at the time, which would produce a somewhat lower number.

Kerridge said Baker Hughes has significantly downsized its original estimate of 1,070 active rigs for 1989.

"The problem is (low) crude prices right now. That's the primary reason companies have underspent their (drilling) budgets this year," he said.

With no firm indication from OPEC that it can control price falls in the near future, drilling will remain sluggish, Kerridge said.

Caldwell said Reed and other U.S. drilling equipment makers will have to turn more to foreign markets to survive in light of the gloomy out look for drilling in the United States.

"It's basically a very unhealthy industry today," Caldwell said.

Most other segments of the energy industry have downsized and consolidated to help ease financial problems brought on by low energy prices. But in drilling, the major expense is the rigs themselves, which can cost tens of millions of dollars. Merging two companies does not reduce the carrying costs on those rigs, he said.

DEATHS

R.C. 'Bob' Tucker

Tucker

Funeral services for R.C. "Bob" Tucker of Midland will be at 2 p.m. today at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity with the Rev. Allen Whitman officiating.

Interment will follow at the Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Tucker died Thursday at his home following a lengthy illness.

He was born Nov. 4, 1898, in Parkersburg, W.Va., where he was reared. He attended the University of West Virginia. He entered the U.S. Army in 1918 and following his discharge he returned to West Virginia.

He moved to Louisiana early in the 1920s, where he met Sybil Winn. They were married in Minden, La. on Aug. 18, 1923. They moved to Houston in 1927 where Tucker was vice president of American Petroleum Co. They moved to Midland in 1934. He became the executive vice president of Great Western Drilling Co. in 1945. In 1951 he was elected president of the company.

He was a member of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity and served as its first parish warden.

Throughout his career in the oil and gas industry, Tucker was an active member and participant in numerous petroleum associations. He served as director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce in 1957 and as a member of the board of directors of Midland National Bank in 1956.

Survivors include his wife, Sybil Tucker of Midland; one daughter, Anne Tucker McLaughlin of Midland; four grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be John Hampton, Dave Fitzgerald, as well as his four grandsons, John McLaughlin, Stephen McLaughlin, David McLaughlin and Tom McLaughlin.

SOVIET

The retirement would clear the way for Gorbachev to seek election himself to a new, more powerful presidency he has advocated that would include responsibility for defense, foreign affairs, and formation of the government.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said the United States will study the changes "and what they mean for the U.S.-Soviet relationship."

"I would like to point out that our policy toward the Soviet Union is based on U.S. interests, not on personalities or who holds what position in Moscow," she added.

At the meeting, Gorbachev lauded "the merits and achievements" of the dour-faced Gromyko, indicating he was leaving in good standing. Gromyko served as Soviet foreign minister for 27 years before becoming president in July 1985.

"I feel sad over the fact that my position within the Communist Party Central Committee has changed," Gromyko told the meeting. "But age is a stubborn thing and there is no getting away from it."

Gorbachev said: "Generally speaking, it has been a rich political life. Today when Andrei Gromyko is retiring I would like to thank him on behalf of my colleagues in the Political Bureau, and I hope the participants in the plenum think the same, for the good work and faithful service for the party and the state, and to wish him good health."

The remarks by Gorbachev and Gromyko were reported by the official Tass news agency.

Two alternate members of the Politburo also lost their posts: Vladimir I. Dolgikh and Pyotr N. Demichev.

Dolgikh, 63, and retiring Politburo member Solomentsev were considered experts in heavy industry, and their retirement may indicate dissatisfaction with efforts to increase efficiency in that key area of the economy.

Demichev, 70, has served as Soviet vice president, but he could lose that job at Saturday's Supreme Soviet session.

Speedway site of truck, tractor pull

From Staff Reports

Twin Cities Speedway will be the site tonight and Sunday of the Copenhagen/SKOAL Pulling Circuit Truck and Tractor Pull.

"This event will mark the first major outdoor tractor pull in the Midland-Odessa area," John Foster, one of the Speedway's owners, said. "Top competitors from across Texas will attempt to win championships in their respective divisions on the 300-foot dirt pull course."

In addition, competitors from as many as 10 states are expected for the two-day event, sponsored by the National Tractor Pullers Association Inc.

Three classes of vehicles will be competing, including 4-wheel drive modified trucks, unlimited modified tractors developing up to 5,000 horsepower and open class 2-wheel drive trucks.

Most of the pulling machines are powered by super charged, fuel injected, alcohol-burning engines.

In addition to the pulling contest, the event has another first — a Monster Truck Battle. Four monster trucks will compete daily.

Monster trucks have 6-foot tall tires and stand over 12-feet tall. Many are 14-feet wide and weigh upwards of 18,000 pounds. These trucks all started as three-quarter or one ton pickup trucks and are modified to be used in competition.

Showtime today is 8 p.m. Gates open at 5 p.m. Showtime Sunday is 2 p.m. Admission is $10 for adults and $6 for children through age 11.

Twin Cities Speedway is located between Midland and Odessa between Highway 80 and Interstate 20.

New edition of Old Farmer's Almanac predicts white Christmas

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The 197th edition of the Old Farmer's Almanac contains a forecast for a white Christmas in the East, a prediction of woe for Red Sox fans, and former Sen. Edmund Muskie's technique for mesmerizing lobsters.

Published in tiny Dublin, N.H., the oldest continuously published almanac in the United States hit newsstands this week with its usual, homey brand of "new, useful and entertaining matter" for the 9 million readers it claims.

A competing Farmer's Almanac, which is marking its 55th year, was released earlier this month. That publication is sold to banks, insurance companies and other businesses for distribution to customers as a promotion and claims a circulation of more than 5 million.

Started in 1792, the 224-page Old Farmer's Almanac also contains its usual fearless extended weather forecast for 1989 for 16 U.S. regions.

Editor Judson Hale claims 80 percent accuracy with the secret formula and the "most modern scientific calculation based on solar activity," although it failed to predict last summer's devastating drought.

Looking ahead, the almanac predicts heavy snow starting around Thanksgiving from Chicago to New England and down the East Coast, with a frigid December in some sections before temperatures rise and the weather dries.

That means a white Christmas, but "snow stopping in time for cork popping" at New Year's.

While New England, southern Florida and the desert Southwest should prepare for below-normal temperatures, the rest of the country will get a warmer winter than usual.

For the summer, the almanac calls for cooler, wetter weather along the East Coast, normal temperatures in New England, Florida and the Deep South, and drier weather in the Ohio Valley through Chicago, Texas, Oklahoma and the Pacific Coast.

But for the often-disappointed fans of Boston's beloved Red Sox, next September's forecast is the most crucial: It comes with the warning, "Sox in first, expect the worst."

The familiar black and yellow publication, punctuated this year with sporty red highlights, again offers predictions for consumers, who can expect fake caviar, low-calorie tortilla chips, scented newspaper ads and the "ultimate indignity" — garbage rationing — in the coming 15 months.

The casual reader may also be drawn to educational features, such as the "straight facts about warts" and ways to get rid of them ranging from "bizarre and complicated" to "extremely disgusting" and "downright criminal."

Muskie, the former Democratic senator from Maine and U.S. secretary of state, offered a followup to a 1984 article on hypnotizing chickens with his own "foolproof ways to hypnotize a lobster."

By stroking the tail in a downward motion, "curling it as you go," he said, you can impress friends by getting the lobster to do a claw stand on its head.

A vigorous shake should bring the lobster back to its senses, but if that doesn't work, Muskie wrote, just whisper in its ear, "Drawn butter, drawn butter."

GOP wants House to vote on Wright probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee formally asked the Intelligence Committee Friday whether Speaker Jim Wright was given classified information on Central Intelligence Agency covert actions in Nicaragua.

The request signaled that the ethics panel, officially called the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, is conducting at least an informal probe into allegations that Wright improperly disclosed classified information when he spoke openly last week about the CIA's activities.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., the senior Republican on the Intelligence Committee, said he was "confident" the committee would cooperate with the request for information. Last week, the Democrat-controlled panel had declined to send the information to ethics, saying no official request had been made.

The ethics committee's request came as GOP members of the Intelligence Committee said they were prepared to ask the full House to investigate Wright because a previous request from the chamber's GOP leaders had fallen on deaf ears.

Democrats responded angrily, charging that the move was motivated by politics and by frustrations of Contra supporters over the perilous state of the rebels.

"I think it's mean, I think it's ugly, and I think it's beneath the dignity of the members of this House," said Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich.

But the move by the ethics committee was a signal that the Wright investigation was not being ignored, and Republicans seemed satisfied — at least for the moment.

"What was sought has been accomplished," Hyde said. "I don't see any point in airing this at this juncture...We are not interested in squeezing this for any political advantage. We want it dealt with."

The Intelligence and ethics committees have met to discuss the Wright matter since the speaker sparked the controversy Sept. 20.

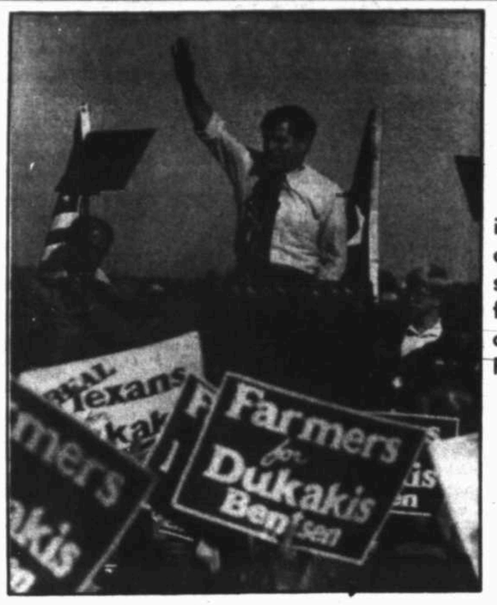
That day, in answer to a reporter's question, Wright said he had "clear testimony from CIA people" that the spy agency had recruited agents in Nicaragua to stir up demonstrations and civil unrest that would provoke a crackdown by the leftist Sandinista government and scuttle peace talks with the Contra rebels.

Wright later elaborated, saying the information was elicited from the CIA under congressional questioning. But he subsequently denied that he had relied on any such information in making his comments, saying the agency's role in Central America was well documented in published material. And he has said he feels morally obligated to talk about any government action that is contrary to its stated support for the region's peace process.

The Republican resolution, which still could be brought before the full House at any time, would require the ethics committee to investigate the charges and direct other committees — including Intelligence — to cooperate by providing relevant information to the panel.

"Many of us in the Congress have been deeply concerned about the possibility that the speaker's comments a week ago concerning alleged CIA activities in Nicaragua constitute a breach of security and an unauthorized disclosure of classified information," said Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., the No. 3 official in the House GOP leadership, said at a news conference.

Ethics committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., said his panel's pace did not mean the matter had been shelved, and he accused Republicans of being too impatient and eager to stir up public controversy.



Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis speaks at a rally on a farm in Idalou, just outside of Lubbock, Friday.

Bush doesn't see pain of farmers, Dukakis says

IDALOU (AP) — Democrat Michael Dukakis assailed the Reagan administration's agriculture policies Friday, telling farmers in George Bush's adopted home state the Republican candidate "'doesn't see the pain in rural America."

"My friends, Mr. Bush's farm policy can be summed up in just five words: The fewer farmers the better," the Democratic presidential nominee said. "And his rural development policy can be summed up in two words: Tough luck."

Dukakis, campaigning in a state that is crucial to his election chances, spoke before 1,000 people on the dusty Isom family farm at Idalou, a rural community not far from Lubbock.

Standing with a bluegrass band to his side and cattle in a pen behind him, Dukakis said Reagan farm policies have idled farmland and driven farm prices down. He said economic policies have compounded the problems facing farmers by driving up the federal debt and interest rates.

He pledged to set aside $100 million in a "Fund to Rebuild America" for business financing in rural communities and also pointed to his proposals for improving rural health care and increasing education aid.

"The Republicans put America on the auction block," Dukakis said. "They've been selling off our farms and businesses and banks and real estate" to foreign investors.

"Is that George Bush's idea of a 'kinder, gentler America?'" he asked, referring to a Bush line. "Foreclosing on American farmers? Letting our small towns die?

"Mr. Bush doesn't see the pain in rural America," he said. "He doesn't see the quarter of a million family farmers who have lost their land since he became vice president."

Dukakis flew from Texas to southern California, where he walked around the Stringfield Acid Pits, a closed hazardous waste dump near Riverside that has polluted local water supplies. He later spoke to about 100 people at a high school, where he called for more research into health effects of such pollution and for reducing the use of dangerous chemicals.

"I consider the cleanup of Boston Harbor to be one of the greatest achievements of my administration," he said. "Why? Because we're cleaning up...No thanks, I might add, to George Bush and this administration."

Humanitarian aid can't be blocked, federal judge says

LAREDO (AP) — The president has no authority to prohibit humanitarian aid to foreign countries, a federal judge ruled Thursday. The decision supports the Veterans Peace Convoy, a group that bucked federal opposition to take vehicles to Nicaragua earlier this year.

The ruling by U.S. District Court Judge George P. Kazen limits the scope of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, the basis for the Reagan Administration's economic embargo on Nicaragua.

The act contains an exemption for humanitarian aid. The Reagan administration had been interpreting it on a case-by-case basis, the court said, and refusing to allow export of certain items including cars and trucks.

Kazen's ruling, released Friday, said because of the exemption in the Economic Powers Act, the president has no authority to regulate or prohibit U.S. citizens' donations to foreign countries "which the donor intends to be used to relieve human suffering."

Specifically, the Foreign Assets Control Office, part of the Treasury Department, cannot require donors to get licenses before exporting such aid, Kazen said.

The act was cited when the Foreign Assets Control Office, part of the Department of Treasury, temporarily barred the veterans' donation of vehicles to Nicaraguan schools, hospitals and churches.

After being repeatedly turned back by U.S. Customs at the Mexico border, the Veterans Peace Convoy eventually was able to take 30 of the group's 38 vehicles across the border at Laredo in July. Most of the vehicles are now in Nicaragua, according to the court.

Plaintiffs in the case said the ruling clears the way for further aid to Nicaragua.

"We consider it an important victory. We actually got a much broader ruling than we had expected," said Tom Hansen, former coordinator of Veterans for Peace.

Hansen last week left that job to coordinate Pastors for Peace, a Detroit-based group which hopes to send a similar convoy to Nicaragua in 1989. Donating to Nicaraguan groups will be much easier now that U.S. citizens don't have to worry about getting licenses, he said in a telephone interview.

STATE IN BRIEF

Clements' inaction hit

AUSTIN (AP) — Aides to Gov. Bill Clements said Friday they are trying to arrange the meeting sought by a Texas Hispanic leader who criticized Clements and Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein for failing to see him quickly to discuss living conditions in South Texas colonias.

Hector Garcia, founder of the Corpus Christi-based American GI Forum, said Thursday that a Clements aide told him the governor would not meet with him until after the Nov. 8 election.

Garcia also said he tried to set up a meeting with Bernstein, but was told the health official wouldn't be available until October and was referred instead to one of Bernstein's deputies.

"I was disappointed in that I consider such conditions as an emergency health hazard which should be taken care of on an emergency basis immediately," Garcia said.

Ruling goes against Hunts

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administrative law judge has ruled the Commodity Futures Trading Commission can continue to press its claim accusing the Hunt brothers of manipulating the silver futures market, saying their recent personal bankruptcy filings do not automatically block the government's case.

In his ruling Thursday, Judge Arthur L. Shipe cited federal Bankruptcy Code provisions that state the government is not barred from enforcing its "police or regulatory power" when someone files for protection from creditors.

Girl claims abduction

HOUSTON (AP) — A 14-year-old girl told police she was dragged from her high school's lunchroom and taken to a home where she was raped by three boys.

The girl told Houston juvenile sex crime investigators she was dragged "screaming and hollering" from Smiley High School by a 16-year-old boy, forced into his car and driven to a home in northeast Houston Tuesday.

The girl told police she was sexually assaulted for about an hour by the boy and two other 16-year-old boys, juvenile Sgt. Rudy Navarro said.

School finance ruling may raise taxes, speaker says

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Early estimates show the state can finance current services without raising taxes in 1990-1991, but an adverse court ruling in a public school finance lawsuit could change all that, House Speaker Gib Lewis said Friday.

Maintaining current services — with a $1.8 billion increase to cover growing school enrollment, higher welfare caseloads and 10,800 new prison beds — would cost the state about $26.3 billion in the 1990-1991 biennium, members of the Legislative Budget Board learned in a Friday afternoon briefing from their staff.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that available tax revenues will total $26.6 billion over the two-year period, leaving a $334.5 million surplus. Lawmakers started the 1987 session with a $5.7 billion deficit in the 1988-1989 budget.

But the budget board's "base of reference budget" for 1990-1991 contains no funds for an employee pay raise, new health and human services programs or — most importantly — a new school finance system.

A Travis County district judge has ruled the current system unconstitutional because it deprives students in property poor school districts of equal access to funds. Estimates for fixing the system range from $800 million to $3.4 billion.

The state has appealed Judge Harley Clark's ruling but has heard no answer from the Third Court of Appeals in Austin. Both sides expect the state Supreme Court will make the final decision in the case.

A victory for the state could allow lawmakers to balance the budget without a tax increase for the first time since 1984, Lewis said. If the poor districts who filed the suit win, the speaker said, legislators may have to raise taxes again or turn to other forms of revenue.

One possibility would be tapping the $6.1 billion Permanent School Fund "if worse comes to worse," Lewis said. The state spends about $650 million a year on education from the investments that fund makes, but the Constitution protects the $6.1 billion as a permanent trust fund for schoolchildren.

Other legislative leaders were cautiously optimistic about Friday's numbers.

"They're scary," said House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, noting that the $334.5 surplus could dry up quickly if the economy sours.

"It's overall encouraging, but that's all relative," said Senate Finance Committee Chairman Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

Dismantling of 'jungle' leaves many homeless

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Salvage crews with cutting torches and tractors have begun dismantling an abandoned steel factory known to its homeless residents as "the jungle," leaving dozens of men and women wondering where they'll find a place to sleep.

Two residents rocked back and forth in used office chairs last week and watched men pull down corrugated metal siding from a small building within the former Kyle Steel Co. warehouse. Residents had used the shack as an outhouse.

The roar and grind of tractors scooping up mounds of garbage, broken shopping carts and shattered glass culminated a lengthy controversy over living conditions in the warehouse in this city 200 miles southeast of San Francisco.

One resident, who identified himself only as Dino in an interview last winter with The Associated Press, said of the jungle: "What this is is a city in itself. It's a little country inside itself. It's open to most anybody, but they have to prove they can go out and get what they need for themselves."

He added: "Everybody over here has got to get along...As long as you follow the rules that are set, the jungle rules, everything is fine."

Among the jungle rules were that each person's space was private, even though walled off by mere plywood or cardboard, and that everyone who could work or panhandle contributed to buy food. As many as 50 homeless people have lived in the warehouse at a time.

But City Councilman Les Kimber has pressed for action on the unsanitary conditions, lack of water and occasional violence in the structure. The city condemned the building because of the unsanitary conditions.

Social workers were sent in early this summer in an attempt to place the homeless in better living conditions, said Mike McGarvin, founder of the Poverello House, a center for homeless people.

Afterward, however, many remained. Now everyone must go.

Five men stood last week on a barren concrete slab inside the warehouse and discussed their uncertain future.

"If they would have said 'clean it up or leave,' it would have been cleaned up," said one man in his 40s who wore a green baseball hat. He refused to identify himself.

Pat Long, a salvage company worker, politely asked who owned belongings in an outbuilding that workers were ready to tear down. He was told to rouse a man still sleeping on a soiled mattress, oblivious to the noise of heavy machinery.

"Everybody has to be out of here tomorrow," said Long, adding that everyone had been warned previously that the warehouse would be torn down.

A man who identified himself only as Richard suggested the city clean up an empty lot and allow homeless people to set up a tent city.

Court upholds Eastern's layoff of more than 3,000 employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court Friday upheld Eastern Airlines' layoff of more than 3,000 employees when the financially troubled carrier eliminated service to 14 cities to stem continuing losses.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said there was insufficient evidence to support contentions of three unions that the layoffs were part of an illegal campaign to weaken the power of organized labor at Eastern.

The unions "have directed our attention to nothing that would undermine Eastern's claim that legitimate business concerns provide an ample reason for these reductions," the court said in an opinion by Judge Stephen Williams.

The panel noted that "there is no claim that Eastern has tailored its reductions so as to impose a differential impact on union members. Indeed, it appears that the furoughs affect union members and non-members in roughly their proportions of Eastern's workforce."

The court also ruled that the layoffs of baggage handlers and flight attendants were not an illegal change in working conditions under the Railway Labor Act, which governs labor negotiations in the airline and railroad industries.

The court found that U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker had "erred in granting the injunction as the furlough was not an unlawful change in the status quo."

Last month, Parker had enjoined the layoffs. But the appeals court had quickly dissolved the preliminary injunction, saying Eastern could proceed to lay off affected employees if it posted a $4.7 million bond while the case was appealed.

In a statement from its Miami headquarters, the airline hailed the decision as "a very significant, positive development for Eastern Airlines,"

"Eastern believes the decision is extremely important because the court has reaffirmed management's right to operate its business in the best interests of the company, its employees, shareholders and the public," the company said.

Union spokesmen expressed disappointment with the verdict and said no decision had been made on how to proceed.

Eastern, which has lost $1 billion since 1980, announced the layoffs in July as part of a plan to eliminate unprofitable routes to 14 cities and close its Kansas City hub.

Citing losses of $120 million in the first six months of this year, the company said it was restructuring its operation to concentrate service along more profitable East Coast routes. Profitable service to Latin American points would also be maintained.

The International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, the Transport Workers Union of America and the Air Line Pilots Association, contended that the furloughs were merely part of an anti-union campaign being waged by Eastern's parent, Texas Air Corp.

The pilots union joined the legal challenge even though pilots were not being laid off as a result of the schedule changes. The airline said attrition would account for a reduction in pilot jobs.

The unions argued that the layoffs were part of a plan by Texas Air, which acquired the carrier in 1986, to transfer work to its non-union subsidiary, Continental Airlines, and sell off profitable Eastern assets.

Judge Stephen Williams, in the opinion joined by Judges David Sentelle and James L. Buckley, found that "Eastern and Texas Air officials have certainly expressed at least exasperation with Eastern's unions."

But the panel said "the present record provides little support for any possible finding that forbidden purposes drove Eastern's decisionmaking."

Eastern said it will save between $99 million and $199 million in annual operating losses if it cut the unprofitable service.

Bush endorsed by law enforcement organizations

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Republican George Bush tweaked rival Michael Dukakis again Friday by traveling to the governor's home state to claim the endorsements of two Massachusetts law enforcement organizations.

During a day in which he also courted voters in New Jersey and Connecticut with a tough-on-crime pitch, Bush made a foray into Massachusetts to accept the backing of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, Local 264, and the Springfield Police Supervisors Association.

The president of the first group, Robert Johnson, told a small gathering outside Springfield police headquarters that "Michael Dukakis is soft on crime and George Bush is tough on crime."

Bush called the state's prison furlough program under Dukakis "a national disgrace" and said he appreciated the endorsement because "you know the truth not just about me but about my opponent as well."

"I am running as myself, and my opponent is running from himself," he said.

The Bush campaign did not announce the Springfield stop until about three hours ahead of time to avoid a counter-attack by Dukakis, press secretary Sheila Tate acknowledged.

When Bush was recently endorsed by the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association, Dukakis quickly put together his own big law enforcement show of support the same day.

Also Friday, Bush campaigned in New Jersey and went into heavily Democratic Paterson County to pick up the endorsement of five locals of the Police Benevolent Association.

Bush campaign officials said their analysis agrees with local polls that show the race even in New Jersey, which has 16 electoral votes, and close in Connecticut with eight electoral votes.

The campaign is making a concerted push for the middle-class Democrats who crossed party lines to vote for President Reagan. That appeal was part of Friday's law-and-order and anti-drug message.

In New Jersey, Bush and Gov. Thomas Kean also met in the morning with a group of black ministers who helped Kean in his last gubernatorial race.

Bush spoke to a rally in Paterson, where he said he would appoint tough judges and support the death penalty for drug kingpins and murderers of police officers.

The public address system for Bush's outdoor speech was turned up as a band of about 30 demonstrators, many of them young people, chanted loudly from across the street, "Where was George?"

The motorcade buses were moved into the street blocking the protesters' view of the rally. Police officers also stood in the streets in front of them.

Passaic County Sheriff Edwin Englehardt, in his introductory remarks, said, "There's half a dozen kids across the street. They represent the ACLU, Mr. Vice President, but don't worry about that. The vast majority of people are law-abiding and they're for you."

Bush frequently criticizes the American Civil Liberties Union and Dukakis' membership in it.

The vice president ridiculed Dukakis' environmental campaign trip to New Jersey on Thursday and took a familiar swipe at the water pollution in Boston Harbor under Dukakis' governorship.

"My opponent had the nerve yesterday to come in here and talk about oceans you can't swim in. You tried to drink the water in Boston Harbor recently? Don't do it," Bush said.

Then, poking fun at his own misstatement of the date of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Bush quipped, "I may have a little trouble remembering Pearl Harbor, but I don't have any trouble remembering Boston Harbor."

Bush also spoke at Ridgefield Memorial High School in Ridgefield, N.J., where he told students to shun drugs and encourage their parents not to use drugs. He warned against "enabling behavior" in which students keep quiet while their friends abuse drugs.

More Chinese students seeking fortunes in U.S. businesses

By JOHN POMFRET

NEW YORK (AP) — In the tumultuous days of China's cultural revolution, Grace King was exiled to the provinces to work on a farm. Today, her income is in the "six figures" and she owns an apartment on Manhattan's fashionable East Side.

Not surprisingly, she has no plans to return to her homeland.

"Going back would close off all our possibilities," Ms. King said. "It would be too much of a sacrifice."

Still, Ms. King remains a citizen of China, one of a growing number of Chinese who have chosen to seek their fortunes in American businesses and at American universities.

Sons and daughters of high-ranking Communist Party members, and even party members themselves, the Chinese came as students, part of Deng Xiaoping's program of modernization.

Some are taking jobs to round out their American education, gaining practical experience that will better enable them to contribute to China's development once they return home. Others have become enamored of the United States and have decided to settle here.

The largest group of all, however, don't know where they will end up, torn as they are between appreciation of American freedom and ties to their homeland.

Ms. King, 32, arrived in America nine years ago from Beijing. After graduating from Columbia University with a master's degree in business administration in 1984, she took a job with Merrill Lynch as an investment banker.

Ms. King, the daughter of two high-ranking Communist Party members, saw her family ripped apart by the ultra-leftist Cultural Revolution of 1966-1976. Her well-educated parents were purged from the party, lost their jobs and were kicked from their apartment.

AS PART OF Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung's program that forced intellectuals to do physical labor, Ms. King herself was sent to the countryside to farm. During those years, she spent much of her spare time in political meetings, hearing harangues against the capitalism and imperialism of China's then-enemy No. 1, the United States.

But then came a rapprochement between the United States and China, and educational opportunities in America. Ms. King jumped at her chance.

"I'm really happy that I came," she said in a recent interview. "It gave me a chance to see a different world."

Like many of her countrymen who've decided to stay, Ms. King says she's here for her career.

"In China, advancement still doesn't depend so much on talent and results," she said. "There are other things, like your attitude, and your political ideology. I can't tolerate that."

Leo Orleans, a China scholar at the Library of Congress who is writing a book on Chinese students in the United States, estimates that at least 22,000 of the 62,000 who have come here as students since 1979 have decided to stay.

That fact, he believes, prompted Beijing to consider slashing drastically the number of Chinese students allowed in the United States. Official Chinese documents seen in New York in March indicated that China has debated cutting the number from around 18,000 in 1987 to 600. But those plans, it appears, have not been put into place.

Jerome Cohen, an expert on the Chinese legal system and modernization drive, sees the mainland Chinese generation in America as crucial to the country's modernization — regardless of whether they return.

"THESE PEOPLE will help their country no matter where they are," he said. "It's difficult for a Westerner to understand the depths of their patriotism."

In addition, he said, "it's vital that the Chinese have people who know the practice as well as the theory" — and that is not only true in business.

Hu Quing, a 27-year-old postdoctoral fellow in physics at the University of California, Berkeley, says the kind of experience he's getting would be unattainable in China.

"Experimental physics requires a lot of equipment and supplies, and China just doesn't have the resources," said Hu. "Certainly if I go back I will disappear from the world of academia."

Ms. King and Hu say that even if they did return, China, a poor country with 1 billion people, wouldn't be able to use their skills.

Liu Ting's father, former Chinese Premier Liu Shaoqi, was the main target of the Cultural Revolution and died imprisoned and alone in a hospital in western China in 1969.

Ms. Liu, 36, came to this country eight years ago and in 1984 became the first woman since Communist China was founded in 1949 to graduate from Harvard Business School.

"The Chinese leaders say they want us to give our lives to help the country grow," said Ms. Liu, 36, who works for Rockefeller Associates. "But haven't we given enough? I can see compromising to help one's country, but never sacrifice."

Ms. Liu says she plans on settling here. "But I may change," she said. "If China continues to open to the West, I may go back."

Orleans predicts that in the future, more Chinese will try to stay.

Diaries reveal differing stories of Arab uprising

By MARY SEDOR

JERUSALEM (AP) — The diaries of two Israeli soldiers offer sharply conflicting accounts of how the Israeli army deals with the nine-month-old Palestinian uprising on the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

But at the same time, the diaries published in the Jerusalem Post mirror the broad differences in Israeli society itself on how to quell the rebellion.

One soldier, a reservist, wrote that troops were taught to beat Arabs with "dry blows" that cause pain but draw no blood.

The other said his reserve duty in the Gaza Strip's Jabaliya refugee camp convinced him that despite occasional aberrations, soldiers were "restrained and noble men."

"The Israeli army remains one of the most decent in the world," the second soldier, American-born free-lance writer Louis Rapoport, wrote of his 30 days of duty in the crowded camp of 70,000 refugees in June.

But the other, British-born educator Jonathan Kestenbaum, described a "tremendous callousness" among many of the soldiers he served with in the West Bank village of Qabatiyeh in August.

"Among the soldiers, there is a depressing routine of almost wild abandon. Everybody here makes up their own rules," Kestenbaum wrote in his diary.

Kestenbaum, 29, described an encounter with an Israeli guard at a detention center in Jenin, north of Jerusalem.

"How many dogs have you brought?" Kestenbaum quoted the guard as asking him when he arrived with a group of teen-age Palestinian detainees.

He added: "Once the man opposite you is a dog, anything goes."

Rapoport conceded troops were sometimes responsible for "accidents or misjudgments," including a case where an Israeli soldier made a firebomb and intended to hurl it at Arab demonstrators. His officers confiscated it.

But, he wrote, many soldiers were frustrated because they felt the Palestinians had a propaganda edge by sending boys as young as 9 years old to the front lines of stone-throwing riots to take on armed troops.

"The scores of men in the reserve company I served with...are portrayed in the world media as part of a Goliath machine versus little David with his puny stones," Rapoport wrote.

Addressing the same issue, Kestenbaum wrote of a 15-year-old Palestinian killed by a member of his unit: "Why are we using live bullets on teen-agers throwing stones?"

Kestenbaum told of chasing a 9-year-old boy who broke a 30-day curfew to try to retrieve bread from a gutter and of rounding up a group of elderly Palestinians who slipped into a field at night to pick a bucket of tomatoes rotting in the fields.

"Our jeep springs into action, chasing this family as if the very future of our country depended on it. We corner them," Kestenbaum wrote. "At which point the old woman, 90 years old, falls to her knees, kisses my hand and begs me not to (detain) her: 'We really needed tomatoes,' she says."

"These are vulgar, unnecessary situations which humiliate them and degrade us," Kestenbaum added.

Both Kestenbaum and Rapoport described the shooting deaths of Palestinians during their tours but had markedly different reactions to the killings. Since the uprising began, 266 Palestinians and six Israelis have died.

"I doubt whether any other army in the world...would act with more restraint," Rapoport said, adding that he considered the Arab fatalities in the uprising to be "remarkably low given the scale of the revolt."

Kestenbaum offered this observation about a soldier in his unit who killed a Palestinian teen-ager: "The guy who fired the shots was the same guy who spent three days at our training base talking of beating up Arabs. (The death) didn't really affect him one way or the other."

Reagan says U.S. 'accepts responsibility' for Contra guerrillas in Honduras

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has assured Honduras that the United States "accepts responsibility" for thousands of Nicaraguan guerrillas living in Honduran camps, and American officials are considering admitting some of them to the United States as refugees, administration officials said on Friday.

Honduras, already providing refuge to hundreds of thousands of Salvadorans and other Central Americans, says it cannot absorb thousands of Contra fighters and members of their families who have fled Nicaragua.

As the Sandinistas haggle with the Contras over conditions for resuming peace negotiations, with no prospect of a resumption in military aid from the United States, it seems highly unlikely that the Contras will return to the battlefield.

Although American officials decline to say outright that the war is over, American policy toward Nicaragua is "in a state of suspended animation" until after the presidential election in November, a State Department official said.

The Contras and the Sandinistas have been observing a cease-fire since late March. The Contras do not have ammunition to resume fighting and, after eight years of civil war, do not feel welcome in Nicaragua.

State Department and immigration officials said many Contras were already entering the United States illegally, by crossing the Rio Grande into Texas.

American officials said there was no firm plan to evacuate Contras to the United States immediately, but they confirmed that they had begun discussions of how to deal with the potential refugee problem.

The officials said they were drafting contingency plans to resettle the Contras because the rebels could not be expected to wait indefinitely for the Sandinistas to make political concessions.

They said Reagan would be more inclined to give refuge to the Contras if Michael S. Dukakis won the presidential election, because the Democratic nominee has vowed to oppose further American aid to the Contras.

"We have assured Honduras, at the highest official level, that the United States recognizes and accepts responsibility for the Contras, and Honduras continually reminds us that we have this responsibility," an administration official said Friday. Reagan has conveyed the assurance to President Jose Azcona Hoyo of Honduras, the official said.

If Contras were admitted to the United States, they would come as individuals, not as military units, a State Department official said.

Senate race called 'barroom brawl'

The challenger's campaign was caught advertising Dawkins as wounded in Vietnam, which he was not. Early campaign literature said Dawkins served two tours in the Asian conflict.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $15 million race between New Jersey Sen. Frank Lautenberg and Republican Peter Dawkins has reached such a level of nastiness that the challenger describes the contest as a "barroom brawl."

In the past few weeks, Dawkins has tried to brand Lautenberg as an extreme liberal in the tradition of actress Jane Fonda and former Sen. George McGovern.

Lautenberg has fired back with television advertisements accusing Dawkins, a Michigan native, of being a carpetbagger.

"This is going to be a tough, rock 'em-sock 'em 15 rounds. No hold barred," Dawkins says. "This is a barroom brawl."

The two men in the race come from widely differing backgrounds and styles.

Lautenberg, 64, made his fortune in the computer business and won his first term in the Senate in 1982, coming from behind in the race against former Rep. Millicent Fenwick, a fixture in New Jersey circles.

Dawkins, 50, is a retired Army brigadier general, Rhodes Scholar, with Hollywood good looks and a parade-ground presence.

The two sides say they'll spend between $7 million and $8 million each, mainly buying expensive New York and Philadelphia television time.

While pre-Labor Day campaigning

Lautenberg Dawkins

focused on issues, both candidates have detoured in the final stretch of the campaign.

Lautenberg has aired TV spots that accuse Dawkins of using New Jersey as a "political pit stop," and of exaggerating his already-impressive resume. "C'mon Pete, be real," is a Lautenberg campaign slogan.

Lautenberg, who co-founded and ran the worldwide Automatic Data Processing Corp., has stood in the political shadow of fellow Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., who is touted every four years as presidential stock.

And because New Jersey, with no statewide newspaper or television channel, is blanketed by the giant media markets of New York and Philadelphia, Lautenberg has been frustrated in drawing news media attention to himself. New York Mayor Edward Koch is a more familar face to many New Jersey viewers than their junior senator.

Lautenberg insists he has done a good job for New Jersey, but acknowledges not enough constituents connect his name with his record.

But, Lautenberg says, "When they hear that I wrote the law to put people who dump plastics in the ocean in jail, they love it."

Dawkins, despite arriving in the state just last year, has gained the loyalty of most Republicans. However, he's been bruised by some unflattering press and an insensitive gaffe in April.

After he settled in the posh suburb of Rumson, N.J., Dawkins confessed to reporters he'd rather be in Washington. "I'd blow my brains out if I had to live in a small town," he said.

Once stiff, almost arrogant, Dawkins has begun to loosen up. He is greeted as a star and delivers a practiced campaign speech that blends pride in New Jersey with Lautenberg-bashing.

Top New Jersey Republicans courted Dawkins away from Wall Street, where he prospered after leaving the Army in 1983.

Born in Michigan, and a childhood victim of polio, Dawkins was an academic and athletic star at West Point, winning the 1959 Heisman Trophy. He studied at Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar, and earned a Ph.D. at Princeton. In a 24-year Army career, Dawkins was a Vietnam hero and, at 43, an unusually young brigadier general.

Yet, Lautenberg and his aides have repeatedly accused Dawkins of gilding the lily.

The challenger's campaign was caught advertising Dawkins as wounded in Vietnam, which he was not. Early campaign literature said Dawkins served two tours in the Asian conflict. He served one full tour, and returned for a few months in a non-combat role.

Dawkins corrected the exaggerations himself.

Like Dawkins, Lautenberg has an impressive background.

Raised in poverty, he served in the Army in World War II and went to college on the G.I. bill. He co-founded the ADP Corp. and, in 30 years, amassed a fortune estimated near $40 million.

Yellowstone quietly rising from ashes

By KURT J. REPANSHEK

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — In the three months Yellowstone National Park has burned, firefighters have struggled heroically, politicians have pointed fingers and the park has quietly gone about healing itself.

Just eight weeks after flames roared past the Grant Village complex on Lake Yellowstone, wildflowers already have sprouted from the blackened soil.

By the time a blue-ribbon panel of experts convenes in mid-October to review the devastation and recommend a rehabilitation plan, the seeds for recovery will have been sown — in some cases, by the very flames that have destroyed nearly half the park's 2.2 million acres.

"The meadows, I would anticipate by next July you would not even be able to tell that there was a fire there," said John Varley, the park's chief researcher. "They respond that fast.

"The areas of the forest that had a ground fire, but not a crown fire, it will be difficult to tell that they were burned," he said. "The areas that were totally consumed by fire will come back and essentially be 100 percent plant cover in three to five years. That 100 percent plant cover will be perennial grasses, wildflowers, the return of the shrubs, and willows and so forth."

Also returning to the landscape will be lodgepole pines, which already are reseeding. The fires melted a protective resin covering the pine cones, allowing seeds to fall to the earth.

"Fires have changed the face of Yellowstone this summer, but much has not changed," said Ed Lewis, executive director of the Greater Yellowstone Coalition. The group serves as a public watchdog over management of Yellowstone and neighboring national forests.

"ELK, BISON, BEARS and other wildlife species still roam the park and the surrounding millions of acres of wildlands," he said. "Yellowstone's world-famous geysers still gush, whistle and roar, and Yellowstone's spectacular rivers and waterfalls still flow."

Gone from Yellowstone will be many of the insect-killed trees that littered the forest floor and fueled the fires.

While experts debate how to clean up the scorched landscape now littered with snags and ash, the insect world will be converting the timber into detritus.

"They (the trees) are being attacked by insects — right now, right this very moment — that love freshly killed trees," Varley said, adding that they include termites, ants, beetles and other species.

■ Related story, Page 12A

"I think the park will have a lot of people out of curiosity," said Dan Dowdy, who runs a campground and motel in Gardiner, Mont., on the northern edge of Yellowstone.

Those visitors, as they make their way around the Grand Loop that links Old Faithful, Mammoth Hot Springs, and several campsites and stopovers, will be able to pull over and watch the park mend itself, said Varley.

"We have in progress the development of an interpretive plan that will tell the visitor next year the story of the 'Summer of '88.' I think it will be a fascinating story," he said. "The visitor will be able to go into and look at these areas one year post-burning."

"BUT THEN WE have areas along the roadside that are 10 years post-burning, 35 years post-burning, 80 years, 100 years, and so they'll be able to see this forest succession that is caused by fires," Varley said.

The tourists also can expect to find elk, moose, bears and bison in many of the areas where they were before, he said.

"The information that comes to us from the firefighters and all the other people that are out in the field right now suggests that the animals are surprisingly nonchalant about the fires," said Varley. "We have numerous observations of elk bedded down in meadows right next to where these great conflagrations are going on.

"And we also have a lot of evidence that they move into these blackened areas soon after the fire passes," he added.

There's really no reason to avoid Yellowstone in the years to come, Lewis believes.

"The reasons that people visit the park are still there and will still be there next year," he said. "The message is is that Yellowstone has changed but has not disappeared or died."

"They are not, let me make this distinction, the same kinds of insects that attack live trees, so we are not serving as some kind of pestilence for the remaining live trees," he said. "That will in turn bring in a host of bird species that feed on those kinds of things.

"The bears spend a lot of time with ants and termites in these freshly dead and decaying trees, so there is a very interesting component coming in there in the insect world that will feed a lot of animals, birds and so forth."

The fires have spawned political controversy over the National Park Service's "let it burn" policy toward naturally ignited fires. Wyoming Sens. Malcolm Wallop and Alan Simpson have called for Park Service director William Penn Mott's resignation over the handling of the blazes.

But many observers say nothing in Yellowstone really was destroyed. They say the alterations are simply the park's latest growing pains.

NO SPECIES HAVE been driven from the park or tossed into extinction by the fires, Varley points out.

He said the only real tragedy of the fires that charred more than 1.5 million acres in Yellowstone and its surrounding national forests in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana was the destruction of some structures and the economic hardships endured by some.

"Ecologically, strictly ecologically speaking, there is really no downside to this story," Varley said. "Where the downside comes in is when you talk about human values, values to life and property, and the very legitimate and sincere concerns that the people who are our neighbors have, and so forth.

"This area has been putting up with fires like this for the last 10,000 to 12,000 years, and it has adapted to be able to deal with it," he said.

Many businessmen in the cities and towns surrounding Yellowstone, while suffering through a dismal tourist season this year, actually expect the fires to spur a boom of sorts next year.

Neighbors take scorching of park to heart

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — When Steve Falacy saw open flames near the Virginia Cascade in fire-ravaged Yellowstone National Park recently, he stopped his truck, ran into the blackened woods with a shovel and attacked the hot spots.

"I'm from Montana and I won't let it burn anymore," said Falacy, who grew up in Missoula and lives in Albuquerque, N.M.

He shouldn't have done it, because he had no firefighting gear or protective clothing and because snags are dangerous, but his wife, Becky, said she couldn't stop him.

"He's really upset," she said.

The Falacys were in Yellowstone to check out the damage from the worst forest fires in centuries. Nearly half the park's 2.2 million acres have been charred by wildfires this summer.

"It was about what I expected, but Steve just couldn't take it when he saw the flames," Becky Falacy said. "He saw flames and went right down there. You couldn't stop him."

Falacy's typified the reactions of people from the Yellowstone neighborhood — the states of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming.

"I didn't realize how much damage there is until we saw it for ourselves," said Bonnie Townsend, of Bozeman, Mont. "It was bad enough reading about it. This is so awful I can't describe it."

Living near the nation's oldest national park generates a proprietary interest in its welfare, and there is much anger over the events of the summer.

However, tourists from distant parts of the United States and overseas are less emotional about the damage and say they expected to see far worse.

"When it all grows back it will be twice as pretty," said Jack Quiggle, of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Quiggle said television coverage of the fires had led him to believe that "all I'd see was burned trees. They made it sound like the whole park was scorched to the ground."

Forest fires burn in a scattered pattern called a mosaic by foresters. Acres of blackened trees are interspersed with untouched stands. Other sections are burned at ground level, but foliage is untouched.

Many of the park's most popular attractions have escaped the fires. No damage is visible at the falls near Canyon, Artist Point and the north shore of Yellowstone Lake. Old Faithful, however, is partially surrounded by scorched trees.

A tour group from Australia marveled at the parts of the park that remain — at least so far — undamaged.

"We thought it might be worse," said Val Ellerington of Cokedale, New South Wales. "But it's a beautiful place.

Yellowstone endures despite worst summer of drought, flame

By TAD BARTIMUS

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — The sun comes up, a faraway fireball heralding another day of waning summer in Yellowstone National Park.

After three nerve-wracking months and a blessed few inches of early snow, the walls of flame are gone. The 60 mph winds that danced embers from treetop to treetop have died away. The small tourist towns that hug the boundaries of the world's first national park are no longer threatened with annihilation.

On the horizon is only a hint of smoke and haze.

But Yellowstone is a casualty of what historians describe as its worst summer of drought and flames in 300 years. Famous around the world as a pristine symbol of wilderness, this vast park is now a mosaic of green and black, living forests and dead trees.

Nearly half of Yellowstone's 2.2 million acres have been touched by fires with names like Hellroaring and Storm, North Fork and Clover Mist. Millions of black matchsticks are all that remain of once-thriving lodgepoles and blue spruce, aspens and firs.

Because the flames were fickle, there are also huge patches of sweet-smelling pines growing next to miles of charred forest. There are fragrant meadows hard by singed marsh. Delicate ferns, turning gold with the equinox, still grow next to creekbeds seared of every blade of grass.

Yellowstone National Park is not a total wasteland of scorched earth and moonscape, but it is not the place it used to be.

Already, charges of mismanagement and bad policy are being leveled against park rangers. Congressional hearings and internal reviews promise to drag on from autumn into winter and beyond. There are fears about the future of Yellowstone's fisheries and wildlife when ash and silt flow into streams and lakes next spring.

More than 8,000 firefighters from the National Park Service, Forest Service, the Army and even the Marine Corps descended on Yellowstone to do battle, taking on one of nature's most awesome forces with picks and shovels, hoses and hand tools.

Daily, they still crisscross the park in camouflage-painted armored vehicles and chartreuse pumper trucks bearing license plates from California to Florida. They overflow campgrounds with their tents and catering crews and line up at pay phones to call faraway loved ones who demand to know when they're coming home.

But beyond the hustle of command posts and bivouacs, the birds are singing. Old Faithful still is. Trumpeter swans, swimming in pairs, still grace the Madison River as it meanders through its own plateau. The Fountain Paint Pots still gurgle and steam. And the mountains cast the same shadows hunters saw as far back as 5,000 years ago.

"The park is just a howling wilderness of 3,000 square miles, full of all imaginable freaks of a fiery nature," wrote Rudyard Kipling of Yellowstone in 1889.

And so it is today.

Those who come to Yellowstone after the fires will still see the same breathtaking vista from Artist Point that inspired painters Thomas Moran and Albert Bierstadt in the 1800s.

The 700-foot sheer drop and two roaring waterfalls of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone are the same as when the park's first superintendent, Nathaniel P. Langford, was prompted to write: "I realized my own littleness, my helplessness, my dread exposure to destruction, my inability to cope with or even comprehend the mighty architecture of nature."

Along Virginia Cascade drive are many unspoiled spots where falling pine needles have created a soft carpet of ground cover. But farther down the slope lies graphic evidence of the ominous spiral of fire that swept through that place with particular fury.

Right above the falls there are still little puffs of smoke, and an occasional lick of distant flames still waiting for mop-up crews. In one turnout, five tidy picnic tables stand ready for the next batch of campers.

In the pastoral Hayden Valley, herds of bison graze in the untouched meadows, a ragged chevron of geese fly overhead and the Yellowstone River, its flow diminished by drought, braids its way through the vast open bowl. Bull elk are everywhere.

Just as President Theodore Roosevelt wrote during his visit in 1903, "we saw an occasional pine squirrel, snowshoe rabbit or marten; and in the open meadows around the hot waters there were Canada geese and ducks of several species, and now and then a coyote."

Boy doesn't let lack of hands hold him back

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Shane Wood is 10 years old. He's in the fifth grade, does well in his studies — and what's more, he's learning to bowl.

Ordinarily, neither is a big deal — that is unless you have no hands.

Shane was born without hands. He has learned to live without them, with the help of prostheses provided for him by physicians at Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas. With that help, Shane has always mastered what his peers have done.

Dana Perry, Shane's mother, says her son is independent and has never complained or considered himself "different."

He has been going to Scottish Rite since he was two months old, being fitted with various types of prostheses as he grew. "He's not dependent on them, but uses them when it becomes necessary," Mrs. Perry said.

But when Shane wanted to learn to bowl, he found none of the prostheses he had were suitable for bowling. With painstaking care, he wrote to his physician, Dr. Tony Herring at Scottish Rite, asking if he could get a prostethic attachment that would enable him to bowl.

The hand-written letter itself was a triumph for Herring, who has worked with Shane and delighted in his progress ever since the boy began treatment at Scottish Rite.

Two months after Shane wrote the doctor, his bowling prosthesis was ready for fitting in Dallas.

Shane has already tried it out with some success.

The bowling ball he uses has one hole to accommodate the prosthesis. "When he went to the bowling alley without his prosthesis he put his arm in the hole and knocked over several pins," Mrs. Perry said.

"Physicians and staff at Scottish Rite are always looking for ways to make things easier for Shane," Mrs. Perry said. "When he started the first grade, the physical therapy department made him a special pair of scissors that he could use. Now he doesn't need them because he can use a scissors like anyone else," she said.

Before he started kindergarten, Shane spent a week at Scottish Rite so staff members could train him to hold pencils, cut, color, and anything he needed to do in a regular classroom.

"Whenever I have a problem with just anything, I can tell them at Scottish Rite and they will find a way to solve it," Mrs. Perry said. There is never a charge to parents or guardians at any Shrine or Scottish Rite hospital.

"Dr. Herring fights for the kids. He told me once that anytime I needed him he would be there 'tomorrow.'"

Jamail doesn't want suit made into movie

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Jamail, the flamboyant Houston attorney who represented Pennzoil Co. in its successful suit against Texaco Inc. that resulted in a multibillion-dollar judgment, says he doesn't want a movie made about the case.

Jamail said his good friend Kirk Douglas and many others have been trying to talk him into doing a movie.

"I couldn't even tell you their names," Jamail told the Houston Chronicle. "I've been offered a billion to write a book and do movies or all those things. I'm not ready for that. I don't want to do that. And nobody would go see it, anyway."

Actor Hoyt Axton is one of many who wants to make the landmark case story into a movie and he wants to play Jamail.

"Hoyt Axton?" asked Jamail. "I never heard of him. He's not playing me with my authority. And I'm not authorizing it. I would stop it if I could."

He doesn't know if he can, since the trial transcripts are public record.

"I hope to put it together, but I would do an authorized version," Axton said. "If I do it, it will be with Joe Jamail. I'd not want Joe coming after me in court, the way he went after Texaco. I'm just an Okie who picks a guitar."

In the landmark case, a Houston jury in November 1985 found White Plains, N.Y.-based Texaco had interfered in a planned merger between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. The jury ordered Texaco to pay $10.3 billion to Pennzoil. After many failed court appeals and Texaco filing for bankruptcy protection, Texaco and Houston-based Pennzoil agreed on a $3 billion cash settlement.

It's bizarre, goofy, but they call it the Olympics

By JOHN NELSON

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Ray Mercer and Kennedy McKinney launched America's gold-medal pursuit of the fable of Montreal, and U.S. boxers proved again that anything can happen at the goofy Games.

Carl Lewis already proved it once. Linford Christie came close. And a host of others are beginning to wonder, what can happen next in Seoul.

Mercer stopped Baik Hyun-han of South Korea in the first round, and McKinney and Michael Carbajal split a pair of fights with the battling Bulgarians named Hristov.

That gave the United States two golds, one silver and two bronze with three more fighters going for golds on Sunday.

Mercer, A U.S. Army infantryman from Jacksonville, Fla., set up his Korean opponent with a right hand and dropped him in a heap with a left to the head, winning the 201-pound gold. The referee stopped the fight with 44 seconds left in the first round.

McKinney, of Killeen, Texas, knocked down Alexandar Hristov with only 12 seconds gone in the fight and scored a unanimous decision in the 119-pound division.

Despite taking the role of aggressor and landing the harder punches, Carbajal lost a 5-0 decision to the quick-jabbing Ivailo Hristov, who is not related to Alexandar, in the 106-pound title match. Carbajal, of Phoenix, earned the silver.

"I'm the Olympic silver medalist, and that's not bad at all," Carbajal said. "I thought I won the gold medal, and I'll always feel that way."

The boxing team already had two bronzes from the semifinals and, with six boxers in the finals — twice as many as any other country — the United States had a chance to equal or surpass the feats of those Montreal fighters, who won five gold, one silver and one bronze.

"Almost everybody said this team was not going to do well," Coach Ken Adams said before the gold-medal round. "I think that had more effect on the guys than anything else, just to prove them wrong. ... I think now all they can say are good things about these guys."

In the 15th day of the Games, the medal standings looked like this: Soviet Union 114 total, 47 gold; East Germany 94 total, 36 gold, and the United States 78 total, 31 gold. And they were coming in some strange ways.

— Lewis lost his last chance for a gold medal here when his 400-meter relay team was disqualified, and he wasn't even there. He won the 100 gold when Ben Johnson was disqualified for using steroids.

— Christie, the British sprinter who got the silver in the 100, said he only took ginseng, an exotic root. But Olympic officials say they found traces of an over-the-counter cold remedy in his drug test after he finished fourth in the 200 — four days after the 100. At first, the International Olympic Committee considered stripping him, but British track officials say he'll get to keep the medal.

— Stefka Kostadinova of Bulgaria, world record-holder in the women's high jump, was beaten by an oft-injured, 30-year-old outsider from America, Louise Ritter. Ritter, who had never jumped better than 6 feet, 7 inches and was eighth at the Olympics four years ago, won at 6-8, 2¼ inches below Kostadinova's world record.

Greg Barton of Homer, Mich., gave America its first kayak gold ever Saturday, winning the 1,000-meter singles by one hundredth of a second over Grant Davies of Australia.

The United States won its second wrestling gold medal Friday night when Kenny Monday of Tulsa, Okla., used a three-point body block to beat Soviet world champion Adlan Varaev 42 seconds into overtime in the 163-pound division.

The regular session ended 0-0. Monday gave up just two points in eight Olympic matches.

Mojo still Mojo; Lee edges Odessa, 10-7

Bulldogs no match for Permian

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

Mojo Magic brought to a temporary halt a different magic felt recently by the Midland High Bulldogs as the Panthers blasted the Bulldogs 42-0 in the second weekend of District 4-5A play.

Odessa Permian, now 4-1 and 2-0 in District 4-5A, put on an impressive display of offense against the 'Dawgs, who dropped their first game of the season. Midland High is now 4-1 overall and 1-1 in district.

Starting Panther quarterback Mike Winchell threw for three of Permian's touchdowns, including two to split end Lloyd Hill; Winchell's third strike came to Robert Brown, who also scored on a short run in a 21-point Permian second quarter.

"We didn't expect it to be that easy," Permian coach Gary Gaines said afterward. "It was a great team effort. Our offense, defense and kicking game performed well."

Gaines' comment that the Permian defense performed well was a bit of an undertstament. 'Exceptional' would be more true to the point, as Mojo held the Bulldogs to a scant 105 yards, including just 38 yards on the ground.

Midland High's top rusher Dwane Roberts, who, going into the game was fifth in the state in scoring, was held to a mere 27 yards rushing on 13 carries — an average of two yards per carry.

"We knew we had to shut down Roberts," Gaines said. "But we knew he wasn't the only one we had to stop. We had to take care of our responsibilities."

"I think we're better than we showed tonight," a disillusioned Midland High coach Doug McCutchen said. "Permian played exceptionally well but we knew they would going into the game. I'm disappointed and I know the kids are disappointed.

Midland High had been averaging 364 yards offense per game before the Mojo melee. Their 105 yard output lowers the 'Dawgs to just 312 yards per game. MHS was held to just three first downs, including only one in the first half.

"Offense, I think, was the key to the game," McCutchen said. "Our defense did great early."

Sure enough, Permian was unsuccessful on its first two drives in the first quarter before Chris Comer punched it in from one yard out to put the Panthers ahead 7-0 with just over 90 seconds left in the first quarter.

On the Panthers' next possession, Winchell found Lloyd Hill for a 38-yard scoring strike and Permian had taken a quick 14-0 lead, just three minutes after its first score.

Winchell completed only four of 11 passes, but the clincher was that three went for touchdowns. He passed for 125 yards, 101 which ended up going for touchdowns. Winchell's only other completion was to — you guessed it — Hill, for 22 yards.

The Panthers went on to score two more touchdowns before the first half ended on a 47-yard pass from Winchell to Hill and a one-yard run from Brown.

Rebs notch first 4-5A grid victory

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

ODESSA — In what seems like an annual magic ritual here at Ratliff Stadium, Midland Lee again survived the stubborn test provided by none other than the Odessa High Bronchos, pulling out a 10-7 District 4-5A football victory in a game where certain Rebel defeat was once a distinct possibility.

But the Rebels placed the boiling toe of junior Arthur Donnelly in the magic pot and dealt the hard luck Bronchos another loss with a 36-yard field goal with 4:22 left in the game.

It was a game both teams needed in district play since both lost their openers last week, and it appeared that OHS was heading for the major upset of the week in the third quarter when the Bronchos were perched at the Lee one-inch line and already owning a 7-0 lead.

Monahans defeats Big Spring

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

MONAHANS — Despite a furious fourth-quarter rally, the Big Spring Steers fell short in a 28-18 loss to Monahans that marked the District 4-4A opener for both teams.

Monahans had a 28-0 lead going into the last two minutes of the game, but the Steers recovered two onside kicks and quarterback Rance Thompson threw for two touchdown passes to make the final score respectable.

Big Spring coach David Thompson was impressed with his team's late rally.

"The main things about these kids is that they thought they could win with three minutes left in the ballgame."

But the Steers cut their own throats in the first half with their inability to get their offense in synch. The Steers were called for several motion penalities on one drive alone, accumulated 90 yards in penalties in the first half, and finished the game with 105 yards whistled off against them.

While Big Spring linemen outweighed their Monahans counterparts by about 50 pounds a man, the Loboes compensated with superior quickness that enabled them to build a 21-0 halftime lead.

Tailback Ronnie Ramsey scored two touchdowns for the Loboes, while quarterback Carlton Jordan added another short run. Ramsey's three-yard run with 27 seconds left in the half gave the Loboes their 21-0 halftime lead.

Ramsey, the successor to graduated all-stater Charles Thompson, finished with 54 yards on 14 carries, while Jordan rushed for 51 yards and passed for 94 more on six-for-11 accuracy.

Backup tailback Wayne Carter leaped over the pile for a two-yard run with 3:39 left to wrap up Lobo scoring, and it looked especially tough for Big Spring after two abortive plays. But on third-and-six at his own 41-yard line, Thompson began a string of eight straight completions over two TD drives, wrapping up the first drive on a 16-yard pass to split end Kenny Everett with exactly two minutes left.

Arturo Lopez then recovered the ensuing onside kickoff for Big Spring jus inside Monahans territory, and Thompson zinged passes of 23 yards to Dennis Hartsfield and 22 yards to Joe Downey to put the ball on the Lobo three, from where Hartsfield ran the ball in for the score with 1:36 left.

Big Spring's Jose Tovar then recovered another onside kick, for Big Spring, and Thompson immediately hit sophomore wingback Neal Mayfield on a fly pattern for a 52-yard TD strike with 1:28 left.

The Loboes finally got ahold of an onside kick; but Big Spring got another chance on the second play of the series when fullback Jason Martin fumbled and free safety Fred Reid capped his first varsity start with the fumble recovery. Reid finished with numerous tackles in only his second week on the Steer roster.

Despite all the late heroics, Big Spring hopes ended with Jordan intercepted a Thompson pass with 44 seconds left. Monahans then ran out the clock without incident to run its record to 3-1.

Big Spring, 0-3, hosts powerful Sweetwater next week. The Mustangs are ranked tops in the state by The Associated Press and are the odds-on favorite to win the District 4-4A title.

Rangers rally to nip Baders

From Staff Reports

McCAMEY— With Quarterback Randy Donnell scoring two touchdowns and passing for another, Greenwood's Rangers came from behind to win their third straight victory, 26-20, over the McCamey Badgers here Friday night.

McCamey led 20-12 going into the fourth period. With 6:12 to play, Donnell found Sean Holcomb on a 29-yard touchdown pass to cut the lead to 20-18.

With just 58 seconds left, Greenwood, now 3-2, scored again on a five-yard run by Jerry Gay and Jimmy Cox ran the two-pointer.

McCamey struck first on a 61-yard run by Daniel Flores with 10:56 left in the opening period, but Donnell cracked over from the two with 1:02 left in the first stanza and Shane Patrick's kick was the difference.

Donnell escaped on a 44-yard run with 8:01 left in the second period to give the Rangers a 12-7 halftime lead.

McCamey came back with two third period touchdowns. Steven Terry returned a kickoff 63 yards and Fervando Venegas took it the final five yards with less than a minute gone of the second half.

Then, with 2:55 left in the third, Terry crashed in from the three and Patrick again converted.

The loss leaves McCamey with a 1-4 record.

Stanton 41, Forsan 12

From Staff Reports

STANTON — Stanton took a 21-0 halftime lead and coasted to a big 41-12 non-conference victory over Forsan here Friday night in a battle of Buffaloes.

Four different Stanton players scored but Steve Scurlark scored twice on runs of 13 and 41 yards. Robert Jones, Kevin Barnes and Randy Navarez also had TD runs for Stanton.

Stanton is now 3-2 on the year with the victory while Forsan fell to 1-4.

Forsan scored the last 12 points in the game after Stanton scored 20 points in the third period before turning off the juice.

Stanton didn't complete a pass in the game, but didn't need to. Forsan completed only three for 20 yards and Stanton held a commanding 270-191 lead in the rushing department.

From Staff Reports

RANKIN— Rankin's Red Devils scored three first period touchdowns and took a 34-0 lead at half on the way to a 40-0 whomping of Fort Davis here Friday night.

Doug Braden and James Watson sparked the Devisl, who raised their record to 5-0. Braden ran 11 and five yards for touchdowns and passed 54, nine and 82 yards to Watson for scores.

However, it was a 29-yard run by Brian McCravey with 9:51 left in the first period that started the scoring onslaught.

Watson kicked extra points after three scores.

Rankin amassed a staggering 376 yards rushing and another 145 passing.

Mc Cravey was the leading rusher with 105 yards in eight carries.

Blaine McAnally returns a punt for Midland Lee against Odessa as Rebels evened District 4-5A record at 1-1 with 10-7 win Friday night.

LEE

But fate says this game can always be close, but Lee has to win. So, fate dealt OHS a Bryan Dominquez fumble and Lee's Sid Harper was there to pounce on the ball.

Instead of trailing 14-0, Lee travelled 95 yards in seven plays to knot the score at 7-7 with Farris Strambler ripping off the final 49 yards in a beautiful open field marathon.

Then in the fourth period, Lee's Mike Wyatt intercepted a Jesse Paz pass at the Lee 10-yard line and the Rebels moved to the OHS 19 on 14 plays to bring on Donnelly's magic toe.

"I was a little worried when I went in there," admitted Donnelly, "but I felt confident. This is my job on this team and I had to do it. I like this kind of situation, but not too often."

His toe guided the ball perfectly through the uprights and Lee had another victory in the history books.

"This was just another typical Odessa High-Midland Lee football game," said a bewildered Lee head football coach Earl Miller. "I don't know what it is, but we have to play our britches off every year to beat them. But we're just not a very good football team right now and we have to play our tails off just to be close to anyone we play."

The two teams fought to a 0-0 snoozer in the first half, with neither team being able to threaten the goal, even though Lee ended the half at the OHS 16-yard line on a 19-yard pass from Vince Henderson to tight end Quincy White.

Fumbles, however, have plagued Lee this year, and Strambler's fumble at the Lee 41 set up Odessa High's third period score.

On a third and 27 play after sacks by Harper and Steve Ruckman, Paz busted loose for a 58-yard shocker and the 7-0 lead.

Lee came right back with another fumble by Henderson at the Lee 17 after the kickoff and OHS got to the inch-line before two penalties moved the Bronchos back to the 11. OHS then tried to go wide and the ball flitted away from Dominquez into the arms of Harper.

"The penalties at the goal line really hurt," said a disappointed OHS coach Jerry Taylor, who was oh-so-near to his first District 4-5A victory. "There was also a key face mask call (in Lee's winning field goal march) that was a big play in the game. We had stopped them on third down when that happened and they got a first down out of it.

"This is really a frustrating loss. Our kids played their heart out. They were smaller and they scrapped and scrapped and came up a little short."

Strambler had 117 yards rushing for his third career 100-yard plus outing to lead the Rebel attack while David Whiteside had 87 yards rushing. Paz' 56 yards led OHS, but the Bronchos' leading rusher, Patrick Brown, was limited to just 11 yards by the stiff Lee defense.

Odessa High hasn't won a 4-5A outing since a 10-7 victory against Abilene High in 1985 and they missed a big opportunity here. You have to feel this team will win somewhere down the road this year. They know how to battle, but they can't seem to put the victory away and had a chance to do just that Friday.

Lee, meanwhile, will take any kind of victory at this stage of growth and will host San Angelo next week. San Angelo, with a victory over Abilene Cooper, is off to a 1-0 start in league play.

And the feeling is still here that Lee's youthful team is on the verge of putting it all together. But it isn't there yet and there are no losses now allowed in the learning process if Lee wants to run its playoff streak to six consecutive seasons.

At least, the toe of Donnelly is true blue after all that kicking in practice. Right now, that's the margin Lee needs.

Permian completed its scoring onslaught in the second half when Winchell hit Brown from 18 yards in the third quarter and tailback Don Billingsley carried for a six yard strike with just eight seconds gone in the fourth quarter.

Permian's offense, averaging a state-leading 456 yards per game, did nothing to hurt that figure as they combined pass and rush for 469 yards.

McCutchen, who had remarked on the lack of size but abundance of speed of the Permian line before the game, said "It doesn't matter how good you are ... if you're not getting the blocking up front you're not going to score. Permian is much more quicker than (teams) we've been playing.

"We're still the same football team we were last week."

Said Gaines: "The game was a lot quicker than the score indicated. It wasn't really that one-sided."

Duncanville rushes past Abilene, 42-6

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — Duncanville's Andre Lester rushed for 181 yards and scored four touchdowns to help hand Abilene High its fourth loss of the season, 42-6, here Friday night.

Duncanville scored 42 points before Abilene High's Kerry Sims broke for a 75-yard TD run in the fourth period. Sims had 112 yards rushing on the night.

AHS is now 1-4 on the year and has scored only 26 points in five games this year.

'Cats slip by Cougars

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Bobcats overcame a 7-0 deficit and scored 21 unanswered second-half points Friday night to defeat the Abilene Cooper Cougars, 21-7, in District 4-5A action.

The win is the first against no district losses for the Bobcats; Cooper drops to 1-1.

San Angelo quarterback Michael Emmons threw for 215 yards and one touchdown — and ran for another — to lead the 'Cats' offensive attack. Senior tailback David Brainard rushed for San Angelo's final score.

Cooper quarterback Scotty Pugh completed a 33 yard pass to David Cedillo for the Cougars' only score in the second quarter. Pugh completed only 9 of 32 passes for 140 yards while his counterpart, Emmons, completed five of eight for 162 yards.

San Angelo will travel to Midland Lee next week while the Cougars are at home against Odessa High.

Wall rallies to nip Iraan

From Staff Reports

IRAAN — The Wall Hawks scored 14 second period points and got another touchdown in the third period to take a 21-14 come-from-behind victory over the Iraan Braves here Friday night in a non-conference contest.

Both teams are in Class 2A and it was a close matchup. Iraan came back with eight points late in the game after taking a 6-0 lead in the first period.

Charles Wilde scored two touchdowns for Wall.

Iraan is now 0-5 on the season while Wall is 1-4 after the battle to see which team could gain its first victory.

TED BATTLES

No place in Olympics for trash sports

Battles

First it was, Let the 24th Olympiad Begin. Now it's, will the Steroid Games Never End?

Sure, we watched every day and with each day the thought occurs that this is something that has outlived its time.

Something's amiss when you watch a competition and instead of awe and admiration at the feats accomplished, the wonder is how the athletes are avoiding detection.

As one doctor pointed out, drug tests aren't needed to spot steroid users, not when, at a certain age, they bulk up in a matter of months.

Steroids are so prevalent that now they are talking about making their use legit, the old "How can it be wrong, everybody's doing it?" reasoning.

STILL, our world watched the spectacle until boredom set in or exasperation when ads came faster and more often than a featherweight's punches.

While TV is faced with an impossible array of events, it still seems like it's "Hey, wait until we show you what you missed during the last break," whether for an ad or a personality fluff job.

A restructuring of the Olympics would include eliminating some of the trash sports.

If given a chance, swimming, volleyball and gymnastics have provided some of the most interest-sustaining viewing.

Basketball, weightlifting and boxing you can eliminate.

Without the Cubans to provide some competition, the only way a U.S. boxer can lose is by not showing up. The bouts have been "walkovers" for a team that this year really doesn't look that good.

As for basketball, the U.S. game with Russia salvaged something, but, be honest, after the NCAAs and NBA playoffs, how can Americans get excited over Kentucky vs. Rice or Moravian vs. Philadelphia Textile?

ALTHOUGH tennis has been introduced and world-class stars are competing for the pure Gold of it, and passing up bank-account swelling dates elsewhere, it's still not Wimbledon or the U.S. Open.

The Olympic Games did offer proof that the International rules are better than the made-for-TV NCAA rules in that the games moves along at a better pace. It doesn't require an hour and 15 minutes to play the chock-full-o-ads final two minutes as is the case under NCAA rules.

Still, for all our complaints we watched the games and our personal Golds for commercials go to the Hyundai Sam Spade and the cowboy out on the range, cooking his steak while his best friend, tormented by the aroma, somehow manages to restrain his animal urges.

If you missed 'em, you didn't see the real Olympics.

This week's best bets....

Pittsburgh minus 4 1/2 over Boston College- Panthers bounce back from disastrous Mountaineering expedition.

LSU over Florida- Tigers lost last week, but Gators remain an unknown quantity.

Air Force minus 38 1/2 over New Mexico- A bargain at twice the points...Lobos are that bad.

USC minus 7 over Arizona- If Trojans have No. 1 aspirations, this should be routine.

Tulsa plus 17 over Oklahoma State- I guess this qualifies as an upset after what Cowboys did to A&M last week.

Texas A&M minus 7 1/2 over Texas Tech- Aggies have got to win sometime.

Houston minus four over Baulor- How good are Cougars? This game may give a hint.

Arkansas minus 6 1/2 over TCU- It's no fun journeying into the Ozark hills.

Washington plus 13 over UCLA- What's this, another upset?

Notre Dame minus 14 over Stanford- Beware, Irish may be glancing ahead to Miami.

Florida State minus 27 over Tulane-Seminoles still trying to make pollsters forget that Miami debacle.

Cincinnati plus 16 over Rutgers- Scarlet Knights get up for the Michigan States and Penn States, but are fair game for the Vanderbilts of the world.

The pros...

Giants plus 3 1/2 over Redskins- Without Doug Williams, Skins are a risk.

Eagles minus 4 over Oilers- Randall Cunningham is no second stringer.

Cowboys plus 6 over Saints- Monday night special.

Steelers plus 3 over the Browns- Pagel vs. Brister.

Raiders minus 1 1/2 over Bengals- The Raiders are back...I think.

Broncos minus 4 over Chargers- Elway makes amends.

Rams minus 7 over Cards- Rams go 15-0, unless the heat gets them.

Surprise starter for Chicago Cubs....

President returns to radio booth

From Wire Reports

CHICAGO — President Reagan made a surprise visit to Wrigley Field and returned to the broadcast booth to do Cubs' play-by-play Friday as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat Chicago 10-9 on Andy Van Slyke's run-scoring single in the 10th inning.

Reagan was in Chicago to give a speech and attend a fund-raiser, but made a late decision to go to Wrigley Field. The game was held up for 36 minutes by his visit, and Reagan stayed at the park for about an hour after throwing out the first ball.

Reagan, who re-created Cubs' games in 1934 for a radio station in Iowa, joined Harry Caray in the broadcast booth and called an inning of action.

Reagan became the first American president to see a game at Wrigley Field.

The Cubs scored four times in the ninth to tie it at 9 as Mitch Webster hit a solo homer, Palmeiro and Vance Law hit RBI doubles and Andre Dawson had a run-scoring grounder.

In the 10th, Rafael Belliard drew a one-out walk and Jose Lind followed with a single for his fourth hit. Van Slyke, who scored three runs to reach the 100 mark, singled for his 16th game-winning RBI.

Reds 8, Braves 7

CINCINNATI — Lenny Harris' single scored Barry Larkin with two out in the bottom of the ninth Friday, giving the Reds victory and extending his hitting streak to 19 games.

Larkin singled with two outs in the ninth off Joe Boever, 0-2, and stole second — his 40th steal of the season. Harris then hit a ground single up the middle that deflected off Blauser's glove, giving the victory to reliever John Franco 6-6.

Paul O'Neill hit a pair of two-run homers for the Reds and Jody Davis hit a three-run homer Braves' debut.

Mets 4, Cardinals 2

NEW YORK — David Cone, 20-3, became the fourth pitcher in Mets history to win 20 games in a season, beating St. Louis on a nine-hitter. Cone is at 2.22, behind Joe Magrane of the Cardinals, who is at 2.18.

Cone won his eighth consecutive start since Aug. 17, tying the club record set by Seaver in 1969.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Alex Madrid, 1-1, pitched four-hit ball for seven innings to out-duel Pascual Perez, 12-8, and win his first major league game. Steve Bedrosian pitched the final two innings for his 27th save, striking out four and walking one.

1-3 Broncos discuss plight

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos, languishing with a 1-3 season record after seeing a 24-0 halftime lead turn into a 30-27 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders Monday, held a team meeting to discuss the situation.

"We just talked about what we felt we can do to stop the slide and get you guys (reporters) off our backs," running back Tony Dorsett said after the private meeting during the team's lunch break Thursday.

Mark Jackson, one of eight players to speak, told teammates to avoid blaming each other — something he's noticed since the loss to the Raiders.

"I've been here three years and I've never seen that," Jackson said. "I pick up the paper and somebody's blaming the depth of the receivers' routes. Another guy is blaming no pass rush by the line.

"Another guy is blaming the defensive backs for getting beat. Somebody's saying John Elway's not throwing good, that he's in a slump."

Andrews grindsPecos in 4A opener, 27-12

From Staff Reports

PECOS — The Andrews Mustangs used a ball-control offense to control the Pecos Eagles for a come-from-behind 27-12 win in the district opener for both teams here Friday.

The Mustangs, 3-1, used 370 yards rushing to push the Eagles around. Andrews attempted only three passes and was led on the ground by right halfback Michael Hernandez with 31 carries for 161 yards and his seventh and eighth touchdowns of the season.

Pecos took a 12-6 lead on TD runs by fullback Tommy Valdez. The Eagles' second TD was set up by Oscar Bueno's fumbled punt that was recovered on the one-yard line.

Hernandez tied the game with his nine-yard run midway through the second quarter, and Joe Don Finley gave the 'Stangs the lead with a one-yard run in the third period, his second TD of the game.

Finley's plunge capped an 80-yard drive that included a 28-yard run by Hernandez and a 19-yard gallop by Stephen Hines.

Hernandez added an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Andrews hosts Snyder next week.

Indians spoil Sox clinching

From Wire Reports

CLEVELAND — Roger Clemens, 18-12, lost for the first time in 10 career decisions against Cleveland and the Indians beat Boston 4-2 Friday night, preventing the Red Sox from clinching the American League East championship.

The Red Sox lost for the fourth time in five games and their magic number stayed at one over second-place Milwaukee, which played later in Oakland.

Boston has two games remaining in the regular season, both against Cleveland. The Red Sox are 8-3 versus the Indians this year.

Rich Yett, 9-6, gave up seven hits in 8 1-3 innings and won for the first time since Aug. 23. Doug Jones got two outs for his 36th save.

Clemens pitched his 14th complete game and yielded Carmen Castillo's solo home run in the sixth.

Tigers 6, Yankees 2

DETROIT — Chet Lemon hit two home runs as the Tigers eliminated the Yankees from the American League East race. Boston had already clinched a tie for the division championship and the Yankees' only hope was to win their final four games and have the Red Sox lose their final three.

With one out in the sixth inning, Lemon put Detroit ahead 3-2 with a solo home run against Rick Rhoden, 12-12.

Jack Morris, 15-13, allowed five hits in seven innings and won his third straight start. He extended his string of 15-win seasons to seven.

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 0

TORONTO — Dave Stieb, 16-8, lost his no-hit bid with two outs in the ninth for the second consecutive start, finishing with another one-hitter Friday.

Stieb faced the minimum 26 batters until pinch hitter Jim Traber lined a clean single to right field. Traber, who has batting .216, singled about three feet over the glove of first baseman Fred McGriff.

In his last outing Saturday, Stieb's hopes for a no-hitter were ruined when Cleveland's Julio Franco got a single on an apparent routine grounder that took a bad hop.

Stieb, 16-8, wound up with his third straight shutout. He has three career one-hitters, all this season. He held Milwaukee to one hit May 31.

Royals 4, White Sox 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Danny Tartabull hit a two-run homer and Charlie Leibrandt, 13-12, pitched a seven-hitter, winning Leibrandt, 13-12, won for the eighth time in nine decisions.

Reagan Co. 21, Lub. Christian 0

From Staff Reports

LUBBOCK — Rudolfo Guerrero passed for 218 yards and Luis Garcia ran for two touchdowns as the Reagan County Owls shutout Lubbock Christian 21-0 in a non-district contest Friday night.

Garcia scored on runs of 10 and three yards and Sergio Balderas added the Owls' final score on a five yard run to complete the scoring. Roland Saldibar was a perfect 3-for-3 in point-after attempts.

With the win, Reagan County moves its record to 4-0.

Reagan County will play another non-district contest at Eldorado next week before returning to district play Oct. 14 against Winters.

Lamesa 28, Lub. Cooper 7

From Staff Reports

Paul Lopez threw three touchdown passes to Johnny Baltazar to lead the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes to a 28-7 romp over Lubbock Cooper.

Lopez completed his perfect evening with a one-yard quarterback sneak for a touchdown in the fourth quarter.

The Tors rushed for 200 yards and threw for an additional 139; Cooper was held to just seven first downs.

The Tors return to district play next Friday, hosting Post.

Bears face pass-happy Cougars

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Baylor Bears must stop the nation's most pass-happy team to stay in the Southwest Conference football race.

Jack Pardee's Houston Cougars, averaging 460 yards passing, and Grant Teaff, still seeking his 100th victory, meet at noon today in the Raycom TV game.

SWC

Baylor, upset 36-6 by Texas Tech and Houston, winner over Louisiana Tech and Missouri by a total of 91 points, is a four-point favorite.

Houston is the third most productive team in the nation in yardage, averaging 520 yards.

Defending SWC champion Texas A&M hosts Texas Tech at Kyle Field.

The Aggies are eight-pint favorites in the 2 p.m. clash.

Unbeaten Arkansas was six over Texas Christian at p.m. in Fayetteville and Texas was 18 over Rice, 6 p.m. in Houston.

TECH was the only SWC team to beat the Aggies last year.

Quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver was AP SWC Offensive Player of the Week with four touchdown passes against Baylor.

A&M's home opener against Alabama was postponed from Sept. 17 to Dec. 1 because the Crimson Tide was worried about Hurricane Gilbert.

"It will be nice to play a game in front of our student body," said A&M coach Jackie Sherrill. "We'll have the 12th Man on the field with our kickoff teams and in the stands.

"This is our second season. We're trying to forget all the bad things that have happened."

Chris Osgood, transfer from Mississippi, is expected to start at quarterback for A&M.

ARKANSAS is looking for its first SWC football title since a 1979 co-championship with Houston, against TCU, a 31-17 victor over er Boston College last week.

The Hogs have won 27 of the last 29 games in the series.

Arkansas is averaging almost 212 yards passing per game.

The Frogs' Tony Darthard has had back-to-back games of 131 yards rushing.

Baylor has won the last three games between the schools.

Houston's defense has forced 12 turnovers in two games.

"Houston's offense can score on one play from any position on the field and that's scarey when you consider they usually have about 83 snaps a game," said Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "They are much improved from last year."

Baylor starting quarterback Brad Goebel was upgraded to a probable starter as his sprained ankle heals. Goebel missed last week's loss to Tech.

TEXAS has won 22 consecutive games over the Owls, whose last victory over the 'Horns in Rice Stadium was 7-0 in 1960. Rice last defeated Texas 20-17 in 1965 in Austin.

Nets' Washington banned by NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — Duane Washington of the New Jersey Nets was banned from the National Basketball Association Friday for at least two years after failing a drug test — the third Nets player in two years with a drug-related problem.

Washington, of Middle Tennessee State, tested positive for drug use following his arrest last Sunday by Newark police on cocaine possession charges, the league said.

"It is unfortunate that this incident has occurred," said Nets vice president and general manager Harry Weltman in a written statement Friday. "We have followed the league's directives and decisions and have no further comment."

Under the NBA-Player's Association drug program, Washington was subject to a mandatory drug test following the arrest; the positive test results were confirmed Thursday by the PDIA Laboratories in South Plainfield, N.J., the league said.

Washington is the fifth player banned from the NBA for drug use; the first was former Nets star Micheal Ray Richardson, who became eligible to reapply to the NBA earlier this year.

Players must sit out two years before becoming eligible for readmission to the league. The league and the players association must approve any application.

Nets forward Orlando Woolridge entered a rehabilitation program near the end of last season for cocaine treatment. He subsequently left the Nets and signed with the Los Angeles Lakers.

NBC makes profit, not friends in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — NBC will leave this proud Olympic city with a big profit. It will also depart with bitter feelings about the hostility it faced.

The network will make about $80 million on the Olympics, a source said Friday, despite lower-than-projected ratings that are forcing it to compensate advertisers with free commercials.

Michael Eskridge, NBC's executive vice president for the Olympics, would not confirm the figure, standing by his earlier statements that the network would make a "reasonable profit" on the Games.

"It's too early to say exactly what the final figure will be," Eskridge said. "We won't know that for at least a couple of weeks."

Before the Games started, NBC officials privately projected a profit of $100 million.

But a network source, who asked not to be identified, said the figure will be about $20 million lower because of the "make good" commercials NBC must give advertisers who were promised an average prime-time rating of 21.2.

NBC is averaging a 17.9 rating through the first 13 nights, enough to dominate the prime-time competition but about 2.9 million fewer households per night than expected.

The network was virtually guaranteed a profit before the Games started because it sold $550 million worth of commercials. That revenue more than covered the network's Olympic outlay of $440 million — $300 million for the U.S. broadcast rights, $100 million for production, and $40 million for equipment.

In contrast, ABC lost an estimated $75 million on the 1988 Winter Olympics. The network got caught in a bidding war and ended up paying an inflated $309 million for the TV rights. The Winter Games have less than a third of the events of the Summer Games and are watched by fewer people.

This is the first year that TV rights to the Winter Games cost more than those for the Summer Games. In 1984, for example, ABC paid twice as much — $225 million — for the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles as it did for the Winter Olympics in Sarajevo.

Oct. 1

1903 — The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Boston Red Sox 7-3 in the first World Series game ever played. Jimmy Sebring hit the first Series home run. Deacon Phillippe was the winning pitcher and Cy Young was the loser.

1921 — The New York Yankees clinched their first American League pennant with a doubleheader sweep of the St. Louis Browns. The Yankees clinched in the first game by beating the Philadelphia Athletics 5-3.

1932 — Babe Ruth, as legend has it, called his home run against Charlie Root in the fifth inning of Game 3 of the World Series, won by the Chicago Cubs 7-5 at Wrigley Field. Ruth and Lou Gherig each hit two homers for the New York Yankees.

1944 — On the final day of the season, the St. Louis Browns clinched their only American League pennant with a 5-2 victory over the New York Yankees combined with a 4-1 Washington Senators victory over the Detroit Tigers.

1946 — For the first time in major-league history, a playoff series to determine a league's championship was played. The St. Louis Cardinals beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first game 4-2 as Howie Pollet held the Dodgers to two hits, a homer and an RBI single by Howie Schultz.

1950 — The Philadelphia Phillies clinched the National League pennant on Dick Sisler's three-run homer against Don Newcombe in a 4-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers on the season's final day.

1961 — Roger Maris ended a season of personal torment by hitting his 61st home run of the season, against Tracy Stallard of the Boston Red Sox at Yankee Stadium in New York's 1-0 victory. The blow eclipsed Babe Ruth's 34-year-old single-season home run record.

1970 — The Philadelphia Phillies won their last game at Connie Mack Stadium 2-1 in 10 innings over the Montreal Expos.

1978 — The Cleveland Indians beat the New York Yankees 9-2 on the last day of the season to force a one-game playoff between the Yankees and the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox won their eighth straight game with a 5-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

1982 — In his only start of the season, Terry Leach of the New York Mets pitched a one-hit, 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in 10 innings. Leach gave up a triple to Luis Aguayo in the fifth inning, struck out seven and walked six.

Ex-OSU AD Griffin dies

ENID, Okla. (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled Saturday for Harvey Griffin, a former assistant athletic director at Oklahoma State University.

Griffin, 63, of Enid died Thursday night during surgery of an aortic aneurysm, a spokeswoman for Bass Memorial Hospital said.

Griffin had coached at the high school and college level after playing football at Oklahoma State.

He served as Oklahoma State's offensive coordinator and quarterback coach from 1970-73 and as assistant athletic director from 1970-78.

He also was an assistant coach at the University of Idaho and at Texas-El Paso. He coached at six Oklahoma high schools and compiled a 99-81-4 record in the high school ranks.

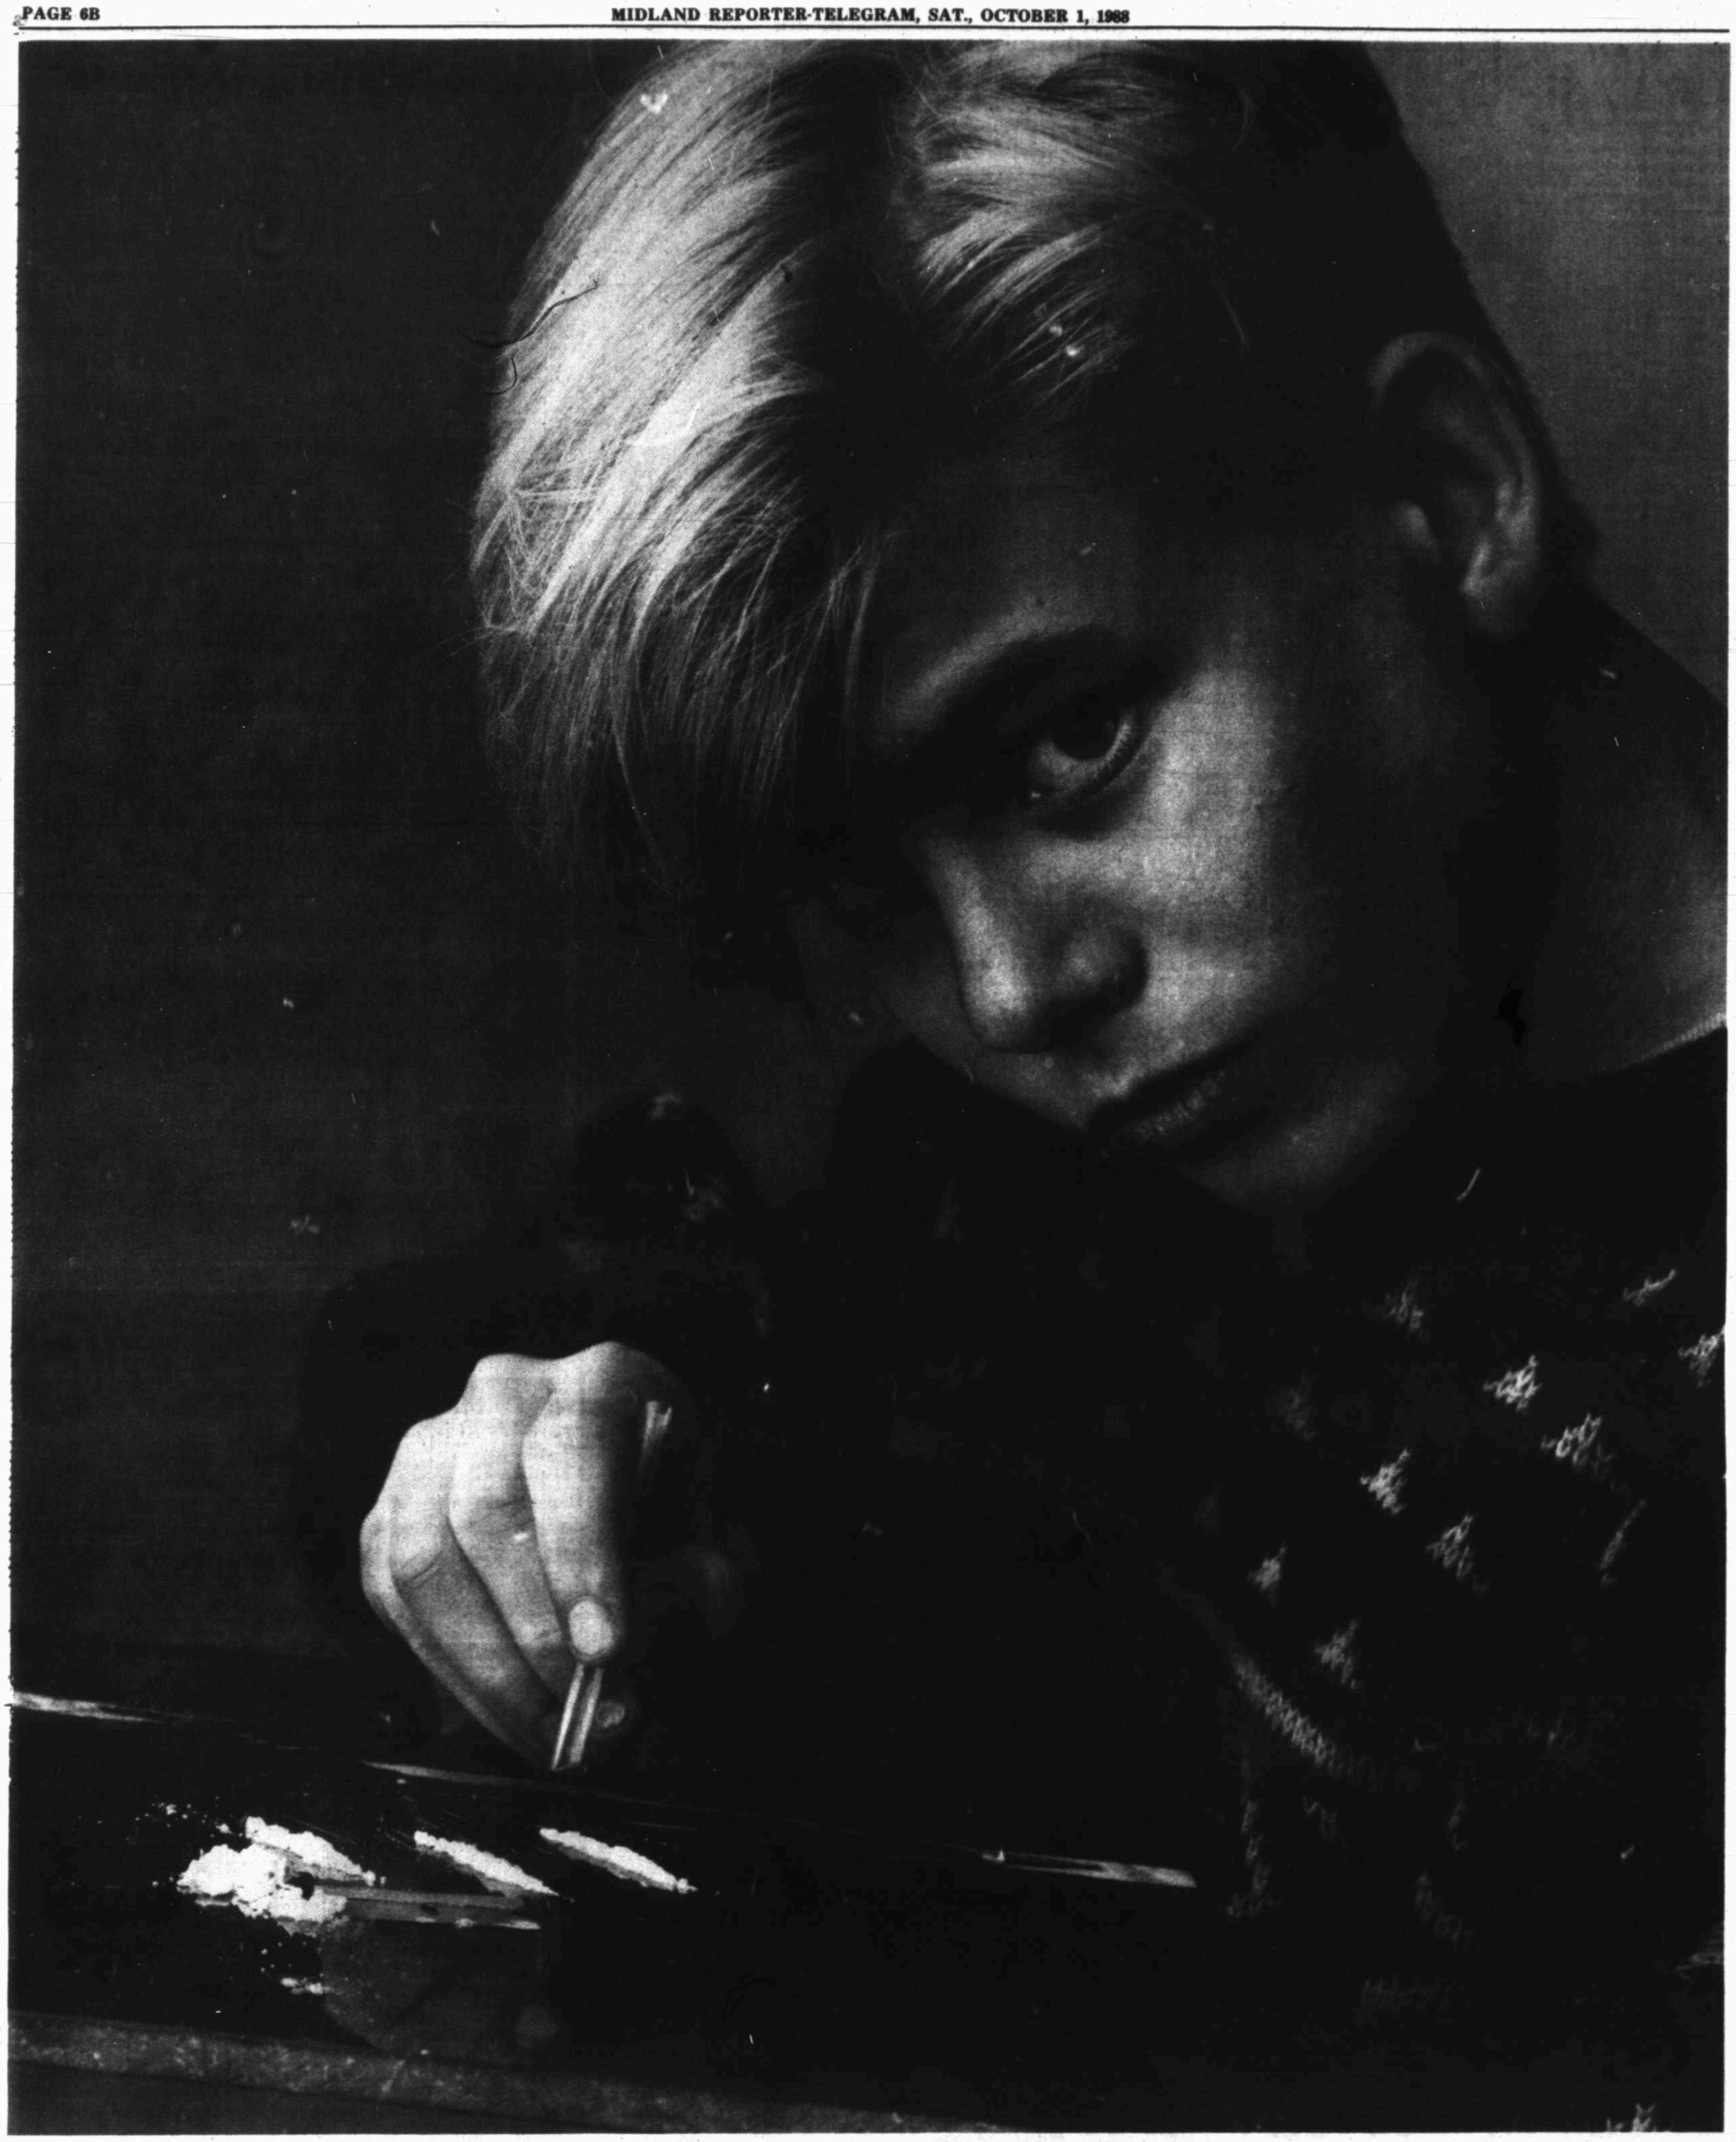
OCTO 1 88



IT USED TO BE, AT 13, LITTLE BOYS BECAME INTERESTED IN LITTLE GIRLS.

Boys and girls used to use straws to sip sodas at the drug store.

Now they cut the straws in half and use them to snort drugs deep into their nostrils.

Times have changed. Our children need our help.

We need to talk with our children. And talk. And talk. This way, we'll learn what they think about drugs. What they know about them. What they don't know.

Then, once we understand their perspective, we'll be in a better position to offer our own. Then we'll be able to talk about the dangers of various drugs. And about what our children can do to avoid them.

It takes courage to talk to them like this. And to do it effectively, it takes homework—like reading articles, attending meetings and talking to other parents. Otherwise, our children won't see us as informed sources. And they'll get their answers elsewhere.

As a parent, you can get answers to your own questions by contacting your local agency on drug abuse.

Board supports workers' comp rate increase

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance staff Friday recommended a 6.7 percent average increase in Texas workers' compensation rates, compared with a 36.7 percent industry recommendation.

The recommendation is based on premiums paid compared with claims incurred, said insurance board spokesman Lee Jones.

It uses information submitted to the board by insurance companies on each employer, instead of numbers collected by the National Council on Compensation Insurance, the industry group, Jones said.

Rick Gentry of the Insurance Information Institute said the industry's recommendation is "based on the latest available insurance company data for Texas and incorporates actuarial techniques accepted countrywide."

"However, the preliminary indications are that the (insurance board) staff recommendation relies on older data and a methodology which at best can be described as unique," Gentry said.

The staff recommendation also includes a negative factor for profit and contingencies, taking investment income into account, Jones said. The industry has a zero profit factor in its rate request, he said.

"There are real concerns on our part that the staff numbers, for a variety of reasons, fail to address the serious rate inadequacy in Texas."

Sluman 67 holds off pursuers

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Jeff Sluman shot a 3-under-par 67 Friday to hold off a charge by Leonard Thompson for a 2-shot lead after the second round of the $400,000 Southern Open golf tournament.

Sluman, who captured the PGA championship six weeks ago, shot an opening-round 63 and was at 130, 10-under-par over the par-70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Thompson, an 18-year tour veteran, matched the 63 Friday with a string of eight birdies — including four in a row — to close in on Sluman at 132 after a first-round 69.

Lance Ten Broeck, Mike Hulbert and Dan Forsman were another stroke back at 133. Ten Broeck had a 65 while Hulbert and Forsman each had 66s over the tight, hilly pine-studded course.

At 135 were Gary Koch, Ray Stewart, Steve Lowery and Bob Estes. Koch, who was second after the first round at 66, had a 69. Stewart had a 68, Lowery a 67 and Estes a 64.

Leading money-winner Joey Sindelar had a 71 for 140 and defending champion Ken Brown had a 65 after a 75 Thursday.

Thompson, who has two victories on the tour, the last in 1977, put the pressure on Sluman by posting his 66 as the diminutive 5-foot-7, 135-pounder was just starting his round.

Yancey shares 1st in Seniors

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Bert Yancey, a rookie among golf's senior citizens, broke 70 for the first time this year and tied for the first-round lead Friday in the $300,000 Seniors Challenge with a 68, including a back nine 32.

It was a couple of putts in the early going — a 6-footer for par on his second hole and an 8-footer for bogey on his sixth — that made the difference, Yancey said.

"There's such a very fine line, a very, very fine line, between 68 and 76," said Yancey, who hasn't finished higher than 25th in six previous senior events.

He shared the top spot with 6-foot-7 Dick Hendrickson and George Lanning; the seniors' more successful players had their difficulties on the hilly, 6,669-yard Horseshoe Bend course.

Hendrickson, who got into the tournament on a sponsor's exemption, birdied all the par-5s in his 4-under-par effort that, he said, "is like the round I'd like to play every day."

Lanning, 56, who spent 21 years in the Air Force before he took a club job, joined the seniors four years ago. He saved his share of the top spot with a 28-foot par putt on his final hole.

Doug Sanders, with a 69, was one stroke back of the three leaders.

McFadden kicks for NY Sunday

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Paul McFadden will replace injured placekicker Raul Allegre on Sunday when the New York Giants play the Washington Redskins.

Allegre suffered a groin injury in last Sunday's loss to the Los Angeles Rams and has had trouble kicking this week. Coach Bill Parcells said Thursday that Allegre would be placed on the team's two-man inactive list.

McFadden, who kicked for the Philadelphia Eagles, was signed by the Giants earlier this week.

"All I am concentrating is on practicing," said McFadden. "I'm approaching it day by day."

McFadden complained of a tender hamstring on Thursday, but Parcells did not view the condition as serious.

Rams look at ex-Raider QB

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Former Raiders quarterback Marc Wilson tried out this week with the Los Angeles Rams, who are shopping for another backup for Jim Everett.

"Marc Wilson is not the issue," Rams coach John Robinson said Thursday, downplaying the tryout. "It's just a collection of quarterbacks we're looking at."

Robinson said he is looking for some insurance in case Everett is injured. His only backup is Mark Herrmann.

Wilson was pragmatic about the situation.

"It impacts the roster. That's why it's a tough decision (for the Rams). A lot of times, teams won't make a move until something happens."

Wilson has also tried out with Buffalo and Miami since being released by Green Bay.

Reds sign Pete Rose to 2-year contract

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose, criticized by team owner Marge Schott as Cincinnati headed toward its fourth consecutive second-place finish, signed a two-year contract Friday to continue as manager of the Reds.

The Reds have a 344-299 record in the last four seasons under Rose, whose contract expired at the end of the year. The 344 victories are the most by any National League West team and the third-best total in the league behind New York and St. Louis.

'Skins pin hopes on young Rypien

By WILLIAM C. RHODEN
N.Y. Times News Service

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — For three seasons, the Washington Redskins quarterback situation has been a game of musical chairs.

It started in 1985, when Joe Theismann, the longtime quarterback, suffered a broken leg in a nationally televised game when he was tackled by Lawrence Taylor.

Jay Schroeder, at the time an unheralded backup, stepped in and led the team to a 23-21 come-from-behind victory.

Schroeder was king of the hill until he injured his shoulder on the ninth play of the opening game of the 1987 season.

Enter Doug Williams.

The veteran, who went from the Tampa Bay Bucaneers to the World Football League before landing in Washington, stepped in and led the Redskins to a 34-24 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

He ended the season by leading Washington to victory in the Super Bowl with a record-setting performance and was the game's most valuable player.

With Williams seemingly entrenched at quarterback, the Redskins traded Schroeder to the Raiders three weeks ago.

But on Sept. 21 Williams underwent an emergency appendectomy and will be out for several more games.

Suddenly, Mark Rypien, the Redskins third-string quarterback when the season began, has been thrust front and center.

"It was a shock at first," said Rypien, when asked his reaction about Williams.

"Then it was excitement knowing that this is what I always wanted.

"I feel for Doug, my thoughts and prayers are with him for a speedy recovery. But I knew right at that time that I had to buckle down and get prepared for the upcoming week."

Rypien made his pro debut against the Phoenix Cardinals last Sunday and finished with mixed results in a 30-21 defeat.

He completed more passes than he missed — 26 of 41 — and threw for 303 yards, three touchdowns and had only one interception.

But he was also tackled for a safety and his fumble led to a Cardinal touchdown.

"I've always been dreaming of something happening similar to that," he said, referring to being forced into the starting role. "Unfortunately, we came up short this week."

Rypien, who turns 26 years old on Sunday, will have the distinction of being the first quarterback to face the New York Giant defense with Lawrence Taylor back in the lineup.

Taylor, who was suspended for 30 days before the season began for violating the league's drug policy, has missed the Giants' first four games.

Taylor was not on hand in the season opener, in which the Giants defeated Washington, 27-20, despite being outplayed for much of the game.

"We're going to look forward to playing the game," Rypien said when asked about facing Taylor.

"They're having L.T. back is going to be a plus.

"We look at him as a player who makes big plays whether it's a pass or whether its a run. He's given teams a lot of problems with big losses.

"It's going to be kind of tough for us to do some things."

In the first game, at the Meadowlands, Washington ran for 117 yards against the Giants, with Timmy Smith gaining 100 yards.

In the intervening weeks, however, the Redskins' ground game has slowed.

Permian Fly Fishers to meet Oct. 11

From Staff Reports

The Permian Fly Fishers are planning a trout outing for members and their wives Oct. 21, 22, 23 and will meet 7 p.m. Oct. 11 in the Midland Room of the First City Bank (West Tower, 500 W. Texas) to discuss details of the meeting.

Dave Watkins (home 697 6847 and 697 4568 office) is the PFF membership chairman.

The PFF, which enjoyed a successful outing to Chama, N.M., area last summer, is planning to conduct some winter trips and how-to classes for the months when trout fishing areas are limited.

THE HIGH Sky Bass Club results for the August tournament at Oak Creek Lake found Dow Scott winning the men's division with 6.59 pounds. Richard Kleinhans was second at 6.28 and Bob Knox took third with 5.99.

Pam Busbee's 5.37 pound catch took first in the women's division followed by Alice Bass, 4.54, and Melba Erck, 2.83. Nichole Armstrong was the Youth winner with 1.29 and J.R. Wilkes was next.

The HSBC tournament schedule for the remainder of the year is Oct. 15-16 at Spence; Nov. 12-13 at Colorado City and Dec. 3 is a Roadrunner event...

At Lake Spence, Kelly Estes won the Sweetwater Optimist Club tournament and the $1,000 first prize that went with it, reeling in a string that went 12.29 pounds.....Keith and Kris Morgan, Midland, took a pair of three pound stripers during the tournament while Gene Adams of Big Spring weighed in with a four pound black and a four pound striper....

Out of Paint Creek Marina, Randall Beauchamp, Midland, took a 6 1/4 black; John and Nelda Arceneaux, Midland, five strippers to nine pounds, and Darrell Prcin, Midland, 20 white bass and several crappie....

Yellow catfishinh dominated activity at Lake J.B. Thomas with Roy Endress and Melvin Altom, Big Spring, coming home with 10, 14 snd 28 pounders. Crappie fishing at Thomas was called excellent....

FROM OAK Creek Lake near Sweetwater, Ike Pate reports the cool nights drop the temperature of the surface water and "it turns the bass on."

Ike just returned from a trout fishing expedition at Missouri's Lake Taneycomo, "We sure didn't go to make any kind of comparison between fishing, but I can tell you for sure we left for better fishing than we found, six to eight hours a day and only once did we catch a limit string.."

Pate says when people start coming in for several dozen minnows at a time, as has been happening lately, it means that the crappie are biting.

THE U.S. Postal Service has proposed a ban on sending disease-causing organisms through the years.

Most people weren't even aware of it, but for years the military, the federal centers for Disease Control and a host of private research labs have routinely shipped exotice viruses and other infectious agents such as anthrax and botulism toxin via the U.S. mail.

The Army's plan to build a new biological arefare lab in Utah triggered a public outcry.

Huskies test Bruins

LSU gives Florida first big test

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

College Football

Second-ranked UCLA begins its quest for the Pacific-10 Conference championship Saturday and a shot at a bowl victory for an unprecedented seventh consecutive year.

The Bruins visit No. 16 Washington, a place that has seen them go 2-11-1 since 1960 and 0-2-1 in their last three appearances.

"The true test of a football team is its ability to win on the road," UCLA coach Terry Donahue says. "If you're going to win a national or conference championship, you've got to win in Seattle."

But, he adds, "There's no place in our conference more difficult to play than at Seattle. You have to worry about the weather and noise from the fans."

Washington flanker Brian Slater says there are "a lot of advantages" to playing in Husky Stadium. "The crowd is in your favor, you're playing on AstroTurf instead of grass, you're not traveling and the weather is your weather."

UCLA SEEMS certain to go bowling again. Whether it will be the Rose Bowl remains to be seen.

The weekend's only other contest between members of the AP Top Twenty finds No. 14 LSU at No. 17 Florida in a Southeastern Conference game.

Meanwhile, No. 1-ranked Miami entertains Missouri, third-ranked Southern California visits Arizona at night, No. 4 Auburn plays host to North Carolina, fifth-ranked Notre Dame is at home to Stanford under the lights, No. 6 Florida State visits Tulane for a night game, seventh-ranked West Virginia is at Virginia Tech and No. 8 South Carolina has a home game with Division I-AA Appalachian State.

Ninth-ranked Nebraska entertains Nevada-Las Vegas and No. 10 Oklahoma plays host to Iowa State.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Clemson is idle, No. 12 Alabama is at Kentucky, Tulsa at No. 13 Oklahoma State under the lights, Mississippi at No. 15 Georgia, Fullerton State at No. 18 Wyoming, No. 19 Michigan at Wisconsin and Oregon at No. 20 San Diego State at night.

THE HUSKIES are still smarting from last year's 47-14 shellacking.

"Revenge is a motivating factor to some degree," Donahue concedes. "Our team wanted to prove a point against Nebraska (UCLA won 41-28 three weeks ago), and I'm sure Washington feels the same way about us."

UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman will be a marked man in Seattle but Donahue isn't overlooking Washington's Cary Conklin.

"We had him ranked as the best quarterback coming out of high school in 1985," Donahue says.

Conklin came off the bench to replace an injured Chris Chandler in last year's game but completed just five of 16 passes for 44 yards and was intercepted three times. Against San Jose State last week he was 14-of-25 for 241 yards and two touchdowns.

The Huskies, like UCLA, are 3-0.

SOMETHING will have to give in the LSU-Florida game, which pairs two of five teams unbeaten in SEC. Florida's Emmitt Smith set a school record of seven consecutive 100-yard rushing games last week (he gained a season-high 164 against Mississippi State) but no team has rushed for more than 100 yards against LSU in the last five games, although Smith riddled the Tigers for 184 last year in Baton Rouge.

"Last year, I was a freshman," says Smith, who needs 129 yards to hit 2,000 for his career (Herschel Walker of Georgia was the fastest to reach that milestone, making it in the third game of his sophomore season). "LSU didn't really know who I was and didn't know what type of running back I was."

Florida has allowed only 15 points in four games, three of them shutouts, against two SEC also-rans and two Division I-AA teams.

LSU coach Mike Archer, whose team has faced Texas A&M, Tennessee and Ohio State, with Auburn on tap next week, would "rather play their schedule. We're getting beat up right now."

LSU's main weapon is junior Tommy Hodson, who passed for a career-high 299 yards in last week's 36-33 loss to Ohio State, a game the Tigers led 33-20 with two minutes left. Hodson has thrown 134 times without an interception dating back to last season and holds the school career mark of 39 touchdown passes. In addition, LSU is 4-0-1 in its last five visits to Florida Field.

Missouri is familiar with top-rated teams, having dropped a 17-13 squeaker to Oklahoma late last season.

"It's great to have the opportunity to play the No. 1 team in the nation," Coach Woody Widenhofer says.

Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson says Missouri's flexbone will give Miami's defense a good test.

Miami has won its last 36 regular-season games, the second longest such streak in the nation since World War I.

SOUTHERN Cal's visit to Tucson is a homecoming of sorts for Coach Larry Smith, who left Arizona for USC following the 1986 season.

The Trojans are 13-1 against Arizona but the last five meetings have been decided by seven points.

FBI director disappointed in discrimination ruling

Associated Press

FBI Director William Sessions said Friday he was disappointed in a federal judge's ruling that the bureau discriminates against Hispanic agents, but others hailed the decision as the first step in correcting a history of bias inside and outside the bureau.

In a written statement, Sessions said the discrimination allegations concerned him "because I firmly believe that discrimination has no place in the FBI."

"I am disappointed that the court has found that Hispanic special agents have been adversely affected by policies of the FBI," said Sessions, who assumed his current post eight months after the lawsuit was filed in January 1987.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton in El Paso, Texas, ruled the FBI is slow to promote Hispanic agents and assigns them less-desirable jobs.

Some observers said the case will extend beyond the bureau's halls.

"The decision is of monumental importance to Hispanic parity at the federal workplace," said Ruben Bonilla Jr., a Corpus Christi, Texas, lawyer and general counsel for the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Traveling The Right Road

Back in the days when train travel reigned supreme in America's transportation industry, an elderly lady boarded a train in the late evening.

As she sat waiting an hour for the train to pull out, she asked the conductor if she was on the train to Chicago. In fact, she asked him the same question each time he passed down the aisle.

Finally, he said, "My dear lady, why are you so anxious? I've told you ten times you're on the right train."

"Well, sir," she answered, "There are dozens of trains all lined up out here. What train I'm on now makes little difference, but in the morning it will make all the difference in the world!"

The elderly lady was dealing with a basic question of life: "Where will I be in the morning (ten years from now) if I continue on the road or track I'm on now?"

Does the track you're on take you to God's House?

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Alamo Heights names Rasco as interim pastor

Rasco

Alamo Heights Baptist Church has issued a call to the Rev. John S. Rasco to serve as interim pastor. He will preach Sunday for both morning services.

Rasco, a native of Alabama, received his education from Howard College, now Samford university, and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, conferred an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree to him in 1957.

During his college and seminary years, Rasco served as pastor to several small churches. Following seminary graduation, he served First Baptist Church, Hodgenville, Ky.; Avondale Baptist Church, Jacksonville, Fla.; First Baptist Church, Texarkana; and First Baptist Church, Odessa. He served in Odessa for 24 years prior to retirement.

Rasco has been active in denominational activities and has served on various denominational boards, agencies and special study committees.

Since his retirement, he has served as interim pastor in Midland, Roswell, Lamesa, Andrews, Monahans, Greenwood, Eldorado, Quannah, Odessa, Crane and Hobbs, N.M.

He and his wife make their home in Odessa.

The public is invited to hear him preach.

Rev. Savelle to speak

LEVELLAND — Dr. Jerry Savelle, a noted author, evangelist and teacher will be at the 10:45 a.m. Oct. 9 service at South Plains Church, Levelland.

"Well known for his balanced Biblical teaching, Brother Savelle has been conducting seminars, crusades and convention speaking engagements for a number of years," says a release from the church.

"He is in great demand today because of his inspiring message of victory and faith and his accurate and entertaining illustrations from the Bible. He teaches the uncompromising Word of God with a power and authority that is exciting, but with a love that delivers the message directly to the spirit man."

Savelle founded the Overcoming Faith Church and Bible Training Center located in Kakamega, Kenya, and the missions outreach of his ministry extends to over 27 countries around the world.

"His ministry also delivers the powerful message of God's Word to prisoners across the U.S. through the JSM Prison Ministry Outreach," the release says.

Pastors Eddie and Pat Trice invite the public to hear him speak.

Carman to perform

Contemporary Christian music artist Carman will perform at Chaparral Center Monday, Oct. 10.

"Carman has made a significant impact on listeners and concert attendees since his introduction to Christian music in the early 80s," says a news release from Carman Ministries.

"His storytelling-humorous-musical combination has been captured on six records to date, collectively reflecting almost a million units sold."

Carman's upcoming concert is part of his "Radically Saved" tour, which features music from his newest release "Live...Radically Saved!" an album that effectively captures Carman's high energy live performance.

In addition, the concert will highlight music from past records such as "The Champion," which ranked as one of Billboard Magazines' top ten inspirational albums of 1986, as well as "A Long Time Ago...In A Land Called Bethlehem."

The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. A $3 donation will be taken at the door. A love offering will be taken.

Adoption program begins

Bill Cosby says, "The only way you can get to heaven is to be nice to someone else's children. That's why God made grandchildren."

The First Presbyterian Church, 800 West Wall, is introducing a new church program called "Adopt-A-Grandparent," to give people the opportunity to build close relationships between our young families and our more mature members.

Both groups have a lot to offer each other. Now there is a program that will bring these two special groups together.

Registration tables will be available at all church functions during the next several weeks to enable those interested to sign up for the "Adopt-A-Grandparent" program.

For further information, please contact: Joan Huff 694-6987, John Stone 687-6271, Altie Russell 699-1527, or Charlotte Ellis 682-1306.

Lutheran series underway

"Faith Maps: Tips and Guidance for the Christian Journey" is the theme of a seven-week series of classes sponsored jointly by Midland Lutheran Church and Hope Lutheran Church, and being held at Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 West Michigan.

Classes, which began Sept. 20, are scheduled for 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays. Babysitting is available.

Subjects include "Down the Tubes," a look at the effect of television on our values, lifestyles and faith, led by the Rev. Jonathan Holmer of Hope Lutheran; "Paul's Letter to the Romans," led by the Rev. Charles Meyer of Midland Lutheran will lead a study; and "Confidence" by Alan Loy McGinnis, led by the Rev. Marvin Koenig.

More information about these classes may be obtained by calling the Midland Lutheran Church office, 694-1373, or Hope Lutheran, 683-1936.

Hebrew classes to begin

The Jewish Synagogue in the Permian Basin, Beth El, is offering a course in beginners Hebrew for adults.

Biblical Hebrew will be taught, with emphasis given to reading and understanding the Bible in the original.

This course will begin late October 1988 and continue through June. As in past years, beginners Hebrew will be taught weekly, alternating between a Midland and an Odessa location.

A $60 fee will be charged for materials. If interested please call 683-7554 days or 697-6156 evenings for registry and details.

Harpist to have program

Harpist Greg Buchanan will present an evening concert at the Second Baptist Church of Lamesa at 7 p.m. Monday in the church sanctuary.

"This world-class harpist has given his life and talent to the Lord, spreading the gospel of Jesus through his concert and personal testimony," says a release from the church.

"Buchanan's superb musicianship combined with an enthusiastic attitude toward the Christian life and the infectious spirit of his personal testimony are making him one of the most sought-after Christian performers in America. Greg readily gives God credit for everything he has today and for bringing him from the depths of woridly living to the triumphant life he now lives."

No admission is charged to the concert, but a love offering will be taken. Buchanan's recordings will be available.

The public is invited to attend. Second Baptist Church is located at 1705 North Bryan Ave.

Women to have bazaar

The United Methodist Women at First United Methodist Church in Odessa will host "Bazaar '88 Helping Hands" Oct. 15 and 16.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 15 and noon to 4 p.m. Oct. 16.

The bazaar will be held in the Fellowship Building, 5th and Lincoln streets.

Handmade items will be for sale and lunch will be served. All proceeds will be used for missions.

Hymn festival planned

The First Presbyterian Church, 800 West Texas, will present a hymn festival, "Cermonial Hymns and Heraldic Fanfares" at 4 p.m. Sunday.

The program will feature The Sanctuary Choirs of First Presbyterian and Grace Presbyterian Churches, accompanied by Brass and Percussion Ensemble under the direction of Lester E. Ackerman, Director of Music Ministries.

Child care will be provided.

Divorce seminar planned

Golf Course Road Church of Christ will present a Divorce Adjustment Seminar from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, in Room 100 of the Family Center.

This will be a free seminar and child care will be provided for those who pre-register by Oct. 19.

Men, women's classes set

A seminar for men, "The Role of the Man in the Family," is scheduled for the Thursday through Oct. 8.

The sessions begin at 6:45 p.m. Thursday and Friday and at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 8.

"This seminar, which covers the topics of 'Respect,' 'Leadership' and 'Success,' will make a tremendous difference in your ability to relate in the family," says a release from the church.

A seminar for women, "The Role of the Woman in the Family," is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Friday.

"This exciting seminar will help you to break any emotional bondage that hinders your relationships in the family," the release says.

David McLaughlin, who teaches the seminars, is now a "successful individual whose first 30 years were makred by a deep sense of personal inadequacy," the release says.

"Finally, he began to discover Bible principles that brought purpose and value into his life. His excitement and keen humor will make the seminars both practical and enjoyable."

For more information or to register call 682-3842 or come by the church office, 402 W. Scharbauer.

St. Luke's hosting bazaar

St. Luke's United Methodist Church is hosting a bazaar Nov. 5 called Talentfest.

The name comes from, a release from the church says, "the parable of the talents in which a man gives his three servants 5,000, 2,000 and 1,000 'talents' respectively to keep for him.

"Each member of the congregation was given a play-money talent last May and asked to make an estimate of how much his talent world be worth on Nov. 5, the day of the bazaar."

Sunday will be the final "day of recokoning" during which members will be assessed for the progress they are making with their talents.

"It is expected the vast majority of church members will have something to contribute to the bazaar this year," the release says.

Ramsey to speak to Aglow

Ramsey

Paula Ramsey will speak to the Midland Outreach Aglow Fellowship at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn T-Dome, 3904 W. Wall Ave.

She will speak on the subject, "The God of All Hope."

A salad supper will precede the meeting at 6:15 p.m. Women will go through the salad bar. Cost is $4.

Ms. Ramsey is te mother of three daughters and a son. She helped organize the Business Women's Bible Studies in Midland and serves as one of the group's teachers. She has taught Bible studies to women for 20 years.

Aglow is a non-denominational group fo Christian women. For more information call 682-8386 or 1-756-3688.

Conference finds sponsor

Pastors Don and Paulette Caywood have announced that Odessa Christian Faith Center will sponsor the Christian Women's Fall Conference Saturday, Oct. 15.

The conference will be held at the Odessa Hilton and will begin at noon.

Special speaker will be Rochelle Nieman, wife of pastor Charles Nieman of El Paso. The Niemans' church, Abundant Living Faith Center, ministers to more than 5,000 people weekly.

The conference includes lunch, a style show, door prizes and fellowship. Registration fee is $10 and must be made by Oct. 10. To make reservations call 1-368-7714.

No child care will be available and a love offering will be taken.

Guest ministers planned

The Unitarian-Universalist Church in Midland, Neely and Midkiff streets, will host two guest ministers in the month of October.

On Oct. 16 at 11 a.m. Cynthia Johnson, a second-year divinity student at Perkins Theological Seminary, Dallas, will give a sermon entitled, "Here We Go Again: Explaining Unitarian-Universalism in 50 Words or Less."

Norman Godfrey, executive director of the Samaritan Counseling Center, will speak on Oct. 30. His sermon, entitled "The Silent Ministry," will deal with the listening aspect of communication and how listening is a method of ministering to the people in an individual's world.

The public is invited to attend.

Service changes hours

The Area Methodist Outreach Services, Inc., has changed its operating hours to better serve Midland's needy.

Now open from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. other weekdays, the operation is staffed by volunteers and one paid director, Linda Moore. The center provides food and clothing on the grounds of Asbury United Methodist Church, 907 S. Loraine St.

Volunteers are always needed as are doantions of children's, large women's and men's work clothing. For more information call 687-AMOS weekday mornings.

Study group invites visitors

The Businessmen's Bible Study Group, led by Johnnie Brown meets Wednesdays in the Twin Towers at ClayDesta.

All men are invited to attend as Brown leads in Bible study and discussion.

"This group is supported by many Christian men who want to open up the truths of God's word to Midland men on such subjects as 'Finding God's Direction For Your Life,' 'How to Walk in Victory and Not Defeat' and 'The Role of a Godly Man in Today's World,'" says a release from the group.

Larry Scoggin and Dean Rowe also assist Brown in this ministry.

Burying St. Joseph statue in yard helps home sales, believers say

By VIVIENNE HEINES

RELIGION

HOUSTON (AP) — Through two years, four real estate agents and countless classified ads, the house stood its ground. It remained affixed as firmly in its owners' financial future as to its concrete foundation. So they sought heavenly help.

They buried a statue of St. Joseph in their back yard.

It was not done with a flourish, nor was it done by the shelter of night. In the middle of a summer afternoon, they placed the small plastic statue into the ground amid a little nervous chatter (should the burial be accompanied by prayer?) and more than a little optimism (could this be the answer?)

They were not the first, nor the last, to cover poor St. Joseph's head with dirt.

Asking for St. Joe's intercession in real-estate endeavors is described by some experts as a longstanding tradition, one that has flourished in the Houston area's poor economic climate.

"A couple of months ago, we had people coming in here in droves and buying little statues (of St. Joseph) and saying it was for selling their homes," said Mary Jane Carrizal, salesperson at the Sacco Co., which specializes in the sale of relgious articles.

"It's kind of tapered down, but for a while there, we were really going. And every so often, at least once a week, we have a person or two coming in for St. Joseph."

Although most house sellers purchased small, inexpensive statues of St. Joseph (which are generally available for less than $1), others selected large, handsome renderings, Ms. Carrizal said, She said the most expensive one she's sold was $45 but St. Joseph statues can cost as much as $150.

"A few people wanted nice ones because they were told that after the house sold, they had to bring St. Joseph back inside and put him in a prominent place in the home," Ms. Carrizal said.

The components of the tradition vary according to area and origin, obviously. Depending on where you get your information, the statue must be buried 1) facing the house; b) head-down, with feet toward the house; 3) in the back yard; d) in the front yard; or e) none of the above.

It's difficult to trace a tradition without roots, one that has endured through the ages and across economic subcultures without official church sanction. Some experts speculate that the idea of keeping statues originated with the ancient Roman practice of making a place for gods and their images in one's home.

Today, however, religious statues and other objects are meant solely as symbols. Official Roman Catholic doctrine is that such objects are sacramentals — sacred objects or ceremonies used as reminders of faith. Displaying religious objects is likened by some to keeping portraits of beloved relatives on a shelf.

"This depiction of St. Joseph or Christ on the cross will stimulate the person to think of the reality it represents — that St. Joseph is the foster father of Christ, or Christ died on the crucifix. They're stimuli," said the Rev. James Coen, director of the Catholic Information Center in Washignton, D.C.

Linking St. Joseph with property problems is certainly not a new development. Maybe it was started by the nuns of ages past, Coen speculated.

"Nuns have always looked upon St. Joseph as the great protector — he was Mary's husband and the foster father of Christ — so he will take care of them ... If the nuns needed a piece of property, they would put a statue or religious medals on the grounds," he said.

The Rev. Martin Elsner of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Houston recalls that when he was a student, the nuns who taught him had their own ritual for St. Joseph's statue.

Film series begins Wednesday

"The Heart of the Fighter" film series will begin at the Main Street Church of Christ, 101 W. Parker, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

This series features Landon Saunders, whom millions have come to know through his inspirational radio broadcasts on the NBC and CBS radio networks.

"The Heart of the Fighter" series consists of six practical films that show biblical ways to deal with personal hardships.

The series focuses on developing spiritual courage and making creative use of disappointments and failures. In the series, Saunders addresses issues people commonly struggle with: how to deal successfully with disagreeable people; how to be exuberant in Christain life; how to avoid life-denying traps; how to avoid depression; and how to transform failure into spiritual growth.

Tens of thousands of people each year write in response to Saunders' messages on "Heartbeat." During the past seven years, this radio program has been carried by more than 600 popular radio stations across the U.S.

Jack W. Thayer, past president of NBC Radio Network, says of "Heartbeat." "It touches the lives of everyone and offers answers that give strength and hope for tomorrow."

Saunders also conducts nationwide seminars and has been a featured speaker for the National Religious Broadcasters' Convention.

"Our purpose in "The Heart of the Fighter," says Saunders, "is to help people, regardless of their circumstances, live fully and victoriously That is the most powerful reflection of Christ there is."

Voters workshop scheduled for today

Carlton Price, president of the Lay Organization, has announced a "Christian Voters' Workshop" to be held today from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams.

The workshop is to be held in connection with "A Prayer Rally for Our Country." The workshop will focus on practical voting procedures: registration, precincts and polling places in Midland, offices to be filled in the upcoming election, how the ballot looks, how the ballot is to be marked and the electoral college.

Lay leader presentors include James Bradford, Dr. Viola Coleman, Bertha Starks, Beatrice Hurd, Alma Marshall and Mollie Nelson.

Ministerial consultants include the Rev. S.V. Ferguson, the Rev. Fillmore Johnson, the Rev. Robert Lathan, the Rev. J.L. Williams, the Rev. D.F. Johnson, the Rev. Hadley Edwards, the Rev. Clara Reed, the Rev. John Mitchell and the Rev. Paul Dunn.

The youth and adult choirs of Antioch Baptist Church will furnish the music.

No admission is charged. The public is invited to attend.

In addition, the Rev. S.V. Ferguson will lead "A Prayer Rally for Our Country" from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Saturday, at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams.

A spokesman for the sponsoring lay organization says of the event, "The greatness of our nation grew out of God-inspired leadership. God will continue to bless America only insofar as we Christians, individually and collectively, pray for God's blessings. We owe it to ourselves and our country to do this."

All interested Christians are invited to participate.

New classes set for Wednesday nights

Lutherans, Catholics to have joint service

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) — In an unusual ecumenical setting, a Roman Catholic bishop and a Lutheran bishop will jointly lead worship here Sunday for a combined congregation of Lutherans and Roman Catholics.

"We feel the visit will be an encouragement to us in our our ecumenical mission," said the Rev. Dale Jamtgaard, Lutheran co-pastor of the Mission of the Atonement, one of the country's rare Protestant-Catholic congregations.

Scheduled to participate in Sunday's services were Lutheran Bishop Paul Swanson of the Oregon synod of th Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and Roman Catholic Archbishop William Levada of Portland, Ore.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Emphasize the practical side of life and your business associates and family will feel more secure. They know what they must do. Get a good rest so that your energy level is always on "full." Set a good example for a child instead of giving so many lectures. Young people are more observant than you think. Build savings for investment purposes. The financial picture looks brighter than ever.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: fashion designer Donna Karan, India's Mahatma Gandhi, rock star Sting, author Graham Greene, actor Moses Gunn, poet Wallace Stevens, Nobel laureate Cordell Hull, comic Groucho Marx.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make a fresh start in love this weekend. You get a social invitation you have been hankering for. Dress to impress and you will get invited back again and again. Set attainable goals for a child.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Retirees learn about extra benefits. Keep your guard up if someone tries to smother you with flattery. You cannot afford to give away good business advice for nothing. Ask for fair compensation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get paid for any extra work you do this weekend. Inspiration comes from a source you turn to by chance. Play hard all day but get extra sleep tonight. Curb a jealous streak.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Coming on too strong today could scare off someone who wants to pursue a relationship. Do not despair if a sports competition is difficult. Someone's encouragement spurs you to victory.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel very romantic and affectionate now. Let yourself enjoy a lazy day. Travel is favored. Luck accompanies you to a family meeting. Leave business tasks and money matters for another day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get a weekend study group together and explore a favorite topic. Music enhances both your mood and romance. Get as many tangible results as you can from a relationship. A windfall is possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): True compatibility is the key to a lasting relationship. Having fun with someone is not enough for a lifetime partnership. Travel to see something you did not think was possible. Share good news.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Member of opposite sex is strongly attracted to you. Privacy is more important than romance today. Gather your thoughts before announcing your conclusions. A change in lifestyle is applauded by your loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Settle down and tidy up loose ends at home. Balancing your checkbook will prevent you from getting an unhappy surprise. Frustration over blocked goals will pass. Make long-range plans with family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The sky is the limit if you take better care of yourself. Resist the urge to jump on someone's bandwagon just because they once did you a favor. Your first obligation is to yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good luck comes from a long, long personal relationship. Music and art lift your spirits. So will an absorbing book or television drama. Put more laughter into your life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look under the rug to see what has been hidden there before accepting any offers. Be sincere and it will be easy to get family members to cooperate.

Navy nets wrong Finch in attempt to capture one who flew the coop

CHICAGO (AP) — William Finch has been hauled in twice as a deserter — and he's not even in the Navy — because someone apparently used his name and Social Security number to enlist, then ran off from the USS Roosevelt.

Finch

"We're very sensitive to this man's problem, and we don't want it to happen again," Navy spokeswomen Lt. Nancy Slivka said Friday, a day after the 22-year-old bus driver was released from Great Lakes Naval Training Center in suburban North Chicago.

Finch's picture would be posted prominently in naval offices, she said, and he will be given another document saying he is not the man the Navy is seeking.

Finch was given such a document after his first arrest in June 1987, she said. But he couldn't produce it when state police arrested him Sunday at Starved Rock State Park, where he was fishing, when a routine license plate check revealed an outstanding warrant in his name.

"I was thrown in the La Salle County jail overnight and then spent 3½ days in the brig at Great Lakes Naval Training Center," Finch said.

Ms. Slivka disputed Finch's reference to the brig, saying he was held in a unit without bars.

But she said Great Lakes personnel undoubtedly treated him as a deserter.

"When we go out and pick up a deserter, he's not necessarily going to come along willingly," she said.

"Experience has told these people they may hear a number of different stories. Based on the information they had in front of them...they processed him as if he were a deserter."

Finch said his hair was cut short and he was forced to march until a federal judge issued an order to free him.

The Navy first got its signals crossed with Finch on June 3, 1987, when Chicago police stopped him for a burned-out taillight. The desertion warrant turned up during a routine license-plate check that time, as well.

After spending a night in jail, Finch was taken to Great Lakes for questioning and a comparison of descriptions.

"He was 5 foot 4 inches; I am 5 foot 7 inches. He weighed 140 pounds; I weigh 220. He didn't have any scars; I have a large scar from a kidney operation. He was left-handed; I am right-handed."

Finch was released immediately that time.

He had more trouble this time because the statistics on the deserter had to be mailed from Washington, Ms. Slivka said.

"The Navy sent the records by mail on Monday," Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Walsh said Thursday. "It must have been by route of a slow boat to China. The records still aren't here."

Said Daniel Crowe, Finch's attorney: "If the judge hadn't agreed to hear the case, Finch would have been in the brig until next week."

Telephone calls to Crowe's office Friday for details on the court action were not returned. Finch was not home, his mother said.

Ms. Slivka called Finch's "a very rare and unusual case," although in a similar one in February 1987, a 27-year-old grocery clerk was arrested for desertion by the Navy.

Finch said he bears no ill will toward the Navy but is worried about missing four days of his job.

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Sam Ketcham seems more puzzled than hurt when he talks about his abrupt ouster from the upscale Atlanta shopping mall where he had performed his organ grinder act with a monkey for three decades.

Ketcham, known around Atlanta as The Monkey Man, can be found these days in short stints such as the North Georgia State Fair.

He was doing a brisk business Thursday night while his 39-year-old monkey, Willie, dressed in a flowered suit and cowboy hat, collected mostly nickels and pennies from children at the fair.

At Lenox Square, the mall where he worked since 1959, he said he and his son, also an organ grinder, could pull in a couple of hundred dollars in a good week.

But he was told this summer he no longer fits the image of Lenox Square and could not perform there after July 19.

"All of a sudden, I got a letter saying I can't come back," he said.

Ketcham, 72, is among a vanishing breed, doing an act associated with simpler times in a city that strains to be a model for the future.

"Everybody gets a kick out of it," Ketcham said, nodding at the kids. "See how they go? They go crazy over the monkey."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Punchline" co-stars Sally Field and Tom Hanks tried out their acts at nightclubs to prep for their movie roles, but they weren't very funny.

"The first few times I was terrible," Hanks said. "I thought I would have four or five minutes of material and I didn't. I had about a minute. The rest was all stammering."

Field

Miss Field turned to her comedian-friend Lily Tomlin for advice and was told to get up on stage. At a club in Manhattan Beach, her recent 45-minute routine turned into a question-and-answer session.

Hanks, riding on the success of his box-office hit "Big," said after coal miners and police officers, comedians have the toughest job.

"You have to travel across the country, doing two or three acts a night, talking to a room full of drunken strangers," he said.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Paul Newman paid a surprise hospital visit to one of stock car racing's top drivers, Bobby Allison, who is recovering from injuries suffered in a racing crash earlier this year.

Newman

Donnie Johnson, Allison's brother-in-law, said Newman visited with his long-time stock car racing friend Tuesday at Lakeshore Rehabilitation Complex.

Johnson said Newman, a professional sports car racer, flew to Bessemer in his private plane and flew out a couple of hours later. He said a receptionist at the hospital thought she recognized Newman, but she didn't tell anyone because she wasn't certain.

"Bobby was real surprised to see him," said Johnson. "All the nurses have been getting on to Bobby, though, asking him why he didn't introduce (Newman) around."

Jewish women on way 'to having equality in synagogue life'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewish women, daughters of a venerable patriarchical heritage, are moving into the front ranks of their religious communities.

Evelyn Auerbach, a Jewish women's leader, said "man-made rules" produced the sexually excluding system handed down through the years. "Now it's different," she said.

Mrs. Auerbach, president of the Women's League for Conservative Judaism, added in an interview, "We're now really well on the way to having equality in all forms of synagogue life."

That transition has come swiftly and increasingly, drawing women into the full spectrum of congregational posts, on committes and boards, as synagogue presidents and rabbis.

It began in Reform Judaism, which accepted women as rabbis in 1972, spread to the Reconstructionist wing in 1974, and then to the Conservative branch, which began ordaining women in 1985.

At present, 145 of the Reform Judaism's 810 congregations have women presidents, and it has 130 female rabbis. Among the 850 Conservative congregations, 119 have female presidents, and there are six female rabbis.

The Reconstructionist wing has 33 women rabbis. The Reform and Conservative branches now have some women cantors, who sing the liturgical prayers. Conservatism invested its first two women cantors in 1987.

In Orthodox Judaism, women serve on committees and participate actively, but don't head congregations and are not admitted to the rabbinate or as cantors.

Mrs. Auerbach, whose 200,000-member organization is the largest synagogue women's group in the world, said women also have become teachers in Hebrew schools and seminaries.

"They're as learned as any male teachers," she said, adding it was a field dominated by males until two decades ago.

She said the prior, long-standing tradition was that women were to concentrate mainly on being mothers and homemakers, while men were to pursue education and careers to earn a livelihood.

"An unwritten rule was that women were tied to home activity," she said.

As a result, she said that just a generation ago, only about 10 percent of Jewish young women got college educations, herself among them. Nowadays, she estimated that 80 percent of Jewish young women complete college.

"The essence of Judaism is learning, study," she said, adding that learning is incumbent on every Jew, but in the past, women had to do it at home in their spare time amid other duties.

That situation has changed, she said. However, the idea in the women's movement that women must have salaried careers to achieve their potential also has moderated, she said, adding:

"Five years ago, if a woman was asked at a social gathering what she did, she probably wouldn't answer if she was a homemaker, or would change the subject. Now, she would proudly say, 'I'm a homemaker.'"

Mrs. Auerbach, of Glen Rock, N.J., said a similar comeback has occurred in regard to unpaid volunteer work. "For a time in the women's movement, it was unpopular to be a volunteer. But that has changed.

"Volunteer work now is at an all-time high," she said. "It's more diversified. A lot of women now bring their husbands and youngsters into this kind of work. The whole family is doing it.

"It puts them in touch with the world's needs and makes them part of meeting those needs."

However, she said, "Women volunteers have always been the backbone of most social organizations. They always will be the backbone. They're more sensitive to needs for help."

Concerning the masculine propensities of the Bible, she said there are numerous exceptions to that impression in powerful women in ancient Israel, such as the judge and prophet, Deborah.

"She epitomizes women's place in Judaism from time immemorial," Mrs. Auerbach said.

Business Women's Bible study groups meet Wednesdays

The Business Women's Bible Study Groups of Midland are meeting at 11:30 a.m. and noon Wednesdays in two locations.

The downtown group meets at 312 E. Illinois Ave in room LL100 of the Twin Towers West building. The other location is in the ClayDesta area.

All women are invited to attend the Bible study at either location.

"The purpose of the Business Women's study groups is to introduce Midland women to Jesus Christ, to clearly present the truths of God's word, and to be available to pray with or for you," says a release from the Bible study group.

"Both Bible study locations are led by several Christian women who are available for private counseling or ministry."

Working women are encouraged to bring their lunch.

From left, Sharon Spencer, Marian Muggins and Ginny McCullough are leaders of the various Business Women's Bible study groups.

Missionary league to be recognized

Throughout the nation, the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod — will celebrate LWML Sunday on Sunday, recognizing the Lutheran Women's Missionary League and its membership of over 200,000 women. The 1988 theme for this special occasion is "The Radiant Servant."

"Founded in 1942, the LWML offers its members mission education, inspiration, and service through programs for spiritual growth," says a release from Midland's Grace Lutheran Church.

Service projects benefiting the community and the congregation offer opportunities for practical application. While most operations are performed by volunteer efforts, the league does maintain a small headquarters office in St. Louis, Mo. Funds are obtained almost entirely through voluntary gifts called "mites" and are expected to meet a goal of $1 million during the current biennium.

At Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, the two Lutheran Women's Missionary League Societies are helping with a special service based on the theme "The Radiant Servant."

The congregation will then be served a free sandwich and soup luncheon.

Church members over 70 years of age have been invited as special guests and will participate in a skit presentation "Servants, Stumbling Blocks, and Solution."

The two groups, Grace Parish Workers and Grace Guild are currently led by Denise Burns and Mina Fitting, respectively.

Television special to examine 'Last Temptation'

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — A prime time television special examining the controversial film "The Last Temptation of Christ" will air in selected major U.S. markets during the last week in September and in early October.

In the Odessa/Midland area, the program will be broadcast at 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, on KOSA-TV, Channel 7.

The program, entitled "The Christ of the Last Temptation," is hosted by Dr. D. James Kennedy, senior minister at coral Ridge Presbyterian Church and host of the country's fourth most-watched Christian television program, "The Coral Ridge Hour."

Interviewees will include Don Wildmon, executive director of the American Family Association, a Christian organization that has led the national protest against "The Last Temptation of Christ;" Tim Penland, a marketing professional hired by Universal Studios to promote "The Last Temptation" who resigned his position when he learned of the film's specific content; Jane Chastain, an author and the nation's first female sportscaster; and Larry Poland, president of Master Media International, Inc.

"The Christ of the Last Temptation" will explore the controversy surrounding the newly released film, the question of whether Universal Studios was justified in making it, and information about the character of Jesus Christ, as presented in the Bible.

Two-day series on death, loss begins Oct. 18

The Junior League of Midland, Hospice of Midland and Midland Community Theatre are co-sponsoring a two-day series of seminars dealing with the subjects of grieving, death and loss to be held Oct. 18 and 19. Rabbi Earl A. Grollman of Belmont, Mass. will be the guest lecturer.

"Rabbi Grollman is a pioneer in family crisis intervention and is internationally known for his work concerning death, bereavement and divorce," says a release from the sponsoring organizations.

"He has appeared on numerous national radio and television shows and publications have won him acclaim from both religious and professional counselors."

The rabbi has been at Temple Beth El in Belmont, Mass., for more that three decades, he is an editorial advisor to Omega magazine and a member of the Bereavement Team of Community School of Psychiatry at Harvard University.

The seminars are open to the public at no charge. They are an extension of the play "Arkansaw Bear" which was performed by Midland Community Theatre's Pickwick Players in July.

The seminars are directed toward adults who are faced with the loss of a loved one or the task of explaining that loss to others. Topics will deal more specifically with the role of the clergy, physicians, counselors, psychologists, nurses, teachers and parents.

Please contact the Junior League of Midland 682-4786, or Hospice of Midland 682-2855 for additional information or to sign up for a specified seminar.

Our Lady of Sorrows could be shut in church's cost-cutting move

DETROIT (AP) — Our Lady of Sorrows has never wept such bitter tears, says the pastor of the church that is among 43 the Archdiocese of Detroit plans to close because of rising costs and an exodus of the faithful to the suburbs.

At Mass Friday morning, Nellie Gillespie wept alone in a chapel whose walls were lined with the names of the hundreds of Belgian families who founded the parish 104 years ago.

The Roman Catholic archdiocese says the fact that Gillespie was the sole worshiper proves the need for its mission to shut down shrinking churches and reassign priests to more bustling parishes.

"This is painful," said Gillespie, a widow who drives twice a week from her Highland Park home to Mass in a poverty-riddled neighborhood on the city's east side.

"I've sacrificed for this church. I feel very badly — words can't express it. Is there any way to keep this church around?"

The Rev. Charles Denys, who has celebrated the sacraments at Our Lady of Sorrows for 15 years, is praying for a way.

This month, he'll appeal Cardinal Edmund Szoka's recommendation to close Our Lady of Sorrows by June 30, 1989, the end of the archdiocese's fiscal year. Szoka is expected to make a final ruling by Jan. 1.

Thousands of Catholics have moved out of the city in the past 15 years, leaving a constituency of older and poorer churchgoers to support urban parishes, the archdiocese said Wednesday in announcing the planned closings of more than a third of the city's 114 churches.

The move began in 1983, when a task force was formed to examine the future of Detroit's struggling parishes. In mid-1987, all Catholic pastors in the city were asked to fill out a 409-question survey designed to measure viability in terms of membership, finances and activities.

If the church shuts its doors, Denys plans to stay in the parish and continue his own outreach to his flock of 250 Dutch, Belgian, Filipino and Latvian immigrants.

The Rev. Charles D. Denys, 68, who has celebrated the sacraments at Our Lady of Sorrows for 15 years, is praying for a way to save the church. It is one of 43 churches the Archdiocese of Detroit wants to close.

AP Laserphoto

But Denys, 68, fears his other mission — organizing weekend spiritual retreats to help struggling youths in the predominantly black neighborhood — will die.

"We're going to try to change the recommendation," he said. "We still have a little time."

Szoka has said the appeals process could save some parishes from being closed.

For Denys, himself a Belgian immigrant, his appeal is his only hope of persuading Szoka to spare his ethnic congregation in a city that boasts the nation's largest settlement of Flemish Americans from Belgium.

To survive the winnowing process, a church must have a yearly income of $100,000 with at least half collected in offerings. Our Lady of Sorrows earns half that, but the minister said members have kept the church free of debt.

"We always make ends meet," Denys said.

He said the archdiocese built a new sanctuary 21 years ago, and just last week the church won a city beautification award after volunteers landscaped the yard.

"They were willing to build a church here, and now they're willing to close it?" Denys said.

Gillespie, a church member since 1959, said she'll cling to her rosary and her faith and believe in a miraculous solution to the church's dilemma.

"When you trust in God, things happen," she said.

27 pilots indicted for lying about drug convictions

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Twenty-seven pilots accused of lying about drug and drinking convictions on license applications were indicted Friday in a government crackdown on unreported abuses among the nation's pilots.

Among those charged are 12 current or former commercial pilots, including a pilot for Delta Air Lines. That pilot and a former Pan American World Airways pilot were the only ones identified as employees of major passenger airlines.

The indictments issued Friday also named two student pilots, 10 private pilots and three others. All but three are from Florida.

"These indictments are the first in a special nationwide project...to vigorously pursue this abuse in a critical sector of the nation's transportation system," said U.S. Attorney Robert Genzman.

Genzman said authorities knew of no mishaps involving those charged.

In Washington, Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley said hundreds of indictments were expected as a result of the nationwide investigation. He said the charges were "indicative of the serious problem of drug and alcohol abuse which has permeated all walks of life and all professions in our society."

The Transportation Department has proposed a broad range of drug tests, including random tests, of commercial airline pilots and other flight crew personnel.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the past convictions would not have necessarily precluded the pilots from obtaining a medical certificate.

NATION IN BRIEF

Judge rules administration defying housing mandate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge ruled Friday that the Reagan administration is defying a congressional mandate to release underutilized federal property as housing for the nation's homeless.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch said the administration's interpretation of the law ignores what he described as "the plain language" of a section of the so-called McKinney Act, "arbitrarily restricts the scope of the statute and would lead to absurd results if it were actually applied."

Gasch said the law, named after the late Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., who died a few months after it was enacted in 1987, "is designed to make surplus federal property available to assist the homeless."

Agreeing with the National Coalition for the Homeless, he said only 12 facilities have been identified as underutilized by the Veterans Administration, the Defense Department and the General Services Administration and only two have been made available to the homeless.

Nurse found innocent

NEW YORK (AP) — Pediatric nurse Ann Green, who said she killed two of her babies and tried to kill a third because she was depressed after childbirth, was found innocent of murder and attempted murder Friday because of insanity.

Mrs. Green, 43, slumped forward at the defense table and her lawyer, Michael Dowd, hugged her as jury foreman Andrew Kessler pronounced the verdict. Her 54-year-old husband, Larry, wept.

State Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane let Mrs. Green remain free in $125,000 bail and directed her to undergo psychiatric evaluation within 30 days. He scheduled a hearing on the psychiatric report.

"I know I need help," Mrs. Green said after the verdict, "and I'll continue to seek it. I'll just take it one day at a time."

Larry Green, a former building superintendent who says he is dying of cancer, said he and his wife had come through "three years of hell." But because the jury was "intelligent" and "merciful," he said, "we have just been delivered from a terrible ordeal."

Senate OKs Iraq sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved on Friday a compromise plan to impose punitive economic sanctions against Iraq for its alleged use of poison gas against oil-rich nation's Kurdish minority.

The plan provides for an escalating series of sanctions if Iraq does not stop using chemical weapons.

The measure was attached to a $14.3 billion compromise spending measure to fund the U.S. foreign aid program for the fiscal year which begins Saturday. It was approved on a voice vote and sent back to the House to resolve differences caused by the Senate's votes on a series of amendments.

The Senate also voted to bar the sale to China of U.S. satellites to be launched on the Chinese Long March missile until the president can certify China is not selling missiles to Iran, Iraq, Syria, Libya or Saudi Arabia.

Pope rejects women's claim to priesthood

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II Friday ruled out the priesthood for women but condemned sexual discrimination in a major teaching that will shape the debate on women in the Roman Catholic Church.

"Mulieris Dignitatem," Latin for "On the Dignity of Women," attempts to define women's nature and role in the church and society.

The document concludes men and women are equal but fundamentally different and thus play different roles. Women, it says, are formed by maternal qualities.

John Paul says women who choose celibacy as a vocation, such as nuns, accept a "spiritual motherhood."

While highly theoretical, the document provides a framework for specific issues the church is expected to tackle in coming years, such as the positions and influence women can have in the church structure.

The ban on women priests and deacons has been a source of considerable tension between the Vatican and Catholics in the United States and western Europe.

The 120-page document is an apostolic letter, which means it will be presented to Roman Catholics as church teaching but is not an infallible pronouncement.

"Here the Holy Father...is offering us the essential and inescapable facts and principles that you need to sensibly debate the role and mission of women," Archbishop Jan Schotte said at a news conference where the document was presented.

"It's not new in terms of content but it's new in bringing together the teaching of Scriptures and the whole tradition of the church in a document that speaks to the theme of women now," he said.

Schotte was secretary-general of last year's worldwide synod of bishops on the role of the laity. The question of women played a major role at the synod.

Vatican officials said the document expresses the pope's beliefs shaped by years of reflection on the subject of women, but did not involve scientists or other outside experts.

Much of the document consists of a strong defense of women's equality with men and praise for their contributions. The pope equates sexual discrimination and domination over women with sin and condemns men who fail to take responsibility for their sexual acts.

He advises fathers:

"It is the woman who 'pays' directly for this shared generation (of a child)...It is therefore necessary that the man be fully aware that in their shared parenthood he owes a special debt to the woman. No program of 'equal rights' between women and men is valid unless it takes this fact fully into account."

But the pope stated that women and men have fundamentally different characters.

"The personal resources of femininity are certainly no less than the resources of masculinity; they are merely different," the document said.

"Hence a woman, as well as a man, must understand her 'fulfillment' as a person, her dignity and vocation, on the basis of these resources."

The pope links femininity to "maternal" characteristics such as sensitivity to human beings and a sense of responsibility for others.

UNIFIL continues 'mission impossible'

MAJDAL ZOUN, Lebanon (AP) — Hours after the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to U.N. peacekeepers, six rounds of machine-gun fire blasted into the hill behind a U.N. observation post near this south Lebanese village.

"It's just part of our job," said Lt. Arjun Sapkota, 29, of Nepal, who said being shot at is not an unusual experience here.

The post's 5,800 soldiers of the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, or UNIFIL, undoubtedly have one of the most difficult missions of the seven United Nations forces sharing the prize — watching 240 square miles of southern Lebanon.

UNIFIL was deployed in 1978 to supervise the withdrawal of an Israeli invading force. But the Israelis haven't fully withdrawn and UNIFIL is sandwiched between them and a myriad of militias that have sprouted in Lebanon.

"It has seemed a mission impossible at times," said Lt. Col. Gerry McMahon, of Ireland, UNIFIL's senior operations officer and a veteran of U.N. peace missions in Zaire, Cyprus, Syria and Lebanon.

Still, he said, UNIFIL has made a difference in a country factionalized by 13 years of civil war and at odds with its Israeli neighbor.

"If UNIFIL didn't exist here, this place would be a battlefield," McMahon said. "We have been a stabilizing influence in southern Lebanon."

UNIFIL troops, with headquarters in the southern town of Naquora, can be distinguished by their pale blue helmets and berets and the blue-and-white banner that flies above their observation posts and roadside checkpoints. Nepal, Fiji, Ireland, Ghana, Finland, Norway, Sweden, France and Italy contribute to the force.

UNIFIL has paid dearly. About 156 men have died in service, and more than 230 have been wounded. Two are missing. American Lt. Col. William R. Higgins, leader of a truce observer group attached to UNIFIL, was kidnapped Feb. 17 by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem militiamen.

An Irish soldier, Pvt. Brian Joyce, has been missing for seven years; he has not been seen since he disappeared from a desolate outpost.

There is little to suggest the danger will abate soon.

"The fact is that we are trying to do our job while what amounts to a war is going on around us," McMahon said. "It's inevitable we get caught in the middle."

As envisioned by the U.N. Security Council in 1978, the U.N. force was given a mandate to supervise Israel's withdrawal and help the Lebanese army reestablish authority in the region.

Instead, Israel continues to hold a strip of land along the border as a security zone and augmented its forces with an Israeli-equipped and trained militia known as the South Lebanon Army, a Christian-dominated group.

Palestinian guerrillas, largely driven out of southern Lebanon by a second Israeli invasion in 1982, have been replaced by increasingly militant Shiite militias.

The Iran-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, is among militias hostile to all foreign presence and which continue to try and penetrate UNIFIL territory to attack Israel.

The U.N. soldiers have ended up being victimized by both sides.

In 1985, the South Lebanon Army abducted 21 Finnish soldiers and held them for more than a week after alleging they had helped seven of its militiamen defect to Moslem groups.

In 1986, several French soldiers were killed in a series of attacks blamed on Iranian-backed Shiite fighters angered over the sale of French weapons to Iran's Persian Gulf war foe, Iraq.

Eighteen months ago, a car bomb exploded beside a Fijian checkpoint, killing three soldiers.

Since the start of this year, more than 864 incidents have been reported in which bullets or artillery fell on or near U.N. positions.

But UNIFIL has succeeded, to some extent, in returning normalcy to the more than 500,000 people who live in the territory under its supervision.

Militiamen are not allowed to enter the region with weapons, and UNIFIL sponsors medical and food relief programs to help the largely Shiite population.

It does not always succeed in its job as referee.

Friday, for example, members of the Shiite militia Amal set up a "checkpoint" on a tiny village road near Majdal Zoun, apparently to try to halt any suspected members of the rival Hezbollah. Tension between the two militias has been running high since three Amal leaders were slain last week, apparently by Hezbollah fighters.

Meanwhile, Israel complains that groups intent on attacking the Jewish state, including Palestinian guerrillas, have made it through UNIFIL territory undetected.

Jury rules British troops legally shot IRA members

GIBRALTAR (AP) — A jury ruled at a coroner's inquest Friday that British commandos acted within the law when they shot and killed three unarmed IRA members in this British colony last March.

Foreman Daniel Gabay said the 11-member panel voted 9-2 for lawful killing verdicts in the deaths of Daniel McCann, 30; Sean Savage, 24, and Mairead Farrell, 31.

Commandos of the British Special Air Service, or SAS, regiment shot the three on March 6 as they walked toward the Spanish border.

The commandos testified they believed the three were prepared to detonate a car bomb by remote control and made threatening moves when confronted.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army has acknowledged the three were IRA members on "active service," meaning they were on a mission to strike against a British target at the time of their deaths.

1 dies in West Bank unrest

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — One Palestinian was killed and three others wounded Friday in violence that started with a confrontation between a Jewish settler and Arabs who stoned his car, officials and witnesses said.

In addition, the army said an 18-year-old Palestinian was killed in Hebron when soldiers opened fire after they were stoned by a group of masked Arab youths. Hospital officials said Zain Hafez Karaki died of bullet wounds to the chest and arm.

Arab hospital officials said 18 other Palestinians were wounded in clashes in the occupied territories Friday.

Palestinian witnesses said a 38-year-old man was shot and killed by one of about 15 Jewish settlers who gathered in downtown Hebron at the site where settler leader Rabbi Moshe Levinger's car was stoned.

Britain resumes ties with Iran

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Britain announced Friday a resumption of full diplomatic ties with Iran based on "mutual respect." It accelerated an improvement in Western relations with the fundamentalist government in Tehran.

But Secretary of State George P. Shultz said any U.S. settlement with Iran required an end to the Iran-Iraq war, an end to terrorism and the release of Americans believed held by pro-Iranian forces in Lebanon.

Iran evidently wants to move toward a more normal position around the world.

An enthusiastic crowd of about 10,000 supporters chant in front of the main army barracks in Port au Prince Thursday for the soldiers who ousted Gen. Henry Namphy in the Sept. 17 coup. No violence was reported, despite fears of reprisals by former agents loyal to deposed dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier.

1,500 Haitians protest move to transfer radical priest

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — About 1,500 young Haitians marched in protest Friday after hearing rumors of plans to transfer overseas the radical priest whose church was burned down and parishioners massacred two weeks ago.

The youths said the demonstration was both to show support for the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide and to defend all priests and laymen who stood up for the rights of the poor.

Rev. Jacques Mesidor, superior of the Haitian Salesian Fathers, has denied reports that Aristide will be ordered transferred out of Haiti. Aristide has been living in seclusion at a Salesian school, and has reportedly been suffering from severe depression since the massacre.

The protesters marched 10 miles from downtown Port-au-Prince to the papal nuncio's suburban home after first assembling in front of the charred ruins of St. Jean Bosco church in La Saline slum.

They unfurled a banner reading "Democracy in the church, Democracy in the army!" and walked up the Canape Vert Road to the palace-like home of Papal Nuncio Rev. Paolo Romeo in the cool hills above the city.

Aristide, criticized by the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy here for his radical views, narrowly escaped death on Sept. 11 when thugs disrupted his Mass at St. Jean Bosco church, killing 13 worshipers, wounding more than 70 and burning down the building.

Rank-and-file soldiers, outraged by the massacre, overthrew Haiti's leader, Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, on Sept. 17. They installed Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril as president under a new military government, saying they wanted to end random, state-sponsored violence and institute democratic reforms.

About 10,000 mostly young people danced in the streets of Port-au-Prince Thursday in support of the soldiers' coup. It was one of the biggest outpourings seen in the capital since dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier fled into exile in February 1986.

Friday, demonstrators waved placards reading, "Down with imperialism in the Church!" and "It Is Time for the Church To Take the Side of the Poor!"

"This is not the first time his order has thought of sending him abroad," Arnold Antonin, co-leader of the National Network for Human Rights, told The Associated Press Friday. "Aristide is a prophet. He antagonizes both state and religious authorities for his outspoken stands on social justice."

Greek leader has heart surgery

HAREFIELD, England (AP) — Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou underwent open-heart surgery Friday, and a Greek Embassy spokesman said "Everything is fine."

Dr. Nicholas Papadakis, the Greek Embassy press attache, added: "The operation was successful."

Greek officials at the hospital said a team headed by Magdi Yacoub, Britain's top heart surgeon, performed the six-hour operation on the 69-year-old Socialist prime minister at Harefield Hospital north of London.

The prime minister's four children and his girlfriend, airline stewardess Dimitra Liani, 34, were at the hospital throughout the surgery.

Papandreou's condition was listed as satisfactory, Vasilis Kapetanyannis, a Greek Embassy press officer at the hospital, said late Friday night.

West Texas tracker combs 'above the rim' for aliens

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Bill Peiser probably knows the area "above the rim" between the Rio Grande and the Davis Mountains as well as any man alive.

He's driven a truck, ridden a motorcycle, or walked over most of it, his eyes plastered to the ground, looking for some telltale sign of the targets he was tracking.

Small marks in the sand which most people wouldn't notice, or would pass off as unimportant, Peiser reads like the pages of a book.

The 54-year-old senior U.S. Border Patrol agent has chased illegal aliens and drug smugglers for 27 years, all but three in the Marfa sector.

Peiser's tracking skills aren't used as often as they once were, partly because the number of illegal aliens passing through the area has dropped.

Border agents working the Marfa sector caught about 24,000 illegal aliens in 1986, the last year before Congress revamped the nation's immigration law. With fiscal year 1988 nearly over, agents in the sector have intercepted only 5,000 illegals.

The Marfa sector covers 92,000 square miles, over 77 counties in Texas and 18 in Oklahoma.

"It's probably just as good I don't have to track as much as I did," Peiser said, adjusting the glasses he has had to wear the past few years. "My eyes were about as good as anybody's, but I'm convinced cuttin' sign all of the time has got me to where I have to wear glasses. Riding along a track, hanging my head out a window and straining my eyes to spot something that'll give me a clue is bound to be bad for my eyes," he said.

A proven method for spotting people trying to sneak across the border to jobs further north has long been "cutting for sign" on a "track."

The "track" is a dirt road scraped parallel to U.S. 90 west of Marfa.

Peiser explained how the aliens come into Texas, and how the Border Patrol catches them.

He pointed to the south, to a dark expanse of low mountains. "They cross the river and then lay up on the rim and rest about a day," he said, indicating the peaks.

The "rim" is an area along the Rio Grande, where the land rises from the river bed. South, or below the rim, the land is rough and cut by numerous small gullies. North, or above the rim, the land becomes flat and canyons and ravines give way to open cattle country.

"You can't tell it from here, but that's some bad country there," Peiser said, stretching out an arm made bronze by nearly three decades tracking men under the desert sun.

He points to a range of mountains to the south. "Some places along there, it's 1,000 feet straight up and down. There's places where you can cross, but we have sensors on most of them, so they've got to where they go somewhere else," he said.

On the Texas side, the country below the rim has the advantage of providing numerous hiding places for illegal aliens headed north, Peiser said.

"They're afraid of this flat," he said, indicating the stretch of about 40 miles between the rim and the foothills of the Davis Mountains.

"There's no cover out here, so they try to cross it in a day" using some remarkable hiding places, he said. "They'll wrap around a clump of bear grass and pull up grass and cover themselves, and you can walk right past them."

"We drag this track every evening and cut sign (look for footprints or other marks in the dirt) every morning," he said.

The dirt road also has sensors at strategic places. If a sensor is activated or tracks are found, the agent radios to another agent to the north, near the Davis Mountains, indicating the general line of travel of the illegal aliens.

"It's important to know the country," Peiser said. If alone, an agent who has found signs of an illegal alien "sometimes can find a ranch road that'll put you around in front of them, or near their general line of travel. Then you cut sign again and it gives you a better idea of where they are," he said.

Sometimes the agent has to follow the tracks, although that method is not as successful, Peiser said.

He pointed to a mountain to the north. "See the mountain with the notch in the middle? That's Mount Livermore. On the other side of that notch is the head of the Madera Valley. Once they get to that, it's a straight run right into Balmorhea and from there north to Pecos," he said.

Peiser said he's been forced to walk through that notch trailing illegal aliens many times.

He said he enjoys his job and wouldn't be leaving in January if it wasn't required by agency regulations, setting a mandatory retirement age of 55.

"It's a good job," he said. "It's physically demanding at times, but it's a good job."

He's particularly fond of getting paid for riding motorcycles around. Riding motorcycles is not only an ocassional part of Peiser's job, it's also his hobby.

"I started riding in enduro-motorcycle races when I was 48," he said.

A friend of his, Todd Harris, of Odessa, is good enough to motorcycle racing to qualify for the International Six-Days Enduro for the past two years.

Peiser went along as pit crew member when Harris went to Poland last year; and plans to be on the crew when Harris races in France this month.

He helps organize and has taken part in a motorcycle rally held in the country south of Marfa where he works.

San Antonio artist Ramon Garrido, 90, has finally fulfilled his dream to be an artist. Throughout his life, he has had to work in other careers but now can devote his time to painting.

Man waits lifetime to become artist

By MICHELE SALCEDO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Ramon Garrido waited a lifetime to paint. Now, at age 90, after building two fortunes and losing one to the Cuban revolution, he is able to fulfill his dream.

"I loved art since I was born," Garrido said, "but I was told all painters die of hunger."

The threat of hunger drove him from his native Orense, Galicia, Spain, at age 14 to financially help his parents and nine brothers and sisters.

"My father discouraged me from studying art, because I had to do my part to support the family," Garrido said.

He traveled to Argentina, where he befriended an army colonel who helped him open a tobacco and stationery store. Even then, he would draw pictures for the schoolchildren on the front of their copybooks.

Garrido brought his father from Spain to help with the shop, but after a few years, the senior Garrido wanted to return to Spain. They sold the store and father and son returned together.

In the early 1920s, Garrido returned to the new world, this time to Cuba, where he amassed money in real estate and building construction.

The triumph of Fidel Castro's revolution brought the nationalization of all income property and many private land holdings in its wake. Garrido estimates he lost a half-million dollars in holdings. He and his wife were allowed to stay in their house in fashionable Almendares Marianao until his wife died in 1970.

After his wife died, he said, "I wasn't interested in anything there."

His son, Dr. Jose Ramon, then brought him to live in San Antonio and renewed his father's interest in painting.

"He never had the opportunity to paint before he came to San Antonio," the son said. "I started giving him some paints for Christmas on his birthday. He started painting to kill the time."

The senior Garrido's fascination with buildings and land can be seen in his impressionistic landscapes, most often of structures surrounded by lush gardens, that evoke the verdant mountains of Cuba.

Garrido never studied theory of painting.

"I believe study is in the practice," he said. "My style is to paint whatever there is from here and there in my life. I combine images in my imagination."

Portraits, however, are too limited in their appeal, he said.

"If you paint a person, the only one who is interested is the subject of the painting," he explained.

Garrido said he paints what interests him and only when he is inspired.

"Sometimes I do four, five, six paintings a week. Some weeks I do none. Sometimes the ideas engrave themselves in my mind when I'm in bed, a part of a house from here, a garden from there. The whole thing comes from my imagination."

While waiting for the muse to light, Garrido reads newspapers in English and Spanish.

"I can read in Spanish without glasses, but I need to wear my glasses to distinguish the little letters in English," he said.

Program rewards good biking habits

VIDOR, Texas (AP) — Eyes widen at the approach of the police car, lights flashing, and he stands motionless beside his bicycle.

Then the patrol officer pulls out his pad. Nine-year-old Rodney Bailey is about to get his first ticket.

But the man with the badge and gun smiles. "I noticed that you ride your bike real well," he says, "and I'm giving you a 'Good Bike Citation.'"

The sigh of relief is audible.

It's the end of summer and the end of the Bicycle Safety Program sponsored by the Vidor Police Department to increase safety awareness and, according to Patrol Officer Randy Freeman, "to show the kids we're not the bad guys."

Freeman said the program was conducted this summer, "the time when most kids are out on their bikes," in conjunction with area businesses.

Citations, given to children on wheels — bicycles, tricycles and skateboards — come with free hamburger-and-snack bonuses from either of the program's civilian sponsors, Sonic and McDonald's.

It was the brain-child of Vidor Police Sgt. Kenneth Ray, who presented the program for the first time in the National Academy for Criminal Justice Sciences Conference as a model police-youth relations project.

"It increases the common ground between the street cops and kids," Ray said. "It's a long-term investment that will increasingly help to reduce the negative feelings about police."

There is no evidence of negative feelings as Freeman hands Bailey his ticket. In fact, children suddenly appear from everywhere, riding up to the patrol car in demonstrations of safety skills passing motorists could envy.

"When we start, they all come up," Freeman said. "A lot of them know about the program now, and they shout when they see us drive by — 'I'm driving good!' It's hard to refuse any kids, especially when they're all standing there."

He said he hopes the program will decrease the fear of police shown by children when they are first stopped. "They've heard things from parents like, 'The police are going to get you,' or 'I'm going to call the police on you.' But we're here to help, to be someone they come to when they are in trouble."

As one who has too-often seen the aftermath of a careless regard for bicycle safety, Freeman said he hopes the program will be more than a public relations tool.

"I've seen a lot of kids get hurt," he said. "Somehow, that's always worse than when it's an adult. But if we can get one kid to think about safety, this program's worth it."

Spectators could be 'rattled' at shuttle landing

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A patch of the Mojave Desert will be open for anyone who wants to watch Discovery land Monday, but spectators will have to endure traffic jams, chemical toilets — and maybe even rattlesnakes.

NASA expects 100,000 to 200,000 visitors at the viewing site on the hard clay east shore of Rogers Dry Lake, where the space shuttle is scheduled to touch down at 9:33 a.m. PDT, said Nancy Lovato, a spokeswoman for the space agency.

The record crowd for a landing was the estimated 500,000 people who joined President Reagan in witnessing the July 4, 1982, landing of Columbia on a paved runway at this military base 80 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

This time George Bush will attend, in his capacity as vice president, not as the Republican presidential candidate, his aides emphatically told National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Ralph Jackson.

The viewing site opens 24 hours before the landing. Jackson predicted heavy traffic along the desert highways, "And remember, all the Air Police fellows out there got radar."

Lovato said the worst traffic jams will occur before dawn. Haley said all gates to Edwards Air Force Base will be closed to the general public, and access to the east shore viewing site — which doesn't require a vehicle pass or entry through any of the gates — will be halted one hour before the landing.

Jury, NASA officials probe fraud allegations

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury and NASA officials are investigating price fraud allegations against a company involved in manufacturing a heat-shield system used on the space shuttle's solid-fuel rocket boosters, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story Friday.

Targets of the probe include ILC Space Systems Inc. of Houston, a subsidiary of ILC Dover Inc., a Delaware company that builds the spacesuits used by NASA astronauts, the newspaper reported.

Documents filed in a Houston federal court say the inquiry centers on allegations ILC Space Systems illegally passed through costs to the space agency for work performed under a fixed-cost contract.

Heading the investigation is W. Preston Smith, director of the inspector general's office at the Johnson Space Center. But Smith declined to comment on details.

Smith, in an affidavit filed in a lawsuit seeking information from ILC, said the investigation was launched after a confidential source informed the NASA inspector general's office that the company's management was charging labor hours from a fixed-price project to another project that allowed labor costs to be passed on directly to the space agency.

Expenses in a cost-type contract may be passed through to NASA. In a fixed-price contract, the contractor agrees to perform work for a stated amount and to pick up the tab for any unexpected costs.

Smith's affidavit said that a review of Johnson Space Center records revealed that ILC had both types of contracts.

The practice of billing hours on one job and charging them to other contracts where such charges are allowed was common within the company, a former ILC Space Systems employee said.

But he added that, as a former NASA employee, he knew the practice was common among other companies doing business with the space agency.

"ILC didn't do anything differently than anyone else," the former employee, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told the newspaper. "Sometimes they switched around money to get the jobs done."

Investigators told him that close to 200 people, including current and former ILC employees, have been interviewed about the alleged fraud.

A spokesman at ILC Space Systems' office said Friday that no one was available to comment on the allegations.

The inspector general issued a subpoena in May to ILC Space Systems, seeking salary and other compensation records for Walter D. Salyer II, former president of the company. Salyer resigned in early 1986.

Salyer was out of town when his home telephone number was reached by The AP.

The subpoena also sought internal correspondence between Salyer and top ILC officials.

Discovery crew gets to mix it up on TV with in-flight experiments

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An experiment similar to shaking up oil and vinegar turned out to be more like mixing an "egg white in an egg yolk" when astronaut David C. Hilmers and fellow Discovery crew members performed the test Friday.

Hilmers and George D. "Pinky" Nelson spent part of the morning working on the experiment known as phase partitioning, and some of their activities were broadcast on NASA's satellite television channel.

"It's a little experiment that tries to look at the fluid dynamics of separating two different phases of materials," Hilmers said.

Researchers hope the experiment will help them better understand the role gravity and other physical forces play in separating unmixable liquids. During the experiment, two polymers are dissolved in a saline solution and they then separate.

On Earth, the heavier material floats on top of the other, but the outcome is much different in space where there is no gravity.

"Pinky and I have been shaking up this phase partitioning experiment. It's a lot like shaking up vinegar and oil — in 0 g (gravity) it has a somewhat different mixing. It's more like an egg white in an egg yolk," Hilmers added, and laughter followed from another astronaut.

In all, there are 11 experiments the astronauts will conduct during their four-day mission, including two student projects.

The first post-Challenger flight's main purpose — to deploy a communications satellite — was completed early Friday when a two-stage booster rocket pushed the satellite into its final orbit.

NASA grounded shuttles missions after the Challenger exploded Jan. 28, 1986, and the disaster also halted researchers' efforts to test their theories in space for more than 2½ years.

Hilmers said the phase partitioning experiment was a good example of the need for manned spaceflights.

"I guess one of the things this (experiment) can show is the use of people in space. We can look at the experiment, see if there are any unique changes and observe them. We can take pictures as we see unique changes, and possibly modify the experiment," he said.

An experiment completed earlier Friday was the aggregation of red blood cells.

NOTHIN' TO IT QUAD DEAL.

NOTHIN' DOWN, NOTHIN' TO PAY 'TIL '89.

1989 QuadRunner 4WD

The '89 Suzuki Quads are here. And now, you can get one with no monthly payments until January '89.* Check out the full line of '89s, like the fun-loving QuadSport 80, the rugged F250 and hard-working 4WD. And this fantastic deal is also good on our '88 Quads. Nothin' down. Nothin' to pay till '89. See your participating dealer for details. The Suzuki Nothin' To It Quad Deal. Get there before there's nothin' left. You have nothin' to lose, and everything to gain by saying... "Right On, Suzuki."

SUZUKI

*Offer good with approved Suzuki credit, September 15th-November 15, 1988. Offer excludes QuadRacer 250R & 500R.

Please ride safely. The Suzuki QuadSport 80 is recommended for riders 12 years of age or older. Adults must always supervise riders under 16. All other Suzuki QuadRunners are recommended for riders age 16 or older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the Specialty Vehicle Institute of America at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety: Remember, always wear a helmet, eye protection, and protective clothing. Never ride on paved surfaces or public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol/drugs don't mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Please "Tread Lightly" and respect the environment. Ride only where authorized.

DAIHATSU: The word on the Street.

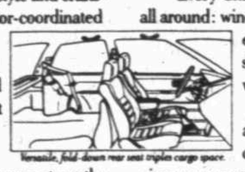
Everyone is looking for the next performer. And right now they're talking about the new hot car from Japan: Charade by Daihatsu. Read the chart and you'll see Charade's record of wins around the world. A winning combination of quickness and handling for over a decade. The more we test it in racing, the better it works on the street.

- Car of the Year Japan
- Four-time Rally Champion East Africa
- Three-time Rally Champion Monte Carlo
- Rally Champion New Zealand
- Rally Champion Malaysia
- Rally Champion Finland
- World Economy Record Paris
- World Economy Record Singapore
- World Economy Record Australia
- Car of the Year Thailand
- Most Popular Car in Australia

Not only do you get proven performance, but Charade gives you quality and workmanship that you thought came only in more expensive cars. The level of luxury is unprecedented for a small car. Think of it as luxury condensed.

Daihatsu Charade winning in Monte Carlo, January, 1988.

The interior reflects style and craftsmanship. It is perfectly color-coordinated throughout. Door trim incorporates seat material on top and carpet material on the bottom for a perfect interior match. There's a rich cloth liner overhead. And the fold-down center armrests on the CLX add extra comfort.



Versatile, fold-down rear seat triples cargo space.

Every Charade comes with tinted glass all around: windows and mirrors. For an extra touch, there are swing-out quarter windows in the rear.

Charade is low and wide for a small car. The extra width gives you a surprising amount of interior room. Charade's wide track gives you far more stability on the road than other small cars, especially when cornering.

Wide stance for stability.

Charade is quick, with multi-point EFI, fully independent suspension and stabilizers in front and rear. The five-speed transmission is butter-smooth for easy shifting.

Charade is affordable to buy and affordable to own. Daihatsu Charade has an EPA rating of 42 MPG highway and 38 MPG city. That is one of the best mileage ratings in the country.

Get behind the wheel of a winner! Test drive Charade today! Daihatsu may be new to America, but we've been in business in Japan since 1907. The name is pronounced Di-hot'-sue. It means Large Enterprise.

Charade has been tested, raced and proven around the world. It is the logical evolution of a dedication to performance. You know what they say, "Racing improves the breed."

You'll think the world of Daihatsu.
