Energy Suit Readied

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)-Gov. David Boren says representatives from Oklahoma, Texas, and Louisiana have agreed on a draft of a legal challenge of the new federal energy act's natural gas provisions.

The governor said Kansas and New Mexico also sent representatives to a Thursday meeting in New Orleans. He said those states are now expressing an interest in joining the lawsuit.

Typhoon Rita Kills 13

MANILA, Philippines (AP)-Typhoon Rita killed at least 13 persons in the Philippines and the death toll is almost certain to rise, relief officials said today.

Most of the victims drowned, but some were electrocuted by fallen wires or crushed by trees pushed down by 94 mile-an-hour gusts as the storm passed through the country's rice bowl, central Luzon.

Rita roared into the South China Sea toward the Asian mainland early today.

It had center winds of 138 mph Thursday at landfall in southern Quezon province on Luzon's eastern coast, making it the strongest typoon since Joan killed about 600 persons in 1970.

Gulf Oil Rig Collapses

NEW ORLEANS (AP)-An offshore oil rig capsized today when a leg gave way, dumping 16 workmen into the Gulf of Mexico about 40 miles off the Louisiana coast, the Coast Guard reported.

All but two were plucked from the water by a boat and a helicopter in the area, the Coast Guard said. It said those rescued included two badly burned by chemicals and two confined to stretchers.

4 Of 15 Rescued

ADAK, Alaska (AP)-At least four of the 15 men whose U.S. Navy P-3 Orion aircraft ditched into the frigid North Pacific were rescued today by a Soviet trawler, Coast Guard officials said.

Lt. Steve Becker, a Coast Guard spokesman in Honolulu, said a Soviet fish factory trawler had picked the four men up from one of three liferafts floating near the plane.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

We are sailing along with politics and football occupying most of the time on the news wires as the general election approaches and conference titles go on the line.

James Roberts of the Andrews County News reminds that an old adage states that politicians are like cockroaches in that it's not what they eat and carry off that causes the trouble, but what they fall into and mess up.

"And the adage is especially true concerning politicians and economics.... the two are about as compatible as oil and water," says Roberts.

"Politicians and their governments have about as much chance of changing the course of long range economics as a gnat against the B-1 Bomber."

However, Lynn Brisendine of the Brownfield News observes that we get just as bad government as we are willing to stand for, and just as good government as we are willing to fight for.

So, it's left up to us.

On the football front, Walt Finley of the Big Spring Herald, an admitted transplanted Okie, says Bud Wilkinson knows why his team (the St. Louis Cardinals) is doing so poorly in pro football.

"He never should have thrown away that lucky tie he always wore at OU games," says Finley.

Finley also sees an omen lurking ahead for Oklahoma's present coach, Barry Switzer.

"Don't expect OU football fans to be reasonable," warns Finley. Now that we've seen our team score 66 points in a game, anything lower will be considered a slump."

Stephen Henry of the Levelland Sun-News tells about the oldster who celebrated his 100th birthday. An interviewing reported asked, "What are you most proud of?"

"Well," said the oldster, "I've lived 100 years and haven't an enemy in the world."

"What a beautiful thought, how truly inspirational," commented the reporter.

"Yep," added the centenarian. "Outlived every last one of them."

Vance Delivers Protest...

Israeli Scheme Opposed By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance today personally conveyed to Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan this country's opposition to Israel's plan to strengthen its settlements on the West Bank.

Dayan said afterward that he saw no reason why talks on the draft peace treaty with Egypt could not continue. But no Egyptian-Israeli meetings were scheduled today, as the delegations awaited word from Cairo on whether the Egyptian delegation would be recalled.

Egyptian officials said Thursday that they might recall their negotiators for consultations because of the Israeli decision to "thicken" the settlements.

Dayan said he planned to meet again with Vance this afternoon, this time to explain the changes Israel hopes to make in the draft treaty that was concluded last weekend.

Vance scheduled a separate meeting with the Egyptian delegation following his afternoon session with the Israelis.

Dayan said there was no resolution of the differences between the United States and Israel on the settlement expansion. Those differences were made plain Thursday.

Vance issued a sharp written protest, calling the decision "very serious and deeply disturbing." President Carter sent a cable to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, relaying the rebuke.

But Dayan, when he arrived in Washington, said Israel had nothing to apologize for. He said the United States had provoked the Israeli cabinet to make its move on the settlements.

In London, Foreign Minister David Owen expressed Britain's "deep anxiety" over the settlements decision and urged Israel to cancel its plans. "We deeply regret any action at this crucial stage which would jeopardize the peace negotiations now under way," Owen said.

Sadat, Begin Share Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP)-The 1978 Nobel Peace Prize was awarded jointly today to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

The two Mideast leaders, for 11 months engaged in an often-difficult drive to end 3 years of Arab-Israeli hostility, had been prominently mentioned as likely candidates for the prestigious prize.

The prize, which carries a stipend of $165,000, was awarded by the five-member Norwegian Nobel Committee, a body appointed by the Norwegian Parliament.

Ironically, it comes at a time when Israel and Egypt have once again hit a snag in their negotiations and prospects are uncertain for peace by mid-December, the deadline Sadat and Begin promised to meet after their historic Camp David summit with President Carter in September.

Daylight Saving Time Ends Sunday

Daylight Saving Time expires Sunday morning, which means that the hour which was lost last April will be restored.

Officially, clocks revert to Standard Time at 2 a.m. Sunday. However, if you don't plan to stay awake that long, you can accomplish the clock-changing chore by moving your time pieces back one hour before you retire Saturday night. And remember, move them back...that is, if you make the change at 10 p.m. current time, set your clocks and watches at 9 p.m. before you turn in tomorrow night.

Standard Time will prevail for the next six months, with DST scheduled to be resumed the last Sunday in April.

Predicts Government...

Growth Rate To Decrease

WASHINGTON (AP)-The government predicted today the nation's economy will grow at a rate of only 3 percent to 3.5 percent next year, down from expected growth in 1978 and close to the level at which unemployment will increase.

The Treasury Department and the Office of Management of Budget also said the government ended the 1977-78 fiscal year with a budget deficit of $48.7 billion, up from the fiscal 1977 deficit and the fourth consecutive year the budget has been in the red by more than $40 billion.

Fiscal 1978 ended on Sept. 30. The administration estimated the deficit for the current 1979 budget year at $38.9 billion, down from the previous most recent estimate.

In a new summary of 1978 spending and the 1979 economic outlook the administration indicated it might have trouble fulfilling President Carter's hope of holding unemployment to the current level of about 6 percent of the labor force.

The report said that with an economic growth rate of between 3 percent and 3.5 percent, unemployment should "remain in the neighborhood of 6 percent," indicating it could be somewhat higher.

The nation's unemployment rate has been hovering at the 6 percent level for the past six months. Most economists say the economy needs to expand by close to 4 percent a year to keep unemployment from getting worse, so the government's 1979 outlook clearly indicates a possible worsening in the jobless rate.

The economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew 4.9 percent in 1977. The slower economic growth has been made necessary by the need to control inflation.

Bonfire Set Tonight At Hobbs High

HOBBS- A bonfire and pep rally at 7:30 p.m. tonight will kick off the 1978 Hobbs homecoming. Registration will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday in the school auditorium. A business meeting and a program honoring past student presidents and Coming Home Queens will also be conducted at that time.

Nominees for the 1978 Coming Home queen will be taken from the floor during the business meeting.

At 5 p.m. the senior class will serve dinner in the cafeteria.

The football game will begin at 7 p.m. with the Panthers taking on the Ira Bulldogs. The Coming Home Queen and her escort will be crowned at halftime.

Following the game there will be a dance in the community center in Rotan.

Ask Us

Q-My neighbors have some chickens and don't take care of them. The chickens make a lot of noise. What can I do about it?

A-You may want to ask the police department to ask your neighbor to keep the noise down. Or you may want to file a complaint under the city's noise ordinance, advised city zoning director Charles Cullar. Such noise ordinance complaints are filed in city court.

Medical Arts Expansion Under Study

Two sets of floor plans for a propsed extension of the Medical Arts Building were briefly discussed Thursday night at a meeting of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Directors.

If constructed, the projected cost for one floor plan was estimated at $33,362, said hospital administrator Cy Miller. For the other plan the cost was estimated at $28,397.

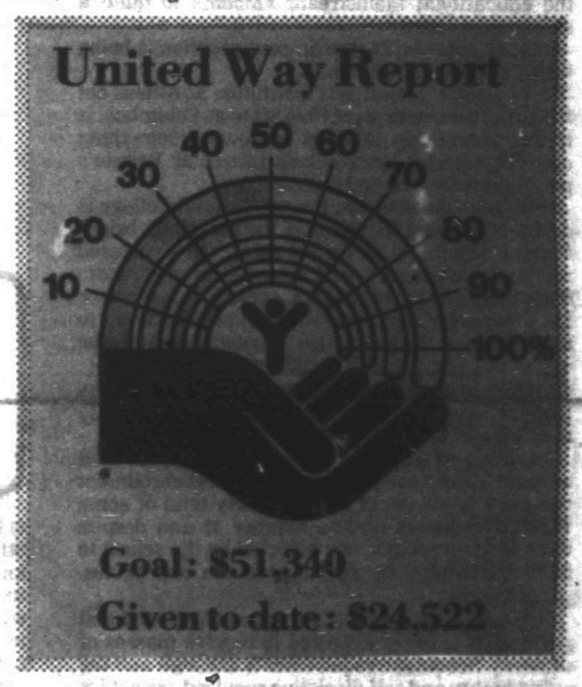
The directors took no action on the matter. It was tabled pending further study.

In routine affairs, the directors approved the adminstrator's financial report. The report listed the hospital's net worth at $3,195,950 as of Sept. 30.

Present at the meeting were A.Z. Glover, Roy Kidd, Henry Clark, Rex Robinson, John Jarrell, Sam Cross, Preston Wilson, and administrator Cy Miller.

In what may have been a record for brevity, the meeting lasted only 55 minutes.

United Way Report



Suspect Held In Armed Robbery

A 17-year-old suspect is being held in connection with the city's latest armed robbery in which he is alleged to have taken approximately $188 at gun point. Bond has been set at $25,000.

The gun police believe to have been used in the Bailey's Truck Stop holdup Oct. 16 was seized. It is a sawed-off 20 guage.

The youth, who turned 17 only last month, also faces another possible armed robbery charge for allegedly holding up the Cash Food convenience store in April, police investigators said. Because he was 16 years old at the time of the first offense, he will face that charge as a juvenile.

Formal initiation of charges against the suspect are pending before District Attorney Pete Green. Greene was out of town today, but it was reported he would be back Monday.

Although the suspect had been taken into police custody and questioned Thursday morning and some of Thursday afternoon, he was not formally arrested until about 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Police said he had been taken to Lubbock and that a polygraph test had been administered. They declined to reveal the results of the test, however.

They also declined to say where they found the gun, but it was apparently not at the Coleman St. apartment where he was arrested.

The suspect is approximately 5-feet-10 inches tall with shoulder length blond hair. That is basically the description given by store attendants in both robberies.

The investigation leading to the arrest was conducted by the Snyder Police Department and by Texas Ranger W.D. Vickers.

Officers said the investigation is still continuing.

SUSPECTED WEAPON—This gun was seized and a 17-year-old man was arrested in connection with the Bailey's Truck Stop holdup Oct. 16. The gun, a sawed-off double-barrel, 20 gauge was believed used in the truck stop holdup and the robbery of the Cash Food convenience store last April. The suspect, who was 16 at the time of the grocery store heist, will face that charge as a juvenile. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

WASHINGTON (NEA)—An intense behind-the-scenes struggle has developed within the Carter administration over the extent of the federal government's commitment to solar energy as a source of power in the 21st century.

The previously unpublicized conflict has been confined in recent months to the Domestic Policy Review on Solar Energy, a government-wide task force established last spring by President Carter to propose solar options for the future.

The policy dispute is likely to erupt in public before the end of this year because members of the study group are in disagreement over virtually every fundamental issue relating both the character and scope of the federal commitment to solar energy.

Compounding the problem are the conflicting signals that have come during the past year from the president, who intially proposed a sharply reduced budget for solar research and development during the current fiscal year.

But soon after the potential of solar energy began to capture the imagination of the public, Carter dramatically shifted his position and made a "Sun Day" pilgrimage to the federal government's Solar Energy Research Institute in Colorado.

In a speech there, Carter announced that he had instructed the Department of Energy (DOE) to shift $100 million of its current funding, initialy earmarked for nuclear programs, to solar research.

He also quoted with approval a Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) study which estimated "that we could meet as much as one-fourth of our energy demands from solar sources by the end of this century and perhaps more than half by the year 2020."

The study group is composed of representatives of approximately 30 federal departments and agencies. But DOE dominates its work because it controls the secretariat, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger is chairman of the full task force and another DOE official heads a key subcommittee.

Many DOE officials, long committed to the wholesale expansion of the country's nuclear power capability, have been notably cool toward the notion of harnessing the sun, wind, tides and other forms of solar power as a major energy source.

They are, however, willing to accept the concept of large-scale, capital-intensive solar collection and distribution systems operated for the profit of private utility companies.

On the other side of the issue are those in favor of passive, small-scale, decentralized solar systems under local control, with the benefits of the new technology available to people in all income brackets.

Those criteria were emphasized by many of the witnesses at the 12 public hearings conducted around the country by the study group, as well as several smaller but vociferous federal agencies represented on the government task force.

Although Carter endorsed the goal of using solar power to meet 25 percent of all national energy needs by the year 2000, the study group first suggested that the maximum practical figure was in the 15-to-20 percent range and now has lowered that estimate to only 9-to-15 percent.

The study group has given only cursory attention to the potential of alcohol as a substitute for petroleum in the production of auto fuel and has totally ignored subjects such as solar storage, harnessing tidal energy and using solar power to propel electric autos.

The solar enthusiasts on the federal task force, who soon may take their case to the public, noted that the president likened the challenge of harnessing the sun's power to meet "the challenge of the space race."

But after haggling over almost two dozen draft versions of its recommendations to the White House, the study group has produced only a collection of inoffensive, unimaginative proposals that will thwart rather than promote the growth of solar energy.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

I heard a man remark the other day that he did not know how his wife could go to the supermarket purchase $85 worth of groceries, come home and have nothing to cook for dinner.

Isn't that just like a man? Men like that probably don't even understand why a woman has a closet full of clothes and still has nothing to wear.

Grocery shopping is one of the last of the little-known sciences in the world. All the experts know is it's demanding, requires great concentration and split-second timing.

Researchers a few years back tried to pin down why women bought as they did in supermarkets. They discovered that when women entered the store and their hands curled around a cart handle, something happened. Their "eye-blink" rate dropped to 14 a minute, putting them into a hypnodial trance, which is the first stage of hypnosis. (One reasearcher said it was incredible how women passed by friends and neighbors without realizing they were even there.) At the check-out, however, their consciousness seemed to be triggered by the cash register bell which brought their "blink-rate" up to 45 a minute. (Which is normal.)

Women spent 20 seconds on each aisle, tossing and throwing. The list-makers went around mumbling, "Do I have oregano?" and answering themselves, "What kind of a question is that? Of course, you have oregano. You're Italian, aren't you?"

Every woman has her "system." I am not a list-maker. I found that when I made out a list of everything I needed for well-balanced, attractive meals I had to arrange for financing at the check-out.

I tend to stick to the basic things I've been buying for the past 20 years and hope that something wonderful will happen to it during the week.

As for not having anything to cook when you've just returned from the supermarket, I have a rather interesting theory about that. I equate shoppers with the pioneer hunters who dragged home a 300-pound moose, lugged it to the log cabin door and said, "I shot it. Now YOU cook it!"

If you don't understand that, then you deserve to have frozen pizza, a set of cookware, a room deodorizer, and an encyclopedia for your dinner!

recession no remedy

NEW YORK (AP) - All Americans must make sacrifices, President Carter said Tuesday night, but some people will say he is doing whatever he can to avoid the sacrifices that austerity implies.

He shuns mandatory controls. He continues to abide a huge and inflationary budget deficit. He seems inclined to sign a tax cut. He tried soft persuasion before reluctantly accepting firm standards.

And the standards, on reflection, are likely to be consdered less than harsh by both business and labor. They are in fact designed to continue inflation, although with a gradual lessening in severity.

While the president referred to sacrifices, and said "We must face a time of national austerity," his new wage-price standards give him away. He seeks a less painful remedy. Recession as a remedy is out.

Critics, however, feel that despite his policy of tolerating moderate inflation as the price of avoiding recession, the president might get both. And that he might also be forced into mandatory control.

Economists generally foresee higher prices and lowered output in 1979, disagreeing mainly in degree. Inflation forecasts range from 6 percent to 9 percent, and output changes from below zero to plus 3.5 percent.

All such forecasts were made before the president's request for limitations of 7 percent on wages and 5.75 percent on prices, which he said could reduce inflation to 6 percent or 6.5 percent next year.

However, over the past year or more the administration has been notably more optimistic than nongovernment economists. It expected the 1978 inflation rate to be just over 6 percent. It may exceed 8 percent.

Throughout the inflation siege, individuals have tried various tactics, few of them successful. Pay raises for example, were exceeded by higher prices, and real income therefore declined.

Others went deeply into debt, not just for luxuries but for basics too. Obligations to repay installment credit now take between 15 percent and 16 percent of disposable personal income, a record.

The president's call for sacrifices, therefore, may have served merely to validate what many Americans already know is necessary, and which already they have been practicing for many months.

Business and financial leaders especially, but consumer and voter groups too, have been telling Washington that sacrifice began there, and that federal spending, a primary cause of inflation, had to be cut.

The president has recognized that demand, promising to cut the fiscal 1979 deficit to $40 billion, but even in advance of his address many economists maintain it isn't enough, and blame it for inflation.

the mysteries of metrics say that it is much easier than the British system of weights and measures we now use. Then they proceed to confuse us with foreign words like hectare, kilometer or centi-something-or-other. When you confess your ignorance they really get fancy and start spouting formulas. And there are lots of formulas. Ask any 5th grader.

I've got a question. How does Uncle Sam expect us to master the metric system when we can't even remember which way to set the clock for Daylight Savings Time without saying, "Spring forward and Fall back?"

But once you think about it the real question is how have we Americans, who are notorious for wanting things fast and easy, ever managed to hang on to our awkward and silly counting system for so long?

To really appreciate how simple the metric system is, compared with our own, look at the one part of our system that is already metric, the money system. Metric simple means 10 by the way and in the metric system everything is based on 10. So, like it is not much of a problem for even slow types like myself to figure out how many $10 bills it takes to make a $100 so it is with figuring how many centimeters it takes to make a meter.

The confusing and tedious calculations come in converting our system to metrics or vice versa. Once we can forget the old units we will be money ahead. Literally. The liquor industry has already captilized on an ignorant public by raising it's price 3 per cent or more when it went to metric containers. And when an old friend like Jim Beam who has helped us celebrate the good times and was there with us during the bad pulls a fast one like that who can we trust?

Now I don't pretend to understand metrics yet but I'm learning and I do have one advantage. I never understood the old system so it should not be too hard to forget. Anyway my business is with language and I have discovered one thing. Life may be hard by the yard and a cinch by the inch but its even easier by milimeter.

Mr. and Mrs. Garlan Williams have just returned from Munich, Germany, where they were on tour with the Carrier Air Conditioning Group. While in Munich, they toured the Neuschwanstein Castle, copied by Walt Disney for Disneyland; the Church of the Wies; the Passion Play, Village of Aberammergan; Daucha, location of the concentration camp where Hitler cremated the Jews; the Glockenspiel; the Olympic area; the Dutches Museum, the world's largest science museum; and several other palaces and museums.

They also visited Salzburg, Austria, where they saw the Solaris' Cathedral, the churches of Fischer von Erlach, the Hohensalzburg Fortress, and the Town Hall and Festival Theatres.

They toured the Mozart Museum, which is housed in the home where he was born; also the church where he was baptized. It has been proven that the baptizmal fountain, still there today, dates back to the ninth century.

Mrs. Williams also visited by telephone with her cousin, Cecilia Greining Halfman from Wesphalia, Germany, who visited here five years ago, and plans another trip here in July.

New Emblem Adopted For Girl Scouts

DENVER (AP)-Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. has modernized its 64-year-old symbol by incorporating the outline of three young women's faces in the traditional emblem's background.

The new emblem keeps the Girl Scout trefoil's three-leaf clover outline but replaces its solid background with the faces.

Officials of the 2.5 million member organization said the emblem was adopted as part of a national campaign to acquaint the public with modern scouting. The organization concluded its 41st national convention in Denver on Wednesday.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South's bidding wasn't at all scientific but his play was.

Not that it really looked scientific. At trick two he led his 10 of spades. West showed out and the finesse against East's queen became automatic. Later on he had to lose the club finesse, but that just meant no overtrick.

What was scientific about his lead of the 10 rather than the king of trumps? Suppose West held all three trumps?

Would South have gone down?

No, he wouldn't. Give West those three trumps and South must lose a trump trick after playing dummy's ace, but he won't have to lose a club. He will simply cash the king of trumps and the ace and king of hearts. Then he ruffs dummy's last heart and plays out all the diamonds.

If West trumps in he must give South a ruff and a club discard in dummy or lead from his king of clubs. If West doesn't ruff, South throws him in with the queen of trumps.

Hearts are trumps. South leads and must take all the tricks.

South cashes the ace of diamonds and plays the jack from dummy. Then he ruffs a spade in dummy, cashes the last trump while discarding his 10 of clubs. West has been forced to hold both clubs and the queen of diamonds. East must be holding the jack of spades and 10-8 of diamonds.

The ace of clubs lead squeezes East. He has to discard before South and either discard is fatal.

Don't Begrudge A Grandmother

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: All through school I went with Steve (fake name), although my mother hated him. He was a really nice kid, but he was poor, and my mom kept telling me that I could do better. She even told him to his face that she would rather see her daughter dead than married to him!

Well, we loved each other, and got married against my mother's wishes. Naturally, Steve and my mom don't speak to each other.

I recently had a baby (mom's first grandchild) and now she's trying to make up with Steve, but he's still hurt about the way she treated him all those years.

Mom invited us to her house, and Steve says I can go if I want to but he'll never set foot in her house. He says if she wants to see the baby she'll have to come here while he's at work.

What can I do? I can't blame Steve for feeling the way he does, but she's still my mother and this terrible feud between them makes it awfully hard on me.

DOWN IN THE DUMPS

DEAR DOWN: I hope you can persuade Steve that forgiveness is a mark of maturity. Life is too short to hold a grudge.

Harry E. Foedick said, "Hating people is like burning down your house to get rid of a rat." Wise man, Harry.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both of us, and it would be perfect except for one thing.

My husband is a very successful small-town merchant who is well-known and admired in this community.

Every day he pockets part of the cash he takes in so he won't have to pay so much income tax.

Is this considered a serious offense? What can happen to him if he is caught?

I don't dare ask anyone but you. Please print your reply but don't mention my name or town. Hurry your answer. I love this man and I am worried.

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: Avoiding income tax is a very serious offense and if caught and found guilty your husband could be fined, jailed or both. So if you love him, persuade him to play it straight. He may not eat as well, but he'll sleep better.

DEAR ABBY: We work in a store, and our hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. We are usually here at 8:30 a.m. preparing for the day's business, which requires getting the money and merchandise out.

Our problem concerns impatient customers who stand outside between 8:30 and 9 a.m. banging on the door and rattling the knob until it sounds like the building is coming down. Some of them even yell and gesture demanding that we open the door!

We have a sign on the door plainly stating that we open at 9 a.m. Sometimes we open a few minutes early because we'd rather let them stand inside than put up with their infernal racket.

Is there a solution to this problem?

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA

DEAR C.B.: Put a shade on your door and curtains on your windows so you'll not be in evidence. (If they can't see you, they won't hassle you.) If that's not practical, just play deaf.

In Whalen Lake Dilema...

RCC To Pick Birds Or Oil

AUSTIN, (AP) - The Texas Railroad Commission must decide whether to sacrifice migratory birds or at least 42,000 barrels of oil monthly in a controversial brine dumping operation in West Texas

Environmental concerns and the oil industry clashed Thursday at a day-long hearing on whether to continue banning salt water disposal in Whalen Lake in Andrews County.

Brooks Peden, chief counsel for the commission's oil and gas division, presided at the hearing, whose outcome will be decided by the three-member commission.

The agency ordered a halt to dumping Monday and told companies using the lake to explain why disposal should start again. Salt water rises to the surface with crude oil in drilling operations and is either disposed underground or at surface sites.

Disposal was stopped after a commission official inspected the site and found "substantial pollution" and that the area had not ben cleaned up since an earlier hearing.

Midge Erskine of Midland operates the Eos Bird Rehabitation Center and testified she finds ducks and other water fowl dead or dying from oil, salt or chemical pollution.

"It (high salinity) chews up our shoes and takes the oil off birds' feathers," she said. "I can go out there in winter and pick up birds that are salt-covered. They're doomed in less than 24 hours."

Without Whalen Lake, many small operators of the 624 wells using the lake would halt operations, said Ronnie Platt, a consulting petroleum engineer.

"Many oil leases using Whalen Lake are run by independent operators," said Ronnie Platt of Austin, "And it's not feasible for these operators to invest large amounts of money for alternate waste disposal They'd simply shut the wells." The 42,000 barrels that would be lost come from either marginally producing wells, or on leases with only one well, Platt said. Those operators have no alternate disposal method, he added.

Richard Endess, special agent with the U.S. Interior Department in San Angelo said he first discovered the problem in December 1976 while looking for a reported whooping crane.

"Under the federal migiratory bird treaty act, its illegal to take migratory birds by any means and in any manner," he said. "It's been determined that if they land in an oil sludge pit and die, that's 'taking' them."

Abandoning the lake could mean an illegal waste of oil reserves, Platt said, in addition to loss of state severance taxes, state royalties from state-owned leases and a blow to loal economy.

Oil wells with a total oil allowable of 709,830 barrels monthly use the lake, he said

Protestors Planning To Fly Balloons

ST. LOUIS (AP)-Protesting residents who plan to fly weather balloons above their homes could cause the crash of a jetliner near Lambert St. Louis International Airport, say airport officials.

Residents of a subdivision about a mile east of Lambert are planning to fly balloons attached to cords to an altitude of 450 feet above their homes beginning Nov. 3, their attorney said. They are protesting air and noise pollution.

"If a pilot got just a little bit low on the flight path, this kind of action could be...serious," Director of Airports Leonard Griggs said.

Says Secret Investigation...

Meat Prices Set By Large Packers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The secret findings of a federal investigation show most of the nation's meat prices are set by a handful of big packers and market reporting services.

While the year-long effort by the Agriculture Department has not turned up any violations of federal law, department official Charles B. Jennings said a search for possible illeglaities is continuing.

A report on the initial finding - ordered kept secret by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergalnd - found that prevailing wholesale beef prices are set daily on the basis of a relatively small percentage of actual transactions by some of the nation's largest packing plants.

The report noted that widespread criticism of the way meat prices are set is based on the system's reliance on voluntary price reporting by packers, which "does not produce an accurate picture of the market."

Earlier this month, a congressional committee concluded after its own study that the Yellow Sheet - the largest of the reporting service - is potentially subject to manipulation by industry giants at the expense of farmers, small businesses and consumers.

The House Small Business Committee also said that up to 90 percent of all beef carcasses were sold on the basis of prices suggested by the reporting service.

Yellow Sheet officials asked to appear before the committee on a Saturday, but no such meeting was scheduled and the committee did not hear from them.

According to sources who asked not to be named, Bergland ordered the Agriculture Department's report withheld several days after it was sent to him Oct. 16 - three days after the congressional committee made its report - and gave its authors 30 days to overhaul its work and give him the revised report.

Leadership Ability Big Item In Pope Selection

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Long ago in trying to elect a new leader, a religious organization became deadlocked between a "holy man" and an "intelligent man." At that point, a wise, old priest advised:

"A holy man will pray for us. An intelligent man will teach us. But it is the prudent man that will lead us."

The story was told by Roman Catholic Cardinal Basil Hume of England last week in an oblique response to questions about factors leading to the election of former Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Poland as pope.

The implication seemed to be that he was chosen, at least to some extent, as a "prudent" man who could give sound, astute leadership to the church in an age of competing values among individuals, cultures and nations.

The cardinals consistently discounted the idea that Wojtyla was chosen specifically because he had breasted the tides of communism, surmounted its tactics and mastered the fineline skill of keeping faith alive despite the onslaughts of official atheism, seasoning him to cope with anit-religious ideologies widely current in the world.

But the cardinals conceded they had been conscious of those timely and apt credentials.

"We were aware of the reality, but it was not the controlling reality," Cardinal John Dearden of Detroit put it.

Just what strategies the new pope will use in dealing with communist countries or other challenges to faith, remain to be spelled out in positions and programs.

"Everyone knows it's a turn in the road, and we don't know what is ahead," said Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York.

However, the early indications are that the new pope plans to continue firm but prudent persistence in trying to enlarge church rights in repressive areas, a policy pursued by the Vatican in recent years, involving negotiations with communist regimes rather than confrontation.

It also was the pope's approach while in Poland.

Addressing diplomats, including those from communist countries, he declared "willingness to dialogue" with legitimate governments, but that the church sought freedom to worship and to nurture faith.

Whether that stand can be sustained in discreet negotiations, or might lead to open clashes, remained a question, but various churchmen said the new pope brought a veteran's competence to the task.

"He proved his strength and ability in carrying out the ministry under the shadow of the cross," United Methodist Bishop William R. Cannon of Atlanta, referring to the pope's record in Poland.

"Maybe he can find the means of opening the door to evangelism in communist countries."

Study Is Set On Christian Graces

Women of the Snyder area have been invited to participate in a "Study of the Christian Graces," Saturday at East Side Church of Christ.

The study will be conducted by a panel of four well-known women, Mrs. Mary Minick of Fort Worth, formerly of Snyder; Mrs. Montie Foster, Colorado City; Mrs. Winnie Gibbs, associate dean at Abilene Christian University, and Mrs. Mary Oler of Dallas.

All four of the panel members have been associated with various teaching fields and are well-known in Christian education circles.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. at which time coffee and juice will be served. The opening program is set for 10 a.m.

A luncheon will be served at noon by women of the East Side congregation in the multi-purpose building. Nursery care will be provided for children 18 months and younger.

Following the lunch hour, the concluding session will have a question and answer period, involving guests and the panel. The closing devotional is set for 3 p.m.

Stenholm Caravan Due Here Monday

A bus caravan loaded with suporters of Charles Stenholm for Congress will visit Snyder Monday, Oct. 30. The bus will be met by local Snyder volunteers for Stenholm when it arrives. The visit has been arranged by J.B. Cooper of Roscoe, area coordinator, and Annette Donnelly and Bill Seale, Scurry County Coordinators for Stenholm.

Stenholm and his wife Cindy will accompany the group of volunteers meeting the people, answering questions and passing out campaign literature concerning Stenholm. Stenholm is the Democratic nominee for the 17th Congressional District.

Stenholm, a farmer-businessman from Stamford, won the Democratic nomination in a landslide, two to one victory in the June 3 runoff. He is seeking the post being vacated by the retiring, veteran legislator Omar Burleson. Burleson has endorsed Stenholm as "his successor" on numerous occacions.

Stenholm, 39, has based his campaign on seven major issues facing America: inflation, agriculture, paperwork, energy, free enterprise and defense. "The direction of our country must be changed," states Stenholm.

"Government spending must be reduced. Taxes must be cut substantially to provide private investment capital. The Federal budget must be balanced," Stenholm has repeatedly told his followers.

Speaking of agriculture, Stenholm states, "The most critical problem facing agriculture today is low farm prices received vs. high cost of production. Supply management and improved marketing are vital to a profitable agriculture."

"Government 'red-tape' will cost the American public over $100 billion in 1978. Government bureaucracy that restricts or hinders private initiative must be eliminated."

"We must deregulate domestic oil and gas production and support development of non-depletable resources such as solar energy for our future needs," Stenholm says on energy.

"Freedom for individuals to succeed or fail by their own efforts must be preserved," comments Stenholm, a strong believer in the free enterprise system. "Competition is healthy for our country and must be encouraged. Profit is not a dirty word in my vocabulary," he states.

Gas Guzzlers Get Tickets

MADISON, Wis. (AP)- Gas-guzzling cars in Madison are ticketed even if they are legally parked.

"You have been cited for irresponsible use of common resources - gasoline and air," the "tickets" say. "By using your large car, we and many others feel that you are wasting resources precious to all of us. We aren't happy breathing air polluted with tetraethyl lead, unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide."

The tickets, which carry no fines, are issued by the Hoofers Environmental Action Committee, part of the University Outing Club.

Hoofer Mary Ellen Vollbrecht says some people are irritated by the tickets, but the Hoofers aren't worried. "We'd rather have people mad at us than indifferent," she says.

Reformation Fest At Grace Lutheran

Grace Lutheran Church will celebrate a Mini Reformation Fest this Sunday which will include a second annual German supper. The Sunday nearest to October 31 is observed as Reformation Sunday in Lutheran churches. It marks the anniversary of the day on which Martin Luther posted his 95 Theses on the door of the Castle Church in Wittenburg, Germany, setting into motion the Protestant Reformation.

The observance at Grace Lutheran will also include the Children's Co-op Choir participating in the 9:30 a.m. worship service. The choir is jointly sponsored by Grace Lutheran, First Christian, First Presbyterian, and Trinity Methodist churches. The director is Joan Marble.

The German supper will be at 6:30 p.m. and will be potluck style with participants asked to provide a German dish in keeping with the supper theme. Pastor Jon Jensen of Grace Lutheran indicates that other interested persons will be welcome to bring a German dish and participate with the congregation and that it will be appreciated if such persons would notify the church so that enough seating will be arranged.

Gay Activists File Lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Gay Activists Alliance, a group defending the interests of homosexuals, says it has filed a $10 million suit against the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority for barring advertising space on buses for a poster carrying the slogan, "Someone in your life is gay."

The group says the transit agency violated a District of Columbia human rights law prohibiting discrimination on the basis of "sexual orientation."

Get shoes that fit well

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Being a diabetic, my doctor says no operation on my feet. I am 69 years old and have bunions, callouses, corns and a hammer toe. I would like to know how to take care of my feet with all of the problems I have.

DEAR READER — I am sure your doctor is concerned about the changes in circulation to your feet. A diabetic is prone to develop poor circulation to the feet. The danger of surgery is that healing won't occur and amputation may become necessary.

You have a number of the common problems that the people without diabetes also have with their feet, and I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What To Do About Them.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you more detailed information on what to do in each instance for corns, callouses and bunions.

I'd like to point out that every one of these problems you have mentioned is a complication of improperly fitting shoes, in your instance, probably over many year's duration. It is very important for you to get a shoe that is actually large enough in all dimensions for your foot. It is going to be difficult now, because of the bunion and the hammer toe in particular.

You may need to get molded shoes, which means an actual cast should be made of your foot and a shoe built to fit your foot. This can be done. You should be able to move all your toes freely and easily within your shoe. Never wear a shoe with a pointed toe. That probably has something to do with how the bunions developed.

Properly fitting shoes should cause your corns to disappear. You may need some additional padding around the edges of the callouses if they happen to be on the bottom of your foot. Callouses in that location usually mean abnormal weight bearing in that part of the foot. That might be expected because your big toe has moved out of position, which resulted in the bunion and probably the hammer toe.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What do you think of taking a couple spoonfuls of cider vinegar in one's drinking water with each meal to improve the metabolism of the body? Would the continued use of this upset the chemical balance of the body, or have adverse effects on the blood or urine? I have been told that many diseases were helped or cured with the continued use of vinegar or water. Please comment.

DEAR READER — It would certainly be wonderful if such simple measures returned people to full health with exceptional quantities of vim and vigor, but it just doesn't work that way.

Vinegar contains hardly any calories. There are only two calories in a whole tablespoon of it, whether it's dark vinegar or distilled vinegar. It does not contain any important minerals or vitamins.

It does contain acetic acid. This is a very weak acid and doesn't even begin to compare with the acid level of hydrochloric acid normally formed by your stomach.

I am afraid there is absolutely no health benefit whatsoever in taking small amounts of vinegar in a glass of water. The most important ingredient in that combination is the water itself. It might be helpful if you are not in the habit of drinking enough water.

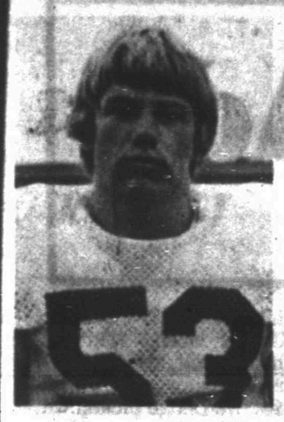
Tigers Can Not Afford Letup



WES PARTAIN

RICHARD CRAYTON

SWEETWATER—The visiting Snyder Tigers could conceivably wind up with sole possession of first place in District 3-3A after their 7:30 game in Mustang Bowl here tonight.

A decision handed out Thursday morning forfeited Lamesa's 12-0 victory over Sweetwater. Snyder defeated Lake View 25-6 in its last outing. Brownfield was idle.

With those facts in mind, Snyder could take an early lead on the rest of the pack by beating Sweetwater tonight, providing Lake View knocks off the visiting Brownfield Cubs. Lamesa, now 0-1, takes a rest this week.

Snyder's 5-2 record is the best it has put together in several years. The Tigers are predicted 20-point favorites over the 2-5 Mustangs.

However, Coach Tommy Doyle was quick to point out that anticipating for an early bi-district berth could be hazardous.

"We tell the kids, look at Texas A&M. They were sixth in the nation, second in offense and third in defense just a couple of weeks ago. Now they lost twice and lost their coach," he pointed out. "No," he chuckled," We don't want to lose any coaches, but it does show how things can turn around on you if your're not careful.

Snyder has beaten the Mustangs in the two teams' past five games. Sweetwater last defeated the Tigers in 1968, but it was a whopper, 48-0.

Frosh Spikers Win; Ready For Tourney

Snyder ninth grade - which goes tournament bound this weekend along with the eighth grade - pulled out a 12-8, 4-15, 14-12 victory over Big Spring here yesterday in volleyball action.

The freshman, under direction of Coach Lynda Jackson, will begin Snyder Tournament play Saturday at 10 a.m., hosting Colorado City in the high school gym.

Meanwhile, Snyder eighth grade all-stars will host Sweetwater at 8 a.m. Saturday in the junior high gym. Eight teams will compete in each bracket of the one-day tournament. All eighth grade games will be played at the junior high, with the exception of 7 p.m. finals. All ninth grade games will be held at the high school.

Texas State Bar Eyed By Sunset Commission

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Since the Sunset Advisory Commission went to work last year on its life-or-death recommendations for two dozen state agencies, attention has riveted on the State Bar of Texas.

Commission members took their first ballot on the bar's fate Thursday and fell one vote short of submitting a recommendation to change it from a mandatory to a voluntary organization.

All lawyers now must belong to the bar as a condition for practicing law.

The commission now has no official position on the bar's future but meets again Nov. 10.

If the 1979 Legislature fails to pass a law extending the life of the bar, it will die as a state agency in 1980.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, moved to transform the bar into a voluntary association of lawyers and give its job of regulating attorneys to a new agency supervised by the Texas Supreme Court.

Reps. Bill Ceverba, R-Dallas; Lee Jackson, R-Dallas; and Lance Lalor, D-Houston, voted with Doggett and Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, for the motion.

Voting "no" were Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, and Sens. Bill Meier, D-Euless, and Pete Snelson, D-Midland.

The commission has four House members and four senators, and it takes the votes of three from each side to submit a recommendation on an agency's future. Meier's vote or Snelson's would have put Doggett's motion over the top.

Bock said that while the bar had not made its own recommendation yet, he understood it would have one shortly.

Doggett's motion was based on a recommendation of the commission's staff. He said it would remove the taint of "compulsory unionism" from the bar and protect lawyers from "supporting political activities they disapprove of."

"It would be consistent with the right-to-work proposition," Doggett, a lawyer, said wryly.

His motion also would have turned over to the state the bar's $6.8 million Texas Law Center - for which lawyers are paying with special assessments that have set some to grumbling.

The commission received a staff proposal to establish an "umbrella agency" to be called the "Department of Occupational Licensing." It would provide most of the administrative, examination, investigation and complaint processing services now provided by the numerous licensing agencies.

The commission voted over-whelmingly, with only Snelson dissenting, to limit the Board of Barber Examiners to licensing barbers and abolish its authority over barber schools and instructors. The board would be reduced to an advisory body if the umbrella concept is adopted by the Legislature.

Schwartz said there was no need to license such businesses and persons as barber colleges and instructors since the Legislature passed the Deceptive Trade Practices Act in 1973.

Eliminating occupational licensing requirements "will give back a little free enterprise," he said.

"It is just going to change the bureaucracy from the agencies to the courts, Senator," Bock said.

"But in the courts, you can get triple damages," Schwartz replied.

Snelson observed, "You have to have a lawyer," to take advantage of the deceptive trade practices law.

"You can get a lot of these remedies without a lawyer...A letter from the attorney general does a lot of good," Schwartz said.

The commission deadlocked and made no recommendations on the future of the State Cosmetology Commission and State Real Estate Commission.

It recommended continuation of the Board of Law Examiners but said it should stop its detailed probing into the private lives of applicants to take the state bar examination.

The commission also voted to retain the Texas Turnpike Authority as a separate agency but require it to hold public hearings at the locations of proposed new tollways before building them.

Her neighbor's keeper

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — When I moved into a new neighborhood two months ago, I just knew I was going to have trouble with the woman next door. She was always in my apartment, either bringing me food or offering to do me favors.

Last week she told me she is dying of cancer and doesn't have long to live. Because she is very nice and doesn't have any family or friends, I am afraid I am going to end up taking care of her when she is bedridden.

The way things are now, she comes over for coffee every day. We have pleasant conversations, but I am beginning to feel resentful.

I am so afraid of hurting this poor, sweet old woman that sometimes I think I should move.

DEAR READER — First, let's look at the situation through your neighbor's eyes:

She is dying of cancer and feels a desperate need to be close to people. However, she also knows most people want to avoid the reality of death. How can she overcome the fears others have in dealing with a dying woman?

She can be very sociable and very generous. In this way, she compensates for wearing the shroud of death.

What she doesn't realize is that her behavior only frightens people away. Otherwise, why would you find her now without any friends?

Understanding your neighbor's problem does not solve your dilemma. If you truly like the woman and want to help, one strategy might work.

She probably will not let go of you at all until she has at least one other friend. Helping her develop a few more relationships will reduce her terror and, at the same time, ease your burden.

Your integration into the neighborhood could also be speeded by taking her to some bingo games, meetings of the Friends of the Library or senior citizens' meetings. As you make new friends, you might want to include her in coffee klatches at your apartment.

Once she realizes you are not going to abandon her, she will feel free to reach out more to others. And you will have created more room for yourself.

There are many worse things than being one's neighbor's keeper.

However, it is possible you do not really like your neighbor or lack the patience to carry out the above plan. If that is the case, slowly cut down your social contacts with her. She will eventually get the picture.

I like the first approach better. Don't you?

City Group To Attend TML Meet

The convention will continue through Tuesday.

Snyder, along with other cities served by Texas Electric Service Co., also will be represented at a meeting set for 10:30 a.m. Sunday with Don Butler, Austin attorney, who has been representing a group of cities in Public Utilities Commission hearings on a TESCO rate application.

Schedule to make the trip to Forth Worth are Mayor John Fagin, Councilmen Rod Waller, Vernon Rannefeld, Milton Ham, Bryce Booker and Jerry McWilliams, City Manager George Patterson, City Engineer Jim Dower, City Secretary Juanita Farren and City Attorney Ernie Armstrong.

County Court Sentences Are Levied

Several persons have been sentenced in county court.

Loomis Lane Allen pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his license was suspended and to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

On the DWLS offense, Allen drew a $25 fine and a 72-hour jail term. On the DWI charge, he drew a $200 find and a 30-day jail term.

Other guilty pleas to DWI charges were entered by Robert Elgi- Lomax, Douglas Layne Arnold, and Joe William Leftwich.

Lomax received a $200 fine and a three-day jail sentence. Arnold drew a $200 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated for six months. Leftwich got a 30-day jail term, probated for six months, and a $200 fine.

In earlier court action, Ernest Lee Jones pleaded guilty to a theft charge and received a 30-day jail term.

Tower, Krueger Hot Under The Spotlight

By The Associated Press

The Texas political spotlight fell Thursday on the heated Senate race between Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, and his Democratic opponent, Rep. Bob Krueger - part of the glare even caught President Carter.

Krueger had to deal with an unannounced appearance by Carter at a Washington fund-raiser that netted $94,000 for the Krueger coffers.

"It is customary for the president of the United States to release his own schedule," Krueger said in parrying some hints that Krueger didn't welcome the association with the administration.

Asked why Carter was there, Krueger said, "Maybe it's pretty obvious we are going to win."

Krueger did give some support to Carter's inflation fight plan, saying it can work if the people "want to make it work."

Krueger also said the release of copies of a newspaper column casting aspersions upon an unnamed senator's morality was a mistake, but "not a big deal."

"If it had been my personal judgment, we wouldn't have sent out the Anderson thing," Krueger said of the Tom Anderson syndicated column printed in the Karnes City Citation.

Krueger also denied Tower allegations he violated Federal Election Code rules for listing advertising and media expenses, calling them bookkeeping errors.

Tower campaign manager Ken Towery told the Fair Campaign Practices Committee that Krueger has further twisted a "distorted" version of Tower's 1970 comments to the New York Times Magazine.

"He is against dual school systems, but believes that 'for the most part blacks are less capable of learning' for environmental reasons," the article said. Tower said a Krueger flyer distributed to Mexican-Americans has changed the quote's reference from "blacks" to "minorities."

Krueger conceded that personality clashes have dominated issues in the campaign. "Sure I'd like to see it continue on a higher plane," he said.

In the governor's race, Democratic candidate Attorney General John Hill said two states have shown interest in filing suit to nullify parts of the 1978 Natural Gas Pricing Act.

THESE TOWERING SILOS near Gillette, Wyo., do not hold grain. Instead, they are used to store low-sulfur western coal. Creeping through the silo at one-half mile an hour, a 110-car train will take on a full load of coal in two hours. About 60 million tons of western coal — most of it from mines in Montana and Wyoming — will travel from silo to market this year via the Burlington Northern railroad.
