Twelve Years of Vocational Agriculture

(By R. A. Young)

Vocational Education Act or is commonly known as the Hughes Act was passed by Congress of the United States and approved by President Wilson the same year. This Act provided for federal aid to the several states in providing instruction in the trades and industries, home economic and agriculture.

As the United States entered the World War about this time all our energies were directed towards winning it, we heard little about the new act. However, as soon as the war ended, the various states thru their legislature began to set in motion to apply the law. They soon discovered that they had very few teachers, none of whom were qualified to teach the subjects and practically all of them held emegency war certificates. The states were then compled to begin training teachers who could qualify under the new law. Thus several years elapsed before we found new teachers going out on the job. Theseteachers by the virtue of the fact that they were undertaking to put across new ideas often failed in their initial undertakings. Each teacher was on his own iniative. There were no set rules to follow; no long time programs in operation; no precedents to imitate. The new teacher had to put on a program that was a combination of ballyhoo, bluff and practibility in order to impress the community with its importance. And of course he had opposition. Men who were prefectly willing to consult an expert to drag up a land title, or employ an engineer on some technical problem, failed to recognize that there was such an expert in the field of agricultural education. Some took the attitude that the farmer was either too ignorant to be taught and that it was a waste of money. Other communities were glad to get half of the salary of an extra paid by the government and often employed high powered athletic coaches as Ag men because they could in this way pay more money and get higher priced coaches. Also the Ag. teacher was a nomad just like his fellow teachers. Little did the communities realize that no adequate program of vocational agriculture could be put over in a period of one year. that good teachers must be hired and retained from three to five years in order to actually put over a worthwhile piece of work. The past twelve years witnessed a remarkable change in the field of agricultural education.

1. The experimental era is over. Communities now demand the work on a subscantial basis or turn it down altogether.
2. State wide programs of work have been adopted. Long time community programs have been worked out.
3. Teachers thru experience and training have become subject matter experts just like the lawyers.
4. Departments are becoming more standardized in matters of housing and equipment.
5. Instruction has been gradually shifting from a standardized theroetical text book instruction on a "Type of Farming" based on local agriculture.

The last stage is the most important. Vocational agriculture is not taught from a text book like history or general science. Text books in agriculture while a definite need are not written to fit local needs. In fact a text book in order to be a profitable seller must cover a wide range of territory and cover only generalizations. For instances a text book in Farm Crops may record the fact that corn is a valuable crop; that it is grown in a wide range of territory on all kinds of soil; that 85 per cent of it is fed on the farm on which it is raised; that six pounds of it in proper combination will produce a pound of pork etc. Yet if the student memorized all of this infromation and was able to repeat it backwards or forwards he would still be unable to determine whether or not corn could be profitably grown in his own community. This he can only learn from a study of conditions that exist in his own particular locality. Indeed he has before him a local laboratory that several million dollars appropriation could not provide in any institution of learning. Some where in his community the major farm problems have been solved or partially solved by some farmer or farmers. This information may have been gained thru years of experience and hard work. But surely it would be a waste of time to expect our young farmer to repeat his experiment; to take ten years to find oud for himself what he might have learned in a half a day?

In ordinary language and without using any psychological terms to express it there are five ways to learn how to do things:

1. Do it yourself
2. Watch some one else do it.
3. Listen to someone tell you how it was done.
4. Read somewhere how is was done.
5. By a combination of the above four.

In future issues we will attempt to describe further just how this learning process is carried to a successful conclusion.

A Trip To California

On the moring of June 21st., Ray second eldest son, age 22 and my brother, Mr. Knight of Roswell loaded our junk, that consisted of two suit cases a water bag and two cow boy beds, tied on the side we found ourselves under way out through the White Mountains. This I always enjoy seeing the bushy tail squirrels chirp and run up those tall pine trees. Also to drink from the well where the old oaken bucket, the iron bound bucket that hangs in the well.

The next of interest was the Elephant Butte Dam. This is very beautiful just after leaving there we took the right hand road that led us through the northern route through Arizona instead of Hot Springs where we had calculated on stopping. We crossed the vast regions of broken, ugly country. Then Arizona.

The petrified Forest was a wonder to us. I walked on tall pine trees there that now are solid rock, could see the knot holes on some, also the bark. The next of interest was the painted Forest. This is very beautiful. Great ranges of mountains with sparkling gold and silver also every color of the rainbow.

Our route led through Flagstaff Arizona. A very beautiful little town, it would be a wonderful country if they could just have rain but the stock business has gone to the bad there as they have not had rain in 18 months, some few sheep but are very poor as they were having to ship water and hay in to them.

OnTuesday the 25th. we began to drive into the wonderful fruit region of California. Great orchards of apricots and Figs. On Tuesday night we found ourselves in Fresno looking for No. 2269 Tyler, where Mother and Dad were supposed to be, yes they were looking for us, for on the morning we left Roswell we drove to the office and wired them we were leaving for Fresno.

By the next day there were brothers and sisters coming from different points to us in the celebration.

Wednesday morning Dad took us for a drive. He took us to Memorial Park, there he has purchased burial ground for he and mother This was very touching as I stood and look up on the beautiful green grass. The flowers already belonging with the drive way the park all lined with flowers and shrubs with pretty offices in the center with the grand pipe organ that furnishes music for all occasions. I stood and wondered would I be there when it happened or would I be far away here in N. M.

But when they are called and when the message comes for me if I cant be there it will be such a comfort to me to know they will be laid to rest where the flowers are blooming. Yes, how much easier it will be for me.

That evening we had six o'clock dinner at my sisters in Frenso, and as we were all seated around the table and as Dear old Dad offered thanks, and with a trembling voice he said 'Oh Lord we have so much to be thankful for. I felt the tears trickle down my face for I knew it was all so true, as there sat Mother with her wrinkled hands folded and her dear old grey head bowed. I felt so mean that I had stayed away these long eight years and kept them waiting so long and reader if you have parents living don't put off as I have done but mawe arrangements soon to visit Mother and Dad.

While in Frenso I went through "Roeding Park", went through the Pine dale and saw the large trees of California drawn up from a stream into the saw-mills made into lumber, dressed and loaded, ready for use, also went through the Sun Maid Raisin Factory. This was very interesting.

We also went through the Crematory. This I always had a great horror of but a mother was being cremated there that afternoon we were shown through it all. The casket had burned to ashes and the metal had all run to the front of the oven and we could see the shape of the leg bones in red hot coals. They showed us in the Hallway where the ashes are placed in a small urn like and placed in the hallway with their names in gilded letters. After our visit there we went to Los Angles, there we saw more skyscrapers than anywhere. On to Ventura, where we visited a sister and family whom I had not seen for 20 years As they are on the coast it was new to me. There we spent the 4th I had always heard of the bathing beauties but I just beg to be excused as I happen to be a dry land terapin.

From there we drove 300 miles to see a brother whom I had not seen in 20 years. He is a truck driver and was loaded out with Rock Ford Canteloupes.

We talked an hour and said good bye and that was our visit with him. The next day we came thru Yuma, Phoenix onto Lordsburg, where we spent the night, next day we drove into El Paso. There we took the street car for Juarez, Mexico a place I had always wanted to see and had always wanted to see a real bull fight but we were one day two late and one day to early for the next one.

We had a real supper in a Spanish Cafe. I heard the finest music, I ever expect to hear, saw dancing I never saw before. Saw more drunk people than I ever want to see again, ad it made me feel so thankful that we lived in New Mexico where people claim to be civilized.

Yes I had a great trip, one I'll never forget and there will always be precious memories of the visit to see Mother and Dad, if you have parents pay them a visit, don't wait until their dear heads are white, don't do as I have done the past 8 years. I kept them waiting too long God bless my Dear old Mother and Dad.

Mrs. L. B. Horner.

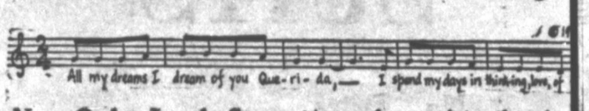
Radio Singer Succeeds Wandering Minst

Taylor Buckley



New Order Lends Security to Songster Profession

New York City.—The minstrels and singers of olden times who wandered from castle to castle seeking their audiences, dependent upon the chance mood of a king, or the whims of a nobleman for their daily bread, homeless and always travel-weary, would be astonished could they view the security and comfort with which the modern singer earns his living.

Radio has revolutionized the life of the professional singer. Songsters of our own day, who before the advent of the radio, traveled great distances from town to town in order to earn a living, are still a little awe-struck at the change radio has wrought to their profession.

He Commutes

Taylor Buckley, famous radio singer, representative of the new type of professional singer, commutes from his home in Trenton, New Jersey, to New York, sings on an average of once or twice a day to a nation-wide audience and is as sure of his income as any business man.

"The radio has brought a new type of man into the sing profession," declares Mr. Bu ley. "Many men who had voices formerly would not g up the joy of a home, a wife children and a steady income the uncertainty of the troop singer's profession. There they entered a business or so other profession.

"But today the radio makes possible for a singer to mark his talent with profit, and live a happy normal family keep his children in school his insurance paid up. The re is a far superior type of man the profession today.

Now Secure

"The middleman songs have come along with security, singer does not have to do eit operatic or street songs. He n sings the favorite songs of great mass of the people, and th quickly say what they like a what they dislike. Right now t clamor is for the Spanish ty songs, like 'Querida,' a Span serenade and a true Latin lo song done in modern Americ rhythm.

"Radio has done wonders the middle class man and family in the way of enterta ment. It has given them the o portunity to hear what th want."

Portales Needs a General Clean-up

Portales at this time is dirtier that it has been in years. There are more weeds on the strrets and on vacant lots, fore trash that should be hauled out of town and more unsightly places than has been seen in the town for many years. The Portales Woman's Club have urged a clean up campaign, and every effort should be made to cooperate with them in putting Portales on the list of cleaner cities

The weeds are a menance to health, causing much suffering from hay fever ,and forming a breeding place for many parasites.

The town should have been cleaned up and put in readiness for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Motorcade, which was in our city Wednesday. They would have caried away a better impression of the city.

Oh, how happy
In our Club work,
As we can sew and play
The whole day thru;
We never tire of club work
For we know there is a prize.
Along the way.

H, what fun
To work for honor
To think of going to college
Some day soon,
Just how to get there
Just thru our Club work
Just living our motto
And obeying our 4H sign.

Canning, Baking and Sewing Clubs
A joint meeting of the Floyd was held on Friday. The Club choose blue and gold as their colors and the yellow chrysanthemum as their flower. The advanced baking girls made cakes. The Canning Club Girls canned plums and practiced demostrating.

Nine of the Arch girls chaperoned by Mrs. Poe and Miss Wetzel piled their blankets, supper and breakfast and themselves into 2 cars and went to the D Z ranch on a "Bunking party". After eating their supper of toasted wenies, sandwiches and cookies all sat around the camp fire, and played games, sang songs and told ghost stories. Blankets had been spread around under different trees earlies in the evening, one here one there but at bed time all the blankets were pulled together and the girls got as close to the chaperones as possible. They were not afraid but a herd of Holsteins was near-by and anyway it is nicer to be sociable. Just as one of the girls prepared to play ghost with the sheet the agent brought but was not allowed to use, real ghosts did come creeping up. They turned uot to be big brothers. There was about an hours skirmisn and as they rode away in the moonlight on a horse, a mule and a donkey all had a good laught. Everbody awake at 4:45 to see a sunrise as beautiful as the sunset the evening before. Breakfast of bacon and eggs and then home. (To get a little sleep.)

5 reasons why
STEEL ECLIPSE
WINDMILLS
run in lightest breeze

Why does the Steel Eclipse run when other mills are motionless? The answer is, scientific design and fine workmanship. Note these five reasons—
(1) Wheel is tilted to take advantage of lightest breeze. (2) All working parts run in oil. (3) All wearing parts are made of the right materials and surfaces are machined. (4) Mill starts on two-thirds load—not full load; quick downstroke and slow upstroke means less effort required on the lift or pumping stroke. (5) All bearing surfaces are in line, reducing internal strain and power loss.
