TEXANS URGE STERLING TO CALL OIL SESSION

St. Jo Auto Distributor Fatally Injured By Plunge Into Elevator Shaft

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

News Item—"Shoulder of beef, which furnishes the housewife with pot roasts, has declined sharply in price during the past year and is now wholesaling at price levels approximately 37 per cent below this time in 1930, according to a statement issued by the Institute of American Meat Packers, based on statistics issued by the bureau of agricultural economics of the U. S. department of agriculture." The item goes on to say that other cuts of beef which have declined substantially include beef rounds, 24 per cent lower; beef loins, 29 per cent lower; ribs, 35 per cent lower.

And in at least some shops in Wichita Falls the reduction in retail prices of certain cuts has been much greater than the reductions at wholesale. For instance, choice tenderloin steak is being sold in some shops as low as 15 cents compared with 35 cents a year ago, round steak is quoted at 18 and 20 cents compared with 35 cents, bacon at 25 cents compared with 35 cents, pork chops at 25 cents compared with 35, lamb legs at 15 and 20 compared with 30, and lamb chops at 20 compared with 35.

A little money will buy a sizeable quantity of meat these days, as it will most other foods. The fact is that there have been reductions in the cost of living almost all down the line, and those who have income can live as they have never lived before. One of these days the public will become convinced that commodity prices generally have been reduced to the same level and then they will commence to buy and live.

The Executives Magazine of St. Louis says there is no net grain surplus in the United States. It says that if there is a small surplus of wheat there is a much larger shortage of corn. It cites a visible supply of 439,737,000 bushels of wheat, which is a surplus of 164,910,000 bushels above the ten-year average, while stocks of corn were 109,246,000 bushels, or 241,763,000 bushels less than the five-year average. The shortage of corn is thus more than twice the surplus of wheat.

Oats harvest has started in the vicinity of Wichita Falls. Some of the oats now being cut are being harvested earlier to get ahead of the army worm. This worm seems to be doing more damage to oats than to wheat. About all that can be done to save infested fields is to cut the grain before it is destroyed by the worms.

These worms will do spectacular damage in some localities but with the wheat and oats crops as far advanced as they are it is not believed they can destroy more than 10 or 15 per cent of the crop. They may do greater damage to row crops.

"Mind your step" is an old warning inculcated in the mind of the race from early childhood, but that it was not heeded by many is shown by the report that a total of 57 per cent of the claims on account of accidents paid by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company last year was paid to persons who did not walk safely.

The use of the hands was responsible for 35 per cent of the accidents paid for by the insurance company during 1930. These accidents were caused by breaking bottles, from splinters, while operating or caring for automobiles, getting the hands pinched by doors and windows, in contact with hot objects, hadling or carrying things, using tools and implements around the home.

Of the accidents that occurred while walking 31 per cent were due to slips and falls and 26 per cent were caused by bumping into furniture or other articles or stepping on tacks, broken glass or other sharp objects.

These were benefit claims paid to the insured and not death claims paid to beneficiaries. Monday's papers tell the stories of the menace of speed to human life. The automobile and the airplane are often named in such accounts.

Vatican City Incensed By Youthful Fascists Attack On Papal Van

VATICAN CITY, May 25. (AP)—Vatican authorities are exercised over what they describe as an attack upon a Vatican City mail van by Fascist youths as it crossed a square before Palazza Venezia, Premier Mussolini's headquarters, yesterday morning.

The vatican version of the incident is that the van, which was carrying some of the pope's own mail, was held up in the traffic with a municipal bus and other automobiles by Fascists in front, who were going in the opposite direction.

As the young blackshirts passed the mail van, which carried a Vatican City number plate and papal arms, one of them is said to have leaped from his automobile and to have struck the driver with a stick. The driver suffered injuries to one arm.

At the same time a Fascist militia officer came to the other side of the van and is said to have struck the helper also causing injuries. He released the driver and took over the van while the injured men reported to vatican authorities, giving the number of the car in which the youths were riding.

Authorities at Vatican City say they know of no motive for the attack.

The youths involved were members of the "Young Fascist" organization who tour Rome every Sunday in trucks and automobiles waving flags and singing the Fascist hymn in memory of the Fascist "action squad," which paraded in the same manner during the Fascist-Communist riots of the early days of the regime.

HE KNOWS NOW

Main Speaker of School Exercises 'Stands By' To Delay Service

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 25.—There is at least one man who will announce himself as the speaker of the evening before the hour set for him to speak the next time he is to address a graduating class. "Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "we are sorry for this delay but we are waiting for the speaker of the evening. We have telephoned to Vernon and were told that he had left long ago. We must ask you to be patient as he will surely be here in a few minutes."

As soon as he had finished, R. M. Fielder stood up in the audience. "I am your speaker," he said, "and I have been here more than an hour waiting for you to begin."

THIEVES WRECK WICHITA HOME

Vandals Spread Havoc In W. H. Street Residence

Malicious destruction of the contents of the home of W. H. Street, 1722 Huff, while members of the family were out of the city, was revealed Monday by Frank Burns, chief of police.

Called to the home by neighbors, police entered and found the floors strewn with clothing and other articles which had been taken from chests and trunks. In some parts of the house, Chief Burns said, valuable clothing had been thrown to the floor in piles knee-high and had been trampled and torn. Every drawer and trunk, he said, was found open.

Chief Burns said nothing seemed to be missing when compared with a list of valuables received by telephone Monday from Mrs. Street at San Antonio. Chief Burns also expressed the belief that a drinking party had been staged in the home, as the kitchen was littered with food scraps and a percolator bore evidence that coffee had been made. Empty food cans were scattered over the home.

Just when the intruders entered the house was not determined. Mrs. Street left Wichita Falls to go to San Antonio about two weeks ago for the health of a small daughter. Ten days ago Mr. Street left for the East on a business trip.

In relating the incident, Chief Burns repeated a previous warning that families when leaving the city notify police in order that special protection may be given their homes. When notified that homes will be unoccupied during a certain period, he said, particular care will be given by patrolmen.

BUSINESS ILLS DIAGNOSED IN RETAIL MEET

National Officer Blames Sluggish Wages For Drop

REMEDY PRESCRIBED

Texas Merchants Advised In State Session At Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 25. (AP)—Mal-adjustment of the nation's exchange, "watered" stocks and the failure of wages to keep pace with machinery developments are the basic causes of the economic depression of today, Guy H. Hulse of St. Louis, secretary of the National Retail Credit association, told delegates to the Retail Merchants Association of Texas and affiliated bodies here today.

Mr. Hulse and E. C. Parker, assistant cashier of the First National bank of Fort Worth, were the principal speakers at the first business session of the convention held in the ballroom of Hotel Lubbock. More than 200 people attended the conference.

Reports Heard

Reports from the presidents of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas, Texas retail credit bureaus and associated retail credit men of Texas were heard prior to the addresses.

The meeting was formally opened with a luncheon at the Hilton hotel, at which E. L. Robertson, president of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association, presided.

Mr. Hulse's talk was on "meeting changing conditions."

In outlining the causes for the changing conditions facing the retail merchants, the speaker cited the present business depression.

Bankers Blamed

"Three basic principles must be considered," he said. "The first is the mal-adjustment of our exchange system, for which the bankers are largely to blame. Bankers should know more about credit methods and credit men should be better informed of banking conditions to remedy this evil.

"The second basic reason for abnormal business conditions is 'watered' stocks. Not drops, but oceans of water were used to boost the value of stocks of all kinds. As it now stands no one knows the real value of many of the stocks listed on the stock exchange. We cannot expect workmen to produce fair returns on investments listed far above their actual values.

"Wages of the American workman have not kept pace with developments in machinery," Mr. Hulse said in giving his opinion of the third cause of the business depression. "None of us would care to go back into the past and live under conditions characteristic of the horse and buggy days, but to insure prosperity, we must see to it that our workmen are cared for. Machines have taken employment from thousands, but the wages of those employed have not kept pace."

Remedy Offered

To meet these changing conditions, the speaker gave specific advice to the credit men. The modern credit man must have personality, understanding of human nature, ability to organize, courage and vision, he said.

Mr. Parker spoke on "problems of the small merchant."

His talk was prefaced with a brief discussion of the present economic condition.

Two hundred and thirty-five delegates had registered for the convention tonight. Sessions are to be continued through Wednesday noon. Monday's program was climaxed with a dance tonight.

Refusal to Bear Arms Closes U. S. Citizenship to Canadian Pair

Theologian and Nurse Denied Naturalization by Supreme Court; Hughes Protests Decision

WASHINGTON, May 25. (AP)—A Yale theology professor and a Canadian war nurse today were refused citizenship by the supreme court because of their scruples against bearing arms in time of war.

The cases of the two, Douglas C. MacIntosh, and Marie A. Bland, have been pending before the court for months, citizenship having been held their privilege by a circuit court of appeals.

The decision was close. Five justices favored exclusion with Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Stone dissenting.

Both MacIntosh and Miss Bland are Canadians and saw service in France during the world war.

'Justice' Clause

MacIntosh would pledge himself to take up arms only if he felt the cause of the United States to be just.

Miss Bland said she would gladly serve as a nurse in any war of the United States but refused to take up arms under any circumstances.

Justice Sutherland delivered the majority opinion of the court. His views coincided closely with those expressed by the court in the famous case of Rosika Schwimmer, Hungarian writer and linguist, who was refused citizenship because of her refusal to take an oath to fight for this government.

Chief Justice Hughes dissented vigorously. He said congress had not required all applicants for citizenship to take up arms and urged that the religious scruples of those opposing war be respected.

Justices McReynolds, Roberts, Van Devanter and Butler took the view expressed by Justice Sutherland.

Hughes Disagrees

Justice Sutherland's voice rose as he delivered his opinion before a crowded courtroom. He laid espe-

Labor Distribution Called Business Cure

HOUSTON, May 25. (AP)—David B. Robertson of Cleveland, Ohio, told the national convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen here today that "a distribution of labor" was the way to improve in business conditions. The session was executive.

"I come to you with no cure-all, no panacea," Robertson said. "But I do say that the wage scale must be maintained and that as a sound and sensible corrective measure, the six-hour day or the five-day week, or both, must come."

DRYS DOUBT WET FIGURES

League Calls Consumption Data 'Guessing'

WASHINGTON, May 25. (AP)—Two dry organizations today took sharp issue with the estimate by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment that the American people are spending $2,848,000,000 annually for intoxicating beverages.

The Anti-Saloon League called the estimate "wild speculation," adding the figures "are not based on any tangible facts but are a synthetic figure composed of one part guess work and five parts desire to discredit prohibition."

The board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church said neither the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment nor any one else knew how much liquor was consumed in the United States but there were many indications it was "very much less" than before prohibition.

APPEALS SENT GOVERNOR FOR EARLY ACTION

Eastland and Fort Worth Chambers of Commerce Lead in Move

SITUATION CRITICAL

Oil Men Predict Further Slashes in Price If Texas Lags

FORT WORTH, May 25. (AP)—Appeal of chamber of commerce directors here for a special session of the legislature for further consideration of the proposed oil proration bill tonight was on its way to Governor Sterling.

Asking cognizance of probable injury to the state's credit structure if an early proration measure is not effected the directors today voted a resolution urging the governor to call without delay a special legislative session.

J. D. Collett and Charles F. Roeser, Fort Worth oil operators, appeared before the directors presenting arguments for immediate action.

Both predicted radical cuts in crude prices in the East Texas fields which sooner or later they said must be reflected in prices of oil produced in other sections of the state.

They declared that the state's revenue from gross production tax had been reduced to 40 per cent and that a similar reduction in University of Texas oil revenue would result.

EASTLAND C-C ASKS EXTRA SESSION FOR OIL

EASTLAND, Texas, May 25. (AP)—The Eastland Chamber of Commerce today passed unanimously a resolution urging Gov. Ross Sterling to call the legislature back in session this week for the purpose of passing some measure, possibly the Howsley oil conservation bill or some similar measure, for relief of oil business in the state.

ONEAL EXPECTS SPECIAL SESSION

Gov. Ross Sterling is expected to call a special session of the Texas legislature about June 22, Senator Ben G. Oneal told The Record News Monday afternoon on his return here from Austin.

While the Texas governor has not said definitely that the legislature will be recalled, Senator Oneal said it was generally expected that the session would open around June 22. Taxation and oil conservation and proration are likely to be two of the major subjects submitted for the consideration of members of the house and senate when they reconvene, according to Mr. Oneal.

Senator Oneal is serving his first term in the legislature, and has been especially active in supporting bills providing for installment payments of taxes. By voting to adjourn the regular session, instead of merely taking a recess, the legislature was able to clear its calendar of approximately 1,000 bills pending for its consideration, Mr. Oneal said. When the body returns to its work, it may consider only such subjects as submitted by the governor.

Mrs. Oneal, who has been with the Wichita Falls senator in Austin since the opening of the regular session, also returned to Wichita Falls Monday.

FIGURES REVEAL CURB INEFFECTIVE

DALLAS, May 25. (AP)—Production of crude oil in East Texas continued its rapid increase last week, official proration figures announced 300,848 barrels daily, an increase over the average daily output of the preceding week of 43,423 barrels.

Much of the increase was attributed to the opening of wells by

Farmers' Active Fight on Army Worm Expected to Check Advance of Pest

Possible spread of army worms in the wheat and oats fields of Wichita county is being actively opposed by farmers throughout the county through the means of early cutting, furrowing, harrowing and discing, according to G. C. McGown, county farm agent, who toured the area north and west of Wichita Falls Monday.

Infection of some fields is serious, but the activity of the pest is not general, Mr McGown declared. Some fields in the vicinity of Electra showed damage Monday afternoon which probably will range from 25 to 50 per cent in effect, he said, but the areas of infection are very spotted. One field of wheat near Burkburnett was found Monday to have been attacked in one spot, it was said, and it is to be cut immediately.

Much cutting of oats near Electra already is underway, according to the information given. Approximately half of the fields now being cut would have been given several more days to mature but, for the army worm invasion, it was indicated, but the remainder now being harvested had matured normally. Most of the worm infection in that area is on fall oats, it was said. Several farmers there are placing deep furrows around the fields in

Germany Builds Plane Equipped To Fly Ten Miles Above Earth

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service Correspondent

BERLIN, May 25.—The world's first "stratosphere plane"—designed to travel at an altitude of 10 miles—is nearing completion at the Junkers works in Dessau today, and the first tests of the motor and airworthiness of the plane will begin in June.

The first tests will be at normal heights up to 15,000 feet, and without the special airtight double-walled-and-roofed cabin that later will be installed for use at an altitude up to 55,000 feet. The inventor, Asmus Hansen, German altitude flier, will conduct the tests.

The first flight into the stratosphere—the stormless spaces 10 miles and more above the earth—will not take place before the end of August. With characteristic German thoroughness, Hansen will test the plane stage by stage, in order to remedy any "infant disease" which might appear.

Some delay has been caused by the special window glass' breaking in the laboratory experiments in which it was sought to determine what pressure the glass would safely stand. As the air-tight cabin will have normal pressure inside for the occupants, while outside at 10 miles' height there is almost no companies whose leases are offset by operators who are running their wells wide open or nearly wide open.

About 73,000 barrels, it was said, was either produced by major companies, or run by them at the Mid-continent posted price. Approximately 43,400 barrels went to storage and the remainder, 184,000 barrels was sold at prices below the posted prices.

NEW GUSHER

W. B. Hamilton of Wichita Falls and J. A. Worsham of Dallas brought in another big well in the Joiner field of East Texas Monday when they completed No. 1 Gambrell. First estimates placed the initial production between 15,000 and 20,000 barrels. Sand was drilled from 3640 to 3700 feet. The gusher is located on a 54-acre lease.

Production by areas:

Longview, 61,511 barrels, (allowable 35,000).

Kilgore, 124,265 barrels, (allowable 60,000).

Henderson, 115,072 barrels, (allowable 65,000).

Potential for the three fields was set at 941,177 barrels from 528 wells, according to latest figures of proration umpires. The 160,000 allowable represents about 17 per cent of that figure.

The average allowable per well under proration was about 300 barrels daily, it was said.

Pipeline runs from May 1 to 15 were reported at 828,405 barrels.

NEW PIPELINE FOR AREA ANNOUNCED

DALLAS, May 25. (AP)—Another pipeline to the Gladewater area was announced here today, the Humble purposing to lay a system of gathering lines into the new district in northwestern Gregg county. The Texas company last week announced a line to the area.

The Humble line is to connect with wells on the western side of the Lathrop area. Pending completion of its line, in the Texas company was erecting storage for Gladewater wells. It expected to begin running oil in three or four weeks.

The price situation was said to continue acute, with a large percentage of East Texas crude being sold below posted prices. Some operators were concerned as to whether the major companies would continue to pay the Mid-continent scale. Fear of chaos should the posted price be abandoned had been expressed by a number of operators.

EAST TEXAS C-C TO STUDY PRORATION

DALLAS, May 25. (AP)—An immediate and exhaustive study of oil proration will be made by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, directors of the organization decided at a meeting here today.

J. K. Hughes of Mexia, was named chairman of the proration inquiry committee. Mr. Hughes and Dr. N. D. Buie of Marlin, president of the chamber, will select eight other East Texans to make the survey. Some of the committee members will be advocates of proration, while others will be selected from those opposing it. The first meeting of the group will be held within a few days.

Today's meeting was well attended and various speakers discussed the chamber's program for development of East Texas. Those making addresses included Jesse Jones, Houston capitalist, Harry Omsted of Dallas, Dr. Buie, John D. Middleton of Greenville, R. M. Kelly of Longview and Guy S. Blount of Nacogdoches.

At an executive session late today, plans for the annual membership campaign June 1 to 6, were discussed. A decision was reached to repeat the all-East Texas products dinner during the next state fair of Texas at Dallas.

President Buie appointed the following committee chairmen: Henry Schmidt, Nacogdoches, merchants' service bureau; Dr. W. H. Cummings, Hearne, public health; J. E. Stanford, Bryan, agriculture, A. G. Mayes, Paris, publicity; R. M. Kelly, Longview, finance; John Morris, Texarkana, fire prevention, and Bonner Frizzell, Palestine, education.

Five Injured In Frederick Crash

FREDERICK, Okla., May 25.—Two women were in a serious condition in a Frederick hospital tonight, suffering from injuries received today when two automobiles collided near here. Three other persons were slightly injured.

The women are Mrs. Mary Justis of Purcell, Okla., and her sister, Mrs. Alice Harrington of Plainview, Texas. Ronnie Harrington Jr., 3-year-old son of Mrs. Harrington, and W. O. Harrington, her brother-in-law, were treated at the hospital for less serious hurts.

The other machine which figured in the crash contained six persons, only one of whom was injured. Miss Emma Hollers suffered a broken nose. S. E. Hollers of Cody, Okla., was driving the car which smashed with the Harrington machine. The accident occurred 10 miles south of Frederick.

Army Worm and Some of Its Enemies

True army worm: full-grown larva or caterpillar, enlarged.

Stages and work of the true army worm and some of its insect enemies: (a) Parent or moth; (b) full-grown larva; (c) eggs; (d) pupa in soil; (e) parasitic fly, Winthemia quadripustulata, laying its eggs on an army worm; (f) a ground beetle, Calosoma calidum, preying upon an army worm, and, at right, Calosoma larva emerging from burrow; (g) a digger wasp, Sphex sp., carrying an army worm to its burrow; (h) Enicospilus purgatus, a wasplike parasite of the army worm. All about natural size. The pictures above were taken from a recent bulletin of the United States department of agriculture.

Discing of Land Protects Many Fields which worms have been detected, and in other places ground between infected fields and other crops is being disced and harrowed.

It was pointed out Monday that a season of dry, warm weather will aid materially in eliminating the army worm. Hope was expressed also that two natural enemies of the worm already observed in counties southeast of Wichita county will extend their activities to this area. They are a fly and a wasp which war upon the army worm.

Use of poison sprays against the pest is impossible with oats and wheat, it was pointed out, although effective where other crops are concerned. Calcium arsenate was said to be the most effective. The most effective means of fighting the army worm was described as consisting of a ditch around the field, into which the pests move; they may then be crushed by dragging a log through the ditch, or may be poisoned. Discing of fields as soon as possible after grain has been cut was urged by Mr. McGown as an important step in killing worms and their larvae.

Some evidence has already been reported of the presence here of the fly and wasp which fight the army worm. The first is a large gray fly which pricks the worm's skin and implants eggs, which when hatched, bring about the quick death of the worm. The wasp causes the death of the worm by stinging.

The army worm's attack upon the stalk of the grain begins at the base. He eats the foliage as he ascends. The tip of the ripening grain first is eaten, and the grain is subsequently detached, falling to the ground. If worms have been at work for any length of time, the ground will be littered with fallen grains.

After feeding has been completed, the worm buries itself several inches beneath the surface of the ground. Drying and splitting of the skin is followed by the appearance of the pupa or cyst. With favorable weather conditions, this process may be completed on the surface of the ground. It is in this stage of development that many of the pupae will be destroyed by discing.

Production and transportation of eggs is the function of the small brownish-gray moth which develops from the pupa. It travels some distance from the point of its appearance, lays the eggs in rank grass or young grain, and the destructive worm again has been created in embryo. Only about eight weeks is required from this egg stage to the moth stage.

cial stress as he outlined what he considered the duties of a citizen.

He said an applicant must be willing to support the government in time of war as well as in time of peace and that a person asking for citizenship could not be allowed to decide when he would bear arms.

Characterizing war as abominable, Justice Sutherland said no way had been found of preventing it and said it was necessary for the life of a nation that it be given the power to call its citizens to its defense in time of stress.

Hughes said the naturalization oath was the same as the oath of office for federal employes and insisted there had never been any suggestion that an office holder in taking the oath must promise to bear arms.

PACIFIST LOSES JOB AS PROFESSOR

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 25. (AP)—Ohio state university trustees failed to renew the teaching contract of Prof. Herbert A. Miller of the sociology department for next year, it became known today. Professor Miller was closely associated with the non-violence campaign of Mahatma Gandhi, Indian leader. He recently came into the limelight by opposing compulsory military training for students at the university.

The trustees decided to continue compulsory military training and President George W. Rightmire in a statement advised faculty members and students that those who were criticizing certain conditions were under no obligation to remain at the university.

The anti-compulsory military movement reached a climax two weeks ago when an unsuccessful attempt was made to call a strike of military students. Shortly afterward a resolution to investigate the agitation at the university was introduced in the Ohio house of representatives. This was followed by the statements of the trustees and President Rightmire.

Several members of the university faculty indicated they would protest Professor Miller's dismissal to the American Association of University Professors. Rumors were current that some contemplated resigning as a protest.

COURT CLEARS WAY FOR A. B. FALL CASE

WASHINGTON, May 25. (AP)—The supreme court today cleared the way for action on any petition which Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, may file before Friday, seeking to set aside his conviction of accepting a bribe in the naval oil reserve leases and his sentence of one year in prison and a fine of $100,000.

When the court of appeals here sustained the trial court, counsel for Fall obtained a stay of mandate so that he would not be committed to the penitentiary pending the filing of a petition for review by the United States supreme court.

The stay expires this week, and it is expected Fall's petition will be filed in a day or two.

Expecting the petition would remain unacted on by the court until it begins its next term in October, Solicitor General Thacher today asked the court to waive an order announcing no petitions for review could be submitted to it at the present term after today.

He also asked the court to permit the clerk as soon as the petition is filed, to submit it to members of the court so that it might on next Monday indicate whether the review will be granted. The request was granted.

Should the review be denied, as the government expects, the celebrated case would be brought to an end, and only the pardoning power of the president could prevent the commitment of Fall to serve his prison sentence.

Even the fairest-skinned woman need no longer dread the sun and winds. Though they cover her face with ugly freckles, she can easily and safely fade out these homely blemishes in the privacy of her home with Othine-double strength.

It is seldom that more than an ounce jar of Othine is needed to clear the skin of the ugly, rusty-brown spots. After a few nights' use of this dainty white cream you will see that even the worst freckles are disappearing while the lighter ones have vanished entirely.

Be sure to ask for Othine-double strength at any drug or department store. Money back if it does not remove even the worst freckles and leave your skin soft, clear and beautiful.—Adv.

pressure, the windows are called upon to withstand unusual pressure from within.

In addition, there is the extraordinary contrast of temperatures of 70 to 100 degrees below zero outside and 65 above zero inside. Glass of special material had to be made so that under such conditions it would not crack. Means have been found to keep the glass from "sweating" on the inside from the moisture of the breath of the pilot and passenger.

Were the glass to crack at an altitude of 10 miles, death would be almost instantaneous.

Germany was surprised to learn that the French plane manufacturer, M. Farman, is building a stratosphere plane which is likely to be finished before Hansen's, to which the French plane is in many respects similar.

The French, however, apparently have failed to solve the window glass problem, for Farman's plane will be entirely of wood and metal, with not even a peephole of glass in the cabin. The French propose to close the cabin above 10,000 feet and fly blind until returning to altitudes of normal pressure.

The German plane has an 850 horsepower motor, the French plane a motor of only 350 horsepower, but the French believe that because their supercharger is of triple capacity and the German plane's only double, they will be able to get nearer heaven than the Germans.

Anniversary Linked With Joan of Arc Fete

ROUEN, France, May 25. (AP)—Because the 14th anniversary of the arrival of the first contingent of the American expeditionary forces in Rouen coincided today with the city's picturesque Joan of Arc fete, Americans took a considerable part in the ceremonies commemorating the martrydom of the maid of Orleans here 500 years ago.

Delegations representing the American Legion and French veterans laid wreaths upon a plaque commemorating the arrival of units of the A. E. F. May 25, 1917, afterwards, representatives of the former American doughboys paid a similar tribute at a monument to France's war dead.

An American Legion delegation also marched with the American flag in a picturesque cortege symbolizing the military history of France from the time of the Gauls who fought Julius Caesar down to the victories of 1918.

American scholars took part in the opening session of a literary and historical congress devoted to Joan of Arc and her period.

'Non-Stop' Driver Causes Crash of Two Autos

Two automobiles were heavily damaged in a collision at Eleventh and Burnett streets shortly before 9 o'clock Monday night, although all passengers escaped without injury, according to a report to police.

The machines were driven by Jesse T. Allen, 2108 Garfield, and Mrs. Ben F. Mewis, 1303 Thirty-seventh street. Mrs. Mewis' small daughter was in the automobile with her.

Mr. Allen told police that his automobile and Mrs. Mewis' machine were driven in opposite directions on Eleventh street, and that a third automobile drove from Burnett street into Eleventh without stopping at a stop sign, causing Allen to swerve his automobile into the Mewis car. Allen said the driver of the third car did not stop. Police were seeking the unknown driver Monday night.

Consider your Adam's Apple!!★

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

What is the effect of modern Ultra Violet Rays upon tobacco? Dr. E. E. Free, one of America's well-known scientists, who was retained by us to study Lucky Strike's manufacturing process, addressing the Illuminating Engineering Society, said:

"The essential effect of the Ultra Violet is the production of better tobacco and of cigarettes regarded by virtually all smokers who have tested them as milder and with a lesser tendency to cause throat irritation."

Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette that employs Ultra Violet Rays in connection with its exclusive "TOASTING" Process—the only cigarette that brings you the benefits of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos.

Crew Busy on Wichita Park Improvements

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., May 25.—Between 75 and 100 men are now employed regularly on improvement projects on the Wichita National Forest and Game preserve. Good progress is being made on construction of 31 miles of wire fencing and the graveling of the roads on the preserve, according to Supt. Harry French.

More than $60,000 is being expended in construction of the wire fencing. The fence is 72 inches high with a barbed wire at the top, making a total height of eight feet.

Between $12,000 and $14,000 is being expended in gravel road improvement. The famous scenic highway through the preserve is one of the roads being graveled.

New cattle guards of the latest type material are being constructed where fences cross the scenic auto routes, a much needed improvement.

Visiting traffic on the preserve is already heavy every week-end.

POPE OPPOSES SPAIN'S POLICY

Vatican Protests Religious Freedom Decree

VATICAN CITY, May 25. (AP)—The vatican plans to lodge a strong protest with the Spanish government concerning its decree authorizing religious freedom for all creeds.

Pope Pius XI, after a lengthy conference with Cardinal Primate Pedro Segura of Toledo, let it be known he considered the decree a clear violation of the concordat between Spain and the papal state concerning special privileges on Catholocism.

Dispatches from Madrid have said the government is drafting a program for the approval of the contemplated parliament by which this concordat would be terminated.

Cardinal Segura, who arrived Saturday night after an unceremonious departure from Spain due to the recent anti-Catholic riots, discussed with the pontiff and Cardinal Pacelli, papel secretary of state, the burning of church property and the treatment of the clerics.

Cardinal Segura is expected to remain here for several days conferring with Vatican heads regarding religious conditions in Spain and the future attitude of the church toward the Spanish republic.

Brookhart Urges Industrial Draft

WASHINGTON, May 25. (AP)—Legislation to authorize the government to conscript industries and business enterprises in time of war was drafted today by Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, for introduction in the next congress.

Brookhart's bill would provide that the government pay to the owners of conscripted property 1 1-3 per cent upon their capital investments.

The Iowan also would impose, in time of war, an income tax of 75 per cent upon net incomes of $100,000 and less and would tax all incomes above $100,000 100 per cent.

He would restrict the profits of industries which are not conscripted to 1 1-3 per cent upon their capital investments.

Natives Live in Want Amid Vast Natural Wealth of Mexican States

U. S. Woman Explorer Finds Oil, Gold, Lead and Silver Deposits Hidden in Poverty-Stricken Regions

MEXICO CITY, May 25. (AP)—An area in Mexico almost flowing in petroleum, rich in gold, lead and silver, and inhabited by wild Tlapanec and Mixtec Indians, was described today by Miss Anita Brenner, author, on her return from a trip into remote areas of Guerrero and Oaxaca states.

Miss Brenner said natives of the region are so superstitious they believe strangers will kill them with such devices as movie cameras and washing machines and then cut up their bodies to obtain fuel. They do not know what airplanes are and believe bulky matter can be sent by radio.

Studies Natives

Sponsored by the Guggenheim foundation with a fellowship to study primitive Mexican Indian life and art, Miss Brenner and her husband, Dr. David Glusker, Brooklyn, N. Y., traveled on horseback and on foot through the region, which is only about 400 miles from Mexico City.

"For an area of 300 miles," Miss Brenner related, "this country is tremendously rich in minerals and oil, and yet the Indians there live in abject poverty because of their ignorance and superstitions.

"In that whole great area we did not encounter a single spring where the waters were not polluted by oil seepage. Petroleum drips from the hillsides, there are asphalt seepages everywhere, good anthracite coal can be picked up and lead can be cut from the rocks.

Mines Guarded

"Locations of gold mines are closely guarded secrets but they take out gold in quantities to supply money for their meager wants.

"Strangers are not welcomed in the area, which begin about 300 miles southwest of Mexico City. Outsiders are tolerated in certain towns, but in others they are killed without warning if they wander too close to hidden gold mines or idol shrines."

Miss Brenner described the idols as stones carved to represent animals and peculiarly shaped rocks. Animal and fowl sacrifices, preceded by weird ceremonies, are made regularly on the theory the idols need food. She found no evidence of human sacrifice.

Traces of Christianity, carried to the region by Spanish missionaries years ago, have disappeared. Ancient Spanish chapels and shrines are now used to house the pagan idols.

Natives Hostile

Even in this primitive district economic depression has been felt, she said, and in some places difficulty is experienced in supply-animals for sacrifice. Because of this she was able to purchase a few of the smaller idols.

The author and her husband said they found an immense new archaeological district of shrines, temples, pyramids, forgotten idols and roadways, which they believe would supply valuable information, if excavated. The drawback to this, they said, is the hostile attitude of the Indians to strangers.

A Foolish Flier
Faith Built on Hell
Back to Jerusalem
16th Century Rackets

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Another stunt flier, Charles (Speed) Holman, flying upside down at 300 miles an hour, meets his death in a plane over the Omaha air races. A crowd of 15,000 persons witnessed the performance of a clown who threw his life away to amuse a lot of rubbernecks.

Flying upside down does nothing to further the cause of aviation. It injures the cause—just as walking on one's head will not further the cause of physical culture, or any other cause, for that matter. America does not want air fools or air hoodlums, who turn an art or science into a vaudeville show. Flying is risky enough without turning it into a stunt. Men like Holman might be brave enough to risk their lives for the sake of providing a thrill to spectators, but some would call his bravery foolish bravado.

Dr. Minot Simons in All Souls Unitarian church rejects faith built on hell, while Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein of the Institutional synagogue deplores the fact that we have abandoned old-time religion. Dr. Stockdale at St. James' Methodist church says America fails in religious progress. Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker of Calvary Protestant Episcopal church finds us, on the contrary, facing spiritual awakening. Dr. Crowder finds peril in too much activity. Dr. Black at Brick Presbyterian declares leaders of the church were men of action.

All these reverends and rabbis are right, because the truth is greater than they can put it, and because the truth of life is vast enough to contain and reconcile all contradictions, seeming or real. The falsifiers of life are the people who talk God and the spiritual life, and break bread with politicians.

Perhaps it will comfort some of us to learn that we are not so wicked these days as our biblical forefathers were. The Rev. Dr. William W. Rockwell at the Manhattan Congregational church in New York goes as far back as ancient Jerusalem to illustrate and prove this point. He cites the instance of Micah, the prophet, who castigated greed, bribery, and violence, that bound in those days the rich and the poor alike, to an extent far more general and vicious than now.

The Rev. Dr. Rockwell need not have gone back as far as Jerusalem of the fourth century for a parallel to the wickedness of New York. Not so long ago a Tammany boss, the notorious Tweed, "gyped" the fair city of $200,000,000, with the approval or connivance of some of New York's so-called best citizens. Charlie Murphy sought to eclipse the accomplishments of Tweed, and may have succeeded.

Greed, graft, racketeering is not exclusive with us, or our age. As soon as man acquired property, which he had to defend, just so soon did the mind of man turn to the art of deprivation. In the 16th century a racketeer was called a "leaguer." In a contemporaneous journal, Pierre de L'Estolle says: "In these days, to rob a man's neighbor, to murder his nearest relatives, to plunder altars, to desecrate churches, to violate women, to hold every living soul to ransom, is the regular business of the leaguer."

Edward S. Harkness' gift to Columbia university of a library which shall contain ultimately 4,000,000 volumes will give this library second rank in the world, exceeded only by the Bibliotheque Nationale, which boasts 4,050,000 books. The New York Public library, with its 3,296,281, comes third. The British museum has over 3,000,000 titles.

Mr. Gustave Davidson, the poet, has prepared an article which shows that the ancients had extensive libraries of their own. The most famous one was at Alexandria, which burned down. It contained 700,000 manuscripts. Marc Anthony replaced it with a library of 200,000 volumes.

A Friendly 'Industry'

A GOOD many years ago the French and Germans had a contemptuous way of calling the English "a nation of shopkeepers." Any American who takes a motor trip during his summer vacation must wonder occasionally if the United States will not soon be called a nation of inn keepers.

There hasn't been any especial increase in the number of hotels, to be sure. But the main highways through the nation are dotted today with an almost infinite number of private homes where tourists can hire rooms for an overnight stop. In many of them meals are served as well.

No one has ever counted these places. The number must be high in the thousands. On a well-traveled road one can count scores of them in an hour's drive. And the surprising thing about it all is that most of them are very good places to stay. As a general thing they are clean and comfortable, and the people who run them are friendly.

Here is a new industry, born of the automobile, whose annual gross income must be very large. But it is not as a new industry that it is interesting. It is a new social custom, a new manifestation of modern democracy; as such, it is worth a little study.

When you travel about the country and stop overnight at these "Tourists' Rooms" places, you get a new and intimate contact with your fellow citizens. You get to know them, however briefly, and you get a glimpse into their lives. You make friends with their children, you sit in their parlors, you eat in their dining rooms and you sleep in their beds; and when you move on you feel that doing all of those things has been an enjoyable experience. You are not a stranger, driving through a strange part of the country; all along the road there are houses where you can stop and be a guest for a few hours—a paying guest, to be sure, but a guest nevertheless, admitted for a short time to the intimacy of the family circle.

All of this, perhaps, isn't especially important. Yet there is something democratic and friendly about it that warms one's heart. It is reassuring to discover that this far-flung, utterly informal "industry" has not found a lot of rules and regulations necessary; to learn that traveler and host can take one another at face value and that it is only very rarely that either has cause to regret it.

The automobile already has done a great deal to break down provincialism and misunderstanding. These impromptu roadside inns are finishing the job.

But He's Still in Trade

SO Sir Thomas Lipton has finally been elected a member of England's Royal Yacht Squadron—after all these years!

Sir Thomas has been England's best known yachtsman for a long, long time. But the Royal Yacht Squadron would have none of him. Even when the late King Edward VII interceded for him, the club refused to make him a member. Sir Thomas, you see, was a "tradesman"—and hence the aristocracy could not recognize him.

Now he is in, a duly qualified member. It may be that his years and his honors have taken the cure off the fact that he has earned his own living; or it may be that the English aristocracy is loosening up a bit. Either way, the mere fact that he was excluded for so long casts a revealing light on the mental attitude of the upperclass Englishman.

The Direct Primary

A WISCONSIN politician, speaking before a legislative committee that was considering a bill to restore party nominations by caucus, recently declared that the direct primary is the blame for the rise of such men as "Big Bill" Thompson, the former mayor of Chicago.

No responsible party, he said, would nominate such a man, but in a direct primary demagoguery and bluff can put him over. Hence, to get better candidates, we should do away with the direct primary.

This argument isn't particularly new, but it has a plausibility that makes it bob to the surface every now and then. However, the fact that a clown can win a nomination occasionally is simply one of the chances we have to take in a democracy. The remedy is a wider education of the average voter, not a return to the favorite instrument of the machine politician.

China Throws Off Its Chain

THERE is a new China. It has been in the making since the last of the Manchu emperors was dethroned. Now the governing party of the new China has declared that after Jan. 1 persons belong to communities in China which enjoy extra territorial privileges will be under the jurisdiction of Chinese courts. In other words, Chinese courts presided over by Chinese judges are to sit in judgment on all persons, native or alien, charged with the violation of Chinese laws. Why not?

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

That grand Harry Hershfield gag is too amusing to hold until tomorrow . . . I mean the one about the three dialecticians who were attending a convention in New York . . . And who were dwelling in a new 45-story hotel . . . They made the rounds of the Broadway silly places and had returned to the skyscraper hostelry at 4 a. m. . . . The clerk greeted them with this mournful news: "Sorry to inform you, gentlemen, that the dynamo is on the bum, and none of our elevators are working. If you'd rather not climb up 45 stories to your rooms I'll arrange cots for you in the lobby" . . . "No, denks," said the spokesman for the trio, whose name was Jake, "we dun't mind wukking opp stairs futty-five flights" . . . Then Jake turned to his companions and made this proposition . . . "To make de time fly fest, and it should take our minds uff wukking so many sturries, I will tell jokes furr de foist feeftinn flights. Dn de sacond feeftinn Sam will sink sunks. Den furr de lest feeftinn flights Moe will tell sad stories, and befurr we will know it we will already be on de futty-feeft' flurr!" . . . So they started their long climb . . . Jake told jokes for the first 15 flights, and Sam sang songs for the next 15 flights . . . "So now," cried Jake, "here is where Moe starts in wit sad sturries!" . . . And Moe snapped: "And have I got a sad sturry to tell? I can't vait!—I forgot de keys!"

That "Seed" movie at the Rivoli is an incessant lump in the throat . . . It is the best "editorial" yet on Men Who Stray . . . I liked that epigram best: "The minutes go so slow—and the years so fast" . . . What an eye-filling ensemble Ziegfeld has collected for his new "Follies" . . . Forty-four "headaches" for fellows who think they Live and Learn, but only Live! . . . Only 36 of the sirens, however, will be in the lineup—the other eight will be spears . . . In case of illness, indisposition and, of course, sudden elopements . . . The ticket speculating business must be in a sorry way, considering that nearly all the brokerages have forced most of their staffs to take six-week holidays without wages . . . Broadway certainly is getting That Look about it, at that . . . "Coney Island," as one of its critics observed, without a scenic railway!" . . . Bob Garland came up from Baltimore to make a better living here and called Broadway, "just another Main Street—with the spotlight on it" . . . Mebbe so, mebbe so . . . Yet every time I take the express from Atlantic City, which makes the run in three hours—it never seems less than ten.

Can't shake that contagious tune out of my head . . . That "Star Dust" thing . . . What a beautiful melody it is—when they retard its tempo . . . I like it best though when they syncopate it . . . It has more torch in it, then . . . No matter how ordinary the torch melody, it manages to spellbind the lads and lassies who frequent the Broadway asylums . . . They go to them chiefly to divert their minds—from this problem or that one—usually a problem about Love . . . And when the entertainers warble "Smile, Darn Yer, Smile!" it only lifts them high while the ditty is being done . . . When it is finished they all relax again and put on their brooding masks . . . Oh, can you tell . . . Particularly after 5 . . . That's when the mind leaves the body, and the groups who have oiled themselves with Wyoming Ketchup do not seem to care what oglers may be thinking . . . They get the miseries again, and seem happiest in that mood . . . That's why "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone" and the other torch tunes are the favorites . . . Wonder why no one ever has explained whence comes the slang word "torch?" . . . They tell you it means a sad song, a ballad or a song about people who are having a difficult time of it with the One They Adore Most . . . Torch must have come from "torture!"

I like that pleasant woman who manages the Embassy Newsreel theater . . . She has a mess of charm . . . Wonder what those uniformed youths think about as they congest the pavement in front of the various movie places and monotonously jabber how "great, colossal, stupendous and magnificent" the feature flicker is . . . It's a 20 to 1 shot that they never even see them . . . That slim guy on those unusually tall stilts who advertises this and that along Broadway must have felt silly Sunday night . . . When a 17-year-old giant, taller than himself, ankled by without stilts—or a sign on his back . . . It must have been interesting for that newspaper reporter and the 18-year-old girl who wrote "Whistling in the Dark," "Ho, Hum" and other ditties . . . He went to her office in the Broadway district to interview her . . . And they were locked in until midnight . . . When the watchman released them . . .

Eugene O'Neill can get into and outta this town with the softest pedals . . . Here he is back nearly two days and only one or two, well now it is three, people know it . . . The Players club has its "scandal" after all these years . . . The blackballing of that very rich and prominent (former) newspaper publisher amazes me . . . Wonder if any of the former World staff had anything to do with it? . . . Arthur Sinclair's performance in the new comedy "Old Man Murphy" is something to cheer about . . . What an actor he is! . . . I hadn't laughed so much since the premiere of "Once in a Lifetime" . . . Show business appears to be getting back its health, if what they say about "Band Wagon" is so . . . In Philly, where it is shaking off its avoirdupois, they say the house has been sold out for the run there . . . And that the New York ticket brokers have already made a long "buy" . . . And that Billy Rose's "Crazy Quilt" is another promising revue . . . Such news makes you want to go to the theater—even on passes . . . Wonder why people steal theater tickets that are sent to the critic? . . . They not only risk a term in the federal pen, but the people to whom they sell or give the ducats are first embarrassed and then thrown out of the theater . . . For all the critic has to do is ask the manager for his "locations," which are kept on file at the box office . . . and invariably the guilty one is fired . . . Some chumps never will learn that the toughest thing about a job these days—is getting one.

THE LONE TRIP OF THE "HELEN E"—In March 1918 the packet "Helen E" then in service between Point Pleasant, W. Va., and Cincinnati, broke from her mooring at the Smith Dock company in Point Pleasant and made the trip from there to Evansville, Indiana, without a crew. An ice gorge caused her to break from the mooring, and ice on the river prevented anyone from boarding her before she reached Evansville. The Helen E is now owned by Capt. H. C. THE STORY SO FAR

At the cost of love Sally Blair determines to succeed in business so that she can buy the luxuries she craves. She breaks a date with Peter Douglas, in order to go to dinner with John Warner, her boss. Warner becomes rather annoying and Sally runs away from him. She worries all night about losing her job, and about hurting Peter, whom she likes.

CHAPTER FIVE

Peter passed her desk the next morning with only the slightest of nods. Sally's heart sank. Then he was angry because she had broken a date with him. Yesterday he had been so affable, so friendly. Today he was cold.

Everything today was cold, anyway. Horrible. The uncertainty of it.

"How are you this morning?" Mame Smith asked inquisitively.

Sally raised her eyebrows. "Fine," she said coolly, for she didn't want to be questioned too much. She was anything but fine. She was miserable. Her head was throbbing, and her nerves were jumpy. Whenever she thought of the night before, little shivers raced through her body. Shivers of shame, and embarrassment, humiliation.

What would Mame say, Ann say if she told them, that after all her boasting, her cocksureness, she hadn't been able to handle John Warner after all? That she had made a sickly fizzle of it. That she was sitting now worrying whether she had a job or not. Trying to work, but not succeeding. Trying not to think about dinner at the Beach inn, but thinking about it all the same.

Warner had come in at his usual time, about 9:30, stalked into his private office, unsmiling aloof. He was still there. He hadn't emerged since his entrance.

The Ruined Dress

Luckily Ann had been in bed and asleep when Sally had come in the night before. Just then, she couldn't explain the fiasco of the evening. Quietly, so that she wouldn't disturb her roommate, she undressed without turning on the light, and hung the torn dress at the back of the closet, under her winter coat. She didn't want Ann to see it.

The evening had been bad enough without ruining her dress. But the dress made it even more of a catastrophe than ever. Sally only owned two dresses and to have one of them wrecked was a tragedy. Surreptitiously she had looked at it this morning, while Ann was in the kitchen making the coffee. Hopeless. She could never wear it again, even with the neatest of mending. Around the house, perhaps, but not to the office.

Rotten luck.

Ann must have seen she didn't want to answer any questions, because she had asked none. Nice of Ann. She was a dear.

"How do you like playing with fire?" Mame had another bit of leisure.

Sally pretended to be busy. Pretended not to hear.

"Not so hot? Maybe you'll take my advice next time."

Joyce Is Malicious

Ten o'clock. Nothing had happened yet. Perhaps she wasn't going to be fired after all. At 12 she went to lunch with Ann and came back feeling more confident. If Warner had been planning to discharge her, wouldn't he have notified her in the morning?

At 2 o'clock, Joyce Haller approached her desk. "Mr. Martin wants to see you, Sally." Roy Martin was one of Warner's assistant managers. He had two.

"Have a nice time last night?" Joyce asked maliciously as Sally rose.

"Fine." Everyone knowing she had gone out with Warner, when she hadn't told a soul but Ann. Everybody curious. An angry flush covered her cheeks as she hurried into Martin's office. As if the humiliation of the private room wasn't enough. But to have to listen to comments, answer questions . . .

For an hour she hammered on her typewriter, venting some of her wrath on the keys.

"Oh, yes, Miss Blair, sit down." Martin cleared his throat noisly. He was a meek little man, in his early thirties, a small blonde mustache on his lip that quivered when he talked. His desk was piled untidy with papers, and he always looked tired from over work.

Sally Is Fired

Sally sat down and waited, knowing what was coming, and yet hoping it would not come. What else had Martin asked her to come in for but to fire her? For Martin did all the firing. Warner squirmed away from that. He merely told Martin whom to fire, and his henchman did his duty manfully.

"Ahem—" he cleared his throat once more. "The matter is, Miss Blair, that Mr. Warner has been given orders to cut down his staff. Another economy wave. You understand?"

The girl nodded mutely, her throat tightening, her fingers gripping the arms of the chair. It was coming.

Mr. Warner told me this morning that you are to leave Saturday. You'll get two weeks' pay, our usual custom."

Sally saw the papers on the desk swimming before her dizzily, saw the blur that was Roy Martin fumbling with them, gawing among them.

"I'm—ah—very sorry, Miss Blair. Your work here I understand has has been perfectly satisfactory. Perhaps, later, when the economy wave is past, you can have your position here back—"

A lie, Sally thought. She'd never get her job back.

"I'll arrange that, if you need references, you can have them."

"I see."

In a moment she was out of his office, walking as calmly as she could back to her desk, inwardly seething, furiously angry at Warner. She had seen girls come and go in the office, just as she was going. Martin calling them in, preaching about economy, two weeks' salary. Some of them had told her afterward just what Martin had said, and laughed bitterly about it. Sally wasn't laughing. She couldn't laugh now. She might later.

Sunday night she had been so sure of herself, so sure she could work out her future to her own design. Now at the first small step she was beaten. And the dream she had dreamed was blown away, the way dreams will be. Like smoke.

It wasn't as if she hadn't known. She had. Perfectly well she knew what would happen if she went out with Warner. Wise, was she?

For an hour she hammered on her typewriter, venting some of her wrath on the keys. It wasn't only the disappearance of the dream that bothered her, it was the shame of last evening, still with her. She'd never forget it. Warner's kisses on her lips, the feel of his searching thick lips on her skin. The mere thought of them made her ill.

Once she looked at Ann across the room, and saw her blue eyes on her, sympathetically. Ann had probably guessed what had happened, as most of the other girls in the office had. Mame hadn't said a word since her return from Martin's domain.

She Contemplates the Future

After Saturday she'd never be in the office again. A new start, some place. Fresh plans. Jobs were scarce, too. She might not find one right away. Might be weeks without one. What was it that Mame had said about a friend of hers? That she'd been out of work nearly two months, and had almost starved?

The Record News Offers A Booklet on Religions of the World

Did you know that there is a Bible that has become known as The Wicked Bible? It was published in 1631, and by a printer's error omits the "not" from the seventh commandment, making it read, "Thou shalt commit adultery." For this mistake the printer was fined 300 pounds. Then there was another edition of about 1702 that became known as The Printers Bible because it makes King David complain that "the printers (princes, it should have read) have persecuted me without cause." Another famous edition is The Treacle Bible of 1568 which makes Jeremiah 8:22 read "Is there no treacle (instead of balm) in Gilead?"

There are still other curious editions or versions of the Bible, all of which are told about in the booklet, Religions of the World, now available to readers of The Record News. In ordering, use this coupon.

STUDENTS FIND BIBLE SCRIPT

Chicago Immigrants Yield Precious Copies

By MILBURN P. AKERS

CHICAGO, May 25. (AP)—American scholars no longer find it necessary to make expensive pilgrimages abroad in search of ancient Biblical manuscripts for Chicago is yielding an increasing number of valuable "finds."

Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, professor of New Testament literature at the University of Chicago and translator of a modern version of the Bible, said today there is an untold number of valuable manuscripts among Greek, Armenian and Syrian immigrants here.

Impetus to manuscript hunting in Chicago was given by discovery of the Colosimo Bible, otherwise known as the Argos Lectionary. This volume, dating back to the 10th century, was found in January, 1930, in the former gang haunts of "Big Jim" Colosimo.

The great-grandfather of its owner had rescued the manscript from a church at Argos, Greece, following looting of the structure by the Turks in 1821. It remained with successive generations of the family until brought to Chicago.

Treasures Sought

If such a "find" could be made in Chicago might not other equally valuable manuscripts be found here among Greek, Syrian and Amenian immigrants? So reasoned the Biblical scholars at the university.

Thus manuscript hunting in Chicago came into being and the results of less than two years of searching have exceeded expectations of the department.

Since the Colosimo Bible was uncovered Greek, Syrian and Armenian Biblican manuscripts have been located in the teeming foreign colonies of the city. Some of them have been purchased by the university; others will be added as soon as funds are available.

The manuscripts have been in possession of these families for generations and in some instances are regarded as the "family Bible." In many cases their possessors are reticent about them or decline to part with them, or even loan them for study.

Fragments Found

The latest discovery was that of a Syrian manuscript containing the end of the book of John and the beginning of Paul's epistle to the Romans. The owner said he could obtain the rest of the manuscript in Syria and has sent for it. The part in his possession has been sold to the university.

An Armenian manuscript containing the four gospels and written in the 16th century is another "find." This work has 75 illustrations done in water colors on the parchment.

A 13th century Greek manuscript containing the gospels of Mark and Matthew also has been located and purchased.

FUTURE STEEL SOURCE FOUND

Rich Ore Deposits Revealed In Minnesota

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

MINNEAPOLIS, May 25.—Beginning of development of a future source of steel was announced tonight at the University of Minnesota.

This source is an estimated billion tons of low-grade ores in the Mesabe range, which is yielding already the richest store of the nation's high grade ores at the rate of 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 tons annually. Low grade ore is mineral having less than 40 to 45 per cent of iron content, and mostly untapped for steel-making.

Plans for analyzing this Mesabe low grade reserve were made public by E. W. Davis, superintendent of the mines experiment station at the university, and Dean W. R. Appleby of the school of mines and metallurgy. The amount of low grade will be measured and mapped and its types classified.

Some of these ores are magnetite requiring magnetic separation, some can be brought to higher grade simply by washing, others require crushing or roasting, while some depart in different ways from present shipping standards.

"The mining companies have data," said Mr. Davis, "that should make it possible for us to make a very thorough analysis of the deposits and on the basis of this, show what the future of the industry is to be, and also what types of equipment should be developed so that the future can be assured.

"There is no question that Northern Minnesota holds tremendous deposits of these lower grade ores, most of them not available for shipment under present extractive methods. Year by year, however, more relatively low grade ore is being shipped after being brought up to standard by having some of the very highest grade mixed with it. For approximately eight years past the percentage of treated ore included in annual Minnesota shipments has risen steadily.

Seven thousand dollars a year for two years has been set aside for low grade ore research.

$20 A WEEK

a very propitious time for hunting a position. If it were fall it would be different. But June . . .

Warner left the office with his hat and cane at five. Sally watched him go through the door into the hall, with narrowed blazing eyes. He didnt' care, of course, that she might be a long time finding another job. He didn't care about any thing but his pride. She had fought him last night, run away from him, and his pride was hurt.

At 5:30 she and Ann left the office for the elevator. Ann was quiet and Sally had no desire to talk. When they were home, away from these crowds, she would tell Ann that she was fired. Not before. Mame's aimless chatter in the ride down in the elevator, conversation to which neither Sally nor Ann responded. Joyce's ever smiling lips, her eyes never leaving Sallys' face. Hher perfume, scenting the elevator heavily. Gardenia. Sally cringed. The odor brought back only too vividly the flowers Warner had given her and which she had jerked crushed and bruised, on the bus last evening.

Sally's Future Husband

"There's Harvey Davidson, himself," Mame said fliply as they reached the sidewalk.

It was Mr. Davidson getting into his limousine, a jet black car. The chauffeur was holding open the door, as his master entered. Sally caught a glimpse of his well-tailored gray suit, his soft panama hat, his face as he turned to give an order to his driver. Davidson was tall, slim, distinguished looking. Under his hat, his hair was quite gray.

Harvey Davidson . . . She bit her lip until it ached when she thought how confident she had been Sunday night to Ann. The sixth item on her list. A millionaire husband. And she had told Ann that Harvey Davidson was to be that husband.

How silly it all seemed now. How hopeless.

After Saturday she would no longer be in the employ of the Davidson Insurance company. She would be walking the streets looking fo ra job.

"Nice looking guy, H. T.," Mame continued. "And he's got a good looking daughter too. I saw her once riding with him. Stunning."

"Let's go, Ann." Sally wanted to get away from the limousine which was caught in the traffic ahead. Wanted to get away from the sight of its gleaming black body, and the thoughts the occupant in the back seat brought her.

Ann understood. She turned with Sally and followed her in the opposite direction to the subway station.

Sally can't live without a job. Even $20 a week was better than nothing. And jobs are scarce. What is her next move?

Mrs. Karrenbrock, in costume as old Mother Hubbard and assisted by a group of tiny girls dressed as children of different nations, gave "Mother Hubbard's World's Cupboard." During the clever playlet, Thelma Simmons, accompanied at the piano by Anna Mary Lowe, sang the story of the nation's accomplishments as the children presented to Mrs. Karrenbrock, the gifts of each country for the world's cupboard.

The refreshment plate was a pretty summery arrangement, stressing in arrangement the unique atmosphere of the party.

Members present were Mesdames B. Byman, M. L. King, J. O. Bradshaw, Tom Underwood, Zelia Mae Andree, J. E. Handy, D. A. Allen, W. Roberts, W. W. Sherrill, W. L. Dalton, L. E. Miller, J. A. Evans, J. H. Parker, C. B. Earle, C. E. DeWitt, N. Manoushagian, J. H. Simmons, Hal Shirey, Annie Friberg, G. W. Corkhill, R. W. Lane and Misses Anna Mary Lowe and Thelma Simmons and the three hostesses.

Health and Diet Advice

Bruises and Contusions

Some people bruise more readily than others, Blondes with thin skins usually bruise more readily than brunettes who have thicker, dark skins. A thin skinned person may show a bruise following a pinch.

After a bruise the flesh turns black and blue and is swollen. A bruise indicates an injury of the underlying tissues, although there may be no actual break in the outer skin. The discoloration is due to the escape of blood from small blood vessels. The capillaries are damaged so that they allow an unusual amount of serous fluid to collect in the injured part and the swelling results.

The seriousness of a bruise depends upon the condition of the blood vessels and age of the patient. In old age the blood vessels being more brittle, the bruise takes more time to disappear than during youth.

People often suffer from contusions after an automobile accident. Severe contusions may be serious; for example, a hard bruise to the wall of the chest may allow pneumonia to develop.

Bruises often result from very simple causes, such as running into a door, falling over a broom handle or children's toys, falling from step ladders, bumping into tables, striking the foot on a sharp rocking chair, catching the fingers in a car door or a washing machine, slipping on a waxed floor, and falling from steps. Only last week I happened by where an elderly women had tripped in stepping from the curb, striking her cheek on the pavement which caused a large bruise to form. It turned black and blue very quickly.

As soon as the bruise happens the best thng to do is to elevate the injured part as quickly as possible. This will be helpful in lessening the bleeding from the small capillaries. Next, apply a very cold compress by wringing a towel out of cold water. Lay the compress over the bruise or cut and keep it there. The quicker this is done the better, as there is less bleeding in the tissue if the cold water is used immediately.

If the bruise is still swollen 12 hours later, then use hot applications as hot as can be borne, putting on the hot applications for 15 or 20 minutes, then removing them and using them every two or three hours. The heat will soothe and relax the pain and assist in absorbing any clotted blood. Do not use the hot applications at first but only after the tissue bleeding has stopped.

The moist heat may be used by laying a small moist towel over the affected part, placing over the towel a hot water bottle and covering all with several thicknesses of a turkish towel or blanket. A long continued treatment with a therapeutic lamp is to be recommended if such equipment is available.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Curving Fingernails

Question: V. M. G. asks—"Will you kindly tell me the reason and cure for curving fingernails? As soon as my nails grow beyond the tips of my fingers they begin to curve backward. This is very uncomfortable and also necessitates my keeping them cut short, which is also unpleasant. They sometimes crack in a flaky line about half way down. I do the ordinary housework and eat plain food, so shall be obliged if you will advise me.

Answer—I would advise you to use more of the leafy green vegetables, principally the uncooked ones so that your system will be well supplied with the organic minerals necessary for the growth of your nails. Just eat all the raw food you can in proper combination.

Food Idiosyncrasies

Question: Mrs. O. K. L. writes—"Please tell me whether certain people have personal idiosyncrasies in regard to foods. I seem to have trouble with tomatoes and canned pineapple even when taken in correct combinations with other foods."

Answer—Yes, many people seem to be poisoned by even small amounts of special foods which are quite wholesome to the average person. A list of these foods would include almost any known food. There seems to be some mental as well as a physical factor in connection with this type of food poisoning.

Stammering

Question: H. G. asks—"Will you please tell me how I can end my stammering? Many times I cannot say a thing and become very nervous. I have had this trouble for several years."

Answer—I would advise you to go to some doctor or psychologist who makes a specialty of correcting stammering. The cure requires a great deal of personal attention from some instructor who understands the mental causes.

LAWTON ADDS WATER UNITS

Work on Filtration Plant Gets Under Way

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., May 25.—Work on remodeling and adding additional units to the city's filtration plant at the big city dam got under way today and is expected to be completed within 90 days, according to Bob Gowland, superintendent for the Sherman Machine and Iron Works, which firm has the contract for the improvement work.

Two frame structures at the plant were removed last week in order to secure space for the new filtration units. Part of the plant must be completed before portions being supplanted can be removed in order that the city's supply of filtered water may not be interrupted.

Cost of the improvement will be approximately $128,000. The contracting firm expects to complete a portion of the plant in ample time to supply additional water supply for the national guard encampment at Fort Sill in August.

Good progress is being made in the laying of pipe in the distribution system in the city. Three ditching machines are being utilized in the work.

Two Men Wounded In Road House Shooting

SAN ANTONIO, May 25 (AP)—Two city employes, Ed Knight of the health department and E. B. Brown, engineer at the city market house, were under treatment today for gunshot wounds reported to have been sustained at a house on the Castroville road.

Sheriff Hausser reported he was called to the Castroville road address yesterday morning and was told that a shooting had taken place. The sheriff said he was informed, however, that both parties had left. Further investigation revealed the identities of the two men. Brown was found at his home and Knight was located at a hospital.

Supervised Playground Planned for Waurika

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., May 25.—Plans for a supervised playground for Waurika have been worked out and the park will open soon under the direction of Dick Pryor, who will have charge of the boys and Mrs. Hugh Plumlee, who will direct the activities of the girls.

The playground idea is being sponsored by the mothers' club, assisted by other civic clubs.

Harmon Park has been selected as the playground, as it is well shaded and is already equipped with play apparatus.

The day will be divided into periods for the children of different ages, and activities to interest all of them.

GREENBELT COMMITTEE SUSTAINS WALKER'S GOLF PROTEST

The RAMBLER'S CORNER

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Quanah Plans to Entertain Rambler—

(With Tar and Feathers)—

But Clarendon Golfers Like Me—

Cuss Me Out, I Don't Care—

Well, I'm the same old Rambler—always getting it in the neck.

This time it's about the story I wrote on the championship match of the Greenbelt Golf association tournament at Clarendon last Thursday, in which Ira Merchant of Clarendon and L. S. (City) Walker of Quanah made Greenbelt history by slugging it out for 37 holes. There was a protest in that match, as everyone knows—entered by Walker on the 36th hole. He won the protest to square the match and then defeated Merchant on the 37th to win the Greenbelt crown.

Walker's protest, whether just or not, was unpopular in Clarendon, as Merchant had played a little better golf on the last 18 holes, and in writing up the story of the match the fact that the protest was unpopular was recorded as a matter of course. The emotional state of the gallery was just as much news as the actual match, and I wrote about their reaction just as I would have written about a tornado, if a tornado had come up while the 36th hole was being played.

The tornado didn't come that day, but it did the next, and the next, and the next. The postmaster at Quanah has been busy rushing letters and newspaper articles to the Rambler that tell me frankly where to get off.

The Quanah letters and newspaper articles brand me as a biased writer, a poor reporter with no sense of justice who did a bad job of reporting the actual facts of the championship match. The Quanah Tribune-Chief, in which the hottest denunciation appeared, hinted that if I ever showed up in Quanah I would be received by a great reception committee, armed with a pocketful of matches, a barrel of tar, and the feathers from Aunt Molly's worn out feather bed. There would be in addition, it was hinted, a nice rail upon which I would be given a ride. The Tribune-Chief pages Al Parker of the Times to cover their invitation tournament this summer. In fact, the Rambler, is about as popular in Quanah as an epidemic of smallpox.

On the other hand, there have been a few letters from Clarendon. Ah, in Clarendon I am hailed as a great man, a sports writer with breadth of viewpoint and vision, with fairness and justice for all, and were I to return to Clarendon "Grandpa" Allen probably would put me up in his hotel free for nothing, and I could live like a prince, be banqueted, and maybe even be elected to the legislature.

The letters of praise I pass over. The denunciations are what interest me. Before I answer them I want to really and truly state my position in reference to City Walker's victory:

I think that City Walker is a smart man and an excellent golfer. I think he did the right thing in bringing up the protest when Merchant brushed the piece of cardboard from in front of his ball. If you're going to play tournament golf, you've got to play tournament golf, and in order to do that you must live up to the rules. Ignorance of the rules is no excuse. Walker knew his rules and took full advantage of them.

But the fact remains that any kind of championship that is won with the assistance of a technicality is likely to turn a portion of the fans against a champion thus crowned. We have a glaring example of this in the case of Max Schmeling, who was crowned heavyweight boxing champ on a technicality.

There are always some fans who will not be able to swallow a championship thus earned, even though the man who profited by the technicality is absolutely fair and square and right in demanding the full advantage of the rules.

Now as to this business of accusing me of unfairness, the Rambler takes a puff off the old cigaret and answers that the above was exactly what I said in my news story of the match. I said that Walker was right in entering the protest, but that his victory, after the protest was not exactly enthusiastically received.

I'll do like the lawyers and quote a paragraph from the lead of my story, as follows:

"There was no doubt but that the ruling was just, and in accordance with the best golf rules that the United States Golf association have devised, but Walker's protest victory was anything but popular with the enthused gallery of about 300 that had watched Merchant stage a bitter up-hill fight to outplay his opponent."

Quanah should not object to that. It was only reasonable to expect the protest victory would be more or less unpopular with the gallery, which was composed almost entirely of Clarendon folk.

If there is any doubt that Merchant outplayed Walker on the last round, a glance at the medal scores will clear that up. On the last 19 holes Merchant shot a 78. Walker shot an 81.

But get me straight on this. I'm not whooping it up for Walker and I'm not whooping it up for Merchant. I stand in the middle of the battleground, with cannons booming from both sides, and my head is bloody, as the poet says, but unbowed. I think Walker was a wise bird in filing his protest and I also think Merchant outplayed him on the last crucial go-round. Neither statement, it seems to me, can be contradicted.

And I'm City Walker's friend just as much as I'm Ira Merchant's.

But I have yet to win my case with Quanah. Alas, I knew they were going to have that invitation tournament up there, and even before I went to Clarendon to cover the Greenbelt I pleaded with my boss to let me cover the Quanah tournament. The boss was busy sharpening pencils and told me he'd let me know later.

Now, after reading what Quanah thinks of me, he'll probably make me stay here and watch the Spudders lose some more ball games. And I wanted to see those North Side Quanah boys play some baseball, too. On the way up to Clarendon the other Sunday the North Siders were playing a game near the railroad tracks, and it looked like a humdinger. But now, alack and well-away, I guess I won't be allowed to bring my unjust and biased person within a 100 miles of the Quanah Invitation tourney, or the North Side boys.

Well let's take a look at what the letters from both sides say:

First there comes a letter from an official of the Greenbelt Golf association whose name I am not privileged to divulge. He thanks The Record News kindly for covering the tournament, but objects to the headline which was carried on the story. The headline, you remember, read like this: "Violation of 'buried' rule robs Ira Merchant of Greenbelt title."

The reference to the rule as being "buried" was unfortunate. My story mentioned nothing about a "buried" rule. The headline writer who handled my story as it was filed from Clarendon was working under pressure in order to "make" an edition, and wrote the line hurriedly, unaware that the reference to a "buried" rule would result in confusion.

That it did result in confusion is evidenced by a sentence from the letter referred to above, which states: "I do not believe you would intentionally discredit Walker or impugn his sportsmanship, but your reference to Section 2 of Rule 12 as a 'buried' rule clearly implies that he went back to the ancient archives of golfdom to resurrect a penalty not generally used. If rule 12 is buried, then every other rule of the United States Golf association is buried."

We plead guilty. The paper was wrong in calling it a "buried" rule. When I got back from Clarendon at 3 o'clock Friday morning and saw the word in the banner I was as much startled as anyone. Certainly there was no intention to cast a reflection on Walker's sportsmanship. The headline writer doesn't even know Walker, and was about 200 miles from the scene of the tournament. In any case he would not have intentionally cast a slur at Walker or any other man in a headline. I know him to be a better newspaper man than that. The fact that the word slipped into the banner was the result of pressure more than anything else.

As for Walker's sportsmanship, no testimony on that point is needed.

The wrath of the Quanah Tribune-Chief was expressed in their page one column, "Main Street in Quanah," in the columnist's usual entertaining manner.

Boy he sure "entertained" me—with a good spanking—as follows:

"We offer condolences to Fred Thompson, Wichita Falls sport writer who apparently was so biased that he has given little credit to Walker for the fight that he waged against golfers that in most instances could defeat him in medal play but not match play. It is difficult for the reader of Wichita papers to have to read a half column to find that Walker and not Merchant won the title; as well as poor reporting of the actual facts concerning the match. It must have been hard to have had to walk away from the last hole with a downed favorite of pet dope. We are paging Al Parker for the Invitation tournament that will be held in Quanah this summer. The readers in the territory covered by Wichita papers want justice to all whether they win or lose."

So you had to read a half column to find out that Walker and not Merchant won, huh? Well, you must have skipped the first paragraph, Mr. Tribune-Chief.

Now we turn to the communications from Clarendon. The Hillcroft Golf club, on whose course the tournament was played, was apparently satisfied. P. B. Gentry, president of the club, and Holman Kennedy, secretary, collaborated in writing the following.

"Dear Mr. Thompson:

"The officers and members of the Hillcroft Golf club of Clarendon, which entertained the Greenbelt

RULING CALLED 'FAIR, PROPER'

Quanah Veteran Awarded Permanent Trophy

The executive committee of the Greenbelt Golf association has approved the ruling on a protest entered in the sixth annual tournament at Clarendon last week by L. S. (City) Walker of Quanah, winner of the championship, according to a message to The Record News Monday from R. R. Gilliland of Quanah.

Mr. Gilliland, organizer and five times president of the Greenbelt Golf association, and at present member of the association's executive committee, wired as follows:

"The executive committee of the Greenbelt has accepted the ruling of Grout as fair and proper and the championship cup was awarded accordingly."

The ruling was made by Dick Grout, professional of the Glen Garden Country club of Fort Worth, who served as starter and referee at the Greenbelt tournament.

The championship cup referred to now belongs to Walker permanently, as his victory over Ira Merchant of Clarendon in the finals last Thursday gave him his third Greenbelt championship. Walker won the titles in 1926 and 1927, the first years of the association's existence. The association's articles of organization provide that a three-time winner of the title shall be awarded the trophy permanently.

The action of the executive committee wrote the final chapter to one of the most heated tournaments in Greenbelt history, a tournament that will long be remembered, and one that has stirred up more interest among golfers in the Panhandle and Northwest Texas than any other.

Quanah's veteran golfer defeated Merchant on the 37th hole, one up. Merchant, by playing a sensational game of golf on the back 18 holes, had gone in the lead by winning the 35th. They halved the 36th, but in so doing Merchant violated a rule when he removed a piece of cardboard from in front of his ball, which lay further than 60 feet from the cup. Walker's protest was sustained, and he was awarded the hole, to square the match and make the extra hole necessary.

Walker's consistent playing was a feature of the tournament, and at one time in the championship match he had a four-up lead on Merchant.

8,000 Watch Spuds Whip Cats In Night Battle

WHITE HURLS 4-1 VICTORY

Ted Gullic Gets Four Hits For Perfect Record

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, May 25.—Wichita Falls defeated the Cats, 4 to 1, here Monday night before the largest crowd since opening day. Nearly 8,000 fans packed the stands and were treated to a game featured by great work by the Spudder outfielders.

Lester White pitched all the way for Wichita Falls and with the aid of Badgro, Fuss and Gullic held the Panthers safe at all times.

Leon Chagnon and Roy Hansen hurled for Fort Worth. They fanned 10 men but were hit safely in the pinches.

Gullic Gets Four Hits

Gullic got four hits for a perfect night at the plate.

Wichita Falls made two runs in the first inning on a double by Garms, a single by Allday and a long two-base drive to left center by Gullic. An unassisted double play by Engle on Badgro's line drive retired the side.

Another was added in the second. Fuss doubled along the left line. Scharein flied to Moore in deep center and after the catch Fuss started for third. He scored when Engle, in relaying the ball, threw into the Wichita Falls dugout.

Fort Worth counted one in the third when Fowler doubled to right after Moore and Dalrymple had walked. Only one was out at the time but White retired Brown and Perry on easy infield chances.

Gullic got his second hit in the fourth, went to second on a sacrifice and to third on an infield out. He was caught in a chase between third and home and scored when hit in the back by Fowler's toss.

Changnon Fans Seven

Changnon got his fast ball working after the fourth and fanned seven Spudders in the next three innings. He was taken out for a pinch hitter in the last of the seventh and Roy Hansen went to the box.

Fort Worth threatened in the fourth and sixth but a fine catch by Badgro and a double play, Scharein to Allday to Stanton, killed them.

Dalrymple and Fowler singled when two were cut in the seventh. Gullic gathered in Brown's fly.

Fuss made a great catch to rob Krauss of a double in the eighth.

Badgro made another sensational running catch of Fowler's long drive in the ninth to stamp out a threatening rally. Score:

Grove won his fifth consecutive triumph in the first game.

The Athletics sewed up the second encounter when they pounded Sherid and McEvoy for nine runs in the first inning. Mahaffey allowed only one hit the first seven innings.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 25. (AP)—All deliveries of cotton made new low records today, with July selling off to 8.73, or 25 points net lower and closing at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 25@27 points.

October declined to 9.08 in the late trading, while December sold off to 9.28 and closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest.

Owing to the continuance of the Whitsuntide holidays there were no quotations from the Liverpool or continental markets but houses with both Liverpool and continental connections were credited with selling here at times during the day.

At the low prices reached in the afternoon the market showed a decline of nearly 150 points from the high prices touched on the rally early in the month, and there may have been some buying for a reaction as well as covering in the late trading, although it was not active enough to make much impression on the market.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 25. (AP)—Cotton made new low levels for the movement and for the season in today's moderately active trading here. With Liverpool still closed owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, the market was without incentive from that important center at the start and near months opened unchanged while the new crop positions started 7 to 12 points down.

The market closed steady at net declines for the day of 19@21 points. Today was the last notice day for May deliveries, the lowest price reached by that contract. The May option went out at noon at 8.66. There was a rally of 4 points at the end on profit taking by satisfied shorts, July closing at 8.77 and October at 9.11, down 19@21 points respectively net for the day.

Selling Dominates Stock Market With Losses Showing Greater Size

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 25. (US)—Selling again dominated the stock market today. Early tendency toward dullness on initial moderate price recession gave way to an increased volume of offerings and a quickening of the downward pace which resulted in substantial net declines throughout the market.

There was nothing to distinguish the session from those witnessed in all recent weeks, except perhaps that the net losses were more sizeable than in some time. To appreciate this latter statement, it is worthy of note that the average price of 70 active stocks declined more today than they did from beginning to end of last week. The pressure against the market was, as usual, attributed to professional bears, yet the very width of the decline which was inclusive virtually of all groups and industries argued against such a simple explanation.

Genuine liquidation whether of forced, frightened, or voluntary nature contributed substantially to the day's total of almost two million shares. Widespread weakness in farm commodities made a deep impression on sentiment.

Not a prominent stock, except perhaps the bear-sponsored Alaska-Juneau, closed the day higher in price than the end of last week. If anything, the more prominent issues of supposedly highest caliber, suffered most. Steel common, American Can, American Telephone and Telegraph, General Motors, General Electric and others of similar standing had to bear the brunt of selling.

General Motors in particular was heavily sold and forced to a new low on the present reaction. A good deal of selling of this issue has lately come from "independent" motor manufacturers who are aware that the peak of selling activities and production in the motor industry has been passed.

General Motors, whose enormous capitalization of 43,500,000 common shares precludes the possibility of any "tight" technical situation warranting more than the most modest advance, is being heavily sold as a "hedge" by the independent motor manufacturers. In addition, there is genuine liquidation of the stock by people who are not yet satisfied as to safety of the dividend.

The stock closed more than two points lower and it was but natural that Du Pont, with its enormous holdings of motors, should suffer as great depreciation.

Remarks of the United States Steel corporation's chief executive officer to the effect that the "worst is over" in business, broadcast over the radio, would have been accepted with greater satisfaction if the statement could have been reconciled to the same official's drastic warnings to the industry's leaders at the Iron and Steel institute meeting last Friday. At that time the steel-master caustically reminded his audience of steel-makers that trouble threatened the industry unless wage-slashing and price-cutting were terminated. Incidentally, these latter remarks were originally not intentioned for publication.

Nevertheless, the market today was not concerned with public utterances, but rather with its own problem of attempting to measure the length of the liquidating period. Under steady offerings, steel common broke more than four points and with this as the signal the entire list yielded steadily to close virtually at the bottom prices of the day.

No organized attempt was made by the bull contingent to stem the tide of selling. If any buying of better character than short covering took place it was exclusively on a downward scale which, incidentally, is the only sort of buying taking place in size.

The rapidity of the decline has undoubtedly placed in jeopardy the position of whatever few bull pools remain in the market.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, May 25. (AP)—Cash grain demand, fair.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points freight paid:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard 80½@81c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 64@64½c; No. 2 white or yellow 67@67½c.

Barley—No. 2 nominally 50@51c.

Oats—No. 2 red 34@35c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. $1.27@1.28; No. 2 kaffir $1.18@1.20.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 25. (AP)—Despite a rallying tendency shown much of the time, grains finished lower today, with corn and oats outdoing season bottom price records. Weakness of stocks and of cotton led to free selling of cereals. Grain price setbacks were in the face of authoritative unofficial estimates that recent frosts had reduced the Kansas prospective wheat yield 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels.

Wheat closed irregular, ranging from 1½c drop to 1¼c advance, corn ⅝@⅞c down, oats ¼@⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

There were reports of cutworm damage to winter wheat in Texas and of crop injury from Hessian fly and frost in Kansas.

Favorable weather for field work over the corn belt corn down to within 2c of the low record reached in 1921. Oats followed corn.

Provisions kept in line with hog values. Lard prices were down to the lowest level since 1908.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 83c, offers; July 57⅛@⅝c, 59⅞c; Sept. 57c, 59c; Dec. 60⅛@⅝c; 62⅛. Corn—July 53⅝c, 55½c; Sept. 51⅛@⅝c, 53⅛@¾c; Dec. 46c, 47½c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, May 25. (US)—Wheat traders feel that unless the market shows more bull power the steady pressure of hedging may be expected to depress prices further. Although the present levels would seem to discount the situation, the technical condition at such a time is an important price making factor.

The corn market easily becomes oversold in the narrow trade which prevails, but sentiment continues bearish. With the uncertainty in wheat and little possibility of constructive action on the cash situation the trade is turning its attention to the prospects for a large acreage.

A severe reaction in new May wheat was a feature of the late trading. It was charged to belated liquidation.

About 8,000,000 bushels of open interest in May wheat was closed Saturday. The remaining open interest of 17,000,000 bushels in old and new is held on both sides by the government agencies.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, May 25. (AP)—(USDA)—Total arrivals of cattle at the midwestern markets were only moderate, but of sufficient volume to set prices skidding again. Some interest was shown for the light weight fed steers, mainly for shipping account at weak to 25c lower rates. The rank and file of offerings, however, were forced to be moved at declines ranging 25@50c from last week's close. Combined receipts were 58,800, as compared with 73,463 a week ago.

Only moderate declines were enforced on hog prices at some of the main terminal markets, but losses of as much as 25c were recorded at other points before a clearance could be obtained. Falling dressed pork markets and barely liberal arrivals combined as the depressing trade influences. Offerings totalled 101,800, as compared with 111,697 a week ago.

Some uneveness appeared in the markets for lambs, price changes in extremes ranging from 20c higher to 25c lower. However, most of the markets showed little variation from last week's close. Mature sheep were steady at all points. Receipts aggregated 74,600 as compared with 88,540 a week ago.

SLAM BIDDING IN CONTRACT BRIDGE (C'T'D)

IN Contract Bridge some players do not agree that Ace or void suit showing is the best method of slam bidding. They contend that results just as accurate may be obtained by simply showing the total number of tricks. This type of slam bidding is popular at the moment.

She alleged Wills failed to catch her.

JAPAN SLICES WORKERS' PAY

Labor Dispute Is Result Of Reductions

TOKYO, May 25. (AP)—The cabinet today announced a cut in the salaries of all government employes, including army and navy officers, and forthwith came face to face with the most serious labor dispute in a half century of government operated railroads.

All bureau and section chiefs of the railway ministry prepared their resignations and 210,000 railway employes throughout the country threatened to cease work in sympathy with the dissatisfied employes.

As the wage cut appears only to employes receiving more than 85 yen ($42.50) per month the great majority are not directly affected but the rank and file of railway workers chose to express their sympathy for the 60,000 officials concerned by threatening to quit work.

In the face of the threat the cabinet refused to withdraw its thrift schedule. The wage cut was designed to save 3,000,000 yen (about $4,000,000) annually and becomes effective June 1.

About 9,000 railroad workers will have their salaries reduced.

With the exception of the army and navy officers, all government departments, including communications, foreign office, home office, finance, justice and education, filed petitions with the government opposing the reductions.

That the police considered the situation critical was shown this afternoon when Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako arrived at the central station here from Hayama, where they spent 11 days.

The royal party returned in a special train and the 50 miles of line over which they journeyed was guarded all the way by police. There also was an extra guard at the station and the emperor went from the train to an automobile equipped with bullet-proof glass.

Son 'Plays Dead' In Vain Try for Funds

CHICAGO, May 25. (AP)—Leslie Hollen got himself dead and buried, but he forgot to change the address.

He needed money badly, and since his father, J. D. Hollen in San Antonio, failed to respond to the direct touch system, he tried a telegram.

It read: "Your son, Leslie Hollen, died May 23. Send $137 to cover cost of burial."

He signed the name of D. E. Delevaty. But he gave Leslie Hollen's home address.

The father sent a wire, only it was to the detective bureau. Today they arrested Leslie. He confessed and is held.

Doak Backs Farrell Against Wage Cuts

WASHINGTON, May 25. (AP)—Secretary Doak today characterized as "very sound" the recent statement against wage cutting by James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation.

Farrell, before a group of manufacturers in New York last week, called wage cutting "a pretty cheap sort of business."

"The statement by Mr. Farrell," said the secretary, "was very sound and came at a very opportune time.

"Many employers are maintaining wage rates throughout the country. This is very commendable."

Illinois Prison Quiet After Sunday's Riot

VANDALIA, Ill., May 25. (AP)—Quiet again reigned today within the state prison farm here where 600 rioting convicts spread terror Sunday night. Four dormitories were destroyed by fire and the kitchen and tailor shop were damaged.

Gun shot wounds suffered by four prisoners during the melee were described by physicians as slight. Three were shot by guards after they had scaled a 12-foot fence in a break for liberty. A fourth prisoner was wounded in the arm by a stray shot.

Hoover to Launch Renomination Drive at Valley Forge Saturday

Memorial Day Address to Review Policies and Map Program Before Swing Through Midwest

WASHINGTON, May 25. (US)—President Hoover will open his campaign for renomination and re-election in a Memorial day address to be delivered at Valley Forge, Pa., May 30, it was learned at the White House today.

While he has made many recent addresses, this will be the one which will mark the opening of a speaking campaign that is to carry him into several states.

The president will also appear before the Union League club, Philadelphia, stronghold of the Republican party, the night before his Valley Forge address, where he is to be presented an oil painting of himself and attend a banquet in his honor.

To Review Policies

In his Memorial day address he will review his past policies in international relations and outline his plans for the future, particularly on the subject of armaments. The president, it is understood, will offer to meet any nation in the reduction of armaments, but will decline to have this country take the lead, or weaken national defenses.

He will say, it is understood, that the United States reduced its navy at the recent London conference to a minimum compatible with national security and cannot safely go below this point. He will also point out that the United States has the smallest army of any world power, and it can not be further cut. He will take the stand, it was said, that Europe, with a standing army of about 3,000,000 men, exclusive of Russia, should reduce in the interest of economy and pease.

In his address the president will also discuss the policies of Washington and the patriotism of the men who fought for American independence.

Tour Slated

The president will return from Valley Forge for a brief stay in the capital to hold a series of conferences with department heads on the reduction of government expenses and the middle of June take a long swing into the Middle West, where he will renew his political campaign. He is to make an address at the dedication of the tomb of Harding at Marion, Ohio, one of the dedication fo the tomb of Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., and several other impromptu addresses. Practically all of them will be of a political nature, it is learned. Whether he will extend his tour of the Middle West will depend upon the press of government business at the time.

Driver Arrested And Whisky and Car Seized

A man was arrested and 37 half gallons of liquor and an automobile were seized in a raid conducted by city police Monday night.

The man was arrested and the automobile and 12 half gallons were seized in a negro section of the city. A later search of the man's home on Holliday street netted 25 additional half gallons of liquor.

Officers participating were Ellis Summers, A. L. Stubblefield and Earle Brooks. They said charges of possession and transporting would be filed in federal court Tuesday.

Hoover Gets Gift When Plant Re-Employs Workers

CLARENDON TO GREET BANKERS

Greenbelt Financiers Meet Wednesday

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, May 25.—Financial leaders from four Northwest Texas counties will assemble here Wednesday afternoon for the annual social meeting of the Greenbelt Bankers association. Approximately 100 bank officials from Donley, Collingsworth, Hall and Childress counties are expected.

The entertainment program this year centers in an old-fashioned barbecue to be given at the Clarendon county club. Formal speaking and shop talk are strictly taboo, according to the traditions of the Greenbelt organization, and the hours of afternoon and evening will be devoted wholely to entertainment.

All the recreational privileges of the club, including the newly-opened swimming pool, will be thrown open to the visitors. A musical program has been arranged and dancing will continue through the evening.

W. W. Taylor, cashier of the First National bank, president of the association, and J. D. Swift of the Farmers State bank, secretary, are in charge of arrangements.

Kirkland Trial To End Today

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 25. (AP)—The state moved swiftly today toward the close of its murder case against Virgil Kirkland for the death of 18-year-old Arlene Draves at a party in Gary last November.

Two attorneys on each side had ended their closing arguments when court adjourned for the day, but the prosecution had used hardly more than two hours of its allotted six and expects to need only one more to finish its case tomorrow.

Added expedition was lent by attorneys for the defense who argued for three and one-half hours today, leaving only Attorney Ronald Oldham to conclude their side of the trial tomorrow. Judge Grant Crumpacker said he would be ready to instruct the jury in the afternoon.

Kirkland, the 20-year-old Gary youth, alternately leaned forward and relaxed as the battle of words went on.

Cars Oust Burros In New Gold Rush

MOOSEJAW, Sask., May 25. (US)—A new gold rush is on near here and it is the most unorthodox gold rush that Canada ever has witnessed.

Instead of the old-time grizzled prospectors on their horses or burros, the new seekers after wealth are coming in low-slung cars over the smooth prairie trails. Their destination is the little village of Coronach, 90 miles south of here.

They are arriving from many parts of Canada and the United States. Many are from Montana.

More than 500 claims have been staked from Fife Lake to three miles east of Coronach.

Autogiro Forced Down By Texas Sandstorm

PAMPA, Texas, May 25. (AP)—The Autogiro plane missing link, piloted by Johnny Miller, landed here tonight after being forced down by a sand and wind storm at Canadian. Miller will continue on his leisurely journey to the west coast tomorrow morning. Making a brief stop at Amarillo, he plans to spend tomorrow night at Albuquerque.

'ENEMY' FLEES BEFORE PLANES

One More City 'Saved' By U. S. Air Fleet

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 25. (US)—The mythical enemy fleet which was reported on the verge of attacking New England, turned tail and fled today when it spotted the 600 fighting airplanes comprising the 1st air division, ordered here to protect this area.

The air division will take off tomorrow morning and race to New York to protect that city from the foe.

The war department abruptly decided not to have the huge aerial armada attack the hypothetical fleet and it was explained, unofficially, that if the air division had wiped out the enemy the maneuvers would, obviously, be at an end.

The hundreds of ships started climbing from flying fields at Boston this morning and flying by different routes, fell into one solid line outside of Boston. The division swung along north of Boston and turned south, following the shore line. It was officially reviewed by Mayor James M. Curley and other notables.

The columns making up the division passed over Providence, R. I., Portland, Maine, Bangor, Maine, Worcester, Mass., Waltham, Mass., and Hartford, Conn., on their way to and from Boston.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois tonight was warm in his praise of how the division responded to his orders. Both he and Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, who conferred in Boston on the plans to contact with the invisible enemy agreed that the division had accomplished its mission.

The armada started gathering at Dayton, Ohio, May 15. Hundreds of thousands of miles have been flown since that time and, to date, not a man has been killed or injured. It was estimated by statisticians, before the flight started, that with such a great number of planes in the air at one time, there would be an average of two major crashes daily.

District Court Opens In Childress June 1

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, May 25.—District court for Childress county opens next Monday with a very light docket. Of more than 20 civil cases two-thirds are divorce cases and none will be contested, so it is reported. The criminal docket is very light, one murder case holding over from the last term. Court holds for five weeks, and is the last court of the district until September.

The Rambler's Corner

Golf association annual tournament desires to express to you their sincerest thanks for the generous amount of publicity given the event in the columns of the Wichita Daily Times and Record News and for the true and correct version you gave the public of the unfortunate incident that marred the championship match.

"We feel that your fair reports of the incident protest and ruling will serve to clear our membership and Clarendon of any unfair reflections against our sportsmanship which brings us under special obligations in the matter. In this connection we might say that in official meeting the Hillcroft club voted to refrain from any protests to the Greenbelt association or the U. S. G. A. in the matter, even though we feel that we have every chance of being upheld. We have decided on this course in the interest of better sportsmanship in the Panhandle golfing circles, and earnestly hope no succeeding tournament of the Greenbelt or neighboring associations will ever be embarrassed in like manner.

"You will ever be a welcome visitor to our city and if we can serve you in a personal way or professional way we shall certainly deem it a privilege to show our appreciation and esteem.

"With all good wishes to you and your excellent paper, we are, The Hillcroft Golf club, per P. B. Gentry, president; Holman Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Mary Esten Cooke of Clarendon, member of the gallery at the tournament, and no mean golfer herself, writes:

"Dear Mr. Thompson,

"I want to congratulate you on the way in which you covered the Greenbelt golf tournament.

"This tournament is an especially important event to the people of Clarendon, and we appreciate the favorable publicity that we received from your paper.

"Very sincerely yours,
"MARY ESTEN COOKE."

And it wouldn't be a full day if the chamber of commerce didn't get a word in. G. L. Boykin, secretary of the chamber of commerce at Clarendon, is also a golfer and was entered in the tournament. He says:

"Dear Fred:

"Just want to thank you and The Record News for the stand taken in the Merchant-Walker affair during the Greenbelt. We appreciate your attitude and want you to know that every golfer here thinks more of you and the paper you represent for the very fair manner you wrote the outcome of the match up for your paper. I express the sentiments of this chamber of commerce and community.

"Please hand this to your boss.

"Yours truly,
"G. L. BOYKIN, Secretary."

I want to say to all you Clarendon folks, however, that I didn't take a "stand" in the matter. I was just recording the facts as they developed, to the best of my ability. As to my ability, there seems to be several opinions and this was not unexpected. In Clarendon, as we have seen, I'm a great guy with lots of ability. In Quanah I'm an unjust scoundrel. Oh well, my pajamas, Jason—the battle hath wearied me and I would fain rest.

SPECIAL SALE OF SPUDDER TICKETS TO OPEN HERE TUESDAY

FANS URGED TO BACK TEAM

Bo Seats Offered to Those Who Buy 30 Tickets

A drive to stimulate attendance of Texas league baseball games here will be commenced Tuesday morning, when 55 members of a special committee start the sale of baseball tickets in quantity lots.

The campaign is being conducted under the direction of A. E. Kelly, who held a meeting of his committee Monday afternoon in the chamber of commerce offices to give final instructions.

Mr. Kelly reported that during the meeting Monday more than 300 tickets were sold in blocks up to 60. The official drive, however, will be commenced Tuesday morning, when business firms and individuals of the city will be called on.

A particularly attractive feature of the campaign will be that purchasers of general admission tickets in blocks of 30 or more will be entitled to box seats for each ticket.

The drive comes as a result of the report that attendance at league games played here is far below normal and that lack of attendance threatens the loss of the Spudder franchise.

Sufficient tickets are expected to be sold during a few days to assure good attendance at the remaining games played here during the season, Mr. Kelly said.

LOSS OF FRANCHISE POSSIBLE, SAYS KELLY

Members of the Kiwanis club were admonished by Albert E. Kelly Monday noon at the Wichita club to do everything within their power to stimulate better attendance at Texas league baseball games in this city to forestall possible loss of the local club's franchise.

Announcement of a ticket selling drive to be sponsored here by the chamber of commerce beginning Tuesday was made by Mr. Kelly. The speaker declared that attendance here since the opening of the 1931 season has been 11,000 less than that recorded during the same period in 1930. He also said that Port Arthur and one other city are reported as seeking the Wichita Falls franchise.

"I know times are hard," Mr. Kelly said, "but it is not going to cure your ills to lose one of the best advertising mediums the city has. If you lose this franchise it will be a real setback, and it wouldn't take many such setbacks to make a flag station out of Wichita Falls."

Members of the Spudder baseball team are to be guests of the club next Monday, and will provide entertainment for the meeting, it was announced.

Miss Loraine Mathis and Sam Wallace Jones played a violin duet, accompanied by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey.

A brief report of the international Kiwanis convention at Miami, Fla., was given by Walter Nelson Jr., delegate from the local club.

Park Department Opens Playground Programs

Supervised playground activties opened Monday morning in all the local parks with a good enrollment, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of the city park department.

Although the total enrollment has not yet been reported, it was estimated by Mr. Bunnenberg that it is much larger than that of last summer.

The first of a series of junior baseball games were also played Monday under the direction of Marvin Robertson.

Meet the Browns—Typical Family

Of 29,000,000 families in the United States, the Browns of Indianapolis were selected as "most typical" in a recent nation-wide magazine contest. They're so typical, in fact, that they all go in for golf and Mrs. Brown keeps both her age and golf score a dark secret. Here they are, from left to right, John Brown, 13, with Pat, the family pet; Mrs. Brown; Louise Brown, 15, and Merrill J. Brown, 44. Brown is a sales manager and belongs to several clubs.

RILEY TRIAL SET JUNE 3

Burk Man Has Blood Poisoning, Court Told

Continuance of the trial of Barney Riley, charged with murder, to June 3 by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Monday morning because of reported serious illness of the defendant was announced by District Attorney Sam B. Spence.

Attorneys for Riley indicated his condition was critical, and it was said that blood poisoning had set up in cuts made on his forearm by broken glass in a recent automobile accident. The special venire of 100 men summoned by Judge Martin for the trial was instructed to return for duty on June 3.

Charges of murder against Riley grew out of the death of Tom Hardin, a resident of Oklahoma, last fall. Hardin disappeared near Burkburnett about Oct. 1, and a skeleton found on the Oklahoma side of Red river in December was identified by Hardin's brother. Riley has been at liberty on bond for several months, the trial having been postponed once previously because of the absence of an important witness.

BOOSTERS SEEK MARKET SITE

Riley Tells Club of Success In Oklahoma

E. F. Riley, Frank Schram and R. E. Shepherd were named Monday noon by R. S. Fidler, president of the I. O. Boosters club, to select and recommend a tentative location for a retail public market for farm produce, the committee's report to be returned at the next weekly meeting.

The club's action in authorizing the appointment of such a committee followed the report given by Mr. Riley upon the public market at Muskogee, Okla., which he visited during the past week for the purpose of studying its plan of operation. It was indicated in discussion of the matter Monday that the proposed market here will be organized upon lines similar to those followed at Muskogee.

According to Mr. Riley's report, the Oklahoma city's market was instituted by the chamber of commerce there about five years ago, and is open two mornings weekly under the supervision of a market-master working under the city government. It accommodates about 30 farmers at one time, each having the use of a display booth eight feet long and with a shelf beneath for reserve supplies. Each user of a booth pays 25 cents for each morning he uses it. During the past year, the market paid all expenses, reparis to the shed included, the market-master's salary and showed the city a net profit of $136.

Pointing to conditions which have caused both producers and patrons to support the market with enthusiasm, Mr. Riley recited the experience of one woman living on 20 acres of land seven miles from Muskogee. The market has come to be the principal outlet for her produce, and during the past year, he said, her sales amounted to more than $1,200. Butter, milk, eggs, chickens and vegetables comprised her salable produce, it was said.

The Muskogee market, Mr. Riley said, is beneath an open iron-roofed shed, so arranged that patrons use a wide middle-aisle for visiting producers' booths on either side.

Arrangements were made by the club for entertaining members of the I. O. Boosters baseball team of the City league, together with the league president and umpires, at a dinner to be given at the Holt hotel next Tuesday night, June 2, at 7 p. m. The dinner meeting will take the place of the weekly luncheon previously scheduled for Monday noon, June 1, it was announced. Dr. Fred Gross, manager of the baseball team, is in charge of arrangements for the affair.

Rudy Vallee Broadcasts New Verses for "Popeye"

Here's Chance for Jingle Writers to Pay Tribute to Sailor

Wouldn't you like to write a verse for Rudy Valley to sing into a microphone, to be heard all over the country?

Then why not try your skill on a new chorus for the latest great popular song hit, "Popeye, the Sailorman?"

Every Thursday night at 8 p. m. eastern daylight saving time, Rudy Vallee broadcasts this rollicking, catchy song. He has announced that he will sing each week the best new chorus he receives.

The chorus must fit the music, in rhythm and swing.

It must deal with the characters in the comic strip, "Thimble Theater, Starring Popeye," which appears daily on the comic page of The Record News.

And it must be funny. But of course it couldn't be about Popeye without being funny.

Send your Popeye chorus addressed to Popeye Editor in care of The Record News. They will be forwarded to Mr. Vallee, and the choruses he selects each week will be published in this paper; as well as others, if several good ones are received.

You'll be able to get good ideas for choruses by watching the comic strip every day.

Learn the melody of "Popeye, the Sailorman," which can be secured at any music store, then see how clever a chorus you can write and send it in.

Following is the first of the new choruses to be broadcast by Rudy Vallee:

POP EYE

Pop Eye—the sailor man,
Pop Eye—the sailor man,
He's the idol of the kids
When he hits—you don't need skids.

Pop Eye—the sailor man,
What a funny pan!
Has a pipe right in his mouth;
Knows the big man from the South,
Pop Eye, Pop Eye—what a sailor man.

Pop Eye—the sailor man,
Pop Eye—the sailor man,
He's so tough and hard as nails
And he breaks right out of jails.
Pop Eye—the sailor man,
He's some baseball fan.
Takes a baseball with a bat
Talcum powder—just like that,
Pop Eye, Pop Eye—what a sailor man.

The above choruses, selected by Rudy Vallee, were written by Eddie Horther, a Flushing, N. Y., school boy.

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr.
Chief of Police Frank Burns
pledge co-operation with the Silvertown Safety League

"Let me urge every citizen to lend his support to this very worthy crusade to reduce the fatal accidents on the highways."

Yesterday was City Officials' Day at local headquarters of the Silvertown Safety League. Pledges were signed and emblems placed on the cars of the Mayor, Chief of Police, and scores of others!

"The League can forge a public sentiment which will make careless driving or the improper care of cars as disgraceful as the dodging of just debts," said Mayor. Nelson "I'll use my influence to see this pledge signed by every city official and employee."

"This is what we want!" said Chief of Police Frank Burns "Those citizens who sign the pledge of the League, and observe it, perform a public service which will not be forgotten. It will save many lives."

Pledges are signed here at League headquarters. Emblems are obtained only through us. There is no cost or obligation.

Give your support to make the streets and highways safer for your family and yourself.

Come in now!

Let us install a brilliant chromium Silvertown Safety League emblem on the radiator of your car. It tells the world that you are in the fight against recklessness that took 33,000 lives last year.

5 To observe all traffic signals.
6 To give signals myself that can be clearly seen and understood, before turning or stopping in traffic.
7 To drive only when in full possession of my faculties.
