LAREDO BUSINESS INTERESTS FACE RUIN

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

A glance through the New Year's editions of this paper and its evening contemporary, The Times, will impress any reader with the soundness of the bases of Wichita Falls business position with the scope of its activities.

Take the oil industry as an instance. The reports compiled by James S. Maxwell, the oil editor of these papers, shows more wells completed in the Wichita area and larger pipeline runs than in 1927. The aggregate of the pipeline runs was 35,512,272 barrels, an increase of 1,973,021 barrels over 1927.

There were 2,093 wells drilled in the district in 1928, of which 1,194 were producers.

Such a record has hardly been equaled anywhere, and this in the face of adverse conditions in the oil industry.

The Wichita Falls district is one of the few remaining shallow, high gravity oil districts in which the independent operator can hope to operate profitably. The attention of independent operators is turning more and more to this section and we can expect even greater activity here in 1930 than in 1929.

And 1929 saw also a marked expansion in the refining industry. Considerably more than a million dollars has been expended in refinery improvements in the district to provide more economical operations and to permit the extraction of a larger percentage of gasoline from every barrel of oil produced. In organization and personnel, in equipment, assurance of crude supplied and in marketing facilities the refining industry here is in better position than ever before.

Building permits for the year in Wichita Falls aggregated $1,337,838.25. This did not include large refinery construction expenditures just outside the city limits, and even within the city the actual figures would be much in excess of the $1,337,838.25 reported for it has become a practice, on account of the fees involved and because of the tendency of the equalization board to use the permits as a basis for assessment, for persons taking out permits to give the figures lower than actual cost.

Our banks have paid good dividends and have increased their resources during the 12 months until the combined resources of the commercial banks here are more than 37 million dollars.

There is approximately $11,000,000 invested here in building and loan securities and shareholders and investors have been paid between $700,000 and $800,000 in dividends and interest during the year.

Capital is necessary for business activity anywhere. Wichita Falls is fortunate in the strength and stability of its financial institutions. Where there is money there is generally commercial activity. And here in Wichita Falls we have many men with the enterprise and the courage to use all the capital available to them.

The large investment in building and loan securities indicates a diffusion of wealth and a habit of saving that are most encouraging signs. The large sum paid out in dividends goes further to increase the wealth of the community and to add to its capital resources.

If we were to attempt to measure and compare benefits we would say that the greatest benefits of all will come to Wichita Falls through the completion of paved and macadamized highways in many counties of this section. Several of these highways have been opened to traffic in recent weeks; others are to be completed in the coming months. They will open up for convenient and easy traffic and travel great areas of fine territory, that have heretofore been more or less cut off by unimproved roads making travel difficult.

While the distance in miles of 5,280 remains the same in actual contact populous territories have been brought many miles nearer to Wichita Falls by these highway improvements.

And still more highway projects are being authorized in this section and within the next two or three years other large areas will be brought closer to Wichita Falls.

Along with the good reports there are some that are not so good. We read there were 8,135 arrests by the police department of Wichita Falls. This is about one in seven of the population. Most of the arrests were for minor offenses and the violation of city ordinances. Whatever this record may indicate as to the lawfulness or the lawlessness of our population, it does indicate that the police department has been active.

John Boswell, the new manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, arrives to take up his work Thursday morning. As we have said before, we believe Mr. Boswell faces one of the finest opportunities for successful work ever offered a young chamber of commerce executive.

Not the least important parts of the New Year's editions of the Wichita Falls newspapers were the advertisements. These advertisements reflect the reawakening that has been felt here in recent weeks.

Another man who has a big opportunity is Harry Hines, who has just been chosen manager for the deep oil development project. Mr. Hines knows the oil business, back of him is ample capital and the best business brains in this section in the officers and board of directors of the company. It's a combination that ought to mean success.

Disgruntled Admirers Of Slain Bride Suspected In 'Gift Bomb' Murder Case

Recent Announcement of Secret Marriage Believed Behind Act Which Kills Girl and Seriously Injures Five of Her Close Relatives

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—An 18-year-old bride was brutally murdered near here today, and her mother, grandmother, sister and three little brothers were seriously injured when a powerful bomb, wrapped in Christmas paper and holly and addressed to her, exploded when she opened it. The explosion took place at Seat Pleasant, Md., half a mile from the District of Columbia line.

The dead woman is Mrs. Naomi Brady. She and her family were gathered intently around the kitchen table, watching the opening of the deadly gift, when the explosion took place. Mrs. Brady was secretly married last June, but did not make the fact known to her family until two weeks ago.

Suspects Traced

Although no arrests had been made at a late hour today, police were tracing down several suspects. These included several young men known to have been interested in the girl, and disgruntled at the announcement of her marriage to Brady.

Her young farmer husband was at the home of a landowner, paying advance rent on the farm he and his bride were to lease when word of the blast reached him.

Mrs. Brady, who was holding the bomb when it exploded, was hurled against one of the walls of the kitchen and crushed to death.

The others injured are: Mrs. Nora Hall, her mother, badly mangled, dying; Dorothy Hall, 5, sister, badly mangled, eyes blown out, dying; Thomas Hall, 9, arm and hand blown off, probably blinded, condition critical; Leslie Hall, 16, badly crushed side, critical; Samuel Hall, 18 months, blinded, critical; Mrs. Margaret Brumley, grandmother, 80, shock, not critical.

Floor Torn Up

The blast was of terrific force, blowing out one side of the kitchen, tearing a three-foot hole in the floor, and throwing the outside door 20 feet out into the yard and other scrap metal, rupposedly contained in it were found in the resulting debris.

The death-present, strangely enough was delivered to the wrong house last Sunday morning, and it was not until this morning that it finally reached Mrs. Brady, to whom is was addressed. Early Sunday morning neighbors found the package on their front porch, and took it inside intending to send it down to the Hall home immediately.

It was forgotten, however, by the parents and until this morning it was kicked about the house. Then, when 9-year-old Thomas Hall happened to be passing, it was given to him to take to his sister.

Curious to see what was in the belated Christmas package, Thomas ran home with it and gave it to Mrs. Brady. The family gathered around the kitchen table and watched as Mrs. Brady removed the outer wrapping of brown paper.

COAST PATROLS IN WATER HAUL AND BIG CATCH

Cannon Halts Speedboat In Morning Mist but 'Nary A Drop' Is Found

NEW YORK, Jan. 1. (US)—The fighting New London coast guards, whose members recently proved their valor by riddling three rum runners with machine gun bullets, let blast at another suspected rum boat today and found "nary a drop" of liquor.

At the same time the prohibition warfare in eastern waters moved to the narrows off Staten Island where a 60-foot rum runner, laden with Canadian Bourbon valued at $45,000 was captured when her crew beached her and escaped. The boat, itself of about a $50,000 valuation, later sank off St. George S. I.

Fast Boat Sighted

The New London marine engagement took place off Mystic, Conn., about seven miles from New London, and in what is known as Fisher's Island sound. The patrol boat, C. G. 124, patrolling the waters in the early morning haze spied The Gander, a 62-foot, semi-speed boat, slithering through the mist.

On the ground that any boat out so early must be a rum runner, the doughty coast guardsmen signalled The Gander to heave to. When the speed boat did not seem to respond immediately to this invitation, the one-pounder of the coast guard emphasized the command.

Coast guardsmen, insist, however, that the young cannon contained only a blank.

Gander Boarded

The Gander hove to and was boarded by the coast guardsmen. Four irate men were found in the cabin but there was not a drop of liquor anywhere. Nevertheless, the boat was taken to New London and detained "for further investigation." Three of the men went home. The fourth stayed around to see that no damage was done the boat.

The boat captured off Staten island was the Tanya. She was slipping through Ambrose channel early today without lights when the police launch No. 2, in charge of

NEW C.-C. HEAD LOOKS TO FACT FOR OPTIMISM

Boswell Spurns 'Forced Cheerfulness' in First Talk Here

CITES OPPORTUNITIES

While Not Expecting Boom, Manager Looks Forward To Growth Here

Optimism looking toward a steady, substantial development in Wichita Falls and emerging from a careful analysis of conditions in Northwest Texas, was voiced by John Boswell, new chamber of commerce manager, in an introductory statement made a few hours after his arrival here from Dallas Wednesday morning.

"I do not believe in forced optimism," the new manager declared. "Unfavorable conditions should be faced, not disguised. But Wichita Falls can muster enough facts to substantiate a genuine optimism, and it is upon facts that I base my hope for continuous, permanent growth. I do not foresee for the city any spectacular or sudden burst into new wealth and expansion, but the prosperity I anticipate will come naturally from the development of the whole resources of the district."

Confers With Chatham

Mr. Boswell, formerly head of the southwest development service of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, succeeds Hubert M. Harrison as head of the local organization. He spent the first hours of his stay in Wichita Falls with J. W. Chatham, acting manager here since Mr. Harrison's resignation in November. Mr. Chatham in turn resigned his post as acting manager and head of the industrial section to become vice president and general manager of the Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing company here.

The new manager will assume immediate charge of the local chamber. He took advantage of the holiday Wednesday to acquaint himself with the organization headquarters and equipment, and to get things in order for operation Thursday. He plans to bring Mrs. Boswell and their year-old-son to Wichita Falls as soon as living arrangements can be completed.

No Immediate Changes

Prefacing his original statement to the people of Wichita Falls, Mr. Boswell said that he expected to make no changes in personnel, organization, policy, or routine withing the immediate future. He expressed hearty approval of a pro-

Alaskan Airman Quits Search for Eielson

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 1. (AP)—With Frank Dorbandt, Alaskan airman who had flown with Carl Ben Eielson, who has been missing with Earl Borland in the Arctic since Nov. 9, out of the search for his partner and friend, Nome today awaited the arrival of two Fairchild cabin planes from Fairbanks.

Alfred J. Lomen, head of the searching expedition here, said Dorbandt had been given a leave of absence because of ill health. The flier has been working practically nine months in the Arctic and the added strain of sitting idle while awaiting favorable weather to search for Eielson had brought him to the verge of a nervous breakdown, Lomen said.

South Carolina Governor Finds Bullet in Office

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 1. (AP)—A .32 caliber bullet which had ranged through a window pane and screen was found today imbedded in the floor in Gov. John G. Richard's office five feet from his office chair.

It was presumed the ball was fired by New Year celebrants, but an investigation was begun. It was the second time during the holiday season that a bullet has struck quarters of the chief executive. Christmas night a .38 caliber bullet tore through a wire screen over a door to the executive mansion. It dropped to the floor and did not enter the home.

Herbert Hoover Jr. Writes About Radio

NEW YORK, Jan. 1. (AP)—Herbert Hoover Jr., in the first of a series of articles appearing in the January issue of Aero Digest, says that radio eventually will give to commercial air transportation "just that added degree of positive safety and regularity of service which characterizes well operated railroads."

He tells of weather broadcasting stations and directive radio beacons installed by the airways division of the department of commerce and says he would "not be at all surprised" if the department of commerce requires at least a receiving set on every mail and transport plane.

HINES NAMED DEEP OIL HEAD

Outside Interests Watch Work, Says Manager

In accepting appointment as general manager of the Wichita Falls Deep Oil Development company Wednesday afternoon, Harry Hines, veteran oil operator, pointed to increasing interest from outside capital, wildcatters, and independent oil men as giving fresh solidity to the hopes of the future.

"I am very much encouraged by the interest already manifested," the new manager said. "It is our task to increase that interest and to bring foreign capital to our aid in this exploration."

Veteran Operator

Mr. Hines, who has been active in the oil business for more than 20 years, was appointed to manage the company here by the executive committee of the board of directors Wednesday morning. The appointment will go into effect at once and the manager has announced that he will open his office immediately and proceed with the completion of an operating organization.

The company chartered in Delaware last week is capitalized at $1,000,000, $700,000 of which has already been subscribed. It was organized to test for oil sands deeper than those already found in Wichita, Wilbarger, Clay, Young and Archer counties. Backers of the project and the principal stockholders include many of the leading business men and numerous oil operators all over the section.

Mr. Hines was among the first to support the project and has been one of most enthusiastic sponsors throughout the organization period. He is one of the largest stockholders of the company, and served in the preliminary period as chairman of the finance committee. His career as an oil operator began in 1919 and has extended over Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

The complete statement with which he accepted the appointment

Progress Made in Aviation Brings U. S. to Front, Lindbergh Declares

Transatlantic Flier Says Commercial Aeronautics Here Compare Favorably Now With Europe

By REX T. NEWMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—Science in flying kept well abreast of other progress and development in both North and South America in 1929, in the opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and he believes progress will continue at the present rate, and perhaps at a more rapid pace in 1930.

Pausing here over New Year's day on a flight across the country with Mrs. Lindbergh, the transatlantic flier conferred with officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., with which he is connected, paid a surprise visit to a hospital memorial maintained here in his honor and in an interview, took stock of the status of aviation.

No Cause for Alarm

He could see no cause for alarm in reports of a current slump in the aviation industry, but felt it was due to a seasonal slackening in the demand for planes and also to new features and improvements to be embodied in new models turned out this year.

In engineering and structural improvements, he said, new planes and equipment will in the future be greatly in advance of the present types. Laboratory development, he added, is far ahead of construction.

Will Return South

Colonel Lindbergh said he believes commercial aviation, particularly passenger transport lines, has developed in America to the point where it compares with European air lines. He said he was especially impressed with the possibilities of aviation in South America, and incidentally announced his intention of again flying to that country at some future time. He added, however, he has no definite plans for such a flight.

He expressed belief South America is developing air mindedness more rapidly with the United States and said it affords excellent opportunities in aviation because of its geographical condition and because air lines now do not have to compete with highly developed railroad systems.

The development of radio connections with airplanes was viewed by the colonel as an outstanding recent development in aviation passenger lines. The successful use of radio as a means of direct communication by voice with airplanes in flight over hundreds of miles will, he believes, prove a great boon to air travel.

Decrease in Business Failures Is Reported

NEW YORK, Jan. 1. (AP)—Bradstreet's Journal announced today figures compiled from telegraphic reports from all of its offices in the United States reveal that in the full calendar year of 1929 there were 19,703 failures in the country, with liabilities of $638,990,653. This was a decrease of 3.2 per cent in failures, but an increase of 21.4 per cent in liabilities as compared to 1928.

Reed King Murder Trial Nears Close

STANTON, Texas, Jan. 1. (AP)—The Reed King murder case drew to a close here today. The jury was expected to get the case tonight.

Reed, former Midland police chief, was charged with the slaying of J. C. Holcombe, night watchman, in a pistol battle last July. Reed was wounded. The case was brought here on a change of venue.

POSSIBLE CURE FOR 'TB' FOUND

New Kind of Sugar May Be Much Sought Link

DES MOINES, Jan. 1. (AP)—An amazing new kind of sugar was described as a hope for finding a cure for tuberculosis at a joint session today of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Iowa State Medical association.

The sugar is produced by tuberculosis germs. It is a sweet, dusty-white substance, highly complex, but capable of being reduced to ordinary glucose.

Its discovery is one of the things that sale of Christmas health seals has helped to make possible. It was found at one of the 20 nationally famous scientific organizations cooperating in search for a tuberculosis cure. The director of this far flung laboratory attack, Dr. William Charles White of the United States public health service, Washington, reported the discovery to the medical profession recently, and today told of developments since then and of many other lines of investigation.

He said the sugar might be the chemical bond between the tuberculosis bacillus and the one kind of human bodily cell in which tuberculosis is able to spread. As no other cells have been found through which tuberculosis attacks man successfully, "there is hope," Dr. White said, "that if the germ can be divorced from this cell it no longer can cause the disease. A positive cure might be possible."

Police were attempting to locate two companions who were riding in a roadster when it turned over, after crashing into a wagon, but who caught rides toward Dallas on the highway without giving their names. PETITION ASKS QUICK OUSTER OF JOHN VALLS

Moody Hears Personal Plea Of Business Men To Save Trade

RAIL SHOPS CLOSE

Texas-Mexican Road Suspends Until Issue Is Settled

AUSTIN, Jan. 1. (AP)—Only the resignation or removal from office of District Attorney John Valls will save the business men of Laredo from bankruptcy, Governor Moody was told today by a committee composed of O. W. Killam and Hal Brennan, of that city.

They presented the governor with a petition which they said contained the "voluntary" signatures of 1,800 persons, asking the chief executive to remove Valls from office.

They claimed that the door was open to Governor Moody to relieve Valls of his official duties since his appointment had not been confirmed by the Texas senate, and the governor needed merely to withdraw the appointment and substitute another. The legislature has not been in session since Valls was appointed to the district attorneyship this time.

Want Action Now

Killam said that it would be "too late," when the senate meets in special session about Jan. 15 to oppose Valls' confirmation in the event Governor Moody did not act.

"We will have been ruined in two weeks if nothing is done," Killam said.

Brennan predicted "open insurrection" for Laredo unless conditions were remedied.

Governor Moody promised the Laredoans he would give them a reply to their petition shortly, probably tomorrow. He refused to indicate what his answer would be and told newspaper men he would not discuss the case until he had decided what action he would take in the matter.

Rail Shops Closed

Killam and Brennan were advised on their arrival here that the Texas-Mexican Railway company had ordered its shops at Laredo "indefinitely closed," pending solution of the present problem which arose when the Mexican government ordered the consulate closed at Laredo after District Attorney Valls had threatened to cause the arrest of General Calles, former president of Mexico, on a charge of conspiracy to murder.

It was said the railroad's business had so fallen off since the controversy between Valls and the Mexican government and the attendant punitive measures taken by the Mexicans that closing of the shops was imperative.

BOTH TEXAS SENATORS ASSIST LAREDO

LAREDO, Texas, Jan. 1. (AP)—Both Texas senators, Tom Connally and Morris Sheppard, today took a hand in the controversy between Laredo and Mexico caused by the Valls-Calles affair. In answer to requests for aid, telegrams were received from both by the chamber of commerce here.

Sheppard wired: "I am appealing to the state department to take the necessary steps to restore the status existing before the action occurred which caused the present trouble."

Connally said he had wired the state department asking that body to protest against the closing of the Mexican consulate in Laredo. He characterized the action of Mexico as one "involving an international affront to the American people."

Borah's Mystery Letter Assails Federal Enforcement Organization

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (US)—Senator Borah's mystery letter to President Hoover recently on prohibition was a sweeping indictment of the enforcement system, it was learned today.

The president in a letter to the senate asked him to submit a memorandum of complaints against the prohibition enforcement machine.

Borah's answer was a list of instances of lax enforcement and President Hoover is understood to have assured Senator Borah that speedy action would be taken to remedy the conditions.

One phase of the prohibition enforcement system that drew fire from Senator Borah in his letter to the president was said to have been the handling of permits for industrial use of alcohol.

While it was not revealed whether specific instances of negligence permitting the legalized alcohol to reach the bootleg channels had been laid before the president, Senator Borah was said to have called for a thorough check-up of the present permit system.

After Senator Borah transmitted his memorandum to the president, the latter was said to have forwarded to the different departments responsible parts of the bill of complaint affecting them.

'Plain People' Take Advantage Of Opportunity to Shake Hoover's Hand

By PEARL GROSS
Universal Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—President and Mrs. Hoover held open house today for the world and his wife.

From 11 o'clock until 2:30 the chief executive of the nation and first lady of the land performed the herculean task of shaking hands with 6,346 persons who thronged through the historic portals of the White House. It was by far the largest number ever to attend a White House reception.

The annual New Year's day reception, when tradition demands that the doors of the executive mansion be thrown open to the public, found a record crowd today. Long before the iron gates of the White House were swung back to the public, a winding queue of eager folk stretched for blocks down Pennsylvania avenue.

As soon as the official reception to members of the cabinet and departmental executives of the government at noon, was over, the president and Mrs. Hoover rested, ate a light luncheon and then gave themselves enthusiastically to the hand-shaking ordeal.

This was their first experience and it was evident that both enjoyed the occasion.

Once again, J. W. Hunefield achieved the honor of being first

CLUES HELD IN 'GIFT MURDER'

Disgruntled Suitors of Slain Bride Suspected

There was no return address on the package, and it had not been delivered through the mail.

Inside was a paper box, tied with red ribbon and adorned with sprigs of holly, and inside this was an attractive tin box, similar to those in which novelty candies are packed. She opened the lid, and immediately the blast shook the house.

Neighbors, rushing in, found the seven members of the family on the floor, all unconscious save the grandmother who was trying to drag herself out of the gap that had been the door. The bomb had evidently contained a vial or flask of gasoline or other inflammable liquid, for the room was in flames in an instant, and the resulting burns may cost the lives of several more members of the family.

After removing the injured, neighbors then rushed all seven to the hospital, while firemen got the blaze under control.

Young Brady, arriving on the scene shortly after the blast, told Universal Service that he thought the murder was the revenge of a jealous suitor of his wife's, though he refused to reveal the name. He is about 22 years old, a clear-eyed quiet young farmer of high standing in Mitchellville where he lives. He was badly shocked at the tragedy, but kept himself well in hand while he submitted to a long weary grilling by newspaper men and police.

So terrific was the explosion that it actually exterminated the table on which it was being opened. The largest piece of the table that could be found was a small section of one of the lower legs, the top and remainder being reduced to chaff-sized splinters.

The mangled remains of a Christmas doll, belonging to little Dorothy, were found nearly 100 feet from the house.

Although the home of the Hall family is in Maryland, District of Columbia headquarters detectives immediately plunged to work on the case, assisting authorities of Prince Georges county.

Hines to Head Deep Oil Firm

of the executive committee is quoted below:

"I was very much surprised indeed when approached on the subject of being the general manager of the Deep Oil Development company as I had considered myself as a dyed-in-the-wool independent operator.

Careful Procedure

"Members of the executive committee, however, have convinced me of the splendid opportunity for civic service and the doing of a thing that if successful should mean much to the prosperity, further growth and development of not only Wichita Falls but this entire North Texas area, and it is this challenge that attracted my attention. I am not unmindful of the magnitude of the task, for the project of deep oil in this territory is a new one, and I therefore reiterate a statment that I have previously made to the effect that the stockholders and the public at large should not expect startling developments to happen overnight.

"It will be necessary to lay definite plans and proceed with caution, realizing the vital necessities of building a substantial foundation.

"I am very much encouraged by the interest manifested by many independent operators and wildcatters throughout the country and believe that the deep oil exploration project will be received with favor by outside interest and capital. It is not only our task as a company to try to discover deep oil in this area but also to interest outside capital to assist us in this exploration."

The members of the executive committee prepared the following public announcement after the appointment was made Wednesday morning:

Committee Statement

"The directors of the Deep Oil Development company at their first meeting some two weeks ago elected an executive committee to complete the organization of the company. They also were charged with the duty of selecting a general manager for the enterprise.

"This committee consists of Frank Kell, N. H. Martin, J. F. O'Donohoe, J. S. Bridwell, W. B. Hamilton, J. J. Perkins and James E. McKanna.

"After giving careful consideration to the many difficult duties required of a general manager for an enterprise of this magnitude, it was thought that, by all means, the manager selected should be someone thoroughly familiar with this district.

"The committee was well pleased when Mr. Hines finally agreed to accept this most responsible position.

"The committee realizes fully the duty it owes to the stockholders in this venture and for this reason, will carefully supervise all expenditures of funds."

in the public line to shake the president's hand and wish him a hearty "Happy New Year." Hunefield, a carpenter, has twice before been the "early bird" in this annual custom. He took his stand outside the White House at 5:30 a. m., after staying up all night so as to be sure to be first in line.

With good natured enthusiasm and many oh's and ah's as the first sight of the interior of the White House came into their view, the crowds comprising men, women and hundreds of small children, many of them tourists, grew slightly confused as they approached the chief executive and his wife.

Some anxious murmers about official etiquette passed down the line with a consequent hasty snatching-off of gloves. Several women nerviously dropped handkerchiefs and pocketbooks in their awed excitement of shaking hands with the president of the United States and the president's wife. The White House attaches, military and naval aides grouped around the executive pair were kept busy picking up these knick-knacks.

JURY ACQUITS EARL C. SCOTT

Borger Slaying Case Ends In Canadian Court

CANADIAN, Texas, Jan. 1. (AP)—Earl C. Scott, Borger, was acquitted of murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Bonnie Turner in a Borger grocery store last April 15 by a jury in district court here today.

The verdict was returned after two and one-half hours deliberation. When it was read in court, Mrs. Scott, who was charged with her husband in the slaying, threw her arms about him in joy. The charges against Mrs. Scott were dismissed because of "insufficient evidence."

Scott's defense in the trial was self-defense. His testimony and that of his wife was to the effect that Mrs. Scott had been subjected to continual insults from Mrs. Turner, and that Mrs. Turner had threatened to kill both of them.

The state's only testimony was from witnesses to the slaying, to identify Scott. Scott surrendered to police after the shooting.

Coast Patrols Continue Drive

Patrolman Jacobson, heard the sound of her powerful engines.

The police boat gave chase. The rum runner was showing a clean pair of heels when something happened to her motors. She slowed down perceptibly and with the police launch rapidly overhauling her, her crew ran her on to the rocks at the foot of Ninety-ninth street, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn. There they leaped ashore and vanished.

A large hole was stove in the bow of the rum runner, and she sank while being towed to port.

Investigation of the killing of the three men on board the Black Duck off New London Sunday morning, took a new turn today when Assistant Attorney General Benjamin M. McLyman announced he is conducting an inquiry under different lines than have hitherto been followed.

He wishes to discover, he said, if the crew of the government vessel failed to fire a warning shot as required under the revised statutes covering procedure by which a patrol boat must stop a vessel suspected of evading the customs laws.

Plans were going ahead in Boston today for the huge mass meeting to be held there in Faneuil hall tomorrow in protest against the Black Duck killings. Resolutions of protest will be sent to President Hoover. The Liberty Civic league has invited Senator William E. Borah to appear and "give the facts upon which your recent indictment of prohibition is based."

BOSWELL SEES STEADY GAIN

New Manager Goes to Facts For Optimism

gram of 1930 activities, already outlined by the program committee, and to be submitted to the membership at the annual banquet on Friday night of next week.

"The proposals make up a well-balanced program" the manager said. "If the recommendations are accepted the chamber will continue to push agricultural development, with an emphasis on the up-building of the entire section; it will continue to work for increased transportation facilities, new roads, industrial expansion and the attraction of new money and new people from other sections."

Sectional Development

Details of the proposed activities will not be made known until their formal acceptance by the membership, Mr. Boswell explained. He expressed especial approval, however, of efforts of the chamber of commerce to expand its work and its benefits to cover the entire Wichita Falls trade territory.

"Wichita Falls can no longer grow from within" he declared. "It is in the growth and development of Northwest Texas, whose resources are hardly scratched, that the city must look for its new wealth and prosperity. I am glad to see that the chamber of commerce is already organized along such a line and that its activities have already met with such success.

In discussing the basis of his hopes for the future, Mr. Boswell emphasized the importance of Northwest Texas and its development in the progress of Wichita Falls.

Points to Highways

"Every railroad that is built, every road constructed, all new capital, industries, and each new building erected through the section means, directly or indirectly, wealth and support to Wichita Falls" he asserted. He declared that he expected to see immediate results in improved business conditions from the newly opened highways leading to Seymour, Graham, the Panhandle, and other sections.

His analysis of the prospects of the city extended to include the whole of the southwest United States.

"The next 10 years will see the greatest development of the entire Southwest" was his prophecy. "Then, narrowing it down, Texas and Oklahoma of those southwest states will be the greatest beneficiaries of the prosperity. Of the narrowed district, I expect to see Northwest Texas, with its wonderful agricultural possibilities, its roads, railroads, industrial growth and tremendous development projects, to take the lead in progress and expansion.

"To accomplish these things we must work together to gather our natural wealth, to build up all the interests of every part of the section, and especially to assist in the development of the magnificent agricultural possibilities."

Mr. Boswell will be formally introduced to leaders of the Junior chamber of commerce at noon on Thursday and on Friday night of next week will be presented to the membership of the senior body.

Jury Disagrees in Cop's Trial for Slaying Youth

ABINGDON, Va., Jan. 1. (US)—The trial of James McReynolds, former Abingdon police officer for the slaying of J. W. Kendrick, 18-year-old student of Emory and Henry College, ended in a "hung jury" today in Washington county circuit court.

At a previous trial J. W. Crowe was exonerated and W. D. Worley, both Washington county officers, were fined $400. The three officers were indicted jointly for the slaying.

Taft's Burial Set for Today

Philanthropist to Be Interred in Home City

CINCINNATI, Jan. 1. (AP)—Charles P. Taft, 86, one of the world's most liberal philanthropists, who donated almost $10,000,000 here to arts, music education and charity, and whose financial interests included ownership of baseball clubs, newspapers, cotton plantations, hotels and mines, who died last night from pneumonia, will be buried tomorrow afternoon. He was ill a year and a half.

His body rested tonight in his downtown residence, one of the show places of the city. The Taft mansion is surrounded by factories, apartments, commission merchants, clearing houses and storerooms. He was one of the few wealthy persons here who refused to move from the old financial district. His home houses the greatest art treasure collection in the Middle-West, paintings and porcelains being valued at $5,000,000, all of which he has donated to the city of Cincinnati.

As publisher of the Times-Star, which he made one of the strong Republican newspapers in the Ohio valley, Mr. Taft was interested actively in politics, his father having been in President Grant's cabinet. In his late political life he supported the presidential candidacy of his half brother, William Howard Taft, who was en route here tonight from Washington.

Funeral services will be at 2 o'clock tomorrow in Christ church here. Burial will be in Spring Grove cemetery. Mr. Taft married Anne Sinton, daughter of David Sinton, wealthy iron manufacturer. Mrs. Taft, two daughters, Chief Justice Taft, several brothers and nephews survive him.

Mountain of Evidence In Power Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (US)—A mountain of documentary and other evidence had been assembled by the federal trade commission today for public hearings on the finances of the big electric power combinations.

The hearings are expected to start in the next few weeks, following a short series of hearings, beginning next Wednesday, dealing with propaganda.

For 18 months commission accountants have been examining books and records of any of the largest public utility holding companies in the country and their numerous subsidiaries.

It is estimated that the average human body is worth between $12 and $15 if the chemical materials composing it were sold at commercial prices.

FIRE WRECKS LUNCH STAND

Officers Probe Burning Of Small Cafe

Officials Wednesday night began an investigation into the cause of the fire which gutted the White Swan lunch stand on the Iowa Park road opposite the American refinery about 9 p. m. following reports from refinery employes who said they saw a car drive up and stop in the shadows near the place and two men occupants walk about the stand several minutes before the fire broke out.

The entire interior of the stand was destroyed, including all stock and foods and considerable damage was done to the outside structure. A cash register and a slot machine, although moved from their original positions, were found intact. The register contained only a few pennies, according to C. L. Lee, operator of the stand. The place has been broken into and the slot machine robbed on two occasions in recent months, Mr. Lee said.

The front door to the place was unlocked when Mr. Lee arrived at the place from his home about a block away before fire engines had reached the spot, he said, although he distinctly remembered having locked the door when he closed up earlier in the evening. Damage by the flames prevented ascertaining whether any of the foodstuffs or stock had been removed by the supposed prowlers. Loss was unofficially estimated at about $400.

Curtiss Airplane Wins Safety Prize

NEW YORK, Jan. 1. (US)—The first prize of $100,000 in the international aircraft competition, organized by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, for the aircraft which demonstrates under special rules the greatest advance in aero-dynamic safety without loss of efficiency, is awarded to the entry of the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor company. The announcement was made today by Capt. E. S. Land, vice president of the Guggenheim fund.

Formal award of the prize will be made at Mitchel field Jan. 6.

Twenty-seven manufacturers entered planes in the competition, but only 15 presented their planes at Mitchel field for testing.

Stimson Is Host To Diplomatic Corps

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (US)—Secretary of State Stimson made a notable revival of a traditional ceremony of former days today when he and Mrs. Stimson were hosts to the entire diplomatic corps at a breakfast at the magnificent Pan-American union.

Former Secretary Hughes had transferred the scene of the diplomatic reception from his home to the spacious halls of the beautiful Pan-American building here. Here in the exotic atmosphere of lush tropical plants and brilliantly coloured birds winging in the patio of the building, the secretary and Mrs. Stimson greeted their guests.

Police Arrest 44 In Dope and Theft Cases

The largest number of prisoners in the city jail at one time in almost a year were booked Wednesday night following a series of arrests by police in an endeavor to clear up a large part of the dope selling and thievery from parked automobiles which has been prevalent in Wichita Falls during the past few weeks.

A total of 44 persons, the majority men, were locked up Wednesday afternoon and night. Of that number 36 were for investigation in connection with the offenses named above, six were arrested for alleged drunkenness, one was held for county officers and one was booked for vagrancy.

Two New Year Babies Confuse 'Contest' Judges

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 1. (AP)—The question of the winner in San Antonio's annual baby sweepstake became complicated here today.

The first baby to be born in the new year is awarded several hundred dollars worth of merchandise by merchants. The first birth reported was that of a girl to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Lincks at 12:09 a. m.

The judges were in a quandary when a doctor later reported the birth of a baby boy to Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Garcia at 12:05 a. m.

Man Who Killed Rival Almost Lynched by Mob

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1. (UP)—Pasquale Bruno, who shot and killed Manuel Herrera over the love of Mrs. Herrera just as the New Year was ushered in, was lying at the point of death tonight in the general hospital here from wounds inflicted by friends of the man he slew.

The shooting occurred as a New Year dance was in progress at the Herrera home. A number of the male dancers attacked Bruno as the women cried "lynch him!" The slayer was stabbed in the cheek and beaten over the head with the gun he had just emptied into Herrera's body.

Wichita Prisoner Back in Cell After Three Attempts to End Life

After he had been frustrated in three separate efforts to take his own life, a prisoner at the Wichita county jail, still without serious injury, was reported resting quietly in a secluded cell Wednesday night.

The man, held under criminal assault charges brought by his 10-year-old daughter, Wednesday morning was saved from strangulation when fellow prisoners cut down a blanket rope, knotted tightly about his neck and thrown across the curtain ring of the jail shower.

An almost emptied bottle of iodine, found near the prisoner's cot, gave evidence of the second effort at self-destruction. Attendants said the man could have swallowed only a small portion of the poison and the county physician pronounced him unhurt. The iodine was a part of the first aid equipment left for the use of prisoners, it was explained.

After he had partially recovered from the shock of the earlier experiences, the determined prisoner Wednesday afternoon seized a safety razor blade and had administered wide but superficial cuts about the neck before his companions could overpower him and obtain the blade.

Infuriated, the prisoner attempted a battle with his fellows. He was placed in the hospital ward until his wounds were dressed and later left alone in a cell in which his movements could be observed.

Progress Made In American Exports

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (US)—In the face of bitter and increasing foreign competition, American exporters are making continued progress in foreign markets, according to a survey by the United States Chamber of Commerce today.

The figures, covering the first nine months of the year 1929, show that Canada—once more our leading market—bought $750,000,000 worth of goods, showing an increase of nearly 9 per cent over the same period a year ago.

The United Kingdom, in second place, took 15.3 per cent of our total exports, totalling $590,000,000, a gain of 7.5 per cent over last year. Our third leading market, Germany, showed a decline of $28,736,000, or nearly 10 per cent, due mostly to the severe falling off in her purchases of unmanufactured cotton.

On the other hand, sales to France, fourth best customer, increased more than $25,000,000 to a total of $179,508,000, a gain of 16.4 per cent over her purchases a year ago.

Harmon County Cops Capture Huge Still

Special to The Record News

HOLLIS, Okla., Jan. 1.—The strong arm of the law won another victory this week when the sheriff, E. T. Smith, and his force of Harmon county in running down a rumor located a still northeast of Hollis and made a haul of 26 gallons of whisky, several barrels of mash and a copper still.

Two men were arrested. They pleaded guilty and were given six months in jail and a $500 fine. The whisky, mash and copper still were destroyed.

First 1930 Baby Showered With Useful Presents

Gifts ranging from 500 pounds of ice to a promise to do baby's first laundry bundle free were some of the tributes Wichita Falls merchants paid Wednesday to this city's first 1930 baby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brady, 1509 McGregor street, born one hour and 10 minutes after the New Year had squirmed in its swaddling clothes.

The ice was offered by the Wichita Ice company. The laundry gift was made by the Model laundry. Other gifts included: a bouquet of flowers, Wichita Floral company; a nursery chair, Star Furniture company; silver knife, fork and spoon, Kruger Jewelry company; 12 quarts of milk, Southwest Dairy Products company; electric heating pad, Texas Electric Service company; basket of fruit, A. & P. stores; a high chair, Micks Furniture company; baby set, Miller Drug store; $2.50 building and loan account, Wichita Falls Building and Loan association; knitted sweater set, W. B. McClurkan company; $1 deposit on savings account, the Security National bank; and two bricks of ice cream, the Pure Ice Cream company.

There were two close contenders for the honor of being the first 1930 baby. The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bosworth, 1529 Twenty-second street, was born at 2:45 a. m. Wednesday, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith, christened Doris Mae, was born at 7 a. m.

Scientist Plans Trip to Africa

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1. (US)—Prepared for a scientific assault on the mysteries of the African jungle, Dr. Arthur Torrance, head of the American-Swedish expedition which will sail from New York next June, left here today after completing plans for an 18-month sojourn among the natives.

"Central Africa has a great deal to offer to anthropology," he stated today. "So far little attention has been given to scientific work in the Lake Chad territory and it is the intention of our party to make a close study of life ancient and modern—what it is today and what it was centuries ago."

From the medical standpoint, Doctor Torrance believes the field provides great possibilities. Sleeping sickness, yellow fever and malaria are rampant at the present time among the natives. A study of these problems, he believes, will help science.

IMPORTS GAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (US)—American imports for the first nine months of 1929 broke all former records by a wide margin, with a total bill of $3,250,000,000 for the period, the United States Chamber of Commerce announced today.

There are 23.5 mootr vehicles to each mile of road in the Hawaiian islands.

OLNEY SEEKS BETTER COTTON

Long Staple Association Is Formed

Special to The Record News

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 1.—J. L. Castleman has been elected president of the newly created Long Staple Cotton Growers association of Young county. Representatives from Jean, Bitter Creek, Padgett and Olney met in the local chamber of commerce offices Tuesday afternoon with J. G. Bishop, vocational agricultural agent and Merle Gruver, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and perfected plans for the organization of farmers in Young county interested in growing a better staple cotton. M. H. Simms of Jean was elected vice president and J. G. Bishop, secretary.

Representatives selected to sit on the board and who attended the meeting were: A. C. Clannahan, J. L. Castleman, Bitter Creek; Virgil Heard, Dee Carr, Padgett; M. H. Simms, E. L. Baldwin and O. C. Elliott, Jean; Victor Kunkle, R. H. Rachuig and A. E. Klenk, Olney.

A second meeting for the association has been set for Saturday afternoon, Jan. 11, at 2:30 o'clock in the chamber of commerce offices. At this meeting representatives from all other communities in the county will be invited and given an opportunity to join and participate in this countywide effort to improve the cotton situation.

Letters are being sent out this week from the chamber of commerce to each of the following communities requesting the attendance of representatives at the meeting on Jan. 11: Lone Oak, Spring Creek, Orth, Hunt, Loving, Ingleside, True, Newcastle, Cottonwood and Graham.

The organization of the Long Staple Cotton Growers association has developed from a series of meetings which have been held during the past few weeks throughout this territory by representatives of the local chamber of commerce. Most of the cotton throughout this territory has been on the condemned list for the past few years on account of the staple. Several farmers appealed to the local organization requesting assistance toward solving this vital problem and several meetings followed. In every community visited there seems a strong tendency on the part of the farmers to cooperate in the campaign for better staple and it is hoped that through the newly created organization definite plans may be worked out for the best interest of the farmers.

Meetings will be held in every community in the county during the next few weeks. Wednesday night representatives from the association met at the Bitter Creek schoolhouse. Friday night another meeting will be held at Ingleside and Tuesday night, Jan. 7, a meeting will be held at Padgett. Announcements of other community meetings will be made at the board meeting in Olney Saturday afternoon, Jan. 11.

Official Probes Fire Losses Here

The seriousness of several large fires in Wichita Falls in 1929, when total fire losses amounted to approximately $400,000, resulted in the appearance here of a deputy fire marshal, sent by the state government to investigate the causes of some of the more recent conflagrations. The deputy marshal has been conducting his query with the aid of city fire department officials but has yet made no public announcement of his findings.

The losses by fire in 1929 indicated a large increase over those of the previous year when the department recorded a property loss of $339,200. Small blazes also added their quota to the number of alarms, 651 calls having been made in 1929 and 562 in 1928.

The major fires of the past year were the Antlers hotel blaze, in which three persons lost their lives; the Mack Thomas building fire, the blaze which gutted the Robertson-Stringer building and the two fires which destroyed the Lydick Roofing company and the Central Feed store. Two of the major conflagrations occurred during the month of December, when the total loss amounted to $72,250, a larger total than in any other month of the year.

Four Face Charges In Forgery Operations

A check writer, pads, and stamps seized by Sheriff W. G. Bralley in a raid here Tuesday, were believed Wednesday night to supply the final link in the evidence against four men at Quanah and charged in seven Texas cities with forgery and the passing of forged instruments.

Hardeman county authorities late Wednesday brought one of their prisoners to Wichita Falls in search of the writer already in possession of the sheriff's department here. With Mr. Bralley and the defendant, tests were made, comparing forged instruments with the checks written by the machine. Officials said the Hardeman county charges would be filed Thursday and that similar complaints are being prepared in six other Texas towns, among them Seymour, Sweetwater, and Big Spring.

PRISONERS MOVED

D. E. Chapman and Charley Cunningham, charged with cattle theft, and a third man arrested on the same complaint here Wednesday afternoon, were transferred Wednesday night to Clay county where the alleged offense was committed, according to information given by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, and Sheriff W. G. Bralley. No formal complaint has yet been filed against the third defendant.

HEREDITY KEY IS DISCUSSED

Precious 'Gene' Rules Human Existence

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 1. (AP)—The "most precious of materials" was described to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today by Dr. Charles B. Davenport of Carnegie institution of Washington.

He said it is the gene, a substance so tiny that even microscopes do not make it visible, a substance controlling the germ cells of living things, a key to heredity.

"We exist," he said, "because we are what our germ plasm has made us. Failure of the germ plasm to be carried on perhaps indicates unfitness for evolution. More properly it may signify an unfitness of our woefully distorted civilization to permit of the continuance of the otherwise excellent germ plasm.

"But if mankind has too little regard for its duty of perpetuation of its own best germ plasm, it has no doubt at all about the value of the best germ plasm of the thoroughbred horse or dairy cow. Hundreds of thousands of dollars will be paid for a stallion whose racing days are over but whose personal family history proves the peculiar value of its genes. By weight genes are the most precious of materials."

He said that genes, patterned into threads named chromosomes, are sometimes changed and with them hereditary characteristics, by radiation such as radium, unranium and X-rays, and also by cold. It appears, he added, that temperature changes do not produce new forms that otherwise never would have occurred, but merely "accelerate realization of potencies wrapped up in the genes."

Another agency of nature in making creatures so that no two appear exactly alike is through changes in the germ plasm during development of the body.

"It is alluring to speculate upon this discovery," he said, "and to formulate the hypothesis that the spotted patterns of mammals are due to such somatic (bodily) mutations. Perhaps some day the entire process of differentation may be found due to a regularly recurring series of somatic mutations."

A healthy adult's lungs contain 170,000 cells.

Hoover May Delay Naming of Hackett

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (UP)—The possibility of President Hoover temporarily withholding the nomination of Senator Hackett, Republican, Kentucky, to be ambassador to Germany in order to retain control of the senate manufacturers committee, was seen in some senatorial circles today.

Hackett's resignation to become ambassador to Germany virtually would insure a place on the manufacturers committee for Senator La Follette, independent Republican from Wisconsin.

With Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, already on the committee, the regulars must keep the other 10 Republican seats in order to retain control of the committee. Couzens is not a member of the western independent bloc, but is independent enough in his votes so that he could be expected to side with La Follette and the Democrats on many questions.

Senator Grundy, Republican, Pennsylvania, and former lobbyist, aspires to four committee posts in the senate. He has asked for appointment to the appropriations, interstate commerce, banking and currency, and manufacturers committee.

Of the four he is the most likely to get a place on the manufacturers committee which is headed by La Follette.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The Fleming family on Tenth street has a vegetarian cat. She is half Persian and most aristocratic in her tastes. On first acquaintance with her, when she cried for food, they offered her meat—a variety of meat when she scorned the first bit laid before her. But meat was disdained. It happened that a piece of whole-wheat bread was put before her and to the family's surprise, she devoured it. That is her staple diet now. We hear they have not tried her on spinach.

◇ ◇ ◇

So far 1930 doesn't seem very different from 1929. We've made no resolutions; we have prayed for patience. We crave patience with the ones who say "allrighty" to us and who address us as "girlie," "little woman," and "honey." And we pray that all women who click chewing gum will make New Year's resolutions—to quit it.

◇ ◇ ◇

Once before we spoke of the women who clicked gum and a reader called us to request that we include those who parked gum.

◇ ◇ ◇

We met the most courtly gentleman at the New Year's party at the Wichita club. His wife introduced us to G. D. Anderson, saying he had wanted to meet us because he read our column. And to our surprise, the numbers of the column from which he had gotten a "kick" were those on the Federation of Women's clubs at Mineral Wells. We fancy we know why.

◇ ◇ ◇

We notice the O'Steen forecast for Wichita Falls in 1930. He says more women consult him than men. We know one woman who went with a friend to him and he told her he could tell her nothing. He could not, somehow, get to her brain. She had been wondering ever since if she had a thick head or just a little brain. He talked to the friend for an hour.

◇ ◇ ◇

One thing we think is very interesting and that's the manner in which the firms of the city offer gifts to the first baby born in Wichita Falls on New Year's day. It is particularly interesting in a newspaper office when data begins to come in and mothers become concerned to know if their children are the winners.

◇ ◇ ◇

But anything about babies is almost always interesting to almost all women. A baby's picture if it is a happy, smiling one, will set a group exclaiming in delight.

◇ ◇ ◇

Another thing would set most women exclaiming and that was the noise on the streets of Wichita Falls as the New Year came in. Any other birth is treated with a decent sort of respect, but a New Year cannot be born in peace. We are willing to give our share of shots and whistles to any one who craves them.

◇ ◇ ◇

If we were to make a resolution, it would be to prepare more palatable food at home. We've rather a liking for fixing up dishes to tempt the appetite and since we notice that half of the nation's grocery bill in 1929 went to the restaurants and cafes, we believe home needs a little more attention—or home tables.

Attitude Toward Life Is Secret Of All Happiness

"To My Mind the Secret of Happiness Is to Be Found in Our Attitude Toward Life—Outside Conditions Have Little to Do With It—Life Is There, and We Put Our Own Punch Into It."

A clergyman has started what he calls a "happiness clinic" in which he proposes to find out what happiness is, how to start in pursuit of it, and how to attain it.

It is a big undertaking that many others have attempted and in which most have failed. For the strange thing about happiness is the more we study it, the less we understand it, the harder we pursue it, the swifter does it run away from us, the more passionately do we crave it, the less do we achieve it.

And, queerly enough, this thing that we value above all others, and that we spend our time from the cradle to the grave in searching for, is so vague and intangible, even to our own minds, that we do not know what it is, nor where to look for it. Some think to find it in arctic wastes or tropic jungles. Others look for it in a woman's eyes. Others think it lies at the bottom of a wine glass and consists in making whoopee. Others think that they will find it hidden among their bags of gold, while others search for it in the cold, bare cell of the anchorite. And so we go searching—searching—searching blindly groping in the dark trying to lay our hands on happiness.

And, to add to our confusion, happiness wears a thousand faces and comes in a thousand disguises so that we often do not recognize it when we meet it. Sometimes it comes and sits by our own firesides and walks and talks with us for a space, and we only know that we have entertained an angel unawares and had happiness with us after it has gone.

Once upon a time I said to the famous actress, Mary Anderson: "You have achieved happiness beyond that of any woman I have ever known. What is the secret of happiness?"

"To find out what you want to do and then to have the courage to do it," she replied. "That is the way I have found happiness. I wearied of the stage and found publicity distasteful to me, and I wanted to live the simple, domestic life with husband and child and home and a few friends around me."

"I knew what I wanted and I had the courage to take it. I left the stage at the very height of my fame, at the very hour of my triumph, and I have had the courage to refuse every offer to go back to it, no matter how great a temptation was offered me in the way of money and big roles."

"As I said, I wanted the quiet life and I have had the courage to refuse to be drawn in the social world. I live in the edge of a little village so small it is just a hamlet, but it gives me just the quiet and the leisure and the solitude I want, and I am happy because I am living just the life I want to live."

No one can gainsay that Miss Anderson has blazed one road to happiness, but it is one that is blocked to most of us because, in the first place, we do not know what we want of life, nor what it will take to make us happy. We are like bewildered children in a toy shop reaching out greedy hands for a dozen different glittering objects and unable to decide which one we most desire.

And for another thing, we lack the hardihood to prevent others from making confusion in our lives and seducing us away from our purpose. We may see the signboard that plainly points out our path to happiness, but we detour around it because we have not the courage to rid ourselves of parasites, or to refuse invitations that we know will bore us, or to retire from business and invite our souls instead of working ourselves to death, or to step aside and let the furious, mad, rushing procession pass us by.

To my mind the secret of happiness is to be found in our attitude toward life. Outside conditions have little to do with it. It is just how we feel about a thing that makes it pleasure or pain, worthwhile, or what's the use? Little is there, and we put our own punch into it, or there isn't any.

There is work, for instance. It is a blessing or a curse, as you take it. There are those who find in work a stimulus that never fails, an interest that never palls, a romance that never dulls. To them business is the sport of kings, and they sit every day in a game in which men gamble with fortunes. They are swallowed up in what Mr. Kipling calls "the clean joy of creation," in rearing cities, in building skyscrapers, in throwing railroads across the country, in creating beauty and usefulness in a thousand forms. They find happiness in work.

Other men find nothing but misery in work. It is nothing but drudgery to them. They have no interest in what they do, no pride of craftsmanship, no vision of its purpose. It is just dull, stupid, uninspiring labor that they do that they may eat, and in which they give as little as they can for their wages. They get no happiness out of work.

There is marriage. It imposes restrictions on all who enter it. It requires many sacrifices. But there are men and women who gild their fetters, men and women who by their love and tenderness and consideration for each other make matrimony in reality the holy estate, and who find in each other's companionship the nearest approach to happiness any one ever knows.

And there are other men and women who resent every duty and obligation of marriage, who quarrel and fight and fill their hearts with bitterness and jealousy and hatred and who make their marriage an earthly purgatory.

And there is motherhood. There are women who get nothing but joy out of their children, who would rather have the clasp of little arms around their necks than a million-dollar pearl necklace, who get more thrill out of watching by a baby's cot than they would out of the wildest party, and who are perfectly happy as they sit with their little ones around their knees.

And there are other women who are bored to tears by their children, who begrudge every minute they have to give them, and who are always complaining about how they are tied down by their babies, and moaning over how much trouble and what a burden children are.

So there you are. Life is pretty much the same for all of us, and we take our happiness, or leave it, as we will.

Candy Not Forbidden TO THE FAT

No need to deny yourself all good things because you overweigh. Modern physicians do not advise starvation. They know the dangers of it. They know that people who are over-fat have generally an under-active gland. So they supply the factor, for lack of which too much food goes to fat.

This modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. These tablets were perfected, and are prepared, by a famous medical laboratory. A book in each box states the formula and explains the reasons for results.

For 22 years Marmola has held the top place in its field. Millions of boxes have been used in fighting fat. The people who gained new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have told others. Now the results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has largely disappeared.

There is usually no excuse for an abnormal figure and the dangers which go with it. If the cause is an under-active gland, Marmola is the right way to combat it. For 22 years, countless people have been learning what it does.

Go try Marmola and learn what they have learned. Read the book in the box, then do as directed. Take four tablets a day. When you see that results are coming, go on and complete them. You owe that to your future. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

Rayburn Refutes Oklahoman's Attack

BONHAM, Texas, Jan. 1. (AP)—Congressman Sam Rayburn today said he was withholding final decision on pending legislation granting the right to the states of Texas and Oklahoma to build three bridges over Red river, and denied Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma correctly interpreted his stand when the Oklahoman was quoted as saying:

"It now appears as if some of our Texas friends are to undertake to block the legislation. Congressman Sam Rayburn who represents the district south of Durant and Hugo is opposed to the bills. It would appear also that the senators are not enthusiastic for the legislation."

Rayburn said he would make no decision until after hearings now pending and declared the committee of which he is a member has passed out of committee all bills calling for construction of free bridges and that the committee has brought out a bill providing all toll bridges built hereafter shall become free after a certain time.

GOOD YEAR FOR ALTUS AREA

Jackson County Launches Into New Year's Work

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Jan. 1.—Altus and Jackson county today began a new year of work, cheered by a backward glance of what has been accomplished during the last 12 months. Some of this region's accomplishments of 1929 include:

This county was fourth in cotton production of the counties of Oklahoma for 1929 with approximately 60,000 bales ginned.

Large Turkey Sales

Farmers sold turkeys to the extent of approximately $250,000 to eastern markets just prior to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

A considerable amount of wheat, alfalfa and feeds were produced during the year.

Altus, Olustee and Eldorado were placed on the Carlsbad Cavern highway of three states which bids fair to be designated as a federal highway.

Plans for the completion of the highway improvement projects of the county in 1930 were made. All county highways were marked.

Irrigation Work

Arrangements were made for a large number of farmers to be accommodated with irrigation water for their farms from Lake Altus.

Seventeen federation of home demonstration clubs were maintained for farm women throughout the county.

Over 900 farm boys and girls were given training in 4-H club work, many of whom won state and national honors.

A large number of new buildings including business houses, a large hotel in Altus and many residences in towns and on farms of Jackson county were constructed during 1929. A large cotton compress was erected in Altus. A new creamery was built here.

Towns Rebuilt

Headrick and Blair, two towns of the county practically destroyed by the tornado of June 16, 1928, were reconstructed into even more modern towns than before.

Modern large school buildings were erected in four of the 29 school districts of Jackson county.

The chamber of commerce of Altus under the leadership of C. W. Snyder, president, who was recently voted the outstanding citizen of the city for 1929, sponsored a revaluation of property in the Altus school district making possible the maintenance of a much better school and the possibility of voting bonds for the erection of new buildings here.

Two Master Farmers

Jackson was one of two counties in the state to have two farmers selected among the master farmers of Oklahoma for the past year, G. T. Roberts of Blair and J. M. Motheral of Olustee, being named as two of the 12 men to be honored with medals early in January.

A larger variety of crops are being raised on farms of Jackson county than in previous years, with the farmers gradually becoming convinced that poultry, cattle and other livestock may be raised causing a steady source of income in addition to the large amount of cotton planted in this section of the state each year.

A farm advisory board of 30 men have been selected to work with W. B. Forrester, county farm agent, and all farmers of the county in ridding the county of prairie dogs, terracing a large acreage of farm land, installing septic tanks at farm residences making modern conveniences in the homes possible and generally assisting in the development of improved farming.

Oklahoma Produces Much New Wealth

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 1. (UP)—Oklahoma produced more than $1,500,000 worth of new wealth in the past year. The gain was about equally divided between agriculture, minerals and manufacturing.

Despite the marked increase, the outlook for the expenditure of large sums of money for construction of highways, schools, public utilities and municipal improvements indicated activities in 1930 will better former record breakers.

Curtailment of oil production and decline in price brought the value of mineral production slightly lower than last year. Discovery and development of abundant natural resources and cheap fuels for industrial purposes have given a greater impetus than ever to the establishment of new industries.

Total value of the state's mineral production for the year totals $946,000,000 while the value of manufactured products is $475,000,000.

Total agricultural production was about $513,500,000, including the production of grains, cotton, livestock, produce and other products.

Sorrow Pervades Paisley, Scotland, As Parents Claim Bodies of Children

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 1. (AP)—New Year's Day was one of gloom and sorrow for the city of Paisley with the shadow of Tuesday's motion picture panic tragedy affecting every one.

There were few cheery New Year greetings, the people for the most part restricting themselves to quiet observance of the day, weighed down by the tragedy which had overtaken so many homes. In the narrow streets where most of the victims lived, lights glimmered fitfully tonight through drawn blinds telling of sleepless inhabitants.

With the death list definitely fixed at 72, 37 children were still confined to the hospital, three of them in a critical condition.

For the cotton town, which lies on the outskirts of Glasgow, New Year's eve was a night of silence and desolation. New Year's greetings were stilled in tragedy. Throughout the night fainting mothers pressed on to identify their dead, carrying little ones home in their shawls when they could. In the hospital three rooms were filled with dead.

It was the tragedy of "the door that jammed." The actual cause of the panic is now said to have been the inability of the assistant operator to open a side door when he sought to carry the burning film out.

Before the door could be opened fumes spread through the building and terrified the children scrambling for the exit. Firemen and helpers found children on the stage, in the orchestra pit, everywhere. Some in their terror tried to climb the moving picture screen.

"The scene on the fairway," says deputy Firemaster Wilson, "made seasoned firemen shudder. For ten feet children were packed tightly together in every imaginable position, like a wall of cement bags."

It is considered doubtful if some of the rescued children will ever fully recover from their experience. One little boy was found in a corner with bodies piled above his waist. When firemen reached him he was looking upwards, gesticulating, as if trying to push some horror back with his hands. He still thought he was fighting for his life.

Why Did This Young Girl Marry Her Employer— For Love or for Money?

Judith Cameron

Arthur Knight

Tony Knight

Judith Cameron, young and beautiful, a stenographer in a New York publishing house . . . Arthur Knight, an executive in the firm, middle-aged and a widower with two children.

Loneliness brought this man and woman together. Knight found sympathy and understanding in the youthful Judith; she found in Knight someone who could protect her from a world that had been none too kind.

That was the basis of their love. They married . . . People said of Judith that she married for money. Her stepdaughter, Tony Knight, only a few years younger than herself, accused her of it. Her stepson was hostile.

Can such a marriage be successful? This is the problem of which Laura Lou Brookman, brilliant young author, writes in "Rash Romance," the Wichita Daily Times' new serial. Out of it she has built one of the most gripping love stories you ever read.

THE PRINCE EPISODE

Daily Editorial

ONCE UPON a time—how the years fly!—when you were a mere mite of a girl, and still believed in fairy spells, and crocks of gold under April rainbows—when every attic held a goblin and four-leaved clovers were talismans of fortune—just as lady-bugs were harbingers of luck—you dreamed of the day-to-be when Prince Goldenlocks would come riding past . . .

But why give space to such tommyrot?

This is the year 1929; you're a woman now, with no time to waste on silly illusions. Imagination has forgotten the road to castles-in-Spain, and all the whimsies and fantasies of the long ago have blown away into Never-Never Land.

The prince rode north to wed Gwendolyn Snuggs, the banker's snub-nosed daughter; not a four-leaved clover delivered the goods; the lady-bugs turned out to be humbugs—and if you keep on reading, the stew will be boiling over the stove and your boy will be back from school before the lunch table is even set.

Which brings us back to the prince dream, and the son that was to be born in the purple—straight and upstanding and radiant with gifts of mind and person.

But since you weren't a banker's snub-nosed daughter, and he was born with a bawl in his mouth, instead of a silver spoon, (which latter must be an extremely uncomfortable experience), somehow you've lost the habit of gilding tomorrow with ornate longings.

You've become a very matter of fact person, in whose calculations wash-tubs, cake-tins and dust-cloths play such an insistent part, that you haven't energy left to go snooping through the garrets of memory.

You sniff, with bitter incredulity, at wishing rings and similar bosh. And, though you won't acknowledge it, have practically abandoned the rich faiths of youth, simply because things didn't happen just as you yearned.

So you won't look round to realize how much more wonderful the world has become since the Grimms and Hans Christian Anderson went out of style, and radio and automobiles and airships came into fashion.

IT HASN'T struck you that the first actual era of magic is here with bells on—that, now, all things can be—that the boldest dream of success can find the tools of realization—and any son of woman achieves as far as the motors of determination and initiative elect to drive.

The meanest lie that ever blighted the universe—the delusion of caste, of inherited superiority—is in course of universal repudiation. Manger or mansion, palace cradle or husk trundle, have no influence on ultimate personal destiny.

Success is measuring all humans by standards of fitness, not by the cheating tape-lines of creed and breed.

This is the most hopeful hour among the illustrious sands of time.

Your old dream wasn't big enough.

It didn't take progress and opportunity into its account.

It didn't anticipate modern research, the new instruments of enterprise, advance practice, or the ceaseless processes of inhovation, daily providing fresh chances for originality and pertinacity.

Men whose fathers hammered horse-shoes and peddled shoe-strings, and carried hods—the throw of peasants, serfs and foundlings—are piling the heavens with skyscrapers, spanning seas with verbal bridges, operating nation-wide store chains, and controlling financial institutions which make old Snugg's tawdry note-shaving joint seem like a toy bank by contrast.

Nothing stands between your youngster and comparable accomplishment except a pessimistic background.

Keep the home fires burning with confidence and optimism for his sake. No whiner ever yet whelped a winner.

A headline warns people to beware of $100 bills because there are many bad ones in circulation. That won't interest many people at this time of the year.

Henry Ford recently wrote a check for a penny. Surely he isn't buying back those Model T's!

Not Brainy—Just Dumb

WE have a fiction in this country that our really big gangsters—the aristocrats, so to speak, of our underworld—are very clever, brilliant men.

"That man," we say of an Al Capone or an Arnold Rothstein, "could have made a great success if he had gone into some legitimate business or profession."

That's one of our favorite myths. But once in a while something happens that makes one wonder if these lawless big shots aren't pretty dumb.

There is, for instance, Fred Burke, or Fred Dane, the Chicago gangster who lived in a mansion in St. Joseph, Mich., as a millionaire business man.

Burke is called the greatest gangster in America. Robberies totaling $1,000,000 and the deaths of a dozen men are charged to his account. Evidently the man was the best specimen our underworld has yet produced. According to our traditions, he must be a highly-gifted and brainy chap.

But here is what Burke did.

First, get the picture. Burke was sitting pretty. He was a respected citizen of St. Joseph. No one there dreamed of suspecting him. He had $300,000 in cold cash at his disposal. Whether he wanted to retire from crime and live in peace and quiet, or continue with his various rackets, the situation was perfect; so perfect, indeed, that it sounds more like fiction than fact.

All right. Here was Burke, with all of this, driving along a street in his automobile. A traffic officer stopped him for some minor traffic law violation.

And what did Burke, the "brainy" gangster, do but draw his gun and shoot the policeman to death!

It wasn't, remember, as if he had been arrested for some serious crime. It was just a traffic charge. It might have meant a fine of $25—not more. It could not possibly have harmed Burke.

But instead of submitting and paying up he murdered the policeman.

Then, of course, everything came out. He had to flee. The police went to his house and the whole story became known. He lost that super-perfect position of his, lost his $300,000, lost his headquarters—lost, in fact, everything that he had.

And simply because he didn't have sense enough to take a traffic ticket quietly!

Smart? This gang leader was the dumbest specimen we have ever heard of.

Our underworld kings aren't the brainy chaps we suppose. They are subnormal in intelligence. Burke's dizzy fiasco proves it.

Why the Navy Objects

THERE is so much talk of naval disarmament these days that many Americans have grown just a bit impatient with our naval officers who are protesting against any proposals that would reduce the strength of the American navy.

Their position, however, is not hard to understand. They are trained for the national defense. They know precisely what its problems are. They know just what the value of each cruiser, submarine and battleship would be in case of war. And, as Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman once remarked, "A second-best navy is like a second-best poker hand."

That's the navy's viewpoint, and it's not hard to understand. Doubting the efficacy of any peace program, they want to leave nothing to chance.

In a way, too, they are right. We shan't do anyone any good by reducing our navy, unless we see to it, at the same time, that our foreign policy is so handled that the danger of war is removed.

The Menace of Checkers

THE CITY of La Crosse, in Wisconsin, seems to be somewhat like the city of Lynn, Mass.; that is, it evidently has a mayor who is fond of making unusual and peculiar rules for the guidance of his fellow citizens.

Lynn's mayor, you will remember, passed all kinds of edicts regarding the length of women's skirts and the like.

Now the mayor of La Crosse—if press dispatches are to be believed—announces that checkers must not be played in public places. He has been nourishing a campaign against gambling, and he says that checkers is potentially as bad a game as craps. Hence—no more checkers in public.

This is the first time we have heard that the playing of checkers could be an evil and immoral pastime. The people of La Crosse now know just how the people of Lynn have been feeling.

Did He Spill the Beans?

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT, it is reported, is making an inquiry into General Smedley Butler's recent Pittsburgh speech, in which the doughty marine declared that the marines in Haiti had maneuvered elections so as to put hand-picked candidates into office.

This inquiry, somehow, doesn't especially appeal to us. Offhand, it looks very much as though someone is about to land on General Butler for spilling the beans. He talked out of turn and gave away a navy secret; hence he must be punished. That, at any rate, is the way it appears on the surface.

General Butler's speech caused a commotion, and an inquiry is in order—but not an inquiry into the speech itself. The inquiry that is needed is an inquiry into the actions of those responsible for the state of affairs that General Butler described.

Marriage for Two-- By Arthur Somers Roche

Joyce Confesses

They found a carriage outside the Casino and drove up the long hill that led to the Mazell villa. They passed Resaurle, and Joyce ordered the cabby to stop. Larry might have returned.

He had, and the fit of justifiable ill temper which had sent him out into the town had vanished now.

"Among the perils and pitfalls of Europe, Joyce, did I mention my friend the Marquis de Valdemagara?"

Billy grinned. "And there had been talk of the American peril, my friend, and behold, it has been having tea with me. But I have returned her safely to you, although I have not come unscathed through the encounter myself."

"And where are you taking me now?" Larry asked.

"We had thought of calling on Jeanne," said Joyce.

The tea was gay, and Joyce noted that Valdemagara detached himself from her side upon their arrival, nor did he approach her again that afternoon. She pleaded weariness when Jeanne suggested a party that night, and Larry backed her up, so they dined at home. After dinner, over their coffee in the little room adjoining the salon, Larry approached a matter.

"Joyce," he said, "I did not ask Miss Novel anything about you. I intended to, but—"

"Why did you intend to?" she demanded.

"Because I knew that you had given her the 40,000 francs that you said you had lost at shimmy," he replied.

"You knew that I had lied to you?"

He blushed painfully. "I did."

"Then why not ask her about it?"

"Because I couldn't. One may think of questioning strangers about one's wife, but one doesn't do it."

"And why," she asked, "are you telling me this?"

"Because I want to make myself look as well as possible with you," he answered. "Because, Joyce, I love you."

"I paid the woman money because she recognized me," said Joyce. "She would have told you that I had been the mistress of a man in New York."

Disbelief

He breathed heavily. "I'm glad I didn't ask her. I—Joyce, I might have killed her if she'd said that."

"You wouldn't have believed it?"

"Good God, no!" he cried.

"Then why did I give her money?" she asked.

He stared at her. "Joyce, are you trying to tell me that what she would have said—is true?"

"Suppose I said that it was?" she asked.

"Then I would say that you were out of your mind," he told her.

"You'd not believe it?"

"I couldn't," he cried.

"Thank you," she said.

He took the curt expression as a jeer.

"Joyce, please! If I—had a mean thought—why be contemptuous of me? You'll admit that I had some excuse."

"I do," she said. "And I'm not contemptuous, Larry. I—Larry, Burton and the Wilsons are leaving tonight."

"Well?"

"I thought you'd want to know," she said.

"Why?" he demanded. "Joyce, are you going forever to hold it against me that—"

"You kissed Helen? Don't be absurd. Ladies who ask for kisses nearly always get them. And gentlemen who refuse them aren't very gallant. No, Larry, I'm not going to hold it against you. If you'll have it that way—it's forgotten."

He made no answer, staring at her, as though looking for some break in her defenses of which this concession was an indication.

"But there is some one else who may hold it against you, Larry."

"Helen?" he hazarded.

She hid the faintest twinkle of malice in her eyes.

"Naturally, you'd think of that. A man's vanity! The picture of the inconsolable young woman who hoped for so much—"

"Don't, please," he begged.

A looker-in would have assured him that Joyce was never more attractive than when she indulged in sardonic jeering, but to him it was a phase that repelled. Perhaps it was because he unconsciously glimpsed strength in her, and a man must be more than infatuated before he really cares for strength in a woman. He must be selflessly in love, and that kind of love is not born in a week or a month or in a year.

"All right," she conceded. "I'm not very gentle, am I, Larry?"

He mumbled something to the effect that she was all right, and that she knew he knew it, and she cut into the compliment.

"I'm thinking of Burton," she said.

Should She Tell?

"Burton? What about him?" he asked.

"He may not have relished Biarritz's merriment, or scandal, or whatever one may call it," she explained. "I hate to seem harping on the subject, but he's an edlerly man, you know."

"Well?" He frankly did not understand her.

"Elderly men who have permitted themselves to make the error of falling in love with young girls are subject to jealousies that young men can barely understand," she explained.

"You mean that Burton—"

"Yes," she sighed. "I mean that Burton."

"It's too silly. Anyway, he's leaving here tonight. So, even if he were angry, why—well, he'll be gone," he finished lamely.

She wanted to tell him of Burton's two threats, but some hardly understood reluctance prevented her. Burton had been bombastic in his threats, and probably, when his jealousy had cooled, he would regret their utterance. If every idle word is repeated, life becomes a difficult thing. Now, perhaps Burton's words had not been idle, but certainly they had not been too well-considered. In these days men do not threaten another man's ruin because that other man has kissed an ex-fiancee. Furthermore, Burton had telephoned her today, and that brief speech which he had delivered to her could well be considered a withdrawal of his threat. Why bother Larry by telling him about it?

She was sorry that she had hinted at anything. After all, this husband of hers, whom she was taking a sort of perverse pleasure in baiting, had been extraordinarly decent to her. He had made her, a starving waif, his bride.

"That's true enough. He'll be gone," she conceded. "And let us hope, forgotten," she added.

That night she left her door ajar, even called to him to come into her room, where she lay—still not unconscious of her desirability—on the chaise lounge, and they talked, in a return of their first camaraderie, until well toward morning. And she was rewarded for such a small concession, by the gayety in Larry's voice, by the light in his eyes.

Skilled Labor

(An impression of a conference gained from reading the testimony of a New York police inspector in a sensational holdup inquiry that gunmen are employed under contract in many big cities of the country to kill persons for a price.)

PHILLIPS

"Doing anything these days?"

"Nope. I'm outa employment."

"Want to go to work for me?"

"Sure. What doing?"

"I want a couple of men killed."

"It's nice of you to think of me. Things have been pretty dull lately."

"It's the business recession. Everybody's holding off new undertakings."

"Why there's 50,000 gunmen out of work in Chicago alone. Nobody's going ahead on any new killings until after the first of the year."

"Thing'll pick up soon. The country is fundamentally sound. This is no time for hesitation. I predict that during 1930 there will be more murders in America than in 1929. I'm not going to curtail at all. I'm going ahead with my regular program."

"They tell me things are pretty dull in New York, too. A lot of murderers were laid off last week."

"It's a big mistake. Lay off murderers like that and you just drive them out of business. When there's a revival and you want trained hands you can't get 'em."

"I'm sure glad I happened to run into you, sir."

"Well, I've always heard of you as a good, conscientious, willing and industrious fellow. The only question is whether you have had the right sort of experience."

"You don't need to worry about that. I have references from my last employer."

"Ah! Let me read it:

"'To Whom It May Concern:

"'This is to certify that I have employed the bearer and that he has killed anybody I suggested willingly and efficiently.'"

"Not a bad recommendation, eh?"

"It's very good. Consider yourself engaged. Now when will you be able to start working?"

"There's just one little point we'll have to take up first."

"What's that?"

"I'll have to have a contract!"

Olustee Public Library Moved

Special to The Record News

OLUSTEE, Okla., Jan. 1.—Through the courtesy of the Farmers State bank, of which J. I. Dyer is vice president, the New State club library is now occupying the north room of the old Farmers State building. The Holt store housed the library in an upstairs room for many years, free of all charges. After D. R. Holt went out of business he rented the building to the Williams firm and the same courtesy was extended from the new firm which closed business at Olustee and moved their stock to Chillicothe Monday. This is the only public library maintained in Olustee. Subscriptions per year are only $1 and all money received in this way is used to buy new books. The New State club ladies give their services free when serving as librarian. The library of nearly 1,500 books was moved under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Edwards, librarian, and Mrs. G. A. Lightner, chairman of the library committee.

Slanting Board Exercises

A very fine home treatment, which is exceptionally good in cases of constipation, hernia and in adhesions or prolapsus of any of the abdominal organs, is taken with the aid of the slanting board. The board is made in this manner: Procure two smooth boards from a lumber yard. They should be six feet long and one inch thick and 12 inches wide. Place the two boards together side by side and nail two small boards across them, one near the top and one near the bottom. This makes a sort of long table without legs. Now turn the board over so that the crossboards are underneath. Across one end nail an old belt or piece of harness. This should be tacked at either end and the center with enough give in it to allow the feet to slip under, one on each board. The strap end should be placed on the edge of the bed, and the other end on the floor. The board should be covered with a quilt, and a pillow placed on the lower end when taking the exercises. The strap serves to hold the feet in position, and the slant of the board gives them a two or three feet elevation over the head. When finished, this board is six feet long and two feet wide.

In taking the exercises, lie on your back with your feet through the loops of leather at the top of the board. Try to come to a sitting position. You may not be able to do this at first, but at least make the effort, as the effort alone is a good exercise and has a tendency to shake the abdominal organs away from the pelvis, and this allows a free circulation of blood around them which is especially beneficial. If you can, bring yourself up to a sitting position with arms over head. Use this exercise several times until you can do it at least 10 times. After the sitting exercise, lie back on the board and remove one of your feet from the strap, leaving the other one hooked underneath. Now raise one foot over your head. This exercise should also be done about 10 times. Then reverse and use the other foot. Now you can unhook both feet and grab hold of the board with your hands and bring forth both feet directly over your head with legs straight. This exercise should also be done about 10 times, but do not attempt to do the exercise too many times at first, but begin with three and increase the number of times each day as you become stronger.

A good place to keep the board is under your bed so it will be convenient to use. Whether you are troubled with constipation or with a hernia, it is a good practice to use these exercises two or three times daily, producing great benefit in any case where any of the abdominal organs, such as the intestine, womb or stomach has prolapsed. In many cases, even where adhesions have formed, this exercise, if used continually, will result in a loosening of the adhesions and improvement of the entire functioning of the abdominal organs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Hypererythrocythemia

Question—O. M. writes: "My doctor tells me there is nothing that can cure hypererythrocythemia, from which I am suffering, as the cause is not known. What is your advice?"

Answer: Hypererythrocythemia is the name given a condition which exists in certain people where there is an increase in the number of red blood cells over the normal. My researches have shown that such an extra amount of red cells is produced through a definite irritation of the nervous system, including the brain and spinal cord. Such irritation is apparently caused by some simple toxemia, as it can be very easily cured. Out of many cases treated, I have never seen one that did not respond very quickly to a fast of a few days. Have your blood count taken at some responsible laboratory, then stop all food for at least five days (except fruit juice and water) and then have another blood count made. You will find the blood cells reduced to normal, or very close to it. If not quite normal after the five days' fast, continue the fast for a few days more. A correct diet afterwards will prevent any recurrence of the toxemia which is apparently responsible.

Reducing

Question—Mrs. Jay writes: "I have been told that a rolling pin is good for reducing. Another friend says that this method is very injurious. Is it, or is it not? I am 5 feet, 5 inches tall, 32 years old, and weigh 126 pounds. Am I underweight or overweight?"

Answer—The only correct way to reduce is through diet and exercise. Massage with a rolling pin is not very effective, and only tends to break down the cellular structure. Your weight, for your age and height, seems to me to be about normal.

Ralls Crops Harvested Winter Plowing Starts

Special to The Record News

RALLS, Texas, Jan. 1.—Due to favorable weather during the fall the harvesting of crops is practically completed over this section and many of the farmers have begun their winter plowing in preparation for the new crop.

A large percentage of the farmers are terracing their lands this season, also. This is a growing practice despite the fact that the Plains land is practically level. Experiments have shown that terracing is of much benefit, and farm leaders are predicting that more and more terracing will be done each year. One prominent farmer in this trade area who terraced his land last year says that he feels sure that he made at least 50 per cent more cotton by doing so.

Ralls Creamery Moves Into New Building

RALLS, Texas, Jan. 1.—The Crosby County Creamery company of Ralls opened for business yesterday in their new brick and tile structure. The plant is equipped with the latest and most improved machinery.

The first output of the creamery will be butter. It has a daily capacity of 4,000 pounds. They will also retail Bulgarian buttermilk, pasturized whole milk and whipping cream.

Wallace Louther of Hereford, an experienced butter maker, has been employed by the company and is in charge of the butter making.

Officials of the company say that the outlook is very encouraging.

$35,000 Worth of Golf

Two of the main sporting events attached to the month of January belong to golf. And both take place on the west coast.

The first will be the $10,000 Los Angeles open, over the course of the Riviera Country club, running from the 8th to the 12th.

The next will be the $25,000 Agua Caliente open, near Tia Juana, running from Jan. 14 through Jan. 17.

Thirty-five thousand dollars is a somewhat larger pot than the wandering pros have had a chance to shoot at, even with two shots combined. The new Agua Caliente layout topped all past offerings with its $25,000 award, and this will mean some extra concentration on the four and five footers.

These two big tournaments will bring together most of the best professionals in golf—Hagen, Horton Smith, Armour, Farrell, Mac Smith, Golden, Diegel and more than a hundred others—where the scramble for all this cash will be terrific.

It will be interesting to follow the battle of the Smiths at Los Angeles in the first of the two big shows. Mac Smith, the Lakeville veteran, has now won the last two Los Angeles competitions, collecting $3,500 for each performance. Horton Smith will make his leading bid in both tournaments, and he will be the man to beat in each event.

The younger Smith has now won 11 open competitions against strong fields since he climbed into the headlines a year ago, and his recent scoring has been phenomenal.

It will be quite a strain on some of the boys with a chance to win, as they hit the head of the stretch and start looking over putts of four, five and six feet. When from $3,500 to $10,000 rides on a single putt it is no simple matter to suppress the pulses and keep the quivering nerves from doing a flip-flop. Nineteen thirty should be golf's greatest year of competition, and the west coast has done its part in opening the campaign with a rush.

The Hardest Schedule

With the announcement of football schedules for 1930, there is no parade offered yet that carries as many knotty spots as Notre Dame has taken on.

The opening with Southern Methodist, one of the strong teams of the Southwest, is a tip-off. Ray Morrison will have a better team next fall than he had last year, where he ran into a snarl of four tie games. He had to plug up a number of open gaps in 1929, but he will have a stronger nucleus back. The Army and Navy, Southern California and Pittsburgh would be considered a ranking schedule, but in addition to these, Notre Dame has Southern Methodist, Indiana, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, Drake and Northwestern.

One can never tell in advance, but this looks to be the hardest schedule any team ever tackled, with the chance that at least eight of the 10 games will be hard to win.

Notre Dame's biggest loss will come in the middle of the line, where Maynahan, Cannon and Law will be missing. These three were about as fine a center and guard trio as football has ever known. There may have been others as good, but probably no others that were better.

Stricter Handling

There is one point that has to be considered in the fight game, if there is to be any improvement through 1930.

This point is that boxing carries more chiselers, cheaters, connivers, double-crossers and what not than any two other sports. It has to be watched every step of the way, and even the closest watching can't follow all the queer turns that take place.

There will have to be even closer inspection and much heavier penalties imposed for the various offenses that are slipped through. Only the most rugged of all games could have stood up under the barrage thrown against it by at least a majority of those concerned.

The ability of the clients to soak up punishment where most of the leading fighters refuse to do any such thing is one of the wonders of sport.

The Hon. Frank Craven, now starring in John Golden's "Salt Water," is thankful they have shortened the golf jumps for him next season. It is Mr. Craven's quaint custom to see most of the winning strokes played in the major championships. Last year they had him hopping from St. Andrews to Pebble Beach. Next spring and summer he will be called upon to jog only from St. Andrews to Minneapolis.

Among the important changes that have taken place in sport recently is the switch of Rube Goldberg from a left-handed to a right-handed golfer. He will make his first outdoor test at the artists and writers' tournament at Palm Beach later this month, where he expects to break 100 or one of his wrists.

WELSH RIPS UP FORWARD WALL

Grubbs and Geis Work Aerial Game

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

OWNBY STADIUM, DALLAS, Jan. 1.—Gridiron stars of the Mid-West, a husky, hard-driving group, proved superior to the Southwest all-stars in a wild scoring battle here today. The score was 25 to 12.

More than 15,000 excited fans saw the big northern eleven come back to batter across three touchdowns and sew up the decision after the Southwest had unloosed a sharp passing attack to tie the count, 6 to 6, at the half.

There was never much doubt of the outcome once the yellow-jerseyed invaders opened up with their power plays in the second period. Fest Welch, their all-American quarterback, failed to score a touchdown, but he battered the lighter Southwest line to bits all afternoon.

Mid-West Best in Air

The Mid-West turned to the air, the very department at which their opponents were supposed to excel, to score two touchdowns in the third period and take an unpassable lead. Within the short space of five minutes, Herman Young, rangy end from Detroit, snared long passes from Holman and Welch and trotted across the goal line. Rebholtz ran 20 yards for another score in the final quarter, but it was not needed.

Except for their passing attack, with Grubbs of Texas Christian on the throwing end and Geis of Arkansas receiving, the Southwest eleven was more or less helpless. This combination accounted for both of the team's touchdowns. The first was scored late in the second quarter after a march from mid-field, when Grubbs fired a short one to Geis over the goal line. Again in the closing period, Grubbs pegged to Geis who ran 30 yards for the score.

Southwest's Rally

The Southwest made its last valiant attempt to come from behind just as the third period closed. Grubbs went back and heaved to Geis, far down the field, and it looked like a touchdown until Harold Walker, speedy Mid-West back, made a desperate dive to bring the Arkansas star down on the nine-yard mark. The play was wasted, however, as on three successive plays from that point the heavy Mid-West line surged through and smothered Grubbs as he tried to pass.

It took two almost unheralded players, however, Power of Rice and Willis of Centenary college, to grab a lion's share of honors in the Southwest line. The pair were in almost every play, and when the black-thatched Power left the game he was given a great hand.

The opening period was comparatively mild, with neither team able to make a scoring gesture, but the fireworks started soon after the second quarter began.

March for Counter

The Mid-West drew first blood when Walker, who replaced Welch at quarterback, engineered a 48-yard march down the field for a touchdown. Rebholtz finally went over from the one-yard line. The extra point was wide.

It took the Southwest lads only a couple of minutes to tie the count. Hanna paved the way when he recovered a Mid-West fumble at mid-field, and from there Grubbs began firing short passes to Geis, Power and Buster Walker to march down the gridiron. Geis was on his knees over the goal line as he caught the final peg for a touchdown. Hanna missed the point.

Coach Ray Morrison sent in a new Southwest backfield to start the second half, and it proved his team's undoing. The new quartet, as it turned out, knew very little of the art of knocking down passes as Young scored two touchdowns in quick order. The Southwest mentor hastily inserted his original combination, but the horses, as it were, already had been stolen.

Intercepted Pass

Impetus for the winner's final score was given by Gevers, when he intercepted a Southwest aerial, thrown wildly and in desperation on the 50-yard line. All it took to score from there was three plays. Rebholtz ripped off a 15-yard sprint, a pass to Woerner carried to the 20-yard stripe, and Rebholtz then rocketed off a tackle for the remaining distance. Pharmer, left-footer, kicked the only extra point of the melee.

In the matter of first downs there was a big advantage for the winners, 17 to 9. Rebholtz, Gembis, Welch and Walker divided them pretty evenly between them. It is doubtful the Southwest has seen a quartet of harder runners.

Estelline Cagers Invade Childress

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Jan. 1—Fresh from two victories over the Athens national champions of 1929, the fast Estelline Cubs, who went to the semi-finals in the state race last year, will invade the Childress Bobcat lair Wednesday night to get a taste of cat meat. Led by the sensational Whitey Baecus, and ably supported by such stars as Curtis, McCullum and Richburg, the visitors are favored to have little difficulty in downing the Cats. Donald Davis, who won an all-star berth in the district last year while playing with the Carey five, is expected to help captain Boyd of the Bobcats in an effort to turn back the Cubs. Both boys are mean goal tossers. This will be the second meeting of the clubs this year, the Cats having taken a sound thrashing on the Estelline court two weeks ago.

TROJANS ROUT PITT PANTHERS BY 47 TO 14

Coming Year Will Provide Much in Way of International Sports Events

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—The coming year, 1930, will be extraordinary for its international sports features.

There will be a series of yacht races for the American cup, which Sir Thomas Lipton will try once more to lift.

Polo between England and the United States at Meadowbrook for the international cup.

An international horse race, with French and English entries for a $100,000 stake at Arlington park.

Invasion of British links by an American Walker cup team and amateur and professional golfers on an unprecedented scale.

A bout for the heavyweight championship of the world between Jack Sharkey, U. S. A., and probably Max Schmeling of Germany for a $1,000,000 gate.

Davis Cup Competition

America's Davis cup team competing in the European zone for first time, with Bill Tilden and other stars slated for Wimbledon and the French hard court championships.

A number of meetings of sports bodies of international importance are on the 1930 calendar. The International Tennis federation is to meet in Paris in March, when English and American representatives will bring pressure to bear in favor of open tennis championships, with the French strongly opposed.

Later in the year, in June, the International Amateur Athletic federation will hold its biennial meeting in Berlin, to pass upon records created during the two years since the last Olympiad.

Historic Yacht Races

Four yachts are being built to defend the America's cup against the challenge of Lipton, who will send his latest model "Shamrock" to Newport next summer. Between now and then, the boats now on the ways will compete for the honor of representing the United States in this continuation of an historic series of races.

A British challenge for the international cup, trophy of polo rivalry extending back over 40 years, has been accepted. A number of players who will be candidates for the American team are already engaged at indoor polo in the East. Tommy Hitchcock, greatest of modern polo players, Winston Guest and Earl Hopping are likely to be named for the United States side next September.

Big Turf Meet

French and English owners already have agreed to send horses to Arlington park for the first international turf event held in this country since the visits of the great French champion, Epinard.

Bob Jones of Atlanta will head the American team which will defend the Walker cup at Sandwich, Eng., and Bob has his eye upon the British amateur championship for 1930, the one major event of the two countries which he has yet to win. Glenna Collett, national women's titleholder, Maureen Orcutt and other women golfers of the United States may be abroad in quest of links honors at the same time.

Fort Crockett Wins Championship

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 1. (AP)—The Fort Crockett Fliers of Galveston won the football championship of the eighth corps area by defeating the 33rd infantry eleven of Fort Sam Houston, 13 to 7, here today. It was the second meeting of the teams for the title, a previous bout last Saturday having resulted in a tie.

"Red" Lashley, flier fullback, scored both of his team's touchdowns, one a 50-yard pass from "Tut" Inlay and another when he intercepted a doughboy aerial and returned it over the goal line from midfield. The infantrymen did not score until the closing minutes of play, when Lieut. Pete Heffner fired a pass to Leduc over the goal line.

Close team work of the Holliday team won over the Indians who showed the strain of their two week's trip.

In the second contest of the evening the F-H-&-V Travellers of Wichita Falls outclassed their opponents in a free scoring contest which ended 44-30. Howe and Hills scored 23 points for Travellers in the last half of the game. The Travellers will play at Iowa Park Thursday night and at Harrold Saturday night.

50,000 Spectators See Great Struggle

By CARLE H. BENNETT
United Press Staff Correspondent

KEZAR STADIUM, SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1—The battle of all-Americans was won by Jack Cannon, Notre Dame's guard, as Eastern all-stars triumphed over the pick of the West, 19 to 7, in the Shrine benefit game before 50,000 spectators here today.

Two plays in the fourth quarter were characteristic of Cannon's work throughout the game, and Dutch Clark, Colorado's star, was the victim in each case. Once Cannon dashed from the left side of the line, brushing four Westerners from his path and then brought down Clark, who was trying to gain at right end, before the latter could make an inch. Later he rushed a passer and Clark caught the hurried toss.

Clark was brought down from behind by Cannon in an amazing tackle.

Touchdowns on Passes

The East scored touchdowns on a long pass to Hall Bomma of Dartmouth and a line plunge by Willis Glassgow of Iowa. Frosty Peters of Illinois contributed seven points by two field goals and a conversion.

Clair Sloan of Nebraska scored for the West on a line buck and Clark converted.

College Athletics Will Be Purified

By ORLO L. ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—Recognizing the evils of college athletics as set forth in the Carnegie foundation report, the National Collegiate Athletic association today launched a clean-up campaign within its organization.

While no definite and sure workable plan was laid before the delegates from 250 universities and conferences in attendance at the 24th convention, the president was given power to appoint a committee to draw up a practical and promising reform program. The committee will report at the 1930 meeting.

Start Clean-Up

As an immediate measure, however, the college and university presidents and authorities in secondary schools will be urged to start a "quiet, earnest effort" to clean up within their individual institutions. To further this phase of the program the presidents will be asked to acquaint themselves with the contents of the report and pass such knowledge on to the trustees, faculties and alumni.

Approves Report

Approval of the report that shocked the athletic world in the middle of the football season, came at the conclusion of the presentation of the set of resolutions by Dr. Thomas A. Storey of Stanford university. Storey headed a committee composed of O. F. Long, Northwestern; R. G. Clapp, Nebraska; Fred W. Marvel, Brown; M. J. White, Tulane and D. B. Swingle of Montana state.

The association's action on the Carnegie report culminated the quietest meeting in recent years—a meeting that saw the resignation of Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce as president and the election of Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton as presiding officer. In honor of the retiring president, who held the position from its instigation 24 years ago, the office of honorary president was created and Brigadier General Pierce elected for life. Dean Frank W. Nicolson of Wesleyan, Middleton, Conn., was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

D. A. Penick of Texas was named as vice president from the sixth district.

Houston All-Stars Trim Chicago, 32-0

HOUSTON, Jan. 1 (AP)—The Houston all-stars, high school players, defeated the Englewood high school football team of Chicago, Ill., 32 to 0, here today. Badly outweighed and hopelessly outclassed in every department of play, the Englewood team was on the defensive throughout the game.

COAST STARS PROVE GREAT

Panther Satellites Are Stopped

By MAXWELL STILES

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 1. (US)—Today's annual Rose bowl gridiron classic saw the complete rout of what was heralded as one of the two greatest teams in the country, when Southern California's Trojans amazed 70,000 persons with a 47 to 14 victory over the Pittsburgh Panthers.

After the first few minutes of play the game was never in doubt. An aerial attack that had the eastern champions completely baffled was the main reason why Howard Jones' men came through with a victory.

That and the marvelous playing of Russ Saunders, Garrett Arbelbide, Francis Tappaan and Harry Edelson, who played the greatest games of their respective careers.

Harry Edelson played his final game for Troy and left the field in a blaze of glory and amid the whole-hearted cheers of the assembled multitude.

Tappaan Playing

Arbelbide returned to his old form and played a great game at end. He was in on every play and many times sent the Pittsburgh backs crashing backwards. Tappaan proved to all that he deserved the title of all-American end.

For Pittsburgh, MacMurdo, tackle, and Walinchus, halfback, played an outstanding game. With the exception of the first two scores, which were made in his territory, Walinchus played the best game of any man in the Pitt backfield.

MacMurdo was easily the best lineman, outplaying even the all-American Montgomery.

Donchess "Covered" Man

Joe Donchess, rated one of the greatest ends in the country and given all-American rating in every section, failed to live up to his title in today's struggle. The big reason for this was the fact that he was a "covered" man every minute of the game.

Parkinson, another all-American, played a good game as did Montgomery, although the latter did not play the game of which he is rated.

It was U. S. C.'s highly efficient aerial attack that sent the Pitt Panthers down to defeat. The first two touchdowns came as a result of passes. Added to this fumbles gave Pittsburgh a lot of trouble.

The lineup— U. C. S. (47)	Position	PITT (14)

Horton Smith Leads Pack of Pros In Winter Golf Tournament Season

By E. O. TOMLINSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—As the winter golf tournament season nears its close, Horton Smith, the slender and smiling Joplin, Mo., youth, leads the field, even Walter Hagen, his stablemate.

With five big tournaments yet to be run off during the month of January, the percentage of victories among the "big shots" may undergo a change, but at the present time the lanky Missourian stands at the top of the heap. Since the quest of gold and glory began in October, Smith has engaged in five medal play events and has won three and finished runnerup in another.

First he captured the Oregon open; then the Berkeley open. He then took a run over to Honolulu and came in second to Craig Wood. Later journeying to southern California, Smith annexed the Pasadena open. At Pasadena he finished at the top by playing steady, consistent golf and refusing to become ruffled by the closeness of the contest.

Smith's Money Winnings

An idea of Smith's money winnings can be had from statistics of the tournaments staged at Catalina and Pasadena. In these events he collected $1,050, or at the rate of $2.50 per stroke. Hagen was far below him with a mere 16 cents a stroke.

Last year MacDonald Smith proved to be the big money collector, taking away $3,800 as his share of the Los Angeles open alone.

In well informed golfing circles the belief is prevalent that Smith is being groomed by his manager, "Bob" Harlow, to succeed Walter Hagen, who also is under Harlow's wing. "The Haig" has not been showing his old-time form in late matches and many profess to believe that the young Missourian is destined to step into his shoes as the big golfers seem to think that Hagen has not been taking things seriously enough and has not been in condition. Smith, on the other hand, is a carefree young fellow who keeps in excellent trim.

Most of the prominent golfers of the country are here perfecting their game for the three remaining big money tournaments to be run off in January. These are the $30,000 open at Long Beach, Jan. 3; the Los Angeles $10,000 open, Jan. 10, and the $25,000 Agua Caliente open, Jan. 14.

Razorbacks Go on Long Tour to Play Cage Games

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 1. (UP)—The Arkansas university Razorbacks went through their last workout here today before leaving Thursday for Springfield, Mo., where they will meet Drury college in the first of five basket ball games to be played in Missouri and Kansas during the next six days.

The team has been working out twice daily for the past three days in preparation for their annual pre-conference barnstorming tour.

While on the trip they will play Drury at Springfield, Jan. 2; St. Louis university at St. Louis, Jan. 3; Springfield teachers at Springfield, Jan. 4; and Kansas State Teachers at Pittsburg, Kan., Jan. 6-7.

HACKMAN LEADS TEAM'S ATTACK

Blue Eleven Defeats Cardinals, 21-12

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1. (AP)—A slim phantom-like halfback, Buddy Hackman of Tennessee, flashed brilliantly across the gridiron here today to lead the Blue eleven from the northern division of the Southern conference to a decisive 21-12 victory over the Cardinals squad of the South in the Shrine charity game at Grant field.

An estimated crowd of 20,000 attended the contest, the proceeds from which go to four crippled children's hospitals in Dixie.

The elusive Hackman, a dangerous threat whenever he handled the ball, scored all of the Blue's three touchdowns. Two of his goalward jaunts resulted from rifle-like passes from his Tennessee teammate, Bobby Dodd. His other scoring venture followed a 44-yard off-tackle run through the entire Cardinal team.

After being held scoreless for three periods, the Southern Cardinals finally mustered a 40-yard touchdown drive early in the last quarter, with Dunlap of Georgia Tech, substitute for McEwen of Florida, slipping over center for the counter. Another march late in the period, this time for 70 yards, climaxed by a 22-yard pass over the goal line from Dunlap to Jones, Georgia Tech end, gave them their last score.

The heralding big guns of both squads were effectively silenced. Gene McEver of Tennessee, who led the nation in scoring the past season; "Shipwreck" Kelly of Kentucky, and Warner Mizell and Stumpy Thomason of Georgia Tech were stopped with little gain. A red haired will o' the wisp, LeRoy Bethea of Florida, substitute for Mizell, showed the way to the Cardinals, gaining 79 yards in 17 attempts.

King Tut Defeats Cleveland Boxer

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 1. (UP)—King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight, won a technical knockout decision today from Billy Wallace of Cleveland, who was unable to answer the bell in the eighth of their 10-round bout.

Tut had the edge throughout the match, knocking Wallace down for nine counts in the first and sixth rounds.

In a semi-final match, Willy Brignola, of Boston, knocked out Tony Mandell of Rockford in the third of a five-round bout.

JACOBS TAKES TENNIS TITLE

"Dark Horse" Sensation Fizzles Out

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—In a dramatic five-set struggle, Billy Jacobs of Baltimore City college today won the national junior indoor tennis championships by conquering the "dark horse" sensation of the tournament, Lanky John Richardson of Dartmouth. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The national boys indoor championship went to a little New York stylist, Marcus Hecht of Dewitt Clinton High school. Defeating Bernard Friedman of West Philadelphia High school in straight sets 6-3, 6-2, Hecht gained the honors formerly held but not defended by Kendall Cram of Nashville, Tenn.

Frankie Parker of the Milwaukee Country Day school and Giles Vestraten of the McBurney school, New York, won the boys' doubles final, defeating Friedman and Hecht at 7-5, 6-3.

In junior doubles the honors went to Sandy Davenport and Richard Downing of the West Side Tennis club who turned back Donald Frame, Harvard, and Fred Roll, Mercersburg Academy, 6-4, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5.

Marked by thrilling rallies and counter rallies, the junior singles final had the small gallery of 200 fans on the edge of their seats from the moment in the third set when Richardson began to make a fight out of it.

California Cagers To Play Jayhawks

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 1. (UP)—The roaming Bears of the University of California will paw over the University of Kansas Jayhawkers for better or for worse in an intersectional basket ball opener in Convention hall here Thursday and Friday nights.

The Californians—traveling approximately 3,000 miles to play five games within a week—were limbering up today in the hope of again turning back the Kansas five which they routed last year.

The California-Kansas games were expected to attract crowds of 7,000 fans in the big arena here, for the Kansans hold an enviable record in middlewest basket ball performance.

The teams are tutored by two outstanding basket ball mentors—Dr. Forrest C. (Phog) Allen of Kansas and "Nibs" Price of California, noted as both a football and basket ball strategist.

There are nine women students in the law school at the University of Texas.

MARKETS

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 1. (AP)—(USDA)—Moderate activity developed around the 11-market circuit on the better grade of light weight steers and yearlings, at firm to 25c higher prices but otherwise no material changes were registered in cattle values. Packers continued rather indifferent toward short fed steers with weight. Chicago scored $16 on choice 850 pound yearlings and secured $15.35 for highly finished 1228 pound steers. Yearling heifers at both Kansas City and Chicago made $14. Most classes of replacement stock are finding a fairly broad outlet with the in-between grade of steers in selling at prices materially higher than in November. Receipts were estimated at 10,525.

Hogs found a moderately active outlet at prices unevenly steady to 15c higher than Tuesday's average market. The day's extreme top of $9.75 was paid both at Chicago and St. Louis for choice light weights. Underweights at most points were in broad demand with choice lots to St. Louis cashing up to $9.75. Offerings were around 50,800.

Sheep supply approximated 14,600 which is 27,000 short of the same day a year ago. Fat lambs were unevenly steady to 25c higher while matured classes ruled fully steady. Choice light weight fed wooled lambs in Chicago brought $13.50 and at Kansas City $13.15 was secured for choice shorn lambs at desirable weight.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 1. (AP)—Cattle trading here today held about steady. Truck hogs were steady, with a top of $9.25. Sheep and lambs were steady with yesterday's levels.

In the cattle division, steer receipts included 10 car loads that sold up to $9.50. Plain cattle dominated the supply. Best bulls sold at $8.00. The best slaughter yearlings brought $10.75. Calves in carlots sold up to $11.25.

No good rail hogs were offered. The best truck offerings sold at $9.25. The bulk brought from $9.00 to $9.25. Sows sold at $8.00.

Fat lambs brought $12.00 and yearlings $10.00. Fat wethers sold at $7.50.

MUCH BUILDING IN FREDERICK

1929 Permits Excel Those Of Previous Year

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 1.—The year 1929 will go down in history as one of the best if not the best year from a building standpoint that Frederick ever enjoyed. Records in the office of Lum Lemonds, chief of the fire department show building permits totaled $340,486.25, compared with $241,065 for the year before. The Hotel Frederick was largely responsible for the high figure as it alone was $158,000.

Other business buildings were the J. C. Penney store, $15,500; Ramona theater, $15,000; brick building erected by A. H. Krause for the Witt grocery store, $7,500; brick building erected by J. D. Nicholson on West Grand avenue, $10,000.

A fourth story was added to the First Baptist church at a cost of $10,000.

A number of beautiful residences were built including a brick for J. E. McConnell on North Eleventh street. Several of the new structures are of brick or rock veneer.

Net Gain in Gold Reduced in December

NEW YORK, Jan. 1. (AP)—The New York federal reserve bank reported today the country's net loss in gold in December was $90,800,000, reducing the net gain for 1929 from $228,100,000 at the end of October to $115,000,000 at the end of December. The November loss was about $23,000,000.

Exports last month, said the bank's monthly business review, totaled $72,200,000, of which $47,000,000 went to France and $21,000,000 to England. Gold earmarked for foreign account increased $22,000,000. The December reduction in the monetary gold stock was the largest for any month since May, 1928.

DAVIS TO LEAD 'RADIO CHURCH'

Kentucky Evangelist Heads Broadcast Services

Rev. Albert E. Davis, evangelist of Wilmore, Ky., will have charge of the services for "The Church of the Air," for 1930, to be given each morning during the week except Sunday from 10 to 11:15 o'clock it was announced Wednesday. The program is broadcast each Sunday over station KGKO.

Musical talent from the various local churches and surrounding country has been secured for the services. Mrs. George Thorburn of the Floral Heights Methodist church will be the soloist for each Wednesday morning and Mrs. Lonnie B. Keeter of Temple, Okla., will sing for the Tuesday service. For the Sunday services which will be held from 4 to 5 o'clock, R. E. Shepherd will sing.

This unusual church was organized by Rev. Paul Henry Packard who carried it forward with great success for several months. The Rev. Mr. Davis stated that it is his wish that all the churches cooperate with "The Church of the Air" and assures the public that there will be no abusing of other religious organizations. Rev. Mr. Davis has had wide experience in the evangelistic field and has received much worthy comment upon the reception of the services.

Mrs. Harriet M. Davis, wife of the pastor will have charge of the children's hour which will be conducted on Saturday morning.

Luncheon Honors New C.-C. Manager

The officers and executive committee of the Junior chamber of commerce will welcome John Boswell, new chamber of commerce manager, at a luncheon at the Wichita club at noon on Thursday. J. W. Chatham, retiring as acting manager, will be a guest of honor. In the course of the meeting Walter Nelson Jr., 1929 head of the Junior chamber, will formally place the leadership of the group in the hands of Jerry Vinson, newly elected president.

Paul Hines, chairman of the membership committee, will present to the executive committee the recommendations of his committee on plans for the coming membership drive, to be launched at a luncheon Friday.

The inauguration of the campaign, in which 300 old and 100 new members are sought, will be marked by the first of the semi-monthly meetings of the Junior chamber. Around 100 members and workers are expected to gather in the main dining room of the Kemp hotel at noon on Friday. After the business problems have been disposed, the group will be entertained by Frank Byrd's Bluebirds, KGKO orchestra, and by Charlie Johnson, novelty entertainer. Luther Hoffman has been assigned a 15-minute address. The program is under the direction of C. A. Spragins and Joe Richker.

Dallas Store Robbed By Two Armed Men

DALLAS, Jan. 1. (AP)—Two armed men here today bound and robbed the proprietor and an employe of a dry goods store of $150. David Rosenblatt was alone in his store when the pair entered. His hands and feet were tied with wire, and when his brother, Nathan, employe, returned from lunch, the latter also was bound.

Tossed and Tumbled in Her Bed at Night

Plainview Housewife Had Suffered For Year; Orgatone Overcomes Troubles

"I am now convinced that Orgatone is the medicine to put a person in normal condition. I had been going downhill for a long time, and up until I found the medicine I was just about at my wits' end to get something to help me. I have taken one bottle of it so far, and I've gained wonderfully in health, and can now do my work with great satisfaction," said Mrs. J. C. Homan, 1714 West Eleventh street, Plainview, Texas, while talking to the Orgatone representative a few days ago.

"I was completely rundown," continued Mrs. Homan, "and I had no life or energy at all. I couldn't sleep I was so nervous, and when I'd get up in the morning I'd feel tired and all out of sorts. I didn't have any appetite, and the little I did eat didn't do me any good, and my health just went from bad to worse.

"My nerves were shattered, and everything would worry me, and I'd just poke around. To tell you the truth I was just worn out. I got very weak and nothing did me any good. I tried different kinds of medicines, trying to find something that would relieve me, but I'm glad to say Orgatone is the only thing that helped me.

"I got a bottle at the South Plains Drug store, and I'm here to tell you it can't be beat. After I had been taking it a day or two I could see that I was gaining ground. My old troubles began to leave me, and I could just feel new life and energy coming back to me.

"All that rundown feeling has left me now, and I give Orgatone all the credit for it. I sleep fine and get up in the morning feeling good and can go about my household duties just like there had never been anything the matter with me. Those terrible headaches that used to almost run me crazy are a thing of the past. All that nervousness is gone, and I just feel good all the time.

"Yes, sir, you certainly can publish my statement, and I am only too glad that you will, for I know that if other people will take Orgatone there'll be half as much sickness as there is. This medicine has my best endorsement."

At the Theaters

By FRED D. THOMPSON

STRAND: Jack Holt in "Flight," all-talking drama of the air.
MAJESTIC: Helen Kane in "Pointed Heels."
OLYMPIC: "Desert Rider," with Tim McCoy.
GEM: "Two Weeks Off," with Dorothy Mackaill.

Well, well, Eddie Roberts, mentioned before in this department as "the boy who introduced the tuxedo to the theater business" in Austin, Texas, and who was due to arrive here last week alighted here Wednesday, and at a late hour Wednesday night the theater managers here were still snapping out of it, because Eddie is a Big Boy in the Publix realm, and is connected with the New York office.

◇ ◇ ◇

He came here to visit his sister, Mrs. Daisy Almond, and was due to depart hence Wednesday night.

◇ ◇ ◇

Well, we guess the proper thing to say is "I knew him when," which, in fact, we did when he was theater manager at the Majestic in Austin. Fact is we knew him dern well, since he compiled the weekly payroll, on which our name was emblazoned.

◇ ◇ ◇

We all thought a great deal of Eddie after he got over the foolish notion of wearing a tuxedo to work, and we all took pride in the fact that he didn't wear spats.

◇ ◇ ◇

Well, to alleviate the trembling of the local theater managers at having a Big Guy come to town, we'll tell a little joke on Eddie, or rather on ourselves. When he got promoted to the frosted-glass-door office in N. Y. all us boys in the show thought we'd kick in and buy him a present. We bought an expensive set of the works of Anatole France, which was so beautiful that we, for one, hated to see it go to just a theater manager.

◇ ◇ ◇

Well, Eddie was overjoyed, and penned a tearful letter saying how sorry he was to leave such a loyal bunch.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then us boys started figuring out howinell we were going to pay for those books.

◇ ◇ ◇

It went on for six months, and they were only half paid for. Then the book store billed the Majestic theater for them. The new manager tore his hair and wouldn't pay the bill, saying—oh, well, a whole lot of mean things.

◇ ◇ ◇

Meanwhile we had learned how to operate a typewriter, and had gone to work as a scribe, and so far as we know Eddie's gift still has a string on it, and a pretty dern long one too.

◇ ◇ ◇

But don't blame the donors. If they didn't have the money they had the sperrit, and the sperrit of the thing is what counts, according to Martin Luther, the Salvation Army, and all allied interests.

◇ ◇ ◇

It appears from the public prints that a show called "Rio Rita" is coming here for the benefit of the public at large next Friday, at the Strand. All the nightowls, and those kind of people who believe New Year's night should be celebrated by staying up backfiring their automobiles, saw the show at a preview Tuesday night. Now, kind reader, we can go in peace, and not have such people at our elbow.

◇ ◇ ◇

They say it's a grand show, but those who say it are generally those nightowlish ones—who, by the way, have already started miserablizing my existence by humming the theme song—and the theater managers, who naturally would believe the show great.

◇ ◇ ◇

Now between younme, I'm not going to believe any of them, but I'm going to see myself, with an aloof and critical mind.

◇ ◇ ◇

Bob Euler, Strand manager, said he was in Brownsville when they were getting ready to shoot some of the Texas scenes. He also recalls that John Boles, formerly of Greenville, Texas, and Bebe Daniels, formerly of Dallas, are the stars in the show, and he coined the phrase, "A Texas show starring Texans."

◇ ◇ ◇

Bob, you ought to be the composer of patent medicine labels. Your titles would cure the world, be the medicine only milk and water.

"Now I sit me down," writes in R. S. J., "lift my pencil to my mouf, and write you a piano solo on mine typewriter.

"A few days ago, after a total abstinence from reading AT THE THEATERS, I was struck with the humor embodied in the first paragraf. Well, you remember that famous speech of someone, while at some place or other, at a certain time or other, to this effect: 'I came, I saw, I conquered.' Now, ain't that one hot comparison? Ennyway, what I mean to say is that from then on I started reading that column again . . ."

◇ ◇ ◇

Thanks for your painfully written and misspelled compliments, R. S. J., but this department long ago steered due north-northeast from complimentary letters signed by initials. A name is a name, but an initial, or a set thereof, is an indication that somebody's trying to kid the critic.

◇ ◇ ◇

And you wouldn't do that, would you?

CONVICTS HAVE ANNUAL SHOW

San Quentin Inmates Have Amusement Treat

SAN QUENTIN STATE PRISON, Calif., Jan. 1. (INS)—Three thousand San Quentin convicts, men and women, today witnessed the annual New Year's theatrical performance, their lone amusement "treat" of the year.

Nearly a hundred actors from the San Francisco bay region, banded together by Harry Ettling of San Francisco, contributed their services for the show.

The three-hour show was concluded shortly before noon and was followed by a special New Year's day dinner, which featured pork sausages, mashed potatoes, apple pie and nuts.

A thousand men prisoners declined to attend the theatrical performance and loafed in the prison yard during the morning.

Crime Study Not Solely Concerned With Prohibition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. (UP)—Assurances that President Hoover's law enforcement commission is not considering the "wisdom or unwisdom" of the 18th amendment, but is dealing only with improved enforcement, was given the drys today by one of their senate leaders, Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, author of the "five-and-ten" law.

Jones thus blasted hopes of wets and calmed fears of drys in a statement, one of the most important in the renewed prohibition controversy, which he issued after conferences with commission members.

"I am glad to learn, he said, "that the commission is unanimous that the wisdom or unwisdom of the 18th amendment is not involved in their work. That it is a part of the constitution and that the function of the commission is to devise the best means possible for its enforcement."

The commission thus will not go beyond the law. Jones did not mention the Volstead act, which carries out the 18th amendment by fixing the one-half of one per cent alcoholic content, but his statement was taken as closing the door upon any recommendations by the commission for its modification.

The senate dry leaders assured drys further that the commission already has made one report to the president, that it will issue others soon, and that it expects to finish its prohibition work by July at the latest, though it may be before that time.

Attempt to Blow Up Rail Bridge Probed

ENID, Okla., Jan. 1. (UP)—An attempt to wreck a Frisco railroad passenger train by blowing up a railway bridge east of here was under investigation by police and railway officials here tonight.

The blast, which only partially wrecked the structure, occurred last night shortly after the train from Tulsa had passed. Three spectators to the explosion said they saw an automobile leave the bridge shortly before the train moved over it.

Delinquency Charge Filed Against Girl Who Accused Youth of Attack

Delinquency charges were filed Wednesday afternoon against the 17-year-old complaining witness in the recent trial of Art Hobbs on a criminal assault indictment. The complaint, filed by Louis V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, was signed by the girl's father who claims that he is unable to control her or to keep her at home. Mr. Abernathy said Wednesday that the county would seek to have her sent to an institution in Dallas. The trial will be held before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court on Saturday morning of this week.

The young woman, who married shortly after the alleged assault, has obtained a divorce, Mr. Abernathy was informed. In her testimony given at the time of the trial and while she was still married, the girl described a wild party in which four young people took part along a creek bottom on the outskirts of Wichita Falls. She was 16 years old at the time of the alleged episode, she told the court.

Primo de Rivera Expected to Keep Post While Yet

MADRID, Jan. 1. (AP)—Circles close to King Alfonso today expressed belief that General Primo de Rivera, Spanish premier-dictator, will not resign just now, and assert that King Alfonso already privately has expressed his confidence in him with regard to the political transformation contemplated.

These quarters also said the royal sanction officially would be forthcoming within a few days and that alarming rumors current here and abroad were based on misinformation.

With the premier, however, mute on the subject the rumors persisted today that he would soon quit the helm of the Spanish ship of state he assumed after a bloodless coup in September, 1923. These latter rumors came from sources usually considered well informed.

The widespread assumption is that the premier's plan presented to the king deals with the general idea of substituting some time another form of government for Primo's dictatorship, restoring the constitution and calling elections for some time in 1930.

These elections presumably would be municipal councils, the provincial legislatures and the national assembly of some new parliament to replace the present national assembly.

If the king expresses confidence in Primo it is assumed there will be no present change in the government. On the other hand if the king considers it at present opportune for Primo to resign, it is believed the resignation of the government will quickly follow.

With all the rumors, however, Madrid was still in the dark as to whether the premier will resign, what new government will succeed if he does, when and how the end of the dictatorship will come if the present reports that Primo may quit are not realized and what was the character of Primo's "transcendental plan" which he says he had presented to the king.
